This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world’s books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that’s often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book’s long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google’s system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google “watermark” you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can’t offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book’s appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

The aim in the selection of the plays in this volume has been twofold: first, to present typical examples of the work of the most important of Shakespeare's contemporaries, so that, read with Shakespeare's own writings, they might afford a view of the development of the English drama through its most brilliant period; secondly, to present, as far as it was possible in one volume, the most distinguished plays of that period, regarded merely from the point of view of their intrinsic value. It is clear that these two purposes could not always be perfectly combined; but it is hoped that each has been in good measure achieved without undue sacrifice of the other, and that the interests of the academic student and the general reader have been fairly harmonized.

In the treatment of the text, the same principles have been followed as in the editor's edition of Shakespeare's works in the Cambridge Poets Series. Each play has been printed from the most authentic text accessible, and emendations have been adopted sparingly. Modern stage directions, and divisions into scenes and acts which do not appear in the original editions, have been distinguished by square brackets; modern notes of place at the beginning of scenes have been relegated to the footnotes; and indications given by the early copies of the authors' intentions with regard to the reading of the metre have been carefully preserved, especially in the matter of elided vowels. It is probable that, in the case of most of the present plays, the final -ed of verbs was intended to be pronounced as a separate syllable whenever it is spelled in full. The spelling and punctuation have been modernized throughout, except when the older spelling implied a different pronunciation.

The footnotes give the most important variant readings, and explanations of obsolete expressions; and the Additional Notes at the end of the volume supply information with regard to the circumstances of publication, date, and sources of each play. In accordance with the plan of the Chief Poets Series, to which the volume belongs, there have been added concise biographical sketches and a selected bibliography of the dramatic work of each author. In view of the full bibliographies printed recently in Professor Schelling's Elizabethan Drama and in The Cambridge History of English Literature, vols. v and vi, it has not seemed advisable to attempt to give exhaustive bibliographies at the expense of reducing the number of dramas. All collected editions of the dramatists concerned are, however, mentioned; all separate editions of the plays here printed; a complete list of each author's dramas, with the dates of the original editions; and a selection of the more important critical and biographical articles and books. Attention may also be called to the complete index of all the dramatis personae who have speaking parts, and to the index of songs.

In the selection of the thirty plays to be included I have received valuable advice from many friends and colleagues on the faculties of many colleges and universities; so many that a complete acknowledgment would be impracticable, a partial one invidious. For all such help I am deeply grateful. I have also received courtesies from the authorities of the Boston Public Library, the Boston Athenaeum, and the Harvard College Library, which have enabled me to add to the authority of my texts by a first-hand collation of a number of the original quartos.

Printing from so great a variety of sources and from so many different authors, I have found it difficult to preserve perfect uniformity of treatment, and have doubtless at times failed of accuracy. Any corrections which may occur to students of the Elizabethan drama who use the volume will be warmly welcomed.

THE PROLOGUE

Most high and happy Princess, we must tell you a tale of the Man in the Moon, which, if it seem ridiculous for the method, or superfluous for the matter, or for the means incredible, for three faults we can make but one excuse: it is a tale of the Man in the Moon.

It was forbidden in old time to dispute of Chimera because it was a fiction: we hope in our times none will apply pastimes, because they are fancies; for there liveth none under the sun that knows what to make of the Man in the Moon. We present neither comedy, nor tragedy, nor story, nor anything but that whoever heareth may say this: Why, here is a tale of the Man in the Moon.

ACT I

SCENE I.

[Enter] ENDYMION and EUMENIDES.

Endymion, I find, Eumenides, in all things his variety to content, and satiety to glut, saving only in my affections, which are so staid, and withal so stately, that I can neither satisfy my heart with love, nor mine eyes with wonder. My thoughts, Eumenides, are stitched to the stars, which being as high as I can see, thou mayest imagine how much higher they are than I can reach.

Eum. If you be enamoured of anything above the moon, your thoughts are ridiculous, for that things immortal are not subject to affections; if allured or enchanted with these transitory things under the moon, you show yourself senseless to attribute such lofty titles to such [low] trifles.

End. My love is placed neither under the moon nor above.

Scene II.²

[Enter] Teellus and Floscula.

Teellus. Treacherous and most perjured Endymion, is Cynthia the sweetness of thy life and the bitterness of my death? What revenge may be devised so full of shame as my thoughts are replenished with malice? Tell me, Floscula, if falseness in love can possibly be punished with extremity of hate. As long as sword, fire, or poison may be hired, no traitor to my love shall live unrevenged. Were thy oaths without number, thy kisses without measure, thy sighs without end, forged to deceive a poor credulous virgin, whose simplicity had been worth thy favour and better fortune? If the gods sit unequal beholders of injuries, or laughers at lovers' deceits, then let mischief be as well for-given in women as perjury winked at in men.

Flos. Madam, if you would compare the state of Cynthia with your own, and the height of Endymion his thoughts with the meanness of your fortune, you would rather yield than [contend, being between you and her no comparison; and rather wonder than rage at the greatness of his mind, being affected with a thing more than mortal.

Teel. No comparison, Floscula? And why so? Is not my beauty divine, whose body is decked with fair flowers, and veins are vixens, yielding sweet liquor to the duldest spirits whose ears are corn, to bring strength; and whose hairs are grass, to bring abundance? Doth not frankincense and myrrh breathe out of my nostrils, and all the sacrifice of the gods breed in my bowels? Infinite are my creatures, without which neither thou, nor Endymion, nor any, could love or live.

Flos. But know you not, fair lady, that Cynthia governeth all things? Your grapes would be but dry husks, your corn but chaff, and all your virtues vain, were it not Cynthia that preserveth the one in the bud and nourisheth the other in the blade, and by her influence both comforteth all things, and by her authority commandeth all creatures. Suffer, then, Endymion to follow his affections, though to obtain her be impossible, and let him flatter himself in his own imaginations, because they are immortal.

Teel. Loath I am, Endymion, thou shouldst die, because I love thee well; and that thou shouldst live, it grieveth me, because thou lovest Cynthia too well. In these extremities, what shall I do? Floscula, no more words; I am resolved. He shall neither live nor die.

Flos. A strange practice, if it be possible.

Teel. Yes, I will entangle him in such a sweet net that he shall neither find the means to come out, nor desire it. All allurements of pleasure will I cast before his eyes, insomuch that he shall shackle that love which he now voweth to Cynthia, and burn in mine, of which he seemeth careless. In this languishing, between my amorous devices and his own loose desires, there shall such distasteful thoughts take rest in his head, and over his heart grow so thick a skin, that neither hope of preferment, nor fear of punishment, nor counsel of the wisest, nor [as company of the worthiest, shall alter his humour, nor make him once to think of his honour.

Flosc. A revenge incredible, and, if it may be, unnatural.

Telles. He shall know the malice of a wo-[me] in me; he shall have neither mean nor end; and of a woman dandied in love to have never rule nor reason. I can do it; I must; I will! All his virtues will I shadow with vices; his person (ah, sweet person!) shall he deck with such rich robes as he shall forget it is his own person; his sharp wit (ah, wit too sharp that hath cut off all my joys!) shall he use in flattering of my face and devising sonnets in my favour. The prime of his youth and pride of his time shall be spent [in melancholy passions, careless behaviour, un- tamed thoughts, and unbridled affections.

Flosc. When this is done, what then? Shall it continue till his death, or shall he dote for- ever in delight?

Telles. Floscule, thou rendest my heart in sunder, putting me in remembrance of the end.

Flosc. Why, if this be not the end, all the rest is to no end.

Telles. Yet suffer me to imitate Juno, who would turn Jupiter's lovers to beasts on the earth, though she knew afterwards they should be stars in heaven.

Flosc. Affection that is bred by enchant-ment is like a flower that is wrought in silk, — in colour and form most like, but nothing at all in substance or savour.

Telles. It shall suffice me if the world talk that I am favoured of Endymion.

Flosc. Well, use your own will; but you shall find that love gotten with witchcraft is as unpleasant as fish taken with medicines 'unwholesome.

Telles. Floscule, they be so poor that [to they have neither net nor hook will rather poison dough than pine with hunger; and she that is so oppressed with love that she is neither able with beauty nor wit to obtain her friend, will rather use unlawful means than try in- tolerable pains. I will do it.

Flosc. Then about it. Poor Endymion, what traps are laid for thee because thou honourest one that all the world wond'rest at! And what plots are cast to make thee unfortunate that 1[15] studiast of all men to be the faithfulest! Exit.

Scene III.

[Enter] Dares and Samias.

Dares. Now our masters are in love up to the ears, what have we to do but to be knavery up to the crowns?

Samias. Oh, that we had Sir Tophas, that brave squire, in the midst of our mirth, — et [see autos, "Will you see the Devil"]—

Enter Sir Tophas [and Epiton].

Top. Epi!

Epi. Here, sir.

Top. I brook not this idle humour of love; it tickleth not my liver, from whence the love-[to mongers in former ages seemed to infer they should proceed.

Epi. Love, sir, may lie in your lungs,—and I think it doth, and that is the cause you blow and are so pursey.

Top. Tush, boy, I think it but some device of the poet to get money.

Epi. A poet? What's that?

Top. Dost thou not know what a poet is?

Epi. No.

Top. Why, fool, a poet is as much as one should say — a poet. [Noticing Darks and Samias.] But soft, yonder be two wenches; shall I shoot at them?

Epi. They are two lads.

Top. Larks or wenches, I will kill them.

Epi. Larks! Are you blind? They are two little boys.

Top. Birds or boys, they are both but a pittance for my breakfast; therefore have at [to them, for their brains must as it were embroider my bote.]

Sam. Stay your courage, valiant knight, for your wisdom is so weary that it stsateth itself.

Dar. Why, Sir Tophas, have you for-[to gotten your old friends?

Top. Friends? Negò argùmentum.

Sam. And why not friends?

Top. Because amicitia (as in old annals we find) is inter partes. Now, my pretty com-panions, you shall see how unequal you be to me; but I will not cut you quite off, you shall be my half-friends for reaching to my middle; so far as from the ground to the waist I will be your friend.

Dar. Learnedly. But what shall become of the rest of your body, from the waist to the crown?

Top. My children, quod supra vos nihil ad vos; you must think the rest immortal, be-[to cause you cannot reach it.

Epi. Nay, I tell ye my master is more than a man.

Dar. And thou less than a mouse.

Top. But what be you two?

Sam. I am Samias, page to [Eumenides].

Dar. And I Dares, page to [Endymion].

Top. Of what occupation are your masters?

Dar. Occupation, you clown! Why, they are honourable and warriors.

Top. Then are they my prentices.

Dar. Thine! And why so?

Top. I was the first that ever devised war, and therefore by Mars himself given me for my arms a whole armory; and thus I go, as you [to see, clothed with artillery. It is not silks, mIlks, nor tissues, nor the fine wool of Seres, 4 but iron, steel, swords, flame, shot, terror, clamour, blood, and ruin, that rocks asleep my thoughts, which never had any other cradle but cruelty. Let me see, do you not bleed?

Dar. Why so?

Top. Commonly my words wound.

Sam. What then do your blows?

Top. Not only [wound], but also confound.

Sam. How darest thou come so near thy master, Epi? Sir Tophas, spare us.

Top. You shall live:—you, Samias, because you are little; you, Dares, because you are no bigger; and both of you, because you are but [as two; for commonly I kill by the dozen, and have for every particular adversary a peculiar weapon.

Sam. May we know the use, for our better skill in war?

Top. You shall. Here is a bird-bolt for the [ugly beast the blackbird.

Dar. A cruel sight.

Top. Here is the muket for the untamed or, as the vulgar sort term it, the wild mallard.

Sam. O desperate attempt!

Edi. Nay, my master will match them.

Dar. Ay, if he catch them.

Top. Here is a spear and shield, and both may be the weapon to conquer, the other to subdue or overcome the terrible trout, which al- [though he be under the water, yet lying a string to the top of my spear and an engine of iron to the end of my line, I overthrow him, and then herein I put him.

Sam. O wonderful war! [Aside.] Dares, [as] didst thou ever hear such a dole?

Dar. [Aside.] All the better; we shall have good sport hereafter, if we can get leisure.

Sam. [Aside.] Leisure! I will rather lose my master’s service than his company! Look [as how he trattles. [To Sir Tophas.] But what is this? Call you it your sword?

Top. No, it is my simitar; which I, by construction often studying to be compendious, call my smiter.

Dar. What, are you also learned, sir?

Top. Learned? I am all Mars and Ars.

Sam. Nay, you are all mass and aest.

Top. Mock you me? You shall both suffer, yet with such weapons as you shall make choice [as of the weapon wherewith you shall perish. Am I all a mass or lump; is there no proportion in me? Am I all ase; is there no wit in me? Epi, prepare them to the slaughter.

Sam. I pray, sir, hear us speak! We call [you mass, which your learning doth well understand is all man, for mass, mora is a man. Then [as you know] it is a weight, and we for your virtues account you a weight.

Top. The Latin hath saved your lives, the [as which a world of silver could not have ransom’d. I understand you, and pardon you.

Dar. Well, Sir Tophas, we bid you farewell, and at our next meeting we will be ready to do you services.

Top. Samias, I thank you: Dares, I thank you: but especially I thank you both.

Sam. [Aside.] Wisely. Come, next time we’ll have some pretty gentlewomen with us to walk, for without doubt with them he will be very dainty.

Dar. Come, let us see what our masters do; it is high time.

Exeunt [Samius and Daros.]

Top. Now will I march into the field, where, if I cannot encounter with my foes, I will withdraw myself to the river, and there fortify for fish, for there resteth no minute free from fight.

Exeunt [Sir Tophas and Epton.]

Scene IV.

[Enter at one side] Floscola and Tellus, [at the other] Dipsas.

Tellus. Behold, Floscola, we have met with the woman by chance that we sought for by travel. I will break my mind to her without ceremony or circumstance, lest we lose that time in advice that should be spent in execution.

Flos. Use your discretion; I will in this case neither give counsel nor consent, for it cannot be a thing more monstrous than to force affection by sorcery, neither do I imagine it anything more impossible.

Tellus. Nay, Floscola, in obtaining of love, what impossibilities will I not try? And for the winning of Endymion, what impetities will I not practise? Dipsas, whom as many honour for age as wonder at for cunning, listen in few words to my tale, and answer in one word to the purpose, for that neither my burning desire can afford long speech, nor the short time I have to stay many delays. Is it possible by herbs, stones, spells, incantation, enchantment, exorcisms, fire, metals, planets, or any practice, to plant affection where it is not, and to supplant it where it is?

Dipsas. Fair lady, you may imagine that these hoary hairs are not void of experience, nor the great name that goeth of my cunning to be without cause. I can darken the sun by my skill and remove the moon out of her course; I can restore youth to the aged and make [as hills without bottoms; there is nothing that I cannot do but that only which you would have me do: and therein I differ from the gods, that I am not able to rule hearts; for were it in my power to place affection by appointment, I would make such evil appetites, such inordinate lusts, such cursed desires, as all the world should be filled both with superstitious heats and extreme love.

Tellus. Unhappy Tellus, whose desires are so desperate that they are neither to be conceived of any creature, nor to be cured by any art!

Dipsas. This I can: breed slackness in love, though never root it out. What is he whom you love, and what she that he honoureth?

Tellus. Endymion, sweet Endymion is he that hath my heart; and Cynthia, too, too fair
Cynthia, the miracle of nature, of time, of fortune, is the lady that he delights in, and does on every day, and dies for ten thousand times a day.

Dipas. Would you have his love either by absence or sickness aslaked? Would you that Cynthia should mistrust him, or be jealous of him without colour?

Tellus. It is the only thing I crave, that, seeing my love to Endymion, unspotted, cannot be accepted, his truth to Cynthia, though it be unspoken, may be suspected.

Dipas. I will undertake it, and overtake him, that all his love shall be doubted of, and therefore become desperate: but this will wear out with time that treadeth all things down but truth.

Tellus. Let us go.

Dipas. I follow.

Enter ACT II.

SCENE I.

[Enter] ENDYMION.

Endymion. O fair Cynthia! O unfortunate Endymion! Why was not thy birth as high as thy thoughts, or her beauty less than heavenly; or why are not thine honours as rare as her beauty, or thy fortunes as great as thy desires? Sweet Cynthia, how wouldst thou be pleased, how possessed? Will labours, patient of all extremities, obtain thy love? There is no mountain so steep that I will not climb, no monster so cruel that I will not tame, no action so desperate that I will not attempt. Desirest thou the passions of love, the sad and melancholy moods of perplexed minds, the not-to-be-expressed torments of racked thoughts? Behold my sad tears, my deep sighs, my hollow eyes, my broken sleep, my heavy countenance. Wouldst thou have me vow’d only to thy beauty and consume every minute of time in thy service? Remember my solitary life almost these seven years. Whom have I entertained [so] but mine own thoughts and thy virtues? What company have I used but contemplation? Whom have I wond’red at but thee? Nay, whom have I not contemned for thee? Have I not crept to those on whom I might have trodden, only because thou didst shine upon them? Have not injuries been sweet to me, if thou vouchsaft I should bear them? Have I not spent my golden years in hopes, waxing old with wishing, yet wishing nothing, but thy love? [so] With Tellus, fair Tellus, have I dissembled, using her but as a cloak for mine affections, that others, seeing my mangled and disordered mind, might think it were for one that loveth me, not for Cynthia, whose perfection alloweth no companion nor comparison. In the midst of these distemper’d thoughts of mine thou art not only jealous of my truth, but careless, suspicious, and secure; which strange humour maketh my mind as desperate as thy conceits are doubtful. I am none of those wolves that bark most when thou shinest brightest, but that fish (thy fish, Cynthia, in the flood Aravis) which at thy waxing is as white as the driven snow, and at thy waning as black as deepest darkness. I am that Endymion, sweet Cynthia, that have carried my thoughts in equal balance with my actions, being always as free from imagining ill as enterprising; that Endymion whose eyes never esteemed anything fair but thy face, whose tongue termed nothing rare but thy virtues, and whose heart imagined nothing miraculous but thy government; yea, that Endymion, who, divorcing himself from the amiability of all ladies, the bravery of all courts, as the company of all men, hath chosen in a solitary cell to live, only by feeding on thy favour, accounting in the world—but thyself—nothing excellent, nothing immortal: thus mayest thou see every vein, sinew, muscle, and artery of my love, in which there is no flattery, nor deceit, nor art. But soft, here comest Tellus. I must turn my other face to her, like Janus, lest she be as suspicious as Juno.

Enter Tellus. [Floscula, and Dipas].

Tellus. Yonder I spy Endymion. I will seem to suspect nothing, but soothe him, that seeing I cannot obtain the depth of his love, I may learn the height of his dissembling. Floscula and Dipas, withdraw yourselves out of our sight, yet be within the hearing of our saluting. [Floscula and Dipas withdraw.]

How now, Endymion, always solitary? No company but your own thoughts, no friend but melancholy fancies?

End. You know, fair Tellus, that the sweet remembrance of your love is the only companion of my life, and thy presence, my paradise; so that I am not alone when nobody is with me, and in heaven itself when thou art with me.

Tellus. Then you love me, Endymion?

End. Or else I live not, Tellus.

Tellus. Is it not possible for you, Endymion, to dissemble?

End. Not, Tellus, unless I could make a woman.

Tellus. Why, is dissembling joined to their sex inseparable, as heat to fire, heaviness to earth, moisture to water, thinness to air?

End. No, but found in their sex as common as spots upon doves, moles upon faces, caterpillars upon sweet apples, cobwebs upon fair windows.

Tellus. Do they all dissemble?

End. All but one.

Tellus. Who is that?

End. I dare not tell; for if I should say you, then would you imagine my flattery to be extreme; if another, then would you think my love to be but indifferent.

Tellus. You will be sure I shall take no vanities in mine eyes, and steer clear of them.
tage of your words. But, in sooth, Endymion, without more ceremonies, is it not Cynthia?
End. You know, Tellus, that of the gods we are forbidden to dispute, because their de ties come not within the compass of our reasons; and of Cynthia we are allowed not to talk but to wonder, because her virtues are not within the reach of our capacities.
Tellus. Why, she is but a woman.
End. No more was Venus.
Tellus. She is but a virgin.
End. No more was Vesta.
Tellus. She shall have an end.
End. So shall the world.
Tellus. Is not her beauty subject to time?
End. No more than time is standing still.
Tellus. Wilt thou make her immortal?
End. No, but incomparable.
Tellus. Take heed, Endymion, lest like the wrestler in Olympia, that striving to lift an impossible weight catch’d an incurable strain, thou, by fixing thy thoughts above thy reach, fall into a disease without all cure. But I see thou art now in love with Cynthia.
End. No, Tellus, thou knowest that the stately cedar, whose top reacheth unto the clouds, never boweth his head to the shrubs that grow in the valley; nor ivy, that climbeth up by the elm, can ever get hold of the beams of the sun. Cynthia I honour in all humility, whom none ought or dare adventure to love, whose affections are immortal, and virtues infinite. Suffer me, therefore, to gaze on the moon, at whom, were it not for thyself, I would die with wondering.

Scene II.

[Enter] Dares, Samias, Scintilla, and Fa-villa.

Dars. Come, Samias, didst thou ever hear such a sighing, the one for Cynthia, the other for Semele, and both for moonshine in the water?
Sam. Let them sigh, and let us sing. How say you, gentlewomen, are not our masters too far in love?
Scint. Their tongues, haply, are dipp’d to the root in amorous words and sweet discourses, but I think their hearts are scarce tip’d on the side with constant desires.
Dars. How say you, Faivia, is not love a lurcher, that taketh men’s stomachs away that they cannot eat, their spleen that they cannot laugh, their hearts that they cannot fight, is their eyes that they cannot sleep, and leaveth nothing but livers to make nothing but lovers?
Faivia. Away, peevish boy; a rod were better under thy girdle than love in thy mouth! It will be a forward cock that croweth in the shell.
Dars. Alas, good old gentlewoman, how it becometh you to be grave!
Scint. Faivia, though she be but a spark, yet is she fire.

Favil. And you, Scintilla, be not much more than a spark, though you would be esteemed a flame.
Sam. [Aside to Dares.] It were good sport to see the flight between two sparks.
Dar. [Aside to Samias.] Let them to it, and we will warm us by their words.
Scint. You are not angry, Favilla?
Favil. That is, Scintilla, as you list to take it.
Sam. That, that!
Scint. This it is to be matched with girls, who coming but yesterday from making of babies, would before to-morrow be accounted matrons.
Faivia. I cry your matrornship mercy. Becausethy pantaloes are higher with cork, therefore your fat must needs be higher in the insteps. You will be mine elder because you stand upon a stool and I on the floor.
Sam. Good, good!
Dar. [To Samias.] Let them alone, and see with what countenance they will become friends.
Scint. Nay, you think to be the wiser, because you mean to have the last word.
Sam. [To Dares.] Step between them lest they scratch. In faith, gentlewomen, seeing we came out to be merry, let not your jarring mar our jests; be friends. How say you?
Scint. I am not angry, but it spitted me to see how short she was.
Favil. I meant nothing till she would needs cross me.
Dar. Then, so let it rest.
Scint. I am agreed.
Favil. And I. Yet I never took anything so unkindly in my life. [Weeps.]
Scint. 'Tis I have the cause, that never offered the occasion. [Weeps.]
Dar. Excellent, and right like a woman.
Sam. A strange sight to see water come out of fire.
Dar. It is their property to carry in their eyes fire and water, tears and torches, and in their mouths honey and gall.

Enter [at the opposite side] Sir Tophas [and Epiton].

Scint. You will be a good one if you live. But what is yonder formal fellow?
Dar. Sir Tophas, Sir Tophas, of whom we told you. If you be good wenches, make as though you love him, and wonder at him.
Faivia. We will do our parts.
Dar. But first let us stand aside, and let him use his garb, for all consisteth in his grace.

[The four retire.]

Top. Epi!
Epi. At hand, sir.
Top. How likest thou this martial life, where nothing but blood besprinkleth our bosoms? Let me see, be our enemies fat?
Epi. Passing fat: and I would not change this life to be a lord; and yourself passeth all.

comparison, for other captains kill and beat, and there is nothing you kill, but you also eat. Top. I will draw out their guts out of their bellies, and tear the flesh with my teeth, so mortal is my hate, and so eager my un-scanched stomach.

Epi. [Aside.] My master thinks himself the valiantest man in the world if he kill a wren; so warlike a thing he accounteth to take away life, though it be from a lark.

Top. Epi, I find my thoughts to swell and my spirit to take wings, insomuch that I cannot containe within the compass of so slender com-bate.

Fauil. This passeth! 190 Scint. Why, is he not mad? [Aside.] Sam. No, but a little vainglorious.

Top Epi!

Epi. Sir.

Top. I will encounter that black and cruel enemy that beareth rough and untawed locks upon his head, whose eyes throweth down the strongest walls, whose legs are as many as both ears, on whose head are placed most horribile horns by nature as a defence from all harms. 110 Epi. What mean you, master, to be so desperate?

Top. Honour inciteth me, and very hunger compelleth me.

Epi. What is that monster?

Top. The monster Ovis. I have said, let thy wish work.

Epi. I cannot imagine it. Yet let me see,—a "black enemy" with "rough locks." It may be a sheep, and Ovis is a sheep. His sire so strong: a ram is a sheep's sire, that being also an engine of war. Horns he hath, and four legs,—so hath a sheep. Without doubt, this monster is a black sheep. Is it not a sheep that you mean?

Top. Thou hast hit it: that monster will I kill and sup with.

Sam. [Aside.] Come let us take him off.

Sami. Dake, Faviilla, and Scintilla come forward.] Sir Tophas, all hail!

Top. Welcome, children; I seldom cast mine eyes so low as to the crowns of your heads, and therefore pardon me that I speak not all this while.

Dar. No harm done. Here be fair ladies come to wonder at your person, your valor, your wit, the report whereof hath made them careless of their own honours, to glint their eyes and hearts upon yours.

Top. Report cannot but injure me, for that not knowing fully what I am, I fear she hath been a nagard in her praises.

Scint. No, gentle knight, report hath been prodigal, for she hath left you no equal, nor herself credit, so much hath she told, yet no more than we now see.

Dar. A good wench.

Fauil. If there remain as much pity toward women as there is in you courage against your enemies, then shall we be happy, who, hear—ing of your person, came to see it, and seeing it are now in love with it.

Top. Love and adulate! I easily believe it, but my tough heart receiveth no impression with sweet words. Mars may pierce it, [144] Venus shall not paint on it.

Fauil. A cruel saying.

Sam. [Aside.] There's a girl.

Dar. Will you cast these ladies away, and all for a little love? Do but speak kindly.

Top. There cometh no soft syllable within my lye: custom hath made my words bloody and my heart barbarous. That pelting word love, how waterish it is in my mouth; it car-nieth no sound. Hate, horror, death, are [110] speeches that nourish my spirits. I like hony, but I care not for the bees; I delight in music, but I love not to play on the bagpipes; I can vouchsafe to hear the voice of women, but to touch their bodies, I disdain it as a [170] thing childish and fit for such men as can digest nothing but talk.

Scint. A hard heart! Shall we die for your love and find no remedy?

Top. I have already taken a surfeit.

Epi. Good master, pity them.

Top. Pity them, Epi? No, I do not think that this breast shall be pest'red with such a foolish passion. What is that the gentlewoman carrieth in a chain?

Epi. Why, it is a squirrel.

Top. A squirrel? O gods, what things are made for moneys?

Dar. Is not this gentleman over-wise?

Fauil. I could stay all day with him, if I feared not to be shent.

Scint. Is it not possible to meet again?

Dar. Yes, at any time.

Fauil. Then let us hasten home.

Scint. Sir Tophas, the god of war deal better with you than you do with the god of love.

Fauil. Our love we may dissemble, digest we cannot; but I doubt not but time will ham-per you and help us.

Top. I defy time, who hath no interest in my heart. Come, Epi, let me to the battle with that hideous beast. Love is sap, and hath no reliash in my taste because it is not terrible.

[Exeunt Sir Tophas and Epi...]

Dar. Indeed a black sheep is a perilous beast; but let us in till another time.

Fauil. I shall long for that time. Exeunt.

SCHR III. 4

[Enter] ENDMYON.

End. No rest, Endymion! Still uncertain how to settle thy steps by day or thy thoughts by night! Thy truth is measured by thy fortune, and thou art judged unfaithful because thou art unhappy. I will see if I can beguile [myself with sleep, and if no slumber will take hold in my eyes, yet will I embrace the golden thoughts in my head, and wish to melt by musing; that as ebon, which no fire can scorch, is yet consumed with sweet savours, so my heart, which cannot be bent by the hardiness of fortune, may be bruised by amorous desires. Yet on yonder bank never grew anything but lunary and hereafter I will never have any bed but that bank. O Endymion, Tellus was fair. But what avealith beauty without wisdom? Nay, Endymion, she was wise. But what avealith wisdom without honour? She was honourable, Endymion; belie her not. Ay, but how obscure is honour without fortune. Was she not for tenate whom so many followed? Yes, yes, but base is fortune without majesty: thy majesty, Cynthia, all the world knoweth and wondereth at, but not one in the world that can imitate it or comprehend it. No more, Endymion. Sleep or die. Nay, die, for to sleep, it is impossible; and yet I know not how it cometh to pass, I feel such a heaviness both in mine eyes and heart that I am suddenly benumbed, yes, in every joint. It may be weariness, for when did I rest? It may be deep melancholy, for when did I not sigh? Cynthia! Ay, so— I say, Cynthia! He falls asleep.

[Enter Dipsas and Bagoa.]

Dipsas. Little dost thou know, Endymion, when thou shalt wake, for hast thou placed thy heart as low in love as thy head lieth now in sleep, thou mightest have commanded Tellus, whom now, instead of a mistress, thou shalt find a tomb. These eyes must I seal up by art, not nature, which are to be opened neither by art nor nature. Thou that layest down with golden locks shalt not awake until they be turned to silver hairs; and that chin on which scarcely appeareth soft down shall be filled with bristles as hard as broom. Thou shalt sleep out thy youth and flowering time, and become dry hay before thou knowest thyself green grass; and ready by age to step into the grave when thou wakst, that was youthful in the court when thou liestdest; thee down to sleep. Tellus hath brought this to pass, which if she could not have intreated of me by fair means, she would have commanded by menacing, for from her gather we all our simples to maintain our sorceries. [To Bagoa.] Fan with this hemlock over his face, and sing the enchantment for sleep, whilst I go in and finish those ceremonies that are required in our art. Take heed ye touch not his face, for the fan is so seasoned that whose it toucheth with a leaf shall presently die, and over whom the wind of it breatheth, he shall sleep forever.

Bagoa. Let me alone; I will be careful. [Exit Dipsas.] What hap hadst thou, Endymion, to come under the hands of Dipsas? O fair Endymion, how it grieveth me that that fair face must be turned to a withered skin and taste the pains of death before it feel the reward of love!

I fear Tellus will repent that which the heavens themselves seemed to rue. But I hear Dipsas coming! I dare not repine, lest she make me pine, and rock me into such a deep sleep that I shall not awake to my marriage.

Re-enter Dipsas.

Dipsas. How now, have you finished? Bagoa. Yes. Dipsas. Well then, let us in; and see that you do not so much as whisper that I did this, for if you do, I will turn thy hairs to adders and all thy teeth in thy head to tongues. Come away, come away. Exeunt [Dipsas and Bagoa.]

A DUMB SHOW [representing the dream of Endymion].

Music sounds. Three ladies enter: one with a knife and a looking-glass, who, by the procurement of one of the other two, offers to stab Endymion as he sleeps; but the third wrings her hands, lamenteth, offering still to prevent it, but dares not. At last, the first lady looking in the glass, casts down the knife. Exeunt.

Enters an ancient man with books with three leaves; offers the same twice. Endymion refuses. He rendeth two, and offers the third, where he stands awhile; and then Endymion offers to take it. Exit [The Old Man].

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter Cynthia, Tellus, Semiple, Eumenides, Corithus, Panclion, and Zontra.]

Cynthia. Is the report true, that Endymion is stricken into such a dead sleep that nothing can either wake him or move him?

Eum. Too true, madam, and as much to be pitied as wondered at.

Tellus. As good sleep and do no harm as wake and do no good.

Cynth. What maketh you, Tellus, to be so short? The time was Endymion only was.

Eum. It is an old saying, madam, that a waking dog doth afar off bark at a sleeping lion.

Sem. It were good, Eumenides, that you took a nap with your friend, for your speech beginneth to be heavy.

Eum. Contrary to your nature, Semele, which hath been always accounted light.

Cynth. What, have we here before my face these unseemly and malapert over thrivarts? I will tame your tongues and your thoughts, and make your speeches answerable to your duties, and your conceits fit for my dignity, else will I banish you both my person and the world.

Eum. Pardon, I humbly ask; but such is my unspected faith to Endymion that whatsoever

5 Wranglings.

Cora. Can you then feed on fancy, and subdue the malice of envy by the sweetness of imagination?

Tellus. Corisites, there is no sweeter music to the miserable than despair; and therefore [as] the more bitterness I feel, the more sweetness I find; for so vain were liberty, and so unwelcome the following of higher fortune, that I choose rather to pine in this castle than to be a prince in any other court.

Cora. A humour contrary to your years and nothing agreeable to your sex; the one commonly allured with delights, the other always with sovereignty.

Tellus. I marvel, Corisites, that you being [as] a captain, who should sound nothing but terror and suck nothing but blood, can find in your heart to talk such smooth words, for that it agreeth not with your calling to use words so soft as that of love.

Cora. Lady, it were unfit of war to discourse with women, into whose minds nothing can sink but smoothness; besides, you must not think that soldiers be so rough-hewn, or of such knotty mettle, that beauty cannot allure, [as] and you, being beyond perfection, enchant.

Tellus. Good Corisites, talk not of love, but let me to my labours. The little beauty I have shall be bestowed on my loom, which I now mean to make my lover.

Cora. Let us in, and what favor Corisites can show, Tellus shall command.

Tellus. The only favour I desire is now and then to walk.

Exeunt.

SCENE III.4

[Enter] Sir TOPHAS and ERETTON.

Tophas. Epi!

Epi. Her, sir.

Tophas. Unrig me, Heigho!

Epi. What's that?

Tophas. An interjection, whereof some are [s] of mourning: as elo, oah.5

Epi. I understand you not.

Tophas. Thou seest me.

Epi. Ay.

Tophas. Thou hear'st me.

Epi. Ay.

Tophas. Thou feelest me.

Epi. Ay.

Tophas. And not understand'st me?

Epi. No.

Tophas. Then am I but three-quarters of a noun substantive. But alas, Epi, to tell thee the truth, I am a noun adjective.

Epi. Why?

Tophas. Because I cannot stand without [as] another.

Epi. Who is that?

Tophas. Dipass.

Epi. Are you in love?

Tophas. No; but love hath, as it were, [as] milk'd my thoughts and drained from my heart

the very substance of my accustomed courage;
it worketh in my head like new wine, so as I must hoop my scone with iron, lest my head break, and so I bewray 1 my brains. But, I [as pray thee, first discover me in all parts, that I may be like a lover, and then will I sigh and die. Take thy gun and give me a gown: Cedant arma toga.

Epi. Here.

Tophas. Take my sword and shield and give me board-brush and scissors: Bella gerant alii, tu Fari semper amas.

Epi. Will you be trimm'd, sir?

Tophas. Not yet; for I feel a contentious [as within me whether I shall frame the bodkin beard or the bush. But take my pike and give me pen: Diereque puduit, scribere jusset amor.

Epi. I will furnish you, sir.

Tophas. Now, for my bow and bolts give me ink and paper, for my stinger a pen-knife; for Scalpellum, calami, atramentum, charta, libelli,
Sunt semper studia arma parula mea.

Epi. Sir, will you give over wars and play [as with that bawble called love?

Tophas. Give over wars? No, Epi, Militat omnis amans, et habet sua castra Cupido.

Epi. Love hate made you very eloquent, but your face is nothing fair.

Tophas. Non formosus erat, sed erat facundus
Ulysses.

Epi. Nay, I must seek a new master if you can speak nothing but verses.

Tophas. Quisquid conabat dicere, versus [as erat. I feel all Ovid De Arte Amandi lies as heavy at my heart as a load of logs. Oh, what a fine, thin hair hath Dipass! What a pretty low forehead! What a tall and stately nose! What little hollow eyes! What great [as and good lips! How harmless she is, being toothless, her fingers fat and short, adorned with long nails like a bittern! In how sweet a proportion her cheeks hang down to her breasts like duks and her paps to her waist like bags! [as What a low stature she is, and yet what a great foot she carrieth! How thrify must she be in whom there is no waist! How virtuous is she like to be, over whom no man can be jealous!

Epi. Stay, master, you forget yourself. [as Tophas. O Epi, even as a dish melteth by the fire, so doth my wit increase by love.

Epi. Pithilly, and to the purpose! But what, begin you to nod?

Tophas. Good Epi, let me take a nap; for [as as some man may better steal a horse than another look over the hedge, so divers shall be sleepy when they would fainest take rest.

He sleeps.

Epi. Who ever saw such a woodcock? 9 Love Dipass! Without doubt all the world will [as now account him valiant, that venturere on her whom none durst undertake. But here cometh two wages.

Enter Dares and Samias.

Sam. Thy master hath slept his share.

Dar. I think he doth it because he would [as not pay me my board-wages.

Sam. It is a thing most strange: and I think mine will never return, so that we must both seek new masters, for we shall never live by our manners.

Epi. If you want masters, join with me and serve Sir Tophas, who must needs keep more men, because he is toward marriage.

Sam. What, Epi, where's thy master?

Epi. Yonder, sleeping in love.

Dar. Is it possible?

Epi. He hath taken his thoughts a hole lower, and saith, seeing it is the fashion of the world,
he will vail 10 bonnet to beauty.

Sam. How is he attired?

Epi. Lovely.

Dar. Whom loveth this amorous knight?

Epi. Dipass.

Sam. That ugly creature? Why, she is a fool, a scold, fat, without fashion, and quite [110 without favour.

Epi. Tush, you be simple; my master hath a good marriage.

Dar. Good! As how?

Epi. Why, in marrying Dipass he shall [112 have every day twelve dishes of meat to his dinner, though there be none but Dipass with him: four of flesh, four of fish, four of fruit.

Sam. As how, Epi?

Epi. For flesh these: woodcock, goose, [112 bittern, and rail.

Dar. Indeed, he shall not miss, if Dipass be there.

Epi. For fish these: crab, carp, lump, and pouting.

Sam. Excellent, for of my word she is both crabbish, lumpish, and carping.

Epi. For fruit these: fritters, medlars, har-tichokes, and lady-longings. Thus you see he shall fare like a king, though he be but a 123 beggar.

Dar. Well, Epi, dine thou with him, for I had rather fast than see her face. But see, thy master is asleep; let us have a song to wake this amorous knight.

Epi. Agreed.

Sam. Content.

Who loves Dipass,

Nose and chin meet.

Scene IV.

[Enter] EUMENIDES and GERON.

Eum. Father, your sad music being tuned on the same key that my hard fortune is, hath so melted my mind that I wish to hang at your mouth's end till my life end.

Ger. These tunes, gentleman, have I been accustomed with these fifty winters, having no other house to shroud myself but the broad heavens; and so familiar with me hath made misery that I esteem sorrow my chiefest solace, and welcomest is that guest to me that can rehearse the saddest tale or the bloodiest tragedy.

Eum. A strange humour. Might I inquire the cause?

Ger. You must pardon me if I deny to tell it, for knowing that the revealing of griefs is, as it were, a renewing of sorrow, I have vowed therefore to conceal them, that I might not only feel the depth of everlasting discontentment, but despair of remedy. But whence are you? What fortune hath thrust you to this distress?

Eum. I am going to Thessaly, to seek remedy for Endymion, my dearest friend, who hath been cast into a dead sleep almost these twenty years, waxing old and ready for the grave, being almost but newly come forth of the cradle.

Ger. You need not for recourse travel far, for whose can clearly see the bottom of this fountain shall have remedy for anything.

Eum. That mirthketh is impossible. Why, what virtue can there be in water?

Ger. Yes, whosoever can shed the tears of a faithful lover shall obtain anything he would. Read these words engraven about the brim.

Eum. Have you known this by experience, or is it placed here of purpose to delude men?

Ger. I only would have experience of it, and then should there be an end of my misery; and then would I tell the strangest discourse that ever yet was heard.

Eum. Ah, Eumenides!

Ger. What lack you, gentleman; are you not well?

Eum. Yes, father, but a qualm that often cometh over my heart doth now take hold of me. But did never any lovers come hither?

Ger. Lusters, but not lovers; for often have I seen them weep, but never could I hear they saw the bottom.

Eum. Came there women also?

Ger. Some.

Eum. What did they see?

Ger. They all wept, that the fountain overflowed with tears, but so thick became the water with their tears that I could scarce discern the brim, much less behold the bottom.

Eum. Be faithful lovers so scant?

Ger. It seemeth so, for yet heard I never of any.

Eum. Ah, Eumenides, how art thou perch’d! Call to mind the beauty of thy sweet mistress and the depth of thy never-dying affections. How oft hast thou honoured her, not only without spot, but suspicion of falsehood! And how hardly hast thou rewarded thee with cause or colour of despite. How secret hast thou been these seven years, that hast not, nor once darest not to name her, for discontenting her. How faithful, that hast offered to die for her, to please her! Unhappy Eumenides! Why, gentleman, did you once love?

Eum. Once? Ay, father, and ever shall.

Ger. Was she unkind and you faithful?

Eum. She of all women the most froward, and I of all creatures the most fond.

Ger. You doted them, not loved, for affection is grounded on virtue, and virtue is never peevish; or on beauty, and beauty loveth to be praised.

Eum. Ay, but if all virtuous ladies should [se] yield to all that be loving, or amiable gentlewomen, all that be amorette to their virtues would be accounted vices, and their beauties deformities; for that love can be but between two, and that not proceeding of him [is] that is most faithful but most fortunate.

Ger. I would you were so faithful that your tears might make you fortunate.

Eum. Yes, father, if that my tears clear not this fountain, then may you swear it is but a [se] mere mockery.

Ger. So saith every one yet that wept.

Eum. Ah, I faint, I die! Ah, sweet Semele, let me alone, and dissolve, by weeping, into water. [He gazes into the fountain.] [169]

Ger. This affection seemeth strange: if he see nothing, without doubt this dissembling pæsteth, for nothing shall draw me from the belief.

Eum. Father, I plainly see the bottom, [170] and there in white marble engraven these words: Ask one for all, and but one thing at all.

Ger. O fortunate Eumenes, (for so have I heard thee call thyself,) let me see. I cannot discern any such thing. I think thou dreamest. [171]

Eum. Ah, father, thou art not a faithful lover, and therefore cannot it not behold it.

Ger. Then ask, that I may be satisfied by the event, and thyself blessed.

Eum. Ask? So I will. And what shall I [172] do but ask, and whom should I ask but Semele, the possessing of whose person is a pleasure that cannot come within the compass of comparison; whose golden looks seem most curious when they seem most careless; whose sweet looks [173] seem most alluring when they are most chaste; and whose words the more virtuous they are, the more amorous they be accounted? I pray thee, Fortune, when I shall first meet with fair Semele, dash my delight with some light die; [174] grace, lest embracing sweetness beyond measure, I take a surfeit without recurse. Let her practise her accustomed coyness that I may diet myself upon my desires; otherwise the fulness of my joys will diminish the sweetness, and [175] I shall perish by them before I possess them.

Why do I trifile in words? The least minute spent in the getting of Semele is more worth than the whole world; therefore let me ask. What now, Eumenes! Whither [176] art thou drawn? Hast thou forgotten both friendship and duty, care of Endymion, and the commandment of Cynthia? Shall he die in a leaden sleep because thou sleepest in a golden dream? Ay, let him sleep ever, so I slumber [177] but one minute with Semele. Love knoweth neither friendship nor kindness. Shall I not hazard the loss of a friend for the obtaining of her if for some ill she would often lose myself? Foes! Eumenes, shall I see the enticing beauty of a [178] most disdainful lady be of more force than the

ENDYMION

Cor. Methinketh it easy.

Eum. Good father, and how?

Cor. Is not a circle of all figures the perfectest?

Eum. Yes.

Cor. And is not Cynthia of all circles the most absolute?

Eum. Yes.

Cor. Is it not impossible to measure her, who will worketh by her influence, never standing at one stay?

Eum. Yes.

Cor. Is she not always Cynthia, yet seldom in the same bigness; always wavering in her waxing or waning, that our bodies might be the better be governed, our seasons the duller give their increase; yet never to be removed from her course, as long as the heavens continue theirs?

Eum. Yes.

Cor. Then who can it be but Cynthia, whose virtues being all divine must needs bring things to pass that be miraculous? Go, humble thyself to Cynthia; tell her the success, of which myself shall be a witness. And this assure thyself, that she that sent to find means for his safety will now work her cunning.

Eum. How fortunate am I, if Cynthia be she that may do it!

Cor. How fond art thou, if thou do not believe it!

Eum. I will hasten thither that I may entreat on my knees for succour, and embrace in mine arms my friend.

Cor. I will go with thee, for unto Cynthia must I discover all my sorrows, who also must work in me a contentment.

Eum. May I now know the cause?

Cor. That shall be as we walk, and I doubt not but the strangeness of my tale will take away the tediousness of our journey.

Eum. Let us go.

Cor. I follow.

ACT IV

SCENE I.²

[Enter TELLUS]

Tellus. I marvel Coristes giveth me so much liberty,— all the world knowing his charge to be so high and his nature to be most strange,— who hath so ill entreated ladies of great honour that he hath not suffered them to look out of windows, much less to walk abroad. It may be he is in love with me, for (Endymion, hard-hearted Endymion, excepted) what is he that is not enamour'd of my beauty? But what respectest thou the love of all the world? En- dynasty hates thee. Also, poor Endymion, my malice hath exceeded my love, and thy faith to Cynthia quenched my affections. Quenched, Tellus? Nay, kindled them afresh; insomuch that I find scorching flames for dead embers, and cruel encounters of war in my thoughts instead of sweet parleys. Ah, that I might once again see Endymion! Accursed girl, what hope hast thou to see Endymion, on whose head already are grown gray hairs, and whose life must yield to nature, before Cynthia and her displeasure. Wicked Dipsas, and most devilish Tellus, the one for cunning too exquisite, the other for hate too intolerable! Thou wast commanded to weave the stories and poetries wherein were showed both examples and punishments of tattling tongues, and thou hast only embroidered the sweet face of Endymion, devices of love, melancholy imaginations, and what not, out of thy work, that thou shouldst study to pick out of thy mind. But here cometh Coristes. I must seem yielding and stout; full of mildness, yet tempered with a majesty; for if I be too flexible, I shall give him more hope than I mean; if too froward, enjoy less liberty than I would. Love him I cannot, and therefore will practise that which is most contrary to our sex, to dissemble.

Enter Coristes.

Cor. Fair Tellus, I perceive you rise with the lark, and to yourself sing with the nightingale.

Tellus. My lord, I have no playfellow but fancy; being barred of all company, I must question with myself, and make my thoughts my friends.

Cor. I would you would account my thoughts also your friends, for they be such as are onlybusied in wondering at your beauty and wisdom; and some such as have esteemed your fortune too hard; and divers of that kind that offer to set you free, if you will set them free.

Tellus. There are no colours so contrary as white and black, nor elements so disagreeing as fire and water, nor anything so opposite as men's thoughts and their words.

Cor. He that gave Cassandra the gift of prophesying, with the curse that, spake she never so true, she should never be believed, hath I think poisoned the fortune of men, that uttering the extremities of their inward passions are always suspected of outward perjuries.

Tellus. Well, Coristes, I will flatter myself and believe you. What would you do to en-joy my love?

Cor. Set all the ladies of the castle free, and make you the pleasure of my life: more I cannot do, less I will not.

Tellus. These be great words, and fit your calling; for captains must promise things impossible. But will you do one thing for all?

Cor. Anything, sweet Tellus, that am ready for all.

Tellus. You know that on the lunar bank sleepeth Endymion.

Cor. I know it.

Tellus. If you will remove him from that place by force, and convey him into some obscure cave by policy, I give you here the² faith of an unspotted virgin that you only shall possess me as a lover, and in spite of malice have me for a wife.

Cor. Remove him, Tellus! Yes, Tellus, he shall be removed, and that so soon as I think shall as much commend my diligence as my force, I go.

Tellus. Stay, will yourself attempt it?

Cor. Ay, Tellus; as I would have none partaker of my sweet love, so shall none be partners of my labors. But I pray thee go at your best leisure, for Cynthia beginneth to rise, and if she discover our love, we both perish, for nothing pleaseth her but the fairness of virginity. All things must be not only without lust but without suspicion of lightness.

Tellus. I will depart, and go you to Endymion.

Cor. I fly, Tellus, being of all men the most fortunate. Exit. [Is] Tellus. Simple Corites, I have set thee about a task, being but a man; that the gods themselves cannot perform, for little dost thou know how heavy his head lies, how hard his fortune; but such shifts must women have to deceive men, and under colour of things easy, entreat that which is impossible; otherwise we should be cumbersome with importunities, oaths, sighs, letters, and all implements of love, which to one resolved to the contrary are most loathsome. I will in, and laugh with the other ladies at Corités' sweating.

Exit.

SCENE II. 2

[Enter] SAMIAS and DARES.

Sam. Will thy master never awake?

Dare. No; I think he sleeps for a wager. But how shall we spend the time? Sir Tophas is so far in love that he pineth in his bed and cometh not abroad.

Sam. But here cometh Epi in a pelting chaise.

[Enter EPI.]

Epi. A pox of all false proverbs, and were a proverb a page, I would have him by the ears! Sam. Why art thou angry?

Epi. Why? You know it is said, "The tide tarrieth no man."

Sam. True.

Epi. A monstrous lie; for I was tied two hours, and tarried for one to unloose me.

Dare. Alas, poor Epi!

Epi. Poor! No, no, you base-conceited slaves, I am a most complete gentleman, although I be in disgrace with Sir Tophas.

Dare. Art thou out with him?

Epi. Ay, because I cannot get him a lodging; with Endymion. He would fain take a nap for forty or fifty years.

Dare. A short sleep, considering our long life.

Sam. Is he still in love?

Epi. In love! Why doth nothing but make sonnets.

Sam. Canst thou remember any one of his poems?

Epi. Ay, this is one:—

The beggar, Love, that knows not where to lodge, [as
At last within my heart, when I slept,
He crept,
I wake'd, and so my fancies began to lodge.]

Sam. That's a very long verse.

Epi. Why, the other was short. The first is called from the thumb to the little finger; the second from the little finger to the elbow; and some he hath made to reach to the crown of his head, and down again to the sole of his foot. It is set to the tune of the black Bacchus; ratio est, because Dipeas is a black saint.

Dare. Very wisely. But pray thee, Epi, how art thou complete; and being from thy master, what occupation wilt thou take?

Epi. Know, my heart, I am an absolute Microcosmus, a petty world of myself: my library is my head, for I have no other books but my brains; my wardrobe on my back, for I have no more apparel than is on my body; my armor at my fingers' ends, for I use no other artillery than my nails; my treasure in my purse. Sic omnia mea mecum porto. 1

Dare. Good!

Epi. Know, aye, my palace is pav'd with grass, and tiled with stars, for Callo tepitur qui non habet wrann, 2 because he that hath no house must lie in the yard.

Sam. A brave resolution! But how wilt thou spend thy time?

Epi. Not in any melancholy sort; for mine exercise I will walk horses.

Dare. Too bad!

Epi. Why, is it not said, "It is good walking when one hath his horse in his hand"? 3

Sam. Worse and worse! But how wilt thou live?

Epi. By angling. Oh, 'tis a stately occupation to stand four hours in a cold morning, and to have his nose bitten with frost before his be mumbled with a fish.

Dare. A rare attempt! But wilt thou never travel?

Epi. Yes, in a western barge, when with a good wind and lusty pugs, one may go ten miles in two days.

Sam. Thou art excellent at thy choice. But what pastime wilt thou use? None?

Epi. Yes, the quickest of all.

Sam. What, dice?

Epi. No, when I am in haste, one-and-twenty games at chess, to pass a few minutes.

Dare. A life for a little lord, and full of quickness.

Endymion. Epi. To sh, let me alone! But I must see if I can find where Endymion lieth, and then go to a certain fountain hard by, where they say faithful lovers shall have all things they will ask. If I can find out any of these, Ego et magister meus erimus in tuto, I [100] and my master shall be friends. He is resolved to weep some tears or four puffs, to avoid the theme of love that wam/lieth [110] in his stomach.

Sam. Shall we never see thy master, Darce? [100]
Dar. Yes; let us go now, for to-morrow as Cynthia shall be there.

Epi. I will go with you; — but how shall we see for the Watch?

Sam. Tush, let me alone! I’ll begin to them.

1 Watch. Sir boy, we are all sped already.

Epi. [Aside.] So methinks, for they smell all of drink, like a beggar’s beard.

Dar. But I pray, sirs, may we see Endymion?

2 Watch. No, we are commanded in Cynthia’s name, that no man shall see him.

Sam. No man! Why, we are but boys.

1 Watch. Mass, neighbours, be so true, for if I swear I will never drink my liquor by the quarter, and yet call for two pints, I think with a safe conscience I may carouse both.

Dar. Pitifully, and to the purpose.

2 Watch. Tush, tush, neighbours, take with you.

Sam. [Aside.] This will grow hot.

Dar. [Aside.] Let them alone.

2 Watch. If I say to my wife, “Wife, I will have no raisins in my pudding,” she puts in currants; small raisins are raisins, and boys are men: even as your should have put no raisins in my pudding, so shall there be no boys seen Endymion.

Dar. Learnedly.

Epi. Let Master Constable speak; I think he be the wisest among you.

Master Constable. You know, neighbours, ’tis as old said saw, “Children and fools speak true.”

All. True.

Master Constable. Well, there you see the men be fools, because it is provided from the children.

Dar. Good.

Master Constable. Then, say I, neighbours, that children must not see Endymion, because children and fools speak true.

Epi. O wicked application!

Sam. Scurvily brought about!

1 Watch. Nay, he says true, and therefore till Cynthia have been here, shall he not be uncovered. Therefore, away!

Dar. [Aside to Sam. and Epi.] A watch, quoth ye! A man may watch seven years for a wise word, and yet go without it. Their wits are as rusty as their bills. — But come on,

Master Constable, shall we have a song before we go?

Master Constable. With all my heart.

The Second Song.

Watch. Stand! Who goes there?

We charge you appear

’Fore our constable here,

In the name of the Man in the Moon.

To us billmen relate

Why you stagger so late,

And how you come drunk so soon.

Pages. What are ye, scabs?

Watch. The Watch.

This the Constable.

Pages. A patch.

Const. Knock, ‘em down unless they all stand:

If any run away,

’T is the old watchman’s play,

To reach him a bill of his hand.

Pages. O gentle, hold your gownes free with cold,

And y. ur rotten teeth dance in your head;

Epi. What? Nothing shall cost ye;

Sam. Nor huge fires to roast ye.

Darce. Then soberly let us be led.

Const. Come, my brown bills, we’ll roar,

Bounce loud at tavern door,

Ouse. And I’ th’ morning steal all to bed.

Exit.

Scene III.

Corinthes solus. [Endymion lies asleep on the lunar bank.]

Corisites. I am come in sight of the lunar bank. Without doubt Tellus doteth upon me, and cunningly, that I might not perceive her love, she hath set me to a task that is done before it is begun. Endymion, you must change for your pillow, and if you be not weary of sleep, I will carry you where at ease you shall sleep your fill. It were good that without more ceremonies I took him, lest being espied, I be entrapt, and so incur the displeasure of Cynthia, who commonly setteth watch that Endymion have no wrong. [He tries to lift Endymion.] What now, is your mastership so heavy, or are you nai’d to the ground? Not stir one whit! Then use all thy force, though he feel it and wake. [Is What, stone-still! Turn’d, I think, to earth, with lying so long on the earth. Didst not thou, Corisites, before Cynthia, pull up a tree that forty years was fast’ned with roots and wreathed in knots to the ground? Didst not thou, with main force, pull open the iron gates which no ram or engine could move? Have my weak thoughts made brawn-fallen my strong arms, or is it the nature of love, or the quin- tessential of the mind, to breed numbness or [is litherness, or I know not what languishing in my joints and sinews, being but the base strings of my body? Or doth the remembrance of Tellus so refine my spirits into a matter so subtle and divine that the other fleshly parts cannot work whilst they muse? Rest thyself, rest thyself; say, read thyself in pieces, Cori-
Tellus. Madam, I dare not utter, for fear to offend. 128
Cynth. Speak, I say; who dare take offence, if thou be commanded by Cynthia? 129
Tellus. For the love of Cynthia.
Cynth. For my love, Tellus? That were strange. Endymion, is it true? 130
End. In all things, madam, Tellus doth not speak false.
Cynth. What will this breed to in the end? Well. Endymion, we shall hear all.
Tellus, I, seeing my hopes turned to mis-, [131 haps, and a settled dissembling towards me- and an immovable desire to Cynthia, forgetting both myself and my sex, fell into this unnatural hate; for knowing your virtues, Cynthia, to be immortal, I could not have an imagination to with- [132 draw him; and finding mine own affections unquenchable, I could not carry the mind that any else should possess what I had pursued. For though in majesty, beauty, virtue, and dignity, I always humbled and yielded myself [133 to Cynthia, yet in affections I esteem myself equal with the goddesses, and all other creatures, according to their states, with myself; for stars to their bigness have their lights, and the sun hath no more, and little pitchers, when [134 they can hold no more, are as full as great vessels that run over. Thus, madam, in all truth have I uttered the unhappiness of my love and the cause of my hate, yielding wholly to that divine judgment which never erred for want of [135 wisdom or envied for too much partiality.
Cynth. How say you, my lords, to this matter? But what say you, Endymion; hath Tellus told truth?
End. Madam, in all things but in that [136 she said I loved her and swore to honour her.
Cynth. Was there such a time whenas for my love thou didst vow thyself to death, and in respect of it loathed thy life? Speak, Endymion; I will not revenge it with hate. 137
End. The time was, madam, and is, and ever shall be, that I honoured your highness above all the world, but to stretch it so far as to call it love I never durst. There hath none pleased mine eye but Cynthia, none delighted [138 mine ears but Cynthia, none possessed my heart but Cynthia. I have forsaken all other fortunes to follow Cynthia, and here I stand ready to die, if it please Cynthia. Such a difference hath the gods set between our states that all must be [139 duty, loyalty, and reverence; nothing (without it vouchsafe your highness) be termed love. My unspotted thoughts, my languishing body, my discontented life, let them obtain by princely favour that which to challenge they [140 must not presume, only wishing of impossibilities; with imagination of which I will spend my spirits, and to myself, that no creature may hear, softly call it love; and if any urge to utter what I whisper, then will I name it honour. [141 From this sweet contemplation if I be not driven, I shall live of all men the most content, taking more pleasure in mine aged thoughts than were done in my youthful actions.
Cynth. Endymion, this honourable respect [142 of thine shall be christened love in thee, and my reward for it, favour. Persevere, Endymion in loving me, and I account more strength in a true heart than in a walled city. I have laboured to win all, and study to keep such as I [143 have won; but those that neither my favour can move to continue constant, nor my offered benefits get to be faithful, the gods shall either reduce to truth, or revenge their treacheries with justice. Endymion, continue as thou hast begun, and thou shalt find that Cynthia shineth not on thee in vain.
End. Your Highness hath blessed me, and your words have again restored my youth; methinks I feel my joints strong and these [144 mouldy hairs to moult, and all by your virtue, Cynthia, into whose hands the balance that weigheth time and fortune are committed.
Cynth. What, young again! Then it is pity to punish Tellus.
Tellus. Ah, Endymion, now I know thee and ask pardon of thee; suffer me still to wish thee well.
End. Tellus, Cynthia must command what she will.
Flosc. Endymion, I rejoice to see thee in thy former estate.
End. Good Floscule, to thee also am I in my former affections.
Eum. Endymion, the comfort of my life, [145 how am I ravished with a joy matchless, saving only the enjoying of my mistress.
Cynth. Endymion, you must now tell who Eumenides shrineth for his saint.
End. Semele, madam.
Semele. Semele, Eumenides? Is it Semele, the very wisp of all women, whose tongue stings so much as an adder's tooth?
Eum. It is Semele, Cynthia, the possessing of whose love must only prolong my life.
Cynth. Nay, sith Endymion is restored, we will have all parties pleased. Semele, are you content after so long trial of his faith, such rare secrecy, such unspotted love, to take Eumenides? Why speak you not? Not a word? [146 End. Silence, madam, consenteth; that is most true.
Cynth. It is true, Endymion. Eumenides, take Semele; take her, I say.
Eum. Humble thanks, madam; now only [147 do I begin to live.
Sem. A hard choice, madam, either to be married if I say nothing, or to lose my tongue if I speak a word. Yet do I rather choose to have my tongue cut out than my heart distem- [148 pered: I will not have him.
Cynth. Speaks the parrot! She shall nod hereafter with signs. Cut off her tongue, say her head, that having a servant of honourable birth, honest manners, and true love, will not be [149 persuaded.
Sem. He is no faithful lover, madam, for then would he have asked his mistress.
Ger. Had he not been faithful, he had never seen into the fountain, and so lost his friend [150 and mistress, as men say, amongst the moon.
Eum. Thine own thoughts, sweet Semele, witness against thy words, for what hast thou found in my life but love? And as yet what have I found in my love but bitterness? [Madam, pardon Semele, and let my tongue remain hers.]

Cynthia. Thy tongue, Euenides! What, shouldst thou live wanting a tongue to blaze the beauty of Semele! Well, Semele, I will not command love, for it cannot be enforced; let me treatent it.

Semele. I am content your highness shall command, for now only do I think Euenides faithfull, that is willing to lose his tongue for my sake; yet loath, because it should do me better service. Madam, I accept of Euenides.

Cynthia. I thank you, Semele.

Euenides. Ah, happy Euenides, that hast a friend so faithful and a mistress so fair! [With what sudden mischief will the gods daunt this excess of joy? Sweet Semele, I live or die as thou wilt.

Cynthia. What shall become of Tellus? Tellus, you know Endymion is vowed to a service from which death cannot remove him. Corysates still a lovely look towards you. Say you, will you have your Corysates, and so receive"

Tellus. Madam, most willingly.

Cynthia. But I cannot tell whether Corysates be agreed.

Corysates. Ay, madam, more happy to enjoy Tellus than the monarchy of the world.

Euenides. Why, she caused you to be pinched, why with fairies.

Corysates. Ay, but her fairness hath pinched my heart more deeply.

Cynthia. Well, enjoy thy love. But what have you wrought in the castle, Tellus?

Tellus. Only the picture of Endymion.

Cynthia. Then so much of Endymion as his picture cometh to, possess and play withal.

Corysates. Ah, my sweet Tellus, my love shall be as thy beauty is, matchless.

Cynthia. Now it resteth, Dipasus, that if thou wilt forswear that vile art of enchanting, Geron hath promised again to receive thee; otherwise, if thou be wedded to that wickedness, I must and will see it punished to the uttermost.

Dipasus. Madam, I renounce both substance and shadow of that most horrible and hateful trade, vowing to the gods continual penance, and to your highness obedience.

Cynthia. How say you, Geron; will you ad-"mit her to your wife?

Geron. Ay, with more joy than I did the first day, for nothing could happen to make me happy but only her forsaking that lewd and detestable course. Dipasus, I embrace thee.

Dipasus. And I thee, Geron, to whom I will hereafter recite the cause of these my first follies.

Cynthia. Well, Endymion, nothing resteth now but that we depart. Thou hast my favour; I tell Tellus her friend; Euenides in Paradise with his Semele; Geron content with Dipasus.

Sir Topas. Nay, soft; I cannot handsomely go to bed without Bagos.

Cynthia. Well, Sir Topas, it may be there are more virtues in me than myself knoweth of, for Endymion I awaked, and at my words he waxed young. I will try whether I can turn this tree again to thy true love.

Topas. Turn her to a true love or false, so she be a wench I care not.

Cynthia. Bagos, Cynthia putteth an end to thy hard fortunes; for, being turn'd to a tree for revealing a truth, I will recover thee again, if in my power be the effect of truth.

[Bagos recovers human shape.

Topas. Bagos, a boy upon thee!

Cynthia. Come, my lords, let us in. You, Gyptes and Pythagoras, if you can content yourselves in our court, to fall from vain follies of philosophers to such virtues as are here practis'd, you shall be entertained according to your deserts, for Cynthia is no stepmother to strangers.

Pythagoras. I had rather in Cynthia's court spend ten years than in Greece one hour.

Gyptes. And I choose rather to live by the sight of Cynthia than by the possessing of all Egypt.

Cynthia. Then follow.

Euenides. We all attend. "Excavate.

THE EPILOGUE

A man walking abroad, the Wind and Sun strove for sovereignty, the one with his blast, the other with his beams. The Wind blew hard; the man wrapped his garment about him harder: it burstred more strongly; he then girt it fast to him. "I cannot prevail," said the Wind. The Sun, casting her crystal beams, began to warm the man; he unloosed his gown: yet it shined brighter; he then put it off. "I yield," said the Wind, "for if thou continue shining, he will also put off his coat.

Dread Sovereign, the malignant that seek to overthrow us with threats do but stiffen our thoughts, and make them sturdier in storms; but if your highness vouchsafe with your favourable beams to glance upon us, we shall not only stoop, but with all humility lay both our hands and hearts at your majesty's feet.

Enter Fairies.

But what are these so fair fiends that cause my hairs to stand upright and spirits to fall down? Hags,—out alas, nymphs, I crave pardon. Ay me, out! what do I hear!

(The Fairies dance, and with a song pinch him, and he faileth asleep. They kiss Endymion and depart.

The Third Song by Fairies

Omens. Pinch him, pinch him, black and blue, 652
Saucy mortals must not view
What the Queen of Stars is doing,
Nor pry into our fairy wooling.

1 Fair. Pinch him blue.

2 Fair. And pinch him black;

3 Fair. Let him not lack Sharp nails to pinch him blue and red,
Till sleep has rock'd his addle head.

4 Fair. For the trespass he hath done,
Spots o'er all his flesh shall run.

5 Kiss Endymion, kiss his eyes,
Then to our midnight heldeyes.

6 Enter, at the side of the stage opposite Corisites.

Cynthia, Fliscula, Semele, Panellion, Zontes, Pythagoras, and Gryptes. [Corisites sleeps still.]

Cynthia. You see, Pythagoras, what ridiculous opinions you hold, and I doubt not but you are now of another mind.

Pythag. Madam, I plainly perceive that the perfection of your brightness hath pierced through the thickness that covered my mind; insomuch that I am no less glad to be reformed than ashamed to remember my grossness.

Gryptes. They are thriis fortunate that live in your palace where truth is not in colours but life, virtues not in imagination but execution.

Cynthia. I have always studied to have rather as living virtues than painted gods, the body of truth than the tomb. But let us walk to Endymion; it may be it lieth in your arts to deliver him; as for Eumenides, I fear he is dead.

Pythag. I have alleged all the natural reasons I can for such a long sleep.

Gryptes. I can do nothing till I see him.

Cynthia. Come, Fliscula; I am sure you are glad that you shall behold Endymion.

Flisc. I were blessed, if I might have him recovered.

Cynthia. Are you in love with his person?

Flisc. No, but with his virtue.

Cynthia. What say you, Semele?

Sem. Madam, I dare say nothing for fear I offend.

Cynthia. Belike you cannot speak except you be spiteful; but as good be silent as saucy. Panellion, what punishment were fit for Semele, in whose speech and thoughts is only contempt and sourness?

Panel. I love not, madam, to give any judgment; yet, sith Your Highness commandeth, I think to commit her tongue close prisoner to her mouth.

Cynthia. Agreed. Semele, if thou speakest this twelvemonth, thou shalt forfeit thy tongue. Behold Endymion! Alas, poor gentlemens, hast thou spent thy youth in sleep, that once vowed all to my service! Hollow eyes, grey hairs, wrinkled cheeks, and decayed limbs! Is it destiny or decreit that hath brought this to pass? If the first, who could prevent thy wretched stars? If the latter, I would like might know thy cruel enemy. I favoured thee, Endymion, for thy honour, thy virtues, thy affections; but to bring thy thoughts within the compass of thy fortunes, I have scorned strange, that I might have thee staid; and now are thy days ended before my favour begin. But whom have we here? Is it not Corisites?

Zontes. It is, but more like a leopard than a man.

Cynthia. Awake him. [Zontes vakens Corisites.] How now, Corisites, what make you here? 150 How came you deformed? Look on thy hands, and then thou seest the picture of thy face.

Corisites. Miserable wretch, and accursed! How am I deluded! Madam, I ask pardon for my offence, and you see my fortune deserveth pity.

Cynthia. Speak on; thy offence cannot deserve greater punishment: but see thou rehearse the truth, else shalt thou not find me as thou wishest.

Corisites. Madam, as it is no offence to be in love, being a man mortal, so I hope can it be no shame to tell with whom, my lady being heavily. Your Majesty committed to my charge fair Tellus, whose beauty in the same moment took my heart captive that I undertook to carry her body prisoner. Since that time have I found such combats in my thoughts between love and duty, reverence and affection, that I could neither endure the conflict, nor hope for the conquest.

Cynthia. In love? A thing far unfitting the name of a captain, and (as I thought) the tough and unsmoothened nature of Corisites. But forth!

Corisites. Feeling this continual war, I thought rather by parley to yield than by certain danger to perish. I unfolded to Tellus the depth of my affections, and framed my tongue to utter a sweet tale of love, that was wont to sound nothing but threats of war. She, too fair to be true and too false for one so fair, after a nice denial, practised a notable deceit, commanding me to remove Endymion from this cabin, and carry him to some dark cave; which I, seeking to accomplish, found impossible; and so by fairies or fiends have been thus handled.

Cynthia. How say you, my lords, is not Tellus always practising of some deceits? In sooth, Corisites, thy face is now too foul for a lover, and thine heart too fond for a soldier. You see when warriors become wantons how their manners alter with their faces. Is it not a shame, Corsites, that having lived so long in Mars's camp, thou shouldst now be rocked in Venus's cradle? Dost thou wear Cupid's [as quiver at thy girdle and make lanes of looks? Well, Corsites, rouze thyself and be as thou hast been; and let Tellus, who is made all of love, melt herself in her own looseness.

Cor. Madam, I doubt not but to recover [as my former state, for Tellus's beauty never wrought such love in my mind as now her decret hath despite; and yet to be revenged of a woman were a thing than love itself more womanish.

Gyptes. These spots, gentleman, are to be [worn out, if you rub them over with this lunny; so that in place where you received this main you shall find a medicine.

Cor. I thank you for that. The gods bless me from love and these pretty ladies that [has hast this green.

Flasc. Corsites, I would Tellus saw your amiable face. [SEMPLLE laughs.]

Zoni. How spitefully Semele laugheth, that dare not speak. [178

Cynthia. Could you not stir Endymion with that doubled strength of yours?

Cor. Not so much as his finger with all my force.

Cynthia. Pythagoras and Gyptes, what [think you of Endymion? What reason is to be given, what remedy?

P. Madam, it is impossible to yield reason for things that happen not in compass of nature. It is most certain that some strange en- [steinment hath bound all his senses.

Cynthia. What say you, Gyptes?

Gyptes. With Pythagoras, that it is enchantment, and that so strange that no art can undo it, for that heaviness argueth a malice unrev- [se movable in the enchantress, and that no power can end it, till she die that did it, or the heavens show some means more than miraculous.

Flasc. O Endymion, could it spare itself devise a mischief so monstrous as to make thee dead [as with life, and living, being altogether dead? Where others number their years, their hours, their minutes, and step to age by stairs; thou only hast thy years and times in a cluster, being old before thou rememberest thou wast young. [202

Cynthia. No more, Flascula; pity doth him no good: I would anything else might; and I vow by the unsotted honour of a lady he should not miss it. But is this all, Gyptes, that is to be done?

Gyptes. All as yet. It may be that either the enchantress shall die or else be discovered; if either happens, I will then practise the utmost of my art. In the mean season, about this grove would I have a watch, and the first living [as thing that toucheth Endymion to be taken.

Cor. Corsites, what say you, will you undertake this?

Cor. Good madam, pardon me! I was overtaken too late. I should rather break into [as the midst of a main battle than again fall into the hands of those fair babies.

Cynthia. Well, I will provide others. Pythagoras and Gyptes, you shall yet remain in my court, till I hear what may be done in this [as matter.

Pyth. We attend.

Cynthia. Let us go in. [Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I. [Enter] Samias and Dares.

Samias. Eumenides hath told such strange tales as I may well wonder at them, but never believe them.

Dares. The other old man, what a sad speech used he, that caused us almost all to weep. [5 Cynthia is so desirous to know the experiment of her own virtue, and so willing to ease Endymion's hard fortune, that she no sooner heard the discourse but she made herself in a readiness to try the event.

Sama. We will also see the event. But whist! here cometh Cynthia with all her train. Let us speak in amongst them.

[Enter Cynthia, Flascula, SEMPLLE, [EUMENides,] Pandirion, etc.

Cynthia. Eumenides, it cannot sink into my head that I should be signified by such a sacred fountain, for many things are there in the world to which those words may be applied.

Eum. Good madam, vouchsafe but to try; else shall I think myself most unhappy that I asked not my sweet mistress.

Cynthia. Will you not yet tell me her name?

Eum. Pardon me, good madam, for if Endymion awake, he shall; myself have sworn never to reveal it.

Cynthia. Well, let us to Endymion. I will [not be so stately, good Endymion, not to stoope to do thee good; and if thy liberty consist in a kiss from me, thou shalt have it; and although my mouth hath been heretofore as untouched as my thoughts, yet now to recover thy life, I'll though to restore thy youth it be impossible, I will do that to Endymion which yet never mortal man could boast of heretofore, nor shall ever hope for hereafter.

She kisses him.

Eum. Madam, he beginneth to stir.

Cynthia. Soft, Eumenides; stand still.

Eum. Ah, I see his eyes almost open.

Cynthia. I command thee once again, stir not. I will stand behind him.

Pon. What do I see? Endymion almost [awake?

Eum. Endymion, Endymion, art thou deaf or dumb, or hath this long sleep taken away thy memory? Ah, my sweet Endymion, seest thou not Eumenides, thy faithful friend, thy faith- [ful Eumenides, who for thy safety hath been careless of his own content? Speak, Endymion! Endymion! Endymion! Endymion!

End. Endymion? I call to mind such a name.

Em. Hast thou forgotten thyself, Endymion? Then do I not marvel thou remembrest not thy friend. I tell thee thou art Endymion, and I Endymion. Behold also Cynthia, by whose favour thou art awaked, and by whose [sic] virtue thou shalt continue thy natural course.

Cyn. Endymion, speak, sweet Endymion! Knowest thou not Cynthia?

End. O heavens, whom do I behold? Fair Cynthia, divine Cynthia?

Cyn. I am Cynthia, and thou Endymion.

End. "Endymion"! What do I hear? What, a grey beard, hollow eyes, withered body, decayed limbs, — and all in one night?

Em. One night! Thou hast here slept [as] forty years, — by what enchantress as yet it is not known, — and behold, the twig to which thou laid'st thy head is now become a tree. Callest thou not Eumenides to remembrance?

End. Thy name I do remember by the sound, but thy favour? I do not yet call to mind; only divine Cynthia, to whom time, fortune, destiny, and death are subject, I see and remember, and in all humility I regard and reverence.

Cyn. You have good cause to remember Eumenides, who hath for thy safety forsaken his own solace.

End. Am I that Endymion who was wont in court to lead my life, and in justs, tourneys, [as] and arms, to exercise my youth? Am I that Endymion?

Em. Thou art that Endymion, and I Eumenides: wilt thou not yet call me to remembrance?

End. Ah, sweet Eumenides, I now perceive thou art he, and that myself have the name of Endymion; but that this should be my body I doubt, for how could my curled locks be turned to grey hairs and my strong body to a dying [sic] weakness, having waxed old, and not knowing it.

Cyn. Well, Endymion, arise. [Endymion, trying to rise, sinks back.] A while sit down, for that thy limbs are stiff and not able to stay [sic] thee, and tell what hast thou seen in thy sleep all this while, — what dreams, visions, thoughts, and fortunes; for it is impossible but in so long time thou shouldst see things strange.

End. Fair Cynthia, I will rehearse what [as] I have seen, humbly desiring that when I exceed in length, you give me warning, that I may end; for to utter all I have to speak would be troublesome, although haply the strangeness may somewhat abate the tediousness.

Cyn. Well, Endymion, begin.

End. Methought I saw a lady passing fair, but very mischievous, who in the one hand carried a knife with which she offered to cut my throat, and in the other a looking-glass, [sic] wherein seeing how ill anger became ladies, she refrained from intended violence. She was accompanied with other damsels, one of which, with a stern countenance, and as it were with a settled malice engraven in her eyes, [eleven] provoked her to execute mischief; another, with visage sad, and constant only in sorrow, with her arms crossed, and watery eyes, seemed to lament my fortune, but durst not offer to prevent the force. I started in my sleep, [six] feeling my very veins to swell and my sinews to stretch with fear, and such a cold sweat became all my body that death itself could not be so terrible as the vision.

Cyn. A strange sight! Gyptes, at our [six] better leisure, shall expound it.

End. After long debating with herself, mercy overcome anger, and there appeared in her heavenly face such a divine majesty mingled with a sweet mildness that I was ravished [six] with the sight above measure, and wished that I might have enjoyed the sight without end: and so she departed with the other ladies, of which the one retained still an unmovable cruelty, the other a constant pity.

Cyn. Poor Endymion, how vast thou art afflicted with what else?

End. After her, immediately appeared an aged man with a beard as white as snow, carrying in his hand a book with three leaves, [eleven] and speaking, as I remember, these words: "Endymion, receive this book with three leaves, in which are contained counsels, policies, and pictures," and with that he offered me the book, which I rejected; wherewith, [eleven] moved with a disdainful pity, he rent the first leaf in a thousand shivers. The second time he offered it, which I refused also; at which, bending his brows, and pointing his eyes fast to the ground, as though they were fixed [six] to the earth and not again to be removed, then suddenly casting them up to the heavens, he tore in a rage the second leaf, and offered the book only with one leaf. I know not whether fear to offend or desire to know some [eleven] stronger thing moved me: I took the book, and so the old man vanished.

Cyn. What didst thou imagine was in the last leaf?

End. There portrayed to life, with a cold [six] quaking in every joint, I beheld many wolves barking at thee, Cynthia, who having ground their teeth to bite, did with striving blest themselves to death. There might I see ingratitude with an hundred eyes gazin for bene-fits, and with a thousand teeth gnawing on the bowels wherein she was bred; Treachery stood all clothed in white, with a smiling countenance, but both her hands bathed in blood; Envy with a pale and meagre face (whose body [eleven] was so lean that one might tell all her bones, and whose garment was so tattered that it was easy to number every thread) stood shooting at stars, whose darts fell down again on her own face. There might I behold drones [six] that knew not how to use them, creeping under the wings of a princely eagle, who, being carried into her nest, sought there of honey, a goose of gall, a capon of care, and many other viands, some sweet and some sour, which proveth love to be, as it was said of in old years, Dulce venenum.

Epi. A brave banquet!

Top. But, Epi, I pray thee feed on my chin; something pricketh me. What dost thou feel or see?

Epi. There are three or four little hairs.

Top. I pray thee call it my beard. How shall I be troubled when this young spring shall grow to a great wood!

Epi. Oh, sir, your chin is but a quiller yet; you will be most majestic when it is full-feathered. But I marvel that you love Dipass, that old erone.

Top. Agnosco veteris vestigia flammas; I love the smoke of an old fire.

Epi. Why she is so cold that no fire can thaw her thoughts.

Top. It is an old goose, Epi, that will eat no oats; old kine will kick, old rats gnaw cheese, and old sacks will have much patching. I prefer an old corney before a rabbit-smoker, and an ancient hen before a young chicken-peeper.

Epi. [Aside.] Argumentum ab antiquitate; my master loveth antique work.

Top. Give me a pippin that is withered like an old wife!

Epi. Good, sir.

Top. Then,—a contrario sequitur argumentum,—give me a wife that looks like an old pippin.

Epi. [Aside.] Nothing hath made my master a fool but flat scholarship.

Top. Knowest thou not that old wine is best?

Epi. Yes.

Top. And thou knowest that like will to like?

Epi. Ay.

Top. And thou knowest that Venus loved the best wine?

Epi. No.

Top. Then I conclude that Venus was an old woman in an old cup of wine, for est Venus in vinis, ignis in ignis fuit.

Epi. O lepidum cuprum! O madeup master! You were worthy to win Dipass, were she as old again, for in your love you have worn the nap of your wit quite off and made it threadbare. But soft, who comes here?

[Enter Samias and Dares.]

Top. My solicitors.

Sam. All hail, Sir Tophas; how feel you yourself?

Top. Stately in every joint, which the common people term stiffness. Doth Dipass stoop? Will she yield? Will she bend?

Dare. Oh, sir, as much as you would wish, for her chin almost toucheth her knees.

Epi. Master, she is bent; I warrant you.

Sam. She hath vowed she will never love any that hath not a tooth in his head less than [as she]
Top. How many hath she?
Dar. One.
Epi. That goeth hard, master, for then you must have none.
Top. A small request, and agreeable to the gravity of her years. What should a wise man do with his mouth full of bones like a charnel-house? The turtle true hath ne'er a tooth.
Sam. [Aside.] Thy master is in a notable [as vein, that will lose his teeth to be like a turtle.
Epi. [Aside.] Let him lose his tongue, too; I care not.
Dar. Nay, you must also have no nails, for she long since hath cast hers.
Top. That I yield to. What a quiet life shall Dipsas and I lead when we can neither bite nor scratch! You may see, youths, how age procures for you.
Sam. [Aside.] How shall we do to make [as] him leave his love, for we never spake to her?
Dar. [Aside.] Let me alone. [To Sir Tophas.] She is a notable witch, and hath turned her maid Bagoa to an aspen tree, for bewraying her secrets.
Top. I honour her for her cunning, for now when I am weary of walking on two legs, what a pleasure may she do me to turn me to some goodly ass, and help me to four.
Dar. Nay, then I must tell you the [as] truth. Her husband, Geron, is come home, who this fifty years hath had her wife.
Top. What do I hear? Hath she an husband? Go to the sexton and tell him Desire is dead, and will him to dig his grave. O [as] heavens, an husband! What death is agreeable to my fortune?
Sam. Be not desperate, and we will help you to find a young lady.
Top. I love no grissels; they are so brittle [t] they will crack like glass, or so dainty that if they be touched they are straight of the fashion of wax; animus majoribus instat. I desire old matrons. What a sight would it be to embrace one whose hair were as orient as [as] the pearl, whose teeth be so pure a watchet [as] that they shall stain the truest turquois, whose nose shall throw more beams from it than the fiery carbuncle, whose eyes shall be environ'd about with redness ex-[as] ceding the deepest coral, and whose lips might compare with silver for the paleness! Such a one if you can help me to, I will by piecemeal curtail my affections towards Dipsas, and walk my swelling thoughts till they be cold.
Epi. Wisely provided. How say you, my friends, will you angle for my master's cause?
Sam. Most willingly.
Dar. If we speed him not shortly, I will burn my cap. We will serve him of the spades, [as] and dig an old wife out of the grave that shall be answerable to his gravity.

---

Top. Youths, adieu; he that bringeth me first news, shall possess mine inheritance.
[Enter Sir Tophas.]
Dar. What, is thy master landed?
Epi. Know you not that my master is liber-temen?
Sam. What's that?
Epi. A freeholder. But I will after him.
Sam. And we to hear what news of Endymion for the conclusion. Exeunt.

Scene III. 4

[Enter] Panklion and Zontes.

Pan. Who would have thought that Tellus, being so far by nature, so honourable by birth, so wise by education, would have entered into a mischief to the gods so odious, to men so detestable, and to her friend so malicious.
Zon. If Bagoa had not bewrayed it, how then should it have come to light? But we see that good and fair words are of force to corrupt the strongest men, and therefore able to work sily women like wax.
Pan. I marvel what Cynthia will determine in this cause.
Zon. I fear, as in all causes:— hear of it in justice, and then judge of it in mercy; for how can it be that she that is unwilling to punish [as] her deadliest foes with disgrace, will revenge injuries of her train with death.
Pan. That old witch, Dipsas, in a rage, having understood her practice to be discovered, turned poor Bagoa to an aspen tree. But let [as] us make haste and bring Tellus before Cynthia, for she was coming out after us.
Zon. Let us go. Exeunt.
[Enter] Cynthia, Semele, Flocscula, Dipsas, Endymion, Eumndikes, [Geron, Phthago-ras, Gymes, and Sir Tophas].

Cynthia. Dipsas, thy years are not so many as thy vices, yet more in number than commonly [as] nature doth afford or justice should permit. Hast thou almost these fifty years practised that detested wickedness of witchcraft? Want thou, so simple as for to know the nature of simples, of all creatures to be most sinful? Thou hast [as] threat'ned to turn my course away and alter by thy damnable art the government that I now possess by the eternal gods; but know thou, Dipsas, and let all the enchanters know, that Cynthia, being placed for light on earth, is also [as] protected by the powers of heaven. Breathe out thou mayest words; gather thou mayest herbs; find out thou mayest stones agreeable to thine art; yet of no force to appal my heart, in which courage is so rooted, and constant [as] persuasion of the mercy of the gods so grounded, that all thy witchcraft I esteem as weak as the world doth thy case wretched. This noble gentleman, Geron, once thy husband but now thy mortal hate, didst thou procure to live in [as] a desert, almost desperate; Endymion, the flower of my court and the hope of succeeding time, hast thou bewitched by art, before thou wouldst suffer him to flourish by nature.

Dipas. Madam, things past may be re-

[ised, not recalled: there is nothing so wicked that I have not done, nor anything so wished for as death; yet among all the things that I committed, there is nothing so much tormenteth my rented and ransack’d thoughts as that in [as the prime of my husband’s youth I divorced him by my devilish art; for which if to die might be amends, I would not live till to-morrow; if to live and still be more miserable would better content him, I would wish of all creatures to [as be oldest and ugliest.

Gros. Dipasas, thou hast made this difference between me and Endymion, that being both young, thou hast caused me to wake in melancholy, losing the joys of my youth, and him [as to sleep, not remembering youth.

Cynthia. Stay, here cometh Tellus; we shall now know all.

[Re-enter Pannelion and Zonte, with Corribus and Tellus.]

Coris. I would to Cynthia thou couldst make so good an excuse in truth as to me thou hast [as done by wit.

Tellus. Truth shall be mine answer, and therefore I will not study for an excuse.

Cynthia. Is it possible, Tellus, that so few years should harbour so many mischiefs? Thy [as swelling pride have I borne, because it is a thing that beauty maketh blameless, which the more it extendeth fairness in measure, the more it extendeth itself in disdain. Thy devices against Coribus I smile at, for that wilt, the sharper [as they are, the abuser ¹ they are; but this unacquainted ² and most unnatural practice with a vile enchantress against so noble a gentleman as Endymion I abhor as a thing most malicious, and will revenge as a deed most monstrous. [and
As for you, Dipas, I will send you into the desert amongst wild beasts, and try whether you can cast lions, tigers, bears, and bears into as dead a sleep as you did Endymion, or turn them to trees, as you have done Bagus. But tell me, [as Tellus, what was the cause of this cruel part, far unfitting thy sex, in which nothing should be but simpleness, and much disagreeing from thy face, in which nothing seemed to be but softness.

Tellus. Divine Cynthia, by whom I receive my life and am content to end it. I can neither excuse my fault without lying, nor confess it without shame; yet were it possible that in so heavenly thoughts as yours there could fall [as such earthly motions as mine, I would then hope, if not to be pardoned without extreme punishment, yet to be heard without great marvel.

Cynthia. Say on, Tellus; I cannot imagine any thing that can colour such a cruelty. ³

Tellus. Endymion, that Endymion, in the prize of his youth, so ravish’d my heart with love, that to obtain my desires I could not find means, nor to resist them reason. What was she that favoured not Endymion, being [as young, wise, honourable, and virtuous; besides, what metal was she made of (be she mortal) that is not affected with the spleen, nay, infected with the poison of that not-to-be-expressed [as always-to-be-felt love, which breaketh the [as brains and never bruisest the brow, consumeth the heart and never toucheth the skin, and maketh a deep scar to be seen before any wound at all be felt. ⁸ My heart, too tender to withstand such a divine fury, yielded to [as love. Madam, I, not without blushing, confess [as yielded to love.

Cynthia. A strange effect of love, to work such an extreme hate. How say you, Endymion?
All this was for love?

End. I say, madam, then the gods send me a woman’s hate.

Cynthia. That were as bad, for then by contrary you should never sleep. But on, Tellus; let us hear the end.

Tellus. Feeling a continual burning in all my bowels, and a burning almost in every vein,
I could not smoother the inward fire, but it must needs be perceived by the outward smoke; and by the flying abroad of divers sparks, [as divers judged of my scalding flames. Endymion, as full of art as wit, marking mine eyes, (in which he might see almost his own,) my sighs, (by which he might ever hear his name sound’d,) aimed at my heart, in which he [as was assured his person was imprinted, and by questions wrung out that which was ready to burst out. When he saw the depth of my affections, he swore that mine in respect of his were as fumes to Etne, valleys to Alps, ants [as to eagles, and nothing could be compared to my beauty but his love and eternity. Thus drawing a smooth shoe upon a crooked foot, he made me believe that (which all of our sex willingly acknowledge) I was beautiful, and [as to wonder (which indeed is an thing miraculous) that any of his sex should be faithfull.

Cynthia. Endymion, how will you clear yourself?

End. Madam, by mine own accuser.

Cynthia. Well, Tellus, proceed; but briefly, lest taking delight in uttering thy love, thou offend us with the length of it.

Tellus. I will, madam, quickly make an end of my love and my tale. Finding continual [as increase of my tormenting thoughts, and that the enjoying of my love made deeper wounds than the entering into it, I could find no means to ease my grief but to follow Endymion, and continually to have him in the object of [as mine eyes who had me slave and subject to his love. But in the moment that I feared his falsehood and tried myself most in mine affections.
I found — ah, grief, even then I lost myself! — I found him in most melancholy and desperate terms cursing his stars, his state, the earth, the heavens, the world, and all for the love of Cynthia. Of whom? Tellus, speak boldly.

as white as snow and as red as blood? Ha, ha! have I touched you now?

Eum. [aside.] I think this boy be a spirit. [Aside.]

—How knowest thou all this?

[Gen. of.] Jack. Tut, are not you the man, sir, deny it if you can, sir, that gave all the money you had to the burying of a poor man, and but one three half-pence left in your purse? Content you, sir, I’ll serve you, that is flat.

Eum. Well, my lad, since thou art so importunate, I am content to entertain thee, not as a servant, but a copartner in my journey. But whither shall we go? for I have not any money more than one bare three half-pence.

[Gen. of.] Jack. Well, master, content yourself, for if my divination be not out, that shall be spent at the next inn or alehouse we come to: for, master, I know you are passing hungry; therefore I’ll go before and provide dinner until that you come; no doubt but you’ll come fair and safely after.

[Gen. of.] Jack. But do you hear, master? Do you know my name?

Eum. No, I promise thee, not yet.

Eum. Jack! Why, be it so, then.

Enter the Hostess and Jack, setting meat upon the table; and Fiddlers come to play. Eumenides walketh up and down, and will eat no meat.

Host. How say you, sir? Do you please to sit down?

Eum. Hostess, I thank you, I have no great stomach.

Host. Pray, sir, what is the reason your master is so strange? Doth not this meat please him?

[Gen. of.] Jack. Yes, hostess, but it is my master’s fashion to pay before he eats; therefore, a rakoning, good hostess.

Host. Marry, shall you, sir, presently. Exit.

Eum. Why, Jack, what dost thou mean? Thou knowest I have not any money; therefore, sweet Jack, tell me what shall I do?

Eum. Why, faith, it is a folly, for I have no money.

[Gen. of.] Jack. Why, look you, master; do so much for me.

Eum. [looking into his purse.] Alas, Jack, my purse is full of money!

[Gen. of.] Jack. "Alas," master! does that word belong to this accident? Why, methinks I should have seen you cast away your cloak, and in a bravado dance a galliard round about the chamber. Why, master, your man can teach you more wit than this.

[Re-enter Hostess.]

Come, hostess, cheer up my master.

Host. You are heartily welcome; and if it please you to eat of a fat capon, a fairer bird, a finer bird, a sweeter bird, a crispier bird, a master bird, your worship never eat of.

[Gen. of.] Jack. Thanks, my fine, eloquent hostess. [Gen. of.] Jack. But hear you, master, one word by the way. Are you content I shall make halves in all you get in your journey?

Eum. I am, Jack, here is my hand.

Eum. Come, hostess, receive your money; and I thank you for my good entertainment.

[Give money.]

Host. You are heartily welcome, sir.

Eum. Come, Jack, whither go we now?

Eum. Content, Jack.—Hostess, farewell.

Exit.

Enter Corbusus [blind], and Celanta, the fodal wench, to the well for water.

Cor. Come, my duck, come: I have now got a wife. Thou art fair, art thou not?

Cel. My Corbusus, the fairest alive; make no doubt of that.

Cor. Come, wench, are we almost at the well?

Cel. Ay, Corbusus, we are almost at the well now. I’ll go fetch some water; sit down while I dip my pitcher in.

Voice. Gently dip, but not too deep.

For fear you make the golden beard to weep.

A Head comes up with ears of corn, and she combs them into her lap.

Fair maiden, white and red,
Comb me smooth, and stroke my head,
And thou shalt have some cockle-bread.

A [Second] Head comes up full of gold; she combs it into her lap. 1

[Sec. Head.] Gently dip, but not too deep.

For fear thou make the golden beard to weep.

Fair maid, white and red,
Comb me smooth, and stroke my head,
And every hair a sheaf shall be,
And every sheaf a golden tree.

Cel. O, see, Corbusus, I have comb’d a great deal of gold into my lap, and a great deal of corn!

Cor. Well said, now we shall have just enough. God send us coiners to coin our gold. But come, shall we go home, sweet-heart?

Cel. Nay, come, Corbusus, I will lead you.

Cor. So, Corbusus, things have well hit; Thou hast gotten wealth to mend thy wit.

[Exeunt.

Enter [the GHOST OF] Jack and [Eumenides] the wandering knight.

Eum. Go along, Jack, I’ll follow thee. Jack, they say it is good to go cross-legged, and say his prayers backward; how sayest thou?

[Gen. of.] Jack. Tut, never fear, master; let me alone. Here sit you still; speak not a word; and because you shall not be enticed with his enchanting speeches, with this same wool I’ll enter.

1 This stage direction occurs in Q after line 351.

2 Well done!
THE OLD WIVES TALE

stop your ears: and so, master, sit still, for I must to the conjurer. Exit.

Enter [SACRAPANT] the Conjuror to the wandering knight.

Sec. How now! What man art thou that sits so sad?

Why dost thou gaze upon these stately trees Without the leave and will of Sacrapant? What, not a word but mum? Then, Sacrapant, Thou art betray’d.

Re-enter [the GHOST OF] JACK invisible, and takes off SACRAPANT’s wreath from his head, and his sword out of his hand.

What hand invades the head of Sacrapant? [oos]

What hateful Fury doth envy my happy state? Then, Sacrapant, these are thy latest days. Alas, my veins are numb’d, my sinews shrink. My blood is pierc’d, my breast fleething away, And now my meaningless date is come to end! [oos]

He is in whose life his actions hath been so foul, Now in his death he bell descendeth his soul. He dieth.

[G.of] Jack. O, sir, are you gone? Now I hope we shall have some other out. — Now, master, how like you this? The conjurer he is [oos] dead, and vows never to trouble us more. Now get you to your fair lady, and see what you can do with her. — Alas, he heareth me not all this while; but I will help that.

Pulls the wool out of the ears of EUMENIDES.

Eum. How now, Jack! What news?

[G.of] Jack. Here, master, take this sword, and dig with it at the foot of this hill.

EUMENIDES digs, andspies a light [in a glass].

Eum. How now, Jack! What is this?

[G.of] Jack. Master, without this the conjurer could do nothing; and so long as this light lasts, so long doth his art endure, and this being out, then doth his art decay.

Eum. Why, then, Jack, I will soon put out this light.

[G.of] Jack. Ay, master, how?

Eum. Why, with a stone I’ll break the glass, and then blow it out.

EUMENIDES winds the horn. Here enters VER- NELLA, and breaks the glass, and blows out the light, and goeth in again.

So, master, how like you this? This is she that ran maddening in the woods, his betrothed love that keeps the cross; and now, this light being out, all are restored to their former liberty. And now, master, to the lady that you have so long looked for.

1 Qu. Read life’s for life his?

The GHOST OF JACK draweth a curtain, and there DELIA sitteth asleep.

Eum. God speed, fair maid, sitting alone; there is once; God speed, fair maid, — there is twice; God speed, fair maid, — that is thrice.

Del. Not so, good sir, for you are by. [G.of] Jack. Enough, master, she hath spoke; now I will leave her with you. [Exit.]

Eum. Thou fairest flower of those western parts, Whose beauty so reflecteth in my sight As doth a crystal mirror in the sun; For thy sweet sake I have crost the frozen Rhine;² Leaving fair Po, I sail’d up Danube As far as Saba, whose enhancing streams Cut twixt the Tartars and the Russians; These have I crost for thee, fair Delia: Then grant me that which I have su’d for long.

Del. Thou gentle knight, whose fortune is so good To find me out and set my brothers free, My faith, my heart, my hand I give to thee. Eum. Thanks, gentle madam; but here comes Jack; thank him, for he is the best friend that we have.

Re-enter [the GHOST OF] JACK, with a head in his hand.

Eum. Why, Jack, that is impossible; he was a young man.

[G.of] Jack. Ah, master, so he deceived them that beheld him! But he was a miserable, old, and crooked man, though to each man’s eye he seemed young and fresh; for, master, this conjurer took the shape of the old man that kept the cross, and that old man was in the likeness of the conjurer. But now, master, wind your horn.

EUMENIDES winds his horn. Enter VERNELLA, the Two Brothers, and [EREUSTUS] he that was at the cross.

Eum. Welcome, Erestus! welcome, fair Venelia!

Welcome, Thelea and Calyphe both! Now have I her that I so long have sought; So saith fair Delia, if we have your consent.

1 Bro. Valiant Eumenides, thou well deservest.

To have our favours; so let us rejoice That by thy means we are at liberty. Here may we joy each in other’s sight, And this fair lady have her wandering knight. [G.of] Jack. So, master, now ye think you have done; but I must have a saying to you. You know you and I were partners, I have half in all you got.

² This and the next three lines are found, with slight variations, in Greene’s Orlando Furioso. (Dyce.)
Enter Antic, Frolic, and Fantastick.

_Ant._ How now, fellow Frolic! What, all a'mort? Doth this sadness become thy madness? What though we have lost our way in the woods, yet never hang the head as though thou hadst no hope to live till to-morrow; for I, Fantastick, and I will warrant thy life to-night for twenty in the hundred.

_Fro._ Antic and Fantastick, as I am frolic шазів, never in all my life was I so dead slain. What, to lose our way in the wood, is without either fire or candle, so uncomfortable!

_Enter [Clunch] a smith, with a lantern and candle._

"A cat's eye, my life for a halfpenny! In the name of my own father, he thou ox or ass that appeareth, tell us what thou art.

_Smith._ What am I? Why, I am Clunch the smith. What are you? What make you in my territories at this time of the night?

_Ant._ What do we make, dost thou ask? Why, we make faces for fear; such as if thy mortal eyes could behold, would make thee water the long seams of thy side slops, as smith.

_Fro._ And, in faith, sir, unless your hospitality do relieve us, we are like to wander, with a sorrowful heigh-ho, among the owlets and hobb-goblins of the forest. Good Vulcan, for Cupid's sake that hath cozened us all, befriend us as thou mayst; and command us howsoever, wheresoe'er, whatsoever, in whatsoever, for ever and ever.

_Smith._ Well, masters, it seems to me you have lost your way in the wood; in consideration whereof, if you will go with Clunch to his cottage, you shall have house-room and a good fire to sit by, although we have no bedding to put you in.

_All._ O blessed smith, O bountiful Clunch!

_Smith._ For your further entertainment, it shall be as it may be, so and so.

_A dog barks within_.

_Hark! this is Ball my dog, that bids you all welcome in his own language. Come, take heed for stumbling on the threshold. — Open door, Madge; take in guests._

1 O Franticke. 2 A gay fellow. 3 Dejected. 4 With a pun on wood, mad. 5 Long wide trousers. 6 The scene is now at the cottage.
Enter [MADGE, an old woman.

Madge. Welcome, Clunch, and good fellows all, that come with my good-man. For my good-man’s sake, come on, sit down; here is a piece of cheese, and a pudding of my own making; thank you.

Ant. Thanks, gammer; a good example for the wives of our town.

Fro. Gammer, thou and thy good-man sit lovingly together; we come to chat, and not to eat.

Smith. Well, masters, if you will eat nothing, take away. Come, what do we pass away the time? Lay a crab in the fire to roast for lamb’s-wool. What shall we have a game at trump or ruff to drive away the time? How say you?

Fan. This smith leads a life as merry as a king with Madge his wife. Sirrah Frolic, I am sure thou art not without some round or other; no doubt but Clunch can bear his part.

Fro. Else think you me ill brought up; so set to it when you will.

They sing.

Some.

Whereas the rye reach to the chin,

And chokeberry, chokeberry ripe within,

Strawberries swimming in the cream,

And school-boys playing in the stream;

Then, O, then, O, then, O, my true-love said,

Till that time come again

She could not live a maid.

Ant. This sport does well; but methinks, gammer, a merry winter’s tale would drive away the time trimly. Come, I am sure you are not without a score.

Fan. I’faith, gammer, a tale of an hour long were as good as an hour’s sleep.

Fro. Look you, gammer, of the giant and the king’s daughter, and I know not what. I have seen the day, when I was a little one, I might have drawn me a mile after you with such a discourse.

Madge. Well, since you be so importunate, my good-man shall fill the pot and get him to bed; they that ply their work must keep good hours. One of you go lie with him; he is a clean-skinned man I tell you, without either spavin or wind-gall: so I am content to drive away the time with an old wives’ winter’s tale.

Fan. No better hay in Devonshire; o—my—what word, gammer, I’ll be one of your audience.

Fro. And I another, that’s flat.

Ant. Then must I to bed with the good-man.

—Bona sox, gammer.—Good night, Frolic.

Smith. Come on, my lad, thou shalt take thy unseasonable rest with me.

Exit ANTIQUE and the smith.

Fro. Yet this vantage shall we have of them in the morning, to be ready at the sight thereof extempore.

Madge. Now this bargain, my masters, must I make with you, that you will say hum and ha to my tale, so shall I know you are awake.

Both. Content, gammer, that will we do.

Madge. Once upon a time, there was a king, or a lord, or a duke, that had a fair daughter, the fairest that ever was, as white as snow and as red as blood; and once upon a time his daughter was stolen away; and he sent all his men to seek out his daughter; and he sent so long, that he sent all his men out of his land.

Fro. Who drest his dinner, then?

Madge. Nay, either hear my tale, or kiss my tail.

Fan. Well said! On with your tale, gammer.

Madge. O Lord, I quite forget! There was a conjurer, and this conjurer could do anything, and he turned himself into a great dragon, and carried the king’s daughter away in his mouth to a castle that he made of stone; and there he kept her I know not how long, till at last all the king’s men went out so long that her two brothers went to seek her. O, I forget! she (he, I would say,) turned a proper young man to a bear in the night, and a man in the day, and keeps a bear that parts three several ways; and he made his lady run mad—Gods me bones, who comes here?

Enter the Two Brothers.

Fro. Soft, gammer, here some come to tell your tale for you.

Fan. Let them alone; let us hear what they will say.

1 Bro. Upon these chalky cliffs of Albion We are arrived now with tedious toil; And compassing the wide world round about, To seek our sister, to seek fair Delia forth, Yet cannot we so much as hear of her.

2 Bro. O fortune cruel, cruel and unkind! Unkind in that we cannot find our sister, Our sister, hapless in her cruel chance! Soft! who have we here?

Enter Senex [EREPTUS] at the cross, stooping to gather.

1 Bro. Now, father, God be your speed! What do you gather there?

Erest. Hip and haws, and sticks and straws, and things that I gather on the ground, my son.

1 Bro. Hip and haws, and sticks and straws! Why, is that all your food, father?

Erest. Yes, son.

2 Bro. Father, here is an alms-penny for me; and if I speed in that I go for, I will give thee as good a gown of grey as ever thou didst wear.

1 Bro. And, father, here is another alms-penny for me; and if I speed in my journey, I

1 Handsome.

2 [The young man] lives.

Erestus is called old man in the speech-tags throughout in Q.
will give thee a palmer's staff of ivory, and a scallop-shell of beaten gold.

Erest. Was she fair?

2 Bro. Ay, the fairest for white, and the [ss] purest for red, as the blood of the deer, or the driven snow.

Erest. Then hark well, and mark well, my old spell:
Be not afraid of every stranger;
Start not aside at every danger; 130
Things that seem are not the same;
Blow a blast at every flame;
For when one flame of fire goes out,
Then comes your wishes well about:
If any ask who told you this good,
Say, the white bear of England's wood.

1 Bro. Brother, heard you not what the old man said?

"Be not afraid of every stranger;
Start not aside at every danger;
Things that seem are not the same;
[For when one flame of fire goes out,
Then comes your wishes well about:]
If any ask who told you this good,
Say, the white bear of England's wood."

2 Bro. Well, if this do us any good,
Well fare the white bear of England's wood!

Execut [the Two Brothers].

Erest. Now sit thee here, and tell a heavy tale,
Sad in thy mood, and sober in thy cheer;
Here sit thee now, and to thyself relate 210
The hard mishap of thy most wretched state.
In Thessaly I liv'd in sweet content,
Until that fortune wrought my overthrow;
For there I wedded was unto a dame, That liv'd in honour, virtue, love, and fame.
But Socrates, that cursed sorcerer,
Being besotted with my beauteous love,
My dearest love, my true betrothed wife,
Did seek the means to rid me of my life.
But worse than this, he with his chanting spells
Did turn me straight unto an ugly bear;
And when the sun doth settle in the west,
Then I begin to do my ugly hide.
And all the day I sit, as now you see,
And speak in riddles, all inspir'd with rage, Seeming an old and miserable man,
And yet I am in April of my age.

Enter VENELLA his lady, mad; and goes in again.

See where Venelia, my betrothed love,
Runs madding, all enrag'd, about the woods,
All by his cursed and enchanting spells. — [220

Enter LAMPRICUS with a pot of honey.

But here comes Lampricus, my discontented neighbour. How now, neighbour! You look toward the ground as well as I; you muse on something.

Lamp. Neighbour, on nothing but on the [ss] matter I so often moved to you. If you do anything for charity, help me; if for neighbourhood or brotherhood, help me: never was one so cumbered as is poor Lampricus; and to bein, I pray receive this pot of honey, to [ss] meet your fare.

Erest. Thank ye, neighbour, set it down; honey is always welcome to the bear. And now, neighbour, let me hear the cause of your coming. 230

Lamp. I am, as you know, neighbour, a man unmarried; and lived so unquietly with my two wives, that I keep every year holy the day wherein I buried them both: the first was on Saint Andrew's day, the other on Saint Luke's.

Erest. And now, neighbour, you of this country say, your custom is out. But on with your tale, neighbour.

Lamp. By my first wife, whose tongue [ss] weared me alive, and sounded in my ears like the clapper of a great bell, whose talk was a continual torment to all that dwelt by her or lived nigh her, you have heard me say I had a handsome daughter.

Erest. True, neighbour.

Lamp. She it is that afflicts me with her continual clamours, and hangs on me like a bur.
Poor she is, and proud she is; as poor as a sheep new-shorn, and as proud of her hopes [ss] as a peacock of her tail well-grown.

Erest. Well said, Lampricus! You speak it like an Englishman.

Lamp. As curst as a wasp, and as froward as a child new-taken from the mother's teat; [ss] she is to my age as smoke to the eyes or as vinegar to the teeth.

Erest. Holily praised, neighbour. As much for the next.

Lamp. By my other wife I had a daughter [ss]
so hard-favoured, so foul and ill-faced, that I think a grove full of golden trees, and the leaves of rubies and diamonds, would not be a downy answerable to her deformity.

Erest. Well, neighbour, now you have [ss] spoke, hear me speak. Send them to the well for the water of life; there shall they find their fortunes unlooked for. Neighbour, farewell.

Lamp. Farewell, and a thousand! And [ss] now goeth poor Lampricus to put in execution this excellent counsel.

Pro. Why, this goes round without a fiddling-stick: but, do you hear, gammer, was this the man that was a bear in the night and a man [ss] in the day?

Madge. Ay, this is he; and this man that came to him was a beggar, and dwelt upon a green. But soft! who comes here? O, these are the harvest-men; ten to one they sing a [ss] song of mowing.

Enter the Harvest-man a-singing, with this song double repeated.

All ye that lovely lovers be,
Frey you for me.
Let here we come a-sowing, a-sowing,
And sow sweet fruits of love;
In your sweet hearts well may it prove! — [ss

Execut.
I pray you tell where the wise man the conjurer dwells.

Huan. Where that earthly goddess keepeth her abode, the commander of my thoughts, and fair mistress of my heart.

Erst. Fair enough, and far enough from thy fingering, son.

Huan. I will follow my fortune after mine own fancy, and do according to mine own discretion.

Erst. Yet give something to an old man before you go.

Huan. Father, methinks a piece of this cake might serve your turn.

Erst. Yea, son.

Huan. Huaenbango giveth no cakes for alms; ask of them that give gifts for poor beggars. — Fair lady, if thou wert once shrined in this bosom, I would buckler thee harstantara.

Exeunt.

Booby. Father, do you see this man? You little think he'll run a mile or two for such a cake, or pass for a pudding. I tell you, father, he has kept such a beggar of me for a piece of this cake! Whooh! he comes upon me with "a superficial substance, and the foison of the earth," that I know not what he means. If he came to me thus, and said, "My friend Booby," or so, why, I could spare him a piece with all my heart; but when he tells me how God hath enriched me above other fellows with a cake, why, he makes me blind and deaf at once. Yet, father, here is a piece of cake for you, as hard as the world goes.

— [Gives cake.]

Erst. Thanks, son, but list to me; he shall be deaf when thou shalt not see.

Cor. Farewell, my son: things may so hit, Thou mayst have wealth to mend thy wit.

Cor. Farewell, father, farewell; for I must haste after my two-hand sword that is gone before.

Exeunt omnes. —

Enter Sacrapant in his study.

Sac. The day is clear, the skylark bright and grey.

The lark is merry and records her notes; Each thing rejoiceth underneath the sky, But only I, whom heaven hath in hate, Wretched and miserable Sacrapant.

In Theesal was I born and brought up; My mother Meros, a famous witch, And by her cunning I of her did learn To change and alter shapes of mortal men. There did I turn myself into a dragon, And stole away the daughter to the king, Fair Delia, the mistress of my heart; And brought her hither to revive the man That seemeth young and pleasant to behold, And yet is aged, crooked, weak, and numb. Thus by enchanting spells I do deceive Those that behold and look upon my face; But well may I bid youthful years adieu.
Enter Delia with a pot in her hand.

See where she comes from whence my sorrow grows!

How now, fair Delia! where have you been?

Del. At the foot of the rock for running water, and gathering roots for your dinner, sir.

Sac. Ah, Delia, fairer art thou than the running water, yet harder far than steel or adamant.

Del. Will it please you to sit down, sir?

Sac. Ay, Delia, sit and ask me what thou wilt.

Thou shalt have it brought into thy lap.

Del. Then, I pray you, sir, let me have the best meat from the King of England’s table, and the best wine in all France, brought in by the veriest knave in all Spain.

Sac. Delia, I am glad to see you so pleasant. Well, sit thee down. —

Spread, table, spread, meat, drink, and bread,

Ever may I have

What I ever crave,

When I am spread,

For meat for my black cock,

And meat for my red.

Enter a Friar with a chine of beef and a pot of wine.

Here, Delia, will ye fall to?

Del. Is this the best meat in England?

Sac. Yes.

Del. What is it?

Sac. A chine of English beef, meat for a king and a king’s followers.

Del. Is this the best wine in France?

Sac. Yes.

Del. What wine is it?

Sac. A cup of neat wine of Orleans, that never came near the brewers in England.

Del. Is this the veriest knave in all Spain?

Sac. Yes.

Del. What, is he a friar?

Sac. Yes, a friar indefinitely, and a knave infinite.

Del. Then, I pray ye, Sir Friar, tell me before you go, which is the most greediest Englishman?

Fri. The miserable and most covetous usurer.

Sac. Hold thee there, friar. (Exit Friar.)

But, soft!

Who have we here? Delia, away, be gone! —

Enter the Two Brothers.

Delia, away! for beest are we.

But heaven or hell shall rescue her for me.

[Exeunt Delia and SACRAPANT.]

1 Bro. Brother, was not that Delia did appear,

Or was it but her shadow that was here?

2 Bro. Sister, where art thou? Delia, come again!

He calls, that of thy absence doth complain.

Call out, Calypha, that she may hear,

And cry aloud, for Delia is near.

Echo. Near.

1 Bro. Near! O, where? Hast thou any tiding?

Echo. Tidings.

2 Bro. Which way is Delia, then; or that, or this?

Echo. This.

1 Bro. And may we safely come where Delia is?

Echo. Yes.

2 Bro. Brother, remember you the white bear of England’s wood?

“Start not aside for every danger,

Be not afraid of every stranger;

Things that seem are not the same.”

1 Bro. Brother,

Why do we not, then, courageously enter?

2 Bro. Then, brother, draw thy sword and follow me.

Re-enter [SACRAPANT] the Conjurer: it lightens and thunders: the Second Brother falls down.

1 Bro. What, brother, dost thou fall?

Sac. Ay, and thou too, Calypha.

The First Brother falls down. Enter Two Furies.

Adeste, demones! Away with them:

Go carry them straight to Sacrapanto’s cell.

There in despair and torture for to dwell.

[Exeunt Furies with the Two Brothers.]

These are Thureno’s sons of Thessaly,

That come to seek Delia their sister forth;

But, with a potion I to her have given,

My arts have made her to forget herself.

Removes a turf, and shows a light in a glass.

See here the thing which doth prolong my life,

With this enchantment I do any thing;

And till this fade, my skill shall still endure,

And never none shall break this little glass,

But she that’s neither wife, widow, nor maid.

Then cheer thyself; this is thy destiny,

Never to die but by a dead man’s hand.

Exit.

Enter EUMENIDES, the wandering knight, and [EREUSTUS] the old man at the cross.

Eum. Tell me, Time,

Tell me, just Time, when shall I Delia see?

When shall I see the loadstar of my life?

When shall my wand’ring course end with her sight,

Or I but view my hope, my heart’s delight?

[Seeing Erustus.]

Father, God speed! If you tell fortunes, I pray, good father, tell me mine.

Erest. Son, I do see in thy face

Thy blessed fortune work apace.

I do perceive that thou hast wit;

Beg of thy fate to govern it,

For wisdom govern’d by advice,

Makes many fortunate and wise.

Bestow thy arms, give more than all,

Till dead men’s bones come at thy call.

Farewell, my son! Dream of no rest,

Till thou repent that thou didst best.

Exit.

Eum. This man hath left me in a labyrinth:

He biddest me give more than all,

Till dead men’s bones come at my call;
THE OLD WIVES TALE

He biddeth me dream of no rest,
Till I repent that I do boast.

[Lies down and sleeps.]

Enter Wiggen, Corebus, Churchwarden, and Sexton.

Wig. You may be ashamed, you whoreson scald. Sexton and Churchwarden, if you had any shame in those shameless faces of yours, to let a poor man lie so long above ground unburied. A duty on you all, that have no more compassion of a good fellow when he is gone! See Church. What, would you have us to bury him, and to answer it ourselves to the parish?

Sex. Pariah me no pariahs; pay me my fees; and let the rest run on in the quarter's accounts, and put it down for one of your good deeds, o' God's name! for I am not one that curiously stands upon merit.

Cor. You whoreson, sodden-headed sheep's-face, you, a good fellow do less service and more honesty to the parish, and will you not, when he is dead, let him have Christmas burial?

Wig. Peace, Corebus! As sure as Jack was Jack, the frolic'est fracion amongst you and I, Wiggen, his sweet sworn brother, Jack shall have his funerals, or some of them shall lie on God's dear earth for it, that's one.

Church. Wiggen, I hope thou wilt do no more than thou dar'st answer.

Wig. Sir, sir, dare or dare not, more or less, answer or not answer, do this, or have this.

Sex. Help, help, help!

Wiggen sets upon the parish with a pike-staff:

Eumenides awakes and comes to them.

Eum. Hold thy hands, good fellow.

Cor. Can you blame him, sir, if he take Jack's part against this shake-rotten parish that will not bury Jack?

Eum. Why, what was that Jack?

Cor. Who, Jack, sir? Who, our Jack, sir? As good a fellow as ever trod upon neat's-leather.

Wig. Look you, sir; he gave fourscore and nineteen mourning gowns to the parish when he died, and because he would not make them up a full hundred, they would not bury him: was not this good dealing?

Church. O Lord, sir, how he lies! He was not worth a halfpenny, and drunk out every penny; and now his fellows, his drunken companions would have us to bury him at the charge of the parish. An we make such matches, we may pull down the steeple, sell the bells, and thatch the chancel. He shall lie above ground till he dance a galliard about the church-yard, for Steven Losch.

Wig. Sic argumenta, Domine Losch; — pull down the steeple, sell the bells, and thatch the chancel! — in good time, sir, and hang yourselves in the bell-ropes, when you have done. Domine, opponens praeponi tibi hanc questionem, whether will you have the ground broken or your pates broken first? For one of them shall be done presently, and to begin mine, I'll seal it upon your coxcomb.

Eum. Hold thy hands, I pray thee, good fellow; be not too hasty.

Cor. You capon's face, we shall have you turned out of the parish one of these days, with never a tatter to your arse; then you are in worse taking than Jack.

Eum. Faith, and he is bad enough. This fellow does but the part of a friend, to seek to bury his friend. How much will bury him?

Wig. Faith, about some fifteen or sixteen shillings will bestow him honestly.

Sex. Ay, even thereabouts, sir.

Eum. Here, hold it, then: — [aside.] and I have left me but one poor three half-pence. Now do I remember the words the old man spoke at the cross. "Bestow all thou hast," and this is all, "till dead men's bones come [see at thy call]." — Here, hold it [gives money]; and so farewell.

Wig. God, and all good, be with you, sir.

[Exit Eumenides.] Nay, you cormorants, I'll bestow one peal of Jack at mine own [see] proper costs and charges.

Cor. You may thank God the long staff and the bilbo-blade crossed not your coxcomb. — Well, we'll to the church-stile and have a pot, and so trill-lil.

[Exit with Wiggen.]

Church. Come, let's go.

Exeunt.

Pan. But, hark you, gammer, methinks this Jack bore a great away in the parish.

Madge. O, this Jack was a marvellous fellow! he was but a poor man, but very well beloved. You shall see anon what this Jack will come to.

Enter the Harvest-men singing, with women in their hands.

Fro. Soft! who have we here? Our amorous harvesters.

Pan. Ay, ay, let us sit still, and let them alone.

Here they begin to sing, the song doubled.

Lo, here we come a-reaping, a-reaping.
To reap our harvest-fruit!
And thus we pass the year so long,
And never be we mute.

Exeunt the Harvest-men.

Enter Huanerango and Corebus, the clown.

Fro. Soft! who have we here?

Madge. O, this is a choleric gentleman! All you that love your lives, keep out of the smell of his two-hand sword. Now goes he to the conjurer.

Pan. Methinks the conjurer should put the fool into a juggling-box.

Huan. Fee, fa, fur.
Here is the Englishman —

1 Previously, Booby, the clown. 2 Q. Simon.
3 That's flat.
4 In Q. Wiggen . . . pike-staff appears as part of Sexton's speech.

5 Open the argument from my side. (Bullen). 6 On.
7 Where the ale-house often stood.
Conquer him that can,—
Come for his lady bright,
To prove himself a knight,
And win her love in fight.

Cor. Who-haw, Master Bango, are you [see here? Hear you, you had best sit down here, and beg an alms with me.

Huan. Hence, base cullion! Here is he that commandeth ingrate and egress with his weapon, and will enter at his voluntary, [see whosoever saith no.

A voice and flame of fire; Huan exclaims.

Voice. No.

Magde. So with that they kissed, and spoiled the edge of as good a two-hand sword as ever God put life in. Now goes Corebus in, sly [see of the conjurer.

Enter [SACRAPANT] the Conjurer and [Two Furies].

Sac. Away with him into the open fields,
To be a ravening prey to crows and kites:
[Huan is carried out by the Two Furies.]
And for this villain, let him wander up and down,
In naught but darkness and eternal night. [see Strikes Corebus blind.

Cor. Here hast thou slain Huan, a slaying knight,
And robbed poor Corebus of his sight. Exit.

Sac. Hence, villain, hence!—Now I have unto Delia

Given a potion of forgetfulness,
That, when she comes, she shall not know her brothers.
So, where they labour, like to country-slaves,
With spade and mattock, on this enchanted ground!

Now will I call her by another name;
For never shall she know herself again,
Until that Sacrapant hath breath'd his last. [see See where she comes.

Enter Delia.

Come hither, Delia, take this gaud; here hard
At hand two slaves do work and dig for gold:
Gore them with this, and thou shalt have enough.

Del. Good sir, I know not what you mean. [see
Sac. [Aside.] She hath forgotten to be Delia,
But not forgot the same she should forget;
But I will change her name.—
Fair Berecynthia, so this country calls you,
Go ply these strangers, wench; they dig for gold.

Exit. [see

Del. O heavens, how
Am I beholding to this fair young man!
But I must ply these strangers to their work:
See where they come.

Enter the Two Brothers in their shirts, with spades, digging.

1 Bro. O brother, see where Delia is!
2 Bro. O Delia,
Happy are we to see thee here!
THE OLD WIVES TALE

Col. I think this be the cursetest quae in the world. You see what she is, a little fair, but as proud as the devil, and the veriest vixen that lives upon God's earth. Well, I'll let her alone, and go home and get another pitcher, and, [as] for all this, get me the well for water. Exeunt.

Enter two Furies out of the Conjuror's cell and lay RUANOOGAN by the Well of Life [and then exucnt.] Re-enter ZANTIPPA with a pitcher to the well.

Zan. Once again for a husband; and, in faith, Celastia, I have got the start of you; belike husbands grow by the well-side. Now my father says I must rule my tongue. Why, alas, [as] what am I, then? A woman without a tongue is as a soldier without his weapon. But I'll have my water, and be gone.

Here she offers to dip her pitcher in, and a Head speaks in the well.

Head. Gently dip, but not too deep. For fear you make the golden beard to weep. [as] Fair maiden, white and red. Stroke me smooth, and comb my head, And thou shalt have some cockle-bread.

Zan. What is this? [as]

"Fair maiden, white and red, Comb me smooth, and stroke my head, And thou shalt have some cockle-bread "?

"Cockle" call thee thou, boy? Faith, I'll give you cockle-bread.

She breaks her pitcher upon the Head: then it thunders and lightens; and RUANOOGAN, who is deaf and cannot hear, rises up.

Huan. Phildia, phileridos, pamphilida, florinda, flortos:

Dub dub-a-dub, bounce, quoth the guns, with a sulphurous huff-snuff: [as]

Wakt with a wench, pretty peat, pretty love, and my sweet pretty pigeon.

Just by thy side shall sit surnamed great RUANOOGAN.

Safe in my arms I'll keep thee, threat Mars or thunder Olympus.

Zan. [aside.] Foh, what greedy gorm [as] have we here? He looks as though he crept out of the backside of the well, and speaks like a drum periah at the west end.

Huan. O, that I might, — but I may not, woe to my destiny therefore! —

Kiss that I clasp! but I cannot. Tell me, my destiny, wherefore? [as]

Zan. [aside.] Whop! now I have my dream. Did you never hear so great a wonder as this? Three blue beans in a blue bladder, rattle, bladder, rattle.

Huan. [aside.] I'll now set my counter — [as] nanse, and to her in prose, it may be, this rim-rum-ruff is too rude an encounter. — Let me, fair lady, if you be at leisure, revel with your sweetness, and rail upon that cowardly conjurer, that hath cast me, or congealed me [as] rather, into an unkind sleep, and polluted my carcass.

Zan. [aside.] Laugh, laugh, Zantippa; thou hast thy fortune, a fool and a husband under one. Huan. Truly, sweet-heart, as I seem, [as] about some twenty years, the very April of my age.

Zan. [aside.] Why, what a prating ass is this! Huan. Her coral lips, her crimson chin, Her silver teeth so white within, Her golden looks, her rolling eye, Her pretty parts, let them go by, Heigh-ho, hath wounded me, That I must die this day to see!

Zan. By Gogs—bones, thou art a flouting we knave. "Her coral lips, her crimson chin"! ka, 6 wilshaw!

Huan. True, my own, and my own because mine, and mine because mine, ha, ha! Above a thousand pounds in possibility, and things [as] fitting thy desire in possession.

Zan. [aside.] The set thinks I ask of his hands. Lob 7 be your comfort, and cuckold be your destiny! — Hear you, sir; an if you will have us, you had best say so betimes.

Huan. True, sweet-heart, and will royalize thy progeny with my pedigree. Exeunt.

Enter EUENIDES, the wandering knight.

Eum. Wretched EUENIDES, still unfortunate, Envied by fortune and forlorn by fate, Here pine and die, wretched EUENIDES, Die in the spring, the April of my age! Here sit thee down, repent what thou hast done: I would to God that it were ne'er begun!

Enter [the GHOST OF] JACK.

[G. of] Jack. You are well overtaken, sir.

Eum. Who's that? [as]

[G. of] Jack. You are heartily well met, sir.

Eum. Fortuné, I say; who is that which pincheth me? [as]

[G. of] Jack. Trusting in God, good Master EUENIDES, that you are in so good health as we all your friends were at the making hereof, God give you good morrow, sir! Lack you not a neat, handsome, and cleanly young lad, about the age of fifteen or sixteen years, that can run by your horse, and, for a need, make your mastership's shoes as black as ink? How say you, sir? [as]

Eum. Alas, pretty lad, I know not how to keep myself, and much less a servant, my pretty boy; my state is so bad.

[G. of] Jack. Content yourself, you shall not be so ill a master but I'll be as bad a servant. Tut, sir, I know you, though you know not me. Are not you the man, sir, deny it if you can, sir, that came from a strange place [as] in the land of Catita, where Jack-an-apes flies with his tail in his mouth, to seek out a lady

1 Used as a love charm.
2 Apparently a parody of Stanyhurst's hermetarchs.
3 Pig's eyes, darling.
4 A quotation from Harvey's Exeuntium Lauti.
5 Chaucer's phrase for alliteration.
6 Quoth he.
7 "Lob's pound" meant "the thralldom of a half pecked married man." (Bullen.)
as white as snow and as red as blood? Ha, ha! have I touched you now?

Eum. [Aside.] I think this boy be a spirit. [Aside]—How knowest thou all this?

[G. of] Jack. Tut, are not you the man, sir, deny it if you can, sir, that gave all the money you had to the burying of a poor man, and but one three half-pence left in your [purse]? Content you, sir, I’ll serve you, that is flat.

Eum. Well, my lad, since thou art so importunate, I am content to entertain thee, not as a servant, but a copartner in my journey. Perhaps, but whether shall we go? For I have not any money more than one bare three half-pence.

[G. of] Jack. Well, master, content yourself, for if my divination be not out, that shall be spent at the next inn or alehouse we come to: for, master, I know you are passing hungry; therefore I’ll go before and provide dinner until that you come; no doubt but you’ll come fair and softly after.

Eum. Ay, I will go before; I’ll follow thee. [Aside]—[G. of] Jack. But do you hear, master? Do you know my name?

Enter the Hostess and Jack, setting meat on the table; and Fiddlers come to play. Eumenesides waketh up and down, and will eat no meat.

Host. How say you, sir? Do you please to sit down?

Eum. Hostess, I thank you, I have no great stomach.

Host. Pray, sir, what is the reason your master is so strange? Doth not this meat please him?

[G. of] Jack. Yes, hostess, but it is my master’s fashion to pay before he eats; therefore, a reckoning, good hostess. Eum. Master, shall you, sir, presently. Exit. Eum. Why, Jack, what dost thou mean? Thou knowest I have not any money; therefore, sweet Jack, tell me what shall I do?

Eum. Why, faith, it is a folly, for I have no money.

Eum. [looking into his purse.] Alas, Jack, my purse is full of money!

[G. of] Jack. “Alas,” master! does that word belong to this accident? Why, methinks I should have seen you cast away your cloak, and in a bravado dance a galliard round about the chamber, why, master, your man can teach you more wit than this.

[Re-enter Hostess.] Come, hostess, cheer up my master.

Host. You are heartily welcome; and if you please you to eat of a fat capon, a fairer bird, a finer bird, a sweeter bird, a crisper bird, a master bird, your worship never eat of.

Eum. Thanks, my fine, eloquent hostess. [G. of] Jack. But hear you, master, one word by the way. Are you content I shall be halves in all you get in your journey?

Eum. I am, Jack, here is my hand.

[G. of] Jack. Enough, master, I ask no more. Eum. Come, hostess, receive your money; and I thank you for my good entertainment.

[Give money.]

Host. You are heartily welcome, sir.

Eum. Come, Jack, whither go we now?

Eum. Content, Jack.—Hostess, farewell. Exit.

Enter Corerus [blind], and Celanta, the soul wench, to the Well for water.

Cor. Come, my damk, come: I have now got a wife. Thou art fair, art thou not?

Cel. My Corebus, the fairest alive; make no doubt of that.

Cor. Come, wench, are we almost at the well?

Cel. Ay, Corebus, we are almost at the well now. I’ll go fetch some water; sit down while I dip my pitcher in.

Voice. Gently dip, but not too deep.

For fear you make the golden beard to weep.

A head comes up with ears of corn, and she combs them into her lap.

Fair maiden, white and red,

Combs me smooth, and strokes my head,

And thou shalt have some cockel-bread.

A [Second] head comes up full of gold; she combs it into her lap.

[Sec. Head.] Gently dip, but not too deep. For fear thou make the golden beard to weep.

Fair maid, white and red,

Combs me smooth, and strokes my head,

And every hair a sheaf shall be,

And every sheaf a golden tree.

Cel. O, see, Corebus, I have comb’d a great deal of gold into my lap, and a great deal of corn!

Cor. Well said, wench! now we shall have just enough. God send us coiners to coin our gold. But come, shall we go home, sweet-heart?

Cel. Nay, come, Corebus, I will lead you.

Cor. So, Corebus, things have well hit; thou hast gotten wealth to mend thy wit.

[Exeunt.]

Eum. Go along, Jack, I’ll follow thee. Jack, they say it is good to go cross-legged, and say his prayers back ward; how sayest thou?

[G. of] Jack. Tut, never fear, master; let me alone. Here sit you still; speak not a word; and because you shall not be enticed with his enchanting speeches, with this same wool I’ll

1 This stage direction occurs in Q after tree.

2 Well done!
stop your ears: and so, master, sit still, for I must to the conjurer. Exit.

Enter [SACRANT] the Conjurer to the wandering knight.

Sac. How now! What man art thou that sits so sad?

Whence dost thou gaze upon these stately trees Without the leave and will of Sacrant? What, not a word but num? Then, Sacrant.

Thou art betray'd.

Re-enter [the GHOST OF] Jack invisible, and takes off SACRANT's wreath from his head, and his sword out of his hand.

What hand invades the head of Sacrant? [sic] What hateful Fury doth envy my happy state? Them, Sacrant, these are thy latest days.

Alas, my veins are numb'd, my sinews shrink.

My blood is pierced, my breath fleeting away, And now my timeless date is come to end! [sic] He in whose life his actions hath been so foul, Now in his death to hell descends his soul.

He dieth.

[G. of] Jack. O, sir, are you gone? Now I hope we shall have some other coil. — Now, master, how like you this? The conjurer he is dead, and vows never to trouble us more. Now get you to your fair lady, and see what you can do with her. — Alas, he heareth me not all this while; but I will help that.

Pulls the wool out of the ears of EUMENIDES.

EUMENIDES digs, and spies a light in a glass.

Eum. How now, Jack! What is this? [G. of] Jack. Master, without this this the conjurer could do nothing; and so long as this light lasts, so long doth his art endure, and this being out, then doth his art decay.

Eum. Why, then, Jack, I will soon put out this light.

[G. of] Jack. Ay, master, how? Eum. Why, with a stone I'll break the glass, and then blow it out.

[G. of] Jack. No, master, you may as soon break the smith's anvil as this little vial; nor the biggest blast that ever Boreas blew cannot blow out this little light; but she that is neither maid, wife, nor widow. Master, wind this horn, and see what will happen.

EUMENIDES winds the horn. Enter Venelia, the Two Brothers, and [ERESTUS] he that was at the cross.

Eum. Welcome, Erestus! welcome, fair Venelia!

Welcome, Thelea and Calyphs both! Now have I her that I so long have sought; So smith fair Delia, if we have your consent. 1 Bro. Valiant Eumenides, thou well deserves To have our favours; so let us rejoice That by thy means we are at liberty. Here may we joy each in other's sight, And this fair lady have her wandering knight. [G. of] Jack. So, master, now ye think you have done; but I must have a saying to you. You know you and I were partners, I to have half in all you got.

1 Qu. Read life's for life his?
Eum. Why, so thou shalt, Jack.

[G. of.] Jack. Why, then, master, draw your sword, part your lady, let me have half of her presently.

Eum. Why, I hope, Jack, thou dost but jest. I promised thee half I got, but not half my lady.

[G. of.] Jack. But what else, master? Have you not gotten her? Therefore divide her straight, for I will have half; there is no remedy.

Eum. Well, ere I will falsify my word unto my friend, take her all. Here, Jack, I'll give her thee.

[G. of.] Jack. Nay, neither more nor less, master, but even just half.

Eum. Before I will falsify my faith unto my friend, I will divide her. Jack, thou shalt have half.

1 Bro. Be not so cruel unto our sister, gentle knight.

2 Bro. O, spare fair Delia! She deserves no death.

Eum. Content yourselves; my word is passed to him. Therefore prepare thyself, Delia, for thou must die.

Del. Then farewell, world! Adieu, Eumenides!

EUMENIDES offers to strike, and [the GHOST OF] JACK stays him.

[G. of.] Jack. Stay, master; it is sufficient. I have tried your constancy. Do you now remember since you paid for the burying of a poor fellow?

Eum. Ay, very well, Jack.

[G. of.] Jack. Then, master, thank that good deed for this good turn; and so God be with you all! Leaps down in the ground.

Eum. Jack, what, art thou gone? Then farewell, Jack!—

Come, brothers, and my beauteous Delia, Erestus, and thy dear Venelia. We will to Thessaly with joyful hearts.

All. Agreed: we follow thee and Delia.

Exeunt all [except FBOLIC, FANTASTIC, and MADGE].

Fob. What, gammer, asleep?

Madge. By the mass, son, 'tis almost day; and my windows shut at the cock's-crow.

Fro. Do you hear, gammer? Methinks this Jack bore a great swar amongst them.

Madge. O, man, this was the ghost of the poor man that they kept such a coil to bury; and that makes him to help the wanderer so much. But come, let us in: we will have a cup of ale and a toast this morning, and so depart.

Fob. Then you have made an end of your tale, gammer?

Madge. Yes, faith: when this was done, I took a piece of bread and cheese, and came my way; and so shall you have, too, before you go, to your breakfast.

[Scene I.]

Enter Prince Edward discontented, with Lacy, Warren, Ermsby, and Ralph Simnell.

Lacy. Why looks my lord like to a troubled sky
When heaven's bright shine is shadow'd with a fog?
As late we ran the deer, and through the lawns
Stripp'd with our nags the lofty frolic bucks
That scudded 'fore the teasers like the wind.
Never was the deer of merry Fressingfield
So lustily pull'd down by jolly mates,
Nor shag'd the farmers such fat venison,
So frankly dealt, this hundred years before;
Nor have I seen my lord more frolic in the chase.

And now — chang'd to a melancholy dump.

War. After the prince got to the Keeper's lodge,
And had been jocund in the house awhile,
Tossing off ale and milk in country cans,
Whether it was the country's sweet content,
Or else the bonny damsel fill'd us drink,
That seem'd so stately in her stamnel red,
Or that a qualm did cross his stomach then,—
But straight he fell into his passions.

Erms. Sirrah Ralph, what say you to your master?

Shall he thus all amont live malcontent?

1 Framlingham. 2 Of late. 3 Outstripped. 4 Dogs that roused the game. 5 A woolen cloth. 6 Dejected.

Ralph. Hearest thou, Ned? — Nay, look if he will speak to me!

P. Edw. What say'st thou to me, fool?
Ralph. I prithee, tell me, Ned, art thou in love with the Keeper's daughter?

P. Edw. How if I be, what then?
Ralph. Why, then, sirrah, I'll teach thee how to deceive Love.

P. Edw. How, Ralph?

Ralph. Marry, Sirrah Ned, thou shalt put on my cap and my coat, and my dagger, and I will put on thy clothes and thy sword; and so thou shalt be my fool.

P. Edw. And what of this?

Ralph. Why, thou shalt beguile Love; for Love is such a proud scab, that he will never meddle with fools nor children. Is not Ralph's counsel good, Ned?

P. Edw. Tell me, Ned Lacy, didst thou mark the maid?

How lively in her country-weeds she look'd? A bonnier wench all Suffolk cannot yield: — All Suffolk I say, all England holds none such. Ralph. Sirrah Will Ermsby, Ned is deceived.

Erms. Why, Ralph?

Ralph. He says all England hath none such, and I say, and I'll stand to it, there is one better in Warwickshire.

War. How provest thou that, Ralph?
Ralph. Why, is not the sabbot a learned man, [so and hath read many books, and thinkest thou he hath not more learning than thou to choose a bonny wench? Yes, I warrant thee, by his whole grammar.
Erms. A good reason, Ralph.
P. Edw. I tell thee, Lacy, that her sparkling eyes
Do lighten forth sweet love's alluring fire;
And in her tresses she doth fold the looks
Of such as gaze upon her golden hair;
Her bashful white, mix'd with the morning's red,
Luna doth boast upon her lovely cheeks;
Her front is beauty's table, where she paints
The glories of her gorgeous excellence;
Her teeth are shelves of precious marguerites, 1
Richly enclos'd with ruddy coral olives.
Tush, Lacy, she is Beauty's over-match,
If thou survey'st her curious imagery.
Lacy. I grant, my lord, the damsel is as fair
As simple Suffolk's homely towns can yield;
But in the court be quarter dames than she,
Whose faces are enrich'd with honour's taint, 2
Whose beauties stand upon the stage of Fame,
And vaunt their trophies in the Courts of Love.
P. Edw. Ah, Ned, but hadst thou watch'd her as me myself,
And seen the secret beauties of the maid,
Their courtly coyness were but foolery.
Erms. Why, how watch'd you her, my lord?
P. Edw. Wheneas she swept like Venus through the house,
And in her shape fast folded up my thoughts,
Into the milk-house went I with the maid,
And there amongst the cream-bows she did shine.
As Pall's 'mongst her princely huswifery.
She turn'd her smack over her lily arms,
And div'd them into milk to run her cheese;
But, whiter than the milk, her crystal skin,
Checked with lines of azure, made her blush 4
That art or nature durst bring for compare.
Ermsy, if thou hadst seen, as I did note it well,
How Beauty play'd the huswifry, how this girl,
Like Lucrece, laid her fingers to the work.
Thou wouldst, with Tarquin, hazard Rome and all
To win the lovely maid of Fressingfield.
Ralph. Sirrah Ned, wouldst fain have her?
P. Edw. Ay, Ralph.
Ralph. Why, Ned, I have laid the plot in [8-y head; thou shalt have her already.
P. Edw. I'll give thee a new cost, as learn me that.
Ralph. Why, Sirrah Ned, we'll ride to Oxford to Friar Bacon.
O, he is a brave scholar, [100
sirrah; they say he is a brave necromancer, that he can make women of devils, and he can juggle cats into oostermongers.
P. Edw. And how then, Ralph?
Ralph. Marry, sirrah, thou shalt go to [102-him: and because thy father Harry shall not miss thee, he shall turn me into thee; and I'll to the court, and I'll pricess it out; and he shall make thee either a silken purse full of gold, or else a fine wrought smock.
P. Edw. But how shall I have the maid?
Ralph. Marry, sirrah, if thou be'st a silken purse full of gold, then on Sundays she'll hang thee by her side, and you must not say a word.
Now, sir, when she comes into a great press of people, for fear of the outpurse, on a sudden she'll swap thee into her pleckerd; 5 then, sirrah, being there, you may plead for yourself.
Erms. Excellent policy!
P. Edw. But how if I be a wrougth smock?
Ralph. Then she'll put thee into her chest and lay thee into lavender. And upon some good day she'll put thee on; and at night when you go to bed, then being turned from a smock [1st to a man, you may make up the match.
Lacy. Wonderfully wisely counselled, Ralph.
P. Edw. Ralph shall have a new cost.
Ralph. God thank you when I have it on my back, Ned.
P. Edw. Lacy, the fool hath laid a perfect plot;
For why 5 our country Margaret is so coy,
And stands so much upon her honest points,
That marriage or no market with the maid.
Ermsby, it must be necromantic spells
And charms of art that must enchain her love,
Or else shall Edward never win the girl.
Therefore, my wags, we'll huse in the morn,
And post to Oxford to this jolly friar; 120
Bacon shall by his magic do this deed.
War. Content, my lord; and that's a speedy
To wean these headstrong puppies from the text.
P. Edw. I am unknown, not taken for the prince;
They only deem us frolic courtiers,
That revel thus among our liege's games; 140
Therefore I have devils a policy.
Lacy, thou know'st next Friday is Saint James; 7
And then the country flock's to Harleston fair;
Then will the Keeper's daughter frolic there,
And over-shine the troop of all the maids;
That come to see and to be seen that day.
Haunt thee disguis'd among the country-swains,
Feign thou 'rt a farmer's son, not far from thence,
Espy her loves, and who she liketh best;
Cote 8 him, and court her, to control 9 the clown;
Say that the courtier tired all in green,
That help'd her handsomely to run her cheese,
And fild her father's lodge with venison,
Commends him, and sends fairings to herself.
Buy something worthy of her parentage, 100
Not worth her beauty; for, Lacy, then the fair
Affords no jewel fitting for the maid.
And when thou talk'st of me, note if she blush;
O, then she loves: but if her cheeks wax pale,
Disdian it is. Lacy, send how she fares; 125
And spare no time nor cost to win her loves.

Lacy, I will, my lord, so execute this charge
As if that Lacy were in love with her.

Ralph. And, Sirrah Lacy, buy me a thou- [110 sand thousand of fine bells.

Lacy. What wilt thou do with them, Ralph?

Ralph. Marry, every time that Ned sighs for the Keeper's daughter, I 'll tie a bell about him;
and so within three or four days I will send [115 word to his father Harry that his son and my master Ned is become Love's morris-dance.

P. Edw. Well, Lacy, look with care unto thy charge,
And I will haste to Oxford to the friar,
That he by art and thou by secret gifts
Mayst make me lord of merry Fressingfield.

Lacy. God send your honour your heart's desire.

Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Friar Bacon, with Miles his poor
Scholar, with books under his arm; with them
Burdan, Mason, and Clement, three Docto-

Bacon. Miles, where are you?

Miles. Hic sum; doctissime et reverendissime doctor.

Bacon. Attulisti nos libros meos de necromantia?

Miles. Ecce quam bonum et quam juvandum haberem libros in unum?

Bacon. Now, masters of our academic state,
That rule in Oxford, viceroyes in your place,
Whose heads contain maps of the liberal arts;
Spending your time in depth of learned skill,
Why flock you thus to Bacon's secret cell,
A friar newly staid in Brazen-nose?
Say what's your mind, that I may make reply.

Burd. Bacon, we hear that long we have spoken mysteriously; for he knows, if your skill fail to make a brazen head, yet Mother Waters' strong ale will fit his turn to make him have a cup of cooper monkey.

Clem. Bacon, we come not grieving at thy skill,
But joying that our academica yields
A man suppos'd the wonder of the world;
For if thy cunning work these miracles,
England and Europe shall admire thy fame,
And Oxford shall in characters of brass,
And statues, such as were built up in Rome,
Eternize Friar Bacon for his art.

Mason. Then, gentle friar, tell us thy intent.

Bacon. Seeing you come as friends unto the friar,
Resolve you, 3 doctors, Bacon can by books
Make storming Boreas thunder from his cave,
And dim fair Luna to a dark eclipse.
The great arch-ruler, potentate of hell,
Trombles when Bacon bids him or his fiends
How to do the force of his pentagram:
What art can work, the fricic friar knows;
And therefore will I turn my magic books,
And strain out necromancy to the deep.
I have contriv'd and fram'd a head of brass
(I made Baloepphon hammer out the stuff),
And that by art shall read philosophy;
And I will strengthen England by my skill,
That if ten Cessars liv'd and reign'd in Rome,
With all the legions Europe doth contain,
They should not touch a grass of English ground.

The work that Ninus rear'd at Babylon,
The brazen walls fram'd by Semiramis,
Carv'd out like to the portal of the sun,
Shall not be such as rings the English strand
From Dover to the market-place of Rye.

Burd. Is this possible?

Miles. I'll bring ye two or three witnesses.

Burd. What be those?

Miles. Marry, sir, three or four as honest devils and good companions as any be in hell.

Mason. No doubt but magic do much in this;
For he that reads but mathematic rules
Shall find conclusions that avail to work
Wonders that pass the common sense of men.

Burd. But Bacon roves a bow beyond his reach,
And tells of more than magic can perform,
Thinking to get a fame by fooleries.
Have I not pass'd as far in state of schools,
And read of many secrets? Yet to think
That heads of brass can utter any voice,
Or more, to tell of deep philosophy,—
This is a fable Asop had forgot.

Bacon. Burden, thou wrong'st me in detracting thus;
Bacon loves not to stuff himself with lies.
But tell me 'fare these doctors, if thou dare,
Of certain questions I shall move to thee.

Burd. I will: ask what thou can.

1 Friar Bacon's cell at Brasenose.

3 Be assured.

4 Pentagram, the five-rayed star supposed to have magical properties.

4 Alma, tries to shoot with.
Miles. Marry, sir, he'll straight be on your pick-pack, to know whether the feminine or the masculine gender be most worthy.

Bacon. Were you not yesterday, Master Burden, at Henley upon the Thames?

Burd. I was; what then?

Bacon. What book studied you thereon all night?

Burd. I none at all; I read not there a line.

Bacon. Then, doctors, Friar Bacon's art knows naught.

Clem. What say you to this, Master Burden? Doth he not touch you?

Burd. I pass not of his frivolous speeches. Miles, Nay, Master Burden, my master, ere he hath done with you, will turn you from a doctor to a dunce, and shake you so small, that he will leave no more learning in you than is in Balaam's ass.

Bacon. Masters, for that learned Burden's skill is deep, And sore he doubts of Bacon's cabalism, I'll show you why he haunts to Henley oft: Not, doctors, for to taste the fragrant sir, But there to spend the night in alchemy, To multiply with secret spells of art; Thus private steals he learning from us all. To prove my saying's true, I'll show you straight The book he keeps at Henley for himself.

Miles. Nay, now my master goes to conjuration, take heed.

Bacon. Masters, stand still, fear not, I'll show you but his book. Here he conjures. Per omnes deos infernales, Belephron!

Enter a Woman with a shoulder of mutton on a spit, and a Devil.

Miles. O master, cease your conjuration, or you spoil all; for here's a she-devil come with a shoulder of mutton on a spit. You have marr'd the devil's supper; but no doubt he thinks our college fare is slender, and so hath sent you his cook with a shoulder of mutton, to make it exceed.

Hostess. O, where am I, or what's become of me?

Bacon. What art thou?

Hostess. Hostess at Henley, mistress of the Bell.

Bacon. How camest thou here?

Hostess. As I was in the kitchen 'mongst the maids, Spitting the mutton 'gainst supper for my guests, A motion mov'd me to look forth of door: No sooner had I pried into the yard, But straight a whirlwind hoisted me from thence, And mounted me aloft unto the clouds. As in a trance, I thought nor feared naught, Nor know I where or whither I was taken, Nor where I am nor what these persons be.

Bacon. No? Know you not Master Burden?

Hostess. O, yes, good sir, he is my daily guest.

What, Master Burden! 'tis but yesternight That you and I at Henley play'd at cards. Burd. I know not what we did. — A pox of all conjuring friars!

Clem. Now, jolly friar, tell us, is this the book

That Burden is so careful to look on?

Bacon. It is. — But, Burden, tell me now, Think'st thou that Bacon's necromantic skill Cannot perform his head and wall of brass, When he can fetch thine hostess in such post?

Miles. I'll warrant you, master, if Master Burden could conjure as well as you, he would have his book every night from Henley to study on at Oxford.

Mason. Burden, What, are you mated by this frolic friar? — Look how he droops; his guilty conscience Drives him to bash, and makes his hostess blush.

Bacon. Well, mistress, for I will not have you miss'd. You shall to Henley to cheer up your guests 'Fore supper gin. — Burden, bid her adieu; Say farewell to your hostess 'fore she goes. — Sirrah, away, and set her safe at home.

Hostess. Master Burden, when shall we see you at Henley?

Exeunt Hostess and Devil.

Burd. The devil take thee and Henley too.

Miles. Master, shall I make a good motion?

Bacon. What's that?

Miles. Marry, sir, now that my hostess is gone to provide supper, conjure up another spirit, and send Doctor Burden flying after.

Bacon. Thus, rulers of our academic state, You have seen the friar frame his art by proof; And as the college called Brazen-nose Is under him, and he the master there, So surely shall this head of brass be fram'd, And yield forth strange and uncouth aphorisms, And hell and Hecate shall fail the friar, But I will circle England round with brass.

Miles. So be it et nunc et semper, amen.

Exeunt.

[Scene III.]"
Then let our fathers price it as they please. 10
We country sluts of merry Fressingfield
Come to buy needless naughts to make us fine,
And look that young men should be frank this day,
And court us with such fairings as they can.
Phoebus is blithe, and frolic looks from heaven,
As when he courted lovely Semele, 15
Swearing the pedlar shall have empty packs,
If that fair weather may make chapmen buy.
Lacy. But, lovely Peggy, Semele is dead,
And therefore Phoebus from his palace prays, 20
And, seeing such a sweet and solemn saint,
Shows all his glories for to court yourself.
Mar. This is a fairing, gentle sir, indeed.
To soothe me up with such smooth flattery;
But learn of me, your scoff's too broad before.
— 25
Well, Joan, our beauties must abide their jests;
We serve the turn in jolly Fressingfield.
Joan. Margaret, a farmer's daughter for a farmer's son:
I warrant you, the meanest of us both
Shall have a mate to lead us from the church.
But, Thomas, what's the news? What, in a dump? 30
Give me your hand, we are near a pedlar's shop;
Out with your purse, we must have fairings now.
Thom. Faith, Joan, and shall. I'll bestow a fairing on you, and then we will to the tavern, [25 and snap off a pint of wine or two.
All this while Lacy whispers
MARGARET in the ear.
Mar. Whence are you, sir? Of Suffolk? For your terms
Are finer than the common sort of men.
Lacy. Faith, lovely girl, I am of Becles by,
Your neighbour, not above six miles from hence.
A farmer's son, that never was so quaint 2
But that he could do courtesy to such dames.
But trust me, Margaret, I am sent in charge
From him that revell'd in your father's house,
And fill'd his lodge with cheer and venison, 25
Tired in green. He sent you this rich purse,
His token that he help'd you run your cheese,
And in the milkhouse chatted with yourself.
Mar. To me? 30
Lacy. You forget yourself; 3
Women are often weak in memory.
Mar. O, pardon, sir, I call to mind the man.
'Twere little manners to refuse his gift,
And yet I hope he sends it not for love:
For we have little leisure to debate of that. 35
Joan. What, Margaret! blush not; maids must have their loves.
Thom. Nay, by the mass, she looks pale as if she were angry.
Rich. Sirrah, are you of Becles? I pray, how doth Goodman Coh? My father bought a 40 horse of him.—I'll tell you, Margaret, 's were good to be a gentleman's jade, for of all things the foul hilding 4 could not abide a doong-cart.
Mar. [aside.] How different is this farmer from the rest
That erst as yet have pleas'd my wand'ring sight!
His words are witty, quickened with a smile,
His courtesy gentle, smelling of the court;
Facile and debonair in all his deeds,
Proportion'd as was Paris, when, in grey, 45
He courted Cënenn in the vale by Troy.
Great lords have come and pleased for my love:
Who but the Keeper's less of Fressingfield?
And yet methinks this farmer's jolly son
Passeth the proudest that hath pleas'd mine eye.
But, Peg, divelose not that thou art in love,
And show as yet no sign of love to him,
Although thou wouldest wish him for thy love;
Keep that to thee till time doth serve thy turn,
To show the grief wherein thy heart doth burn.— 50
Come, Joan and Thomas, shall we to the fair? —
You, Becles man, will not forsake us now?
Lacy. Not whilst I may have such quaint girls as you.
Mar. Well, if you chance to come by Fressingfield,
Make but a step into the Keeper's lodge,
And such poor fare as woodmen can afford,
Butter and cheese, cream and fat venison,
You shall have store, and welcome therewith.
Lacy. Gramercies, Peggy; look for me ere long.
Exeunt.

[Scene IV.] 6

Enter [King] Henry the Third, the Emperor, the King of Castile, Elinor, his daughter, and Vandermaist, a German.
K. Hen. Great men of Europe, monarchs of the west,
Ring'd with the walls of old Oceanus,
Whose lofty surge is like the battlements
That compass'd high-built Babel in with towers,
Welcome, my lords, welcome, brave western kings,
To England's shore, whose promontory cliffs
Show Albion is another little world;
Welcome says English Henry to you all;
Chiefly unto the lovely Elinor,
Who dar'd for Edward's sake out through the seas,
And venture as Agenor's damsel through the deep,
To get the love of Henry's wanton son.
K. of Cast. England's rich monarch, brave Plantagenet,
The Pyrenes swelling above the cloud's
That ward the wealthy Castile in with walls,
Could not detain the beauteous Elinor;

1 In the face of it. 2 Qu.; give these words to Mar.
3 Fastidious. 4 A term of contempt.
5 Hampton Court. 6 I. e. shepherd's garb.
But, hearing of the fame of Edward's youth,
She dur'd to brook Neptunus' haughty pride,
And bide the brunt of froward Achates.

Then may fair England welcome her the more.

Eliza. After that English Henry by his lords
Had sent Prince Edward his lovely counterfeit,
A present to the Castle Elincor,
The comely portrait of so brave a man,
The virtuous fame discoursed of his deeds,
Edward's courageous resolution,
Done at the Holy Land 'fore Damas' walls,
Led both mine eye and thoughts in equal links
To like so of the English monarch's son,
That I attempted peril for his sake.

Emp. Where is the prince, my lord?

K. Hen. He posted down, not long since,
From the court,

To Suffolk side, to marry Framlingham,
To sport himself amongst my fallow deer;
From thence, by packets sent to Hampton-house,

We hear the prince is ridden with his lords
To Oxford, in the academy there
To hear dispute amongst the learned men.
But we will send forth letters for my son,
To will him come from Oxford to the court.

K. Hen. Nay, rather, Henry, let us, as we be,
Ride for to visit Oxford with our train.

Fain would I see your universities,
And what learn'd men your academy yields.
From Hambourg have I bought a learned clerk to hold dispute with English orators.

This doctor, surnam'd Jaques Vandermaest,
A German born, pass'd into Padua,
To Florence and to fair Bologna,

To Paris, Rheims, and stately Orleans,
And, talking there with men of art, put down
The chiefest of them all in aphorisms,
In magic, and the mathematic rules:

Now let us, Henry, try him in your schools.

K. Hen. He shall, my lord; this motion likes me well.

We'll progress straight to Oxford with our trains,
And see what men our academy brings.

And, wonder Vandermaest, welcome to me.

In Oxford shalt thou find a jolly friar Call'd Friar Bacon, England's only flower:

Set him but nonplus in his magic spells,
And make him yield in mathematical rules,
And for thy glory I will bind thy brows,
Not with a poet's garland made of bays,
But with a coronet of choicest gold.

Whilst, then, we set to Oxford with our troops.

Let's in and banquet in our English court.

Exeunt.

[SCENE V.]

Ralph. Where be these vagabond knaves, that they attend no better on our master?
combs. One wise man, I think, would spring you all.

War. Why, Ned, I think the devil be in [as my sheath; I cannot get out my danger.
Erm. Nor I mine. 'Swounds, Ned, I think I am bewitched.
Miles. A company of scabs! The proudest of you all draw your weapon, if he can.—

[Aside.] See how boldly I speak, now my master is by.

P. Edw. I strive in vain; but if my sword be shut
And conjur'd fast by magic in my sheath,
Villain, here is my flat.

Miles. O, I beseech you conjure his hands too, that he may not lift his arms to his head, for he is light-fingered.

Ralph. Ned, strike him; I'll warrant thee by mine honour.

Bacon. What means the English prince to wrong my man?

P. Edw. To whom speak'st thou?

Bacon. To thee.

P. Edw. Who art thou?

Bacon. Could you not now be so wise as to make some succour of the jolly friar?

Edward, King Henry's son and Prince of Wales,
Thy fool disguise'd cannot conceal thyself,
I know both Ermsby and the Sussex Earl,
Else Friar Bacon had but little skill.

Thou com'st in post from merry Fressingfield,

Fast-fancied to the Keeper's bonny lass,
To crave some succour of the jolly friar;
And Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, hast thou left
To treat fair Margaret to allow thy loves;
But friends are men, and love can bailee lords;
The earl both wox and courts her for himself.

War. Ned, this is strange; the friar knowest all.

Erm. Apollo could not utter more than this.

P. Edw. I stand amaz'd to hear this jolly friar Tell even the very secrets of my thoughts.—
But, learned Bacon, since thou knowest the cause
Why I did post so fast from Fressingfield, Help, friar, at a pinch, that I may have
The love of lovely Margaret to myself.

And, as I am true Prince of Wales, I give Living and lands to strength thy college state.

War. Good friar, help the prince in this.

Ralph. Why, servant Ned, will not the friar do it? Were not my sword glued to my scabbard by conjuration, I would cut off his head, and make him do it by force.

Miles. In faith, my lord, your manhood and your sword is all alike; they are so fast conjured that we shall never see them.

Erm. What, doctor, in a dump? Tush, help the prince,
And thou shalt see how liberal he will prove.

Bacon. Crave not such actions greater dumps than these?
I will, my lord, strain out my magic spells;
For this day comes the earl to Fressingfield,

And 'fore that night shuts in the day with dark,
They'll be betrothed each to other fast.

But come with me; we'll go to my study straight,
And in a glass prospective I will show
What's done this day in merry Fressingfield.

P. Edw. Gramercies, Bacon; I will quite thy pain.

Bacon. But send your train, my lord, into the town;

My scholar shall go bring them to their inn.

Meanwhile we'll see the knavery of the earl.

P. Edw. Warren, leave me:—and, Ermsby, take the fool;

Let him be master, and go revel it,

Till I and Friar Bacon talk awhile.

War. We will, my lord.

Ralph. Faith, Ned, and I'll lord it out till thou comest. I'll be Prince of Wales over all the black-pots in Oxford.

Exeunt. [Scene VI.]"
But did Lord Lacy like poor Margaret,
Or would he design to wed a country lass,
Frai, I would his humble handmaid be,
And for great wealth quite him with courtesy.

_Bun._ Why, Margaret, dost thou love him?
_Mar._ His personage, like the pride of vaunting Troy,
Might well a weal to shadow Helen's scope:
His wit is quick and ready in conceit,
As Greece afforded in her chieftest prime:
Courteous, an friar, full of pleasing smiles!
Trust me, I love too much to tell thee more;
Suffice to me he's England's paramour.
_Bun._ Hath not each eye that view'd thy pleasing face
Surnamed thee Fair Maid of Fressingfield?
_Mar._ Yes, Bungay; and would God the lovely earl
Had that in esse that so many sought.
_Bun._ Fear not, the friar will not be behind
To show his cunning to entangle love.
_P. Edw._ I think the friar courts the bonny wench;
_Bacon._ Methinks he is a lusty churl.
_Bacon._ Now look, my lord.

_Enter Lacy (disguised as before)._
_P. Edw._ Gog's wounds, Bacon, here comes Lacy!
_Bacon._ Sit still, my lord, and mark the comedy.
_Bun._ Here's Lacy, Margaret; step aside awhile.
_They withdraw._
_Lacy._ Daphne, the damsel that caught Phoebus fast,
And lock'd him in the brightness of her looks,
Was not so beauteous in Apollo's eyes
As is fair Margaret to the Lincoln Earl.
Recant thee, Lacy, thou art put in trust:
Edward, thy sovereign's son, hath chosen thee,
A secret friend, to court her for himself,
And darst thou wrong thy prince with treachery?
Lacy, love makes no exception of a friend,
Nor deems it of a prince but as a man.
Honour bids thee control him in his lust;
His wooing is not for to wed the girl,
But to entrap her and beguile the lass,
Lacy, thou loves, then brook not such abuse,
But wed her, and abide thy prince's frown;
For better die than see her live disgrac'd.

_Mar._ Come, friar, I will shake him from his dumps.—
[Comes forward.]
_How cheer you, sir? A penny for your thought!
_You're early up, pray God it be the near._
_What, what come from Beeceles in a morn so soon?
_Lacy._ Thus watchful are such men as live in love,
Whose eyes brook broken slumber for their sleep.
I tell thee, Peggy, since last Harlestone fair
My mind hath felt a heap of passions.

_Mar._ A trusty man, that court it for your friend.
_Woo you still for the courtier all in green?
_I marvel that he seeks not for himself._
_Lacy._ Peggy,
_I pleaded first to get your grace for him;
But when mine eyes survey'd your beauteous looks,
_Love, like a wag, straight div'd into my heart,
And there did shrive the idea of yourself.
Pity me, though I be a farmer's son,
And measure not my riches, but my love.
_Mar._ You are very hasty; for to garden well,
Seeds must have time to sprout before they spring:
Love ought to creep as doth the dial's shade,
For timely ripe is rotten too-too soon.
_Bun. [coming forward.]_ Deus hic; room for a merry friar!

What, youth of Beeceles, with the Keeper's lass?
'Tis well; but tell me, hear you any news?
_Mar._ No, friar. What news?
_Bun._ Hear you not how the pursuivants do post
With proclamations through each country-town?
_Lacy._ For what, gentle friar? Tell me the news.
_Bun._ Dwell'st thou in Beeceles, and hear'st not of these news?
_Lacy, the Earl of Lincoln, is late fled
From Windsor court, disguised like a swain,
And lurks about the country here unknown.
_Henry suspects him of some treachery,
And therefore doth proclaim in every way,
That who can take the Lincoln Earl shall have,
Paid in the Exchequer, twenty thousand crowns.
_Lacy._ The Earl of Lincoln! Friar, thou art mad.
It was some other; thou mistak'st the man.
The Earl of Lincoln! Why, it cannot be.
_Mar._ Yes, very well, my lord, for you are he:
The Keeper's daughter took you prisoner.
_Lord Lacy, yield, I'll be your gaoler once._
_P. Edw._ How familiar they be, Bacon!
_Bacon._ Sit still, and mark the sequel of their loves.
_Lacy._ Then am I double prisoner to thyself.
Peggy, I yield. But are these news in jest?
_Mar._ In jest with you, but earnest unto me;
For why these wrongs do wring me at the heart.
Ah, how these earls and noblemen of birth
Flatter and feign to forge poor women's ill!
_Lacy._ Believe me, lass, I am the Lincoln Earl;
I not deny but, tired thus in rage,
I liv'd disguis'd to win fair Peggy's love.
_Mar._ What love is there where wedding ends not love?
_Lacy._ I meant, fair girl, to make thee Lacy's wife.
_Mar._ Little think that earls will stoop so low.
_Lacy._ Say, shall I make thee countess ere I sleep?

1 _Rene._
2 _So Gayley, Qq. cap. Other edd. rep._
3 _Check, overmaster._
4 _Nearest (to your purpose)._

* Prematurely.
* Became.
Mar. Handmaid unto the earl, so please himself; 158
A wife in name, but servant in obedience.

Lacy. The Lincoln Countess, for it shall be so:
I'll plight the hands, and seal it with a kiss.
P. Edw. Gog's wounds, Bacon, they kiss! I'll stab them.

Bacon. O, hold your hands, my lord, it is the P. Edw. Choler to see the traitors gree so well Made me think the shadows substance.

Bacon. 'T were a long poniard, my lord, to reach between Oxford and Fressingfield; but sit still and see more.

Bun. Well, Lord of Lincoln, if your loves be knit, And that your tongues and thoughts do both agree, To avoid ensuing jars, I'll hammer up the match.

I'll take my portage 1 forth and wed you here:
Then go to bed and seal 2 up your desires. 160
Lacy. Friar, content. — Peggy, how like you this?
Mar. What likes my lord is pleasing unto me. Bun. Then hand-fast hand, and I will to my book.

Bacon. What sees my lord now? P. Edw. Bacon, I see the lovers hand in hand,
The friar ready with his portace there To wed them both: then am I quite undone. Bacon, help now, if e'er thy magic serv'd; Help, Bacon! Stop the marriage now, If devils or necromancy may suffice, And I will give thee forty thousand crowns. Bacon. Fear not, my lord, I'll stop the jolly friar
For 3 murmbling up his orisons this day.

Bungay is mute, crying, "Hud, hud,"
Mar. How look'st thou, friar, as a man distraught?

Reft of thy senses, Bungay? Show by signs, If thou be dumb, what passions holdeth thee. Lacy. He's dumb indeed. Bacon hath with his devils Enchanted him, or else some strange disease Or apoplexy hath possess'd his lungs. 160
But, Peggy, what he cannot with his book, We'll 'twixt us both unite it up in heart. Mar. Else let me die, my lord, a miscreant.

P. Edw. Why stands Friar Bungay so amaz'd?

Bacon. I have struck him dumb, my lord; and, if your honour please, I'll fetch this Bungay straightway from Fressingfield
And he shall dine with us in Oxford here.

P. Edw. Bacon, do that, and thou contentest me.

Lacy. Of courtesy, Margaret, let us lead the friar Unto thy father's lodge, to comfort him With broths, to bring him from this hapless trance.
Mar. Or else, my lord, we were passing unkind
To leave the friar so in his distress.

Enter a Devil, who carries off Bungay on his back.
O, help, my lord! a devil, a devil, my lord! Look how he carries Bungay on his back! 170
Let's hence, for Bacon's spirit be abroad.

Exit [with Lacy].

P. Edw. Bacon, I laugh to see the jolly friar Mounted upon the devil, and how the earl Flees with his bonny lass for fear. As soon as Bungay is at Brazen-nose, And I have chatted with the merry friar, I will in post hie me to Fressingfield, And quite these wrongs on Lacy ere 't be long.

Bacon. So be it, my lord; but let us to our dinner;
For ere we have taken our repast awhile, We shall have Bungay brought to Brazen-nose.

Ed: Xenus.

[Scene VII.]

Enter three doctors, Burden, Mason, and Clement.

Mason. Now that we are gathered in the Regent-house, It fits us talk about the king's repair. 5 For he, trooped with all the western kings, That lie alongst the Dantzic seas by east, North by the clime of frosty Germany, The Almain monarch, and the Saxon duke, Castile and lovely Elinor with him, Have in their jests resol'd for Oxford town. Burd. We must lay plots of stately tragedies. Strange comic shows, such as proud Roscius 10 Vaunted before the Roman emperors, To welcome all the western potentates. Clem. But more; the king by letters hath forsworn That Frederick, the Almain emperor, Hath brought with him a German of esteem, Whose surname is Don Jaques Vandermaest, Skilful in magic and those secret arts.

Mason. Then must we all make suit unto the friar, To Friar Bacon, that he vouch this task, And undertake to countervail in skill The German; else there's none in Oxford can Match and dispute with learned Vandermaest.

Burd. Bacon, if he will hold the German play, Will teach him what an English friar can do. The devil, I think, dare not dispute with him. Clem. Indeed, Mas doctor, he [dis]pleasure'd you, In that he brought your hostess with her spit From Henley, posting unto Brazen-nose.

1 Portable breviary. 2 Gayley seals, as Q. 3 From.

Enter a Constable, with Ralph Simnell, Warren, Emmbly, [all three disguised as before], and Miles.

Cons. Nay, masters, if you were ne'er so good, you shall before the doctors to answer [as] your misdemeanour.

Burd. What's the matter, fellow?

Cons. Marry, sir, here's a company of ruffians, that, drinking in the tavern, have made a great brawl, and almost killed the vintner.

Miles. Salve, Doctor Burden!

This lubberly burden, ill-shap'd and ill-faced, Disdain'd and disgraced, What he tells unto vosis Mentitur de nobis.

Burd. Who is the master and chief of this crew?

Miles. Ecce asinum mundi

Next, shall, and fine,

As brisk as a cup of wine.

Burd. What are you?

Ralph. I am, father doctor, as a man would say, the bell-wether of this company; these are my lords, and I the Prince of Wales.

Clem. Are you Edward, the king's son?

Ralph. Sirrah Miles, bring hither the tapster that drew the wine, and, I warrant, when they see how soundly I have broke his head, [as] they'll say 't was done by no less man than a prince.

Mason. I cannot believe that this is the Prince of Wales.

War. And why so, sir?

Mason. For they say the prince is a brave and a wise gentleman.

War. Why, and think'st thou, doctor, that he is not so?

Dear'st thou detract and derogate from him, being so lovely and so brave a youth?

Erms. Whose face, shining with many a sug'red smile,

Bewrays that he is bred of princely race.

Miles. And yet, master doctor,

To speak like a proctor, And tell unto you

What is vermine and true; To cease of this quarrel,

Look but on his apparel, Then mark but my tale.

He is great Prince of Wales, The chief of our gregis,

And filius regis: Then 'ware what is done,

For he is Henry's white son.

Ralph. Doctors, whose dotting Night-cap are not capable of my ingenious dignity, know that I am Edward Plantagenet, whom if you displease will make a ship that shall hold all your colleges, and so carry away the university with a fair wind to the Bankside in Southwark. [as] — How sayest thou, Ned Warren, shall I not do it?

War. Yes, my good lord; and, if it please your lordship, I will gather up all your old paupers, and with the corg [as] pinnace of five-hundred ton, that shall serve the turn marvellous well, my lord.

Erms. And I, my lord, will have pioners to undermine the town, that the very gardens and orchards be carried away for your summer walks.

Miles. And I, with scientia

And great diligentia,

Will conjure and charm,

To keep you from harm;

That utrum horum mavis,

Your very great navis,

Like Bradley's ship, From Oxford do skip

With colleges and schools,

Full-laden with fools.

Quid dicis ad hoc,

Worthy Rump? Dooms Dawcock?

Clem. Why, hare-brain'd courtiers, are you drunk or mad.

To taunt us up with such sordility?

Deem you us men of base and light esteem, To bring us such a tops for Henry's son? — Call out the beadle and convey them hence Straight to Bocardo: let the roysters lie Close elapt in bolts, until their wits be tame.

Erms. Why, shall we to prison, my lord?

Ralph. What sayest, Miles, shall I honour the prison with my presence?

Miles. No, no: out with your blades, And hamper these jades; Have a flint and a crash, Now play revel-dash, And teach these ascetos That the Bocardo, Like peasants and elves, Am nest for themselves.

Mason. To the prison with them, constable.

War. Well, doctors, seeing I have sported me

With laughing at these mad and merry wags, Know that Prince Edward is at Brazen-nose, And this attired like the Prince of Wales, Is Ralph, King Henry's only loved fool; I, Earl of Sussex, and this Ermsby, One of the privy-chamber to the king; Who, while the prince with Friar Bacon stays, Have revell'd it in Oxford as you see.

Mason. My lord, pardon us, we knew not what you were:

But courtiers may make greater scapes than these.

Wilt please your honour dine with me to-day? War. I will, Master doctor, and satisfy [as] From the soles of the slippers.

the vintner for his hurt; only I must desire you to imagine him all this forenoon the Prince of Wales.

   Mason. I will, sir.
Ralph. And upon that I will lead the way; [we only I will have Miles go before me, because I have heard Henry say that wisdom must go before majesty.

   Exeunt.

[SCENE VIII.]

Enter Prince EDWARD with his poniard in his hand, LACY, and MARGARET.

P. Edw. Lacy, thou canst not shroud thy traitorous thoughts,
Nor cover, as did Cassius, all his wiles;
For Edward hath an eye that looks as far
As Lyceus from the shores of Gracia.
Did not I sit in Oxford by the friar,
And see thee court the maid of Fressingfield?

P. Edw. Did not I sit in Oxford by the friar,
And see thee court the maid of Fressingfield?

Did not proud Bungay draw his portcullis forth,
And, joining hand in hand, had married me,
If Friar Bacon had not struck him dumb, and Mounted him upon a spirit’s back,
That we might chat at Oxford with the friar?

Lacy. What answer’st? Is not all this true?

Lacy. Truth all, my lord; and thus I make reply:
At Harlestone fair, there courting for your grace
Whenas mine eye survey’d her curious shape,
And drew the beauteous glory of her looks
To dive into the centre of my heart,
Love taught me that your honour did but jest;
That princes were in fancy but as men;
That the lovely maid of Fressingfield
Was fitter to be Lady’s wedded wife
Than concubine unto the Prince of Wales.

P. Edw. Injurious Lacy, did I love thee
more
Than Alexander his Hephaestion?

Lacy. Did I unfold the passions of my love,
And lock them in the closet of thy thoughts?
Wert thou to Edward second to himself,
Sole friend, and partner of his secret loves?
And could a glance of fading beauty break
Th’ enchained fetters of such private friends?
Base coward, false, and too effeminate
To be curvail’d with a prince in thoughts!
From Oxford have I jested since I din’d,
To quafe a traitor ‘fore that Edward sleep.

Mar. ’T was I, my lord, not Lacy stept awry:
For oft he cud and courted for yourself,
And still woo’d for the courtier all in green;
But I, whom fancy made but over-fond,
Pleased myself with looks as if I lov’d;
I fed mine eye with gazing on his face,
And still bewitch’d lov’d Lady with my looks;
My heart with sighs, mine eyes pleaded with ears,
My face held pity and content at once,
And more I could not cipher-out by signs,
But that I lov’d Lord Lacy with my heart.
Then, worthy Edward, measure with thy mind
If women’s favours will not force men fall,

If beauty, and if darts of piercing love,
Are not of force to bury thoughts of friends.

P. Edw. I tell thee, Peggy, I will have thy loves;
Edward or none shall conquer Margaret
In frigates bottom’d with rich Shardin planks,
Topt with the lofty firs of Lebanon,
Stemm’d and Incas’d with burnish’d ivory,
And over-laid with plates of Persian wealth.
Like Thetis shalt thou wanton on the waves,
And draw the dolphins to thy lovely eyes,
To dance lavolatias in the purple streams:
Sirens, with harps and silver psalteries,
Shall wait with music at thy frigate’s stem,
And entertain fair Margaret with their lays.
England and England’s wealth shall wait on
thee;
Britain shall bend unto her prince’s love,
And do due homage to thine excellence.
If thou wilt be Edward’s Margaret.

Mar. Rather, my lord; if love’s great royalty
Sent me such presents as to Danaé;
If Phoebus, tired in Latona’s webs,
Come courting from the beauty of his lodge;

The dulce tunes of frolic Mercury,
And my name for all the wealth heaven’s treasury affords
Should make me leave Lord Lacy or his love.

P. Edw. I have learned at Oxford, then, this point of schools

Ablata causa, tollitur effectus:
Lacy, the cause that Margaret cannot love
Nor fix her liking on the English prince,
Take him away, and then th’ effects will fail.
Villain, prepare thyself; for I will bathe
My poniard in the bosom of an earl.

Lacy. Rather than live, and miss fair Mar-garet’s love,
Prince Edward, stop not at the fatal doom,
But stab it home: end both my loves and life.

Mar. Brave Prince of Wales, honoured for royal deeds,
’T were sin to stain fair Venus’ courts with blood;

Love’s conquest ends, my lord, in courtesy.
Spare Lacy, gentle Edward; let me die,
For so both you and he do cease your loves.

P. Edw. Lacy shall die as traitor to his lord.
Lacy. I have deserv’d it, Edward; act it
well.

Mar. What hopes the prince to gain by Lacy’s death?

P. Edw. To end the loves ‘twixt him and Margaret.

Mar. Why, thinks King Henry’s son that Margaret’s love
Hangs in th’ uncertain balance of proud time?
That death shall make a discord of our thoughts?

No, stab the earl, and, ’fore the morning sun
Shall vanish him thro’ over the lofty east,
Margaret will meet her Lacy in the heavens.

Lacy. If aught betides to lovely Margaret
That wrongs or wrings her honour from content,

Europe’s rich wealth nor England’s monarchy

1 Fressingfield. 2 Love. 3 Shardin. 4 Shardin.
Should not allure Lacy to over-live.
Then, Edward, short my life, and end her loves.
Mar. Rid me, and keep a friend worth many loves.

Lacy. Nay, Edward, keep a love worth many friends.

Mar. An if thy mind be such as fame hath blaz'd,
Then, princely Edward, let us both abide
The fatal resolution of thy rage.
Banish thou fancy and embrace revenge,
And in one tomb knit both our caresses;
Whose hearts were linked in one perfect love.

P. Edw. [aside.] Edward, art thou that famous Prince of Wales,
Who at Damasco beat the Saracens,
And broughtst home triumph on thy lance's point?
And shall thy plumes be pull'd by Venus down?
Is't princely to dissemble lovers' leagues,
To part such friends as glory in their loves?
Leave, Ned, and make a virtuous of this fault,
And further Peg and Lacy in their loves:
So in subduing fancy's passion,
Conquering thyself, thou gettest the richest spoil.

Lacy, rise up. Fair Peggy, here's my hand.
The Prince of Wales hath conquered all his thoughts,
And all his loves he yields unto the earl.
Lacy, enjoy the maid of Pressingfield;
Make her thy Lincoln Countess at the church,
And Ned, as he is true Plantagenet,
Will give her to thee frankly for thy wife.

Lacy. Humbly I take her of my sovereign,
As if that Edward gave me England's right,
And rich'd me with the Albion diadem.

Mar. And doth the English prince mean true?
Will he vouchsafe to cease his former loves,
And yield the title of a country maid
Unto Lord Lacy?

P. Edw. I will, fair Peggy, as I am true lord.
Mar. Then, lordly sir, whose conquest is as great,
In conquering love, as Caesar's victories,
Margaret, as mild and humble in her thoughts
As was Aspasia unto Cyrus' self,
Yields thanks, and, next Lord Lacy, doth en-shrine
Edward the second secret in her heart.

P. Edw. Gramercy, Peggy. Now that vows are past,
And that your loves are not to be revolv'd,
Once, Lacy, friends again. Come, we will post to Oxford; for this day the king is there,
And brings for Edward Castile Elinor.
Peggy, I must go see and view my wife:
I pray God I like her as I loved thee.
Bewise, Lord Lincoln, we shall hear dispute;
'Twixt Friar Bacon and learned Vandermast.
Peggy, we'll leave you for a week or two.

Mar. As it please Lord Lacy; but love's foolish looks Think footsteps miles and minutes to be hours.

Lacy. I'll hasten, Peggy, to make short return.
But pleasure your honour go unto the lodge,
We shall have butter, cheese, and venison;
And yesterday I brought for Margaret
A lusty bottle of neat clear-wine:
Thus can we feast and entertain your grace.

P. Edw. 'T is cheer, Lord Lacy, for an emperor,
If he respect the person and the place.
Come, let us in; for I will all this night
Ride post until I come to Bacon's cell.

Exeunt.

[Sceue IX.]

Enter King Henry, the Emperor, the King of Castile, Elinor, Vandermast, and Bungay.

Emp. Trust me, Plantagenet, these Oxford schools
Are richly seated near the river-side:
The mountains full of fat and fawllow deer,
The battling pastures lade with kine and flocks,
The town gorgeous with high-built colleges,
And scholars seemly in their grave attire,
Learned in searching principles of art,—
What is thy judgment, Jaques Vandermast?
Van. That lordly are the buildings of the town,
Spacious the rooms, and full of pleasant walks;
But for the doctors, how that they be learned,
It may be meanly, for aught I can hear.

Bun. I tell thee, German, Hapsburg holds none such,
None read so deep as Oxenford contains.
There are within our academic state
Men that may lecture it in Germany
To all the doctors of your Belgic schools.
X. Hen. Stand to him, Bungay, charm this Vandermast.
And I will use thee as a royal king.

Van. Wherein darest thou dispute with me?

Bun. In what a doctor and a friar can.

Van. Before rich Europe's worthies put thou forth
The doubtful question unto Vandermast.

Bun. Let it be this,—Whether the spirits of pyromancy or geomancy be most predominant in magic?

Van. I say, of pyromancy.

Bun. And I, of geomancy.

Van. The cabalists that write of magic spells,
As Hermes, Melchiae, and Pythagoras,
Affirm that, 'mongst the quadruplicity
Of elemental essence, terra is but thought
To be a punctum squared to the rest;
And that the compass of ascending elements
Exceed in bigness as they do in height;
Judging the concave circle of the sun
To hold the rest in his circumference.

If, then, as Hermes says, the fire be great'st,

1 Get rid of. 2 Overturned. 3 Oxford. 4 Fattening. 5 Compared.
Purest, and only giveth shape to spirits,
Then must these daemons that haunt that place
Be every way superior to the rest.

Bus. I reason not of elemental shapes,
Nor tell I of the concise latitudes,
Noting their essence nor their quality,
But of the spirits that pyromancy calls,
And of the vigour of the geomantic fiends.
I tell thee, German, magic haunts the ground,
And those strange necromantic spells,
That work such shows and wondering in the world,
Are acted by those geomantic spirits
That Hermes calleth terras fliti.
The fiery spirits are but transparent shades,
That lightly pass as heralds to bear news;
But earthly fiends, clos’d in the lowest deep,
Dissever mountains, if they be but charg’d,
Being more gross and massy in their power.

Van. Rather these earthly geomantic spirits
Are dull and like the place where they remain;
For when proud Lucifer fell from the heavens,
The spirits and angels that did sin with him,
Retain’d their local essence as their faults,
All subject under Lena’s continent.
They which offended less hang in the fire,
And second faults did rest within the air;
But Lucifer and his proud-hearted fiends
Were thrown into the centre of the earth,
Having less understanding than the rest,
As having greater sin and lesser grace.
Therefore such gross and earthly spirits do serve
For jugglers, witches, and vileorcurers;
 Whereas the pyromantic genii
Are mighty, swift, and of far-reaching power.
But grant that geomancy hath most force;
Bungay, to please these mighty potencies,
Prove by some instance what thy art can do.

Bus. I will.

Emp. Now, English Harry, here begins the game;
We shall see sport between these learned men.

Van. What wilt thou do?

Bus. Show thee the tree, leav’d with refined gold,
Whereon the fearful dragon held his seat,
That watch’d the garden call’d Hesperides,
Subdu’d and won by conquering Hercules.

Van. Well done! Here Bungay conjures, and the tree appears with the dragon shooting fire.

K. Hen. What say you, royal lordings, to my friar?

Kath. He not done a point of cunning skill?

Van. Each scholar in the necromantic spells
Can do as much as Bungay hath perform’d,
But as Alemena’s bastard raz’d this tree,
So will I raise him up as when he liv’d,
And cause him pull the dragon from his seat,
And tear the branches piecemeal from the root.—Hercules! Prodi, prodi, Heracles!

Hercules appears in his lion’s skin.

Her. Quis me vult?

Van. Jove’s bastard son, thou Libyan Hercules,

Pull off the spire from off the Hesperian tree,
As once thou didst to win the golden fruit.

Her. Fiat. Begins to break the branches.

Van. Now, Bungay, if thou canst by magic charm
The fiend, appearing like great Hercules,
From pulling down the branches of the tree,
Then art thou worthy to be counted learned.

Bus. I cannot.

Van. Cease, Hercules, until I give thee charge.—

Mighty commander of this English isle,
Henry, come from the stout Plantagenets,
Bungay is learn’d enough to be a friar;
But to compare with Jaques Vandermast,
Oxford and Cambridge must go seek their cells
To find a man to match him in his art.
I have given no-plus to the Piacuans,
To them of Sien, Florence, and Bologna,
Rheins, Louvain, and fair Rotterdam,
Frankfort, Lutetia,1 and Orleans:
And now must Henry, if he do me right,
Crown me with laurel, as they all have done.

Enter BACON.

Bacon. All hail to this royal company,
That sit to hear and see this strange dispute!—Bungay, how stand’st thou as a man amaz’d?
What, hath the German acted more than thou?

Van. What art thou that questions thus?

Bacon. Men call me Bacon.

Van. Lordly thou look’st, as if that thou wert learn’d;
Thy countenance as if science held her seat
Between the circlued archers of thy brow.

K. Hen. Now, monarchs, hath the German found his match.

Emp. Bestir thee, Jaques, take not now the foil,
Lest thou dost lose what foretime thou didst gain.

Van. Bacon, wilt thou dispute?

Bacon. No,

Unless he were more learn’d than Vandermast:
For yet, tell me, what hast thou done?

Van. Rain’d Hercules to ruinate that tree
That Bungay mounted by his magic spells.

Bacon. Set Heracles to work.

Van. Now, Hercules, I charge thee to thy task;
Pull off the golden branches from the root.

Her. I dare not. See’st thou not great Bacon here,
Whose frown doth act more than thy magic can?

Van. By all the thrones, and dominations,
Virtues, powers, and mighty hierarchies,
I charge thee to obey to Vandermast.

Her. Bacon, that bridles headstrong Belcephon,
And rules Asmenoth, guardier of the north,
Binds me from yielding unto Vandermast.

K. Hen. How now, Vandermast! Have you met with your match?

Van. Never before was't known to Vander-mast
That men held devils in such obedient awe.
Bacon doth more than art, or else I fail. 180
Emp. Why, Vandermaest, art then overcome? —
Bacon, dispute with him, and try his skill.
Bacon. I come not, monarchs, for to hold dispute.
With such a novice as is Vandermaest;
I came to have your royalties to dine 184
With Friar Bacon here in Brazen-nose;
And, for this German troubles but the place,
And holds this audience with a long suspense,
I'll send him to his academy hence. — 189
Thou Herenles, whom Vandermaest did raise,
Transport the German unto Hapsburg straight,
That he may learn by travail, 'gainst the spring,
More secret dooms and aphorisms of art.
Vanish the tree, and thou away with him!

Exit the spirit [of HERCULES] with VANDER-MAST and the tree.

Emp. Why, Bacon, whither dost thou send
him? 190
Bacon. To Hapsburg; there your highness at least shall find the German in his study safe.
K. Hen. Bacon, thou hast honour'd England with thy skill,
And made fair Oxford famous by thine art;
I will be English Henry to thyself. 195
But tell me, shall we dine with thee to-day?
Bacon. With me, my lord; and while I sit my cheer,
See where Prince Edward comes to welcome
you,
Gracious as the morning-star of heaven. Exit.

Enter [PRINCE] EDWARD, LACY, WARREN, ERMESBY.

Emp. Is this this Prince Edward, Henry's royal son? 198
How martial is the figure of his face!
Yet lovely and beset with amorettes. 1
K. Hen. Ned, where hast thou been?
P. Eud. At Framingham, my lord, to try your books
If they could scarce the teasers 2 or the toil. 199
But hearing of these lordly potencies
Landed, and progress'd up to Oxford town,
I posted to give entertain to them:
Chief, to the Almain monarch; next to him,
And joint with him, Castile and Saxony 200
Are welcome as they may be to the English court.
Thus for the men: but see, Venus appears,
Or one that overmatcheth Venus in her shape!
Sweet Elinor, beauty's high-swelling pride,
Rich nature's glory and her wealth at once, 205
Fair of all fair, welcome to Albion;
Welcome to me, and welcome to thine own;
If that thou deign'st the welcome from myself.
Elin. Martial Plantagenet, Henry's high-minded son,

The mark that Elinor did count her aim, 210
I lik'd thee 'fore I saw thee; now I love,
And so as in so short a time I may;
Yet so as time shall never break that so,
And therefore so accept of Elinor.
K. of Cast. Fear not, my lord, this couple will agree,
If love may creep into their wanton eyes: —
And therefore, Edward, I accept thee here,
Without suspense, as my adopted son.
K. Hen. Let me that joy in these consortings greats,
And glory in these honours done to Ned, 215
Yield thanks for all these favours to my son,
And rest a true Plantagenet to all.

Enter MILES WITH a cloth and trenchers and salt.

Miles. Saluete, omnes reges,
That govern your graces
In Saxony and Spain,
In England and in Almain!
For all this frolic rabble
Must I cover the table
With trenchers, salt, and cloth;
And then look for your brotch. 220
Emp. What pleasant fellow is this?
K. Hen. 'Tis, my lord, Doctor Bacon's poor scholar.
Miles [aside.] My master hath made me
sower 3 of these great lords; and, God knows.
I am as serviceable at a table as a sow is under an apple-tree. 'T is no matter; their cheer shall not be great, and therefore what skills where the salt stand, before or behind? 225 [Exit.]
K. of Cast. These scholars know more skill in axioms,
How to use quips and sleights of sophistry,
Than for to cover courtly for a king.

Re-enter MILES WITH a mess of pottage and broth;
and, after him, BACON.

Miles. Spill, sir? why, do you think I never carried twopenny chop 4 before in my life? —
By your leave, nobile decus, 230
For here comes Doctor Bacon's pocus,
Being in his full age
To carry a mess of pottage.
Bacon. Lordings, admire 5 not if your cheer be this,
For we must keep our academic fare;
No riot where philosophy doth reign:
And therefore, Henry, place these potencies,
And bid them fall unto their frugal cates.
Emp. Presumptuous friar! What, scoff'st thou at a king?
What, dost thou taunt us with thy peasants'
fare,
And give us cates fit for country swains? —
Henry, proceeds this jest of thy consent,
To twist us with 6 a pittance of such price?
Tell me, and Frederick will not grieve thee long.
K. Hen. By Henry's honour, and the royal faith

1 Love-kindling looks. 2 See note on I. 5.
The English monarch beareth to his friend,
I knew not of the friar's feeble fare,
Nor doth his charity contain you thus.

Bacon. Content thee, Frederick, for I show'd thee the case.
To let thee see how scholars use to feed;
How little meat refines our English wits.
Miles, take away, and let it be thy dinner.

Miles. Marry, sir, I will.
This day shall be a festival-day with me;
For I shall exceed in the highest degree. [Exit.]
Bacon. I tell thee, monach, all the German peers
Could not afford thy entertainment such,
So royal and so full of majesty,
As Bacon will present to Frederick.
The basest waiter that attends thy cup's
Shall be in honours greater than thyself;
And for thy cates, rich Alexandria drugs,
Fetch'd by caravels from Egypt's richest straits,
Found in the wealthy strand of Africa,
Shall royalize the table of my king;
Wines richer than their Egyptian courtsean
Quaff'd to Augustus' kingly counterpart,
Shall be carouse'd in English Henry's feast;
Candy shall yield the richest of her canes;
Persia, down her Volga by canoe,
Send down the secrets of her spicery;
The Afric dates, myrobalans of Spain,
Conserves and skankets from Tiberias,
Cates from Judaea, choicer than the lamp
That fired Rome with sparks of gluttony,
Shall beautify the board for Frederick:
And therefore grudge not at a friar's feast.
[Exeunt.]

[SCENE X.] 6

Enter two gentlemen, LAMBERT and SERLSBY, with the Keeper.

Lam. Come, frolic Keeper of our lieu's game,
Whose table spread hath ever venison
And jacks 6 of wine to welcome passengers,
Know I'm in love with jolly Margaret,
That overshines our damsels as the moon
Darknesth the brightest sparkles of the night.
In Laxfield here my land and living lies:
I'll make thy daughter jointer of it all,
So thou consent to give her to my wife;
And I can spend five hundred marks a-year. 7

Ser. Lam. I am the land- lord, Keeper, of thy holds,
By copy all thy living lies in me;
Laxfield did never see me raise my dues:
I will enfooth fair Margaret in all,
So she will take her to a lusty squire. 6

Keep. Now, courteous gentle, if the Keeper's girl
Hath pleas'd the liking fancy of you both,
And with her beauty hath subdu'd your thoughts.
'Tis doubtful to decide the question.
It joys me that such men of great esteem
Should lay their liking on this base estate,
And that her state should grow so fortunate
To be a wife to meaner men than you.
But such a dower will stoop to keeper's fees,
I will, to avoid displeasure of you both,
Call Margaret forth, and she shall make her choice.

Exit.

Lam. Content, Keeper; send her unto us.
Why, Serlsby, is thy wife so lately dead,
Are all thy loves so lightly passed over,
As thou canst wed before the year be out? 8

Ser. I live not, Lambert, to content the dead,
Nor was I wedded but for life to her:
The grave ends and begins a married state.

Enter MARGARET.

Lam. Peggy, the lovely flower of all towns,
Suffolk's fair Helen, and rich England's star,
Whose beauty, tempered with her huawifery,
Makes England talk of merry Fressingfield!

Ser. I cannot trick it up with poesies,
Nor paint my passions with comparisons,
Nor tell a tale of Phoebe and his loves:
But this believe me,—Lax field here is mine,
Of ancient rent seven hundred pounds a-year,
And if thou canst but love a country squire,
I will enfooth thee, Margaret, in all.
I cannot flatter; try me, if thou please.

Mar. Brave neighbouring squires, the stay of Suffolk's clime.
A keeper's daughter is too base in gree 9
To match with men accounted of such worth:
But might I not displease, I would reply.

Lam. Say, Peggy; naught shall make us discontent.

Mar. Then, gentle, note that love hath little stay,
Nor can the flames that Venus sets on fire
Be kindled but by fancy's motion:
Then pardon, gentiles, if a maid's reply.
Be doubtful, while I have debated with myself.

Who, or of whom, love shall constrain me like.
Ser. Let it be me; and trust me, Margaret,
The meads environ'd with the silver streams,
Whose battling pastures fatt'neth all my flocks,
Yielding forth flocks of staple with such wool
As Leominster

Ser. Laxfield cannot yield more finer stuff.
And forty kine with fair and burnish'd heads,
With strutting 10 dugs that peggle 11 to the ground,
Shall serve thy dairy, if thou wedd with me.

Lam. Let pass the country wealth, as flocks
And kine,
And lands that wave with Ceres' golden sheaves,
Filling my barns with plenty of the fields;
But, Peggy, if thou wed thyself to me,
Thou shalt have garments of embrod'ed red silk,
Lawns, and rich net-works for thy head-att.
But this squires will stoop to the title.

Costly shall be thy fair habiliments,
If thou wilt be but Lambert's loving wife.

Mar. Content you, gentle, you have proffer'd fair,
And more than fits a country maid's degree;

1 Spices. 6 Fressingfield. 7 Estate (Gayley). 8 Qu. Lemster (phonetic). 9 Degree. 10 Strutting, swelling. 11 Hang loosely (N. E. D.).
But give me leave to counsel me a time, 15
For fancy blooms not at the first assault;
Give me but ten days’ respite, and I will
reply,
Which or to whom myself affectionates.
Ser. Lambert, I tell thee, thou’rt importunate;
Such beauty fits not such a base esquire: 50
It is for Serlby to have Margaret.
Lam. Think’st thou with wealth to overreach
me?
Serlby, I scorn to brook thy country braves.
I dare thee, coward, to maintain this wrong,
At dint of rapiers, single in the field. 55
Ser. I’ll answer, Lambert, what I have avouch’d.
Margaret, farewell; another time shall serve.
Exit.
Lam. I’ll follow. — Peggy, farewell to thyself;
Listen how well I’ll answer for thy love. 60
Exit.
Mar. How fortune tempers lucky laps with frowns,
And wrongs me with the sweets of my delight!
Love is my bliss, and love is now my bane.
Shall I be Helen in my froward fate? 65
As I am Helen in my matchless hue,
And set rich Suffolk with my face a fire? 70
If lovely Lacy were but with his Peggy,
The cloudy darkness of his bitter frown
Would check the pride of these aspiring squires.
Before the term of ten days be expired,
Whenas they look for answer of their loves, 75
My lord will come to merry Fressingfield,
And end their fancies and their follies both:
Till when, Peggy, be blithe and of good cheer.

Enter a Post with a letter and a bag of gold.

Post. Fair lovely damsels, which way leads this path?
How might I post me unto Fressingfield? 80
Which footpath leadeth to the Keeper’s lodge?
Mar. Your way is ready, and this path is right;
Myself do dwell hereby in Fressingfield,
And if the Keeper be the man you seek,
I am his daughter: may I know the cause? 85
Post. Lovelies, and once beloved of my lord,—
No marvel if his eye was lodg’d so low,
When brighter beauty is not in the heavens,
The Lincoln Earl hath sent you letters here,
And, with them, just an hundred pounds in gold. 90
Sweet, bonny wench, read them, and make reply.
Mar. The scrolls that Jove sent Danaë,
Wrote in rich closures of fine burnish’d gold,
Were not more welcome than these lines to me.
Tell me, whilst that I do unrip the seals, 95
Lives Lacy well? How fares my lovely lord?
Post. Well, if that wealth may make men to live well.
Mar. (reads) The blooms of the almond-tree grow in a night, and vanish in a morn; the flies hemeræs, 100
fair Peggy, take life with the sun, 105 and die with the dew; fancy that slippeth in with a gaze, goeth out with a wink; and too timely. 110 loves have ever the shortest length. I write this as thy grief, and my folly, who at Fressingfield loved that which time hath taught me to be but mean 115 dainties. Eyes are dissemblers, and fancy is but queasy; therefore know, Margaret, I have chosen a Spanish lady to be my wife, chief waiting-woman to the Princess Elinor; a lady fair, and no less fair than thyself, honourable and wealthy. In [120] that I forsake thee, I leave thee to thine own likin’; and for thy dowry I have sent thee un hundred pounds; and ever assure thee of my favour, which shall avail thee and thine much.

Farewell. Not thine, nor his own, [125

EDWARD LACY.

Fond Ate, doomer of bad-boding fates,
That wraps proud Fortune in thy snaky locks,
Didst thou enchant my birth-day with such stars
As lightened mischief from their infancy? 130
If heavens had yow’d, if stars had made decrees,
To show on me their froward influence,
If Lacy had but lov’d, heavens, hell, and all
Could not have wrong’d the patience of my mind.
Post. It grieves me, damsel; but the earl is forc’d 135
To love the lady by the king’s command.
Mar. The wealth combin’d within the English shelves.
Europe’s commander, nor the English king, Should not have mov’d the love of Peggy from her lord.
Post. What answer shall I return to my lord? 140
Mar. First, for thou cam’st from Lacy whom
I lov’d,—
Ah, give me leave to sigh at every thought!—
Take thou, my friend, the hundred pound he sent,
For Margaret’s resolution craves no dower.
The world shall be to her as vanity; 145
Wealth, trash; love, hate; pleasure, despair;
For I will straight to stately Framlingham,
And in the abbey there be born a nun,
And yield my loves and liberty to God.
Follow, I give thee this, not for the news, 150
For those be hateful unto Margaret,
But for thou’rt Lacy’s man, once Margaret’s
love.
Post. What I have heard, what passions I have seen,
I’ll make report of them unto the earl.
Mar. Say that she joys his fancies be at rest, 155
And prays that his misfortune may be hers.
Exeunt.

[SCENE XL] 4

Enter Friar Bacon drawing the curtains with a white stick, a book in his hand, and a lamp lighted by him; and the Brazen Head, and Miles with weapons by him.

Bacon. Miles, where are you?
Miles. Here, sir.
Bacon. How chance you tarry so long? 4 Miles. Think you that the watching of the Brazen Head craves no furniture? I warrant [s you, sir, I have so armed myself that if all your devils come, I will not fear them an inch.

Bacon. Miles.

Thou know'st that I have dived into hell,
And sought the darkest palaces of Sodom;
That with my magic spells great Belzeboph
Hath left his lodge and kneaded at my cell;
The rafters of the earth rent from the poles,
And three-form'd Lada hid her silver looks,
Trembling upon her concave continent,
When Bacon read upon his magic book.
With seven years' toasting necromantic charms,
Foring upon dark Hecat's principles,
I have fram'd out a monstrous head of brass,
That, by the enchanting forces of the devil,
Shall tell out strange and uncouth aphorisms,
And girt fair England with a wall of brass.
Bungay and I have watch'd these three score days,
And now our vital spirits crave some rest.

If Argus liv'd, and had his hundred eyes,
They could not over-watch Phobetor's sight.
Now, Miles, in thee rests Friar Bacon's weal:
The honours and renown of all his life
Hangs in the watching of this Brazen Head;
Therefore I charge thee by the immortal God,
That holds the souls of men within his flat,
This night thou watch; for ere the morning-star
Sends out his glorious glister on the north,
The head will speak: then, Miles, upon thy life,
Wake me; for then by magic art I'll work
To end my seven years' task with excellence.
If that a wink but shut thy watchful eye,
Then farewell Bacon's glory and his fame!

Draw close the curtains, Miles: now, for thy life,
Be watchful, and — Here he falleth asleep. 10

Miles. So; I thought you would talk yourself asleep anon; and 'tis no marvel, for Bungay on the days, and he on the nights, have watch'd just these ten and fifty days: now this is the night, and 'tis my task, and no more. Now, [as Jesus bless me, what goes my head: it is! and a nose! you talk of nost exstum glorificare: but here's a nose that I warrant may be called nos exstum popularre for the people of the parish.
Well, I am furnished with weapons: now, [as sir, I will set me down by a post, and make it as good as a watchman to wake me, if I chance to slumber. I thought, Goodman Head, I would call you out of your memento.... Passion o' God, I have almost broke my pace! Up, Miles, to your task; take your brown-bill 1 in your hand;
here's some of your master's bogobilies abroad.

With this a great noise. The Head speaks.

The Brazen Head. Time is!

Miles. Time is! Why, Master Brazen-head, have you such a capital nose, and answer [no you with syllables, "Time is!"? Is this all my master's cunning, to spend seven years' study about "Time is!"? Well, sir, it may be we shall have some better oration of it anon. Well, I'll watch you as narrowly as ever you were [were as Halbert.

ingale with the slow-worm; I'll set a prick against my breast. Now rest there, Miles. Lord have mercy upon me, I have almost killed myself! [A great noise.] Up, Miles; list how [no they rumble.
The Brazen Head. Time was!

Miles. Well, Friar Bacon, you spent your seven-years' study well, that can make your head speak but two words at once, "Time [was]."
Yea, marry, time was when my master was a wise man, but that was before he began to make the Brazen Head. You shall lie while 2 your arm ache, an your head speak no better.
Well, I will watch, and walk up and down, [as and be a peripatetic and a philosopher of Aritotle's stamp. [A great noise.] What, a fresh noise? Take thy pistols in hand, Miles.

Here the Head speaks, and a lightning flashes forth, and a hand appears that breaks down the Head with a hammer.
The Brazen Head. Time is past!

Miles. Master, master, up! Hell's broken [as loose! Your head speaks; and there's such a thunder and lightning, that I warrant all Oxford is up in arms. Out of your bed, and take a brown-bill in your hand; the latter day is Bacon. Miles, I come. O, passing warily watch'd!

Bacon will make thee next himself in love.
When spake the head?

Miles. When spake the head? Did not you say that he should tell strange principles of [as philosophy? Why, sir, it speaks but two words at a time.

Bacon. Why, villain, hath it spoken oft?

Miles. Oft! say, marry, hath it, thrice; but in all those three times it hath uttered but [ten seven words.

Bacon. As how?

Miles. Marry, sir, the first time he said
"Time is," as if Fabius Cunctator should have pronounced a sentence; the second [ten time he said, "Time was "; and the third time, thunder and lightning, as in great choler, he did, he said, "Time is past."

Bacon. 'Tis past indeed. Ah, villain! time is past:
My life, my fame, my glory, all are past. — [as Bacon, the turrets of thy hope are ruin'd down,
Thy seven years' study lieth in the dust:
Thy Brazen Head lies broken through a slave
That watch'd, and would not when the head did will.—

What said the head first?

Miles. Even, sir, "Time is,"

Bacon. Villain, if thou hadst call'd to Bacon
then,
If thou hadst watch'd, and wak'd the sleepy
friar,
The Brazen Head had uttered aphorisms,
And England had been circled round with bras.

But proud Asmuth, ruler of the north,
And Demogorgon, master of the mates,
Grudge that a mortal man should work so much.
Hail trembled at my deep-commanding spells,
Fiends frown'd to see a man their overmatch;
Bacon might boast more than a man might boast.
But now the brave's of Bacon hath an end,
Europe's conceit of Bacon hath an end,
His seven years' practice sorteth to ill end:
And, villain, sit, with my glory hath an end.
I will appoint thee to some fatal end.
Villain, avoid! get thee from Bacon's sight!
Vagrant, go roam and range about the world,
And perish as a vagabond on earth!

Miles. Why, then, sir, you forbid me your service?
Bacon. My service, villain! with a fatal curse,
That direful plagues and mischief fall on thee.
Miles. 'Tis no matter, I am against you with the old proverb. - This one thing is cursed, the better he fares. God be with you, sir. I'll take but a book in my hand, a wide-sleeved gown on my back, and a crowned cap on my head, and see if I can just promotion.
Bacon. Some fiend or ghost haunt on thy weary steps,
Until they do transport thee quick to hell.
For Bacon shall have never merry day,
To lose the fame and honour of his head.

[Scene XII.]

Enter the Emperor, the King of Castile,
King Henry, Elinor, Prince Edward,
Lacy, and Ralph [Simnell].

Emp. Now, lovely prince, the prime of Albion's wealth,
How fare the Lady Elinor and you?
What, have you courted and found Castile fit
To answer England in equivalence?
Will 't be a match 'twixt bonny Nell and thee?

P. Edw. Should Paris enter in the courts of Greece,
And not lie fettered in fair Helen's looks?
Or Phoebus spare those piercing amoretts
That Daphne glanced at his deity?
Can Edward, then, sit by a flame and freeze?
Whose heat puts Helen and fair Daphne down?
Now, monarchs, ask the lady if we gree.

K. Hen. What, madam, hath my son found grace or no?
Elin. Seeing, my lord, his lovely counterfeit,
And hearing how his mind and shape agreed,
I come not, troop'd with all this warlike train,
Doubting of love, but so affectionate
As Edward hath in England what he won in Spain.

K. of Cast. A match, my lord; these wantons needs must love:
Men must have wives, and women will be wed.

Let's haste to day to honour up the rites.

Ralph. Sirrah Harry, shall Ned marry Nell?

K. Hen. Ay, Ralph; how then?
Ralph. Marry, Harry, follow my counsel:
Send for Friar Bacon to marry them, for he'll so conjure him and her with his necromancy, that they shall love together like pig and lamb whilst they live.

K. of Cast. But hearkest thou, Ralph, art thou content to have Elinor to thy lady?
Ralph. Ay, so she will promise me two things.

K. of Cast. What's that, Ralph?
Ralph. That she will marry cold with Ned, nor fight with me. — Sirrah Harry, I have put her down with a thing unpossible.

K. Hen. What's that, Ralph?
Ralph. Why, Harry, didst thou ever see that a woman could both hold her tongue and her hands? No: but when egg-pies grow on apple-trees, then wilt thy grey mare prove a bag-piper.

Emp. What say the Lord of Castile and the Earl of Lincoln, that they are in such earnest and secret talk?

K. of Cast. I stand, my lord, amazed at his talk,
How he discourseth of the constancy
Of one surname'd, for beauty's excellence,
The Fair Maid of merry Fressingfield.

K. Hen. 'Tis true, my lord, 'tis wondrous for to hear;
Her beauty passing Mars's paramour,
Her virgin's right as rich as Vesta's was.
Lacy and Ned hath told me miracles.

K. of Cast. What says Lord Lacy? Shall she be his wife?
Lacy. Or else Lord Lacy is unfit to live. —
May it please your highness give me leave to post
To Fressingfield, I'll fetch the bonny girl,
And prove, in true appearance at the court,
What I have vouched on often with my tongue.

K. Hen. Lacy, go to the quarry of my stable,
And take such courser as shall fit thy turn;
Hie thee to Fressingfield, and bring home the lass;
And, for her fame flies through the English coast,
If it may please the Lady Elinor,
One day shall match your excellence and her.

Elin. We Castile ladias are not very coy;
Your highness may command a greater boon:
And glad were I to grace the Lincoln Earl
With being partner of his marriage-day.

P. Edw. Gramercy, Nell, for I do love the lord,
As he that's second to myself in love.

Ralph. You love her? — Madam Nell, never believe him you, though he swears he loves you.

Elin. Why, Ralph?
Ralph. Why, his love is like unto a tapster's glass that is broken with every touch; for in he loved the fair maid of Fressingfield once out of all ho. — Nay, Ned, never wink upon me; I care not, I.

K. Hen. Ralph tells all; you shall have a good secretary of him.
Enter Friar Bacon with Friar Bungay to his cell.

Bun. What means the friar that frolick'd it of late,
To sit as melancholy in his cell
As if he had neither lost nor won to-day?
Bacon. Ah, Bungay, my Brazen Head is spoil'd,
My glory gone, my seven years' study lost!
The fame of Bacon, bruited through the world,
Shall end and perish with this deep disgrace.
Bun. Bacon hath built foundation of his fame
So surely on the wings of true report,
With acting strange and uncouth miracles,
As this cannot infringe what he deserves.
Bacon. Bungay, sit down, for by prospective skill
I find this day shall fall out ominous:
Some deadly act shall 'tide me ere I sleep;
But what and wherein little can I guess.
My mind is heavy, whatsoever shall hap.

Enter two Scholars, sons to Lambert and Serlsby.

Knock.

Bacon. Who's that knocks?
Bun. Two scholars that desire to speak with you.
Bacon. Bid them come in. —
Now, my youths, what would you have?
First Schol. Sir, we are Suffolk-men and neighbouring friends;
Our fathers in their countries lusty squires;
Their lands adjoin: in Craftefield mine doth dwell,
And his in Laxfield. We are college-mates,
Sworn brothers, as our fathers live as friends.
Bacon. To what end is all this?
Second Schol. Hearing your worship kept within your cell
A glass prospective, wherein men might see Whate'er their thoughts or hearts' desire could wish,
We come to know how that our fathers fare.
Bacon. My glass is free for every honest man.
Sit down, and you shall see ere long how
Or in what state your friendly fathers live.
Meanwhile, tell me your names.
First Schol. Mine Lambert.
Second Schol. And mine Serlsby.
Bacon. Bungay, I smell there will be a tragedy.

Enter Lambert and Serlsby with rapiers and daggers.

Lam. Serlsby, thou hast kept thine hour like a man:
Thou 'rt worthy of the title of a squire,
That durst, for proof of thy affection
And for thy mistress' favour, prize thy blood.
Thou know'st what words did pass at Fressingfield,
Such shameless braves as manhood cannot brook:
Ay, for I scorn to bear such piercing taunts,
Prepare thee, Serlsby; one of us will die.

Ser. Thou seest I single [meet] thee [in] the field,
And what I speak, I'll maintain with my sword.
Stand on thy guard, I cannot scold it out.
An if thou kill me, think I have a son,
That lives in Oxford in the Broadgate hall,
Who will revenge his father's blood with blood.
Lam. And, Serlsby, I have there a lusty boy,
That dares at weapon buckle with thy son,
And lives in Broadgate too, as well as thine.
But draw thy rapier, for we'll have a bout.
Bacon. Now, lusty youngkens, look within the glass,
And tell me if you can discern your sires.
First Schol. Serlsby, 'tis hard; thy father offers wrong.
To combat with my father in the field.
Second Schol. Lambert, thou liest, my father's is th' abuse,
And thou shalt find it, if my father harm.
Bun. How goes it, sire?
First Schol. Our fathers are in combat hard by Fressingfield.
Bacon. Sit still, my friends, and see the event.
Lam. Why stand'st thou, Serlsby? Doubt'st thou of thy life?
A venery, man! fair Margaret craves so much.
Ser. Then this for her.
First Schol. Ah, well thrust!
Second Schol. But mark the ward.

[Lambert and Serlsby] fight and kill each other.

Lam. O, I am slain!
Ser. And I, — Lord have mercy on me!
First Schol. My father slain! — Serlsby, ward that.
Second Schol. And so is mine! — Lambert,
I'll quite thee well.
The two scholars stab each other [and die].
Bun. O strange stratagem!
Bacon. See, friar, where the fathers both lie dead!
Bacon, thy magic doth effect this massacre:
This glass prospective worketh many woes;
And therefore seeing these brave lusty Britons,
These friendly youths, did perish by thine art,
End all thy magic and thine art at once.
The poniard that did end the fatal lives,
Shall break the cause efficient of their woes.

3 Friar Bacon's cell.
So fade the glass, and end with it the shows
That necromancy did infuse the crystal with.

Bun. What means learn'd Bacon thus to break his glass?
A Breaks the glass.
Bacon. I tell thee, Bungay, it repents me sore
That ever Bacon meddled in this art.

The hours I have spent in pyromantic spells,
The fearful tossing in the latest night
Of papers full of necromantic charms,
Conjuring and adorning devils and fiends,
With stole and alb and strange pentagonum;
The wrestling of the holy name of God,
As Soter, Eioim, and Adonis,
Alpha, Manoth, and Tetragrammaton,

With praying to the five-fold powers of heaven,
Are instances that Bacon must be damn'd
For using devils to counterfeit his God. —
Yet, Bacon, cheer thee, drown not in despair;
Sins have their salves, repentance can do much:

Think Mercy sits where Justice holds her seat,
And from those wounds those bloody Jews did pierce,
Which by thy magic oft did bleed afresh,
From thence for thee the dew of mercy drops,
To wash the wrath of high Jehovah's ire,
And make thee as a new-born babe from sin.
Bungay. I'll spend the remnant of my life
In pure devotion, praying to my God.
That he would save what Bacon vainly lost.

Enter MARGARET in nun's apparel, the Keeper, her father, and their Friend.

Keeper. Margaret, be not so headstrong in these vows:
O, bury not such beauty in a cell,
That England hath held famous for the hue!
Thy father's hair, like to the silver blooms
That beautify the shrubs of Africa,
Shall fall before the dated time of death,
Thus to forgo his lovely Margaret.

Mar. Ah, father, when the harmony of heaven
Soundeth the measures of a lively faith,
The vain illusions of this flattering world
Seem odious to the thoughts of Margaret.
I loved once. — Lord Lacy was my love;
And now I hate myself for that I lov'd,
And doted more on him than on my God;
For this I scourge myself with sharp repents.
But now the touch of such aspiring sins
Tells me all love is lust but love of heavens;
That beauty us'd for love is vanity:
The world contains naught but alterning baits,
Pride, flattery, and inconstant thoughts.
To show the pricks of death, I leave the world,
And vow to meditate on heavenly bliss,
To live in Framingham a holy nun,
Holy and pure in conscience and in deed;
And for to wish all maidens to learn of me
To seek heaven's joy before earth's vanity.

[SCENE XIV.]

Enter LACY, WARREN, and ERMESBY, booted and spurred.

Lacy. Come on, my wags, we're near the Keeper's lodge.
Here have I oft walk'd in the watery meads,
And chat with my lovely Margaret.
War. Sirrah Ned, is not this the Keeper?
Lacy. 'Tis the same.
Erm. The old lecher hath gotten holy muton
2 to him: a nun, my lord.
Lacy. Keeper, how far'st thou? Holla, man, what cheer?
How doth Peggy, thy daughter and my love?
Keeper. Ah, good my lord! O, woe is me for Peggy!
See where she stands clad in her nun's attire,
Ready for to be born in Framingham;
She leaves the world because she left your love.
O, good my lord, persuade her if you can!
Lacy. Why, how now, Margaret! What, a malcontent?

A nun? What holy father taught you this,
To task yourself to such a tedious life
As die a maid? 'T were injury to me,
To smooth up such beauty in a cell.

Mar. Lord Lacy, thinking of thy former mis;
How fond the prime of wanton years were spent
In love (O, fie upon that fond conceit, Whose hap and essence hangeth in the eye!)
I leave both love and love's content at once,
Betaking me to Him that is true love,
And leaving all the world for love of Him.

Lacy. Whence, Peggy, comes this metamorphosis?
What, aborn a nun, and I have from the court
Posted with courters to convey thee hence
To Windsor, where our marriage shall be kept?
Thy wedding-robes are in the tailor's hands.
Come, Peggy, leave these peremptory vows.

Mar. Did not my lord resign his interest,
And make divorce 'twixt Margaret and him?

Lacy. I was but to try sweet Peggy's constancy.
But will fair Margaret leave her love and lord?

Mar. Is not heaven's joy before earth's fading
bliss,
And life above sweeter than life in love?

Lacy. Why, then, Margaret will be aborn a nun?

1 Frostingfield.
2 Footishly.
Mr. Margaret hath made a vow which may not be revok'd.
War. We cannot stay, my lord; an if she be so strict,
Our leisure grants us not to woo afresh.
Eras. Choose you, fair damsel, yet the choice is yours,— Eber a solemn nunery or the court,
...or Lord Lacy. Which contents you best,
...be a nun or else Lord Lacy's wife?
Lacy. A good motion. — Peggy, your answer must be short.
War. The flesh is frail: my lord doth know it well,
But when he comes with his enchanting face, That's another betide, I cannot say him nay. If he be the habit of a maiden's heart, And seeing fortunes will, fair Framlingham, And all the show of holy nun's, farewell! Lacy for me, if he will be my lord. Lacy. Peggy, thy lord, thy love, thy husband.
Trust me, by truth of knighthood, that the king wants for to marry matchless Elinor,
...still bring thee richly to the court,
Not one day may both marry her and thee. —
Eras. Why not, Keeper? Art thou glad of this? War. As if the English king had given the park and deer of Fressingfield to me.
Eras. I pray thee, my Lord of Sussex, why art thou in a brown study? War. To see the nature of women; that whosoever are not so near God, yet they love to die as men's arms. Lacy. What have you fit for breakfast? We have bled.
I posted all this night to Fressingfield. War. Butter and cheese, and umbles of a deer, which poor keepers have within their lodge. Lacy. And not a bottle of wine? War. We 'll find one for my lord. Lacy. Come, Sussex, let us in: we shall have more,
Eor she speaks least, to hold her promise sure.

Exeunt

[SCENE XV.]

Enter a Devil to seek Miles.

Dev. How restless are the ghosts of hellish spirits.
When ever charmber with his magic spells
Fills us from nine-fold-trenched Phlegethon,
...and over-cour the earth in post
...the speedy wings of swiftest winds!
War. Bacon hath rais'd me from the darkest deep.
To search about the world for Miles his man,
In Miles, and to torment his lazy bones
...for careless watching of his Brazen Head.
...as where he comes. O, he is mine!

Enter Miles with a gown and a corner-cap.

Miles. A scholar, quoth ye! marry, sir, I would I had been made a bottle-maker when I was made a scholar; for I can get neither to be a deacon, reader, nor schoolmaster, no, not the clerk of a parish. Some call me dune; [...]

...another saith, my head is as full of Latin as an egg's full of oatmeal. Thus I am tormented, that the devil and Friar Bacon haunts me. —
...Good Lord, here's one of my master's devils! I'll go speak to him. — What, Master Flu- [...] tell how cheer you?

Dev. Dost thou know me?

Miles. Know you, sir! Why, are not you one of my master's devils, that were wont to come to my master, Doctor Bacon, at Brazen-nose?

Dev. Yes, marry, am I.

Miles. Good Lord, Master Plutus, I have seen you a thousand times at my master's, and yet I had never the manners to make you a drink. But, sir, I am glad to see how conformable you are to the statute. — I warrant you, he's as yeomanly a man as you shall see: mark you, masters, here's a plain honest man, without wolt or guard. But I pray you, sir, [...]

Dev. Do you come lately from hell?

Dev. Ay, marry: how then?

Miles. Faith, 'tis a place I have desired long to see. Have you not good tippling-houses there? May not a man have a lusty fire there, a pot of good ale, a pair of cards, a swinging piece of chalk, and a brown toast that will clap a white wistcoat on a cup of good drink?

Dev. All this you may have there.

Miles. You are for me, friend, and I am for [...]
...you. But I pray you, may I not have an office there?

Dev. Yes, a thousand. What wouldst thou be?

Miles. By my troth, sir, in a place where I may profit myself. I know hell is a hot place, [...]

Dev. Thou shalt.

Miles. There's nothing lets me from going with you, but that 'tis a long journey, and [...]

Dev. Thou shalt ride on my back.

Miles. Now surely here's a courteous devil, that, for to please his friend, will not stick to make a jade of himself. — But I pray you, goodman friend, let me move a question to you.

Dev. What's that?

Miles. I pray you, whether is your pace a trot or an amble?

Dev. An amble.

Miles. 'Tis well; but take heed it be not a trot; but 'tis no matter, I'll prevent it.

Dev. What dost?

Miles. Marry, friend, I put on my spurs; [m] for if you find your pace either a trot or else uneasy, I'll put you to a false gallop; I'll make you feel the benefit of my spurs.

Dev. Get up upon my back.

[Miles mounts on the Devil's back.]

Miles. O Lord, here's even a goodly mar[ [...]

...vel, when a man rides to hell on the devil's back!

Exeunt, roaring.
ROBERT GREENE

[SCENE XVI.]

Enter the Emperor with a pointless sword; next the King of Castle carrying a sword with a point; Lady carrying the globe; Prince Edward; Warden carrying a rod of gold with a dove on it; Ernesby with a crown and sceptre; the Queen; [Princess Elinor] with the Fair Maid of Fressingfield on her left hand; King Henry; Bacon; with other Lords attending.

P. Edw. Great potentates, earth’s miracles for state,
Think that Prince Edward humbles at your feet;
And, for these favours, on his martial sword
He vows perpetual homage to yourselves,
Yielding these honours unto Elinor.

K. Hen. Gramercies, lordings; old Plantagenet,
That rules and sways the Albion diadem,
With tears discovers those conceited joys,
And vows requital, if his men-at-arms,
The wealth of England, or due honours done
To Elinor, may quite his favourites.
But all this while what say you to the dames
That shine like to the crystal lamps of heaven?
Emp. If but a third were added to these two,
They did surpass those gorgeous images.

That gloried Isid with rich beauty’s wealth.

Mar. ’Tis I, my lords, who humbly on my knee
Must yield her orisons to mighty Jove,
For lifting up his handmaid to this state,
Brought from her homely cottage to the court,
And grace’d with kings, princes, and emperors;
To whom (next to the noble Lincoln Earl)
I vow obedience, and such humble love
As may a handmaid to such mighty men.

P. Elin. Thou martial man that wears the Almain crown,
And you the western potentates of might,
The Albion princess, English Edward’s wife,
Proud that the lovely star of Fressingfield,
Fair Margaret, Countess to the Lincoln Earl,
Attends on Elinor — gramercies, lord, for her,
’Tis I give thanks for Margaret to you all,
And rest for her due bounden to yourselves.

K. Hen. Seeing the marriage is solemnized,
Let’s march in triumph to the royal feast.
But why stands Friar Bacon here so mute?

Bacon. Repentant for the follies of my youth,
That magic’s secret mysteries mislead,
And joyful that this royal marriage
Portends such bliss unto this matchless realm.

What strange event shall happen to this land?
Or what shall grow from Edward and his queen?

Bacon. I find by deep presence of mine art,
Which once I temp’red in my secret cell,
That here where Brute did build his Troyo-

From forth the royal garden of a king
Shall flourish out so rich and fair a bud.

Whose brightness shall deface proud Phoebus’

And over-shadow Albion with her leaves.
Till then Mars shall be master of the field,
But then the stormy threats of wars shall cease:
The horse shall stamp as careless of the pike,
Drums shall be turn’d to timbrels of delight;
With wealthy favours plenty shall enrich
The strand that gladdened wand’ring Brute to

And peace from heaven shall harbour in these

That gorgeous beautifies this matchless flower:
Apollo’s heliotropion then shall stoop,
And Venus’ hyacinth shall vail her top;
Juno shall shut her Gilliflowers up,
And Pallas’ bay shall ba’th her brightest green;
Ceres’ carnation, in consort with those,
Shall stoop and wonder at Diana’s rose.

K. Hen. This prophecy is mystical.

But, glorious commanders of Europe’s love,
That make fair England like that wealthy isle
Circled with Gihon and [swift] Euphrates,
In royalizing Henry’s Albion
With presence of your princely mightiness,
Let’s march: the tables all are spread,
And viands, such as England’s wealth affords,
Are ready set to furnish out the boards.
You shall have wandering, mighty potentates:
It rests to furnish up this royal feast,
Only your hearts be frolic; for the time
Craves that we taste of naught but jovissance.
Thus glories England over all the west.

Exeunt omnes.

Omne tulit punctum qui miscuit utile dulci.

1 The Court.

3 This prophecy refers, as usual, to Elizabeth.

THE PROLOGUE

From juggling veins of rhyming mother wits,
And such conceits as clownage keeps in pay,
We'll lead you to the stately tent of war,
Where you shall hear the Scythian Tamburlaine
Threat'ning the world with high astounding terms,
And scourging kingdoms with his conquering sword.
View but his picture in this tragic glass,
And then applaud his fortunes as you please.

ACT I

SCENE I.

Enter] MYCETES, COSROE, MEANDER, THERIDAMAS, ORTGIUS, CENES, [MENAPHON, with others.

Myc. Brother Cosroe, I find myself aggrieved,
Yet insufficient to express the same.
For it requires a great and thund'ring speech:
Good brother, tell the cause unto my lords;
I know you have a better wit than I.

Cos. Unhappy Persia, that in former age
Hast been the seat of mighty conquerors,
That, in their prowess and their policies,
Have triumph'd over Africa and the bounds
Of Europe, where the sun dares scarce appear.
For freezing meteors and congealed cold,
Now to be rule'd and governed by a man
At whose birthday Cynthia with Saturn join'd,
And Jove, the Sun, and Mercury denied
To shed [their] influence in his fickle brain!
Now Turks and Tartars shake their swords at thee.
Meaning to mangle all thy provinces.

Myc. Brother, I see your meaning well enough;
And through your planets I perceive you think
I am not wise enough to be a king;
But I refer me to my noblemen
That know my wit, and can be witnesses.
I might command you to be slain for this:
Meander, might I not?

Meander. Not for so small a fault, my sovereign lord.

Myc. I mean it not, but yet I know I might;
Yet live, yea, live, Mycetes wills it so.
Meander, thou, my faithful counsellor,
Declare the cause of my conceived grief:
Which is, God knows, about that Tamburlaine,
That, like a fox in midst of harvest time,
Doth prey upon my flocks of passengers;
And, as I hear, doth mean to pull my plumes:
Therefore 'tis good and meet for to be wise.

Meander. Oft have I heard your majesty complain
Of Tamburlaine, that sturdy Scythian thief,
That robs your merchants of Perseopolis
Trading by land unto the Western Isles,
And in your confines with his lawless train
Daily commits incivill outrages,
Hoping (mislod by dreaming prophecies)
To reign in Asia, and with barbarous arms

1 Uncivilised.
To make himself the monarch of the East;
But ere he march in Asia, or display
His vagrant ensign in the Persian fields,
Your grace hath taken order by Theridamas,
Charg'd with a thousand horse, to apprehend
And bring him captive to your highness' throne.
Myc. Full true thou speak'st, and like thyself, your lord,
Whom I may term a Damon for thy love:
Therefore 'tis best, if so it like you all,
To send my thousand horse inecontinent
To apprehend that paltry Scythian,
How like you this, my honourable lords?
Is it not a kingly resolution?
Cos. It cannot choose, because it comes from
you.
Myc. Then hear thy charge, valiant Theridamas,
The chiefest captain of Mycostes' host,
The hope of Persia, and the very legs
Whereon our State doth lean as on a staff,
That holds us up, and foil's our neighbour foes.
Thou shalt be leader of this thousand horse,
Whose foaming gall with rage and high disdain
Have swarm'd the death of wicked Tamburlaine.
Go frowning forth; but come thou smiling home.
As did Sir Paris with the Grecian dame;
Return with speed—time passeth swift away;
Our life is frail, and we may die to-day.
Ther. Before the moon renew her borrowed light,
Doubt not, my lord and gracious sovereign,
But Tamburlaine and that Tartarian rout,
Shall either perish by our warlike hands,
Or plead for mercy at your highness' feet.
Myc. Go, stout Theridamas, thy words are swords,
And with thy looks thou conquerest all thy foes;
I long to see thee back return from thence,
That I may view these milk-white steeds of mine
All laden with the heads of killed men,
And from their knees 'en to their hoofs below.
Besmear'd with blood that makes a dainty show.
Ther. Then now, my lord, I humbly take my leave.
Myc. Theridamas, farewell! ten thousand times.
Exit Theridamas.
Ah, Menaphon, why stay'st thou thus behind,
When other men press forward for renown?
Go, Menaphon, go into Scythia;
And foot by foot follow Theridamas.
Cos. Nay, pray you let him stay; a greater task.
Fits Menaphon than warring with a thief.
Create him Proreus of all Africa,
That he may win the Babylonians' hearts
Which will revolt from Persian government,
Unless they have a wiser king than you.
Myc. "Unless they have a wiser king than you!"
These are his words; Meander, set them down.
Cos. And add this to them—that all Asia
Laments to see the folly of their king.

Myc. Well, here I swear by this my royal seat,
Cos. Ye may do well to kiss it then.
Myc. Embossed with silk as best besemeth my state,
To be reveng'd for these contemptuous words.
Oh, where is duty and allegiance now?
Fled to the Caspian or the Ocean main?
What shall I call thee? Brother? No, a foe;
Monster of nature! Shame unto thy stock!
That dar'st presume thy sovereignty for to mock!
Meander, come: I am abus'd, Meander.
Exeunt all but Cosroe and Menaphon.
Men. How now, my lord? What, mated and amaz'd
To hear the king thus threaten like himself!
Cos. Ah, Menaphon, I pass not for his threats;
The plot is laid by Persian noblemen
And captains of the Median garrisons
To crown me Emperor of Asia;
But this it is that doth excruciante
The very substance of my vexed soul—
To see our neighbours that were wont to quake
And tremble at the Persian monarch's name,
Now sit and laugh our regiment
And that which might resolve me into tears.
Men from the farthest equinoctial line
Have swarm'd in troops into the Eastern India,
Lading their ships with gold and precious stones,
And made their spoils from all our provinces.
Men. This should entreat your highness to rejoice,
Since Fortune gives you opportunity
To gain the title of a conqueror
By curing of this maimed empery,
And continent to your dominions,
How easily may you, with a mighty host,
Pass into Scythia, as did Cyrus once,
And cause them to withdraw their forces home,
Lest you subdue the pride of Christendom.

[Trumpet within.]
Cos. But, Menaphon, what means this trumpet's sound?
Men. Behold, my lord, Ortygius and the rest Bringing the crown to make you Emperor!

Enter Ortygius and Cynclus bearing a crown
with others.
Orty. Magnificent and mighty Prince Cosroe,
We, in the name of other Persian states
And commons of this mighty monarchy,
Present thee with th' imperial diadem.
Cyn. The warlike soldiers and the gentlemen,
That heretofore have fill'd Persepolis
With Afric captains taken in the field,
Whose ransom made them march in coats of gold,
With costly jewels hanging at their ears,
And shining stones upon their lofty crests,
Now living idle in the walled towns,
Wanting both pay and martial discipline,
Begin in troops to threaten civil war,

1 Forthwith.
2 Viceroy.
3 Confounded.
4 Rule.
5 Persons of state.
6 Care.
7 Dissolve.
And openly exclaim against the king:
Therefore, to stay all sudden mutinies,
We will invest your highness Emperor,
Whereas the soldiers will conceive more joy
Than did the Macedonians at the spoil
Of great Darius and his wealthy host.

Cos. Well, since I see the state of Persia droop

And languish in my brother’s government,
I willingly receive th’ imperial crown,
And vow to wear it for my country’s good,
In spite of them shall maltice my estate.

Orty. And in assurance of desir’d success,
We here do crown thee monarch of the East,
Emperor of Asia and Persia;
Great Lord of Media and Armenia;
Duke of Africa and Albania,
Mesopotamia and of Parthia,
East India and the late-discover’d isles;
Chief Lord of all the wide, vast Eurine sea,
And of the ever-raging Caspian lake.
Long live Cosroe, mighty Emperor!

Cos. And Jove may I never let longer live
Than I may seek to gratify your love, and cause the soldiers that thus honour me

To triumph over many provinces!
By whose desires of discipline in arms
I doubt not shortly but to reign sole king,
And with the army of Theridamas,
(Whither we presently will fly, my lords)
To rest secure against my brother’s force.

Orty. We know, my lord, before we brought the crown,
Intending your invention
so near
The residence of your despised brother,
The lords would not be too exasperate
To injure or suppress your worthy title;
Or, if they would, there are in readiness
Ten thousand horse to carry you from hence,
In spite of all suspected enemies.

Cos. I know it well, my lord, and thank you all.

Orty. Sound up the trumpets then, God save the King! [Trumpets sound.] Exeunt.

SCENE II.

[Enter] TAMBURLAINE leadi ng ZECRO BATES, TECHELLES, USUMASANE, AGYDAS, MAGNIES and other Lords, and Soldiers, laden with treasure.

Tamb. Come, lady, let not this appall your thoughts:
The jewels and the treasure we have ta’en
Shall be reserv’d, and you in better state,
Thän if you were arriv’d in Syria,
Even in the circle of your father’s arms.

The mighty Soldan of Egypt.

Zeno. Ah, shepherd! I pity my distressed plight,
(If, as thou seest, thou art so mean a man,) And seek not to enrich thy followers
By lawless rags from a silly maid,
Who travelling with these Median lords
To Memphis, from my uncle’s country, Media.

Where all my youth I have been governed,
Have pass’d the army of the mighty Turk,
Bearing his privy signet and his hand
To save you and me through Africa.

Mag. And since we have arriv’d in Scythia,
Besides rich presents from the puissant Cham,
We have his highness’ letters to command
Aid and assistance, if we stand in need.

Tamb. But now you see these letters and commands
Are countermanded by a greater man;
And through my provinces you must expect
Letters of conduct from my mightiness,
If you intend to keep your treasure safe.
But, since I love to live at liberty,
As easily may you get the Soldan’s crown
As any prizes out of my precinct;
For they are friends that help to wean my state
Till men and kingdoms help to strengthen it,
And must maintain my life exempt from servitude.—

But, tell me, madam, is your grace betroth’d?
Zeno. I am — my lord — for so you do impose.

Tamb. I am a lord, for so my deeds shall prove:
And yet a shepherd by my parentage.
But, lady, this fair face and heavenly hue
Must grace his bed that conquers Asia,
And means to be a terror to the world,
Measuring the limits of his empire
By east and west, as Phoebus doth his course.
Lye here ye weeds that I disdain to wear!
This complete armour and this curtile-axe
Are adjuncts more beseeeming Tamburlaine.
And, madam, whatsoever you esteem
Of this success and loss unvalued,
Both may invest you Empress of the East;
And these that seem but silly country swains
May have the leading of so great an host,
As with their weight shall make the mountains quake.

Even as when windy exhalations
Fighting for passage, tilt within the earth.

Tech. As princely lions, when they rouse themselves,
Stretching their paws, and threat’ning herds of beasts,
So in his armour looketh Tamburlaine.
Methinks I see kings kneeling at his feet,
And he with frowning brows and fiery looks,
Spurring their crowns from off their captive heads.

Usum. And making thee and me, Techelles,

kings,

That even to death will follow Tamburlaine.

Tamb. Nobly resolv’d, sweet friends and followers!

These lords, perhaps do scorn our estimates,
And think we prattle with distempered spirits;
But since they measure out deserts so mean,
That in conceit bear empires on our spears,
Affecting thoughts coequal with the clouds.

1 The curtile-axe (Fr. couteau) was not an axe, but a short curved sword, the modern cutlass.
2 Inviable.
They shall be kept our forced followers,
Till with their eyes they view us emperors.

ZENO. The gods, defenders of the innocent,
Will never prosper your intended drifts,
That thus oppress poor friendless passengers.
Therefore at least admit us liberty,
Even as thou hop'st to be eternised,
By living Asia's mighty Emperor.

AGYD. I hope my lady's treasure and our own
May serve for ransom to our liberties.
Return our mules and empty camels back,
That we may travel into Syria,
Where her betrothed lord Alcidamas,
Expecteth th' arrival of her highness' person.

MAG. And whereasoever we reposeth ourselves,
We will report but well of Tamburlaine.

TAMB. Didstains Zencorate to live with me?
Or you, my lords, to be my followers?
Think you I weigh this treasure more than you?
Not all the gold in India's wealthy arms
Shall buy the meanest soldier in my train.
Zencorate, lovelier than the love of Jove,
Brighter than is the silver Rhodope,
Fairer than whitest snow on Scythian hills, —
Thy person is more worth to Tamburlaine,
Than the possession of the Persian crown,
Which gracious stars have promis'd at my birth.
A hundred Tartars shall attend on thee,
Mounted on steeds swifter than Pegasus;
Thy garments shall be made of Median silk,
Enchas'd with precious jewels of mine own,
More rich and valuable than Zencorate's,
With milk-white harts upon an ivory sledge,
Thou shalt be drawn amidst the frozen pools;
And scale the icy mountains' lofty tops,
Which with thy beauty will be soon resolv'd.
My martial priz'd with five hundred men,
Wen on the fifty-headed Volga's waves,
Shall we all offer to Zencorate, —
And then myself to fair Zencorate.

TECH. What now! — in love?

TAMB. Techelles, women must be flatter'd:
But this she is with whom I am in love.

Enter a Soldier.

SOLD. News! news!

TAMB. How now, what's the matter?

SOLD. A thousand Persian horsemen are at hand,
Sent from the king to overcome us all.

TAMB. How now, my lords of Egypt, and Zencorate!
How! must your jewels be restor'd again,
And I that triumph'd so be overcome?

How say you, lords! — is not this your hope?

AGYD. We hope yourself will willingly restore

TAMB. Such hope, such fortune, have the thousand horse,
Soft ye, my lords, and sweet Zencorate!
You must be forced from me ere you go.

A thousand horsemen! — We five hundred foot! —
An odds too great for us to stand against.
But are they rich? And is their armour good?

Sold. Their plumed helms are wrought with beaten gold,
Their swords enamell'd, and about their necks
Hangs massy chains of gold, down to the waist,
In every part exceeding brave and rich.

TAMB. Then shall we fight courageously with them?
Or look you I should play the orator?

TECH. No, cowards and faint-hearted runaways
Look for orations when the foe is near.
Our swords shall play the orator for us.

USUM. Come! let us meet them at the mountain foot.
And with a sudden and an hot alarum,
Drive all their horses headlong down the hill.

TECH. Come, let us march!

TAMB. Stay, Techelles! I ask a parley first.

The Soldiers enter.

Open the masts, yet guard the treasure sure;
Lay out our golden wedges to the view,
That their reflections may amaze the Persian;
And look we friendly on them when they come;
But if they offer word or violence,
We'll fight five hundred men-at-arms to one,
Before we part with our possession.
And 'gainst the general we will lift our swords,
And either lance his greedy thirsting throat,
Or take him prisoner, and his chain shall serve
For manacles, till he be ransom'd home.

TECH. I hear them come; shall we encounter them?

TAMB. Keep all your standings and not stir a foot!

Myself will hide the danger of the brunt.

Enter Theridamas with others.

THER. Where is this Scythian Tamburlaine?

TAMB. Whom seek'st thou, Persian? — I am

Tamburlaine.

THER. Tamburlaine! —

A Scythian shepherd so embellish'd
With nature's pride and richest furniture!
His looks do menace Heaven and dare the gods:
His fiery eyes are fix'd upon the earth,
As if he now devis'd some stratagem,
Or meant to pierce Avernus' darksome vaults
To pull the triple-headed dog from hell.

TAMB. Noble and mild this Persian seems to be,
If outward habit judge the inward man.

TECH. His deep affections make him passionate.

TAMB. With what a majesty he bears his looks!

In thee, thou valiant man of Persia,
I see the folly of thy emperor.
Art thou but captain of a thousand horse,
That by characters graven in thy brows,
And by thy martial face and stout aspect,
Deservest to have the leading of an host!
Forsake thy king, and do but join with me,
And we will triumph over all the world.
I hold the Fates bound fast in iron chains,

1 Valuable.
2 Trunks.
And with my hand turn Fortune's wheel about;
And sooner shall the sun fall from his sphere
Than Tamburlaine be slain or overcome.
Draw forth thy sword, thou mighty man-at-arms,
Intending but to raze my charmed skin,
And Jove himself will stretch his hand from Heaven
To ward the blow and shield me safe from harm.
See how he raiseth down heaps of gold in showers,
As if he meant to give me soldiers pay!
And as a sure and grounded argument,
That I shall be the monarch of the East,
He sends this Soldan's daughter rich and brave,
To be my Queen and potently Emperess.
If thou wilt stay with me, renowned man,
And lead thy thousand horse with my conduct,
Besides thy share of this Egyptian prize,
Those thousand horse shall swet with martial spoil
Of conquered kingdoms and of cities sack'd.
Both we will walk upon the lofty cliffs,
And Christian merchants⁴ that with Russian stems
Plough up huge furrows in the Caspian sea,
Shall vail to us, as lords of all the lake.
Both we will reign as consuls of the earth,
And mighty kings shall be our senators.
Jove sometimes masked in a shepherd's weed,
And by those steps that he hath soled the Heavens,
May we become immortal like the gods.
Join with me now in this my mean estate,
(I call it mean because, being yet obscure,
The nations far remov'd admire me not,)¹
And when my name and honour shall be spread
As far as Boreas claps his brazen wings,
Or fair Boötes sends his cheerful light,
Then shalt thou be competitor² with me,
And sit with Tamburlaine in all his majesty.
Ther. Not Hermes, prolocutor to the gods,²
Could use persuasions more pathetical.
Tamb. Nor are Apollo's oracles more true,
Than thou shalt find my vaunts substantial.
Tech. We are his friends, and if the Persian king
Should offer present dukedoms to our state,³
We think it less to make exchange for that
We are assured of by our friend's success.
Usum. And kingdoms at the least we all expect,
Besides the honour in assured conquests,
Where kings shall crouch unto our conquering swords,
And hosts of soldiers stand amaz'd at us;
When with their fearful tongues they shall confess
These are the men that all the world admires.
Ther. What strong enchantments 'tis my yielding soul!
Are these resolved nobles, Sceythians?⁵
But shall I prove a traitor to my king?
Tamb. No, but the trusty friend of Tamburlaine.
Ther. Woe with thy words, and conquered with thy looks.
I yield myself, my men, and horse to thee,
To be partaker of thy good or ill.
As long as life maintainst Theridasamas.
Tamb. Theridasamas, my friend, take here my hand,
Which is as much as if I swore by Heaven
And call'd the gods to witness of my vow.
Thus shall my heart be still combin'd with thine
Until our bodies turn to elements,
And both our souls aspire celestial thrones.
Techelles and Cassane, welcome him!
Tech. Welcome, renowned Persians, to us all!
Usum. Long may Theridasamas remain with us.
Tamb. These are my friends, in whom I more rejoice
Than doth the King of Persia in his crown,
And by the love of Pylades and Orestes,
Whose statues we adore in Scythia.
Thyself and them shall never part from me
Before I crown you kings in Asia.
Make much of them, gentle Theridasamas,
And they will never leave thee till the death.
Ther. Nor thee nor them, thrice noble Tamburlaine,
Shall want my heart to be with gladness pierc'd
To do you honour and security.
Tamb. A thousand thanks, worthy Theridasamas.
And now fair madam, and my noble lords,
If you will willingly remain with me
You shall have honours as your merits be;
Or else you shall be forc'd with slavery.
Agyd. We yield unto thee, happy Tamburlaine.
Tamb. For you then, madam, I am out of doubt.
Zeno. I must be pleas'd perforce. Wretched Zenocrate!¹

ACT II

SCENE I.

[Enter] Cosroe, Menaphon, Orthogen, Censorus, with other Soldiers.

Cos. Thus far are we towards Theridasamas,
And valiant Tamburlaine, the man of fame,
The man that in the forehead of his fortune
Bears figures of renown and miracle.
But tell me, that hast seen him, Menaphon,⁴
What stature wields he, and what partakeage?
Men. Of stature tall, and straightly fashioned,
Like his desire, lift upwards and divine;
So large of limbs, his joints so strongly knit,
Such breadth of shoulders as might mainly bear
Old Atlas' burden; 'twixt his manly pitch,⁶
A pearl, more worth than all the world, is plac'd;

¹ Originally the height to which a falcon soared; hence for height in general. Here it means the shoulders.
SCENE II.

[Enter] MYCERES, MEANDER, with other Lords and Soldiers.

Myc. Come, my Meander, let us to this gear. I tell you, unless my heart is swoln with wrath On this same thievish villain, Tamburlaine, And on that false Coceo, my traitorous brother. Would it not grieve a king to be so abus'd And have a thousand horsemen ta'en away? And, which is worst, to have his diadem Sought for by such scald & knaves as love him not? I think it would; well then, by Heavens I swear. Aurora shall not peep out of her doors, But I will have Coceo by the head, And kill proud Tamburlaine with point of sword. Tell you the rest, Meander; I have said.

Meand. Then having past Armenian deserts now, And pitch'd our tents under the Georgian hills, Whose tops are covered with Tartarian thieves, That lie in ambush, waiting for a prey, What should we do but bid them battle straight, And rid the world of those detested troops? Left, if we let them linger here awhile, They gather strength by power of fresh supplies. This country swarms with vile outrageous men That live by rapine and by lawless spoil, Fit soldiers for the wicked Tamburlaine; And he that could with gifts and promises Inveigle him that led a thousand horse. And make him false his faith unto his king, Will quickly win such as are like himself. Therefore cheer up your minds; prepare to fight;

He that can take or slaughter Tamburlaine Shall rule the provinces of Albania: Who brings that traitor's head, Theridamas, Shall have a government in Media, Beside the spoil of him and all his train: But if Coceo, (as our spurs say, And as we know) remains with Tamburlaine, His highness' pleasure is that he should live, And so reclaim'd with princely lenity.

[Enter a Spy.]

A Spy. A hundred horsemen of my company Scouting abroad upon these champaign plains Have view'd the army of the Seychians, Which make reports it far exceeds the king's. Meand. Suppose they be in number infinite, Yet being void of martial discipline All running headlong after greedy spoils, And more regarding gain than victory, Like to the cruel brothers of the earth, Sprung of the teeth of dragons venemous, Their careless swords shall lance their fellows' throats, And make us triumph in their overthrow.

So Dys. early odd. read movy. Spore.
Myc. Was there such brethren, sweet Meander, say.
That sprung of teeth of dragons venomous?

_Meand._ So poesy says, my lord.

Myc. And 'tis a pretty toy to be a poet.
Well, well, Meander, thou art deeply read,
And having thee, I have a jewel sure.
Go on, my lord, and give your charge, I say;
Thy wit will make us conquerors to-day.

_Meand._ Then, noble soldiers, to entrap these thieves,
That live confounded in disordered troops,
If wealth or riches may prevail with them,
We have our camels laden all with gold,
Which you that be but common soldiers
Shall fling in every corner of the field;
And while the base-born Tartars take it up,
You, fighting more for honour than for gold,
Shall massacre those greedy-minded slaves;
And when their scattered army is subdued,
And you march on their slaughtered carcases,
Share equally the gold that bought their lives,
And live like gentlemen in Persia.

Strike up the drum and march courageously!
Fortune herself doth sit upon our crests.

_Myc._ He tells you true, my masters: so he doth.

Druas, why sound ye not, when Meander speaks?

_Exeunt [drums sounding].

SCENE III.

[Enter Cosroe, Tamburlaine, Theridamas, Techelles, Usumcasane, and Ortygius, with others.

_Cos._ Now, worthy Tamburlaine, have I reposed
In thy approved fortunes all my hope.
What think'st thou, man, shall come of our attempts?
For even as from assured oracle,
I take thy doom for satisfaction.

_Tamb._ And so mistake you not a whit, my lord;
For fates and oracles of Heaven have sworn
To royalise the deeds of Tamburlaine,
And make them blest that share in his attempts.
And doubt you not but, if you favour me,
And let my fortunes and my valour sway
To some direction in your martial deeds,
The world will strive with hosts of men-at-arms,
To swarm unto the ensign I support:
The host of Xerxes, which by fame is said to drink the mighty Parthian Araras,
Was but a handful to that we will have.
Our quivering lances, shaking in the air,
And bullets, like Jove's dreadful thunderbolts,
Enroll'd in flames and fiery smouldering mists,
Threaten the gods more than Cyclopian wars:
And with our sun-bright armour as we march,
We'll chase the stars from Heaven and dim their eyes
That stand and muse at our admired arms.

_Ther._ You see, my lord, what working words
he hath;

But when you see his actions [top 1] his speech,
Your speech will stay or so extol his worth
As I shall be commended and excus'd
For turning my poor charge to his direction.
And these his two renowned friends, my lord,
Would make one thirst and strive to be retain'd
In such a great degree of anity.

_Tech._ With duty and with anxiety we yield
Our utmost service to the fair Cosroes.

_Cos._ Which I esteem as portion of my crown, Usumcasane and Techelles both,
When she a rules that reigns at Rhammus' golden gates,
And makes a passage for all prosperous arms,
Shall make me sole emperor of Asia,
Then shall your deeds and valours be advanc'd
To rooms of honour and nobility.

_Tamb._ Then haste, Cosroes, to be king alone,
That I with these, my friends, and all my men
May triumph in our long-expected fate.
The king, your brother, is now hard at hand;
Meet with the fool, and rid your royal shoulders
Of such a burden as outweights the sands
And all the craggy rocks of Caspia.

[Enter a Messenger.]

_Mes._ My lord, we have discovered the enemy
Ready to charge you with a mighty army.

_Cos._ Come, Tamburlaine! now whet thy winged sword,
And lift thy lofty arm into the clouds,
That it may reach the King of Persia's crown,
And set it safe on my victorious head.

_Tamb._ See where it is, the keenest curtle-axe
That e'er made passage thorough Persian arms.
These are the wings shall make it fly as swift
As doth the lightning or the breath of Heaven,
And kill as sure as it swiftly flies.

_Cos._ Thy words assure me of kind success;
Go, valiant soldier, go before and charge
The fainting army of that foolish king.

_Tamb._ Usumcasane and Techelles, come!
We are enow to scare the enemy,
And more than needs to make an emperor.

_Exeunt to the battle.

SCENE IV.

MYCETES comes out alone with his crown in his hand, offering to hide it.

_Myc._ Accurs'd be he that first invented war!
They knew not, ah, they knew not, simple men,
How those were hit by pelting cannon shot,
Stand staggering like a quivering aspen leaf.
Fearing the force of Boreas' boisterous blast.
In what a lamentable case were I!
If Nature had not given me wisdom's lore!
For kings are clouts 3 that every man shoots at.
Our crown the pin 4 that thousands seek to cleave;

1 Surpass. Early ed. read stop.
2 Nemesis, who had a temple at Rhammus in Attica. (Bullen.)
3 The white mark in the target at which the archers aimed.
4 The peg in the centre which fastened the clout.
Therefore in policy I think it good
To hide it close; a godly stratagem.
And far from any man that is a fool;
So shall I not be known; or if I be,
They cannot take away my crown from me.
Here will I hide it in this simple hole.

Enter Tamburlaine.

Tamb. What, fearful coward, straggling from the camp,
When kings themselves are present in the field?
Myc. Thou liest.
Tamb. Base villain! darest thou give the lie?
Myc. Away! I am the king; go; touch me
not.
Thou break'st the law of arms, unless thou kneel
And cry me "mercy, noble king."
Tamb. Are you the wittie King of Persia?
Myc. Ay, marry am I: have you any suit to
me?
Tamb. I would entreat you speak but three wise words.
Myc. So can I when I see my time.
Tamb. Is this your crown?
Myc. Ay, didst thou ever see a fairer?
Tamb. You will not sell it, will you?
Myc. Such another word and I will have thee executed. Come, give it me!
Tamb. No; I took it prisoner.
Myc. You lie; I gave it you.
Tamb. Then 'tis mine.
Myc. No; I mean I let you keep it.
Tamb. Well; I mean you shall have it again.
Here; take it for a while: I lend it thee,
'Till I may see thee hemm'd with armed men;
Then shalt thou see me pull it from thy head:
Thou art no match for mighty Tamburlaine.

[Exit Tamburlaine.

Myc. O gods! Is this Tamburlaine the thief?
I marvel much he stole it not away.
Trumpets sound to the battle, and he runs in.

[Scene V.]

[Enter Cosroe, Tamburlaine, Theridamas, Menaphon, Meander, Ortygius, Techelles,
Usumasane, with others]

Tamb. Hold thee, Cosroe! wear two imperial crowns;
Think thee invested now as royally,
Even by the mighty hand of Tamburlaine,
as if as many kings as could encompass thee
With greatest pomp, had crown'd thee emperor.
Cos. So do I; thrice renowned man-at-arms,
And none shall keep the crown but Tamburlaine.
Thee do I make my regent of Persia,
And general lieutenant of my armies.
Meander, you, that were our brother's guide,
And chiefest counsellor in all his acts,
Since he is yielded to the stroke of war,
On your submission we with thanks excuse,
And give you equal place in our affairs.
Mead. Most happy Emperor, in humblest
terms,

I vow my service to your majesty,
With utmost virtue of my faith and duty.
Cos. Thanks, good Meander; then, Cosroe reigns,
And govern Persia in her former pomp!
Now send embassage to thy neighbour kings,
And let them know the Persian king is changed.
From one that knew not what a king should do,
To one that can command what 'longs thereto.
And now we will to fair Persepolis,
With twenty thousand expert soldiers.
The lords and captains of my brother's camp
With little slaughter take Meander's course,
And gladly yield them to my gracious rule.
Ortygius and Menaphon, my trusty friends,
Now will I gratify your former good,
And grace your calling with a greater sway.
Orty. And as we ever aimed at your behoof,
And sought your state all honour it deserv'd,
So will we with our powers and our lives
Endeavour to preserve and prosper it.
Cos. I will not thank thee, sweet Ortygius;
Better replies shall prove my purpose.
And now, Lord Tamburlaine, my brother's camp
I leave to thee and to Theridamas,
To follow me to fair Persepolis.
Then will I march to all those Indian mines,
My witless brother to the Christians lost,
And ransom them with fame and usury,
And till thou overtake me, Tamburlaine,
(Staying to order all the scattered troops,)
Farewell, lord regent and his happy friends!
I long to sit upon my brother's throne.
Mead. Your majesty shall shortly have your wish,
And ride in triumph through Persepolis.

Exeunt all but Tamburlaine, Techelles, Theridamas, and Usumasane.

Tamb. "And ride in triumph through Persepolis!"

Is it not brave to be a king, Techelles?
Usumasane and Theridamas,
Is it not passing brave to be a king,
And ride in triumph through Persepolis?"
Tech. O, my lord, 'tis sweet and full of pomp.
Usum. To be a king is half to be a god.
Tamb. A god is not so glorious as a king.
I think the pleasure they enjoy in heaven,
Cannot compare with kingly joys in earth.
To wear a crown enchain'd with pearl and gold,
Whose virtues carry with it life and death;
To ask and have, command and be obey'd;
When looks breed love, with looks to gain the prize;
Such power, attractive shines in princes' eyes!
Tamb. Why say, Theridamas, wilt thou be a
king?
Ther. Nay, though I praise it, I can live without
it.
Tamb. What says my other friends? Will you be kings?
Tech. I, if I could, with all my heart, my lord.
Tamb. Why, that's well said, Techelles; so would I,
And so would you, my masters, would you not?
TAMBURLAINE THE GREAT

He dare so doubtlessly resolve of rule,
And by profession be ambitious.

Orty. What god, or fiend, or spirit of the earth,
Or monster turned to a manly shape,
Or of what mould or mettle he be made,
What star or state 4 soever govern him,
Let us put on our most encounter minds
And in detaining such a devillish thief,
In love of honour and defence of right,
Be arm'd against the hate of such a foe,
Whether from earth, or hell, or Heaven, he grow.
Cos. Nobly resolv'd, my good Ortygius;
And since we all have suck'd one wholesome air,
And with the same proportion of elements
Resolve, I hope we are resembled,
Vowing our loves to equal death and life,
Let's cheer our soldiers to encounter him,
That grievous image of ingratitude,
That fiery thirster after sovereignty,
And burn him in the fury of that flame,
That none can quench but blood and empery.
Resolve, my lords and loving soldiers, now
To save your king and country from decay,
Then strike up, drum; and all the stars that make
The loathsome circle of my dated life,
Direct my weapon to his barbarous heart,
That thus opposeth him against the gods,
And scourns the powers that govern Persia! 66

[Exeunt.]

Enter to the battle, and after the battle enter Cos-boe, wounded, TAMBURLAINE, THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, USUMCASANE, with others.

Cos. Barbarous and bloody Tamburlaine,
Thou to deprive me of my crown and life!
Treacherous and false Theridamas,
Even at the morning of my happy state,
Scarce being seated in my royal throne,
To work my downfall and untimely end!
An uncouth pain torment's my grieved soul,
And death arrests the organ of my voice,
Who, ent'reing at the breach thy sword hath made,
Sacks every vein and arter 6 of my heart.—
Bloody and insatiate Tamburlaine!

Tamb. The thirst of reign and sweetness of a crown
That caus'd the eldest son of heavenly Ope,
To thrust his doting father from his chair,
And place himself in the empyreal Heaven,
Mov'd me to manage arms against thy state.
What better precedent than mighty Jove?
Nature that fram'd us of four elements,
Warring within our breasts for regiment,
Doth teach us all to have aspiring minds:
Our souls, whose faculties can comprehend
The wondrous architecture of the world,
And measure every wand'ring planet's course,
Still climbing after knowledge infinite,
And always moving as the restless spheres,

---

1 Ed. of 1605, speeces.  Booty.  3a Requitsa.
4 Dyce emends to fale.  5 Artery.  6 Bull.
Wills us to wear ourselves, and never rest,
Until we reach the ripest fruit of all,
That perfect bliss and sole felicity,
The sweet fruitation of an earthly crown.

Taylor. And that made me join with Tamburlaine:

For he is gross and like the massy earth,
That moves not upwards, nor by princely deeds
Doth mean to soar above the highest sort.

Taylor. And that made us the friends of Tamburlaine,

To lift our swords against the Persian king.

Cos. For as, when Jove did thust old Saturn down,
Neptune and Dis gain’d each of them a crown,
So do we hope to reign in Asia,
If Tamburlaine be plac’d in Persia.

Cos. The strangest men that ever nature made!

I know not how to take their tyrannies,
My bloodless body waxeth chill and cold,
And with my blood my life slides through my wound;

My soul begins to take her flight to hell,
And summons all my senses to depart. —

The heat and moisture, which did feed each other,
For want of nourishment to feed them both,
Is dry and cold; and now doth ghastly death,
With greedy talons grip my bleeding heart,
And like a harpy tires on my life,

Theridamas and Tamburlaine, I die:

And fearful vengeance light upon you both!

[COBROK dies. TAMBURLAINE takes the crown and puts it on.]

Tamb. Not all the curses which the Furies breathe, Shall make me leave so rich a prize as this.
Theridamas, Techelles, and the rest,
Who think you now is King of Persia?
All. Tamburlaine! Tamburlaine!

Tamb. Though Mars himself, the angry god of arms,
And all the earthly potencies conspire
To dispossess me of this diadem,
Yet will I wear it in despite of them,
As great commander of this eastern world,
If you but say that Tamburlaine shall reign.
All. Long live Tamburlaine and reign in Asia!

Tamb. So now it is more sure on my head,

Than if the gods had held a parliament,
And all pronounced me King of Persia.

[Exeunt.]

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter] BAJAZETH, the King of Fez, Morocco, and Argier, with others in great pomp.

Baj. Great Kings of Barbary and my portly bassoos.

We hear the Tartars and the eastern thieves,

Under the conduct of one Tamburlaine,
Presume a bickering with your emperor,

And thinks to rouse us from our dreadful siege
Of the famous Grecian Constantiopolis.

You know our army is invincible;
As many circumcised Turks we have,
And warlike bands of Christians reni’d,

As hath the ocean or the Terrone sea. 2

Small drop of water when the moon begins to join in one her semicircled horns.
Yet would we not be brav’d with foreign power,

Nor raise our siege before the Grecians yield,
Or breathless lie before the city walls.

K. of Fez. Renowned Emperor, and mighty general,

What, if you sent the bassoos of your guard
To charge him to remain in Asia,
Or else to threaten death and deadly arms

As from the mouth of mighty Bajazeth.

Baj. Hie thee, my basso, hast to Persia,
Tell him thy Lord, the Turkish Emperor,
Dread Lord of Afric, Europe, and Asia,
Great King and conqueror of Grecia,
The ocean, Terrone, and the Coal-black sea.

The high and highest monarch of the world,
Wills and commands (for say not I entreat),
Not once to set his foot on Africa,
Or spread his colours [forth] in Grecia,
Lest he incur the fury of my wrath.

Tell him I am content to take a truce,
Because I hear he bears a valiant mind:
But if, presuming on his silly power,
He be so mad to manage arms with me,
Then stay thou with him; say, I bid thee so:

And if, before the sun have measured Heaven
With triple circuit, thou regreat us not,
We mean to take his morning’s next arise
For messenger he will not be reclaim’d,
And mean to fetch thee in despite of him.

Bas. Most great and puissant monarch of the earth,

Your basso will accomplish your behest,
And show your pleasure to the Persian,

As fits the legate of the stately Turk.

K. of Arg. They say he is the King of Persia;

But, if he dare attempt to stir your siege,
’T were requisite he should be ten times more,
For all flesh quakes at your magnificence.

Baj. True, Argier; and tremble at my looks.

K. of Mor. The spring is hind’ted by your smothering host,

For neither rain can fall upon the earth,
Nor sun reflex his virtuous beams thereon.
The ground is mantled with such multitudes.

Baj. All this is true as holy Mahomet;
And all the trees are blasted with our breaths.

K. of Fez. What thinks your greatness best to be achiev’d

In pursuit of the city’s overthrow?

Baj. I will the captive pioners of Argier
Cut off the water that by leaden pipes
Runs to the city from the mountain Carnon.

Two thousand horse shall forage up and down,

That no relief or succour come by land:

Small drops of water when the moon begins
to join in one her semicircled horns.

Christians who have abjured their faith.

The Mediterranean.

The Black Sea.
And all the sea my galleys countermand.
Then shall our footmen lie within the trench,
And with their cannons mouth'd like Olaus' gulf,
Ratter the walls, and we will enter in;
And thus the Grecians shall be conquered.

SCENE II.

[Enter] ZENOGRATE, AGYDAS, ANIPPE, with others.

[Agyd.] Madam Zenocrine, may I presume
To know the cause of these unquiet fits,
That work such trouble to your wonted rest?
'T is more than pity such a heavenly face
Should by heart's sorrow wax so wan and pale;
When your offensive rage by Tamburlaine,
(Which of your whole displeasures should be most.)
Hath seem'd to be digested long ago.

Zeno. Although it be digested long ago,
As his exceeding favours have deserv'd,
And might content the Queen of Heaven, as well
As it hath chang'd my first conceive'd disdain,
Yet since a farther passion feeds my thoughts
With ceaseless and disconsolat'concites,
Which dyes my looks so lifeless as they are,
And might, if my extremes had full events,
Make me the ghastly counterfeit of death.

Agyd. Eternal heaven sooner be dissolv'd,
And all that pierceth Phoebus' silver eye,
Before such hap fall to Zenocrine!

Zeno. Ah, life and soul, still hover in his breast
And leave my body senseless as the earth.
Or else unite you to his life and soul,
That I may live and die with Tamburlaine!

Enter [behind] TAMBURLAINE, TECHELLES, and others.

Agyd. With Tamburlaine! Ah, fair Zenocrine,

Let not a man so vile and barbarous,
That holds you from your father in desire,
And keeps you from the honours of a queen,
(Being suppos'd his worthless concubine,)
Be honoured with your love but for necessity.
So, now the mighty Soldan hears of you,
Your highness needs not doubt but in short time
He will with Tamburlaine's destruction
Rodeem you from this deadly servitude.

Zeno. [Agydas.] leave to wound me with these words,

And speak of Tamburlaine as he deserves.
The entertainment we have had of him
Is far from villany or servitude,
And might in noble minds be counted princely.

Agyd. How can you fancy one that looks so fierce,

Only dispos'd to martial stratagems?
Who, when he shall embrace you in his arms,
Will tell how many thousand men he slew;
And when you look for amorous discourse,
Will rattle forth his facts of war and blood,
Too harsh a subject for your dainty ears.

Zeno. As looks the Sun through Nilus' flowing stream,
Or when the Morning holds him in her arms,
So looks my lordly love, fair Tamburlaine;
His talk much sweeter than the Muses' song.
They sung for honour 'gainst Pireides;
Or when Minerva did with Neptune strive:
And higher would I rear my estimate
Than Juno, sister to the highest god.
If I were match'd with mighty Tamburlaine,

Agyd. Yet be not so inconstant in your love;
But let the young Arabian live in hope
After your rescue to enjoy his choice.
You see though first the King of Persia,
Being a shepherd, seem'd to love you much,
Now in his majesty he leaves those looks,
Those words of favour, and those comfortings,
And gives no more than common courtesies.

Zeno. Thence rise the tears that so distain my cheeks,
Fearing his love through my unworthiness.

TAMBURLAINE goes to her and takes her away lovingly by the hand, looking wrathfully on Agydas, and says nothing. [Exit all but Agydas.]

Agyd. Betray'd by fortune and suspicious love,
Threat'ned with frowning wrath and jealousy,
Surpris'd with fear of hideous revenge,
I stand aghast; but most astonish'd
To see his choler shut in secret thoughts,
And wrapt in silence of his angry soul.
Upon his brows was portray'd ugly death;
And in his eyes the furies of his heart
That shone as comets, menacing revenge,
And oasts a pale complexion on his cheeks.

As when the seaman sees the Hyades
Gather an army of Cimmerian clouds,
(Auster and Aquilon with winged steeds,
All sweating, tilt about the watery Heavens,
With shivering spears enforcing thunder alapps,
And from their shields strike flames of lightning,
All fearful folds his sails and sounds the main,
Lifting his prayers to the Heavens for aid
Against the terror of the winds and waves,
So fares Agydas for the late-felt frowns.
That sent a tempest to my daunted thoughts,
And makes my soul divine her overthrow.

Re-enter TECHELLES with a naked dagger.

Tech. See you, Agydas, how the king salutes you?
He bids you prophesy what it imports. Exit.

Agyd. I prophesied before, and now I prove

The killing frowns of jealousy and love.
He needed not with words confirm my fear,
For words are vain where working tools present.
The naked action of my threat'ned end:
It says, Agydas, thou shalt surely die,
And of extremities elect the least;
More honour and less pain it may procure
To die by this resolved hand of thine,
Thou stay the torment he and Heaven have sworn.
Then haste, Agudas, and prevent the plagues
Which thy prolonged fates may draw on thee.
Go, wander, free from fear of tyrant's rage,
Removed from the torments and the hell
Wherewith he may exorcute thy soul,
And let Agudas by Agudas die,
And with this stab slumber eternally.
Stabs himself.

[Re-enter Techeilles with Usumcasane.]

Tech. Usumcasane, see, how right the man
Hath hit the meaning of my lord, the king.
Usum. Faith, and Techeilles, it was manly done;
And since he was so wise and honourable,
Let us afford him now the bearing hence,
And crave his triple-worthy burial.
Tech. Agreed, Casane; we will honour him.
[Exeunt bearing out the body.]

Scene III.

[Enter] Tamburlaine, Techeilles, Usumcasane, Theridamas, a Basso, Zenochate, [Anippe, with others.]

Tamb. Basso, by this thy lord and master knows
I mean to meet him in Bithynia:
See how he comes! Tush, Turks are full of brags,
And menace more than they can well perform.
He meet me in the field, and fetch thee hence! Alas! poor Turk! his fortune is too weak
To encounter with the strength of Tamburlaine.
View well my camp, and speak indifferently;
Do not my captains and my soldiers look
As if they meant to conquer Africa?
Bas. Your men are valiant, but their number few,
And cannot terrify his mighty host.
My lord, the great commander of the world,
Besides fifteen contributory kings,
Hath now in arms ten thousand Janissaries;
Mounted on lusty Mauritian steeds,
Brought to the war by men of Tripoli;
Two hundred thousand footmen that have serv'd
In two set battles fought in Græcia;
And for the expedition of this war,
If he think good, can from his garrisons
Withdraw as many more to follow him.
Tech. The more he brings the greater is the spoil,
For when they perish by our warlike hands,
We mean to send our footmen on their steeds,
And ride all those stately Janissars.
Tamb. But will those kings accompany your lord?
Bas. Such as his highness please; but some must stay
To rule the provinces he late subdued.
Tamb. [To his Officers.] Then fight courageously: their crowns are yours;
This hand shall set them on your conquering heads,
That made me Emperor of Asia.

Usum. Let him bring millions infinite of men,
Unpeopling Western Africa and Greece,
Yet we assure us of the victory.
Ther. Even he that in a trioe vanquish'd two kings,
More mighty than the Turkish emperor,
Shall rouse him out of Europe, and pursue
His scattered army till they yield or die.
Tamb. Well said, Theridamas; speak in that mood;
For will and shall best fitteth Tamburlaine,
Whose smiling stars give him assur'd hope
Of martial triumph ere he meet his foes.
I that am term'd the scourge and wrath of God,
The only fear and terror of the world,
Will first subdue the Turk, and then enlarge
Those Christian captives, which you keep as slaves,
Burdening their bodies with your heavy chains,
And feeding them with thin and slender fare;
That naked row about the Terrene seas,
And when they chance to breathe and rest a space,
Are punish'd with bastones so grievously,
That they lie panting on the galley's side,
And strive for life at every stroke they give.
These are the cruel pirates of Argier,
That damned train, the scum of Africa,
Inhabited with straggling ranzagaris,
That make quick havoc of the Christian blood;
But, as I live, that town shall curse the time
That Tamburlaine set foot in Africa.

[Enter Bajazeth with his Bassoos, and contributory Kings of Fez, Morocco, and Argier; Zabina and Ebeda.]

Baj. Bassoos and Janissaries of my guard,
Attend upon the person of your lord,
The greatest potentate of Africa.
Tamb. Techeilles and the rest, prepare your swords;
I mean to encounter with that Bajazeth.
Baj. Kings of Fez, Morocco, and Argier,
He calls me Bajazeth, whom you call Lord! Note the presumption of this Scythian slave!
I tell thee, villain, those that lead my horse Have to their names titles of dignity,
And dar'st thou blantly call me Bajazeth?
Tamb. And know, thou Turk, that those which lead my horse,
Shall lead thee captive thorough Africa;
And dar'st thou blantly call me Tamburlaine?
Baj. By Mahomet my kinsman's sepulchre, And by the holy Alcoran I swear,
He shall be made a chaste and lustless eunuch, And in my sores I tend my concubines;
And all his captains that thus stoutly stand, Shall draw the chariot of my emperess, Whom I have brought to see their overthrow.
Tamb. By this my sword, that conquer'd Persia, Thy fall shall make me famous through the world.
I will not tell thee how I 'll handle thee, But every common soldier of my camp Shall smile to see thy miserable state.

1 Sticks. Ital. bastones. 2 Seraglio.
K. of Fez. What means the mighty Turkish emperor.
To talk with one so base as Tamburlaine?
K. of Mar. Ye Moors and valiant men of Barbary,
How can ye suffer these indignities?
K. of Arg. Leave words, and let them feel your lances' points
Which glided through the bowels of the Greeks.
Baj. Well said, my stout contributory kings;
Your threefold army and my hugy host
Shall swallow up these base-born Persians.
Teck. Puisant, renowned, and mighty Tamburlaine.
Why stay we thus prolonging all their lives?
Then I long to see those crowns won by our swords,
That we may reign as kings of Africa.
Usum. What coward would not fight for such a prize?
Tamb. Fight all courageous, and be you kings;
I speak it, and my words are oracles.
Baj. Zabina, mother of three braver boys
Than Hercules, that in his infancy
Did push the jaws of serpents venomous;
Whose hands are made to gripe a warlike lance,
Their shoulders broad for complete armour fit,
Their limbs more large, and of a bigger size,
Than all the brats ye sprung from Typhon's loins;
Who, when they come unto their father's age,
Will bear turrets with their manly fists;—
Sit here upon this royal chair of state,
And on thy head wear my imperial crown,
Until I bring this sturdy Tamburlaine,
And all his captains bound in captive chains.
Zab. Such good success happen to Bajazeth!
Tamb. Zencrater, the loveliest maid alive,
Fairer than rocks of pearl and precious stone,
The only paragon of Tamburlaine,
Whose eyes are brighter than the lamps of Heaven,
And speech more pleasant than sweet harmony!
That with thy looks cannot clear the darkened sky,
And calm the rage of thund'ring Jupiter,
Sit down by her, adorned with my crown.
As if thou wert the Empress of the world.
Sir not, Zencrater, until thou see
Me march victoriously with all my men,
Triumphing over him and these his kings,
Which I will bring as vassals to thy feet;
Till then take thou my crown, vaunt of my worth,
And manage words with her, as we will arms.
Zeno. And may my love, the King of Persia,
Return with victory and free from wound!
Baj. Now shalt thou feel the force of Turkish arms.
Which lately made all Europe quake for fear.
I have of Turks, Arabians, Moors, and Jews,
Enough to cover all Bithynia.
Let thousands die; their slaughtered carcasses
Shall serve for walls and bulwarks to the rest
And as the heads of Hydra, so my power,
Subdued, shall stand as mighty as before.

If they should yield their necks unto the sword,
Thy soldiers' arms could not endure to strike
So many blows as I have heads for thee.
Thou know'st not, foolish, hardy Tamburlaine,
What 'tis to meet me in the open field,
That leave no ground for thee to march upon.
Tamb. Our conquering swords shall marshal us the way
We use to march upon the slaughtered foe.
Trampling their bowels with our horses' hoofs;
Brave horses bred on the white Tartarian hills;
My camp is like to Julius Caesar's host,
That never fought but had the victory;
Nor in Pharsalis was there such hot war
As these, my followers, willingly would have.
Legions of spirits fleeing in the air
Direct our bullets and our weapons' points,
And make your strokes to wound the senseless lure,
And when she sees our bloody colours spread,
Then Victory begins to take her flight,
Resting herself upon my milk-white tent.
But come, my lords, to weapons let us fall;
The field is ours, the Turk, his wife, and all.
Exit with his followers.
Baj. Come, kings and basseos, let us glut our swords,
That thirst to drink the feeble Persians' blood.
Zab. Base conombine, must thou be plac'd by me,
That am the empress of the mighty Turk?
Zeno. Disdainful Turkess and unrevenerate boss!
Call'st thou me conombine, that am betroth'd
Unto the great and mighty Tamburlaine?
Zab. To Tamburlaine, the great Tartarian thief!
Zeno. Thou wilt repent these lavish words of thine,
When thy great baso-master and thyself
Must plead for mercy at his kingly feet,
And sue to me to be your advocate.
Zab. And sue to thee! I tell thee, shameless girl,
Thou shalt be laundress to my waiting maid!—
How lik'st thou her, Ebed? Will she serve?
Ebed. Madam, she thinks, perhaps, she is too fine.
But I shall turn her into other weeds,
And make her dainty fingers fall to work.
Zeno. Hear'st thou, Anippe, how thy drudge doth talk?
And how my slave, her mistress, maenachet?
Both for their sauciness shall be employed
To dress the common soldiers' meat and drink,
For we will scorn they should come near ourselves.
Anip. Yet sometimes let your highness send
To do the work my chambermaid disdain'd.
They sound the battle within.

Zeno. Ye gods and powers that govern Persia,
And made my lordly love her worthy king.
Now strengthen him against the Turkish Bajazeth,
And let his foes, like flocks of fearful roes
Pursu’d by hunters, fly his angry looks,
That I may see him issue conqueror!
Zab. Now, Mahomet, solicit God himself,
And make him rain down murdering shot from Heaven
To dash the Scythians’ brains, and strike them dead,
That dare to manage arms with him
That offered jewels to thy sacred shrine,
When first he war’d against the Christians!
[They sound] to the battle again.
Zeno. By this the Turks lie with’ring in their blood,
And Tamburlaine is Lord of Africa.
Zab. Thou art deceiv’d. — I heard the trumpet’s sound
As when my emperor overthrew the Greeks,
And led them captive into Africa.
Straight will I use thee as thy pride deserves:
Prepare thyself to live and die my slave.
Zeno. If Mahomet should come from Heaven and swear
My royal lord is slain or conquered,
Yet should he not persuade me otherwise.
But that he lives and will be conqueror.
Bajazeth flies and [Tamburlaine] pursues him. The battle short, and they enter. Bajazeth is overcome.
Tamb. Now, king of bassoees, who is conqueror?
Baj. Thou, by the fortune of this damned [foil].
Tamb. Where are your stout contributory kings?
Re-enter Techelles, Theridamas, and Usuncasane.

Tech. We have their crowns, their bodies strow the field.
Tamb. Each man a crown! Why, kingly fought, i’ faith.
Deliver them into my treasury.
Zeno. Now let me offer to my gracious lord
His royal crown again so highly won.
Tamb. Nay, take the Turkish crown from her, Zencrate,
And crown me Emperor of Africa.
Zab. No, Tamburlaine: though now thou gat the best,
Thou shall not yet be lord of Africa.
Ther. Give her the crown, Turkess: you were best.
He takes it from her, and gives it to Zencrate.
Zab. Injurious villains! thieves! rungates!
How dare you thus abuse my majesty?
Ther. Here, madam, you are Empress; she is none.
Tamb. Not now, Theridamas; her time is past.

The pillars that have bolstered up those terms,
Are fallen in clusters at my conquering feet.
Zab. Though he be prisoner, he may be ransomed.

Tamb. Not all the world shall ransom Bajazeth.
Baj. Ah, fair Zabina! I have lost the field;
And never had the Turkish emperor
So great a foil by any foreign foe.
Now will the Christian miscreants be glad,
Ringing with joy their superstitious bells,
And making bonfires for my overthrow.
But, are I die, those foul idolaters
Shall make me bonfires with their filthy bones.
For though the glory of this day be lost,
Africa and Greece have garrisons enough
To make me sovereign of the earth again.
Tamb. Those walled garrisons will I subdue,
And write myself great lord of Africa.
So from the East unto the furthest West
Shall Tamburlaine extend his puissant arm.
The galleys and those pillaging brigandines,
That yearly sail to the Venetian gulf,
And hover in the Straits for Christians’ wreck,
Shall lie at anchor in the isle Asant.
Until the Persian fleet and men of war,
Sailing along the orient sea,
Have fetch’d about the Indian continent,
Even from Persepolis to Mexico.
And thense unto the straits of JubaIter;
Where they shall meet and join their forces in one
Keeping in awe the bay of Portingale,
And all the ocean by the British shore;
And by this means I’ll win the world at last.
Baj. Yet set a ransom on me, Tamburlaine.
Tamb. What, think’st thou Tamburlaine esteems thy gold?
I’ll make the kings of India, ere I die,
Offer their mines to sue for peace to me,
And dig for treasure to appease my wrath.
Come, bind them both, and one lead in the Turk;
The Turkess let my love’s maid lead away.

Thy bind them.
Baj. Ah, villains! — dare you touch my sacred arms?
O Mahomet! — O sleepy Mahomet!
Zab. O cursed Mahomet, that makes us thus
The slaves to Scythians rude and barbarous!
Tamb. Come, bring them in; and for this happy conquest,
Triumph and solemnise a martial feast. Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I.

[Enter the Soldan of Egypt, with three or four Lords, Capolin, and a messenger.]

Sold. Awake, ye men of Memphis! Hear the clang
Of Scythian trumpets! Hear the basilisks

1 Defeat. Early ed. read souls.
2 Plundering.
3 Zante. (Bullen.)
4 Biscay.
5 Pieces of ordnance, so called from their fancied resemblance to the fabulous serpent of that name. (Cunningham.)
That, roaring, shake Damascus’ turrets down!
The rogue of Volga holds Zenocrate,
The Soldan’s daughter, for his concubine,
And with a troop of thieves and vagronds,
Hath spread his colours to our high disgrace,
While you, faint-hearted, base Egyptians,
Lie slumbering on the flowery banks of Nile,
As crocodiles that unaffrighted rest,
While thundering cannons rattle on their skins.
Mess. Nay, mighty Soldan, did your greatness see
The frowning looks of fiery Tamburlaine,
That with his terror and impious eyes
Commands the hearts of his associates,
It might amaze your royal majesty.
Sold. Villain, I tell thee, were that Tamburlaine
As monstrous as Gorgon, prince of hell,
The Soldan would not start a foot from him.
But speak, what power hath he?
Mess. Mighty lord.
Three hundred thousand men in armour clad,
Upon their prancing steeds disdainfully
With wanton paces trampling on the ground:
Five hundred thousand footmen threat'ning shot.
Shaking their swords, their spears, and iron bills,
Environing their standard round, that stood
As bristle-pointed as a thorny wood:
Their warlike engines and munition
Exceed the forces of their martial men.
Sold. Nay, could their numbers countervail
the stars,
Or ever-drizzling drops of April showers,
Or withered leaves that Autumn shakest down.
Yet would the Soldan by his conquering power
So scatter and consume them in his rage,
That not a man should live to rue their fall.
Capo. So might your highness, had you time to sort
Your fighting men, and raise your royal host;
But Tamburlaine, by expedition,
Advantage takes of your unreadiness.
Sold. Let him take all th’ advantages he can.
Were all the world conspir’d to fight for him,
Nay, were he devil, as he is no man,
Yet in revenge of fair Zenocrate,
Whom he detaineth in despite of us,
This arm should send him down to Erebus.
To shroud his shame in darkness of the night.
Mess. Pleasest your mightiness to understand,
His resolution far exceedeth all.
The first day when he pitcheth down his tents,
White is their hue, and on his silver crest,
A snowy feather spangled white he bears,
To signify the mildness of his mind.
That, satiate with spoil, refuseth blood.
But when Aurora mounts the second time
As red as scarlet is his furniture;
Then must his kindled wrath be quench’d with blood,
Not sparing any that can manage arms;
But if these threats move not submission,
Black are his colours, black pavilion;

His spear, his shield, his horse, his armour, plumes,
And jetty feathers menace death and hell!
Without respect of sex, degree, or age,
He razeth all his foes with fire and sword.
Sold. Merciless villain! Peasant, ignorant
Of lawful arms or martial discipline!
Pillage and murder are his usual trades;
The slave usurps the glorious name of war.
See, Capoline, the fair Arabian king,
That hath been disappointed by this slave
Of my fair daughter and his princely love,
May have fresh warning to go war with us,
And be reveng’d for her disapparagement.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

[Enter] Tamburlaine, Techelles, Theridamas, Usuncasane, Zenocrate, Anife, two Moors drawing Bajazeth in his cage,
and his wife [Zabina] following him.

Tamb. Bring out my footstool.
They take him out of the cage.

Baj. Ye holy priests of heavenly Mahomet,
That, sacrificing, slice and cut your flesh,
Staining his altars with your purple blood;
Make Heaven to frown and every fixed star
To suck up poison from the moonsial fans,
And pour it in this glorious tyrant’s throat!

Tamb. The chiefest God, first mover of that sphere,
Encha’d with thousands ever-shining lamps,
Will sooner burn the glorious frame of Heaven,
Than it should so conspire my otherthrow.
But, villain! thou that wisiest this to me,
Fall prostrate on the low disdainful earth,
And be the footstool of great Tamburlaine,
That I may rise into my royal throne.

Baj. First shalt thou rip my bowels with thy sword,
And sacrifice my heart to death and hell,
Before I yield to such a slavery.

Tamb. Base villain, vassal, slave to Tamburlaine!
Unworthy to embrace or touch the ground.
That bears the honour of my royal weight:
Stoop, villain, stoop!—Stoop! for so he bids
That may command thee piecemeal to be torn,
Or scattered like the lofty cedar trees
Struck with the voice of thundering Jupiter.

Baj. Then, as I look down to the damned fiends,
Fiends look on me! and thou, dread god of hell,
With ebon sceptre strike this hateful earth,
And make it swallow both of us at once!

[Tamburlaine] gets up upon him to his chair.

Tamb. Now clear the triple region of the air,
And let the majesty of Heaven behold
Their scourges and terror tread on emperors.
Smile stars, that reign’d at my nativity,
And dim the brightness of their neighbour lamps!”

1 Trisyllabic here. 2 Demogorgon. 3 Vain-glorious, boastful.
Disdain to borrow light of Cynthia!
For I, the chiefest lamp of all the earth,
First rising in the East with mild aspect,
But fixed now in the meridian line,
Will send up fire to your turning spheres,
And cause the sun to borrow light of you.
My sword struck fire from his cost of steel,
Even in Bithynia, when I took this Turk;
As when a fiery camelion
Wraipt in the bowels of a freezing cloud
Fighting for passage, make[s] the whirlink crack,
And casts a daff of lightning to the earth:
But ere I march to wealthye Persia,
Or leave Damascus and th’ Egyptian fields,
As was the fame of Clymene’s brain-sick son,
That almost brest the axile-tree of Heaven,
So shall our swords, our lances, and our shot
Fill all the air with fiery meteors;
Then, when the sky shall wax as red as blood,
It shall be said I made it red myself,
To make me think of nought but blood and war.
Zab. Unworthy king, that by thy cruelty
Unlawfully usurpt the Persian seat,
Dar’st thou, that never saw an emperor
Before thou met my husband in the field,
Being thy captive, thus abuse his state,
Keeping his kingdom in a cage.
That roofs of gold and sun-bright palaces
Should have prepar’d to entertain his grace?
And treading him beneath thy loathsom feet,
Whose feet the kings of Africa have kiss’d.
Tech. You must devise some torment worse,
my lord,
To make these captives rein their lavish tongues.
Tamb. Zanocrate, look better to your slave.
Zeno. She is my handmaid’s slave, and she shall look
That these abuses flow not from her tongue:
Chide her, Anippe.
Anip. Let these be warnings for you then,
your slave,
How you abuse the person of the king:
Or else I swear to have you whipt, stark-nak’d.
Baj. Great Tamburlaine, great in my over-thrown.
Ambitious pride shall make thee fall as low,
For treading on the back of Bajazeth,
That should be horsed on four mighty kings.
Tamb. Thy names and titles and thy dignities
Are fled from Bajazeth and remain with me.
That will maintain ‘t against a world of kings.
Put him in again.
[They put him back into the cage.]
Baj. Is this a place for mighty Bajazeth?
Confusion light on him that helps thee thus!
Tamb. There, whiles he lives, shall Bajazeth be kept;
And, where I go, be thus in triumph drawn;
And thou, his wife, shalt feed him with the scraps
My seruiors shall bring thee from my board;
For he that gives him other food than this Shall lead him, and starve to death himself;
This is my mind and I will have it so.
Not all the kings and emperors of the earth,
If they would lay their crowns before my feet,
Shall ransom him or take him from his cage.
The ages that shall talk of Tamburlaine,
Even from this day to Plato’s wondrous year,
Shall talk how I have handled Bajazeth;
These Moors, that drew him from Bithynia
To fair Damascus, where we now remain,
Shall lead him with us where so’er we go.
Teshables, and loving followers,
Now may we see Damascus’ lofty towers,
Like to the shadows of Pyramides,
That with their beauties gra’d the Memphian fields.
The golden statue of their feathered bird
That spreads her wings upon the city walls
Shall not defend it from our battering shot.
The townsman mask in silk and cloth of gold,
And every house is as a treasury;
The men, the treasure, and the town is ours.
Ther. Your tents of white now pitch’d before the gates,
And gentle flags of amity display’d
I doubt not but the governor will yield,
Offering Damascus to your majesty.
Tamb. So shall he have his life and all the rest.
But if he stay until the bloody flag
Be once advanc’d on my vermilion tent,
He dies, and those that kept us out so long,
And when they see me march in black array,
With mournful streamers hanging down their heads,
Were in that city all the world contain’d,
Not one should scape, but perish by our swords.
Zeno. Yet would you have some pity for my sake,
Because it is my country’s, and my father’s.
Tamb. Not for the world, Zanocrate, if I’ve sworn.
Come; bring in the Turk.

Exeunt.

SCENE III.

[Enter the] Soldan, [the King of] Arabia, Capuln, with streaming colours and Soldiers.

Sold. Methinks we march as Meleager did,
Environed with brave Argolian knights,
To chase the savage Calydonian boar.
Or Cephalus with lusty Theban youths
Against the wolf that angry Themis sent
To waste and spoil the sweet Aonian fields,
A monster of five hundred thousand heads,
Compact of rapine, piracy, and spoil.
The scum of men, the hate and scourge of God,
Raves in Egypt and annoyeth us.
My lord, it is the bloody Tamburlaine,
A sturdy felon and a base-bred thief,
By murder raised to the Persian crown,
That dares control us in our territories.
To tame the pride of this presumptuous beast,
Join your Arabians with the Soldan’s power,
Let us unite our royal bands in one,
And hasten to remove Damascus’ siege.
It is a blemish to the majesty
And high estate of mighty emperors.

1 Early odd. read stature.
TAMBURLAINE THE GREAT

K. of Arab. Renowned Soldan, have you lately heard
The overthrow of mighty Bajazeth?

Sold. I have, and sorrow for his sad success; But, noble lord of great Arabia, Beseemed that the Soldan is no more dismay'd with tidings of his fall Than in the haven when the pilot stands, And views a stranger's ship rent in the winds, And shivered against a ragged rock; Yet in compassion of his wretched state, A sacred vow to Heaven and him I make, Confirming it with Ibis' holy name, That Tamburlaine shall rue the day, the hour, Wherein he wrought such ignominious wrong Unto the hallowed person of a prince, Or kept the fair Zenocrate so long As comtembling, I fear, to feed his lust.

K. of Arab. Let grief and fury hasten on revenge; Let Tamburlaine for his offences feel Such plagues as Heaven and we can pour on him. I long to break my spear upon his crest, And prove the weight of his victorious arm; For Fame, I fear, hath been too prodigal In sounding through the world his partial praise, Hast thou survey'd our powers?

Capol. Great Emperors of Egypt and Arabia, The number of your hosts united is A hundred and fifty thousand horse; Two hundred thousand foot, brave men-at-arms, Courageous, and full of hardiness, As frolic as the hunters in the chase Of savage beasts amid the desert woods.

K. of Arab. My mind presageth fortunate success;
And, Tamburlaine, my spirit doth foresee The utter ruin of thy men and thee.

Sold. Then rear your standards; let your sounding drums Direct our soldiers to Damascus' walls, Now, Tamburlaine, the mighty Soldan comes, And leads with him the great Arabian king, To dim thy baseness and obscurity, Famous for nothing but for theft and spoil; To raze and scatter thy ignoble crew Of Scythians and slavesh Persians.

SCENE IV.

The Banquet; and in it cometh TAMBLURLAINE, all in scarlet. [ZENOCRATE, THEMIDAMAS, Techelles, Êbusucasane, the Turk [Bajazeth in his cage, ZASINA,] with others.

Tamb. Now hang our bloody colours by Damascus,
Reflecting hues of blood upon their heads, While they walk quivering on their city walls, Half dead for fear they feel my wrath:

Then let us freely banquet and carouse Full bowls of wine unto the god of war That means to fill your helmets full of gold, And make Damascus spoils as rich to you, As was to Jason Coelos' golden fleece. — And now, Bajazeth, hast thou any stomach?
Baj. Ay, such a stomach, cruel Tamburlaine, as I could willingly feed upon thy blood-red heart.
Tamb. Nay thinne own is easier to come by; pluck out that, and 'tis will serve thee and thy [as wife. Well, Zenocrate, Techelles, and the rest, fall to your victuals.

Baj. Fall to, and never may your meat digest! Ye Furies, that can make invisible, Dive to the bottom of Avernus' pool, And in your hands bring hellish poison up And squeeze it in the cup of Tamburlaine! Or, winged snakes of Lerna, cast your stings, And leave your venom in this tyrant's dish!
Zas. And may this banquet prove as ominous As Progne's to th' adulterous Thracian king, That fed upon the substance of his child.

Zeno. My lord, how can you [tamely] 1 suffer these Outrageous curses by these slaves of yours?
Tamb. To let them see, divine Zenocrate, I plory in the curses of my foes, Having the power from the imperial Heaven To turn them all upon their proper heads.
Tech. I pray you give them leave, madam; this speech is a goodly refreshing to them.
Ther. But if his highness would let them be fed, it would do them more good.
Tamb. Sirrah, why fall you not to? Are you so daintily brought up, you cannot eat your own flesh?

Baj. First, legions of devils shall tear thee in pieces.
Usur. Villain, know'st thou to whom thou speakest?
Tamb. O, let him alone. Here; eat, sir; [slices take it from my sword's point, or I'll thrust it to thy heart. Bajazeth takes it and stamps upon it. Ther. He stamps it under his feet, my lord.
Tamb. Take it up, villain, and eat it; or I will make thee slice the brawns of thy arms 2 into carbonadoes 3 and eat them.
Usur. Nay, 't were better he kill'd his wife, and then she shall be sure not to be starv'd, and he be provided for a month's victual beforehand.
Tamb. Here is my dagger; despatch her while she is fat; for if she live but a while longer, she will fall into a consumption with fretting, and then she will not be worth the eating.
Ther. Dust thou think that Mahomet will [suffer this?
Tech. 'Tis like he will when he cannot let it.
Tamb. Go to; fall to your meat. — What, not a bit! Belike he hath not been watered to- day; give him some drink.
They give Bajazeth water to drink, and he flings it on the ground.

1 Dyce conj. 2 Slices for broiling. 3 Hinder.
Tamb. Fast, and welcome, sir; while 1 hunger make you eat. How now, Zenocrates, dost not the Turk and his wife make a goodly show at a banquet?

Zeno. Yes, my lord.

Ther. Methinks, 'tis a great deal better than a consort 2 of music.

Tamb. Yet music would do well to cheer up Zenocrates. Pray thee tell why thou art so sad? If thou wilt have a song, the Turk shall strain his voice. But why is it?

Zeno. My lord, to see my father's town besieged,
The country wasted where myself was born,
How can it but afflict my very soul?
If any love remain in you, my lord,
Or if my love unto your majesty
May merit favour at your highness' hands,
Then raise your siege from fair Damascus' walls,
And with my father take a friendly truce.

Tamb. Zenocrates, were Egypt Jove's own land,
Yet would I with my sword make Jove to stoop.
I will confute those blind geographers
That make a triple region in the world,
Excluding regions which I mean to trace,
And with this pen 3 reduce them to a map,
Calling the provinces, cities, and towns,
After my name and thine, Zenocrates.
Here at Damascus will I make the point
That shall begin the perpendicular;
And would'st thou have me buy thy father's love
With such a loss? — Tell me, Zenocrates.

Zeno. Honour still wait on happy Tamburlaine!
Yet give me leave to plead for him, my lord.

Tamb. Content thyself: his person shall be safe
And all the friends of fair Zenocrates,
If with their lives they will be pleased 4 to yield,
Or may be forced to make me Emperor;
For Egypt and Arabia must be mine. —
Feed, you slave! Thou may'st think thyself happy to be fed from my trencher.

Baj. My empty stomach, full of idle heat,
Draws bloody humour from my feeble parts,
Preserving life by hastening cruel death.
My veins are pale, my sinews hard and dry,
My joints benumb'd: unless I eat, I die.

Zab. Eat, Bajazeth. Let us live in spite of them, looking 4 some happy power will pity and enlarge us.

Tamb. Here, Turk; wilt thou have a clean 5 trencher?

Baj. Ay, tyrant, and more meat.

Tamb. Soft, sir; you must be dieted; too much eating will make you surfeit.

Ther. So it would, my lord, specially having so small a walk and so little exercise.

Enter a second course of crowns.

Tamb. Theridamas, Techeilles, and Casane, here are the cates you desire to finger, are they not?

Ther. Ay, my lord; but none save kings must feed with these.

Tecb. 'Tis enough for us to see them, and for Tamburlaine only to enjoy them.

Tamb. Well; here is now to the Soldan of Egypt, the King of Arabia, and the Governor 16 of Damascus. Now take these three crowns, and pledge me, my contributory kings. I crown you here, Theridamas, King of Argier; Techeilles, King of Fez; and Usumcasane, King of Morocco. How say you to this, Turk? These are 3 not your contributory kings.

Baj. Nor shall they long be thine, I warrant them.

Tamb. Kings of Argier, Morocco, and of Fez,
You that have march'd with happy Tamburlaine
As far as from the frozen [plage?] of Heaven 16 Unto the watery morning's ruddy bower,
And thence by land unto the torrid zone,
Deserve these titles I endow you with
By [valour?] and by magnanimity.
Your births shall be no blemish to your fame,
For virtue is the fount whence honour springs,
And they are worthy she investeth kings.

Ther. And since your highness hath so well vouchsafed,
If we deserve them not with higher deeds
Than erst our states and actions have retain'd 16
Take them away again and make us slaves.

Tamb. Well said, Theridamas; when holy fates
Shall 'establish me in strong Egyptia,
We mean to travel to th' antartic pole,
Conquering the people underneath our feet.

And be renown'd as never emperors were.
Zenocrates, I will not crown thee yet,
Until with greater honours I be grac'd. 5

[Exeunt.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.

[Enter the Governor of Damascus, with three or four Citizens, and four Virgins, with branches of laurel in their hands.

Gov. Still doth this man, or rather god of war,
Batter our walls and beat our turrets down;
And to resist with longer stubborness
Or hope of rescue from the Soldan's power,
Were but to bring our wilful overthrow,
And make us desperate of our threatened lives.
We see his tents have now been altered
With terrors to the last and cruellest hue.
His coal-black colours everywhere advance'd
Threaten our city with a general spoil;
And if we should with common rites of arms
Offer our safeties to his clemency,
I fear the custom, proper to his sword,
Which he observes as parcel of his fame,
Intending so to terrify the world,

By any innovation or remorse
Will never be dispensed with till our deaths.
Therefore, for these our harmless virgins' sakes,
Whose breasts and whose lives rely on him,
Let us have hope that their unspotted prayers, their Blubbered cheeks, and hearty, humble moans,
Will melt his fury into some remorse,
And use us like a loving conqueror.

1 Virg. If humble suits or impreca tions,
(Uppered with tears of wretchedness and blood)
Shed from the heads and hearts of all our sex,
Some made your wives and some your children,
Might have entreated your obdurate breasts
To entertain some care of our securities
While only danger beat upon our walls.

These more than dangerous warrants of our death
Had never been erected as they be,
Nor you depend on such weak helps as we.

Gov. Well, lovely virgins, think our country's care,
Our love of honour, loath to be in thrall'd
To foreign powers and rough imperious yokes,
Would not with too much cowardice or fear,
(Submit yourselves and us to servitude.

Therefore, that your safeties and our own,
Your honours, liberties, and lives were weigh'd
In equal care and balance with our own,
Endure as we the malice of our stars,
The wrath of Tamburlaine, and power of war;
Or be the means the overpowering heavens
Have kept to qualify these hot extremes,
And bring us pardon in your cheerful looks.

2 Virg. Then here before the majesty of Heaven
And holy patrons of Egypt, with
With knees and hearts submissive we entreat
Grace to our words and pity to our looks
That this device may prove propitious,
And through the eyes and ears of Tamburlaine
Convey events of mercy to his heart;
Grant that these signs of victory we yield
May bind the temples of his conquering head,
To hide the folded furrows of his brows,
And shadow his displeased countenance
With happy looks of ruth and lenity.
Leave us, my lord, and loving countrymen;

What simple virgins may persuade, we will.

Gov. Farewell, sweet virgins, on whose safe return Depends our city, liberty, and lives.

SCENE II.

[Enter] TAM BURLAINE, all in black and very melancholy, TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANE, with others.

Tamb. What, are the turtles fray'd out of their nests?
Alas, poor fools! must you be first shall feel
The sworn destruction of Damascus?
They knew my custom; could they not as well
Have sent ye out when first my milk-white flags,
Nor change my martial observations
For all the wealth of Gihon’s golden waves,
Or for the love of Venus, would she leave
The angry god of arms and lie with me.
They have refus’d the offer of their lives,
And know my customs are as peremptory
As wrathful planets, death, or destiny.

Re-enter Techeles.

What, have your horsemen shewn the virgins
Deaf to your passion?
Teck. They have, my lord, and on Damascus’ walls
Have hoisted up their slaughtered carcasses.

Tomb. A sight as baneful to their souls, I think,
As are Thessalian drugs or mithridate: 1
But go, my lords, put the rest to the sword.

Enter Attendants [all except Tamburlaine].

Ah, fair Zenocrate! divine Zenocrate!
Fair is too faint an epithet for thee;
That is thy passion for thy country’s love,
And fear to see thy kingly father’s harm.
With hair dishevell’d wip’s thy watery cheeks;
And, like to Flora in her morning’s pride
Shaking her silver tresses in the air,
Rain’st on the earth resolved 2 pearl in showers,
And sprinklest sapphires on thy shining face,
Where Beauty, mother to the Muses, sits
And comments volumes with her ivory pen,
Taking instructions from thy flowing eyes;
Eyes when that Egypt steps to Heaven,
In silence of thy solemn evening’s walk,
Making the mantle of the richest night.
The moon, the planets, and the meteors, light;
There angels in their crystal armours fight
A doubtful battle with my tempted thoughts
For Egypt’s freedom, and the Soldan’s life; 3
His life that so consumes Zenocrate,
Whose sorrows lay more siege unto my soul,
Than all my army to Damascus’ walls:
And neither Persia’s sovereign, nor the Turk
Troubled my senses with conceit of foil
So much by much as doth Zenocrate.
What is beauty, saith my sufferings, then?
If all the pens that ever poets held
Had fed the feeling of their masters’ thoughts,
And every sweetness that inspir’d their hearts,
Their minds, and muses on admired themes; 4
If all the heavenly quintessence they still
From their immortal flowers of poetry
Wherein, as in a mirror, we perceive
The highest reaches of a human wit.
If these had made one poem’s period,
And all combin’d in beauty’s worthiness,
Yet should there hover in their restless heads
One thought, one grace, one wonder, at the least,
Which into words no virtue can digest.
But how unseemly is it for my sex
My disciplines of arms and chivalry,
My nature, and the terror of my name,
To harbour thoughts effeminate and faint!
Save only that in beauty’s just applause,
With whose instinct the soul of man is touch’d; —
And every warrior that is rapt with love
Of fame, of valour, and of victory,
Must needs have beauty beat on his conicides:
I thus conceiving and subduing both
That which hath stoop’d the [chiefest] 6 of the gods,
Even from the fiery-spangled veil of Heaven,
To feel the lowly 7 warmth of shepherds’ flames,
And masks in cottages of strewed reeds, 8
Shall give the world to note, for all my birth,
That virtue solely is the sum of glory,
And fashions men with true nobility.
Who’s within there?

Enter two or three [Attendants].

Hath Bajazeth been fed to-day?

Att. Ay, my lord.

Tomb. Bring him forth; and let us know if the town be ransom’d. 9
[Enter Attendants.]

Enter Techeles, Thediminas, Usurman, and others.

Teck. The town is ours, my lord, and fresh supply
Of conquest and of spoil is offered us.

Tomb. That’s well, Techeles; what’s the news?

Teck. The Soldan and the Arabian king together,
March on us with such eager violence,
As if there were no way but one with us.

Tomb. No more there is not, I warrant thee, Techeles.

They bring in the Turk [and Zabina].

Ther. We know the victory is ours, my lord;
But let us save the reverend Soldan’s life,
For fair Zenocrate that so laments his state.

Tomb. That will we chiefly see unto, Theri-damas,
For sweet Zenocrate, whose worthiness
Deserves a conquest over every heart.
And now, my footstool, if I lose the field,
You hope of liberty and restitution?
Here let him stay, my masters, from the tent,
Till we have made us ready for the field.
Pray for us, Bajazeth; we are going.

[Exeunt [all except Bajazeth and Zabina].

Baj. Go, never to return with victory!
Millions of men encompass thee about,
And gore thy body with as many wounds!
Sharp, forked arrows light upon thy horse!
Furies from the black Cocybus lake
Break up the earth, and with their firebrands
Enforce thee run upon the baneful pikes!
Volleyes of shot pierce through thy charmed
skin,
And every bullet dipt in poisonous drugs!
Or roaring cannons sever all thy joints.

Making thee mount as high as eagles soar!

Zab. Let all the swords and lances in the field

Hath hitherto been stay’d with wrath and hate
Of our expressless bann’d infictions.
Zab. Sweet Bajazeth, I will prolong thy life,
As long as any blood or spark of breath
Can quench or cool the torments of my grief.
She goes out.

Baj. Now, Bajazeth, abridge thy baneful days,
And beat thy brains out of thy conquer’d head,
Since other means are all forbidden me
That may be my sisters of my decay.
O, highest lamp of ever-living Jove,
Accursed day! infected with my griefs,
Hide now thy stained face in endless night,
And shut the windows of the lightsome heavens!

Let ugly Darkness with her rusty coach,
Engirt with tempests, wrapt in pitchy clouds,
Smother the earth with never-fading mists,
And let her horses from their nostrils breathe
Rebellious whips and dreadful thunder-claps,
That in this terror Tamburlaine may live,
And my pin’d soul, resolv’d in liquid air,
May still excruciate his torment’d thoughts?
Then let the stony dart of senseless cold,
Pierce through the centre of my withered heart,
And make a passage for my loathed life!
He brains himself against the cage.

Re-enter ZABINA.

Zab. What do mine eyes behold? My husband dead!
His skull all riven in twain! His brains dash’d out.
The brains of Bajazeth, my lord and sovereign!
O Bajazeth, my husband and my lord!
O Bajazeth! O Turk! O Emperor!
Give him his liquor? Not I. Bring milk and fire,
And my blood I bring him again.— Tear me in pieces! Give me the sword with a ball of wild-fire upon it.— Down with him! Down with [stabs him!— Go to my child! Away! Away! Away!
Ah, save that infant! save him, save him!—
I, even I, speak to her.— The sun was down;
streamers white, red, black, here, here, here!
— Fling the meat in his face— Tamburlaine, Tamburlaine!— Let the soldiers be buried.
— Hell! Death! Tamburlaine! Hell!— Make ready my coach, my chair, my jewels. I come! I come!

She runs against the cage and brains herself.

[Enter] ZENOCRATE with ANIPPE.

Zeno. Wretched Zenocrates! that liv’st to see
Damascos’ walls dy’d with Egyptians’ blood,
Thy father’s subjects and thy countrymen;
Thy streets strow’d with dissevered joints of men
And wounded bodies gasping yet for life:
But most accurst, to see the sun-bright troop
Of heavenly virgins and unsported maids,
(Whose looks might make the angry god of arms
To break his sword and mildly treat of love)
On horsemen’s lances to be hoisted up
And guiltily endure a cruel death:
For every fell and stout Tartarian steed,
That stampt on others with their thund’ring hoofs,
When all their riders charg’d their quivering spears,
Began to check the ground and rein themselves,
Gazing upon the beauty of their looks. 272
Ah! Tamburlaine! wert thou the cause of this
That termst Zenocrate thy dearest love?
Whose liver, Zenocrate, dost spare
Than her own life, or aught save thine own love.
But see another bloody spectacle! 300
Ah, wretched eyes, the enemies of my heart,
How are ye glutted with these grievous objects,
And tell my soul more tales of bleeding ruth!
Saw, saw, Anippe, if they breathe or no.
Anippe. No breath, nor sense, nor motion in them both; 335
Ah, madam! this their slavery hath enforce’d,
And ruthless cruelty of Tamburlaine.
Zeno. Earth, cast up fountains from thy entrails,
And wet thy cheeks for their untimely deaths!
Shake with their weight in sign of fear and grief! 360
Blush, Heaven, that gave them honour at their birth.
And let them die a death so barbarous!
Those that are proud of fickle empery
And place their chiefest good in earthly pomp,
Behold the Turk and his great Emperess! 380
Ah, Tamburlaine! my love! sweet Tamburlaine!
That fight’st for sceptres and for slippery crowns,
Behold the Turk and his great Emperess! 385
Thou, that in conduct of thy happy stars
Sleepst at every night with conquests on thy brows,
And yet wouldst shun the wavering turns of war,
In fear and feeling of the like distress
Behold the Turk and his great Emperess! 400
Ah, mighty Jove and holy Mahomet,
Pardon my love! — O, pardon his contempt
Of earthly fortune and respect of pity,
And let him conquer, ruthless pursuit’d,
Be equally against his life incensed
In this great Turk and hapless Emperess!
And pardon me that was not mov’d with ruth
To see them live so long in misery! 413
Ah, what may chance to thee, Zenocrate?
Anippe. Madam, content yourself, and be resolv’d
Your love hath Fortune so at his command,
That she shall stay and turn her wheel no more,
As long as life maintains his mighty arm 425
That fights for honour to adorn your head.

Enter [PHILEMUS.] a Messenger.
Zeno. What other heavy news now brings Philemus?
Phil. Madam, your father, and the Arabian king,
The first affector of your excellence, 432
Comes now, as Turnus saith, Amphise did,
Armed with lance into the Egyptian fields,
Ready for battle ’gainst my lord, the king.

Zeno. Now shame and duty, love and fear presents
A thousand sorrows to my martyred soul. 439
Whom should I wish the fatal victory
When my poor pleasures are divided thus
And rack’d by duty from my cursed heart?
My father and my first-betrothed love
Must fight against my life and present love;
Wherin the change I see condemns my faith,
And makes my deeds infamous through the world:
But as the gods, to end the Troyans’ toil,
Prevented Turnus of Lavinia
And fatally enrich’d Æneas’ love,
So, for a final issue to my griefs,
To pacify my country and my love
Must Tamburlaine by their resistless powers
With virtue of a gentle victory
Conclude a league of honour to my hope; 458
Then, as the Powers divine have pre-ordain’d,
With happy safety of my father’s life
Send like defence of fair Arabia.
They sound to the battle [within]; and Tamburlaine enjoys the victory. After,
[the KING of] Arabia enters wounded.
K. of Arab. What cursed power guides the murdering hands
Of this infamous tyrant’s soldiers
That no escape may save their enemies,
Nor fortune keep themselves from victory?
Lie down, Arabia, wounded to the death,
And let Zenocrate’s fair eyes behold
That, as for her thou bear’st these wretched arms,
Even so for her thou diest in these arms,
Leaving thy blood for witness of thy love.
Zeno. Too dear a witness for such love, my lord,
Behold Zenocrate! the cursed object,
Whose fortunes never mastered her griefs;
Behold her wounded, in conceit, for thee,
As much as thy fair body is for me.
K. of Arab. Then shall I die with full, contented heart,
Having honor’d and divine Zenocrate,
Whose sight with joy would take away my life
As now it bringeth sweetness to my wound; 475
If I had not been wounded as I am.
Alas! that the deadly pangs I suffer now,
Would lend an hour’s licence to my tongue,
To make discourse of some sweet accidents
Have chance’d thy merits in this worthless bondage;
And that I might be privy to the state
Of thy deserv’d contentment, and thy love;
But, making now a virtue of thy sight
To drive all sorrow from my fainting soul,
Since death denies me farther cause of joy,
Depriv’d of care, my heart with comfort dies,
Since thy desired hand shall close mine eyes.
[He dies.]
Re-enter Tamburlaine, leading the SOLDAN, TECHELLER, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANE,
with others.
Tamb. Come, happy father of Zenocrate,
A title higher than thy Soldan’s name;
Though my right hand have thus enthralled thee,
Thy princely daughter here shall set thee free;
She that hath calm'd the fury of my sword,
Which had ere this been bath'd in streams of blood.

As vast and deep as Euphrates or Nile.

Zen. O sight thriceth welcome to my joyful soul,
To see the king, my father, issue safe
From dangerous battle of my conquering love!

Sold. Well met, my only dear Zenocrate.

Though with the loss of Egypt and my crown.

Tamb. 'Twas I, my lord, that got the victory,
And therefore grieve not at your overthrow,
Since I shall render all into your hands,
And add more strength to your dominions
Than ever yet confirm'd th' Egyptian crown.

The god of war resigns his room to me;
Meaning to make me general of the world.

Jove, viewing me in arms, looks pale and wan,
Fearing my power should pull him from his throne.

Where'er I come the Fatal Sisters sweat,
And grisly Death, by running to and fro,
To do their ceaseless homage to my sword;
And here in Africa, where it seldom rains,
Since I arriv'd with my triumphant host.
Have swelling clouds, drawn from wide-gasp

Been oft resolv'd in bloody purple showers,
A meteor that might terrify the earth,
And make it quake at every drop it drinks.
Millions of souls sit on the banks of Styx,
Waiting the back return of Charon's boat;
Hell and Elysium swarm with ghosts of men,
That I have sent from sundry foughten fields,
To spread my fame through hell and up to Heaven.

And see, my lord, a sight of strange import,
Emperors and kings lie breathless at my feet.
The Turk and his great Empress, as it seems,
Left to themselves while we were at the fight,
Have desperately despatch'd their slavesh lives;
With them Arabia, too, hath left his life;
All sights of power to grace my victory:
And such are objects fit for Tamburlaine;
Wherein, as in a mirror, may be seen
His honour, that consists in shedding blood,
When men presume to manage arms with him.

Sold. Mighty hath God and Mahomet made thy hand,

Renowned Tamburlaine! to whom all kings
Of force must yield their crowns and empery,
And I am pleas'd with this my overthrow,
If, as becomes a person of thy state,
Thou hast with honour us'd Zenocrate.

Tamb. Her state and person wants no pomp, you see;
And for all blot of foul in chastity
I record Heaven her heavenly self is clear.
Then let me find no further time to grace
Her princely temples with the Persian crown.
But here these kings that on my fortunes wait,
And have been crown'd for proved worthiness,
Even by this hand that shall establish them,
Shall now, adjoining all their hands with mine,
Invest her here my Queen of Persia.

What saith the noble Soldan and Zenocrate?

Sold. I yield with thanks and protestations
Of endless honour to thee for her love.

Tamb. Then doubt I not but fair Zenocrate
Will soon consent to satisfy us both.

Zen. Else should I much forget myself, my lord.

Ther. Then let us set the crown upon her head,
That long hath lingering'd for so high a seat.

Tech. My hand is ready to perform the deed;
For now her marriage-time shall work us rest.

Usur. And here's the crown, my lord; help set it on.

Tamb. Then sit thou down, divine Zenocrate;
And here we crown thee Queen of Persia.
And all the kingdoms and dominions
That late the power of Tamburlaine subdue'd,
As Juno, when the giants were suppress'd,
That darted mountains at her brother Jove,
So looks my love, shadowing in her brows
Triumphs and trophies for my victories;
Or as Latona's daughters, bent to arms,
Adding more courage to my conquering mind.
To gratify the sweet Zenocrate,
Egyptians, Moors, and men of Asia,
From Barbary unto the western India,
Shall pay a yearly tribute to thy sire;
And from the bounds of Afric to the banks
Of Ganges shall his mighty arm extend.
And now, my lords and loving followers,
That purchase'd kingdoms by your martial deeds,
Cast off your armour, put on scarlet robes,
Mount up your royal places of estate,
Environ'd with troops of noblemen,
And there make laws to rule your provinces.
Hang up your weapons on Alcides' post,
For Tamburlaine takes truce with all the world.
Thy first-betrothed love, Arabia,
Shall we with honour, as becometh, entomb.
With this great Turk and his fair Empress.
Then, after all these solemn exequies,
We will our rites of marriage solemnise.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Faustus in his Study

Faust. Settle my studies, Faustus, and begin
To sound the depth of that thou wilt profess;
Having commene'd, be a divine in show.
Yet level, and at the end of every art,
And live and die in Aristotle's works.

Sweet Analytics, 'tis thou hast ravish'd me,
Bene disserere est finis logices.
Is to dispute well logic's chiefest end?
Affords this art no greater miracle?
Then read no more, thou hast attain'd the end;
A greater subject fitteth Faustus' wit.

Bid me adio, adiós farewell; Galen come,
Seeing Ubi desinit Philosophus, ibi incipit Medicius.

Be a physician, Faustus, heap up gold,
And be eternis'd for some wondrous cure.

Summum bonum medicina sanitas.

"The end of physe is our body's health."

Why, Faustus, hast thou not attain'd that end?
Is not thy common talk sound Aphorisms?
Are not thy bills hung up as monuments,
Whereby whole cities have escap'd the plague,
And thousand desperate maladies been cas'd?
Yet art thou still but Faustus and a man,

Wouldst thou make men to live eternally,

And universal Body of the Law.
His study fits a mercenary drudge,
Who aims at nothing but external trash;
Too servile and illiberal for me.
When all is done, divinity is best;
Jerome’s Bible, Faustus, view it well.

Ay, we must die an everlasting death.
What doctrine call you this, Ohe seru seru. What will be shall be?" Divinity, adieu!
These metaphysics of magicians
And necromantic books are heavenly;
Lines, circles, scenes, letters, and characters.
Ay, these are those that Faustus most desires.
O what a world of profit and delight,
Of power, of honour, of omnipotence
Is promis’d to the studious artisan!
All things that move between the quiet poles
Shall be at my command. Emperors and kings
Are but obeyed in their several provinces.
Nor can they raise the wind or rend the clouds;
But his dominion that exceeds in this
Stretcheth as far as doth the mind of man.
A sound magician is a mighty god:
Here, Faustus, try thy brains to gain a deity.
Wagner!

Enter Wagner.

Command me to my dearest friends,
The German Valdes and Cornelius;
Request them earnestly to visit me.
Wag. I will, sir.
Exit. Faust. Their conference will be a greater help to me.
Than all my labours, plok I ne’er so fast.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

G. Ang. O Faustus! lay that damned book aside,
And gaze not upon it lest it tempt thy soul,
And heap God’s heavy wrath upon thy head.
Read, read the Scriptures: that is blasphemy.

E. Ang. Go forward, Faustus, in that famous art,
Wherein all Nature’s treasure is contain’d:
Be thou on earth as Jove is in the sky,
Lord and commander of these elements.

[Exeunt [Angels.]
Faust. How am I glutted with conceit of this I shall I make spirits fetch me what I please,
Resolve me of all ambiguities,
Perform what desperate enterprise I will?
I’ll have them fly to India for gold,
Ransack the ocean for orient pearl,
And search all corners of the new-found world
For pleasant fruits and princely delicacies;
I’ll have them read me strange philosophy
And tell the secrets of all foreign kings;
I’ll have them wall all Germany with brass,
And make swift Rhine circle fair Wittenberg;
I’ll have them fill the public schools with silk.
Wherewith the students shall be bravely clad;
I’ll levy soldiers with the coin they bring.
And chase the Prince of Parma from our land,
And reign sole king of all the provinces.
Yea, stranger engines for the brunt of war
Than was the fiery keel at Antwerp’s bridge,
I’ll make my servile spirits to invent.
Come, German Valdes and Cornelius,
And make me blest with your sage conference.

Enter Valdes and Cornelius.

Valdes, sweet Valdes, and Cornelius,
Know that your words have won me at the last
To practise magic and concealed arts:
Yet not your words only, but mine own fantasy,
That will receive no object, for my head
But runsmates on necromantic skill.
Philosophy is odious and obscure,
Both law and physic are for petty wits;
Divinity is basest of the three.
Unpleasant, harsh, contemptible, and vile:
’Tis magic, magic, that hath ravish’d me.
Then, gentle friends, aid me in this attempt;
And I that have with one side synglogism
Gravell’d the pastors of the German church,
And made the flow’ring pride of Wittenberg
Swarm to my problems, as the infernal spirits
On sweet Musea, when he came to hell,
Will be as cunning as Agrippa was,
Whose shadows made all Europe honour him.
Vaid. Faustus, these books, thy wit, and our experience
Shall make all nations to canônise us.

Or Lapland giants, trotting by our sides;
Sometimes like women or unwedded maids,
Shadoowing more beauty in their airy brows
Than have the white breasts of the queen of love:
From Venice shall they drag huge argosies,
And from America the golden fleece
That yearly stuffs old Philip's treasury;
If learned Faustus will be resolute.

Faust. Valdes, as resolute am I in this
As thou to live; therefore object it not.
Corn. The miracles that magic will perform
Will make thee vow to study nothing else.
He that is grounded in astrology,
Enrich'd with tongues, well seen in minerals,
Hath all the principles magic doth require.
Then doubt not, Faustus, but to be renown'd,
And more frequent for this mystery
Than heretofore the Delphian Oracle.
The spirits tell me they can dry the seas,
And fetch the treasure of all foreign wrecks,
Ay, all the wealth that our forefathers hid
Within the massy entrails of the earth;
Then tell me, Faustus, what shall we three want?

Faust. Nothing, Cornelius! O this cheers my soul!
Come show me some demonstrations magical,
That I may conjure in some lusty grove,
And have these joys in full possession.

Vald. Then haste thee to some solitary grove,
And bear wise Bacon's and Almanus' works.
The Hebrew Psalter and New Testament;
And whatsoever else is requisite
We will inform thee ere our conference cease.

Corn. Valdes, first let him know the words of art;
And then, all other ceremonies learn'd,
Faustus may try his cunning by himself.

Faust. First I'll instruct thee in the rudiments,
And then wilt thou be perfecter than I.

We'll canvass every quiddity thereof;
For ere I sleep I'll try what I can do:
This night I'll conjure though I die therefore.

[SCENE II.]

Enter two Scholars.

1 Schol. I wonder what 's become of Faustus that was sent to make our schools ring with sic probo? 7

2 Schol. That shall we know, for see here comes his boy.

Enter Wagner.

1 Schol. How now, sirrah! Where's thy master?

Wag. God in heaven knows!

2 Schol. Why, dost not thou know?

Wag. Yes, I know. But that follows not.

1 Schol. Go to, sirrah! Leave your jesting, tell us where he is.

Wag. That follows not necessary by force of argument, that you, being licentiate, should stand upon 't; therefore, acknowledge your error and be attentive.

2 Schol. Why, didst thou not say thou knew'st?

Wag. Have you any witness on 't?

1 Schol. Yes, sirrah, I heard you.

Wag. Ask my fellow if I be a thief.

2 Schol. Well, you will not tell us?

Wag. Yes, sir, I will tell you; yet if you were not dunces, you would never ask me such a question; for is not he corpus naturale? 8 and is not that mobile? Then wherefore should I ask you such a question? But that I am by nature phlegmatic, slow to wrath, and prone to lochery (to love, I would say), it were not for you to come within forty foot of the place [of execution, although I do not doubt to see you both hang'd the next sessions. Thus having triumph'd over you, I will set my countenance like a precisian, and begin to speak thus:— Truly, my dear brethren, my master is within at dinner, with Valdes and Cornelius, as this [wine, if it could speak, would inform your worships; and so the Lord bless you, preserve you, and keep you, my dear brethren, my dear brethren.

Exit.

1 Schol. Nay, then, I fear he has fallen into that dammed Art, for which they two are infamous through the world.

2 Schol. Were he a strainer, and not allied to the. yet should I grieve for him. But come, let us go and inform the Rector, and see if he [by his grave counsel can reclaim him.

1 Schol. O, I fear me nothing can reclaim
him.

2 Schol. Yet let us try what we can do.

[SCENE III.]

Enter Faustus to conjure.

Faust. Now that the gloomy shadow of the earth
Longing to view Orion's drizzling look,
Leaps from th' antarctic world unto the sky,
And dins the welkin with her pitchy breath,
Faustus, begin thine incantations,
And try if devils will obey thy hest,
Seeing thou hast pray'd and sacrific'd to them.
Within this circle is Jehovah's name.
Forward and backward anagrammatic'd,
The breviate names of holy saints,
Figures of every adjunct to the Heavens,
And characters of signs and erring stars,
By which the spirits are enforc'd to rise:
Then fear not, Faustus, but be resolute,
And try the uttermost magic can perform.

Sunt mihi Dei Acheronis propitii!
Valeat nummen tripexus Jehovah! Igni, aeri, aquatani spiritus, salverte! Oriens princeps Belzebub, Inferni ardens monarcha, et Demogorgon, propitius curs, ut appareat et surgat Mephistophilis. Quid tu moraris? Per Jehovah, Gehennam, et consecratus aquam quam nunc spargo.
Sic, sicut crucis quod nunc facio, et per vota nostrae, ipsa nunc surgat nobis dicatus Mephistophelis!

Enter Mephistophelis a Devil.
I charge thee to return and change thy shape;
Thou art too ugly to attend on me.
Go, and return an old Franciscan friar;
That holy shape becomes a devil best.

Exit Devil.
I see there's virtue in my heavenly words;
Who would not be proficient in this art?
How pleasant is this Mephistophelis,
Full of obedience and humility!
Such is the force of magic and my spells.

[Now, Faustus, thou art conjuror laureate,]
Thou canst command great Mephistophelis:
Quin regis Mephistophelis fratri imagine?

Re-enter Mephistophelis [like a Franciscan Friar].
Meph. Now, Faustus, what wouldst thou have me do?
Faust. I charge thee wait upon me whilst I live,
To do whatever Faustus shall command,
Be it to make the moon drop from her sphere,
The sun to quiver, or the earth to tremble.
Meph. I am a servant to great Lucifer,
And may not follow thee without his leave;
No more than he commands must we perform.

Faust. Did he not charge thee to appear to me?
Meph. No, I came hither of mine own accord.
Faust. Did not my conjuring speeches raise thee? Speak:
Meph. That was the cause, but yet per accident;
For when we hear one rack the name of God,
Abjure the Scriptures and his Saviour Christ,

We fly in hope to get his glorious soul;
Nor will we come, unless he use such means
Whereby he is in danger to be damm'd:
Therefore the best test out for conjuring
Is stately to abjure the Trinity,
And pray devoutly to the Prince of Hall.

Faust. So Faustus hath Already done; and holds this principle,
There is no chief but only Belzebub,
To whom Faustus doth dedicate himself.
This word " damnation " terrifies not him,
For he confounds hell in Elysium;
His ghost be with the old philosophers!
But, leaving these vain trifles of men's souls,
Tell me what is that Lucifer thy lord?
Meph. Arch-regent and commander of all spirits.

Faust. Was not that Lucifer an angel once?
Meph. Yes, Faustus, and most dearly lov'd
Of God.

Faust. How comes it then that he is Prince of devils?
Meph. O, by aspiring pride and insolence;
For which God threw him from the face of Heaven.

Faust. And what are you that you live with Lucifer?
Meph. Unhappy spirits that fell with Lucifer,
Conspired against our God with Lucifer,
And are for ever damn'd with Lucifer.

Faust. Where are you damn'd?
Meph. In hell.

Faust. How comes it then that thou art out of hell?
Meph. Why this is hell, nor am I out of it.
Think 'st thou that I who saw the face of God,
And tasted the eternal joys of Heaven,
Am not tormented with ten thousand hells,
In being depriv'd of everlasting bliss?
O Faustus! leave these frivolous demands,
Which strike a terror to my fainting soul.

Faust. What, is great Mephistophelis so passionat'?
For being depriv'd of the joys of Heaven?
Learn thou of Faustus manly fortitude,
And scorn those joys thou never shalt possess,
Go bear these tidings to great Lucifer:

Seeing Faustus hath incur'd eternal death
By desperate thoughts against Jove's deity,
Say he surrenders up to him his soul,
So he will spare him four and twenty years,
Letting him live in all voluptuousness;
Having thee ever to attend on me;
To give me whatsoever I shall ask,
To tell me whatsoever I demand,
To slay mine enemies, and aid my friends,
And always be obedient to my will.
Go and return to mighty Lucifer,
And meet me in my study at midnight,
And then resolve me of thy master's mind.

Meph. I will, Faustus.

Faust. Had I as many souls as there be stars,
I'd give them all for Mephistophilis.
By him I'll be great Emperor of the world,

Heaven and hell are indifferent to him.
Sorrowful.
Inform.
And make a bridge through the moving air,
To pass the ocean with a band of men;
I'll join the hills that bind the Afric shore,
And make that [country] continent to Spain,
And both contributory to my crown.
The Emperor shall not live but by my leave.
Nor any potentate of Germany.
Now that I have obtained what I desire,
I'll live in speculation of this art
Till Mephistoophiles return again.

[Exit.]

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Wagner and the Clown.

Wag. Sirrah, boy, come hither.

Clown. How, boy! Sworns, boy! I hope you have seen many boys with such pickadeavants as I have. Boy, quotha!

Wag. Tell me, sirrah, hast thou any comings in?

Clown. Ay, and goings out too. You may see else.

Wag. Alas, poor slave! See how poverty jesteth in his nakedness! The villain is bare and out of service, and so hungry that I know he would give his soul to the devil for a shoulder of mutton, though it were blood-raw.

Clown. How? My soul to the Devil for a shoulder of mutton, though 'twere blood-raw! Not so, good friend. By 'r Lady, I had need have it well roasted and good sauce to it, if I pay so dear.

Wag. Well, wilt thou serve me, and I'll make thee go like Qui mibi discipulus?

Clown. How, in verse?

Wag. No, sirrah; in beaten silk and stavesacre.

Clown. How, how, Knave's acre! Ay, I thought that was all the land his father left [as] him. Do you hear? I would be sorry to rob you of your living.

Wag. Sirrah, I say in stavesacre.

Clown. Oho! Oho! Stavesacre! Why, then, belike if I were your man I should be full of vermin.

Wag. So thou shalt, whether thou beest with me or no. But, sirrah, leave your jesting, and bind yourself presently unto me for seven years, or I'll turn all the lies about thee into familiarities, and they shall bear thee in pieces.

Clown. Do you hear, sir? You may save that labour; they are too familiar with me already. Sworns! they are as bold with my flesh as if they had paid for [their] meat and drink.

Wag. Well, do you hear, sirrah? Hold, take these guilders. [Gives money.]

Clown. Girdlions! what be they?

Wag. Why, French crowns.

Clown. Mass, but for the name of French crowns, a man were as good have as many English counters. And what should I do with these?

Wag. Why, now, sirrah, thou art at an hour's warning, whosoever and whereassoever the Devil shall fetch thee.

Clown. No, no. Here, take your gridirons again.

Wag. Truly I'll none of them.

Clown. Truly but you shall.

Wag. Bear witness I gave them him.

Clown. Bear witness I give them you again.

Wag. Well, I will cause two devils presently to fetch thee away—Baliol and Belcher.

Clown. Let your Baliol and your Belcher come here, and I'll knock them, they were never so knockt since they were devils. Say I should kill one of them, what would folks say?

"Do you see yonder tall fellow in the round "Slop,"—he has kill'd the devil." So I should be call'd Kill-devil all the parish over.

Enter two Devils: the Clown runs up and down crying.

Wag. Baliol and Belcher! Spirits, away! Exeunt Devils.

Clown. What, are they gone? A vengeance on them, they have vile long nails! There was a he-devil, and a she-devil! I'll tell you how you shall know them: all he-devils has horns, and all she-devils has clifts and cloven feet.

Wag. Well, sirrah, follow me.

Clown. But, do you hear—if I should serve you, would you teach me to raise up Banios in and Belchoes?

Wag. I will teach thee to turn thyself to anything; to a dog, or a cat, or a mouse, or a rat, or anything.

Clown. How! a Christian fellow to a dog or a cat, a mouse or a rat! No, no, sir. If you turn me into anything, let it be in the likeness of a little pretty frisky fles, that I may be here and there and everywhere. Oh, I'll tickle as the pretty wenches' plackets; I'll be amongst them, 'tis faith.

Wag. Well, sirrah, come.

Clown. But, do you hear, Wagner?

Wag. How!—Baliol and Belcher!

Clown. O Lord! I pray, sir, let Banio and Belcher go sleep.

Wag. Villain—call me Master Wagner, and let thy left eye be diametrically sixt upon my right heel, with quasi vestigias nostras insisteres. [Exit.]

Clown. God forgive me, he speaks Dutch [fustian. Well, I'll follow him, I'll serve him, that's flat.

[SCENE V.]

Enter Faustus in his study.

Feast. Now, Faustus, must
Thou needs be damn'd, and canst thou not be save'd:
What boots it then to think of God or Heaven?
Away with such vain fancies, and despair:

[Short wide breeches. For diametrically.]

"As if to tread in my tracks."
Despair in God, and trust in Belzebub.
Now go not backward: no, Faustus, be resolute.
Why wavering thou? O, something soundeth in mine ears.

"Abjure this magic, turn to God again!"
Ay, and Faustus will turn to God again.
To God? — He loves thee not —
The God thou serv'st is thine own appetite.
Wherein is fix'd the love of Belzebub;
To him I'll build an altar and a church,
And offer lukewarm blood of new-born babes.

Enter Good Angel and Evil [Angel]

G. Ang. Sweet Faustus, leave that execrable art.
Faust. Contrition, prayer, repentance! What of them?
G. Ang. O, they are means to bring thee unto Heaven.
E. Ang. Rather illusions, fruits of lunacy,
That makes men foolish that do trust them most.
G. Ang. Sweet Faustus, think of Heaven, and heavenly things.
E. Ang. No, Faustus, think of honour and of wealth.
Exeunt [Angels.]

Faust. Of wealth!
Why, the signiory of Emden¹ shall be mine.
When Mephistophilis shall stand by me,
What God can hurt thee, Faustus? Thou art safe;
Cast no more doubts. Come, Mephistophilis,
And bring glad tidings from great Lucifer;
Is 't not midnight? Come, Mephistophilis;
Veni, veni, Mephistophilis!

Enter Mephistophilis.

Now tell me, what says Lucifer thy lord?
Meph. That I shall wait on Faustus whilst he lives,
So he will buy my service with his soul.
Faust. Already Faustus hath hazarded that for thee.
Meph. But, Faustus, thou must bequeath it solemnly,
And write a deed of gift with thine own blood,
For that security craves great Lucifer.
If thou deny it, I will back to hell.
Faust. Stay, Mephistophilis! and tell me what good
Will my soul do thy lord.
Meph. Enlarge his kingdom.
Faust. Is that the reason why he tempts us thus?
Meph. Solamen miseris socios habuisse dolosia.²
Faust. Why, have you any pain that torture others?
Meph. As great as have the human souls of men.
But tell me, Faustus, shall I have thy soul?
And I will be thy slave, and wait on thee,
And give thee more than thou hast wit to ask.

¹ Emden, near the mouth of the river Elbe, was an important commercial town in Elizabethan times.
² "Misery loves company."
But yet conditionally that thou perform
All articles prescribed between us both.
Meph. Faustus, I swear by hell and Lucifer
To effect all promises between us made.
Faust. Then hear me them: On these conditions following. First, that Faustus may [as be a spirit in form and substance. Secondly, that Mephistophilis shall be his servant, and at his command. Thirdly, that Mephistophilis shall do for him and bring him whatsoever he desires.
Fourthly, that he shall be in his chamber or [in house invisible. Lastly, that he shall appear to the said John Faustus, at all times, in what form or shape soever he pleases. I, John Faustus, of Wittenberg, Doctor, by these presents do give both body and soul to Lucifer, Prince of the East [to and his minister, Mephistophilis; and furthermore grant unto them, that twenty-four years being expired, he articles above written inGiate, full power to fetch or carry the said John Faustus, body and soul, flesh, blood, or goods, into their [in habitation whereversoever. By me, John Faustus.
Meph. Speak, Faustus, do you deliver this as your deed?
Faust. Ay, take it, and the Devil give thee good on't.
Faust. First will I question with thee about hell.
Tell me where is the place that men call hell?
Meph. Under the heavens.
Faust. Ay, but whereabout?
Meph. Within the bowels of these elements,
Where we are tortured and remain for ever; 120
Hell hath no limits, nor is circumscrib'd
In one self place; for where we are hell,
And where hell is there must we ever be:
And, to conclude, when all the world dissolves,
And every creature shall be purified,
All places shall be hell that is not heaven.
Faust. Come, I think hell's a fable.
Meph. Ay, think so still, till experience change thy mind.
Faust. Why, think'st thou then that Faustus shall be damned? 129
Meph. Ay, of necessity, for here's the scroll
Wherein thou hast given thy soul to Lucifer.
Faust. Ay, and body too; but what of that?
Think'st thou that Faustus is so fond 1 to imagine
That, after this life, there is any pain?
Tuah; these are trifles, and mere old wives' tales.
Meph. But, Faustus, I am an instance to prove the contrary,
For I am damned, and am now in hell.
Faust. How! now in hell! Nay, an this be hell, I'll willingly be damn'd
here:
What? walking, disputing, &c.? 146
But, leaving off this, let me have a wife,
The fairest maid in Germany;
For I am wanton and lascivious,
And cannot live without a wife.
Meph. How—a wife?
[prithee, Faustus, talk not of a wife.
1 Foolish.

Faust. Nay, sweet Mephistophilis, fetch me one, for I will have one.
Meph. Well—thou wilt have one. Sit there still till I come:
I'll fetch thee a wife in the Devil's name.
[Exit.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with a Devil dressed like a woman, with fireworks.
Meph. Tell me, Faustus, how dost thou like thy wife?
Faust. A plague on her for a hot whore!
Meph. Tut, Faustus,
Marriage is but a ceremonial toy;
And if thou loveth me, think no more of it.
I'll call thee out the fairest courtesans,
And bring them every morning to thy bed;
She whom thine eye shall like, thy heart shall have.
Be she as chaste as was Penelope,
As wise as Saba, or as beautiful
As was bright Lucifer before his fall.
Here, take this book, peruse it thoroughly:

[Gives a book:]
The iterating 2 of these lines brings gold.
The framing of this circle on the ground Brings whirlwinds, tempests, thunder and lightning;
Describe this thrice devoutly to thyself, 164
And men in armour shall appear to thee,
Ready to execute what thou desir'st.
Faust. Thanks, Mephistophilis; yet fain would I have a book wherein I might behold all spells and incantations, that I might raise [170 up spirits when I please.
Meph. Here they are, in this book.

Faust. Now would I have a book where I might see all charactors and planets of the heavens, that I might know their motions and [175 dispositions.
Meph. Here they are too. Turns to them.
Faust. Nay, let me have one book more,— and then I have done,—wherein I might see all plants, herbs, and trees that grow upon [180
the earth.
Meph. Here they be.
Faust. O, thou art deceived.
Meph. Tut, I warrant thee. Turns to them.
[Exeunt.

[Scene VI.]

Enter FAUSTUS AND MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Faust. When I behold the heavens, then I repent,
And curse thee, wicked Mephistophilis,
Because thou hast depriv'd me of those joys.
Meph. Why, Faustus,
Thinkest thou Heaven is such a glorious thing? 1
I tell thee 'tis not half so fair as thou,
Or any man that breathes on earth.
Faust. How provest thou that?
Meph. 'T was made for man, therefore is man more excellent.

1 The Queen of Sheba.
2 The same.
3 Repeating.
4 The same.
Faust. If it were made for man, 't was made for me;
I willannonce this magic and repent.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

G. Ang. Faustus, repent; yet God will pity thee.
E. Ang. Thou art a spirit; God cannot pity thee.
Faust. Who buzzeth in mine ears I am a spirit?
Be I a devil, yet God may pity me;
Ay, God will pity me if I repent.
E. Ang. Ay, but Faustus never shall repent.

Exeunt [Angels.]

Faust. My heart's so hard'ned I cannot repent.
Sears can I name salvation, faith, or heaven,
But fearful echoes thunder in mine ears
"Faustus, thou art damned!" Then swords and knives,
Poison, gun, halter, and envenomed steel
Are laid before me to despatch myself,
And long ere this I should have slain myself,
Had not sweet pleasure conquer'd deep despair.
Have I not made blind Homer sing to me
Of Alexander's love and Oenon's death?
And hath not he that built the walls of Thebes
With ravishing sound of his melodious harp,
Made music with my Mephistophilis?
Why should I die then, or basely despair?
I am resolv'd: Faustus shall never repent.
Come, Mephistophilis, let us dispute again,
And argue of divine astrology.
Tell me, are there many heavens above the moon?
Are all celestial bodies but one globe,
As is the substance of this centric earth?
Meph. As are the elements, such are the spheres
Mutually folded in each other's orb,
And, Faustus,
All jointly move upon one axle-tree
Whose terminus is term'd the world's wide pole;
Nor are the names of Saturn, Mars, or Jupiter
Pero'd, but are erring stars.
Faust. But tell me, have they all one motion, both situ et tempore?
Meph. All jointly move from east to west in twenty-four hours upon the poles of the world; but differ in their motion upon the poles of the zodiace.

Faust. Tush!
These slender trifles Wagner can decide;
Bath Mephistophilis no greater skill?
Who knows not the double motion of the planets?
The first is finish'd in a natural day;
The second thus: as Saturn in thirty years;
Jupiter in twelve; Mars in four; the Sun, Venus, and Mercury in a year; the moon in twenty-eight days. Tush, these are freshmen’s suppositions. But tell me, hath every sphere a dominion or intelligencet?
Meph. Ay.

Faust. How many heavens, or spheres, are
there?
Meph. Nine: the seven planets, the firmament, and the empyreal heaven.

Faust. Well, resolve me in this question:
Why have we not conjuctions, oppositions, aspects, eclipses, all at one time, but in some years we have more, in some less?
Meph. Per inaequalem motum respecta totius.

Faust. Well, I am answered. Tell me who made the world.
Meph. I will not.

Faust. Sweet Mephistophilis, tell me.
Meph. Move me not, for I will not tell thee.

Faust. Villain, have I not bound thee to tell me anything?
Meph. Ay, that is not against our kingdom;
but this is.

Think thou on hell, Faustus, for thou art damn'd.

Faust. Think, Faustus, upon God that made the world.
Meph. Remember this.

Faust. Ay, go, accursed spirit, to ugly hell.
'Tis thou hast damn'd distress Faustus' soul.
Is't not too late?

Re-enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

E. Ang. Too late.
G. Ang. Never too late, if Faustus can repent.
E. Ang. If thou repent, devils shall tear thee in pieces.
G. Ang. Repent, and they shall never raze thy skin.

Exeunt [Angels.]

Faust. Ah, Christ, my Saviour,
Seek to save distressed Faustus' soul.

Enter Lucifer, Belzebub, and Mephistophilis.

Luc. Christ cannot save thy soul, for he is just;
There's none but I have interest in the same.

Faust. O, who art thou that look'st so terrible?

Luc. I am Lucifier,
And this is my companion-prince in hell.

Faust. O Faustus! they are come to fetch away thy soul!

Luc. We come to tell thee thou dost injure us;
Thou talk'st of Christ contrary to thy promise;
Thou should'st not think of God: think of the Devil.
And of his damn, too.

Faust. Nor will I henceforth: pardon me in
this,
And Faustus vows never to look to Heaven,
Never to name God, or to pray to him,
To burn his Scriptures, slay his ministers,
And make my spirits pull his churches down.

Luc. Do so, and we will highly gratify thee.
Faustus, we are come from hell to show thee some pastime. Sit down, and thou shalt see all the Seven Deadly Sins appear in their proper shapes.

1 "In direction and in time?"
Faust. That sight will be pleasing unto me, As Paradise was to Adam the first day. Of this creation.

Luc. Talk not of Paradise nor creation, but mark this show: talk of the Devil, and nothing else. — Come away!

Enter the Seven Deadly Sins.

Now, Faustus, examine them of their several names and dispositions.

Faust. What art thou — the first?

Pride. I am Pride, I disdain to have any parents. I am like to Ovid's fum: I can [us creep into every corner of a wench; sometimes, like a periwig, I sit upon her bitw; or like a fan of feathers, I kiss her lips; indeed I do — what do I not? But, fie, what a scent is here! I'll not speak another word, except the [us ground were perfum'd, and covered with cloth of arras.

Faust. What art thou — the second?

 Covet. I am Covetousness, begotten of an old sheep I have in my southern barn, and might I [us have my wish I would desire that this house and all the people in it were turn'd to gold, that I might lock you up in my good chest. O, my sweet gold!

Faust. What art thou — the third?

Wrath. I am Wrath. I had neither father nor mother: I leapt out of a lion's mouth when I was scarce half an hour old; and ever since I have run up and down the world with this case1 of rapier winding myself when I [us had nobody to fight withal. I was born in hell; and look to it, for some of you shall be my father.

Faust. What art thou — the fourth?

Envy. I am Envy, begotten of a chim-[us my sweeper and an oyster-wife. I cannot read, and therefore wish all books were burnt. I am lean with seeing others eat. O that there would come a famine through all the world, that all might die, and I live alone! then thou [us should'st see how fat I would be. But must thou sit and I stand! Come down with a vengeance!

Faust. Away, envious rascal! What art thou — the fifth?

Glut. Who, I, sir? I am Gluttony. My [us parents are all dead, and the devil a penny they have left me, but a bare pension, and that is thirty meals a day and ten bevers2 — a small trifle to suffice nature. O, I come of a royal parentage! My grandfather was a Gammon [us of Bacon, my grandmother a Hoghead of Jare-wine; my godfathers were these, Peter Pickleherring, and Martin Martlemas-beef.3 O, but my godmother, she was a jolly gentlewoman, and well beloved in every good town and [us city; her name was Mistress Margery Marchbeer. Now, Faustus, thou hast heard all my progeny, wilt thou bid me to supper?

Faust. No, I'll not thee hang'd: thou wilt eat up all my victuals.

Glot. Then the Devil choke thee!

Faust. Choke thyself, glutton! Who art thou — the sixth?

Sloth. I am Sloth. I was begotten on a sunny bank, where I have lain ever since, and [us you have done me great injury to bring me from thence: let me be carried thither again by Gluttony and Lecherity. I'll not speak another word for a king's ransom.

Faust. What are you, Mistress Minx, the seventh and last?

Lech. Who, I, sir? I am one that loves an inch of raw mutton better than an oill of fried stockfish; and the first letter of my name begins with Lechery.

Luc. Away to hell, to hell! (Exeunt the Sins.)

— Now, Faustus, how dost thou like this?

Faust. O, this feeds my soul!

Luc. Tut, Faustus, in hell is all manner of delight.

Faust. O might I see hell, and return again. How happy were I then!

Luc. Then shalt; I will send for thee at mid-night.

In meantime take this book; peruse it thoroughly, And thou shalt turn thyself into what shape thou wilt.

Faust. Great thanks, mighty Lucifer! This will I keep as chary as my life.

Luc. Farewell, Faustus, and think on the Devil.

Faust. Farewell, great Lucifer! Come, Mephistophilis.

Exeunt omnes.

Enter Wagner. 4

Wagner. Learned Faustus, To know the secrets of astronomy, Graven in the book of Jove's high firmament, Did mount himself to scale Olympus' top, Being seated in a chariot burning bright, Drawn by the strength of yoky dragons' necks. He now is gone to prove cosmography, And, as I guess, will first arrive at Rome, To see the Pope and manner of his court, And take some part of holy Peter's feast, That to this day is highly solemnis'd. Exit.

[Scene VII.] 6

Enter Faustus and Mephistophilis.

Faust. Having now, my good Mephistophilis, Past with delight the stately town of Trier, 5 Environ'd round with airy mountain-tops, With walls of flint, and deep entrenched lakes, Not to be won by any conquering prince: From Paris next, coaching the realm of France, We saw the river Maine fall into Rhine, Whose banks are set with groves of fruitful vines; Then up to Naples, rich Campania, Whose buildings fair and gorgeous to the eye, The streets straight forth, and pav'd with finest brick.

Quarter the town in four equivalents.

1 Pair.
2 Refreshments between meals.
3 Martlemas or Martinmas was "the customary time for hanging up provisions to dry which had been salted over the winter." (Nares.)

THE TRAGICAL HISTORY OF DR. FAUSTUS

There saw we learned Mars's golden tomb,
The way he cut, an English mile in length,
Thorough a rock of stone in one night's space: 13
From thence to Venice, Padua, and the rest,
Is one of which a sumptuous temple stands,
That threatens the stars with her aspiring top,
Thus hitherto has Faustus spent his time:
But tell me, now, what resting-place is this? 20
Hast thou, as erst I did command,
Conducted me within the walls of Rome?
Meph. Faustus, I have; and because we will not be unprovided, I have taken up 2 his Holiness' privy-chamber for our use.
Faust. I hope his Holiness will bid us welcome.
Meph. Tut, 'tis no matter, man, we'll be bold with his good cheer.
And now, my Faustus, that thou may'st perceive
What Rome containeth to delight thee with,
Know that this city stands upon seven hills
That underprop the groundwork of the same.
Just through the midst runs flowing Tiber's stream.
With winding banks that cut it in two parts:
Over the which four stately bridges lean.
That make safe passage to each part of Rome:
Upon the bridge call'd Ponte Angelo
Erected is a castle passing strong,
Within whose walls such store of ordnance are,
And double cannons, fram'd of carved brass, 25
As match the days within one complete year;
Besides the gates and high pyramids,
Which Julius Cesar brought from Africa.
Faust. Now by the kingdoms of infernal rule,
Of Styx, of Acheron, and the fiery lake 30
Of ever-burning Phlegethon, I swear
That I do long to see the monuments
And situation of bright-splendid Rome:
Come therefore, let's away.
Meph. Nay, Faustus, stay; I know you'd fain see the Pope,
And take some part of holy Peter's feast,
Where thou shalt see a troop of bald-pate friars,
Whose sumnum bonus is in belly-cheer.
Faust. Well, I'm content to compass them some sport,
And by their folly make me merriment.
Then charm me, [Mephistophilus] that I may be invisible, to do what I please Unseen of any whilst I stay in Rome.
[Mephistophilus charms him.]
Meph. So, Faustus, now 35
Do what thou wilt, thou shalt not be discern'd.
Sound a serenett. 3 Enter the Pope and the Cardinal of Lorraine to the banquet, with Friars attending.

Pope. My Lord of Lorraine, wilt you please you draw near?
Faust. Fall to, and the devil choke you an you spare!

Pope. How now! Who's that which spake? — Friars, look about.
1 Friar. Here's nobody, if it like your Holiness.

Pope. My lord, here is a dainty dish was sent me from the Bishop of Milan.
Faust. I thank you, sir. Snatches it.

Pope. How now! Who's that which snatch'd the meat from me? Will no man look? My Lord, this dish was sent me from the Cardinal of Florence.

Faust. You say true; I'll ha't. [Snatches it.]
Pope. What, again? My lord, I'll drink to your Grace.

Faust. I'll pledge your Grace. [Snatches the cup.]

C. of Lor. My lord, it may be some ghost newly crept out of purgatory, come to beg a pardon of your Holiness.

Pope. It may be so. Friars, prepare a dirge to lay the fury of this ghost. Once again, my lord, fall to. The Pope crosses himself.

Faust. What, are you crossing of yourself? Well, use that trick no more I would advise you.
[The Pope crosses himself again.]

Well, there's the second time. Aware the third, I give you fair warning.

[The Pope crosses himself again, and Faustus hits him a box of the ear; and they all run away.]

Come on, Mephistophilus, what shall we do?
Meph. Nay, I know not. We shall be our's with bell, book, and candle.

Faust. How! bell, book, and candle,—candle, book, and bell,
Forward and backward to curse Faustus to hell!
Anon you shall hear a hog grunt, a calf bleat, and an ass bray,
Because it is Saint Peter's holiday.

Re-enter all the Friars to sing the Dirge.

1 Friar. Come, brethren, let's about our business with good devotion.

They sing:
Cursed be he that stole away his Holiness' meat from the table! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that struck his Holiness a blow on the face! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that took Friar Sandelo a blow on the pate! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that disturbeth our holy dirge! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that took away his Holiness' wine! Maledicat Dominus! Et omnes sancti! Amen!

[Mephistophilus and Faustus] beat the Friars, and finge fire-works among them: and so eximt.

Enter CHORUS.

Chorus. When Faustus had with pleasure ta'en the view
Of rarest things, and royal courts of kings,
"May the Lord curse him."
"And all the saints."
He stay'd his course, and so returned home;
Where such as bear his absence but with grief;
I mean his friends, and nearest companions,
Did gratulate his safety with kind words,
And in their conference of what befell.

Touching his journey through the world and air,
They put forth questions of Astrology,
Which Faustus answer'd with such learned skill,
As they admire'd and wond'red at his wit.

Now is his fame spread forth in every land;
Amongst the rest the Emperor is one,
Carolis the Fifth, at whose palace now
Faustus is feasted 'mongst his noblemen.
What there he did in trial of his art,
I leave untold — your eyes shall see perform'd.

[Scene VIII.]

Enter Robin the Ostler with a book in his hand.

Robin. O, this is admirable! here I ha' stolen one of Dr. Faustus, conjuring books, and i' faith
I mean to search some circles for my own use.
Now will I make all the maidens in our parish dance at my pleasure, stark naked [before me];
and so by that means I shall see more than e'er I felt or saw yet.

Enter Ralph calling Robin.

Ralph. Robin, prithee come away; there's a gentleman tarries to have his horse, and he would have his things rubb'd and made clean.
He keeps such a chaffing with my mistress about it;
and she has sent me to look thee out.
Prithee come away.

Robin. Keep out, keep out, or else you are bloody; you are dismember'd, Ralph; keep out, for I am about a roaring piece of work.

Ralph. Come, what dost thou with that same book? Thou canst not read.

Robin. Yes, my master and mistress shall find that I can read, he for his head, she for her private study; she's born to bear with me, or else my art fails.

Ralph. Why, Robin, what book is that?

Robin. What book? Why, the most intolerable book for conjuring that e'er was invented by any brimstone devil.

Ralph. Canst thou conjure with it?

Robin. I can do all these things easily with it:
first, I can make thee drunk with ipecacuan at any tabern in Europe for nothing; that's one of my conjuring works.

Ralph. Our Master Parson says that's nothing.

Robin. True, Ralph; and more, Ralph, if thou hast any mind to Nan Spit, our kitchenmaid, thou mayst have her to thy own use [as
as often as thou wilt, and at midnight.

Ralph. O brave Robin, shall I have Nan
Spit, and to mine own use? On that condition I'll feed thy devil with horseflesh as long as his life, of free cost.

Robin. No more, sweet Ralph: let's go and make clean our boots, which lie foul upon our hands, and then to our conjuring in the Devil's name.

[Scene IX.]

Enter Robin and Ralph with a silver goblet.

Robin. Come, Ralph, did not I tell thee we were for ever made by this Doctor Faustus' book? Ecce signum, here's a simple purchase for horsekeepers; our horses shall eat no hay as long as this lasts.

Enter the Vintner.

Ralph. But, Robin, here comes the vintner.

Robin. Hush! I'll gull him supernaturally.

Drawer, I hope all is paid: God be with you.
Come, Ralph.

Vint. Soft, sir; a word with you. I must [as yet have a goblet paid from you, are you go.

Robin. I, a goblet, Ralph; I, a goblet! I scorn you, and you are but a & c. I, a goblet!
I search me.

Vint. I mean so, sir, with your favour.

[Searches him.]

Robin. How say you now?

Vint. I must say somewhat to your fellow.

You, sir!

Ralph. Me, sir! me, sir! search your fill.

[VINTNER SEARCHES HIM.]

Now, sir, you may be ashamed to burden honest men with a matter [as of truth.

Vint. Well, 't is one of you hath this goblet about you.

Robin. [Aside.] You lie, drawer, 't is afores me. — Sirrah you, I'll teach ye to impeach the honest men; stand by; — I'll scour you for a goblet! — stand aside you had best, I charge you in the name of Belzebub. Look to the goblet, Ralph.
[Aside to RALPH.]

Vint. What mean you, sirrah?

Robin. I'll tell you what I mean. Reads from a book, the inscription: Sanctobororum, Periphrasicon — Nay, I'll tickle you, vintner. Look to the goblet, Ralph.
[Aside to RALPH.]

Polypragmos Belseboram framanto pacostiphos
— Mephistophilus, &c.

[Reads.]

Enter Mephistophilus, sets spits at their backs, and then exit. They run about.

Vint. O nomine Domini! What meanest thou,
Robin? Thou hast no goblet.

Ralph. Peccatum peccatorum! Here's [so thy goblet, good vintner.

[Given the goblet to VINTNER, who exit.]

Robin. Misericordium pro nobis! [What shall I do? Good Devil, forgive me now, and I will never rob thy library more.

Re-enter to them MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Mep. Monarch of hell, under whose black survey

Great potentates do kneel with awful fear,
Upon whose altars thousand souls do lie,
How am I vexed with these villains' charms?
From Constantinople am I hither come
Only for pleasure of these damned slaves.

1 An Inn.

2 Gain.

3 The abuse was left to the actor's inventiveness.

4 In the name of the Lord.

5 Sin of sin.

6 Mercy on us.
THE TRAGICAL HISTORY OF DR. FAUSTUS

Rob. How from Constantinople? You have had a great journey. Will you take sixpence in your purse to pay for your supper, and be gone?

Mep. Well, villains, for your presumption, I transform thee into an ape, and thee into a dog; and so be gone.

Exeunt.

Rob. How, into an ape? That’s brave! I’ll have fine sport with the boys. I’ll get nuts and apples now.

Ralph. And I must be a dog.

Rob. I faith thy head will never be out of the pottage pot.

[Scene X.]

Enter Emperor, Faustus, and a Knight with attendants.

Emp. Master Doctor Faustus, I have heard strange report of thy knowledge in the black art, how that none in my empire nor in the whole world can compare with thee for the rare effects of magic; they say thou hast a familiar spirit, by whom thou canst accomplish what thou list. This, therefore, is my request, that thou let me see some proof of thy skill, that mine eyes may be witnesses to confirm what mine ears have heard reported; and here I swear to thee by the honour of mine imperial crown, that, whatever thou doest, thou shalt be no ways prejudiced or endangered.

Knight. I faith he looks much like a conjurer.

Faust. My gracious sovereign, though I must confess myself far inferior to the report men have published, and nothing answerable to the honour of your imperial majesty, yet for that love and duty binds me thereunto, I am content to do whatsoever your majesty shall command me.

Emp. Then, Doctor Faustus, mark what I shall say.

As I was sometime solitary set
Within my closet, sundry thoughts arose
About the honour of mine ancestors,
How they had won by prowess such exploits,
Got such riches, subduing so many kingdoms,
As we that do succeed, or they that shall Hereafter possess our throne, shall (I fear me) se’er attain to that degree
Of high renown and great authority;
Amongst which kings is Alexander the Great,
Chief spectacle of the world’s pre-eminence,
The bright shining of whose glorious acts
Lightens the world with his reflecting beams,
As, when I heard but motion made of him,
It grieves my soul I never saw the man.

If, therefore, thou by cunning of this art
Canst raise this man from hollow vaults below,
Where lies entomb’d this famous conqueror,
And bring with him his beauteous paramour,
Both in their right shapes, gesture, and attire
They us’d to wear during their time of life,
Thou shalt both satisfy my just desire,
And give me cause to praise thee whilst I live.

Faust. My gracious lord, I am ready to accomplish your request so far forth as by art, and power of my Spirit, I am able to perform.

Knight. I faith that’s just nothing at all.

Faust. But, if it like your Grace, it is not in my ability to present before your eyes the true substantial bodies of those two deceased princes, which long since are consumed to dust.

Knight. Ay, marry, Master Doctor, now there’s a sign of grace in you, when you will confess the truth.

Faust. But such spirits as can lively resemble Alexander and his paramour shall appear before your Grace in that manner that they best liv’d in, in their most flourishing estate; which I doubt not shall sufficiently content your imperial majesty.

Emp. Go to, Master Doctor, let me see them presently.

Knight. Do you hear, Master Doctor? You bring Alexander and his paramour before the Emperor!

Faust. How then, sir?

Knight. I faith that’s as true as Diana turn’d me to a stag!

Faust. No, sir, but when Actæon died, he left the horns for you.

Emp. Exit Mephistophilis. [Aside]

Knight. Nay, an you go to conjuring, I’ll be gone.

Exeunt.

Faust. I’ll meet with you anon for interrupting me so. Here they are, my gracious lord.

Re-enter Mephistophilis with [Spirts in the shape of] Alexander and his Paramour.

Emp. Master Doctor, I heard this lady while she liv’d had a wart or mole in her neck: how shall I know whether it be so or no?

Faust. Your Highness may boldly go and see.

Emp. Sure these are no spirits, but the true substantial bodies of those two deceased princes.

Faust. Will’t please your Highness now to send for the knight that was so pleasant with me here of late?

Emp. One of you call him forth.

[Exit Attendant.]

Re-enter the Knight with a pair of horns on his head.

How now, sir knight! Why I had thought thou had’st been a bachelor, but now I see thou hast a wife, that not only gives thee horns, but makes thee wear them. Feel on thy head.

Knight. Thou damned wretch and execrable dog,
Bred in the concave of some monstrous rock,
How darest thou thus abuse a gentleman? Villain, I say, undo what thou hast done!

Faust. O, not so fast, sir; there’s no haste; thou art, but, good, are you rememb’red how you crossed me in my conference with the Emperor? I think I have met with you for it.
Fau. Away, you villain; what, dost think I am a horse-doctor?
What art thou, Faustus, but a man condemned to die?

Thy fatal time doth draw to final end;
Despair doth drive distrust unto my thoughts:
Couldest these passions with a quiet sleep;
Tush, Christ did call the thief upon the cross;
Then rest thee, Faustus, quiet in concord.
Sings in his chair.

Re-enter HORSE-COURSER, all wet, crying.

Horse-C. Alas, alas! Doctor Fustian, quotha?
Mep. Doctor Lopus was never such a doctor.
Has given me a purgation has purged me of forty dollars; I shall never see them more. But yet, like an ass as I was, I would not budge as by him, for he bade me I should ride him into no water. Now I, thinking my horse had had some rare quality that he would not have had me known of, I, like a venereal youth, rid him into the deep pond at the town’s end. I was so no sooner in the middle of the pond, but my horse vanished away, and I sat upon a bottleneck of hay, never so near drowning in my life. But I’ll seek out my Doctor, and have my forty dollars again, or I’ll make it the dearest horse—[as O, yonder is his snipper-snapper.—Do you hear? You hey-pass, where’s your master?]

Horse-C. But I will speak with him.

Mep. Why, he’s fast asleep. Come some other time.

Horse-C. I’ll speak with him now, or I’ll break his glass windows about his ears.

Mep. I tell thee he has not slept this eight nights.

Horse-C. An he have not slept this eight weeks, I’ll speak with him.

Mep. See where he is, fast asleep.

Horse-C. Ay, this is he. God save you, Master Doctor! Master Doctor! Master Doctor Fustian!—Forty dollars, forty dollars for a bottle of hay!

Mep. Why, thou seest he hears thee not.

Horse-C. So ho, ho!—so ho, ho ([Hollaing in his ear]). No, will you not wake? I’ll make you wake ere I go. ([Pulls Faustus by the leg, and pulls it away.]) Alas, I am undone! What shall I do?

Fau. O my leg, my leg! Help, Mephisto!—philis! call the officers. My leg, my leg!

Mep. Come, villain, to the constable.

Horse-C. O lord, sir, let me go, and I’ll give you forty dollars more.

Mep. Where be they?

Horse-C. I have none about me. Come to my ootry and I’ll give them you.

Mep. Begone quickly.

Horse-COURSER runs away.

Fau. What, is he gone? Farewell he! [as Faustus has his leg again, and the horse-courser,]

Dr. Lopes, physician to Queen Elizabeth, hanged in 1594 on the charge of conspiring to poison the Queen.

A juggler’s term, like "pretto, fly!" Hence applied to the juggler himself. (Bullen.)

1 A Green afterwards, the house of Faustus.
Enter the Duke [of Vandsel]: [Duke, Portugal, Doctor, Wagner, Pinter, Al-Deek] and other courtiers.

Duke. Believe me, Doctor, I am not so much a physician as a philosopher, for I know that the human mind is capable of being moved by the most trivial causes. And what better cause could there be than the love of beauty?

Doctor. Your Majesty, I agree with you. Beauty is the true medicine of the soul. But there is one thing that I cannot understand.

Duke. What is that?

Doctor. Why, it seems to me that beauty is not always appreciated. For example, when I was in Italy, I found that the people there were so enamored of beauty that they would go to any length to please themselves with it.

Duke. That is true, Doctor. But beauty is also a danger, for it can lead to excess.

Doctor. I agree, Your Majesty. That is why I think it is important for us to be cautious in our pursuit of beauty.

Duke. You are right, Doctor. But beauty is also a source of joy. And if we can find a way to balance beauty with reason, then we can truly enjoy its benefits.

Doctor. I believe, Your Majesty, that you are right. But how can we achieve this balance?

Duke. I think, Doctor, that we must always remember that beauty is a gift, and that it is up to us to use it wisely.

Doctor. That is a wise thought, Your Majesty.

Duke. And now, Doctor, let us adjourn. I have a matter of state that I must attend to.

Doctor. As you command, Your Majesty.
Hell calls for right, and with a roaring voice
Says "Faust! I come! This hour is (almost) come!"
And Faustus [now] will come to do thee right.
Mephistophilus gives him a dagger.

Old Man. Ah stay, good Faustus, stay thy desperate steps!
I see an angel hovers o'er thy head,
And, with a vial full of precious grace,
Offers to pour the same into thy soul:
Then call for mercy, and avoid despair.
Faust. Ah, my sweet friend, I feel
Thy words do comfort my distressed soul.

Leave me a while to ponder on my sins.

Old Man. I go, sweet Faustus, but with heavy cheer,
Fearing the ruin of thy hopeless soul. [Exit.]

Faust. Accursed Faustus, where is mercy now?
I do repent; and yet I do despair.
Hell strifes with grace for conquest in my breast:
What shall I do to shun the snares of death?
Mep. Thou traitor, Faustus, I arrest thy soul
For disobedience to my sovereign lord;
Revolt, or I'll in piece meal tear thy flesh.

Faust. Sweet Mephistophilus, entreat thy lord
To pardon my unjust presumption,
And with my blood again I will confirm
My former vow I made to Lucifer.
Mep. Do it now then quickly, with unfeigned heart,
Lost danger do attend thy drift.

[FAUSTUS STABS HIS ARM AND WRITES ON A PAPER WITH HIS BLOOD.]

Faust. Torment, sweet friend, that base and crooked age,
That durst dissuade me from my Lucifer,
With greatest torments that our hell affords.
Mep. His faith is great, I cannot touch his soul;
But what I may afflict his body with
I will attempt, which is but little worth.

Faust. One thing, good servant, let me crave of thee,
To glut the longing of my heart's desire, —
That I might have unto my paramour
That heavenly Helen, which I saw of late,
Whose sweet embraces may extinguish clean
These thoughts that do dissuade me from my vow,
And keep mine oath I made to Lucifer.
Mep. Faustus, this or what else thou shalt desire
Shall be perform'd in twinkling of an eye.

Re-enter Helen.

Faust. Was this the face that launch'd a thousand ships,
And burnt the topless 2 towers of Ilium?
Sweet Helen, make me immortal with a kiss. [Kisses her.] Her lips suck 3 forth my soul; see where it flies.

Come, Helen, come, give me my soul again.

[I pause.]

Here will I dwell, for Heaven be in these lips,
And all is dress that is not Helen.

Enter Old Man.

I will be Paris, and for love of thee,
Instead of Troy, shall Wittenberg be sack'd; 200
And I will combat with weak Menelaus,
And wear th' colours on my plumed crest;
Yea, I will wound Achilles in the heel,
And then return to Helen for a kiss.
Oh, thou art fairer than the evening air;
Chid in the beauty of a thousand stars;
Brighter art thou than flaming Jupiter
When he appear'd to hapless Semele:
More lovely than the monarch of the sky
In wanton Arethusa's azur'd arms: 130
And none but thou shalt be my paramour.

[Exit.]

Old Man. Accursed Faustus, miserable man,
That from thy soul exclav'dst the grace of cast Heathens:

And fly'st the throne of his tribunal seat!

Enter Devils.

Satan begins to sift me with his pride;
As in this furnace God shall try my faith,
My faith, vile hell, shall triumph over thee.
Ambitious fiends! see how the heavens smiles
At your repulse, and laughs your state to scorn!

Hence, hell! for hence I fly unto my God. 150

[Exit.]

[SCENE XIV.] 4

Enter Faustus with the Scholars.

Faust. Ah, gentlemen!
1 Schol. What ails Faustus?
Faust. Ah, my sweet chamber-fellow, had I lived with thee, then had I lived still! but now I die eternally. Look, comes he not, comes he 5 not?
2 Schol. What means Faustus?
3 Schol. Belike he is grown into some sickness by being over solitary.

1 Schol. If it be so, we'll have physicians to 50 cure him. 'Tis but a surfeit. Never fear, man.

Faust. A surfeit of deadly sin that hath damn'd both body and soul.

2 Schol. Yet, Faustus, look up to Heaven; remember God's mercies are infinite.

Faust. But Faustus' offences can never be pardoned: the serpent that tempted Eve may be sav'd, but not Faustus. Ah, gentlemen, hear me with patience, and tremble not at my speeches! Though my heart pants and quiv'-ers to remember that I have been a student here these thirty years, oh, would I had never seen Wittenberg, never read book! And what wonders I have done, all Germany can witness, yea, the world; for which Faustus hath lost both Germany and the world, yea Heaven itself, Heaven, the seat of God, the throne of the blessed, the kingdom of joy; and must remain in hell for ever, hell, ah, hell, for ever! Sweet friends! what shall become of Faustus being in hell for ever?

1 Old Man. 2 Unsuspected in height. 3 Qua - read suck. 4 The same.
Ah, rend not my heart for naming of my Christ!
Yet will I call on him: O spare me, Lucifer!—Where is it now? 'T is gone; and see where God Stretcheth out his arm, and bends his iredful brows!
Mountain and hills come, come and fall on me, And hide me from the heavy wrath of God! No! no! Then will I headlong run into the earth; Earth gape! O no, it will not harbour me! You stars that reign'd at my nativity, Whose influence hath allotted death and hall, Now draw up Faustus like a foggy mist Into the entrails of you labouring clouds, That when they vomit forth into the air, My limbs may issue from their smoky mouths, So that my soul may but ascend to Heaven.

The watch strikes (the half hour).
Ah, half the hour is past! 'T will all be past anon!

O God!
If thou wilt not have mercy on my soul, Yet for Christ's sake whose blood hath ransom'd me, Impose some end to my incessant pain:
Let Faustus live in hell a thousand years— A hundred thousand, and at last be sav'd! O, no end is limited to damned souls!
Why wert thou not a creature wanting soul? Or why is this immortal that thou hast?
Ah, Pythagoras' metempsychosis! were that true,
This soul should fly from me, and I be chang'd Unto some brutish beast! All beasts are happy, For, when they die, Their souls are soon dissolv'd in elements; But mine must live, still to be plag'n'd in hell. Curst be the parents that engend'red me!
No, Faustus: curse thyself: curse Lucifer That hath depriv'd thee of the joys of Heaven.

The clock striketh twelve.
O, it strikes, it strikes! Now, body, turn to air, Or Lucifer will bear thee quick to hell.

Thunder and lightning.
O soul, be chang'd into little water-drops And fall into the ocean—ne'er be found. My God! my God! I look not so fierce on me!

Enter Devils.
Adders and serpents, let me breathe awhile! Ugly hell, gape not! come not, Lucifer! I'll burn my books!—Ah Mephistophilis!

Exeunt [Devils with Faustus.]

Enter Chorus.
[Cho.] Cut is the branch that might have grown full straight, And burned is Apollo's laurel bough, That sometimes grew within this learned man. Faustus is gone; regard his hellish fall, Whose fiendful fortune may exhort the wise Only to wonder at unlawful things, Whose depthness doth entice such forward wits To practise more than heavenly power permits.

ALTHOUGH the world think Machiavel is dead,
Yet was his soul but flown beyond the Alps,

To some perhaps my name is odious,
But such as love me guard me from their tongues;
And let them know that I am Machiavel,
And weigh not men, and therefore not men’s words.
Admir’d I am of those that hate me most.
Though some speak openly against my books,
Yet will they read me, and thereby attain
To Peter’s chair; and when they cast me off,
Are poison’d by my climbing followers.
I count religion but a childish toy,
And hold there is no sin but ignorance.
“Birds of the air will tell of murders past!”
I am ashamed to hear such fooleries.
Many will talk of title to a crown:
What right had Caesar to the empery? 2
Might first made kings, and laws were then most sure
When, like the Drago’s, they were writ in blood.
Hence comes it that a strong-built citadel
Commands much more than letters can import;
Which maxim had [but] Phalaris observ’d,
He had never bellowed, in a brazen bull,
Of great ones’ envy. O’ the poor petty wights
Let me be envi’d and not pitied!
But whither am I bound? I come not, I,
To read a lecture here in Britain,
But to present the tragedy of a Jew,
Who smiles to see how full his bags are cram’d,
Which money was not got without my means.
I crave but this — grace him as he deserves,
And let him not be entertain’d the worse
Because he favours me.

[Exit.] 3

1 The Duc de Guise, who had organised the Massacre of St. Bartholomew in 1572, was assassinated in 1588.
2 Q. Empire.
With other merchandise are safe arriv’d,
And have sent me to know whether yourself
Will come and custom them.
Bar. The ships are safe thou say’st, and richly fraught?
Merc. They are.
Bar. Why then go bid them come ashore,
And bring with them their bills of entry.
I hope our credit in the custom-house
Will serve as well as I were present there.
Go send ’em threescore camels, thirty mules,
And twenty wagons to bring up the ware.
But art thou master in a ship of mine,
And is thy credit not enough for that?
Merc. The very custom barely comes to more Than many merchants of the town are worth,
And therefore far exceeds my credit, sir.
Bar. Go tell ’em the Jew of Malta sent thee,
man:
Tush! who amongst ’em knows not Barabas?
Merc. I go.
Bar. So then, there’s somewhat come.
Sirrah, which of my ships art thou master of?
Merc. Of the Speranza, sir.
Bar. And saw’st thou not Mine argosy at Alexandria?
Thou couldn’t come from Egypt, or by Caire,
But at the entry there into the seas,
Where Nilus pays his tribute to the main,
Thou needs must sail by Alexandria.
Merc. I neither saw them, nor inquir’d of them:
But this we heard some of our seamen say,
They wond’red how you durst with so much wealth
Trust such a crazed vessel, and so far.
Bar. Tush, they are wise! I know her and her strength.
[But] go, thou thy ways, discharge thy ship,
And bid my factor bring his loading in.

Enter a second Merchant.

2 Merch. Thine argosy from Alexandria,
Know, Barabas, doth ride in Malta-road,
Laden with riches, and exceeding store
Of Persian silks, of gold, and orient pearl.
Bar. How chance you came not with those other ships
That sail’d by Egypt?
2 Merch. Sir, we saw ’em not.
Bar. Belike they coasted round by Candy shore
About their oils, or other businesses.
But ’twas ill done of you to come so far
Without the aid or conduct of their ships.
2 Merch. Sir, we were wafted by a Spanish fleet,
That never left us till within a league,
That had the galleys of the Turk in chase.
Bar. O! they were going up to Sicily.
Well, go,
And bid the merchants and my men despatch
And come ashore, and see the fraught discharg’d.

Enter them at the custom-house.
2 Merch. I go. Exit. Bur. Thus trowls our fortune in by land and sea, And thus are we on every side enrich'd. These are blessings promis'd to the Jews, And herein was old Abram's happiness. What more may Heaven do for earthly man Than thus to pour out plenty in their laps, Ripping the bowels of the earth for them, Making the sea their servant, and the winds To drive their substance with successful blasts? Who hath' me but for my happiness? Or who is honour'd now but for his wealth? Rather had I, a Jew, be hated thus, Than pitied in a Christian poverty; For I can see no fruits in all their faith, But malice, falsehood, and excessive pride, Which methinks fits not their profession. Haply some hapless man hath conscience, But for his conscience lives in beggary. They say we are a scatter'd nation: I cannot tell, but we have scammed up More wealth by far than those that brag of faith.

There's Kirrijah Jairim, the great Jew of Greece, Obed in Erezith, Nones in Portugal, Myself in Malta, some in Italy. Many in France, and wealthy every one; Ay, wealthier far than any Christian. I must confess we come not to be kings; That's not our fault: alas, our number's few, And crowns come either by succession, Or urg'd by force; and nothing violent Oft have I heard tell, can be permanent. Give us a peaceful rule, make Christians kings, That thirst so much for principality, I have no charge, "nor many children, But one sole daughter, whom I hold as dear As Agamenmon did his Iphigen; And all I have is hers. But who comes here?

Enter three Jews. 1

1 Jew. Tush, tell not me; 'twas done of policy.

2 Jew. Come, therefore, let us go to Barabas.

For he can counsel best in these affairs; And here he comes. Bar. Why, how now, countrymen! Why flock you thus to me in multitudes? What accident's betided to the Jews?

1 Jew. A fleet of warlike galleys, Barabas, are come from Turkey, and lie in our road; And they this day sit in the council-house To entertain them and their embassy. Bar. Why, let 'em come, so they come not to war; Or let 'em war, so we be conquerors: Nay, let 'em combat, conquer, and kill all! So they spare me, my daughter, and my wealth.

Aside. 1 Jew. Were it for confirmation of a league, They would not come in warlike manner thus.

2 Jew. I fear their coming will afflict us all. Bur. Fond men! what dream you of their multitudes? What need they treat of peace that are in league? The Turks and those of Malta are in league. Tutt, tut, there is some other matter in 't. 1 Jew. Why, Barabas, they come for peace or war. Bar. Haply for neither, but to pass along Towards Venice by the Adriatic Sea: With whom they have attempted many times, But never could effect their stragtem. 3 Jew. And very wisely said. It may be so. 2 Jew. But there's a meeting in the senate-house, And all the Jews in Malta must be there. Bar. Hum; all the Jews in Malta must be there?

Ay, like enough. Why, then, let every man Provide him, and be there for fashion's sake. If anything shall there concern our state, Assure yourselves I'll look unto myself. Aside.

1 Jew. I know you will. Well, brethren, let us go.

2 Jew. Let's take our leaves. Farewell, good Barabas. Bar. Do so. Farewell, Zareath; farewell, Temainta. [Exit Jews.] And, Barabas, now search this secret out; Summon thy senses, call thy wits together: These silly men mistake the matter clean. Long to the Turk did Malta contribute; Which tribute, all in policy, I fear, The Turks have let increase to such a sum As all the wealth of Malta cannot pay; And now by that advantage thinks, belike, To seize upon the town: ay, that he seeks. Howe'er the world go, I'll make sure for one, And seek in time to intercept the worst, Warily guarding that which I ha' got.

Ego mihi semper proximus. Why, let 'em enter, let 'em take the town.

[Scene II.] 4

Enter [Fernever,] Governor of Malta, Knights, and Officers met by Bassoes of the Turk; Calymath.

Fern. Now, Bassoes, what demand you at our hands?

1 Bas. Know, Knights of Malta, that we came from Rhodes, From Cyprus, Candy, and those other Isles That lie betwixt the Mediterranean sea.

Fern. What's Cyprus, Candy, and those other Isles? To us or Malta? What at your hands demand ye? Cal. The ten years' tribute that remains unpaid.

Fern. Alas! my lord, the sum is over-great, I hope your highness will consider us.

Q. servants Expenses. Scrambled.

House; odd. suppose the scene to be shifted here to a street.

\[Footnote: 1\] Foolish. \[Footnote: 2\] Against. \[Footnote: 3\] Misquoted from Terence's Andria, iv. 1. 12. The words should be "Proximus sum, societatem mihi." (Kilis.) \[Footnote: 4\] Inside the council-house. \[Footnote: 5\] Bashaws or Fashias.
Cal. I wish, grave governor, 't were in my power
To favour you, but 't is my father's cause,
Wherein I may not, nay, I dare not dally.
Fern. Then give us leave, great Selim Calymath. [Consults apart with the Knights.]
Cal. Stand all aside, and let the knights determine,
And send to keep our galleys under sail,
For happily we shall not tarry here. —
Now, governor, how are you resolv'd?
Fern. Thus: since your hard conditions are such
That you will needs have ten years' tribute past,
We may have time to make collection.
Amongst the inhabitants of Malta for 't.
1 Has. That's more than is in our commission.
Cal. What, Callipine! a little courtesy.
Let's know their time, perhaps it is not long;
And 't is more kingily to obtain by peace
Than to enforce conditions by constraint.
What respite ask you, governors?
Fern. But a month.
Cal. We grant a month, but see you keep your promise.
Now launch our galleys back again to sea,
Where we 'll attend the respite you have ta'en,
And for the money send our messenger.
Farewell, great governor and brave Knights of Malta.
Fern. And all good fortune wait on Calymath! Exeunt [CALYMHATH and Bassoes.]
Go one and call those Jews of Malta hither:
Were they not summon'd to appear to-day?
Off. They were, my lord, and here they come.

Enter BARABAS and three Jews.

1 Knight. Have you determined what to say to them?
Fern. Yes, give me leave: — and, Hebrews, how come near.
From the Emperor of Turkey is arriv'd
Great Selim Calymath, his highness' son.
To levy us ten years' tribute past,
Now then, here know that it concerneth us —
Bar. Then, good my lord, to keep your quiet still.
Your lordship shall do well to let them have it.
Fern. Soft, Barabas, there's more longs 't than so.
To what this ten years' tribute will amount,
That we have cast, but cannot compass it
By reason of the wars that robb'd our store;
And therefore are we to request your aid.
Bar. Alas, my lord, we are no soldiers;
And what's our aid against so great a prince?
1 Knight. Tut, Jew, we know thou art no soldier;
Thon art a merchant and a monied man,
And 'tis thy money, Barabas, we seek.
Bar. How, my lord! my money?
Fern. Thine and the rest.
For, to be short, amongst you 't must be had.
1 Jew. Alas, my lord, the most of us are poor.

Fern. Then let the rich increase your portions.
Bar. And strangers with your tribute to be tax'd?
2 Knight. Have strangers leave with us to get their wealth?
Then let them with us contribute.
Bar. How! Equally?
Fern. No, Jew, like infidels.
For through our sufferance of your hateful lives,
Who stand accursed in the sight of Heaven,
These taxes and afflictions are befall'n,
And therefore thus we are determined.
Read there the articles of our decrees.
Reader. "First, the tribute-money of the Turks shall all be levied amongst the Jews, and each of them to pay one half of his estate."
Bar. How, half his estate? I hope you mean not mine.
[Aside.] Fern. Read on.
Reader. "Secondly, he that denies to pay shall straight become a Christian."
Bar. How, a Christian? Hum, what's here to do?
[Aside.] Fern. "Lastly, he that denies this shall absolutely lose all he has."
All three Jews. O my lord, we will give half.
Bar. O earth-mettled villains, and no Hebrews born!
And will you basely thus submit yourselves
To leave your goods to their arbitriment?
Fern. Why, Barabas, wilt thou be christened?
Bar. No, governor, I will be no convertite.
Fern. Then pay thy half.
Bar. Why, know you what you did by this device?
Half of my substance is a city's wealth.
Governor, it was not got so easily;
Nor will I part so slightly therewith.
Fern. Sir, half is the penalty of our decree,
Either pay that, or we will seize on all.
Bar. Corpo di Dio! stay! you shall have half;
Let me be us'd but as my brethren are.
Fern. No, Jew, thou hast denied the articles,
And now it cannot be recall'd.
[Exeunt Officers, on a sign from FERNANNE.]
Bar. Will you then steal my goods?
Is theft the ground of your religion?
Fern. No, Jew, we take particularly thine
To save the ruin of a multitude;
And better one want for the common good
Than many perish for a private man.
Yet, Barabas, we will not banish thee,
But here in Malta, where thou gott'st thy wealth,
Live still; and, if thou canst, get more.
Bar. Christians, what or how can I multiply?
Of naught is nothing made.
1 Knight. From midnight at first thou cam'st to little wealth,
From little unto more, from more to most.
If your first curse fall heavy on thy head,
And make thee poor and scorn'd of all the world,
'Tis not our fault, but thy inherent sin.

4: Refuse. 5: Convert.]
Bar. What, bring you Scripture to confirm your wrongs?
Preach me not out of my possessions.
Some Jews are wicked, as all Christians are;
But say the tribe that I descended of
Were all in general cast away for sin,
Shall I be tried by their transgression?
The man that dealeth righteously shall live;
And which of you can charge me otherwise?
Fern. Out, wretched Barabas! Shouldst thou not thus to justify thyself,
As if we knew not thy profession?
If thou rely upon thy righteousness,
Be patient and thy riches will increase.
Excess of wealth is cause of covetousness:
And covetousness, O. 'tis a monstrous sin.
Bar. Ay, but theft is worse. 'Tush! I take not from me then,
For that is theft; and if you rob me thus,
I must be forc'd to steal and compass more.
1 Knight. Grave governor, list not to his ex-claims.
Convert his mansion to a nunnery;
Re-enter Officers.
His house will harbour many holy nuns.
Fern. It shall be so. Now, officers, have you done?
Off. Ay, my lord, we have seiz'd upon the goods
And wares of Barabas, which being valued,
Amount to more than all the wealth in Malta.
And of the other we have seiz'd half.
[Fern.] Then we'll take order for the residue.
Bar. Well then, my lord, say, are you satisfied?
You have my goods, my money, and my wealth,
My ships, my store, and all that I enjoy'd;
And, having all, you can request no more;
Unless your unrelenting flinty hearts
Suppress all pity in your stony breasts,
And now shall move you to bereave my life.
Fern. No, Barabas, to stain our hands with blood
Is far from us and our profession.
Bar. Why, I esteem that injury far less
To take the lives of miserable men
Than be the causes of their misery.
You have my wealth, the labour of my life,
The comfort of mine age, my children's hope,
And therefore ne'er distinguish of the wrong.
Fern. Content thee, Barabas, thou hast naught but right.
Bar. Your extreme right does me exceeding wrong:
But take it to you, 'tis the devil's name.
Fern. Come, let us in, and gather of these goods
The money for this tribute of the Turk.
1 Knight. 'Tis necessary that be look'd unto;
For if we break our day, we break the league,
And that will prove but simple policy.
Exeunt [all except Barabas and the Jews.]
Bar. Ay, policy! that's their profession,
And not simplicity, as they suggest.
The plagues of Egypt, and the curse of Heaven,
Earth's barrenness, and all men's hatred
Inflict upon them, thou great Primus Motor!
And here upon my knees, striking the earth,
I ban their souls to everlasting pains
And extreme tortures of the fiery deep,
That thus have dealt with me in my distress.
1 Jew. O yet be patient, gentle Barabas!
Bar. O silly brethren, born to see this day,
Why stand you thus unmov'd with my laments?
Why weep you not to think upon my wrongs?
Why pine not I, and die in this distress?
1 Jew. Why, Barabas, as hardly can we brook
The cruel handling of ourselves in this;
Thou seest they have taken half our goods.
Bar. Why did you yield to their exortion?
You were a multitude, and I but one;
And of me only have they taken all.
1 Jew. Yet, Brother Barabas, remember Job.
Bar. What tell you me of Job? I wot his wealth
Was written thus: he had seven thousand sheep,
Three thousand camels, and two hundred yoke
Of labouring oxen, and five hundred
She-asses: but for every one of those,
Had they been valued at indifferent rate,
I had at home, and in mine argosy,
And other ships that came from Egypt last,
As much as would have bought his beasts and him,
And yet have kept enough to live upon:
So that not he, but I may curse the day,
Thy fatal birth-day, forlorn Barabas;
And henceforth wish for an eternal night,
That clouds of darkness may inslose my flesh,
And hide these extreme sorrows from mine eyes:
For only I have toil'd to inherit here
The months of vanity and loss of time,
And painful nights, have been appointed me.
2 Jew. Good Barabas, be patient.
Bar. Ay;
Pray, leave me in my patience. You that
Were ne'er possess'd of wealth, are pleas'd with want;
But give him liberty at least to mourn,
That in a field amidst his enemies
Doth see his soldiers slain, himself disarm'd,
And knows no means of his recovery.
Ay, let me sorrow for this sudden chance;
'Tis in the trouble of my spirit I speak;
Great injuries are not so soon forgot.
1 Jew. Come, let us leave him; in his ieful mood.
Our words will but increase his ecstasy.
2 Jew. On, then; but trust me 'tis a misery.
To see a man in such affliction.—
Farewell, Barabas! Exeunt [the three Jews.]
Bar. Ay, fare you well.
1 For I have toiled only to inherit the months, etc., which have been, etc.
2 Violent emotion.
See the simplicity of these base slaves, Who, for the villains have no wit themselves, Think me to be a senseless lump of clay That will with every water wash to dirt.

No, Barabas is born to better chance, And fram'd of finer mould than common men, That measure naught but by the present time. A reaching thought will search his deepest wits, And cast with cunning for the time to come:

For evils are apt to happen every day. —

Enter Abigail.²

But wither wends my beauteous Abigail? O! what has made my lovely daughter sad? What, woman! moan not for a little loss: Thy father has enough in store for thee.

Abig. Not for myself, but aged Barabas; Father, for thee lamentest Abigail. But I will learn to leave these fruitless tears, And, urg'd thereto with my afflictions, With fierce exclamations run to the senate-house, And in the senate reproach them all, And rend their hearts with tearing of my hair, Till they reduce the wrongs done to my father.

Bar. No, Abigail, things past recovery Are hardly cur'd with exclamations. Be silent, daughter, sufferance breeds ease, And time may yield us an occasion Which on the sudden cannot serve the turn, Besides, my girl, think me not all so fond As negligently to forgo so much Without provision for thyself and me:

Ten thousand portugueses, besides great pearls, Rich costly jewels, and stones infinite, Fearing the worst of this before it fall, I closely hid.

Abig. Where, father?

Bar. In my house, my girl.

Abig. Then shall they never be seen of Barabas:

For they have seiz'd upon thy house and wares. But they will give me leave once more, I trow,

To go into my house.

Abig. That may they not:

For there I left the governor placing nuns, Displacing me; and of thy house they mean To make a nunnery, where none but their own sect must enter.

Bar. My gold! my gold! and all my wealth is gone!

You partial deshavens, have I deserve this plague?

What, will you thus oppose me, luckless stars? To make me desperate in my poverty? And knowing me impatient in distress, Think me so mad as I will hang myself, That I may vanish o'er the earth in air, And leave no memory that e'er I was?

No, I will live; nor loathe I this my life: And, since you leave me in the ocean thus

² The scene seems to change here from the Council-house to the neighbourhoo of Scene I.
³ Redress.
⁴ Portuguese gold coins.
⁵ Foolish.
⁶ Sex.

To sink or swim, and put me to my shifts, I'll rouse my senses and awake myself.

Daughter, I have it! Thou perceiv'st at the plight Wherein these Christians have oppressed me. Be rul'd by me, for in extremity We ought to make bar of no policy.

Abig. Father, whate'er it be to injure them That have so manifestly wronged us,

What will not Abigail attempt?

Bar. Why, so;

Then thus, thou told'st me they have turn'd my house Into a nunnery, and some nuns are there?

Abig. I did.

Bar. Then, Abigail, there must my girl Entreat the abbess to entertain'd.

Abig. How, as a nun?

Bar. Ay, daughter, for religion Bides many mischiefs from suspicion.

Abig. Ay, but, father, they will suspect me I must first do there.

Bar. Let 'em suspect; but be thou so precise As they may think it done of holiness,

Entreat 'em fair, and give them friendly speech,

And seem to them as if thy sins were great,

Till thou has gotten to be entertain'd.

Abig. Thus, father, shall I much dissemble.

Bar. Tush! As good dissemble that thou never meant'st, As first mean truth and then dissemble it. A counterfeit profession is better Than unseen hypocrisy.

Abig. Well, father, say [that] I be entertain'd, What then shall follow?

Bar. This shall follow then:

There have I hid, close underneath the planks That runs along the upper-chamber floor, The gold and jewels which I kept for thee. But here they come; be cunning, Abigail.

Abig. Then, father, go with me.

Bar. No, Abigail, in this It is not necessary I be seen;

For I will seem offended with thee for't. Be close, my girl, for this must fetch my gold.

[They retire.]

Enter Friars [JACOMO and BARNARDINE, Abbess,] and a Nun.

F. Jac. Sisters,

We now are almost at the new-made nunnery. Abb. The better; for we love not to be seen. 'T is thirty winters long since some of us Did stray so far amongst the multitude.

F. Jac. But, madam, this house

And waters⁵ of this new-made nunnery Will much delight you.

Abb. It may be so; but who comes here?

[ABIGAIL comes forward.]

Abig. Grave abbess, and you, happy virgin guide,

Pity the state of a distressed maid.

Abb. What art thou, daughter?

Abig. The hopeless daughter of a hapless Jew, Sacrifice.

¹ So Q. "cloisters," "gardens," and "quarters," have been conjectured as emendations.
The Jew of Malta, wretched Barabas;
Sometimes the owner of a goodly house,
Which they have now turn'd to a nunney.
Abb. Well, daughter, say, what is thy suit with us?
Abig. Fearing the afflictions which my father feels
Proceed from sin, or want of faith in us,
I'd pass away my life in penitence,
And be a novice in your nunnerie,
To make atonement for my labouring soul.
F. Jac. No doubt, brother, but this proceedeth of the spirit.
F. Barn. Ay, and a moving spirit too, brother; but come,
Let us entreat she may be entertain'd.
Abb. Well, daughter, we admit you for a nun.
Abig. First let me as a novice learn to frame
My solitary life to your strict laws,
And let me lodge where I was wont to lie.
I do not doubt, by your divine precepts
And mine own industry, but to profit much.
Bar. As much, I hope, as all I bid is worth.

Abb. Come, daughter, follow us.
Bar. [coming forward.] Why, how now, Abigail, what makes thou
Amongst these hateful Christians?
F. Jac. Hinder her not, thou man of little faith,
For she has mortified herself.
Bar. How! mortified?
F. Jac. And is admitted to the sisterhood.
Bar. Child of perdition, and thy father's shame!
What wilt thou do among these hateful fiends?
I charge thee on my blessing that thou leave
These devils, and their damned heresy.
Abig. Father, give me— [She goes to him.]
Bar. (Whispers to her.) Nay, back, Abigail,—
And think upon the jewels and the gold;
The board is marked thus that covers it. —
Away, accursed, from thy father's sight.
F. Jac. Barabas, although thou art in misbelief,
And wilt not see thine own afflictions,
Yet let thy daughter be no longer blind.
Bar. Blind friar, I reek not thy persuasions,—
(The board is marked thus + that covers it.)

[Aside to Abigail in a whisper.]
For I had rather die than see her thus.
Wilt thou forsake me too in my distress,
Seduced daughter? (Go, forget not!) — As-side.
Becomes it Jews to be so credulous?
(To-morrow early I'll be at the door.) — As-
side.
No, come not at me; if thou wilt be damn'd,
Forget me, see me not, and so be gone.—
(Farewell, remember to-morrow morning.)—
Aside.

Out, out, thou wretch!
[Exeunt, on one side Barabas, on the other side Friar, Abbess, Nun, and Abigail; as they are going out.]

Enter Mathias.

Math. Who's this? Fair Abigail, the rich
Jew's daughter,
Become a nun! Her father's sudden fall
Has humbled her and brought her down to
this.
Tut, she were fitter for a tale of love,
Than to be tired out with orisons;
And better would she far become a bed,
Embraced in a friendly lover's arms,
Than rise at midnight to a solemn mass.

Enter Lodowick.

Lod. Why, how now, Don Mathias! in a dump?
Math. Believe me, noble Lodowick, I have seen
The strangest sight, in my opinion,
That ever I beheld.
Lod. What was't I prithee?
Math. A fair young maid, scarce fourteen years of age,
The sweetest flower in Cytherea's field,
Cropped from the pleasures of the fruitful earth,
And strangely metamorphos'd [to a] nun.
Lod. But say, what was she?
Math. Why, the rich Jew's daughter.
Lod. What, Barabas, whose goods were lately seiz'd?
Is she so fair?
Math. And matchless beautiful,
As, had you seen her, 't would have mov'd your heart,
Though countermin'd with walls of brass, to
love,
Or at the least to pity.
Lod. And if she be so fair as you report,
'T were time well spent to go and visit her.
How say you, shall we?
Math. I must and will, sir; there's no remedy.
Lod. And so will I too, or it shall go hard.
Farewell, Mathias.
Math. Farewell, Lodowick.
[Exeunt [severally.]

ACT II

[Scene I.]

Enter Barabas with a light.

Bar. Thus, like the sad presaging raven, that tolls
The sick man's passport in her hollow beak,
And in the shadow of the silent night
Doth shake contention from her sable wings,
Vex'd and tormented runs poor Barabas
With fatal curses towards these Christians.
The uncertain pleasures of swift-footed Time
Have ta'en their flight, and left me in despair;
And of my former riches rests no more
But bare remembrance, like a soldier's scar;
That has no further comfort for his maim.

1 The scene is before Barabas's house, now a nunnery.

THE JEW OF MALTA

O thou, that with a fiery pillar led'st
The sons of Israel through the dismal shades,
Light Abraham's offspring, and direct the hand
Of Abigail this night; or let the day
Turn to eternal darkness after this!
No sleep can fasten on my watchful eyes,
Nor quiet enter my distemper'd thoughts,
Till I have answer of my Abigail.

[Enter Abigail above.]

Abig. Now have I happily esp'ld a time
To search the planks my father did appoint;
And here behold, unseen, where I have found
The gold, the pearls, and jewels, which he hid.
Bar. Now I remember those old women's words,
Who in my wealth 1 would tell me winter's tales,
And speak of spirits and ghosts that glide by night.
About the place where treasure hath been hid:
And now methinks that I am one of those;
For whilst I live, here lives my soul's sole hope,
And, when I die, here shall my spirit walk.

Abig. Now that my father's fortune were so great
As but to be about this happy place!
'Tis not so happy: yet when we parted last,
He said he would attend me in the morn.
Then, gentle sleep, where'er his body rests,
Give charge to Morpheus that he may dream
A golden dream, and of the sudden walk, 2
Come and receive the treasure I have found.
Bar. Bueno para todos mi ganado en era. 3
As good go on as sit so sadly thus,
But stay, what star shines yonder in the east?
The loadstar of my life, if Abigail.
Who's there?

Abig. Who's that?
Bar. Peace, Abigail, 'tis I.
Abig. Then, father, here receive thy happiness.
Bar. Hast thou't? She throws down bags.
Abig. Here, hast thou't? There's more, and more, and more.
Bar. O my girl,
My gold, my fortune, my felicity!
Strength to my soul, death to mine enemy!
Welcome the first beginner of my bliss!
O Abigail, Abigail, that I had thee here too!
Then my desires were fully satisfied:
But I will practise thy enlargement thence.
O girl! O gold! O beauty! O my bliss!

Abig. Father, it draweth towards midnight now,
And 'bout this time the nuns begin to wake;
To shun suspicion, therefore, let us part.
Bar. Farewell, my joy, and by my fingers take
A kiss from him that sends it from his soul.
[Exit Abigail above.]

Now Phoebe ope the eyelids of the day,

And for the raven wake the morning lark,
That I may hover with her in the air;
Slinging o'er these, as she does o'er her young,
Hermoso placer de los dienos. 4

[Scene II.]

Enter Governor [Fernez], Del Bosco, and Knights.

Fern. Now, captain, tell us whither thou art bound.
Whence is thy ship that anchors in our road?
And why thou cam'st ashore without our leave?
Bosc. Governor of Malta, bither am I bound;
My Ship, The Flying Dragon, is of Spain,
And so am I: Del Bosco is my name;
Vice-admiral unto the Catholic King.
1 Knight. 'Tis true, my lord, therefore entreat him well.
Bosc. Our fraught 6 is Grecians, Turks, and Afri Moors.
For late upon the coast of Corsica,
Because we vail'd 7 not to the [Turkish] 8 fleet,
Their creeping galleys had us in the chase:
But suddenly the wind began to rise,
And then we luff'd and tack'd 9 and fought at ease:
Some have we fir'd, and many have we sunk;
But one amongst the rest became our prize.
The captain's slain, the rest remain our slaves,
Of whom we would make sale in Malta here.
Fern. Martin del Bosco, I have heard of thee:
Welcome to Malta, and to all of us;
But to admit a sale of these thy Turks
We may not, nay, we dare not give consent
By reason of a tributary league.
1 Knight. Del Bosco, as thou lov'st and honour'st us,
Ferrnade our governor against the Turk.
This truce we have is but in hope of gold,
And with that sum he craves might we wage war.
Bosc. Will Knights of Malta be in league with Turks,
And buy it basely too for sums of gold?
My lord, remember that, to Europe's shame,
The Christian Isle of Rhodes, from whence you came,
Was lately lost, and you were stated 10 here
To be at deadly enmity with Turks.
Fern. Captain, we know it, but our forces is small.
Bosc. What is the sum that Calymath requires?
Fern. A hundred thousand crowns.
Bosc. My lord and king hath title to this isle,
And he means quickly to expel you hence;
Therefore be rul'd by me, and keep the gold.
I'll write unto his majesty for aid,
And not depart until I see you free.
Fern. On this condition shall thy Turks be sold.

1 Bullen amends to youth.
2 Dyce amends to wake.
3 Span. "Beautiful pleasure of money."
4 Q. Spanish.
5 Fright.
6 Q. left and looks.
7 Lowered our flags.
8 Established.
9 Established.
Go, officers, and set them straight in show.
[Execut Officers.]

Bosco, thou shalt be Malta's general;
We and our warlike Knights will follow thee
Against these barbarous unbelieving Turks.
Bosco. So shall you imitate those you succeed:
For when their hideous force environ'd Rhodes,
Small though the number was that kept the town,
They fought it out, and not a man surviv'd
To bring the hapless news to Christendom.
Fern. So will we fight it out. Come, let's away!
Proud daring Calymath, instead of gold,
We'll send thee bullets wrapt in smoke and fire.
Claim tribute where thou wilt, we are resolv'd,
Honour is bought with blood and not with gold.
Execut.

[Scene III.] 1

Enter Officers with [Ithamore and other] Slaves.

1 Off. This is the market-place, here let 'em stand:
Fear not their sale, for they'll be quickly bought.
2 Off. Every one's price is written on his back.
And so much must they yield or not be sold.
1 Off. Here comes the Jew; had not his goods been seiz'd,
He'd give us present money for them all.

Enter Barabas.
Bar. In spite of these swine-eating Christians,
Unchosed nation, never circumsa'd,
Such as (poor villains!) were ne'er thought upon.
Till Titus and Vespasian conquer'd us; —
Am I become as wealthy as I was.
They hop'd my daughter would ha' been a nun;
But she's at home, and I have bought a house
As great and fair as is the governor's;
And there in spite of Malta will I dwell.
Having Farnese's hand, whose heart I'll have;
Ay, and his son's too, or it shall go hard.
I am not of the tribe of Levi, I,
That can so soon forget an injury.
We Jews can fawn like spaniels when we please;
And when we grin we bite, yet are our looks
As innocent and harmless as a lamb's.
I learn'd in Florence how to kiss my hand,
Heave up my shoulders when they call me dog.
And drink as low as any barefoot friar;
Hoping to see them starve upon a stall,
Or else be gather'd for in our synagogue,
That, when the offering-basin comes to me,
Even for charity I may spit into 't.
Here comes Don Lodowick, the governor's son,
One that I love for his good father's sake.

Enter Lodowick.

Lod. I hear the wealthy Jew walked this way.

I'll seek him out, and so insinuate,
That I may have a sight of Abigail;
For Don Mathias tells me she is fair.
Bar. [Aside.] Now will I show myself
To have more of the serpent than the dove;
This is — more knave than fool.
Lod. Xand' walks the Jew; now for fair Abigail.
Bar. [Aside.] Ay, ay, no doubt but she's at your command.
Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I am the governor's son.
Bar. I would you were his father, too, sir;
That's all the harm I wish you. [Aside.] The slave looks Like a hog's-cheek new singed.
Bar. Whither walk'st thou, Barabas?
Bar. No further: 'tis a custom held with us,
That when we speak with Gentiles like to you,
We turn into the air to purge ourselves:
For unto us the promise doth belong.
Lod. Well, Barabas, canst help me to a diamond?
Bar. O, sir, your father had my diamonds.
Yet I have one left that will serve your turn: —
I mean my daughter: but ere he shall have her
I'll sacrifice her on a pile of wood.
I ha' the poison of the city for him,
And the white leprosy.
Lod. What sparkle does it give without a foil?
Bar. The diamond that I talk of ne'er was foil'd: —
[Aside.] But when he touches it, it will be foil'd: —
Lod. Pointed it is, good sir — but not for you.
Bar. Pointed it much the better.
Lod. How shows it by night?
Bar. Outshines Cynthia's rays:
— You'll like it better far o' nights than days.
Lod. And what's the price?
Bar. [Aside.] Your life an if you have it. —
O my lord,
We will not jar about the price; come to my house
And I will give't your honour — with a vengeance.
Lod. No, Barabas, I will deserve it first.
Bar. Good sir,
Your father has deserv'd it at my hands,
Who, of mere charity and Christian ruth,
To bring me to religious purity,
And as it were in catechising sort,
To make me mindful of my mortal sins,
Against my will, and whether I would or no,
Seiz'd all I had, and thrust me out o' doors,
[Gold or silver leaf placed under a gum to increase its brilliance.
1 The market-place.
2 Defiled, punning on foil.
And made my house a place for nuns most chaste.

LOD. No doubt your soul shall reap the fruit of it.

BAR. Ay, but, my lord, the harvest is far off.

And yet I know the prayers of those nuns And holy friars, having money for their pains, Are wondrous; — and indeed do no man good —

Aside.

And seeing they are not idle, but still doing, " "Tis likely they in time may reap some fruit, I mean in fulness of perfection.

LOD. Good Barabas, glance 1 not at our holy nuns.

BAR. No, but I do it through a burning zeal.

Hope are long to set the house afire; For though they do a while increase and multiply I'll have a saying to that nunery. — Aside. As for the diamond, sir, I told you of, Come home and there's no price shall make us part, Even for your honourable father's sake. — It shall go hard but I will see your death. — Aside.

But now I must be gone to by a slave.

LOD. And, Barabas, I'll bear thee company.

BAR. Come then — here's the market-place.

What's the price of this slave? Two hundred crowns! 100

Do the Turks weigh so much?

1 QF. Sir, that's his price.

BAR. What, can he steal that you demand so much?

Belike he has some new trick for a purse; And if he has, he is worth three hundred plates. 2

So that, being bought, the town-seal might be got

To keep him for his lifetime from the gallowes.

The sessions day is critical to thieves, And few or none 'scape but by being purg'd. Lod. Rat'st thou this Moor but at two hundred plates? 2

1 QF. No more, my lord.

BAR. Why should this Turk be dearer than that Moor? 100

1 QF. Because he is young and has more qualities.

BAR. What hast thou the philosopher's stone? An thou hast, break my head with it, I'll forgive thee.

Slave. No, sir; I can cut and shave.

BAR. Let me see, sirrah, are you not an old shaver?

Slave. Also, sir! I am a very youth.

BAR. A youth? I'll buy you, and marry [118] you to Lady Vanity, if you do well.

Slave. I will serve you, sir.

BAR. Some wicked trick or other. It may be, under colour of shaving, thou 'lt cut my throat for my goods. Tell me, hast thou thy health well?

Slave. Ay, passing well.

BAR. So much the worse; I must have one that's sickly, an't be but for sparing victuals: 'tis not a stone of beef a day will maintain [130] you in these shops; let me see one that's some-what leaner.

1 QF. Here's a leaner, how like you him?

BAR. Where wast thou born?

Ibā. In Thrace; brought up in Arabia. 130

BAR. So much the better, thou art for my turn. An hundred crowns? I'll have him; there's the coin. [Gives money.]

1 QF. Then mark him, sir, and take him hence.

BAR. Ay, mark him, you were best, for this is he That by my help shall do much villainy. 130

[Aside.]

My lord, farewell. Come, sirrah, you are mine. As for the diamond, it shall be yours; I pray, sir, be no stranger at my house, All that I have shall be at your command.

Enter Mathias and his Mother [Katherine]

Math. What makes the Jew and Lodowick so private?

I fear me 'tis about fair Abigail. [Aside.]

BAR. Yonder comes Don Mathias, let me stay; 9 [Exit Lodowick.]

He loves my daughter, and she holds him dear; But I have sworn to frustrate both their hopes, And be reveng'd upon the governor.

Kath. This Moor is comeliest, is he not?

Speak, son.

Math. No, this is the better, mother; view this well.

BAR. Seem not to know me here before your mother, Lest she mistrust the match that is in hand.

When you have brought her home, come to my house;

Think of me as thy father; son, farewell.

Math. But wherefore talk'd Don Lodowick with you?

BAR. Tush! man, we talk'd of diamonds, not of Abigail.

Kath. Tell me, Mathias, is not that the Jew?

BAR. As for the comment on the Maccabees, I have it, sir, and 'tis at your command. 130

Math. Yes, madam, and my talk with him was About the borrowing of a book or two.

Kath. Converse not with him, he's cast off from heaven.

Thou hast thy crowns, fellow: come, let's away.

Math. Sirrah, Jew, remember the book.

BAR. Marry will I, sir.

[Exeunt [Mathias and his Mother].

Off. Come, I have made

A reasonable market; let's away.

[Exeunt Officers with Slaves.]

BAR. Now let me know thy name, and there- withal

Thy birth, condition, and profession.
Ith. Faith, sir, my birth is but mean; my name's Ithamore; my profession what you please.
Bar. Hast thou no trade? Then listen to my words,
And I will teach thee that shall stick by thee:
First be thou void of these affections, 173
Compassion, love, vain hope, and heartless fear;
Be mov'd at nothing, see thou pity none,
But to thyself smile when the Christians moan.

Ith. O brave! Master, I worship your nose 1 for this.

Bar. As for myself, I walk abroad o' nights
And kill sick people groaning under walls: 153
Sometimes I go about and poison wells;
And now and then, to cherish Christian thieves,
I am content to lose some of my crowns,
That I may, walking in my gallery,
See 'em go pinion'd along by my door.
Being young, I studied physic, and began To practise first upon the Italian;
There I enrich'd the priests with burials,
And always kept the sextons' 2 arms in use.

With digging graves and ringing dead men's knells:
And after that was I an engineer,
And in the wars 'twixt France and Germany,
Under pretence of helping Charles the Fifth,
Slow friend and enemy with my stratagems. 103
Then after that was I an usurer,
And with extorting, oozing, forfeiting,
And tricks belonging unto brokery,
I fill'd the jails with bankrupts in a year,
And with young orphans planted hospitals.

And every moon made some or other mad,
And now and then one hang himself for grief,
Pinning upon his breast a long great scroll
How I with interest tormented him.
But mark how I am blest for plaguing them;
I have as much coin as will buy the town. 150
But tell me now, how hast thou spent thy time?

Ith. Truth, master,
In setting Christian villages on fire,
Chaining of eunuchs, binding galley-slaves. 110
One time I was an oster in an inn,
And in the night-time secretly would I steal
To travellers' chambers, and there cut out their throats.

One at Jerusalem, where the pilgrim's knee'd,
I strowed powder on the marble stones,
And therewithal their knees would rankle so,
That I have laugh'd a good 3 to see the cripples
Go limping home to Christendom on stilts.

Bar. Why this is something. Make account of me
As of thy fellow, we are villains both: 200
Both circumcised, we hate Christians both.
Be true and secret, thou shalt want no gold,
But stand aside, here comes Don Lodowick.

1 Barabbas was represented on the stage with a large false nose. In Bowley's Search for Money (1699) allusion is made to the "artificial Jews of Maltese noses." (Kills.)
2 Practice.
3 In good earnest.

Enter LODOWICK.

lod. O Barabbas, well met;
Where is the diamond you told me of? 238
Bar. I have it for you, sir; please you walk in with me.
What ho, Abigail! open the door, I say.

Enter ABIGAIL [with letters].

Abig. In good time, father; here are letters come
From Ormus, and the post stays here within.
Bar. Give me the letters. — Daughter, do you hear.

Entertain Lodowick the governor's son
With all the courtesy you can afford;
Provided that you keep your maidenhead.
Use him as if he were a Philistine,
Dissemble, swear, protest, vow love to him,
He is not of the seed of Abraham. —
I am a little busy, sir, pray pardon me.
Abigail, bid him welcome for my sake.
Abig. For your sake and his own he's welcome hither.
Bar. Daughter, a word more; kiss him; speak him fair,
And like a cunning Jew so cast about,
That ye be both made sure 4 ere you come out.

[Aside.]

Abig. O father! Don Mathias is my love.
Bar. I know't: yet I say, make love to him;
Do, it is requisite it should be so — [Aside.]
Nay, on my life, it is my factor's hand —
But go you in, I'll think upon the account.

[Execute ABIGAIL and LODOWICK into the house.]

The account is made, for Lodowick — dies.
My factor sends me word a merchant's fled
That owes me for a hundred tun of wine.
I weigh it thus much [snapping his fingers]; I have wealth enough.
For now by this has he kiss'd Abigail;
And she vows love to him, and he to her.
As sure as Heaven rain'd manses for the Jews,
So sure shall he and Don Mathias die:
His father was my chiefest enemy.

Enter MATHIAS.

Whither goes Don Mathias? Stay awhile,
Math. Whither, but to my fair love Abigail?
Bar. Thou know'st, and Heaven can witness it is true,
That I intend my daughter shall be thine.
Math. Ay, Barabbas, or else thou wor'st me much.
Bar. O, Heaven forbid I should have such a thought.
Pardon me though I weep: the governor's son will, whether I will or no, have Abigail:
He sends her letters, bracelets, jewels, rings.
Math. Does she receive them?
Bar. She? No, Mathias, no, but sends them back,
And when he comes, she locks herself up fast;
Yet through the keyhole will he talk to her,
While she runs to the window looking out.

4 Affianced.
When you should come and hale him from the door.

Math. O treacherous Lodowick!

Bar. Even now as I came home, he alipt me in.

And I am sure he is with Abigail.

Math. I'll rouse him thence.

Bar. Not for all Malta, therefore sheathe your sword.

If you love me, no quarrels in my house;

But steal you in, and seem to see him not;

I'll give him such a warning ere he goes

As he shall have small hopes of Abigail.

Away, for here they come.

Re-enter LODOWICK and ABIGAIL.

Math. What, hand in hand! I cannot suffer this.

Bar. Mathias, as thou lov'st me, not a word.

Math. Well, let it pass, another time shall serve.

Exit [into the house.]

Lod. Barabbas, is not that the widow's son?

Bar. Ay, and take heed, for he hath sworn your death.

Lod. My death? What, is the base-born peasant mad?

Bar. No, no, but happily he stands in fear

Of that which you, I think, ne'er dream upon.

My daughter here, a paucity silly girl.

Lod. Why, loves she Don Mathias?

Bar. Doth she not with her smiling answer you?

Abig. [Aside.] He has my heart; I smile

Against my will.

Lod. Barabbas, thou know'st I've lov'd thy daughter long.

Bar. And so has she done you, even from a child.

Lod. And now I can no longer hold my mind.

Bar. Nor I the affection that I bear to you.

Lod. This is thy diamond, tell me shall I have it?

Bar. Win it, and wear it, it is yet unfoll'd.

O! but I know thy lordship would disdain

To marry with the daughter of a Jew;

And yet I'll give her many a golden cross

With Christian posses round about the ring.

Lod. 'Tis not thy wealth, but her that I esteem.

Yet crave I thy consent.

Bar. And mine you have, yet let me talk to her.

This offspring of Cain, this Jevusite,

That never tasted of the Passover,

Nor e'er shall see the land of Canaan,

Nor our Messias that is yet to come;

This gentle maggot, Lodowick, I mean,

Must be deluded. Let him have thy hand,

But keep thy heart till Don Mathias comes.

Aside.

Abig. What, shall I be betroth'd to Lodowick?

Bar. 'Tis no sin to desire a Christian;

For they themselves hold it a principle,

Faith is not to be held with heretics;

But all are heretics that are not Jews;

This follows well, and therefore, daughter, fear not.—

[Aside.]

I have entreated her, and she will grant.

Lod. Then, gentle Abigail, plight thy faith to me.

Abig. I cannot choose, seeing my father bids.

Nothing but death shall part my love and me.

Lod. Now have I that for which my soul hath long'd.

Bar. So have not I, but yet I hope I shall.

Abig. [Aside.] Oh wretched Abigail, what hast thou done?

Lod. Why on the sudden is your colour changed?

Abig. I know not, but farewell, I must be gone.

Bar. Stay her, but let her not speak one word more.

Lod. Mute o'er the sudden! Here's a sudden change.

Bar. O, muse not at it, 'tis the Hebrews' guise,

That maidens new betroth'd should weep awhile.

Trouble her not; sweet Lodowick, depart:

She is thy wife, and thou shalt be mine heir.

Lod. O, is't the custom? Then I am resolv'd;

But rather let the brightsome heavens be dim,

And nature's beauty choke with stifling clouds,

Than my fair Abigail should frown on me.—

There comes the villain, now I'll be reveng'd.

Re-enter MATHIAS.

Bar. Be quiet, Lodowick, it is enough

That I have made thee sure to Abigail.

Lod. Well, let him go.

Bar. Well; but for me, as you went in at doors

You had been stabb'd, but not a word on't now;

Here must no speeches pass, nor swords be drawn.

Math. Suffer me, Barabbas, but to follow him.

Bar. No; so shall I, if any hurt be done,

Be made an accensory of your deeds.

Revenge it on him when you meet him next.

Math. For this I'll have his heart.

Bar. Do so; lo, here I give thee Abigail.

Math. What greater gift can poor Mathias have?

Shall Lodowick rob me of so fair a love?

My life is not so dear as Abigail.

Bar. My heart misgives me, that, to cross

Your love,

He's with your mother; therefore after him.

Math. What, is he gone unto my mother?

Bar. Nay, if you will, stay till she comes herself.

Math. I cannot stay; for if my mother come,

She'll die with grief.

Exit.
Abig. I cannot take my leave of him for tears.

Father, why have you thus incensed them both?

Bar. What's that to thee?

Abig. I'll make 'em friends again.

Bar. You'll make 'em friends! Are there not Jews now?

In Malta, but thou must dote upon a Christian?

Abig. I will have Don Mathias; he is my love.

Bar. Yes, you shall have him. — Go, put her in.

Itha. Ay, I'll put her in. [Puts Abigail in.]

Bar. Now tell me, Ithamore, how lik'st thou this?

Itha. Faith, master, I think by this

You purchase both their lives; is it not so?

Bar. True; and it shall be cunningly perform'd.

Itha. O master, that I might have a hand in this.

Bar. Ay, so thou shalt; 'tis thou must do the deed.

Take this, and bear it to Mathias straight.

[Give a letter.]

And tell him that it comes from Lodowick.

Itha. 'Tis a poison'd, is it not?

Bar. No, no, and yet it might be done that way.

It is a challenge feign'd from Lodowick.

Itha. Fear not; I will so set his heart afire,

That he shall verily think it comes from him.

Bar. I cannot choose but like thy readiness:

Yet be not rash, but do it cunningly.

Itha. As I behave myself in this, employ me hereafter.

Bar. Away then. Exit ITHAMORE.

So, now will I go in to Lodowick,

And, like a cunning spirit, feign some lie,

Till I have set 'em both at enmity. Exit.

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Enter [BELLAMIRA,] a Courtesan.

Bell. Since this town was besieg'd, my gain grows cold.

The time has been that, but for one bare night,

A hundred duels have been freely given:

But now against my will I must be chaste;

And yet I know my beauty doth not fail.

From Venice merchants, and from Padua

Were wont to come rare-witted gentlemen,

Scholars I mean, learned and liberal;

And now, save Filia-Borsa, comes there none,

And he is very seldom from my house;

And here he comes.

Enter PILIA-BORSA.

Pilia. Hold thee, wenche, there's something for thee to spend. [Shows a bag of silver.]

Bell. 'Tis silver. I disdain it.

Enter ITHAMORE.

Bell. Hide the bag.

Pilia. Look not towards him, let's away.

Zoons, what a looking thou keep'st; thou 'tis betray'st a woman.

[Exeunt BELLAMIRA and PILIA-BORSA.]

Itha. O the sweetest face that ever I beheld!

I know she is a courtesan by her attire.

Now would I give a hundred of the Jew's crowns

That I had such a comenite. Well,

I have deliver'd the challenge in such sort,

As meet they will, and fighting die; brave

sport!

Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter MATHIAS.

Matth. This is the place; now Abigail shall see

Whether Mathias holds her dear or no.

Enter LODOWICK.

Math. [reading]. What dar'st the villain write in such base terms?

lod. I did it; and revenge it if thou dar'st.

They fight.

Enter BARABAS, above [on a balcony.]

Bar. O! bravely fought; and yet they thrust not home.

Now, Lodovicco! now, Mathias! So ——

[Both fall.]

So now they have show'd themselves to be tall fellows.

[Cries within. Part 'em, part 'em.

Bar. Ay, part 'em now they are dead. Farewell, farewell. Exit.

Enter FERNZEZ, KATHERINE [and Attendants.]

Fern. What sight is this! — my Lodowick slain!

These arms of mine shall be thy sepulchre.

Kath. Who is this? — My son Mathias slain!

Fern. O Lodowick! had'st thou perish'd by the Turk,

Wretched Fernzez might have veng'd thy death.

Kath. Thy son slew mine, and I'll revenge his death.

Fern. Look, Katherine, look! — thy son gave mine these wounds.

1 Outside of Bellamira's house.

2 A street.

3 Q. places reading after Enter Lodowick.

4 Brave.
Kath. O leave to grieve me, I am griev'd enough.
Fena. O! that my sighs could turn to lively breath;
And these my tears to blood, that he might live.
Kath. Who made them enemies?
Fena. I know not, and that grieves me most of all.
Kath. My son lov'd thine.
Fena. And so did Lodowick him.
Kath. Lend me that weapon that did kill my son.
And it shall murder me.
Fena. Nay, madam, stay; that weapon was my son's.
And on that rather should Ferneze die.
Kath. Hold, let's inquire the causes of their deaths,
That we may venge their blood upon their heads.
Fena. Then take them up, and let them be interred.
Within one sacred monument of stone;
Upon which altar I will offer up
My daily sacrifices of sighs and tears,
And with my prayers pierce impartial heavens,
Till they [reveal] the causes of our smarts,
Which fore'd their hands divide united hearts.
Come, Katherina, our losses equal are;
Then of true grief let us take equal share.

Exeunt [with the bodies].

SCENE III. 1

Enter ITHAMORE.

Ith. Why, was there ever seen such villainy,
So neatly plotted, and so well perform'd?
Both held in hand, and flatly both beguil'd?

Enter ABIGAIL.

Abig. Why, how now, Ithamore, why laugh'st thou so?
Ith. O mistress, ha! ha! ha!
Abig. Why, what all'st thou?
Ith. O my master!
Abig. Ha!
Ith. O mistress! I have the bravest, gravest, secret, subtle, bottle-nose'd knave to my master, that ever gentleman had.

Abig. Say, knave, why rail'st upon my father thus?
Ith. O, my master has the bravest policy.
Abig. Wherein?
Ith. Why, know you not?
Abig. Why, no.
Ith. Know you not of Mathias' and Don Lodowick's disaster?
Abig. No, what was it?
Ith. Why, the devil invented a challenge, [so my master writ it, and I carried it, first to Lodowick, and imprimis to Mathias.
And then they met, [and,] as the story says,
In solemn wise they ended both their days.

Abig. And was my father furtherer of their deaths?

1 A room in Barabas's house.

Itha. Am I Ithamore?
Abig. Yes.
Ith. So sure did your father write, and I carry the challenge.
Abig. Well, Ithamore, let me request thee this:
Go to the new-made nunny, and inquire
For any of the friars of Saint Jacques,
And say, I pray them come and speak with me.
Ith. I pray, mistress, will you answer me but one question?
Abig. Well, sirrah, what is't?
Ith. A very feeling one: have not the nun's fine sport with the friars now and then?
Abig. Go to, sirrah sauce, is this your question? Get ye gone.
Ith. I will, forsooth, mistress.
Exit.
Abig. Hard-hearted father, unkind Barabas!

Was this the pursuit of thy policy!
To make me show them favour severally,
That by their favour they should both be slain?
Admit thou lov'dst not Lodowick for his sire, 8
Yet Mathias ne'er offended thee;
But thou wert set upon extreme revenge,
Because the [sire] 4 dispossest thee once,
And could'st not venge it, but upon his son,
Nor on his son, but by Mathias’ means;
Nor on Mathias, but by murdering me.
But I perceive there is no love on earth,
Pity in Jews, nor piety in Turks.
But here comes cursed Ithamore, with the friar.

Enter ITHAMORE and Friar [JACOMO].

F. Jac. Virgo, salve.
Ith. When I seek you!
Abig. Welcome, grave friar; Ithamore, be gone.

Exit [ITHAMORE].

Know, holy sir, I am bold to solicit thee.
F. Jac. Wherein?
Abig. To get me be admitted for a nun.
F. Jac. Why, Abigail, it is not yet long since
That I did labour thy admission,
And then thou did'st not like that holy life.
Abig. Then were my thoughts so frail and unconfirm'd,
And I was chain'd to follies of the world:
But now experience, purchased with grief,
Has made me see the difference of things.
My sinful soul, alas, hath pace'd too long
The fatal labyrinth of misbelief,

Far from the Sun 5 that gives eternal life.
F. Jac. Who taught thee this?
Abig. The abbess of the house,
Whose zealous admonition I embrace:
O, therefore, Jacomo, let me be one,
Although unworthy, of that sisterhood.

F. Jac. Abigail, I will, but see thou change no more,
For that will be most heavy to thy soul.
Abig. That was my father's fault.
F. Jac. Th' father's! how? Abig. Nay, you shall pardon me. [Aside.] O Barabas, Though thou deservest hardly at my hands, Yet never shall these lips bewray thy life. F. Jac. Come, shall we go? Abig. My duty waits on you. Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]

Enter BARABAR, reading a letter.

Bar. What, Abigail become a nun again! False and unkind; what, hast thou lost thy father? And all unknown, and unconstraining of me, Art thou again got to the nunnery? Now here she writes, and wills me to repent. Repentance! Sparrow! what pretendeth this? I fear she knows — 'tis so — of my device In Don Mathias' and Lodovic's deaths. If so, 'tis time that it be seen into; For she that varies from me in belief Gives great presumption that she loves me not; Or loving, doth dislike of something done. But who comes here?

[Enter Ithamore.]

O Ithamore, come near; Come near, my love; come near, thy master's life.

My trusty servant, say, my second [self]; For I have now no hope but even in thee, And on that hope my happiness is built.

When saw'st thou Abigail? To-day.

Bar. With whom?

Itha. A friar.

Bar. A friar! false villain, he hath done the deed.

Itha. How, sir?

Bar. Why, made mine Abigail a nun.

Itha. That's no lie, for she sent me for him.

Bar. O unhappily! False, credulous, inconstant Abigail! But let 'em go; and, Ithamore, from hence Ne'er shall she grieve me more with her disgrace; Ne'er shall she live to inherit aught of mine, Be blest of me, nor come within my gates, But perish under my bitter curse, Like Cain by Adam for his brother's death.

Itha. O master!

Bar. Ithamore, attend not for her, I am mov'd.

And she is hateful to my soul and me: And 'less thou yield to this that I entreat, I cannot think but that thou hast'rt my life.

Itha. Who, I, master? Why, I'll run to some rock,

And throw myself headlong into the sea; Why, I'll do anything for your sweet sake.

Bar. O trusty Ithamore, no servant, but my friend, I here adopt thee for mine only heir, All that I have is thine when I am dead, And whilst I live use half; spend as myself. Here take my keys, — I'll give 'em thee anon.

Go buy these garments; but thou shalt not want:

Only know this, that thus thou art to do: But first go fetch me in the pot of rice That for our supper stands upon the fire.

Bar. Thus every villain ambles after wealth, Although he ne'er be richer than in hope. But, hush 't!

Re-enter Ithamore with the pot.

Itha. Here 'tis, master.

Bar. Well said, Ithamore. What, hast thou brought the ladle with thee too?

Itha. Yes, sir, the proverb says he that eats with the devil had need of a long spoon. I have brought you a ladle.

Bar. Very well, Ithamore, then now be secret; And for my sake, whom I so dearly love, Now shalt thou see the death of Abigail, That thou may'st freely live to be my heir.

Itha. Why, master, will you poison her [with a mess of rice porridge]? That will preserve life, make her round and plump, and batter more than you are aware.

Bar. Ay, but, Ithamore, seest thou this? It is a precious powder that I bought Of an Italian in Ancona once, Whose operation is to bind, infect, And poison deeply, yet not appear In forty hours after it is ta'en.

Itha. How, master?

Bar. Thus, Ithamore.

This even they use in Malta here, — 't is called Saint Jacques' Even, — and then I say they use To send their aims unto the numeraries. Among the rest bear this, and set it there; There's a dark entry where they take it in, Where they must neither see the messenger, Nor make inquiry who hath sent it them.

Itha. How so?

Bar. Belike there is some ceremony in 't. There, Ithamore, must thou go place this pot! Stay, let me spice it first.

Itha. Fray do, and let me help you, master. Pray let me taste first.

Bar. Fry thee do [ITHAMORE tastes]. What say'st thou now?

Itha. Troth, master, I'm loth such a pot of pottage should be spoil'd.

Bar. Peace, Ithamore, 'tis better so than spar'd.

Assure thyself thou shalt have broth by the eye, My purse, my coffers, and myself is thine. Itha. Well, master, I go.

Bar. Stay, first let me stir it, Ithamore. As fatal be it to her as the draught Of which great Alexander drunk and died: And with her let it work like Borgia's wine, Whereof his sire, the Pope, was poisoned. In few, the blood of Hydra, Lerna's bane, The juice of leboc, and Coecytus' breath, In short,
And all the poisons of the Stygian pool
Break from the fiery kingdom; and in this Vomit your venom and invem your her
That like a fiend hath left her thus.

Ith. [Aside.] What a blessing has he given't! Was ever pot of rice porridge so sauc'd?—What shall I do with it? [Aside.] Bar. O, my sweet Ithamore, go set it down.
And come again so soon as thou hast done,
For I have other business for thee.

Ith. Here's a drench to poison a whole stable of Flanders mares. I'll carry 't to the nurse with a powder.

Bar. And the horse pestilence to boot; away! Ith. I am gone.
Pay me my wages, for my work is done. Exit.
Bar. I'll pay thee with a vengeance, Ithamore.

[Enter Fernie, Del Bosco, Knights, and Bassano.]

Fern. Welcome, great basso; how fares Calymath?
What wind drives you thus into Malta-road?
Bas. The wind that bloweth all the world besides.

Desire of gold.

Fern. Desire of gold, great sir? That's to be gotten in the Western Ind:
In Malta are no golden minerals.
Bas. To you of Malta thus saith Calymath: The time you took for respite is at hand,
For the performance of your promise pass'd,
And for the tribute-money I am sent.

Fern. Basano, in brief, shalt have no tribute here,
Nor shall the heathens live upon our spoil.
First will we raise the city walls ourselves,
Lay waste the island, hew the temples down,
And, shipping off our goods to Sicily,
Open an entrance for the wasteful sea,
Whose billows beating the resisting banks,
Shall curl and sinew with their circumference.

Bas. Well, Governor, since thou hast broke the league
By flat denial of the promis'd tribute;
Talk not of razóning down your city walls.
You shall not need trouble yourselves so far,
For Selim Calymath shall come himself,
And with brass bullets batter down your towers,
And turn proud Malta to a wilderness
For these intolerable wrongs of yours;
And so farewell.

Fern. Farewell. [Exit Bassano.]
And now, you men of Malta, look about,
And let's provide to welcome Calymath.
Close your portcullis, charge your basilisks,
And as you profitably take up arms,
So now courageously encounter them;
For by this answer, broken is the league,
And naught is to be look'd for now but war,
And naught to us more welcome is than war.

[Scene VI.] 8

Enter Friar [Jacomo] and Friar [Barnardine].

F. [Jac.] O, brother, brother, all the nuns are sick,
And physic will not help them; they must die.
F. [Barn.] The abbess sent for me to be confess'd.
O, what a sad confession will there be!
F. Jac. And so did fair Maria send for me. I'll to her lodging; whereabout she lies. Exit.

Enter Abigail.

F. Barn. What, all dead, save only Abigail? Abig. And I shall die too, for I feel death coming.
Where is the friar that convers'd with me? F. Barn. O, he is gone to see the other nuns.
Abig. I sent for him, but seeing you are come,
Be you my ghostly father: and first know,
That in this house I liv'd religiously,
Chaste, and devout, much sorrowing for my sins;
But ere I came 12
F. Barn. What then? Abig. I did offend high Heaven so grievously,
As I am almost desperate for my sins;
And one offence torments me more than all.
You knew Mathias and Don Lodowick?
F. Barn. Yes, what of them?
Abig. My father did contract me to 'em both:
First to Don Lodowick; him I never lov'd;
Mathias was the man that I had dear,
And for his sake did I become a nun.
F. Barn. So, say how were their end?
Abig. Both jealous of my love, envi'd each other,
And by my father's practice, which is there
Set down at large, the gallants were both slain.

F. Barn. O monstrous villainy!
Abig. To work my peace, this I confess to thee;
Reveal it not, for then my father dies.
F. Barn. Know that confession must not be reveal'd,
The canon law forbids it, and the priest
That makes it known, being degraded first.
Shall be condemn'd; and then sent to the fire.
Abig. So I have heard; pray, therefore keep it close.
Death seizeth on my heart: ah, gentle friar,
Convert my father that he may be sav'd,
And witness that I die a Christian. [Dies.]
F. Barn. Ay, and a virgin too; that grieves me most.
But I must to the Jew and exclaim on him,
And make him stand in fear of me.

Re-enter Friar [Jacomo].

F. Jac. O brother, all the nuns are dead, let's bury them.
F. Barn. First help to bury this, then go with me
And help me to exclaim against the Jew.

2 The interior of a convent. 8 Plot.

ACT IV

[Scene I.]

Enter Barbà and Ithamore. Bells within.

Bar. There is no music to a Christian’s knell;
How sweet the bells ring now the nuns are dead,
That sound at other times like tinker’s paws I
Was afraid the poison had not wrought;
Or, though it wrought, it would have done no good,
For every year they swell, and yet they live;
Now all are dead, not one remains alive.

Ith. That’s brave, master, but think you it will not be known?

Bar. How can it, if we two be secret?

Ith. For my part fear you not.

Bar. I’d cut thy throat if I did.

Ith. And reason too.

But here’s a royal monastery hard by;
Good master, let me poison all the monks.

Bar. Thou shalt not need, for now the nuns are dead.

They’ll die with grief.

Ith. Do you not sorrow for your daughter’s death?

Bar. No, but I grieve because she liv’d so long.

An Hebrew born, and would become a Christian!

Casso, a diablo.

Enter Friar Jacomo and Friar Barnardine.

Ith. Look, look, master, here come two religious cataplasm.

Bar. I smell ‘em ere they came.

Ith. God’s-mercy, nurse! Come, let’s begone.

F. Barn. Stay, wicked Jew, repent, I say, and stay.

F. Jac. Thou hast offended, therefore must be damn’d.

Bar. I fear they know we sent the poison’d broth.

Ith. And so do I, master; therefore speak ‘em fair.

F. Barn. Barbà, thou hast ——

F. Jac. Ay, that thou hast ——

Bar. True, I have money, what though I have?

F. Barn. Thou art a ——

F. Jac. Ay, that thou art a ——

Bar. What needs all this? I know I am a Jew.

F. Barn. Thy daughter ——

F. Jac. Ay, thy daughter ——

Bar. O speak not of her! then I die with grief.

F. Barn. Remember that ——

F. Jac. Ay, remember that ——

Bar. I must needs say that I have been a great warrer.

F. Barn. Thou hast committed ——

Bar. Forgification — but that was in another country; and besides, the wench is dead.

F. Barn. Ay, but, Barbàs.

Remember Mathias and Don Lodowick.

Bar. Why, what of them?

F. Barn. I will not say that by a for’g’d chal-lenge they met.

[Aside.] She has confest, and we are both undone,—

My bosom inmates! — but I must dis-seemble. —

O holy friars, the burden of my sins

Lie heavy on my soul; then pray you tell me,

Is’t not too late now to turn Christian?

I have been zealous in the Jewish faith,

Hard-hearted to the poor, a covetous wretch,

That would for lucre’s sake have sold my soul.

A hundred for a hundred I have ta’en;

And now for store of wealth may I compare

With all the Jews of Malta; but what is wealth?

I am a Jew, and therefore am I lost.

Would penance serve to atone for this my sin,

I could afford to whip myself to death ——

Ith. And so could I; but penance will not serve.

Bar. To fast, to pray, and wear a shirt of hair,

And on my knees creep to Jerusalem.

Callars of wine, and sollars full of wheat,

Warehouses stuff’d with spices and with drugs,

Whole chests of gold, in bullion, and in coin,

Besides I know not how much weight in pearl,

Orient and round, have I within my house;

At Alexandria, merchandize unsold:

But yesterday two ships went from this town,

Their voyage will be worth ten thousand crowns.

In Florence, Venice, Antwerp, London, Seville, Frankfurt, Lubeck, Moscow, and where not,

Have I debts owing; and in most of these,

Great sums of money lying in the bane;

All this I’ll give to some religious house

So I may be baptiz’d, and live therein.

F. Jac. O good Barbàs, come to our house.

F. Barn. O no, good Barbàs, come to our house;

And, Barbàs, you know ——

Bar. I know that I have highly sinn’d.

You shall convert me, you shall have all my wealth.

F. Jac. O Barbàs, their laws are strict.

Bar. I know they are, and I will be with you.

F. Barn. They wear no shirts, and they go barefoot too.

Bar. Then ‘t is not for me; and I am resolv’d you shall confess me, and have all my goods.

1 A street. 2 Equal to. 3 A petty oath. (Italian).
F. Jac. Good Barabas, come to me. Bar. You see I answer him, and yet he stays; Rid him away, and go you home with me. F. Jac. I’ll be with you to-night. Bar. Come to my house at one o’clock this night. F. Jac. You hear your answer, and you may be gone. F. Barn. Why, go, get you away. F. Jac. I will not go for thee. F. Barn. Not then I’ll make thee, [rogue]. F. Jac. How, dost call me rogue? They fight. Itha. Part ’em, master, part ’em. [Bar.] This is mere frailty, brethren; be content.

Exit [ITHAMORE with Friar BARNARDINE]

I never heard of any man but he Malign’d the order of the Jacobins: But do you think that I believe his words? Why, brother, you converted Abigail; And I am bound in charity to requite it, And so I will. O Jacomo, fail not, but come. F. Jac. But Barabas, who shall be your godfathers? For presently you shall be shriv’d. Bar. Marry, the Turk shall be one of my godfathers, But not a word to any of your convent. F. Jac. I warrant thee, Barabas. Exit. Bar. So, now the fear is past, and I am safe, For he that shriv’d her is within my house; What if I murder’d him ere Jacomo comes? Now I have such a plot for both their lives: As never Jew nor Christian knew the like: One turn’d my daughter, therefore he shall die; The other knows enough to have my life, Therefore ’tis not requisite he should live. But are not both these wise men to suppose That I will leave my house, my goods, and all, To fast and be well whipt? I’ll none of that. Now, Friar Barnardine, I come to you, I’ll feast you, lodge you, give you fair words, And after that, I and my trusty Turk — No more, but so: it must and shall be done. [Exit.]

[SCENE II.] Enter [BARABAS and ITHAMORE. Bar. Ithamore, tell me, is the friar asleep? Itha. Yes; and I know not what the reason is, Do what I can he will not strip himself, Nor go to bed, but sleeps in his own clothes. I fear he me mistrusts what we intend. Bar. No, ’tis an order which the friars use. Yet, if he knew our meanings, could he scape?

[So Tucker Brooks. Q. ges.]

1 Ithamore. 2 A room in the house of Barabas.

Itha. No, none can hear him, cry he ne’er so loud. Bar. Why, true, therefore did I place him there. The other chambers open towards the street. Itha. You loiter, master; wherefore stay we thus? O how I long to see him shake his heels. Bar. Come on, sirrah. Off with your girdle, make a handsome noose. [ITHAMORE takes off his girdle and ties a noose in it.]

Friar, awake! [They put the noose round the Friar’s neck.]

’Tis neatly done, sir, here’s no print at all. Bar. Then is it as it should be; take him up. Itha. Nay, master, be rul’d by me a little. [Stands the body upright against the wall and puts a staff in its hand.] So, let him lean upon his staff. Excellent! he stands as if he were begging of bacon. Bar. Who would not think but that this friar liv’d? What time o’ night is’t now, sweet Ithamore? Itha. Towards one. Bar. Then will not Jacomo be long from hence. [Exeunt.]

[SCENE III.] Enter Friar JACOMO.

F. Jac. This is the hour wherein I shall proceed; O happy hour wherein I shall convert An infidel, and bring his gold into Our treasury! But soft, is not this Barnardine? It is; And, understanding I should come this way, Stands here a purpose, meaning me some wrong, And intercept my going to the Jew. — Barnardine! Wilt thou not speak? Thou think’st I see thee not; Away, I’d wish thee, and let me go by. No, wilt thou not? Nay, then, I’ll force my way; And see, a staff stands ready for the purpose: As thou lik’st that, stop me another time. [Takes the staff and] strikes the body, which falls down.

6 It would appear from the following scene that the body was stood up outside of the house.

7 Outside Barabas’s house.
Enter Ithamore.

Itham. I never knew a man take his death so patiently as this friar. He was ready to leap off thealer the haberd was about his neck; and when the hangman had put on his hempen tippet, he made such haste to his prayers, as if he had [as had another cure to serve. Well, go whiter he will, I'll be none of his followers in haste; and, now I think on't, going to the execution, a fellow met me with a muschatoes [as like a raven's wing, and a dagger with a hilt like a warm- ing-pan, and he gave me a letter from one Madam Bellamira, saluting me in such sort as if he had meant to make clean boots with his lips; the effect was, that I should come to her house. I wonder what the reason is; it [as may be she sees more in me than I can find in myself; for she writes further, that she loves me ever since she saw me, and who would not requite such love? Here's her house, and here she comes, and now would I were gone; I am [as not worthy to look upon her.

Pilia. This is the gentleman you writ to.

Itham. [Aside.] Gentleman! he flouts me; what gentry can be in a poor Turk of tenpence? I'll be gone.

Bell. Is't not a sweet-foad youth, Pilia?

Itham. [Aside.] Again, 'sweet youth!'—Did not you, sir, bring the sweet youth a letter?

Pilia. I did, sir, and from this gentlewoman, who, as myself, and the rest of the family, [as stand or fall at your service.

Bell. Though woman's modesty should hale me back,
I can withhold no longer; welcome, sweet love.

Itham. [Aside.] Now am I clean, or rather fairly, out of the way.

Bell. Whither so soon?

Itham. [Aside.] I'll go steal some money from my master to make me handsome.—Pray pardon me, I must go and see a ship discharge.

Bell. Canst thou be so unkind to leave me thus?

Pilia. An ye did but know how she loves you,

Itham. Nay, I care not how much she loves me—Sweet Bellamira, would I had my master's wealth for thy sake!

Pilia. And you can have it, sir, as if you please.

Itham. If 'twere above ground, I could and would have it; but he hides and buries it up, as partridges do their eggs, under the earth.

Pilia. And is 't not possible to find it out?

Itham. By no means possible.

Bell. [Aside to Pilia-Borsa.] What shall we do with this base villain then?

Pilia. Upon mine own freehold, within forty feet of the gallows, Roning his neck-verse, [as I take it, looking of [a friar's execution, whom I saluted with an old hempen proverb, Hodie tibi, cras mihi, and so I left him to the mercy of the hangman: but the exercise [as being done, see where he comes.

Enter Ithamore.

Itham. I never knew a man take his death so patiently as this friar. He was ready to leap off thealer the haberd was about his neck; and when the hangman had put on his hempen tippet, he made such haste to his prayers, as if he had [as had another cure to serve. Pilia. And is 't not possible to find it out?

Itham. By no means possible.

Bell. [Aside to Pilia-Borsa.] What shall we do with this base villain then?

1 Delayed.
2 A remiss of Bellamira's house.
3 Brave.
Pilia. [Aside to her.] Let me alone; do but you speak him fair.

But, [Sir.] you know some secrets of the Jew,
Which, if they were reveal’d, would do him harm.

Ith. Ay, and such as— Go to, no more! I’ll make him send me half he has, and glad heescapes so too. Pen and ink; I’ll write unto him; we’ll have money straight.

Pilia. Send for a hundred crowns at least.

Ith. [Ithamore] writes.

Ith. Ten hundred thousand crowns. "Master Barabas."

Pilia. Write not so submissively, but threat-

Ith. [writing.] "Sirrah, Barabas, send me a hundred crowns."

Pilia. Put in two hundred at least.

Ith. [writing.] "I charge thee, send me three hundred by this bearer, and this shall be [as your warrant: if you do not—no more, but so."

Pilia. Tell him you will confese.

Ith. [writing.] "Otherwise I’ll confess all."

—Vanish, and return in a twinkl.

Pilia. Let me alone; I’ll use him in his kind.

[Exit Pilia-Borsa with the letter.]

Ith. Hang him, Jew! Bell. Now, gentle Ithamore, lie in my lap.—

Where are my maids? Provide a running banquet;
Send to the merchant, bid him bring me silks,
Shall Ithamore, my love, go in such rags?

Ith. And bid the jeweller come hither too.

Bell. I have no husband, sweet; I’ll marry thee.

Ith. Content: but we will leave this paltry land,
And sail from hence to Greece, to lovely Greece,
I’ll be thy Jason, thou my golden fleece;
Where painted carpets o’er the meads are hurl’d,
And Bacchus’ vineyards overspread the world;
Where woods and forests go in goodly green,
I’ll be Adonis, thou shalt be Love’s Queen.
The meads, the orchards, and the primrose-

Instead of sedge and reed, bear sugar-canes;

Then in those groves, by Dis above,
Shalt live with me and be my love.

Bell. Whither will I not go with gentle Ith-}

more?

Re-enter Pilia-Borsa.

Ith. How now! hast thou the gold?

Pilia. Yes.

Ith. But came it freely? Did the cow give down her milk freely?

Pilia. At reading of the letter, he star’d and stamp’d and turn’d aside. I took him by [six the beard, and look’d upon him thus; told him he were best to send it; then he hugg’d and embrac’d me.

Ith. Rather for fear than love.

Pilia. Then, like a Jew, he laugh’d and [n jeer’d, and told me be lov’d me for your sake, and said what a faithful servant you had been.

Ith. The more villain he to keep me thus.

Here’s goodly fare, is there not?

Pilia. To conclude, he gave me ten crowns.

[Give the money to Ithamore.]

Ith. But ten? I’ll not leave him worth a grey goat. Give me a ramm of paper; we’ll have a kingdom of gold for’t.

Pilia. Write for five hundred croons.

Ith. [writing.] "Sirrah, Jew, as you love your life send me five hundred crowns, and give the bearer one hundred." Tell him I must have’t.

Pilia. I warrant your worship shall have it.

Ith. And if he ask why I demand so much, tell him I scorn to write a line under a hundred crowns.

Pilia. You’d make a rich poet, sir. I am gone.

Bell. Tis not thy money, but thysel I weigh;

Thus Bellamira esteems of gold.

[Throws it aside.]

But thus of thee.

Ith. That kiss again! she runs division of my lips.

What an eye she casts on me! It twinkles like a star.

Bell. Come, my dear love, let’s in and sleep togerter.

Ith. O, that ten thousand nights were put in one, that we might sleep seven years together afore we wake!

Bell. Come, amorous wagg, first banquet, and then sleep.

[Exit.]

Enter Barabas, reading a letter.

Bar. "Barabas, send me three hundred crowns.—"

Plain Barabas! O, that wicked courteous! He was not wont to call me Barabas.

"Or else I will confess: ’ay, there it goes:
But, if I get him, coup de gorge for that.

He sent a shaggy trotter’d staring slave,
That when he speaks draws out his grisly

And winds it twice or thrice about his ear;
Whose face has been a grindstone for men’s swords;

His hands are hack’d, some fingers cut quite off;

Who, when he speaks, grunts like a hog, and looks
Like one that is employ’d in catzerie
And cross-bitting;—such a rogue.

As is the husband to a hundred whomes:
And I by him must send three hundred crowns!

Well, my hope is, he will not stay there still; and when he comes,—O, that he were but here!"
Enter PILIA-BORSA.

Pilia. Jew, I must ha' more gold.
Bar. Why, want'st thou any of thy tale? 1

Pilia. No; but three hundred will not serve his turn.
Bar. Not serve his turn, sir?
Pilia. No, sir; and, therefore, I must have five hundred more.
Bar. I'll rather ——
Pilia. O good words, sir, and send it you were best! See, there's his letter. [Gives letter.]
Bar. Might he not as well come as send? Pray bid him come and fetch it: what he writes for you, ye shall have straight.

Pilia. Ay, and the rest too, or else ——
Bar. [Aside.] I must make this villain away.— Please you dine with me, sir; — and you shall be most heartily poison'd. 3

Pilia. No, God-a-mercy. Shall I have these crowns?
Bar. I cannot do it, I have lost my keys.
Pilia. O, if that be all, I can pick open your locks.
Bar. Or climb up to your counting-house window: you know my meaning.

Pilia. I know enough, and therefore talk not to me of your counting-house. The gold or [in] know, Jew, it is in my power to hang thee.
Bar. [Aside.] I am betray'd. —
'Tis not five hundred crowns that I esteem,
I am not mov'd at that: this angers me,
That he, who knows I love him as myself,
Should write in this imperious vein. Why, sir,
You know I have no child, and unto whom Should I leave all but unto Ithamore?

Pilia. Here's many words, but no crowns.
The crowns!
Bar. Commend me to him, sir, most humbly,
And unto your good mistress, as unknown.

Pilia. Speak, shall I have em, sir?
Bar. Sir, here they are. —

[Give money.] 4
O, that I should part with so much gold! —
Here, take 'em, fellow, with as good a will—[Aside;] As I would see thee hang'd. — O, love stops my breath:
Never lov'd man servant as I do Ithamore!
Pilia. I know it, sir.
Bar. Pray, when, sir, shall I see you at my house?

Pilia. Soon enough, to your cost, sir. Fare you well.
Bar. Nay, to thine own cost, villain, if thou com'st.

Exit.

Pilia. Soon enough, to your cost, sir. Fare you well.
Bar. Nay, to thine own cost, villain, if thou com'st.

Was ever Jew tormented as I am?
To have a shag-rag knave to come, —
Three hundred crowns, — and then five hundred crowns!
Well, I must seek a means to rid 'em all, —
And presently: for in his villany
He will tell all he knows, and I shall die for 't.
I have it:
I will in some disguise go see the slave,
And how the villain revels with my gold. Exit.

[SCENE VI.] 2

Enter Courtesan [Bellamira,] Ithamore, and PILIA-BORSA.

Bell. I'll pledge thee, love, and therefore drink it off.
Itha. Say'st thou me so? Have at it; and, do you hear? [Whispers.]
Bell. Go to, it shall be so.
Itha. Of that condition I will drink it up.
Here's to thee!
Bell. Nay, I'll have all or none.
Itha. There, if thou lov'st me, do not leave a drop.
Bell. Love thee! fill me three glasses.
Itha. Three and fifty dozen, I'll pledge thee.
Pilia. Knavely spoke, and like a knight-at-arms.
Itha. Hey, Rivo Castiliano! 5 a man's a man!
Bell. Now to the Jew.
Itha. Ha! to the Jew, and send me money he was best.
Pilia. What would 'st thou do if he should send thee none?
Itha. Do nothing; but I know what I know;
he's a murderer.
Bell. I had not thought he had been so brave a man.
Itha. You knew Mathias and the governor's son; he and I killed 'em both, and yet never touch'd you.
Pilia. O, bravely done.
Itha. I carried the broth that poison'd the nuns; and he and I, snickel hand too fast, — strangled a friar.
Bell. How alone?
Itha. We two; and 'twas never known, nor shall never be for me.
Pilia. [Aside to Bellamira.] This shall with me unto the governor.
Bell. [Aside to Pilia-Borsa.] And fit it should: but first let's ha' more gold, —
Come, gentle Ithamore, lie in my lap.
Itha. Love me little, love me long. Let music rumble

Whist I in thy innoy 6 lap do tumble.

Enter BARBARA, with a lute, disguis'd.

Bell. A French musician! Come, let's hear your skill.
Bar. Must tyna my lute for sound, twang, twang, first.
Itha. Wilt drink, Frenchman? Here's to [is thee with a —— Pox on this drunken hoicup! Bar. Gramercy, monsieur.
Bell. Prythee, Pilia-Borsa, bid the fiddler give me the posy in his hat there.
Pilia. Sirrah, you must give my mistress your posy.
Bar. A votre commandement, madame.
Bell. How sweet, my Ithamore, the flowers smell!

1 Sam. number.

2 A veranda of Bellamira's house.
3 A familiar Bacchanalian exclamation
4 Probably corrupt. "Snickel" is a noose.
5 Dainty, sweet.
6 A veranda of Bellamira's house.
Ika. Like thy breath, sweetheart; no violet like 'em.

Pili. Foh! methinks they stink like a holly-hock.

Bar. [Aside.] So, now I am reveng'd upon 'em all.

The scent thereof was death; I poison'd it.

Ika. Play, fiddler, or I'll out your cat's guts into chitterlings.

Bar. Pardonnez moi, be no in tune yet; so now, now all be in.

Ika. Give him a crown, and fill me out more wine.

Pili. There's two crowns for thee; play.

Bar. [Aside.] How liberally the villain gives me mine own gold!

[Plays.]

Pili. Methinks he fingers very well.

Bar. [Aside.] So did you when you stole my gold?

Pili. How swift he runs!

Bar. [Aside.] You run swifter when you throw my gold out of my window.

Bell. Musician, hast been in Malta long?

Bar. Two, three, four months, madame.

Ika. Dost not know a Jew, one Barabas?

Bar. Very much; monsieur, you no be his man?

Pili. His man?

Ika. I scorn the peasant; tell him so.

Bar. [Aside.] He knows it already.

Ika. 'Tis a strange thing of that Jew, he lives upon pickled grasshoppers and sano'd mushrooms.

Bar. [Aside.] What a slave's this? The governor needs not as I do.

Ika. He never put on clean shirt since he was circumcised.

Bar. [Aside.] O rascal! I change myself twice a day.

Ika. The hat he wears, Judas left under the elder when he hang’d himself.

Bar. [Aside.] 'Twas sent me for a present from the great Cham.

Pili. A musty slave he is; — Whither now, fiddler?

Bar. Pardonnez moi, monsieur, me no be well.

Pili. Farewell, fiddler! One letter more to the Jew.

Bell. Prythee, sweet love, one more, and write it sharp.

Ika. No, I'll send by word of mouth now.

— Bid him deliver thee a thousand crowns, by the same token, that the nuns lov'd rice, that Friar Barnardine slept in his own clothes; my of 'em will do it.

Pili. Let me alone to urge it, now I know the meaning.

Ika. The meaning has a meaning. Come let 't in.

To undo a Jew is charity, and not sin. Exeunt.

1 Referring to the tradition that Judas Iscariot hanged himself on an elder-tree.

2 Q. musty.

ACT V

[Scene I.]

Enter Fernsee, Knights, del Bosco, [and Officers].

Fern. Now, gentlemen, betake you to your arms,

And see that Malta be well fortify’d;

And it behoves you to be resolute;

For Calymath, having hover’d here so long,

Will win the town, or die before the walls.

1 Knight. And die he shall, for we will never yield.

Enter Courtesan [Bellamira] and Pilla-Bomba.

Bell. O, bring us to the governor.

Fern. Away with her! she is a courtesan.

Bell. Whate’er I am, yet, governor, hear me speak:

I bring thee news by whom thy son was slain:

Mathias did it not; it was the Jew.

Pili. Who, besides the slaughter of these gentlemen,

Poison’d his own daughter and the nuns,

Strang’d a friar and I know not what Mischief beside.

Fern. Had we but proof of this —

Bell. Strong proof, my lord; his man ’s now at my lodging,

That was his agent; he ’ll confess it all.

Fern. Go fetch him straight [Exeunt Officers].

I always fear’d that Jew.

Enter [Officers with] Barabas and Ithamore.

Bar. I’ll go alone; dogs! do not hate me thus.

Itha. Nor me neither, I cannot outrun you, constable: — O my belly!

Bar. [Aside.] One dram of powder more had made all sure.

What a damn’d slave was I!

Fern. Make fires, heat irons, let the rack be fetch’d.

1 Knight. Nay, stay, my lord; ’t may be he will confess.

Bar. Confess! what mean you, lords? Who should confess?

Fern. Thou and thy Turk; ’twas you that slew my son.

Itha. Guilty, my lord, I confess. Your son and Mathias were both contracted unto Abigail; he forg’d a counterfeit challenge.

Bar. Who carried that challenge?

Itha. I carried it, I confess; but who writ it? Marry, even he that strang’d Barnardine, poison’d the nuns and his own daughter.

Fern. Away with him! his sight is death to me.

Bar. For what, you men of Malta? Hear me speak:

She is a courtesan, and he a thief.

3 The council-house.
And he my bondman. Let me have law,
For none of this can prejudice my life.
Fern. Once more, away with him; you shall have law. 44
Bar. [Aside.] Devils, do your worst! I'll live in spite of you.—
As these arms spoke, so be it to their souls!—
[Aside.] I hope the poison'd flowers will work
anon.
Exeunt [Officers with Barabas and Ithamore, Bellamira and Pilia-Borra].

Enter [Katharine].

Kath. Was my Mathias murder'd by the Jew?
Fernese, 't was thy son that murder'd him. 46
Fern. Be patient, gentle madam, it was he;
He forg'd the daring challenge made them fight.
Kath. Where is the Jew? Where is that murderer?
Fern. In prison till the law has pass'd on him.

Re-enter [First] Officer.

1 Off. My lord, the courtesan and her man are dead. 50
So is the Turk and Barabas the Jew.
Fern. Dead! 1 Off. Dead, my lord, and here they bring his body.
Bosco. This sudden death of his is very strange.
Fern. Wonder not at it, sir, the Heavens are just; 52
Their deaths were like their lives, then think not of 'em.
Since they are dead, let them be buried;
For the Jew's body, throw that o'er the walls,
To be a prey for vultures and wild beasts.—
So now away, and fortify the town. Exeunt. 56

[Scene II.]

[Barabas discovered rising.]

Bar. What, all alone? Well fare, sleepy drunk.
I’ll be reveng'd on this accursed town;
For by my means Calymath shall enter in.
I’ll help to slay their children and their wives,
To fire the churches, pull their houses down,
Take my goods too, and seize upon my lands.
I hope to see the governor a slave,
And, rowing in a galley, whipt to death.

Enter Calymath, Bassoeos, and Turks.

Caly. Whom have we there, a spy?
Bar. Yes, my good lord, one that can spy a place
Where you may enter, and surprise the town:
My name is Barabas: I am a Jew.
Caly. Art thou that Jew whose goods we heard were sold
For tribute-money?
Bar. The very same, my lord:
And since that time they have hir'd a slave, my
man,

1 Q. Mater. 2 Outside the city walls.

To accuse me of a thousand villanies:
I was imprison'd, but escap'd their hands.
Caly. Didst break prison?
Bar. No, no;
I drank of poppy and cold mandrake juice; 60
And being asleep, belike they thought me dead,
And throw me o'er the walls: so, or how else,
The Jew is here, and rests at your command.
Caly. 'T was bravely done: but tell me,
Barabas, 64
Canst thou, as thou report'st, make Malta ours?
Bar. Fear not, my lord, for here against the succise 68
The rock is hollow, and of purpose digg'd
To make a passage for the running streams
And common channels of the city.
Now, whilst you give assault unto the walls, 76
I'll lead five hundred soldiers through the vault,
And rise with them i' th' middle of the town,
Open the gates for you to enter in;
And by this means the city is your own. 70
Caly. If this be true, I'll make thee governor.
Bar. And if it be not true, then let me die.
Caly. Thou'lt doom'd thyself. Assault it presently. 84
Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Alarums. Enter [Calymath, Bassoeos, Turks, and Barabas, with Fernese and Knights prisoners.]

Caly. Now vail 86 your pride, you captive
Christians,
And kneel for mercy to your conquering foe.
Now where is the hope you had of haughty
Spain?
Fernese, speak, had it not been much better
To keep' thy promise than be thus surpris'd?
Fern. What should I say? We are captives and must yield.
Caly. Ay, villains, you must yield, and under Turkish yokes
Shall groaning bear the burden of our ire;
And, Barabas, as erst we promis'd thee,
For thy desert we make thee governor;
Use them at thy discretion. 90
Bar. Thanks, my lord.
Fern. O fatal day, to fall into the hands
Of such a traitor and unhallowed Jew!
What greater misery could Heaven inflict?
Caly. 'T is our command: and, Barabas, we give
To guard thy person these our Janizaries:
Entreat them well, as we have used thee.
And now, brave bassoeos, come, we'll walk along the:
The ruin'd town, and see the wrack we made:—
Farewell, brave Jew; farewell, great Barabas!
Exeunt [Calymath and Bassoeos].
Bar. May all good fortune follow Calymath!
And now, as entrance to our safety,
To prison with the governor and these
Captains, his consorts and confederates.

1 Conj. Collier. Q. truce. 2 Lower.
4 At once.
6 Q. kept.
6 An open place in the city.
Fern. O villain! Heaven will be reveng'd on thee.

Bar. Away! no more; let him not trouble me.

Thus hast thou gotten, by thy policy,
No simple place, no small authority.
I now am governor of Malta; true,—
But Malta hates me, and, in hating me,
My life's in danger, and what boot it thee,
Poor Barabas, to be the governor,
Whenas thy life shall be at their command?
No, Barabas, this must be look'd into;
And since by wrong thou got'st authority,
Maintain it bravely by firm policy,
At least unprofitably lose it not:
For he that liveth in authority,
And neither gets him friends, nor fills his bags,
Lives like the ass, that Aesop speaketh of,
That labours with a load of bread and wine,
And leaves it off to snap on thistle-tops:
But Barabas will be more circumspect.
Begin betimes; occasion's bald behind;
Slip not thine opportunity, for fear too late Thou seek'st for much, but canst not compass
it.

Within here!

Enter FERNEZ, with a Guard.

Fern. My lord?
Bar. Ay, 'lord;' thus slaves will learn.
Now, governor;—stand by there, wait within.
[Exeunt Guard.

This is the reason that I sent for thee:
Thou seest thy life and Malta's happiness
Are at my arbitrement; and Barabas
At his discretion may dispose of both;
Now tell me, governor, and plainly too,
What think'st thou shall become of it and thee?
Fern. This, Barabas; since things are in thy power,
I see no reason but of Malta's wreack,
Nor hope of thee but extreme cruelty;
Nor fear I death, nor will I flatter thee.
Bar. Governor, good will I do, if I be not so furious,
T is not thy life which can avail me aught;
Yet you do live, and live for me you shall:
And, as for Malta's ruin, think you not
T were slender policy for Barabas
To dispossess himself of such a place?
For sith, as once you said, 'tis in 2 this isle,
In Malta here, that I have got my goods,
And in this city still have had success,
And now at length am grown your governor,
Yourselves shall see it shall not be forgot:
For, as a friend not known but in distress,
I'll rear up Malta, now remediless.
Fern. Will Barabas recover Malta's loss?
Will Barabas be good to Christians?
Bar. What wilt thou give me, governor, to procure
A dissolution of the slavish bands
Wherein the Turk hath yoked your land and you?
What will you give me if I render you

The scene is here supposed to shift to the governor's residence inside the citadel.

The life of Calymph, surprise his men,
And in an outhouse of the city shut
His soldiers, till I have consum'd 'em all with fire?
What will you give him that procureth this?
Fern. Do but bring this to pass which thou pretendest,
Deal truly with us as thou intimatest,
And I will send amongst the citizens,
And by my letters privately procure
Great sums of money for thy recompense:
Nay more, do this, and live thou governor still.
Bar. Nay, do thou this, Fernze, and be free;
Governor, I enlarge thee; live with me,
Go walk about the city, see thy friends:
Tush, send not letters to 'em, go thyself,
And let me see what money thou canst make.
Here is my hand that I'll set Malta free:
And thus we cast it: to a solemn feast
I will invite young Selim Calymph,
Where be thou present only to perform—
One stratagem that I'll impart to thee,
Wherein no danger shall betide thy life,
And I will warrant Malta free for ever.
Fern. Here is my hand; believe me, Barabas,
I will be there, and do as thou desir'st.
When is the time?
Bar. Governor, presently:
For Calymph, when he hath view'd the town,
Will take his leave and sail toward Ottoman.
Fern. Then will I, Barabas, about his coin,
And bring it with me to thee in the evening.
Bar. Do so, but fail not; now farewell, Fernze!
[Exit Fernze.]

And thus far roundly goes the business:
Thus loving neither, will I live with both,
Making a profit of my policy;
And he from whom my most advantage comes
Shall be my friend,
This is the life we Jews are us'd to lead;
And reason too, for Christians do the like.
Well, now about effecting this device;
First to surprise great Selim's soldiers,
And then to make provision for the feast,
That at one instant all things may be done.
My policy date's prevention:
To what event my secret purpose drives,
I know; and they shall witness with their lives.
Exit.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter CALYMPH and Bassos.

Caly. Thus have we view'd the city, seen the snok
And caus'd the ruins to be new-repair'd,
Which with our bombards Shot and basilisk
We rent in sunder at our entry:
And now I see the situation,
And how secure this conquer'd island stands
Environ'd with the Mediterranean Sea,
Strong-countermin'd with other petty isles;
And, toward Calabria, back'd by Sicily,
Where Syracusan Dionysius reign'd,
Two lofty turrets that command the town.
I wonder how it could be conquer'd thus.

1 Outside the city walls.
2 Cannons.
Enter a Messenger.

Mess. From Barabas, Malta’s governor, I bring
A message unto mighty Calymath;
Hearing his sovereign was bound for sea,
To sail to Turkey, to great Ottoman,
He humbly would treat your majesty
To come and see his homely citadel,
And banquet with him ere thou leav’st the isle.

Caly. To banquet with him in his citadel? 15
I fear me, messenger, to feast my train
Within a town of war so lately pillag’d
Will be too costly and too troublesome;
Yet would I gladly visit Barabas,
For well has Barabas deserved of us. 20

Mess. Selim, for that, thus saith the governor,
That he hath in his store a pearl so big,
So precious, and withal so orient,
As, be it valued but indifferently,
The price thereof will serve to entertain
Selim and all his soldiers for a month;
Therefore he humbly would entreat your highness
Not to depart till he has feasted you.

Caly. I cannot feast my men in Malta-walls,
Except he place his tables in the streets. 25

Mess. Know, Selim, that there is a monastery
Which standeth as an outhouse to the town:
There will he banquett them; but thee at home,
With all thy basseos and brave followers.

Caly. Well, tell the governor we grant his suit.

We’ll in this summer evening feast with him.

Mess. I shall, my lord. 30

Caly. And now, bold basseos, let us to our tents,
And meditate how we may grace us best
To solemnize our governor’s great feast. 35

[Scene V.]

Enter FERNINZE, Knights, and DEL BOSCO.

Fern. In this, my countrymen, be rul’d by me,
Have special care that no man sally forth
Till you shall hear a fuller discharg’d
By him that bears the liststock, kindled thus;
Then issue out and come to rescue me,
For happily I shall be in distress.
Or you released of this servitude.

1 Knight. Rather than thus to live as Turkish thralls,

What will we not adventure?

Fern. On then, begone.

Knights. [Exeunt on one side Knights and DEL

Bosco; on the other FERNINZE.]

[Scene VI.]

Enter, above. [BARABAS, with a hammer, very busy; and Carpenters.]

Bar. How stands the cord? How hang these hinges? Fast?
Are all the cranes and pulleys sure?

1 A street in Malta.
2 A hall in the citadel, with a gallery at the end.

1 Carp. Leave nothing loose, all levall’d to my mind.
Why now I see that you have art indeed.
There, carpenters, divide that gold amongst you: [Gives money.] s
Go swell in bowls of sack and muscadine!
Down to the cellar, taste of all my wines.
1 Carp. We shall, my lord, and thank you.

Exeunt [Carpenters].

Bar. And, if you like them, drink your fill and dis:
For so I live, perhah may all the world.
Now, Selim Calymath, return me word
That thou wilt come, and I am satisfied.

Enter Messenger.

Now, sirrah, what, will he come?

Mess. He will; and has commanded all his men
To come ashore, and march through Malta streets,
That thou mayst feast them in thy citadel.

Bar. Then now are all things as my wish would have ’em,
There wanteth nothing but the governor’s pelf,
And see, he brings it.

Enter FERNINZE.

Now, governor, the sum.

Fern. With free consent, a hundred thousand pounds.

Bar. Pounds, say’st thou, governor? Well, since it is no more,
I’ll satisfy myself with that; nay, keep it still,
For if I keep not promise, trust not me,
And, governor, now partake my policy:
First, for his army; they are sent before,
Enter’d the monastery, and underneath;
In several places are field-pieces pitch’d,
Bombards, whole barrels full of gunpowder,
That on the sudden shall disseever it,
And batter all the stones about their earr,
Whence none can possibly escape alive.
Now as for Calymath and his consorts,
Here have I made a dainty gallery,
The floor whereof, this cable being cut,
Doth fall saunter; so that it doth sink
Into a deep pit past recovery.
Here, hold that knife [throws down a knife], and when thou seest he comes,
And with his basseos shall be blithely set,
A warning-piece shall be shot off from the tower.
To give thee knowledge when to cut the cord [s]
And fire the house; say, will not this be brave?
Fern. O excellent! here, hold thee, Barabas,
I trust thy word, take what I promis’d thee.

Bar. No, governor, I’ll satisfy thee first,
Thou shalt not live in doubt of anything.

Stand close, for here they come [FERNINZE retires]. Why, is not this

A kingly kind of trade to purchase towns
By treachery and sell ’em by deceit?
Now tell me, worldlings, underneath the sun
If greater falsehood ever has been done?

s Concealed.
Enter Calymath and Basseos.

Caly. Come, my companion bassetoo; see, I pray,

How busy Barabas is there above

To entertain us in his gallery;

Let us salute him. Save thee, Barabas!

Bar. Welcome, great Calymath!

Fern. [Aside.] How the slave jeers at him.

Bar. Will 't please thee, mighty Selim Calymath,

To ascend our homely stairs?

Caly. Ay, Barabas; —

Come bassetoo, attend.¹

Fern. [coming forward.] Stay, Calymath!

For I will show thee greater courtesy

Than Barabas would have afforded thee.

Knight [within.] Sound a charge there!

A charge [sounded within. Fern-

Eze] cuts the cord: [the floor of the gallery gives way, and Barabas falls into] a caldron.

[Enter del Bosco and Knights.]

Caly. How now! what means this?

Bar. Help, help me! Christians, help!

Fern. See, Calymath, this was devils for

Thee!

Caly. Treason! treason! bassetoo, fly!

Fern. No, Selim, do not fly;

See his end first, and fly then if thou canst.

Bar. O help me, Selim! help me, Christians!

Governor, why stand you all so pitless?

Fern. Should I in pity of thy plaints or thee,

Accursed Barabas, base Jew, relent?

No, thus I'll see thy treachery repaid,

But wish thou hastad behav'd thee otherwise.

Bar. You will not help me, then?

Fern. No, villain, no.

Bar. And, villains, know you cannot help me now.

Then, Barabas, breathe forth thy latest hate,²

And in the fury of thy torments strive

To end thy life with resolution.

Know, governor, 'twas I that slew thy son;

I fram'd the challenge that did make them meet.

Know, Calymath, I aim'd thy overthrow,

And had I but escap'd this stratagem,

I would have brought confusion on thee all,

Damn'd Christians, dogs, and Turkish infidels!

But now begins the extremity of heat

To pinch me with intolerable pangs.

Die, life! fly, soul! tongue, curse thy fill, and die! [Dies.]

Caly. Tell me, you Christians, what doth this portend?

Fern. This train he laid to have entrapp'd thy life.

Now, Selim, note the unhallowed deeds of Jews:

Thus he determin'd to have handled thee,

But I have rather chose to save thy life.

Caly. Was this the banquet he prepar'd for us?

Let's hence, lest further mischief be pretended.

Fern. Nay, Selim, stay; for since we have thee here,

We will not let thee part so suddenly:

Besides, if we should let thee go, all's one,

For with thy galley's could'st thou not get

hence,

Without fresh men to rig and furnish them.

Caly. Tah, governor, take thou no care for that,

My men are all aboard,

And do attend my coming here by this.

Fern. Why heard'st thou not the trumpet sound a charge?

Caly. Yes, what of that?

Fern. Why then the house was fir'd,

Blown up, and all thy soldiers massacred.

Caly. O monstrous treason!

Fern. A Jew's courtesy:

For he that did by treason work our fall,

By treason hath delivered thee to us.

Know, therefore, till thy father hath made

good

The ruins done to Malta and to us,

Thou canst not part; for Malta shall be freed,

Or Selim ne'er return to Ottoman.

Caly. Nay, rather, Christians, let me go to Turkey,

In person there to meditate your peace;

To keep me here will naught advantage you.

Fern. Content thee, Calymath, here thou must stay,

And live in Malta prisoner; for come all the world

To rescue thee, so will we guard you now.

As sooner shall they drink the ocean dry

Than conquer Malta, or endanger us;

So march away, and let due praise be given

Neither to Fate nor Fortune, but to Heaven.

[Exeunt.]

[ACT I]

[SCENE I.] 1

Enter Gaveston, reading on a letter that was brought him from the King.

Gaveston. "My father is deceas'd! Come, Gaveston, And share the kingdom with thy dearest friend." 2

Ah! words that make me surfeit with delight! What greater bliss can hap to Gaveston Than live and be the favourite of a king! 3

Sweet prince, I come; these, these thy amorous lines Might have enforce'd me to have swum from France,
And, like Leander, grasp'd upon the sand, So thou would'st smile, and take me in thine arms.
The sight of London to my exile'd eyes 10
Is as Elysium to a new-come soul;
Not that I love the city, or the men,
But that it harbours him I hold so dear —
The king, upon whose bosom let me die, 11
And with the world be still at enmity.

What need the arctic people love starlight,
To whom the sun shines both by day and night?

1 A street in London.
2 Dyce emends to ite. Die may be used in the sense of "swoon."
3 "So much for them."
EDWARD THE SECOND

Gav. Ay, ay, these words of his move me as much
As if a goose should play the porpentine, 56
And dart her plumes, thinking to pierce my breast.
But yet it is no pain to speak men fair;
I'll flatter thee, and make them live in hope. — [Aside.]

You know that I came lately out of France,
And yet I have not view'd my lord the king; 57
If I speed well, I'll entertain you all.
All. We thank your worship.
Gav. I have some business: leave me to myself.
All. We will wait here about the court.

Exeunt.

Gav. Do. — These are not men for me: 58
I must have wanton poets, pleasant wits,
Musicians, that with touching of a string
May draw the plaint king which way I please.
Music and poetry is his delight;
Therefore I'll have Italian masks by night, 59
Sweet speeches, comedies, and pleasing shows;
And in the day, when he shall walk abroad,
Like sylvan nymphs my pages shall be clad;
My men, like satyrs grazing on the lawns,
Shall with their goat-feet dance an antic hay.1
Sometimes a lovely boy in Dion's shape, 61
With hair that gilds the water as it glides,
Crownets of pearl about his naked arms,
And in his sportful hands an olive tree,
To hide those parts which men delight to see, 62
Shall bathe him in a spring; and there hard by,
One like Actaeon peeping through the grove
Shall by the angry goddess be transform'd,
And running in the likeness of an hart
By yelping hounds pull'd down, and seem to die; — 63
Such things as these best please his majesty.
My lord. — Here comes the king, and the nobles
From the parliament. I'll stand aside. [Retires.]

Enter King [EDWARD], Lancastor, the Elder Mortimer, Young Mortimer; Edmund, Earl of Kent; Guy, Earl of Warwick, and [Attendants].

K. Edu. Lancaster!

Lan. My lord.

Gav. That Earl of Lancaster do I abhor. — [Aside.]

K. Edu. Will you not grant me this? — In spite of them
I'll have my will; and these two Mortimers,
That cross me thus, shall know I am displeas'd. — [Aside.]

E. Mor. If you love us, my lord, hate Gaveston.

Gav. That villain Mortimer! I'll be his death. — [Aside.]

Y. Mor. Mine uncle here, this earl, and I myself
Were sworn to your father at his death,
That he should ne'er return into the realm;

And know, my lord, ere I will break my oath,
This sword of mine, that should offend your foes.
Shall sleep within the scabbard at thy need,
And underneath thy banners march who will,
For Mortimer will hang his armour up.

Gav. Mort Dieu! — [Aside.]

K. Edu. Well, Mortimer, I'll make thee rue these words.

Besee for thee to contradict thy king?
Prowst thou thereat, aspiring Lancaster?
The sword shall plane the furrows of thy brows.
And how these knees that now are grown so stiff.

I will have Gaveston; and you shall know
What danger 't is to stand against your king.

Gav. Well done, Ned! — [Aside.]

Lan. My lord, why do you thus incense your peers,
That naturally would love and honour you?
But for that base and obscure Gaveston?
Four earldoms have I, besides Lancaster —
Derby, Salisbury, Lincoln, Leicester, —
These will I sell, to give my soldiers pay,
Ere Gaveston shall stay within the realm;
Therefore, if he be come, expel him straight.

Kent. Barons and earls, your pride hath made me mute;
But now I'll speak, and to the proof, I hope.
I do remember, in my father's days,
Lord Percy of the north, being highly mov'd,
Braved Monkery in presence of the king; 111
For which, had not his highness lov'd him well,
He should have lost his head; but with his look
The undaunted spirit of Percy was appeas'd,
And Monkery and he were reconcil'd; — 112
Yet dare you brave the king unto his face? —
Brother, revenge it, and let these their heads
Preach upon poles, for trespass of their tongues.

War. O, our heads!

K. Edu. Ay, yours; and therefore I would wish you grant —

War. Bridle thy anger, gentle Mortimer.

Y. Mor. I cannot, nor I will not; I must speak. —

Cousin, our hands I hope shall fence our heads,
And strike off his that makes you threaten us.
Come, uncle, let us leave the brain-sick king,
And henceforth parade with our naked swords.

E. Mor. Wiltshire hath men enough to save our heads.

War. All Warwickshire will love him for my sake. 8

Lan. And northward Gaveston hath many friends.

Adieu, my lord; and either change your mind,
Or look to see the throne, where you should sit,
To float in blood; and at thy wanton head,
The glozing head of thy base minion thrown.

Exeunt [all except KING EDWARD, KENT, GAVESTON, and Attendants].

* Mowbray, but the Q spelling indicates the pronunciation.
* This line and the next are ironical.
1 A rural dance.
K. Edw. I cannot brook these haughty menaces.

Am I a kinsman, and must be overruled? — 126

Brother, display thy ensigns in the field;
I’ll bandy with the barons and the ears,
And either die or live with Gaveston.

Gav. I can no longer keep me from my lord. [Comes forward.]

K. Edw. What, Gaveston! welcome! — Kiss not my hand — 140

Embrace me, Gaveston, as I do thee.

Why shouldst thou kneel? Know’st thou not who I am?

Thy friend, thyself, another Gaveston!

Not Hylas was more mourn’d of Hercules,

Than thou hast been of me since thy exile. 143

Gav. And since I went from hence, no soul in hell

Hath felt more torment than poor Gaveston.

K. Edw. I know it. — Brother, welcome home my friend.

Now let the base and sycophant Mortimers conspire,

And that high-minded Earl of Lancaster: 152

I have my wish, in that I joy thy sight;

And sooner shall the sea o’erwhelm my land,

Than bear the ship that shall transport thee hence.

I here create thee Lord High Chamberlain,

Chief Secretary to the state and me,

Earl of Cornwall, King and Lord of Man.

Gav. My lord, these titles far exceed my worth.

Kent. Brother, the least of these may well suffice

For one of greater birth than Gaveston.

K. Edw. Cease, brother, for I cannot brook these words.

Thy worth, sweet friend, is far above my gifts.

Therefore, to equal it, receive my heart.

If for these dignities thou be envied,

I’ll give thee more; for, but to honour thee,

Is Edward pleas’d with kingly regiment. 2

Fear s’t thou thy person? Thou shalt have a guard.

Wastest thou gold? Go to my treasury.

Wouldst thou be lov’d and fear’d? Receive my seal;

Save or condemn, and in our name command

Whatso thy mind effects, or fancy likes, 170

Gav. It shall suffice me to enjoy your love,

Which whiles I have, I think myself as great

As Caesar riding in the Roman street,

With captive kings at his triumphant car.

[Enter the Bishop of Coventry.]

K. Edw. Whither goes my lord of Coventry so fast?

B. of Cov. To celebrate your father’s exquisities.

But is it that wicked Gaveston return’d?

K. Edw. Ay, priest, and lives to be reveng’d on thee.

That wert the only cause of his exile.

Gav. ’Tis true; and but for reverence of these robes,

Thou shouldst not plod one foot beyond this place.

B. of Cov. I did no more than I was bound to do;

And, Gaveston, unless thou be reclaim’d,

As then I did incense the parliament,

So will I now, and thou shalt back to France.

Gav. Saving your reverence, you must pardon me.

K. Edw. Throw off his golden mitre, rend his stole,

And in the channel 4 christen him anew.

Kent. Ah, brother, lay not violent hands on him!

For he’ll complain unto the see of Rome.

Gav. Let him complain unto the see of hell;

I’ll be reveng’d on him for my exile.

K. Edw. No, spare his life, but seize upon his goods.

Be thou lord bishop and receive his rents,

And make him serve thee as thy chaplain.

I’ll give him thee — here, use him as thou wilt.

Gav. He shall to prison, and there die in bolts.

K. Edw. Ay, to the Tower, the Fleet, or where thou wilt.

B. of Cov. For this offence, be thou accurst

of God!

K. Edw. Who’s there? Convey this priest to the Tower.

B. of Cov. True, true. 5

And take possession of his house and goods.

Come, follow me, and thou shalt have my guard

To see it done, and bring thee safe again.

Gav. What should a priest do with so fair a house?

A prison may best beseech his holiness. [Exeunt.]

[Scene II.] 6

Enter [on one side] both the Mortimers; [on the other] Warwick and Lancaster.

War. ’Tis true, the bishop is in the Tower,

And goods and body given to Gaveston.

Lan. What! will they tyrannise upon the church?

Ah, wicked king! accursed Gaveston!

This ground, which is corrupted with their

Shall be their timeless sepulchre or mine.

Y. Mor. Well, let that peevish Frenchman guard him sure;

Unless his breast be sword-proof he shall die.

E. Mor. How now! why droops the Earl of Lancaster?

Y. Mor. Wherefore is Gay of Warwick discontent?

Lan. That villain Gaveston is made an earl.

E. Mor. An earl!

War. Ay, and besides Lord Chamberlain of the realm,

And Secretary too, and Lord of Man.

4 Gutter.

5 I. c., You have used the true word “Convey” (= steal).

7 Westminster.

8 Untimely.
E. Mor. We may not, nor we will not suffer this.

Y. Mor. Why post we not from hence to levy men?

Lan. "My Lord of Cornwall" now at every word!

And happy is the man whom he vouchsafes,
For vailing of his bonnet, one good look.
Thus, arm in arm, the king and he doth march:
Nay more, the guard upon his lordship waits;
And all the court begins to flatter him.
War. Thus leaning on the shouder of the king,
He nods and scorns and smiles at those that pass.

E. Mor. Doth no man take exceptions at the slave?

Lan. All stomach he, but none dare speak a word.

Y. Mor. Ah, that bewrays their baseness,
Lancaster!
Were all the eels and barons of my mind,
We'll hale him from the bosom of the king,
And at the court-gate hang the peasant up.

Who, sovin with venom of ambitious pride,
Will be the ruin of the realm and us.

Enter the [ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY [and an Attendant.]

War. Here comes my lord of Canterbury's grace.

Lan. His countenance bewrays he is displeas'd.

A. of Cant. First were his sacred garments rent and torn,
Then laid they violent hands upon him; next
Himself imprisoned, and his goods assetz'd:
This certify the Pope;—away, take horse.

[Exit Attend.]

Lan. My lord, will you take arms against the king?

A. of Cant. What need I? God himself is up in arms.

When violence is offered to the church.

Y. Mor. Then will you join with us, that be his peers,
To banish or behead that Gaveston?

A. of Cant. What else, my lords? for it concerns me near;
The bishopric of Coventry is his.

Enter QUEEN [ISABELLA].

Y. Mor. Madam, whither walks your majesty so fast?

Q. Isab. Unto the forest, gentle Mortimer,
To live in grief and baseful discontent;
For now my lord the king regards me not,
But dotes upon the love of Gaveston.

He clasps his cheeks, and hange about his neck,
Smiles in his face, and whispers in his ear;
And when I come he frowns, as who should say,
"Go whither thou wilt, seeing I have Gaveston."

E. Mor. Is it not strange that he is thus bewitched?

1 Removing it as a mark of respect.
2 Feel resentment at.
3 Shown.
Lan. Quick, quick, my lord; I long to write my name.
War. But I long more to see him banish'd hence.
Y. Mor. The name of Mortimer shall fright the king,
Unless he be declin'd from that base peasant.
Enter King [EDWARD,] GAVESTON, [and KENT].
K. Edu. What, are you mov'd that Gaveston sits here?
It is our pleasure; we will have it so.
Lan. Your grace doth well to place him by your side,
For nowhere else the new earl is so safe.
E. Mor. What man of noble birth can brook this sight?
Quam male convenient! 1
See what a scornful look the peasant casts!
Pem. Can kingly lions fawn on creeping ants?
War. Ignoble vassal, that like Phaeton
Aspir'st unto the guidance of the sun!
Y. Mor. Their downfall is at hand, their forces down;
W- will not thus be fae'd and over-peer'd.
K. Edu. Lay hands on that traitor Mortimer!
E. Mor. Lay hands on that traitor Gaveston!
Kent. Is this the duty that you owe your king?
War. We know our duties — let him know his peers.
K. Edu. Whither will you bear him? Stay, or ye shall die.
E. Mor. We are no traitors; therefore threaten not.
Gan. No, threaten not, my lord, but pay them home!
Were I a king —
Y. Mor. Thou villain, wherefore talk'st thou of a king,
That hardly art a gentleman by birth?
K. Edu. Were he a peasant, being my minion,
I'll make the proudest of you stoop to him.
Lan. My lord, you may not thus disparage us.
Away, I say, with hateful Gaveston!
E. Mor. And with the Earl of Kent that favours him.
[Attendants remove KENT and GAVESTON.]
K. Edu. Nay, then, lay violent hands upon your king.
Here, Mortimer, sit thou in Edward's throne;
Warwick and Lancaster, wear you my crown.
Was ever king thus over-rule'd as I?
Lan. Learn then to rule us better, and the realm.
Y. Mor. What we have done, our heart-blood shall maintain.
War. Think you that we can brook this upstart pride?
K. Edu. Anger and wrathful fury stops my speech.

"How ill they agree!"

A. of Cant. Why are you mov'd? Be patient, my lord,
And see what we your counsellors have done.
Y. Mor. My lords, now let us all be resolute, 44
And either have our wills, or lose our lives.
K. Edu. Meet you for this, proud overdaring peers?
Ere my sweet Gaveston shall part from me,
This isle shall fleet 2 upon the ocean,
And wander to the unfrequented Inde.
A. of Cant. You know that I am legate to the Pope.
On your allegiance to the see of Rome,
Subscribe, as we have done, to his exile.
Y. Mor. Curse him, if he refuse; and then may we Depose him and elect another king.
K. Edu. Ay, there it goes! but yet I will not yield.
Curse me, depose me, do the worst you can.
Lan. Then linger not, my lord, but do it straight.
A. of Cant. Remember how the bishop was abus'd!
Either banish him that was the cause thereof,
Or I will presently discharge these lords
Of duty and allegiance due to thee.
K. Edu. [Aside.] It booms me not to threat; I must speak fair.
The legate of the Pope will be obey'd.
My lord, you shall be Chancellor of the realm;
Thou, Lancaster, High Admiral of our fleet; 50
Young Mortimer and his uncle shall be earls;
And you, Lord Warwick, President of the North;
And thou, of Wales. If this content you not,
Make several kingdoms of this monarchy,
And share it equally amongst you all,
So I may have some nook or corner left,
To frolic with my dearest Gaveston.
A. of Cant. Nothing shall alter us, we are resolv'd.
Lan. Come, come, subscribe.
Y. Mor. Why should you love him whom the world hates so?
K. Edu. Because he loves me more than all the world.
Ah, none but rude and savage-minded men
Would seek the ruin of my Gaveston;
You that be noble-born should pity him.
War. You that are prince-born should shake him off.
For shame subscribe, and let the lown depart.
Y. Mor. Urge him, my lord.
A. of Cant. Are you content to banish him — the realm?
K. Edu. I see I must, and therefore am content.
Instead of ink, I'll write it with my tears.
[Subscribes.]
Y. Mor. The king is love-sick for his minion.
K. Edu. 'Tis done; and now, accursed hand, fall off!
Lan. Give it me; I'll have it publish'd in the streets.

3 Pleas. 4 Fellow.
Y. Mor. I'll see him presently despatch'd away.
A. of Cant. Now is my heart at ease.
War. And so is mine.
Fem. This will be good news to the common part.
K. Mor. Be it or no, he shall not linger here.
Exeunt all except KING EDWARD.
K. Edw. How fast they run to banish him I love!
They would not stir, were it to do me good.
Why should a king be subject to a priest?
Proud Rome! that hatchest such imperial grooms,
For these thy superstitions taper-lights,
Wherewith thy antichristian churches blaze,
I'll fire thy crazed buildings, and enforce
The papal towers to kiss the lowly ground!
With slaughtered priests make Tiber's channel swell,
And banks raise'd higher with their sepulchres!
As for the peers, that back the clergy thus,
If I be king, not one of them shall live.

Re-enter GAVESTON.

Gav. My lord, I hear it whispered everywhere,
That I am banish'd, and must fly the land.
K. Edw. 'Tis true, sweet Gaveston — O! were it false!
The legate of the Pope will have it so,
And thou must hence, or I shall be depose'd.
But I will reign to be reveng'd of them;
And therefore, sweet friend, take it patiently.
Live where thou wilt, I'll send thee gold enough;
And long thou shalt not stay, or if thou dost,
I'll come to thee; my love shall ne'er decline.
Gav. Is all my hope turn'd to this hell of grief?
K. Edw. Rend not my heart with thy too piercing words:
Thou from this land, I from myself am banish'd.
Gav. To go from hence grieves not poor Gaveston;
But to forsake you, in whose gracious looks
The blessedness of Gaveston remains,
For nowhere else seeks he felicity.
K. Edw. And only this torments my wretched soul
That, whether I will or no, thou must depart.
Be governor of Ireland in my stead,
And there abide till fortune call thee home.
Here take my picture, and let me wear thine;
[They exchange pictures.]
O, might I keep thee here as I do this,
Happy were I! but now most miserable!
Gav. 'Tis something to be pitied of a king.
K. Edw. Thou shalt not hence — I'll hide thee, Gaveston.
Gav. I shall be found, and then 'twill grieve me more.
K. Edw. Kind words and mutual talk makes our grief greater;
Therefore, with dumb embraces, let us part.
Stay, Gaveston, I cannot leave thee thus.

Gav. For every look, my lord 1 drops down a tear.
Seeing I must go, do not renew my sorrow.
K. Edw. The time is little that thou hast to stay,
And, therefore, give me leave to look my fill.
But come, sweet friend, I'll bear thee on thy way.
Gav. The peers will frown.
K. Edw. I pass 2 not for their anger. — Come let's go;
O that we might as well return as go.

Enter EDMUND and QUEEN ISABELLA.

Q. Isab. Whither goes my lord?
K. Edw. Fawn not on me, French trumpet!
Get thee gone!
Q. Isab. On whom but on my husband should I fawn?
Gav. On Mortimer! with whom, ungentle queen —
I say no more. Judge you the rest, my lord.
Q. Isab. In saying this, thou wrong'st me, Gaveston.

Is't not enough that thou corrupt'st my lord,
And art a bond to his affections,
But thou must call mine honour thus in question?
Gav. I mean not so; your grace must pardon me.
K. Edw. Thou art too familiar with that Mortimer,
And by thy means is Gaveston exil'd;
But I would wish these reconcile the lords,
Or thou shalt ne'er be reconcil'd to me.
Q. Isab. Wherein, my lord, have I deserved these words?
Witness the tears that Isabella sheds,
Witness this heart, that, sighing for thee, breaks.
How dear my lord is to poor Isabel.
K. Edw. And witness Heaven how dear thou art to me!
There weep; for till my Gaveston be repeal'd,
Assure thyself thou com'st not in my sight.
Exeunt Edward and Gaveston.

Q. Isab. O miserable and distressed queen! Would, when I left sweet France and was embarking,
That charming Circe, walking on the waves,
Had chang'd my shape, or at the marriage-day
The cup of Hymen had been full of poison,
Or with these arms that twin'd about my neck
I had been stifled, and not liv'd to see
The king my lord thus to abandon me!

1 Altered to love in Doddale, &c. 2 Care.
Like frantic Juno will I fill the earth
With ghastly mumur of my sighs and cries;
For never doted Jove on Ganymede
So much as he on cursed Gaveston.
But that will more exasperate his wrath;
I must entreat him, I must speak him fair,
And be a means to call home Gaveston.
And yet he'll ever dote on Gaveston;
And so am I for ever miserable.

Re-enter Nobles [Lancaster, Warwick, Pembroke, the Elder Mortimer, and Young Mortimer] to the Queen.

Lan. Look where the sister of the King of France
Sits wringing of her hands, and beats her breast.
War. The king, I fear, hath ill-entreated her.

Pem. Hard is the heart that injures such a saint.

Y. Mor. I know 'tis long of Gaveston she weeps.

E. Mor. Why? He is gone.

Y. Mor. Madam, how fares your grace?

Q. Isab. Ah, Mortimer! now breaks the king's hate forth,
And he confesseth that he loves me not.

Y. Mor. Cry quittance, madam, then; and love not him.

Q. Isab. No, rather will I die a thousand deaths!

And yet I love in vain; — he'll ne'er love me.

Lan. Fear ye not, madam; now his minion's gone,
His wanton humour will be quickly left.

Q. Isab. O never, Lancaster! I am enjoin'd
To sue upon you all for his repeal;
This wills my lord, and this must I perform,
Or else be banish'd from his highness' presence.

Lan. For his repeal? Madam, he comes not back,
Unless the sea cast up his shipwreck'd body.

War. And to behold so sweet a sight as that,
There's none here but would run his horse to death.

Y. Mor. But, madam, would you have us call him home?

Q. Isab. Ay, Mortimer, for till he be restor'd,
The angry king hath banish'd me the court;
And, therefore, as thou lov'st and tend'rest me,
Be thou my advocate unto these peers.

Y. Mor. What would you have me plead for Gaveston?

E. Mor. Plead for him he that will, I am resolv'd.

Lan. And as I, my lord. Dissuade the queen.

Q. Isab. Lancaster! let him dissuade the king.

For 'tis against my will he should return.

War. Then speak not for him, let the peaceable
Be means to call home Gaveston.

Q. Isab. 'Tis for myself I speak, and not for him.

Pem. No speaking will prevail, and therefore cease.

---

Y. Mor. Fair queen, forbear to angle for the fish
Which, being caught, strikes him that takes it dead;
I mean that vile torpedo, Gaveston.
That now, I hope, floats on the Irish seas.

Q. Isab. Sweet Mortimer, sit down by me awhile.

And I will tell thee reasons of such weight
As thou wilt soon subscribe to his repeal.

Y. Mor. It is impossible; but speak your mind.

Q. Isab. Then thus, — but none shall hear it but ourselves.

[Talks to Young Mortimer apart.]

Lan. My lords, albeit the queen win Mortimer.

Will you be resolute, and hold with me?

E. Mor. Not I, against my nephew.

Pem. Fear not, the queen's words cannot alter him.

War. No? Do but mark how earnestly she pleads!

Lan. And see how coldly his looks make deathful!

War. She smiles; now for my life his mind is chang'd!

Lan. I'll rather lose his friendship, I, than grant.

Y. Mor. Well, of necessity it must be so.

My lords, that I abhor base Gaveston,
I hope your honours make no question,
And therefore, though I plead for his repeal,
'T is not for his sake, but for our avail;
Nay for the realm's behalf, and for the king's.

Lan. Fie, Mortimer, dishonour not thyself! Can this be true, 't was good to banish him?
And is this true, to call him home again?

Such reasons make white black, and dark night day.

Y. Mor. My lord of Lancaster, mark the respect.

Lan. In due respect can contraries be true.

Q. Isab. Yet, good my lord, hear what he can allege.

War. All that he speaks is nothing; we are resolv'd.

Y. Mor. Do you not wish that Gaveston were dead?

Pem. I would he were!

Y. Mor. Why, then, my lord, give me but leave to speak.

E. Mor. But, nephew, do not play the sophister.

Y. Mor. This which I urge is of a burning zeal To mend the king, and do our country good.
Know you not Gaveston hath store of gold, Which may in Ireland purchase him such friends
As he will front the mightiest of us all?
And whereas he shall live and be belov'd,
'T is hard for us to work his overthrow.

War. Mark you but that, my lord of Lancaster.

1 Qy. for true read good (?) 2 Consideration.
Y. Mor. But were he here, detested as he is, How easily might some base slave be suborn'd To greet his lordship with a poniard, And none so much as blame the murderer, But rather praise him for that brave attempt, And in the chronicle enrol his name For purging of the realm of such a plague! *Pem. He saith true.

Lan. Ay, but how chance this was not done before? *Y. Mor. Because, my lords, it was not thought upon.

Nay, more, when he shall know it lies in us To banish him, and then to call him home, *T' will make him vail 1 the top-flag of his pride, And fear to offend the meanest nobleman. *E. Mor. But how if he do not, nephew?

*Y. Mor. Then may we with some colour 2 rise in arms; For howsoever we have borne it out, *T' is treason to be up against the king. So we shall have the people of our side, Which for his father's sake lean to the king, But cannot brook a night-grown mushroom, Such a one as my lord of Cornwall is, Should bear us down of the nobility. And when the commons and the nobles join, *T' is not the king can buckler Gaveston; We'll pull him from the strongest hold he hath. My lords, if to perform this I be slack, Think me as base a groom as Gaveston.

Lan. On that condition, Lancaster will grant. *War. And so will Pembroke and L. *E. Mor. And I. *Y. Mor. In this I count me highly gratified, And Mortimer will rest at your command.

Q. Isab. And when this favour Isabel forgets, Then let her live abandon'd and forlorn.— But see, in happy time, my lord the king, Having brought the Earl of Cornwall on his way, Is new return'd, This news will glad him much, Yet not so much as me, I love him more Than he can Gaveston; would he lov'd me But half so much, then were I troublelest.

Re-enter KING EDWARD, mourning.

K. Edw. He's gone, and for his absence thus I mourn.

Did never sorrow go so near my heart As doth the want of my sweet Gaveston; And could my crown's revenue bring him back, I would freely give it to his enemies, And think I gain'd, having bought so dear a friend.

Q. Isab. Har! how he harps upon his minion. *K. Edw. My heart is as an anvil unto sorrow, Which beats upon it like the Cyclops' hammers, And with the noise turns up my giddy brain, And makes me frantic for my Gaveston. Ah! I had some bloodless Fury rose from hell, And with my kingly sceptre struck me dead, When I was forc'd to leave my Gaveston! *Las. Diabolo! What passions call you these?

* Lower. 2 Pretext.

Q. Isab. My gracious lord, I come to bring you news.

K. Edw. That you have parley'd with your Mortimer!

Q. Isab. That Gaveston, my lord, shall be repeal'd.

K. Edw. Repeal'd! The news is too sweet to be true?

Q. Isab. But will you love me, if you find it so? *K. Edw. If it be so, what will not Edward do?

Q. Isab. For Gaveston, but not for Isabel.

K. Edw. For thee, fair queen, if thou lov'st Gaveston, I'll hang a golden tongue about thy neck, Seeing thou hast pleased with so good success. *Q. Isab. No other jewels hang about my neck Than these, my lord; nor let me have more wealth Than I may fetch from this rich treasury. *O how a kiss revives poor Isabel!

K. Edw. Once more receive my hand; and let this be A second marriage 'twixt thyself and me. *Q. Isab. And may it prove more happy than the first!

My gentle lord, bespeak these nobles fair, That wait attendance for a gracious look, And on their knees salute your majesty.

K. Edw. Courageous Lancaster, embrace thy king!

And, as great vappours perish by the sun, Even so let hatred with thy sovereign's smile. Live thou with me as my companion.

Lan. This salutation overjoys my heart.

K. Edw. Warwick shall be my chiefest counsellor;

These silver hairs will more adorn my court Than gaudy silks, or rich embroidery. Chide me, sweet Warwick, if I go astray.

War. Slay me, my lord, when I offend your grace.

K. Edw. In solemn triumphs, and in public shows,

Pembroke shall bear the sword before the king.

Pem. And with this sword Pembroke will fight for you.

K. Edw. But wherefore walks young Mortimer aside? Be thou commander of our royal fleet; Or, if that lofty office like thee not, I make thee here Lord Marshal of the realm.

Y. Mor. My lord, I'll marshal so your enemies, As England shall be quiet, and you safe.

K. Edw. And as for you, Lord Mortimer of Chirke,

Whose great achievements in our foreign war Deserves no common place nor mean reward, Be you the general of the levied troops, That now are ready to assail the Scots.

E. Mor. In this your grace hath highly honoured me, For with my nature war doth best agree.

Q. Isab. Now is the King of England rich and strong,

Having the love of his renowned peers.
K Edw. Ay, Isabel, ne'er was my heart so light.
Clerk of the crown, direct our warrant forth
For Gaveston to Ireland:

[Enter Beaumont with warrant.]

Beaumont, fly. As fast as Iris or Jove's Mercury.
Beau. It shall be done, my gracious lord.

[Exit.]

K Edw. Lord Mortimer, we leave you to your charge.
Now let us in, and feast it royally.
Against our friend the Earl of Cornwall comes,
We'll have a general tilt and tournament;
And then his marriage shall be solemn'd.
For yet you not that I have made him sure?
Unto our cousin, the Earl of Gloucester's heir?
Lan. Such news we hear, my lord.

K Edw. That day, if not for him, yet for my sake,
Who in the triumph will be challenger,
Spare for no cost; we will requit your love.
War. In this, or aught, your highness shall command us.

K Edw. Thanks, gentle Warwick: come, let's in and revel.

[Exeunt all except the Mortimers.]

E Mor. Nephew, I must to Scotland; thou stayest here.
Leave now t' oppose thyself against the king.
Thou seest by nature he is mild and calm,
And seeing his mind so dotes on Gaveston,
Let him without controlment have his will.
The mightiest kings have had their minions:
Great Alexander loved Hephestion;
The conquering Hercules for Hylas wept;
And for Patroclus stern Achilles droopt:
And not kings only, but the wisest men:
The Roman Tullus lovd Octavius;
Grave Socrates, wild Alcibiades.
Then let his grace, whose youth is flexible,
And promiseth as much as we can wish,
Freely enjoy that vain, light-headed earl;
For riper years will wean him from such toys.

Y Mor. Uncle, his wanton humour grieves not me;
But this I scorn, that one so basely born
Should by his sovereign's favour grow so pert,
And riot it with the treasure of the realm.
While soldiers mutiny for want of pay,
He wears a lord's revenue on his back.
And Midos-like, he jets it in the court,
With base outlandish collions at his heels.
Whose proud fantastic liveries make such show
As if that Proteus, god of shapes, appear'd.
I have not seen a dapper Jack so brisk;
He wears a short Italian hooded cloak
Larded with pearl, and, in his Tuscan cap,
A jewel of more value than the crown.
While others walk below, the king and he
From out a window laugh at such as we,
And flout our train, and jest at our attire.
Uncle, 'tis this that makes me impatient.

E Mor. But, nephew, now you see the king is chang'd.
Y Mor. Then so am I, and live to do him service:
But whiles I have a sword, a hand, a heart,
I will not yield to any such upset:
You know my mind; come, uncle, let's away.

[Exeunt.]

[ACT II]

[Scene I.]

Enter [Young] Spencer and Baldock.

Bald. Spencer, seeing that our lord th' Earl of Gloucester's dead,
Which of the nobles dost thou mean to serve?

Y Spen. Not Mortimer, nor any of his side,
Because the king and he are enemies.
Baldock, learn this of me, a factious lord I shall hardly do himself good, much less us;
But he that hath the favour of a king,
May with one word advance us while we live.
The liberal Earl of Cornwall is the man
On whose good fortune Spencer's hope depends.

Bald. What, mean you then to be his follower?

Y Spen. No, his companion; for he loves me well,
And would have once preferred me to the king.

Bald. But he is banish'd; there's small hope of him.

Y Spen. Ay, for a while; but, Baldock, mark the end.
A friend of mine told me in secrecy
That he's repeal'd, and sent for back again;
And even now a post came from the court
With letters to our lady from the king;
And as she read she smil'd, which makes me think
It is about her lover Gaveston.

Bald. 'Tis like enough; for since he was exil'd
She neither walks abroad, nor comes in sight.
But I had thought the match had been broke off,
And that his banishment had chang'd her mind.

Y Spen. Our lady's first love is not wavering;
My life for thine, she will have Gaveston.

Bald. Then hope I by her means to be prefer'd,
Having read unto her since she was a child.

Y Spen. Then, Baldock, you must cast the scholar off,
And learn to court it like a gentleman.
'Tis not a black coat and a little band,
A velvet-cap'd coat, fac'd before with serge,
And smelling to a nosegay all the day,
Or holding of a capkin in your hand,
Or saying a long grace at a table's end,
Or making low legs to a nobleman,
Or looking downward with your eyelids close,
And saying, "Truly, an't may please your honour,"
Can get you any favour with great men;

1 Affianced him.
2 Struts.
3 Qq. Hector.
4 Beclouds.
5 Gloucester's house.
6 Advanced me to the king's service.
7 Bows.
You must be proud, bold, pleasant, resolute,
And now and then stab, as occasion serves.

Bald. Spencer, thou know'st I hate such formal toys,
And use them but of mere hypocrisy.
Mine old lord whilst he liv'd was so precise,
That he would take exceptions at my buttons,
And being like pin's heads, blame me for the bigness.
Which made me curate-like in mine attire,
Though inwardly licentious enough
And apt for any kind of villainy.
I am none of these common pedants, I,

Y. Spen. But one of those that saith quando-\quad quidem,
And hath a special gift to form a verb.

Bald. Leave off this jesting, here my lady comes.

Enter the Lady [King Edward’s Niece.]

Niece. The grief for his exile was not so much
As is the joy of his returning home.

This letter came from my sweet Gaveston: —
What needst thou love, thus to excuse thyself?
I know thou couldst not come and visit me.

[Reads.] "I will not long be from thee, though I die."

This argues the entire love of my lord;

[Reads.] "When I forsake thee, death seize on my heart:"

But stay thee here where Gaveston shall sleep.

[Puts the letter into her bosom.]

Now to the letter of my lord the king. —
He wills me to repair unto the court,
And meet my Gaveston. Why do I stay,
Seeing that he talks thus of my marriage-day?
Who’s there? Baldock!
See that my coach be ready, I must hence.

Bald. It shall be done, madam.

Niece. And meet me at the park-pale presently.

Exit Baldock.

Spencer, stay you and bear me company,
For I have joyful news to tell thee of.

My lord of Cornwall is a-coming over,
And will be at the court as soon as we.

Y. Spen. I knew the king would have him home again.

Niece. If all things sort out as I hope they will,
Thy service, Spencer, shall be thought upon.

Y. Spen. I humbly thank your ladyship.

Niece. Come, lead the way; I long till I am there.

[Exeunt.]

Scene II.

Enter King Edward, Queen Isabella, Kent, Lancaster, Young Mortimer, Warwick, Pembroke, and Attendants.

K. Edu. The wind is good, I wonder why he stays.

I fear he is wrack'd upon the sea.

Q. Isab. Look, Lancaster, how passionate he is,
And still his mind runs on his minion!

Lan. My lord,—

Y. Mor. Nothing but Gaveston! — What means your grace?

You have matters of more weight to think upon;
The King of France sets foot in Normandy.

K. Edu. A trifle! we 'll expel him when we please.

But tell me, Mortimer, what’s thy device
Against the stately triumph we decreed?

Y. Mor. A homely one, my lord, not worth the telling.

K. Edu. Pray thee let me know it.

Y. Mor. But, seeing you are so desirous, thus it is:

A lofty cedar-tree, fair flourishing,
On whose top-branches kindly eagles perch,
And by the bark a canker creeps me up,
And gets into the highest bough of all:

The motto, Acque tandem.

K. Edu. And what is yours, my lord of Lancaster?

Lan. My lord, mine’s more obscure than Mortimer’s.
Pliny reports there is a flying fish
Which all the other fishes deadly hate,
And therefore, being pursued, it takes the air:
No sooner is it up, but there’s a fowl!
That seizeth it; this fish, my lord, I bear:
The motto this: Undique mors est.

K. Edu. Proud Mortimer! ungentle Lancaster!
Is this the love you bear your sovereign?
Is this the fruit your reconcilement bears?
Can you in words make show of amity,
And in your shields display your rancorous minds?
What call you this but private libelling
Against the Earl of Cornwall and my brother?

Q. Isab. Sweet husband, be content, they all love you.

K. Edu. They love me not that hate my Gaveston.
I am that cedar, shake me not too much;
And you the eagles; soar ye ne'er so high.

And have the jesses that will pull you down;
And Acque tandem shall that canker cry
Unto the proudest peer of Britain,
Though thou compar'st him to a flying fish,
And threatenest death whether he rise or fall,
’Tis not the hugest monster of the sea,
Nor foulest harpy that shall swallow him.

Y. Mor. If in his absence thus he favours him,

What will he do whenas he shall be present?

Lan. That shall we see; look where his lordship comes.

Enter Gaveston.

K. Edu. My Gaveston! Welcome to Tynemouth! Welcome to thy friend!

1 Lat. "because."
2 Turn. 5 Sorrowful.
3 Lat. "since."
4 Before Tynemouth Castle.
5 Canker-worm. 6 Lat. "On all sides is death."
7 Lat. "Justly at length."
8 The straps round a hawk’s legs, to which the falconer’s leash was fastened.
Thy absence made me droop and pine away;
For, as the lovers of fair Danae,
When she was lock’d up in a brazen tower,
Desir’d her more, and wax’d outrageous,
So did it fare with me; and now thy sight
Is sweeter far than was thy parting hence
Bitter and irksome to my sobbing heart.
Gau. Sweet lord and king, thy speech preventeth mine,
Yet have I words left to express my joy:
The shepherd nipt with biting winter’s rage
Prok’es not more to see the painted spring,
Than I do to behold your majesty.
K. Edw. Will none of you salute my Gaveston?
Y. Mor. Welcome is the good Earl of Cornwall!
War. Welcome, Lord Governor of the Isle of Man!
Pem. Welcome, Master Secretary!
Kent. Brother, do you hear them?
K. Edw. Still will these ears and barons use me thus.
Gau. My lord, I cannot brook these injuries.
Q. Isab. [Aside.] Aye me, poor soul, when these begin to jar.
K. Edw. Return it to their throats, I’ll be thy warrant.
Gau. Bone, leaden ears, that glory in your birth,
Go sit at home and eat your tenants’ beef;
And come not here to sooth at Gaveston,
Whose mounting thoughts did never creep so low
As to bestow a look on such as you.
Lan. Yet I disdain not to do this for you.
[Draws his sword and offers to stab GAVESTON.]
K. Edw. Treason! treason: where’s the traitor?
Pem. Here I here!
K. Edw. Convey hence Gaveston; they’ll murder him.
Gau. The life of thee shall salve this foul disgrace.
Y. Mor. Villain! thy life, unless I miss mine aim.
Q. Isab. Ah! furious Mortimer, what hast thou done?
Y. Mor. No more than I would answer, were he slain.
[Exit GAVESTON with Attendants.]
K. Edw. Yes, more than thou canst answer, though he live,
Dear shall you both abyse this riotous deed.
Out of my presence! Come not near the court.
Y. Mor. I’ll not be barr’d the court for Gaveston.
Lan. We’ll hale him by the ears unto the block.
K. Edw. Look to your own heads; his is sure enough.

War. Look to your own crown, if you back him thus.
Kent. Warwick, these words do ill beseem thy years.
K. Edw. Nay, all of them conspire to cross me thus;
But if I live, I’ll tread upon their heads
That think with high looks thus to tread me down.
Come, Edmund, let’s away and levy men,  ’Tis war that must abate these barons’ pride.
EXECUT King [EDWARD, QUEEN ISABELLA AND KENT].
War. Let’s to our castles, for the king is mov’d.
Y. Mor. Mov’d may he be, and perish in his wrath!
Lan. Cousin, it is no dealing with him now,
He means to make us stoop by force of arms;
And therefore let us jointly here protest
To persecute that Gaveston to the death.
Y. Mor. By heaven, the abject villain shall not live!
War. I’ll have his blood, or die in seeking it.
Pem. The like oath Pembroke takes.
Lan. And so doth Lancaster.
Now send our heralds to defy the king;
And make the people swear to put him down.
Enter a Messenger.
Y. Mor. Letters! From whence?
Mess. From Scotland, my lord.
[Giving letters to Mortimer.]
Lan. Why, how now, cousin, how fares all our friends?
Y. Mor. My uncle’s taken prisoner by the Scots.
Lan. We’ll have him ransom’d; man; be of good cheer.
Y. Mor. They rate his ransom at five thousand pound.
Who should defray the money but the king,
Seeing he is taken prisoner in his wars?
I’ll to the king.
Lan. Do, cousin, and I’ll bear thee company.
War. Meantime, my lord of Pembroke and myself
Will to Newcastle here, and gather head.
Y. Mor. About it then, and we will follow you.
Lan. Be resolute and full of secrecy.
War. I warrant you. [Exit with Pembroke.]
Y. Mor. Cousin, and if he will not ransom him,
I’ll thunder such a peal into his ears,
As never subject did unto his king.
Lan. Content, I’ll bear my part—Holla! who’s there?
[Enter Guard.]
Y. Mor. Ay, marry, such a guard as this doth well.
Lan. Lead on the way.
Guard. Whither will your lordships?
Y. Mor. Whither else but to the king.

1 Qs. 1596-1612, surv.
2 Pay for.
3 Anticipate.
4 Qs. Poet.
5 Qs. 1596-1612, surv.
6 An array.
Guard. His highness is dispos’d to be alone.
Lan. Why, so he may, but we will speak to him.
Guard. You may not in, my lord.
Y. Mor. May we not?

[Enter King Edward and Kent.]

K. Edw. How now!
What noise is this? Who have we there? Is’t you?
[Going.] 110

Y. Mor. Nay, stay, my lord, I come to bring you news;
Mine uncle’s taken prisoner by the Scots.

K. Edw. Then ransom him.
Lan. ’T was in your wars; you should ransom him.

Y. Mor. And you shall ransom him, or else ——— 140

Kent. What! Mortimer, you will not threaten him?
K. Edw. Quiet yourself, you shall have the broad seal,
To gather for him throughout the realm.
Lan. Your minion Gaveston hath taught you this.

Y. Mor. My lord, the family of the Mortimers
Are not so poor, but, would they sell their land,
’T would levy men enough to anger you.
We never beg, but use such prayers as these.
K. Edw. Shall I still be haunted thus?
Y. Mor. Nay, now you’re here alone, I’ll speak my mind.

Lan. And so will I, and then, my lord, fare-well.

Y. Mor. The idle triumphs, masques, lascivious shows,
And prodigious gifts bestow’d on Gaveston,
Have drawn thy treasury dry, and made thee weak;
The murmuring commons, over stretched,
[break].

Lan. Look for rebellion, look to be depos’d.
Thy garrisons are beaten out of France.
And, lawless and poor, lie groaning at the gates.
The wild O’Neill, with swarms of Irish kerns, 2
Lives uncontrol’d within the English pale. 156
Unto the walls of York the Scots made road,
And unresisted drove away rich spoils.

Y. Mor. The haughty Dane commands the narrow seas,
While in the harbour ride thy ships unrig’d.
Lan. What foreign prince sends thee ambassadors?

Y. Mor. Who loves thee, but a sort 8 of flatterers?

Lan. Thy gentle queen, sole sister to Valois,
Complains that thou hast left her all forlorn.

Y. Mor. Thy court is naked, being bereft of those
That make a king seem glorious to the world;
I mean the peers, whom thou shouldst dearly love.

Libels are cast again thee in the street;
Ballads and rhymes made of thy overthrow.

Lan. The Northern borderers seeing their houses burnt,
Their wives and children slain, run up and down,
Cursing the name of thee and Gaveston.

Y. Mor. When wert thou in the field with banner spread,
But once? and then thy soldiers march like players,
With garish robes, not armour; and thyself,
Bedaub’d with gold, rode laughing at the rest,
Nodding and shaking of thy spangled crest.

Where women’s favours hang like labels down.
Lan. And therefore came it, that the fleering 4 Scots,
To England’s high disgrace, have made this jig;

"Maids of England, s.o. may you mourn,
For your lemans 8 you have lost at Bannockburn,
With a heave and a ho!
What woeart the King of England,
So soon to have won Scotland?—
With a romble o’er!"

Y. Mor. Wigmore 7 shall fly, to set my uncle free.
Lan. And when ’tis gone, our swords shall purchase more.

If ye be mov’d, revenge it as you can;
Look next to see us with our ensigns spread.

[Exit with Young Mortimers.]

K. Edw. My swelling heart for very anger breaks! 200
How oft have I been bated by these peers,
And dare not be reveng’d, for their power is great!
Yet, shall the crowing of these cockerels
Affright a lion? Edward, unfold thy paws,
And let their lives’ blood slake thy fury’s hunger.

If I be cruel and grow tyrannous,
Now let them thank themselves, and rue too late.

Kent. My lord, I see your love to Gaveston
Will be the ruin of the realm and you,
For now the wrathful nobles threaten wars,
And therefore, brother, banish him for ever.

K. Edw. Art thou an enemy to my Gaveston?
Kent. Ay, and it grieves me that I favoured him.

K. Edw. Traitor, begone! whine thou with Mortimer.

Kent. So will I, rather than with Gaveston.

K. Edw. Out of my sight, and trouble me no more!

Kent. No marvel though thou scorn thy noble peers,
When I thy brother am rejected thus.

K. Edw. Away! 230
Erit Kent. Poor Gaveston, that has no friend but me.
Do what they can, we’ll live in Tynemouth here,
And, so I walk with him about the walls,
What care I though the earl begirt us round?—
Here comes she that is cause of all these jars.

1 So Dodsley, Q. hath. 2 Foot soldiers. 3 Band.

4 Joeing. 5 Lovers. 6 Bannockburn was not yet fought. The rhyme is taken from the Chronicles.
7 Young Mortimer’s estate.
Enter QUEEN ISABELLA with [KING EDWARD's Niece, two] Ladies, [GAVESTON,] BALDOCK and Young SPENCER.

Q. Isab. My lord, 'tis thought the earls are up in arms.
K. Edw. Ay, and 'tis likewise thought you favour 'em.
Q. Isab. Thus do you still suspect me without cause?
Niece. Sweet uncle! speak more kindly to the queen.

Gau. My lord, dissemble with her, speak her fair.
K. Edw. Pardon me, sweet, I forgot myself.
Q. Isab. Your pardon is quickly got of Isabel.
K. Edw. The younger Mortimer is grown so brave,
That to my face he threatens civil wars.
Gau. Why do you not commit him to the Tower?
K. Edw. I dare not, for the people love him well.
Gau. Why, then we'll have him privily made away.
K. Edw. Would Lancaster and he had both carous'd?
A bowl of poison to each other's health!
But let them go, and tell me what are these?

Niece. Two of my father's servants whilst he liv'd.

Mayst please your grace to entertain them now.
K. Edw. Tell me, where wast thou born?
What is thine arms?
Bal'd. My name is Baldock, and my gentry
I fetch't from Oxford, not from heraldry.
K. Edw. The fitter art thou, Baldock, for my turn.

Wait on me, and I'll see thou shalt not want.
Bal'd. I humbly thank your majesty.
K. Edw. Knowest thou him, Gaveston?
Gau. Ay, my lord; His name is Spencer, he is well allied; For my sake, let him wait upon your grace; Scarce shall you find a man of more desert.
K. Edw. Then, Spencer, wait upon me; for his sake
I'll grace thee with a higher style ere long.
Y. Spen. No greater titles happen unto me, Than to be favoured of your majesty.
K. Edw. Cousin, this day shall be your marriage-feast.
And, Gaveston, think that I love thee well To wed thee to the only heir Unto the Earl of Gloucester late deceas'd.
Gau. I know, my lord, many will stomach me,
But I respect neither their love nor hate.
K. Edw. The headstrong barons shall not limit me;
He that I list to favour shall be great.
Come, let's away; and when the marriage ends, Have at the rebels, and their 'complices!

[SCENE III.] 2

Enter KENT, LANCASTER, YOUNG MORTIMER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, and others.

Kent. My lords, of love to this our native land I come to join with you and leave the king;
And in your quarrel and the realm's behalf Will be the first that shall adventure life.
Lan. I fear me, you are sent of policy,
To undermine us with a show of love.
War. He is your brother, therefore have we cause To cast the worst, and doubt of your revolt.
Kent. Mine honour shall be hostage of my truth;
If that will not suffice, farewell, my lords; Y. Mor. Stay, Edmund; never was Plantagenet False to his word, and therefore trust we thee.
Pem. But what's the reason you should leave him now?
Kent. I have inform'd the Earl of Lancaster.
Lan. And it sufficeth. Now, my lords, know this,
That Gaveston is secretly arriv'd,
And here in Tynemouth frolics with the king.
Let us with these our followers scale the walls,
And suddenly surprise them unawares.
Y. Mor. I'll give the onset.
War. And I'll follow thee.
Y. Mor. This tottering ensign of my ancestors,
Which swept the desert shore of that dead sea Whereof we got the name of Mortimer,
Will I advance upon these castle-walls.
Drums, strike alarum, raise them from their sport,
And ring aloft the knell of Gaveston!
Lan. None be so hardy as to touch the king:
But neither spare you Gaveston nor his friends.

[SCENE IV.] 5

Enter KING EDWARD and YOUNG SPENCER.

K. Edw. O tell me, Spencer, where is Gaveston?
Spen. I fear he is slain, my gracious lord.
K. Edw. No, here he comes; now let them spoil and kill.

[Enter QUEEN ISABELLA, KING EDWARD'S Niece, GAVESTON, and Nobles.]

Fly, fly, my lords, the earls have got the hold; Take shipping and away to Scarborough; Spencer and I will post away by land.
Gau. O stay, my lord, they will not injure you.
K. Edw. I will not trust them; Gaveston, away!
Gau. Farewell, my lord.
K. Edw. Lady, farewell.
Niece. Farewell, sweet uncle, till we meet again.

1 Near Tynemouth Castle. 2 Suspect. 4 Tatter'd. 5 Near Tynemouth Castle.
K. Edw. Farewell, sweet Gaveston; and farewell, sweet thee.
Q. Isab. No farewell to poor Isabel thy queen?
K. Edw. Yes, yes, for Mortimer, your lover's sake. Exeunt all but Queen Isabella.
Q. Isab. Heavens can witness I love none but you!

From my embracements thus he breaks away,
O that mine arms could close this idle bout,
That I might pull him to me where I would!
Or that these tears that drizzle from mine eyes
Had power to mollify his stony heart,
That when I had him we might never part.

Enter the Barons, [Lancaster, Warwick, Young Mortimer, and others.] Alarums.

Lan. I wonder how he escap'd!
Y. Mor. Who's this? The queen!
Q. Isab. Ay, Mortimer, the miserable queen,
Whose pining heart in inward sighs have blasted,
And body with continual mourning wasted.

These hands are tir'd with hailing of my lord
From Gaveston, from wicked Gaveston,
And all in vain; for, when I speak him fair,
He turns away, and smiles upon his minion.

Y. Mor. Cease to lament, and tell us where's the king?
Q. Isab. What would you with the king?
Lan. No, madam, but that cursed Gaveston.

Far be it from the thought of Lancaster
To offer violence to his sovereign.
We would but rid the realm of Gaveston:
Tell us where he remains, and he shall die.

Q. Isab. He's gone by water unto Scarborough;
Pursue him quickly, and he cannot escape;
The king hath left him, and his train is small.
War. Foreaw 1 no time, sweet Lancaster;
let's march.

Y. Mor. How comes it that the king and he is parted?
Q. Isab. That thus your army, going several ways,
Might be of lesser force; and with the power
That he intendment presently to raise,
Be easily suppress'd; therefore be gone.

Y. Mor. Here in the river rides a Flemish hoy;
Let's all aboard, and follow him a main.
Lan. The wind that bears him hence will fill our sails.

Come, come aboard, 'tis but an hour's sailing.
Y. Mor. Madam, stay you within this castle here.
Q. Isab. No, Mortimer, I'll to my lord the king.
Y. Mor. Nay, rather sail with us to Scarborough.
Q. Isab. You know the king is so suspicious,
As if he hear I have but talk'd with you,
Mine honour will be call'd in question;
And therefore, gentle Mortimer, be gone.

Y. Mor. Madam, I cannot stay to answer you,
But think of Mortimer as he deserves.

[Exeunt all except Queen Isabella.]
Q. Isab. So well hast thou deserv'd sweet Mortimer,
As Isabel could live with thee for ever!
In vain I look for love at Edward's hand,
Whose eyes are fix'd on none but Gaveston;
Yet once more I'll implore him with prayers.
If he be strange and not regard my words,
My son and I will over into France,
And to the king my brother there complain,
How Gaveston hath robb'd me of his love:
But yet I hope my sorrow will have end,
And Gaveston this blessed day be slain.

[Scene V.]

Enter Gaveston, pursued.

Gav. Yet, lusty lords, I have escap'd your hands,
Your threats, your 'larums, and your hot pursuits;
And though divorced from King Edward's eyes,
Yet liveth Pierce of Gaveston unsurpris'd, 4
Breathing, in hope (maligno 5 all your beards,
That must rebel this against your king),
To see his royal sovereign once again.

Enter the Nobles, [Warwick, Lancaster, Pembroke, Young Mortimer, Soldiers, James, and other Attendants of Pembroke].

War. Upon him, soldiers, take away his weapons.
Y. Mor. Thou proud disturber of thy country's peace,
Corrupter of thy king; cause of these broils,
Base flatterer, yield I and were it not for shame,
Shame and dishonour to a soldier's name,
Upon my weapon's point here shouldst thou fall,
And welter in thy gore.

Lan. Monster of men!
That, like the Greekish strumpet, 6 train'd 7 to arms
And bloody wars so many valiant knights;
Look for no other fortune, wretch, than death!
King Edward is not here to buckler thee.
War. Lancaster, why talk'st thou to the slave?
Go, soldiers, take him hence, for, by my sword,
His head shall off. Gaveston, short warning
Shall serve thy turn; it is our country's cause
That here severely we will execute
Upon thy person. Hang him at a bough.

Gav. My lord!—

War. Soldiers, have him away;—
But for thou wert the favourite of a king,
Thou shalt have so much honour at our hands—
Gav. I thank you all, my lords: then I perceive,
That heading is one, and hanging is the other,
And death is all.

1 Delay. 2 A small vessel.

3 The open country. 4 Uncaptain'd.
5 Unam. 6 In spite of.
Enter Earl of Arundel.

Lan. How now, my lord of Arundel?
Arun. My lords, King Edward greets you all by me.

War. Arundel, say your message.

Arun. His majesty, hearing that you had taken Gaveston,Entreateth you by me, yet but he may See him before he dies; for why, he says,And sends you word, he knows that die he shall;And if you gratify his grace so far,He will be mindful of the courtesy.

War. How now?

Gau. Renowned Edward, how thy name Revives poor Gaveston!

War. No, it needeth not; Arundel, we will gratify the kingIn other matters; he must pardon us in this.

Soldiers, away with him!

Gau. Why, my lord of Warwick,Will not these delays beget my hopes? I know it, lords, it is this life you aim at, Yet grant King Edward this.

Y. Mor. Shalt thou appoint What we shall grant? Soldiers, away with him! Thus we 'll gratify the king: We'll send his head by thee; let him bestow His tears on that, for that is all he gets Of Gaveston, or else his senseless trunk.

Lan. Not so, my lords, lest he bestow more cost In burying him than he hath ever earned.

Arun. My lords, it is his majesty's request, And in the honour of a king he swears, He will but talk with him, and send him back.

War. When? can you tell? Arundel, no; we were He that the care of his realm remits, And drives his nobles to these exigents 1 For Gaveston, will, if he sees him once, Violate any promises to possess him.

Arun. Then if you will not trust his grace in keep, My lords, I will be pledge for his return.

Y. Mor. 'Tis honourable in thee to offer this; But for we know thou art a noble gentleman, We will not wrong thee so, to make away A true man for a thief.

Gau. How mean'st thou, Mortimer? That is over-base.

Y. Mor. Away, base groom, robber of king's renown!

Question with thy companions and thy mates.

Pem. My Lord Mortimer, and you, my lords, each one
To gratify the king's request therein, Touching the sending of this Gaveston, Because his majesty so earnestly Desires to see the man before his death, I will upon mine honour undertake To carry him, and bring him back again; Provided this, that you my lord of Arundel Will join with me.

War. Pembroke, what wilt thou do? Cause yet more bloodshed? Is it not enough That we have taken him, but must we now Leave him on "had I wist," 2 and let him go?

Pem. My lords, I will not over-woo your honours, But if you dare trust Pembroke with the prisoner,

Upon mine oath, I will return him back.

Arun. My lord of Lancaster, what say you in this?

Lan. Why, I say, let him go on Pembroke's word.

Pem. And you, Lord Mortimer? 3

Y. Mor. How say you, my lord of Warwick?

War. Nay, do your pleasures, I know how 'twill prove.

Pem. Then give him me.

Gau. Sweet sovereign, yet I come To see thee ere I die.

War. Yet not perhaps, If Warwick's wit and policy prevail. [Aside.] Y. Mor. My lord of Pembroke, we deliver him you;

Return him on your honour. Sound, away!

Exeunt all except Pembroke, Arundel, Gaveston, James, and other Attendants of Pembroke.

Pem. My lord [Arundel], you shall go with me.

My house is not far hence; out of the way A little, but our men shall go along.
We that have pretty wenches to our wives, Sir, must not come so near and baulk their lips. Arun. 'Tis very kindly spoke, my lord of Pembroke;
Your honour hath an damant of power To draw a prince.

Pem. So, my lord. Come hither, James: I do commit this Gaveston to thee.

Be thou this night his keeper; in the morning We will discharge thee of thy charge. Be gone.

Gau. Unhappy Gaveston, whither goest thou now?

Exit with [James and the other] Attendants.

Horse-boy. My lord, we'll quickly be at Cobham.

Exeunt.

[ACT III]

[SCENE I.] 4

Enter Gaveston mourning. [James and other] Attendants of Pembroke.

Gau. O treacherous Warwick! thus to wrong thy friend.

James. I see it is your life these arms pursue.

Gau. Weaponless must I fall, and die in hands?

O! must this day be period of my life? Centre of all my bliss! An ye be men, Speed to the king.

1 Extremities.
2 Cunningham's emendation for Q. scene.
3 The open country.
Enter Warwick and his company.

War. My lord of Pembroke's men, Strive you no longer—I will have that Gaveston.

James. Your lordship does dishonour to your-

And wrong our lord, your honourable friend.

War. No, James, it is my country's cause I follow.

Go, take the villain; soldiers, come away.

We'll make quick work. Command me to your master,

My friend, and tell him that I watch'd it well.

Come, let thy shadow! parsley with King Edward.

Gav. Troth, worthy earl, shall I not see the

king?

War. The king of Heaven, perhaps; no other

king.

Away! Exeunt Warwick and his men with Gaveston.

James. Come, fellows, it booted not for us to strive.

We will in haste go certify our lord. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter King Edward and [Young] Spencer, [Baldock, and Nobles of the King's side, and Soldiers] with drums and fifes.

K. Edw. I long to hear an answer from the barons

Touching my friend, my dearest Gaveston.

Ah! Spencer, not the riches of my realm

Can ransom him! Ah, he is mark'd to die!

I know the malice of the younger Mortimer,
Warwick I know is rough, and Lancaster

Inexorable, and I shall never see

My lovely Pierce, my Gaveston again!

The barons overbear me with their pride.

Y. Spen. Were I King Edward, England's sovereign,

Son to the lovely Eleanor of Spain,

Great Edward Longhanks' issue, would I bear

These braves, this rage and suffer uncontro'll'd
These barons thus to bear me in my land,

In mine own realm? My lord, pardon my speech:

Did you retain your father's magnanimity,

Did you regard the honour of your name,

You would not suffer thus your majesty

Be counterbuff'd of your nobility.

Strike off their heads, and let them preach on poles!

No doubt, such lessons they will teach the rest,

As by their preachments they will profit much,

And learn obedience to their lawful king.

K. Edw. Yes, gentle Spencer, we have been too mild,

Too kind to them; but now have drawn our

sword,

And if they send me not my Gaveston,

We'll steel it on their crest, and poll their tops.

Bald. This haught'6 resolve becomes your majesty,

Not to be tied to their affection,

As though your highness were a schoolboy still,

And must be aw'd and govern'd like a child.

Enter the Elder Spencer, with his trumpet and Soldiers.

E. Spen. Long live my sovereign, the noble

Edward,

In peace triumphant, fortunate in wars!

K. Edw. Welcome, old man, com' sthou in Edward's aid?

Then tell thy prince of whence, and what thou

art.

E. Spen. Lo, with a band of bowmen and of pike,

Brown hills and targeteers, four hundred strong.

Sworn to defend King Edward's royal right,

I come in person to your majesty,

Spencer, the father of Hugh Spencer there,

Bound to your highness everlastingly,

For favour done, in him, unto us all.

K. Edw. Thy father, Spencer?

Y. Spen. True, as it like your grace,

That pours, in lieu of all your goodness shown,

His life, my lord, before your princely feet.

K. Edw. Welcome ten thousand times, old man, again.

Spencer, this love, this kindness to thy king,

Argues thy noble mind and disposition.

Spencer, I here create thee Earl of Wiltshire,

And daily will enrich thee with our favour,

That, as the sunshine, shall reflect o'er thee.

Beside, the more to manifest our love,

Because we hear Lord Bruce doth sell his land,

And that the Mortimers are in hand with Thou shalt have crowns of us to outbid the

barons:

And, Spencer, spare them not, but lay it on.

Soldiers, a largess, and thrice welcome all!

Y. Spen. My lord, here comes the queen.

Enter Queen [Isabella,] and her son [Prince

Edward,] and Levune, a Frenchman.

K. Edw. Madam, what news?

Q. Isab. News of dishonour, lord, and discontent.

Our friend Levune, faithful and full of trust,

Informeth us, by letters and by words,

That Lord Valois our brother, King of France,

Because your highness hath been slack in homage,

Hath seized Normandy into his hands.

These be the letters, this the messenger.

K. Edw. Welcome, Levune. Tush, Sib, if this be all.

Valois and I will soon be friends again.—

But to my Gaveston; shall I never see,

Never behold thee now?—Madam in this matter,

We will employ you and your little son;

You shall go parley with the king of France.—

Boy, see you bear you bravely to the king,

And do your message with a majesty.
P. Edw. Commit not to my youth things of more weight
Than fits a prince so young as I to bear,
And fear not, lord and father, Heaven’s great beams
On Atlas’ shoulder shall not lie more safe,
Than shall your charge committed to my trust.
Q. Isab. Ah, boy! this tardiness makes thy mother fear,
Thou art not mark’d to many days on earth.
K. Edw. Madam, we will that you with speed be shipp’d,
And this our son; Leuvne shall follow you
With all the haste we can despatch him hence.
Choose of our lords to bear you company,
And go in peace; leave us in wars at home.
Q. Isab. Unnatural wars, where subjects bate their king;
God end them once! My lords, I take my leave,
To make my preparation for France.
[Exit with Prince Edward.]

Enter [ARUNDEL].

K. Edw. What, Lord [Arundel], dost thou come alone?
Arun. Yea, my good lord, for Gaveston is dead.
K. Edw. Ah, traitors! have they put my friend to death?
Tell me, Arundel, did he ere thou cam’st,
Or didst thou see my friend to take his death?
Arun. Neither, my lord; for as he was surpris’d,
Begirt with weapons and with enemies round,
I did your highness’ message to them all;
Demanding him of them, entreating rather,
And said, upon the honour of my name,
That I would undertake to carry him
Unto your highness, and to bring him back.
K. Edw. And tell me, would the rebels deny me that?
Y. Spen. Proud reagents!
K. Edw. Yea, Spencer, traitors all.
Arun. I found them at the first inexorable;
The Earl of Warwick would not bide the hearing,
Mortimer hardly; Pembroke and Lancaster
Spake least; and when they flatly had denied,
Refusing to receive me pledge for him,
The Earl of Pembroke mildly thus bespake:
“My lords, because our sovereign sends for him,
And promiseth he shall be safe return’d,
I will this undertake, to have him hence,
And see him re-delivered to your hands.”
K. Edw. Well, and how fortunes [it] that he came not?
Y. Spen. Some treason, or some villainy, was cause.
Arun. The Earl of Warwick seinn’d him on his way;
For being delivered unto Pembroke’s men,
Their lord rode home thinking his prisoner safe;
But ere he came, Warwick in ambush lay,

And bare him to his death; and in a trench
Strake off his head, and march’d unto the camp.
Y. Spen. A bloody part, flatly ‘gainst law of arms!
K. Edw. O shall I speak, or shall I sigh and die?
Y. Spen. My lord, refer your vengeance to the sword.
Upon these barons; hearten up your men;
Let them not unreveng’d murder your friends!
Advance your standard, Edward, in the field,
And march to fire them from their starting holes.
K. Edw. (kneeling.) By earth, the common mother of us all,
By Heaven, and all the moving orbs thereof,
By this right hand, and by my father’s sword,
And all the honours ‘longing to my crown,
I will have heads and lives for him, as many
As I have manors, castles, towns, and towers!—

[Rises.]

Treacherous Warwick! traitorous Mortimer! If I be England’s king, in lakes of gore
Your headless trunks, your bodies will I trail,
That you may drink your fill, and quaff in blood,
And stain my royal standard with the same,
That so my bloody colours may suggest
Remembrance of revenge immortally
On your accursed traitors to proceed.
You villains, that have slain my Gaveston!
And in this place of honour and of trust,
Spencer, sweet Spencer, I adopt thee here:
And merely of our love we do create thee
Earl of Gloucester, and Lord Chamberlain.
Despite of times, despite of enemies.
Y. Spen. My lord, here’s a messenger from the barons.

Desires access unto your majesty.

Enter the Herald from the Barons with his coat of arms.

Her. Long live King Edward, England’s lawful lord!
K. Edw. So wish not they, I wis, that sent thee hither.
Thou com’st from Mortimer and his ‘complices,
A ranker rout of rebels never was.
Well, say thy message.
Her. The barons up in arms, by me salute
Your highness with long life and happiness;
And bid me say, as plainer to your grace,
That if without effusion of blood
You will this grief have ease and remedy,
That from your princely person you remove
This Spencer, as a purifying branch,
That deads the royal vine, whose golden leaves
Empale your princely head, your diadem,
Whose brightness such pernicious upstarts dim,
Say they; and lovingly advise your grace,
To cherish virtue and nobility,
And have old servitors in high esteem,
And shake off smooth dissembling flatterers.
This granted, they, their honours, and their lives,
Are to your highness vow’d and consecrate.
Y. Spen. Ah, traitors! will they still display their pride?
K. Edw. Away, tarry no answer, but be gone!
Rebels, will they appoint their sovereign
Yet, ere thou go, see how I do divorce
Spencer from me. — Now get thee to thy lords,
And tell them I will come to chastise them
For murdering Gaveston; his thee, get thee gone!
Edward with fire and sword follows at thy heels.
[Exit Herald.]
My lords, perceive you how these rebels swell?
Soldiers, good hearts, defend your sovereign's right,
For now, even now, we march to make them stoop.
Away! Exeunt. Alarums, excursions, a great fight, and a retreat [sounded, within].

[SCENE III.]

Enter King Edward, the Elder Spencer, Young Spencer, and Noblemen of the King's side.

K. Edw. Why do we sound retreat? Upon them, lords!
This day I shall pour vengeance with my sword On those proud rebels that are up in arms And do confront and countermand their king.
Y. Spenn. I doubt it not, my lord, right will prevail.
E. Spenn. 'Tis not amiss, my liege, for either part To breathe awhile; our men, with sweat and dust, All chok'd well near, begin to faint for heat; And this retire refresheth horse and man.
Y. Spenn. Here come the rebels.

Enter the Barons, Young Mortimer, Lancaster, Warwick, Pembroke, and others.

Y. Mor. Look, Lancaster, yonder is Edward Among his flatt'rors.

Lan. And there let him be Till he pay dearly for their company.

War. And shall, or Warwick's sword shall smite in vain.
K. Edw. What, rebels, do you shrink and sound retreat?
Y. Mor. No, Edward, no; thy flatt'rors faint and fly.

Lan. Thou'd best betimes forsake them, and their trains,
For they'll betray thee, traitors as they are.
Y. Spenn. Traitor on thy face, rebellious Lancaster!

Pemb. Away, base upstart, brav'est thou nobles thus?

E. Spenn. A noble attempt and honourable deed,
's it not, trow ye, to assemble aid, And levy arms against your lawful king!

K. Edw. For which ere long their heads shall satisfy,
'T' appease the wrath of their offended king.
Y. Mor. Then, Edward, thou wilt fight it to the last, And rather bathe thy sword in subjects' blood, Than banish that pernicious company?
K. Edw. Ay, traitors all, rather than thus be braw'd,
Make England's civil towns huge heaps of stones, And ploughs to go about our palace-gates.

War. A desperate and unnatural resolution! Alarum! to the fight!
St. George for England, and the barons' right!
[Alarums. Exeunt the two parties severally.]

[SCENE IV.]

Enter King Edward [and his followers,] with the Barons [and Kent], captives.

K. Edw. Now, lusty lords, now, not by chance of war, But justice of the quarrel and the cause, Vail'd is your pride; methinks you hang the head.
But we'll advance them, traitors. Now 's time To be aveng'd on you for all your braves, And for the murder of my dearest friend, To whom right well you knew our soul was knit,
Good Pierce of Gaveston, my sweet favourite. Ah, rebels! recreants! you made him away.
Kent. Brother, in regard of thee, and of thy land,
Did they remove that flatt'rer from thy throne.
K. Edw. So, sir, you have spoke; away, avoid our presence! [Exit Kent.]
Accursed wretches, was't in regard of us, When we had sent our messenger to request He might be spar'd to come to speak with us, And Pembroke undertook for his return, That thou, proud Warwick, watch'd the prisoner, Poor Pierce, and headed him 'gainst law of arms? For which thy head shall overlook the rest, As much as thou in rage ontwent'st the rest.
War. Tyrant, I scorn thy threats and menace; It is but temporal that thou canst inflict.
Lan. The worst is death, and better die to live Than live in infamy under such a king.
K. Edw. Away with them, my lord of Winchester!
These lusty leaders, Warwick and Lancaster, I charge you roundly — off with both their heads!

Away!
War. Farewell, vain world!
Lan. Sweet Mortimer, farewell.
Y. Mor. England, unkind to thy nobility,
Groan for this grief, behold how thou art main'd!
K. Edw. Go take that haughty Mortimer to the Tower,
There see him safe bestow'd; and for the rest,
Do speedily execution on them all.
Begone!
Y. Mor. What, Mortimer! can ragged stony walls
Immure thy virtue that aspires to Heaven?
No, Edward, England's young, it may not be;
Mortimer's hope surmounts his fortune far.
[The captive barons are led off.]
K. Edw. Sound drums and trumpets! March with me, my friends, Edward this day hath crown'd him king anew.
Exeunt all except Young Spencer, Levune, and Baldoick.
Y. Spen. Levune, the trust that we reposed in thee,
Begets the quiet of King Edward's land.
Therefore begone in haste, and with advice
Bestow that treasure on the lords of France,
That, therewith all enchanted, like the guard
That suffered Jove to pass in showers of gold
To Danaé, all aid may be denied
To Isabel, the queen, that now in France
Makes friends, to cross the seas with her young son,
And step into his father's regiment. 1
Levune. That's it these barons and the subtle queen Long levell'd at.
Bal. Yes, but, Levune, thou seest
These barons lay their heads on blocks together;
What they intend, the hangman frustrates clean.
Levune. Have you no doubt, my lords; I'll clap so close
Among the lords of France with England's gold,
That Isabel shall make her plaints in vain,
And France shall be obdurate with her tears.
Y. Spen. Then make for France amain;
Levune, away!
Proclaim King Edward's wars and victories.
Exeunt.

[ACT IV]

[Scene I.]

Enter Kent.

Kent. Fair blows the wind for France; blow gentle gale,
Till Edmund be arriv'd for England's good!
Nature, yield to my country's cause in this.
A brother? No, a butcher of thy friends!
Proud Edward, dost thou banish me thy presence?
But I'll to France, and cheer the wronged queen,
And certify what Edward's looseness is.
Unnatural king! to slaughter noblemen

And cherish flatterers! Mortimer, I stay
Thy sweet escape; stand gracious, gloomy night,
To his device.

Enter Young Mortimer, disguised.

Y. Mor. Holla! who walketh there?
Is't you, my lord?
Kent. Mortimer, 'tis I;
But hath thy potion wrought so happily?
Y. Mor. It hath, my Lord; the warders all asleep.
I thank them, gave me leave to pass in peace.
But hath your grace got shipping unto France?
Kent. Fear it not.
Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Queen [Isabella] and her son [Prince Edward].

Q. Isab. Ah, boy! our friends do fail us all in France.
The lords are cruel, and the king unkind;
What shall we do?
P. Edw. Madam, return to England,
And please my father well, and then a fig
For all my uncle's friendship here in France. 93
I warrant you, I'll win his highness quickly;
'A loves me better than a thousand Spencers.
Q. Isab. Ah, boy, thou art deceiv'd, at least in this,
To think that we can yet be tun'd together;
No, no, we jar too far. Unkind Valois! 94
Unhappy Isabel! when France rejects,
Whither, oh! whither dost thou bend thy steps?

Enter Sir John of Hainault.

Sir J. Madam, what cheer?
Q. Isab. Ah! good Sir John of Hainault,
Never so cheerless, nor so far distress.
Sir J. I hear, sweet lady, of the king's unkindness;
But droop not, madam; noble minds contemn
Despair. Will your grace with me to Hainault,
And there stay time's advantage with your son?
How say you, my lord, will you go with your friends,
And share of all our fortunes equally?
P. Edw. So pleaseth the queen, my mother, me it likes.
The King of England, nor the court of France,
Shall have me from my gracious mother's side,
Till I be strong enough to break a staff;
And then have at the proudest Spencer's head.
Sir J. Well said, my lord.
Q. Isab. O, my sweet heart, how do I moan thy wrongs,
Yet triumph in the hope of thee, my joy!
Ah, sweet Sir John! even to the utmost verge
Of Europe, or the shore of Tanais,
Will we with thee to Hainault — so we will: —
The marquis is a noble gentleman;
His grace, I dare presume, will welcome me.
But who are these?

3 Paris. 4 T. Brooks amend. Qq. omits off.
EDWARD THE SECOND

Enter Kent and Young Mortimer.

Kent. Madam, long may you live,
Much happier than your friends in England do!
Q. Isab. Lord Edmund and Lord Mortimer alive!

Welcome to France! The news was here, my lord,
That you were dead, or very near your death.
Y. Mor. Lady, the last was truest of the twain;
But Mortimer, reserve’d for better hap,
Hath shaken off the thralldom of the Tower,
And lives to advance your standard, good my lord.

P. Edw. How mean you? An 1 the king, my father, lives?
No, my Lord Mortimer, not I, I trow.
Q. Isab. Not, son! why not? I would it were no worse.
But, gentle lords, friendless we are in France.
Y. Mor. Monsieur le Grand, a noble friend of yours,
Told us, at our arrival, all the news:
How hard the nobles, how unkind the king
Hath show’d himself; but, madam, right makes room.

Where weapons want; and, though a many friends
Are made away, away, as Warwick, Lancaster,
And others of our party and faction;
Yet have we friends, assure your grace, in England.

Would cast up caps, and clap their hands for joy.
To see us there, appointed 2 for our foes.
Kent. Would all were well, and Edward well reclaim’d,
For England’s honour, peace, and quietness.

Y. Mor. But by the sword, my lord, ’t must be deserv’d;
The king will ne’er forsake his flatteners.
Sir J. My lord of England, aith th’ ungentle king
Of France, refuseth to give aid of arms.
To this distressed queen her sister here,
Go you with her to Hainault. Doubt ye not,
We will find comfort, money, men, and friends
Ere long, to bid the English king a base.
How say, young princes? What think you of the match?

P. Edw. I think King Edward will outrun us all.
Q. Isab. Nay, son, not so; and you must not discourage
Your friends, that are so forward in your aid.
Kent. Sir John of Hainault, pardon us, I pray;
These comforts that you give our woeful queen
Bind us in kindness all at your command.
Q. Isab. Yea, gentle brother; and the God of heaven
Prosper your happy motion, good Sir John.
Y. Mor. This noble gentleman, forward in arms,

Was born, I see, to be our anchor-hold.
Sir John of Hainault, be it thy renown,
That England’s queen and nobles in distress,
Have been by thee restor’d and comforted.
Sir J. Madam, along, and your lords, me,
That England’s peers may Hainault’s welcome see.

[Scene III.] 5

Enter King [Edward], Arundel, the Elder and Younger Spencer, with others.

K. Edw. Thus after many threats of wrathful war,
Triumpheth England’s Edward with his friends;
And triumph, Edward, with his friends uncontr’l’d!
My lord of Gloucester, do you hear the news?
Y. Spenn. What news, my lord?
K. Edw. Why, man, they say there is great execution
Done through the realm; my lord of Arundel,
You have the note, have you not?
Arum. From the Lieutenant of the Tower, my lord.
K. Edw. I pray let us see it. [Takes the note.]
What have we there? 10
Read it, Spencer.
[Hand’s the note to Young Spence (who) reads the names.]

Why, so; they b’ark’d space a month ago;
Now, on my life, they’ll neither bark nor bite.
Now, sir, the news from France? Gloucester, I trow
The lords of France love England’s gold so well
As Isabella gets no aid from thence.

What now remains? Have you proclaim’d, my lord,
Reward for them can bring in Mortimer?
Y. Spenn. My lord, we have; and if he be in England,
’A will be had ere long. I doubt it not.
K. Edw. If, dost thou say? Spencer, as true as death,
He is in England’s ground; our portsmen are
Not so careless of their king’s command.

Enter a Post.

How now, what news with thee? From whence come these?
Post. Letters, my lord, and tidings forth of France; —
To you, my lord of Gloucester, from Levane.

K. Edw. Read.
Y. Spenn. (Reads).

"My duty to your honour premised, &c., I have,
according to instructions in that behalf, dealt with the King of France his lords, and effectually that the queen, all discontented and discomfited, is gone: whither, if you ask, with Sir John of Hainault, brother to the marquis, into Flanders. With them are gone Lord Edmund, and the Lord Mortimer, having in their company divers of your nation, and others; and,

1 If. 2 Equipped. 3 Earned. 4 Challenge. A reference to the game of prisoner’s base.
as constant report goeth, they intend to give King Edward battle in England, sooner than he can look for them. This is all the news of import.

Your honour’s in all service, LEVUNE."

K. Edw. Ah, villains! I hath that Mortimer escap’d?

With him is Edmund gone associate?
And will Sir John of Hainault lead the round?
Welcome, a’ God’s name, madam, and your son;
England shall welcome you and all your rout. 46
Gallop space, bright Phoebus, through the sky,
And dusky night, in rusty iron car,
Between you both shorten the time, I pray,
That I may see that most desired day
When we may meet these traitors in the field.
Ah, nothing grieves me but my little boy
Is thus misled to countenance their ills.
Come, friends, to Bristow, there to make us
strong;
And, winds, as equal be to bring them in,
As you injurious were to bear them forth.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene IV.] 2

Enter QUEEN [ISABELLA], her son, [PRINCE
EDWARD,] KENT, Young MORTIMER, and Sir
JOHN [of HAINAULT].

Q. Isab. Now, lords, our loving friends and countrymen,
Welcome to England all, with prosperous
winds!
Our kindest friends in Belgia have we left,
To cope with friends at home; a heavy case
When force to force is knit, and sword and glave
In civil broils make kin and countrymen
Slaughter themselves in others, and their sides With their own weapons gory’d! But what’s the help?
Misgoverned kings are cause of all this rack;
And, Edward, thou art one among them all,
Whose looseness hath betray’d thy land to spoil,
Who made the channels overflow with blood.
Of thine own people parent shouldst thou be,
But thou —

Y. Mor. Nay, madam, if you be a warrior,
You must not grow so passionate in speeches.
Lords,
Sith that we are by sufferance of Heaven
Arriv’d and armed in this prince’s right,
Here for our country’s cause swear we to him 14
All homage, fealty, and forwardness;
And for the open wrongs and injuries
Edward hath done to us, his queen and land,
We come in arms to wreak it with the sword;
That England’s queen in peace may repossess
Her dignities and honours; and withal
We may remove these flatteners from the king,
That havocs England’s wealth and treasury.
Sir J. Sound trumpets, my lord, and forward let us march.

Edward will think we come to flatter him.
KENT. I would he never had been flattered more. [Exeunt.]
So shall your brother be disposed of. —
I like not this relenting mood in Edmund.
Madam, 'tis good to look to him betimes.

[Aside to the Queen.]

Q. Isab. My lord, the Mayor of Bristow knows our mind.

Y. Mor. Yes, madam, and they scape not easily

That fled the field.
Q. Isab. Baldock is with the king,
A goodly chancellor, is he not, my lord?
Sir J. So are the Spencers, the father and the son.
Kent. This Edward is the ruin of the realm.

Enter Rice ap Howell and the Mayor of Bristol, with the Elder Spencer [prisoner, and Attendants].

Rice. God save Queen Isabel, and her princely
son!
Madam, the mayor and citizens of Bristow,
In sign of love and duty to this presence,
Present by me this traitor to the state,
Spencer, the father to that wanton Spencer,
That, like the lawless Catiline of Home,
Ravell'd in England's wealth and treasure.
Q. Isab. We thank you all.
Y. Mor. Your loving care in this deserveth princely favours and rewards.
But where's the king and the other Spencer fled?
Rice. Spencer the son, created Earl of Gloucester,
Is with that smooth-tongu'd scholar Baldock
gone
And ship't but late for Ireland with the king.

Y. Mor. [Aside.] Some whirlwind fetch them back or sink them all! —

They shall be started thence, I doubt it not.
P. Edw. Shall I not see the king my father
yet?
Kent. [Aside.] Unhappy's Edward, chas'd from England's bounds.
Sir J. Madam, what resteth, why stand you in a muse?
Q. Isab. I rue my lord's ill-fortune; but alas!
Care of my country call'd me to this war.

Y. Mor. Madam, have done with care and sad complaint;
Your king hath wrong'd your country and
himself,
And we must seek to right it as we may.
Meanwhile, have hence this rebel to the block.
Your lordship cannot privilege your head.
E. Spen. Rebel is he that fights against his prince;
So fought not they that fought in Edward's right.

Y. Mor. Take him away, he preates.

[Exeunt Attendants with the Elder Spencer.]

You, Rice ap Howell,
Shall do good service to her majesty,
Being of countenance in your country here,
To follow these rebellious runagates.
We in meanwhile, madam, must take advice
How Baldock, Spencer, and their complices
May in their fall be followed to their end.

Exeunt.

[Scene VI.]

Enter the Abbot, Monks, [King] Edward,
Young Spencer, and Baldock [the three latter disguised].
Abbot. Have you no doubt, my lord; have you no fear;
As silent and as careful we will be,
To keep your royal person safe with us,
Free from suspect and fell invasion
Of such as have your majesty in chase,

Yourself, and those your chosen company,
As danger of this stormy time requires.
K. Edw. Father, thy face should harbour no desert.
O! hadst thou ever been a king, thy heart,
Pierced deeply with sense of my distress,

Could not but take compassion of my state.
Stately and proud, in riches and in train,
While I was, powerful, and full of pomp:
But what is he whom rule and empery
Have not in life or death made miserable?
Come, Spencer; come, Baldock, come, sit down
by me;

Make trial now of that philosophy,
That in our famous nurseries of arts
Thou suck'dst from Plato and from Aristotle.
Father, this life contemplative is Heaven.

O that I might this life in quiet lead!
But we, alas! are cha'd; and you, my friends,
Your lives and my dishonour they pursue.
Yet, gentle monks, for treasure, gold, nor fee,
Do you betray us and our company.

Monks. Your grace may sit secure, if none but we
Do wot of your abode.

Y. Spen. Not one alive; but shrewdly I suspect

A gloomy fellow in a mead below.

A gave a long look after us, my lord;
And all the land I know is up in arms,
Arms that pursue our lives with deadly hate.

Bald. We were embark'd for Ireland, wretched
we!

With awkward winds and [with] sore tempests driven
To fall on shore, and here to pine in fear

Of Mortimer and his confederates.

K. Edw. Mortimer! who talks of Mortimer?
Who wounds me with the name of Mortimer,
That bloody man? Good father, on thy lap
Lay I this head, laden with mickle care.

O might I never open these eyes again!

Never again lift up this drooping head!
O never more lift up this dying heart!

Y. Spen. Look up, my lord. — Baldock, this drowsiness

Betides no good; here even we are betray'd.

Enter, with Welsh hooks, Rice ap Howell, a Mower, and Leicester.

Mow. Upon my life, these be the men ye seek.

Rice. Fellow, enough. — My lord, I pray be short,

A fair commission warrants what we do.

1 The abbey of Neath.
Leices. The queen's commission, urged by Mortimer:
What cannot gallant Mortimer with the queen?
Alas! see where she sits, and hopes unseen
T'escape their hands that seek to reave his life.
Too true it is, Quem dies vidit veniens superbum,
Hunc dies vidit fugiens juventum.\(^1\)
But, Leicester, leave to grow so passionate.
Spencer and Baldock, by no other names,
I do arrest you of high treason here.
Stand not on titles, but obey th' arrest;
'T is in the name of Isabel the queen.
My lord, why droop you thus?
K. Edw. O day, the last of all my bliss on earth!
Centre of all misfortune! O my stars!
Why do you pour unkindly on a king?
Comes Leicester, then, in Isabella's name
To take my life, my company from me?
Here, man, rip up this panting breast of mine,
And take my heart in rescue of my friends!
Rice. Away with them!
Y. Spen. It may become thee yet
To let us take our farewell of his grace.
Abbot. My heart with pity earns\(^2\) to see this sight.
[Aside.] A king to bear these words and proud commands.
K. Edw. Spencer, ah, sweet Spencer, thus then must we part?
Y. Spen. We must, my lord, so will the angry Heavens.
K. Edw. Nay, so will hell and cruel Mortimer.
The gentle Heavens have not to do in this.
Bald. My lord, it is in vain to grieve or storm.
Here humbly of your grace we take our leaves;
Our lots are cast; I fear me, so is thine.
K. Edw. In Heaven we may, in earth ne'er shall we meet.
And, Leicester, say, what shall become of us?
Leices. Your majesty must go to Killingworth.
K. Edw. Must! it is somewhat hard, when kings must go.
Leices. Here is a litter ready for your grace,
That waits your pleasure, and the day grows old.
Rice. As good be gone, as stay and be neglected.
K. Edw. A litter hast thou? Lay me in a hearse,
And to the gates of hell convey me hence;
Let Pluto's bells ring out my fatal knell,
And hags howl for my death at Charon's shore,
For friends hath Edward none but these and these.
And these must die under a tyrant's sword.
Rice. My lord, be going; care not for these,
For we shall see them shorter by the heads.
K. Edw. Well, that shall be, shall be: part we must!
Sweet Spencer, gentle Baldock, part we must!
Hence feigned weeds! unfeigned are my woes;
[Throw off his disguise.\(^3\)]

Father, farewell! Leicester, thou stay'st for me,
And go I must. Life, farewell, with my friends.

Exeunt Edward and Leicester.
Y. Spen. O! is he gone? Is noble Edward gone?
Parted from hence, never to see us more?
Rent, sphere of Heaven! and, fire, forsake thy orb!
Earth, melt to air! I gone is my sovereign,
Gone, gone, alas! never to make return.

Buld. Spencer, I see our souls are fletched hence;
We are depriv'd the sunshine of our life:
Make for a new life, man; throw up thy eyes,
And heart, and hand to Heaven's immortal throne;
Pay nature's debt with cheerful comtenance;
Reduce we all our lessons unto this:
To die, sweet Spencer, therefore live we all;
Spencer, all live to die, and rise to fall.
Rice. Come, come, keep these precepts till you come to the place appointed. You, and such as you are, have made wise work in England. Will your lordships away?

Mow. Your lordship, I trust, will remember me?
Rice. Remember thee, fellow! what else?
Follow me to the town. [Exeunt.]

[ACT V]

[SCENE I.]

Enter King [Edward], Leicester, the Bishop [of Winchester] for the crown [and Trussel].

Leices. Be patient, good my lord, cease to lament,
Imagine Killingworth Castle were your court,
And that you lay for pleasure here a space,
Not of compulsion or necessity.
K. Edw. Leicester, if gentle words might comfort me,
Thy speeches long ago had eas'd my sorrows;
For kind and loving hast thou always been.
The griefs of private men are soon alay'd,
But not of kings. The forest deer, being struck,
Runs to an herb that closeth up the wounds;\(^4\)
But, when the imperial lion's flesh is gor'd,
He renews and tears it with his wrathful paw,
[And] high scorning that the lowly earth
Should drink his blood, mounts up into the air.
And so it farest with me, whose dauntless mind
The ambitious Mortimer would seek to curb,\(^5\)
And that unnatural queen, false Isabel,
That thus hath pent and mew'd me in a prison;
For such outrageous passions close my soul,
As with the wings of rancour and disdain
Full often am I soaring up to Heaven,
To plain me to the gods against them both.
But when I call to mind I am a king,
Methinks I should revenge me of my wrongs,
That Mortimer and Isabel have done.\(^6\)
But what are kings, when regiment\(^8\) is gone,

\(^1\) "Whom the dawn sees proud, evening sees pros- trate;" Seneca, Thyestes, 613.
\(^2\) Yeare's, grievances.
\(^3\) Kenilworth.
\(^4\) A room in Kenilworth Castle.
\(^5\) Rule.
But perfect shadows in a sunshine day?
My nobles rule, I bear the name of king;
I wear the crown, but am control’d by them,
By Mortimer, and my unconstant queen,
Who spots my nuptial bed with infamy;
Whilst I am lodg’d within this cave of care,
Where sorrow at my elbow still attends,
To company my heart with sad laments,
That bleeds within me for this strange exchange.

But tell me, must I now resign my crown,
To make usurping Mortimer a king?
B. of Win. Your grace mistakes; it is for England’s good,
And princely Edward’s right we crave the crown.

K. Edw. No, ’t is for Mortimer, not Edward’s head;
For he’s a lamb, encompassed by wolves,
Which in a moment will abridge his life,
But if proud Mortimer do wear this crown,
Heavens turn it to a blaze of quenchless fire!
Or like the snaky wreath of Tisiphone,
Engirt the temples of his hateful head;
So shall not England’s vine be perished,
But Edward’s name survives, though Edward die.

Leices. My lord, why waste you thus the time away?
They stay your answer; will you yield your crown?

K. Edw. Ah, Leicester, weigh how hardly I can brook
To lose my crown and kingdom without cause;
To give ambitious Mortimer my right,
That like a mountain overwhels my bliss,
In which extreme my mind here murdered is,
But what the heavens appoint, I must obey!
Here, take my crown; the life of Edward too;
[Taking off the crown.]

Two kings in England cannot reign at once,
But stay awhile, let me be king till night,
That I may gaze upon this glittering crown;
So shall my eyes receive their last content,
My head, the latest honour due to it,
And jointly both yield up their wished right.
Continue ever thou celestial sun;
Let never silent night possess this olive,
Stand still ye watches of the element;
All times and seasons, rest you at a stay,
That Edward may be still fair England’s king!

But day’s bright beam doth vanish fast away,
And needs I must resign my wished crown;
Inhuman creatures! nure’d with tiger’s milk!
Why gape you for your sovereign’s overthrow?
My diadem I mean, and guiltless life.
See, monsters, see, I’ll wear my crown again!
[He puts on the crown.]

What, fear you not the fury of your king?
But, hapless Edward, thou art fondly led;
They pass not for thy frowns as late they did,
But seek to make a new-elected king;
Which fills my mind with strange despairing thoughts.

Which thoughts are martyred with endless tortures,
And in this torment comfort find I none,
But that I feel the crown upon my head;
And therefore let me wear it yet awhile.
Trus. My lord, the parliament must have present news,
And therefore say, will you resign or no?

K. Edw. I’ll not resign, but whilst I live [be king.]

Traitsor, be gone and join with Mortimer!
Eelect, conspire, install, do what you will: — Their blood and yours shall seal these treacheries!

B. of Win. This answer we’ll return, and so farewell. [Going with Trussarl.]

Leices. Call them again, my lord, and speak them fair;
For if they go, the prince shall lose his right.
K. Edw. Call thou them back, I have no power to speak.

Leices. My lord, the king is willing to resign.
B. of Win. If he be not, let him choose.
K. Edw. O would I might, but heavens and earth conspire
To make me miserable! Here receive my crown!

Receive it? No, these innocent hands of mine Shall not be guilty of so foul a crime,
He of you all that most desires my blood,
And will be call’d the murderer of a king, Take it. What, are you mov’d? Pity you me? Then send for unrelenting Mortimer,
And Isabel, whose eyes, being turn’d to steel,
Will sooner sparkle fire than shed a tear.
Yet stay, for rather than I’ll look on them, Here, here! [Gives the crown.]

Now, sweet God of Heaven,
Make me despise this transitory pomp,
And sit for eye enthroned in Heaven!
Come, death, and with thy fingers close my eyes,
Or if I live, let me forget myself.
B. of Win. My lord —
K. Edw. Call me not lord; away — out of my sight!

Ah, pardon me: grief makes me lunatic!
Let not that Mortimer protect my son;
More safety is there in a tiger’s jaws,
Than his embraces. Bear this to the queen,
Wet with my tears, and dried again with sighs; [Gives a handkerchief.
If with the sight thereof she be not mov’d,
Return it back and dip it in my blood.

Command me to my son, and bid him rule
Better than I. Yet how have I transgress’d,
Unless it be with too much clemency?
Trus. And thus most humbly do we take our leave.

K. Edw. Farewell; [Execut the Bishop of Winchester and Trussel.]

I know the next news that they bring
Will be my death; and welcome shall it be;
To wretched men, death is felicity.
Enter Berkeley, [who gives a paper to Leicester].

Leices. Another post! what news brings he?
K. Edw. Such news as I expect—come, Berkeley, come.
And tell thy message to my naked breast.
Berk. My lord, think not a thought so villainous
Can harbour in a man of noble birth.
To do thy highness service and devote,
And save you from your foes, Berkeley would die.

Leices. My lord, the council of the queen commands
That I resign my charge.
K. Edw. And who must keep me now? Must you, my lord?
Berk. Ay, my most gracious lord; so 'tis decreed.

K. Edw. [taking the paper.] By Mortimer, whose name is written here!
Well may I rend his name that rends my heart! [Tears it]

This poor revenge has something eas'd my mind,
So may his limbs be torn, as is this paper!
Hear me, immortal Jove, and grant it too!

Berk. Your grace must hence with me to Berkeley straight.
K. Edw. Whither you will; all places are alike,
And every earth is fit for burial.

Leices. Favour him, my lord, as much as lieth in you.
Berk. Even so betide my soul as I use him.
K. Edw. Mine enemy hath pitted my estate,
And that's the cause that I am now remov'd.
Berk. And thinks your grace that Berkeley will be cruel?
K. Edw. I know not; but of this am I assured,
That death ends all, and I can die but once.
Leicester, farewell!

Leices. Not yet, my lord; I'll bear you on your way.

Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Queen Isabella and Young Mortimer.

Y. Mor. Fair Isabel, now have we our desire;
The proud corruptors of the light-brain'd king
Have done their homage to the lofty gallows,
And he himself lies in captivity.
Be ruled by me, and we will rule the realm.
In any case take heed of childish fear,
For now we hold an old wolf by the ears,
That, if he slip, will seize upon us both,
And gripe the sorer, being cribbed himself.
Think therefore, madam, that imports us much
To erect your son with all the speed we may,
And that I be protector over him;
For our behalf will bear the greater sway
Whenas a king's name shall be under writ.

Q. Isab. Sweet Mortimer, the life of Isabel,
Be thou persuaded that I love thee well,
And therefore, so the prince my son be safe,
Whom I esteem as dear as these mine eyes,
Conclude against his father what thou wilt,
And I myself will willingly subscribe.
Y. Mor. First would I hear news that he were dead,
And then let me alone to handle him.

Enter Messenger.

Letters! from whence?
Mess. From Killingworth, my lord.
Q. Isab. How fares my lord the king?
Mess. In health, madam, but full of pensive
Q. Isab. Alas, poor soul, would I could ease his grief!

[Enter the Bishop of Winchester with the crown.]

Thanks, gentle Winchester. [To the Messenger.]
Sirrah, be gone. [Exit Messenger.]
B. of Win. The king hath willingly resign'd his crown.
Q. Isab. O happy news! I send for the prince, my son.
B. of Win. Further, or this letter was seal'd,
Lord Berkeley came,
So that he now is gone from Killingworth;
And we have heard that Edmund laid a plot
To set his brother free; no more but so.
The lord of Berkeley is so pitiful
As Leicester that had charge of him before.
Q. Isab. Then let some other be his guardian.
Y. Mor. Let me alone, here is the privy seal.
[Exit the Bishop of Winchester.]

Who's there?—Call hither Gurney and Mattr- via.
[To Attendants within.]
To dash the heavy-headed Edmund's drift,
Berkeley shall be discharg'd, the king remov'd,
And none but we shall know where he lieth.
Q. Isab. But, Mortimer, as long as he survives,
What safety rests for us, or for my son?
Y. Mor. Speak, shall he presently be despatch'd and die?
Q. Isab. I would he were, so 't were not by my means.

Enter Matrevis and Gurney.

Y. Mor. Enough. —
Matrevis, write a letter presently
Unto the lord of Berkeley from ourself.
That he resign the king to thee and Gurney;
And when 'tis done, we will subscribe our name.
Mat. It shall be done, my lord.
Y. Mor. Gurney, My lord.
Y. Mor. As thou intend'st to rise by Mortimer,
Who now makes Fortune's wheel turn as he pleases,
Seek all the means thou canst to make him droop,
And neither give him kind word nor good look.
Gurn. I warrant you, my lord.
Y. Mor. And this above the rest: because we hear
That Edmund casts to work his liberty,
Remove him still from place to place by night,
Till at the last he come to Killingworth,
And then from hence to Berkeley back again;
And by the way, to make him fret the more,
Speak curtly to him, and in any case
Let no man comfort him; if he chance to weep,
But amplify his grief with bitter words.

Mat. Fear not, my lord, we'll do as you command.

Y. Mor. So now away; post thitherwards remain.

Q. Isab. Whither goes this letter? To my lord the king?

Commend me humbly to his majesty,
And tell him that I labour all in vain
To ease his grief, and work his liberty;
And bear him this as witness of my love.

[Gives a ring.]

Mat. I will, madam. Exit with Gurney.

Enter Prince [Edward] and Kent talking with him.

Y. Mor. Finely dissembled. Do so still, sweet queen.

Here comes the young prince with the Earl of Kent.

Q. Isab. Something he whispers in his childish ears.

Y. Mor. If he have such access unto the prince,
Our plots and stratagems will soon be dash'd.

Q. Isab. Use Edmund friendly, as if all were well.

Y. Mor. How fares my honourable lord of Kent?

Kent. In health, sweet Mortimer. How fares your grace?

Q. Isab. Well, if my lord your brother were enlarg'd.

Kent. I hear of late he hath depos'd himself.

Q. Isab. The more my grief.

Y. Mor. And mine.

Kent. [Aside.] Ah, they do dissemble!

Q. Isab. Sweet son, come hither, I must talk with thee.

Y. Mor. You being his uncle, and the next of blood,
Do look to be protector o'er the prince.

Kent. Not I, my lord; who should protect the son,
But she that gave him life? I mean the queen.

P. Edw. Mother, persuade me not to wear the crown.

Let him be king—I am too young to reign.

Q. Isab. But be content, seeing 'tis his highness' pleasure.

P. Edw. Let me but see him first, and then I will.

Kent. Ay, do, sweet nephew.

Q. Isab. Brother, you know it is impossible.

P. Edw. Why, is he dead?

Q. Isab. No, God forbid!

Kent. I would those words proceeded from your heart.

Y. Mor. Inconstant Edmund, dost thou favour him,

That wist the cause of his imprisonment?

Kent. The more cause have I now to make amends.

Y. Mor. [Aside to Q. Isab.] I tell thee, 'tis not meet that one so false
Should come about the person of a prince.—
My lord, he hath betray'd the king his brother,
And therefore trust him not.

P. Edw. But he repents, and sorrows for it now.

Q. Isab. Come, son, and go with this gentle lord and me.

P. Edw. With you I will, but not with Mortimer.

Y. Mor. Why, youngling, 'adain'st thou so of Mortimer?

Then I will carry thee by force away.

P. Edw. Help, uncle Kent! Mortimer will wrong me.

Q. Isab. Brother Edmund, strive not; we are his friends;
Isabel is nearer than the Earl of Kent.

Kent. Sister, Edward is my charge, redeem him.

Q. Isab. Edward is my son, and I will keep him.

Kent. Mortimer shall know that he hath wrong'd me!—

[Aside.] Hence will I haste to Killingworth Castle,
And rescue aged Edward from his foes.
To be reveng'd on Mortimer and thee.

Exeunt [on one side Queen Isabella, Prince Edward, and Young Mortimer; on the other Kent.]

[Scene III.]

Enter Matrevis and Gurney [and Soldiers] with King [Edward].

Mat. My lord, be not pensive, we are your friends;
Men are ordain'd to live in misery,
Therefore come,—dalliance endanger our lives.

K. Edw. Friends, whither must unhappy Edward go?

Will hateful Mortimer appoint no rest?
Must I be vexed like the nightly bird,
Whose sight is loathsome to all winged fowls?
When will the fury of his mind assuage?
When will his heart be satisfied with blood?
If mine will serve, unbowel straight this breast,
And give my heart to Isabel and him;
It is the chiefest mark they level at.

Gwr. Not so my liege, the queen hath given this charge
To keep your grace in safety;
Your passion may make your dolours to increase.

K. Edw. This usage makes my misery to increase.

Footnotes:
1 Plots.
2 Kenilworth Castle.
3 Aim.
But can my air of life continue long
When all my senses are annoy'd with stench?
Within a dungeon England's king is kept,
Where I am starv'd for want of sustenance.
My daily diet is heart-breaking sobes,
That almost rents the closest of my heart.
Thus lives old Edward not reliev'd by any,
And so must die, though pitied by many.
O, water, gentle friends, to cool my thirst,
And clear my body from foul excrements!

Mat. Here's channel water, as our charge is given.

Sit down, for we'll be barbers to your grace.

K. Edw. Traitors, away! What, will you murder me,
Or choke your sovereign with puddle water?

Gur. No; but wash your face, and shave away your beard.

Least you be known and so be rescued.

Mat. Why strive you thus? Your labour is in vain!

K. Edw. The wren may strive against the lion's strength,
But all in vain: so vainly do I strive
To seek for mercy at a tyrant's hand.

They wash him with puddle water,
And shave his beard away.

Immortal powers! that knows the painful cares
That wait upon my poor distressed soul,
O level all your looks upon these daring men,
That wrongs their liege and sovereign, England's king!

O Gaveston, 'tis for thee I am wrong'd;
For me, both thou and both the Spencers died!
And for your sake a thousand wrongs I'll take.
The Spencers' ghosts, wherever they remain,
Wish well to mine; then tush, for them I'll die.

Mat. 'Twixt theirs and yours shall be no enmity.

Come, come away; now put the torches out,
We'll enter in by darkness to Killingworth.

Enter Kent.

Gur. How now, who comes there?

Mat. Guard the king sure: it is the Earl of Kent.

K. Edw. O gentle brother, help to relieve me!
Mat. Keep them asunder: thrust in the king.

Kent. Soldiers, let me but talk to him one word.

Gur. Lay hands upon the earl for this assault.

Kent. Lay down your weapons, traitors! Yield the king!

Mat. Edmund, yield thou thyself, or thou shalt die.

Kent. Base villains, wherefore do you gripe me thus?

Gur. Bind him and so convey him to the court.

Kent. Where is the court but here? Here is the king;
And I will visit him; why stay you me?

Mat. The court is where Lord Mortimer remains;
Thither shall your honour go; and so farewell.

Exeunt Mattravis and Gurney, with King Edward.
At every ten mile end thou hast a horse.
Take this; (Gives money) away! and never see me more.

Light. No?
Y. Mor. No;

Unless thou bring me news of Edward's death.
Light. That will I quickly do. Farewell, my lord.

[Exit.]

Y. Mor. The prince I rule, the queen do I command,
And with a lowly conseg to the ground,
The proudest lords salute me as I pass;
I seal, I cancel, I do what I will.
Fear'd am I more than lov'd; — let me be fear'd,
And when I frown, make all the court look pale.

I view the prince with Aristarchus' eyes,
Whose looks were as a breeching to a boy.
They thrust upon me the protectorship,
And sue to me for that that I desire.
While at the council-table, grave enough,
And not unlike a bashful puritan,
First I complain of imbecility,
Saying it is onus quam gravissimum, 1
Till being interrupted by my friends,
Suscepti quod provinciam 2 as they term it;
And to conclude, I am Protector now,
Now is all sure: the queen and Mortimer
Shall rule the realm, the king; and none rule us.
Mine enemies will I plague, my friends advance;
And what I list command who dare control
Major sum quam cui possit fortuna nocere. 3
And that this be the coronation-day,
It pleaseth me, and Isabel the queen.

[Trumpets within.]
The trumpets sound, I must go take my place.

Enter the young King, Queen [Isabella,] the Archbishop [of Canterbury,] Champion and Nobles.

A. of Cant. Long live King Edward, by the grace of God
King of England and Lord of Ireland!
Cham. If any Christian, Heathen, Turk, or Jew,
Dares but affirm that Edward's not true king,
And will avouch his saying with the sword,
I am the champion that will combat him.
Y. Mor. None comes, sound trumpets.

[Trumpets sound.]

K. Edw. Third. Champion, here's to thee,

[Give a purse.]

Q. Isab. Lord Mortimer, now take him to your charge.

Enter Soldiers, with Kent prisoner.

Y. Mor. What traitor have we there with blades and bills?
Sol. Edmund, the Earl of Kent.
K. Edw. Third. What hath he done?
Sol. 'A would have taken the king away perforce,
As we were bringing him to Killingworth.

1 Lat. "a very heavy burden."
2 Lat. "I have undertaken that office."
3 Lat. "I am too great for fortune to injure." Or, Metamorphoses, vi. 195.

Y. Mor. Did you attempt this rescue, Edmund? Speak.
Kent. Mortimer, I did; he is our king,
And thou compell'st this prince to wear the crown.
Y. Mor. Strike off his head! he shall have martial law.
Kent. Strike off my head! Base traitor, I defy thee!
K. Edw. Third. My lord, he is my uncle, and shall live.
Y. Mor. My lord, he is your enemy, and shall die.
Kent. Stay, villains!
K. Edw. Third. Sweet mother, if I cannot pardon him,
Entreat my Lord Protector for his life.
Q. Isab. Son, be content; I dare not speak a word.
K. Edw. Third. Nor I, and yet methinks I should command;
But, seeing I cannot, I 'll entreat for him —
My lord, if you will let my uncle live,
I will requite it when I come to age.
Y. Mor. 'Tis for your highness' good, and for the realm's.

How often shall I bid you bear him hence?
Kent. Art thou king? Must I die at thy command?
Y. Mor. At our command — Once more away with him.
Kent. Let me but stay and speak; I will not go.
Either my brother or his son is king.
And none of both them thirst for Edmund's blood:
And therefore, soldiers, whither will you hale me?

Soldiers, take Kent away, and carry him to be beheaded.

K. Edw. Third. What safety may I look for at his hands,
If that my uncle shall be murdered thus?
Q. Isab. Fear not, sweet boy, I'll guard thee from thy foes:
Had Edmund liv'd, he would have sought thy death.
Come, son, we'll ride a-hunting in the park.
K. Edw. Third. And shall my uncle Edmund ride with us?
Q. Isab. He is a traitor; think not on him; come.

[Scene V.]

Enter Matrevis and Gurney.

Mat. Gurney, I wonder the king dies not,
Being in a vault up to the knees in water,
To which the channels of the castle run,
From whence a damp continually arising,
That were enough to poison any man,
Much more a king brought up so tenderly.
Gurn. And so do I, Matrevis: yesternight I opened but the door to throw him meat,
And I was almost stifled with the savour.
Mat. He hath a body able to endure

4 Berkeley Castle.
More than we can inflict: and therefore now
Let us assail his mind another while.

Gur. Send for him out thence, and I will anger him.

Mat. But stay, who's this?

Enter LIGHTBORN.

Light. My Lord Protector greets you.

Gur. What's here? I know not how to con-}

Mat. Gurney, it was left unpointed for the "Edwardum occidere nolite timere;"

That's his meaning.

Light. Know ye this token? I must have the

Mat. [Aside.] This villain's sent to make away the

Gur. [Aside.] I thought as much.

Mat. [Aside.] And when the murder's done,
See how he must be handled for his labour.

Pretat iste! 2 Let him have the king. —

Gur. [Aside.] I thought so as much.

Mat. [Aside.] And when the murder's done,
Do as you are commanded by my lord.

Light. I know what I must do. Get you away.
Yet be not far off, I shall need your help;
See that in the next room I have a fire,
And get me a spit, and let it be red-hot.

Mat. Very well.

Gur. Need you anything besides?

Light. What else? A table and a feather-bed.

Gur. That's all.

Light. Ay, ay; so, when I call you, bring it in.

Mat. Fear not thou that.

Gur. Here's a light, to go into the dungeon.

Light. So now

Must I about this gear? 4 ne'er was there any

So finely handled as this king shall be.

For, here's a place indeed, with all my heart!

K. Edw. Who's there? What light is that?

Light. Wherefore com'st thou?

K. Edw. Small comfort finds poor Edward in Villain, I know thou com'st to murder me.

Light. To murder you, my most gracious lord!

Far is it from my heart to do you harm.

The queen sent me to see how you were used,
For she relents at this your misery:
And what eyes can refrain from shedding tears,
To see a king in this most piteous state?

K. Edw. Weep'st thou already? List awhile to me.

And then thy heart, were it as Gurney's is,
Or as Mattravis', hewn from the Caucasus,
Yet will it melt, ere I have done my tale.

This dungeon where they keep me is the sink
Wherein the filth of all the castle falls.

1 Purposely.
2 Lat. "Let this man die."
3 Lat. "Let this man die."
Light. To rid thee of thy life. — Matrevis, come!

[Enter Matrevis and Gurney.]

K. Eduv. I am too weak and feeble to resist:
Assist me, sweet God, and receive my soul!

Light. Run for the table.

K. Eduv. O spare me, or despatch me in a trice. [Matrevis brings in a table.]

Light. So, lay the table down, and stamp on it,
But not too hard, lest that you bruise his body.

[KING EDWARD is murdered.]

Mat. I fear me that this cry will raise the town,
And therefore, let us take horse and away. 114

Light. Tell me, sir, was it not bravely done?

Gur. Excellent well: take this for thy reward.

GURNEY stabs LIGHTBORN. [Who dies].

Come, let us cast the body in the moat,
And bear the king’s to Mortimer our lord:
Away!  Execut with the bodies.

[Scene VI.] 1

Enter Young Mortimer and Matrevis.

Y. Mor. Is’t done, Matrevis, and the murderer dead?

Mat. Ay, my good lord; I would it were undone!

Y. Mor. Matrevis, if thou now growest penitent
I’ll be thy ghostly father; therefore choose,
Whether thou wilt be secret in this,
Or else die by the hand of Mortimer.

Mat. Gurney, my lord, is fled, and will, I fear, Betray us both, therefore let me fly.

Y. Mor. Fly to the savages!

Mat. I humbly thank your honour. [Exit.] 10

Y. Mor. As for myself, I stand as Jove’s huge tree,
And others are but shrubs compass’d to me.
All tremble at my name, and I fear none;
Let’s see who dare impeach me for his death!

Enter Queen Isabella.

Q. Isab. Ah, Mortimer, the king my son hath news
His father’s dead, and we have murdered him!

Y. Mor. What if he have? The king is yet a child.

Q. Isab. Ay, but he tears his hair, and wrings his hands,
And vows to be reveng’d upon us both.
Into the council-chamber he is gone,
To crave the aid and succour of his peers.
Ay me! see here he comes, and they with him.
Now, Mortimer, begins our tragedy.

Enter King [Edward the Third], Lords
[and Attendants.]

1 Lord. Fear not, my lord, know that you are a king.

K. Eduv. Third. Villain! —

Y. Mor. How now, my lord!

K. Eduv. Third. Think not that I am frightened
With thy words!

My father’s murdered through thy treachery;
And thou shalt die, and on his mournful hearse
Thy hateful and accursed head shall lie,
To witness to the world, that by thy means
His kingly body was too soon inter’d.

Q. Isab. Weep not, sweet son!

K. Eduv. Third. Forbid me not to weep, he was my father;
And, had you lov’d him half so well as I, you
Could not bear his death thus patiently.
But you, I fear, conspir’d with Mortimer.

1 Lord. Why speak you not unto my lord the king?

Y. Mor. Because I think sworn to be accus’d.
Who is the man dares say I murdered him?

K. Eduv. Third. Traitor! in me my loving father speaks,
And plainly saith, ‘twas thou that mur’d’rest him.

Y. Mor. But has your grace no other proof Than this?

K. Eduv. Third. Yes, if this be the hand of Mortimer.

[Shewing letter.]*

Y. Mor. [Aside.] False Gurney hath betray’d me and himself.

Q. Isab. [Aside.] I fear’d as much; murder cannot be hid.

Y. Mor. It is my hand; what gather you by this?

K. Eduv. Third. That thither thou didst send a murderer.

Y. Mor. What murderer? Bring forth the man I sent.

K. Eduv. Third. Ah, Mortimer, thou knowest
That he is slain;

And so shalt thou be too.— Why stays he here?
Bring him unto a hurdle, drag him forth;
Hang him, I say, and set his quarters up;
But bring his head back presently to me.

Q. Isab. For my sake, sweet son, pity Mortimer!

Y. Mor. Madam, entreat not, I will rather die,
Than sue for life unto a paltry boy.

K. Eduv. Third. Hence with the traitor! with the murderer!

[Y. Mor. Base Fortune, now I see, that in thy wheel
There is a point, to which when men aspire, They tumble headlong down: that point I touch’d.
And, seeing there was no place to mount up higher,
Why should I grieve at my declining fall? —
Farewell, fair queen; weep not for Mortimer,
That scorches the world, and, as a traveller, Goes to discover countries yet unknown.

K. Eduv. Third. What! suffer you the traitor to delay?

[Young Mortimer is taken away by 1 Lord and Attendants.]

Q. Isab. As thou receivest thy life from me, Spill not the blood of gentle Mortimer!
K. Edw. Third. This argues that you spilt my father's blood,
Else would you not entreat for Mortimer.
Q. Isab. I spill his blood? No!
K. Edw. Third. Ay, madam, you; for so the rumour runs.
Q. Isab. That rumour is untrue; for loving thee,
Is this report rais'd on poor Isabel.
K. Edw. Third. I do not think her so unnatural.
2 Lord. My lord, I fear me it will prove too
ture.
K. Edw. Third. Mother, you are suspected for his death,
And therefore we commit you to the Tower
Till farther trial may be made thereof;
If you be guilty, though I be your son,
Think not to find me slack or pitiful.
Q. Isab. Nay, to my death, for too long have I liv'd Whenas my son thinks to abridge my days.
K. Edw. Third. Away with her, her words enforce these tears,
And I shall pity her if she speak again.
Q. Isab. Shall I not mourn for my beloved
lord.
And with the rest accompany him to his grave?
2 Lord. Thus, madam, 'tis the king's will you shall hence.
Q. Isab. He hath forgotten me; stay, I am his mother.
2 Lord. That boots not; therefore, gentle madam, go.
Q. Isab. Then come, sweet death, and rid me of this grief. [Exit.]
[Re-enter 1 Lord, with the head of Young Mortimer.]
1 Lord. My lord, here is the head of Morti-er.
K. Edw. Third. Go fetch my father's hearse,
where it shall lie;
And bring my funeral robes.
[Exeunt Attendants.]
Accursed head, Could I have rul'd thee then, as I do now, Thou hast not hatch'd this monstrous treach-ery!—
Here comes the hearse; help me to mourn, my lords.
[Re-enter Attendants with the hearse and funeral robes.]
Sweet father, here unto thy murdered ghost
I offer up this wicked traitor's head;
And let these tears, distilling from mine eyes,
Be witness of my grief and innocency.
[Exeunt.]

ACT I

[SCENE 1: INDUCTION.]

Enter the Ghost of Andrea, and with him Revenge.

Ghost. When this eternal substance of my soul
Did live imprison'd in my wanton flesh,
Each in their function serving other's need,
I served the courtier in the Spanish court.
My name was Don Andrea; my descent, a
Though not ignoble, yet inferior far
To gracious fortunes of my tender youth:
For there in prime and pride of all my years,
By duteous service and deserving love,
In secret I possess'd a worthy dame,
Which hight sweet Bel-imperia by name.
But in the harvest of my summer joys
Death's winter nipp'd the blossoms of my bliss,
Forcing the Duke's son.
For in the late conflict with Portingal,
My valour drew me into danger's mouth
Till life to death made passage through my wounds.

When I was slain, my soul descended straight
To pass the flowing stream of Acheron;
But churlish Charon, only boatman there,
Said that, my rites of burial not perform'd,
I might not sit amongst his passengers.
Ere Sol had slept three nights in Thetis' lap,
And she'd his smoking chariot in her flood,
By Don Horatio, our knight marshal's son,

Two Portugese.
PEDRIGAMO, Bel-imperia's servant.
CHIRCHIPEL, Bel-imperia's custodian.
Lorenzo's Page.
SERVANT OF BALTHASSAR's servant.
ISABELLA's Maid.
Messanger.
Hangman.
SOLOMAN, Sultan of Turkey (Balthasar),
ERANIO, Knight of Rhodes (Lorenzo),
THE BASHAW (Hieronimo),
PERUSA (Bel-imperia),
In the additions to
Three Kings and three Knights in the first Dumb-show.
Rymen and two torch-bearers in the second.
BARELLO, a Painter.
In the additions to
PADO AND JACARE, Hieronimo's play.

Army, Royal Suits, Noblemen, Harbeldiers, Officers,
Three Watchmen, Servants, etc.

My funerals and obsequies were done.
Then was the ferryman of hell content
To pass me over to the alimy strand,
That leads to fell Avernus' ugly waves.
There, pleasing Cerberus with honey'd speech,
I pass'd the peril of the foremost shore.
Not far from hence, amidst ten thousand souls,
Sat Minos, Aeacus, and Rhadamsh; for whom no sooner gan I make approach,
To crave a passport for my wand'ring ghost,
But Minos, in graven leaves of lottery,
Drew forth the manner of my life and death.
"This knight," quoth he, "both liv'd and died in love;
And for his love tried fortune of the wars;
And by war's fortune lost both love and life."
"Why then," said Aeacus, "convey him hence,
To walk with lovers in our fields of love,
And spend the course of everlasting time
Under green myrtle-trees and cypress shades.""No, no," said Rhadamanth, "it were not well;
With loving souls to place a martialis.
He died in war, and must to martial fields,
Where wounded Hector lives in lasting pain,
And Achilles' Myrmidons do scour the plain."
Then Minos, mildest censor of the three,
Made this device to end the difference:
"Send him," quoth he, "to our infernal king,
To doom him as best seems his majesty."
To this effect my passport straight was drawn.
In keeping on my way to Pluto's court,
Through dreadful shades of ever-glimming night,
I saw more sights than thousand tongues can tell.
Or pens can write, or mortal hearts can think.
Three ways there were: that on the right-hand side
Was ready way unto the foresaid fields,
Where lovers live and bloody martialists;
But either sort contain'd within his bounds.
The left-hand path, declining fearfully,
Was ready downfall to the deepest hell,
Where bloody Furies shake their whips of steel.
And poor Ixion turns an endless wheel;
Where sufferers are choked with melting gold,
And wantons are embrac'd with ugly snakes,
And murderers groan with never-killing wounds,
And perjur'd wights scalded in boiling lead,
And all foul sins with tortures overwhelm'd.
"Twixt these two ways I trod the middle path,
Which brought me to the fair Elysian green,
In midst whereof there stands a stately tower,
The walls of brass, the gates of adamant.
Here finding Pluto with his Proserpine,
I show'd my passport, humbled on my knee;
Whereat fair Proserpine began to smile,
And begged that only she might give my doom.
Pluto was pleas'd, and seal'd it with a kiss.
Forwith, Revenge, she round'd 1 thee in th' eye,
And bade thee lead me through the gates of horn.
Where dreams have passage in the silent night.
No sooner had she spoke, but we were here—
I wot not how—in twinkling of an eye.
Revenge. Then know, Andrea, that thou art arriv'd
Where thou shalt see the author of thy death.
Don Balthasar, the prince of Portingale,
Deprived of life by Bel-imperia.
Here sit we down to see the mystery,
And serve for Choros in this tragedy.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Spanish King, General, Castile, and Hieronimo.

King. Now say, lord General, how fares our camp?
Gen. All well, my sovereign liege, except some few
That are deceas'd by fortune of the war.
King. But what portends thy cheerful countenance,
And posting to our presence thus in haste?
Speak, man, hast fortune given us victory?
Gen. Victory, my liege, and that with little loss.
King. Our Portingals will pay us tribute then.
Gen. Tribute and wonted homage withal.

King. Then bless'd be heaven and guardian of the heavens.
From whose fair influence such justice flows.
Cast. O multum dilecte Deo, tibi militat aether,
Et conjuratae curratae populi gentes
Succumbunt: recti soror est victoria juris.
King. Thanks to my loving brother of Castile.
But, General, unfold in brief discourse
Your form of battle and your war's success,
That, adding all the pleasure of thy news
Unto the height of former happiness,
With deeper wage and greater dignity
We may reward thy blissful chivalry.
Gen. Where Spain and Portingale do jointly knit
Their frontiers, leaning on each other's bound,
There met our armies in their proud array;
Both furnish'd well, both full of hope and fear,
Both menacing alike with daring shows;
Both vaunting sundry colours of device,
Both cheerily sounding trumpets, drums, and fifes,
Both raising dreadful clamours to the sky;
That valleys, hills, and rivers made rebound,
And heavy itself was frighted with the sound.
Our battles both were pitch'd in squadron form,
Each corner strongly fenc'd with wings of shot;
But we join'd and came to push of pike,
I brought a squadron of our readiest shot.
From out our rearward to begin the fight:
They brought another wing t' encounter us.
Meanwhile, our ordinance play'd on either side,
And captains strove to have their valours tried.

Don Pedro, their chief horsemen's colonel,
Did with his corset 5 bravely make attempt
To break the order of our battle ranks:
But Don Rogero, worthy man of war,
March'd forth against him with our musketeers,
And stopp'd the malice of his fell approach.
While they maintain hot skirmish to and fro,
Both battles join, and fall to handy-blows.
Their violent shot resembling th' ocean's rage,
When, roaring loud, and with a swelling tide,
It beats upon the rampiers of huge rocks,
And gapes to swallow neighbour-bounding lands.

Now, while Bellona rageth here and there,
Thick storms of bulletas ran like winter's hail,
And shivered lances dark the troubled air.

Pede pes et cuspile cuspa:
Arma sonant armis, vir petiturque viro.

On every side drop captains to the ground,
And soldiers, some ill-maim'd, some slain outright:
Here falls a body sund'red from his head,
There legs and arms lie bleeding on the grass.
Mingled with weapons and unbowell'd steeds,

1 Adapted from Claudian's De Tertio Consuetud. Honori, 96-98.
2 Troop of cavalry.
3 A combination of phrases from Statius, Virgil, and Curtius.
That scattering overspread the purple plain.
In all this turmoil, three long hours and more,
The victory to neither part inclin'd;
Till Don Antipas, with his brave lanciers,
In their main battle made so great a breach,
That, half dismay'd, the multitude retir'd:
But Balthazar, the Portugals' young prince,
Brought rescue, and encourag'd them to stay.
Here-hence the fight was eagerly renew'd,
And in that conflict was Andreas slain:
Brave man at arms, but weak to Balthazar.
Yet while the prince, insulting over him,
Breath'd out proud vaunts, sounding to our reproach,
Friendship and hardy valour join'd in one
Prick'd forth Horatio, our knight marshal's son,
To challenge forth that prince in single fight.
Not long between these twain the fight endur'd,
But straight the prince was beaten from his horse,
And forc'd to yield him prisoner to his foe.
When he was taken, all the rest they fled,
And our carbines pursu'd them to the death,
Till, Phoebus waving 1 to the western deep,
Our trumpeters were charg'd to sound retreat.
King. Thanks, good Lord General, for these good news;
And for some argument of more to come,
Take this and wear it for thy sovereign's sake.

Give him his chain.
But tell me now, hast thou confirm'd a peace?
Gen. No peace, my liege, but peace condition'd,
That if with homage tribute be well paid,
The fury of your forces will be stay'd:
And to this peace their viscount hath subscrib'd,
Gives the King a paper.
And made a solemn vow that, during life,
His tribute shall be truly paid to Spain.
King. These words, these deeds, become thy person well.
But now, knight marshal, frivole with thy king,
For't is thy son that wins this battle's prize.
Hier. Long may he live to serve my sovereign liege,
And soon decay, unless he serve my liege.
King. Nor thou, nor he, shall die without reward.
A tucket 2 a far off. 100
What means this warning of this trumpet's sound?
Gen. This tells me that your grace's men of war,
Such as war's fortune hath reserv'd from death,
Come marching on towards your royal seat,
To show themselves before your majesty; 100
For so I gave in charge at my depart,
Whereby by demonstration shall appear
That all, except three hundred or few more,
Are safe return'd, and by their foes enrich'd.

The Army enters; Balthazar, between Lorenzo and Horatio, captives.

King. A glad some sight! I long to see them here.
They enter and pass by. 110

Was that the warlike prince of Portugal,
That by our nephew was in triumph led?
Gen. It was, my liege, the prince of Portugal.

King. But what was he that on the other side
Held him by thy arm, as partner of the prize?
Hier. That was my son, my gracious sovereign;
Of whom though from his tender infancy
My loving thoughts did never hope but well,
He never pleas'd his father's eyes till now,
Nor fill'd my heart with over-cloying joys.

King. Go, let them march once more about these walls,
That, staying them, we may confer and talk
With our brave prisoner and his double guard.
(Exit a messenger.)
Hierosimo, it greatly pleaseth us
That in our victory thou have a share,
By virtue of thy worthy son's exploit.

Enter again.
Bring hither the young prince of Portugal;
The rest march on; but, ere they be dismiss'd,
We will bestow on every soldier
Two ducats and on every leader ten,
That they may know our largess welcomes them.

Exit all but [the King], BALTHAZAR, LORENZO AND HORATIO.

Welcome, Don Balthazar! welcome, nephew! And thou, Horatio, thou art welcome too.
Young prince, although thy father's hard misdeeds,
In keeping back the tribute that he owes...

Deserve but evil measure at our hands, 5
Yet shalt thou know that Spain is honourable.
Bal. The trespass that my father made in peace
Is now controlv'd by fortune of the war;
And cards once dealt, it boots not ask why so.
Hier. His men are slain, a weakening to his realm;
His colour seiz'd, a blot unto his name;
His son distrest, a corrupe 4 to his heart;
These punishments may clear his late offence.

King. Ay, Balthazar, if he observe this true
Our peace will grow the stronger for these wars.
Meanwhile live thou, though not in liberty,
Yet free from bearing any servile yoke;
For in our hearing thy deserts were great,
And in our sight thyself art gracious.

Bal. And I shall study to deserve this grace.
King. But tell me — for their holding makes me doubt —
To which of these twain art thou prisoner?

Hor. To me, my liege.

Lor. This hand first took his coursour by the reins.

Hor. But first my lance did put him from his horse.

1 Moving.
2 Flourish of trumpets.
4 Corrupe.
5 Curbed.
Lor. I seix'd his weapon, and enjoy'd it first.
Hor. But first I fore'd him lay his weapons down.
King. Let go his arm, upon our privilege.
They let him go.

Say, worthy prince, to whether didst thou yield?

Bal. To him in courtesie, to this perforsce.
He spake me fair, this other gave me strokes;
He promis'd life, this other threat'ned death;
He won my love, this other conquer'd me,
And, truth to say, I yield myself to both.
Hier. But that I know your grace for just and wise,
And might seem partial in this difference,
Enforc'd by nature and by law of arms
My tongue should plead for young Horatio's right.
He hunted well that was a lion's death,
Not he that in a garment wore his skin; So hares may pull dead lions by the beard.
King. Content thee, marshal, thou shalt have no wrong;
And, for thy sake, thy son shall want no right.
Will both abide the censure of my doom?

Lor. I crave no better than your grace awards.

Hor. Nor I, although I sit beside my right.
King. Then by my judgment, thus your strife shall end:
You both deserve, and both shall have reward.
Nephew, thou took'st his weapon and his horse:
His weapons and his horse are thy reward.
Horatio, thou didst force him first to yield:
His ransom therefore is thy valour's fee; Appoint the sum, as you shall both agree.
But, nephew, thou shalt have the prince in guard,
For thine estate best fitteth such a guest:
Horatio's house were small for all his train.
Yet, in regard thy am'mance passeth his,
And that just guerdon may befall desert,
To him we yield the armour of the prince?
How likes Don Balthazar of this device?
Bal. Right well, my liege, if this proviso were,
That Don Horatio bear us company,
Whom I admire and love for chivalry.
King. Horatio, leave him not that loves thee so.

Now let us hence to see our soldiers paid,
And feast our prisoner as our friendly guest.

Exeunt.

[Scene III. 1

Enter Vicerey, Alexandro, Villuppo.

Vic. Is our ambassador despatch'd for Spain?
Alex. Two days, my liege, are past since his depart.
Vic. And tribute-payment gone along with him?
Alex. Ay, my good lord.
Vic. Then rest we here awhile in our unrest,
And feed our sorrows with some inward sighs,
For deepest cares break never into tears.

But wherefore sit I in a regal throne?
This better fits a wretch's endless moan.
Yet this is higher than my fortunes reach,
And therefore better than my state deserve.
Ay, ay, this earth, image of melancholy,
Seeks him whom fates adjudge to misery.
Here let me lie; now am I at the lowest.

Quis jactat in terra, non habet unde cadat.

In me consumpsit vires fortuna nocendo;
Nis superest ut jam possit obesse magis.
Yes, Fortune may bereave me of my crown;
Here, take it now; let Fortune do her worst;
She will not rob me of this sable wood.
O no, she envies none but pleasant things.
Such is the folly of despicable chance!
Fortune is blind, and sees not my deserts;
So is she deaf, and hears not my laments;
And could she hear, yet is she wilful-mad,
And therefore will not pity my distress.
Suppose that she could pity me, what then?
What help can be expected at her hands?
Whose foot ['] standing on a rolling stone,
And mind more mutable than fickle winds?
Why wail I, then, where 's hope of no redress?
O yes, complaining makes my grief seem less.
My late ambition hath distain'd my faith;
My breach of faith occasion'd bloody wars;
Those bloody wars have spent my treasury;
And with my treasury my people's blood;
And with their blood, my joy and best belov'd,
My best belov'd, my sweet and only son.
O, wherefore went I not to war myself?
The cause was mine; I might have died for both.

My years were mellow, his but young and green.
My death was natural, but his was for'd.

Alex. No doubt, my liege, but still the prince survives.

Vic. Survives! Ay, where?
Alex. In Spain, a prisoner by mischance of war.
Vic. Then they have slain him for his father's fault.
Alex. That were a breach to common law of arms.
Vic. They reck no laws that meditate revenge.
Alex. His ransom's worth will stay from foul revenge.
Vic. No; if he liv'd, the news would soon be here.
Alex. Nay, evil news fly faster still than good.
Vic. Tell me no more of news, for he is dead.
Vil. My sovereign, pardon the author of ill news,
And I'll bewray the fortune of thy son.
Vic. Speak on, I'll guerdon thee, whate'er it be.
Mine ear is ready to receive ill news:
My heart grown hard 'gainst mischief's battery.
Stand up, I say, and tell thy tale at large.

THE SPANISH TRAGEDY

For glorious cause still aiming at the fairest,
Was at the last by young Don Balthazar
Encounter'd hand to hand. Their fight was long,
Their hearts were great, their clamours menacing,
Their strength alike, their strokes both dangerous,
But wrathful Nemesis, that wicked power,
Envying of Andrea's praise and worth,
Cut short his life, to end his praise and worth.
She, she herself, disgrac'd in armour's mask
As Pallas was before proud Pergamus—
Brought in a fresh supply of halberdiers,
Which paunch'd 6 his horse, and ding'd 7 him to the ground.
Then young Don Balthazar with ruthless rage,
Taking advantage of his foe's distress,
Did finish what his halberdiers begun,
And left not, till Andrea's life was done.
Then, though too late, incens'd with just remorse,
I with my hand set forth against the prince,
And brought him prisoner from his halberdiers.
Bel. Would thou hadst slain him that so slew my love!
But then, was Don Andrea's carcass lost?
Hor. No, that was it for which I chiefly strove,
Nor stepp'd I back till I recover'd him.
I took him up, and wound him in mine arms;
And wailing 8 him unto my private tent,
There laid him down, and diew'd him with my tears,
And sigh'd and sorrowed as became a friend.
But neither friendly sorrow, sighs, nor tears
Could win pale Death from his unurped right.
Yet this I did, and less I could not do:
I saw him honoured with due funeral.
This scarf I pluck'd from off his lifeless arm,
And wear it in remembrance of my friend.
Bel. I know the scarf: would he had kept it still!
For had he liv'd, he would have kept it still,
And worn it for his Bel-imperia's sake;
For 'twas my favour at his last depart,
But now wear thou it both for him and me;
For after him thou hast deserv'd it best.
But for thy kindness in his life and death,
Be sure, while Bel-imperia's life endures,
She will be Don Horatio's thankful friend.
Hor. And, madam, Don Horatio will not slack
Humbly to serve fair Bel-imperia.
But now, if your good liking stand thereto,
I'll crave your pardon to go seek the prince;
For so the duke, your father, gave me charge.
Bel. Ay, go, Horatio, leave me here alone;
For solitude best suits my cheerless mood.

Enter Viceroy.

Bel. Signior Horatio, this is the place and hour,
Wherein I must entreat thee to relate
The circumstance of Don Andrea's death,
Who, living, was my garland's sweetest flower,
And in his death hath buried my delights.
Hor. For love of him and service to yourself,
I will refuse this heavy doleful charge;
Yet tears and sighs, I fear, will hinder me.
When both our armies were enjoin'd in flight,
Your worthy chevalier amidst the thickest, 8

1. What became of.
2. The Court of Spain.
3. As islanded in the Azores.
4. He will, will not.
5. Add. Mantly.
6. Stab in the belly, disembowel.
8. Carrying.
But how can love find harbour in my breast
Till I revenge the death of my belov'd?
Yes, second love shall further my revenge!
I'll love Horatio, my Andrea's friend,
The more to spite the prince that wrought his end;
And where Don Balthazar, that slew my love,
Himself now pleads for favour at my hands,
He shall, in vigour of my just disdain,
Keep long repentence for his murderous deed.
For what was't else but murderous cowardice,
So many to oppose one valiant knight,
Without respect of honour in the fight?
And here he comes that murder'd my delight.

Enter Lorenzo and Balthazar.

Lor. Sister, what means this melancholy walk?
Bel. That for a while I wish no company.
Lor. But here the prince is come to visit you.
Bel. That argues that he lives in liberty.
Bel. No, madam, but in pleasing servitude.
Bel. Your prison then, belike, is your conceit.
Bel. Ay, by conceit my freedom is enthral'd.
Bel. Then with conceit enlarge yourself again.
Bel. What, if conceit have laid my heart to gage?
Bel. Pay that you borrowed, and recover it.
Bel. I die, if it return from whence it lies.
Bel. A heartless man, and live? A miracle!
Bel. Ay, lady, love can work such miracles.
Lor. Tush, tush, my lord! let go those am-bages, 1
And in plain terms acquaint her with your love.
Bel. What boots complaint, when there's no remedy?
Bel. Yes, to your gracious self must I com-plain.
In whose fair answer lies my remedy,
On whose perfection all my thoughts attend.
On whose aspect mine eyes find beauty's bower,
In whose transcendent breast my heart is lodg'd.
Bel. Alas, my lord, these are but words of course,
And but devis'd 4 to drive me from this place.
She, in going in, lets fall her glove,
Which Horatio, coming out, takes up.

Hor. Madam, your glove.
Bel. Thanks, good Horatio; take it for thy pains.
Bel. Signior Horatio stoop'd in happy time!
Hor. I reap'd more grace than I deserved or hop'd.
Lor. My lord, be not dismayed for what you past:
You know that women oft are humormous. 4
These clouds will overblow with little wind;
Let me alone, I'll scatter them myself.
Meanwhile, let us devise to spend the time
In some delightful sports and revelling.

Hor. The king, my lords, is coming hither straight,
To feast the Portingal ambassador;
Things were in readiness before I came.
Bel. Then here it fits us to attend the king,
To welcome hither our ambassador,
And learn my father and my country's health.

[SCENE V.]

Enter the Banquet, Trumpets, the King, and Ambassador.

King. See, lord Ambassador, how Spain entertains
Their prisoner Balthazar, thy viceroy's son.
We pleasure more in kindness than in war.
Amb. Sad is our king, and Portingale lament,
Supposing that Don Balthazar is slain.
Bel. So am I! — slain by beauty's tyranny.
You see, my lord, how Balthazar is slain:
I frolic with the Duke of Castile's son,
Wrapp'd every hour in pleasures of the court,
And grac'd with favours of his majesty.
King. Put off your greetings, till our feast be done;
Now come and sit with us, and taste our cheer.

Sit to the banquet.

Brother, sit down; and, nephew, take your place.
Signior Horatio, wait thou upon our cup,
For well thou hast deserved to be honoured.
Now, lordings, fall to; Spain is Portugal,
Portugal is Spain: we both are friends;
Tribute is paid, and we enjoy our right.
But where is old Hieronimo, our marshal? 6
He promis'd us, in honour of our guest,
To grace our banquet with some pompous jest.

Enter Hieronimo, with a drum, three knights, each his scutcheon; then he fetches three kings; they take their crowns and them captivé.

Hieronimo, this masque contains mine eye,
Although I sound not well the mystery.
Hier. The first arm'd knight, that hung his scutcheon up,
He takes the scutcheon and gives it to the King.

Was English Robert, Earl of Gloucester,
Who, when King Stephen bore sway in Albion,
Arriv'd with five and twenty thousand men
In Portingale, and by success of war
Enforce'd the king, then but a Saracen,
To bear the yoke of the English monarchy.
King. My lord of Portingale, by this you see
That which may comfort both your king and you.
And make your late discomfort seem the less.
But say, Hieronimo, what was the next?
Hier. The second knight, that hung his scutcheon up,
He doth as he did before.

Was Edmund, Earl of Kent in Albion,
When English Richard wore the diadem.
He came likewise, and razed Lisbon walls,
And took the King of Portingale in fight;
For which and other such-like service done
He after was created Duke of York.

King. This is another special argument,
That Portingale may design to bear our yoke,
When it by little England hath been yok'd.
But now, Hieronymo, what were the last?
Hier. The third and last, not least, in our account,
Was, as the rest, a valiant Englishman,
Brave John of Gaunt, the Duke of Lancaster,
As by his scutcheon plainly may appear.
He with a puissant army came to Spain,
And took our King of Castile prisoner.

Amb. This is an argument for our viceroy
That Spain may not insult for her success,
Since English warriors likewise conquered Spain,
And made them bow their knees to Albion.

King. Hieronymo, I drink to thee for this device,
Which hath pleas'd both the ambassador and me:

Pledge me, Hieronymo, if thou love the king.

Takes the cup of Horatio.

My lord, I fear we sit but over-long;
Unless our dainties were more delicate;
But welcome are you to the best we have.
Now let us in, that you may be despatch'd:
I think our council is already set.

Exeunt omnes.

[Chorus.]

Andrea. Come we for this from depth of under-ground,
To see him feast that gave me death's wound?
These pleasant sights are sorrow to my soul:
Nothing but league, and love, and banqueting?
Revenge. Be still, Andrea; are we go from hence,
I'll turn their friendship into fell despite,
Their love to mortal hate, their day to night,
Their hope into despair, their peace to war,
Their joys to pain, their bliss to misery.

ACT II

[Scene I.]

Enter Lorenzo and Baltazar.

Lor. My lord, though Bel-imperia seem thus ooy,
Let reason hold you in your wonted joy.
In time the savage bull sustains the yoke,\(^3\)
In time all haggard\(^4\) hawks will stoop to lure,
In time small wedges cleave the hardest oak,\(^3\)
In time the flint is pierc'd with softest shower,
And she in time will fall from her disdain,
And rue the sufferance of your friendly pain.

Bal. No, she is wilder, and more hard washal,

\(^2\) Lines 3–6, 9–10 are taken almost literally from Watson's Hecatommethica, Sonnet 47. Watson copied Remaino.

\(^3\) Wayward.

---

Lor. Thon beast, or bird, or tree, or stony wall.
But wheresoe blot I Bel-imperia's name?
It is my fault, not she, that merit blame.
My feature is not to content her sight,
My words are rude and work her no delight.
The lines I send her are but harsh and ill,
Such as do drop from Pan and Marsyas' quid.
My presents are not of sufficient cost,
And being worthless, all my labour's lost.
Yet might she love me for my valiancy:
Ay, but that's landred by captivity.
Yet might she love me to content her sire:
Ay, but her reason masters his desire.
Yet might she love me as her brother's friend:
Ay, but her hopes aim at some other end.
Yet might she love me to uprear her state:
Ay, but perhaps she hopes some nobler mate.
Yet might she love me as her beauty's thrall:
Ay, but I fear she cannot love at all.

Lor. My lord, for my sake leave this ecstasy,
And doubt not but we'll find some remedy.
Some cause there is that lets you not be lov'd;
First that must needs be known, and then remov'd.

Lor. What, if my sister love some other knight?

Bal. My summer's day will turn to winter's night.

Lor. I have already found a stratagem
To sound the bottom of this doubtful theme.
My lord, for once you shall be rul'd by me;
Hinder me not, whate'er you hear or see.
By force or fair means will I cast about
To find the truth of all this question out.

Ho. Pedringtono!

Ped. Signior!

Lor. Vien qui presto.

Enter PEDRINGTONO.

Ped. Hath your lordship any service to command me?

Lor. Ay, Pedringtono, service of import;
And — not to spend the time in trifling words —
Thus stands the case: it is not long, thou know'st.

Since I did shield thee from my father's wrath,
For thy conveyances\(^1\) in Andrea's love,
For which thou wert adjudg'd to punishment.
I stood betwixt thee and thy punishment,
And since, thou knowest how I have favoured thee.
Now to these favours will I add reward,
Not with fair words, but store of golden coin,
And lands and living join'd with dignities,
If thou but satisfy my just demand.
Tell truth, and have me for thy lasting friend.
Ped. Whate'er it be your lordship shall demand,
My bounden duty bids me tell the truth,
If case\(^2\) it lie in me to tell the truth.

Lor. Then, Pedringtono, this is my demand:
Whom loves my sister Bel-imperia?
For she reposes all her trust in thee,
Speak, man, and gain both friendship and reward:
I mean, whom loves she in Andrea's place?

\(^1\) Secret behavior.

\(^2\) In case.
Ped. Alas, my lord, since Don Andrea's death
I have no credit with her as before,
And therefore know not, if she love or no.

Lor. Nay, if thou dally, then I am thy foe,
Draws his sword.
And fear shall force what friendship cannot win.
Thy death shall bury what thy life conceals;
Thou diest for more estimating her than me. 78

Ped. O, stay, my lord!

Lor. Yet speak the truth, and I will guderon thee,
And shied thee from whatever can ensue,
And will conceal what'se'er proceeds from thee.
But if thou dally once again, thou diest. 79

Ped. If madam Bel-imperia be in love——

Lor. What, villain! Ifs and ands?

Offers to kill him.

Ped. O, stay, my lord! She loves Horatio.

BALTHAZAR starts back.

Lor. What, Don Horatio, our knight marshal's son?

Ped. Even him, my lord.

Lor. Now say but how know'st thou he is her love,
And thou shalt find me kind and liberal.

Stand up, I say, and fearless tell the truth.

Ped. She sent him letters, which myself perus'd,

Full fraught with lines and arguments of love,

Preferring him before Prince Balthazar. 80

Lor. Swear on this cross 1 that what thou say'st is true,
And that thou wilt conceal what thou hast told.

Ped. I swear to both, by him that made us all.

Lor. In hope thine oath is true, here's thy reward:

But if I prove these perjur'd and unjust,

This very sword whereon thou took'st thine oath

Shall be the worker of thy tragedy.

Ped. What I have said is true, and shall——

for me——

Be still conceal'd from Bel-imperia. 81

Besides, your honour's liberality

Deserves my duteous service, even till death.

Lor. Let this be all that thou shalt do for me:

Be watchful when and where these lovers meet,
And give me notice in some secret sort. 100

Ped. I will, my lord.

Lor. Then shalt thou find that I am liberal.

Thou know'st that I can more advance thy state
Than she; be therefore wise, and fall me not.

Go and attend her, as thy custom is.

Lor. Lest absence make her think thou dost amiss.

Exit PEDRINGANO.

Why so: tam armis quam ingenio:
Where words prevail not, violence prevails;
But gold doth more than either of them both.

How likes Prince Balthazar this stratagem? 110

Bal. Both well and ill; it makes me glad and sad:

Glad, that I know the hinderer of my love;
Sad, that I fear she hates me whom I love;
Glad, that I know on whom to be revenge'd;
Sad, that she'll fly me, if I take revenge. 115

Yet must I take revenge, or die myself,
For love resisted grows impatient.
I think Horatio be my destin'd plague:
First, in his hand he brandished a sword,
And with that sword he fiercely waged war, 120
And in that war he gave me dangerous wounds,
And by those wounds he forced me to yield,
And by my yielding I became his slave.

Now in his mouth he carries pleasing words,
Which pleasing words do harbour sweet conceits,

Which sweet conceits are lim'd with sly deceits,

Whose sly deceits smooth Bel-imperia's ears,
And through her care divine down into her heart,
And in her heart set him, where I should stand.

Thus hath he ta'en my body by his force, 125
And now by sleight would captivate my soul;
But in his fall I'll tempt the destinies,
And either lose my life, or win my love.

Lor. Let's go, my lord; your staying stays revenge.

Do you but follow me, and gain your love: 130
Her favour must be won by his remove. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter HORATIO and BEL-IMPERIA.

Hor. Now, madam, since by favour of your love

Our hidden smoke is turn'd to open flame,
And that with looks and words we feed our thought

(Two chief contents, where more cannot be had);

Thus, in the midst of love's fair blandishments,

Why show you sign of inward languishments, 4

PEDRINGANO shovell all to the PRINCE and LORENZO, placing them in secret.

Bel. My heart, sweet friend, is like a ship at sea:

She wieth port, where, riding all at ease,
She may repair what stormy times have worn,
And leaning on the shore, may sing with joy 10
That pleasure follows pain, and bliss annoy.

Possession of thy love is th' only port,
Wherein my heart, with fears and hopes long tost'd,

Each hour doth wish and long to make resort,
There to repair the joys that it hath lost, 15
And, sitting safe, to sing in Cupid's choir
That sweetest bliss is crown of love's desire.

BALTHAZAR and LORENZO above.

Bal. O sleep, mine eyes, see not my love profand;

Be deaf, my ears, hear not my discontent;
Die, heart; another joys what thou deserv'st. 20

Lor. Watch still, mine eyes, to see this love disjoin'd;

Hear still, mine ears, to hear them both lament;
Live, heart, to joy at fond Horatio's fall.

Bel. Why stands Horatio speechless all this while?

Hor. The less I speak, the more I meditate.

Bel. But whereon dost thou chiefly meditate?

Hor. On dangers past, and pleasures to ensue.

1 Sword-bill.

9 The same.
Bel. On pleasures past, and dangers to ensue.
Bel. What dangers and what pleasures dost thou mean?
Hor. Dangers of war, and pleasures of our love.
Lor. Dangers of death, but pleasures none at all.
Bel. Let dangers go, thy war shall be with me:
But such a war as breaks no bond of peace,
Speak thou fair words, I'll cross them with fair words;
Send thou sweet looks, I'll meet them with sweet looks;
Write loving lines, I'll answer loving lines;
Give me a kiss, I'll countercheck thy kiss:
Be this our warring peace, or peaceful war.
Hor. But, gracious madam, then appoint the field,
When all of this war shall first be made.
Bel. Ambitious villain, how his boldness grows!
Bel. Then be thy father's pleasant bower the field,
Where first we vow'd a mutual amity:
The court were dangerous, that place is safe.
Our hour shall be, when Vesper gins to rise,
That summons home distressful traveller.
Then none shall hear us but the harmless birds;
Haply the gentle nightingale
Shall carol us asleep, ere we be ware,
And, singing with the prickle at her breast,
Tell our delight and mirthful dalliance,
Till then each hour will seem a year and more.
Hor. But, honey-sweet and honourable love,
Return we now into your father's sight;
Dangerous suspicion waits on our delight.
Lor. Ay, danger mixed with jealous despite shall send thy soul into eternal night.

SCENE III.

Enter King of Spain, Portingale Ambassador, Don Cyprian, etc.

King. Brother of Castile, to the prince's love
What says your daughter Bel-imperia?
Cyp. Although she say it, as becomes her kind,
And yet dissimile that she loves the prince,
I doubt not, but she will stoop in time.
And were she forward, which she will not be;
Yet herein shall she follow my advice,
Which is to love him, or forgo my love.
King. Then, lord Ambassador of Portingale,
Advise thy king to make this marriage up,
For strengthening of our late-confirmed league;
I know no better means to make us friends.
Her dowry shall be large and liberal:
Besides that she is daughter and half-heir
Unto our brother here, Don Cyprian,
And shall enjoy the moiety of his land,
I'll grace her marriage with an uncle's gift,
And this it is, in case the match go forward:

SCENE IV.

Enter Horatio, Bel-imperia, and Pedringano.

Hor. Now that the night begins with sable wings
To overcloud the brightness of the sun,
And that in darkness pleasures may be done:
Come, Bel-imperia, let us to the bower,
And there in safety pass a pleasant hour.
Bel. I follow thee, my love, and will not back,
Although my fainting heart controls my soul.
Hor. Why, make you doubt of Pedringano's faith?
Bel. No, he is as trusty as my second self.
Go, Pedringano, watch without the gate,
And let us know if any make approach.
Ped. [Aside.] Instead of watching, I'll deserve more gold
By fetching Don Lorenzo to this match.

Kris PEDRINGANO.

Hor. What means thy love?
Bel. I know not what myself; And yet my heart foretells me some mischance.

Hor. Sweet, say not so; fair fortune is our friend,
And heavens have shut up day to please us. The stars, thou seest, hold back their twinkling shine, And Luna hides herself to please us.

Bel. Thou hast prevail'd; I'll conquer my mind's doubt, And in thy love and counsel drown my fear. I fear no more; love now is all my thoughts. Why sit we not? for pleasure asketh ease.

Hor. The more thou sitt'st within these leafy bowers, The more will Flora deck it with her flowers. But if Flora spy Horatio here, Her jealous eye will think I sit too near.

Hor. Hark, madam, how the birds record 1 by their songs! For joy that Bel-imperia sits in sight.

Bel. No, Cupid counterfeits the nightingale, To frame sweet music to Horatio's tale.

Hor. If Cupid sing, then Venus is not far: Ay, thou art Venus, or some fairer star.

Bel. If I be Venus, thou must needs be Mars; And where Mars reigneth, there must needs be wars.

Hor. Then thus begin our wars: put forth thy hand, That it may combat with my tender hand.

Bel. Set forth thy foot to try the push of mine.

Hor. But first my looks shall combat against thine.

Bel. Then ward thyself: I dart this kiss at thee.

Hor. Thus I retract the dart thou throw'st at me.

Bel. Nay, then to gain the glory of the field, My twining arms shall yoke and make thee yield.

Hor. Nay, then my arms are large and strong withal: Thus elms by vines are compass'd, till they fall.

Bel. O, let me go; for in my troubled eyes Now may'st thou read that life in passion dies.

Hor. O, stay a while, and I will die with thee; So shalt thou yield, and yet have conquer'd me.

Bel. Who's there? Pedringano? We are betray'd!

Enter Lorenzo, Balthazar, Serbereux, Pedringano, disguised.

Lor. My lord, away with her, take her aside.—
O, sir, forbear: your valour is already tried. Quickly dispatch, my masters. They hang him in the arbour. What, will you murder me? Ay, thus, and thus: these are the fruits of love. They stab him.

Bel. O, save his life, and let me die for him! O, save him, brother; save him, Balthazar: I lov'd Horatio; but he lov'd not me.

Bel. But Balthazar loves Bel-imperia.

Lor. Although his life were still ambitions, proud,
Yet is he at the highest now he is dead.

Bel. Murder! murder! Help, Hieronimo, help!

Lor. Come, stop her mouth; away with her.

Exeunt.

Enter Hieronimo in his shirt, etc.

Hier. What outrages pluck me from my naked bed, And chill my throbbing heart with trembling fear,
Which never danger yet could daunt before? Who calls Hieronimo? Speak, here I am.

I did not slumber; therefore 'twas no dream. No, no, it was some woman cried for help, And here within this garden did she cry, And in this garden must I rescue her. —
But stay, what mur'd'rous spectacle is this? A man hang'd up and all the murderers gone! And in my bower, to lay the guilt on me! This place was made for pleasure, not for death.

He cuts him down.

Those garments that he wears I oft have seen —
Alas, it is Horatio, my sweet son! O no, but he that whilom was my son! O, was it thou that call'dst me from my bed? O speak, if any spark of life remain: I am thy father; who hath slain my son? What savage monster, not of human kind, Hath here been glutted with thy harmless blood, And left thy bloody corpse dishonour'd here, For me, amidst these dark and deathful shades, To drown thee with an ocean of my tears? O heavens, why made you night to cover sin? By day this deed of darkness had not been. O earth, why didst thou not in time devour The wild 2 profane of this sacred bower? O poor Horatio, what hast thou misdone, To loose 3 thy life, ere life was new begun? O wicked butcher, whatsoever thou wert, How could thou strangle virtue and desert? Ay me most wretched, that have lost my joy, In losing my Horatio, my sweet boy!

Enter Isabella.

Isab. My husband's absence makes my heart to throb: — Hieronimo!

Hier. Here, Isabella, help me to lament; For sighs are stopp'd, and all my tears are spent. Isab. What world of grief! my son Horatio! O, where's the author of this endless woe? Hier. To know the author were some ease of grief.

For in revenge my heart would find relief.

Isab. Then is he gone? and is my son gone too?
O, brush out, tears, fountains and floods of tears;
THE SPANISH TRAG'DY

Blew, sighs, and raised an everlasting storm;
For outrage fits our cursed wretchedness.

[Enter Pedro and Jaques]

Isab. Ay me, he rants! — Sweet Hieronimo!

Hier. True, all Spain takes note of it.

Besides, he is so generally beloved;
His majesty the other day did grace him
With waiting on his cup: these be favours,
Which do assure me he cannot be short-lived.

Isab. Sweet Hieronimo!

Hier. I wonder how this fellow got his clothes? —
Sirrah, sirrah, I'll know the truth of all.
Jaques, run to the Duke of Castile's presently,
And bid my son Horatio to come home:

I and his mother have had strange dreams to-night.
Do ye hear me, sir?

Jaques. Ay, sir.

Hier. Pedro, come hither; know'st thou who this is?

Pedro. Too well, sir.

Hier. Too well! Who, who is it? Peace, Isabella!

Nay, blush not, man.

Pedro. It is my lord Horatio.

Hier. Ha, ha, St. James! but this doth make me laugh.
That there are more delud'd than myself.

Pedro. Deluded?

Hier. Ay: I would have sworn myself, within this hour,

That this had been my son Horatio:
His garments are so like.

Ha! are they not great persuasions?

Isab. O, would to God it were not so!

Hier. Were not, Isabella? Dost thou dream it is?

Can thy soft bosom entertain a thought
That such a black deed of mischief should be done
On one so pure and spotless as our son?
Away, I am ashamed.

Isab. Dear Hieronimo,

Cast a more serious eye upon thy grief:
Weak apprehensions give but weak belief.

Hier. It was a man, sure, that was hang'd up here;
A youth, as I remember: I cut him down.
If it should prove my son now after all —
Say you? say you? — Light! lend me a taper;
Let me look again. — O God!
Confusion, mischief, torment, death and hell,
Drop all your stains at once in my cold bosom,
That now is stiff with horror: kill me quickly!
Be gracious to me, thou infective night,
And drop this deed of murder down on me:
O'erd in my waste of grief with thy large darkness,
And let me not survive to see the light

May put me in the mind I had a son.
Isab. O sweet Horatio! O my dearest son!
Hier. How strangely had I lost my way to grief!
Sweet, lovely rose, ill-pluck't before thy time,
Fair, worthy son, not conquer'd, but betray'd,
I'll kiss thee now, for words with tears are stay'd.
Isab. And I'll close up the glasses of his sight,
For once these eyes were only my delight.
Hier. See'st thou this handkercher beameard with blood?
It shall not from me, till I take revenge.
See'st thou those wounds that yet are bleeding fresh?
I'll not entomb them, till I have reveng'd.
Then will I joy amidst my discontent;
Till then my sorrow never shall be spent.
Isab. The heavens are just; murder cannot be hid:
Time is the author both of truth and right,
And time will bring this treachery to light.
Hier. Meanwhile, good Isabella, cease thy plaints,
Or, at the least, dissemble them awhile:
So shall we sooner find the practice out,
And learn by whom all this was brought about.
Come, Isabel, now let us take him up,
They take him up.
And bear him in from out this cursed place.
I'll say his dirge; singing fits not this case.
O atquevis mthi quas pulchrum ver educat herbas,
Hieronimo sets his breast unto his sword.
Misced, et nostro detur medicina dolort;
And, si qui factunt annorum oblivia, sucesc
Prueba; ipse metum magnum quescucunque per orbum
Gramina Sol pulchras effert in luminis oras;
Ipses bibam quicquid meditat'ur saepe veneni,
Quicquid et herbarum vi caeca nenia nectit;
Omnia perpetuar, lethum quoque, dum semem omnis
Noster in extinto moritur pectore sensus. —
Ergo tuos occultum nonquam, mea vita, videbo,
Et tua perpetuas sepultur illumina sonumusat
Emoratur tecum: sic, juva te sub umbra —
At tamen absqueam properato cedere letu,
Ne mortem vindicta tuam tam nulla sequatur.
Here he throws it from him and bears the body away.

[Chorus]

Andrea. Brought'st thou me hither to increase my pain?
I look'd that Balthazar should have been slain;
But 'tis my friend Horatio that is slain,
And they abuse fair Bel-imperia.
On whom I doted more than all the world,
Because she lov'd me more than all the world:
Revenge. Thou talk'st of harvest, when the corn is green:
The end is crown'd of every work well done;
The sickle comes not, till the corn be ripe.
Be still; and ere I lead thee from this place,
I'll show thee Balthazar in heavy case.
ACT III

[Scene I.] 1

Enter Viceroy of Portugal, Nobles, Alexander, Villuppo.

Vic. Infortuniate condition of kings,
Seated amidst so many helpless doubts!
First we are placed upon extremest height,
And oft supplanted with exceeding hate,
But ever subject to the wheel of chance;
And at our highest never joy we so
As we both doubt and dread our overthrow.
So striveth not the waves with sunry winds
As Fortune toileth in the affairs of kings,
That would be fear'd, yet fear to be belov'd,
Sith fear or love to kings is flattery.
For instance, lordings, look upon your king,
By hate deprived of his dearest son,
The only hope of our successive line.

Nob. I had not thought that Alexander's heart
Had been envenom'd with such extreme hate;
But now I see that words have several works,
And there's no credit in the countenance.

Vil. No; for, my lord, had you beheld the train
That seigned love had colour'd in his looks,
When he in camp consorted with Balthazar,
Far more inconstant had you thought the sun,
That hourly coasts the centre of the earth,
Than Alexander's purpose to the prince.

Vic. No more, Villuppo, thou hast said enough,
And with thy words thou say'st our wounded thoughts.
Nor shall I longer dally with the world,
Procrastinating Alexander's death.
Go some of you, and fetch the traitor forth,
That, as he is condemned, he may die.

Enter Alexandre with a Nobleman and heralds.

Nob. In such extremes will need but patience serve.

Alex. But in extremes what patience shall I use?

Nor discontent's it me to leave the world,
With whom there nothing can prevail but wrong.

Nob. Yet hope the best.

Alex. 'Tis heaven is my hope.

As for the earth, it is too much infect
To yield me hope of any of her mould.

Vic. Why linger ye? Bring forth that daring fiend,
And let him die for his accursed deed.

Alex. Not that I fear the extremity of death
(For noblest cannot stoop to servile fear)

Do I, O king, thus discontented live,

But this, O this, torments my labouring soul,
That thus I die suspected of a sin
Whereof, as heav'n's have known my secret thoughts,

So am I free from this suggestion.

Vic. No more, I say! to the tortures!
When?
Bind him, and burn his body in those flames,

They bind him to a stake.

That shall prefigure those unquench'd fires
Of Phlegathon, prepared for his soul.

Alex. My guiltless death will be aveng'd on thee.

On thee, Villuppo, that hath malice'd thus,
Or for thy need hast falsely me accus'd.

Vil. Nay, Alexander, if thou menace me,
I'll lend a hand to send thee to the lake,

Where those thy words shall perish with thy works.

Injurious traitor! monstrous homicide!

Enter ambassador.

Amb. Stay, hold a while;
And here — with pardon of his majesty —
Lay hands upon Villuppo.

Vic. Ambassador,

What news hath urg'd this sudden entrance?

Amb. Know, sovereign lord, that Balthazar doth live.

Vic. What say'st thou? Liveth Balthazar our son?

Amb. Your highness' son, Lord Balthazar, doth live;

And, well entreated in the court of Spain,

Humbly commends him to your majesty.

These eyes beheld; and these my followers,

With these, the letters of the king's commands,

Are happy witnesses of his highness' health.

The king looks on the letters, and proceeds.

Vic. "Thy son doth live, your tribute is receiv'd;"

Thy peace is made, and we are satisfied.

The rest resolve upon as things propos'd

For both our honours and thy benefit."

Amb. These are his highness' further articles.

He gives him more letters.

Vic. Accursed wretch, to intimate these ills

Against the life and reputation

Of noble Alexandre! Come, my lord, unbind him.

Let him unbind thee, that is bound to death,

To make a quit! for thy discontent.

Alex. Dread lord, in kindness you could do no less

Upon report of such a damned fact;

But thus we see our innocence hath sav'd

The hopeless life which thou, Villuppo, sought

By thy suggestions to have massacred.

Vic. Say, false Villuppo, wherefore dost thou thus Falsely betray Lord Alexander's life?

Him whom thou know'st that no unkindness else

But even the slaughter of our dearest son

Could once have mov'd us to have misconceiv'd.

Alex. Say, treacherous Villuppo, tell the king:

1 The Court of Portugal. 2 Accompanied. 3 Guile. 4 Moves round. 5 Requital. 6 Blanded. 7 Nature.
Wherein hath Alexander us’d thee ill?
Vil. Rent with remembrance of so foul a deed,
My guilty soul submits me to thy doom;
For not for Alexander’s injuries,
But for reward and hope to be preferred,
Thus have I shamefully hazarded my life.
Vil. Which, villain, shall be ransom’d with thy death;
And not so mean a torment as we here
Devis’d for him who, thou sayst, slew our son,
But with the bitterest torments and extremities
That may be yet invented for thine end.

Alexander seems to entreat.
Entreat me not; go, take the traitor hence:
Exit Villupo.

And, Alexander, let us honour thee
With public notice of thy loyalty. —
To en and those things articulated here
By our great lord, the mighty King of Spain,
We with our council will deliberate.
Come, Alexander, keep us company. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Hieronymo.

Hier. O eyes! no eyes, but fountains fraught
With tears that fill my thirsty breast with tears:
O life! no life, but lively form of death;
O world! no world, but mass of public wrongs,
Confus’d and fill’d with murder and misdeeds!
O merce heav’n! if this unhallowed deed,
If this inhuman and barbarous attempt,
If this incomparable murder thus
Of mine, but now no more my son,
Shall unreward’d and unrevenge’d pass,
How should we term thy dealings to be just,
If unjustly deal with those that in your justice trust?
The night, sad secretary to my means,
With direful visions wake my vexed soul,
And with the wounds of my distressful son
Solicit me for notice of his death.
The ugly fiends do solly forth of hell,
And frame my steps to unfrequented paths,
And fear my heart with fierce inflamed thoughts.
The cloudy day my discontented records,
Early begins to register my dreams,
And drive me forth to seek the murderer.
Eyes, life, world, heav’n, hell, night, and day,
See, search, shew, send some man, some mean, that may —
A letter falleth.

What’s here? a letter? Tush! it is not so! —
A letter written to Hieronymo!

"For want of ink, receive this bloody writ,
Methath my hapless brother hid from thee;
Revenge thyself on Balthazar and him:
For these were they that murdered thy son.
Hieronymo, revenge Horatio’s death,
And better fare than Bel-imperia doth."

What means this unexpected miracle?
My son slain by Lorenzo and the prince!
What cause had they Horatio to malign?
Or what might move thee, Bel-imperia,

To accuse thy brother, had he been the mean?
Hieronymo, beware! — thou art betray’d,
And to entrap thy life this train is laid.
Advise thee therefore, be not credulous:
This is devised to endanger thee,
That thou, by this, Lorenzo shouldst accuse;
And he, for thy dishonour done, should draw
Thy life in question and thy name in hate.
Pour was the life of my beloved son,
And of his death beolves me be raveng’d;
Then hazard not thine own, Hieronymo,
But live t’ effect thy resolution.
I therefore will by circumstances try,
What I can gather to confirm this writ;
And, heark’ning near the Duke of Castile’s house,
Close, if I can, with Bel-imperia,
To listen more, but nothing to bewray.

Enter Pedringano.

Ped. Now, Pedringano!
Hier. Where’s thy lady?
Ped. I know not; here’s my lord.

Enter Lorenzo.

Lor. How now, who’s this? Hieronymo?
Hier. My lord.
Ped. He asketh for my lady Bel-imperia.
Lor. What do, Hieronymo? The duke, my father, hath
Upon some disgrace awhile remov’d her hence;
But, if it be ought I may inform her of,
Tell me, Hieronymo, and I’ll let her know it.
Hier. Nay, nay, my lord, I thank you; it shall not need.
I had a suit unto her, but too late,
And her disgrace makes me unfortunate.
Lor. Why so, Hieronymo? Use me.
Hier. O no, lord; I dare not; it must not be.
I humbly thank your lordship.

[Hier.]

Who? You, my lord? I reserve your favour for a greater honour:

This is a very toy, my lord, a toy.
Lor. All’s one, Hieronymo, acquaint me with it.
Hier. I faith, my lord, it is an idle thing;
I must confess I’ve been too slack, too tardy,
Too remiss unto your honour.
Lor. How now, Hieronymo?
Hier. In truth, my lord, it is a thing of nothing:
The murder of a son, or so —
A thing of nothing, my lord!

Lor. Why then, farewell.
Hier. My grief no heart, my thoughts no tongue can tell.
Exit.

Ped. Come hither, Pedringano, see’st thou
this!
Ped. My lord, I see it, and suspect it too.
Lor. This is that damned villain Serberine
That hath, I fear, reveal’d Horatio’s death.
Ped. My lord, he could not, ’twas so lately done;
And since he hath not left my company.

1 So Wratil’s. Q.; or elsewhere.
2 Moderate.
3 The Court of Spain.
4 Indirect means.
5 Second passage of additions begins here, replacing Hieronymo’s speech in III. 65–68.
Lor. Admit he have not, his condition's such,
As fear or flattering words may make him false.
I know his humour, and therewith repent
That e'er I us'd him in this enterprise.
But, Pedringano, to prevent the worst,
And 'cause I know thee secret as my soul,
Here, for thy further satisfaction, take thou this,
Gives him more gold.
And hearken to me — thus it is devis'd:
This night thou must (and, prithee, so resolve),
Meet Serberine at Saint Luigi's Park —
Thou know'st 't is here hard by behind the house;
There take thy stand, and see thou strike him sure,
For die he must, if we do mean to live.
Ped. But how shall Serberine be there, my lord?
Lor. Let me alone; I'll send him to meet
The prince and me, where thou must do this deed.
*Ped. It shall be done, my lord, it shall be done;
And I'll go arm myself to meet him there.*
Lor. When things shall alter, as I hope they will,
Then shalt thou mount for this; thou know'st my mind. Exit Pedringano.
Che le feren!*

Enter Page.

Page. My lord?
Lor. Go, sirrah,
To Serberine, and bid him forthwith meet
The prince and me at Saint Luigi's Park,
Behind the house; this evening, boy!
Page. I go, my lord.
Lor. But, sirrah, let the hour be eight o'clock;
Bid him not fail.
Lor. Now to confirm the compot thou hast cast
Of all these practices, I'll spread the word,
Upon precise commandment from the king,
Strongly to guard the place where Pedringano
This night shall murder hapless Serberine.
Thus must we work that will avoid distrust;
Thus must we practise to prevent mishap;
And thus one ill another must expulse,
This sly enquiry of Hieronimo
For Bel-imperia breeds suspicion,
And this suspicion bodes a further ill.
As for myself, I know my secret fault,
And so do they; but I have dealt for them:
They that for coin their souls endanger'd,
To save my life, for coin shall venture theirs;
And better it's that base companions die
Than by their life to hazard our good hopes.
Nor shall they live, for me to fear their faith:
I'll trust myself, myself shall be my friend;
For die they shall,— Slaves are ordained to no other end. Exit.

---

1 Unintelligible. Probably a corruption of a call to the Page.

2 Falowa.

---

[Scene III.]

Enter Pedringano, with a pistol.

Ped. Now, Pedringano, bid thy pistol hold,
And hold on, Fortune! once more favour me;
Give but success to mine attempting spirit,
And let me shift for taking of mine aim.
Here is the gold: this is the gold propos'd;
It is no dream that I adventure for,
But Pedringano is possess'd thereof.
And he that would not strain his conscience
For him that thus his liberal purse hath stretch't,
Unworthy such a favour, may he fail,
And, wishing, want when such as I prevail.
As for the fear of apprehension,
I know, if need should be, my noble lord
Will stand between me and ensuing harms;
Besides, this place is free from all suspect:
Here therefore will I stay and take my stand.

Enter the Watch.

1 Watch. I wonder much to what intent it is
That we are thus expressly charg'd to watch.
2 Watch. 'Tis by commandment in the king's own name.
3 Watch. But we were never wont to watch and ward
So near the duke his brother's house before.
2 Watch. Content yourself, stand close, there's somewhat in 't.

Enter Serberine.

Ser. Here, Serberine, attend and stay thy pace;
For here did Don Lorenzo's page appoint
That thou by his command shouldst meet with him.

Page. How fit a place — if one were so dispos'd —
Mothinks this corner is to close with one.

Ped. Here comes the bird that I must seize upon.
Now, Pedringano, or never, play the man!
Ser. I wonder that his lordship stays so long.
Or wherfore should he send for me so late?

Ped. For this, Serberine! — and thou shalt ha' t.

Shoots the dog.*

So, there he lies; my promise is perform'd.

The Watch.

1 Watch. Hark, gentlemen, this is a pistol shot.

2 Watch. And here's one slain; — stay the murderer.

Ped. Now by the sorrows of the souls in hell,
He strives with the Watch.
Who first lays hand on me, I'll be his priest.

3 Watch. Sirrah, confess, and therein play the priest.

Why hast thou thus unkindly kill'd the man?

Ped. Why? Because he walk'd abroad so late.

* Saint Luigi's Park.
* Pistol.
* Murder him (be present at his death).
3 Watch. Come, sir, you had been better kept your bed,
Then have committed this misdeed so late.
2 Watch. Come, to the marshal's with the murderer!
1 Watch. On to Hieronimo's! help me here
To bring the murd'ring body with us too. **
Ped. Hieronimo? Carry me before whom you will.
What'er he be, I'll answer him and you;
And do your worst, for I defy you all. Exit.

[Scene IV.] 1

Enter Lorenzo and Balthazar.

Bal. How now, my lord, what makes you rise so soon?
Lor. Fear of preventing our mishaps too late.
Bal. What mischief is it that we not mistrust?
Lor. Our greatest ills we least mistrust, my lord,
And unexpected harms do hurt us most.
Bal. Why, tell me, Don Lorenzo, tell me, man,
If ought concerns our honour and your own.
Lor. Nor you, nor me, my lord, but both in one;
For I suspect — and the presumption's great —
That by those base confederates in our fault 10
Tooning the death of Don Horatio,
We are betray'd to old Hieronimo.
Lor. A guilty conscience, urged with the thought
Of former evils, easily cannot err. 15
I am persuaded — and dissuade me not —
That all's revealed to Hieronimo.
And therefore know that I have cast it thus: —

Exit Page.

But here's the page. How now? what news with thee?

Page. My lord, Serberine is slain.
Bal. Who? Serberine, my man? 20
Page. Your highness' man, my lord.
Lor. Speak, page, who murdered him?
Page. He that is apprehended for the fact. 25
Lor. Who?
Page. Pedringano.
Bal. Is Serberine slain, that lov'd his lord so well?
Injurious villain, murderer of his friend! 30
Lor. Hath Pedringano murdered Serberine? My lord, let me entreat you to take the pains
To exasperate and hasten his revenge
With your complaints unto my lord the king.
This their dissension breed a greater doubt. 40
Bal. Assure thee, Don Lorenzo, he shall die,
Or else his highness hardly shall deny. 45
Meanwhile I'll hasten the marshal-sessions:
For he shall have for this his damned deed.

Exit Balthazar.

Lor. Why so, this fits our former policy, 50
And thus experience bids the wise to deal.
I lay the plot; he prosecutes the point:
I set the trap; he breaks the worthless twigs,
And sees not that wherewith the bird was lim'd. 4
Thus hopeful men, that mean to hold their own,
Must look like fowlers to their dearest friends.
He runs to kill whom I have hopt 5 to catch,
And no man knows it was my reaching fetch. 6
"Tis hard to trust unto a multitude,
Or any one, in mine opinion,
When men themselves their secrets will reveal.

Enter a Messenger with a letter.

Boy!

Page. My lord.
Lor. What's he?
Mes. I have a letter to your lordship.
Lor. From whence?
Mes. From Pedringano that's imprison'd.
Lor. So he is in prison then?
Mes. Ay, my good lord.
Lor. What should he with us? — He writes us here,
To stand good lord, and help him in distress. —
Tell him I have his letters, know his mind;
And what we may, let him assure him of.
Fellow, begone; my boy shall follow thee.

Exit Messenger.

This works like wax; yet once more try thy wits.
Boy, go, convey this purse to Pedringano;
Thou know'st the prison, closely 7 give it him,
And be advis'd that none be there about.
Bid him be merry still, but secret;
And though the marshal-sessions be to-day,
Bid him not doubt of his delivery.
Tell him his pardon is already sign'd,
And thereon bid him boldly be resolv'd:
For, were he ready to be turned off — 8
As 'tis my will the uttermost be tried —
Thou with his pardon shalt attend him still.
Show him this box, tell him his pardon's in 't;
But open 't not, an if thou lov'st thy life,
But let him wisely keep his hopes unknown.
He shall not want while Don Lorenzo lives.

Exit Page.

Away!

Page. I go, my lord, I run.
Lor. But, sirrah, see that this be cleanly 9 done.

Exit Page.

Now stands our fortune on a tickle point.
And now or never ends Lorenzo's doubts.
One only thing is unaffected yet,
And that's to see the executioner.
But to what end? I list not trust the air
With utterance of our pretence 10 therein.
For fear the privy whisper's of the wind
Convey our words amongst unfriendly ears,
That lies too open to advantages.

E quel che voglio io, nessun lo sa;
Quiendo io: quel mi basterà. 11

Exit.

[SCENE V.]

Enter Boy with the box.

Boy. My master hath forbidden me to look in this box; and, by my troth, 'tis likely, if he had not warned me, I should not have had so much idle time; for we men's-kind in our minority are like women in their uncertainty: it is that they are most forbidding, they will soonest attempt: so I now.—By my bare honesty, here's nothing but the bare empty box! Were it not sin against secrecy, I would say it were a piece of gentlemanlike knavery. I must go to Pedringano, and tell him his pardon is in this box; nay, I would have sworn it, had I not seen the contrary. I cannot choose but smile to think how the villain will flout the gallows, scorn the audience, and desant on the hangman, and all presuming of his pardon from hence. Will 't not be an odd jest for me to stand and grace every jest he makes, pointing my finger at this box, as who would say, 'Mock on, here's thy warrant.' Is 't not a scurvy jest that a man should jest himself to death? Alas! poor Pedringano, I am in a sort sorry for thee; but if I should be hanged with thee, I cannot weep.

Exit.

[SCENE VI.]

Enter Hieronimo and the Deputy.

Hier. Thus must we toil in other men's extremities,
That know not how to remedy our own;
And do them justice, when unjustly we,
For all our wrongs, can compass no redress.
But shall I never live to see the day,
That I may come, by justice of the heavens,
To know the cause that may my cares alay?
This toils my body, this consumeth age,
That only to all men just must be,
And neither gods nor men be just to me.

Dep. Worthy Hieronimo, your office asks
A care to punish such as do transgress.
Hier. So is 't my duty to regard his death
Who, when he liv'd, deserv'd my dearest blood.
But come, for that we came for: let 's begin,
For here lies that which bids me to be gone.

Enter Officers, Boy, and Pedringano, with a letter in his hand, bound.

Dep. Bring forth the prisoner, for the court is set.
Ped. Gramercy, boy, but it was time to come;
For I had written to my lord anew
A nearer matter that concerneth him,
For fear his lordship had forgotten me.
But whether he hath remembered me so well—
Come, come, come on, when shall we to this gear?

Hier. Stand forth, thou monster, murderer of men,
And here, for satisfaction of the world,
Confess thy folly, and repent thy fault;
For there's thy place of execution.

Ped. This is short work. Well, to your marshalship
First I contest—nor fear I death therefore—
I am the man, 'tis I slew Serberine.
But, sir, then you think this shall be the place,
Where we shall satisfy you for this gear?
Dep. Ay, Pedringano.
Ped. Now I think not so.
Hier. Peace, importunate; for thou shalt find it so;
For blood with blood shall settle, while I sit as judge,
Be satisfied, and the law discharge'd.
And though myself cannot receive the like,
Yet will I see that others have their right.
Dispatch: the fault's approved and confess'd,
And by our law he is condemn'd to die.

Hangm. Come on, sir, are you ready?
Ped. To do what, my fine, officious knave?

Hangm. To go to this gear.
Ped. O sir, you are too forward: thou wouldst fain furnish me with a halter, to disfurnish me of my habit. So I should go out of this gear, my raiment, into that gear, the rope. But, hangman, now I spy your knavery, I'll not change without boot, that's flat.

Hangm. Come, sir.
Ped. So then, I must up?

Hangm. No remedy.
Ped. Yes, but there shall be for my coming down.

Hangm. Indeed, here's a remedy for that.
Ped. How? Be turn'd off?

Hangm. Ay, truly, Come, are you ready? I pray, sir, despatch; the day goes away.
Ped. What, do you hang by the hour? If you do, I may chance to break your old custom.

Hangm. Faith, you have reason; for I am like to break your young neck.

Ped. Dost thou mock me, hangman? Pray God, I be not preserved to break your knave's pate for this.

Hangm. Alas, sir! you are a foot too low to reach it, and I hope you will never grow so high while I am in the office.

Ped. Sirrah, dost see yonder boy with this box in his hand?

Hangm. What, he that points to it with his finger?

Ped. Ay, that companion.

Hangm. I know him not; but what of him?

Ped. Dost thou think to live till his old doubtlet will make thee a new trust?

Hangm. Ay, and many a fair year after, to trust up many an honest man than either thou or he.

Ped. What hath he in his box, as thou think'st?

Hangm. Faith, I cannot tell, nor I care not greatly; methinks you should rather hearken to your soul's health.

Ped. Why, sirrah, hangman, I take it that that is good for the body is likewise good for advantage.

the soul: and it may be, in that box is balm for both.

Hangm. Well, thou art even the merriest piece of man’s flesh that o’er groan’d at my office door!

Ped. Is your rogucy become an office with a knave’s name?

Hangm. Ay, and that shall all they witness that see you seal it with a thief’s name.

Ped. I prithee, request this good company to pray with me.

Hangm. Ay, marry, sir, this is a good motion.

My masters, you see here’s a good fellow. Ped. Nay, nay, now I remember me, let them alone till some other time; for now I have no great need.

Hier. I have not seen a wretch so impudent.

O monstrous times, where murder’s set so light,
And where the soul, that should be shrin’d in heaven,

Solery delights in interdicted things,
Still wand’ring in the thorny passages,

That intercrops itself of happiness. Murder! O bloody monster! God forbid

A fault so foul should ‘scape unpunished.

Despatch, and see this execution done! —

This makes me to remember thee, my son.

Exit Hieronimo.

Ped. Nay, soft, no haste.

Dep. Why, wherefore stay you? Have you hope of life?

Ped. Why, ay!

Hangm. As how?

Ped. Why, rascal, by my pardon from the king.

Hangm. Stand you on that? Then you shall off with this. He turns him off.

Dep. So, executioner; — convey him hence;

But let his body be unburied:

Let not the earth be choked or infect

With that which heav’n contemns, and men neglect.

Exeunt.

[Scene VII.]

Enter Hieronimo.

Hieronimo. Where shall I run to breathe abroad

my woes,

My woes, whose weight hath wearied the earth?

Or mine exclamis, that have surcharged the air

With ceaseless plaints for my deceased son?

The bust’ring winds, conspiring with my words,

At my lament have mov’d the leafless trees,

Disrobe’d the meadows of their flow’r’d green,

Made mountains marsh with spring-tides of my tears,

And broken through the brazen gates of hell.

Yet still tormented is my tortured soul

With broken sighs and restless passions.

That, winged, mount; and, hovering in the air,

Beat at the windows of the brightest heavens,

Soliciting for justice and revenge:

But they are plac’d in those empyreal heights, 5

Where, countermur’d 4 with walls of diamond,

I find the place impregnable; and they

Resist my woes, and give my words no way.

Enter Hangman with a letter.

Hangm. O lord, sir! God bless you, sir! the man, sir, Peter-gude, sir, he that was so full 6 of merry counsels —

Hier. Well, what of him?

Hangm. O lord, sir, he went the wrong way;

the fellow had a fair commission to the contrary.

Sir, here is his passport; I pray you, sir, we 47 have done him wrong.

Hier. I warrant thee, give it me.

Hangm. You will stand between the gallows and me?

Hier. Ay, ay.

Hieronimo. I thank your lord worship.

Exit Hangman.

Hier. And yet, though somewhat nearer me concerns,

I will, to ease the grief that I sustain,

Take truce with sorrow while I read on this.

"My lord, I write, 6 as mine extremes requir’d,

That you would labour my delivery:

If you neglect, my life is desperate,

And in my death I shal not reveal the truth.

You know, my lord, I slew him for your sake,

And was conf’d rate with the prince and you;

Wen by rewards and hopeful promises,

I holp to murder Don Horatio too;” —

Hulp he to murder mine Horatio?

And actors in th’ accursed tragedy

Wast thou, Lorenzo, Balthazar and thou,

Of whom my son, my son deserv’d so well?

What have I heard, what have mine eyes beheld?

O sacred heavens, may it come to pass

That such a monstrous and detested deed,

So closely smother’d, and so long conceald,

Shall thus by this be veng’d or reveal’d?

Now see I what I durst not then suspect.

That Bel-imperia’s letter was not feign’d.

Nor feign’d she, though falsely they have wrong’d

Both her, myself, Horatio, and themselves.

Now may I make compare’twixt hers and this,

Of every accident I ne’er could find

Till now, and now I feelingly perceive

They did what heav’n unpunish’d would not leave.

O false Lorenzo! are these thy flattering looks?

Is this the honour that thou didst my son?

And Balthazar — bane to thy soul and me! —

Was this the ransom he reserv’d thee for?

Woe to the cause of those constrained wars!

Woe to thy baseness and captivity,

Woe to thy birth, thy body, and thy soul,

Thy cursed father, and thy conquer’d self!

And bann’d with bitter executions be

The day and place where he did pity thee!

But wherefore waste I mine unfruitful words,

When nought but blood will satisfy my woes?

I will go plain me to my lord the king,

And cry aloud for justice through the court,
Wearing the flints with these my withered foot;
And either justice by entreaty,
Or tire them all with my revenging threats. =

Exit.

[SCEINE VIII.] 1

Enter Isabella and her Maid.

Isab. So that you say this herb will purge
the eye,
And this, the head? —
Ah! — but none of them will purge the heart!
No, there’s no medicine left for my disease,
Nor any physic to secure the dead.
[She runs unatic.

Horatio! O, where’s Horatio?
Maid. Good madam, affright not thus yourself.
With outrage 2 for your son Horatio:
He sleeps in quiet in the Elysian fields.
Isab. Why, did I not give you gowns and goodly things,
Bought you a whistle and a whipstall too;
To be revenged on their villainies?
Maid. Madam, these humours do torment my soul.
Isab. My soul — poor soul, thou talk’st of things
Thou knowest not what — my soul hath silver wings,
That mounts me up unto the highest heavens;
To heaven? Ay, there sits my Horatio,
Back’d with a troop of fiery Cherubins,
Dancing about his newly healed wounds,
Singing sweet hymns and chanting heav’nly notes,
Rare harmony to greet his innocence,
That died, ay died, a mirror in our days.
But say, where shall I find the men, the murderers,
That slew Horatio? Whither shall I run
To find them out that murdered my son?
[Exeunt.

[SCEINE IX.] 4

Bel-imperia at a window.

Bel. What means this outrage that is offer’d me?
Why am I thus sequester’d from the court?
No notice! Shall I not know the cause
Of these my secret and suspicious ills?
Accursed brother, unkind murderer,
Why bendst thou thus thy mind to martyr me?
Hieronimo, why writ I of thy wrongs,
Or why art thou so slack in thy revenge?
Andrea, O Andrea! that thou saw’st
Me for thy friend Horatio handled thus,
And him for me thus causeless murdered! —
Well, force perforce, I must constrain myself
To patience, and apply me 6 to the time,
Till heaven, as I have hop’d, shall set me free.

Enter Christophil.

Chris. Come, madam Bel-imperia, this may not be.
[Exeunt. 15

[SCEINE X.] 7

Enter Lorenzo, Balthazar, and the Page.

Lor. Boy, talk no further; thus far things go well.
Thou art assur’d that thou sawest him dead?
Page. Or else, my lord, I live not.
Lor. That’s enough.
As for his resolution in his end,
Leave that to him with whom he sojourns now. 8
Here, take my ring and give it Christophil,
And bid him let my sister be enlarg’d,
And bring her hither straight. — Exit Page.
This that I did was for a policy,
To smooth and keep the murder secret,
Which, as a nine-days’ wonder, being o’erblown,
My gentle sister will I now enlarge.
Bal. And time, Lorenzo: for my lord the duke,
You heard, enquired for her yester-night.
Lor. Why, and my lord, I hope you heard me say Sufficient reason why she kept away;
But that’s all one. My lord, you love her?
Bal. Ay.
Lor. Then in your love beware; deal cunningly:
Salve all suspicions, only soothes me up;
And if she hap to stand on terms 9 with us —
As for her sweet heart and concealment so —
Jest with her gently: under feigned jest
Are things conceal’d that else would breed unrest.
But here she comes.

Enter Bel-imperia.

Bel. Now, sister, —
Balth. Sister? No!
Thou art no brother, but an enemy;
Else wouldst thou not have us’d thy sister so:
First, to affright me with thy weapons drawn,
And with extremes abuse my company;
Then to hurry me, like whirlwind’s rage,
Amidst a crew of thy confederates,
And clap me up where none might come at me,
Nor I at any to reveal my wrongs.
What maddening fury did possess thy wits?
Or wherein is’t that I offended thee?
Lor. Advise you better, Bel-imperia,
For I have done you no disparagement;
Unless, by more discretion than sav’d,
I sought to save your honour and mine own.
Bel. Mine honour? Why, Lorenzo, wherein is’t
That I neglect my reputation so,
As you, or any, need to rescue it?
Lor. His highness and my father were resolv’d
To come confer with old Hieronimo
Concerning certain matters of estate
That by the viceroy was determined.
Bel. And wherein was mine honour touch’d in that?
Bal. Have patience, Bel-imperia; hear the rest.
Lor. Me, next in sight, as a messenger they sent
To give him notice that they were so nigh:
Now when I came, consorted with the prince,
And unexpected in an arbour there.
Found Bel-imperia with Horatio —
Bel. How then?
Lor. Why, then, remembering that old disgrace.
Which you for Don Andrea had endur'd,
And now were likely longer to sustain,
By being found so meanly accompanied,
Thought rather — for I knew no readier mean —
To thrust Horatio forth my father's way.
Bel. And carry you obscurely somewhere else,
Lest that his highness should have found you there.
Bel. Ev'n so, my lord? And are you witness
That this is true which he entreateth of?
You, gentle brother, forg'd this for my sake,
And you, my lord, were made his instrument?
A work of worth, worthy the noting too!
But what's the cause that you conceal'd me since?
Lor. Your melancholy, sister, since the news
Of your first favourite Don Andrea's death,
My father's old wrath hath exasperate.
Bel. And better was't for you, being in disgrace,
To absent yourself, and give his fury place.
Bel. But why had I no notice of his ire?
Lor. That were to add more fuel to your fire,
Who burnt like Aetna for Andrea's loss.
Bel. Hath not my father then enquir'd for me?
Lor. Sister, he hath, and thus excus'd I thee.
Bel. He whispers in her ear.
But Bel-imperia, see the gentle prince;
Look on thy love, behold young Balthazar,
Whose passions by thy presence are increas'd; and
And in whose melancholy thou may'st see
Thy hate, his love; thy flight, his following thee.
Bel. Brother, you are become an orator —
I know not, I, by what experience —
Too politic for me, past all compare,
Since I saw you; but content yourself: The prince is meditating higher things.
Bel. 'Tis of thy beauty, then, that conquers kings;
Of those thy tresses, Ariadne's twines,
Wherewith my liberty thou hast surpris'd;
Of that thine ivory front, my sorrow's map,
Wherein I see no haven to rest my hope.
Bel. 'Te love and fear, and both at once, my lord,
In my conceit, are things of more import
Than women's wits are to be busied with.
Bel. 'Tis I that love.
Bel. Whom?
Bel. Bel-imperia.
Bel. But I that fear.
Bel. Whom?
Bel. Bel-imperia.
Lor. Fear yourself?
Bel. Ay, brother.
Lor. How?
Bel. As those
That what they love are loth and fear to lose.
Bel. Then, fair, let Balthazar your keeper be.
Bel. No, Balthazar doth fear as well as we:
Et 1 tenuilo metui pauidum junxere timorem —
Et 2 vanum solidae pradtionis opus.
Lor. Nay, and you argue things so cunningly,
We'll go continue this discourse at court.
Bel. Last by the loudstar of her heavenly looks,
Wends poor oppressed Balthazar,
As o'er the mountains walks the wanderer,
Uncertain to effect his pilgrimage. Exeunt.

[Scene XI.]

Enter two PORTINGALES, and HIBERNIMO meets
them.

1 Port. By your leave, sir.
Hib. 4 ["T is neither as you think, nor as you
think,
Nor as you think; you're wide all.
These slippers are not mine, they were my son Horatio's.
My son? and what's a son? A thing begot
Within a pair of minutes — thereof;
A lump bred up in darkness, and doth serve
To balance these light creatures we call women;
And, at nine months' end, creeps forth to light.
What is there yet in a son,
To make a father dote, rave, or run mad?
Being born, it pouts, cries, and breeds teeth.
What is there yet in a son? He must be fed,
Be taught to go, and speak. Ay, or yet
Why might not a man love a calf as well?
Or melt in passion o'er a frisking kid,
As for a son? Methinks, a young bacon,
Or a fine little smooth horse colt,
Should move a man as much as doth a son:
For one of these, in very little time,
Will grow to some good use: whereas a son,
The more he grows in stature and in years,
The more unquar'd, unbevill'd, he appears,
Reckons his parents among the rank of fools,
Strikes care upon their heads with his mad riots,
Makes them look old before they meet with age.
This is a son! — And what a loss were this,
Consider'd truly? — O, but my Horatio
Grew out of reach of these insatiate humours:
He lov'd his loving parents;
He was my comfort, and his mother's joy,
The very arm that did hold up our house:
Our hopes were stored up in him,
None but a damned murderer could hate him.
He had not seen the back of nineteen year,
When his strong arm unhor'd
The proud Prince Balthazar, and his great mind,
Too full of honour, look him unto' mercy,
That valiant, but ignoble Portingale!
Well, Miten is heaven-stilled,
And there is Nemesis, and Puriss,
And things call'd whips,
And they sometime do meet with murderers:

1 = Rob. Halsitt. Qq. Est.
2 = So Schickel. Qq. Est.
3 = Third passage of additions begins here.
4 = Ballast.
5 = Unpolished.
6 = Qq. us it.
7 = A street.
They do not always scape, that is some comfort.
Ay, ay, ay; and then time steals on,
And steals, and steals, till violence leaps forth
Like thunder wrapt in a ball of fire,
And so doth bring confusion to them all.]
Good leave have you: nay, I pray you go,
For I’ll leave you, if you can leave me so.

2 Port. Pray you, which is the next way to my lord the duke’s?
Hier. The next way from me.
1 Port. To his house, we mean.
Hier. O, hard by: ’tis you house that you see.

2 Port. You could not tell us if his son were
there?
Hier. Who, my Lord Lorenzo?
1 Port. He goeth in at one door and comes out at another.
Hier. O, forbear!

For other talk for us far fitter were.
But if you be importunate to know
The way to him, and where to find him out,
Then list to me, and I’ll resolve your doubt.
There is a path upon your left-hand side
That leadeth from a guilty conscience
Unto a forest of distrust and fear—
A darksome place, and dangerous to pass:
There shall you meet with melancholy thoughts,
Whose baleful humours if you but uphold,
It will conduct you to despair and death—
Whose rocky cliffs when you have once beheld,
Within a hagy dome of lasting night,
That, kindled with the world’s iniquities,
Dost cast up filthy and detested fumes:
Not far from these, where murderers have built
A habitation for their cursed souls,
There, in a brassen cauldron, fix’d by Jove,
In his fell wrath, upon a sulphur flame,
Yourselves shall find Lorenzo bathing him
In boiling lead and blood of innocents.

1 Port. Ha, ha, ha!
Hier. Ha, ha, ha! Why, ha, ha, ha! Fare well; good ha, ha, ha!
Exeunt.

2 Port. Doubtless this man is passing lunatic,
Or imperfection of his age doth make him dote.
Come, let’s away to seek my lord the duke.
Exeunt.

[Scene XII.]

Enter Hieronimo, with a poniard in one hand and a rope in the other.

Hier. Now, sir, perhaps I come and see the
king;
The king sees me, and fain would hear my suit:
Why, is not this a strange and self-seen thing,
That standers-by with toys should strike me while?
Go to, I see their shifts, and say no more.
Hieronimo, ’tis time for thee to trudge
Down by the dale that flows with purple gore
Standeth a fiery tower; there sits a judge
Upon a seat of steel and molten brass,
And ’twixt his teeth he holds a fire-brand.
That leads unto the lake where hell doth stand.

Away, Hieronimo! to him be gone;
He’ll do thee justice for Horatio’s death.
Tara down this path: thou shalt be with him
straight;
Or this, and then thou needst not take thy breath:

This way or that way? —— Soft and fair, not so:

For if I hang or kill myself, let’s know
Who will revenge Horatio’s murder then?
No, no! sit, no! pardon me, I’ll none of that.
He flings away the dagger and halter.

This way I’ll take, and this way comes the
king:
He takes them up again.
And here I’ll have a fling at him, that’s flat;
And, Balthazar, I’ll be with thee to bring,
And thee, Lorenzo! Here’s the king — nay, stay;
And here, ay here — there goes the hare away.

Enter King, Ambassador, Castle, and Loren zo.

King. Now show, ambassador, what our vice roy saith:
Hath he receiv’d the articles we sent?
Hier. Justice, O justice to Hieronimo.
Lor. Back! see’st thou not the king is busy?
Hier. O, is he so?
King. Who is he that interrupts our business?
Hier. Not I. [Aside.] Hieronimo, beware I go by, go by!
Amb. Renowned King, he hath receiv’d and read
Thy kingly proffers, and thy promis’d league;
And, as a man extremely over-joy’d,
To hear his son so princely entertain’d,
Whose death he had so solemnly bewail’d,
This for thy further satisfaction
And kingly love he kindly lets thee know:
First, for the marriage of his princely son
With Bel-imperia, thy beloved niece,
The news are more delightful to his soul,
Than myrrh or incense to the offended heavens.
In person, therefore, will he come himself,
To see the marriage rites solemnized,
And, in the presence of the court of Spain,
To knit a sure inexplicable band
Of kingly love and everlasting league
Between the crowns of Spain and Portugal.
There will he give his crown to Balthazar,
And make a queen of Bel-imperia.

King. Brother, how like you this our vice roy’s love?

Cast. No doubt, my lord, it is an argument
Of honourable care to keep his friend,
And wondrous zeal to Balthazar his son:
Nor am I least indebted to his grace,
That bends his liking to my daughter thus.
Amb. Now last, dread lord, here hath his highness sent
(Although he send not that his son returns)
His ransom due to Don Horatio.

1 The Court of Spain. 2 Seldom seen.
Hier. Horatio! who calls Horatio?
King. And well remembr'd: thank his majesty. **

Here, I give it given to Horatio. **
Hier. Justice, O, justice, justice, gentle king! **
King. Who is that? Hieronimo? **
Hier. Justice, O, justice! O my son, my son!
My son, whom naught can ransom or redeem! **
Lor. Hieronimo, you are not well-adviz'd. **
Hier. Away, Lorenzo, hinder me no more;
For thou hast made me bankrupt of my bliss.
Give me my son! you shall not ransom him!
Away! I'll rip the bowels of the earth. **
He diggeth with his dagger.

And ferry over to th' Elysian plains.
And bring my son to show his deadly wounds.
Stand from about me!
I'll make a pickup of my poniard,
And here surrender up my marshalship;
For I'll go marshal up the fiends in hell,
To be avenged on you all for this.
King. What means this outrage?
Will none of you restrain his fury?
Hier. Nay, soft and fair! you shall not need to strive.

Needs must he go that the devils drive. Exit. **
King. What accident hath happ'd Hieronimo?
I have not seen him to demean him so.
Lor. My gracious lord, he is with extreme pride,
Conceiv'd of young Horatio his son
And covetous of having to himself
The ransom of the young prince Balthazar,
Distract, and in a manner lunatic.
King. Believe me, nephew, we are sorry for't:
This is the love that fathers bear their sons.
But, gentle brother, go give him to this gold,
The prince's ransom; let him have his duc.
For what he hath, Horatio shall not want;
Haply Hieronimo hath need thereof.
Lor. But if he be thus helpless distract, **
'Tis requisite his office be resign'd,
And giv'n to one of more discretion.
King. We shall increase his melancholy so.
'Tis best that we see further in it first,
Till whom, ourself will execute 1 the place. **
And, brother, now bring in the ambassador,
That he may be a witness of the match
Twixt Balthazar and Bel-imperia,
And that we may prefix a certain time,
Wherein the marriage shall be solemniz'd, **
That we may have thy lord, the vicaroy, here.

Amb. Therein your highness highly shall content
His majesty, that longs to hear from hence.
King. On, then, and hear you, lord ambassador —

[Exeunt. **

Ped. O Jaques, know thou that our master's mind
Is much distraught, since his Horatio died,
And — now his aged years should sleep in rest,
His heart in quiet — like a desperate man,
Grows lunatic and childish for his son.
Sometimes, as he doth at his table sit,
He speaks as if Horatio stood by him;
Then starting in a rage, falls on the earth,
Cries out, "Horatio, where is my Horatio?"
So that with extreme grief and cutting sorrow
There is not left in him one inch of man:
See, where he comes.

Enter HIERONIMO.

Hier. I pray through every crenice of each wall,
Look on each tree, and search through every brake.
Beat at the bushes, stamp on grandest earth,
Dive in the water, and stare up to heaven,
Yet cannot I behold my son Horatio. —
How now, who's there? Spirits, spirits?
Ped. We are your servants that attend you, sir.
Hier. No, no, you are deceiv'd! not 1 ; — you are deceiv'd!

Was I so mad to bid you light your torches now?
Light me your torches at the mid of noon,
When as the sun-god rides in all his glory;
Light me your torches then.

Ped. Then we burn 4 daylight.
Hier. Let it be burnt; Night is a murderous stick,
That would not have her treasons to be seen;
And wonder pale-face'd 8 Heace there, the moon,
Doth give consent to that is done in darkness;
And all those stars that gaze upon her face,
Are asleep 6 on her sleeve, pins on her train;
And those that should be powerful and divine,
Do sleep in darkness when they most should shine.

Ped. Provoke them not, fair sir, with tempting words:
The hearts are gracious, and your miseries
And sorrow makes you speak you know not what.
Hier. Villain, thou liest! and thou dost nought
But tell me I am mad. Thou liest, I am not mad!
I know thee to be Pedro, and he Jaques.
I'll prove it to thee; and were I mad, how could I?
Where was she that same night when my Horatio
Was murd'ry? She should have shone; search thou the book.

Had the moon shone, in my boy's face there was a kind of grace,
That I know — nay, I do know — had the murderer seen him,
His weapon would have fall'n and cut the earth,But he he fram'd of nought but blood and death.
Alack! when mischief doth it known not what,
What shall we say to mischief? 7

Enter ISABELLA.

Isab. Dear Hieronimo, come in a-door;
O, seek not means so to increase thy sorrow.

4 Waste.
8 Metal ornaments, orig. points of lace.
Her. Indeed, Isabella, we do nothing here; I do not cry: ask Pedro, and ask Jaques: Not I indeed; we are very merry, very merry. Isab. How be merry here, be merry here? Is not this the place, and this the very tree, Where my Horatio died, where he was murdered? Her. Was — do not say what: let her weep if she will. This was the tree; I set it up on a kernel: And when our hot Spain could not let it grow, But that the infant and the human sap Began to wither, duly twice a morning Would I be sprinkling it with fountain-water. At last it grew and grew, and bore and bore, Till at the length It grew a galloway, and did bear our son; It bore thy fruit and mine — O wicked, wicked plant!

One knocks within at the door. See, who knocks there. Fed. It is a painter, sir. Her. Bid him come in, and paint some comfort, For surely there's none lives but painted comfort. Let him come in! — One knows not what may chance. God's will that I should set this tree! — but even so Masters unfruitful servants rear from nought, And then they hate them that did bring them up.

Enter the Painter. Paint. God bless you, sir. Her. Wherefore? Why, thou scurvy villain? How, where, or by what means shouldst thou be bless'd? Isab. What wouldst thou have, good fellow? Paint. Justice, madam. Her. O ambitious beggar! Wouldst thou have that that lives not in the world? Why, all the undeserved mines cannot buy An ounce of justice! 'Tis a jest, so inestimable. I tell thee, God engrafts all justice in his hands, And there is none but what comes from him. Paint. O, then I see The Lord must right me for my murdered son. Her. How, was thy son murdered? Paint. Ay, sir; no man did hold a son so dear. Her. What, not as thine? That's a lie, As busy as the earth. I had a son Whose least unvalued hair did weigh A thousand of thy sons: and he was murdered. Paint. Alas, sir, I had no more but he. Her. Nor I, nor I: but this same one of mine Was worth a legion. But all is one. Pedro, Jaques, go in a-doors; Isabella, go, And this good fellow here and I Will range this hideous orchard up and down, Like to two lions reared of their young. Go in a-doors, I say. (Exeunt. The painter and he sits down. Come, let's talk wisely now. Was thy son murdered? Paint. Ay, sir. Her. So was mine. How doe it take it? Art thou not sometimes mad? Is there no tricks? that comes before thine eyes?

Paint. O Lord, yes, sir. Her. Art a painter? Canst paint me a tear, or a wound, a groan, or a sigh? Canst paint me such a tree as this? Paint. Sir, I am sure you have heard of my painting: my name's Bazoard. Her. Bazoard! A fore God, an excellent fellow. Look you, sir, do you see? I'd have you paint me [it for my gallery, in your oil-colours maitled, and draw me five years younger than I am — do ye see, sir, let five years go; let them go like the marshal of Spain — my wife Isabella standing by me, with a speaking look to my son Horatio, which should [120 extend to this or some such-like purpose: "God bless thee, my sweet son," and my hand leaning upon his head, thus, sir: do you see? May it be done? Paint. Very well, sir. Her. Nay, I pray, mark me, sir. Then, sir, [125 would you have me paint this tree, this very tree. Canst paint a doleful cry? Paint. Seemingly, sir. Her. Nay, it should be cry: but all is one. Well, sir, paint me a youth run through and through [130 with villains' swords, hanging upon this tree. Canst thou draw a murderer? Paint. I'll warrant you, sir; I have the pattern of the most notorious villains that ever lived in all Spain.

Her. O, let them be worse, worse: stretch thin' art, and let their bea de be of Judas his own colour; and let their eye-brows fully over: in any case ob serve that. Then, sir, after some violent noise, bring me forth in my shirt, and my gown under my mine arm, with my torch in my hand, and my sword reared up, thus: — and with these words: "What noise is this? Who calls Hieronimo?" May it be done? Paint. Yea, sir. Her. Well, sir; then bring me forth, bring me through alley and alley, still with a distracted countenance going along, and let my hair beav me up my night-cap. Let the clouds scowl, make the moon dark, the stars extinct, the winds blowing, the bells tolling, the owls shrieking, the toads croaking, the minutes jarring, and the clock striking twelve. And then at last, sir, starting, behold a man hanging, and tottering and tottering, as you know the wind will leave a man, and I with a trice to cut him [150 down. And looking upon him by the advantage of my torch, find it to be my son Horatio. There you may [show a passion, there you may show a passion: Draw me like old Priam of Troy, crying, "The house is a-fire, the house is a-fire, as the torch over my head!" Make me curse, make me rave, make me cry, make me mad, make me well again, make me curse hell, invoke heaven, and in the end leave me in a trance — and so forth. Paint. And is this the end? Her. O no, there is no end; the end is death and madness! As I am never better than when I am mad; then methinks I am a brave fellow, then do I wonder; but reason abuseth me, and there's the torment, there's the hell. At the last, sir, bring me to me.
Hier. That I should plead their several actions?
Why, let them enter, and let me see them. =

1 Cit. So, I tell you this: for learning and for law,
There is not any advocate in Spain
That can prevail, or will take half the pain
That he will, in pursuit of equity.

May move the hearts of warlike Myrmidons,

O my son, my son, O my son Horatio! =
But mine, or thine, Bazulio, be content.
Hier. Take my handkercher and wipe thine eyes,
Whiles wretched I in thy mishaps may see
The lively portrait of my dying self.
Hier. He draweth out a bloody napkin.
O no, not this; Horatio, this was thine;
And when I dy'd it in thy dearest blood,
This was a token 'twixt thy soul and me,
That of thy death revenged I should be.
But here, take this, and this — what, my purse? —
Ay, this, and that, and all of them are thine;
For all as one are our extremities.

That are importunate, and it shall please you,

1 Cit. O, see the kindness of Hieronimo!
3 Cit. This gentleness shows him a gentle-
man.
Hier. See, see, O see thy shame, Hieronimo !

See here a loving father to his son !
Behold the sorrows and the sad laments,
That he delivereth for his son's decease !
If love's effects so strive 1 in lesser things,
If love enforce such moods in meaner wits,
It love express such power in poor estates,

Hieronimo, as when 2 a raging sea,
Took'd with the wind and tide, o'erturneth 3 then
The upper billows, course of waves to keep,
Whilst lesser waters labour in the deep,
Then shan't thou not, Hieronimo, to neglect
The sweet revenge of thy Horatio ? 100

Though on this earth justice will not be found,
I'll down to hell, and in this passion
Knock at the dismal gates of Pluto's court,
Getting by force, as once Aeleides did, 110
A troop of Furies and tormenting hags
To torture Don Lorenzo and the rest.
Yet lest the triple-headed porter should Deny my passage to the slimy strand,
The Thracian poet thou shalt counterfeit. 120

Come on, old father, be my Orpheus,
And if thou canst 4 no notes upon the harp,
Then sound the burden of thy sore heart's grief,
Till we do gain that Proserpine may grant
Revenge on them that murdered my son. 130
Then will I rouse and tear them, thus and thus,
Shivering their limbs in pieces with my teeth.

Tears the papers.

1 Cit. O sir, my declaration !

Exit Hieronimo, and they after.

2 Cit.

Save my bond !

Enter Hieronimo.

2 Cit. Save my bond !

3 Cit. Alas, my lease ! it cost me ten pound,
And you, my lord, have torn the same. 130

Hier. That cannot be, I gave it never a wound.

Show me one drop of blood fall from the same !
How is it possible I should alay it then ?
Tush, no ; run after, catch me if you can. 140

Exeunt all but the Old Man. Bazulio remains till Hieronimo enters again, who, staring him in the face, speaks.

Hier. And art thou come, Horatio, from the depth,

To ask for justice in this upper earth,

To tell thy father thou art unregend,

To wring more tears from Isabella's eyes,

Whose lights are dimm'd with over-long laments 150

Go back, my son, complain to Aesculap,

For here's no justice ; gentle boy, begone,

For justice is exiled from the earth:

Hieronimo will bear thee company.

Thy mother cries on righteous Rhadamant 160

For just revenge against the murderers.

Senz. Alas, my lord, whence springs this troubled speech ?

Hier. But let me look on my Horatio.

Sweet boy, how art thou chang'd in death's black shade !

Had Proserpine no pity on thy youth,

But suffered thy fair crimson-colour'd spring

With withered winter to be blasted thus ?

Horatio, thou art older than thy father.

Ah, ruthless fate, 2 that fav'rous thus transforms!

Bus. Ah, my good lord, I am not your young son.

Hier. What, not my son ? Thou then a Fury

art,

Sent from the empty kingdom of black night

To summon me to make appearance

Before grim Minos and just Rhadamanth,

To plague Hieronimo that is remiss,

And seeks not vengeance for Horatio's death.

Bus. I am a grieved man, and not a ghost,

That came for justice for my murdered son.

Hier. Ay, now I know thee, now thou nam'st thy son.

Thou art the lively image of my grief ;

Within thy face my sorrows I may see.

Thy eyes are gumm'd with tears, thy cheeks are wan,

Thy forehead troubled, and thy muttering lips

Murmur sad words abruptly broken off

By force of windy sighs thy spirit breathes ; 150

And all this sorrow raeth for thy son:

And selfsame sorrow feel I for my son.

Come in, old man, thou shalt to Isabel.

Lean on my arm: I thee, thou me, shalt stay,

And thou, and I, and she will sing a song, 170

Three parts in one, but all of discord fram'd :—

Talk not of chords, but let us now be gone,

For with a cord Horatio was slain.

Exeunt.

[SCENE XIV.]

Enter King of Spain, the Duke, Viceroys, and

Lorenzo, Balthazar, Don Pedro, and Bel-imperia.

King. Go, brother, it is the Duke of Castile's cause ;

Salute the Viceroys in our name.

Cast.

Vic. Go forth, Don Pedro, for thy nephew's

sake,

And greet the Duke of Castile.

Ped. It shall be so.

King. And now to meet these Portuguese: 5

For as we now are, so sometimes were these,

Kings and commanders of the western Indies.

Welcome, brave Viceroys, to the court of Spain,

And welcome all his honourable train !

'Tis not unknown to us for why you come, 20

Or have so kindly crossed the seas:

Sufficeth it, in this we note the troth

And more than common love you lend to us.

So is it that mine honourable niece

(For it besees us now that it be known)

Already is betroth'd to Balthazar:

8 So Dodsley. Qq. Father.

9 The Court of Spain.
To hear Hieronimo exclaim on thee?
Tell me — and look thou tell me truly too —
Whence grows the ground of this report in court?

Lor. My lord, it lies not in Lorenzo's power
To stop the vulgar, liberal of their tongues.
A small advantage makes a water-break,
And no man lives that long contenteth all.

Cast. Myself have seen thee busy to keep back

His and his supplications from the king.

Lor. Yourself, my lord, hast seen his passions,
That ill beseech'd the presence of a king:
And, for I pitied him in his distress,
I held him thence with kind and courteous words

As free from malice to Hieronimo
As to my soul, my lord.

Cast. Hieronimo, my son, mistakes thee then.

Lor. My gracious father, believe me, so he doeth.

But what's a silly man, distract in mind
To think upon the murder of his son?
Ahas! how easy is it for him to err!
But for his satisfaction and the world's,
'T were good, my lord, that Hieronimo and I
Were reconcil'd, if he miscostemer me.

Cast. Lorenzo, thou hast said; it shall be so,
Go one of you, and call Hieronimo.

Enter BALTHAZAR and BEL-IMPERIA.

Bal. Come, Bel-imperia, Balthazar's content,
My sorrow's ease and sovereign of my bliss,
Sith heaven hath ordain'd thee to be mine:
Disperse those clouds and melancholy looks,
And clear them up with those thy sun-bright eyes,
Wherein my hope and heaven's fair beauty lies.

Bel. My looks, my lord, are fitting for my
love,
Which, new-begun, can show no brighter yet.

Bal. New-kindled flames should burn as morning sun.

Bel. But not too fast, lest heat and all be done.

I see my lord my father.

Truce, my love;

I will go salute him.

Cast. Welcome, brave prince, the pledge of Castile's peace!

And welcome, Bel-imperia! — How now, girl?
Why com'st thou sadly to salute us thus?

Content thyself, for I am satisfied:
It is not now as when Andrea liv'd;
We have forgotten and forgiven that,
And thou art graced with a happier love.

But, Balthazar, here comes Hieronimo;
I'll have a word with him.

Enter HIERONIMO and a Servant.

Hier. And where's the duke?

Serv. Yonder.

Hier. Even so.

What new device have they devised, trow?
Enter GHOST and REVENGE.

GHOST. Awake, Erichthon! Cerberus, awake! Solicit Pluto, gentle Proserpine! To combat, Acheron and Erebus! For ne'er, by Styx and Phlegethon in hell, Nor ferried Charon to the fiery lakes Such fearful sights, as poor Andria sees. Revenge, awak’d.

REVENGE. Awake? For why?

GHOST. Awake, Revenge; for thou art ill-advised.

To sleep away what thou art warn’d to watch! Revenge. Content thyself, and do not trouble me.

GHOST. Awake, Revenge, if love—as love hath had— Have yet the power or prevalence in hell! Hieronymo with Lorenzo is join’d in league, And intercepts our passage to revenge. Awake, Revenge, or we are woefully! Revenge. Thus worldlings ground what they have dream’d upon.

Content thyself, Andria: though I sleep, Yet is my mood soliciting their souls. Sufficeth thee that poor Hieronymo Cannot forget his son Horatio. Nor dies Revenge, although he sleep awhile; For in unquiet, quietness is feign’d. And slumbering is a common worldly wile. Behold, Andria, for an instance, how Revenge hath slept, and then imagine thou, What 'tis to be subject to destiny.

Enter a Dumb-Show.

GHOST. Awake, Revenge; reveal this mystery.

REVENGE. Lo! the two first the nuptial torches bore As brightly burning as the mid-day’s sun; But after them doth Hymen his pace, Clothed in saffron and a saffron robe, And blows them out, and quencheth them with blood. As discontent that things continue so. GHOST. Sufficeth me; thy meaning’s understood, And thanks to thee and those infernal powers That will not tolerate a lover’s woe. Rest thee, for I will sit to see the rest.

REVENGE. Then argue not, for thou hast thy request.

Exit.

ACT IV

Enter BEL-IMPERIA and HIERONYMO.

BEL. Is this the love thou bear’st Horatio? Is this the kindness that thou counterfeits? Are these the fruits of thine incessant tears?

Q. read in hell at end of l. 3. The passage is clearly corrupt.

Early Q. read see.

Rely upon what they have dreamed.

Palace of Don Cyprion.
Hieronymo, are these thy passions,
Thy protestations and thy deep laments,
That thou wert wont to weary men withal?
O unkind father! O deceitful world!
With what excuses canst thou show thyself
From this dishonour and the hate of men,
Thus to neglect the lost and life of him
Whom both my letters and thine own belief
Assures thee to be causeless slaughtered?
Hieronymo, for shame, Hieronymo,
Be not a history to after-times
Of such ingratitude unto thy son.
Unhappy mothers of such children then!
But monstrous fathers to forget so soon
The death of those whom they with care and cost
Have tend'red so, thus careless should be lost.
Myself, a stranger in respect of thee,
To lov'd his life, as still I wish their deaths.
Nor shall his death be unervâg'd by me,
Although I bear it out for fashion's sake;
For here I swear, in sight of heaven and earth,
Shouldst thou neglect the love thou shouldst retain,
And give it over and devise no more,
Myself should send their hateful souls to hell
That wrought his downfall with extremest death.
Hier. But may it be that Bel-imperia
Vows such revenge as she hath deign'd to say?
Why, then I see that heaven applies our drift,
And all the saints do sit soliciting
For vengeance on those cursed murderers.
Madam, 't is true, and now I find it so,
I found a letter, written in your name,
And in that letter, how Horatio died.
Pardon, O pardon, Bel-imperia,
My fear and care in not believing it;
Nor think I thoughtless think upon a mean
To let his death be unervâg'd at full.
And here I vow — so you but give consent,
And will conceal my resolution —
I will ere long determine of their deaths
That causeless thus have murdered my son.
Bel. Hieronymo, I will consent, conceal,
And ought that may effect for thine avail,
Join with thee to revenge Horatio's death.
Hier. On, then; and whatsoever I devise,
Let me entreat you, grace my practices,
For why the plot's already in mine head.
Hier. Here they are.

Enter Balthazar and Lorenzo.

Bal. How now, Hieronymo?
What, courting Bel-imperia?
Hier. Ay, my lord; Such courting as, I promise you,
She hath my heart, but you, my lord, have hers.
Lor. But now, Hieronymo, or never.
We are to entreat your help.
Hier. My help?
Why, my good lords, assure yourselves of me;
For you have giv'n me cause, — ay, by my faith
have you!

4 Pleading.
5 Usual Elizabethan form of postens.
Her had this bashaw long solicited,
And saw she was not otherwise to be won,
But by her husband’s death, this knight of Rhodes,
Whom presently by treachery he slew.
She, stirr’d with an exceeding hate therefore,
As cause of this awl Soliman,
And, to escape the bashaw’s tyranny,
Did stab herself: and this the tragedy.

Lor. O excellent!
Bel. But say, Hieronimo,
What then became of him that was the bashaw?
Hier. Marry, thus: mov’d with remorse of his misdeeds,
Ran to a mountain-top, and hung himself.
Bel. But which of us is to perform that part?
Hier. O, that will I, my lords; make no doubt of it.
I’ll play the murderer, I warrant you;
For I already have conceived that.
Bel. And what shall I?
Hier. Alas, Soliman, the Turkish emperor.
Lor. And I?
Hier. Erastus, the knight of Rhodes.
Bel. And I?
Hier. Perseda, chase and resolute.

And here, my lords, are several abstracts drawn,
For each of you to note your parts,
And act it, as occasion ’s o’er you,
You must provide a Turkish cap,
A black mustachio and a falchion;
Gives a paper to Balthazar.

You with a cross, like to a knight of Rhodes;
Gives another to Lorenzo.

And, madam, you must attire yourself,
He giveth Bel-imperia another.
Like Phoebe, Flora, or the huntress [Diana],
Which to your discretion shall seem best.
And as for me, my lords, I’ll look to one,
And, with the ransom that the viceroy sent,
So furnish and perform this tragedy,
As all the world shall say, Hieronimo
Was liberal in grace of it so.
Bel. Hieronimo, methinks a comedy were better.
Hier. A comedy?

Fie! comedies are fit for common wits;
But to present a kingly troop withal,
Give me a stately-written tragedy;
Tragedia catherina, fitting kings,
Containing matter, and not common things.
My lords, all this must be performed,
As fitting for the first night’s revelling.
The Italian tragedians were so sharp of wit,
That in one hour’s meditation
They would perform anything in action.
Lor. And well it may; for I have seen the like.
In Paris monget the French tragedians.
Hier. In Paris? mass! and well remember’d!
There’s one thing more that rests for us to do.
Bel. What’s that, Hieronimo? Forget not anything.
Hier. Each one of us

Must act his part in unknown languages,
That it may breed the more variety:
As you, my lord, in Latin, I in Greek,
You in Italian; and for because I know
That Bel-imperia hath practis’d the French,
In courtly French shall all her phrases be.
Bel. You mean to try my cunning then, Hieronimo?

Bel. But this will be a mere confusion
And hardly shall we all be understood.
Hier. It must be so; for the conclusion
Shall prove the invention and all was good:
And I myself in an oration,
And with a strange and wondrous show besides,
That I will have there behind a curtain,
Assure yourself, shall make the matter known;
And all shall be concluded in one scene,
For there’s no pleasure to be in tediousness.
Bel. How like you this?
Lor.

Why, thus my lord:
We must resolve to soothe his humour up.
Bel. On the right, Hieronimo; farewell till soon.
Hier. You’ll ply this gear?
Lor. I warrant you.

Hier. Exeunt all but Hieronimo.

Now shall I see the fall of Babylon,
Wrought by the heavens in this confusion.
And if the world like not this tragedy,
Hard is the hap of old Hieronimo. Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter Isabella with a weapon.

Isa. Tell me no more! — O monstrous homicides!
Since neither pisty or pity moves
The king to justice or compassion,
I will revenge myself upon this place,
Where thus they murdered my beloved son.

She cuts down the arbour.

Down with these branches and these loathsome boughs
Of this unfortnate and fatal pine!
Down with them, Isabella; rent them up,
And burn the roots from whence the rest is sprung!
I will not leave a root, a stalk, a tree,
A bough, a branch, a blossom, nor a leaf,
No, not an herb within this garden-plot,—
Accursed compot of my misery!
Fruitless for ever may this garden be,
Barren the earth, and blissless whatsoever
Imagines not to keep it unman’d! [
An eastern wind, commix’d with noisome airs,
Shall blast the plants and the young saplings;
The earth with serpents shall be pestered,
And passengers, for fear to be infect,
Shall stand aloof, and, looking at it, tell:
"There, murd’red, died the son of Isabel."
Ay, here he died, and here I him embrase:

THE SPANISH TRAGEDY

See, where his ghost solicits with his wounds
Revenge on her that should revenge his death.»
Hieronymo, make haste to see thy son;
For sorrow and despair hath cited me
To hear for Horatio's plea with Rhadamant.
Make haste, Hieronymo, to hold exons'd 1
Thy negligence in pursuit of their deaths
Whose hateful wrath bereav'd him of his breath.
Ah, nay, thou dost delay their deaths,
Forgives the murderers of thy noble son,
And none but I bestir me — to no end!
And as I curse this tree from further fruit,
So shall my womb be cured for his sake;
And with this weapon will I wound the breast,
The hapless breast, that gave Horatio suck.

She stabs herself.

[Scene III.] 3

Enter Hieronymo; he knocks up the curtain.

Enter the Duke of Castile.

Cast. How now, Hieronymo, where's your fellows,
That you took all this pain?
Hier. O sir, it is for the author's credit.
To look that all things may go well.
But, good my lord, let me entreat your grace, 4
To give the king the copy of the play:
This is the argument of what we show.
Cast. I will, Hieronymo.
Hier. One thing more, my good lord.
Cast. What's that?
Hier. Let me entreat your grace 15
That, when the train are pass'd into the gallery,
You would vouchsafe to throw me down the key.

Cast. I will, Hieronymo. Exit Castile.
Hier. What, are you ready, Balthazar?
Bring a chair and a cushion for the king. 15

Enter Balthazar, with a chair.

Well done, Balthazar! hang up the titles:
Our scene is Rhodes. What is your heard on? 16
Bal. Half on; the other is in my hand.
Hier. Despatch for shame; are you so long? 17

Exit Balthazar.

Bethink thyself, Hieronymo, 18
Recall thy wits, recount thy former wrongs
Thou hast receiv'd by murder of thy son,
And lastly, not least I how Isabel,
Once his mother and thy dearest wife,
All woe-begone for him, hath alack herself,
Beare's thee then, Hieronymo, to be reveng'd:
The plot is laid of dire revenge:
On, then, Hieronymo, pursue revenge;
For nothing wants but acting of revenge!

Exit Hieronymo.

[Scene IV.] 3

Enter Spanish King, Viceroy, the Duke of Castile, and their train [to the gallery]. 4

King. Now, Viceroy, shall we see the tragedy
Of Soliman, the Turkish emperor,
Perform'd of pleasure by your son the prince,
My nephew Don Lorenzo, and my niece.
Vic. Who? Bel-imperia?
King. Ay, and Hieronymo, our marshal,
At whose request they design to do 1 themselves.
These be our pastimes in the court of Spain.
Here, brother, you shall be the bookkeeper:
This is the argument of that they show.

He giveth him a book.

Gentlemen, this play of Hieronymo, in sundry 10 languages, was thought good to be set down in English, more largely, for the easier understanding to every public reader.

Enter Balthazar, Bel-imperia, and Hieronymo.

Bal. Boshaw, that Rhodes is ours, yield heavens
The honour,
And holy Mahomet, our sacred prophet;
And be thou grac'd with every excellence
That Soliman can give, or thou desire.
But thy desert in conquering Rhodes is less
Than in reserving this fair Christian nymph,
Perseda, blissful lamp of excellence,
Whose eyes command, like powerful adament.
The warlike heart of Soliman to wait.

King. See, Viceroy, that is Balthazar, your son,
That represents the emperor Soliman:
How well he acts his amorous passion!
Vic. Ay, Bel-imperia hath taught him that.
Cast. That's because his mind runs all on Bel-imperia.
Hier. Whatever joy earth yields, betide your majesty.
Bal. Earth yields no joy without Perseda's love.
Hier. Let them Perseda on your grace attend.
Bal. She shall not wait on me, but I on her:
Drawn by the influence of her lights, I yield.
But let my friend, the Rhodian knight, come forth.
Erasto, dearer than my life to me,
That he may see Perseda, my belov'd.

Enter Erasto.

King. Here comes Lorenzo: look upon the plot
And tell me, brother, what part plays he?
Bel. Ah, my Erasto, welcome to Perseda.
Lor. Thrice happy is Erasto that thou liest;
Rhodes' loss is nothing to Erasto's joy;
Sith his Perseda lives, his life survives.
Bal. Ah, bashaw, here is love between Erasto
And fair Perseda, sovereign of my soul.
Hier. Remove Erasto, mighty Soliman,
And then Perseda will be quickly soon.
Bal. Erasto is my friend; and while he lives,
Perseda never will remove her love.
Hier. Let not Erasto live to grieve great Soliman.
Bal. Dear is Erasto in our princely eye.
Hier. But if he be your rival, let him die.
Bal. Why, let him die! — so love commandeth me.
Yet grieve I that Erasto should so die.
Hier. Erasto, Soliman saluteth thee,
And letst thee will by me his highness' will,
Which is, thou shouldst be thus employ'd.

Stabs him.
Bel. Ay me!
Erasto! See, Soliman, Erasto’s elain!
Bel. Yet how Soliman to comfort thee.
Fair queen of beauty, let not favour die,
But with a gracious eye behold his grief
That with Perseda’s beauty is increased,
If by Perseda his grief be not releaved.
Bel. Tyrant, desist soliciting vain suits;
Relentless are mine ears to thy laments,
As thy butcher is pitiless and base,
Which sets’d on my Erasto, harmless knight.
Yet by thy power thou thinkest to command,
And to thy power Perseda doth obey;
But, were she able, thus she would revenge
Thy treacheries on thee, ignoble prince:
And on herself she would be thus reveng’d.
Stabs him. Stabs herself.

King. Well said! — Old marshal, this was bravely done!
Hier. But Bel-imperia plays Perseda well! Vic. Were this in earnest, Bel-imperia,
You would be better to my son than so.
King. But now what follows for Hieronimo?
Hier. Marry, this follows for Hieronimo:
Here break we off our sundry languages,
And thus conclude I in our vulgar tongue.
Haply you think — but bootless are your thoughts —
That this is fabulously counterfeit,
And that we do as all tragedians do, —
To die to-day, for fashioning our scene,
The death of Ajax or some Roman peer,
And in a minute starting up again,
Revive to please to-morrow’s audience.
No, princes; know I am Hieronimo,
The hopeless father of a hapless son,
Whose tongue is tun’d to tell his latest tale,
Not to excuse gross errors in the play.
I see, your looks urge instance of these words;
Behold the reason urging me to this!

Shows his dear son.
See here my show, look on this spectacle!
Here lay my hope, and here my hope hath end;
Here lay my heart, and here my heart was slain;
Here lay my treasure, here my treasure lost;
But hope, heart, treasure, joy, and bliss,
All fled, fail’d, died, yea, all decay’d with this.
From forth these wounds came breath that gave me life;
They murd’red me that made these fatal marks.
The cause was love, whence grew this mortal hate;
The hate, Lorenzo and young Balthazar;
The love, my son to Bel-imperia.
But night, the coverer of accursed crimes,
With pitchy silence hush’d these traitors’ harms.
And lent them leave, for they had sorted leisure
To take advantage in my garden-plot
Upon my son, my dear Horatio.
There merciless they butcher’d up my boy.

In black, dark night, to pale, dim, cruel death.
He shrieks: I heard — and yet, methinks, I hear —
His dismal outcry echo in the air.
With soonest speed I hastened to the noise,
Where hanging on a tree I found my son,
Through-girt with wounds, and shrou’d red as you see.
And griev’d I, think you, at this spectacle?
Speak, Portuguese, whose soul resembles mine:
If thou canst weep upon thy Balthazar,
’Tis like I wail’d for my Horatio.
And you, my lord, whose reconciled son
March’d in a net, and thought himself unseen,
And rated me for brainick lunacy,
With “God amend that mad Hieronimo!” —
How can you brook our play’s catastrophe?
And here behold this bloody handkercher,
Which at Horatio’s death I weeping dipp’d
Within the river of his bleeding wounds:
It as propitious, see, I have reserved,
And never hath it left my bloody heart,
Soliciting remembrance of my vow.
With these, O, these accursed murderers:
Which now perform’d, my heart is satisfied.
And to this end the bashaw I became,
That might revenge me on Lorenzo’s life,
Who therefore was appointed to the part,
And was to represent the knight of Rhodes,
That I might kill him more conveniently.
So, Viceroy, was this Balthazar, thy son,
That Soliman which Bel-imperia,
In person of Perseda, murdered;
Solely appointed to that tragic part
That she might slay him that offended her.
Poor Bel-imperia miss’d her part in this:
For though the story saith she should have died,
Yet I of kindness, and of care to her,
Did otherwise determine of her end;
But love of him whom they did hate too much.
Did urge her resolution to be such.
And, princes, now behold Hieronimo,
The author and actor in this tragedy,
Bearing his latest fortune in his feet;
And will as resolute conclude his part,
As any of the actors gone before.
And, gentle, thus I end my play;
Urge no more words: I have no more to say.

He runs to hang himself.

King. O hearken, Viceroy! Hold, Hieronimo!
Brother, my nephew and thy son are slain!
Vic. We are betray’d; my Balthazar is slain!
Break ope the doors; run, save Hieronimo.
They break in and hold Hieronimo.
Hieronimo, do but inform the king of these events;
Upon mine honour, thou shalt have no harm.
Hier. Viceroy, I will not trust thee with my life,
Which I this day have offered to my son.
Accursed stretch!
Why stay’st thou him that was resolv’d to die?
King. Speak, traitor! damned, bloody murderer, speak! For now I have thee, I will make thee speak. Why hast thou done this undeserving deed? Vic. Why hast thou murdered my Balthasar? Cast. Why hast thou butchered both my children thus?

Hier. O, good words! As dear to me was my Horatio As yours, or yours, or yours, my lord, to you. My guiltless son was by Lorenzo slain, And by Lorenzo and that Balthazar 179 Am I at last revenged thoroughly, Upon whose souls may heavens be yet aveng'd With greater far than these afflictions. Cast. But who were thy confederates in this? Vic. That was thy daughter Bel-imperia; 170 For by her hand my Balthazar was slain: I saw her stab him. King. Why speak'st thou not? Hier. What lesser liberty can kings afford Than harmless silence? Then afford it me. Sufficed, I may not, nor I will not tell thee. 186 King. Fetch forth the tortures: traitor as thou art, I'll make thee tell. Hier. Indeed, Thou may'st torment me as his wretched son Hath done in murthering my Horatio; But never shalt thou force me to reveal The thing which I have vow'd to violate And therefore, in despite of all thy threats, Please'd with their deaths, and eas'd with their revenge, First take my tongue, and afterwards my heart. He bites out his tongue. 186 Hier. But are you sure they are dead? Cast. Ay, slave, too sure. Hier. What, and yours too? 190 Vic. Ay, all are dead: not one of them survive. Hier. Nay, then I care not; come, and we shall be friends: Let us lay our heads together: See, here's a goodly noose will hold them all. Vic. O damned devil, how secure he is! Hier. Secure? Why, dost thou wonder at it? I tell thee, Viceroy, this day I have seen revenge, And in that sight am grown a prouder monarch, Than ever sat under the crown of Spain. 200 Had I as many lives as there be stars, As many heavens to go to, as those lives, I'd give them all, ay, and my soul to boot, But I would see thee ride in this red pool. Cast. But who were thy confederates in this? Vic. That was thy daughter Bel-imperia: For by her hand my Balthazar was slain: I saw her stab him. Hier. O, good words! As dear to me was my Horatio, As yours, or yours, or yours, my lord, to you. My guiltless son was by Lorenzo slain, And by Lorenzo and that Balthazar Am I at last revenged thoroughly, Upon whose souls may heavens be yet avenged With greater far than these afflictions. Methinks, since I grew inward with revenge, I cannot look with scorn enough on death. King. What, dost thou mock us, slave?—Bring tortures forth. Hier. Do, do, do: and meantime I'll torture you. You had a son, as I take it; and your son Should ha' been married to your daughter: Ha, was it not so?—You had a son too, He was my liege's nephew; he was proud And politic; had he liv'd, he might ha' come To wear the crown of Spain, I think I was so: — 'T was I that kill'd him; look you, this same hand, 'T was I that stab'd his heart—do ye see? this hand— For one Horatio, if you ever knew him: a youth, One that they hang'd up in his father's garden; One that did force your valiant son to yield, While your more valiant son did take him prisoner. Vic. Be deaf, my senses; I can hear no more. King. Foul, heaven, and cover us with thy sad ruins. Cast. Roll all the world within thy pitchy cloud. Hier. Now do I applaud what I have acted. Nunc incertus cadat* mansu! Now to express the rupture of my part. — First take my tongue, and afterward my heart. King. O monstrous resolution of a wretch! See, Viceroy, he hath bitten forth his tongue, Rather than to reveal what we requir'd. Cast. Yet can he write. King. And if in this he satisfy us not, We will devise th'o' extremest kind of death That ever was invented for a wretch. Then he makes signs for a knife to mend his pen. Cast. O, he would have a knife to mend his pen. Vic. Here, and advise thee that thou write the truth. — Look to my brother! save Hieronimo! He with a knife stabbs the Duke and himself. King. What age hath ever heard such monstrous deeds? My brother, and the whole succeeding hope That Spain expected after my decease! Go, bear his body hence, that we may mourn The loss of our beloved brother's death, That he may be entomb'd whate'er befall. I am the next, the nearest, last of all. Vic. And thou, Don Pedro, do the like for us: Take up our hapless son, untimely slain; Set me with him, and he with woeful me, Upon the main-mast of a ship unmann'd, And let the wind and tide haul me along To Sycilla's barking and untamed gulf, Or to the loathsome pool of Acheron, To weep my want for my sweet Balthazar: Spain hath no refuge for a Portingale. The trumpets sound a death march; the King of Spain mourning after his brother's body, and the King of Portingal bearing the body of his son.

[CHORUS.]

Enter Ghost and Revenge.

Ghost. Ay, now my hopes have end in their effects,
When blood and sorrow finish my desires;
Horatio murdered in his father's bower;
Vild Serberine by Pedringano slain;
False Pedringano hang'd by quaint device;
Fair Isabella by herself misdone;
Prince Balthazar by Bel-imperia stabb'd;
The Duke of Castile and his wicked son
Both done to death by old Hieronimo;
My Bel-imperia fall'n as Dido fell,
And good Hieronimo slain by himself:
Ay, these were spectacles to please my soul!
Now will I bog at lovely Proserpine.
That, by the virtue of her princely doom,
I may consort my friends in pleasing sort,
And on my foes work just and sharp revenge.
I'll lead my friend Horatio through those fields,
Where never-dying wars are still inur'd;
I'll lead fair Isabella to that train,
Where pity weeps, but never feeleth pain;
I'll lead my Bel-imperia to those joys,
That vestal virgins and fair queens possess;
I'll lead Hieronimo where Orpheus plays,
Adding sweet pleasure to eternal days.

But say, Revenge, for thou must help, or none,
Against the rest how shall my hate be shown?
Rev. This hand shall hale them down to deepest hell,
Where none but Furies, bugs, and tortures dwell.
Ghost. Then, sweet Revenge, do this at my request:
Let me be judge, and doom them to unrest.
Let lost poor Tityus from the vulture's gripe,
And let Don Cyprian supply his room;
Place Don Lorenzo on Ixion's wheel,
And let the lover's endless pains surcease
(Juno forgets old wrath, and grants him ease);
Hang Balthazar about Chimaera's neck,
And let him there bewail his bloody love,
Repining at our joys that are above;
Let Serberine go roll the fatal stone,
And take from Sisyphus his endless moan;
False Pedringano, for his treachery,
Let him be dragg'd through boiling Acheron,
And there live, dying still in endless flames,
Blaspheming gods and all their holy names.
Rev. Then haste we down to meet thy friends and foes:
To place thy friends in ease, the rest in woes;
For here through death hath end their misery,
I'll there begin their endless tragedy. Exeunt.

PROLOGUE

Not out of confidence that none but we
Are able to present this tragedy,
Not out of envy at the grace of late
It did receive, nor yet to derogate
From their deserts who give out boldly that
They move with equal feet on the same flat;
Neither for all nor any of such ends
We offer it, gracious and noble friends,
To your review; we, far from emulation
And (charitably judge) from imitation,
With this work entertain you, a piece known
And still believe'd in Court to be our own.
To quit our claim, doubting our right or merit,
Would argue in us poverty of spirit Which we must not subscribe to. Field is gone,
Whose action first did give it name, and one
Who came the nearest to him, is denied
By his gray beard to show the height and pride
Of D'Ambois' youth and bravery yet to hold
Our title still a-foot, and not grow cold
By giving it o'er, a third man with his best
Of care and pains defends our interest;
As Richard he was lik'd, nor do we fear
In personating D'Ambois he'll appear
To faint, or go less, so your free consent,
As heretofore, give him encouragement.

1 The company of actors—the "King's men."
2 A rival company which had given the play.
3 Nathaniel Field, b. 1597; one of the "King's men."
4 Not identified.
5 Supposed to be Ilyard Ewanston.
6 Perhaps Ricardo, in Massinger's Picture. (Phelps).
7 A glade, near the Court.
8 Discharge a signal shot.
Mutually profitable; so our lives
In acts exemplary, not only will Ourselves good names, but do to others give Matter for virtuous deeds, by which we live.
Bu. What would you wish me?
Mo. Leave the troubled streams,
And live, as thrivers do, at the well-head.
Bu. At the well-head? Alas, what should I do
With that enchanted glass? See devils there?
Or, like a trumpeter, learn to set my looks
In an eternal brake, or practise juggling.
To keep my face still fast, my heart still loose;
Or bear (like dame’s schoolmistresses their riddles)
Two tongues, and be good only for a shift; 6
Flatter great lords, to put them still in mind
Why they were made lords; or please humoros
ladies
With a good carriage, tell them idle tales
To make their phisic work; spend a man’s life
In sights and visitations, that will make
His eyes as hollow as his mistress’ heart:
To do none good, but those that have no need;
To gain being forward, though you break for haste
All the commandments ere you break your fast;
But believe backwards, make your period
And creed’s last article, “I believe in God”;
And (bearing villainies preacht) t’unfold their art.
Learn to commit them: ’tis a great man’s part.
Shall I learn this there?
Mo. No, thou need’st not learn,
Thou hast the theory; now go there and practise.
Bu. Ay, in a threadbare suit; when men come there,
They must have high naps, and go from thence bare:
A man may drown the parts 8 of ten rich men
In one poor suit; brave barks 9 and outward gloss
Attract Court loves, be in parts ne’er so gross.
Mo. Thou shalt have gloss enough, and all things fit
T’enchase in all show thy long-smothered spirit:
Be rul’d by me then. The old Scythians
Painted blind Fortune’s powerful hands with wings,
To show her gifts come swift and suddenly,
Which, if her favourite be not swift to take,
He loses them for ever. Then be wise:
Stay but awhile here, and I’ll send to thee.
Exit Monsieur with Pages.
Bu. What will he send? Some crowns? It is to sow them
Upon my spirit, and make them spring a crown
Worth millions of the bed-crowns he will send.
Like to disparking 10 noble husbandmen,
He’ll put his plow into me, plow me up.
But his unsweating thirst is policy,
1 Punning on (1) the series of numbers; (2) a populous kingdom. (Boas.)
2 Deeds.
3 Delicacies.
4 Frame for holding an object fixed.
5 Equivocation, trickery.
6 Abilities.
7 Whimsical.
8 Fine coverings.
9 Clothes with rich surface.
10 Changing parks into plow-land.
And learning-hating policy is ignorant
To fit his seed-land soil; a smooth plain ground
Will never nourish any politic seed.
I am for honest actions, not for great:
If I may bring up a new fashion
And rise in Court for virtue, speed his plow!
The King hath known me long as well as he,
Yet could my fortune never fit the length
Of both their understandings till this hour.
There is a deep nick in Time’s restless wheel
For each man’s good, when which nick comes, it strikes;
As rhetoric yet works not persuasion,
But only is a mean to make it work,
So no man riseth by his real merit,
But when it cries “clink” in his raiser’s spirit.
Many will say, that cannot rise at all,
Man’s first hour’s rise is first step to his fall.
I’ll venture that; men that fall low must die,
As well as men cast headlong from the sky.

Enter Maffe.

Ma. Humour of princes! Is this wretch
Endued
With any merit worth a thousand crowns?
Will my lord have me be so ill a steward
Of his revenue, to dispose a sum
So great with so small cause as shows in him?
I must examine this. Is your name D’Ambois?
Bu. Sir?
Ma. Is your name D’Ambois?
Bu. Who have we here?

Serve you the Monsieur?

Ma. How?
Bu. Serve you the Monsieur?
Ma. Sir, you are very hot. I do serve the Monsieur;
But in such place as gives me the command
Of all his other servants. And because
His grace’s pleasure is to give your good
His pass through my command, methinks you might Use me with more respect.
Bu. Cry you mercy! Now you have opened my dull eyes, I see you,
And would be glad to see the good you speak of.

What might I call your name?

Ma. Monsieur Maffe.
Bu. Monsieur Maffe? Then, good Monsieur Maffe,

Pray let me know you better.

Ma. Pray do so, that you may use me better. For yourself,
By your no better outside, I would judge you
To be some poet; have you given my lord
Some pamphlet?

Bu. Pamphlet?
Ma. Pamphlet, sir, I say.
Bu. Did your great master’s goodness leave the good
That is to pass your charge to my poor use,
To your discretion?

Ma. Though he did not, sir, I hope ’tis no rude office to ask reason

How that his grace gives me in charge, goes from me?
Bu. That’s very perfect, sir.
Ma. Why, very good, sir; I may then give me leave; if for no pamphlet,
May I not know what other merit in you?

Makes his compunction willing to relieve you?
Bu. No merit in the world, sir.

Ma. That is strange
You’re a poor soldier, are you?
Bu. That I am, sir.

Ma. And have commanded?
Bu. Ay, and gone without, sir.
Ma. [Aside.] I see the man; a hundred crowns will make him
Swagger and drink healths to his grace’s bounty,
And swear he could not be more bountiful; so there’s nine hundred crowns sav’d.—Here, tall soldier,
His grace hath sent you a whole hundred crowns.
Bu. A hundred, sir? Nay, do his highness’ right;
I know his hand is larger, and perhaps
I may deserve more than my outside shows.
I am a scholar, as I am a soldier,
And I can poetise; and (being well encourag’d)
May sing his fame for giving; yours for delivering (Like a most faithful steward) what he gives.

Ma. What shall your subject be?
Bu. I care not much.
If to his bounteous grace I sing the praise
Of fair great noses, and to you of long ones.
What qualities have you, sir, beside your chain?
And velvet jacket? Can your worship dance?

Ma. A pleasant fellow, faith; it seems my lord
Will have him for his jester; and by ’r lady,
Such men are now no fools; ’tis a knight’s place.
If I (to save his grace some crowns) should urge him
’T a bate his bounty, I should not be heard;
I would to heaven I were an errant ass,
For then I should be sure to have the ears
Of these great men, where now their jesters have them.
’T is good to please him, yet I’ll take no notice
Of his preferment, but in policy
Will still be grave and serious, lest he think
I fear his wooden dagger. Here, sir Ambo!
Bu. How, Ambo, sir?

Ma. Ay, is not your name Ambo?

Bu. You call’d me lately D’Ambois; has your worship
So short a head?

Ma. I cry thee mercy, D’Ambois.
A thousand crowns I bring you from my lord.
If you be thrifty, and play the good husband,
you may make
This a good standing living: ’tis a bounty.
His highness might perhaps have bestowed better
Bu. Go, you are a rascal; hence, away, you rogue!

1 Its passage. 2 Beg pardon!
Ma. What mean you, sir?
Bu. Hence! prate no more! Or, by thy villain's blood, thou pratest thy last! A barbarous groom grudge at his master's bounty?
Ma. These crowns are set in blood; blood be their fruit.
Bu. How! monsieur, I prate no more.
Ma. [Strikes him.] Exit.
Bu. Exit.

[Scene II.]

He. Duchess of Guise, your grace is much en­right
In the attendance of that English virgin,
That will initiate her prime of youth
(Dispos'd to Court conditions) under the hand
Of your prefer'd instructions and command.
Rather than any in the English Court,
Whose ladies are not match'd in Christendom
For graceful and confirm'd behaviours;
More than the Court, where they are bred, is equal'd.
Gu. I like not their Court fashion; it is too crestfall'n.
In all observance, making demigods
Of their great nobles; and of their old queen,
An ever-young and most immortal goddess.
Mo. No question she's the rarest queen in Europe.
Gu. But what's that to her immortality?
He. Assurance, cousin Guise, so great a courtier,
So full of majesty and royal parts;
No queen in Christendom may vaunt herself.
Her Court approves it, that's a Court indeed,
Not mixt with clowns and wretches us'd in common houses.
But, as Courts should be, th' abstracts of their kingdoms,
In all the beauty, state, and worth they hold;
So is hers, amply, and by her inform'd.
The world is not contracted in a man
With more proportion and expression,
Than in her Court, her kingdom. Our French Court
Is a mere mirror of confusion to it:
The king and subject, lord and every slave,
Dance a continual hay; 2 our rooms of state
Kept like our stables; no place more observ'd
Than a rude market-place: and though our custom
Keep this assur'd confusion from our eyes,
'Tis ne'er the less essentially unsightly,
Which they would soon see, would they change their form.
To this of ours, and then compare them both;
Which we must not affect, 3 because in kingdoms
Where the king's change doth breed the subject's terror,
Pure innovation is more gross than error.
Mo. No question we shall see them imitate
(Though afar off) the fashions of our Courts,
As they have ever ap'd us in attire.
Never were men so weary of their skins,
And apt to leap out of themselves as they;
Who, when they travel to bring forth rare men,
Come home, delivered of a fine French suit.
Their brains lie with their tailors, and get babies
For their most complete issue; he's sole heir
To all the moral virtues that first greeks
The light with a new fashion, which becomes them
Like apes, disfigur'd with the attires of men.
He. No question they much wrong their real worth
In affectation of outlandish scum;
But they have faults, and we more; they fool­ish-proud
To jet 4 in others' plumes so haughtily;
We proud, that they are proud of foolery,
Holding our worths more complete for their vaunts.

Enter Monsieur, D'Ambois.

Mo. Come, mine own sweetheart, I will enter thee.—Sir, I have brought a gentleman to Court,
And pray you would vouchsafe to do him grace.
He. D'Ambois, I think?
Bu. That's still my name, my lord;
Though I be something altered in attire.
He. We like your alteration, and must tell you
We have expected th' offer of your service;
For we (in fear to make mild virtue proud)
Use not to seek her out in any man.
Bu. Nor doth she use to seek out any man:
He that will win must woo her; [she's not shameless].
Mo. I urg'd her modesty in him, my lord,
And gave her those rites that he says she merit.
He. If you have woo'd and won, then, brother, wear him.
Mo. Th' art mine, sweetheart. See, here's the Guise's Duchess.
He. Madame, the Countess of Montaureau, Beaupre.
Come, I'll ensam' thee. Ladies, y'are too many
To be in council; I have here a friend
That I would gladly enter in your graces.
Bu. Save you, ladies.
Du. If you enter him in our graces, my lord,
Methinks by his blunt behaviour he should come out of himself.
Ta. Has he never been courtier, my lord?
Mo. Never, my lady.
Bu. And why did the toy take him in th' head now?
Du. 'Tis leap-year, lady, and therefore very good to enter a courtier.
He. Madame, Duchess of Guise, there is one is not benefitful.

1 A room in the Court. From a misplaced stage-direction in Sc. 1 (Q. 1641), it appears that Henry and Guise are playing chess here.
2 A boisterous country dance.
3 Desire.
4 "Travel" and "travel" were not distinguished in Elizabethan spelling.
5 Strat. From Qq. of 1607, 8.
6 Introduce.
Du. No, my lord, he is much guilty of the bold extremity.

Tu. The man's a courtier at first sight.

Bu. I can sing pricksong, lady, at first sight; and why not be a courtier as suddenly?

Be. Here's a courtier rotten before he be ripe.

Bu. Think me not impudent, lady; I am yet no courtier; I desire to be one, and would gladly take entrance, madam, under your princely colours.

Enter BARRISSOR, L'ANOU, PYRRHOT.

Du. Soft, sir, you must rise by degrees, first being the servant of some common lady, or knight's wife; then a little higher to a lord's wife; next a little higher to a countess; yet a little higher to a duchess; and then turn the ladder.

Bu. Do you allow a man, then, four mistresses when the greatest mistress is allowed but three servants?

Du. Where find you that statute, sir?

Bu. Why, be judged by the groom-porters.

Du. The groom-porters.

Bu. Ay, madam; must not they judge of all gaming in 'th' Court?

Du. You talk like a gamester.

Bu. Sir, know you me?

Bu. My lord?

Bu. I know not you. Whom do you serve?

Bu. Serve, my lord?

Bu. Go to, companion, your courtship's too saney.

Bu. [Aside.] Saney! Companion! 'Tis the Guise, but yet those terms might have been spared of the guiser. Companion! He's jealous, by this light. Are you blind of that side, duke? I'll to her again for that. — Forth, in princely mistress, for the honour of courtship. Another riddle!

Gu. Cease your courtship, or by heaven I'll cut your throat.

Bu. Cut my throat? Cut a whetstone, young Accius Nasivius. Do as much with your tongue, as he did with a razor. Cut my throat! — What new come gallant have we here, that dares mate the Guise thus?

L'A. 'Sfoot, 'tis D'Ambois. The duke mistakes him, on my life, for some knight of the new edition.

Bu. Cut my throat! I would the king fear'd cutting of his throat no more than I fear thy cutting of mine.

Gu. I'll do't, by this hand.

Bu. That hand dares not do't. Y'ave cut too many throats already, Guise; and rob'd the realm of many thousand souls, more precious than thine own. — Come madam, talk on. [141

10 Checkmate.
11 Cast off.

'Sfoot, can you not talk? Talk on, I say; another riddle.

Py. Here's some strange distemper.

Ba. Here's a sudden transmigration with D'Ambois, — out of the knight's ward into the duchess' bed.

L'A. See what a metamorphosis a brave suit can work.

Py. 'Slight, step to the Guise and discover him.

Bu. By no means; let the new suit work, we'll see the issue.

Gu. Leave your courting.

Bu. I will not. — I say, mistress, and I will stand unto it, that if a woman may have three servants, a man may have three-score mistresses.

Gu. Sirrah, I'll have you whipt out of the Court for this insolence.

Bu. Whipt? Such another syllable out a th' presence, if thou dar'st, for thy dukedom.

Gu. Remember, poltroon.

Mo. Pray thee, forbear.

Bu. Passion of death! Were not the king here, he should strow the chamber like a rush. — But leave courting his wife, then.

Bu. I will not. I'll court her in despite of him. Not court her! Come, madam, talk on, fear me nothing. [To Guise.] Well may'st thou drive thy master from the Court, but never [17 D'Ambois.

Mo. His great heart will not down; 'tis like the sea, that partly by his own internal heat, partly the stars' daily and nightly motion, their heat and light, and partly of the place, the divers frames, but chiefly by the moon, bristled with surges, never will be won (No, not when th' hearts of all those powers are burst)

To make retreat into his settled home,

Till he be crown'd with his own quiet foam.

He. You have the mate.

Gu. No more.

E'ry Guise, after him the King, Monsieur whispering.

Ba. Why, here's the lion, scar'd with the throat of a dunghill cock, a fellow that has [168 newly shak'd off his shackles; now does he crow for that victory.

L'A. 'Tis one of the best jigs that ever was acted.

Py. Whom does the Guise suppose him to be, trow?

L'A. Out of doubt, some new denizen'd lord, and thinks that suit newly drawn out a' th' mercur's books.

Ba. I have heard of a fellow, that by a first imagination looking upon a bull-baiting, had a visible pair of horns grew out of his forehead; and I believe this gallant, overjoyed with the conceit of Monsieur's cast suit, imagines himself to be the Monsieur.

L'A. And why not; as well as the ass, stalk—ing in the lion’s case,¹ bare himself like a lion, bravely all the huger beasts out of the forest?

Py. Peace, he looks this way.
Bu. Marry, let him look, sir. What will you say now if the Guise be gone to fetch a blanket² for him?

L’A. Faith, I believe it for his honour sake.
Py. But, if D’Ambois carry it clean? ³

Exeunt Ladies.

Bu. True, when he curvets in the blanket.
Py. Ay, marry, sir.
L’A. ’Sfoot, see how he stares on ’s.

Bu. Lord bless us, let’s away.
Bu. Now, sir, take your full view; how does the object please ye? ²

Bu. If you ask my opinion, sir, I think your suit sits as well as if ’t had been made for you.
Bu. So, sir, and was the subject of your ridiculous jollity?
L’A. What’s that to you, sir?
Bu. Sir, I have observ’d all your fleerings; ⁴ and resolve yourselves ye shall give a strict account for’t.

Enter Brisac, Melynell.

Bu. Oh, miraculous jealousy! ⁵ Do you think yourself such a singular subject for laughter [²⁴] that none can fall into the matter of our merri- ment but you?
L’A. This jealousy of yours, sir, confesses some close defect in yourself, that we never dream’d of.
Py. We held discourse of a perfum’d ass, that being disguis’d in a lion’s case, imagin’d himself a lion. I hope that toucht not you.

Bu. So, sir; your descants do marvellous well fit this ground. We shall meet where your buffoonly laughters will cost ye the best blood in your bodies.

Bu. For life’s sake let’s be gone; he’ll kill’s outright else.

Bu. Go, at your pleasures. I’ll be your ghost to haunt you; an ye sleep an’t, hang me. ⁵¹
L’A. Go, go, sir; court your mistress.
Py. And be advis’d; we shall have odds against you.

Bu. Tush! valour stands not in number; I’ll maintain it, that one man may beat three ³⁴ boys.

Br. Nay, you shall have no odds of him in number, sir; he’s a gentleman as good as the proudest of you, and ye shall not wrong him.

Bu. Not, sir?
Me. Not, sir: though he be not so rich, he’s a better man than the best of you; and I will not endure it.

L’A. Not you, sir?
Br. No, sir, not I.
Bu. I should thank you for this kindness, if I thought these perfum’d mask-cats (being out of this privilege) durst but once mew at us.

¹ Skin. ² Sneers. ³ To toss him. ⁴ Suspicion. ⁵ Come off superior. ⁶ Descant and ground are used with a play on the ordinary meanings and the musical ones of accompaniment, variation.

Bu. Does your confident spirit doubt that, sir? Follow us and try.
L’A. Come, sir, we’ll lead you a dance.

Exeunt.

ACT II

SCENE I.²

[Enter] Henry, Guise, Montsbarby, and Attendants.

He. This desperate quarrel sprung out of their envies
To D’Ambois’ sudden bravery, ⁶ and great spirit.
Gu. Neither is worth their envy.
He. Less than either.

Will make the gall of envy overflow.
She feeds on outcast entwines like a kite;
In which foul heap, if any ill lies hid,
She sticks her beak into it, shakes it up,
And hurl’s it all abroad, that all may view it.
Corruption is her nutriment; but touch her
With any precious ointment, and you kill her.
Where she finds any filth in men, she feasts,
And with her black throat bruises it through the world (Being sound and healthful). But if she but taste
The slenderest pittance of commended virtue,
She surfeits on it, and is like a fly
That passes all the body’s soundest parts,
And dwells upon the sores; or if her squint eye
Have power to find none there, she forces some.
She makes that crooked ever which is straight;
Calls valour giddiness, justice tyranny;
A wise man may shun her, she not herself;
Whithersoever she flies from her harms,
She bears her foes still claspt in her own arms:
And therefore, Cousin Guise, let us avoid her.

Enter Nuntius.

Nu. What Atlas or Olympus lifts his head ³² So far past covert, that with air enough
My words may be inform’d, and from their height
I may be seen, and heard through all the world?
A tale so worthy, and so fraught with wonder
Sticks in my jaws, and labours with event.
He. Comest thou from D’Ambois?
Nu. From him, and the rest;
His friends and enemies; whose stern fight I saw.
And heard their words before and in the fray.
He. Relate at large what thou hast seen and heard.

Nu. I saw fierce D’Ambois and his two brave friends ³⁶ Enter the field, and at their heels their foes:
Which were the famous soldiers, Barrisor,
L’Anou, and Pyrrhot, great in deeds of arms:
All which arriv’d at the evenest piece of earth
The field afforded, the three challengers ³⁸
Turn’d head, drew all their rapiers, and stood rankt: ³⁹

When face to face the three defendants met
them,
Alike prepar'd, and resolute alike.
Like bonfires of contributory wood
Every man's look show'd, fed with either's spirit.
As one had been a mirror to another,
Like forms of life and death, each took from other;
And so were life and death mixt at their heights,
That you could see no fear of death, for life,
Nor love of life, for death; but in their brows
Fyrrho's opinion in great letters shone:
That life and death in all respects are one.

He. Past there: no sort of words at their encounter?

Nu. As Hector, 'twixt the hosts of Greece and Troy,
(When Paris and the Spartan king should end
The nine years' war) held up his brazen lance
For signal that both hosts should cease from arms,
And hear him speak: so Barrisar advis'd.
Advanc'd his naked rapier 'twixt both sides,
Ript up the quarrel, and compar'd six lives
Then laid in balance with six idle words;
Offer'd remission and contrition too;
Or else that he and D'Ambois might conclude
The others dangers. D'Ambois lik'd the last;
But Barrisar's friends (being equally engag'd
In the main quarrel) never would expose
His life alone to that they all desired.
And, for the other offer of remission,
D'Ambois (that like a laurel put in fire Spark'd and spilt) did much more than seem.
That his wrong should incense him so like chaff
To go so soon out; and like lighted paper
Approve his spirit at once both fire and ashes.
So drew they lots and in them fates appointed
That Barrisar should fight with fiery D'Ambois;

Fyrrho with Molyell; with Brissac L'Anon;
And, like their flame and powder they commixt,
So sprightly, that I wish'd they had been spirits,
That the ne'er-shutting wounds, they need's must open,
Might as they open'd shut, and never kill.
But D'Ambois' sword (that light'ned as it flew)
Shot like a pointed comet at the face
Of manly Barrisar; and there it stuck.
Thrice pluckt he it at it, and thrice drew on throughs,
From him that of himself was free as fire:
Who 4th thrust still as he 2nd pluckt, yet (past belief)
He 3d with his subtle eye, hand, body, scant.
At last, the deadly bitten point teg'd off,
On fell his yet undaunted foe so fiercely
That (only made more horrid with his wound)
Great D'Ambois shrunk, and gave a little ground;
But soon return'd, redoubled in his danger,
And at the heart of Barrisar seiz'd his anger.
Then, as in Arden I have seen an oak
Long shook with tempests, and his lofty top
Bent to its root, which being at length made loose,
Even groaning with his weight) he 'gan to nod
This way and that, as loth his curled brows
(Which he had oft wrapt in the sky with storms)
Should stoop: and yet, his radical fibres burst,
Storm-like he fell, and hid the fear-cold earth;
So fell stout Barrisar, that had stood the shocks
Of ten set battles in your highness' war,
'Gainst the sole soldier of the world, Navarre.

Gu. Oh, piteous and horrid murder!

[Mont.] Such a life

Methinks had metal in it to survive
An age of men.

He. Such often soonest end.

Thy felt report calls on, we long to know
On what events the other have arriv'd.

Nu. Sorrow and fury, like two opposite fames
Met in the upper region of a cloud,
At the report made by this worthy's fall,
Broke from the earth, and with them rose Revenge.

Ent'ring with fresh powers his two noble friends;
And under that odds fell surecharg'd 6 Brissac,
The friend of D'Ambois, before fierce L'Anon;
Which D'Ambois seeing, as I once did see,
In my young travels through Armenia,
An angry unicorn in his full career
Charge with too swift a foot a jeweller
That watch'd him for the treasure of his brow;
And, ere he could get shelter of a tree,
Nail him with his rich antler to the earth;
So D'Ambois ran upon reveng'd L'Anon,
Who eying th' eager point borne in his face,
And giving back, fell back, and in his fall
His foe's uncurb'd sword stopt in his heart;
By which time all the life-strings of the tw'other
Were cut, and both fell as their spirits flew Upwards; and still hunt homeward at the view:
And now, of all the six, sole D'Ambois stood Untouch't, save only with the others' blood.

He. All slain outright?

Nu. All slain outright but he,
Who kneeling in the warm life of his friends,
(All freckled with the blood his rapier rain'd)
He kist their pale cheeks, and bade both farewell;
And see the bravest man the French earth bears!

[Exit Nantiana.]

Enter Monsieur D'Ambois bare.

Bu. Now is the time; y' are princely vow'd my friend;
Perform it princely, and obtain my pardon.

Mo. Else heaven forgive not me! Come on, brave friend:—

If ever nature held herself her own,
When the great trial of a king and subject
Met in one blood, both from one bed springing;
Now prove her virtue and her greatness one,
Or make the t'other the greater with t'other, 14

6 Overwhelmed. 7 The horn. 8 Bare-headed.
(As true kings should) and for your brother's love,
(Which is a special species of true virtue)
Do that you could not do, not being a king.
He, Bruthier, I know your suit; these wilful murders
Are ever past our pardon.

Mo. Manly slaughter 130
Should never bear th' account of wilful murder;
It being a splice 1 of justice, where with life
Offending past law, 2 equal life is laid
In equal balance, to scourge that offence
By law of reputation, which to men 135
Exceeds all positive law, and what that 3 leaves
To true men's valours (not prefixing rights
Of satisfaction, suited to their wrongs)
A free man's eminence may supply and take.
He. This would make every man that thinks him wrong'd 140
Or is offended, or in wrong or right,
Lay on this violence, and all vaunt themselves
Law-menders and suppliers, 4 though mere butchers;
 Should this fact 5 (though of justice 6) be forgiven?

Mo. Oh, no, my lord; it would make cowards fear 145
To touch the reputations of true men
When only they are left to imp 7 the law.
Justice will soon distinguish murderous minds
From just revengers. Had my friend been slain,
(If his enemy surviving) he should die, 170
Since he had added to a murder'd fame
(Which was in his intent) a murdered man,
And this had worthy been wilful murder;
But my friend only sav'd his fame's dear life,
Which is above life, taking th' under value, 175
Which in the wrong it did, was forfeit to him;
And in this fact only preserves a man
In his uprightness: worthy to survive
Millions of such as murder men alive.

He. Well, brother, rise, and raise your friend within.
From death to life, and D'Ambois, let your life
(Refrin'd, by passing through this merited death)
Be purg'd from more such foul pollution;
Nor on your scape nor valour more presuming
To be again so daring.

Bu. My lord,
I loathe as much a deed of unjust death
As law itself doth; and to tyrannize,
Because I have a little spirit to dare
And power to do, as to be tyranniz'd.
This is a grace that (on my knees redoubled 8),
I crave to double this, my short life's gift; 191
And shall your royal bounty cantemple,
That I may so make good what Law and nature
Have given me for my good; since I am free, (Offending no just law), let no law make
By any wrong it doth, my life her slave:
When I am wrong'd, and that law fails to right me,

Let me be king myself (as man was made),
And do a justice that exceeds the law;
If my wrong pass the power of single valour
To right and expiate, then be you my king,
And do a right, exceeding law and nature.
Who to himself is law, no law doth need,
Offends no law, and is a king indeed.

He. Enjoy what thou entreat'st; we give but ours.

Bu. What you have given, my lord, is ever yours. Exit Rex cum [Montsbumy].

Gu. Mort dier! who would have pardon'd such a murder? Exit.

Mo. Now vanish horrors into Court attractions,
For which let this balm make thee fresh and fair.
And now forth with thy service to the duchess,
As my long love will to Montsbumy's countess.
Exit.

Bu. To whom my love hath long been vow'd in heart,
Although in hand for show I held the duchess.
And now through blood and vengeance, deeds of height
And hard to be achiev'd, 'tis fit I make Attempt of her perfection. I need fear
No check in his rivalry, 9 since her virtues
Are so renown'd, and he of all dames hated.

[SCENE II.]

MONTBURY, TAMYRA, BEAUFRE, PERO, CHARLOTTE, PYRA.

Mont. He will have pardon, sure.

Ta. 'Twere pity, else:
For though his great spirit something over-flow,
All faults are still borne that from greatness grow;
But such sudden courtier saw I never.
Be. He was too sudden, which indeed was rudeness.

Ta. True, for it argued his no due conceit.
Both of the place and greatness of the persons,
Nor of our sex: all which (we all being strangers)
To his encounter) should have made more manners

Deserve more welcome.

Mont. All this fault is found
Because he lov'd the duchess and left you.

Ta. Alas, love give her joy; I am so far
From envy of her honour, that I swear,
Had he encounter'd me with such proud slight,
I would have put that project 12 face of his
To a more test than did her duchesship.

Be. Why (by your leave, my lord) I'll speak it here,
Although she be my aunt, she scarce was modest,
When she perceiv'd the duke his husband take

[1] Species, kind.
[2] In a way not recognised by law.
Those late exceptions to her servant’s courtship,

To entertain him.

Tu. Ay, and stand him still,

Letting her husband give her servant place.

Though he did manfully, she should be a woman,

Enter Guise.

[Gu.] D’Ambois is pardon’d! Where’s a king? Where law?
See how it runs, much like a turbulent sea,
Here high and glorious as it did contend
To wash the heavens and make the stars more pure,
And here so low, it leaves the mud of hell
To every common view; come, Count Montsurr,

We must consult of this.

Tu. Stay not, sweet lord.

Mont. Be pleas’d, I’ll straight return.

Exit cum Guise.

Tu. Would that would please me!
Be. I’ll leave you, madam, to your passions;
I see there’s change of weather in your looks.

Exit cum suis.

Tu. I cannot cloak it; but, as when a fume,
Hot, dry, and gross, within the womb of earth
Or in her supercicies begot,
When extreme cold hath struck it to her heart,
The more it is comprest, the more it rageth;
Exceeds his prison’s strength that should contain it,
And then it tosseth temples in the air,
All bars made engines to his insolent fury;
So, of a sudden, my licentious fancy
Riots within me: not my name and house
Nor my religion, to this hour observ’d,
Can stand above it. I must utter that
That will in parting, break more strings in me
Than death when life parts; and that holy man
That, from my cradle, counsel’d for my soul,
I now must make an agent for my blood.

Enter Monsieur.

Mo. Yet, is my mistress gracious?

Tu. Yet unanswered?

Mo. Pray thee regard thine own good, if not mine,
And cheer my love for that; you do not know
What you may be by me, or what without me,
I may have power t’advance and pull down any.

Tu. That’s not my study. One way I am sure
You shall not pull down me; my husband’s height
Is crown to all my hopes; and his retiring
To any mean state, shall be my aspiring;
My honour’s in mine own hands, spite of kings.

Mo. Honour, what’s that? Your second maidenhead:
And what is that? A word. The word is gone,
The thing remains: the rose is puckt, the stalk

Abides; an easy loss where no lack’s found.
Believe it, there’s as small lack in the loss
As there is pain in ‘th’ losing; archers ever
Have two strings to a bow; and shall great Cupid
(Archer of archers both in men and women,)
Be worse provided than a common archer?
A husband and a friend all wise wives have.

Tu. Wise wives they are that on such strings depend,
With a firm husband joining a loose friend!

Mo. Still you stand on your husband, so do all
The common sex of you, when y’re encounter’d
With one ye cannot fancy. All men know
You live in Court, here, by your own election,
Frequenting all our common sports and triumphs,
All the most youthful company of men:
And wherefore do you this? To please your husband?
’T is gross and fulsome: if your husband’s pleasure
Be all your object, and you aim at honour
In living close to him, get you from Court;
You may have him at home; these common put-offs
For common women serve: “My honour! Husband!”

Dames marititious 4 ne’er were meritorious,
Speak plain, and say, “I do not like you, sir,
Y’ are an ill-favour’d fellow in my eye;”
And I am answer’d.

Tu. Then, I pray, be answer’d:
For in good faith, my lord, I do not like you
In that sort 2 you like,

Mo. Then have at you, here!
Take (with a politic hand) this rope of pearl,
And though you be not amorous, yet be wise:
Take me for wisdom; he that you can love
Is ne’er the further from you.

Tu. Now it comes
So ill prepar’d, that I may take a poison,
Under a medicine as good cheap as it;
I will not have it were it worth the world.

Mo. Horror of death; could I but please your eye,
You would give me the like, ere you would lose me.

“Honour and husband!”

Tu. By this light, my lord,
Y’re a vile fellow, and I’ll tell the king
Your occupation of dishonouring ladies
And of his Court. A lady cannot live
As she was born, and with that sort of pleasure
That fits her state, but she must be defam’d
With an infamous lord’s detraction.
Who would endure the Court if these attempts
Of open and profest lust must be borne?
Who’s there? Come on, dame; you are at your book
When men are at your mistress; have I taught you
Any such waiting-woman’s quality?

1 Satisfying my passion.
2 Excessively fond of their husbands.
3 Way.
Mo. Farewell, good "husband."

Mont. Farewell, wicked lord.

Enter Montorsby.

Mont. Was not the Monsieur here?

Ta. Yes, to good purpose; And your cause is as good to seek him too, And haunt his company.

Mont. Why, what's the matter? Ta. 'Tis matter of death, were I some husband's wife.

I cannot live at quiet in my chamber, For opportunities almost to rapes Offer'd me by him.

Mont. Pray thee bear with him. Thou know'st he is a bachelor and a curtiest, Ay, and a prince; and their prerogatives Are to their laws, as to their pardons are Their reservations, after Parliaments — One quits another; form gives all their essence. That prince doth high in virtue's reckoning stand That will entreat a vice, and not command. So far bear with him; should another man Trust to his privilege, he should trust to death. Take comfort, then, my comfort, nay, triumph And crown thyself, thou part'st with victory; My presence is so only dear to thee. That other men's appear worse than they be. For this night yet, bear with my forced absence; Thou know'st my business; and with how much weight.

My vow hath charg'd it.

Ta. True, my lord, and never My fruitless love shall let thy serious honour; Yet, sweet lord, do not stay; you know my soul Is so long time without me, and I dead, As you were absent.

Mont. By this kiss, receive My soul for hostage, till I see my love. Ta. The morn shall let me see you.

Mont. With the sun I'll visit thy more comfortable beauties. Ta. This is my comfort, that the sun hath left The whole world's beauty ere my sun leaves me.

Mont. 'Tis late night now indeed; farewell, my light. Exit.

Ta. Farewell, my light and life; — but not in him,

In mine own dark love and light bent to another. Alas that in the wane of our affections We should supply it with a full dissembling, In which each youngest maid is grown a mother: Frailty is fruitful, one sin gets another.

Our loves like sparkles are that brightest shine When they go out, most vice shows most divine. —

Go, maid, to bed; lend me your book, I pray;

Not like yourself for form; I'll this night trouble None of your services. Make sure the doors, And call your other fellows to their rest.

P. I will, — [Aside.] yet I will watch to know why you watch. Exit.

Ta. Now all ye peaceful regents of the night Silently gliding exhalations, Languishing winds, and murmuring falls of water. Sadness of heart and ominous secureness, Enchantments, dead sleeps, all the friends of rest, That ever wrought upon the life of man, Extend your utmost strengths; and this charm'd hour Fix like the centre; make the violent wheels Of Time and Fortune stand; and great Existence (The Maker's treasury) now seem to be, To all but my approaching friends and me. They come, alas, they come! Fear, fear and hope Of one thing, at one instant fight in me; I love what most I loathe, and cannot live Unless I compass that which holds my death; For life's mere death, loving one that loathes me, And he I love will loathe me, when he sees I fly my sex, my virtue, my renown, To run so madly on a man unknown. The vault opens.

See, see, a vault is opening that was never Known to my lord and husband, nor to any But him that brings the man I love, and me. How shall I look on him? How shall I live, And not consume in blushes? I will in, And cast myself off, 's I ne'er had been. Exit.

Ascendit Friar and D'Abois.

Fr. Come, worthiest son, I am past measure glad, That you (whose worth I have approv'd so long) Should be the object of her fearful love; Since both your wit and spirit can adapt Their full force to supply her utmost weakness. You know her worths and virtues, for report Of all that know is to a man a knowledge: You know besides, that our affections' storm. Rais'd in our blood, no reason can reform. Though she seek then their satisfaction (Which she must needs, or rest unsatisfied) Your judgment will esteem her peace thus wrought, Nothing less dear than if yourself had sought; And (with another colour, which my art Shall teach you to lay on) yourself must seem The only agent, and the first orb move; In this our set and cunning world of love. Bu. Give me the colour, my most honour'd father, And trust my cunning then to lay it on.

1 Impurities. 2 Hinder. 3 That thou comest. 4 Comforting. 5 Emend. Dilke. Qq. woss.
Fr. 'Tis this, good son; Lord Barrisor (whom you slew)
Did love her dearly, and with all fit means Hath urg'd his acceptance, of all which
She keeps one letter written in his blood.
You must say thus, then, that you heard from me

How much herself was toucht in conscience
With a report (which is in truth disperset)
That your main quarrel grew about her love,
Lord Barrisor imagining your countship
Of the great Guise's Duchess in the presence,
Was by you made to his elected mistress;
And so made me your mean now to resolve her,
Choosing (by my direction) this night's depth
For the more clear avoiding of all note
Of your presumed presence; and with this
(To clear her hands of such a lover's blood)
She will so kindly thank and entertain you,
Methinks I see how), ay, and ten to one,
Show you the confirmation in his blood,
Lest you should think report and she did feign,
That you shall so have circumstantial means
To come to the direct, which must be used:
For the direct is crooked; love comes flying;
The height of love is still won with denying.
Bu. Thanks, honour'd father.
Fr. She must never know
That you know anything of any love
Sustain'd on her part: for, learn this of me,
In anything a woman does alone,
If she dissemble, she thinks 't is not done;
If not dissemble, 1 nor a little chide,
Give her her wish, she is not satisfied;
To have a man think that she never seeks,
Does her more good than to have all she likes: This frailty sticks in them beyond their sex,
Which to reform, reason is too perplexed
Urge reason to them, it will do no good;
Humour (that is the chariot of our food)
Everybody must in them be fed,
To carry their affections by it bred.
Stand close.

Enter Tamyr with a book.

Ta. Alas, I fear my strangeness will retire him.
If he go back, I die; I must prevent it,
And cheer his onset with my sight at least,
And that's the most; though every stop he takes

Goes to my heart. I'll rather die than seem
Not to be strange to that I most esteem.
Fr. Madam.
Ta. Ah!
Fr. You will pardon me, I hope,
That so beyond your expectation,
And at a time for visitants so unfit,
I (with my noble friend here) visit you.
You know that my access at any time
Hath ever been admitted; and that friend
That my care will presume to bring with me
Shall have all circumstance of worth in him
To merit as free welcome as myself.
Ta. Oh, father! but at this suspicious hour

You know how apt best men are to suspect us,
In any cause that makes suspicious shadow
No greater than the shadow of a hair:
And y' are to blame. What though my lord and husband
Lie forth to-night, and, since I cannot sleep
When he is absent, I sit up to-night;
Though all the doors are sure, and all our servants
As sure bound with their sleeps; yet there is One
That wakes above, whose eye no sleep can bind.
He sees through doors, and darkness, and our thoughts;
And therefore as we should avoid with fear
To think amiss ourselves before his search,
So should we as curious to shun
All cause that other think not ill of us.
Bu. Madam, 'tis far from that; I only heard
By this my honour'd father, that your cor-science
Made some deep scruple with a false report
That Barrisor's blood should something touch your honour.
Since he imagin'd I was courting you,
When I was bold to change words with the duchess,
And therefore made his quarrel; his long love
And service, as I hear, being deeply vowed
To your perfections, which my ready presence,
Presum'd on with my father at this season
For the more care of your so curious honour,
Can well resolve your conscience, is most false.
Ta. And is it therefore that you come, good sir?

Then crave I now your pardon and my father's,
And swear your presence does me so much good.
That all I have it binds to your requital.
Indeed, sir, 'tis most true that a report
Is spread, alleging that his love to me
Was reason of your quarrel, and because
You shall not think I feign it for my glory
That he importun'd me for his court service,
I'll show you his own hand, set down in blood
To that vain purpose. Good sir, then come in.
Father, I thank you now a thousand-fold.

Exit TAMYRA AND D'AMBOIS.
Fr. May it be worth it to you, honour'd daughter. Descendit Friar.

ACT III

SCENE I.

Enter D'AMBOIS, TAMYRA, with a chain of pearl.

Bu. Sweet mistress, cease! Your conscience is too nice,
And bites too hotly of the Puritan spice.

1 Fastidiously guarded.  2 Absurd.
3 Service was the conventional term for courtly love.
4 A room in Montsurry's house.
5 Scrupulous.
Tu. Oh, my dear servant, in thy close embraces,
I have set open all the doors of danger
To my encomplast honour, and my life.
Before I was secure against death and hell,
But now am subject to the heartless fear
Of every shadow and of every breath,
And would change firmness with an aspen leaf;
So confident a spotless conscience is,
So weak a guilty. Oh, the dangerous siege
Sin lays about us, and the tyrannic
He exercises when he hath expugn'd!
Like to the horror of a winter's thunder,
Mixt with a gushing storm, that suffereth nothing
To stir abroad on earth but their own rages,
Is sin, when it hath gathered head above us:
No roof, no shelter can secure us so,
But he will drown our cheeks in fear or woe.
Bu. Sin is a coward, madam, and insults
But on our weakness, in his trust and valour;
And so our ignorance tames us, that we let
His shadows fright us: and like empty clouds,
In which our faulty apprehensions forge
The forms of dragons, lions, elephants,
When they hold no proportion, the sly charms
Of the witch, Policy, makes him like a monster
Kept only to show men for servile virtue.
That false hag often paints him in her cloth
Ten times more monstrous than he is in truth.
In three of us, the secret of our meeting
Is only guarded, and three friends as one
Have ever been esteem'd: as our three powers
That in our one soul are as one united:
Why should we fear then? For myself I swear
Sooner shall torture be the sire to pleasure,
And health be grievous to one long time sick,
Than the dearest jewel of your fame in me
Be made an outcast to your infamy;
Nor shall my value (sacred to your virtues)
Only give free course to, from myself:
But make it fly out of the mouths of kings
In golden vapours and with awful wings.
Tu. It rests as all kings' seals were set in thee.
Now let us call my father, whom I swear
I could extremely shide, but that I fear
To make him so suspicious of my love
Of which, sweet servant, do not let him know
For all the world.
Bu. Alas! he will not think it.
Tu. Come, then—ho! Father, ope and take your friend.
Ascendit Friar.
Fr. Now, honour'd daughter, is your doubt resolv'd?
Tu. Ay, father, but you went away too soon.
Fr. Too soon?
Tu. Indeed you did, you should have stayed;
Had not your worthy friend been of your bringing,
And that contains all laws to temper me,
Not all the fearful danger that besieged us,
Had aw'd my throat from exclamation.
Fr. I know your serious disposition well.
Come, son, the morn comes on.

Bu. Now, honour'd mistress,
Till farther service call, all bliss supply you.
Tu. And you this chain of pearl, and my love only.
Descendit Friar and D'Ambois.
It is not I, but urgent destiny,
That (as great statesmen for their general end
In politic justice, make poor men offend)
Enforce my offence to make it just.
What shall weak dames do, when th' woful
Work of nature
Hath a strong finger in each one of us?
Needs must that sweep away the silly cobweb
Of our still-undone labours; that lays still
Our powers to it: as to the line, the stone.
Not to the stone, the line should be oppose'd;
We cannot keep our constant course in virtue:
What is alike at all parts? Every day
Differs from other: every hour and minute,
Ay, every thought in our false clock of life
Oftimes inverts the whole circumference:
We must be sometimes one, sometimes another.
Our bodies are but thick clouds to our souls,
Through which they cannot shine when they desire:
When all the stars, and even the sun himself,
Must stay the vapours' times that he exhales
Before he can make good his beams to us;
Oh, how can we, that are but motes to him,
Wand'ring at random in his ordered ways,
Disperse our passions' fumes, with our weak labours,
That are more thick and black than all earth's vapours?
Enter Montfury.
Mont. Good day, my love; what, up and ready too!
Tu. Both, my dear lord; not all this night made I Myself unready, or could sleep a wink.
Mont. Alas! what troubled my true love, my peace,
From being at peace within her better self?
Or how could she sleep forbear to seize thine eyes
When he might challenge them as his just prize?
Tu. I am in no power earthly, but in yours;
To what end should I go to bed, my lord,
That wholly mist the comfort of my bed?
Or how should sleep possess my faculties,
Wanting the proper closer of mine eyes?
Mont. Then will I never more sleep night from thee.
All mine own business, all the king's affairs,
Shall take the day to serve them; every night
I'll ever dedicate to thy delight.
Tu. Nay, good my lord, esteem not my desires.
Such dotsers on their humours that my judgment
Cannot subdue them to your worthier pleasure;
A wife's pleas'd husband must her object be
In all her acts, not her sooth'd fantasy.

1 Lover.
2 Taken by storm.
3 If his valor be truly estimated.
4 Remains inviolable.
5 Dressed.
Mont. Then come, my love, now pay those sites to sleep
Thy fair eyes owe him; shall we now to bed?
Tu. Oh, no, my lord; your holy friar says
All couplings in the day that touch the bed
Adulterous are, even in the married;
Whose grave and worthy doctrine, well I know,
Your faith in him will liberally allow.¹
Mont. He's a most learned and religious man;
Come to the presence then, and see great
D'Ambois (Fortune's proud mushroom shot up in a night)
Stand like an Atlas under our King's arm;
Which greatness² with him Monsieur now envies
As bitterly and deadly as the Guise.
Tu. What, he that was but yesterday his maker,
His raiser and preserver?
Mont. Even the same.
Each natural agent works but to this end,
To render that it works on like itself;
Which since the Monsieur in his seat on D'Ambois
Cannot to his ambitions end effect,
But that, quite opposite, the King hath power
In his love born to D'Ambois, to convert
The point of Monsieur's aim on his own breast,
He turns his outward love to inward hate.³
A prince's love is like the lightning's fame,
Which no man can embrace, but must consume.

[SCENE II.] ⁸

Enter HENRY, D'AMBOIS, MONSIEUR, GUISÉ,
Duchess, ANNABELLE, CHARLOTTE, Attendant.
He. Speak home, my Bussy; thy impartial heads
Are like brave falcons that dare trust⁴ a fowl Much greater than themselves; flatterers are kites
That check at⁵ sparrows; thou shalt be my eagle,
And bear my thunder underneath thy wings;
Truth's words like jewels hang in' th' ears of kings.
Bu. Would I might live to see no Jews hang
there
Instead of jewels; syophants, I mean,
Who use truth like the devil, his true foe,
Cast by the angel to the pit of fears,
And bound in chains; truth seldom decks kings'
ears.
Slave Flattery (like a ripper's⁶ legs roll'd up
In boots of hay ropes) with kings' soothed guts
Swaddled⁷ and strapp'd,² now lives only free.
Oh, 'tis a subtle knave; how like the plague
Unfelt he strikes into the brain of man,
And rages in his entrails, when he can,
Worse than the poison of a red-hair'd man.¹⁸

He. Fly at him and his brood; I cast thee off,
And once more give thee surname of mine
eagle.
Bu. I'll make you sport enough, then; let me have
My lucerns⁹ too, or dogs inured to hunt
Beasts of most rapine, but to put them up,¹⁰
And if I trust not, let me not be trusted.
Show me a great man (by the people's voice,)
Which is the voice of God) that by his greatness
Bombast¹¹ his private roofs with public riches;
That affects royalty, rising from a clap-dish;¹²
That rules so much more by¹² his suffering king,
That he makes kings of his subordinate slaves:
Himself and them graduate like woodmongers,
Filing a stack of billets from the earth,
Raising each other into steeples' heights;
Let him convey this on the turning propes
Of Protean law, and, his own counsel keeping,
Keep all upright; let me but hawk at him,
I'll play the vulture, and so thump his liver,
That, like a huge unlading Argosy,
He shall confess all, and you then may hang
him.
Show me a clergyman, that is in voice
A lack of heaven, in heart a mole of earth;
That hath good living, and a wicked life;
A temperate look, and a luxurious gut;
Turning the rents of his superfluous cures
Into your pheasants and your partridges;
Venting their quintessence as men read Hebrew;¹⁴
Let me but hawk at him, and, like the other,
He shall confess all, and you then may hang him.
Show me a lawyer that turns sacred law
(The equal rend' rer of each man his own,
The scourge of rapine and extortion,
The sanctuary and impregnable defence
Of retir'd learning and besieged virtuine)
Into a harpy, that eats all but's own,
Into the damned sins it punishest;
Into the synagoge of thieves and atheists,
Blood into gold, and justice into lust;
Let me but hawk at him, as at the rest,
He shall confess all, and you then may hang him.

Enter MONTSURRY, TAMRY, and PERO.
Gu. Where will you find such game as you would hawk at?
Bu. I'll hawk about your house for one of them.
Gu. Come, y' are a glorious¹⁵ ruffian, and run proud
Of the King's headlong graces. Hold your breath,
Or, by that poison'd vapour, not the King
Shall back your murderous valour against me.

⁵ High favor. ⁶ Fisher. ⁷ Bound.
⁸ Seize. ⁹ A traitor: Judas's hair was represented as red in old paintings, tapestries, etc.
¹⁰ Hunting dogs. ¹¹ Start them. ¹² Staffs out.
¹³ Dish carried by beggars, who clapped the lid to attract notice.
¹⁴ J. e. by the sufferance or indulgence of his king.
Qq. 1607. ²read Arms.
¹⁵ J. e. backwards. Reversing the proper use of his income.
¹⁶ Roastful.
To part and reconcile, and so conserve you,
As my combin’d embracers and supporters. 119

Bu. "Tis our king’s motion, and we shall not seem
To worst eyes womanish, though we change thus soon
Never so great grudge for his greater pleasure.

Gu. I seal to that; and, so the manly freedom
That you so much profess, hereafter prove not
A bold and glorious license to deprave, 6
To me his hand shall hold the Hermean virtue
His grace affects, in which submissive sign
On this his sacred right hand I lay mine.

Bu. "Tis well, my lord, and so your worthy greatness
Decline not to the greater insolence,
Nor make you think it a prerogative
To rack men’s freedoms with the ruder wrongs;
My hand (stuck full of laurel, in true sign
’Tis wholly dedicat to righteous peace) 128
In all submission kisseth th’ other side.

He. Thanks to ye both; and kindly I invite ye
Both to a banquet, where we’ll sacrifice
Full cups to confirmation of your loves;
At which, fair ladies, I entreat your presence;
And hope you, madam, will take one carouse
For reconciliation of your lord and servant.

Du. If I should fail, my lord, some other lady
Would be found there to do that for my servant.

Mo. Any of these here?

Du. Nay, I know not that.

Bu. Think your thoughts like my mistress’ honour’d lady?

Tu. I think not on you, sir; y’ are one I know not.

Bu. Cry you mercy, madam.

Mom. Oh, sir, has she met you?

Ernest Henry, D’Ambois, Ladies.

Mo. What had my bounty drunk when it raised him?

Gu. Y’have stuck us up a very worthy flag, 130
That takes more wind than we with all our sails.

Mo. Oh, so he spreads and flourishes.

Gu. He must down;

Upstarts should never perch too near a crown.

Mo. ’Tis true, my lord; and as this doting hand,

Even out of earth, like Juno, struck this giant,
So Jove’s great ordinance shall be here impi’d
To strike him under th’ Etus of his pride;
To which work lend your hands, and let us cast?

Where we may set snares for his ranging greatness.

I think it best, amongst our greatest women;
For there is no such trap to catch an upstart
As a loose downfall; for you know their falls
Are th’ ends of all men’s rising. If great men
And wise make snares to their enemies. 8

• Slander. 7 Plan. 8 Escapades.

119 Slander. 7 Plan. 8 Escapades.
I saw D’Ambois and herself reading a letter.

Mo. D’Ambois?
Pe. Even he, my lord.
Mo. Dost thou not dream, wench?
Pe. I swear he is the man.
Mo. The devil he is, and thy lady his [as dam! Why, this was the happiest shot that ever flew! The just plague of hypocrisies levelled it. Out the infinite regions betwixt a woman’s tongue and her heart! Is this our goddess of [as chastity? I thought I could not be so slighted if she had not her fraught besides, and therefore plotted this with her woman, never dreaming of D’Ambois. Dear Pero, I will advance thee for ever; but tell me now,—God’s pious, it transforms me with admiration—sweet Pero, whom should she trust with this conveyance? Or, all the doors being made sure, how should his conveyance be made?

Pe. Nay, my lord, that amazes me; I cannot by any study so much as guess at it.

Mo. Well, let’s favour our apprehensions with forbearing that a little; for if my heart were not hoopt with adaman, the conceit of this would have burst it. But bark thee.

[Ch. I swear to you grace, all that I can conjecture touching my lady your niece, is a strong affection she bears to the English Mylor. Gu. All, quod you? ’Tis enough, I assure you, but tell me.] 11

Mont. I pray thee, resolve me: the duke will never imagine that I am busy about’s wife: hath D’Ambois any privy access to her?
An. No, my lord; D’Ambois neglects her, as she takes it, and is therefore suspicious that either your lady, or the Lady Beaumarchais hath closely entertain’d him.
Mont. By ’r lady, a likely suspicion, and very near the life, [if she marks it,] especially of my wife.

Mo. Come, we’ll disguise all with seeming [as only to have courted.—Away, dry palm: 14 as a liver as dry as a biscuit; a man may go a whole voyage with her, and get nothing but tempests from her windpipe. Gu. Here’s one, I think, has swallowed a [as porcupine, she casts pricks from her tongue so.

Mont. And here’s a peacock seems to have devour’d one of the Alps, she has so swallowing a spirit, and is so cold of her kindness.

Ch. We are no windfalls, my lord; ye must gather us with the ladder of matrimony, or we’ll hang till we be rotten.

Mo. Indeed, that’s the way, to make ye right openers. But, alas! ye have no portions fit for such husbands as we wish you.

Pe. Portions, my lord? Yes, and such portions as your principality cannot purchase.

Mo. What, woman? what are those portions?
Pe. Riddle my riddle, my lord.

Mo. Ay, marry, wench, I think thy portion

1 Be accomplices. 4 Gum.
2 Waiting-women. 5 Make trial.
3 Escaped. 6 Grass.
7 Realiz. 8 Wonder.
9 Bewilder. 10 Thought.
11 These two speeches are omitted in Q 1641.
12 Secretly.
13 A sign of chastity.
14 Q. 1641 omits.
15 Mediocre.
is a right riddle, a man shall never find it out
But let's hear it.

Pe. You shall, my lord, What's that, being most rare's most cheap? That when you saw, you never reap? 1
That when it grows, most, most you thin 2 it? And still you lose it when you win it:
That when 'tis commonest, 'tis dearest,
And when 'tis farthest off, 'tis nearest?

Mo. Is this your great portion? 3

Pe. Even this, my lord,

Mo. Believe me, I cannot riddle it.

Pe. No, my lord: 'tis my chastity, which you shall neither riddle nor riddle.

Mo. Your chastity? Let me begin with the end of it; how is a woman's chastity nearest a man when 'tis farthest off?

Pe. Why, my lord, when you cannot get it, it goes to th' heart on you: and that, I think, comes most near you: and I am sure it shall be far enough off. And so we leave you to our mercies.

Exeunt Women.

Mo. Farewell, riddle.

Gu. Farewell, mediocris.

Mo. Farewell, winter plum. 4

Mo. Now, my lords, what fruit of our inquisition? Feel you nothing budding yet? Speak, good my Lord Montserrat.

Mont. Nothing but this: D'Ambois is thought negligent in observing the duchess, and therefore she is suspicious that your niece or my wife closely entertains him.

Mo. Your wife, my lord? Think you that possible?

Mont. Alas, I know she flies him like her last hour. 5

Mo. Her last hour? Why, that comes upon her the more she flies it. Does D'Ambois so think you?

Mont. That's not worth the answering. 'Tis miraculous to think with what monsters women's imaginations engross them when they are once enamoured, and what wonders they will work for their satisfaction. They make sheep valiant, a lion fearful. 6

Mo. [Aside.] And an ass confident. — Well, my lord, more will come forth shortly; get you to the banquet.

Gu. Come, my lord; I have the blind side of one of them. 7

Mo. Exit Guise cum Montserrat. 8

Mo. Oh, the unsounded sea of women's bloods, That when 't is calmest, is most dangerous;
Not any wrinkle dreaming in their faces,
When in their hearts are Scylla and Charybdis, Which still are hid in dark and standing fogs, Where never day shines, neverthing never grows:
But weeds and poisons, that no statesman knows, Nor Cerberus ever saw the damned nooks. 9

Gu. But what a cloud of sulphur have I drawn 10

Up to my bosom in this dangerous secret!
Whose if my haste with any spark should light,
Ere D'Ambois were engag'd in some sure plot,
I was blown up; he would be sure my death.
Would I had never known it, for before, I shall persuade the importance to Montserrat,
And make him with some studied stratagem Train D'Ambois to his wreck, his maid may tell it.
Or I (out of my fiery thirst to play
With the fell tiger, up in darkness tied,
And give it some light) make it quite break loose.
I fear it, afores heaven, and will not see D'Ambois again, till I have told Montserrat
And set a snare with him to free my fears:
Who's there?

Enter Maffre.

Ma. My lord?

Mo. Go call the Count Montserrat, And make the doors fast; I will speak with none till he come to me.

Ma. Well, my lord. 11

Mo. Or else send you some other, and see all the doors Made safe yourself, I pray; haste, fly about it.

Ma. You'll speak with none but with the Count Montserrat?

Mo. With none but he, except it be the Guise.

Ma. See even by this, there's one exception more!

Your grace must be more firm in the command, Or else shall I as weakly execute. 12

The Guise shall speak with you?

Mo. He shall, I say.

Ma. And Count Montserrat?

Mo. Ay, and Count Montserrat.

Ma. Your grace must pardon me, that I am boid To urge the clear and full sense of your pleasure;
Which whencesover I have known, I hope Your grace will say, I hit it to a hair.

Ma. You have.

Mo. I hope so, or I would be glad —

I pray thee get thee gone, thou art so tedious In the strict form of all thy services
That I had better have one negligent.
You hit my pleasure well, when D'Ambois hit you; Did you not, think you?

Ma. D'Ambois? Why, my lord —

Mo. I pray thee talk no more, but shut the doors:
Do what I charge thee.

Ma. I will, my lord, and yet I would be glad the wrong I had of D'Ambois —

Mo. Precious! then it is a fate that plagues me

He pierces my thread, else, like Sybil's care, It should breathe oracles. I fear him strangely, And may resemble his advanced value Unto a spirit rout'd without a circle,
Endangering him that ignorantly rais'd him,
And for whose fury he hath learn'd no limit.
In this man’s foolery; I may be murdered
While he stands on protection of his folly,
Away about thy charge.

Mo. I go, my lord.—
I had my head broke in his faithful service; 226
I had no suit the more, nor any thanks,
And yet my teeth must still be hit with D’Ambois:
D’Ambois, my lord, shall know —

Mo. The devil and D’Ambois!

Exit Maffe.

How am I tortured with this trusty fool!
Never was any curious in his place
To do things justly, but he was an ass;
We cannot find one trusty that is witty, 226
And therefore bear their disproportion.
Grant thou, great star and angel of my life,
A sure lease of it but for some few days,
That I may clear my bosom of the snake
I cherish there, and I will then defy
All check to it but Nature’s, and her altars
Shall crack with vessels crown’d with every liquor
Drawn from her highest and most bloody humours.

I fear him strangely, his advanced valour
Is like a spirit rais’d without a circle,
Endangering him that ignorantly rais’d him,
And for whose fury he hath learnt no limit.

Enter Maffe hastily.

Mo. I cannot help it: what should I do more?

As I was gathering a fit guard to make
My passage to the doors, and the doors sure,
The man of blood is enter’d.

Mo. Rage of death!
If I had told the secret, and he knew it,
Thus had I been endanger’d.

Enter D’Ambois.

My sweet heart!

How now, what leap’st thou at?
Bu. O royal object!
Mo. Thou dream’st, awake; object in the empty air?
Bu. Worthy the brows of Titan, worth his chair.
Mo. Pray thee, what mean’st thou?
Bu. See you not a crown
Impale the forehead of the great King Monsieur?
Mo. Oh, fix upon thee!
Bu. Prince, that is the subject of all these your retir’d and sole discourses.
Mo. Wilt thou not leave that wrongful suspicion?
Bu. Why wrongful, to suppose the doubtless right?
To the succession worth the thinking on?
Mo. Well, leave these jests. How I am overjoyed
With thy wish’d presence, and how fit thou com’st,
For of mine honour I was sending for thee.

Bu. To what end?
Mo. Only for thy company,
Which I have still in thought; but that’s no payment
On thy part made with personal appearance.
Thy absence so long suffered, oftentimes
Put me in some little doubt thou dost not love me.
Wilt thou do one thing therefore now sincerely?
Bu. Ay, anything, but killing of the King.
Mo. Still in that discord, and ill-taken note?
How most unseasonable thou play’st at the cuckoo,
In this thy fall of friendship!

Bu. Then do not doubt,
That there is any act within my nerves
But killing of the King, that is not yours.
Mo. I will not, then; to prove which by my love
Shown to thy virtues, and by all fruits else
Already sprung from that still-flourishing tree,
With whatsoever may hereafter spring,
I charge thee utter (even with all the freedom
Both of thy noble nature and thy friendship) 228
The full and plain state of me in thy thoughts.

Bu. What, utter plainly what I think of you?
Mo. Plain as truth.
Bu. Why, this swims quite against the stream
Of greatness;
Great men would rather hear their flatteries,
And if they be not made fools, are not wise.
Mo. I am no such great fool, and therefore charge thee
Even from the root of thy free heart, display me.

Bu. Since you affect it in such serious terms,
If yourself first will tell me what you think
As freely and as heartily of me,
I’ll be as open in my thoughts of you.
Mo. A bargain, of mine honour; and make this,
That prove we in our full dissection
Never so foul, live still the sounder friends.
Bu. What else, sir? Come, pay me home;
I’ll bide it bravely.

Mo. I will swear. I think thee then a man
That dares as much as a wild horse or tiger; 228
As headstrong and as bloody; and to feel
The ravenous wolf of thy most cannibal valour, (Rather than not employ it) thou wouldst turn
Hackster to any whore, slave to a Jew
Or English usurer, to force possessions
(And out men’s throats) of mortgaged estates;
Or thou wouldst ‘tire thee like a tinker’s strumpet,
And murder market-folks, quarrel with sheep,
And run as mad as Ajax; serve a butcher,
Do anything but killing of the King.
That in thy valour th’art like other naturals
That have strange gifts in nature, but no soul
Diffus’d quite through, to make them of a piece,
But stop at humours that are more absurd,
Childish and villainous than that hackster,

1 Clever, sensible.
2 Desire.
3 Professional gallant.
4 Idiots.
GEORGE CHAPMAN

Slave, cut-throat, tinker's bitch, compar'd before, And in those humours wouldst envy, betray, Slander, blaspheme, change each hour a religion; Do anything but killing of the King: That in thy valour (which is still the dung-hill, To which hath reference all filth in thy house) 'Th art more ridiculous and vain-glorious Than any mountebank, and impudent Than any painted bawd; which, not to sooth And glorify thee like a Jupiter Hammon, Thou eat'st thy heart in vinegar; and thy gall Turns all thy blood to poison, which is cause Of that toad-pond that stands in thy complexion, And makes thee with a cold and earthy moisture, (Which is the dam of putrefaction) As plague to thy damn'd pride, rot as thou liv'st; To study columns and treacheries; To thy friends' slaughters like a screech-owl And do all mischiefs — but to kill the King. But! So! have you said? Mo. How think'st thou? Do I flatter? Speak I not like a trusty friend to thee? But! That ever any man was blest withal. So here's for me. I think you are (at worst) No devil, since y'are like to be no king; Of which, with any friend of yours, I'll lay This poor stillado here, 'gainst all the stars, Ay, and 'gainst all your treacheries, which are more; That you did never good, but to do ill; But ill of all sorts, free and for itself: That (like a murdering piece, making lanes in armies, The first man of a rank, the whole rank falling) If you have wrong'd one man, you are so far From making him amends that all his race, Friends, and associates, fall into your chase. That y'are for perjuries the very prince Of all intelligencers: and your voice Is like an eastern wind, that where it flies Knits nets of caterpillars, with which you catch The prime of all the fruits the kingdom yields. That your political head is the eust fount Of all the violence, rapine, cruelty, Tyranny, and atheism flowing through the realm. That y'ave a tongue so scandalous, 't will cut The purest crystal; and a breath that will Kill to that wall a spider. You will jest With God, and your soul to the devil tender For lust; kiss horror, and with death engender. That your foul body is a Lernean ken Of all the maladies breeding in all men; That you are utterly without a soul; And, for your life, the thread of that was spun When Clothe slept, and let her breathing rock Fall in the dirt; and Lachesis still draws it, Dipping her twisting fingers in a bowl Deft'lld, and crown'd with virtu's forced soul. And lastly (which I must for gratitude 1) Billetto 2 Spies. 3 At the distance of. 4 "The distaff from whence she draws the breath of life." (Dikla.)

Ever remember) that of all my height And dearest life, you are the only spring, Only in royal hope to kill the king. Mo. Why, now I see thou lov'st me. Come to the banquet. Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I.5 [Enter] HENRY, Monsieur, with a letter; GUINE, MONTBURRY, BUSY, ELEON, TAMYRA, BEAUFRE, PEDRO, CHARLOTTE, ANNABELLE, FYRA, with four Pages.

He. Ladies, ye have not done our banquet right, Nor lookt upon it with those cheerful rays That lately turn'd your breaths to floods of gold; Your looks, methinks, are not drawn out with thought. So clear and free as heretofore, but foul, As if the thick complexities of men Govern'd within them.

Bu. 'Tis not like, my lord, That men in women rule, but contrary; For as the moon (of all things God created) Not only is the most appropriate image Or glass to show them how they wax and wane, But in her height and motion likewise bears Imperial influences that command In all their powers, and make them wax and wane: So women, that (of all things made of nothing) Are the most perfect idols of the moon, Or still-unweaned sweet moon-calves with white faces, Not only are patterns of change to men, But as the tender moonshine of their beauties Clear or is cloudy, make men glad or sad; So then they rule in men, not men in them. Mo. But here the moons are chang'd, (as the King notes) And either men rule in them, or some power Beyond their voluntary faculty, For nothing can recover their lost faces. Mon. None can be always one: our griefs and joys Hold several sceptres in us, and have times For their divided empire: which grief now, in them Doth prove as proper to his diadem. Bu. And grief's a natural sickness of the blood, That time to part asks, as his coming had; Only slight fools griev'd suddenly are glad. A man may say 't a dead man, "Be reviv'd," As well as to one sorrowful, "Be not griev'd," And therefore, princely mistress, in all wars Against these base foes that insult on weakness, And still fight hou'd behind the shield of Nature, Of privilege, law, treachery, or beastly need, 5 The Banqueting Hall in the Court. 6 Duchess of Guise.
Your servant 1 cannot help; authority here Goes with corruption: something like some states, 44
That back worst men: valour to them must creep
That, to themselves left, would fear him asleep.
Dw. Ye all take that for granted that doth rest
Yet to be prov'd; we all are as we were,
As merry and as free in thought as ever. 45
Gu. And why then can ye not disclose your thoughts?
Tu. Methinks the man hath answer'd for us
well.
Mo. The man? Why, madam, d' ye not know his name?
Tu. Man is a name of honour for a king: 46
Additions take away from each chief thing:
The school of modesty not to learn learns dames;
They sit in high forms there, that know men's names.
Mo. (to Bussy.) Hark! sweetheart, here's a bar set to your valour;
It cannot enter here; so, not to notice 47
Of what your name is. Your great eagle's beak
(Should you fly at her) had as good encounter
An Albion cliff, as her more craggy liver. 48
Bu. I'll not attempt her, sir; her sight and
name
(By which I only know her) doth deter me. 49
He. So do they all men else.
Mo. You would say so
If you knew all.
Tu. Knew all, my lord? What mean you?
Mo. All that I know, madam. 50
Tu. That you know? Speak it.
Mo. No, 'tis enough. I feel it.
He. But, methinks
Her courtship is more pure than heretofore; 51
True courtiers should be modest, but not nice; 52
Bold, but not impudent; pleasure love, not vice.
Mo. Sweetheart! come hither, what if one should make Horns at Montsurry? Would it not strike him jealous
Through all the proofs of his chaste lady's virtues?
Bu. If he be wise, not. 70
Mo. What? Not if I should name the gardener
That I would have him think hath gratified him?
Bu. So the large licence that your greatness uses
To jest at all men may be taught indeed
To make a difference of the grounds you play
on,
Both in the men you scandal, and the matter.
Mo. As how? as how?
Bu. Perhaps led with a train,
Where you may have your nose made less and slit,
Your eyes thrust out.
Mo. Peace, peace, I pray thee peace. 70
Who dares do that? The brother of his king?

Bu. Were your king brother in you; all your powers (Stretcho in the arms of great men and their bawds),
Set close down by you; all your stormy laws
Spouted with lawyers' mouths, and gushing
blood
Like to so many torrents; all your glories 53
Making you terrible, like enchanted flames
Fed with bare cockcombs 6 and with crooked hams; 54
All your prerogatives, your shames, and tortures;
All daring heavens, and opening hell about
you;
Were I the man ye wrong'd so and provok'd, Though ne'er so much beneath you, like a box-tree
I would out of the roughness of my root
Ram hardiness, in my lowness, and like death
Mounted on earthquakes, I would trot through all Honours and horrors, thorough foul and fair, 55
And from your whole strength toss you into the air.
Mo. Go, th' art a devil; such another spirit
Could not be 'still'd from all th' Armenian dragons.
O my love's glory! Heir to all I have,
(That's all I can say, and that all I swear) 100
If thou outlive me, as I know thou must,
Or else hath nature no proportion'd end
To her great labours; she hath breath'd a mind
Into thy entrails, of desert to swell
Into another great Augustus Caesar; 105
Organs and faculties fitted to her greatness;
And should that perish like a common spirit,
Nature's a courtier and regards no merit.
He. Here's sought but whispering with us;
like a calm
Before a tempest, when the silent air
Lays her soft ear close to the earth to hearken
For that she fears steals on to ravish her;
Some fate doth join our ears to hear it coming.
Come, my brave eagle, let's to covert fly;
I see almighty Aether in the smoke
Of all his clouds descending; and the sky
Hid in the dim ostens 7 of tragedy.

Exeunt Harvy with D'Ambois and Ladies.
Gu. Now stir the humour, and begin the brawl.
Mont. The King and D'Ambois now are grown all one.
Mo. Nay, they are two, 8 my lord.
Mont. How's that?
Mo. No more.
Mont. I must have more, my lord.
Mo. What, more than two? 9
Mont. How monstrous is this!
Mo. Why?
Mont. You make me horns.
Mo. Not I; it is a work without my power.
Married men's ensigns are not made with fingers; 9

7 Monsieur here makes the gesture of the cuckold.
Of divine fabric they are, not men’s hands. 138
Your wife, you know, is a mere 1 Cynthia,
And she must fashion horns out of her nature.
  Mont. But doth she — dare you charge her?
  Speak, false prince.
  Mo. I must not speak, my lord; but if you’ll use
The learning of a nobleman, and read,
Here’s something to those points; soft, you must pawn 2
Your honour having read it to return it.
  Mont. Not I. I pawn my honour for a paper!
  Mo. You must not buy it under.
  Execut Guise and Monsieur.
  Mont. Keep it then,
And keep fire in your bosom.
  Ta. What says he?
  Mont. You must make good that jest.
  Ta. How fares my lord?
  Takes my love anything to heart he says? 127
  Mont. Come y’re a —
  Ta. What, my lord?
  Mont. The plague of Herod
Feast in his rotten entrails.
  Ta. Will you wreak
Your anger’s just cause given by him, on me?
  Mont. By him? 3
  Ta. By him, my lord. I have admir’d 4
You could all this time be at concord with him,
That still hath play’d such discord on your honour.
  Mont. Perhaps ’tis with some proud string of my wife’s.
  Ta. How’s that, my lord?
  Mont. Your tongue will still admire, 148
Till my head be the miracle of the world.
  Ta. Oh, woe is me! She seems to swoon.
  Fe. What does your lordship mean?
Madam, be comforted; my lord but tries you.
Madam! Help, good my lord, are you not mov’d?
Do your set looks print in your words your
thoughts?
Sweet lord, clear up those eyes,
Unbend that masking forehead; whence is it
You rush upon her with these Irish wars,
More full of sound than hurt? But it is enough;
You have shot home, your words are in her
heart;
She has not liv’d to bear a trial now.
  Mont. Look up, my love, and by this kiss receive
My soul amongst the spirits for supply
To thine, obes’d with my fury.
  Ta. Oh, my lord,
I have too long liv’d to hear this from you. 158
  Mont. ’T was from my troubled blood, and not from me.
I know not how I fare; a sudden night
Flows through my entrails, and a headlong chaos
Murmurs within me, which I must digest,
And not drown her in my confusions,
That was my life’s joy, being best inform’d.

Sweet, you must needs forgive me, that my love
(Like to a fire disdaining his suppression) Rag’d being discourag’d; my whole heart is wounded 180
When any least thought in you is but toucht,
And shall be till I know your former merits;
Your name and memory altogether crave
In just oblivion their eternal grave;
And then you must hear from me, there’s no mean
In any passion I shall feel for you.
  Love is a razor, cleansing being well us’d,
But fetcheth blood still being the least abus’d.
To tell you briefly all: the man that left me
When you appear’d, did turn me worse than woman,
And stab’d me to the heart thus, with his fingers. 4
  Ta. Oh, happy woman! Comes my stain from
him.
It is my beauty, and that innocence proves
That slew Chimaera, rescued Peleus
From all the savage beasts in Pelion;
And rais’d the chaste Athenian prince 6 from hell;
All suffering with me, they for women’s lusts,
I for a man’s, that the Augean stable
Of his foul sin would empty in my lap.
How his guilt shunn’d me, sacred innocence
That where thou fear’st, art dreadful 16 and his face Turn’d in flight from thee, that had thee in chase!
Come, bring me to him; I will tell the serpent Even to his venom’d teeth (from whose curst seed
A pitchet field starts up ’twixt my lord and me)
That his throat lies, and he shall curse his fingers.
For being so govern’d by his filthy soul.
  Mont. I know not if himself will vaunt t’have been
The princely author of the slavish sin,
Or any other; he would have resolv’d 7 me
Had you not come; not by his word, but writing,
Would I have sworn to give it him again,
And pawn’d mine honour to him for a paper.
  Ta. See how he flies me still; ’tis a foul heart That fears his own hand. Good my lord, make baste
To see the dangerous paper; papers hold
Oft-times the forms and copies of our souls, 330
And, though the world despise them, are the prizes
Of all our honours; make your honour then
A hostage for it, and with it confer
My nearest woman here, in all she knows;
Who (if the sun or Cerberus could have seen Any stain in me) might as well as they;
And, Pero, here I charge thee by my love,
And all proofs of it (which I might call bonnites),
By all that thou hast seen seem good in me, 318
And all the ill which thou shouldst spit from thee,

4 Making horns. 6 Hippolytus.
8 Art feared even by those thou fearest.
9 Informed.
By pity of the wound this touch hath given me,
Not as thy mistress now, but a poor woman,
To death given over, rid me of my pains,
Pour on thy powder; clear thy breast of me;
My lord is only here; here speak thy worst,
Thy best will do me mischief. If thou spar'st me,
Never shine good thought on thy memory!
Resolve, my lord, and leave me desperate.

_Fr._ My lord! My lord hath play'd a prodigal part,
To break his stock for nothing; and an insolent,
To cut a Gordian when he could not loose it.
What violence is this, to put true fire
To a false train? to blow up long-crown'd peace
With sudden outrage, and believe a man
Sworn to the shame of women, 'gainst a woman,
Born to their honours? But I will to him.

_Ta._ No, I will write (for I shall never more Meet with the fugitive) where I will defy him,
Were he ten times the brother of my king.
To him, my lord, and I'll to cursing him.

Exc.uent.

_SCENE II._

_Enter D'Ambois and Friar._

_Bu._ I am suspicious, my most honour'd father,
By some of Monsieur's cunning passages,
That his still ranging and contentious nostrils,
To scent the haunts of mischief have us'd
The vicious virtue of his busy sense;
The sight, that sights hotly of him, and will rouse him,
Driving him all enrag'd and foaming, on us;
And therefore have entreated your deep skill
In the command of good aërial spirits,
To assume these magic rites, and call up one
To know if any have reveal'd unto him
Anything touching my dear love and me.

_Fr._ Good son, you have amaz'd me but to make
The least doubt of it, it concerns so nearly
The faith and reverence of my name and order.
Yet will I justify, upon my soul,
All I have done. If any spirit i' the earth or air
Can give you the resolve, do not despair.

_Music._ Tamyra enters with PERO, her maid, _bearing a letter._

_Ta._ Away, deliver it: _Exit Pero._

_Fr._ O may my lines
Fill'd with the poison of a woman's hate
When he shall open them, shrink up his cruel eyes
With torturous darkness, such as stands in hell,
Stuck full of inward horrors, never lighted;
With which are all things to be fear'd, affrighted;

_FAULTY._

Ascendit Bussy with Friar._

_Bu._ How is it with my honour'd mistress?

_Ta._ O servant, help, and save me from the gripes

1 A room in Montsurry's house.
2 Certainty.
3 Q. 1641 omits. But we must suppose that D'AMBROS and the Friar have withdrawn during Pero's presence.

Of shame and infamy. Our love is known:
Your Monsieur hath a paper where is writ
Some secret tokens that decipher it.

_Bu._ What cold dull northern brain, what fool but he Durst take into his Epimethean breast
A box of such plagues as the danger yields
Insur'd in this discovery? He had better
Ventur'd his breast in the consuming reach
Of the hot surfeits cast out of the clouds,
Or stood the bullets that (to wreak the sky)
The Cyclops' ram in Jove's artillery.

_Fr._ We soon will take the darkness from his face
That did that deed of darkness; we will know
What now the Monsieur and your husband do;
What is contain'd within the secret paper
Offer'd by Monsieur, and your love's events:
To which ends, honour'd daughter, at your motion,
I have put on these exorcising rites,
And, by my power of learned holiness
Vouchsafe me from above, I will command
Our resolution 4 of a raised spirit.

_Ta._ Good father, raise him in some beauteous form
That with least terror I may brook his sight.

_Fr._ Stand sure together, then, whate'er ye see,
And stir not, as ye tender all our lives.

_He puts on his robes._

A ppare in forma spiritali, lucente, splendida & amobilis.

[Thunder. Ascendit Behemoth with Cartophylax and other spirits.]

_Beh._ What would the holy Friar?

_Fr._ I would see
What now the Monsieur and Montsurry do;
And see the secret paper that the Monsieur
Offer'd to Count Montsurry, longing much
To know on what events the secret loves
Of these two honor'd persons shall arrive.
Beh. Why call'dst thou me to this accursed light
To these light purposes? I am emperor
Of that inscrutable darkness where are hid
All deepest truths, and secrets never seen,
All which I know; and command legions
Of knowing spirits that can do more than these.
Any of this my guard that circle me
In these blue fires, and out of whose dim fumes
Vast murmurs use to break, and from their sounds
Articulate voices, can do ten parts more
Than open such slight truths as you require.

_Fr._ From the last night's black depth I call'd up one

4 Information.
Of the inferior ablest ministers,
And he could not resolve me. Send one then
Out of thine own command, to fetch the paper
That Monsieur hath to show to Count Montsuryry.
Beh. I will. Cartophylax, thou that properly
Hast in thy power all papers so inscrib'd,
Glide through all bars to it and fetch that paper.
Cartophil. I will. A torch removes.
Fr. Till he returns, great prince of darkness,
Tell me if Monsieur and the Count Montsuryry
Are yet encounter'd?
Beh. Both them and the Guise
Are now together.
Fr. Show us all their persons,
And represent the place, with all their actions.
Beh. The spirit will straight return; and then I'll show thee.
See, he is come; why brought'st thou not the paper?
Cartophil. He hath prevented me, and got a spirit
Rains'd by another, great in our command,
To take the guard of it before I came.
Beh. This is your slackness, not I invoke our powers
When first your acts set forth to their effects;
Yet shall you see it and themselves. Behold
They come here, and the Earl now holds the paper.

Enter Monsieur, Guise, Montsuryry, with a paper.
Bu. May we not hear them?
Fr. No, be still and see.
Bu. I will go fetch the paper.
Fr. Do not stir;
There's too much distance and too many locks
'Twixt you and them, how near see'rs they seem,
For any man to interrupt their secrets.
Ta. O honour'd spirit, fly into the fancy
Of my offended lord, and do not let him
Believe what there the wicked man hath written.
Beh. Persuasion hath already enter'd him.
Beyond reflection; peace till their departure!

Mo.1 There is a glass of ink where you may see
How to make ready black-fac'd tragedy.
You now discern, I hope, through all her paintings,
Her gasping wrinkles, and fame's sepulchres.
Gu. Think you he feigns, my lord? What hold you now you?
Do we malign your wife, or honour you?
Mo. What, striken dumb! Nay he, lord, be not daunted;
Your case is common; were it ne'er so rare,
Bear it as rarely. Now to laugh were manly.
A worthy man should imitate the weather
That sings in tempests, and being clear is silent.
Gu. Go home, my lord, and force your wife to write
Such loving lines to D'Ambois as she us'd.
When she desir'd his presence,
Mo. Do, my lord.

And make her name her conceal'd messenger,
That close and most inconnibl'd pander,
That passeth all our studies to exqui're;
By whom convey the letter to her love:
And so you shall be sure to have him come
Within the thirsty reach of your revenge;
Before which, lodge an ambush in her chamber
Behind the arras, of your stoutest men
All close & soundly arm'd; and let them share
A spirit amongst them that would serve a thousand.

Enter Pero with a letter.
Gu. Yet stay a little; see, she sends for you.
Mo. Poor, loving lady; she'll make all good yet,
Think you not so, my lord?

Montsuryry stabs Pero and exit.
Gu. Alas, poor soul!
Mo. That was cruelly done, i' faith.
Pe. 'T was nobly done.
And I forgive his lordship from my soul.
Mo. Then much good don't thee, Pero! Hast a letter?
Pe. I hope it rather be a bitter volume
Of worthy curses for your perjury.
Gu. To you, my lord.
Mo. To me? Now, out upon her.
Mo. Let me see, my lord.
Mo. You shall presently. How fares my Pero?

Enter Servant.
Who's there? Take in this maid, sh'as caught a clap,
And fetch my surgeon to her. Come, my lord,
We'll now peruse our letter.

Exeunt Monsieur, Guise. Lead her out.
Pe. Furies rise
Out of the black lines, and torment his soul.
Ta. Hath my lord slain my woman?
Beh. No, she lives.
Fr. What shall become of us?
Beh. All I can say,
Being call'd thus late, is brief, and darkly this:
If D'Ambois' mistress dye not her white hand
In her fore'd blood, he shall remain untouched:
So, father, shall yourself, but by yourself.
To make this augury plainer: when the voice
Of D'Ambois shall invoke me, I will rise,
Shining in greater light: and show him all
That will betide ye all. Meantime be wise,
And curb his valour with your policies.

Descendit cum suis.
Bu. Will he appear to me when I invoke him?
Fr. He will, be sure.
Bu. Let must be shortly then:
For his dark words have tied my thoughts on knots,
Till he dissolve, and free them.
Ta. In meantime,

Dear servant, till your powerful voice revoke

7 Call back.
Be sure to use the policy he advis'd;
Lost fury in your too quick knowledge taken
Of our abuse, and your defence of me,
Accuse me more than any enemy; 170
And, father, you must on my lord impose
Your holiest charges, and the Church's power
To temper his hot spirit and disperse
The cruelty and the blood I know his hand
Will shower upon our heads, if you put not
Your finger to the storm, and hold it up,
As my dear servant here must do with Monsieur.
But I'll soothe his plots, and strow my hate with smiles,
Till all at once the close mines of my heart
Rise at full date, and rush into his blood. 180
I'll bind his arm in silk, and rub his flesh,
To make the vein swell, that his soul may gush
Into some kennel, where it longs to lie,
And policy shall be flanked 1 with policy.
Yet shall the feeling centre where we meet
Grow with the weight of my approaching feet;
I'll make th' inspired thresholds of his court
Sweat with the weather of my horrid steps,
Before I enter; yet will I appear
Like calm security before a ruin. 190
A politician must, like lightning, melt
The very marrow, and not taint the skin:
His ways must not be seen; the superficies
Of the green centre 2 must not taste his feet,
When hell is plow'd up with his wounding tracts;
And all his harvest reap't by hellish facts. 200

Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I. 5

MONTSURRY bare, unbraced, pulling TAMYRA in by the hair; Friar. One bearing light, a standish 4 and paper, which sets a table.

Ta. Oh, help me, father.
Fr. Impious ear, forbear.
Take violent hand from her, or by mine order
The King shall force thee.

Mont. Come you not willingly?
Ta. Yes, good my lord.
Fr. My lord, remember that your soul must seek
Her peace, as well as your revengeful blood.
You ever to this hour have prov'd yourself
A noble, zealous, and obedient son,
T' our holy mother; be not an apostate.
Your wife's offence serves not, were it the worst
You can imagine, without greater proofs,
To sever your eternal bonds and hearts;
Much less to touch her with a bloody hand;
Nor is it manly, much less husbandly,
To expiate any frailty in your wife
With churlish strokes or beastly odds of strength.

The stony birth of clouds 6 will touch no laurel,
1 Outflanked.
2 Earth.
3 A room in Montsurry's house.

Nor any sleeper; your wife is your laurel,
And sweetest sleeper; do not touch her then;
Be not more rude than the wild seed of vapour, 50
To her that is more gentle than that rude;
In whom kind nature suffer'd one offence
But to set off her other excellence.

Mont. Good father, leave us; interrupt no more
The course I must run for mine honour sake. 55
Rely on my love to her, which her fault
Cannot extinguish. Will she but disclose
Who was the secret minister of her love,
And through what maze he serv'd it, we are friends.

Fr. It is a damn'd work to pursue those secrets
That would ope more sin, and prove springs of 60
slaughter;
Nor is 't a path for Christian feet to tread,
But out of all way to the health of souls,
A sin impossible to be forgiven;
Which he that dares commit—

Mont. Good father, cease your terrors;
Tempt not a man distracted; I am apt
To outrages that I shall ever rue;
I will not pass the verge that bounds a Christian,
Nor break the limits of a man nor husband. 65

Fr. Then Heaven inspire you both with thoughts and deeds Worthy his high respect, and your own souls.
Ta. Father?

Fr. I warrant thee, my dearest daughter,
He will not touch thee; think'st thou him a pagan?
His honour and his soul lies for thy safety.

Exit.

Mont. Who shall remove the mountain from my breast?
Stand [in] 7 the opening furnace of my thoughts,
And set fit utteries for a soul in hell? 70

Montsurry turns a key.

For now it nothing fits my woes to speak
But thunder, or to take into my throat
The trump of heaven, with whose determinate 7 blast
The winds shall burst, and the devouring seas
Be drunk up in his sounds; that my hot woes
(Vented enough) I might convert to vapour,
Ascending from my infamy unseen; 8
Shorten the world, preventing 8 the last breath
That kills the living and regenerates death. 9

Ta. My lord, my fault (as you may censure it)
With too strong arguments) is past your pardon:
But how the circumstances may excuse me
Heaven knows, and your more temperate mind
hereafter
May let my penitent miseries make you know.

Mont. Hereafter? 'Tis supposed infinite,
That from this point will rise eternally.
Fame grows in going; in the scepter 11 of virtue
Excuses damn her: they be fires in cities
Enrag'd with those winds that less lights extinguish.

Fr. omit. Boa amend.
9 The dead.
10 Judge.
11 Escapes.
Come, syren, sing, and dash against my rooks.
Thy ruffian galley, rigg'd with quench for lust,
Sing, and put all the uets into thy voice.
With which thou drew'st into thy trumpet's lap
The spawn of Venus; and in which ye danc'd;
That, in thy lap's stead, I may dig his tomb,
And quit his manhood with a woman's slighter,
Who never is deciev'd in her deceit.
Sing (that is, write), and then take from mine eyes
The mists that hide the most inscrutabler pander
That ever lap't, an adulterer vomit,
That I may see the devil, and survive
To be a devil, and then learn to write;
That I may hang him, and then cut him down,
Then cut him up, and with my soul's beams search
The cranks and caverns of his brain, and study
The errant wilderness of a woman's face;
Where men cannot get out, for all the comets
That have been lighted at it, though they know
That adders lie-sunning in their smiles,
That basilisks drink their poison from their eyes,
And no way there to coast out to their hearts;
Yet still they wander there, and are not stay'd
Till they be fetter'd, nor secure before
All cares devour them; nor in human consort
Till they embrace within their wife's two breasts.
All Polon and Cytherson with their beasts.
Why write you not?
Ga. O good my lord, forbear
In wreak of great faults, to engender greater,
And make my love's corruption generate murder.
Mont. It follows needfully as child and parent;
And it must murder; 'tis thine own dear twin:
No man can add height to a woman's sin.
Vice never doth her just hate so provoke,
As when she rageth under virtue's cloak.
Write! for it must be — by this ruthless steel,
By this impartial torture, and the death
Thy tyrannies have invented in my entrails,
To quicken life in dying, and hold up
The spirits in fainting, teaching to preserve
Torments in ashes, that will ever last.
Speak! Will you write?
Ga. Sweet lord, enjoin my sin
Some other penance than what makes it worse;
Hide in some gloomy dungeon my loath'd face,
And let condemned murderers let me down
(Stopping their noses) my abhorred food:
Hang me in chains, and let me eat these arms
That have offended; bind me face to face
To some dead woman, taken from the cart
Of execution, till death and time
In grains of dust dissolve me; I'll endure;
Or any torture that your wrath's invention
Can fright all pity from the world withal;
But to betray a friend with show of friendship,
That is too common for the rare revenge

Your rage affecteth. Here then are my breasts,
Last night your pillows; here my wretched arms.
As last the wished confines of your life;
Now break them as you please, and all the bounds
Of manhood, noblesse, and religion.
Mont. Where all these have been broken,
they are kept,
In doing their justice there with any show
Of the like cruel cruelty; thine arms have lost
Their privilege in lust, and in their torture
Thyself must pay it. Stabs her.
Ga. O Lord!
Mont. Till thou writest,
I'll write in wounds (my wrong fit characters)
Thy right of sufferance. Write.
Ga. Oh, kill me, kill me;
Dear husband, be not crueler than death.
You have beheld some Gorgon; feel, oh, feel
How you are turn'd to stone. With my heart-blood
Dissolve yourself again, or you will grow
Into the image of all tyranny.
Mont. As thou art of adultery; I will ever
Prove thee my parallel, being most a monster.
Thou I express thee yet. Stabs her again.
Ga. And yet I live.
Mont. Ay, for thy monstrous idol is not done yet;
This tool hath wrought enough; now, torture,
Use Enter Servants.
This other engine on th' habituate powers
Of her thrice-damn'd and whorish fortitude.
Use the most madding pains in her that ever
Thy venoms soak'd through, making most of death;
That she may weigh her wrongs with them,
And then
Stand vengeance on thy steapest rock, a victor.
Ga. Oh, who is turn'd into my lord and husband?
Husband! My lord! None but my lord and husband!
Heaven, I ask thee remission of my sins,
Not of my pains; husband, oh, help me, husband!
Ascendit Friar with a sword drawn.
Fr. What rape of honour and religion—
Oh, wrack of nature! Falls and dies.
Ga. Poor man; oh, my father.
Father, look up; oh, let me down, my lord,
And I will write.
Mont. Author of prodigies!
What new flame breaks out of the firmament,
That turns up consciences never known before?
Now is it true, earth moves, and heaven stands still;
Even heaven itself must see and suffer ill.
The too huge bias of the world hath sway'd
Her back part upwards, and with that she braves
This hemisphere, that long her mouth hath mockt;
The gravity of her religious face,
(Now grown too weighty with her sacrilege,
And here discern'd sophisticated enough) 178
Turns to th' antipodes; and all the forms
That her illusions have imprint in her,
Have eaten through her back; and now all see,
How she is riveted with hypocrisy.
Was this the way? Was he the mean betwixt
you?
Tsa. He was, he was, kind worthy man, he was. 178
Mont. Write, write a word or two.
Tsa. I will, I will.
I'll write, but with my blood, that he may see
These lines come from my wounds, and not from me. 178
Mont. Well might he die for thought; me-thinks the frame
And shaken joints of the whole world should crack
To see her parts so disproportionate;
And that his general beauty cannot stand
Without these stains in the particular man.
Why wander I so far? Here, here was she
That was so true; there was no spot to me,
Though now a world of spots. Oh, what a lightning
Is man's delight in women! What a bubble
He builds his state, fame, life on, when he marries!
Since all earth's pleasures are so short and small.
The way t' enjoy it, is 't abjure it all. 196
Enough! I must be messenger myself,
Dissing'd like this strange creature. In, I'll after,
To see what guilty light gives this cave eyes,
And to the world sing new impieties.
He puts the Friar in the vault and follows. She wraps herself in the arras. Exit [servants].

[SCENE II.]

Enter Monsieur and Guise.

Mo. Now shall we see what Nature hath no end
In her great works responsive to their worths,
That she, that makes so many eyes and souls
To see and foresee, is stark blind herself;
And as illiterate men say Latin prayers
By rote of heart and daily iteration,
Not knowing what they say, 8 so Nature lays
A deal of stuff together, and by use,
Or by the mere necessity of matter,
Ends such a work, fills it, or leaves it empty 10

1 Her, referring to world, would be expected. He seems to refer to man, in next line.
2 A room in Montsury's house.
3 In place of Not . . . any, Qs. 1607. 8 read,
In whose hot zeal a man would think they knew
What they ran so away with, and were sure
To have rewards proportion'd to their labours;
Yet may improve their own confusions
For enquiring they know, which often times
It falls out they know.
10 Of strength or virtue, error or clear truth,
Not knowing what she does; but usually
Gives that which she calls merit to a man,
And belief must arrive 4 him on huge riches,
 Honour, and happiness, that effects his ruin; 15
Even as in ships of war, whose last 6 of powder
Are laid, men think, 4 to make them last, and Guard them,
When a disorder'd spark, that powder taking,
Blows up with sudden violence and horror
Ships that kept empty, had sail'd long, with terror. 20
Gu. He that observes, but like a worldly man,
That which doth oft succeed, and by th' events
Values the worth of things, will think it true
That Nature works at random, just with you;
But with as much proportion she may make
25 A thing that from the feet up to the throat
Hath all the wondrous fabric man should have,
And leave it headless, for a perfect man,
As give a full man valour, virtue, learning,
Without an end more excellent than those,
On whom she no such worthy part bestows.
Mo. Yet shall you see it here; here will be one Young, learned, valiant, virtuous, and full
man'd;
One on whom Nature spent so rich a hand
That with an ominous eye she wept to see
So much usu'm'd her virtuous treasury.
Yet, as the winds sing through a hollow tree,
And (since it lets them pass through) lets it stand;
But a tree solid (since it gives no way
To their wild rage) they rend up by the root;
35 So this whole work.
(That will not wind with every crooked way,
Trod by the servile world) shall reel and fall
Before the frantic puffs of blind-born chance,
That pipes through empty men, and makes them dance.

Not so the sea raves on the Lybian sands,
Tumbling her billows in each other's neck;
Not so the surges of the Euxine seas
(Near to the frosty pole, where free Boötes
35 From those dark deep waves turns his radiant team)

Swell, being ensang'd even from their utmost drop,
As Fortune swings about the restless state
Of virtue, now thrown into all men's hate.

Enter Montsury disguis'd with the Murderers.
Mo. Resolve, my masters, you shall meet with one
Will try what proofs your privy costs 9 are made on;
When he is ent'red, and you hear us stamp,
Approach, and make all sure.

Murd. We will, my lord. Exit.

1 Bring.
2 To their enemies. (Boos.)
3 Lords.
4 Store of virtues.
5 Boos amends to me thinks. 6 Costs of mail.
[Scene III.]

D'Ambois with two pages with tapers.

Bu. Sit up to-night, and watch; I'll speak with none
But the old Friar, who bring to me.

Pa. We will, sir. Exeunt.

Bu. What violent heat is this? Methinks the fire
Of twenty lives doth on a sudden flash
Through all my faculties; the air goes high
In this close chamber, and the frighted earth

Thunder.

 Trembles, and shrinks beneath me; the whole house
Nods with his shaken burthen.

Enter Umbra Friar.

Bu. Bless me, heaven! I

Um. Note what I want, dear son, and be forewarn'd.
O there are bloody deeds past and to come.
I cannot stay; a fate doth ravish me;
I'll meet thee in the chamber of thy love. Erit.

Bu. What dismal change is here; the good old Friar
Is murder'd; being made known to serve my love;
And now his restless spirit would forewarn me
Of some plot dangerous and imminent.

Note what he wants? He wants his upper weed,
He wants his life and body; which of these Should be the want he means, and may supply me
With any fit forewarning? This strange vision (Together with the dark prediction
Us'd by the Prince of Darkness that was rais'd
By this embodied shadow) stir my thoughts
With reminiscence of the spirit's promise,
Who told me that by any invocation
I should have power to raise him, though it wanted
The powerful words and decent rights of art.
Never had my set brain such need of spirit
T' instruct and cheer it; now, then, I will claim Performance of his free and gentle vow
T' appear in greater light, and make more plain
His rugged oracle. I long to know
How my dear mistress fares, and be inform'd
What hand she now holds on the troubled blood
Of her incensed lord. Methought the spirit
(When he had utter'd his perplexed preface) / Threw his chang'd countenance headlong into clouds.
His forehead bent, as it would hide his face,
He knock't his chin against his dark'ned breast,
And struck a shrill silence through his powers.

Teror of darkness! O, thou king of flames!
That with thy music-footed horse dost strike
The clear light out of crystal on dark earth,
And hurl'st instructive fire about the world,
Wake, wake the drowsy and enchant'd night.
That sleep with dead eyes in this heavy riddle
Or thou great prince of shades, where never sun

Sticks his far-darted beams, whose eyes are made
To shine in darkness, and see ever best
Where men are blindest, open now the heart
Of thy abashed oracle, that, for fear
Of some ill it includes, would fain lie hid,
And rise thou with it in thy greater light.

Thunders. Surgit Spiritus cum suis.

Beh. Thus to observe my vow of apparence
In greater light, and explicate thy fate, as I come; and tell thee that if thou obey
The summons that thy mistress next will send thee,
Her hand shall be thy death.

Bu. When will she send?

Beh. Soon as I set again, where late I rose.

Bu. Is the old Friar slain?

Beh. No, and yet lives not.

Bu. Died he a natural death?

Beh. He did.

Bu. Who then
Will my dear mistress send?

Beh. I must not tell thee.

Bu. Who lets thee?

Beh. Fate.

Bu. Who are fate's ministers?

Bu. A fit pair of shears
To cut the threads of kings and kingly spirits,
And consorts fit to sound forth harmony,
Set to the falls of kingdoms: shall the hand
Of my kind mistress kill me?

Beh. If thou yield
To her next summons, y' are fair-warn'd: farewell!

Thunders. Erit.

Bu. I must fare well, however, though I die,
My death consenting with his augury.

Should not my powers obey when she commands,
My motion must be rebel to my will,
My will to life: if, when I have obey'd,
Her hand should so reward me, they must arm it,

Bind me or force it: or, I lay my life,
She rather would convert it many times
On her own bosom, even to many deaths;
But were there danger of such violence,
I know 't is far from her intent to send;
And who she should send is as far from thought,
Since he is dead, whose only mean she us'd.

Knocks.

Who's there? Look to the door, and let him in,
Though politic Monsieur or the violent Guise.

Enter Montsury, like the Friar, with a letter written in blood.

Mont. Hail to my worthy son.

Bu. Oh, lying spirit! To say the Friar was dead; I'll now believe

1 A room in Bussy's house.

2 Remembrance.

3 Prevents.

4 Agreeing.

5 O lying ... calls him. For these lines, Q. 1607, &c, read:
Buss. O lying Spirit! Welcome, loved father,
How fares my dearest mistress?

Mont. Well as ever,
Being well as ever thought on by her lord;
Whereof she sends this witness in her hand,
And prays, for urgent cause, your speediest presence.
Nothing of all his forc'd predictions.
My kind and honour'd father, well reviv'd,
I have been frighted with your death and mine,
And told my mistress' hand should be my death
If I obey'd this summons.

Mont. I believ'd your love had been much clearer than to give Any such doubt a thought, for she is clear,
And having freed her husband's jealousy
(Of which she much abus'd hand here is witness)
She prays, for urgent cause, your instant pres-

Bu. Why, then your prince of spirits may be call'd
The prince of liars.

Mont. Holy Writ so calls him.
Bu. What, writ in blood?
Mont. Ay, 'tis the ink of lovers.
Bu. O, 'tis a sacred witness of her love.

So much elixir of her blood as this
Dropt in the lightest dame, would make her firm
As heat to fire; and, like to all the signs,
Commands the life confin'd in all my veins.
O, how it multiplies my blood with spirit,
And makes me apt t'encounter death and hell.
But come, kind father, you fetch me to heaven,
And to that end your holy weed was given.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene IV.]

Thunder. Intrat Umbra Friar, and discovers Tamyra.

Um. Up with these stupid thoughts, still loved daughter,
And strike away this heartless trance of anguish.
Be like the sun, and labour in eclipses;
Look to the end of woes; oh, can you sit Mustered the horrors of your servant's slaught-
ter
Before your contemplation, and not study
How to prevent it? Watch when he shall rise,
And with a sudden outcry of his murder,
Blow his retreat before he be revenged.

Tu. O father, have my dumb woes wak'd your death?

Whom will our human griefs be at their height?
Man is a tree that hath no top in cares,
No root in comforts; all his power to live
Is given to no end, but t' have power to grieve.

Um. It is the misery of our creation.

Your true friend,
Led by your husband, shadowed in my weed,
Now enters the dark vault.

Tu. But, my dearest father,
Why will not you appear to him yourself,
And see that none of these deceits annoy him?

Um. My power is limited; alas! I cannot.
All that I can do—See, the cave opens.

Exit. D'AMBOIS at the gulf.

Tu. Away, my love, away; thou wilt be murder'd!

Enter Monsieur and Guise above.

Bu. Murder'd; I know not what that Hebrew means:
That word had ne'er been nam'd had all been D'Ambois.

Monsieur? By heaven he is my murderer
That shows me not a murderer; what such bug
Aborreth not the very sleep of D'Ambois?
Monsieur? Who dares give all the room I see to D'Ambois' reach? or look with any odds
His fight? th' face, upon whose hand sits
death;
Whose sword hath wings, and every feather
pierceth?
If I escape Monsieur's 'pothecary shops,
Foutra for Guise's shambles! 'Twas ill
plotted;
They should have haul'd me here,
When I was rising. I am up and ready.
Let in my politic visitors, let them in,
Though eat'ring like so many moving armours, Fate is more strong than arms and aly than treason,

And I at all parts buck'd in my fate.

Mo. Why enter not the coward villains?
Bu. Dare they not come?

Enter Murderers with Friar at the other door.

Tu. They come.
1 Mur. Come all at once.
Um. Back, coward murderers, back.
Omn. Defend us, heaven.
Exeunt all but the first.

1 Mur. Come ye not on?
Bu. No, slave, nor goest thou off.

[Strikes at him.]

Stand you so firm? Will it not enter here?
You have a face yet; so in thy life's flame
I burn the first rites to my mistress' fame.
Um. Breathe thee, brave son, against the other charge.
Bu. Oh, is it true then that my sense first told me?

Is my kind father dead?

Tu. He is, my love.
'Twas the Earl, my husband, in his weed that brought thee.
Bu. That was a speeding sleight, and well resembled.

Where is that angry Earl? My lord, come forth
And show your own face in your own affair;
Take not into your noble veins the blood
Of these base villains, nor the light reports
Of blister'd tongues for clear and weighty truth:
But me against the world, in pure defence
Of your rare lady, to whose spotless name
I stand here as a bulwark, and project
A life to her renown, that ever yet

1 Of the sode. 2 A room in Montemery's house.
3 In place of the first six lines, Q. 1607, 8 read;
Revive these stupid thoughts, and set not thus Gathering the horrors of your servant's slaughter
(So urg'd by your hand, and so imminent)
Into an idle fancy; but dawes
4 Give the signal for.
5 Terrifying thing.
6 An expression of contempt.
7 Successful trick.
Hath been untainted, even in envy's eye,
And where it would protect a sanctuary.
Brave Earl, come forth, and keep your scandal
in;
'T is not our fault if you enforce the spot
Nor the wreck ² yours if you perform it not.

Enter Montsury, with all the Murderers.

Mont. Cowards, a fiend or spirit ye boil off
They are your own faint spirits that have fory'd
The fearful shadows that your eyes deluded.
The fiend was in you; cast him out then, thus.
D'Ambois hath Mont. down.
Tu. Favour my lord, my love, O, favour him!
Bu. I will not touch him: take your life, my lord,
And be appeas'd.

Plots shot within.
O, then the coward Fates
Have maim'd themselves, and ever lost their honour.
Um. What have ye done, slaves? Irreligious lord!

Bu. Forbear them, father; 't is enough for me
That Guise and Monsieur, death and destiny,
Come behind D'Ambois. Is my body, then,
But penetrable flesh? And must my mind
Follow my blood? Can my divine part add
No aid to th' earthly in extremity?
Then these divines are but for form, not fact.²
Man is of two sweet courtly friends compact,
A mistress and a servant; let my death
Define life nothing but a courtier's breath.
Nothing is made of nought, of all things made,
Their abstract being a dream but of a shade.
I'll not complain to earth yet, but to heaven,
And, like a man, look upwards even in death,
And if Vespasian thought in majesty
An emperor might die standing, why not I?
She offers to help him.
Nay, without help, in which I will exceed him;
For he died splintered with his chamber grooms.
Prop me, true sword, as thou hast ever done:
The equal thought I bear of life and death
Shall make me faint on no side; I am up.
Horo like a Roman statue I will stand
Till death hath made me master. Oh, my fame,
Live in despite of murder; take thy wings
And haste thee where the grey-eyed morn perfumes
Her rosy chariot with Sabean spices;
Fly, where the evening from th' Iberian vales,
Takes on her swarthy shoulders Hecate,
Crown'd with a grove of oaks; fly where men feel
The burning axetree; and those that suffer
Beneath the chariot of the snowy Bear;
And tell them all that D'Ambois now is hast-

To the eternal dwellers; that a thunder
Of all their sights together (for their frailties Behold in me) may quit my worthless fall
With a fit volley for my funeral.

Um. Forgive thy murderers.
Bu. I forgive them all;
And you, my lord, their factor; ² for true sign
Of which unsoign'd remission, take my sword;
Take it, and only give it motion,
And it shall find the way to victory
By his own brightness, and th' inherent valour
My fight hath 'still'd into,' with charms of spirit.
Now let me pray you that my weighty blood
Laid in one scale of your impartial spleen,
May sway the forfeit of my worthy love
Weigh'd in the other; and be reconcil'd
With all forgiveness to your matchless wife.
Tu. Forgive thou me, dear servant, and this hand
That led thy life to this unworthy end;
Forgive it, for the blood with which 't is stain'd,
In which I writ the summons of thy death;
The forced summons, by this bleeding wound,
By this here in my bosom; and by this
That makes me hold up both my hands imbru'd
For thy dear pardon.

Bu. O, my heart is broken.
Fate, nor these murderers, Monsieur, nor the Guise
Have any glory in my death, but this,
This killing spectacle, this prodigy.
My sun is turn'd to blood, in whose red beams
Pindus and Ossa, hid in drifts of snow
Laid on my heart and liver, from their veins
Melt like two hungry torrents, eating rocks
Into the ocean of all human life,
And make it bitter, only with my blood.
O frail condition of strength, valour, virtue,
In me (like warning fire upon the top
Of some steep beacon on a steeper hill)
Made to express it: like a falling star
Silently glance'd, that like a thunderbolt
Lookt to havestruck ⁴ and shook the firmament.

Morit.

Um. [My terrors are struck inward, and no more
My penance will allow they shall enforce
Earthly afflictions but upon myself.] ⁷
Farewell, brave relics of a complete man!
Look up and see thy spirit made a star,
Join flames with Hercules, and when thou sett'st
Thy radiant forehead in the firmament,
Make the vast crystal crack with thy receipt;
Spread to a world of fire; and th' aged sky
Cheer with new sparks of old humanity.
[To Mont.] Son of the earth, whom my un-rested soul,
Rues' t' have begotten in the faith of heaven;
[Since thy revengeful spirit hath rejected
The charity it commands, and the remission
To serve and worship the blind rage of blood] ⁵
Assay to gratulate ⁶ and pacify
The soul fled from this worthy by performing
The Christian reconcilement he besought

⁵ Q. 1641 omits these lines.
⁶ Gratify.
Betwixt thee and thy lady. Let her wounds
Manlessly dig'd in her, be eas'd and cur'd
With balm of thine own tears; or be assur'd
Never to rest free from my haunt and horror.

Mont. See how she merits this, still kneeling by,
And mourning his fall more than her own fault.

U. M. Remove, dear daughter, and content thy husband;
So piteous wills thee, and thy servant's peace.

T. S. O wretched pitey, that art so distract
In thine own constancy, and in thy right
Must be unrighteous. If I right my friend, I
I wrong my husband; if his wrong I shun,
The duty of my friend I leave undone.
Ill plays on both sides; here and there it riseth;
No place, no good, so good but ill compriseth.

[My soul more scruple breeds, than my blood, sin.

Virtue imposes more than any stepdame;]
O had I never married but for form,
Never vow'd faith but purpos'd to deceive,
Never made conscience of any sin,
But cloaked it privately and made it common;
Nor never honour'd been in blood or mind,
Happy had I been then, as others are
Of the like licence; I had then been honour'd;
Liv'd without envy; custom had benumb'd
All sense of scruple, and all note of frailty;
My fame had been untouched'd, my heart unbroken:
But (shunning all) I strike on all offence,
O husband! Dear friend! O my conscience!

M. O. Come, let's away; my senses are not proof Against those plaints.

Exeunt Guise, Monsieur: D'Ambois is borne off.

Mont. I must not yield to pity, nor to love
So servile and so traitorous. Cease, my blood,
To wrestle with my honour, fame, and judgment.

Away! Forsake my house; forbear complaints
Where thou hast bred them: here all things are full
Of their own shame and sorrow; leave my house.

---

Tu. Sweet lord, forgive me, and I will be gone,
And till those wounds, that never balm shall close
Till death hath entered'd at them, so I love them,
Being opened by your hands, by death be cur'd,
I never more will grieve you with my sight,
Never endure that any roof shall part
Mine eyes and heaven; but to the open desarts
Like to a hunted tigress I will fly,
Eating my heart, shunning the steps of men,
And look on no side till I be arriv'd.

Mont. I do forgive thee, and upon my knees,
With hands held up to heaven, wish that mine honour
Would suffer reconciliation to my love;
But since it will not, honour never serve
My love with flourishing object till it sterve:
And as this taper, though it upwards look,
Downwards must needs consume, so let our love;
As having lost his honey, the sweet taste
Runs into savour, and will needs retain
A spice of his first parents, till, like life,
It sees and dies; so let our love; and lastly,
As when the flame is suffer'd to look up,
It keeps his lustre, but, being thus turn'd down,
(Its natural course of useful light inverted),
His own stuff putts it out; so let our love.
Now turn from me, as here I turn from thee,
And may both points of heaven's straight axle-

Conjoin in one, before thyself and me.

Exeunt severally.

---

EPilogue

With many hands you have seen D'Ambois slain,
Yet by your grace he may revive again,
And every day grow stronger in his skill
To please, as we presume he is in will.
The best deserving actors of the time
Had their ascents, and by degrees did climb
To their full height, a place to study due,
To make him tread in their path lies in you;
He'll not forget his makers, but still prove
His thankfulness as you increase your love.

PROLOGUE

THOUGH need make many poets, and some such
As art and nature have not better'd much;
Yet ours for want hath not so lov'd the stage,
As he dare serve th' ill customs of the age,
Or purchase your delight at such a rate,
As, for it, he himself must justly hate:
To make a child now swaddled, to proceed
Man, and then shoot up, in one beard and weed,
Past threescore years; or, with three rusty swords,
And help of some few foot-and-half-foot words,
Fight over York and Lancaster's long jars,
And in the tyring-house bring wounds to scars.
He rather prays you will be pleas'd to see
One such to-day, as other plays should be;
Where neither chorus wafts you o'er the seas,
Nor creaking throne comes down the boys to please;
Nor nimble squib is seen to make afraid.
The gentlewomen; nor roll'd bullet heard
To say, it thunders; nor tempestuous demn
Rumbles, to tell you when the storm doth come;
But deeds, and language, such as men do use,
And persons, such as comedy would choose,

When she would shew an image of the times,
And sport with human follies, not with crimes;
Except we make 'em such, by loving still
Our popular errors, when we know they're ill,
I mean such errors as you'll all confess,
By laughing at them, they desire no less:
Which when you heartily do, there's hope left then,
You, that have so grac'd monsters, may like men.

ACT I

SCENE I.

[Enter KNOWELL, at the door of his house.]

Know. A goodly day toward, and a fresh morning.—

Brainworm !

1 A frequenter of the aisle of St. Paul's Cathedral.
2 Dressing-room.
3 A street in London.

[Enter Brainworm.]

Call up your young master: bid him rise, sir.
Tell him, I have some business to employ him.
Brai. I will, sir, presently.
Know. But hear you, sirrah,
If he be at his book, disturb him not.
Brai. Well, sir.
Know. How happy yet should I esteem myself,
Could I, by any practice, wean the boy
From one vain course of study he affects. He is a scholar, if a man may trust
The liberal voice of fame in her report,
Of good accounts in both our Universities,
Either of which hath favour'd him with graces:
But their indulgence must not spring in me
A fond opinion that he cannot err.
Myself was once a student, and, indeed,
Fed with the same humour he is now,
Dreaming on nought but idle poetry,
That fruitless and unprofitable art
Good unto none, but least to the professors;
Which then I thought the mistress of all knowledge;
But since, time and the truth have wak'd my judgment,
And reason taught me better to distinguish
The vain from th' useful learning.
[Enter Master Stephen.]

What news with you, that you are here so early?
Step. Nothing, but 'e'en come to see how you do, uncle.
Know. That's kindly done; you are welcome, coz.
Step. Ay, I know that, sir; I would not ha' come else. How does my cousin Edward, uncle?
Know. O, well, coz; go in and see; I doubt he be scarce stirring yet.
Step. Uncle, afore I go in, can you tell me, an he have e'er a book of the sciences of hawking and hunting; I would fain borrow it.
Know. Why, I hope you will not a hawking now, will you?
Step. No, wusse, but I'll practice against next year, uncle. I have bought me a hawk, and a hood, and bells, and all; I lack nothing but a book to keep it by.
Know. Oh, most ridiculous!
Step. Nay, look you now, you are angry, uncle. Why, you know an man have not skill in the hawking and hunting languages nowadays, I'll not give a rush for him: they are more studied than the Greek, or the Latin. He is for no gallant's company without 'em; and by gadalik 1 I scorn it, 1 so do I, to be a consort for every humdrum: hang 'em, scroyles 1 there's nothing in 'em i' the world. What do you talk on it? Because I dwell at Hogdon, 2 I shall keep company with none but the archers of Finsbury, or the citizens that come a duckyng to Islington ponds! A fine jest, i' faith! 'Slid, 3 a gentleman man 4 show himself like a gentleman. Uncle, I pray you be not angry; I know what I have to do, I trow, I am no novice.
Know. You are a prodigal, absurd coxcomb, go to!
Nay, never look at me, 'tis I that speak: Take 't as you will, sir, I 'll not flatter you. Ha' you not yet found means enow to waste 5

1 Foolish. 2 I-wis, certainly. 3 By God's eyelid — one of the frequent oaths by parts of Christ's body. 4 Scabs, scurvy fellows. 5 Hoxton. 6 Must.

That which your friends have left you, but you must Go cast away your money on a kite, And know not how to keep it, when you ha' done?
O, it's comely! This will make you a gentle-
man!
Well, cousin, well, I see you are e'en past hope
Of all reclaim. — Ay, so, now you are told on,'t
You look another way.
Step. What would you ha' me do?
Know. What would I have you do? I'll tell you, kineman;
Learn to be wise, and practise how to thrive;
That would I have you do: and not to spend
Your coin on every bauble that you fancy,
Or every foolish brain that humours you.
I would not have you to invade each place,
Till men's affections, or your own desert,
Should worthily invite you to your rank.
He that is so connected in his connections,
Oft sells his reputation at a cheap market.
Nor would I you should melt away yourself
In flashing bravery, 7 lest, while you affect 8
To make a blaze of gentry to the world,
A little puff of scorn extinguish it;
And you be left like an unsavoury snuff,
Whose property is only to offend.
I'd be you sober, and contain yourself,
Not that your sin be bigger than your boat;
But moderate your expenses now, at first,
As you may keep the same proportion still:
Nor stand so much on your gentility,
Which is an airy and mere borrowed thing,
From dead men's dust and bones; and none of yours,
Except you make, or hold it. Who comes here?

SCENE II. 9

KNOWELL, STEPHEN. [Enter a] Servant.
Serv. Save you, gentlemen!
Step. Nay, we do not stand much on our gentility, friend; yet you are welcome: and I assure you mine uncle here is a man of a thousand a year, Middlesex land. He has but one son in [all the world, I am his next heir, at the common law, master Stephen, as simple as I stand here, if my cousin die, as there's hope he will. I have a pretty living o' mine own too, beside, hard by here.
Serv. In good time, sir.
Step. In good time, sir! Why, and in very good time, sir! You do not flout, friend, do you?
Serv. Not I, sir.
Step. Not you, sir! you were not best, sir; [as an you should, here be them can perceive it, and that quickly too; go to: and they can give it again sounlily, an need be.
Serv. Why, sir, let this satisfy you; good faith, I had no such intent.
Step. Sir, an I thought you had, I would talk with you, and that presently. 10

1 Waste your means on showy clothes. 2 Desire. 3 The same. The scene-divisions are Jonson's.
4 At once.
Serv. Good master Stephen, so you may, sir, at your pleasure.

Step. And so I would, sir, good my saucy companion! An you were out o' mine uncle's ground, I could tell you; though I do not stand upon your civility neither, in't.

Know. Cousin, cousin, will this ne'er be left?

Step. Whoreson, base fellow! a mechanical serving-man! By this cudgel, an 'twere not for shame, I would —

Know. What would you do, you peremptory gull? 1

If you cannot be quiet, get you hence.
You see the honest man demeans himself
Modestly towards you, giving no reply
To your unseason'd, quarrelling, rude fashion;
And still you huff 2 it, with a kind of carriage
As void of wit, as of humanity.
Go, get you in; for heaven, I am saham'd 3
Thou hast a kinsman's interest in me.

[Exit Master Stephen.]

Serv. I pray, sir, is this master Knowell's house?

Know. Yes, marry is it, sir. 4

Serv. I should inquire for a gentleman here, one master Edward Knowell; do you know any such, sir, I pray you?

Know. I should forget myself else, sir.

Serv. Are you the gentleman? Cry you mercy, sir: I was requir'd by a gentleman i' the city, as I rode out at this end o' the town, to deliver you this letter, sir.

Know. To me, sir! What do you mean? pray you remember your curtsey. 5 [Reads.] To his most selected friend, master Edward Knowell. 6 What might the gentleman's name be, sir, that sent it? Nay, pray you be over'd.

Serv. One master Wellbred, sir.

Know. Master Wellbred! a young gentleman, is he not? 7

Serv. The same, sir; master Kitely married his sister; the rich merchant i' the Old Jewry.

Know. You say very true. — Brainworm!

[Enter Brainworm.]

Brai. Sir.

Know. Make this honest friend drink here: pray you, go in.

[Exit Brainworm and Servant.]

This letter is directed to my son;
Yet I am Edward Knowell too, and may,
With the safe conscience of good manners,
With the fellow's error to my satisfaction.
Well, I will break it ope (old men are curious).
Be it but for the style's sake and the phrase,
To see if both do answer my son's praises,
Who is almost grown the idolater
Of this young Wellbred. What have we here?

What's this? 8

[Reads.] Why, Ned, I beseech thee, hast thou forsworn all thy friends i' the Old Jewry? or dost thou think us all Jews that inhabit there? Yet, if thou dost, come over, and but see our frippery; 4 change an old shirt for a whole smock with us: do not conceive that antipathy between us and Hogsdon, as was between Jews and hog-flesh. Leave thy vigilant father alone, to number over his green apricots, evening and morn, o' the north-west wall. An I had been his son, I had sav'd him the labour long since, if taking in all the young wenches that pass by at the back-door, and coddling every kernel of the fruit for 'em, would ha' sav'd. But 9 prithee, come over to me quickly this morning; I have such a present for thee! — our Turkey company never sent the like to the Grand Signor. One is a rhymer, sir, o' your own batch, your own leaven; but doth think himself post-major o' the town, willing to be shown, and as worthy to be seen. The other — I will not venture his description with you, till you come, because I would ha' you make hither with an appetite. If the worst of 'em be not worth your journey, draw your bill of charges, as un-10 conscionable as any Guildhall verdict will give it you, and you shall be allow'd your viaticum. 11

From the Windmill. 12

From the Bordello it might come as well.
The Spittle, or Pint-batch. 13 Is this the man
My son hath sung so, for the happiest wit,
The choicest brain, the times have sent us forth!
I know not what he may be in the arts,
Nor what in schools; but, surely, for his manners,
I judge him a profane and dissolute wretch;
Worse by possession of such great good gifts, 2 of Being the master of so loose a spirit.

Why, what unhallow'd rusfick would have writ

In such a guerdron manner to a friend!
Why should he think I tell 9 my apricots,
Or play the Hebraic dragon with my fruit,
To watch it? Well, my son, I'd thought
You'd had more judgment t' have made election,
Of your companions, than t' have ten'd on trust
Such petulant, jeering gamers, that can spare
No argument or subject from their jest.
But I perceive affection makes a fool
Of any man too much the father. — Brainworm!

[Enter Brainworm.]

Brai. Sir.

Know. Is the fellow gone that brought this letter?

Brai. Yes, sir, a pretty while since.

Know. And where's your young master? 12

Brai. In his chamber, sir.

Know. He spake not with the fellow, did he?

Brai. No, sir, he saw him not.

Know. Take you this letter, and deliver it my son; but with no notice that I have open'd it, on your life.

Brai. O Lord, sir! that were a jest indeed.

1 Fool. 2 Swagger. 3 Put on your hat. Cf. Love's Labour's Lost, V. I. 103.
4 Old clothes shop. 5 A tavern. 6 Stewings. 7 Places of ill-fame. 8 Travelling expenses. 9 Count.
Know. I am resolv’d I will not stop his journey, Nor practise any violent means to stay The unbridled course of youth in him; for that Restrain’d grows more impatient; and in kind Like to the eaiser, but the generous greyhound, Which he so little from his game withheld, Turns head; and leaps up at his holder’s throat. There is a way of winning more by love And urging of the modesty, than fear: For he that compell’d to goodness, may be good, But ’tis but for that fit; where others, drawn By softness and example, get a habit. Then, if they stray, but warn ’em, and the same They should for virtue ’ve done, they ’ll do for shame. [Exit.]

SCENE III.

[Enter] E. KNOWELL, [with a letter in his hand, followed by] BRAINWORM.

E. Know. Did he open it, say’st thou? Brai. Yes, o’ my word, sir, and read the contents. E. Know. That scarce contents me. What countenance, prithee, made he it? the reading of it? Was he angry or pleas’d? Brai. Nay, sir, I saw him not read it nor open it, I assure your worship. E. Know. ‘Now how know’st thou then that he did either? Brai. Marry, sir, because he charg’d me, on my life, to tell nobody that he open’d it; which, unless he had done, he would never fear to have it reveal’d. E. Know. That’s true: well, I thank thee, Brainworm. [Exit.]

[Enter Stephen.]

Step. O, Brainworm, didst thou not see a fellow here in what-she’call-him doublet? He brought mine uncle a letter e’en now.

Brai. Yes, master Stephen; what of him? Step. O, I ha’ such a mind to beat him — where is he, canst thou tell? Brai. Faith, he is not of that mind: he is gone, master Stephen. Step. Gone! which way? When went he? How long since?

Brai. He is rid hence; he took horse at the street-door. Step. And I staid i’ the fields! Whoreson Scanderbag a rogue! O that I had but a horse to fetch him back again! Brai. Why, you may ha’ my master’s gelding, to say your longing, sir.

Step. No, faith, it’s no boot to follow him now: let him e’en go and hang. Prithée, help to trust 6 me a little: he does so vex me —

Brai. You’ll be worst vex’d when you are [as trust’d, master Stephen. Best keep unbra’ed, and walk yourself till you be cold; your choler may founder you else.

Step. By my faith, and so I will, now thou tell’st me on’t. How dost thou like my leg, Brainworm? Brai. A very good leg, master Stephen; but the woollen stocking does not command it so well.

Step. Foh! the stockings be good enough, now summer is coming on, for the dust: I’ll have a pair of silk again in winter, that I go to dwell in the town. I think my leg would shew in a silk hose —

Brai. Believe me, master Stephen, rarely well. Step. In sadness, 6 I think it would; I have a reasonable good leg. Brai. You have an excellent good leg, master Stephen; but I cannot stay to praise it longer now, and I am very sorry for it. [Exit.] Step. Another time will serve, Brainworm, Gramercy for this.

E. Know. Ha, ha, ha! (Laughs, having read the letter.)

Step. ‘Slid, I hope he laughs not at me; an he do —

E. Know. Here was a letter indeed, to be intercepted by a man’s father, and do him good with him! He cannot but think most virtuously, both of me, and the sender, sure, that make the careful eastermonger of him in our familiar epistles. Well, if he read this with patience I’ll be gelt, and troll ballads for Master John Trundle 7 wonder, the rest of my mortality. It is true, and likely, my father may have as much patience as another man, for he takes much physic; and often taking physic makes a man very patient. But would your packet, Master Wellbred, had arriv’d at him in such a minute of his patience I then we had known the end of it, which now is doubtful, and threatens — [see Master Stephen.] What, my wise [as] cousin! Nay, then I’ll furnish our feast with one gull more toward the mess. He writes to me of a brace, and here’s one, that’s three: oh, for a fourth! Fortune, if ever thou’lt use thine eyes, I entreat thee —

Step. Oh, now I see who he laughed at: he laughed at somebody in that letter. By this good light, an he had laughed at me —

E. Know. How now, cousin Stephen, melancholy? Step. Yes, a little! I thought you had laughed at me, cousin. E. Know. Why, what am I had, ooz? What would you ha’ done?

Step. By this light, I would ha’ told mine uncle.

1 Well-bred.
A room in Knowell’s house.
3 The Albanian patriot, Caevidas, whose life was translated from the French in 1806; known also as Alexander Beay, thence Scanderbeg or Scanderbag.
4 Tie the laces which took the place of buttons. It was also slang for beat.
5 Against, in preparation for.
6 Seriously.
7 A printer.
Step. Nay, an I must, an I will. Pray you shew me, good cousen. [Exeunt.] 105

SCENE IV.

[Enter] Master Mathew.

Mat. I think this be the house. What, ho!

[Enter Cob.] Not hear-

Cob. Who's there? O, master Mathew! gi' your worship good morrow.

Mat. What, Cob? how dost thou, good Cob? Dost thou inhabit here, Cob?

Cob. Ay, sir, and my lineage ha' kept a poor house here, in our days.

Mat. Thy lineage, monsieur Cobb! What lineage, what lineage?

Cob. Why, sir, an ancient lineage, and a [135] princely. Mine ancestr'y came from a king's belly no worse man; and yet no man either, by your worship's leave, I did lie in that, but herring, the king of fish (from his belly I proceed), one o' the monarchs o' the world, I assure you. [136] The first red herring that was broil'd in Adam and Eve's kitchen, do I fetch my pedigree from, by the harrot's [9] book. His cob was my great, mighty-great grandfather.

Mat. Why mighty, why mighty, I pray thee?

Cob. O, it was a mighty while ago, sir, and a mighty great cob.

Mat. How know' st thou that?

Cob. How know I why, I smell his ghost ever and anon.

Mat. Smell a ghost! O unsavoury jest! and the ghost of a herring cob?

Cob. Ay, sir. With favour of your worship's nose, master Mathew, why not the ghost of [so] a herring cob, as well as the ghost of Rasher Bacon?

Mat. Roger Bacon, thou wouldst say.

Cob. I say Rasher Bacon. They were both broil'd o' the coal; and a man may smell broil'd meat, I hope! You are a scholar; upsolve [98] me that now.

Mat. O raw ignorance! — Cob, canst thou shew me of a gentleman, one captain Bobadill, where his lodging is?

Cob. O, my guest, sir, you mean.

Mat. Thy guest! alas, ha, ha!

Cob. Why do you laugh, sir? Do you not mean captain Bobadill?

Mat. Cob, pray thee advise thyself well; do [98] not wrong the gentleman, and thyself too. I dare be sworn, he scorns thy house; he lodge in such a base obscure place as thy house! Tut, I know his disposition so well, he would not lie in thy bed if thou'stad'gi' it him.

Cob. I will not give it him though, sir. Maas, I thought somewhat was in 't, we could not get him to bed all night. Well, sir, though he lie not o' my bed, he lies o' my bench; an't please you to go up, sir, you shall find him with two cushions under his head, and his cloak [99] wrapt about him, as though he had neither worn

2 Herald's.
3 Usually, the head of a herring.

1 Faith, a minstrel oath.

nor lost, and yet, I warrant, he ne'er cast 1 better in his life, than he has done to-night.

Mat. Why, was he drunk?

Cob. Drunk, sir! you hear not me say so. Perhaps he swallow'd a tavern-token, 2 or such device, sir; I have nothing to do withal. I deal with water and not with wine. — Gi' me my deck! — Stop! [Beats them.] Oh! God, b' wi' you, sir. It's six o'clock; I should ha' carried two [as turns by this. What bog! my stopple is come.

[Enter Tib with a water-tankard.]

Mat. Lie in a water-bearer's house! a gentleman of his havings! Well, I'll tell him my mind.

Cob. What, Tib? shall we show this gentleman up to the captain. [Exit Tib with Master Mathew.]

Oh, an my house were the Brazen-head 4 now! faith it would s'en speak. Moe 5 fools yet. You should have some now would take this Master Mathew to be a gentleman, at the least. His father's an honest man, a worshipful fishmonger, and so forth; and now doth he creep and wriggle into acquaintance with all the brave gallants about the town, such as my guest is (O, my guest is a fine man!), and they flout him at invincibly. He useth every day to a merchant's house where I serve water, one master Kitely's, i' the Old Jewry; and here's the jest, he is in love with my master's sister, Mrs. Bridget, and calls her "Mistress"; and there he will sit, ye a whole afternoon sometimes, reading o' these same abominable, vile (a pox on 'em! I cannot abide them), rascally verses, poyetry, poyetry, and speaking of interludes; 'twill make a man burst to hear him. And the wenches, they do so jeer, and ti-ke at him. — Well, should they do so much to me. I'd forswear them all, by the foot of Pharaoh! There's an oath! How many water-bearers shall ye hear swear such an oath? O, I have a guest — he teaches me — he does swear the liegest of any man christned: By St. George! The foot of Pharaoh! The body of me! As I am a gentleman and a soldier! such dainty oaths! and withal! 100 he does take this same filthy roquat tobacco, the finest and cleanliest! It would do a man good to see the fumes come forth at 's tunnels. — Well, he owes me forty shillings, my wife lent him out of her purse, by sixpence a time, besides his lodging: I would have it! I shall ha' it, he says, the next action. Helter skelter, hang [107] sorrow, care 'll kill a cat, up-tails all, and a house for the hangman! [Exit.]

SCENE V.

Bobadill is discovered lying on his bench.

Bob. Hostess, hostess!

[Enter Tib.]

Tib. What say you, sir?

Bob. A cup o' thy small beer, sweet hostess.

Mat. Sir, there's a gentleman below would speak with you.

Bob. A gentleman! 'odso, I am not within.

Tib. My husband told him you were, sir.

Bob. What a plague — what meant he?

Mat. (below.) Captain Bobadill!

Bob. Who's there! — Take away the bason, good hostess; — Come up, sir.

Tib. He would desire you to come up, sir.

You come into a cleanly house, here!

[Enter Mathew.]

Mat. Save you, sir; save you, captain! Bob. Gentle master Mathew! Is it you, sir? Please you sit down.

Mat. Thank you, good captain; you may see I am somewhat audacious.

Bob. Not so, sir. I was requested to supper last night by a sort of gallants, where you were wish'd for, and drink'd to, I assure you.

Mat. Vouchsafe me, by whom, good captain?

Bob. Marry, by young Wellbred, and others.

— Why, hostess, a stool here for this gentleman.

Mat. No, hostess, sir; it's very well.

Bob. Body o' me! it was so late ere we parted last night, I can scarce open my eyes yet; I was but new risen, as you came. How passes the day abroad, sir? you can tell.

Mat. Faith, some half hour to seven. Now, 120 trust me, you have an exceeding fine lodging here, very neat, and private.

Bob. Not that I need to care who know it, for the cabin is convenient; but in regard I would not be too popular, and generally visited, as some are.

Mat. True, captain, I conceive you.

Bob. For, do you see, sir, by the heart of valor in me, except it be to some peculiar and choice spirits, to whom I am extraordinarily engaged, as yourself, or so, I could not extend thus far.

Mat. O Lord, sir! I resolve so.

Bob. I confess I love a cleanly and quiet privacy, above all the tumult and roar of fortune. What new book ha' you there? What! "Go by, Hieronymo?"

Mat. Ay: did you ever see it acted? Is 't not well penn'd?

Bob. Well penn'd! I would fain see all the poets of these times pen such another play as that was; they'll pine and swagger, and keep a stir of art and devices, when, as I am a gentleman, read 'em, they are the most shallow, pitiful, barren fellows that live upon the face of the earth again.

Mat. Indeed here are a number of fine speeches in this book. O eyes, no eyes, but fountains fraught with tears! There's a conceit! Emissaries fraught with tears! O life, no life, but lively form of death! — another: O world, no [120] Company.

Tib. Why, I am sure of it.

1 See The Spanish Tragedy, from Act. III of which Mathew reads the lines below.
world, but mass of public wrongs! — a third, Confus'd and fill'd with murder and misdeeds! — a fourth. O, the muses! Is not excellent?
Is 't not simply the best that ever you heard, captain? Ha! how do you like it?
Bob. Nay, I like it well.
Mat. To thee, the purest object to my sense,
The most refined essence heaven covers,
Send I these lines, wherein I do commence
The happy state of turtle-blighting lovers.
If they prove rough, unpolish'd, harsh, and rude,
Haste made the waste: thus mildly I conclude.
Bob. Nay, proceed, proceed. Where 's this? Bobadill is making himself ready all this while.
Mat. This, sir! a toy o' mine own, in my monasg; the infamy of my muse. But when will you come and see my study? Good faith, I can shew you some very good things I have done of late. — That boot becomes your leg passing well, captain, methinks.
Bob. So, so; it's the fashion gentlemen now use.
Mat. Troth, captain, and now you speak o' the fashion, master Wallbred's elder brother, and I are fall'n out exceedingly. This other day, I happen'd to enter into some discourse o' a hanger, 1 which, I assure you, both for fashion and workmanship, was most peremptory beautiful and gentlemanlike; yet he condemn'd, and cried it down for the most piddling and ridiculous that he ever saw.
Bob. Squira Downwright, the half-brother, wasn't not?
Mat. Ay, sir, he.
Bob. Hang him, rook! 4 he why he has no more judgment than a mule-horse. By St. George, I wonder you'd lose a thought upon such an animal; the most peremptory absurd clown of Christendom, this day, is he holden. I protest to you, as I am a gentleman and a soldier, I ne'er chang'd words with his like. By his discourse, he should eat nothing but hay; he was born for the manger, penner, or pack-saddle. He has not so much as a good phrase in his belly, but all old iron and rusty proverbs; a good commodity for some smith to make 110 hob-nails of.
Mat. Ay, and he thinks to carry it away 5 with his manood still, where he comes: he brags he will gi' me the bastinado, as I hear.
Bob. How! he the bastinado! How came 115 he by that word, trow?
Mat. Nay, indeed, he said cudgel me; I term'd it so, for my more grace.
Bob. That may be; for I was sure it was none of his word: but when, when said he so? 120 Mat. Faith, yesterday, they say; a young gallant, a friend of mine, told me so.
Bob. By the foot of Pharaoh, ain't we my case now, I should send him a chartel 9 presently. The bastinado! a most proper and sufficient 125 dependence,7 warranted by the great Carana,8 Come hither, you shall chartel him; I'll show you a trick or two you shall kill him with at pleasure; the first stoccata,9 if you will, by this air,

Mat. Indeed, you have absolute knowledge i' the mystery, I have heard, sir.
Bob. Of whom, of whom, ha' you heard it, I beseech you?
Mat. Troth, I have heard it spoken of di-vers, that you have very rare, and un-in-one-breath-utterable skill, sir.
Bob. By heaven, no, not I; no skill i' the earth; some small rudiments i' the science, age to know my time, distance, or so. I have pro-130 fast it more for noblemen and gentlemen's use, than mine own practice. I assure you. — Hostess, accommodate us with another bed-staff here quickly. [Enter Tis.] I lend us another bed-staff — the woman does not understand the words 135 of action. — Look you, sir: exalt not your point above this state, at any hand, and let your pander maintain your defence, thus: — give it the gentleman, and leave us. [Exit Tis.] So, sir. Come on: O, twine your body more about, 140 that you may fall to a more sweet, comely, gentleman-like guard; so indifferent: hallow your body more, sir, thus: now, stand fast o' your left leg, note your distance, keep your due proportion of time. — Oh, you disorder your 145 point most irregularly!
Mat. How is the bearing of it now, sir?
Bob. O, out of measure ill. A well experi-150 enc'd hand would pass upon you at pleasure.
Mat. How mean you, sir, pass upon me?
Bob. Why, thus, sir, — make a thrust at me — [MASTER MATHEW pushes at Bobadill] come in upon the answer, control your point, and make a full career at the body. The best-practis'd gallants of the time name it the pas-sado; a most desperate thrust, believe it. 155
Mat. Well, come, sir.
Bob. Why, you do not manage your weapon with any facility or grace to invite me. I have no spirit to play with you; your earth of [i.e. judgment renders you vicious.
Mat. But one venue,10 sir.
Bob. "Venue!" 164 he; the most gross denomination as ever I heard. O, the "stoccata," while you live, sir; note that. — Come prit165 on your cloak, and we 'll go to some private place where you are acquainted; some tavern, or so — and have a bit. I 'll send for one of these fencers, and he shall breathe 17 you, by my direction; and then I will teach you your [i.e. trick: you shall kill him with it at the first, if you please. Why, I will learn you, by the true judgment of the eye, hand, and foot, to control any enemy's point i' the world. Should your adversary confront you with a pistol, 't were 175 nothing, by this hand! You should, by the same rule, control his bullet, in a line, except it were hail shot. and spread. What money have you about you, master Mathew?

\[ACT II

\]

\[SCENE I.\]

\[Enter\] KITLEY, CASH, DOWNRIGHT.

Kit. Thomas, come hither.

There lies a note within upon my desk;
Here take my key; it is no matter neither.
Where is the boy?

Cash. Within, sir, in the warehouse.

Kit. Let him tell me over straight that Spanish
gold,
And weigh it, with th' pieces of eight. Do you
See the delivery of those silver stuffs
To Master Lucas: tell him, if he will,
He shall ha' the prograns  at the rate I told him,
And I will meet him on the Exchange anon.

Cash. Good, sir.

Kit. Do you see that fellow, brother Downright?

Dow. Ay, what of him?

Kit. He is a jewel, brother.

I took him of a child up at my door,
And chrest'ned him, gave him mine own name,
Thomas:

Since bred him at the Hospital;  where proving
A toward imp, I call'd him home, and taught
him
So much, as I have made him my cashier.
And giv'n him, who had none, a surname, Cash;
And find him in his place so full of faith,
That I durst trust my life into his hands.

Dow. So would not I in any bastard's, brother,
As it is like he is, although I knew Myself his father. But you said you'd somewhat
To tell me, gentle brother: what is't, what is't?

Kit. Faith, I am very loath to utter it,
As fearing it may hurt your patience;

But that I know your judgment is of strength,
Against the nearness of affection ——

Dow. What need this circumstance? 6 Pray you, be direct.

Kit. I will not say how much I do ascribe Unto your friendship, nor in what regard
I hold your love; but let my past behaviour,
And usage of your sister, [both] confirm
How well I've been affected to your——

Dow. You are too tedious; come to the matter, the matter.

\[ACT III

\]

\[Enter\] Kitely, Cash, Downright.

Kit. Then, without further ceremony, thus.

My brother Weelbred, sir, I know not how,
Of late is much desir'd in what he was,
And greatly alter'd in his disposition.

When he came first to lodge here in my house,
No' er trust me if I were not proud of him:
Methought he bare himself in such a fashion,
So full of man, and sweetness in his carriage.
And what was chief, it show'd not borrowed in him.

But all he did became him as his own,
And seem'd as perfect, proper, and possess'd,
As breath with life, or colour with the blood.
But now, his course is so irregulare,
So loose, affected, and depriv'd of grace,
And he himself withal so far fall'n off
From that first place, as scarce no note remains,
To tell men's judgments where he lately stood.
He's grown a stranger to all due respect,
Forgetful of his friends; and, not content
To stale himself in all societies,
He makes my house here common as a mart,
A theatre, a public receptacle
For giddy humour, and dissipated riot;
And here, as in a tavern or a stew,
He and his wild associates spend their hours,
In repetition of lascivious jests.
Swear, leap, drink, dance, and revel night by night.

Control my servants; and, indeed, what not?

Dow. 'Sdeath, 9 I know not what I should say to him, i' the whole world! He values me at a crack'd three-farthings, for aught I see. It will never out o' the flesh that 's bred i' the bone. I have told him enough, one would think, if that would serve; but counsel to him is as good [as a shoulder of mutton to a sick horse. Well I know what to trust to, for George: let him spend, and spend, and domineer, till his heart ache; an he think to be relied' by me, when he is got into one o' your city pounds, the [counters, he has the wrong sow by the ear, i' faith; and clape his dish [at the wrong man's door. I'll lay my hand o' my halfpenny, ere I part with 't to fetch him out, I'll assure him.

Kit. Nay, good brother, let it not trouble you this.

Dow. 'Sdeath! he made me; I could eat my very spur-leathers for anger! But, why are you so tame? Why do you not speak to him, and tell him how he disquiets your house?

Kit. O, there are divers reasons to dissuade
brother.

But, would yourself vouchsafe to travail in it (Though but with plain and easy circumstances).
It would both come much better to his sense,
And savour less of stomach, 12 or of passion.
You are his elder brother, and that title
Both gives and warrants you authority,
Which, by your presence seconded, must breed
A kind of duty in him, and regard;

Whereas, if I should intimate the least,

It would but add contempt to his neglect, 22
Heap worse on ill, make up a pile of hatred,
That in the rearing would come tottering down,
And in the ruin bury all our love.
Nay, more than this, brother; if I should speak,
He would be ready, from his heat of humour, 4
And overflowing of the vapour in him,—

To blow the ears of his familiar
With the false breath of tainting disgrace.
And low disarrangements I had put upon him:
Whilst they, sir, to relieve him in the fable, 6
Make their loose comments upon every word,
Gestures, or look, I use; mock me all over,
From my flat cap 8 unto my shining shoes;
And, out of their impetuous rioting phantasties,
Beget some slander that shall dwell with me. 10
And what would that be, think you? Marry, this:
They would give out, because my wife is fair,
Myself but lately married, and my sister
Here sojourning a virgin in my house,
That I were jealous!—nay, as sure as death, 12
That they would say; and, how that I had quarrell’d
My brother purposely, thereby to find
An apt pretext to banish them my house.

Dow. Mass, perhaps so; they’re like enough
To do it.
Kitt. Brother, they would, believe it; so should I,
Like one of these penurious quack-salvers,
But set the bills up 4 to mine own disgrace,
And try experiments upon myself;
Lend scorn and envy opportunity
To stab my reputation and good name — 18

SCENE II. 5

KITTLE, DOWNRIGHT. [Enter] MATHEW [struggling with] BOBADILL.

Mat. I will speak to him.
Bob. Speak to him! I away! By the foot of Pharaoh, you shall not! you shall not do him that grace.—The time of day to you, gentleman the house. Is master Wellbred stirring?
Dow. How then? What should he do?
Bob. Gentleman of the house, is it to you. Is he within, sir?
Kitt. He came not to his lodging to-night, sir,
I assure you.
Dow. Why, do you hear? You!
Bob. The gentleman citizen hath satisfied
me;
I’ll talk to no scavenger. [Exit Bob. and Mat.]

Dow. How! scavenger! Stay, sir, stay!
Kitt. Nay, brother Downright.
Dow. ’Heart! stand you away, an you love me.
Kitt. You shall not follow him now, I pray you, brother, good faith you shall not; I will overrule you.
Dow. Ha! scavenger! Well, go to, I say [as little; but, by this good day (God forgive me this, I’ll ne’er draw my sword in the sight of huge tumbrel-slop 7 of yours with somewhat, an I have good luck: your Garasanguus breech cannot carry it away so.

Kitt. Oh, do not fret yourself thus; never think on’t.
Dow. These are my brother’s consorts, these!
These are his cam’rades, his walking mates!
He’s a gallant, a cavalier too, right hangman cut! Let me not live, an I could not find in [as my heart to swing the whole ging 9 of ’em, one after another, and begin with him first. I am grieved it should be said he is my brother, and take these courses. Well, as he brews, so shall he drink, for George, again. Yet be he [as hear on’t, and that tightly too, an I live, i’ faith.
Kitt. But, brother, let your reprehension, then,
Run in an easy current, not o’er high
Carried with rashness, or devouring choler;
But rather use the soft persuading way,
Whose powers will work more gently, and compose
Th’ imperfect thoughts you labour to reclaim;
More winning than enforcing the consent.
Dow. Ay, ay, let me alone for that, I warrant
you.
Kitt. How now! (Bell rings.) Oh, the bell rings to breakfast. Brother, I pray you go in, and bear my wife company till I come; I’ll but give order for some despatch of business to my servants. [Exit DOWNRIGHT.]

SCENE III. 9

KITTLE, [Enter] COB.

Kitt. What, Cob! our maids will have you by the book, i’ faith, for coming so late this morning.
Cob. Perhaps so, sir; take heed somebody have not them by the belly, for walking so late in the evening.

Kitt. Well; yet my troubled spirit’s somewhat eas’d,
Though not repose’d in that security
As I could wish: but I must be content,
Howe’er I set a face on’t to the world.
Would I had lost this finger at a venture.
So Wellbred had ne’er lodged within my house.
Why ’t cannot be, where there is such resort
Of wanton gallants and young revellers,
That any woman should be honest long.
Is’t like that facetious beauty will preserve
The public weal of chastity unshaken,
When such strong motives must and make head 10
Against her single peace? No, no: beware.
When mutual appetite doth meet to treat,
And spirits of one kind and quality
Come once to parley in the pride of blood.

10 Gather their forces: a military phrase.
It is no slow conspiracy that follows.
Well, to be plain, if I but thought the time
Had answer'd their affections, all the world
Should not persuade me but I were a cuckold.
Marry, I hope they ha' not got that start;
For opportunity hath bal'd 'em yet,
And shall do still, while I have eyes and ears
To attend the impositions of my heart.

My presence shall be as an iron bar
Two hours the conspiring motions of desire:
Yes, every look or glance mine eye ejects
Shall check occasion, as one doth his slave,
When he forgets the limits of prescription.

[Dame Kityle Enter.]

Dame K. Sister Bridget, pray you fetch down
The rose-water, above in the closet.—Sweetheart, will you come in to breakfast?
Kit. An she have overheard me now!—

Dame K. I pray thee, good muse, we stay for you.

Kit. By heaven, I would not for a thousand angels.

Dame K. What all you, sweet-heart? are you not well? Speak, good muse.

Kit. Troth my head aches extremely on a sudden.

Dame K. [putting her hand to his forehead.] O, the Lord!

Kit. How now! What? Dame K. Alas, how it burns! Muse, keep you warm; good truth it is this new disease, there's a number are troubled withal. For love's sake, sweet-heart, come in out of the air.

Kit. How simple, and how subtle are her answers!

A new disease, and many troubled with it?
Why true; she heard me, all the world to nothing.

Dame K. I pray thee, good sweet-heart, come in: the air will do you harm, in troth.

Kit. The air! she has me 't the wind.—Sweetheart, I'll come to you presently; 't will away, I hope.

[Dame K. Pray Heaven it do. [Exit.]

Kit. A new disease! I know not, new or old, But it may well be call'd poor mortals' plague; For, like a pestilence, it doth infect The houses of the brain. First it begins Solely to work upon the phantasy, Filling her seat with such pestiferous air As soon corrupts the judgment; and from thence Sends like contagion to the memory: Still each to other giving the infection, Which as a subtle vapour spreads itself Confusedly through every sensible part, 'Till not a thought or motion in the mind Be free from the black poison of suspicion. Ah! but what misery is it to know this?

Or, knowing it, to want the mind's erection
In such extremes? Well, I will once more strive,
In spite of this black cloud, myself to be,
And shake the fever off that thus shakes me.

[Exeunt.]

Scene IV.7

[Enter Brainworm disguised like a maimed Soldier.]

Brai. 'Slid, I cannot choose but laugh to see myself translated thus, from a poor creature to a creator; for now must I create an intolerable sort of lies, or my present profession loses the grace: and yet the lie, to a man of my coat, is so as omenous a fruit as the fig. O airy, it holds for good polity ever, to have that outwardly in vilest estimation, that inwardly is most dear to us: so much for my borrowed shape. Well, the troth is, my old master intends to follow me; yet I, young master, dry-foot, over Moorfields to London, this morning; now, I knowing of this hunting-match, or rather conspiracy, and to insinuate with my young master for so must we that are blue waiters, and men of hope and service do, or perhaps we may wear motley at the year's end, and who wears motley, 12 — you know, have got me afore in this disguise, determining here to lie in ambushado, and intercept him in the mid-way. If I can but get his cloak, his purse, and his hat, nay, any thing to cut him off, that is, to stay his journey, Veni, vidi, vici, I may say with Captain Caesar, I am made for ever, 13 faith. Well, now I must practise to get the true garb of one of these lances — knights, my arm here, and my — [Odoo! my young master, and his cousin, master Stephen, as I am true counterfeit man of war, and no soldier!]

[Enter E. Knowell and Stephen.]

E. Know. So, sir! and how then, coz? Step. 'Sfoot! I have lost my purse, I think.
E. Know. How! lost your purse? Where? When had you it?
Step. I cannot tell; stay.
Brai. 'Slid, I am afraid they will know me: would I could get by them!
E. Know. What, ha' you it?
Step. No; I think I was bewitcht, I —

[Exit.]

E. Know. Nay, do not weep the less: hang it, let it go.
Step. Oh, 'tis here. No, an it had been lost, I had not car'd, but for a jet ring mistress Mary sent me.
E. Know. A jet ring! O the posy, the posy?
Step. Fine, 't faith. —

_E. Know_. How, by St. Peter? I do not [as conceive that.

.Step. Marry, St. Peter, to make up the metre.

_E. Know_. Well, there the saint was your good patron, he help'd you at your need; thank him, thank him.

Re-enter BRAINWORM.

_Brai_. I cannot take leave on 'em so; I will venture, come what will.—Gentlemen, please you change a few crowns for a very excellent good blade here? I am a poor gentleman, a soldier, one that, in the better state of my fortune, scorn'd so mean a refuge; but now it is the humour of necessity to have it so. You seem to be gentlemen well affected to martial men, else I should rather die with silence, than live with shame; however, vouchsafe to remember—oh, it is my want speaks, not myself; this condition agrees not with my spirit.

_E. Know_. Where hast thou serv'd?

_Brai_. May it please you, sir, in all the late wars of Bohemia, Hungary, Dalmatia, Poland, where not, sir? I have been a poor servitor by sea and land any time this fourteen years, and follow'd the fortunes of the best commanders in Christendom. I was twice shot at the taking of Aleppo, once at the relief of Vienna; I have been at Marseilles, Naples, and the Adriatic Gulf, a gentleman-slave in the galleys, thence; where I was most dangerously shot in the head, through both the thighs; and yet, being thus maim'd, I am void of main-tenance, nothing left me but my scars, the noted marks of my resolution.

_Step_. How will you sell this rapier, friend?

_Brai_. Generous sir, I refer it to your own judgment; you are a gentleman, give me [as you please.

_Step_. True, I am a gentleman, I know that, friend; but what though? I pray you say, what would you ask?

_Brai_. I assure you, the blade may become [as the side or thigh of the best prince in Europe.

_E. Know_. Ay, with a velvet scabbard, I think.

_Step_. Nay, an't be mine, it shall have a velvet scabbard, coat, that's flat; I'd not wear it, as it is, an you would give me an angel.

_Brai_. At your worship's pleasure, sir; [STEPHENV EXAMINES THE BLADE] 'tis a most pure Toledo.

_Step_. I had rather it were a Spaniard. But tell me, what shall I give you for it? An it had a silver hilt—

_E. Know_. Come, come, you shall not buy it. Hold, there's a shilling, fellow; take thy rapier.

_Step_. Why, but I will buy it now, because you say so; and that's another thing, for it I seem to be cut-hidden. What, shall I walk [us with a cudgel, like Higgibottom, and may have a rapier for money]

E. Know. You may buy one in the city.

_Step_. Tut! I'll buy this i'the field, so I will: I have a mind to 't, because 'tis a field [as rapier. Tell me your lowest price.

_E. Know_. You shall not buy it, I say.

_Step_. By this money, but I will, though I give more than 't is worth.

_E. Know_. Come away, you are a fool.

_Step_. Friend, I am a fool, that's granted; but I'll have it, for that word's sake. Follow me for your money.

_Brai_. At your service, sir. [Exeunt.]

Scene V.1

[Enter KNOWELL.]

_Know_. I cannot lose the thought yet of this letter

Sent to my son; nor leave 't to admire 2 the change

Of manners, and the breeding of our youth

Within the kingdom, since myself was one. —

When I was young, he liv'd not in the stews 3

Durst have conceiv'd a scorn, and utter'd it,

On a gray head age was authority

Against a buffoon, and a man had then

A certain reverence paid unto his years,

That had none due unto his life; so much

The sanctity of some prevail'd for others.

But now we all are fall'n; youth, from their fear,

And age, from that which bred it, good example.

Nay, would ourselves were not the first, e'en parents.

That did destroy the hopes in our own children;

Or they not learn'd our vices in their cradles.

And sunk'd in our ill customs with their milk!

Are all their teeth be born, or they can speak?

We make their palates cunning; the first words

We form their tongues with, are licentious jests:

Can it call "whore"? or cry "bastard"? O, then, kiss it!

A witty child! Can't swear? The father's daring!

Give it two plums. Nay, rather than't shall learn

No bawdy song, the mother herself will teach it!

But this is in the infancy, the days

Of the long coat; when it puts on the breeches,

It will put off all this. Ay, it is like,

When it is gotten into the bone already!

No, no; this dye goes deeper than the coat,

Or shirt, or skin; it stains into the liver

And heart, in some: and, rather than it should not,

Note what we fathers do! Look how we live!

What mistresses we keep! at what expense!

In our sons' eyes, where they may handle our gifts,

Hear our lascivious courtships, see our daintiness,

Taste of the same provoking meats with us,

To ruin of our states! Nay, when our own

Fortune is fled, to prey on the remainder,

We call them into fellowship of vice;

Bait'em with the young chamber-maid, to seal, 4

1 Another part of Moorfields. 2 Wonder at.
3 Probably, to agree to the sale of family estates.
And teach 'em all bad ways to buy affliction.
This is one path; but there are millions more,
In which we spoil our own, with leading them.
Well, I thank heaven, I never yet was he
That travell'd with my son, before sixteen.

To shew him the Venetia courtesans;
Nor read the grammar of cheating I had made,
To my sharp boy, at twelve; repeating still
The truth. Get money; still, get money, boy;
No matter by what means; money will do
More, boy, than my lord's letter. Neither have I
Drest snails or mushrooms curiously before him,
Perfum'd my sauces, and taught him how to make 'em.

Proceeding still, with my gluttony,
At all the ord'naries, and only fear'd
His palates should degenerate, not his manners.
These are the trade of fathers now; however,
My son, I hope, hath met within my threshold
None of these household precedents, which are strong.
And swift to rape youth to their precipice.

But let the house at home be ne'er so clean
Swept, or kept sweet from filth, nan dust and cobwebs,
If he will live abroad with his companions,
In dung and leysalts, it is worth a fear;
Nor is the danger of infectious less
Than all that I have mention'd of example.

[Enter BRAINWORM, disguised as before.]

Brai. [Aside.] My master I pray, faith, have at you; I am fleesh now, I have sped so well. — Worshipful sir, I beseech you, respect the estate of a poor soldier; I am shamm'd, of this base to course of life. — God's my comfort, but extremity provokes me to: what remedy?

Know. I have not for you, now.

Brai. By the faith I bear unto truth, gentleman, it is no ordinary custom in me, but only to preserve manhood, I protest to you, a man I have been: a man I may be, by your sweet bounty.

Know. Pray thee, good friend, be satisfied.

Brai. Good sir, by that hand, you may do the part of a kind gentleman, in lending a poor soldier the price of two cans of beer, a matter of small value: the king of heaven shall pay you, and I shall rest thankful. Sweet worship.

Know. Nay, an you be so importunate —

Brai. Oh, tender sir! need will have its course; I was not made to this vile use. Well, the edge of the enemy could not have abated me so much: it's hard when a man hath serv'd in his prince's cause, and be thus (Weeps). [Honourable worship, let me derive a small piece of silver from you, it shall not be given in the course of time.] By this good ground, I was fair to pawn my rapier last night for a poor supper; I had suck'd the hills long before, I am a [pagan else. Sweet honour —

Know. Believe me, I am taken with some wonder,
To think a fellow of thy outward presence, Should, in the frame and fashion of his mind,
Be so degenerate, and sordid-base.
Art thou a man, and shamm'st thou not to beg?
To practise such a servile kind of life?
Why, were thy education ne'er so mean,
Having thy limbs, a thousand fairer courses

Offer themselves to thy election.
Either the wars might still supply thy wants,
Or service of some virtuous gentleman,
Or honest labour; nay, what can I name,

But would become thee better than to beg:
But men of thy condition feed on sloth,
As doth the beetle on the dung she breeds in;
Nor caring how the metal of your minds
Is eaten with the rust of idleness.

Now, afore me, whate'er he be, that should Believe a person of thy quality,
While thou insist'st in this loose desperate course,
I would esteem the sin not thine, but his.

Brai. Faith, sir, I would gladly find some other course, if so —

Know. Ay, you'd gladly find it, but you will not seek it.

Brai. Alas, sir, where should a man seek?
In the wars, there's no ascent by desert in these days; but — and for service, would it were as soon purchase'd, as wait for! The air's my [comfort. — [Sighs] — I know what I would say.

Know. What's thy name?

Brai. Please you, Fitz-Sword, sir.

Know. Fitz-Sword!

Say that a man should entertain thee now,

Wouldst thou be honest, humble, just, and true?

Brai. Sir, by the place and honour of a soldier.

Know. Nay, nay, I like not these affected oaths. Speak plainly, man, what think'st thou of my words?

Brai. Nothing, sir, but wish my fortunes were as happy as my service should be honest.

Know. Well, follow me, I'll prove thee, if thy deeds Will carry a proportion to thy words. [Exit.]

Brai. Yes, sir, straightforward; I'll but garter my hose. Oh that my belly were hooped now, for I am ready to burst with laughing! I never was bottle or bagpipe fuller. — Slid, was there ever seen a fox in years to betray himself thus! Now shall I be possess of all his connels; [and, by that condit, my young master. Well, he is resolv'd to prove my honesty; faith, and I'm resolv'd to prove his patience: oh, I shall abuse him intolerably. This small piece of service will bring him clean out of love with the soldier for ever. He will never come within the sign of it, the sight of a cossack, or a musket-rest again. He will hate the masters at Mile-end for it, to his dying day. It's no matter, let the world think me a bad counterfeit, if I cannot give him the slip at an instant. Why, this is better than to have staid his journey. Well, I'll follow him. Oh, how I long to be employed! — [Exit.]

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter] MASTER MARSHW, WELLBRED, and BOBDILL.

Mat. Yes, faith, sir, we were at your lodging to seek you too.

WEL. Oh, I came not there to-night.

Bob. Your brother delivered us as much.

WEL. Who, my brother Downwright?

Bob. He, Mr. Wellbred, I know not in what kind you hold me; but let me say to you this: as sure as honour, I esteem it so much out of the sunshine of reputation, to throw the least beam of regard upon such a —

WEL. Sir, I must hear no ill words of my brother.

Bob. I protest to you, as I have a thing to be say’d about me, I never saw any gentleman-like part —

WEL. Good captain, faces about to some other discourse.

Bob. With your leave, sir, an there were no more men living upon the face of the earth, I should not fancy him, by St. George!

Mat. Truth, nor I; he is of a rustic cut, I know not how: he doth not carry himself like a gentleman of fashion.

WEL. Oh, master Mathew, that’s a grace peculiar but to a few, quos aequos amavi et jupiter.

Mat. I understand you, sir.

WEL. No question, you do, — [Aside] or do you not, sir.

—Enter E. KNOWELL [and STEPHEN].

Ned Knowell! by my soul, welcome: how dost thou, sweet spirit, my genius? Sli’d, I shall love Apollo and the maid Thespiian girls the better, [a] while I live, for this, my dear Fury; now I see there’s some love in thee. Sirrah, these be the two I writ to thee of: say, what a drowsy humour is this now! Why dost thou not speak?

E. Know. Oh, you are a fine gallant; you sent me a rare letter.

WEL. Why, was’t not rare?

E. Know. Yes, I’ll be sworn, I was ne’er guilty of reading the like; match it in all [a] Pliny, or Symmachus’s epistles, and I’ll have my judgment burn’d in the ear for a rogue: make much of thy vehem, for it is inimitable. But I marle [4] what came it was, that had the carriage of it; for, doubtless, he was no ordinary beast that brought it.

WEL. Why?

E. Know. “Why?” say’st thou! Why, dost thou think that any reasonable creature, especially in the morning, the sober time of the day too, could have mista’en my father for me?

WEL. ’Sli’d, you jest, I hope.

E. Know. Indeed, the best use we can turn it to, is to make a jest out’t, now: but I’ll assure you, my father had the full view of your [4] flourishing style some hour before I saw it.

1 The Old Jewry. A room in the Windmill Tavern.
2 A military term: face the opposite direction.
3 The Muse.
4 Marvel.

WEL. What a dull slave was this! But, sirrah, what said he to it, ’t faith?

E. Know. Nay, I know not what he said; but I have a shrewd guess what he thought.

WEL. What do you think?

E. Know. Marry, that thou art some strange, dissolute young fellow, and I — a grain or two better, for keeping thee company.

WEL. Tuts! That thought is like the moon in [a] her last quarter, ’t will change shortly. But, sirrah, I pray thee be acquainted with my two haug-by’s here; thou wilt take exceeding pleasure in ’em if thou hear’st ’em once go; my [4] wind-instruments; I’ll wind ’em up — but what strange piece of silence is this? The sign of the Dumb Man?

E. Know. Oh, sir, a kinsman of mine, one that may make your music the fuller, an he please; he has his humour, sir.

WEL. Oh, what is, what is’t?

E. Know. Nay, I’ll neither do your judgment nor his folly that wrong, as to prepare your apprehension; I’ll leave him to the mercy o’ your search; if you can take him, so!

WEL. Well, captain Bobdill, master Mathew, pray you know this gentleman here; he is a friend of mine, and one that will deserve your affection. — I know not your name, sir (to [a] Stephen), but I shall be glad of any occasion to render me more familiar to you.

Step. My name is master Stephen, sir; I am this gentleman’s own cousin, sir; his father is mine uncle, sir. I am somewhat melancholy, [a] but you shall command me, sir; in whatsoever is incident to a gentleman.

Bob. (to E. Knowell.) Sir, I must tell you this, I am no general man; but for master Wellbred’s sake (you may embrace it at what height of favour you please), I do communicat[e] cate with you, and conceive you to be a gentleman of some parts; I love few words.

E. Know. And I fewer, sir; I have scarce enough to thank you.

Mat. But are you, indeed, sir, so given to it?

Step. Ay, truly, sir, I am mightily given to melancholy.

Mat. Oh, it’s your only fine humour, sir: your true melancholy breeds your perfect fine wit, sir. I am melancholy myself, diver times, sir, and then do I no more but take pen and [4] paper presently, and overflow you half a score, or a dozen of sonnets at a sitting.

E. Know. (Aside.) Sure he utters them then by the gross.

Step. Truly, sir, and I love such things out of measure.

E. Know. I faith, better than in measure, I’ll undertake.

WEL. Why, I pray you, sir, make use of my [a] study; it’s at your service.

Step. I thank you, sir, I shall be bold I warrant you; have you a stool there to be melancholy upon?

Mat. That I have, sir, and some papers [a] there of mine own doing, at idle hours, that 8 Open to general acquaintance.

you'll say there's some sparks of wit in 'em, when you see them.

Wel. [Aside.] Would the sparks would kindle once, and become a fire amongst 'em! I might see self-love burnt for her heresy.

Step. Cousin, is it well? Am I melancholy enough?

E. Know. Oh ay, excellent.

Wel. Captain Bobadill, why must you so?

E. Know. He is melancholy too.

Bob. Faith, sir, I was thinking of a most honourable piece of service, was perform'd to-morrow, being St. Mark's day, shall be some ten years now.

E. Know. In what place, captain?

Bob. Why, at the belaguer of Strigionium, where, in less than two hours, seven hundred resolute gentlemen, as any were in Europe, lost their lives upon the breach. I'll tell you, gentle

E. Know. It was the first, but the best leaguer that ever I beheld with these eyes, except the taking in of — what do you call it? last year, by the Genoways; but that, of all other, was the most fatal and dangerous exploit that ever I was rang'd in, since I first bore arms before the face of the enemy, as I am a gentleman and a sol

Step. So! I had as lie as an angel I could swear as well as that gentleman.

E. Know. Then, you were a servitor at both, it seems; in Strigionium, and what do you call it?

Bob. O lord, sir! By St. George, I was the first man that ent'red the breach; and had I not effectually it with resolution, I had been slain if I had had a million of lives.

E. Know. 'T was pity you had not ten; a cat's and your own, i' faith. But, was it possible?

Mat. Pray you mark this discourse, sir.

Step. So I do.

Bob. I assure you, upon my reputation, 't is true, and yourself shall confess.

E. Know. [Aside.] You must bring me to the rack, first.

Bob. Observe me judicially, sweet sir: they had planted me three demi-culverins just in the mouth of the breach; now, sir, as we were to give on, their master-gunner (a man of no mean skill and mark, you must think), con-fronts me with his linstock, ready to give fire; I, spurning his intendments, discharg'd my petro

Bob. Without any impeach o' the earth: you shall perceive, sir. [Shews his rapier.] It is the most fortunate weapon that ever rid on poor gentleman's thigh. Shall I tell you, sir? You talk of Morgay, Exculibur, Durindana, or so; tut! I lend no credence to that as fabled of 'em. I know the virtue of mine own, and therefore I dare the boldlier maintain it.

Step. I am sure it were to Toledo or no.

Bob. A most perfect Toledo, I assure you, sir.

Step. I have a countryman of his here.

Mat. Pray you, let's see, sir; yes, faith, it is.

Bob. This a Toledo? Fear!

Step. Why do you pinch, captain?

Bob. A Fleming, by heaven! I'll buy them for a guider-piece, and I would have thousand of them.

Wel. Where bought you it, master Stephen?

Step. Of a scurvy rogue soldier: a hundred of lice go with him! He swore it was a Toledo.

Bob. A poor provant rapier, no better.

Mat. Massa, I think it be indeed, now I look on't better.

E. Know. Nay, the longer you look on't, the worse. Put it up, put it up.

Step. Well, I will put it up; but by — I have forgot the captain's oath, I thought to ha' sworn by it as an e'er I met him —

Wel. O, it is past help now, sir; you must have patience.

Step. Whoreson, coney-catching rascal! I could eat the very hilts for anger.

E. Know. A sign of good digestion; you have an ostrich stomach, cousin.

Step. A stomach! Would I had him here, you should see an I had a stomach.

Wel. It's better as 'tis. — Come, gentlemen, shall we go?

E. KNOWELL, MASTER STEPHEN, WELLERED, BOBADILL, MASTER MATHEW.

[Enter] BRAIDWORM, [disguised as before.]

E. Know. A miracle, cousin; look here, look here!

Step. Oh — God's lid. By your leave, do you know me, sir?

Brai. Ay, sir, I know you by sight.

Step. You sold me a rapier, did you not?

Brai. Yes, marry, did I, sir.

Step. You said it was a Toledo, ha?

Brai. True, I did so.

Step. But it is none.

Brai. No, sir, I confess it; it is none.

Step. Do you confess it? Gentlemen, bear witness, he has confess it: — By God's will, an you had not confess it —

E. Know. Oh, cousin, forbear, forbear!

Step. Nay, I have done, cousin.

Wel. Why, you have done like a gentleman; he has contest it, what would you more?
Step. Yet, by his leave, he is a rascal, under his favour, do you see.
E. Know. Ay, by his leave, he is, and under favour: a pretty piece of civility! Sirrah, how dost thou like him?
Wel. Oh, it's a most precious fool, make much on him. I can compare him to nothing: more happily than a drum; for every one may play upon him.
E. Know. No, no, a child's whistle were fair the fitter.
Bro. Shall I entreat a word with you?
E. Know. With me, sir? You have not another Toledo to sell, ha' you?
Bro. You are conceited, sir. Your name is Master Knowell, as I take it?
E. Know. You are i' the right; you mean not to proceed in the catechism, do you?
Bro. No, sir; I am none of that coat.
E. Know. Of as bare a coat, though. Well, say, sir.
Bro. [taking E. Know. aside.] Faith, sir, I am but servant to the drum extraordinary, and indeed, this smoky varnish being washy off, and three or four patches remove'd, I appear your worship's in reversion, after the decease of your good father, — Brainworm.
E. Know. Brainworm! 'Slight, what breath of a conjurer hath blown thee hither in this shape?
Bro. The breath o' your letter, sir, this morning; the same that blew you to the Windmill, and your father after you.
E. Know. My father!
Bro. Nay, never start, 't is true; he has follow'd you over the fields by the foot, as you would a hare i' the snow.
E. Know. Sirrah Wellbred, what shall we do, sirrah? My father is come over after me.
Wel. Thy father! Where is he?
Bro. No, sir; he is justice Clemens, house, in Coleman-street, where he but stays my return; and then —
Wel. Who's this? Brainworm!
Bro. The same, sir.
Wel. Why how, in the name of wit, com'st thou transmuted thus?
Bro. Faith, a device, a device; nay, for the love of reason, gentlemen, and avoiding the danger, stand not here; withdraw, and I'll tell you all.
Wel. But art thou sure he will stay thy return?
Bro. Do I live, sir? What a question is that!
Wel. We'll prorogue his expectation, then, a little: Brainworm, thou shalt go with us. — Come on, gentlemen. — Nay, I pray thee, in sweet Ned, droop not; heart, an our wits be so wretchedly dull, that one old plodding brain can outstrip us all, would we were o'en prest to make porters of, and serve out the remnant

EVEN MAN IN HIS HUMOUR

Cash. Exchange-time, sir.
Kit. 'Heart, then will Wellbrud presently be here too.
With one or other of his loose consorts,
I am a knave if I know what to say,
What course to take, or which way to resolve.
My brain, methinks, is like an hour-glass,
Wherein my imaginations run like sands,
Filling up time; but then are turn'd and turn'd:
So that I know not what to stay upon,
And less, to put in act. — It shall be so.
Nay, I dare build upon his secrecy,
He knows not to deceive me. — Thomas!
Cash.
Kit. Yet now I have bethumed her, too, I will not.
— Thomas, is Cob within?
Cash. I think he be, sir.
Kit. But he'll prate too, there is no speech of him.
No, there were no man o' the earth to 3 Thomas,
If I durst trust him; there is all the doubt.
But should he have a chink in him, I were gone.
Lost i' my fame for ever, talk for th' Exchange!
The manner he hath stood with, till this present,
Doth promise no such change: what should I fear then?
Well, come what will, I'll tempt my fortune once.
Thomas — you may decease me, but, I hope —
Your love to me is more — Cash. Sir, if a servant's duty, with faith, may be call'd love, you are more than in hope, you are possess'd of it.
Kit. I thank you heartily, Thomas: give me your hand:
With all my heart, good Thomas. I have, Thomas,
A secret to impart unto you — but,
When once you have it, I must seal your lips up:
So far I tell you, Thomas.
Cash. Sir, for that —
Kit. Nay, hear me out. Think I esteem you, Thomas,
When I will let you in thus to my private.
It is a thing sits nearer to my crest,
Than thou art 'ware of, Thomas; if thou should'st Reveal it, but —
Cash. How, I reveal it?
Kit. Nay, I do not think thou would'st; but if thou should'st,
'T were a great weakness.
Cash. A great treason!
Give it no other name.
Kit. Thou wilt not do 't, then?
Cash. Sir, if I do, mankind disclaim me ever!
Kit. He will not swear, he has some reservation,
Some conceal'd purpose, and close 4 meaning sure;

Else, being urg'd so much, how should he choose
But lend an oath to all this protestation?
He's no precisian, 4 that I'm certain of,
Nor rigid Roman Catholic: he'll play
At fayles, 5 and tick-tack; 6 I have heard him swear.
What should I think of it? Urge him again;
And by some other way? I will do so.
Well, Thomas, thou hast sworn not to disclose: —
Yes, you did swear?
Cash. No, sir; but I will,
Please you —
Kit. No, Thomas, I dare not take thy word,
But, if thou wilt swear, do as thou think'st good;
I am resolv'd 6 without it; at thy pleasure.
Cash. By my soul's safety then, sir, I protest,
My tongue shall ne'er take knowledge of a word,
Deliver'd me in nature of your trust.
Kit. It is too much; these ceremonies need not;
I know thy faith to be as firm as rock.
Thomas, come hither, near; we cannot be Too private in this business. So it is, — [Aside.] Now he has sworn, I dare the safelier venture.
I have of late, by divers observations —
[Aside.] But whether his oath can bind him, yea, or no.
Being not taken lawfully? Ha! say you?
I will ask council are I do not proceed: —
Thomas, it will be now too long to stay,
I'll spy some fitter time soon, or to-morrow.
Cash. Sir, at your pleasure.
Kit. I will think: — and, Thomas,
I pray you search the books 'gainst my return,
For the receipts 'twixt me and Traps.
Cash. I will, sir.
Kit. And hear you, if your mistress' brother,
Wellbrud,
Chance to bring hither any gentlemen
Ere I come back, let one straight bring me word.
Cash. Very well, sir.
Kit. To the Exchange, do you hear?
Or here in Coleman-street, to justice Clement's.
Forget it not, nor he be not out of the way.
Cash. I will not, sir.
Kit. I pray you have a care on't.
Or, whether he come or no, if any other,
Stranger, or else; fail not to send me word.
Cash. I shall not, sir.
Kit. Be't your special business
Now to remember it.
Cash. Sir, I warrant you.
Kit. But, Thomas, this is not the secret,
Thomas,
I told you of.
Cash. No, sir; I do suppose it.
Kit. Believe me, it is not.
Cash. Sir, I do believe you.
Kit. By heaven it is not, that's enough. But,
Thomas,
I would not you should utter it, do you see,
4 Puritan.
5 Games of chance, somewhat like back-gammon.
6 Convinced.
7 Before a magistrate.
To any creature living; yet I care not.
Well, I must hence. Thomas, conceive thus much;
It was a trial of you, when I meant
So deep a secret to you; I mean not this, 144
But that I have to tell you; this is nothing, this.
But, Thomas, keep this from my wife, I charge
you.
Lock'd up in silence, midnight, buried here.—
No greater hell than to be slave to fear. [Exit.]
Cash. Lock'd up in silence, midnight, buried here!
Whereas should this flood of passion, row, take head? ha!

Best dream no longer of this running humour,
For fear I sink; the violence of the stream
Already hath transported me so far,
That I can feel no ground at all. But soft — Oh, 'tis our water-bearer: somewhat has crossed him now.

SCENE IV. 1

Cash. [Enter] Cob, [hastily].

Cob. Fasting-days! what tell you me of fasting-days? 'Slid, would they all were on a light fire for me! They say the whole world shall be consum'd with fire one day, but would I had these Ember-weeks and villainous Fridays [s burnt in the mean time, and then — Cash. Why, how now, Cob? What moves thee to this choler, ha?

Cob. Collar, master Thomas! I scorn your collar, I, sir; I am none o' your cart-horse, 10 though I carry and draw water. An you offer to ride me with your collar or halter either, I may hap shew you a jade's trick, sir.
Cash. O, you'll slip your head out of the collar? Why, goodman Cob, you mistake me. 12 Cob. Nay, I have my rheum, and I can be angry as well as another, sir.
Cash. Thy rheum, Cob! Thy humour, thy humour — thou mistak'st. 3

Cob. Humour! I mock, 8 I think it be so in-indeed. What is that humour? Some rare thing,
I warrant.
Cash. Marry I'll tell thee, Cob: it is a gentleman-like monster, bred in the special gallantry of our time, by affectation, and fed by folly. 22
Cob. How! must it be fed?
Cash. Oh ay, humour is nothing if it be not fed; diest thou never hear that? It's a common phrase, Feed thy humour.
Cob. I 'll none on it: humour, avaunt! I know you not, be gone! Let who will make hun-ghry meals for your monstrosity, it shall not be
I. Feed you, quoth he! 'Slid, I ha' much ado to feed myself; especially on these lean, scantly days too; an't had been any other day but a fasting-day — a plague on them all for me! By this light, one might have done the commonwealth good service, and have drown'd them all i' the flood, two or three hundred thousand years ago. O, I do stomach 4 them hugely. I 145 have a maw 6 now, and 't were for sir Bevis his horse, against 'em.
Cash. I pray thee, good Cob, what makes thee so out of love with fasting days?
Cob. Marry, that which will make any man 66 out of love with 'em, I think; their bad conditions, an you will needs know. First, they are of a Flemish breed, I am sure on't, for they raven up more butter than all the days of the week beside; next, they stink of fish and leak-porridge miserably; thirdly, they'll keep a man devvously hungry all day, and at night send him supportless to bed.
Cash. Indeed, these are failings, Cob. 24
Cob. Nay, an this were all, 't were something;
but they are the only known enemies to my generation. A fasting-day no sooner comes, but my lineage goes to wrack; poor cob! they smoke for it, they are made martyrs o' the gridiron, they melt in passion: and your maids [s too know this, and yet would have me turn Hannibal, 6 and eat my own flesh and blood. My princely cox (Pulls out a red herring), fear no-	hing; I have not the heart to devour you, an I might be made as rich as king Cophetua. 0 that I had room for my tears, I could weep saltwater enough now to preserve the lives of ten thousand of my kin! But I may curse none but these filthy almanacs; for an't were not for them, these days of persecution would never 26 be known. I'll be hang'd an some fishmonger's son do not make of 'em, and puts in more fasting-days than he should do, because he would utter 7 his father's dried stock-fish and stinking conger.
Cash. 'Slight, peace! Thou 't be beaten like a stock-fish else. Here is master Mathew. Now must I look out for a messenger to my master.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE V. 6

[Enter] Wellbred, E. Knowell, Brain-worm, Mathew, Bobadill, and Stephen.

Wel. Beshrew me, but it was an absolute good jest, and exceedingly well carried!
E. Know. Ay, and our ignorance maintain'd it as well, did it not?
Wrl. Yes, faith; but was it possible thou shouldst not know him? I forgive master
Stephen, for he is stupidity itself.
E. Know. 'Fore God, not I, an I might have been join'd patten 9 with one of the seven wise masters for knowing him. He had so writhe 10 himself into the habit of one of your poor infantry, your decay'd, ruinous, worm-eaten gentlemen of the round; 11 such as have vowed to sit on the skirts of the city, let your provost and his half-dozen of halberdiers do what [s they can; and have translated beggaring out of the old hackney-pace to a fine easy amble, and made it run as smooth off the tongue as a shov-groat shilling. 12 Into the likeness of one of these reformado 1 had he moulded himself so perfectly, observing every trick of their action, as, varying the accent, swearing with an emphasis,

indeed, all with so special and exquisite grace, that, hadst thou seen him, thou wouldest have sworn he might have been sergeant-major, 2 if not lieutenant-colonel to the regiment. 28
Why, Brainworm, who would have thought that hadst been such an artificer?
* E. Know. An artificer! an architect. Except a man had studied begging all his life time, and been a weaver of language from his infancy for the clothing of it, I never saw his rival.
Wel. Where got’st thou this coat, I marle? 8 Brai. Of a Houndsditch man, sir, one of the devil’s near kinsmen, a broker. 32
Wel. That cannot be, if the proverb hold;
for A crafty knave needs no broker.
Brai. True, sir; but I did need a broker, 歇格——
Wel. Well put off: — no crafty knave, you’ll say.
* E. Know. Tut, he has more of these shifts.
Brai. And yet, where have I one the broker has ten, 1 sir.

[Re-enter CASH.]
Cash. Francis! Martin! Ne’er a one to be found now? What a spite’s this thin! 41
Wel. How now, Thomas? Is my brother
Kityel within?
Cash. No, sir, my master went forth o’son now; but master Downright is within. — Cob!
what, Cob! Is he gone too?
Wel. Whither went your master, Thomas, canst thou tell?
Cash. I know not: to justice Clement’s, I think, sir. — Cob!
* E. Know. Justice Clement! what’s he? 46
Wel. Why, dost thou not know him? He is a city-magistrate, a justice here, an excellent good lawyer, and a great scholar; but the only mad, merry old fellow in Europe. I show’d him you the other day.
* E. Know. Oh, is that he? I remember him
now. Good faith, and he is a very strange presence methinks; it shows as if he stood out of the rank from other men: I have heard many 52 of his jests at the University. They say he will commit a man for taking the wall of his horse.
Wel. Ay, or wearing his cloak on one shoulder, or serving of God; any thing indeed, if it come in the way of his humour.
* Cash goes in and out calling.
Cash. Gasher! Martin! Cob! ‘Heart, where should they be, torow? 53
Bob. Master Kityel’s man, pray thee vouchsafe us the lighting of this match. 54
Cash. Fire on your match! No time but now to vouchsafe? — Francis! Cob! [Exit.]
Bob. Body o’ me! here’s the remainder of seven pound since yesterday was seven-night.

1 Disbanded soldiers. 2 Major, at that time. 3 Running on the meanings of shifts: devices, and clothes.

'Tis your right Trinidad: 6 did you never take any, master Stephen?
Step. No, truly, sir; but I’ll learn to take it now, since you commend it so.
Bob. Sir, believe me upon my relation, for what I tell you, the world shall not reprieve. I have been in the Indies, where this herb grows, where neither myself, nor a dozen gentlemen more of my knowledge, have received the taste of any other nutriment in the world, for the space of one and twenty weeks, but the fume of this simple 6 only; therefore it cannot be but ’t is most divine. Further, take it in the nature, in the true kind; so, it makes an antidote, that, had you taken the most deadly poisonous plant in all Italy, it should expel it, and clarify you, with as much ease as I speak. And for 55 your green wound, — your Balsamum and your St. John’s wort, are all mere gulleries and trash to it, especially your Trinidad: your Nicotian 7 is good too. I could say what I know of the virtue of it, for the expulsion of rheums, 3 raw humours, bruises, obstructions, with a thousand of this kind; but I profess myself no psycraver. Only thus much; by Hercules, I do hold it, and will affirm it before any prince in Europe, to be the most sovereign and preclusive weed that ever the earth tendred to the use of man.
* E. Know. This speech would ha’ done decently in a tobacco-trader’s mouth.

[Re-enter CASH with COB.]
Cash. At justice Clement’s he is, in the middle of Coleman-street.
Cob. Oh, oh!
Bob. Where's the match I gave thee, master
Kityel's man?
Cash. Would his match and he, and pipe and all, were at Sancto Domingo! I had forgot it. [Exit.]
Cob. By God’s me, I marle what pleasure or felicity they have in taking this roguish tobacco. It's a good for nothing but to choke a man, and fill him full of smoke and embers. 39
There were four died out of one house last week, with taking of it, and two more the bell went for yesternight; one of them, they say, will ne'er escape it; he voided a bushel of soot yesterday, upward and downward. By 42
the stocks, an there were no wiser men than I,
I'd have it present whipping, man or woman, that should but deal with a tobacco pipe. Why, it will stiffe them all in the end, as many as use it; it's a little better than ratbane or roaker. 43
Bobadill beats him with a cudgel.
All. Oh, good captain, hold, hold!
Bob. You base cullion, you!

[Re-enter Cash.
Cash. Sir, here's your match. — Come, thou must needs be talking too, thou 'rt well enough serv'd.
Col. Nay, he will not meddle with his match, I warrant you. Well, it shall be a dear beating, as I live.

Bob. Do you prate, do you murmur?

E. Know. Nay, good captain, will you regard the hue and color of a fool? Away, knave.

Wel. Thomas, get him away.

[Exit CASH with COB.]

Bob. A whoreson filthy slave, a dunng-worm, an excrement! Body o’ Caesar, but that I soon to let forth so mean a spirit, I’d have stab’d him to the earth.

Wel. Marry, the law forbid, sir!

Bob. By Pharaoh’s foot, I would have done it.

Step. Oh, he swears most admirably! By Pharaoh’s foot! Body o’ Caesar!—I shall never do it, sure. Upon mine honour! By St. George!—No, I have not the right grace.

Mut. Master Stephen, will you any? By this air, the most divine tobacco that ever I drunk.

Step. None, I thank you, sir. O, this gentleman does it rarely too: but nothing like the other. By this air! As I am a gentleman! By—

[Exit Bos. and Mat.]

Brai. Master, glance, glance! master Wellbred! STEPHEN is practising to the post.

Step. As I have somewhat to be saved, I protest—

Wel. You are a fool; it needs no affidavit.

E. Know. Cousin, will you any tobacco?

Step. I, sir! Upon my reputation—

E. Know. How now, cousin!

Step. I protest, as I am a gentleman, but no soldier, indeed.

Wel. No master Stephen! As I remember, your name is ent’red in the artillery-garden.

Step. Ay, sir, that’s true. Cousin, may I swear “as I am a soldier” by that?

E. Know. O yes, that you may; it is all you have for your money.

Step. Then, as I am a gentleman and a soldier, it is “divine tobacco”.

Wel. But soft, where’s master Mathew? Gone?

Brai. No, sir; they went in here.

Wel. O let’s follow them. Master Mathew is gone to salute his mistress in verse; we shall ha’ the happiness to hear some of his poetry now; he never comes unfurnish’d.—Brainworm!

Step. Brainworm! Where? Is this Brainworm?

E. Know. Ay, cousin; no words of it, upon your gentility.

Step. Not I, body o’ me! By this air! St. George! and the foot of Pharaoh!

Wel. Rare! Your cousin’s discourse is simply drawn out with oaths.

E. Know. ’Tis larded with ‘em; a kind of French dressing, if you love it.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE VI. [Enter KITELY, COB.

Kit. Ha! how many are there, sayest thou? Cob. Marry, sir, your brother, master Wellbred—

Kit. Tat, beside him: what strangers are there, man?

Cob. Strangers? let me see, one, two; mass, I know not well, there are so many.

Kit. How many so many?

Cob. Ay, there’s some five or six of them at the most.

Kit. [Aside.] A swarm, a swarm!

Spite of the devil, how they sting my head With forked stinges, thus wide and large!—But, Cob.

How long hast thou been coming hither, Cob?

Cob. A little while, sir.

Kit. Didst thou come running?

Cob. No, sir.

Kit. [Aside.] Nay, then I am familiar with thy haste.

Bane to my fortunes! what meant I to marry? I, that before was rankt in such content, My mind at rest too, in so soft a peace, Being free master of mine own free thoughts, And now become a slave! What! never sigh, Be of good cheer, man; for thou art a cuckold: ‘Tis done, ‘tis done! Nay, when such flowing-stores, Plenty itself, falls in to my wife’s lap, The cornucopias will be mine, I know.—

But, Cob. What entertainment had they? I am sure My sister and my wife would bid them welcome: ha?

Cob. Like enough, sir; yet I heard not a word of it.

Kit. No—

[Aside.] Their lips were seal’d with kisses, and the voice, Drown’d in a flood of joy at their arrival, Had lost her motion, state, and faculty.— Cob, of which them was ’t that first kist my wife, My sister, I should say? My wife, alas! I fear not her; ha! who was it say’st thou?

Cob. By my troth, sir, will you have the truth in it?

Kit. Oh, ay, good Cob, I pray thee heartily, Cob. Then I am a vagabond, and fitter for Bridewell than your worship’s company, if I saw any body to be kist, unless they would have kist the post in the middle of the warehouse; for there I left them all at their tobacco, with a pox!

Kit. How! were they not gone in then ere thou cam’st?

Cob. O no, sir.

Kit. Spite of the devil! what do I stay here then?

Cob. follow me. [Exit.]

Cob. Nay, soft and fair; I have eggs on the spit; I cannot go yet, sir. Now am I, for some five and fifty reasons, hammering, hammering revenge: oh for three or four gallons of vinegar, to sharpen my wit! Revenge, vinegar revenge, vinegar and mustard revenge! Nay, an he had not lien in my house, ’twould never have grie’d me, but being my guest, one that, as I’ll be sworn, my wife has lent him her smock.

To kiss the post was a phrase meaning to be shut out.

Business to attend to.
off her back, while his own shirt has been at washing; pawn'd her neckerchiefs for clean bands for him; sold almost all my platters, to buy him tobacco; and he to turn monster of ingratitude, and strike his lawful host! Well, I hope to raise up an host of fury for 't: here comes justice Clement.

SCENE VII. 1

COB. [Enter] JUSTICE CLEMENT, KNOWELL, FORMAL.

Clem. What's master Kitely gone, Roger?

Form. Ay, sir.

Clem. 'Heart o' me! what made him leave us so abruptly? — How now, sirrah! what make you here? What would you have, ha?

Cob. An't please your worship, I am a poor neighbour of your worship's—

Clem. A poor neighbour of mine! Why, speak, poor neighbour.

Cob. I, sir, at the sign of the Water, [a tankard] hard by the Green Lattice; I have paid scot and lot; there any time this eighteen years.

Clem. To the Green Lattice?

Cob. No, sir, to the parish. Marry, I have [s] seldom scapt scot-free at the Lattice.

Clem. O, well; what business has my poor neighbour with me?

Cob. An't like your worship, I am come to crave the peace of your worship.

Clem. Of me, knave! Peace of me, knave! Did I ever hurt thee, or threaten thee, or wrong thee, ha?

Cob. No, sir; but your worship's warrant for one that has wrong'd me, sir. His arms are at too much liberty, I would fain have them bound to a treaty of peace, an my credit could compass it with your worship.

Clem. Thou goest far enough about for't, I am sure.

Know. Why dost thou go in danger of thy life for him, friend?

Cob. No, sir; but I go in danger of my death every hour, by his means; an I die within a twelve-month and a day, I may swear by the law of the land that he kill'd me.

Clem. How, how, knave, swear he kill'd thee, and by the law? What pretence, what colour, hast thou for that?

Cob. Marry, an't please your worship, both black and blue; so colour enough, I warrant you. [I have it here to shew your worship.

[Shows his bruises.]

Clem. What is he that gave you this, sirrah?

Cob. A gentleman and a soldier, he says he is, of the city here.

Clem. A soldier? the city! What call you him?

Cob. Captain Bobadill.

Clem. Bobadill! and why did he bob[6] and beat you, sirrah? How began the quarrel betwixt you, ha? Speak truly, knave, I advise you. [I have it here to shew your worship.

Cob. Marry, indeed, an't please your worship, only because I spoke against their vagrant tobacco, as I came by 'em when they were takin' on 't; for nothing else.

Clem. Has! you speak against tobacco? Formal, his name.

Form. What's your name, sirrah?

Cob. Oliver, sir, Oliver Cob, sir.

Clem. Tell Oliver Cob he shall go to the jail, Formal.

Form. Oliver Cob, my master, justice Clement, says you shall go to the jail.

Cob. O, I beseech your worship, for God's sake, dear master justice!

Clem. God's precious! an such drunkards and tankards as you are, come to dispute of tobacco once, I have done. Away with him!

Clem. What! a threadbare rascal, a beggar, a slave that never drunk out of better than piss-pot metal[6] in his life! and he to deprave and abuse the virtue of an herb so generally receiv'd in the courts of princes, the chambers of nobles, the bowers of sweet ladies, the cabins of soldiers! — Roger, away with him? By God's precious — I say, go to.

Cob. Dear master justice, let me be beaten again, I have deserv'd it: but not the prison, I beseech you.

Know. Alas, poor Oliver!

Clem. Roger, make him a warrant: — he shall not go, I but fear the knave.

Form. Do not stink, sweet Oliver, you shall not go; my master will give you a warrant.

Cob. O, the Lord maintain his worship, his worthy worship!

Clem. Away, dispatch him.

[Exeunt FORMAL and COB.]

— How now, master Knowell, in dumps, in dumps! Come, this becomes not.

Know. Sir, would I could not feel my cares.

Clem. Your cares are nothing: they are[as] like my cap, soon put on, and as soon put off. What! your son is old enough to govern himself; let him run his course, it's the only way to make him a staid man. If he were an unthinking, a ruffian, a drunkard, or a licentious liver, [as] then you had reason; you had reason to take care: but, being none of these, mirth's my witness, an I had twice so many cares as you have, I'd drown them all in a cup of saek. Come, come, let's try it: I must[8] your parcel of a[6] soldier returns not all this while.

ACT IV

SCENE I. 9

[Enter] DOWNRIGHT and DAME KITELY.

Dow. Well, sister, I tell you true; and you'll find it so in the end.

6 Pewter. 7 Frighten. 8 Wonder. 9 A room in Kitely's house.
Dame K. Alas, brother, what would you have me to do? I cannot help it; you see my brother brings 'em in here; they are his friends.

Dow. His friends! his friends. 'Slid! they do nothing but haunt him up and down like a sort of unlucky spirits, and tempt him to all manner of villainy that can be thought of. Well, by this light, a little thing would make me play [as the devil with some of 'em: an 'twere not more for your husband's sake than anything else, I'd make the house too hot for the best on 'em; they should say, and swear, hell were broken loose, ere they went hence. But, by God's will, 'tis nobody's fault but yours; for as you had [done as you might have done, they should have been parboil'd, and baked too, every mother's son, ere they should ha' come in, or a one of 'em.

Dame K. God's my life! did you ever hear the like? What a strange man is this! Could I keep out all them, think you? I should put myself against half a dozen men, should I? Good faith, you'd mad the patient's body in the world, to hear you talk so, without any sense or reason.

SCENE II.1

DOWNRIGHT, DAME KITELY. [Enter] MISTRESS BRIDGER, MASTER MATTHEW, and BOBADILL; [followed, at a distance, by] WELLBRED, E. KNOWELL, STEPHEN, and BRAINWORM.

Brid. Servant,2 in troth you are too prodigal Of your wit's treasure, thus to pour it forth Upon so mean a subject as my worth.

Mat. You say well, mistress, and I mean as well.

Dow. Hoy-day, here is stuff! 5

Wed. O, now stand close;6 pray Heaven, she can get him to read! He should do it of his own natural impudence.

Brid. Servant, what is this same, I pray you? Mat. Marry, an elegy, an elegy, an odd toy —

Dow. To mock an ape withal! Oh, I could (as I sew up his mouth, now.

Dame K. Sister, I pray you let 's hear it.

Dow. Are you rhymegiven too?

Mat. Mistress, I 'll read it, if you please.

Brid. Pray you do, servant.

Dow. O, here 's no foppery! Death! I can endure the stocks better. [Exeunt.] 8

E. Know. What aileth thy brother? Can he not hold his water at reading of a ballad?

Wed. O, no; a rhyme to him is worse than cheese, or a bag-pipe; but mark; you lose the protestation.

Mat. Faith, I did it in a humour; I know not how it is; but please you come near, sir. This is gentleman's judgment, he knows how to censor of a — pray you, sir, you can judge?

Step. Not I, sir; upon my reputation, and by the foot of Pharaoh!

Wed. O, chide your cousin for swearing.

E. Know. Not I, so long as he does not forswear himself.

Bob. Master Mathew, you abuse the expectation of your dear mistress, and her fair sister. Fare! while you live, avoid this prolixity.

Mat. I shall, sir, well; incipere dulce.9

E. Know. How, incipere dulce?10 "a sweet thing to be a fool," indeed!

Wed. What, do you take incipere in that sense?

E. Know. You do not, you! This was your villainy, to glut him with a mot.

Wed. O, the benchers'11 phrase: pausa verba. pausa verba!

Mat. [Reads.] Rare creature, let me speak without offence, Would God my rude words had the influence To rule thy thoughts, as thy fair looks do mine, Then shouldst thou be his prisoner, who is thine. E. Know. This is "Hero and Leander."

Wed. O, ay: peace, we shall have more of this.

Mat. Be not unkind and fair: misspoken stuff Is of behaviour boisterous and rough.

Wed. How like you that, sir?

Master Stephen answers with shaking his head.

E. Know. 'Slight, he shakes his head like a blossom, to feel an there be any brain in it.

Mat. But observe the catastrophe, now: And I in duty will exceed all other, As you in beauty do excel Love's mother.

E. Know. Well, I'll have him free of the wit-brokers, for he it utter noth ing but stol'n remnants.

Wed. O, forgive it him.

E. Know. A filching rogue, hang him! — and from the dead! It's worse than sacrilege. [Exeunt.

Wed. Sister, what ha' you here? Verses? Pray you, let 's see. Who made these verses? They are excellent good.

Mat. O, Master Wellbred, 'tis your disposition to say so, sir. They were good i' the morning: I made them ex tempore this morning.

Wed. How I ex tempore? 7

Mat. Ay, would I might be hang'd else; ask Captain Bobadill; he saw me write them, at the — box on it — the Star, yonder.

Brai. Can he find in his heart to curse the stars so?

E. Know. Faith, his are even with him; they ha' curst him enough already.

Step. Cousin, how do you like this gentleman's verses?

E. Know. O, admirable! the best that ever I heard, once.

Step. Body o'Caesar, they are admirable! the best that I ever heard, as I am a soldier! 8

[Re-enter Downright.]

Dow. I am vexed, I can hold no'er a bone of me still. 'Heart, I think they mean to build and breed here.

Wed. Sister, you have a simple servant here, 8

1 The same. 2 Lover. 3 Aside.

4 To gull a fool with. Proverbal.
that crowns your beauty with such encomiums and devices; you may see what it is to be the mistress of a wit that can make your perfections so transparent, that every bare eye may look through them, and see him drown'd over head and ears in the deep well of desire. Sister Kitley, I marvel you get you not a servant that can rhyme, and do tricks too. 95

Dow. O monster! Impudence itself! tricks! 96

Dame K. Tricks, brother! what tricks? 97

Brid. Nay, speak, I pray you, what tricks? 98

Dame K. Ay, never spare any body here; but say, what tricks? 99

Brid. Passion of my heart, do tricks! 100

Wel. 'Slight, here's a trick vied and revied! 101

Why, you monkeys, you, what a cater-wauling, do you keep! Has he not given you rhymes and verses and tricks? 102

Dow. O, the fiend! 103

Wel. Nay, you lamp of virginity, that take it in amn. 2 so, come, and cherish this tame poetical fury in your servant; you'll be begg'd else shortly for a concealement: go to, reward his muse. You cannot give him less than a shilling in conscience, for the book he had it out of cost him a teston at least. How now, gallants! 104

Master Mathew! Captain! what, all sons of silence? No spirit? 105

Dow. Come, you might practise your ruffian tricks somewhere else, and not here, I wuss; this is no tavern nor drinking-school, to vent your exploits in. 106

Wel. How now, whose cow has calv'd? 107

Dow. Marry, that has mine, sir. Nay, boy, never look askance at me for the matter; I'll tell you of it, I, sir; you and your companions mend yourselves when I ha' done. 108

Wel. My companions! 109

Dow. Yes, sir, your companions, so I say; I am not afraid of you, nor them neither; your hangbypes here. You must have your poets and your pollings, your soldados and foolados to 110 follow you up and down the city; and here they must come to domineer and swagger. — Sirrah, you ballad-singer, and Slops! your fellow there, get you out, get you home; or by this steel, I'll cut off your ears, and that presently. 111

Wel. 'Slight, stay, let's see what he dare do; cut off his ears! cut a whetstone. You are an ass, do you see? Touch any man here, and by this hand I'll run my rapiers to the hiltes in you. 112

Dow. Yes, that would I fain see, boy.

They all draw, and they of the house make out to part them.

Dame K. O Jean! murder! Thomas! Gasper! 113

Brid. Help, help! Thomas! 114

E. Know. Gentlemen, forbear, I pray you. 115

Bob. Well, sirrah, you Holofernes; by my hand, I will pink your flesh full of holes with my rapier for this; I will, by this good heaven! Nay, let him move; let him move; gentle men; by the body of St. George, I'll not kill him.

Offer to fight again, and are parted.

Cash. Hold, hold, good gentlemen.

Dow. You whoreson, bragging coysstrill! 8

SCENE III. 9

To them [enter] Kitley.

Kit. Why, how now! what's the matter, what's the stir here? 116

Whence springs the quarrel? Thomas! where is he? 117

Put up your weapons, and put off this rage.

My wife and sister, they are the cause of this.

What, Thomas! where is the knife? 118

Cash. Here, sir.

Wel. Come, let's go; this is one of my brother's ancient humours, this.

Step. I am glad nobody was hurt by his ancient humour. 119

[Exeunt Wellbred, Stephen, E. Knowell, Bobadill, and Brainworm.]

Kit. Why, how now, brother, who enfor'd this brawl? 120

Dow. A sort 10 of lewd rake-hells, that care neither for God nor the devil. And they must come here to read ballads, and rogukery, and [4 trash! I'll mar the knot of 'em ere I sleep, perhaps; especially Bob there, he that's all manner of shapes: and Songs and Sonnets, his fellow.

Brid. Brother, indeed you are too violent,

Too sudden in your humour: and you know 121

My brother Wellbred's temper will not bear

Any reproof, chiefly in such a presence,

Where every slight disgrace he should receive

Might wound him in opinion and respect. 122

Dow. Respect! what talk you of respect among such as ha' nor spark of manhood nor good manners? 'Sdoes, I am asham'd to hear you! respect! [Exit.]

Brid. Yes, there was one a civil gentleman,

And very worthily demean'd himself. 123

Kit. O, that was some love of yours, sister.

Brid. A love of mine! I would it were no worse, brother;

You'd pay my portion sooner than you think for,

Dame K. Indeed he seem'd to be a gentle— [13 man of a very exceeding fair disposition, and of excellent good parts.

[Exeunt Dame Kitley and Bridget.]

Kit. Her love, by heaven! my wife's minion.

Fair disposition: excellent good parts;

Death! these phrases are intolerable.

Good parts! how should she know his parts? 124

His parts! Well, well, well, well, well, well!

It is too plain, too clear: Thomas, come hither.

What, are they gone? 125

Lackey. 126

The same. 127

Note. 1. To vise and revie meant to stake a sum and cover it with a higher.

2. Are offended.

3. This is a reference to the unauthorised holding of sequestered lands, such as those which had belonged to the Church. Queen Elizabeth had appointed commissions to search such holdings over concealmants, which her courtiers often "begged."

4. Sirrence.

5. Topers.

6. I-wis, assuredly.

7. Loose breeches: Bobadill.
Cash. Ay, sir, they went in.

My mistress and your sister —

Kit. Are any of the gallants within?

Cash. No, sir; they are all gone.

Kit. Art thou sure of it?

Cash. I can assure you, sir.

Kit. What gentleman was that they prais’d so, Thomas?

Cash. One, they call him Master Knowell, [as a handsome young gentleman, sir.]

Kit. Ay, I thought so; my mind gave me as much.

I’ll die, but they have hid him i’ the house

Somewhere; I’ll go and search; go with me,

Thomas:

Be true to me, and thou shalt find me a master. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV. [Enter] Cob.

Cob. [knocks at the door.] What, Tib! Tib, I say!

Tib. [within.] How now, what cuckold is that knocks so hard?

[Enter Tib.]

O, husband! is it you? What’s the news? Cob. Nay, you have stunn’d me, i’ faith; you ha’ giv’n me a knock o’ the forehead which will stick by me. Cuckold! ’Slid, cuckold!

Tib. Away, you fool! did I know it was you that knockt? Come, come, you may call me as bad when you list. Cob. May I? Tib, you are a whore.

Tib. You lie in your breath, husband.

Cob. How, the lie! and in my throat too! do you long to be stabb’d, ha?

Tib. Why, you are no soldier, I hope.

Cob. O, must you be stabb’d by a soldier?

Mass, that’s true! When was Bobadill here, your captain? that rogue, that foist, that fencing Burgullion? I’ll tickle him, i’ faith.

Tib. Why, what’s the matter, trow? Cob. O, he has basted me rarely, sumptuously! but I have it here in black and white [Pulls out the warrant], for his black and blue shall pay him. O, the justice, the honestest old brave [as Trojan in London; I do honour the very fleas of his dog. A plague on him, though, he put me once in a villainous filthy fear; marry, it vanished away like the smoke of tobacco; but I was smok’d soundly first. I thank the devil, so and his good angel, my guest. Well, wife, or Tib, which you will, get you in, and lock the door; I charge you let nobody in to you, wife; nobody in to you; those are my words: not Captain Bob himself, nor the fiend in his likeness. You are a woman, you have flesh and blood enough in you to be tempted; therefore keep the door shut upon all comers.

Tib. I warrant you, there shall nobody enter here without my consent.

Cob. Nor with your consent, sweet Tib; and so I leave you.

Tib. It’s more than you know, whether you leave me so.

Cob. How?

Tib. Why, sweet. Cob. Tut, sweet or sour, thou art a flower.

Keep close thy door, I ask no more. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V. [Enter] E. Knowell, Wellbred, Stephen, and Brainworm, disguised as before.

E. Know. Well, Brainworm, perform this business happily, and thou makest a purchase of my love for ever.

Wel. I’ faith, now let thy spirits use their best facultys: but, at any hand, remember [s the message to my brother; for there’s no other means to start him.

Brain. I warrant you, sir; fear nothing; I have a nimble soul has wait’d all forces of my phantASM by this time, and put ’em in true [as motion. What you have posset’d me withal, I’ll discharge it amply, sir; make it no question.

[Exit.]

Wels. Forth, and prosper, Brainworm. Faith, Ned, how dost thou approve of my abilities in this device?

E. Know. Troth, well, howsoever; but it will come excellent if it take.

Wel. Take, man! why it cannot choose but take, if the circumstances miscarry not: [as but, tell me ingenuously, dost thou affect my sister Bridget as thou pretend’st?

E. Know. Friend, am I worth belief?

Wel. Come, do not protest. In faith, she is a maid of good ornament, and much mod- [as easy; and, except I conceive’d very worthily of her, thou shou’dst not have her.

E. Know. Nay, that I am afraid, will be a question yet, whether I shall have her, or no.

Wel. ’Slid, thou shalt have her; by this light thou shalt.

E. Know. Nay, do not swear.

Wel. By this hand thou shalt have her; I’ll go fetch her presently. ’Point but where to meet, and as I am an honest man I’ll bring her. E. Know. Hold, hold, be temperate.

Wel. Why, by — what shall I swear by? Thou shalt have her, as I am — E. Know. Pray thee, be at peace, I am satisfied; and do believe thou wilt omit no [as offered occasion to make my desires complete. Wel. Thou shalt see, and know, I will not. [Exeunt.]

Form. Was your man a soldier, sir?

Know. Ay, a knave; I took him begging o’ the way, this morning, As I came over Moorfields.

* A room in the Windmill Tavern.

* The Old Jewry.

* The Lane before Cob’s house.

* Ghost.

* Bully.

* Usually, found out; but here, apparently, frighted.
[Enter Brainworm, disguised as before.]

O, here he is! — you’ve made fair speed, believe me.

Where, i’ the name of aloth, could you be thus?

Brai. Marry, peace be my comfort, where I thought I should have had little comfort of your worship’s service.

Know. How so?

Brai. O, sir, your coming to the city, your entertainment of me, and your sending me to watch—indeed all the circumstances either of your charge, or my employment, are as open to your son, as to yourself.

Know. How should that be, unless that villain, Brainworm,

Have told him of the letter, and discover’d All that I strictly charg’d him to conceal?

’Tis so.

Brai. But, how should he know thee to be my man?

Brai. Nay, sir, I cannot tell; unless it be by the black art. Is not your son a scholar, sir?

Know. Yes, but I hope his soul is not allied Unto such hellish practices: if it were, I had just cause to weep my part in him, And curse the time of his creation.

But, where didst thou find them, Fitz-Sword?

Brai. You should rather ask where they found me, sir; for I’ll be sworn, I was going along in the street, thinking nothing, when, of a sudden, a voice calls, “Mr. Knowell’s man!” another cries, “Soldier!” and thus half a dozen of ’em, till they had call’d me within a house, where I no sooner came, but they seem’d men, and out flew all their [as rapiers at my bosom, with some three or four score oaths to accompany them; and all to tell me, I was but a dead man, if I did not confess where you were, and how I was employed, and about what: which when they could not get [out of me (as, I protest, they must ha’ dissected, and made an anatomy o’ me first, and so I told ’em), they lock’d me up into a room i’ the top of a high house, whence by great miracle (having a light heart) I slid down by a [as bottom of packthread into the street, and so escape. But, sir, thus much I can assure you, for I heard it while I was lockt up, there were a great many rich merchants and brave citizens’ wives with ’em at a feast; and your son, [as master Edward, withdrew with one of ’em, and has pointed to meet her anon at one Cob’s house, a water-bearer that dwells by the Wall. Now, there your worship shall be sure to take him, for there he preys, and fail he will not.

Know. Nor will I fail to break his match, I doubt not.

Go thou along with justice Clement’s man, And stay there for me. At one Cob’s house, sayst thou?

—Brai. Ay, sir, there you shall have him. [Exit Knowell.]

Yes—invisible! Much wench, or much son I slight, when he has staid there three or four hours, travelling with the expectation of wonders, and at length be deliver’d of air! O the sport that I should then take to look on him, if I durst! But now, I mean to appear no more afore him in this shape: I have another trick to act yet. O that I were so happy as to light on a nupson! now of this justice’s novice! — Sir, I make you stay somewhat long.

Form. Not a whit, sir. Pray you what do you mean, sir?

Brai. I was putting up some papers.

Form. You ha’ been lately in the wars, sir, it seems.

Brai. Marry have I, sir, to my loss, and expense of all, almost.

Form. Truth, sir, I would be glad to bestow a bottle of wine o’ you, if it please you to accept it.

Brai. O, sir—

Form. But to hear the manner of your services, and your devices in the wars. They say they are very strange, and not like those as a man reads in the Roman histories, or sees at Mile-end.

Brai. No, I assure you, sir; why at any time when it please you, I shall be ready to discourse to you all I know; [Aside.] — and more too somewhat.

Form. No better time than now, sir; we’ll go to the Windmill; there we shall have a cup of neat grist, we call it. I pray you, sir, let me request you to the Windmill.

Brai. I’ll follow you, sir; [Aside.] — and make grist o’ you, if I have good luck.

[Exeunt.]

Mat. Sir, did your eyes ever taste the like clown of him where we were to-day, Mr. Wellbred’s half-brother? I think the whole earth cannot shew his parallel, by this daylight.

E. Know. We were now speaking of him: [as captain Bobadill tells me he is fall’n foul o’ you too.

Mat. O, ay, sir, he threat’ned me with the bastinado.

Bob. Ay, but I think, I taught you pre-[vention this morning, for that. You shall kill him beyond question, if you be so generously minded.

Mat. Indeed, it is a most excellent trick.

Bob. O, you do not give spirit enough to your motion; you are too tardy, too heavy! O, it must be done like lightning, hay!

Practises at a post.

Mat. Rare, captain!
Bob. Tut! 'tis nothing, an't be not done in a —punto. 2

E. Know. Captain, did you ever prove your-sell upon any of our masters of defence here? 30
Mat. Well, yes; I hope he has.
Bob. I will tell you, sir. Upon my first coming to the city, after my long travel for know— [32 ledge in that mystery only, there came three or d four of 'em to me, at a gentleman's house, where my chance to be resident at that time, to intreat my presence at their schools:
and withal so much important'd me that, [33
I protest to you as I am a gentleman, I was asham'd of their rude demeanour out of all measure. Well, I told 'em that to come to a public school, they should pardon me, it was opposite, in diameter, to my humour; but if [34 so be they would give their attendance at my lodging, I protested to do them what right or favour I could, as I was a gentleman, and so forth.

E. Know. So, sir! then you tried their skill? 35
Bob. Alas, soon tried: you shall hear, sir. [36
Within two or three days after they came:
and, by honesty, fair sir, believe me, I grace'd them exceedingly, shew'd them some two or three tricks of prevention have purchas'd [37
'em since a credit to admiration. They cannot deny this; and yet now they hate me; and why? Because I am excellent; and for no other vile reason on the earth.

E. Know. This is strange and barbarous, [38
as ever I heard.

Bob. Nay, for a more instance of their preposterior natures, but note, sir. They have assaulted me some three, four, five, six of them together, as I have walkt alone in divers skirts
'town, as Turnbull, Whitechapel, [39
Shoreditch, 4 which were then my quarters; and since, upon the Exchange, at my lodging, and at my ordinary; where I have driven them afore me the who's length of a street, in the [40 open view of all our gallants, pitying to hurt them, believe me. Yet all this leisure not o'ercome their spleen; they will be doing with the pismire, 5 raising a hill a man may speak abroad with his foot at pleasure. By myself, [41
I could have slain them all, but I delight not in murder. I am loth to bear any other than this bustinado for 'em; yet I hold it good polity not to do disarm'd, for though I be skillful, I may be oppress'd with multitudes.

E. Know. Ay, believe me, may you, sir; and in my conceit, our whole nation should sustain the loss by it, if it were so.

Bob. Alas, no? what's a peculiar 4 man to a nation? Not seen.

E. Know. O, but your skill, sir.

Bob. Indeed, that might be some loss; but who respects it? I will tell you, sir, by the way of private, and under seal; I am a gentleman, and live here obscure, and to myself; but [42 were I known to her majesty and the lords.— observe me,—I would undertake, upon this poor head and life, for the public benefit of the state, not only to spare the entire lives of her subjects in general; but to save the one half, [43 nay, three parts of her yearly charge in holding war, and against what enemy soever. And how would I do it, think you?

E. Know. Nay, I know not, nor can I conceive.

Bob. Why thus, sir. I would select nineteen more, to myself, throughout the land; gentlemen they should be of good spirit, strong and able constitution; I would choose them by an instinct, a character that I have; and I would teach these nineteen the special rules, as your [45 ponto, your reverso, your siocca, your imboccato, your passada, your montante: * till they could all play very near, or altogether, as well as myself. This done, say the enemy were forty thousand strong, we twenty would come into the [46 field the tenth of March, or thereabouts; and we would challenge twenty of the enemy; they could not in their honour refuse us: well, we would kill them; challenge twenty more, kill [47 them; twenty more, kill them; twenty more, kill them too; and thus would we kill every man his twenty a day, that is twenty score; twenty score, that's two hundred; 5 two hundred a day, five days a thousand: forty thousand; forty times five, five times forty, two hundred [48 days kills them all up by computation. And this will I venture my poor gentleman-like carcarse to perform, provided there be no treason practiced upon us, by fair and discreet manhood; [49 that is, civilly by the sword.

E. Know. Why, are you so sure of your hand, captain, at all times?

Bob. Tut! never miss thrust, upon my reputation with you.

E. Know. I would not stand in Downright's [50 state then, as you meet him, for the wealth of any one street in London.

Bob. Why, sir, you mistake me: if he were here now, by this walk, I would not draw my weapon on him. Let this gentleman do his [51 mind; but I will bastinado him, by the bright sun, wherever I meet him.

Mat. Faith, and I'll have a flogging at him,
at my distance.

E. Know. 'God's so, look where he is! yonder
he goes.

DOWNRIGHT walks over the stage.

Don. What peevish luck have I, I cannot meet with these bragging rascals?

Bob. It is not he, is it?

E. Know. Yes, faith, it is he.

Mat. I'll be hang'd, then, if that were he.

E. Know. Sir, keep your hanging good for some greater matter, for I assure you that was he.

Step. Upon my reputation, it was he.

Bob. Had it thought it had been he, he must not have gone so: but I can hardly be induc'd [52 to believe it was he yet.

E. Know. That I think, sir.

EVEry MAN IN HIS HUMOUR

IV. viii.

[Re-enter Downright.]

But see, he is come again.

Dow. O, Pharaoh's foot, have I found you? Come, draw, to your tools; draw, gipsy, or I'll thrash you.

Bob. Gentleman of valour, I do believe in thee; hear me —

Dow. Draw your weapon then.

Bob. Tall man, I never thought on it till now — body of me, I had a warrant of the peace served on me, even now as I came along, by a water-bearer; this gentleman saw it, [Exit Master Mathew.

Dow. 'S death! you will not draw then? Beats and disarm him. Mathew runs away.

Bob. Hold, hold! under thy favour forbear!

Dow. Prate again, as you like this, you [whoreson f oist' you! You'll "control the point," you! Your consort is gone; had he staid he had shad with you, sir. [Exit.

Bob. Well, gentlemen, bear witness, I was bound to the peace, by this good day.

E. Know. No, faith, it's an ill day, captain; never reckon it other: but, say you were bound to the peace, the law allows you to defend yourself; that'll prove but a poor excuse.

Bob. I cannot tell, sir; I desire good con-

[Enter] Kitely, Wellbred, Dame Kitely, and Bridget.

Kit. Now, trust me, brother, you were much to blame, 'T incense his anger, and disturb the peace Of my poor house, where there are sentinels That every minute watch to give alarms Of civil war, without adjuration Of your assistance or occasion.

SCENE VIII.4

[Enter] Kitely, Wellbred, Dame Kitely, and Bridget.

Kit. Now, trust me, brother, you were much to blame, 'T incense his anger, and disturb the peace Of my poor house, where there are sentinels That every minute watch to give alarms Of civil war, without adjuration Of your assistance or occasion.

Wel. No harm done, brother, I warrant you. Since there is no harm done, anger costs a man nothing; and a tall man is never his own man till he be angry. To keep his valour in obscurity, is to keep himself as it were in a cloak-bag. What's a musician, unless he play? What's a tall man unless he fight? For, indeed, all this my wise brother stands upon absolutely; and that made me fall in with him so resolutely.11

Dame K. Ay, but what harm might have come of it, brother?

Wel. Might, sister? So might the good warm clothes your husband wears be poison'd, for any thing he knows: or the wholesome wine he [drank, even now at the table.

Kit [Aside]. Now, God forbid! O me! now I remember My wife drank to me last, and chang'd the cup, And bade me wear this cursed suit to-day. See, if Heaven suffer murder undiscover'd! — w I feel me ill; give me some mithridate.6 Some mithridate and oil, good sister, fetch me; O, I am sick at heart, I burst, I burst. If you will save my life, go fetch it me.

Wel. O strange humour! my very breath [has poison'd him.

Brid. Good brother, be content, what do you mean? The strength of these extreme conceits will kill you.

Dame K. Beavish your heart-blood, brother Wellbred, now.

For putting such a toy into his head!

Wel. Is a fit simile a toy? Will he be poison'd with a simile? Brother Kitely, what a strange and idle imagination is this! For shame, be wiser. O my soul, there's no such matter.

Kit. Am I not sick? How am I then not poison'd?

Am I not poison'd? How am I then so sick?

Dame K. If you be sick, your own thoughts make you sick.

Wel. His jealousy is the poison he has taken.

Enter Brainworm, disguised like justice Clement's man.

Brai. Master Kitely, my master, justice [Clement, salutes you; and desires to speak with you with all possible speed.

Kit. No time but now, when I think I am sick, very sick! Well, I will wait upon his worship. Thomas! Cob! I must seek them out, and set 'em sentinels till I return. Thomas! Cob! [Exit.

Wel. This is perfectly rare, Brainworm; [Takes him aside] but how got'st thou this apparel of the justice's man?5

Brai. Marry, sir, my proper fine pen-man would needs bestow the gist o' me, at the Windmill, to hear some martial discourse; where I so marshall'd him, that I made him drunk with admiration: and, because too much heat was the cause of his distemper, I stript [him stark naked as he lay along asleep, and borrowed his suit to deliver this counterfeit message in, leaving a rusty armour, and an old brown bill to watch him till my return; which shall be, when I ha' pawn'd his apparel, and [spent the better part o' the money, perhaps.

Wel. Well, thou art a successful merry knave, [pilas used as a general antidote.

Fancies.
Brainworm: his absence will be a good subject for more mirth. I pray thee return to thy young master, and will him to meet me and my sister Bridget at the Tower instantly; for here, tell him, the house is so stor'd with jealousy, there is no room for love to stand upright in. We must get our fortunes committed to some larger prison, say; and then the Tower, I know no better air, nor where the liberty of the house may do us more present service. Away! [Exit Brainworm.]

[Re-enter KITELY, talking aside to CASH.]

And thus shall have it: lay to both thine ears.
Hark what I say to thee. I must go forth,
Thomas;
Be careful of thy promise, keep good watch,
Note every gillant, and observe him well,
That enters in my absence to thy mistress:—
If she would shew him rooms, the jest is stale,
Follow 'em, Thomas, or else hang on him,
And let him not go after; mark their looks;
Note if she offer but to see his hand,
Or any other amorous toy about him;
But praise his leg, or foot: or if she say
The day is hot, and bid him feel her hand,
How hot it is; O, that's a monstrous thing!
Note me all this, good Thomas, mark their sights,
And if they do but whisper, break 'em off:
I'll bear thee out in it. Wilt thou do this?
Wilt thou be true, my Thomas?

Cash.

As truth's self, sir. [Exit.]

Kit. Why, I believe thee. Where is Cob, now? Cob!

Dame K. He's ever calling for Cob: I wonder how he employs Cob so.

Wen. Indeed, sister, to ask how he employs Cob, is a necessary question for you that are his wife, and a thing not very easy for you to be satisfied in; but this I'll assure you, Cob's wife is an excellent bailiff, sister, and oftentimes your husband; and so I tell him, Cob's wife, marry, to what end? I cannot altogether accuse him, I imagine you what you think convenient: but I have known fair hides have foul hearts ere now, sister. [Exit.]

Dame K. Never said you truer than that, brother, so much I can tell you for your learning. Thomas, fetch your cloak and go with me. [Exit Cash.]

I'll after him presently: I would to fortune I could take him there, I faith. I'd return him his own, I warrant him. [Exit.]

Wen. So, let 'em go; this may make sport anon.
Now, my fair sister-in-law, that you knew but how happy a thing it were to be fair and beautiful.

Brid. That touches not me, brother.

Wen. That's true; that's even the fault of it; for indeed, beauty stands a woman in no stead, unless it procure her touching. But, sister, whether it touch you or no, it touches your beautees; and I am sure they will abide the touch; and an they do not, a plague of all cer-

1 "As the Tower was extra-parochial, it probably afforded some facility to private marriages." (Gifford.)

use, say I! and it touches me too in part, [136] though not in the — Well, there's a dear and respected friend of mine, sister, stands very strongly and worthily affected toward you, and hath vow'd to inflame whole bonfires of zeal at his heart, in honour of your perfections. I have already engag'd my promise to bring you where you shall hear him confirm much more. Ned Knoulse is the man, sister: there's no exception against the party. You are ripe for a husband; and a minute's loss to such an [145] occasion is a great trespass in a wise beauty. What say you, sister? On my soul he loves you; will you give him the meeting?

Brid. Faith, I had very little confidence in mine own constancy, brother, if I durst not [147] meet a man: but this motion of yours savours of an old knight adventurer's servant a little too much, methinks.

Wen. What's that, sister?

Brid. Marry, of the squire. [148]

Wen. No matter if it did, I would be such an one for my friend. But see, who is return'd to hinder us!

[Re-enter Kitely.]

Kit. What villainy is this? Call'd out on a false message!

This was some plot; I was not sent for. — Bridget.

Where is your sister?

Brid. I think she be gone forth, sir.

Kit. How is my wife gone forth? Whither, for God's sake?

Brid. She's gone abroad with Thomas.

Kit. Abroad with Thomas! oh, that villain done me:

He hath discover'd all unto my wife. [150]

Beast that I was, to trust him! Whither, I pray you Went she?

Brid. I know not, sir.

Wen. I'll tell you, brother, Whither I suspect she's gone.

Kit. Whither, good brother? Wen. To Cob's house, I believe: but, keep my counsel.

Kit. I will, I will: to Cob's house! Doth she haunt Cob's?

She's gone a purpose now to cuckold me

With that swound rascal, who, to win her favour,

Hath told her all. [Exit.]

Wen. Come, he is once more gone,

Sister, let 's lose no time; th' affair is worth it.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IX.

[Enter] MATHEW and BOBADILL.

Mat. I wonder, captain, what they will say of my going away, ha?

Bob. Why, what should they say, but as of a discreet gentleman; quick, wary, respectful of nature's fair lineaments? and that's all.

Mat. Why so? but what can they say of your beating?

1 White lead, used as a cosmetic.

EVERY MAN IN HIS HUMOUR

241

Bob. A rude part, a touch with soft wood, a kind of gross batterie us’d, laid on strongly, borne most patiently; and that’s all.

Mat. Ay, but would any man have offered it in Venice, as you say?

Bob. Tut! I assure you, no: you shall have there your nobilitis, your gentilezza, come in bravely upon your reverse, stand you close, is stand you firm, stand you fair, save your retriciato with his left leg, come to the assas in the right, thrust with brave steel, defy your base wood! But wherefore do I awake this remembrance? I was fascinated, by Jupiter; fascinated, but I will be unwitch’d and reveng’d by law.

Mat. Do you hear? Is it not best to get a warrant, and have him arrested and brought before justice Clement?

Bob. It were not amiss; Would we had it!

[Enter Brainworm disguised as formal.]

Mat. Why, here comes his man; let’s speak to him.

Bob. Agreed, do you speak.

Mat. Save you, sir.

Brai. With all my heart, sir.

Mat. Sir, there is one Downright hath abused this gentleman and myself, and we determine to make our amends by law. Now, if you would do us the favour to procure a warrant to (as bring him afore your master; you shall be well considered, I assure you, sir.

Brai. Sir, you know my service is my living; such favours as these gotten of my master is his only preferment, and therefore you must consider me as I may make benefit of my place.

Mat. How is that, sir?

Brai. Faith, sir, the thing is extraordinary, and the gentleman may be of great account; yet, be he what he will, if you will lay me down a brace of angels in my hand you shall have it, otherwise not.

Mat. How shall we do, captain? He asks a brace of angels; you have no money?

Bob. Not a cross, by fortune.

Mat. Nor I, as I am a gentleman, but two, as pence left of my two shillings in the morning for wine and radish: let’s find him some pawn.

Bob. Pawn! we have none to the value of his demand.

Mat. O, yes! I’ll pawn this jewel in my ear, and you may pawn your silk stockings, and pull up your boots, they will never be mist: it must be done now.

Bob. Well, an there be no remedy, I’ll step aside and pull ’em off.

[Withdraws.]

[Enter Bob. and Mat.]

Brai. What manner of man is he?

Mat. A tall big man, sir; he goes in a cloak most commonly of silk russet, laid about with russet lace.

Brai. ’Tis very good, sir.

Mat. Here, sir, here’s my jewel.

Bob. [returning.] And here are stockings.

Brai. Well, gentlemen, I’ll procure you this warrant presently; but who will you have to serve it?

Mat. That’s true, captain: that must be considered.

Bob. Body o’ me, I know not; ’tis service of danger.

Brai. Why, you were best get one o’ the varlets o’ the city, a serjeant: I’ll appoint you one, if you please.

Mat. Will you, sir? Why, we can wish no better.

Bob. We’ll leave it to you, sir.

[Exit Bob. and Mat.]

Brai. This is rare! Now will I go and pawn this cloak of the justice’s man’s at the brok- er’s for a varlet’s suit, and be the varlet myself; and get either more pawns, or more money of Downright, for the arrest.

[Exit.]

SCENE X.

[Enter Knowell.]

Know. Oh, here it is; I am glad I have found it now.

Ho! who is within here?

Tib. [within.] I am within, sir? What’s your pleasure?

Know. To know who is within besides yourself.

Tib. Why, sir, you are no constable, I hope?

Know. O, fear you the constable? Then I doubt not you have some guests within deserve that fear. I’ll fetch him straight.

[Enter Tib.]

Tib. O! God’s name, sir!

Know. Go to; some tell me, is not young Knowell here?

Tib. Young Knowell! I know none such, sir, o’ mine honesty.

Know. Your honesty, dame! It flies too lightly from you.

There is no way but fetch the constable.

Tib. The constable! The man is mad, I think.

[Exit, and claps to the door.]

[Enter Dame Kitley and Cash.]

Cash. Ho! who keeps house here?

Know. O, this is the female copesmate of my son.

Now shall I meet him straight.

Dame K. How do, Knock, Thomas, hard.

Cash. Ho, goodwife!

[Re-enter Tib.]

Tib. Why, what’s the matter with you? Dame K. Why, woman, grieves it you to open your door?

4 Bailiff.

8 The lane before Cob’s house.

6 Companion.

The only preferment he gives me.
Belike you get something to keep it shut.

Tib. What mean these questions, pray ye?

Dame K. So strange you make it! Is not my husband here?

Know. Her husband!

Dame K. My tried husband, master Kitely?

Tib. I hope he needs not to be tried here.

Dame K. No, dame, he does it not for need, but pleasure.

Tib. Neither for need nor pleasure is he here.

Know. This is but a device to balk me withal:

[Enter Kitely, muffled in his cloak.]

Soft, who is this? 'Tis not my son disguis'd?

Dame K. (spies her husband come, and runs to him.) O, sir, have I forestall'd your honest market?

Found your close 1 walks? You stand amaz'd now, do you?

'faith, I am glad I have smok'd you yet at last. What is your jewel, trow? In, come, let's see her; Fetch forth your huswife, dame; if she be fairer,

In any honest judgment, than myself, I'll be content with it: but she is change. She feeds you fat, she soothes your appetite,

And you are well! Your wife, an honest woman, Is meat twice sod 2 to you, sir! O, you treach-

our! 14

Know. She cannot counterfeit thus palpably.

Kit. Out on thy more than strumpet's impudence!

Steal'st thou thus to thy haunts? and have I taken

Thy bawd and thee, and thy companion. (pointing to old Knowell)

This hoary-headed lecher, this old goat,

Close at your villainy, and would'st thou 'sense it With this stale harlot's jest, accusing me? O, old incontinent (to Knowell), dost thou not shame,

When all thy powers in chastity is spent, To have a mind so hot, and to entice,

And feed th' enticements of a lustful woman?

Dame K. Out, I defy thee, I, dissembling wretch!

Kit. Defy me, strumpet! Ask thy pander here,

Can he deny it; or that wicked elder?

Know. Why, hear you, sir.

Kit.

Tut, tut, tut; never speak:

Thy guilty conscience will discover thee.

Know. What lunacy is this, that haunts this man?

Kit. Well, good wife BA'D, 6 Cob's wife, and you,

That make your husband such a hoddly-doddy; 7 And you, young apple-squire, and old cuckold- maker;

I'll ha' you every one before a justice:

Nay, you shall answer it, I charge you go.

Know. Marry, with all my heart, sir, I go willingly;

Though I do take this as a trick put on me,

To punish my impertinent search, and justly,

And half forgive my son for the device.

Kit. Come, will you go?

Dame K. Go! to thy shame believe it.

[Enter Cob.]

Cob. Why, what's the matter here, what's here to do?

Kit. O, Cob, art thou come? I have been abus'd,

And ' thy house; was never man so wrong'd!

Cob. 'Slid, in my house, my master Kitely! Who wrongs you in my house?

Kit. Marry, young lust in old, and old in young here.

Thy wife's their bawd, here have I taken 'em.

Cob. How, bawd! is my house come to that? Am I prefer'd thither? Did I not charge you to keep your doors shut, label? and do you let 'em lie open for all comers?

[He falls upon his wife and beats her.

Know. Friend, know some cause, before thou beat'st thy wife.

This's madness in thee.

Cob. Why, is there no cause?

Kit. Yes, I'll show cause before the justice, Cob:

Come, let her go with me.

Cob. Nay, she shall go.

Tib. Nay, I will go. I'll see an you may [be 'allow'd to make a bundle o' hemp 6 o' your right and lawful wife thus, at every cuckoldly knave's pleasure. Why do you not go?

Kit. A bitter queen! Come, we will ha' you tam'd.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE XI. 9

[Enter Brainwell, disguised as a City Ser- jeant.]

Brai. Well, of all my disguises yet, now am I most like myself, being in this serjeant's gown. A man of my present profession never counterfeits, till he lays hold upon a debtor and says he 'rests him; for then he brings him to all manner of unrest. A kind of little kings we are, bearing the diminutive of a mace, made like a young artichoke, that always carries pepper and salt in itself. Well, I know not what danger I undergo by this exploit; pray Hea- is ven I come well off!

[Enter Mathew and Boradill.]

Mat. See, I think, yonder is the varlet, by his gown.

Bob. Let's go in quest of him.

Mat. 'Save you, friend! Are not you here by appointment of justice Clement's man?

Brai. Yes, an't please you, sir; he told me two gentlemen had will'd him to procure a warrant from his master, which I have about me, to be serv'd on one Downright.

Mat. It is honestly done of you both; and see where the party comes you must arrest; serve it upon him quickly, afore he be aware.

Bob. Bear back, master Mathew.

1 Secret. 2 Found. 3 Boiled. 4 Traitor. 6 F. has in margin By Thomas, i.e. referring to Cash. 7 Apparently a poor pun on bad and based. 8 A street.
[Enter Stephen in Downright's cloak.]

Brai. Master Downright, I arrest you i' the queen's name, and must carry you afore a justice by virtue of this warrant.

Step. Me, friend! I am no Downright, I; I am master Stephen. You do not well to arrest me, I tell you, truly; I am in nobody's bonds nor books, I would you should know it. A plague on you heartily, for making me thus afraid afore my time!

Brai. Why, now are you deceived, gentlemen?

Bob. He wears such a cloak, and that deceived us: but see, here 'a comes indeed; this is he, officer.

[Enter Downright.]

Dow. Why how now, signior gull! Are you turn'd filcher of late! Come, deliver my cloak.

Step. Your cloak, sir! I bought it even now, in open market.

Brai. Master Downright, I have a warrant I must serve upon you, procured by these two gentlemen.

Dow. These gentlemen! Those rascals!

Brai. Keep the peace, I charge you in her majesty's name.

Dow. I obey thee. What must I do, officer?

Brai. Go before master justice Clement, to answer what they can object against you, sir. I will use you kindly, sir.

Mat. Come, let's before, and make the justice, captain.

Bob. The varlet's a tall man, afore heaven! [Exeunt Bob. and Mat.]

Dow. Gull, you'll gi' me my cloak.

Step. Sir, I bought it, and I'll keep it.

Dow. You will?

Step. Ay, that I will.

Dow. Officer, there's thy fee, arrest him.

Brai. Master Stephen, I must arrest you.

Step. I arrest me! I scorn it. There, take your cloak, I'll none on't.

Dow. Nay, that shall not serve your turn now, sir, officer, I'll go with thee to the justice's; bring him along.

Step. Why, is not here your cloak? What would you have?

Dow. I'll ha' you answer it, sir.

Brai. Sir, I'll take your word, and this gentleman's too, for his appearance.

Dow. I'll ha' no words taken: bring him along.

Brai. Sir, I may choose to do that, I may take bail.

Dow. 'Tis true, you may take bail, and choose at another time; but you shall not now, varlet. Bring him along, or I'll swinge you.

Brai. Sir, I pity the gentleman's case; here's your money again.

Dow. Steve, tell not me of my money; bring him away, I say.

Brai. I warrant you he will go with you of himself, sir.

Dow. Yet more ado?

Brai. [Aside.] I have made a fair mash on't. Step. Must I go?

Brai. I know no remedy, master Stephen. Dow. Come along afore me here; I do not love your hanging look behind.

Step. Why, sir, I hope you cannot hang me for it: can he, fellow?

Brai. I think not, sir; it is but a whipping matter, sure.

Step. Why then let him do his worst, I am resolute.

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I.

[Enter] Clement, Knowell, kiteley, Dame Kateley, Tib, Cob, and Servants.

Clem. Nay, but stay, stay, give me leave: my chair, sirrah. — You, master Knowell, say you went thither to meet your son?

Know. Ay, sir.

Clem. But who directed you thither?

Know. That did mine own man, sir.

Clem. Where is he?

Know. Nay, I know not now; I left him with your clerk, and appointed him to stay here for me.

Clem. My clerk! about what time was this?

Know. Marry, between one and two, as I take it.

Clem. And what time came my man with the false message to you, master Kiteley?

Kit. After two, sir.

Clem. Very good: but, mistress Kiteley, how chance that you were at Cob's, ha?

Dame K. An't please you, sir, I'll tell you: my brother Wellbred told me that Cob's house was a suspected place.

Clem. So it appears, methinks: but on.

Dame K. And that my husband us'd thither daily.

Clem. No matter, so he us'd himself well, mistress.

Dame K. True, sir: but you know what grows by such haunts oftentimes.

Clem. I see rank fruits of a jealous brain, mistress Kiteley: but did you find your hus-[a] and there, in that case as you suspected?

Kit. I found her there, sir.

Clem. Did you so? That alters the case. Who gave you knowledge of your wife's being there?

Kit. Marry, that did my brother Wellbred.

Clem. How? Wellbred first tell her; then tell you after! Where is Wellbred?

Kit. Gone with my sister, sir, I know not whither.

Clem. Why this is a mere trick, a device; you are gull'd in this most grossly all. Alas, poor wench I went thou beaten for this?

Tib. Yes, most pitifully, an't please you.

Cob. And worthy, I hope, if it shall prove so.

Clem. Ay, that's like, and a piece of a sentence.
How now, sir! what's the matter?
Serv. Sir, there's a gentleman i' the court without, desires to speak with your worship.
Clem. A gentleman! what is he?
Serv. A soldier, sir, he says.
Clem. A soldier! Take down my armour, my sword quickly. A soldier speak with me! Why, when, knaves! Come on, come on. (Arms himself); hold my cap there; so; give me my gorget, my sword; stand by, I will end your matters
anon. — Let the soldier enter. [Exit Servant.]

SCENE II.

[CLEMENT, KNOWELL, etc. Enter] BORADILL,
[followed by] MATHEW.

Now, sir, what ha' you to say to me? 8
Bob. By your worship's favour — Clem. Nay, keep out, sir; I know not your pretence. — You send me word, sir, you are a soldier; why, sir, you shall be answer'd here; 10 here be them have been amongst soldiers. Sir, your pleasure.
Bob. Faith, sir, so it is, this gentleman and myself have been most uncivilly wrong'd and beaten by one Downright, a coarse fellow 12 about the town here; and for mine own part, I protest, being a man in no sort given to this filthy humour of quarrelling, he hath assailed me in the way of my peace, despoo'd me of mine honour, disarray'd me of my weapons, 15 and rudely laid me along in the open streets, when I not so much as once offer'd to resist him.
Clem. O, God's precions! is this the soldier?
Here, take my armour off quickly, 't will make him swoon, I fear; he is not fit to look on, 20 that will put up a blow.
Mat. An't please your worship, he was bound to the peace.
Clem. Why, an he were, sir, his hands were not bound, were they?

[Re-enter Servant.]

Serv. There's one of the varlets of the city, sir, has brought two gentlemen here; one, upon your worship's warrant.
Clem. My warrant!
Serv. Yes, sir; the officer says, procured by these two.
Clem. Bid him come in. [Exit Servant.] Set by this picture. 4

SCENE III.

[CLEMENT, BORADILL, etc. Enter] DOWNRIGHT, STEPHEN, and BRAINWORM [disguised as before].

What, Master Downright! Are you brought in at
Mr. Freshwater's suit here? 7
Dow. I' faith, sir, and here's another brought at my suit.

1 Armor for the throat. 2 The same.
3 In F, E, at end of Sc. I. Mere picture of a soldier.
4 The same.
5 A freshwater soldier was one who had never crossed the sea, i.e., had seen no service.
6 In F, at end of Sc. 2.

Clem. What are you, sir?
Step. A gentleman, sir. O, uncle!
Clem. Uncle! Who? Master Knowell?
Know. Ay, sir; this is a wise kinsman of mine.
Step. God's my witness, uncle, I am wrong'd here monstrously; he charges me with stealing of his cloak, and would I might never stir, if I did not find it in the street by chance.
Dow. O, did you find it now? You said you bought it ere-while.
Step. And you said, I stole it. Nay, now my uncle is here, I'll do well enough with you.
Clem. Well, let this breathe awhile. You that have cause to complain there, stand forth. Had you my warrant for this gentleman's appre- 20 hension?
Bob. Ay, an't please your worship.
Clem. Nay, do not speak in passion 25
Where had you it?
Bob. Of your clerk, sir.
Clem. That's well! an my clerk can make warrants, and my hand not at 'em! Where is the warrant — officer, have you it?
Brai. No, sir. Your worship's man, Master Formal, bid me do it for these gentlemen, 30 and he should be my discharge.
Clem. Why, Master Downright, are you such a novice, to be serv'd and never see the warrant?
Dow. Sir, he did not serve it on me.
Clem. No! how then?
Dow. Marry, sir, he came to me, and said he must serve it; and he would use me kindly,
and so on.
Clem. O, God's pity, was it so, sir? He must serve it! Give me my long sword there, and help me off. So, come on, sir varlet, I must cut off your legs, sirrah [BRAINWORM kneels]; nay, stand up, I'll use you kindly; I must cut off your legs, I say.
FLOURISHES OVER HIM WITH HIS LONG SWORD.
Brai. O, good sir, I beseech you; nay, good master justice!
Clem. I must do it, there is no remedy; I must cut off your legs, sirrah, I must cut off your ears, you rascal. I must do it: I must 40 cut off your nose, I must cut off your head.
Brai. O, good your worship!
Clem. Well, rise; how dost thou do now?
Dost thou feel thyself well? Hast thou no harm?
Brai. No, I thank your good worship, sir.
Clem. Why so! I said I must cut off thy legs, and I must cut off thy arms, and I must cut off thy head; but I did not do it: so you said you must serve this gentleman with my 45 warrant, but you did not serve him. You knave, you slave, you rogue, do you say you must, sirrah! Away with him to the jail; I'll teach you a trick for your must, sir.
Brai. Good sir, I beseech you, be good to 50
me.
Clem. Tell him he shall to the jail; away with him, I say.
Brai. Nay, sir, if you will commit me, it

8 Melancholy emotion.
shall be for committing more than this: I will not lose by my travall any grain of my fame, ceresm. [Thros off his serjeant's goun.]

Know. How is this? [Enter Servant.]

Step. O, yes, uncle; Brainworm has been with my cousin Edward and I all this day.

Clem. I told you all there was some device.

Brai. Nay, excellent justice, since I have laid myself thus open to you, now stand strong for me; both with your sword and your balance.

Clem. Body o' me, a merry knave I give me a bowl of sack. If he belong to you, Master Knowell, I bespeak your patience.

Brai. That is it I have most need of. Sir, if you'll pardon me only, I'll glory in all the rest of my exploits.

Know. Sir, you know I love not to have my favours come hard from you. You have your pardon, though I suspect you shrewdly for being of counsel with my son against me.

Brai. Yes, faith, I have, sir, though you told me doubt this morning for yourself; first, as Brainworm; after, as Fitz-Sword. I was your reform'd soldier, sir. 'Twas I sent you to Cob's upon the errand without end.

Know. Is it possible? or that thou shouldst disguise thy language so as I should not know thee?

Brai. O, sir, this has been the day of my metamorphosis. It is not that shape alone [as I have run through to-day, I brought this gentleman, master Kitley, a message too, in the form of master Justice's man here, to draw him out o' the way, as well as your worship, while master Wellbred might make a conveyance of mistress Bridget to my young master.

Kit. How! my sister stool'n away?

Know. My son is not married, I hope.

Brai. Faith, sir, they are both as sure as love, a priest, and three thousand pound, which is in a portion, can make 'em; and by this time are ready to bespeak their wedding-supper at the Windmill, except some friend here prevent 'em and invite 'em home.

Clem. Marry, that will I; thank thee for putting me in mind o' t. Sirrah, go you and fetch them hither upon my warrant. [Exit Servant.] Neither's friends have cause to be sorry, if I know the young couple aright. Here, I drink to thee for thy good news. But I pray thee, what hast thou done with my man, Formal?

Brai. Faith, sir, after some ceremony past, as making him drunk, first with story, and then with wine, (but all in kindness,) and strip ping him to his shirt, I left him in that cool vein; departed, sold your worship's warrant to these two, pawn'd his livery for that varlet's gown, to serve it in; and thus have brought myself by my activity to your worship's consideration.

Clem. And I will consider thee in another cup of sack. Here's to thee, which having drunk off this my sentence: Pledge me. Thou hast done, or assisted to nothing, in my judgment, but deserves to be pardon'd for the wit of the offence. If thy master, or any man here, be angry with thee, I shall suspect his incline, while I know him, for't. How now, what noise is that?

[Enter Servant.]

Serv. Sir, it is Roger is come home.

Clem. Bring him in, bring him in.

SCENE IV. To them [enter] FORMAL [in a suit of armour.]

What! drunk? In arms against me? Your reason, your reason for this? I assault your worship to pardon me; I happen'd into ill company by chance, that cast me into a sleep, and stript me of all my clothes.

Clem. Well, tell him I am Justice Clement, and do pardon him: but what is this to your armour? What may that signify?

Form. An't please you, sir, it hung up! [in the room where I was stript; and I borrow'd it of one of the drawers to come home in, because I was loth to do penance through the street in my shirt.

Clem. Well, stand by a while.

SCENE V. To them [enter] E. KNOWELL, WELLBRED, and BRIDG.

Who be these? O, the young company; welcome, welcome! Gf' you joy. Nay, mistress Bridget, blush not; you are not so fresh a bride, but the news of it is come bither afore you. Master bridegroom, I ha' made your peace, [gave me your hand: so will I for all the rest ere you forsake my roof.

E. KNOW. We are the more bound to your humanity, sir.

Clem. Only these two have so little of man in 'em, they are no part of my care.

Wel. Yes, sir, let me pray you for this gentleman, he belongs to my sister the bride.

Clem. In what place, sir?

Wel. Of her delight, sir, below the stairs, [and in public: her poet, sir.

Clem. A poet! I will challenge him myself presently at extempore, Mount up thy Phegion, Muse, and testify How Saturn, sitting in an ebon cloud, Disrobed his podex, white as ivory, And through the welkin thund'red all along.

Wel. He is not for extempore, sir: he is all for the pocket muse; please you command a sight of it.

Clem. Yes, yes, search him for a taste of his vein. [They search Mathew's pockets.]

Wel. You must not deny the queen's justice, sir, under a writ o' rebellion.

Clem. What! all this verse? Body o' me, he

1 Wit. 6 Waiters.
2 The same. 7 In F, at end of Sc. 4.
3 In F, at end of Sc. 3.
8 One of the horses of the Sun's chariot.
Clem. It shall be discourse for supper be-between your father and me, if he dare under-sake me. But to dispatch away these: you sign o' the soldier, and picture o' the poet, (but both so false, I will not ha' you hang'd out at my to door till midnight,) while we are at supper, you two shall penitently fast it out in my court without; and, if you will, you may pray there that we may be so merry within as to forgive or forget you when we come out. Here's a third, because we tender your safety, shall watch you,
he is provided for the purpose. — Look to your charge, sir.

Step. And what shall I do?

Clem. O! I had lost a sheep an he had not bleasted: why, sir, you shall give master Downright his cloak; and I will intreat him to take it. A tancher and a napkin you shall have i' the buttery, and keep Cob and his wife company here; whom I will intreat first to be reconcil'd; and you to endeavour with your wit to keep 'em so.

Step. I'll do my best.

Cob. Why, now I see thou art honest, Tib,
I receive thee as my dear and mortal wife
again.

Tib. And I you, as my loving and obedient husband.

Clem. Good compliment! It will be their bridal night too. They are married anew. Come,
I conjure the rest to put off all discontent. You, master Downright, your anger; you, master Knowell, your cares; master Kityel and his wife, their jealousy.

For, I must tell you both, while that is fed,
Horns i' the mind are worse than o' the head.

Kitt. Sir, thus they go from me; kiss me, sweetheart.

See what a drove of horns fly in the air,
Wing'd with my cleansed and my credulous
breath!

Watch 'em, suspicious eyes, watch where they fall.
See, see! on heads that think they've none at
all!

O, what a plenteous world of this will come!

When air rains horns, all may be sure of some.

I ha' learnt'd so much verse out of a jealoux man's part in a play.

Clem. 'Tis well, 'tis well! This night we'll dedicate to friendship, love, and laughter.

Master bridegroom, take your bride and lead;
every one, a fellow. Here is my mistress, Brain-worm! to whom all my addresses of courtship shall have their reference: whose adventures this day, when our grandchildren shall [as hear to be made a fable, I doubt not but it shall find both spectators and applause. [Exeunt.]

— Formal, in his armor. — F, Fane.

Such brainless gulls, should utter their stolen words
With such applause as in our vulgar ears;
Or that their slumber'd lines have current pass
From the level judgments of the multitude;
But that this barren and infected age
Should set no difference 'twixt these empty spirits
And a true poet; than which reverence names
Nothing can more adorn humanity.

TO THE

NO LESS NOBLE BY VIRTUE THAN BLOOD,

ESME, LORD AUBIGNY

My Lord,—If ever any ruin were so great as to survive, I think this be one I send you, The Fall of Sejanus. It is a poem, that, if I well remember, in your lordship's sight, suffer'd no less violence from our people here, than the subject of it did from the rage of the people of Rome; but with a different fate, as, I hope, merit; for this hath outliv'd their malice, and begot itself a greater favour than he lost, the love of good men. Amongst whom, if I make your lordship the first it thanks, it is not without a just confession of the bond your benefits have, and ever shall hold upon me,

Your Lordship's most faithful honouree.

BEN. JONSON.

TO THE READERS

The following and voluntary labours of my friends, prefixed to my book, have relieved me much whereat, without them, I should necessarily have touched. Now I will only use three or four short and needful notes, and no rest.

First, if it be objected, that what I publish is no true poem, in the strict laws of time, I confess it: as also in the want of a proper chorus; whose habit and moods are such and so difficult, as not any, whom I have seen, since the ancients, no, not they who have most presently affected laws, have yet come in the way of. Nor is it needful, or almost possible in these our times, and to such auditors as commonly things are presented, to observe the old state and splendour of dramatic poems, with preservation of any popular delight. But of this I shall take more seasonable cause to speak, in my observations upon Horace his Art of Poetry, which, with the text translated, I

2 L. a. with a different merar.

6 Commandary verses.
Intend shortly to publish. In the meantime, if in truth of argument, dignity of persons, gravity and height of elocution, fulness and frequency of sentence, I have discharged the other offices of a tragic writer, let not the absence of these forms be imputed to me, wherein I shall give you occasion hereafter, and without my boast, to think I could better prescribe, than omit the due use for want of a convenient knowledge.

The next is, lest in some nice nostril the quotations might savour affected, do let you know, that I abhor nothing more; and I have only done it to show my integrity in the story, and save myself in those common torturers that bring all wit to the rack; whose noses are ever like swine spoiling and rooting up the Muse’s gardens; and their whole bodies like moles, as blindly working under earth, to cast any, the least, hills upon virtue.

 Whereas they are in Latin, and the work in English, it was presupposed none but the learned would take the pains to confer them; the authors themselves being all in the learned tongues, save one, with whose English side I have had little to do. To which it may be required, since I have quoted the page, to name what editions I followed: Tacitus. Lips, in quarto, Antwerp, edit. 1600. Dio. fort, Hen. Steph. 1592. For the rest, as Sueton. Seneca, &c., the chapter doth sufficiently direct, or the edition is not varied.

Lastly, I would inform you, that this book, in all numbers, is not the same with that which was acted on the public stage; wherein a second pen had good share: in place of which, I have rather chosen to put weaker, and, no doubt, less pleasing, of mine own, than to defraud so happy a genius of his right by my loathed usurpation.

Fare you well, and if you read farther of me, and like, I shall not be afraid of it, though you praise me out.

Neque enim nisi cornes fibra est.

But that I should plant my felicity in your general saying, good, or well, &c., were a weakness which the better sort of you might worthyly condemn, if not absolutely hate me for.

THE ARGUMENT

Aelius Sejanus, son to Seius Strabo, a gentleman of Rome, and born at Vulainium; after his long service in court, first under Augustus; afterward, Tiberius; grew into that favour with the latter, and won him by those arts, as there wanted nothing but the name to make him a co-partner of the Empire. Which greatness of his, Drusus, the Emperor’s son, not brooking; after many smoother’d dislikes, it one day breaking out, the prince struck him publicly on the face. To revenge which disgrace, Livia, the wife of Drusus (being before corrupted by him to her dishonour, and the discovery of her husband’s counsels) Sejanus practiseth with, together with her physician, called Eudemus, and one Lygdua, an eunuch, to poison Drusus. This their inhuman act having successful and unsuspected passage, it emboldeneth Sejanus to farther and more insolent projects, even the ambition of the Empire; where finding the lets he must encounter to be many and hard, in respect of the issue of Germanicus, who were next in hope for the succession, he deviseth to make Tiberius’ self his means; and instils into his ears many doubts and suspicions, both against the princes, and their mother Agrippina; which Caesar jealously hear’d ning to, as covetously consenteth to their ruin, and their friends. In this time, the better to mature and strengthen his design, Sejanus labours to marry Livia, and worketh with all his ingine to remove Tiberius from the knowledge of public business, with allurements of a quiet and retired life; the latter of which, Tiberius, out of a proneness to lust, and a desire to hide those unnatural pleasures which he could not so publicly practise, embraceth: the former enkindleth his fears, and there gives him first cause of doubt or suspect towards Sejanus: against whom he raiseth in private a new instrument, one Sertorius Macro, and by him underworketh, discovers the other’s counsels, his means, his ends, sounds the affections of the senators, divides, distracts them: at last, when Sejanus least looketh, and is most secure; with pretext of doing him an unwonted honour in the senate, he trains him from his guards, and with a long doubtful letter, in one day hath him suspected, accuseth, condemned, and torn in pieces by the rage of the people. [This do we advance, as a mark of terror to all traitors, and treasons; to show how just the heavens are, in pouring and thundering down a weighty vengeance on their unnatural intents, even to the worst princes; much more to those, for guard of whose piety and virtue the angels are in continual watch, and God himself miraculously working.]

ACT I

SCENE I.]

[Enter SABINIUS and SILIUS, [followed by LATIARIS.

SAB. Hail, Caius Silius! Sil. Titius Sabinus, hail! You’re rarely met in court. SAB. Therefore, well met. Sil. ‘Tis true: indeed, this place is not our sphere. SAB. No, Silius, we are no good inginera. We want the fine arts, and their thriving use. Should make us graze’d, or favour’d of the times:

We have no shift of faces, no clapt tongues, No soft and glutinous bodies, that can stick, Like snails, on painted walls; or, on our breasts, Creep up, to fall from that proud height, to which We did by slavery, not by service climb. We are no guilty men, and then no great; We have no place in court, office in state, That we can say, we owe unto our crimes: We burn with no black secrets.’ ’Tis, which can make Us dear to the pale authors; or live fear’d Of their still waking jealousies, to raise Ourselves a fortune, by subverting theirs. We stand not in the lines, that do advance To that so courted point.

[Enter SATRIUS and NATTA at a distance.

Sil. A pair that do.

SAB. [salutes LATIARIS.] Good cousin Latiaris. Sil. Satrius Secundus, and Finnarius Natta. The great Sejanus’ clients: there be two, Know more than honest counsellors; whose close breasts, Were they ripp’d up to light, it would be found A poor and idle sin, to which their trunks Had not been made fit organs. These cau lie, Flatter, and swear, forswear, deprave, inform, Deprave, inform, smile, and betray; make guilty men; then beg The forfeit lives, to get their livings; cut Men’s throats with whisper’s rings; sell to gapping suitors The empty smoke that flies about the palace; Laugh when their patron laughs; sweat when he sweats; Be hot and cold with him; change every mood,

Sil. Alas! these things deserve no note, conferr’d with other vile And filthier flatteries, that corrupt the times, When, not alone our gentries chief are faint To make their safety from such sordid acts, But all our consuls, and no little Of such as have been praetores, yea, the most Of senators, that else not use their voices, Start up in public senate, and there strive Who shall propound most abject things, and base;

So much, as oft Tiberius hath been heard, Leaving the court, to cry. O race of men, Prepar’d for servitude!—which show’d that he, Who least the public liberty could like, As loathly brook’d their flat servility. Sil. Well, all is worthy of us, were it more, Who with our riots, pride, and civil hate, Have so provok’d the justice of the gods: We, that, within these fourscore years, were born Free, equal lords of the triumphed world, And knew no masters but affections; To which betraying first our liberties, We since became the slaves to one man’s lusts; And now to many: every minist’ring spy That will accuse and swear, is lord of you, Of me, of all, our fortunes and our lives. Our looks are call’d to question, and our words, How innocent soever, are made crimes; We shall not shortly dare to tell our dreams, Or think, but ’t will be treason.

Sil. Tyrants’ arts Are to give flatterers grace; accusers, power; That those may seem to kill whom they devour. [Enter Cordus and Arruntius.

Now, good Cremutius Cordus. Cor. [salutes SABINIUS.] Hail to your lordship! Nat. Who’s that salutes your cousin? Lat. ’Tis one Cordus. They whisper. A gentleman of Rome: one that has writ Annals of late, they say, and very well.

Nat. Annals? Of what times?

Lot. I think of Pompey's, And Caius Caesar's; and so down to these.

Nat. How stands he affected to the present state?

Is he or Drusian, or Germanic, or ours, or neutral?

Lot. I know him not so far. Those times are somewhat queasy to be toucht.

Have you or seen or heard part of his work?

Nat. Not I; he means they shall be public shortly.

Lot. O, Cordus do you call him?

Nat. Ay. [Exeunt NATTA and SATRIUS.] Sab. But these our times are not the same, Arruntius.

Arr. Times! The men, the man are not the same! 'Tis we are base, Poor, and degenerate from th' exalted strain Of our great fathers. Where is now the soul Of god-like Cato? he, that durst be good, When Caesar durst be evil; and had power, As not to live his slave, to die his master? Or where 's, the constant Brutus, that being proof Against all charm of benefits, did strike So brave a blow into the monster's heart That sought unkindly to captivate his country? O, they are fled the light! Those mighty spirits Lie rak'd up with their ashes in their urns, And not a spark of their eternal fire Glows in a present bosom. All 's but blazes, Flashes, and smoke, wherewith we labour so; There's nothing Roman in us; nothing good, Gallant, or great. 'Tis true that Cordus says, Brave Cassius was the last of all that race.

DRUSUS passes by [attended by HATERIUS, etc.]

Sab. Stand by! Lord Drusus.

Hat. Th' emp'ror's son! Give place.

Sili. I like the prince well.

Arr. A riotous youth, there's little hope of him.

Sab. That fault his age Will, as it grows, correct. Methinks he bears Himself much more nobly than other; And wins no less on men's affections Than doth his father lose. Believe me, I love him; And chiefly for opposing to Sejanus. Sili. And I, for grazing his young kinsmen, A gallant clearness in him, a straight mind, That envies not, in them, their father's name. Arr. His name was, while he liv'd, above all envy; And, being dead, without it. O, that man! If there were seeds of the old virtue left, They liv'd in him.

Sili. He had the fruits, Arruntius, More than the seeds: Sabinus and myself Had means to know him within; and can report him. We were his followers, he would call us friends; He was a man must like to virtue; in all, And every action, nearer to the gods Than men, in nature; of a body as fair As was his mind; and no less reverend In face than fame; he could so use his state, Temp'ring his greatness with his gravity, As it avoided all self-love in him, And spite in others. What his funerals lack'd In images and pomp, they had suppli'd With honourable sorrow, soldiers' sadness, A kind of silent mourning, such as men, Who know no tears but from their captives, use To show in so great losses.

Cor. I thought once, considering their forms, age, manner of deaths, The nearness of the places where they fall, They have parallel'd him with great Alexander: For both were of best feature, of high race, Year'd but to thirty, and, in foreign lands, By their own people alike made away.

Sab. I know not, for his death, how you might wrest it: But, for his life, it did as much disdain Comparison with that voluptuous, rash, Giddy, and drunken Macedon's, as mine Doth with my bondman's. All the good in him, His valour, and his fortune, he made his; But he had other touches of late Romans, That more did speak him: Pompey's dignity, The innocence of Cato, Caesar's spirit, Wise Brutus' temp'rance: and every virtue, Which, parted unto others, gave them name, Flow'd mixt in him. He was the soul of goodness; And all our praises of him are like streams Drawn from a spring, that still rise full, and leave The part remaining greatest.

Arr. I am sure He was too great for us, and that they knew Who did remove him hence.

Sab. When men grow fast Honour'd and lov'd, there is a trick in state, (Which jealous princes never fail to use) How to decline that growth, with fair pretext, And honourable colours of employment, Either by embassy, the war, or such, To shift them forth into another air,
SEJANUS, HIS FALL

Where they may purge, and lessen; so was he: 1 And had his second there, sent by Tiberius And his more subtle dam, to discontent him; To breed and cherish murines; detract His greatest actions; give audacious check 178 To his commands; and work to put him out In open act of treason. All which snares When his wise cares prevented, a fine poison Was thought on, to mature their practices. Cor. Here comes Sejanus. 3 Sil. Now observe the stoops, 178 The bendings, and the falls. 4

[Enter] SEJANUS, TERENTIUS, SATRIUS, [NATTA,] etc.

They pass over the stage.

Sej. I note 'em well: no more. Say you? Sat. My lord, There is a gentleman of Rome would buy — Sej. How call you him you talk'd with? Sat. Please your worship, It is Eudemus, the physician 100 To Livia, Drusus' wife. Sej. On with your suit.

Sat. Would buy, you said —

Sej. What will he give?

Sat. Fifty sestertia. 5 Sej. Livia's physician, say you, is that fellow? Sat. It is, my lord. Your lordship's answer? Sej. To what? 190 Sat. The place, my lord. 'Tis for a gentleman Your lordship will well like of, when you see him, And one that you may make yours, by the grant. Sej. Well, let him bring his money, and his name. Sat. Thank your lordship. He shall, my lord.

Sej. Come hither. 100 Know you this same Eudemus? Is he learn'd? Sat. Reputed so, my lord, and of deep practice. Sej. Bring him in to me, in the gallery; And take you cause to leave us there together; I would confer with him, about a grief. — On! [Exeunt SEJANUS, SATRIUS, TERENTIUS, etc.]

Arr. So! yet another? yet? O desperate state Of grov'ling honour! Seest thou this, O sun, And do we see thee after? Methinks, day Should lose his light, when men do lose their shames,

And for the empty circumstance of life, Betray their cause of living. Sil. Nothing so. 6 Sejanus can repair, if Jove should rain. He is the now court-god; and well applied With sacrifice of knees, of crooks, and cringe, He will do more than all the house of heav'n can For a thousand hecatombs. 'Tis he makes us our day, or night; hell and elysium Are in his look. We talk of Rhadamanth, Furies, and firebrands; but 'tis his frown That is all those; where, on the adverse part, His smile is more than e'er yet poets feign'd Of bliss, and shades, nectar —

Arr. A serving boy! I knew him, at Caius' trencher, when for hire He prostituted his abused body To that great gourmand, fat Apicius: 125 And was the noted pathetic of the time. Sab. And, now, the second face of the whole world! The parts of the empire, hath his image Rear'd equal with Tiberius, borne in eagles; Commands, dispenses every dignity. Centurions, tribunes, heads of provinces, Praetors, and consuls; all that heretofore Rome's general suffrage gave, is now his sale, The gain, or rather spoil of all the earth, One, and his house, receives. Sil. He hath of late 310 Made him a strength too, strangely, by reducing All the praetorian bands into one camp, Which he commands: pretending that the soldier, By living loose and scattered, fell to riot; And that if any sudden enterprise Should be attempted, their united strength Would be far more than sever'd; and their life More strict, if from the city more remov'd. Sab. Where now he builds what kind of forts he please, Is heard to court the soldier by his name, Woos, feasts the chiefest men of action, Whose wants, nor loves, compel them to his. And though he ne'er were liberal by kind, Yet to his own dark ends, he's most profuse, Lavish, and letting fly he cares not what To his ambition.

Arr. Yet hath he ambition? Is there that step in state can make him higher, Or more, or anything he is, but less? Sil. Nothing but emp'ror.

Arr. The name Tiberius, I hope, will keep, howe'er he hath foregone The dignity and power.

Sil. Sure, while he lives. Arr. And dead, it comes to Drusus. Should he fail,
To the brave issue of Germanicus,
And they are three: 1 too many — ha? for him
To have a plot upon?

Sir. 2 I do not know

The heart of his designs; but sure their face
Looks farther than the present.

Arr. 3 By the gods, if I could guess he had but such a thought,
My mouth should cleave him down from head to heart,
But I would cut it out; and with my hand
I’d hurl his panting brain about the air
In mites as small as atomi 1 t’ undo
The knotted bed —

Sab. 4 You are observ’d, Arruntius.

Arr. (Turns to Sejanus’ clients.) 5 Death! I dare tell him so; and all his spies.

You, sir, I would, do you look? and you.

Sab. 6 Forbear.

[Scene II.]

[Enter] Satrius, Eudemus.

Sat. Here he will instant be; let’s walk a turn;

You’re in a muse, Eudemus?

Eud. Not I, sir.

[Aside.] I wonder he should mark me out so.

Well, Jove and Apollo form it for the best!

Sat. Your fortune’s made unto you now,
Eudemus,

If you can but lay hold upon the means;
Do but observe his humour, and — believe it —
He is the noblest Roman, where he takes —

[Enter Sejanus.]

Here comes his lordship.

Sej. This is the gentleman, my lord.

Sej. What is this? 7

Give me your hand, we must be more ac quainted.

Report, sir, hath spoke out your art and learning:
And I am glad I have so needful cause,
However in itself painful and hard,
To make me known to so great virtue —

Look,

Who’s that, Satrius? 8 [Exit Sat.] I have a grief, sir,
That will desire your help. Your name’s Eudem mus?

Eud. Yes.

Sej. It is, my lord.

Sej. Physician to Livia, the princess.

Eud. I minister unto her, my good lord.

Sej. You minister to a royal lady, then.

Eud. She is, my lord, and fair.

Sej. That’s understood

Of all their sex, who are or would be so;

And those that would be, physic soon can make

′em:

For those that are, their beauties fear no col ours.

Eud. Your lordship is conceited. 9

Sej. Sir, you know it, and can, if need be, read a learned lecture
On this, and other secrets. Pray you, tell me, What more of ladies, besides Livia,
Have you your patients?

Eud. Many, my good lord.

The great Augusta, Urgulania,
Mutilia Priscia, and Plancina; divers —

Sej. And all these tell you the particulars
Of every several grief? how first it grew,
And then increased; what action caused that;
What passion; and answer to each point —

That you will put ′em?

Eud. Else, my lord, we know not
How to prescribe the remedies.

Sej. Go to,

You are a subtle nation, you physicians!

And grown the only cabinets in court to ladies’ privacies. Faith, which of these
Is the most pleasant lady in her physic?

Come, you are modest now.

Eud. 10 Tis fit, my lord.

Sej. Why, sir, I do not ask you of their urines;

Whose smell ’s most violent, or whose siege is best,
Or who makes hardest faces on her stool,
Which lady sleeps with her own face a nights,
Which puts her teeth off, with her clothes, in court,
Or, which her hair, which her complexion,
And, in which box she puts it. These were questions
That might, perhaps, have put your gravity
To some defence of bluch. But, I inquir’d,
Which was the wittiest, merriest, wantonest?

Harmless interrogatories, but conceits. —

Methinks Augusta should be most perverse,
And froward in her fit.

Eud. She’s so, my lord.

Sej. I knew it: and Mutilia the most jovial.

Eud. Tis very true, my lord.

Sej. And why would you Conceal this from me, now? Come, what is Livia?

I know she’s quick and quaintly spirited,
And will have strange thoughts, when she is at leisure:

She tells ’em all to you?

Eud. My noblest lord,

He breathes not in the Empire, or on earth,
When I would be ambitious to serve
(In any act that may preserve mine honour)

Before your lordship.

Sej. Sir, you can lose no honour,

By trusting aught to me. The coarest act

Done to my service, I can so requite

As all the world shall style it honourable:
Your idle, virtuous definitions,

Keep honour poor, and are as scorn’d as vain;

1 Nero, Drusus, et Caligula. — Tactt. ibid.
2 The same. The scene divisions are Gifford’s. Jonson 1d not sub-divide the Acts in this play.
3 Need fear nothing. 4 Joculgar. 5 Reserved.

253

Those deeds breathe honour that do suck in gain.

End. But, good my lord, if I should thus betray
The counsels of my patient, and a lady’s
Of her high place and worth, what might your lordship,
(Who presently are to trust me with your own)
Judge of my faith?

Sej. Only the best, I swear.
Say now that I should utter you my grief.
And with it the true cause; that it were love,
And love to Livia: you should tell her this:
Should she suspect your faith? I would you could Tell me as much from her; see if my brain
Could be turn’d jealously.

End. Happily, my lord, I could in time tell you as much and more;
So I might safely promise but the first
To her from you.

Sej. As safely, my Eudemus, I now dare call thee so, as I have put
The secret into thee.

End. My lord—

Sej. Protest not.
Thy looks are vows to me; use only speed,
And but affect her with Sejanus’ love,
Thou art a man made to make consula. Go.

End. My lord, I’ll promise you a private meeting.

This day together.

Sej. Canst thou?

End. Yes.

Sej. The place?

End. My gardens, whither I shall fetch your lordship.

Sej. Let me adore my Accedimus.

Why, this indeed is physick, and outspeaks
The knowledge of cheap drugs, or any use
Can be made out of it! more comforting
Than all your opiates, juleps, apozems. 2
Magistral 4 syrups, or —— Begone, my friend,
Not barely styled, but created so;
Expect things greater than thy largest hopes,
To overtake thee. Fortune shall be taught
To know how ill she hath deserved thus long,
To come behind thy wishes. Go, and speed. ——

[Exit EUDERMUS.]

Ambition makes more truly slaves than need
These fellows, by the favour of their art,
Have still the means to tempt; oft-times the power.

If Livia will be now corrupted, then
Thou hast the way, Sejanus, and her secrets.
Whom, thou knowest, endures thee not,
Her husband, Drusus: and to work against them.
Prosper it, Pallas, thou that better’st wit;
For Venus hath the smallest share in it.

[Enter TIBERIUS, DRUSUS, [attended.] One kneels to TIBERIUS.

Tib. We not endure these flatteries; let him stand;

Our empire, ensigns, axes, rods, and state
Take not away our human nature from us:
Look up on us, and fall before the gods.

Sej. How like a god speaks Caesar!

Arr. [Aside to Cordus.] There, observe! He can endure that second, that’s no flattery.
O, what is it proud Alise will not believe,
Of his own worth, to hear it equal prais’d
Thus with the gods!

Cor. He did not hear it, sir.

Arr. He did not? Tut, he must not, we think meanly.
’Tis your most courtly known confederacy, To have your private parasite redeem
What he, in public subtlety, will lose
To making him a name.

Hat. Right mighty lord ——

Tib. We must make up our ears’ gainst these assaults
Of charming tongues; we pray you use no more
These contumelies to us; style not us
Or lord, or mighty, who profess ourself
The servant of the senate, and are proud
To enjoy them our good, just, and favouring lords.

Cor. Rarely dissembled!

Arr. Prince-like to the life. 128
Sab. When power that may command, so much descends,
Their bondage, whom it stoops to, it intends.

Tib. Whence are these letters?

Hat. From the senate.

Tib. Whence these? [Let. gives him letters.]

Lat. From thence too.

Tib. Are they sitting now?

Lat. They stand thy answer, Caesar.

Sil. If this man 160
Hath but a mind, allied unto his words,
How blest a fate were it to us, and Rome! We could not think 3 that state for which to change,
Although the aim were our old liberty:
The ghosts of those that fall for that, would grieve
Their bodies liv’d not, now, again to serve.
Men are deceiv’d, to think there can be thrall Beneath a virtuous prince. Wish’d liberty Ne’er lovelier looks, than under such a crown.
But, when his grace is merely but lip-good, 160
And that no longer than he airs himself Abroad in public, there, to seem to shun
The strokes and stripes of flatterers, which within
Are lechery unto him, and so feed
His brutish sense with their affecting sound. As, dead to virtue, he permits himself Be carried like a pitcher by the ears,
To every act of vice: this is a case
Deserves our fear, and doth presage the nigh And close approach of blood and tyranny.

Flattery is midwife unto prince’s rage:
And nothing sooner doth help forth a tyrant,

1 Suspicious. 2 Perhaps. 3 Decoctions. 4 Sovereign.

8 Think of.
Than that and whisperers' grace, who have the time,
The place, the power, to make all men offenders.
Arr. He should be told this; and be bid dissemble.

With fools and blind men: we that know the evil,
Should hunt the palace-rats, or give them bane.¹
Fright hence these worse than ravens, that devour
The quick, where they but prey upon the dead:
He shall be told it.

Sub. Stay, Arruntius, 170
We must abide our opportunity,
And practice what is fit, as what is needful.
It is not safe t' enforce a sovereign's ear:
Princes hear well, if they at all will hear.
Arr. Ha, say you so? well! In the mean time, Jove, (Say not but I do call upon thee now,)
Of all wild beasts preserve me from a tyrant:
And of all tame, a flatterer.

Sil. 'Tis well pray'd.
Tib. [having read the letters.] Return the lords this voice: We are their creature,
And it is fit a good and honest prince,
Whom they, out of their bounty, have instructed
With so dilate ² and absolute a power,
Should owe the office of it to their service,
And good of all and every citizen.
Nor shall it e'er repent us to have wish'd
The senate just and fav'ring lords unto us,
Since their free loves do yield no less defence
'T is a prince's state, than his own innocence.
Say then, there can be nothing in their thought
Shall want to please us, that hath pleased them;
Our suffrage rather shall prevent ³ than stay
Behind their wills: 't is empire to obey,
Where such, so great, so good determine.
Yet, for the suit of Spain t' erect a temple
In honour of our mother and our self,
We must, with pardon of the senate, not Assent thereto. Their lordships may object
Our not denying the same late request
Unto the Asian cities: we desire
That our defence for suffering that be known
In these brief reasons, with our after purpose.
Since deified Augustus bind' red not
A temple to be built at Pergamum,
In honour of himself and sacred Rome;
We, that have all his deeds and words observ'd
Ever, in place of laws, the rather follow'd
That pleasing precedent, because with ours.
The senate's reverence, also, there was join'd.
But as, t' have once receiv'd it, may deserve
The gain of pardon; so, to be ador'd.

With the continu'd style and note ⁴ of gods,
Through all the provinces, were wild ambition,
And no less pride: yea, ev'n Augustus' name
Would early vanish, should it be profan'd
With such promiscuous flatteries. For our part,
We here protest it, and are covetous

¹ Cause of death, exp. poison. ² Extended. ³ Anticipate. ⁴ Manner of address and observance.

Posternity should know it, we are mortal;
And can but deeds of men: 't were glory enough,
Could we be truly a prince. And they shall add
Abounding grace unto our memory,
That shall report us worthy our forefathers,
Careful of your affairs, constant in dangers,
And not afraid of any privaterown.
For public good. These things shall be to us
Temples and statues, reared in your minds,
The fairest, and most during imagin'ry:
For those of stone or brass, if they become Odious in judgment of posternity,
Are more contemn'd as dving sepulchres,
Than ta'en for living monuments. We then
Make here our suit, alike to gods and men;
The one, until the period of our race,
T' inspire us with a free and quiet mind,
Discerning both divine and human laws;
The other, to vouchsafe us after death,
An honourable mention, and fair praise,
T' accompany our actions and our name:
The rest of greatness princes may command,
And, therefore, may neglect; only, a long,
A lasting, high, and happy memory.
They should, without being satisfied, pursue:
Contempt of fame begets contempt of virtue.

Nat. Rare!
Sat. Most divine!

Sei. The oracles are cease'd.
That only Caesar, with their tongue, might speak.
Arr. Let me be gone: most felt and open this!
Cor. Stay.
Arr. What! to hear more cunning and fine words,
With their sound flatter'd ere their sense be meant?
Tib. Their choice of Antonius, there to place the gift,
Vow'd to the goddess ⁵ for our mother's health,
We will the senate know, we fairly like; ⁶
As also of their grant to Lepidus,
For his repairing the Aemilian place,
And restoration of those monuments:
Their grace, too, in confining of Silius
To th' other isle Cithere, at the suit
Of his religious sister, much commend'd,
Their policy, so temper'd with their mercy.
But for the honours which they have decreed
To our Sejanus, to advance ⁷ his statue
In Pompey's theatre, (whose ruinous fire
His vigilance and labour kept restrain'd
In that one loss,) they have therein gone out
Their own great wisdoms, by their skilful choice.
And placing of their bounties so a man
Whose merit more adorns the dignity
Than that can him; and gives a benefit,
In taking, greater than it can receive.
Blush not, Sejanus, thou great aid of Rome,
Associate of our labours, our chief helper;
Let us not force thy simple modesty
With off'ring at thy praise, for more we cannot,

¹ Fortuna aequis. (Jonson.) ² Raise. ³ A sampling.
Since there's no voice can take
Receiv our speeches as hyperboles:
For we are far from flattering our friend,
Let envy know, as from the need to flatter.
Nor let them ask the causes of our praise:
Princes have still their grounds rear'd with themselves,
Above the poor low flats of common men;
And who shall search the reasons of their acts,
Must stand on equal bases. Lead, away:
Our loves unto the senate.

[Exit Sen., Sejanus, Natta, Hat., Sat., Officers, etc.]

Arr. Caesar! Peace.

Cor. Great Pompey’s theatre was never ruin’d.

Till now, that proud Sejanus hath a statue Rear’d on his saebs.

Arr. The shame of soldiers
Above the best of generals? Crack the world,
And bruise the name of Romans into dust,
Ere we behold it!

Sil. Check your passion;

Lord Drusus tarries.

Dra. Is my father mad,
Weary of life and rule, lords, thus to heave
An idol up with praise? Make him his mate,
His rival in the empire?

Arr. O, good prince!

Dra. Allow him statues, titles, honours, such
As he himself refuseth?

Arr. Brave, brave Drusus!

Dra. The first ascents to sovereignty are hard;
But ent’red once, there never wants or means,
Or ministers, to help th’ aspirer on.

Arr. True, gallant Drusus.

Dra. We must shortly pray
To Modesty, that he will rest contented—
Arr. Ay, where he is, and not write emp’ror.

Re-enter Sejanus, [Satrius, Latiaris,] Clients, etc.

Sej. There is your bill, and yours; bring you

[To Satrius.] I have mov’d for you, too, Latiaris.

Dra. What!

Is your vast greatness grown so blindly bold,
That you will over us?

Sej. Why then give way.

Dra. Give way, Colossus! Do you lift? Ad-

Advage you?

Take that!

Arr. Strikes him.

Dra. Nay, come, approach. [Draws his sword.] What, stand you off? at gape?

It looks too full of death for thy cold spirits.
Avoid mine eye, dull camel, or my sword
Shall make thy brav’ry fitter for a grave,
Than for a triumph. I’ll advance a statue
O’ your own bulk; but ’t shall be on the cross,

Where I will nail your pride at breadth and length,
And crack those sinews, which are yet but stretch’d

With your swoln fortune’s rage.

Arr. A noble prince!

All. A Castor, a Castor, a Castor, a Castor.

[Exeunt all but Sejanus.]

Sej. He that, with such wrong mov’d, can bear it through With patience, and an even mind, knows how
To turn it back. Wrath cover’d carries fate:
Revenge is lost, if I profess my hate.
What was my practice late, I’ll now pursue,
As my fell justice: this hath styld it new.

[Exit.]

CHORUS—of musicians.

ACT II

[Enter Sejanus, Livia, Eudemus.]

Sej. Physician, thou art worthy of a province,
For the great favours done unto our loves;
And, but that greatest Livia bears a part
In the requital of thy services,
I should alone despair of aught like means
To give them worthy satisfaction.

Liv. Eudemus, I will see it, shall receive
A fit and full reward for his large merit.—
But for this potion we intend to Drusus,
(No more our husband, now) whom shall we choose
As the most apt and abled instrument,
To minister it to him?

Eud. I say, Lygudas.

Sej. Lygudas? What’s he?

Liv. An eunuch Drusus loves.

Eud. Ay, and his cup-bearer.

Sej. Name not a second.

If Drusus love him, and he have that place,
We cannot think a fitter.

Eud. True, my lord;
For free access and trust are two main aids.

Sej. Skilful physician!

Liv. But he must be wroght
To th’ undertaking, with some labour’d art.

Sej. Is he ambitious?

Liv. No.

Sej. Or covetous?

Liv. Neither.

Eud. Yet, gold is a good general charm.

Sej. What is he, then?

Liv. Faith, only wanton, light.

Sej. How! is he young? and fair?

Eud. A delicate youth.

Sej. Send him to me, I’ll work him. — Royal lady,
Though I have lov’d you long, and with that height
Of zeal and duty, like the fire, which more
It mounts it trembles, thinking nought could add

1 Achieve.
2 Raise.
3 Treasonous plot.
4 The garden of Eudemus.
Unto the fervour which your eye had kindled;
Yet, now I see your wisdom, judgment,
strength,

Quickness, and will, to apprehend the means
To your own good and greatness, I protest
Myself through rariﬁed, and turn’d all ﬂame
In your affeclion, Such a spirit as yours,
Was not created for the idle second
To a poor flash, as Drusus; but to shine
Bright as the moon among the lesser lights,
And share the sov’reignty of all the world.
Then Livia triumphs in her proper sphere,
When she and her Sejanus shall divide
The name of Caesar, and Augusta’s star
Be dinn’d with glory of a brighter beam:
When Agrippina’s ﬁres are quite extinct,
And the scarce-seen Tiberius borrows all
As little light from us, whose folded arms Shall make one perfect orb! [Knocking within.]

Who’s that? Edeumus,

Look. [Exit EDEUMUS.] ’Tis not Drusus, lady, do not fear.

Liv. Not I, my lord: my fear and love of him
Left me at once.

Sej. Illustrious lady, stay —

Eud. [within.] I’ll tell his lordship.

[Re-enter EDEUMUS.]

Sej. Who is it, Edeumus?

Eud. One of your lordship’s servants brings you word

The empr’or hath sent for you.

Sej. O! where is he? —

With your fair leave, dear princess, I’ll but ask

A question, and return. He goes out.

Eud. Fortunate princess!

How are you blear in the fruition
Of this unequal man, the son of Rome,

The Empire’s life, and voice of Caesar’s world!

Liv. So blessed, my Edeumus, as to know

The bliss I have, with what I ought to owe

The means that wrought it. How do I look to-day?

Eud. Excellent clear, believe it. This same focus

Was well laid on.

Liv. Methinks ’tis here not white.

Eud. Lend me your scarlet, lady. ’Tis the sun,

Hath giv’n some little taint unto the currus;

You should have us’d of the white oil I gave

you.

Sejanus for your love! his very name

Commandeth above Cupid or his shafts —

[Paints her cheek.]

Liv. Nay, now you’ve made it worse.

Eud. I’ll help it straight —

And but pronounce’d, is a sufﬁcient charm

Against all rumour; and of absolute power

To satisfy for any lady’s honour. —

Liv. What do you now, Edeumus?

Eud. Make a light focus.

To touch you o’er withal. — Honour’d Sejanus!

What act, though ne’er so strange and insolent,

But that addition will at least bear out,

If ’t do not expiate?

1 Cosmetick. 2 White lead, used as a cosmetick.
I have it ready. And, to-morrow morning I'll send you a perfume, first to resolve. And procure sweat, and then prepare a bath To cleanse and clear the cutis; against when I'll have an excellent new focus made, Resist against the sun, the rain, or wind, Which you shall lay on with a breath, or oil. As you best like. And last some fourteen hours. This change came timely, lady, for your health, And the restoring your complexion. Which Drusus' choler had almost burnt up; Wherein your fortune hath prescribed you better. Than art could do.

Liv. Thanks, good physician, I'll use my fortune, you shall see, with reverence.

Is my coach ready? It attends your highness. [Exeunt.]

[SCENE II.] 2

[Enter] SEJANUS.

Sej. If this be not revenge, when I have done And made it perfect, let Egyptian slaves. Parthians, and barefoot Hebrews brand my face, And print my body full of injuries. Thou lost thyself, child Drusus, when thou thought'st
Thou couldst outstrip my vengeance, or outstand The power I had to crush thee into air.
Thy follies now shall taste what kind of man They have provok'd, and this thy father's house Crack in the flame of my incensed rage. Whose fury shall admit no shame or mean. — Adultery! it is the lightest ill I will commit. A race of wicked acts Shall flow out of my anger, and overspread The world's wide face, which no posterity Shall ever approve, nor yet keep silent: things, That for their cunning, close, and cruel mark Thy father would wish his, and shall, perhaps, Carry the empty name, but we the prize. On, then, my soul, and start not in thy course; Though heaven's drop sulphur, and hell belch out fire.

Laugh at the idle terrors: tall proud Jove, Between his power and thine there is no odds: 'T was only fear first in the world made gods.

[Enter] TIBERIUS [attended.]

Tib. Is yet Sejanus come?

Sej. He's here, dread Caesar. Let all depart that chamber, and the next.

[Exeunt Attendants.]

Sit down, my comfort. When the master prince Of all the world, Sejanus, saith he fears, Is it not fatal?

Sej. Yes, to those are fear'd. Tib. And not to him? Sej. Not if he wisely turn o'er That part of fate he holdeth, first on them. Tib. That nature, blood, and laws of kind forbid.

Sej. Do policy and state forbid it?

Tib. No.

Sej. The rest of poor respects, then let go by State is enough to make th' act just, them guilty.

Tib. Long hate pursues such acts. Sej. Whom hatred frights, Let him not dream of sov'reignty.

Tib. Are rites Of faith, love, pitty, to be trod down, Forgotten, and made vain?

Sej. All for a crown. The prince who shames a tyrant's name to bear, Shall never dare do anything but fear; All the command of spects quite doth perish, If it begin religious thoughts to cherish: Whole empires fall, sway'd by those nice respects;

It is the licence of dark deeds protects Ev'n states most hated, when no laws resist The sword, but that it acteth what it list.

Tib. Yet so, we may do all things cruelly, Not safely.

Sej. Yes, and do them thoroughly. Tib. Knows yet Sejanus whom we point at? Sej. Ay, or raise my thought, my sense, or both de err: 't is Agrippina.

Tib. She, and her proud race.

Sej. Proud! dangerous, Caesar: for in them space The father's spirit shoots up. Germanicus Lives in their looks, their gait, their form, &c. upbraided us With his close death, if not revenge the same. Tib. The act's not known.

Sej. Not prov'd; but whisp'ring Fame Knowledge and proof doth to the jealous 6 give, Who, than to fail, would their own thought believe.

It is not safe the children draw long breath, That are provoked by a parent's death.

Tib. It is as dangerous to make them hence, If nothing but their birth be their offence.

Sej. Stay, till they strike at Caesar; then their crime Will be enough; but late and out of time For him to punish.

Tib. Do they purpose it?

Sej. You know, sir, thunder speaks not till it hit.

Be not secure; none swiftlier are oppress Than they whom confidence betrays to rest. Let not your daring make your danger such: All power's to be fear'd, where 't is too much. The youths are of themselves hot, violent, Full of great thought; and that male-spirited dame, Their mother, slack no means to put them on. By large allowance, popular presentings, Increase of train and state, suing for titles; Hath them commended with like prayers, like vows,

1 Shaks. 2 An apartment in the Palace. 3 Secret.
To the same gods, with Caesar: days and nights
She spends in banquets and ambitious feasts
For the nobility; where Caius Silius,
Titius Sabinus, old Arruntius,
Asinius Gallus, Furnius, Regulus,
And others of that discontented list,
Are the prime guests. There, and to these, she talls
Whose niece she was, whose daughter, and whose wife.
And then must they compare her with Augusta,
Ay, and prefer her too; commend her form,
Extol her fruitfulness, at which a shower
Falls for the memory of Germanicus.
Which they blow over straight with windy praise
And puffing hopes of her aspiring sons;
Who, with these hourly ticklings, grow so pleas'd,
And wantonly conceived of themselves,
As now they stick not to believe they're such As these do give them out; and would be thought
More than competitors, immediate heirs.
Whilst to their third rule of three, they win the rout
(That's still the friend of novelty) with hope
Of future freedom, which on every change
That greedily, though emptily expects.
Caesar, 'tis age in all things breeds neglects,
And princes that will keep old dignity
Must not admit too youthful heirs stand by;
Not their own issue; but so darkly set
As shadows are in picture, to give height
And lustre to themselves.
Tib. We will command
Their rank thoughts down, and with a stricter hand
Than we have yet put forth; their trains must bate,
Tib. Their titles, feasts, and factions.
Sej. Or your state.
But how, sir, will you work?
Tib. Confine 'em.
Sej. No. 119
They are too great, and that too faint a blow
To give them now; it would have serv'd at first,
When with the weakest touch their knot had burst.
But now, your care must be, not to detect
The smallest cord, or line of your suspect; 115
For such, who know the weight of princes' fear,
Will, when they find themselves discover'd, rear
Their forces, like seen snakes, that else would lie
Roll'd in their circles, close. Nought is more high,
Daring, or desperate, than offenders found; 120
Where guilt is, rage and courage do abound.
The course must be, to let 'em still swell up,
Riot, and surfeit on blind Fortune's cup;
Give 'em more place, more dignities, more style,
Call 'em to court, to senate; in the while, 123
Take from their strength some one or twain or
more,

1 Supporters. 9 Lessee.

Of the main suitors (it will fright thy store),
And, by some by-occasion. Thus, with sleight
You shall disarm first; and they, in night
Of their ambition, not perceive the train, 129
Till in the engine they are caught and slain.
Tib. We would not kill, if we knew how to save;
Yet, than a throne, 'tis cheaper give a grave.
Is there no way to bind them by deserts?
Sej. Sir, wolves do change their hair, but not their hearts.
While thus your thought unto a mean is tied,
You neither dare enough, nor do provide.
All modesty is fond, and chiefly where
The subject is no less compell'd to bear,
Than praise his sov'reign's acts.
Tib. We can no longer 130
Keep on our mask to thee, our dear Sejanus;
Thy thoughts are ours, in all, and we but prov'd
Their voice, in our designs, which by assenting
Hath more confirm'd us, then if heart'ning Jove
Had, from his hundred statues, bid us strike. 145
And at the stroke clickt all his marble thumbs.
But who shall first be struck?
Sej. First, Caius Silius;
He is the most of mark, and most of danger:
In power and reputation equal strong,
Having commanded an imperial army
Seven years together, vanquish'd Sapor
In Germany, and thence obtain'd to wear
The ornaments triumphal. His steep fall,
By how much it doth give the weightier crack,
Will send more wounding terror to the rest, 126
Command them stand aloof, and give more way
To our surprising of the principal.
Tib. But what, Sabinus?
Sej. Let him grow awhile,
His fate is not yet ripe: we must not pluck
At all together, lest we catch ourselves.
And there's Arruntius too, he only talks.
But Sosia, Silius' wife, would be wound in
Now, for she hath a fury in her breast.
More than hell ever knew; and would be sent Thither in time. Then is there one Cremutius Cordes, a writing fellow, they have got
To gather notes of the precedent times,
And make them into Annals; a most tart
And bitter spirit, I hear: who, under colour
Of praising those, doth tax the present state,
Censures the men, the actions, leaves no trick,
No practice unexam'd, parallels
The times, the governments: a profest champion
For the old liberty —
Tib. A perishing wretch!
As if there were that chaos bred in things. 1
That laws and liberty would not rather choose
To be quite broken, and tal'en hence by us,
Than have the stain to be preserv'd by such.
Have we the means to make these guilty first?
Sej. Trust that to me: let Caesar, by his power,
But cause a formal meeting of the senate,
I will have matter and accusers ready.
Tib. But how? Let us consult.

Sej. We shall misspend
The time of action. Counsels are unfit
In business where all rest is more pernicious.

Than rashness can be. Acts of this close kind Thrive more by execution than advice.
There is no lingering in that work begun,
Which cannot praise be, until through done.

Tib. Our edict shall forthwith command a court.

While I can live, I will prevent earth's fury:

Ε'μον θανόν τό γαία μακάμνια πυη'.

[Exit.]

[Enter JULIUS] POSTHUMUS.

Poe. My lord Sejanus —

Sej. Julius Posthumus!

Come with my wish! What news from Agrippi-na's?

Poe. Faith, none.

They all lock up themselves a' late,

Or talk in character; I have not seen

A company so chang'd. Except they had

Intelligence by augury of our practice —

Sej. When were you there?

Poe. Last night.

Sej. And what guests found you?

Poe. Sabinus, Silius, (the old list,) Arruntius, Furrinus, and Gallus.

Sej. Would not these talk?

Poe. Little.

And yet we offered choice of argument.

Saturius was with me.

Sej. Well: 'tis guilt enough

Their often meeting. You forgot t' extol

The hospitable lady?

Poe. No; that trick

Was well put home, and had succeeded too,

But that Sabinus cou'd a caution out;

For she began to swell.

Sej. And may she burst!

Julius, I would have you go instantly

Unto the palace of the great Augusta,

And, by your kindest friend, get swift access;

Auant her with these meetings: tell the words

You brought me th' other day, of Silius,

Add somewhat to 'em. Make her understand
The danger of Sabinius, and the times,

Out of his clesness. Give Arruntius' words
Of malice against Caesar; so, to Gallus:

But, above all, to Agrippina. Say,

As you may truly, that her infinite pride,

Prop't with the hopes of her too fruitful womb,

With popular studies gaps for sovereignty,

And threatens Caesar. Pray Augusta then,

That for her own, great Caesar's, and the pub-Lic safety, she be pleas'd to urge these dangers.

Caesar is too secure,' he must be told,

And best he'll take it from a mother's tongue.

Alas! what is 't for us to sound, t' explore,

To watch, oppose, plot, practise, or prevent,
If he, for whom it is so strongly labour'd,

Shall, out of greatness and free spirit, be

1 "When I am dead, let the earth be mingled with fire."

2 Subject.

Supinely negligent? Our city's now

Divided as in time o' th' civil war,

And men forbear not to declare themselves

Of Agrippina's party. Every day

The faction multiplies; and will do more.

If not resisted: you can best enlarge it,

As you find audience. Noble Posthumus,

Commend me to your Priscia: and pray her,

She will solicit this great business

To earnest and most present execution,

With all her utmost credit with Augusta,

Poe. I shall not fail in my instructions. [Exit.]

Sej. This second, from his mother, will well urge

Our late design, and spur on Caesar's rage;

Which else might grow remiss. The way to put

A prince in blood, is to present the shapes

Of dangers greater than they are, like late

Or early shadows: and, sometimes, to feign

Where there are none, only to make him fear.

His fear will make him cruel: and once ent' red

He doth not easily learn to stop, or spare

Where he may doubt. This have I made my

rule

To thrust Tiberius into tyranny,

And make him toil to turn aside those blocks,

Which I alone could not remove with safety.

Drusus once gone, Germanicus' three sons

Would close my way; whose guards have too much faith

To be corrupted: and their mother known

Of too unreprov'd a chastity

To be attempted, as light Livia was.

Work then, my art, on Caesar's fears, as they

On those they fear, till all my lets be clear'd,

And he in ruins of his house, and hate

Of all his subjects, bury his own state;

When with my peace, and safety, I will rise,

By making him the public sacrifice. [Exit.]

[Scene III.]

[Enter] SATRIUS, NATTA.

Sat. They're grown exceeding circumspect,

And wary.

Nat. They have us in the wind: and yet Arruntius

Cannot contain himself.

Sat. Tutt, he's not yet

Look'd after; there are others more desir'd,

That are more silent.

Nat. Here he comes. Away! [Exit.]

[Enter] SABINIUS, ARRUNTIIUS, CORDUS.

Sab. How is it, that these beagles haunt the house

Of Agrippina?

Arr. O, they hunt, they hunt!

There is some game here lodg'd, which they must rouse,

To make the great ones sport.

Cor. Did you observe

How they inveigh'd 'gainst Caesar?

Arr. Ay, baits, baits,

4 Blameless.

5 Obstacles. F. betta.

6 A room in Agrippina's house.
For us to bite at: would I have my flesh
Torn by the public hook, these qualified hangmen
Should be my company.

Cor. Here comes another.

[A Dom. after passes over the stage.]

Arr. Ay, there's a man, after the orator! One that hath phrases, figures, and fine flowers, To strew his rhetoric with, and doth make haste, To get him note or name by any offer Where blood or gain be objects; steeps his words, When he would kill, in artificial tears: The crocodile of Tiber! him I love, That man is mine; he hath my heart and voice When I would curse! he, he.

Sab. Contempt the slaves, Their present lives will be their future graves.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene IV.] 1

[Enter] Silvius, Agrippina, Nero, Sosia.

Sil. May 't please your highness not forget yourself; I dare not, with my manners, to attempt Your trouble farther.

Apr. Farewell, noble Silvius!

Sil. Most royal princess.

Apr. Sosia stays with us?

Sil. She is your servant, and doth owe your grace An honest, but unprofitable love.

Apr. How can that be, when there's no gain but virtue's?

Sil. You take the moral, not the politic sense. I meant, as she is bold, and free of speech, Earnest to utter what her zealous thought Travails withal, in honour of your house; Which act, as it is simply borne in her, Partakes of love and honesty; but may, By th' over-often, and unseason'd use, Turn to your loss and danger: for your state Is waited on by envious, as by eyes; And every second guest your tables take Is a fee'd spy, to observe who goes, who comes; What conference you have, with whom, where, when, What the discourse is, what the looks, the thoughts Of ev'ry person there, they do extract, And make into a substance.

Apr. Hear me, Silvius.

Were all Tiberius' body stuck with eyes, And ev'ry wall and hanging in my house Transparent, as this lawn I wear, or air; Yea, had Sejanus both his ears as long As to my inmost closet. I would hate To whisper any thought, or change an act, To be made Juno's rival. Virtue's forces Show ever nolest in conspicuous courses.

Sil. 'Tis great, and bravely spoken, like the spirit Of Agrippina: yet, your highness knows,

There is no loss nor shame in providence; Few can, what all should do, beware enough. You may perceive with what officious face, Satirick, and Natta, Afer, and the rest Visit your house of late, t' inquire the secrets; And with what bold and privileg'd art, they rail Against Augusta, yea, and at Tiberius; Tell tricks of Livia, and Sejanus: all T' excite, and call your indignation on, That they might hear it at more liberty.

Apr. You're too suspicious, Silvius.

Sil. Pray the gods, I be so, Agrippina; but I fear Some subtle practice. They that dare to strike At so example, and unblam'd a life, As that of the renown'd Germanicus, Will not sit down with that exploit alone: He threatens many that hath injur'd one.

Nero. 'T were best rip forth their tongues, seal their eyes, When next they come.

Sos. A fit reward for spies.

Dru. Jun. Hear you the rumour?

Apr. What?

Apr. Dying!

Nero. That's strange!

Apr. You were with him yesternight.

Dru. Jun. One met Eudemus the physician, Sent for, but now: who thinks he cannot live.

Sil. Thinks! If it be arriv'd at that, he knows, Or none.

Apr. 'T is quick! What should be his disease?

Sil. Poison, poison——

Apr. How, Silvius!

Nero. What's that?

Sil. Nay, nothing. There was late a certain blow Given o' the face.

Nero. Ay, to Sejanus.

Sil. True.

Dru. Jun. And what of that?

Sil. I'm glad I gave it not.

Nero. But there is somewhat else?

Sil. Yes, private meetings, With a great lady at a physician's,

And a wife turn'd away——

Nero. Ha!

Sil. Toys, mere toys:

What wisdom's now i' th' streets, i' th' common mouth?

Dru. Jun. Fears, whisperings, tumults, noise, I know not what:

They say the Senate sit.

Sil. I'll thither straight;

And see what's in the forge.

Apr. Good Silvius, do;

Sosia and I will in.

Sil. Haste you, my lords,

To visit the sick prince; tender your loves,

And sorrows to the people. This Sejanus,
SEJANUS, HIS FALL

ACT III

[SCENE I.]

The Senate.

[Enter] Praecessor, Lictores, SEJANUS, VARRO, LATIARIS, COTTA, and AGER.

SEJ. 'Tis only you must urge against him, Varro;
Nor I, nor Caesar may appear therein,
Except in your defence, who are the consul;
And, under colour of late enmity,
Between your father and his, may better do it,
As free from all suspicion of a practice.
Here be your notes, what points to touch at;
read:
Be cunning in them. Ager has them too.
Var. But is he summon'd?
SEJ. No. It was debated
By Caesar, and concluded as most fit
To take him unprepared.
Ager. And prosecute
All under name of treason.
Var. I conceive.

[Enter SABINUS, GALLUS, LEPIDUS, and ABBUNTUS.]

SAB. Drusus being dead, Caesar will not be here.

GAL. What should the business of this senate be?

ARR. That can my subtle whisperers tell you: we Are only call'd to keep the marble warm.
What should we do with those deep mysteries,
Proper to these fine heads? Let them alone. Our ignorance may, perchance, help us sav'd
From whips and furies.

GAL. See, see, see their action! ARR. Ay, now their heads do travail, now they work;
Their faces run like shittles; they are weaving Some curious cobweb to catch flies.

SAB. Observe,
They take their places.

ARR. What, so low!

SAB. They must be seen to flatter Caesar's grief,
Though but in sitting.

VAR. Bid us silence.

PRAE. Silence.

VAR. "Fathers conscript, may this our present meeting Turn fair and fortunate to the commonwealth!"

[Enter] SILIUS [and other Senators.]

SEJ. See, Silius enters.

SILIUS. Hail, grave fathers!

LIC. Silius, forbear thy place.

SEN. How!

PRAE. Silius, stand forth,
The consul hath to charge thee.

LIC. Is he come too! Nay then expect a trick.
SAB. Silius accus'd! Sure he will answer nobly.

[Enter] TIBERIUS [attended.]

TIB. We stand amazed, fathers, to behold
This general dejection. Wherefore sit
Rome's consuls thus dissolv'd, as they had lost
All the remembrance both of style and place?
It not becomes. No woes are of fit weight
To make the honour of the Empire stoop:
Though I, in my peculiar self may meet
Just reprehension, that so suddenly,
And in so fresh a grief, would greet the senate,
When private tongues, of kinsmen and allies,
Inspire'd with comforts, lothly are endur'd.
The face of men not seen, and scarce the day,
To thousands that communicate our loss.
Nor can I argue these of weakness, since
They take but natural ways; yet I must seek
For stronger aids, and those fair helps draw out
From warm embraces of the commonwealth.
Our mother, great Augusta ,'s struck with time,
Ourself impress with aged characters,
Drusus is gone, his children young and babes;
Our aims must now reflect on those that may Give timely succour to these present ills,
And are our only glad-surviving hopes,
The noble issue of Germanicus,
Nero and Drusus: might it please the consul Honour them in, they both attend without.
I would present them to the senate's care,
And raise those sums of joy that should drink up
These floods of sorrow in your drowned eyes.

ARR. By Jove, I am not Oedipus enough
To understand this Sphinx.

SAB. The princes come.

[Enter] NERO, DRUSUS JUNIOR.

TIB. Approach you, noble Nero, noble Drusus,
These princes, fathers, when their parent died,
I gave unto their uncle, with this prayer,
That though he 'd proper issue of his own,
He would no less bring up, and foster them,
Than that self-blood; and by that act confirm
Their worths to him, and to posterity.
Drusus ta'en hence, I turn my prayers to you,
And 'fore our country and our gods, beseech
You take, and rule Augustus' nephew's sons,
Sprung of the noblest ancestors; and so
Accomplish both my duty, and your own.
Nero, and Drusus, these shall be to you
In place of parents, these your fathers, these;
And not only: for you are born,
As all your good or ill's the commonwealth's.

Share.
Receive them, you strong guardians; and blast
gods,
Make all their actions answer to their bloods:
Let their great titles find increase by them,
Not they by titles. Set them, as in place.
So in example, above all the Romans:
And may they know no rivals but themselves.
Let Fortune give them nothing, but attend
Upon their fame: and that still come forth
Greater than hope, and better than their fame.
Believe me, fathers, with your general voice.

Senators. "May all the gods consent to Caesar's wish,
And add to any honours that may crown
The hopeful issue of Germanicus!"

Tib. We thank you, reverend fathers, in their right.
Arr. [Aside.] If this were true, now! but the space,
the space.

Between the breast and lips! 'Tiberius' heart
Lies a thought farther than another man's.

Tib. My comforts are so flowing in my joys,
As, in them, all my streams of grief are lost,
No less than are land-waters in the sea,
Or showers in rivers; though their cause was such
As might have sprinkled ev'n the gods with tears:
Yet, since the greater doth embrace the less,
We coaxently obey.

Arr. [Aside.]"1 Well acted, Caesar. 120
Tib. And now I am the happy witness made
Of your so much desir'd affections.
To this great issue, I could wish the Fates
Would here set peaceful period to my days;
However, to my labours I entreat
And beg it of this senate, some fit ease.

Arr. [Aside.] Let laugh, fathers, laugh; ha'
you no spleens2 about you?

Tib. The burden is too heavy I sustain
On my unwilling shoulders; and I pray
It may be taken off, and reconfe'rd
Upon the consuls, or some other Roman,
More able, and more worthy.

Arr. [ Aside. ]3 Laugh on still.
Sab. Why, this doth render all the rest suspected!

Gal. It poisons all.

Arr. O, do you taste it then?

Sab. It takes away my faith to anything

He shall hereafter speak.

Arr. Ay, to pray that,

Which would be to his head as hot as thunder,
'Gainst which he bears that charm, should but the court
Receive him at his word.

Gal. Hear! 120

Tib. For myself
I know my weakness, and so little covet,
Like some gone past, the weight that will oppress me,
As my ambition is the counter-point.

Arr. [Aside.] Finely maintain'd; good still!

---

Sej. But Rome, whose blood,
Whose nerves, whose life, whose very frame relies
On Caesar's strength, no less than heaven on Atlas,

Cannot admit it but with general rain.

Arr. [Aside.] Ah I are you there to bring him off?

Sej. Let Caesar
No more then urge a point so contrary.

To Caesar's greatness, the grief's d'neat;e's vows,
Or Rome's necessity.

Gal. [ Aside. ] He comes about —

Tib. For the public,
I may be drawn to show I can neglect
All private aims, though I affect my rest;
But if the senate still command me serve,
I must be glad to practise my obedience.

Arr. [Aside. ] You must and will, sir. We do know it.

Senators. "Caesar,
Live long and happy, and royal Caesar;
The gods preserve thee and thy modesty,
Thy wisdom and thy innocence!"

Arr. [Aside. ] Where is't?

The prayer is made before the subject.

Senators. "Guard
His meekness, Jove, his piety, his care,
His bounty —"

Arr. [Aside. ] And his subtily, I'll put in:
Yet he'll keep that himself, without the gods.
All prayers are vain for him.

Tib. We will not hold
Your patience, fathers, with long answer; but Shall still contend to be what you desire,
And work to satisfy so great a hope.
Proceed to your affairs.

Arr. [Aside. ] Now, Silius, guard thee;
The curtain's drawing. Afer advanceth.

Prae. Silence!

Afer. Cite Caius Silius.
Prae. Here.

Silius Caius Silius!

Afer. The triumph that thou hadst in Germany
For thy late victory on Sacrovir,
Thou hast enjoy'd so freely, Caius Silius,
As no man it envi'd thee; nor would Caesar
Or Rome admit, that thou were then defrauded
Of any honours thy deserts could claim
In the fair service of the commonwealth;
But now, if after all their loves and graces,
(Thy actions, and their courses being discover'd)
It shall appear to Caesar and this senate,
Thou hast desist'd those glories with thy

Silius Crimes —

Afer. Patience, Silius.

Silius. Tell thy mute of patience;
I am a Roman. What are my crimes? Proclaim
them.

Am I too rich, too honest for the times?

To save I or treasure, jewels, land, or houses

These some informer impeaches for? Is my strength
Too much to be admitted, or my knowledge?

These now are crimes.
Afer. Nay, Silius, if the name
Of crime so touch thee, with what impotence
Wilt thou endure the matter to be search'd? 174
Sil. I tell thee, Afer, with more scorn than fear:
Employ your mercenary tongue and art.
Where's my accuser?
Var. Here.
Arr. Varro, the consul!
Is he trust in?
Var. 'Tis I accuse thee, Silius.
Against the majesty of Rome and Caesar, 198
I do pronounce thee here a guilty cause,
First of beginning and occasioning.
Next, drawing out the war in Gallia,
For which thou late triumph'st; dissembling long
That Sacrovir to be an enemy, 183
Only to make thy entertainment more;
Whilst thou, and thy wife Sosia, poll'd 1
the province;
Wherein, with sordid-base desire of gain,
Thou hast discredited thy actions' worth,
And been a traitor to the state.
Sil. Thou liest. 198
Arr. I thank thee, Silius; speak so still and often.
Var. If I not prove it, Caesar, but unjustly
Have call'd him into trial, here I bind
Myself to suffer what I claim 'gainst him; 194
And yield to have what I have spoke, confirm'd
By judgment of the court, and all good men.
Sil. Caesar, I crave to have my cause defer'd,
Till this man's consulship be out.
Tib. We cannot.
Nor may we grant it.
Sil. Why? Shall he design 2
My day of trial? Is he my accuser,
And must he be my judge?
Tib. It hath been usual,
And is a right that custom hath allow'd
The magistrate, to call forth private men
And to appoint their day: which privilege
We may not in the consul see infring'd, 208
By whose deep watches and industrious care
It is so labour'd, as the commonwealth
Receive no loss, by any oblique course.
Sil. Caesar, thy fraud is worse than violence.
Tib. Silius, mistake us not, we dare not use
The credit of the consul to thy wrong;
But only do preserve his place and power,
So far as it concerns the dignity
And honour of the state.
Arr. Believe him, Silius.
Cox. Why, so he may, Arruntius.
Arr. I say so; 115
And he may choose too.
Tib. By the Capitol,
And all our gods, but that the dear republic,
Our sacred laws, and just authority
Are interest'd therein, I should be silent. 119
Afer. Please Caesar to give way unto his trial,
He shall have justice.
Sil. Nay, I shall have law;
Shall I not, Afer? Speak.

---

1 Plundered by extortion.
2 Name.
Had but your legions there rebell’d, or mutin’d;
Your virtue met, and fronted every peril.
You gav’t to Caesar and to Rome her surety.
Their name, their strength, their spirit, and
Their state,
Their being was a donative from you.
Arr. Well worded, and most like an orator.
Tib. Is this true, Silius?
Sili. I hope, sir. Our arms and forces.
Thy spy of famous credit hath affirm’d it.
Arr. Excellent Roman!
Sili. He doth answer stoutly.
Sej. If this be so, there needs no farther cause
Of crime against him.
Var. What can more impeach
The royal dignity and state of Caesar,
Than to be urged with a benefit
He cannot pay.
Cot. In this, all Caesar’s fortune
Is made unequal to the courtesy.
Gal. Nothing is great enough for Silius’ merit.
Arr. Gallus on that side too?
Sili. Come, do not hunt.
And labour so about for circumstances,
To make him guilty, whom you have foredoom’d:
Take shorter ways, I’ll meet your purposes.
The words were mine, and more I now will say:
Since I have done thee that great service,
Cassar,
Thou still hast fear’d me; and, in place of grace,
Return’d me hatred: so soon all best turns,
With doubtful prudence, turn deep injuries
In estimation, when they greater rise
Than can be answer’d. Benefits, with you,
Are of no longer pleasure, than you can
With ease restore them; that transcended ones,
Your studies are not how to thank, but kill.
It is your nature, to have all men slaves
To you, but you acknowledging to none.
Sej. The means that makes your greatness, must not come
In mention of it; if it do, it takes
So much away, you think: and that which help’d
Shall soonest perish, if it stand in eye.
Where it may front, or but the praise of the high.
Cot. Suffer him speak more.
Var. Note but his spirit.
Afer. This shows him in the rest.
Lat. Let him be censur’d.
Sej. He hath spoke enough to prove him
Cassar’s foe.
Cot. His thoughts look through his words.
Sej. A censure.
Sili. Stay.
Stay, most officious senate, I shall straight
Delude thy fury. Silius hath not plac’d
His guards within him, against fortune’s spite;
So weakly but he can escape your grieves.
That are but hands of fortune: she herself,
When virtue doth oppose, must lose her threats.
All that can happen in humanity,

The frown of Caesar, proud Sejanus’ hatred,
Base Varro’s spleen, and Afer’s bloodying
The senate’s servile flattery, and these Must ’red to kill, I’m fortified against,
And can look down upon: they are beneath me.
It is not life whereof I stand enamour’d
Nor shall my end make me accuse my fate.
The coward and the valiant man must fall,
Only the cause, and manner how, discerns them:
Which then are gladdest, when they cost us
dearcest.
Romans, if any here be in this senate,
Would know to mock Tiberius’ tyranny,
Look upon Silius, and so learn to die.

Var. O desperate act!
Arr. An honourable hand!
Tib. Look, is he dead?
Sili. ’T was nobly struck, and home.
Arr. My thought did prompt him to it. Farewell, Silius.
Sej. Caesar doth wrong
His dignity and safety thus to mourn
The despair’d end of so profest a traitor;
And doth, by this his lenity, instruct
Others as factious to the like offence.
Tib. The confinement merely of his state
Had been enough.
Arr. O, that was gap’d for then?
Var. Remove the body.
Sej. Let citation
Go out for Sosia.
Gal. Let her be proscrib’d:
And for the gooda, I think it fit that half
Go to the treasure, half unto the children.
Lep. With leave of Caesar, I would think that fourth,
Part, which the law doth cast on the informers,
Should be enough; the rest go to the children:
Wherein the prince shall show humanity,
And bounty; not to force them by their want.
Which in their parent’s trespass they deserv’d,
To take ill courses.
Tib. It shall please us.
Arr. Out of necessity. This Lepidus
Is grave and honest, and I have observ’d
A moderation still in all his censure,
Sab. And bending to the better — Stay,
Who’s this?
Cremutius Cordus! What is he brought in?
Arr. More blood unto the banquet! Noble
Cordus,
I wish thee good; be as thy writings, free
And honest.
Tib. What is he?
Sej. For th’ Annals, Caesar.
Asinus Pollio's writings quite throughout
Give them a noble memory; so Messala,
Knew 'd his general, Cassius; yet both these Liv'd with Augustus, full of wealth and honours.
To Cicero's book, where Cato was heav'd up
Equal with heaven, what else did Caesar answer,
Being then dictator, but with a penn'd oration,
As if before the judges? Do but see
Antonius' letters; read but Brutus' pleadings:
What vile reproach they hold against Augustus,
False, I confess, but with much bitterness.
The epigrams of Biboecus and Catullus
Are read, full stuff with spite of both the Caesares;
Yet defied Julius, and no less Augustus,
Both bore them, and contemn'd them: I not
know,
Promptly to speak it, whether done with more
Temper, or wisdom; for such obloquies
If they desist'd be, they die supprest;
But if with rage acknowledg'd, they are confest.
The Greeks I slip, whose licence not alone,
But also last did escape unpunish'd:
Or where some one, by chance, exception took,
He words with words reveng'd. But, in my work
What could be aim'd more free, or farther off
From the time's scandal, than to write of those Whom death from grace or hatred had exempted?
Did I, with Brutus and with Cassius,
Arm'd and possess'd of the Philippic fields,
Incense the people in the civil cause,
With dangerous speeches? Or do they, being slain
Seventy years since, as by their images,
Which not the conqueror hath defac'd, appears,
Retain that guilty memory with writers?
Posterity pays every man his honour:
Nor shall there want, though I condemned am,
That will not only Cassius well approve,
And of great Brutus' honour mindful be,
But that will also mention make of me.

[Exeunt Officers with Cordus.]

Cot. Mean time, give order, that his books be burnt.

To the sadiles.

Sej. You have well advis'd.

Afer. It fits not such licentious things should live.

T' overpaid the age.

Arr. If th' age were good, they might.

Lat. Let 'em be burnt.

Gal. All sought, and burnt to-day.

Prae. The court is up; lectors, resume the fasces.

[Exeunt all but] Abruntius, Saph-inus, and Lepidus.
Arr. Let them be burnt! O, how ridiculous
Appear the senate's brainless diligence,
Who think they can, with present power, extinguish

The memory of all succeeding times!

Sab. 'Tis true; when, contrary, the punishment
Of wit doth make th' authority increase.
Nor do they anght, that use this cruelty
Of interdiction, and this rage of burning,
But purchase to themselves rebuke and shame,
And to the writers an eternal name.

Lep. It is an argument the times are sore,
When virtue cannot safely be advance'd,
Nor vice reprov'd.

Arr. Ay, noble Lepidus;

Augustus well foresaw what we should suffer
Under Tiberius, when he did pronounce
The Roman race most wretched, that should live
Between so slow jaws, and so long a bruising.

[Scene II.]

[Enter] Tiberius and Sejanus.

Tib. This business hath succeeded well, Se-
janus;
And quite remov'd all jealousy of practice
'Gainst Agrippina, and our nephews. Now,
We must bethink us how to plant our ingines
For th'other pair, Sabinus and Arruntius,
And Gallus too; howe'er he flatter us,
His heart we know.

Sej. Give it some respite, Caesar.
Time shall mature, and bring to perfect crown,
What we, with so good vultures, have begun:
Sabinus shall be next.

Tib. Rather Arruntius.

Sej. By any means, preserve him. His frank tongue
Being lent the reins, would take away all thought
Of malice, in your course against the rest:
We must keep him to stalk with.

Tib. Dearest head,
To thy most fortunate design I yield it.

Sej. Sir, I have been so long train'd up in
grace,
First with your father, great Augustus; since,
With your most happy bounties so familiar;
As I not sooner would commit my hopes
Or wishes to the gods, than to your ears.

Nor have I ever yet been covetous
Of over-bright and dazzling honours; rather
To watch and travail in great Caesar's safety,
With the most common soldier.

Tib. 'Tis confest.

Sej. The only gain, and which I count most fair
Of all my fortunes, is, that mighty Caesar
Has thought me worthy his alliance. Hence Begin my hopes.

Tib. Umph!

Sej. I have heard, Augustus,
In the bestowing of his daughter, thought

But even of gentlemen of Rome: if so —
I know not how to hope so great a favour —
But if a husband should be sought for Livia,
And I be had in mind, as Caesar's friend,
I would but use the glory of the kindred.
It should not make me slothful, or less caring
For Caesar's state; it were enough to me
It did confirm, and strengthen my weak house,
Against the now unequal opposition
Of Agrippina; and for dear regard
Unto my children, this I wish: myself
Have no ambition farther than to end
My days in service of so dear a master.

Tib. We cannot but commend thy piety,
Most lovd Sejanus, in acknowledging Those bounties; which we, faintly, such remember. —
But to thy suit. The rest of mortal men,
In all their drifts and counsels, pursue profit;
Princes alone are of a different sort,
Directing their main actions still to fame:
We therefore will take time to think and answer.
For Livia she can best, herself, resolve
If she will marry, after Drusus, or Continue in the family; besides,
She hath a mother, and a grandam yet,
Whose nearer counsels she may guide her by:
But I will simply deal. That enmy
Thou fear'st in Agrippina, would burn more,
If Livia's marriage should, as 't were in parts,
Divide th' imperial house; an emulation Between the women might break forth; and discord
Ruin the sons and nephews on both hands.
What if it cause some present difference?
Thou art not safe, Sejanus, if thou prove it. it.
Canst thou believe, that Livia, first the wife
To Caius Caesar, then to Drusus, now
Will be contented to grow old with thee,
Born but a private gentleman of Rome,
And raise thee with her loss, if not her shame?
Or say that I should wish it, canst thou think
The senate, or the people (who have seen
Her brother, father, and our ancestors,
In highest place of empire) will endure it?
The state thou hold'st already, is in talk;
Men murmur at thy greatness; and the nobles
Stick not, in public, to upbraid thy climbing
Above our father's favours, or thy scale:
And dare accuse me, from their hate to thee.
Be wise, dear friend. We would not hide these things,
For friendship's dear respect: nor will we stand
Adverse to thine, or Livia's designs.
What have we purposed to thee, in our thought,
And with what near degrees of love to bind
thee,
And make thee equal to us, for the present
We will forbear to speak. Only, thus much Believe, our lov'd Sejanus, we not know
That height in blood or honour, which thy virtue
And mind to us, may not aspire with merit.
And this we 'll publish on all watch'd occasion
The senate or the people shall present.
SEJANUS, HIS FALL

Now use thee, whatsoever thy projects are:  10
'Tis true. But yet with caution and fit care;
And, now we better think — Who's there within?

[Enter an Officer.]

OFF. Caesar!

Tib. [Aside.] To leave our journey off, were sin
'Gainst our decreed delights; and would appear
Doubt; or, what less becomes a prince, low fear.

Yet doubt hath law, and fears have their excuse,
Where princes' states plead necessary use;
As ours doth now: more in Sejanus' pride,
Than all fell Agrippina's hates beside.
Those are the dreadful enemies, we raise  30
With favours, and make dangerous with praise;
The injur'd by us may have will alike,
But 't is the favourite hath the power to strike;
And fury ever boils more high and strong.
Heat 2 with ambition, than revenge of wrong.
'T is then a part of supreme skill, to grace
No man too much; but hold a certain space Between th' ascender's rise and thine own flat;
Lest, when all rounds be reach'd, his aim be that.
'Tis thought. — Is Macro in the palace? see:
If not, go seek him, to come to us. [Exit Officer.]

Mac. Must be the organ we must work by now;
Though none less apt for trust: need doth allow
What choice would not. I have heard that aconite,
Being timely taken, hath a healing might
Against the scorpion's stroke; the proof we'll give:
That, while two poisoners wrestle, we may live.
He hath a spirit too working to be us'd
But to th'encounter of his like; exec'd
Are wiser so'reigns then, that raise one ill
Against another, and both safely kill:
The prince that feeds great natures, they will away him;
Who nourisheth a lion, must obey him.—

[Re-enter Officer with] MACRO.

Mac, we sent for you.

Mac. I heard so, Caesar.

Tib. Leave us a while. [Exit Officer.]

When you shall know, good Macro,
The causes of our sending, and the ends,
You will them hearken nearer; and be pleased
You stand so high both in our choice and trust.

Mac. The humblest place in Caesar's choice or trust,
May make glad Macro proud; without ambition,

Save to do Caesar service.

Tib. Leave your courtings.

We are in purpose, Macro, to depart
The city for a time, and see Campania;
Not for our pleasures, but to dedicate

1 Another room in the same.

2 Heated.

3 Level.
A pair of temples, one to Jupiter
At Capua; th’ other at Nola, to Augustus:
In which great work, perhaps our stay will be Beyond our will produc’d. Now, since we are Not ignorant what danger may be born
Out of our shortest absence, as devout
So subject unto envy, and embroil’d
With hate and faction; we have thought on thee,
Amongst a field of Romans, worthiest Macro,
To be our eye and ear: to keep strict watch
On Agrippina, Nero, Drusus; ay,
And on Sejanus: not that we distrust
His loyalty, or do repent one grace,
Of all that keep we have confer’d on him;
For that were to disarrange our election,
And call that judgment now in doubt, which
then
Seem’d as unquestio’d as an oracle—
But greatness hath his cankers. Worms and moths
Breed out of too fit matter, in the things
Which after they consume, transferring quite
The substance of their makers int’ themselves.
Macro is sharp, and apprehends besides,
I know him subtle, close, wise, and well read
In man, and his large nature; he hath studied Affections, passions, knows their springs, their ends, Which way, and whether they will work: ’t is proof
Enough of his great merit that we trust him.
Then to a point (because our conference Cannot be long without suspicion):
Here, Macro, we assign thee both to spy,
Inform, and chastise; think, and use thy means,
Thy ministers, what, where, on whom thou wilt;
Explore, plot, practise: all thou dost in this Shall be, as if the senate or the laws
Had giv’n it privilege, and thou thence styl’d
The saviour both of Caesar and of Rome.
We will not take thy answer but in act:
Whereeto, as thou proceed’st, we hope to hear
By trusted messengers. If ’t be inquir’d Wherefore we call’d you, say you have in charge
To see our chariots ready, and our horse.
Be still our lov’d and, shortly, honour’d Macro.
[Exit.]
Mac. I will not ask why Caesar bids do this;
But joy, that he bids me. It is the bliss
Of courts to be employ’d, no matter how;
A prince’s power makes all his actions virtue.
We, whom he works by, are dumb instruments,
To do, but not inquire: his great intents
Are to be serv’d, not search’d. Yet, as that bow
Is most in hand whose ownest doth doth know
’T affect his aims; so let that statesman hope
Most use, most price, can hit his prince’s scope.
Nor must he look at what or whom to strike,
But looses at all; each mark must be alike.
Were it to plot against the fame, the life

Of one with whom I twinn’d; remove a wife
From my warm side, as lov’d as is the air;
Practise away each parent; draw mine heir
In compass, though but one; work all my kin
To swift perdition; leave no untrain’d engine
For friendship, or for innocence; say, make
The gods all guilty; I would undertake
This, being impose’d me, both with gain and ease:
The way to rise is to obey and please.
He that will thrive in state, he must neglect
The trodden paths that truth and right respect;
And prove new, wilder ways: for virtue there
Is not that narrow thing she is elsewhere.
Men’s fortune there is virtue; reason their will;
Their licence, law; and their observance, skill.
Occasion is their foil; conscience, their staid;
Profit their lustre; and what else is, vain.
If then it be the lust of Caesar’s power
’T have rais’d Sejanus up, and in an hour
O’erturn him, tumbling, down from height of all;
We are his ready engine; and his fall
May be our rise. It is no uncouth thing
To see fresh buildings from old ruins spring.

CHORUS—of Musicians.

ACT IV

[Scene I.]

[Enter] GALLUS, AGrippina.

Gal. You must have patience, royal Agrip-

Pina.

Agr. I must have vengeance first; and that were nectar
Unto my famish’d spirits. O, my fortune,
Let it be sudden thou prepar’st against me;
Strike all my powers of understanding blind,
And ignorant of destiny to come!
Let me not fear, that cannot hope.

Gal. Dear princess.

These tyrannies on yourself are worse than Caesar’s.

Agr. Is this the happiness of being born great?
Still to be aim’d at? still to be suspected?
To live the subject of all jealousies?
At least the colour’d, made, if not the ground
To every painted danger? Who would not Choose once to fall, than thus to hang for ever?
Gal. You might be safe if you would —

Agr. What, my Gallus! is
Be lewd Sejanus’ strumpet? Or the bawd
To Caesar’s lusts, he now is gone to practise?
Not these are safe, where nothing is. Yourself,
While thus you stand but by me, are not safe.
Was Silius safe? Or the good Sosia safe?
Or was my niece, dear Claudia Pulchra, safe,
Or innocent Furnius? they that latest have
(By being made guilty) added reputation.

4 Entrap mine heir.
5 Unknown.
6 An apartment in Agrippina’s house.
7 Pretex, with a pun.

4 Effect.
5 Aim.
6 Shoot.
SEJANUS, HIS FALL

To Afer's eloquence? O, foolish friends,
Could not so fresh example warn your loves,
But you must buy my favours with that loss
Unto yourselves; and when you might perceive
That Caesar's cause of raging must forsake him,
Before his will! Away, good Gallus, leave me.
Here to be seen, is danger; to speak, treason:
To do me least observance, is call'd faction.
You are unhappy in me, and I in all.
Where are my sons Nero and Drusus? We
Are they be shot at; let us fall apart;
Not in our ruins sepulchre our friends.
Or shall we do some action like offence,
To mock their studies that would make us
faulty,
And frustrate practice by preventing it?
The danger's like: for what they can contrive,
They will make good. No innocence is safe
When power contests: nor can they trespass
more,
Whose only being was all crime before.

[Enter Nero, Drusus, and Caligula.]

Ner. You hear Sejanus is come back from Caesar?
Gal. No. How? disgrac'd?
Dru. More grace now than ever
Gal. By what mishance?
Cal. A fortune like enough
Once to be bad.
Dru. But turn'd too good to both.
Gal. What's t'?
Ner. Tiberius sitting at his meat,
In a farm-house they call Spalancas, sited
By the sea-side, among the Fundane hills,
Within a natural cave; part of the grot.
About the entry, fall, and overwhelm'd
Some of the waiters; others ran away:
Only Sejanus with his knees, hands, face,
O'erhanging Caesar, did oppose himself
To the remaining ruins, and was found
In that so labouring posture by the soldiers
That came to succour him. With which adventures
He hath so fixt himself in Caesar's trust,
As thunder cannot move him, and is come
With all the height of Caesar's praise to Rome.

Agr. And power to turn those ruins all on us,
And bury whole posterities beneath them.
Nero, and Drusus, and Caligula,
Your places are the next, and therefore must
In their offence. Think on your birth and blood,
Awake your spirits, meet their violence;
'Tis princely when a tyrant doth oppose,
And is a fortune sent to exercise
Your virtue, as the wind doth try strong trees,
Who by vexation grow more sound and firm.
After your father's fall, and uncle's fate,
What can you hope, but all the change of stroke
That force or sleight can give? Then stand upright;

And though you do not act, yet suffer nobly:
Be worthy of my womb, and take strong cheer;
What we do know will come, we should not fear.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.]

[Enter] MAC.Bo.

Mac. Return'd so soon! Renew'd in trust
And grace!
Is Caesar thin so weak, or hath the place
But wrought this alteration with the air;
And he, on next remove, will all repair?
Marco, thou art engag'd: and what before
Was public, now must be thy private more.
The weal of Caesar, fitness did imply;
But thine own fate confers necessity
On thy employment; and the thoughts borne nearest
Unto yourselves, move swiftest still, and dearest.
If he recover, thou art lost; yes, all
The weight of preparation to his fall
Will turn on thee, and crush thee: therefore strike
Before he settle, to prevent the like
Upon thyself. He doth his vantage know,
That makes it home, and gives the foremost blow.

[Exit.]

[Scene III.]

[Enter] LAETIARUS, RUFUS, and OPHEUS.

Lat. It is a service great Sejanus will See well requited, and accept of nobly.
Here place yourselves between the roof and ceiling;
And when I bring him to his words of danger,
Reveal yourselves, and take him.

Ruf. Is he come?

Lat. I'll now go fetch him.

[Exit.]

Ops. With good speed. — I long
To merit from the state in such an action.

Ruf. I hope it will obtain the consulship
For one of us.

Ops. We cannot think of less.
To bring in one so dangerous as Sebinus.

Ruf. He was a follower of Germanicus,
And still is an observer of his wife
And children, though they be declin'd in grace;
A daily visitant, keeps them company
In private and in public, and is noted
To be the only client of the house:

Fr. Jove, he will be free to Latiarus.

Ops. He's alli'd to him, and doth trust him
well.

Ruf. And he'll require his trust!

Ops. To do an office
So grateful to the state, I know no man
But would strain nearer bands than kindred —

Ruf. List!

I hear them come.

Ops. Shift to our holes with silence.

[They retire.]

8 The street.
9 Follows it up to the utmost.
10 An upper room of Agrippina's house.
11 One who pays respectful attentions.
12 Like the offences we are charged with.
13 Anticipating. 14 More existence. 15 Tossing.
[Re-enter] LATIARIS, SABINUS.

_Lat._ It is a noble constancy you show
To this afflicted house; that not like others,
The friends of season, you do follow fortune,
And, in the winter of their fate, forsake
The place whose glories warm'd you. You are just,
And worthy such a princely patron's love,
As was the world's renown'd Germanicus,
Whose ample merit when I call to thought,
And see his wife and issue objects made
To so much envy, jealousy, and hate;
It makes me ready to accuse the gods
Of negligence, as men of tyranny.
_Sab._ They must be patient, so must we.
_Lat._ O Jove,
What will become of us or of the times,
When, to be high or noble, are made crimes,
When land and treasure are most dangerous faults?
_Sab._ Nay, when our table, yea our bed, assaults
Our peace and safety? When our writings
Are by any ensignious, that dare
Apply them to the guilty, made to speak
What they will have to fit their tyrannous wreak?
When ignorance is scarcely innocence:
And knowledge made a capital offence?
When not so much, but the bare empty shade
Of liberty, is reft 1 us; and we made
The prey to greedy vultures and vile spies,
That first transfus us with their murdering eyes?

_Lat._ Methinks the genius of the Roman race
Should not be so extinct, but that bright flame
Of liberty might be reviv'd again;
(Which no good man but with his life should lose)
And we not sit like spent and patient fools,
Still puffing in the dark at one poor coal,
Heard on by hope, till the last spark is out.
The cause is public, and the honour, name,
The immortality of every soul,
That is not bastard or a slave in Rome,
Therein concern'd: whereto, if men would change
The wearied arm, and for the weighty shield
So long sustaint, employ the facile sword,
We might have soon assurance of our vows.
This ass's fortitude doth tire us all:
It must be active valour must redeem
Our loss, or none. The rock and our hard steel
Should meet t' enforce those glorious fires again,
Whose splendour cheer'd the world, and heat gave life
No less than doth the sun's.
_Sab._ 'T were better stay
In lasting darkness, and despair of day.
No ill should force the subject undertake
Against the sovereign, more than hell should make The gods do wrong. A good man should and must

Sit rather down with less than rise unjust;
Though, when the Romans first did yield themselves
To one man's power, they did not mean their lives,
Their fortunes, and their liberties should be
His absolute spoil, as purchas'd by the sword.
_Lat._ Why, we are worse, if to be slaves, and bond
To Caesar's slave, be such, the proud Sejanus!
He that is all, does all, gives Caesar leave
To hide his ulcers and anointed face,
With his bald crown at Rhodes, while he here stalks
Upon the heads of Romans and their princes,
Familiarly to empire.
_Sab._ Now you touch
A point indeed, wherein he shows his art,
As well as power.
_Lat._ And villany in both.
Do you observe where Livia lodges? How Drusus came dead? What men have been cut off?
_Sab._ Yes, those are things remov'd. I nearer lookt
Into his later practice, where he stands
Declard a master in his mystery.
First, ere Tiberius went, he wrought his fear
To think that Agrippina sought his death.
Then put those doubts in her; sent her oft word,
Under the show of friendship, to beware
Of Caesar, for he laid to poison her:
Drave them to frowns, to mutual jealousies,
Which, now, in visible hatred are burst out.
Since, he hath had his hired instruments
To work on Nero, and to heave him up;
To tell him Caesar's old, that all the people,
Yea, all the army have their eyes on him;
That both do long to have him undertake
Something of worth, to give the world a hope;
Bide him to court their grace: the easy youth
Perhaps gives ear, which straight he writes to Caesar;
And with this comment: "See you dangerous boy;
Note but the practice of the mother, there;
She's tying him for purposes at hand,
With men of sword." Here'a Caesar put in fright
'Gainst son and mother. Yet he leaves not thus,
The second brother, Drusus, a fierce nature,
And fitter for his snares, because ambitions
And full of envy, him he clasps and hugs.
Poisons with praise, tells him what hearts he wears,
How bright he stands in popular expectation;
That Rome doth suffer with him in the wrong
His mother does him, by preferring Nero:
Thus sets he them asunder, each 'gainst other,
Projects the course that serves him to condemn,
Keeps in opinion of a friend to all,
And all drives on to ruin.
_Lat._ Caesar sleeps,
And nods at this.
_Sab._ Would he might ever sleep,
Bogg'd in his filthy lusts!

1 reft, v. Qr. left.
Ops. Treason to Caesar! 18
Ruf. Lay hands upon the traitor, Latarius.
Or take the name thyself.

Lat. I am for Caesar.
Sub. Am I then catch'd? 19
Ruf. How think you, sir? You are.
Sub. Spies of this head, so white, so full of years!
Well, my most reverend monsters, you may live
To see yourself thus anar'd.

Ops. Away with him! 12
Lat. Hale him away.

Ruf. To be a spy for traitors,
In honourable vigilance.

Sub. You do well.
My most officious instruments of state,
Men of all uses. Drag me hence, away.

The year is well begun, and I fall fit
To be an off'r'ing to Sejanus. Go!

Ops. Cover him with his garments, hide his face.

Sub. It shall not need. Forbear your rude assaut.
The fault's not shameful, villany makes a fault.

[Exeunt.] 10

[Scene IV.] 1

Mac. Sir, but observe how thick your dangers meet
In his clear drifts? 7 Your mother and your brothers,
Now cited to the senate; their friend Gallus,
Feasted to-day by Caesar, since committed!
Sabinus here we met, hurried to fetters:
The senators all struck with fear and silence,
Save those whose hopes depend not on good means,
But force their private prey from public spoil.
And you must know, if here you stay, your state
Is sure to be the subject of his hate,
As now the object.

Cal. What would you advise me?

Mac. Go to see your present looks; and there
Give up yourself entirely to your uncle.
Tell Caesar (since your mother is accus'd
To fly for succours to Augustus' statue,
And to the army, with your brethren) you
Have rather chose to place your aids in him
Than live suspected; or in hourly fear
To be thrust out, by bold Sejanus' plots:
Which you shall confidently urge to be
Most full of peril to the state, and Caesar,
As being laid to his peculiar ends,
And not to be let run with common safety.
All which, upon the second, I'll make plain,
So both shall love and trust with Caesar gain.

Cal. Away then, let's prepare us for our journey.

[Exeunt.] 30

[Scene V.]

[Enter] Arruntius.

Arr. Still dost thou suffer, heaven! Will no flame,

1 The street before Agrippina's house.
2 Plans, purposes.
3 Another part of the street.
Nothing hath privilege 'gainst the violent ear.
No place, no day, no hour, we see, is free,
(Not our religious and most sacred times)
From some one kind of cruelty: all matter,
Nay, all occasion pleaseth. Madman's rage,
The idleness of drunkards, women's nothing,
Jester's simplicity, all, all is good
That can be catch'd at. Nor is now 't event
Of any person, or for any crime,
To be expected; 'tis always one:
Death, with some little difference of place,
Or time——What's this? Prince Nero, guarded!

[Enter LACO and NERO [with Guards.]

LAC. On, Lictors, keep your way. My lords, forbear.
On pain of Caesar's wrath, no man attempt Speech with the prisoner.
Ner. Noble friends, be safe;
To lose yourselves for words, were as vain
hazard,
As unto me small comfort. Fare you well.
Would all Rome's suff'ring's in my fate did dwell!
Lac. Lictors, away.
Lac. Where goes he, Laco?
LAC. Sir,
He's banished into Pontia by the senate.
Arr. Do I see, and hear, and feel? May I trust sense,
Or doth my phant'sie form it?
Lep. Where's his brother?
Lac. Drusus is prisoner in the palace.
Arr. Ha!
I smell it now: 'tis rank. Where's Agrippina?
LAC. The princess is confin'd to Pandataria.
Arr. Bolts, Vulcain; bolts for Jove! Phoebeus, thy bow;
Stern Mars, thy sword; and, blue-eyed Maid,
thy spear;
Thy club, Alcides: all the armoury
Of heaven is too little!—Ha! to guard
The gods, I meant. Fine, rare dispatch! This same
Was swiftly borne! Confin'd, imprison'd, ban-ish'd?
Most tripartite! The cause, sir?

LAC. Treason.

Arr. The complements of all accusings! That
Will hit, when all else fails.
Lep. This turn is strange!
But yesterday the people would not hear,
Far less objected, but cri'd Caesar's letters Were false and forg'd; that all these plots were malice;
And that the ruin of the prince's house
Was practis'd 'gainst his knowledge. Where are now
Their voices, now that they beheld his heirs
Lock'd up, disgrac'd, led into exile?
Arr. Hush'd,
Drown'd in their bellies. Wild Sejanus' breath
Bath, like a whirlwind, scatter'd that poor dust.

With his rude blast.——We'll talk no treason,
SIR,
Turns to LACO, and the rest.
If that be it you stand for. Fare you well.
We have no need of horse-leeches. Good spy,
Now you are sp'd, be gone.

[Exeunt LACO, NERO, and Guards.]

Lep. I fear you wrong him:
He has the voice to be an honest Roman.
Arr. And trusted to this office! Lepidus,
I'd sooner trust Greek Simon than a man
Our state employs. He's gone: and being gone,
I dare tell you, whom I dare better trust,
That our night-eyed Tiberius doth not see
His minion's drifts; or, if he do, he's not
So arrant subtle, as we fools do take him;
To breed a mongrel up, in his own house.
With his own blood, and, if the good gods
please,
At his own throat flesh him to take a leap.
I do not beg it, heav'n; but if the fates
Grant it these eyes, they must not wink.

Lep. They must
Not see it, Lucius.
Arr. Who should let 'em?
Lep. Zeal,
And duty; with the thought he is our prince.
Arr. He is our monster: forfeited to vice
So far, as no rack'd virtue can redeem him.
His loathed person fouler than all crimes:
An emp'ror only in his lusts. Retir'd,
From all regard of his own fame, or Rome's,
Into an obscure island, where he lives
Acting his tragedies with a comic face.
Amidst his rout of Chaldea: spending hours,
Days, weeks, and months, in the unkind abuse
Of grave astrology, to the bane of men,
Casting the scope of men's natures,
And having found aught worthy in their fortune,
Kill, or precipitate them in the sea,
And boast he can mock fate. Nay, muse not:
these
Are far from ends of evil, scarce degrees.
He hath his slaughter-house at Capreae;
Where he doth study murder as an art;
And they are dearest in his grace that can Devise the deepest tortures. Thither, too,
He hath his boys, and beauteous girls ta'en up
Out of our noblest houses, the best form'd;
Best nurtur'd, and most modest; what's their
good,
Serves to provoke his bad. Some are allur'd,
Some threat'n'd; others, by their friends de-
tain'd,
Are ravish'd hence, like captives, and, in sight
Of their most griefed parents, dealt away
Unto their spinsters,3 sallaries,4 and slaves
Masters of strange and new commented lusts,
For which wise nature hath left not a name.
To this (what most strikes us, and bleeding Rome)
He is, with all his craft, become the ward
To his own vassal, a state catamite.5 Whom he, upon our low and suffering necks,

1 Hinder.
2 Unnatural.
3 Male prostitutes.
4 Lewd persons.
Hath raised from excrement to side the gods:
And have his proper sacrifice in Rome:
Which Jove beholds, and yet will sooner rive
A senseless oak with thunder than his trunk!

Lac. These letters make men devoutful what
't expect.
Whether his coming, or his death.

Per. [aside.] Troth, both:
And which comes soonest, thank the gods for.

Arr. [Aside.] List!
Their talk is Caesar; I would hear all voices.

[Arrunt. and Lepidus stand aside.

Min. One day, he's well; and will return to Rome;
The next day, sick; and knows not when to hope it.

Lac. True; and to-day, one of Sejanus' friends
Honour'd by special writ; and on the morrow
Another punish'd.

Per. By more special writ.

Min. This man receives his praises of Sejanus.
A second but slight mention, a third none,
A fourth rebukes: and thus he leaves the senate
Divided and suspended, all uncertain.

Lac. These forked tricks, I understand 'em not:
Would he would tell us whom he loves or hates,
That we might follow, without fear or doubt.

Arr. [Aside.] Good Heliotrope! Is this your honest man?
Let him be yours so still; he is my knave.

Per. I cannot tell, Sejanus still goes on,
And mounts, we see; new statues are advanc'd,1
Fresh leaves of titles, large inscriptions read,
His fortunes sworn by, himself new gone out
Caesar's colleague in the fifth consularship;
More altars smoke to him than all the gods:1
What would be more?

[Shake him,
Arr. [Aside.] That the dear smoke would
[That would I more.

Lep. Peace, good Arruntius.

Lat. But there are letters come, they say,
e'n now,
Which do forbid that last.

Min. Do you hear so?

Lac. Yes.

Per. By Caesar that's the worst.

Arr. [Aside.] By Pollux, best.

Min. I did not like the sign, when Regulus,
Whom all we know no friend unto Sejanus,1
Did, by Tiberius' so precise command,
Succed a fellow in the consularship:
It boded somewhat.

Per. Not a word. His partner,
Fulcinus Trio, is his own, and sure.

Here comes Terentius.

[Enter- Terentius]

He can give us more.

[They whisper with Terentius.

Lep. I'll ne'er believe but Caesar hath some scent

Of bold Sejanus' footing. Those cross points
Of varying letters, and opposing consuls,
Mingling his honours and his punishments,
Feigning now ill, now well, raising Sejanus,
And then depressing him, as now of late
In all reports we have it, cannot be Empty of practice: 't is Tiberius' art,
For, having found his favourite grown too great,
And with his greatness strong; that all the soldiers
Are, with their leaders, made at his devotion;
That almost all the senate are his creatures,
Or hold on him their main dependencies,
Either for benefic, or hope, or fear;
And that himself hath lost much of his own,
By parting unto him; and, by th' increase
Of his rank lusts and rages, quite disarr'd
Himself of love, or other public means
To dare an open contestation;
His subtlety hath chose this doubling line,
To hold him even in: not so to fear him,
As wholly put him out, and yet give cheek
Unto his farther boldness. In mean time,
By his employments, makes him odious
Unto the staggering rout, whose aid, in fine,
He hopes to use, as sure, who, when they sway,
Bear down, overturn all objects in their way.

Arr. You may be a Lyceus, Lepidus: yet I
See no such cause, but that a political tyrant,
Who can so well disguise it, should have ta'en
A nearer way: feign'd honest, and come home
To cut his throat, by law.

Lep. Ay, but his fear
Would ne'er be mask'd, alibo his vices were.

Per. His lordship then is still in grace?

Ter. Assure you,
Never in more, either of grace or power.

Per. The gods are wise and just.

Arr. [Aside.] The fiends they are,
To suffer thee belie 'em.

Ter. I have here
His last and present letters, where he writes

"The partner of his cares," and "his Seja-

Lac. But is that true, if 't is prohibited
To sacrifice unto him?

Ter. Some such thing
Caesar makes scruple of, but forbids it not;
No more than to himself: says he could wish
It were forborne to all.

Lac. Is it no other?

Ter. No other, on my trust. For your more

Here is that letter too.

Arr. [Aside.] How easily
Do wretched men believe what they would

Lac. He names him here without his titles.

Lep. [Aside.] Note!

Arr. [Aside.] Yes, and come off your notable fool. I will.

Lac. No other than Sejanus.

Per. That's but haste
In him that writes: here he gives large amends.
Mar. And with his own hand written?
   Pom. Yes.
   Luc. Indeed?
   Ter. Believe it, gentlemen. Sejanus' breast Never receiv'd more full contentments in,
   Than at this present.
   Pom. Takes he well th' escape
   Of young Caligula, with Macro?
   Ter. Faith, at the first air it somewhat troubled him.
   Lep. (Aside.) Observe you?
   Arr. (Aside.) Nothing; riddles. Till a see
   Sejanus struck, no sound thereof strikes me.
   [Exeunt ARBUTIUS and LEPIDUS.]
   Pom. I like it not. I must he 'd not attempt
   Somewhat against him in the consulship,
   Seeing the people 'gin to favour him.
   Ter. He doth repent it now; but he's employ'd Pagonianus after him: and he holds
   That correspondence there, with all that are Near about Caesar, as no thought can pass Without his knowledge, thence, in act to front
   him.
   Pom. I gratulate the news.
   Luc. But how comes Macro
   So in trust and favour with Caligula?
   Pom. O, sir, he has a wife; and the young prince
   An appetit he can look up and spy
   Flies in the roof, when there are fleas i' bed;
   And hath a learned nose t' assure his sleep.
   Who to be favour'd of the rising sun,
   Would not lend little of his waning moon?
   It is the safest ambition. Noble Terentius!
   Ter. The night grows fast upon us. At your service.

   CHORUS — of Musicians. [Exeunt.]

   ACT V

[SCENE I.]

[Enter] SEJANUS.

Sej. Swell, swell, my joys; and faint not to declare Yourselves as ample as your causes are.

I did not live till now: this my first hour,

Wherein I see my thoughts reach'd by my power.

But this, and gripes my wishes. Great and high,

The world knows only two, that's Rome and I.

My roof receives me not; 'tis air I tread;

And, at each step, I feel my advanced head

Knock out a star in heaven! Reef'd to this height,

All my desires seem modest, poor, and slight,

That did before sound impudent; 'tis place,

Not blood, discerns the noble and the base.

Is there not something more than to be Caesar?

Must we rest there? It irks t' have come so far,

To be so near a stay. Caligula.

Would thou stood 'st stiff, and many in our way!

Winds lose their strength, when they do empty fly,

Unmet of woods or buildings; great fires die,

That want their matter to withstand them: so,

It is our grief, and will be our loss, to know

Our power shall want opposites; unless

The gods, by mixing in the cause, would bless

Our fortune with their conquest. That were worth

Sejanus' strife, distrust fates but bring it forth.

[Enter] TERENTIUS.

Ter. Safety to great Sejanus!

Sej. Now, Terentius?

Ter. Hears not my lord the wonder?

Sej. Speak it; no.

Ter. I meet it violent in the people's mouths,

Who run in routs to Pompey's theatre,

To view your status; which, they say, sends forth

A smoke, as from a furnace, black and dreadful.

Sej. Some traitor hath put fire in: you, go see,

And let the head be taken off, to look

What 't is. [Exit TERENTIUS.] Some slave hath practis'd an imposture

To stir the people. — How now! Why return you?

[Re-enter TERENTIUS, with] SATRIUS and NATTA.

Sat. The head, my lord, already is ta'en off.

I saw it; and, at opening, there leapt out

A great and monstrous serpent.

Sej. Monstrous! Why? Had it a beard, and horns? no heart? a tongue

Forked as flattery? Look'd it of the hue

To such as live in great men's bosoms? Was it

The spirit of it Macro's?

Nat. May it please

The most divine Sejanus, in my days,

(And by his sacred fortune, I affirm it,) I have not seen a more extended, grown,

Foul, spotted, venomous, ugly—

Sej. What a wild must'rs here of attributes,

'T express a worm, a snake!

Ter. But how that should Come there, my lord?

Sej. What, and you too, Terentius! Do I think you mean to make 't a prodigy

In your reporting.

Ter. Can the wise Sejanus

Think heav'n hath meant it less?

Sej. O, superstition! Why, then the falling of our bed, that brake

This morning, burnd'ned with the populous weight

Of our expecting clients, to salute us;

Or running of the cat betwixt our legs,

As we set forth unto the Capitol,

Were prodigies.

Ter. I think them ominous:

And would they not had happ'n'd! As, to-day,
The fate of some your servants: who declining
Their way, not able, for the throng, to follow, Slip down the Gemonies, and brake their necks!
Besides, in taking your last augury,
No prosperous bird appear’d; but croaking ravens
Flag’d up and down, and from the sacrifice
Flew to the prison, where they sat all night,
Beating the air with their obstreperous beaks!
I dare not counsel, but I could outreat,
That great Sejanus would attempt the gods
Once more with sacrifice.

What excellent fools
Religion makes of men! Believes Terentius,
If these were dangers, as I shame to think
them,
The gods could change the certain course of fate?
Or, if they could they would, now in a moment,
For a beeves’ fat, or less, be brib’d t’ invert
Those long decrees? Then think the gods, like flies,
Are to be taken with the steam of flesh,
Or blood, diffus’d about their altars: think
Their power as cheap as I esteem it small.
Of all the throng that fill th’ Olympian hall,
And, without pity, lade poor Atlas back,
I know not that one deity, but Fortune,
To whom I would throw up, in begging smoke,
One grain of incense; or whose ear I’d buy
With thus much oil. Her I indeed adore;
And keep her grateful image in my house,
Sometimes belonging to a Roman king,
But now call’d mine, as by the better style:
To her I care not, if, for satisfying
Your scrupulous phant’sies, I go offer. Bid
Our priest prepare us honey, milk, and poppy,
His masculine odours, and night-vestments: say
Our rites are instant; which perform’d, you’ll see
How vain, and worthy laughter, your fears be.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.]

[Enter] COFFA and POMPONIUS.

Cot. Pomponius, whither in such speed?

Pom. To give my lord Sejanus notice —

Cot. Is he come?

Pom. Ent’red but now

The house of Regulus.

Cot. The opposite consul!

Pom. Some half hour since.

Cot. And by night too! Stay, sir;

I’ll bear you company.

Pom. Along then. [Exeunt.]

[Scene III.]

[Enter] MACRO, REGULUS, [and Attendant.]

Mac. ’Tis Caesar’s will to have a frequent senate;

And therefore must your edict lay deep mulet
On such as shall be absent.

Reg. So it doth.

Bear it my fellow consul to adscribe.4

Mac. And tell him it must early be proclaim’d:

The place Apollo’s temple. [Exit Attendant.]

Reg. That’s rememb’red.

Mac. And at what hour?

Reg. Mac.

Mac. You do forget
To send one for the provost of the watch.
Reg. I have not: here he comes.

[Enter] LACO.

Lac. Gracinius Laco,

Reg. You are a friend most welcome: by and by,
I’ll speak with you. — You must procure this list
Of the praetorian cohorts, with the names
Of the centurions, and their tribunes.

Lac. Ay,

Mac. I bring you letters, and a health from Cesar.

Lac. Sir, both come well.

Mac. And, hear you? with your note,
Which are the eminent men, and most of action.

Reg. That shall be done you too. Goes out.

Mac. Most worthy Laco, —

Cesar salutes you. — Consul! death and furies!

Certis! — The argument will please you,
sir.

Ho! Regulus! The anger of the gods

Follow your diligent legs, and overtake ‘em,
In likeness of the gout!

Re-enter REGULUS.

O, my good lord,

We lackt you present; I would pray you send Another to Fulcinius Trix, straight,
To tell him you will come and speak with him;

The matter we’ll devise, to stay him there,

While I with Laco do survey the watch.

REGULUS goes out again.

What are your strengths, Gracinius?

Lac. Seven cohorts.

Mac. You see what Caesar writes; and — Gone
again!

H! as sure a vein of mercury in his feet. —

Know you what store of the praetorian soldiers

Sejanus holds about him, for his guard?

Lac. I cannot the just number; but I think Three centuries.

Mac. Three! good.

Lac. At most not four.

Mac. And who be those centurions?

Lac. That the consul

Can best deliver you.

Mac. When he’s away!

Spite on his nimble industry! — Gracinius,

You find what place you hold, there, in the trust

Of royal Caesar?

Lac. Ay, and I am —

4 Sign.
5 Precise.
The honours there propoz'd are but beginnings
Of his great favours.

They are more —

I heard him
When he did study what to add.

My life,
And all I hold —

You were his own first choice!
Which doth confirm as much as you can speak;
And will, if we succeed, make more — Your guards
Are seven cohorts, you say?

Yes.

Those we must
Hold still in readiness and undischarg'd.

I understand so much. But how it can —

Mac. Be done without suspicion, you’ll object?

Reg. What’s that.

The keeping of the watch in arms, —

When morning comes.

The senate shall be met, and set
So early in the temple, as all mark
Of that shall be avoided.

If we need, We have commission to possess the palace, —

Enlarge Prince Drusus, and make him our chief.

That secret would have burnt his reverend mouth,
Had he not spit it out now. — By the gods,
You carry things too — Let me borrow a man
Or two, to bear these — That of freeing
Drusus,
Caesar projected as the last and utmost;
Not also to be rememb’red.

[Enter Servants.]

Here are servants.

These to Arruntius, these to Lepidus.
This bear to Cotta, this to Latiarius.
If they demand you of me, say I have ta’en
Fresh horse and am departed. [Exit Servants.]
You, my lord,
To your colleague, and be you sure to hold him
With long narration of the new favours,
Meant to Sejanus, his great patron; I,
With trusted Laco, here, are for the guards:
Then, to divide. For night hath many eyes,
Whereof, though most do sleep, yet some are spies.

[Enter Praecones, Flamén, [Tubicines, Tibici-

Ministri, Sejanus, Terentius, Satrius, [Natta, etc.

Prae. Be all profane far hence; fly, fly far off:
Be absent far; far hence be all profane!
Tubicines and Tibicines sound
while the Flamén washeth.

We have been faulty, but repent us now.

A chapel in Sejanus’s house.
Trumpeters. * Flute-players.
And bring pure hands, pure vestments, and pure minds.
1 Min. Pure vessels.
2 Min. And pure offerings.
3 Min. Garlands pure.
Fla. Bestow your garlands: and, with reverence place
The vervain on the altar.

Favour your tongues.

While they sound again, the Flamén takes of the honey with his finger, and tastens, then ministers to all the rest: so of the milk in an earthen vessel, he deals about; which done, he sprinkles upon the altar, milk;
then imposeth the honey, and kisdoth his gums, and after censoring about the altar, placeth his censor thereon, into which they put several branches of poppy, and the music ceasing, proceed.

Fla. Great mother Fortune, queen of human state,
Restress of action, arbiter of fate,
To whom all sway, all power, all empire bows,
Be present, and propitious to our vows!

Prae. Favour it with your tongues.

Min. Be present, and propitious to our vows!
Accept our off'ring, and be pleas’d, great godess.

Ter. See, see, the image stirs!

Sat. And turns away!

Nat. Fortune averts her face!

Fla. Avert, you gods,
The prodigy. Still! still! some pious rite
We have neglected. Yet, heav’n be appeas’d,
And be all tokens false or void, that speak
Thy present wrath!

Sej. Be thou dumb, scrupulous priest:
And gather up thyself, with these thy wares,
Which I, in spite of thy blind mistress, or Thy juggling mystery, religion, throw
Thus scoured on the earth.

[Overt urns the statue and the alter.

Nay, hold thy look
Averted till I woo thee turn again;
And thou shalt stand, to all posterity,
Th’ eternal game and laughter, with thy neck
With’d to thy tail, like a ridiculous cat.
Avoid these fumes, these superstitious lights,
And all these cos’n’ng ceremonies; you,
Your pure and spoild Bildesconsciences!

[Exeunt all but Sejanus, Terentius, Satrius, and Natta.

I, the slave
And mock of fools, (scorn on my worthy head!) That have been titled and ador’d a god,
Yea sacrificed unto, myself, in Rome,
No less than Jove: and I be brought to do
As a peevish gigot 6 rite! Perhaps the thought
And shame of that made Fortune turn her face,
Knowing herself the lesser deity.
And but my servant — Bashful queen, if so,
Sejanus thanks thy modesty. — Who’s that?

1 Verbena, “herb of grace.”
2 Remove.
3 Absurdly scrupulous.
4 Welsh.
[Enter] POMPONIUS and MINUTIUS.

Pom. His fortune suffers, till he hears my news;
I have waited here too long. Macro, my lord —
Sej. Speak lower and withdraw.

[Takes him aside.]

Ter. Are these things true?
Min. Thousands are gazing at it in the streets.
Sej. What’s that?
Ter. Minutius tells us here, my lord, "That a new head being set upon your statute,
A rope is since found wrath’d about it! and,
But now, a fiery meteor in the form
Of a great ball was seen to roll along
The troubled air, where yet it hangs unperfect,
The amazing wonder of the multitude!
Sej. No more. That Macro’s come, is more than all!

Ter. Is Macro come?

Pom. I saw him.

Ter. Where? with whom?

Pom. With Regulus.

Sej. Terentius!

Ter. My lord.

Sej. Send for the tribunes, we will straight have up
More of the soldiers for our guard. [Exit Ter.]

Minutius,
We pray you go for Cotta, Latarius,
Trio the consul, or what senators
You know are sure, and ours. [Exit Min.] You,
the good Natta,
For Laco, provost of the watch. [Exit Nat.]

Now, Satrius,
The time of proof comes on; arm all our servants,
And without tumult. [Exit Nat.] You, Pompeius,
Hold some good correspondence with the consul:
Attempt him, noble friend. [Exit Pom.] These things begin
To look like dangers, now, worthy my fates. —
Fortune, I see thy worst: let doubtful states,
And things uncertain hang upon thy will;
Me surest death shall render certain still.
Yet, why is now my thought turn’d toward death,
Whom fates have let go on so far in breath,
Uncheck’d or unprov’d? I, that did help
To fell the lofty cedar of the world
Germanicus; that at one stroke cut down
Drusus, that upright elm; with’er’d his vine;
Laid Silius and Sabinus, two strong oaks,
Flat on the earth; besides those other shrubs,
Cordus and Soesia, Claudius Pulcher,
Furnius and Gallius, which I have grubb’d up;
And since, have set my axe so strong and deep
Into the root of spreading Agrippine;
Loft off and scatter’d her proud branches,
Nero,
Drusus; and Cains too, although replaced.
If you will, Destinies, that after all,
I faint now ere I touch my period,
You are but cruel; and I already have done
Things great enough. All Rome hath been my slave;

The senate sate an idle looker-on.
And witness of my power; when I have blush’d
More to command than it to suffer: all
The fathers have sat ready and prepar’d
To give me empire, temples, or their throats,
When I would ask ’em; and, what crowns the top,
Rome, senate, people, all the world have seen
Jove but my equal; Caesar but my second.
’Tis then your malice, Fates, who, but your own,
Envy and fear t’ have any power long known.

[Exit.]

SCENE V. [2]

[Enter] TERENTIUS and Tribunes.

Ter. Stay here: I’ll give his lordship you are come.

[Enter] MINUTIUS, COTTA, LATARIUS.

Min. Marcus Terentius, pray you tell my lord
Here’s Cotta, and Latarius.

Ter. Sir, I shall. [Exit.]

Cott. My letter is very much with yours;
Only requires me to be present there,
And give my voice to strengthen his design.

Lat. Names he not what it is?

Cott. No, nor to you.

Lat. ’Tis strange and singular doubtful!

Cott. So it is.

It may be all is left to lord Sejanus.

[Enter] NATTA and GRACINUS LACO.

Nat. Gentlemen, where’s my lord?

Tri. Wait him here. [Exit.]

Cott. The provost Laco! What’s the news?

Lat. My lord —

[Enter SEJANUS.

Sej. Now, my right dear, noble, and trusted friends,
How much I am a captive to your kindness!
Most worthy Cotta, Latarius, Laco,
Your valiant hand; and, gentlemen, your loves.
I wish I could divide myself unto you;

Or that it lay within our narrow powers,
To satisfy for so enlarged bounty.
Gracinus, we must pray you, hold your guards
Unquilt when morning comes. Saw you the consul?

Min. Trio will presently be here, my lord.

Cott. They are but giving order for the edict,
To warn the senate?

Sej. How! the senate?

Lac. Yes.

This morning in Apollo’s temple —

Cott. We are charg’d by letter to be there, my lord.

Sej. By letter! Pray you let’s see.

Lat. Knows not his lordship?

Cott. It seems so.

Sej. A senate warn’d! without my knowledge!

And on this sudden! Senators by letters Required to be there! Who brought these?

”A room in the same. — Talk"
Cot. Mine enemy! And when?
Macro.

Sej. This midnight.
Cot.
Sej. Time.

With ev'ry other circumstance, doth give
It hath some strain of engine in 't! — How now?

[Enter] SATRIUS.

Sat. My lord, Sertorius Macro is without,
Alone, and prays t have private conference.
In business of high nature with your lordship,
He says to me, and which regards you much.
Sej. Let him come here.
Sat. Better, my lord, withdraw:
You will betray what store and strength of friends
Are now about you; which he comes to spy.
Sej. Is he not arm'd?
Sat. We'll search him.
Sej. No; but take,
And lead him to some room, where you conceal'd
May keep a guard upon us. [Exit Sat.] Noble Laco,
You are our trust; and till our own cohorts
Can be brought up, your strength must be our guard.
Now, good Minutius, honour'd Latarius.
Most worthy and my most unwaried friends:
I return instantly. [Exit.]

Sat. Most worthy lord!
Cot. His lordship is turn'd instant kind, methinks;
I have not observe'd it in him heretofore.

1 Tri. 'T is true, and it becomes him nobly.
Min. I am rapt withal.
2 Tri. By Mars, he has my lives,
Were they a million, for this only grace.
Lac. Ay, and to name a man!
Lot. As he did me!
Min. And me! [and fortunes
Lat. Who would not spend his life
To purchase but the look of such a lord?
Lac. [Aside.] He that would nor be lord's fool, nor the world's. [Exeunt.]

[Scene VI.]

Enter SEJANUS, MACRO, and SATRIUS.

Sej. Macro! most welcome, as most coveted friend!

Let me enjoy my longings. When arriv'd you?
Mac. About the noon of night.
Sej. Satrius, give leave. [Exit SATRIUS.]
Mac. I have been, since I came, with both the consuls,
On a particular design from Caesar.

Sej. How fares it with our great and royal master?

Mac. Right plentifully well; as with a prince

That still holds out the great proportion
Of his large favours, where his judgment hath
Made once divine election: like the god
That wants not, nor is wearied to bestow
Where merit meets his bounty, as it doth
In you, already the most happy, and, ere
The sun shall climb the south, most high Sejanus.

Let not my lord be ansu'd. For to this end
Was I by Caesar sent for to the isle,
With special caution to conceal my journey;
And thence had my dispatch as privately
Again to Rome; charg'd to come here by night;
And only to the consuls make narration
Of his great purpose: that the benefit
Might come more full, and striking, by how much
It was less look'd for, or aspir'd by you,
Or least informed to the common thought.

Sej. What may this be? Part of myself,
dear Macro,
If good, speak out; and share with your Sejanus.
Mac. If bad, I should, I should for ever loathe myself
To be the messenger to so good a lord.
I do exceed my instructions to acquaint
Your lordship with thus much; but 't is my venture
On your retentive wisdom: and because
I would no jealous scruple should molest
Or rack your peace of thought. For I assure
My noble lord, no senator yet knows
The business meant: though all by several letters
Are warned to be there, and give their voices,
Only to add unto the state and grace
Of what is purposed.

Sej. You take pleasure, Macro,
Like a coy wench, in torturing your lover.

What can be worth this suffering?

Mac. That which follows,
The tribunial dignity and power:
Both which Sejanus is to have this day
Confer'd upon him, and by public senate.

Sej. Fortune be mine again! [Aside.] Thou hast satisfied
For thy suspected loyalty.

Mac. My lord,
I have no longer time, the day approacheth,
And I must back to Caesar.

Sej. Where's Caligula?

Mac. That I forgot to tell your lordship.

Why,
He lingers yonder about Capreana,
Disgrac'd; Tiberius hath not seen him yet.
He needs would thrust himself to go with me,
Against my wish or will; but I have quitted his forward trouble, 4 with as tardy note
As my neglect or silence could afford him.
Your lordship cannot now command me aught,
Because I take no knowledge that I saw you;
But I shall boast to live to serve your lordship;
And so take leave.

Sej. Honest and worthy Macro;
Your love and friendship. [Exit MACRO.]

Who's there? Satrius,

1 Element of trickery.
2 Another room in the same.
3 Amazed.
4 His troublesome forwardness.
Attend my honourable friend forth. — O 1
How vain and vile a passion is this fear,
What base uncomely things it makes men do!
Suspect their noblest friends, as I did this,
Flatter poor enemies, entreat their servants,
Stoop, court, and catch at the benevolence
Of creatures unto whom, within this hour,
I would not have vouchsafed a quarter’s look,
Or piece of face! By you that fools call gods,
Hang all the sky with your prodigious signs,
Fill earth with monsters, drop the scorpion down
Out of the zodiac, or the fiercer lion,
Shake off the loose’ned globe from her long hinge,
Roll all the world in darkness, and let loose
Thin enraged winds to turn up groves and towns!
When I do fear again, let me be struck
With forked fire, and upturned die;
Who fears, is worthy of calamity. [Exit.]

[SCENE VII.]

[Enter Terentius, Minutius, Laco, Cotta, Latiaris, and Pomponius; Regulus, Trio, and others, on different sides.]

Pom. Is not my lord here?
Ter. Sir, he will be straight.
Cot. What news, Fulminus Trio?
Tri. Good, good tidings;
But keep it to yourself. My lord Sejanus
Is to receive this day in open senate
The tribunitial dignity.

Cot. Is’t true?
Tri. No words, not to your thought: but, sir, believe it.
Lati. What says the consul?
Cot. Speak it not again:
He tells me that to-day my lord Sejanus —
Tri. I must entreat you, Cotta, on your honour
Not to reveal it.

Cot. On my life, sir.
Lati. Say.

Cot. Is to receive the tribunitial power,
But, as you are an honourable man,
Let me conjure you not to utter it;
For it is trusted to me with that bond.
Lati. I am Harpocrates.

Ter. Can you assure it? 2
Pom. The consul told it me; but keep it close.

Min. Lord Latiaris, what’s the news?

Lati. I’ll tell you;
But you must swear to keep it secret.

[Enter] SEJANUS.

Sej. I knew the Fates had on their distaff left
More of our thread, than so.

Reg. Hail, great Sejanus!
Tri. Hail, the most honour’d!

Cot. Happy!

Lati. High Sejanus!

Sej. Do you bring prodigies too?
Tri. May all pressage
Turn to those fair effects, whereof we bring
Your lordship news.

Reg. May’t please my lord withdraw.

Sej. Yes: — I will speak with you anon.
To some that stand by.

Ter. My lord, 22

What is your pleasure for the tribunes?

Sej. Why, let ’em be thank’d and sent away.

Min. My lord —

Lac. Will’t please your lordship to command me —

Sej. No:
You are troublesome.

Min. The mood is chang’d.

Tri. Not speak, nor look!

Lac. Ay, he is wise, will make him friends
Of such who never love but for their ends. 22

[Exit.]

[SCENE VIII.]

[Enter] ARRUNTIIUS and LEPIDUS, divers other Senators passing by them.

Arr. Ay, go, make haste; take heed you be not lost
To tender your "All Hail" in the wide hall
Of huge Sejanus: run a lictor’s pace:
Stay not to put your robes on; but away
With the pale troubled ensigns of great friendship
And stamp’d your face! Now, Marcus Lepidus,
You still believe your former augury?
Sejanus must go downward! You perceive
His wane approaching fast!

Lep. Believe me, Lucius, I wonder at this rising.

Arr. Ay, and that we must give our suffrage to it. You will say,
It is to make his fall more steep and grievous:
It may be so. But think it, they that can
With idle wishes 'say to bring back time:
In cases desperate, all hope is crime.

See, see! what troops of his officious friends
Flock to salute my lord, and start before
My great proud lord! to get a lord-like nod!
Attend my lord unto the senate-house!

Bring back my lord! like servile ushers, make Way for my lord! proclaim his idol lordship,
More than ten or nine, or six noise of trumpets!

Make legs, kiss hands, and take a scatter’d hair
From my lord’s eminent shoulder! See, Sanguinius,
With his slow belly, and his dropey! Look,
What toiling haste he makes! Yet here’s another
Retarded with the gout, will be afore him.
Get thee Liburnian porters, thou gross fool,
To bear thy obscurous fatness, like thy peers.
They met! The gout returns, and his great carriage.

Lictors, Consuls, [Regulus and Trio] SEJANUS, [Satrius, Sanguinius, Haterius, and many other Senators] pass over the stage.

Lict. Give way, make place, room for the consul!
San.  Hail,
Hat..  Hail, my honour'd lord!
Arr.  We shall be markt anon, for our not Hail.
Lep.  That is already done.
Arr.  It is a note.
Of upstart greatness, to observe and watch
For these poor trifles, which the noble mind
Neglects and scorns.
Lep.  Ay, and they think themselves
Deeply dishonour'd where they are omitted,
As if they were necessities that help
To the perfection of their dignities;
And hate the men that but refrain 'em.
Arr.  O1
There is a farther cause of hate. Their breasts
Are guilty that we know their obscure springs
And base beginnings; thence the anger grows.
On.  Follow.

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE IX.]

[Enter] MACRO and LACO.

Mac.  When all are ent'red, shut the temple
And bring your guards up to the gate.
Luc.  I will.
Mac.  If you shall hear commotion in the senate,
Present yourself; and charge on any man
Shall offer to come forth.
Luc.  I am instructed. [Exeunt.]

[SCENE X.]

The Senate.

HATERIUS, Trio, Sanguinius, Cotta, Reglus, Sejanus, Pomponius, Latiamis, Lepi-dus, Arruntius; Praecones, Listeres.
Hat.  How well his lordship looks to-day!
Tri.  As if
He had been born, or made for this hour's state.
Cot.  Your fellow consul's come about, methinks?
Tri.  Ay, he is wise.
San.  Sejanus trusts him well.
Tri.  Sejanus is a noble, bounteous lord.
Hat.  He is so, and most valiant.
Lat.  And most wise.
Tri.  This dignity
Worthy of all, and more
Than bounty can bestow.
San.  Above Caesar.
Cot.  Caesar is but the rector of an isle,
He of the Empire.
Tri.  Now he will have power
More to reward than ever.
Cot.  Let us look
We be not slack in giving him our voices.
Lat.  Not I.

1 Other part of the same.
2 The Temple of Apollo.
That could give envy bounds, but his: Se-
Janus

Arr. Most ample, most tame slavery, and flattery!

Prae. Silence! (Reads.)

"Tiberius Caesar to the Senate greeting.

If you, conscript fathers, with your children, be in health, it is abundantly well; we with our friends here are so. The care of the common-wealth, howsoever we are remov' d in persons, cannot be absent to our thought: although, of-entimes, even to princes most present, the truth of their own affairs is hid; than which nothing falls out more miserable to a state, or makes the art of governing more difficult. But since it hath been our careful happiness to enjoy both the aids and industry of so vigilant a senate, we profess to have been the more in- dulgent to our pleasures, not as being careless of our office, but rather secure of the necessity. Neither do these common rumours of many, and infamous libels published against our retirement, at all afflict us; being born more out of men's ignorance than their malice: and will, neglected, find their own grave quickly; whereas, too sensibly acknowledg'd, it would make their obloquy ours. Nor do we desire their authors, though found, be censur'd, since in a free state, as ours, all men ought to enjoy both their minds and tongues free."

Arr. (Aside.) The lapwing, the lapwing!

"Yet in things which shall worthy and more near concern the majesty of a prince, we shall fear to be so unnaturally cruel to our own fame, as to neglect them. True it is, conscript fathers, that we have raised Sejanus from obscure, and almost unknown gentry;"

Sen. (Aside.) How, how!

"to the highest and most conspicuous point of greatness, and we hope deservedly; yet [no] more without danger, but it being a most bold hazard in that sovereign who, by his particular love to one, dares adventure the hatred of all his other subjects."

Arr. (Aside.) This touches, the blood turns.

"But we affy in your loves and under- [3] standings, and do no way suspect the merit of our Sejanus, to make our favours offensive to any."

Sen. (Aside.) O! good, good.

"Though we could have wished his zeal had run a calmer course against Agrippina and our nephews, howsoever the openness of their actions declared them delinquents; and that he would have remembred no innocence is so safe, but it rejoiceth to stand in the sight of mercy: the use of which in us he hath so quite taken away toward them, by his loyal fury, as now our clemency would be thought but worried cruelty, if we should offer to exercise it."

Arr. (Aside.) I thank him; there I look'd for 't. A good fox!

Somewhere be that would interpret this his public severity to be particular ambition; and that, under a pretext of service to us, he doth but remove his own lets: alleging the [3] strengths he hath made to himself, by the praetor- tor's soldiers, by his faction in court and senate, by the offices he holds himself, and confesses on others, his popularity and dependents, his urging and almost driving us to this our un- [3] willing retirement, and, lastly, his aspiring to be our son-in-law."

Sen. (Aside.) This is strange!

Arr. (Aside.) I shall anon believe your vultures. 8 Marcus.

"Your wisdoms, conscript fathers, are able [10] to examine, and censure these suggestions. But were they left to our absolving voice, we durst pronounce them, as we think them, most malicious."

Sen. (Aside.) O, he has restor'd all; list! 140

"Yet are they offer'd to be averr'd, and on the lives of the informers. What we should say, or rather what we should not say, lords of the senate, if this be true, our gods and goddesses confound us if we know! Only we must think, [140] we have plac'd our benefits ill; and conclude, that in our choice, either we were wanting to the gods, or the gods to us."

The Senators shift their places.

Arr. (Aside.) The place grows hot; they shift.

"We have not been covetous, honourable fathers, to change; neither is it now any new lust that alters our affection, or old loathing; but these needful jealousies of state, that warm wiser princes hourly to provide their safety; and do teach them how learned a thing it is [148] to beware of the humblest enemy; much more of these great ones, whom their own employ'd favours have made fit for their fears."

1 Sen. (Aside.) Away.
2 Sen. (Aside.)
Cot. (Aside.) Sit farther.

Arr. (Aside.) Gods! how the leaves drop off, this little wind!

"We therefore desire, that the offices he holds be first seized by the senate; and himself suspended from all exercise of place or power."

Sen. (Aside.) How!
San. [Thrusting by.] By your leave. [Rius?]
Arr. Come, porpoise. (Aside.) Where's Hane-
His gout keeps him most miserably constant! Your dancing shows a tempest.

Reg. Lords of the senate, hold your seats: read on.

Reg. These letters, they are forg'd.

Reg. A guard! sit still.

Enter Laco, with the Guards.

Arr. There's change!
Reg. Hands, soldiers, bid silence, and read forward.

Prae. Silence! — and himself suspended from all exercise of place or power, but till due and mature trial be made of his innocence, which yet we can faintly apprehend the necessity to [152] doubt. If, descript fathers, to your more searching ing wisdoms, there shall appear farther cause —or of farther proceeding, either to seizure of lands, goods, or more—it is not our power that shall limit your authority, or our favor that must corrupt your justice: either were dis-honourable in you, and both uncharitable to ourselves. We would willingly be present with your counsels in this business; but the danger of so potent a faction, if it should prove so, forbaids our attempting it: except one of the consuls would be entreated for our safety, to undertake the guard of us home; then we should most readily adventure. In the meantime, it shall not be fit for us to importune a senator, who know how much they hurt the innocent that spare the guilty; and how grateful a sacrifice to the gods is the life of an ingratitude person. We reflect not in this on Sejanus, (notwithstanding, if you keep an eye upon him—and there is Latiaris, a senator, and Pinnarius Natta, two of his most trusted ministers; and so profest, whom we desire not to have apprehended,) but as the necessity of the cause exacts it."

Reg. A guard on Latiaris!
Arr. O, the spy!
The reverend spy is caught! Who pities him?
Reward, sir, for your service: now, you had done
Your property, you see what use is made!
[Exeunt Latiaris and Natta guarded.]
Hang up the instrument.
Sej. Give leave.
Lac. Stand, stand! He comes upon his death, that doth advance
An inch toward my point.
Sej. Have we no friends here?
Arr. Huast! Where now are all the rails and acclamations?

[Enter] Macbo.
Mac. Hail to the consuls, and this noble
senate.
Sej. [Aside.] Is Macro here? O, thou art lost, Sejanus!
Mac. Sit still, and unsaffrighted, reverend fathers;
Macro, by Caesar’s grace the new-made provost,
And now possest of the praetorian bands,
An honour late belonged to that proud man,
Bids you be safe: and to your constant doom Of his deservings, offers you the security
Of all the soldiers, tribunes, and centurions,
Receive’d in our command.
Reg.
Sejanus, Sejanus!
Sej. Am I call’d?
Mac. Thou insolent monster, art bid stand.
Sej. Why, Macro, it hath been otherwise between you and I; This court, that knows us both, hath seen a difference,

And can, if it be pleas’d to speak, confirm Whose insolence is most.
Mac. Come down, Typhon.
If mine be most, lo! thus I make it more;
Kick up thy heels in air, tear off thy robe,
Play with thy beard and nostrils. Thus’tis fit
(And no man take compassion of thy state)
To use th’ ingrateful viper, tread his brains
Into the earth.
Reg. Forbear.
Mac. If I could lose
All my humanity now, ’twere well to torture
So meriting a traitor. — Wherefore, fathers,
Sit you amaz’d and silent; and not censures
This wretch, who, in the hour he first rebell’d ‘Gainst Caesar’s bounty, did condemn himself? Paledra, the field where all the sons of earth Must’d against the gods, did ne’er acknowledge
So proud and huge a monster.
Reg. Take him hence;
And all the gods guard Caesar!
Tri. Take him hence.
Hat. Hence.
Cat. To the dungeon with him.
Sau. He deserves it.
Sen. Crown all our doors with bays.
Sau. And let an ox,
With gilded horns and garlands, straight be led Unto the Capitol.
Hat. And sacrifice’d
To Jove, for Caesar’s safety.
Tri. All our gods
Be present still to Caesar!
Cat. Phoebus.
San. Mars.
Hat. Diana.
San. Pallas.
Sen. Juno, Mercury,
All guard him!
Mac. Forte thou prodigy of men.
[Exeunt Sejanus, guarded.]
Cat. Let all the traitor’s titles be defac’d.
Tri. His images and statues be pull’d down.
Hat. His chariot-wheels be broken.
Arr. And the legs
Of the poor horses, that deserved nought,
Let them be broken too!
Lep. O violent change,
And whirl of men’s affections!
Arr. Like, as both
Their bulks and souls were bound on Fortune’s wheel,
And must act only with her motion.
[Exeunt all but] Lepidus and Arruntius.
Lep. Who would depend upon the popular
air,
Or voice of men, that have to-day beheld
That which, if all the gods had fore-declar’d,
Would not have been believ’d Sejanus’ fall? He that this morn rose proudly as the sun,
And, breaking through a mist of clients’
breath,
Came on as gaz’d at and admir’d as he,
When superstitious Moors salute his light!
That had our servile nobles waiting him
As common grooms; and hanging on his look
No less than human life on destiny!
That had men’s knees as frequent as the gods;
And sacrifices more than Rome had altars:
And this man fall! fall? ay, without a look
That durst appear his friend, or lend so much
Of vain relief, to his chang’d state, as pity! 717
Arr. They that before, like gnats, play’d in his beams,
And throng’d to circumscribe him, now not seen,
Nor design to hold a common seat with him!
Others, that waited him unto the senate,
Now inhumanely ravish him to prison,
Whom but this morn they follow’d as their lord!
Guard through the streets, bound like a fugitive,
Instead of wreaths give fetters, strokes for stoops:
Blind shame for honours, and black taunts for titles!
Who would trust slippery Chance?
Lep. They that would make Themselves her spoil; and foolishly forget,
When she doth flatter, that she comes to prey.
Fortune, thou hast no deity, if men
Had wisdom: we have placed thee so high,
By fond belief in thy fallacy.
(Shout within.) The gods guard Caesar! All the gods guard Caesar!
[Re-enter Macrō], Regulus, [and divers], Senators.

Mac. Now, great Sejanus, you that av’d the state,
And sought to bring the nobles to your whip;
That would be Caesar’s tutor, and dispose
Of dignities and offices! that had
The public head still bare to your designs,
And made the general voice to echo yours!
That look’d for salutations twelve score off,
And would have pyramids, yea, temples, rear’d
To your huge greatness; now you lie as flat
As was your pride advance’d! 719
Rep. Thanks to the gods!
Sen. And praise to Macro, that hath saved Rome!
Liberty, liberty, liberty! Lead on,
And praise to Macro, that hath saved Rome! 720
[Exeunt all but] Arruntius and Lepidus.

Arr. I prophesy, out of the senate’s flattery,
That this new fellow, Macro, will become A greater prodigy in Rome than he
That now is fall’n.

[Enter Terentius.]

Ter. O you, whose minds are good,
And have not forc’d all mankind from your breasts;
That yet have so much stock of virtue left
To pity guilty states, when they are wretched:
Lend your soft ears to hear, and eyes to weep
Deeds done by men, beyond the acts of furies.

The eager multitude (who never yet
Knew why to love or hate, but only pleas’d
To express their rage of power) no sooner heard
The murmur of Sejanus in decline,
But with that speed and heat of appetite,
With which they greedily devour the way
To some great sports, or a new theatre,
They fill’d the Capitol, and Pompey’s Cirque
Where, like so many mastiffs bitting stones,
As if his statues now were sensitive
Of their wild fury; first, they tear them down;
Then fast’ning ropes, drag them along the streets,
Crying in scorn: “This, this was that rich head
Was crown’d with garlands, and with odours, this
That was in Rome so reverence’d! Now
The furnace and the bellows shall to work,
The great Sejanus crack, and piece by piece
Drop in the found’rer’s pit.”
Lep. O popular rage!
Ter. The whilst the senate at the temple of Concord
Make haste to meet again, and thronging cry,
“Let us condemn him, tread him down in water,
While he doth lie upon the bank; away!” 721
While some, more tardy, cry unto their bearers, “Hark! He will be scene’d ere we come; run, knaves, and use that furious diligence, for fear
Their bondmen should inform against their slackness,
And bring their quaking flask unto the hook.
The rout, they follow with confused voice,
Crying they’re glad, say they could ne’er abide him;
Inquire what man he was, what kind of face,
What beard he had, what nose, what lips? protest
They ever did pressage he’d come to this;
They never thought him wise, nor valiant; ask
After his garments, when he dies, what death;
And not a beast of all the herd demands
What was his crime, or who were his accusers,
Under what proof or testimony he fell.
There came, says one, a huge long-wordsed letter
From Caprease against him. Did there so? O, they are satisfied; no more.
Lep. Alas!
Ter. They follow Fortune, and hate men condemn’d, Guilty or not.
Arr. But had Sejanus thriv’d
In his design, and prosperously oppress
The old Tiberius; then, in that same minute,
These very rascals, that now rage like furies,
Would have proclaim’d Sejanus emperor.
Lep. But what hath follow’d?
Tr. Sentence by the senate,
To lose his head; which was no sooner off,
But that and th’ unfortunate trunk were seiz’d
By the rude multitude; who not content
With what the forward justice of the state
Officially had done, with violent rage
Have rent it limb from limb. A thousand heads,
A thousand hands, ten thousand tongues and voices,
Employ’d at once in several acts of malice!
Old men not staid with age, virgins with shame, Late wives with less of husbands, mothers of children,

Losing all grief in joy of his sad fall,
Run quite transported with their cruelty!
These mounting at his head, these at his face,
These digging out his eyes, these with his brain Sprinkling themselves, their houses and their friends;

Others are met, have ravish’d thence an arm,
And deal small pieces of the flesh for favours;
These with a thigh, this hath cut off his hands,
And this his feet; these fingers, and these toes;

That hath his liver, he his heart: there wants Nothing but room for wrath, and place for hatred!

What cannot oft be done, is now o’erdone.
The whole, and all of what was great Sejanus,
And, next to Caesar, did possess the world,
Now torn and scatter’d, as he needs no grave.
Each little dust covers a little part:
So lies he nowhere, and yet often buried!

[Enter] Nuntius.

Arr. More of Sejanus?

Nunt. Yes.

Lep. What can be added?

We know him dead.

Nunt. Then there begin your pity.

There is enough behind to melt ev’n Rome,
And Caesar into tears; since never slave
Could yet so highly offend, but tyranny,
In tormenting him, would make him worth lamenting.

A son and daughter to the dead Sejanus,

(Of whom there is not now so much remaining
As would give fast’ning to the hangman’s hook.)

Have they drawn forth for farther sacrifice;
Whose tenderness of knowledge, unripe years,
And childish silly innocens was such,

As scarce would lend them feeling of their danger:

The girl so simple, as she often saukt
Where they would lead her? for what cause they dragg’d her?

Cried, she would do no more: that she could Warming with beating. And because our laws

Admit no virgin immutate to die,
The wittily and strangely cruel Macro
Deliver’d her to be deflower’d and spoil’d
By the rude lust of the licentious hangman,

Then to be strangled with her harmless brother.

Lep. O, act most worthy hall, and lasting night,

To hide it from the world!

Nunt. Their bodies thrown Into the Gemonies, (I knew not how,

Or by what accident return’d,) the mother,

‘Th’ expuls’d! Apicata, finds them there;
Whom when she saw lie spread on the degrees,

After a world of fury on herself,

Tearing her hair, defacing of her face,
Beating her breasts and womb, kneeling amaz’d,
Crying to heaven, then to them; at last,

Her drowned voice got up above her woes,
And with such black and bitter excrections
As might affright the gods, and force the sun
Run backward to the east; nay, make the old
Deformed chaos rise again, t’ o’erwhelm

Them, us, and all the world, she fills the air,
Upbraids the heavens with their partial dooms,
Defies their tyrannous powers, and demands,

What she, and those poor innocents have transgress’d,

That they must suffer such a share in ven-
gance,

Whilst Livia, Lygudas, and Eudemus live,

Who, as she says, and firmly vows to prove it

To Caesar and the senate, poison’d Drusus?

Lep. Confederates with her husband!

Ay.

Lep. Strange act!

Arr. And strangely open’d. What says now my monster.

The multitude? They real now, do they not?

Nunt. Their gall is gone, and now they ‘gin to weep

The mischief they have done.

Arr. I thank ’em, rogues.

Nunt. Part are so stupid, or so flexible,
As they believe him innocent; all grieve:

And some, whose hands yet reek with his warm
blood,

And grip the part which they did tear of him,

Wish him collected and created new.

Lep. How Fortune plies her sports, when she begins

To practise ’em! pursues, continues, adds,

Confounds with varying her impassion’d moods!

Arr. Dost thou hope, Fortune, to redeem thy grimes,

To make amends for thy ill plac’d favours,

With these strange punishments! Forbear, you things

That stand upon the pinnacle of state,

To boast your slippery height; when you do
fall,

You push yourselves in pieces, ne’er to rise;

And he that lends you pity, is not wise.

Ter. Let this example move the insolent man
Not to grow proud and careless of the gods.

It is an odious wisdom to blaspheme,

Much more to slighten, or deny their powers;

For whom the morning saw so great and high,

Thus low and little, fore the even doth lie.

[Exeunt.]

THE ARGUMENT

VOLPONE, childless, rich, feigns sick, despair,
O fferes his state to hopes of several heirs,
Lies languishing: his parasite receives
Resents of all, assures, deludes; then weaves
Other cross plots, which ope themselves, are told.
New tricks for safety are sought; they thrive: when, bold,
Each tempts th' other again, and all are sold.

PROLOGUE

Now, luck yet send us, and a little wit
Will serve to make our play hit;
According to the palates of the season,
Here is rhyme, not empty of reason.
This we were bid to credit from our poet,
Whose true scope, if you would know it,
In all his poems still hath been this measure,
To mix profit with your pleasure;
And not as some, whose throats their envy failing,
Cry hoarsely, "All he writes is railing!"
And when his plays come forth, think they can fliot them,
With saying, he was a year about them.
To this there needs no lie, but this his creature,
Which was two months since no feature:
And though he dares give them five lives to mend it,
'T is known, five weeks fully pen'd it,
From his own hand, without a coadjutor,
Novice, journeymen, or tutor.
Yet thus much I can give you as a token
Of his play's worth, no eggs are broken,
Nor quaking custards with fierce teeth affrighted,
Wherewith your rout are so delighted;
Nor halis he in a gull, old ends reciting,
To stop gaps in his loose writing;
With such a deal of monstrous and fore'd action,
As might make Bethlem's

1 Bedlam; the madhouse.
ACT I

SCENE I. [Enter Volpone, Mosca.

Volp. Good morning to the day; and next, my gold!

Mosca. Open the shrine, that I may see my saint.

Volp. [Mosca withdraws the curtains, and discovers piles of gold, plate jewels, etc.]

Hail the world's soul, and mine! More glad than is
The teeming earth to see the long'd-for sun
Peep through the horns of the celestial Ram;
Am I, to view thy splendour dark'ning him;
That lying here, amongst my other hoards,
Show'st like a flame by night, or like the day
Struck out of chaos, when all darkness fled Unto the centre. O thou son of Sol,
But brighter than thy father, let me kiss,
With adoration, thee, and every relic
Of sacred treasure in this blessed room.

Volp. Well did wise poets, by thy glorious name,
Title that age which they would have the best;
Thou being the best of things, and far transcending
All style of joy, in children, parents, friends,
Or any other waking dream on earth:
Thy looks when they to Venus did ascribe,
They should have given her twenty thousand Cupids;
Such are thy beauties and our loves! Dear saint,
Riches, the dumb god, that giv'st all men tongues,
That canst not doute, and yet mak'st men do all things;
The price of souls; even hell, with thee to boot.

Mos. And what he will, sir. Riches are in fortune
A greater good than wisdom is in nature.

Volp. True, my beloved Mosca. Yet I glory
More in the cunning purchase of my wealth,
Than in the glad possession, since I gain

No common way; I use no trade, no venture;
I wound no earth with plowshares, I fat no beasts
To feed the shambles; have no mills for iron,
Oil, corn, or men, to grind them into powder;
I blow no subtle glass, expose no ships
To threat'nings of the furrow-faced sea;
I turn no monies in the public bank,
No mine private.

Mos. No, sir, nor devour
Soft prodigals. You shall ha' some will swallow
A melting heir as glibly as your Dutch
Will pills of butter, and ne'er purge for it;
Tear forth the fathers of poor families
Out of their beds, and coffin them alive
In some kind clapping prison, where their bones
May be forthcoming, when the flesh is rotten:
But your sweet nature doth abhor these courses;
You loathe the widow's or the orphan's tears
Should wash your pavements, or their piteous cries
Ring in your roofs, and beat the air for vengeance.

Volp. Right, Mosca; I do loathe it.

Mos. And, besides, sir, you are not like the thrasher that doth stand
With a huge flail, watching a heap of corn.
And, hungry, dares not taste the smallest grain,
But feeds on mallow, and such bitter herbs;
Nor like the merchant, who hath fill'd his vaults
With Romagnia, rich and Candian wines,
Yet drinks the lees of Lombard's vinegar:
You will not lie in straw, whilst moths and worms
Feed on your sumptuous hangings and soft beds;
You know the use of riches, and dare give now
From that bright heap, to me, your poor observer,
Or to your dwarf, or your hermaphrodite,
Your ennuch, or what other household trifle
Your pleasure allows maintenance —
Volp. Hold thee, Mosca, take of my hand; thou strik'st on truth in all,
And they are envious term thee parasite.
Call forth my dwarf, my ennuch, and my fool,
And let 'em make me sport. [Exit Mosc]

What should I do,
But cocker up my genius, and live free
To all delights my fortune calls me to?
I have no wife, no parent, child, ally,
To give my substance to; but whom I make Must be my heir; and this makes men observe
me:
This draws new clients daily to my house,
Women and men of every sex and age,
That bring me presents, send me plate, coin, jewels,
With hope that when I die (which they expect) each greedy minute it shall then return
Tenfold upon them; whilst some, covetous
Above the rest, seek to engross me whole,
And counter-work the one unto the other,
Content in gifts, as they would seem in love:
All which I suffer, playing with their hopes,
And am content to coin 'em into profit,
And look upon their kindness, and take more,
And on that; still bearing them in hand,
Letting the cherry knock against their lips,
And draw it by their mouths, and back again.—
How now!

SCENE II.

[To him re-enter] MOSCA, [with] NANO, ANDROGYNO, and CASTRONE.

Nan. "Now, room for fresh gamesters, who do will you to know,
They do bring you neither play nor university show;
And therefore do intreat you that whatever they rehearse,
May not fare a whit the worse, for the false pace of the verse.
If you wonder at this, you will wonder more ere we pass,
For know, here is inclos'd the soul of Pythagoras,
That juggler divine, as hereafter shall follow;
Which soul, fast and loose, sir, came first from Apollo,
And was breath'd into Aethalides, Mercurius his son,
Where it had the gift to remember all that ever was done.
From thence it fled forth, and made quick transmigration
To godly Euphorbus, who was kill'd in good fashion,
At the siege of old Troy, by the encolp of Sparta.
Hermotimus was next (I find it in my charta),
To whom it did pass, where no sooner it was missing
But with one Pyrrhus of Delos it learn'd to go a-fishing;
And thence did it enter the sophist of Greece.
From Pythagoras, she went into a beautiful piece,
Hight Aspasia, the meretrix; and the next tos of her
Was again of a whore, she became a philosopher,
Crates the cynick, as itself doth relate it: since
Since kings, knights, and beggars, knaves, lords, and fools get it,
Besides ox and ass, camel, mule, goat, and brock;
In all which it hath spoke, as in the cobbler's cock.
But I come not here to discourse of that matter, or his one, two, or three, or his great oath,
By quater! His muses, his trigon, his golden thigh,
Or his telling how elements shift; but I
Would ask, how of late thou hast suffer'd translation,
And shifted thy coat in these days of reformation.
And. Like one of the reform'd, a fool, as you see,
Counting all old doctrine heresy.

Nan. But not on thine own forbid meats hast thou ventur'd?
And. On fish, when first a Carthusian I enter'd.
Nan. Why, then thy dogmatistical silence hath left thee?
And. Of that an obtreperous lawyer bereft me.
Nan. O wonderful change, when sir lawyer forsook thee!
For Pythagoras's sake, what body then took thee?
And. A good dull mule.

And. And how! by that means Thou wert brought to allow of the eating of beefs?
And. Yes, [thou pass? Nan. But from the mule into whom didst
And. Into a very strange beast, by some writers call'd an ass;
By others a precise, pure, illuminate brother Of those devour flesh, and sometimes another one;
And will drop you forth a libel, or a sanctifi'd lie,
Betwixt every spoonful of a nativity-pie.
Nan. Now quit thee, for heaven, of that profane nation.
And gently report thy next transmigration.
And. To the same that I am.
Nan. A creature of delight,
And, what is more than a fool, an hermaphrodite!
Now, prithee, sweet soul, in all thy variation,
Which body wouldest thou choose to keep up thy station?
And. Troth, this I am in: even here would I tarry.
Nan. 'Cause here the delight of each sex thou canst vary?
And. Alas, those pleasures be stale and forsaken;
No, 'tis your fool wherewith I am so taken,
The only one creature that I can call blessed;
For all other forms I have prov'd most distress'd.
Nan. Spoke true, as thou wert in Pythagoras still.
This learned opinion we celebrate will.

1. Badger.
2. This interlude is based on Lucian's dialogue between a cobbler and a cock.
3. Puritanical.
4. A triangular lyre.
Fellow eunuch, as behoves us, with all our wit and art,
To dignify that whereof ourselves are so great and special a part.

Volp. Now, very, very pretty! Mosca, this Was thy invention?
Mos. If it please my patron,
Not else.
Volp. It doth, good Mosca.
Mos. Then it was, sir.

[NANO and CASTBONE sing.]

Some.

"Fools, they are the only nation
Worth men's envy or admiration;
Free from care or sorrow-taking,
Selve and others merry making:
All they speak or do is sterling.
Your foot he is your great man's darling,
And your ladies' sport and pleasure;
Tongue and bauble are his treasure.
E'en his face beguellteth laughter,
And he speaks truth free from slaughter;
He's the grace of every feast,
And sometimes the chiefest guest;
Hath his treccher and his stool,
When wit waits upon the fool.
O, who would not be
He, he, he?"

One knocks without.

Fool, begone!

[Exeunt NANO, CAST, and ANDRO.]

Mos. 'Tis Signior Voltore, the advocate;
I know him by his knock.

Volp. Fetch me my gown,
My furs, and night-caps; say my cough is changing
And let him entertain himself awhile
Without 't gallery. [Exeunt Mosca.] Now,
Now my clients
Begin their visitation! Vulture, kite,
Raven, and gorrerow, all my birds of prey,
That think me turning carcasse, now they come:
I am not for 'em yet.

[Re-enter Mosca, with the gown, etc.]

How now! the news?

Mos. A piece of plate, sir.
Volp. Of what bigness?
Mos. Huge, Massy, and antique, with your name inscrib'd,
And arms engraven.

Volp. No. Good! and not a fox.
Stretch'd on the earth, with fine delusive sleights,
Mocking a gaping crow? ha, Mosca!

Mos. Sharp, sir.

Volp. Give me my furs.

[Put's on his sick dress.]
Why dost thou laugh so, man?

Mos. I cannot choose, sir, when I apprehend
What thoughts he has without now, as he walks:
That this might be the last gift he should give,
That this would fetch you; if you died to-day,

1 With impunity.
2 Carrion crow.

And gave him all, what he should be to-morrow;
What large return would come of all his ventures;

How he should worship'd be, and reverence'd;
Hide with his furs, and foot clothes; waited on by herds of fools and clients; have clear way
Made for his mule, as letter'd as himself;
Be call'd the great and learned advocate;
And then concludes, there's nought impossible.

Volp. Yes, to be learned, Mosca.

Mos. O, no: rich
Implies it. Hood an ass with reverend purple,
So you can hide his two ambitious ears,
And he shall pass for a cathedral doctor.

Volp. My capes, my capes, good Mosca. Fetch him in.

Mos. Stay, sir; your ointment for your eyes.
Volp. That's true;
Dispatch, dispatch: I long to have possession
Of my new present.

Mos. That, and thousands more,
I hope to see you lord of.

Volp. Thanks, kind Mosca.
Mos. And that, when I am lost in blinded dust,
And hundreds such as I am, in succession —

Volp. Nay, that were too much, Mosca.

Mos. You shall live
Still to delude these harpies.

Volp. Loving Mosca!
'Tis well: my pillow now, and let him enter.
[Exit Mosca.]

Now, my feign'd cough, my phthisic, and my gout,
My apoplexy, palsy, and catarrhs,
Help, with your forced functions, this my posture,
Wherein, this three year, I have milk'd their hopes.
He comes; I hear him — Uh! [coughing] uh! uh! uh! O——

SCENE III

VOLPONE; [re-enter MOSSA, [introducing] VOLTORE [with a piece of plate.]

Mos. You still are what you were, sir. Only you.
Of all the rest, are he commands his love,
And you do wisely to preserve it thus,
With early visitation, and kind notes
Of your good meaning to him, which, I know,
Cannot but come most grateful. Patron! sir!
Here's Signior Voltore is come——

Volp. [Faintly.] What say you? Mos. Sir, Signior Voltore is come this morning
To visit you.

Volp. I thank him.

Mos. And hath brought
A piece of antique plate, bought of St. Mark,
With which he here presents you.

With a reference to the etymological sense of "moving round."
4 The same.
5 At one of the goldsmith's shops beside St. Mark's.
Volp. He is welcome.
Pray him to come more often.

Mos. Yes.

Volt. What says he?

Mos. He thanks you, and desires you see him often.

Volp. Mosca.

Mos. My patron!

Volp. Bring him near, where is he?

I long to feel his hand.

Mos. The plate is here, sir.

Volt. How fare you, sir?

Volp. I thank you, Signior Voltore;
Where is the plate? mine eyes are bad.

[putting it into his hands.] I’m sorry
To see you still thus weak.

Mos. [Aside.] That he’s not weaker.

Volp. You are too munificient.

Volt. No, sir; would to heaven
I could as well give health to you, as that plate!

Volp. You give, sir, what you can; I thank you.
Your love
Hath haste in this, and shall not be unanswer’d:
I pray you see me often.

Volt. Yes, I shall, sir.

Volp. Be not far from me.

Mos. Do you observe that, sir?

Volp. Hearken unto me still; it will concern you.

Mos. You are a happy man, sir; know your good.

Volp. I cannot now last long——

Mos. (Aside.) You are his heir, sir.

Volt. (Aside.) Am I?

Volp. I feel me going: Uh! uh! uh! uh!

I’m sailing to my port. Uh! uh! uh! uh!

And I am glad I am so near my haven.

Mos. Alas, kind gentleman! Well, we must all go——

Volt. But, Mosca——

Mos. Age will conquer.

Volp. Prithie, hear me;

Am I inscrib’d his heir for certain?

Mos. Are you!

I do beseech you, sir, you will vouchsafe
To write me! your family. All my hopes
Depend upon your worship: I am lost
Except the rising sun do shine on me.

Volt. It shall both shine, and warm thee,
Mosca.

Mos. Sir,

I am a man that hath not done your love
All the worst offices: here I wear your keys,
See all your coffers and your caskets lock’d,
Keep the poor inventory of your jewels,
Your plate, and monies; am your steward, sir,
Husband your goods here.

Volt. But am I sole heir?

Mos. Without a partner, sir: confirm’d this morning:
The wax is warm yet, and the ink scarce dry
Upon the parchment.

Volt. Happy, happy me!

By what good chance, sweet Mosca?

Mos. Your desert, sir; I know no second cause.
MOS. No wink, sir, all this night, 1
Nor yesterday; but slumbers.
CORB. Good! he should take Some counsel of physicians: I have brought
An opiate here, from mine own doctor.
MOS. He will not hear of drugs.
CORB. Why? I myself
Stood by while't was made, saw all th' ingredients; 1
And know it cannot but most gently work:
My life for his, 'tis but to make him sleep.
VOLP. [Aside.] Ay, his last sleep, if he would take it.
MOS. Sir,
He has no faith in physic.
CORB. Say you, say you?
MOS. He has no faith in physic: he does think
Most of your doctors are the greater danger,
And worse disease, 't escape. I often have Heard him protest that your physician
Should never be his heir.
CORB. Not I his heir?
MOS. Not your physician, sir.
CORB. O, no, no, no, 28
I do not mean it.
MOS. No, sir, nor their fees
He cannot brook: he says they play a man
Before they kill him.
CORB. Right, I do conceive you.
MOS. And then they do it by experiment;
For which the law not only doth absolute 'em,
But gives them great reward: and he is loot
To hire his death so.
CORB. It is true, they kill
With as much licence as a judge.
MOS. Nay, more;
For he but kills, sir, where the law condemns,
And these can kill him too.
CORB. Ay, or me; 28
Or any man. How does his apoplexy?
Is that strong on him still?
MOS. Most violent.
His speech is broken, and his eyes set,
His face drawn longer than 'twas wont. 28
CORB. How! how!
Stronger than he was wont?
MOS. No, sir; his face 28
Drawn longer than 'twas wont.
CORB. O, good!
MOS. His mouth
Is ever gaping, and his eyelids hang.
CORB. Good.
MOS. A freezing numbness stiffens all his joints,
And makes the colour of his flesh like lead.
CORB. 'T is good.
MOS. His pulse beats slow, and dull.
CORB. Good symptoms still. 28
MOS. And from his brain——
CORB. Ha? How? Not from his brain?
MOS. Yes, sir, and from his brain——
CORB. I conceive you; good.
MOS. Flows a cold sweat, with a continual rheum,
Forth the resolved corners of his eyes.

CORB. Is't possible? Yet I am better, ha! 28
How does he with the swimming of his head?
MOS. O, sir, 'tis past the somnity; 1 he now
Hath lost his feeling, and hath left to snort:
You hardly can perceive him, that he breathes.
CORB. Excellent, excellent! sure I shall outlast him:
This makes me young again, a score of years.
MOS. I was a-coming for you, sir.
CORB. Has he made his will?
What has he giv'n me?
MOS. No, sir.
CORB. Nothing! ha?
MOS. He has not made his will, sir.
CORB. Oh, oh, oh!
What then did Voltoire, the lawyer, here?
MOS. He smelt a carcass, sir, when he but heard
My master was about his testament;
As I did urge him to it for your good—— CORB. He came unto him, did he? I thought so.
MOS. Yes, and presented him this piece of
plate.
CORB. To be his heir?
MOS. I do not know, sir.
CORB. True:
I know it too.
MOS. [Aside.] By your own scale, sir.
CORB. Well,
I shall prevent him yet. See, Mosca, look,
Here I have brought a bag of bright chequers, 2
Will quite lay down his plate.
MOS. [taking the bag.] Yes, marry, sir; 28
This is true physic, this your sacred medicine;
No talk of opiates to this great elixir!
CORB. 'Tis aurum palpabile, if not potabile.
MOS. It shall be minister'd to him in his bowl.
CORB. Ay, do, do, do.
MOS. Most blessed cordial! 28
This will recover him.
CORB. Yes, do, do, do.
MOS. I think it were not best, sir.
CORB. What?
MOS. To recover him.
CORB. O, no, no, no; by no means.
MOS. Why, sir, this
Will work some strange effect, if he but feel it.
CORB. 'T is true, therefore forbear; I'll take my venture:
Give me 't again.
MOS. At no hand: pardon me:
You shall not do yourself that wrong, sir. I
Will so advise you, you shall have it all.
CORB. How?
MOS. All, sir; 't is your right, your own;
Can claim a part: 'tis yours without a rival, 28
Declared by destiny.
CORB. How, how, good Mosca? 28
MOS. I'll tell you, sir. This fit he shall recover——
CORB. I do conceive you.
MOS. And on first advantage
Of his gain'd sense, will I re-importune him
1 Imperfect sight, with giddiness.
2 Ital. secchio, a sequin; a coin worth about two dollars.
Unto the making of his testament:

And show him this.  [Pointing to the money.]

Corb. Good, good.

Mos. 'Tis better yet, sir.

If you will hear, sir.

Corb. Yes, with all my heart.

Mos. Now would I counsel you, make home with speed;
There, frame a will; whereto you shall inscribe
My master your sole heir.

Corb. And disinherit me.

My son?

Mos. O, sir, the better; for that colour
Shall make it much more taking.

Corb. O, but colour?

Mos. This will, sir, you shall send it unto me.

Now, when I come to enforce, as I will do,
Your cares, your watchings, and your many prayers,
Your more than many gifts, your this day's present,
And last, produce your will; where, without thought,
Or least regard, unto your proper issue,
A son so brave, and highly meriting,
The stream of your diverted love hath thrown you
Upon my master, and made him your heir;
He cannot be so stupid, or stone-dead,
But out of conscience and more gratitude—

Corb. He must pronounce me his?

Mos. 'Tis true.

Corb. This plot did I think on before.

Mos. I do believe it.

Corb. Do you not believe it?

Mos. Yes, sir.

Corb. Mine own project.

Mos. Which, when he hath done, sir—

Corb. Publish'd me his heir?

Mos. And you so certain to survive him—

Corb. Ay.

Mos. Being so lusty a man—

Corb. 'Tis true.

Mos. Yes, sir—

Corb. I thought on that too. See, how he should be

The very organ to express my thoughts!

Mos. You have not only done yourself a good—

Corb. But multiplied it on my son.

Mos. 'Las, sir! heaven knows,
It hath been all my study, all my care,
(I s'en grow grey withal,) how to work things—

Corb. I do conceive, sweet Mosca.

Mos. You are he
For whom I labour here.

Corb. Ay, do, do, do:

I'll straight about it.  [Going.

Mos. [Aside.] Rook go with you, raven!

Corb. I know thee honest.

Mos. You do lie, sir!

Corb. And—

Mos. Your knowledge is no better than your ears, sir.

Corb. I do not doubt to be a father to thee.

Mos. Nor I to gull my brother of his blessing.

Corb. I may ha' my youth restor'd to me, why not?

Mos. Your worship is a precious ass!

Corb. What sayst thou?

Mos. I do desire your worship to make haste, sir.

Corb. 'Tis done, 'tis done; I go.  [Exit.]

Volp. [leaping from his couch.] O, I shall burst!

Let out my sides, let out my sides—

Mos. Contain
Your flux of laughter, sir; you know this hope
Is such a bait, it covers any hook.

Volp. O, but thy working, and thy placing it!

I cannot hold; good rascal, let me kiss thee;

I never knew thee in so rare a humour.

Mos. Alas, sir, I but do as I am taught;

Volp. Follow your grave instructions; give 'em words;

Pour oil into their ears, and send them hence.

Volp. 'Tis true, 'tis true. What a rare punishment
Is avarice to itself!

Mos. Ay, with our help, sir.

Volp. So many cares, so many maladies,
So many fears attending on old age.

Mos. Yes, so often calls'd on, as no wish
Can be more frequent with 'em, their limbs faint,
Their senses dull, their seeing, hearing, going,
All dead before them; yea, their very teeth,
Their instruments of eating, failing them:
Yet this is reckon'd life! Nay, here was one,
Is now gone home, that wishes to live longer!
Feels not his gout, nor palp'ry; feigns himself
Younger by scores of years, flatters his age
With confident belying it, hopes he may
With charms like Aeson, have his youth restor'd;
And with these thoughts so battens, as if fate
Would be as easily cheated on as he,
And all turns air! Who's that there? now? a third!

Mos. Close, to your couch again; I hear his voice.

It is Corvino, our spruce merchant.

Volp. [Lies down as before.] Dead.

Mos. Another bout, sir, with your eyes [Anointing them]. Who's there?

SCENE V. 3

MOSCA, VOLPONE. [Enter] CORVINO.

Signior Corvino! come most wish'd for! O,
How happy were you, if you knew it, now!

Corv. Why? what? wherein?

Mos. The tardy hour is come, sir.

Corv. He is not dead?

Mos. Not dead, sir, but as good;

He knows no man.

3 The same.
Corv. How shall I do then?
Moz. Why, sir?
Corv. I have brought him here a pearl.
Moz. Perhaps he has
So much remembrance left as to know you, sir:
He still calls on you; nothing but your name
Is in his mouth. Is your pearl orient, sir?
Corv. Venice was never owner of the like.
Vlp. [Vainly.] Signior Corvino!
Moz. Hark!
Vlp. Sigisfr Corvino.
Moz. He calls you; step and give it him. —
He's here, sir.
And he has brought you a rich pearl.
Corv. How do you, sir?
Tell him it doubles the twelve carat.
Moz. Sir,
He cannot understand, his hearing's gone;
And yet it comforts him to see you —
Say I have a diamond for him, too.
Moz. Best show 't, sir;
Put it into his hand: 'tis only there
He apprehends: he has his feeling yet.
See how he grasps it!
Corv. 'Les, good gentleman!
How pitiful the sight is!
Moz. T'is good! And what his mouth?
Corv. A very draught.
Moz. O, stop it up —
Corv. By no means.
Moz. Pray you, let me:
Faith I could stifle him rarely with a pillow
As well as any woman that should keep him.
Corv. Do as you will; but I'll begone.
Moz. Be so;
It is your presence makes him last so long.
Corv. I pray you use no violence.
Moz. No, sir! why?
Why should you be thus scrupulous, pray you, sir?
Corv. Nay, at your discretion.
Moz. Well, good sir, be gone.
Corv. I will not trouble him now to take my pearl.
Moz. Pub! nor your diamond. What a needless care
Is this afflicts you? Is not all here yours?
Am not I here, whom you have made your creature?
That owe my being to you?
Corv. Grateful Mosca!
Thou art my friend, my fellow, my companion,
My partner, and shalt share in all my fortunes.
Moz. Excepting one.
Corv. What's that?
Moz. Your gallant wife, sir. [Exit Corv.]
Now is he gone: we had no other means
To shoot him hence but this.
Vlp. My divine Mosca!
Thou hast to-day outgone thyself. Who's there?
Another knocks.

1 Used for "brilliant" as well as "oriental."
I will be troubled with no more. Prepare
Me music, dances, banquets, all delights;
The Turk is not more sensuous in his pleasures
Than will Volpone. [Exit Mox.] Let me see; a pearl!
A diamond plate! cheques! Good morning’s purchase.

Why, this is better than rob churches, yet;
Or fat, by eating, once a month, a man——

[Re-enter Mosca.]

Who is ’t?

Mos. The beauteous Lady Would-be, sir, Wife to the English knight, Sir Politic Would-

De——

(This is the style, sir, is directed me.)

Hath sent to know how you have slept to-night,
And if you would be visited?

Volp. Not now:

Some three hours hence.

Mos. I told the squire 2 so much.

Volp. When I am high with mirth and wine;

Then:

‘Fore heaven, I wonder at the desperate valour
Of the bold English, that they dare let loose
Their wives to all encounters!

Mos. Sir, this knight
Had not his name for nothing, he is politic,
And knows how ’er his wife affect strange airs,
She hath not yet the face to be dishonest; 105
But had she Signior Corvino’s wife’s face——

Volp. Hath she so rare a face?

Mos. O, sir, the wonder,
The blazing star of Italy! a wench
Of the first year, a beauty ripe as harvest!
Whose skin is whiter than a swan all over, 110
Than silver, snow, or lilies; a soft lip,
Would tempt you to eternity of kissing!
And flesh that melteth in the touch to blood!
Bright as your gold, and lovely as your gold!

Volp. Why had not I known this before?

Mos. Alas, sir, 113

Myself but yesterday discover’d it.

Volp. How might I see her?

Mos. O, not possible;
She’s kept as warily as is your gold;
Never does come abroad, never takes air
But at a windrose. All her looks are sweet,
As the first grapes or cherries, and are watch’d
As near as they are.

Volp. I must see her.

Sir.

There is a guard of ten spies thickest upon her,
All his whole household; each of which is set
Upon his fellow, and have all their charge. 118
When he goes out, when he comes in, examin’d.

Volp. I will go see her, though but at her windrose.

Mos. In some disguise then.

Volp. That is true; I must Maintain mine own shape still the same: we’ll think.

[Exeunt.]

ACT II

SCENE I. 8

[Enter] SIR POLITIC WOULD-BE, and PERES-

GRINE.

Sir P. Sir, to a wise man, all the world’s his soil:
It is not Italy, nor France, nor Europe,
That must bound me, if my fates call me forth.
Yet I protest, it is no salt desire
Of seeing countries, shifting a religion,
Nor any disaffection to the state
Where I was bred, and unto which I owe
My dearest plots, hath brought me out, much less
That idle, antique, stale, grey-headed project
Of knowing men’s minds and manners, with Ulysses!

But a peculiar humour of my wife’s
Laid for this height of Venice, to observe,
To quote, 4 to learn the language, and so forth——

I hope you travel, sir, with licence?

Per. Yes.

Sir P. I dare the safelier converse—— How long, sir.

Since you left England?

Per. Seven weeks.

Sir P. So lately!

You have not been with my lord ambassador?

Per. Not yet, sir. [climate ?]

Sir P. Pray you, what news, sir, vents our
I heard last night a most strange thing reported
By some of my lord’s followers, and I long

To hear how ’twill be seconded.

Per. What was ’t, sir?

Sir P. Marry, sir, of a raven that should build
In a ship royal of the king’s.

Per. [Anse.] This fellow,

Does he gull me, trow? or is gull’d? Your name, sir?

Sir P. My name is Politic Would-be.

Per. [Anse.] O, that speaks him.

Sir P. A knight, sir?

Sir P. A poor knight, sir.

Per. Your lady
Lies 6 here in Venice, for intelligence
Of tires and fashions, and behaviour,
Among the courtesans? The fine Lady Would-be?

Sir P. Yes, sir; the spider and the bee ofttimes
Suck from one flower.

Per. Good Sir Politic, I cry you mercy; I have heard much of you:
’Tis true, sir, of your raven.

Sir P. On your knowledge?

Per. Yes, and your lion’s whelping in the Tower.

Sir P. Another whelp 6

Per. Another, sir.

1 Booty.
2 Messenger, go-between.
Sir P. Now heaven! What prodigies be these? The fires at Berwick! And the new star! These things concurring, strange, and full of omen! Saw you those meteors? Per. I did, sir.

Sir P. Fearful! Pray you, sir, confirm me, were there three porpoises seen above the bridge, as they give out? Per. Six, and a sturgeon, sir. Sir P. I am astonished.

Per. Nay, sir, be not so; I'll tell you a greater prodigy than these. Sir P. What should these things portend? Per. The very day (let me be sure) that I put forth from London, there was a whale discover'd in the river, as high as Woolwich, that had waited there, few know how many months, for the subservion of the Stede fleet.

Sir P. Is't possible? Believe it, I was either sent from Spain, or the arch-duke's; Spinola's whale, upon my life, my credit! Will they not leave these projects? Worthy sir, some other news.

Per. Faith, Stone the fool is dead, and they do lack a tavern fool extremely. Sir P. Is Mass Stone dead? Per. He's dead, sir; why, I hope you thought him not immortal? [Aside.] O, this knight, were he well known, would be a precious thing to fit our English stage: he that should write but such a fellow, should be thought to felicit extremely, if not maliciously.

Sir P. Stone dead! Per. Dead. Lord! how deeply, sir, you apprehend it!

He was no kinsman to you? Sir P. That I know of. Well! I met same fellow was an unknown fool. Per. And yet you knew him, it seems? Sir P. I did so, sir, I knew him one of the most dangerous souls living within the state, and so I held him.

Per. Indeed, sir? Sir P. While he liv'd, in action, he had receiv'd weekly intelligence, upon my knowledge, out of the Low Countries, for all parts of the world, in cabbages; and those dispens'd again to ambassadors, in oranges, musk-melons, apricots, lemons, pome-citrons, and such-like; sometimes in Colchester oysters, and your Selsey cockles. Per. You make me wonder.

Sir P. Sir, upon my knowledge. Nay, I've observ'd him, at your public ordinary, take his advertisement from a traveller, a gentleman statesman, in a tureen of meat; and instantly, before the meat was done, convey an answer in a tooth-pick.

Per. How could this be, sir? Strange! Sir P. Why, the meat was cut so like his character, and so laid as he must easily read the cipher. Per. I have heard, he could not read, sir.

Sir P. So 't was given out. In policy, by those that did employ him: but he could read, and had your languages, and to 't, as sound a nodle — Per. I have heard, sir, that your baboons were spies, and that they were a kind of subtle nation near to China. Sir P. Ay, ay, your Mamaluchi. Faith, they had their hand in a French plot or two; but they were so extremely giv'n to women, as they made discovery of all: yet I had n't advice here, on Wednesday last, from one of their own coat, they were return'd, made their relations, as the fashion is, and now stand fair for fresh employment.

Per. [Aside.] Heart! This Sir P. will be ignorant of nothing. It seems, sir, you know all.

Sir P. Not all, sir; but I have some general notions. I do love to note and to observe: though I live out, free from the active torrent, yet I'd mark the currents and the passages of things for mine own private use; and know the ebbs and flows of state.

Per. Believe it, sir, I hold myself in no small tie unto my fortunes, for casting me thus luckily upon you, whose knowledge, if your bounty equal it, may do me great assistance, in instruction for my behaviour, and my bearing, which is yet so rude and raw.

Sir P. Why came you forth empty of rakes for travel? Per. Faith, I had some common ones, out from that vulgar grammar, which he that cri'd Italian to me, taught me. Sir P. Why, this it is that spoils all our brave bloods, trusting our hopeful gentry unto pedants, fellows of outside, and mere bark. You seem to be a gentleman of ingenuous race: — I not profess it, but my fate hath been to be, where I have been consulted with, in this high kind, touching some great men's sons, persons of blood and honour. —

Per. Who be these, sir? —

SCENE II.

[To them enterMosca and Nano disguised, followed by persons with materials for erecting a stage.

Mos. Under that window, there 1t must be. The same.

1 Information.

2 Obligation.
Sir P. Fellows, to mount a bank. Did your instructor
In the doar tongues, never discourse to you
Of the Italian mountebanks?

Per. Yes, sir.

Sir P. Why, here shall you see one.

Per. They are quacksalvers, fellows live by venting oils and drugs.

Sir P. Was that the character he gave you of them?

Per. As I remember.

Sir P. Pity his ignorance.

They are the only knowing men of Europe!

Great general scholars, most excellent physicians,

Most admiring statesmen, proftest favorites

And cabinet counselors to the greatest princes;

The only language men of all the world.

Per. And, I have heard, they are most lewd impostors.

Made all of terms and shreds; no less believers

Of great men's favours, than their own vile medicines.

Which they will utter upon monstrous oaths;

Selling that drug for twopence, ere they part,

Which they have valu'd at twelve crowns before.

Sir P. Sir, calumnyes are answer'd best with silence.

Yourself shall judge.—Who is it mounts, my friends?

Marc. Scoote of Mantua, sir.

Sir P. Is't he? Nay, then I'II proudly promise, sir, you shall behold

Another man than has been phantam'd to you.

I wonder yet, that he should mount his bank,

Here in this nook, that has been wont to appear

In face of the Piazza!—Here he comes.

[Enter Volpone, disguised as a mountebank Doctor, and followed by a crowd of people.]

Volp. Mount, mount [To Nano.]

Moio. Follow, follow, follow, follow!

Sir P. See how the people follow him! he's a man

May write ten thousand crowns in bank here.

Note. [Volpone mounts the stage.]

Mark but his gesture:—I do use to observe

The state he keeps in getting up.

Per. 'Tis worth it, sir. Volp. "Most noble gentlemen, and my worthy patron! It may seem strange that I, your Scoote Mantuan, who was ever wont to fix my bank in the face of the public Piazza, near the shelter of the Portico to the Procurativa, should now, after eight months' absence from this illustrious city of Venice, humbly retire [e myself into an obscure nook of the Piazza."

Sir P. Did not I now object the same?

Per. Peace, sir. Volp. "Let me tell you: I am not, as your Lombard proverb saith, cold on my feet; or

1. Ignorant.

2. The name of an Italian juggler who was in England about this time. (Gifford.)

3. Misrepresnted.

content to part with my commodities at a [as cheaper rate than I am accustom'd: look not for it. Nor that the calumnious reports of that impudent detractor, now shame to our profession (Aleandro Botto, I mean), who gave out, in public, I was condemn'd at a [a forto to the galleyes, for poisoning the Cardinal Bomba's—cook, hath at all times, much less dejected me. "No, no, worthy gentlemen; to tell you true, I cannot endure, to see the rabble of those groound Contiitanesi, that spread their [as croaks on the pavement, as if they meant to do feats of activity, and then come in lamely, with their mouldy tales out of Boccacio, like stale Tabarin, the fabulist: some of them disguising their travels, and of their tedious cap-[activity in the Turk's galleyes, when, indeed, were the truth known, they were the Christian's galleyes, where very temperately they eat bread, and drank water, as a wholesome patience, en-jOin'd them by their confessors, for base pil-[feries."

Sir P. Note but his bearing, and contempt of these.

Volp. "These turdy-facy-nasty-patyous-fartical rogues, with one poor groat's worth of [unprepar'd antimony, finely wrapt up in several scartoccios, are able, very well, to kill their twenty a week, and play; yet these meagre, starv'd spirits, who have half stopt the organs of their minds with earthy opinations, [are not their favourers among your shrivell'd salad-eating artisans, who are overjoy'd that they may have their half-pe'r'rh of physic; though it purge 'em into another world, 't makes no matter."

Sir P. Excellent! ha' you heard better language, sir?

Volp. "Well, let 'em go. And, gentlemen, honourable gentlemen, know, that for this time, our bank, being thus removed from the clamours of the commo'to, shall be the scene of pleasure and delight; for I have nothing to sell, little or nothing to sell."

Sir P. I told you, sir, his end.

Per. You did so, sir. Volp. "I protest, I, and my six servants, are not able to make of this precious liquer so fast as it is fetch'd away from my lodging by [of gentlemen of your city; strangers of the Terraz firma; worshipful merchants; ay, and senators too: who, ever since my arrival, have detain'd me to their uses, by their splendidous liberalties. And worthily; for, what avail's your [as rich man to have his magazines stuff with mos cadelli, or of the purest grape, when his physicians prescribe him, on pain of death, to drink nothing but water coote'd with aniseeds? O [as health! health! the blessing of the rich! the riches of the poor! who can buy thee at too dear a rate, since there is no enjoying this world without thee? be not then so sparing of your purses, honourable gentlemen, as to atherbade the natural course of life—"

Per. You see his end.

Sir P. Ay, is't not good? Vop. "For when a humid flux, or catarrh, by the mutability of air, falls from your head into an arm or shoulder, or any other part; take you a ducket, or your chesuq of gold, and the apply to the place affected: see what good effect it can work. No, no, 'tis this blessed arquebulo, this rare extraction, that hath only power to disperse all malignant humours, that proceed either of hot, cold, moist, or windy causes—"

Per. I would he had put in dry too.

Sir P. Pray you observe.

Vop. “To fortify the most indigest and rude stomach, ay, were it of one that, through extreme weakness, vomited blood, apply only [134] a warm napkin to the place, after the suction and fricase; — for the phlegm in the head, putting but a drop into your nostrils, likewise behind the ears; a most sovereign and ap [135] prov'd remedy; the mal caduce, tremor convulsions, paralyse, tremor cord, re-tir'd nerves, ill vapours of the spleen, stoppings of the liver, the stone, the strangury, herina veneno, delice pistor, 8 stops a dysentery immediately; easeth the torsion 6 of the small guts; and cures melancholia hypocondriaca, being taken and appl'd, according to my printed receipt. T will cost you eight crowns. And—Zen Kristassa, prithee sing a song of tempore in honour of it." 115

Sir P. How do you like him, sir?

Per. Most strangely, I! Sir P. Is not his language rare?

Per. But alchemy, I never heard the like; or Broughton's 7 books.

[NANO sings.]

Had old Hippocrates, or Galen,
That to their books put medicines all in,
But known this secret, they had never
(Of which they will be guilty ever)
Been murderers of so much paper,
Or wasted many a hurtless taper;
No Indian drug had e'er been fam'd,

Ne yet of guacinom one small stick, sir,
Nor Raymund Lilly's 8 great elixir.

both it and I am at your service. I ask you not as the value of the thing, for then I should demand of you a thousand crowns, so the Cardinals Montalto. Ferme, the great Duke of Tuscany, my goodness with divers other princes, have given me; but I despiess money. Only to show my affections to you, honourable gentleman, and you illusrious State here, I have neglected the messages of these princes; mine own offices, fran'my journey hither, only to present you with the fruits of my temper. — [259]

Tune your voices once more to the touch of your instruments, and give the honourable assembly some delightful recreation."

Per. What monstrous and most painful circumstance Is here, to get some three or four gazettes. Some threepence I the whole ! for that 't will come to.

[NERO sings.]
You that would last long, list to my song,
Make no more coil, but buy of this oil.
Would you be ever fair and young?
Shout of teeth, and strong of tongue?
Tart of palate, quick of ear?
Sharp of sight, of nostril clear?
Moss of hand, and light of foot?
Or, I will come nearer to thee,
Would you live free from all diseases?
Do the act your mistrees please,
Yet fright all aches from your bones?
Here's a med'cine for the noes.

Volp. "Well, I am in a humour at this time to make a present of the small quantity my coffer contains; to the rich in courtesy, and to the poor for God's sake. Wherefore now mark: I ask you six crowns; and six crowns, at other times, you have paid me; you shall not give me six crowns, nor five, nor four, nor three, nor two, nor one; nor half a ducat; no, nor a [260] maccinino. Sixpence it will cost you, or six hundred pound — expect no lower price, for, by the banner of my front, I will not be a bagatelle, — that I will have, only, a pledge of your loves, to carry something from amongst you, to show I am not contemn'd by you. Therefore, now, toss your handkerchiefs, cheerfully, cheerfully; and be advertis'd, that the first heroic spirit that dares to grace me with a handkerchief, I will give it a little remembrance of [something beside, shall please it better than if I had presented it with a double pistoleto."

Per. Will you be that heroic spark, Sir Pol?

Volp. "Lady, I kiss your bounty; and for this timely grace you have done your poor Servo of Mantua, I will return you, over and above my oil, a secret of that high and inseparable nature, shall make you forever enamour'd on that minute, whereas your eye first descended on so mean, yet not altogether to be despised, an object. Here is a powder conceas'd in this paper, of which, if I should speak to the worth, nine thousand volumes were but as one page, that page as a line, that line as a word; so short is this pilgrimage of man (which some call life) to the expiring of it. Would I reflect on the price? Why, the whole world is but as an empire, that empire as a province, that province as a bank, that bank as a private purse to the purchase of it. I will only tell you; it is the powder that made Vana a goddess (given her by Apollo), that kept her perpetually young, clear'd her wrinkles, firm'd her gums, fill'd her skin, colour'd her hair; from her de[riv'd] to Helen, and at the sack of Troy unfortunately lost: till now, in this our age, it was as happily recover'd, by a studious antiquary, out of some ruins of Asia, who sent a moiety of it to the court of Branes (but much [soplicated), wherewith the ladies there now colour their hair. The rest, at this present, remains with me; extracted to a quintessence: so that, wherever it but touches, in youth it perpetually preserves, in age restores the com[plexion; seats your teeth, did they dance like virginal jacks; firm a wall: makes them white as ivory, that were black as —"

SCENE III. [To them enter] Corvino.

Cor. Spite o' the devil, and my shame! come down here!

Come down! — No house but mine to make your scene?

Signior Flamino, will you down, sir? down?

What, is my wife your Francisca, sir?

No windows on the whole Piazza, here!

To make your properties, but mine? but mine?

Beats away [VOLPONE, NERO, etc.] Heart! ere to-morrow I shall be new christen'd,

And called the Pantaleone di Bescognioli."

About the town.

Per. What should this mean, Sir Pol?

Sir P. Some trick of state, believe it; I will home.

Per. It may be some design on you.

Sir P. I know not.

Per. I'll stand upon my guard.

It is your best, sir.

Sir P. This three weeks, all my advices, all my letters.

They have been intercepted.

Per. Indeed, sir!

Best have a care.

Sir P. Nay, so I will.

SCENE IV.
[Enter] VOLPONE, MOSCA.

VOLP. O, I am wounded!

MOS. Where, sir?

VOLP. Not without;
Those blows were nothing: I could bear them ever.
But angry Cupid, bolting from her eyes,
Hath shot himself into me like a flame;
Where now he things about his burning heat,
As in a furnace an ambitious fire
Whose vent is stopt. The fight is all within me.
I cannot live, except thou help me, Mosca;
My liver melts, and I, without the hope
Of some soft air from her refreshing breath,
Am but a heap of cinders.

MOS. 'Las, good sir,
Would you had never seen her!

VOLP. Nay, would thou hadst never told me of her!

MOS. Sir, 'tis true;
I do confess I was unfortunate,
And you unhappy; but I'm bound in conscience,
No less than duty, to effect my best
To your release of torment, and I will, sir.

VOLP. Dear Mosca, shall I hope?

MOS. Sir, more than dear,
I will not bid you to despair of aught
Within a human compass.

VOLP. O, there spoke
My better angel, Mosca, take my keys,
Gold, plate, and jewels, all 's at thy devotion;
Employ them how thou wilt: nay, coin me too:
So thou in this but crown my longings, Mosca.

MOS. Use but your patience.

VOLP. So I have.

MOS. I doubt not.

VOLP. To bring success to your desires.

MOS. If you can born him, sir, you need not.

VOLP. True.

 Besides, I never meant him for my heir.
Is not the colour o' my beard and eyebrows
To make me known?

MOS. No jot.

VOLP. I did it well.

MOS. So well, would I could follow you in mine,
With half the happiness! and yet I would Escape your epilogue.

VOLP. But were they gull'd
With a belief that I was Scoto?

MOS. Sir,
Scoto himself could hardly have distinguish'd!
I have not time to flatter you now; we'll part:
And as I prosper, so applaud my art. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.
[Enter] CORVINO, [with his sword in his hand, dragging in] CHLIA.

COR. Death of mine honour, with the city's fool!
A juggling, tooth-drawing, prating mountebank!
And at a public windeore! where, whilst he,
With his strain'd action, and his dole of faces,
To his drag-lecture draws your itching ears,
A crew of old, unmarr'd, noted jechers, stood leering up like satyrs: and you smile
Most graciously, and fan your favours forth,
To give your hot spectators satisfaction!
What, was your mountebank's call? their whistle?

OR. Were you enamour'd on his copper rings,
His saffron jewel, with the toad-stone in 't,
Or his embrod'red suit, with the cope-stitch,
Made of a hearse cloth? or his old tilt-feather?
Or his starch'd beard! Well, you shall have him, yes!
He shall come home, and minister unto you
The frieze for the mother? Or, let me see,
I think you 'd rather mount; would you not mount?
Why, if you 'll mount, you may; yes, truly, you may!
And so you may be seen, down to the foot.
Get you a cittern, Lady Vanity,
And a dealer with the virtuous man;
Make one, I'll but protest myself a cuckold,
And save your dowry. I'm a Dutchman, I!
For if you thought me an Italian,
You would be damn'd ere you did this, you whore!
Thou 'st so tame to imagine that the murder
Of father, mother, brother, all thy race,
Should follow, as the subject of my justice.
Cf. Good sir, have patience.

COR. What couldst thou propose?
Less to thyself, than in this heat of wrath,
And stung with my dishonour, I should strike
This steel into thee, with as many stabs
As thou wert gas'd upon with goatish eyes?

CEL. Alas, sir, be appeas'd! I could not think
My being at the windore should more now
Move your impatience than at other times.

COR. No I neas-to seek and entertain a parley
With a known knave, before a multitude!
You were an actor with your bandkerchief,
Which he most sweetly kist in the receipt,
And might, no doubt, return it with a letter,
And point the place where you might meet;
your sister's,
Your mother's, or your aunt's might serve the turn.

CEL. Why, dear sir, when do I make these excuses?
Or ever stir abroad, but to the church?
And that so seldom ——

COR. Well, it shall be less;
And thy restraint before was liberty,
To what I now decree: and therefore mark me.
First, I will have this bawdy light damn'd up
And tincture done, some two or three yards off.
I'll chalk a line; o'er which if thou but chance
To set thy desp'rate foot, more hell, more horror,
More wild remorseless rage shall seize on thee,
Than on a conjuror that had heedless left
His circle's safety ere his devil was laid.
Then here's a lock which I will hang upon thee.
And, now I think on't, I will keep thee back-wards;
Thy lodging shall be backwards: thy walks backwards;
Thy prospect, all be backwards; and no pleasure
That thou shalt know but backwards: nay, since you force
My honest nature, know, it is your own,
Being too open, makes me use you thus:
Since you will not contain your subtle nostrils
In a sweet room, but they must assuage the air.
Of rank and sweaty passengers. (Knock within.)
One knocks.
Away, and be not seen, pinn of thy life;
Nor look toward the window; if thou dost —
Nay, stay, hear this — let me not prosper, whore,
But I will make thee an anatomy,
Dissect thee mine own self, and read a lecture
Upon thee to the city, and in public.
Away! —
[Enter Servant.]
Who's there?
Sir. 'Tis Signior Mosca, sir.
SCENE VI.¹
CORINTO. Enter Mosca.
Corv. Let him come in. His master's dead; there's yet
Some good to help the bad. — My Mosca, welcome!
I guess your news.
Mos. I fear you cannot, sir.
Corv. Is't not his death?
Mos. Rather the contrary.
Corv. Not his recovery?
Mos. Yes, sir.
Corv. I am ours, I am ours, ²
I am bewitch'd, my crosses meet to vex me.
How? how? how? how? how?
Mos. Why, sir, with Scoo'to's oil;
Corbaccio and Voltole brought it,
Whilst I was busy in an inner room —
Corv. Death! that damn'd mountebank! but for the law
Now, I could kill the rascal; it cannot be
His oil should have that virtue. Ha' not I Known him a common rogue, come fiddling in

² Prepared.

⁴ Poultoes.
⁵ Prepared.
Mos. And a virgin, sir. Why, alas, He knows the state of a body, what it is: That nought can warm his blood, sir, but a fever; Nor any enchantment raise his spirit: A long forgetfulness hath seiz'd that part. Besides, sir, who shall know it? Some one or two—

Corv. I pray thee give me leave. [Walks aside.] If any man But I had had this luck — The thing in't self, I know, is nothing. — Wherefore should not I As well command my blood and my affections As this dull doctor? In the point of honour, The cases are all one of wife and daughter. Mos. [Aside.] I hear him coming. She shall do 't; 't is done. Slight! if this doctor, who is not engag'd, Unless 't be for his counsel, which is nothing, Offer his daughter, what should I, that am So deeply in? I will prevent him: Wretch! Covetous wretch! — Mosca, I have determin'd. Mos. How, sir? [wot of Corv. We'll make all sure. The party you Shall be mine own wife, Mosca.

Mos. Sir, the thing, But that I would not seem to counsel you, I should have motion'd you, at the first: And make your count, you have cut all their throats. Why, 't is directly taking a possession! And in his next fit, we may let him go. 'Tis but to pull the pillow from his head, And he is throttled: it had been done before But for your scrupulous doubts.

Corv. Ay, a plague on 't, My conscience fools my wit! Well, I'll be brief. And so be thou, lest they should be before us. Go home, prepare him, tell him with what zeal And willingness I do it: swear it was On the first hearing, as thou mayst do, truly, Mine own free motion.

Mos. Sir, I warrant you, I'll so possess him with it, that the rest Of his star'd clients shall be banish'd all; And only you receiv'd. But come not, sir, Until I send, for I have something else To rip for your good, you must not know 't. Corv. But do not you forget to send now.

Mos. Fear not. [Exit.]

[Scene VII.]

Corvino.

Corv. Where are you, wife? My Celia! wife!

[Enter Celia.]

— What, blub'ring? Come, dry those tears. I think thou thought'st me in earnest;

Mos. It by this light I talk'd so but to try thee; Methinks, the lightness of the occasion Should have confirm'd thee. Come, I am not jealous.

Corv. No? Faith I am not, I, nor never was; It is a poor unprofitable humour. Do not I know, if women have a will, They'll do 'gainst all the watchs o' the world, And that the fiercest spies are tam'd with gold? Tut, I am confident in thee, thou shalt see 't; And see I'll give thee cause too, to believe it. Come kiss me. Go, and make thee ready straight, In all thy best attire, thy choicest jewels, Pur 'em all on, and, with 'em, thy best looks: We are invited to a solemn feast, At old Volpone's, where it shall appear How far I am free from jealousy or fear. [Exit.]

ACT III
SCENE II.1

MOSCA. [Enter] BONARIO.

Who’s this? Bonario, old Corbaccio’s son? The person I was bound to seek. Fair sir, You are happily met.

Bon. That cannot be by thee.

MOS. Why, sir? [Leave me; I would be loth to interchange discourse with such a mate as thou art.

Bon. Courteous sir, Seem not thy poverty. Nor I, by heaven; But thou shalt give me leave to hate thy base

MOS. Base ness! Ay; answer me, is not thy sloth Sufficient argument? thy dastardy? Thy means of feeding?

MOS. Heaven be good to me! These imputations are too common, sir, And easily stuck on virtue when she’s poor.

Bon. You are unequal to me, and however Your sentence may be righteous, yet you are not.

That, are you know me, thus proceed in censure:

St. Mark bear witness against you; ‘tis inhuman.

Bon. [Aside.] What! does he weep? the sign is soft and good:

I do repent me that I was so harsh.

MOS. ’T is true, that, away’d by strong necessity, I am enforced to eat my careful bread With too much obsequy; ’tis true, beside, That I am fain to spin mine own poor raiment Out of my mere observance, being not born To a free fortune: but that I have done Base offices, in rending friends asunder, Dividing families, betraying counsels, Whispers’ing false lies, or mining men with praises, Train’d their credulity with perjuries, Corrupted chastity, or am in love

With mine own tender ease, but would not rather Prove the most rugged and laborious course, That might redeem my present estimation, Let me here perish, in all hope of goodness.

Bon. [Aside.] This cannot be a personated passion.

I was to blame, so to mistake thy nature; Princes forgive me: and speak out thy business.

MOS. Sir, it concerns you: and though I may seem At first to make a main offence in manners, And in my gratitude unto my master, Yet for the pure love which I bear all right, And hatred of the wrong, I must reveal it. This very hour your father in purpose To disinherit you ——

Bon. How! And thrust you forth,

As a mere stranger to his blood: ’t is true, sir. The work no way engaged me, but as I claim a interest in the general state Of goodness and true virtue, which I hear To abound in you; and for which more respect, Without a second aim, sir, I have done it.

Bon. This tale hath lost thee much of the late trust Thou hadst with me; it is impossible. I know not how to resile it any thought, My father should be so unnatural.

MOS. It is a confidence that well becomes your piety; and form’d, no doubt, it is From your own simple innocence: which makes your wrong more monstrous and abhor’d. But, sir, I now will tell you more. This very minute, It is, or will be doing; and if you Shall be but pleased to go with me, I’ll bring you, I dare not say where you shall see, but where Your ear shall be a witness of the deed: Hear yourself written bastard, and profest The common issue of the earth.

Bon. I’m mass’d! I’m mass’d! I’m mass’d! (Aside.)

MOS. Sir, if I do it not, draw your just sword, And score your vengeance on my front and face. Mark me your villain: you have too much wrong, And I do suffer for you, sir. My heart Weeps blood in anguish ——

Bon. Lead; I follow thee. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.4

[Enter] VOLPONE, MOSCA, ANDROGANO, CASTRONE.

Volp. Mosca stays long, methinks. — Bring forth your sports, And help to make the wretched time more sweet.

NOR. “Dwarf, fool, and envious, well met here we be. A question it were now, whether of us three, Being all the known delicacies of a rich man, In pleasing him, claim the precedence can?”

Caz. “I claim for myself.”

And. “And so doth the fool.”

NOR. “’T is foolish indeed: let me set you both to school. First for your dwarf, he’s little and witty, And everything, as it is little, is pretty; Else why do men say to a creature of my shape, So soon as they see him, ‘It’s a pretty little ape’? And why a pretty ape, but for pleasing imitation Of greater men’s actions, in a ridiculous fashion?”

Beside, this feat body of mine doth not crave Half the meat, drink, and cloth, one of your bulks will have. Admit your fool’s face be the mother of laughter,
Yet, for his brain, it must always come after:
And though that do feed him, it's a pitiful case,
His body is beholding to such a bad face."

Volp. Who's there? My couch; away! look! Nano, see:
[Exeunt AND, and CAS.]
Give me my caps first — go, inquire. [Exit NANO.]
Now, Cupid. Send me to Messrs, and with fair return!
Nan. [within. It is the beauteous madam —
Volp. Would-be — is it?
Nan. The same.
Volp. Now torment me! Squire her in;-
For she will enter, or dwell here for ever:
Nay, quickly. [Retires to his couch.] That my fit was past! 1 fear
A second hail too, that my-leasting this
Will quite spoil my appetite to the other;
Would she were taking now her tedious leave.
Lord, how it threatens me what I am to suffer! 2

SCENE IV. 2

[To him enter] NANO, LADY POLITICAL WOULD-BE.
Lady P. I thank you, good sir. Pray you signify Unto your patron I am here. — This hand
Shows not my neck enough; — I trouble you, sir;
Let me request you bid one of my women
Come hither to me. In good faith, I am drear;
Most favourably to-day! It is no matter:
'Tis well enough.

[Enter 1 Waiting-woman.]

Volp. Look, see these petulant things,
How they have done this!
Lady P. [Aside.] I do feel the fever
Ent'ring in at mine ears; O, for a charm
To quiet it hence! 2

Lady P. Come nearer; is this cur I is its right place, or this? Why is this higher Than all the rest? You ha' not wash'd your eyes yet!
Or do they not stand even? your head?
Where is your fellow? call her. [Enter 1 Woman.]
Nan. Now, St. Mark.
Volp. Deliver not anason she 'll beat her women,
Because her nose is red.

[Re-enter 1 with 2 Woman.]

Lady P. I pray you view
This tire, 3 forsooth: are all things apt, or so?
1 Wom. One hair a little here sticks out, forsooth.
Lady P. Does't so, forsooth! and where was your dear sight,
When it did so, forsooth! What now! birdsey'd? 4
And you, too? Pray you, both approach and mend it.
Now, by that light I muse you 're not ashamed! I,
that have preach'd these things so oft unto you,
Read you the principles, argu'd all the grounds,
Disputed every fitness, every grace,

Call'd you to counsel of so frequent dressings —
Nan. (Aside.) More carefully than of your fame or honour.
Lady P. Made you acquainted what an ample dowry
The knowledge of these things would be unto you;
Able alone to get you noble husbands
At your return; and you thus to neglect it!
Besides, you seeing what a curious nation
Th' Italians are, what will they say of me?
"The English lady cannot dress herself." 4
Here's a fine imputation to our country! 2
Well, go your ways, and stay i' the next room.
This fault 5 was too coarse too; 'tis no matter.
Good sir, you' ll give 'em entertainment?

[Exit NANO and Waiting-woman.]
Volp. The storm comes toward me. [pose] LADY P. [Goes to the couch.] How does my Volp.
Volp. Troubl'd with noise, I cannot sleep; I dreamt
That a strange fury ent'red saw my house,
And, with the dreadful tempest of her breath,
Did cleave my roof asunder.

Lady P. Believe me, and I had the most fearful dream, could I remember it.
Volp. [Aside.] Out on my fate! I have given her the occasion
How to torment me; she will tell me hers.
Lady P. Methought the golden mediocrity,
Polite, and delicate —
Volp. O, if you do love me,
No more I sweat, and suffer, at the mention
Of any dream; feel how I tremble yet.

Lady P. Also, good soul! the passion of the heart.
Seed-pearl were good now, boil'd with syrup of apples,
Tincture of gold, and coral, citron-pills,
Your elecampane 6 root, myrobalans 7 —
Volp. Ay me, I have ta'en a grasshopper by the wing! 8
Lady P. Burnt silk and amber. You have muscade.
Good i' the house —
Volp. You will not drink, and part?
Lady P. No, fear not that. I doubt we shall not get
Some English saffron, half a dram would serve;
Your sixteen cloves, a little musk, dried mists;
Bugsleas, and barley-meal —
Volp. [Aside.] She's in again!
Before I feign'd diseases, now I have one.
Lady P. And these app't'd with a right scarlet cloth.
Volp. [Aside.] Another flood of words! a very torrent!
Lady P. Shall I, sir, make you a postponed?
Volp. No, no, no.
I'm very well, you need prescribe no more.

1 The same. 2 Head-dress. 3 Short-sighted. 4 "The faster you hold them by the wings, the louder they scream."
Lady P. I have a little studied physic; but now I'm all for music, save, i' the forenoons, An hour or two for painting. I would have A lady, indeed, to have all letters and arts, Be able to discourse, to write, to paint, But principal, as Plato holds, your music, And so does wise Pythagoras, I take it, Is your true ransom: when there is concert, In face, in voice, and clothes: and is, indeed, Our sex's chiefest ornament.

Volp. The poet As old in time as Plato, and as knowing, Says that your highest female grace is silence.

Lady P. Which of your poets? Petrarch, or Tasso, or Dante?

Guarini? Ariosto? Aretine?

Cisco di Hadria? I have read them all.

Volp. [Aside.] Is everything a cause to my destruction?

Lady P. I think I have two or three of 'em about me.

Volp. [Aside.] The sun, the sea, will sooner both stand still Than her eternal tongue! nothing can scape it.

Lady P. Here's Pastor Fido.

Volp. [Aside.] Profess obstinate silence; That's now my safest.

Lady P. All our English writers, I mean such as are happy in th' Italian, Will deign to steal out of this author, mainly: Almost as much as from Montagné.

He has so modern and facile a vein, Fitting the time, and catching the court-ear! Your Petrarch is more passionate, yet he, In days of sonnetting, trusted 'em with much: Dante is hard, and few can understand him. But for a desperate wit, there's Aretine: Only his pictures are a little obscene—You mark me not.

Volp. Alas, my mind's perturb'd.

Lady P. Why, in such cases, we must cure ourselves, Make use of our philosophy—

Volp. Oh me!

Lady P. And as we find our passions do rebel, Encounter them with reason, or divert 'em, By giving scope unto some other humour Of lesser danger: as, in politic bodies, There's nothing more doth overthrow the judgment, And cloud the understanding, than too much Settling and fixing, and, as 't were, subsiding Upon one object. For the incorporating Of these same outward things, into that part Which we call mental, leaves some certain faces

That stop the organs, and, as Plato says, Assassinate our knowledge.

Volp. [Aside.] Now, the spirit Of patience help me!

Lady P. Come, in faith, I must Visit you more a days; and make you well: Laugh and be lusty.

Volp. [Aside.] My good angel save me! 1

Lady P. There was but one sole man in all the world With whom I e'er could sympathise; and he Would lie you, often, three, four hours together To hear me speak; and be sometime so rapt, As he would answer me quite from the purpose,

Like you, and you are like him, just. I'll discourse,

An't be but only, sir, to bring you asleep, How we did spend our time and loves together, For some six years.

Volp. Oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh!

Lady P. For we were coetanei, 2 and brought up—

Volp. Some power, some fate, some fortune rescue me!

SCENE V.

[To them enter] MOSCA.

Mos. God save you, madam!

Lady P. Good sir.

Volp. Mosca! welcome,

Welcome to my redemption.

Mos. Why, sir?

Volp. Oh, Rid me of this my torture, quickly, there; My madam with the everlasting voice: The bells, in time of pestilence, ne'er made Like noise, or were in that perpetual motion! The Cook-pit comes not near it. All my house, But now, steam'd like a bath with her thick breath.

A lawyer could not have been heard; nor scarce A woman, such a hail of words She has let fall. For hell's sake, rid her hence.

Mos. Has she presented?

Volp. Oh, I do not care;

I'll take her absence upon any price, With any loss.

Mos. Madam—

Lady P. I ha' brought your patron A toy, a cap here, of mine own work.

Mos. 'Tis well. I had forgot to tell you I saw your knight Where you would little think it. 3

Lady P. Where?

Mov. Marry, Where yet, if you make haste, you may apprehend him, Rowing upon the water in a gondole, With the most cunning courtesan of Venice.

Lady P. Is 't true?

Mos. Pursue 'em, and believe your eyes: Leave me to make your gift.

[Exit Lady P. hastily.] I knew 'twould take:

For, lightly, they that use themselves most licence, Are still most jealous.

Volp. Mosca, hearty thanks

For thy quick fiction, and delivery of me.

Now to my hopes, what sayst thou?

1 Harmony.

2 Of the same age.

3 The same.
[Re-enter Lady P. Would-be.]

Lady P. But do you hear, sir? —
Volp. Again! I fear a paroxysm.
Lady P. Which way
Row'd they together?
Mos. Toward the Rialto.
Lady P. I pray you lend me your dwarf. —
Mos. I pray you take him. [Exit Lady P.]

Your hopes, sir, are like happy blossoms, fair,
And promise timely fruit, if you will stay;
But the maturing; keep you at your couch,
Corbaccio will arrive straight, with the will;
When he is gone, I'll tell you more. [Exit.
Volp.

My blood,
My spirits are return'd; I am alive:
And, like your wanton gamester at primero,
Whose thought had whisper'd to him, not go.
Methinks I lie, and draw — for an encounter.

SCENE VI. —

[Enter] Mosca, Bonario.

Mos. Sir, here conceall'd [Opening a door] you may hear
all. But, pray you,
Have patience, sir; [One knocks.] the same's
your father knocks:
I am compell'd to leave you. [Exit.

Bon. Do so. — Yet
Cannot my thought imagine this a truth.

[Enters Mosca, Convino, Cella. —

Mos. Death on me! you are come too soon, what meant you?
Did not I say I would send?

Corv. Yes, but I fear'd
You might forget it, and then they prevent us.

Mos. Prevent! [Aside.] Did e'er man haste so for his horns?
A courtier would not ply it so for a place.
— Well, now there is no helping it, stay here;
I'll presently return. [Exit.

Corv. Where are you, Celia?

You know not wherefor I have brought you
hither?

Cel. Not well, except you told me.

Corv. [Now I will:

Hark hither. [They retire to one side.]

[Re-enter Mosca.]

Mos. (to Bonario) Sir, your father hath sent
It will be half an hour ere he come; —
And therefore, if you please to walk the while
Into that gallery — at the upper end,
There are some books to entertain the time;
And I'll take care no man shall come unto you,

Bon. Yes, I will stay there. — [Aside.] I do doubt this fellow.

Hazard.

Terms in primero. Volpone is lying in the alcove at the back of the stage, and at the end of the scene the curtains close on him.

Mos. [Looking after him.] There; he is far enough; he can hear nothing:
And for his father, I can keep him off. —
Corv. Nay, now, there is no starting back, and therefore, Resolve upon it: I have so decreed.
It must be done. Nor would I move 't afoot,
Because I would avoid all shifts and tricks,
That might deny me.

Cel. Sir, let me beseech you,
Affect not those strange trials; if you doubt
My chastity, why, lock me up for ever;
Make me the heir of darkness. Let me live
Where I may please your fears, if not your trust.

Corv. Believe it, I have no such humour, I,
All that I speak I mean; yet I'm not mad;
Not horn-mad, you see? Go to, show yourself
Obedient, and a wife.

Cel. O heaven! I say it,

Do so.

Cel. Was this the train?

Corv. I've told you reasons;
What the physicians have set down; how much
It may concern me; what my engagements are;
My means, and the necessity of those means
For my recovery: wherefore, if you be Loyal and mine, be won, respect my venture.

Cel. Before your honour?

Corv. Honour! t'ut, a breath:
There's no such thing in nature; a mere term
Invented to awe fools. What is my gold;
The worse for touching, clothes for being look'd
on?
Why, this 'a no more. An old decreit wretch,
That has no sense, no sinew; takes his meat
With others' fingers: only knows to gape
When you do scald his gums; a voice, a shadow;
And what can this man hurt you?

Cel. [Aside.] Lord! what spirit
Is this hath ent'red him?

Corv. And for your fame,
That's such a jigm: as if I would go tell it,
Cry it on the Piazza! Who shall know it
But he that cannot speak it, and this fellow,
Whose lips are i' my pocket? Save yourself,
If you'll proclaim 't, you may, I know no other
Should come to know it.

Cel. Are heaven and saints then nothing?
Will they be blind or stupid?

Corv. How!

Cel. Good sir,
Be jealous still, emulate them; and think
What hate they burn with toward every sin.

Corv. I grant you: if I thought it were a sin
I would not urge you. Should I offer this
To some young Frenchman, or hot Tuscan blood
That had read Aretine, conn'd all his prints,
Knew every quirk within lust's labyrinth,
And were protest critic in lechery:
And I would look upon him, and applaud him.
This were a sin: but here, 't is contrary,
A pious work, mere charity for physics,
And honest polity, to assure mine own.

At this point, Mosca goes back and opens the curttains, discovering Volpone on his couch.
Volpone; or, The Fox

Cel. O heaven! canst thou suffer such a change?

Volp. Thou art mine honour, Mosca, and my pride,

My joy, my tickling, my delight! Go bring him.

Mos. [Advancing.] Please you draw near, sir.

Corv. Come on, what —

You will not be rebellious? By that light —

Mos. Sir, Signior Corvino, here, is come to see you.

Volp. Oh!

Mos. And hearing of the consultation had,

So lately, for your health, is come to offer,

Or rather, sir, to prostitute —

Corv. Thanks, sweet Mosca. =

Mos. Freely, unsak'd, or untreated —

Well.

Mos. As the true fervent instance of his love,

His own most fair and proper wife; the beauty

Only of price in Venice —

Corv. 'Tis well urg'd.

Mos. To be your comfort, and to preserve you.

Volp. Alas, I am past, already! Pray you, thank him

For his good care and promptness; but for that,

'Tis a vain labour o'en to fight; 'gainst heaven

Applying fire to stone — uh, uh, uh, uh! [

Coughing.]

Making a dead leaf grow again, I take

His wishes gently, though; and you may tell him

What I have done for him: marry, my state is Hopeless.

Will him to pray for me; and to use his fortune

With reverence when he comes to 't.

Mos. Do you hear, sir? Go to him with your wife.

Corv. Heart of my father! =

Wilt thou now persist thus? Come, I pray thee,

Come.

Thou seest 'tis nothing, Celia. By this hand

I shall grow violent. Come, do't, I say.

Cel. Sir, kill me, rather: I will take down

poison,

Eat burning coals, do anything —

Corv. Be dam'd! =

Heart, I will drag thee hence home by the hair;

Cry thee a strumpet through the streets; rip up

Thy mouth unto thine ears; and slit thy nose,

Like a raw rochet; — Do not tempt me; some,

Yield, I am loth — Death! I will buy some slave

Whom I will kill, and bind thee to him alive;

And at my windore hang you forth, devising

Some monstrous crime, which I, in capital letters,

Will sat into thy flesh with aquafortis,

And burning corrosives, on this stubborn breast.

Now, by the blood thou last incend'd, I'll do it!

Cel. Sir, what you please, you may; I am your martyr.

Corv. Be not thus obstinate, I ha' not deserv'd it:

Think who it is intreats you. Prithée, sweet; —

Good faith, thou shalt have jewels, gowns, attire. 116

What thou wilt think, and ask. Do but go kiss

him.

Or touch him but. For my sake. At my suit —

This once. No! not! I shall remember this.

Will you disgrace me thus? Do you thrst my undoing?

Mos. Nay, gentle lady, be advis'd.

Corv. No, no, 116

She has watch'd her time. God's precious, this is scurvy,

'T is very scurvy; and you are —

Mos. Nay, good sir.

Corv. An arrant louset — by heaven, a louset! —

Whore, crocodile, that hast thy tears prepar'd,

Expecting how thou 'lt bid 'em flow —

Mos. Nay, pray you, sir! 116

She will consider.

Cel. Would my life would serve

To satisfy — [him,

Corv. Sdeath! if she would but speak to

And save my reputation, 't were somewhat;

But spitefully to affect my utter ruin!

Mos. Ay, now you have put your fortune in her hands.

Why! faith, it is her modesty. I must quit her.

If you were absent, she would be more coming;

I know it: and dare undertake for her.

What woman can before her husband? Pray you,

Let us depart and leave her here.

Corv. Sweet Celia, 126

Thou mayest redeem all yet; I'll say no more:

If not, esteem yourself as lost. Nay, stay there.

[Exit with MOSCA.]

Cel. O God, and his good angels! whither, whither.

Is shame fled human breasts? that with such

care,

Men dare put off your honours, and their own?

Is that, which ever was a cause of life,

Now plac'd beneath the basest circumstance,

And modesty an exile made, for money?

Volp. Ay, in Corvino, and such earth-fed minds, He leaps from his couch.

That never tasted the true heaven of love.

Assure thee, Celia, he that would sell thee,

Only for hope of gain, and that uncertain,

He would have sold his part of Paradise.

For ready money, had he met a rogue-man, 6

Why art thou mas'd to see me thus reviv'd? =

Rather applaud thy beauty's miracle; =

'Tis thy great work, that hath, not now alone,

But sundry times raise'd me, in several shapes.

And, but this morning, like a mountebank,

To see thee at thy windore: ay, before 126

I would have left my practice, for thy love,

In varying figures, I would have contended.

With the blue Proteus, or the horned flood. 4

Now art thou welcome.

2 Chapman, merchant.

4 "Acheloid, of whose contention there is a pretty story in Ovid." (Gifford.)

---

1 A rochet or rouget, so named from its red colour, is a fish of the gurnet kind, but not so large." (Whalley.)

8 Corrosives.
BEN JONSON

III. vii.

Cel. Some serene blast me, or dire lightning strike
Thy offending face!

Volp. Why droops my Celia?

Cel. Thou hast, in place of a base husband found
A worthy lover: use thy fortune well,
With secrecy and pleasure. See, behold,
What thou art queen of; not in expectation,
As I feed others: but possess’d and crown’d.
See, here, a rope of pearl: and each more orient.
Then the brave Egyptian queen carous’d:
Dissolve and drink ’em. See, a carbuncle,
May put out both the eyes of our St. Mark; a diamond would have bought Lalla Paulina,
When she came in like star-light, hid with jewels
That were the spoils of provinces; take these
And wear, and lose ’em: yet remains an earing.

To purchase them again, and this whole state.

A gem but worth a private patrimony
Is nothing; we will eat such at a meal.
The heads of parrots, tongues of nightingales.
The brains of peacocks, and of streeches,
Shall be our food, and, could we get the phoenix,

Though nature lost her kind, she were our diath.

Cel. Good sir, these things might move a mind affected
With such delights; but I, whose innocence
Is all I can think wealthy, or worth th’ enjoying,

And which, once lost, I have sought to lose beyond it,

Cannot be taken with these sensual baits:
If you have conscience—

Volp. ’Tis the beggar’s virtue.

If thou hast wisdom, hear me, Celia.

Cel. Thy baths shall be the juice of July-flowers,
Spirit of roses, and of violets.
The milk of unicorns, and panthers’ breath
Gather’d in bags, and mix’d with Cretan wines.
Our drink shall be prepared gold and amber;
Which we will take until my roof whirl round.
With the vertigo: and my dwarf shall dance,
My eunuch sing, my fool make up the antick.

Whilest we, in changed shapes, act Ovid’s tales,
Thou, like Europa now, and I like Jove,
Then I like Mars, and thou like Erycine:
So of the rest, till we have quite run through,
And wearied all the fables of the gods.

Then will I have thee in more modern forms,
Attired like some sprightly dame of France,
Brave Tuscan lady, or proud Spanish beauty;
Sometimes unto the Persian sophy’s wife;
Or the grand signior’s mistress; and for change,
To one of our most artful courtesans,
Or some other Negro, or cold Russian;
And I will meet thee in as many shapes:
Where we may so transfuse our wand’ring souls
Out at our lips, and score up sums of pleasures.

Cel. If you have ears that will be pierc’d—

Volp. That can be open’d—a heart that may be touch’d—

Or any part that yet sounds man about you—

If you have touch of holy saints—or heaven—

Do me the grace to let me escape:— if not,
Be pious and kill me. You do know,
I am a creature, higher still betray’d.
By one whose shame I would forget it were;
If you will deign me neither of these graces,
Yet feed your wrath, sir, rather than your lust,
(It is a vice comes nearer manliness.)

And punish that unhappy crime of nature,

That which miscall my beauty! fly my face,
Or poison it with ointments for seducing
Your blood to this rebellion. Rub these hands
With what may cause an eating leprosy,
E’en to my bones and marrow: anything
That may disfigure me, save in my honour—
And I will kneel to you, pray for you, pay down
A thousand hourly vows, sir, for your health;
Report, and think you virtuous—

Volp. Think me cold.

Cel. Frozen, and impotent, and so report me?

That I had Nestor’s herin, thou wouldst think.
I do degenerate, and abuse my nation,
To play with opportunity thus long;
I should have done the act, and then have parley’d.

Yield, or I’ll force thee. [Seizes her.]

Cel. O! just God!
VOLPONE; OR, THE FOX

In vain —

I have no choice —

Be free from fear, lady, or thou diest, impostor.
But that I am loth to snatch thy punishment
Out of the hand of justice, thou shouldst yet
Be made the timely sacrifice of vengeance.

Before this altar and this cross, thy idol.
Lady, let’s quit the place, it is the den
Of villany; fear nought, you have a guard:
And he see long shall meet his just reward.

VOLP. Fall on me, roof, and bury me in ruin
Become my grave, that were my shelter! O!
I am unmask’d, unspirited, undone,
Betray’d to beggary, to infamy —

[Exeunt Bon. and Cel.]

SCENE VIII.

VOLPONE. [Enter] MOSCA, [wounded and bleeding.]

MOS. Where shall I run, most wretched shame
Of men,
To beat out my unlucky brains?

VOLP. Here, here.

What dost thou bleed?

MOS. O, that my well-driv’n sword
Had been so courtesons to have cleft me down
Unto the navel, ere I live’d to see
My life, my hopes, my spirits, my patron, all
Thus desperately engaged by my error!

VOLP. Woe on thy fortune!

MOS. And my follies, sir.

VOLP. Thou hast made me miserable.

MOS. And myself, sir.

Who would have thought he would have heard k’ned so?

VOLP. What shall we do?

MOS. I know not; if my heart
Could expiate the mischance, I’d pluck it out.
Will you be pleas’d to hang me, or cut my throat?

And I’ll require you, sir. Let’s die like Romans.

Since we have liv’d like Grocians.

They knock without.

VOLP. Hark! who’s there? is
I hear some footing; officers, the sallies,
Come to apprehend me! I do feel the brand
Hissing already at my forehead; now
Mine ears are boring.

MOS. To your couch, sir, you,
Make that place good, however. [VOLPONE lies down as before.] Guilty men

Suspect what they deserve still. Signior Corbaccio!

SCENE IX.

[To them enter] CORBACCIO.

CORB. Why, how now, Mosca?

MOS. O, undone, amaz’d, sir.

Your son, I know not by what accident,

[Acquainted with your purpose to my patron,

Touching your will, and making him your heir,

Ent’red our house with violence, his sword

Drawn,

Sought for you, called you wretch, unnatural,

Vow’d he would kill you.

CORB. Me!

MOS. Yes, and my patron.

CORB. This act shall disinherit him indeed:

Here is the will.

MOS. ’Tis well, sir.

CORB. Right and well:

Be you as careful now for me.

[Enter VOLTORE behind.]

MOS. Many, my life, sir,

Is not more tender’d; I am only yours.

CORB. How does he? Will he die shortly,

Think’st thou?

MOS. I fear

He’ll outlast May.

CORB. To-day?

MOS. No, last out May, sir.

CORB. Couldst thou not gi’ him a dram?

MOS. O, by no means, sir.

CORB. Nay, I’ll not bid you.

VOL. [coming forward.] This is a knife,

MOS. [Aside, seeing VOL.] How! Signior Vol-tore! did he hear me?

VOL. Parasite!

MOS. Who’s that? — O, sir, most timely welcome —

VOL. Scarcely,

To the discovery of your tricks, I fear.

You are his, only? And mine also, are you not?

MOS. Who? I, sir?

VOL. You, sir. What device is this?

MOS. A plot for you, sir.

VOL. Come.

Put not your foists upon me; I shall scent ’em.

MOS. Did you not hear it?

VOL. Yes, I hear Corbaccio

Hath made your patron there his heir.

MOS. ’Tis true,

By my device, drawn to it by my plot,

With hope —

VOL. Your patron should reciprocate?

And you have promis’d?

MOS. For your good I did, sir.

Nay, more, I told his son, brought, hid him

here,

Where he might hear his father pass the deed;

Being persuaded to it by this thought, sir,

That the unnaturalness, first, of the act,

And then his father’s oft disclaiming in him,

(Which I did mean t’ help on), would sure en-rage him

To do some violence upon his parent,

On which the law should take sufficient hold,

And you be stated in a double hope.

Truth be my comfort, and my conscience,

My only aim was to dig you a fortune

Out of these two rotten sepulchres —

Decide.
VOLT. I cry thee mercy, Mosca.
Mos. — Worth your patience, sir.
And your great merit, sir. And see the change!
VOLT. Why, what success?
Mos. Most hapless! you must help, sir.
Whilst we expected th' old raven, in comes Corvino's wife, sent hither by her husband —
VOLT. What, with a present?
Mos. No, sir, on visitation;
(I'll tell you how anon); and staying long,
The youth he grows impatient, rushes forth,
Seizeth the lady, wounds me, makes her swear
(Or he would murder her, that was his vow)
I affirm my patron to have done her rape:
Which how unlike it is, you see! and hence,
With that pretext he's gone, t' accuse his father,
Defame my patron, defeat you —
VOLT. Where's her husband?
Let him be sent for straight.
Mos. Sir, I'll go fetch him.
VOLT. Bring him to the Scrutinee.
Mos. Sir, I will.
VOLT. This must be stopt.
Mos. O you do nobly, sir.
Alas, 'twas labour'd all, sir, for your good;
Nor was there want of counsel in the plot:
But Fortune can, at any time, o'erthrow
The projects of a hundred learned clerks, sir.
Corb. [listening.] What's that?
VOLT. Wilt please you, sir, to go along?
[Exit CorBTACCO, followed by VOLTORE.]
Mos. Patron, go in, and pray for our success.
Volp. [rising from his couch.] Need makes devotion: heaven your labour bless!
[Exeunt.]

ACT IV

SCENE I.²

[Enter] Sir Politio Would-be, Pergrine.

Sir P. I told you, sir, it was a plot; you see What observation! You mention'd me
For some instructions: I will tell you, sir,
(Since we are meet here in this height of Venice.)
Some few particulars I have set down,
Only for this meridian, fit to be known
Of your crusty traveller; and they are these,
I will not touch, sir, at your phrase, or clothes,
For they are old.
Per. Sir P., Sir, I have better.

Sir P. Pardon, I meant, as they are themes.
Per. O, sir, proceed:
I'll slander you no more of wit, good sir.
Sir P. First, for your garb, it must be grave
And serious, very reserv'd and lookt; not tell a secret
On any terms, not to your father; scarce
A fable, but with caution: make sure choice
Both of your company and discourse; beware
You never speak a truth —
Per. How!

Sir P. Not to strangers.
For those be they you must converse with most;
Others I would not know, sir, but at distance
So as I still might be a saver in them:
You shall have tricks else past upon you hourly.
And then, for your religion, profess none,
But wonder at the diversity of all;
And, for your part, protest, were there no other
But simply the laws o' th' land, you could content you.
Nic. Machiavel and Monsieur Bodin,² both
Were of this mind. Then must you learn the use
And handling of your silver fork at meals,
The metal of your glass; (these are main matters
With your Italian;) and to know the hour
When you must eat your melons and your figs.
Per. Is that a point of state too?
Sir P. Here it is:
For your Venetian, if he see a man
Preposterous in the least, he has him straight;
He has; he strips him. I'll acquaint you, sir,
I now have liv'd here 'tis some fourteen months;
Within the first week of my landing here,
All took me for a citizen of Venice,
I knew the forms so well —
Per. [Aside.] And nothing else.
Sir P. I had read Contaremi,² took me a house,
Dealt with my Jews to furnish it with movables—
Well, if I could but find one man, one man
To mine own heart, whom I durst trust, I would —
Per. What, what, sir?
Sir P. Make him rich; make him a fortune:
He should not think again. I would command it.
Per. As how?
Sir P. With certain projects that I have;
Which I may not discover.
Per. [Aside.] If I had
But one to wager with, I would lay odds now,
He tells me instantly.
Sir P. One is, and that
I care not greatly who knows, to serve the state
Of Venice with red herrings for three years,
And at a certain rate, from Rotterdam,
Where I have correspondence. There's a letter,
Sent me from one o' th' states, and to that purpose:
He cannot write his name, but that's his mark.
Per. He is a chandler?
Sir P. No, a cheesemonger.
There are some others too with whom I treat
About the same negotiation;
And I will undertake it: for 'tis thus.
I'll don't with ease, I have cast it all.
Your boy³
Carries but three men in her, and a boy;
And she shall make me three returns a year:

³ A famous French lawyer.
⁴ Gasp. Contaremi, author of a work on Venice.
⁵ Beckoned.
⁶ A small passenger sloop.
So if there come but one of three, I save;
If two, I can defalk:—but this is now,
If my main project fail.

Per. Then you have others? Sir P. I should be loth to draw the subtle
air
Of such a place, without my thousand aims.
I'll not dissemble, sir: where'er I come,
I love to be considerate; and 'tis true,
I have at my free hours thought upon
Some certain goods unto the state of Venice,
Which I do call my Cautions; and, sir, which
I mean, in hope of pension, to propound
To the Great Council, then unto the Forty,
So to the Ten. My means are made already ——
Per. By whom? [be obscure, Sir P.
Sir, one that though his place
Yet he can away, and they will hear him. He's A commandador.

Per. What? a common sergeant? Sir P. Sir, such as they are, put it in their mouths.
What they should say, sometimes; as well as greater:
I think I have my notes to show you ——
[Searching his pockets.]

Per. Good sir.
Sir P. But you shall swear unto me, on your gentry,
Not to anticipate ——
Per. I, sir! Sir P. Nor reveal
A circumstance —— My paper is not with me.
Per. O, but you can remember, sir.
Sir P. My first is as Concerning tinder-boxes. You must know,
No family is here without its box.
Now, sir, it being so portable a thing,
Put case, that you or I were ill affected
Unto the state, sir; with it in our pockets,
Might not I go into the Arsenal,
Or you come out again, and none the wiser?
Per. Except yourself, sir.
Sir P. Go to, then. I therefore Advertise to the state, how fit it were
That none but such as were known patriots, Sound lovers of their country, should be suf-er'd
T' enjoy them in their houses; and even those Seal'd at some office, and at such a bigness
As might not lurk in pockets.

Per. Admirable!
Sir P. My next is, how 't inquiere, and be resolv'd

By present demonstration, whether a ship,
Newly arriv'd from Soria, or from Any suspected part of the Levant,
Be guilty of the plague: and where they use
To lie out forty, fifty days, sometimes,
About the Lazzaretto, for their trial;
I'll save that charge and loss unto the merchant,
And in an hour clear the doubt.

Per. Indeed, sir!
Sir P. Or —— I will lose my labour.
Per. My faith, that 's much.

Sir. P. Nay, sir, conceive me. It will cost me in onions,
Some thirty livres ——

Per. Which is one pound sterling.
Sir P. Beside my waterworks: for this I do, sir.
First, I bring in your ship 'twixt two brick walls;
But those the state shall venture. On the one
I strain me a fair tarpaning, and in that
I stick my onions, cut in halves; the other
Is full of loopholes, out of which I thrust
The noses of my bellows; and those bellows
I keep, with waterworks, in perpetual motion,
Which is the easiest matter of a hundred. Now, sir, your onion, which doth naturally Attract th' infection, and your bellows blowing
The sir upon him, will show instantly,
By his chang'd colour, if there be contagion;
Else remain as fair as at the first.
Now it is known, 't is nothing.
Per. You are right, sir.
Sir P. I would I had my note.
Per. Faith, so would I;
But you ha' done well for once, sir.
Sir P. Were I false, Or would be made so, I could show you reasons
How I could sell this state now to the Turk, Spite of their galleys, or their [Examining his papers.]

Per. Pray you, Sir Pol.
Sir P. I have 'em not about me.
Per. That I fear'd.
They are there, sir?
Sir P. No, this is my diary,
Wherein I note my actions of the day.
Per. Pray you let's see, sir. What is here? Notandum, [Reads.]
"A rat had gnawn my spur-leathers; notwithstanding,
I put on new, and did go forth; but first
I threw three beans over the threshold. Item,
I went and bought two toothpicks, whereof one
I burst immediately, in a discourse
With a Dutch merchant, 'bont ragion del stato.' From him I went and paid a moccino For piecing my silk stockings; by the way, I cheapen'd sprats; and at St. Mark's I urin'd."

'Faith these are politic notes!
Sir P. Sir, I do slip
No action of my life, but thus I quote it.
Per. Believe me, it is wise!
Sir P. Nay, sir, read forth.

SCENE II.

[Enter, at a distance.] Lady Politic Would-be, Nano, (and two Waiting)-women.

Lady P. Where should this loose knight be, trouw? Sure he's hou'n'd.
Nan. Why, then he's fast.
Lady P. Ay, he playeth both 1 with me.
I pray you stay. This heat will do more harm
To my complexion than his heart is worth.
(I do not care to hinder, but to take him.) 2
How it comes off!  [Rubbing her cheeks.]
1 Wom. My master's yonder.
Lady P. Where?
2 Wom. With a young gentleman.
Lady P. That same's the party:
In man's apparel! Pray you, sir, jog my knight:
I will be tender to his reputation,
However he demerit.
Sir P. [seeing her] My lady!
Per. Where? 19
Sir P. 'Tis she indeed, sir; you shall know her. She is,
Were she not mine, a lady of that merit,
For fashion and behaviour; and for beauty
I durst compare —
Per. It seems you are not jealous,
That dare command her.
Sir P. Nay, and for discourse — 19
Per. Being your wife, she cannot miss that.
Sir P. [introducing Per.] Madam,
Here is a gentleman, pray you, use him fairly;
He seems a youth, but he is —
Lady P. None.
Sir P. Has put his face as soon into the world —
Lady P. You mean, as early? But to-day?
Sir P. How's this? 20
Lady P. Why, in this habit, sir; you apprehend
me.
Well, Master Would-be, this doth not become
you;
I had thought the odour, sir, of your good name
Had been more precious to you; that you would not
Have done this dire massacre on your honour;
One of your gravity, and rank besides!
But knights, I see, care little for the oath
They make to ladies; chiefly their own ladies.
Sir P. Now, by my spurs, the symbol of my knighthood —
Per. [Aside.] Lord, how his brain is humbled for an oath! 20
Sir P. I reach 2 you not.
Lady P. Right, sir, your politeness
May bear it through thus. Sir, a word with you.
[To Per.]
I would be loth to contest publicly
With any gentlewoman, or to seem
Froward, or violent, as the courtier says; 21
It comes too near rusticity in a lady,
Which I would shun by all means: and however
I own deserve from Master Would-be, yet
T'have one fair gentlewoman thus be made
The unkind instrument to wrong another,
And one she knows not, ay, and to persevere;
In my poor judgment, is not warranted
From being a solace in our sex,
If not in manners.

Per. How is this!
Sir P. Sweet madam,
Come nearer to your aim.
Lady P. Marry, and will, sir. 24
Since you provoke me with your impudence,
And laughter of your light land-siren here,
Your Sponza, your hermaphrodite —
Per. What's there? 24
Foetic fury and historic storms!
Sir P. The gentleman, believe it, is of worth
And of our nation.
Lady P. Ay, your Whitefriars nation. 8
Come, I blash for you, Master Would-be, I;
And am ashamed you should ha' no more forehead
Than thus to be the patron, or St. George,
To a low harlot, a base fricatrice, 4
A female devil, in a male outside.
Sir P. Nay,
As you be such a one, I must bid adieu
To your delights. The case appears too liquid.
[Exit.] 26
Lady P. Ay, you may carry't clear, with you state-face!
But for your carnival conceits,
Who here is fled for liberty of conscience,
From furious persecution of the marshal,
Her will I discer. 8
Per. This is fine, i' faith! 8
And do you use this often? Is this part Of your wit's exercise, 'gainst you have occasion?
Madam —
Lady P. Go to, sir.
Per. Do you hear me, lady? 8
Why, if your knight have set you to beg shirts,
Or to invite me home, you might have done it
A nearer way by far.
Lady P. This cannot work you
Out of my snare.
Per. Why, am I in it, then?
Indeed your husband told me you were fair,
And so you are; only your nose inclines,
That side that's next the sun, to the queen-apple. 6
Lady P. This cannot be endur'd by any patience.

SCENE III.

[To them enter] MOSCA.
Mos. What is the matter, madam? 8
Lady P. If the senate
Right not my quest in this, I will protest 'em
To all the world no aristocracy.
Mos. What is the injury, lady? 8
Lady P. Why, the ballet 4
You told me of, here I have ta’en disguis'd. 8
Mos. Who? this! what means your lady-ship? 8
The creature
I mention'd to you is apprehended now,
Before the senate; you shall see her —
Lady P. Where?

1 Both "fast and loose," the name of a game.
2 Understand.
Mons. I'll bring you to her. This young gentleman, I saw him land this morning at the port. Lady P. Is't possible! how has my judgment wander'd? Sir, I must, blushing, say to you, I have err'd; And plead your pardon. Per. What, more changes yet! Lady P. I hope you ha' not the malice to remember A gentlewoman’s passion. If you stay 18 In Venice here, please you to use me, sir —— Mons. Will you go, madam? Lady P. Fray you, sir, use me; in faith, The more you see me the more I shall conceive You have forgot our quarrel. [Exeunt Lady Would-be, Mosca, Nano, and Waiting-women.]

Per. This is rare! Sir Politic Would-be? No, Sir Politic Bawd, To bring me thus acquainted with his wife! Well, wise Sir Pol, since you have practis’d thus Upon my freshman-ship, I'll try your salt-head, What proof it is against a counter-plot. [Exit.]

SCENE IV. [Enter] Voltore, Corbachio, Corvino, Mosca.

Volt. Well, now you know the carriage of the business, Your constancy is all that is requir’d Unto the safety of it. Mons. Is the lie Safely convey’d amongst us? Is that sure? Knows every man his burden? Corv. No. Mons. Then shrink not. Corv. But knows the advocate the truth? Mos. By no means; I devis’d a formal tale, That sav’d your reputation. But be valiant, sir. Corv. I fear no one but him that this his pleading Should make him stand for a co-heir —— Mons. Co-halter! Hang him; we will but use his tongue, his noise, As we do croaker’s ² here. Corv. Ay, what shall he do? Mons. When we ha’ done, you mean? Corv. Yes. Mos. Why, we’ll think; sell him for mummia: ² he’s half dust already. ——— Do you not smile, (to Voltore) to see this buffalo, ² How he doth sport it with his head? [Aside.] I should. If all were well and past. — Sir, (to Corbachio) only you ³ The Senate, or Senate House. ³ Arranged. ² Corbachio’s. ³ A medicine, supposed to be made of the oozing from mummmies. ² Horned animal; — the usual joke on cuckold. Are he that shall enjoy the crop of all, And these not know for whom they toil. Corb. Ay, peace. Mons. (turning to Corvino.) But you shall eat it. [Aside.] Much —— Worshipful sir, (to Voltore) Mercury sit upon your thund’ring tongue, Or the French Hercules, and make your language As conquering as his club, to beat along, As with a tempest, flat, our adversaries; But much more yours, sir. Volt. Here they come, ha’ done. Mons. I have another witness, if you need, sir, I can produce. Volt. Who is it? Mons. Sir, I have her.

SCENE V. [Enter] 4 Avocatori, [and take their seats.] Bonario, Curilla, Notario, Commandadori, Saffi, and other Officers of Justice.—

1. Avoc. The like of this the senate never heard of.
2. Avoc. 'Twill come most strange to them when we report it.
4. Avoc. The gentlewoman has been ever held Of unapproved name.
3. Avoc. So has the youth.
4. Avoc. The more unnatural part that of his father.
1. Avoc. I not know to give His act a name, it is so monstrous!
4. Avoc. But the impostor, he's a thing created.
T’ exceed example!
1. Avoc. And all after-times!
2. Avoc. I never heard a true voluptuary
Describ’d but him.
3. Avoc. Appeared yet those were cited?
Not. All but the old magnifico, Volpone.
1. Avoc. Why is not he here?
Mons. Please your fatherhoods, Here is his advocate: himself’s so weak, So feeble ——
4. Avoc. Who are you? Bon. His parasite, His knave, his pander. I beseech the court
He may be forc’d to come, that your grave eyes May bear strong witness of his strange impostures.
Volt. Upon my faith and credit with your virtues.
He is not able to endure the air.
3. Avoc. We will see him.
Volt. Your fatherhoods’ fit pleasures be obey’d; [Exeunt Officers.]
But sure, the sight will rather move your pities Than indignation. May it please the court, In the mean time, he may be heard in me. ² The same.
[Dialogue from a play]

Scene: The House of Jonson

[Character A speaks]

A: How strange the turn of events! Just as we thought our cause was secure, fate has dealt us a cruel blow. Our legal rights are, as you see, no guarantee of our safety.

[Character B speaks]

B: Indeed, my dear friend, your situation is dire. I can only imagine what it must feel like to have your life's work torn apart in such a sudden and unexpected manner.

[Character A speaks]

A: It is true, and yet I find myself struggling to understand how such a thing could happen. It seems as though the heavens have turned against us.

[Character B speaks]

B: It is indeed a tragic turn of events. May your path be illuminated with hope and justice. I will do what I can to assist you.

[Character A speaks]

A: Thank you, my dear friend. Your support means the world to me. I am overwhelmed by your kindness.

[Scene fades out]
Cor. This woman, please your fatherhoods, is a whore.
Of most hot exercise, more than a partridge,
Upon record —
1 Aec. No more.
Cor. Neighs like a jennet. *
Not. Preserve the honour of the court.
Cor. I shall,
And modesty of your most reverend ears.
And yet I hope that I may say, these eyes
Have seen her glu’ent unto that piece of cedar,
That fine well timber’d gallant: and that here
The letters may be read, thorough the horn,†
That make the story perfect.
Mos. Excellent sir.
Cor. [Aside to Mosca.] There is no shame in this now, is there? *
Mos. None.
Cor. Or if I said, I hop’d that she were onward
To her damnation, if there be a hell
Greater than whore and woman, a good Catholic
May make the doubt.
3 Aec. His grief hath made him frantic.
1 Aec. Remove him hence.
2 Aec. Look to the woman.
CELLA Swoons.
Rare! Prettily feign’d again!
4 Aec. Stand from about her.
1 Aec. Give her the air. (c.f.) [∗]
3 Aec. What can you say? [To Mosca.]
Mos. My wound, May it please your wisdoms, speaks for me, reseiv’d
In aid of my good patron, when he mist
His sought-for father, when that well-taught dame
Had her eye on’er her to cry out. “A rape!”
Bon. O most laid? Impedance! Fathers —
3 Aec. Sir, be silent; *
You had your hearing free, so must they theirs.
2 Aec. I do begin to doubt th’ imposture here.
4 Aec. This woman has too many moods.
Vol. Grave fathers, She is a creature of a most profest
And prostituted lewdness.
Cor. Most impetuous, *
Unsatisfied, grave fathers!
Vol. May her feignings
Not take your wisdoms: but this day she baited
A stranger, a grave knight, with her loose eyes,
And more insinuating kisses. This man saw ’em
Together on the water, in a gondola.
Mos. Here is the lady herself, that saw them too.
Without; who then had in the open streets
Pursu’d them, but for saving her knight’s honour.
1 Aec. Produce that lady.
2 Aec. Let her come. [Exit Mosca.]

4 Aec. They strike with wonder.
3 Aec. I am turn’d a stone.

SCENE VI. [To them re-enter] Mosca [with] Lady Would-Be.

Mos. Be resolute, madam.
Lady P. Ay, this same is she.
[Pointing to Celia.]
Out, thou chameleon harlot! now thine eyes
Vie tears with the hyena. Darst thou look Upon my wronged face? I cry thy pardons,
I fear I have forgettishly transgressed
Against the dignity of the court —
2 Aec. No, madam.
Lady P. And been exorbitant —
3 Aec. You have not, lady.
4 Aec. These proofs are strong.
Lady P. Surely, I had no-purpose
To scandalize your honours, or my sex’s.
3 Aec. We do believe it—
2 Aec. Madam, we do.
Lady P. Indeed you may; my breeding
Is not so coarse —
4 Aec. We know it.
Lady P. With pertinacy —
3 Aec. Lady —
Lady P. Such a presence!
No surely.
1 Aec. We will think it.
Lady P. You may think it.
1 Aec. Let her o’ercome. What witnesses have you,
To make good your report?
Bon. Our consciences.
Cel. And heaven, that never fails the innocent.
1 Aec. These are no testimonies.
Bon. Not in your courts, Where multitude and clamour overcomes.
1 Aec. Nay, then you do wax insolent.

VOLPONE is brought in, as impotent.

V. Here, here, ²
The testimony comes that will convince,
And put to utter dumness their bold tongues! *
See here, grave fathers, here’s the raviisher,
The rider on men’s wives, the great impostor,
The grand voluparty! Do you not think
These limbs should affect venery? or these eyes
Cove’t a concubine? Pray you mark these hands;
Are they not fit to stroke a lady’s breasts?
Perhaps he doth dissemble!
Bon. So he does.
Vol. Would you ha’ him tortur’d? ²
Bon. I would have him prov’d.
Vol. Best try him then with goads, or burning irons;
Put him to the strappado: I have heard

¹ The same.
The rack hath cur’d the gout; faith, give it him,
And help him of a malady; be courteous. =
I’ll undertake, before these honour’d fathers,
He shall have yet many left diseases,
As she has known adulterers, or thou strumpets.
O, my most equal hearers, if these deeds,
Acts of this bold and most exorbitant strain,
May pass with surlance, what one citizen
But owes the forfeit of his life, yes, fame,
To him that dares transude him? Which of you
Are safe, my honour’d fathers? I would ask,
With leave of your grave fatherhoods, if their plot
Have any face or colour like to truth? =
Or if, unto the dullest nostril here,
It smell not rank, and most abhorred slander?
I crave your care of this good gentleman,
Whose life is much endanger’d by their fable;
And as for them, I will conclude with this, =
That vicious persons, when they’re hot, and flesh’d
In impious acts, their constancy abounds:
Dams’deeds are done with greatest confidence.
1 Aovc. Take ’em to custody, and sever them.
2 Aovc. ’Tis pity two such prodigies should live.
1 Aovc. Let the old gentleman be return’d with care.
[Exeunt Officers with VOLPONE.]
I’m sorry our credulity wrong’d him.
4 Aovc. These are two creatures!
3 Aovc. I’ve an earthquake in me.
2 Aovc. Their shame, ev’n in their cradles, fled their faces.
4 Aovc. You have done a worthy service to the state, sir. =
In their discovery. [To VOLP.]
1 Aovc. You shall hear, ere night,
What punishment the court decrees upon ’em.
[Exeunt Aovc., Not., and Officers with BONARIO and CEILA.]
VOLP. We thank your fatherhoods. How like you it?
Mos. Rare.
I’d ha’ your tongue, sir, tip with gold for this;
I’d ha’ you be the heir to the whole city; =
The earth I’d have want men are you want living:
They’re bound to erect your statue in St. Mark’s.
Signior Corvino, I would have you go
And show yourself that you have conquer’d.
Corv. Yes.
Mos. It was much better that you should profess Yourself a cuckold thus, than that the other
Should have been prov’d.
Corv. Nay, I consider’d that:
Now it is her fault.
Mos. Then it had been yours.
Corv. True; I do doubt this advocate still.

Mos. I’ faith.
You need not, I dare ease you of that care. =
Corv. I trust thee, Mosca. [Exit.]
Mos. As your own soul, sir.
Corv. Mosca!
Mos. Now for your business, sir.
Corv. How! ha’ you business?
Mos. Yes, yours, sir;
Corv. O, none else?
Mos. None else, not I.
Corv. Be careful then.
Mos. Rest you with both your eyes, sir.
Corv. Dispatch it.
Mos. Instantly.
Corv. And look that all, =
Whatever be put in, jewels, plate, monies,
Household stuff, bedding, curtains.
Mos. Curtain-rings, sir:
Only the advocate’s fee must be deducted.
Corv. I’ll pay him now; you’ll be too prodigal.
Mos. Sir, I must tender it.
Corv. Two chequins is well. =
Mos. No, sir, sir.
Corv. ’Tis too much.
Mos. He talk’d a great while;
You must consider that, sir.
Corv. Well, there’s three—
Mos. I’ll give it him.
Corv. Do so, and there’s for thee. [Exit.]
Mos. [Aside.] Bountiful bones! What horrid strange offence
Did he commit, gainst nature, in his youth; =
Worthy this age? — You see, sir, [to VOLP] how I work
Unto your ends; take you no notice.
VOLP. No,
I’ll leave you.
Mos. All is yours, the devil and all,
Good advocate! — Madam, I’ll bring you home.
LADY P. No, I’ll go see your patron.
Mos. That you shall not: =
I’ll tell you why. My purpose is to urge My patron to reform his will, and for
The seal you’ve shown to-day, whereas before
You were but third or fourth, you shall be now
Put in the first; which would appear as begg’d
If you were present. Therefore——
LADY P. You shall away me. [Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I.
[Enter] VOLPONE.
VOLP. Well, I am here, and all this bustle is past.
I no’er was in dislike with my disguise
Till this fled moment: here’t was good, in private;
But in your public, — care whilst I breathe. =
‘Fore God, my left leg ‘gan to have the cramp.

* A room in Volpone’s house.
And I apprehended straight some power had struck me
With a dead palsy. Well! I must be merry,
And shake it off. A many of these fears
Would put me into some villainous disease,
Should they come thick upon me: 't'll prevent
'em.

Give me a bowl of lusty wine, to fright
This humour from my heart. (Drinks.) Hum, hum, hum!
'T is almost gone already; I shall conquer.
Any device now of rare ingenious knavery,
That would possess me with a violent laughter,
Would make me up again. (Drinks again.) So,
so, so, so!
This heat is life; 't is blood by this time: —
Mosca!

SCENE II.

Volpone. [Enter Mosca.]

Mos. How now, sir? Does the sun look clear
again?
Are we recover'd, and wrought out of error,
Into our way, to see our path before us?
Is our trade free once more?
Volp. [Exquisite Mosca!]
Mos. Was it not carried learnedly?
Volp. And stoutly.

Good wits are greatest in extremities.
Mos. It were folly beyond thought to trust
Any grand act unto a cowardly spirit.
You are not taken with it enough, methinks.
Volp. O, more than if I had enjoy'd the wrench:
The pleasure of all woman-kind's not like it.

Mos. Why, now you speak, sir. We must here be fix'd;
Here we must rest; this is our masterpiece;
We cannot think to go beyond this.
Volp. True.

Thou hast play'd thy prize, my precious Mosca.
Mos. Nay, sir,

To gulp the count —
Volp. — And quite divert the torrent
Upon the innocent.

Mos. Yes, and to make
So rare a music out of discords — Volp. Right.

That yet to me's the strangest, how thou'st borne it!
That these, being so divided 'mongst themselves,

Should not scent somewhat, or in me or thee,
Or doubt their own side.
Mos. True, they will not see it.
Too much light blinds 'em, I think. Each of
'em
Is so possess'd and stuf't with his own hopes
That anything unto the contrary,
Never so true, or never so apparent,
Never so palpable, they will resist it —
Volp. Like a temptation of the devil.
Mos. Right, sir.

Merchants may talk of trade, and your great signiors

Of land that yields well; but if Italy
Have any glebe more fruitful than these fellows,
I am deceiv'd. Did not your advocate rare?
Volp. O — "My most honour'd fathers, my grave fathers,
Under correction of your fatherhoods,
What face of truth is here? If these strange deeds
May pass, most honour'd fathers" — I had much ado
To forbear laughing.
Mos. It seem'd to me, you sweet, sir.
Volp. In troth, I did a little.
Mos. But confess, sir,
Were you not daunted?

Volp. In good faith, I was
A little in a mist, but not dejected;
Never but still myself.

Mos. I think it, sir.
Now, so truth help me, I must needs say this, sir,
And out of conscience for your advocate,
He has taken pains, in faith, sir, and deserv'd,
In my poor judgment, I speak it under favour,
Not to contrary you, sir, very richly —
Well — to be cozen'd.
Volp. Troth, and I think so too,
By that I heard him in the latter end.
Mos. O, but before, sir: had you heard him first
Draw it to certain heads, then aggravate,
Then use his vehement figures — I look'd still
When he would shift a shirt; and doing this
Out of para love, no hope of gain —
Volp. 'Tis right.

I cannot answer him, Mosca, as I would,
Not yet; but for thy sake, at thy entreaty,
I will begin, even now — to vex 'em all,
This very instant.
Mos. Good sir.
Volp. Call the dwarf
And enuncieth forth.

Mos. Castrone, Nano!

[Enter Castrone and Nano.]

Nano. Here.
Volp. Shall we have a jig now?
Mos. What you please, sir.
Volp. Go,

Straight give out about the streets, you two,
That I am dead; do it with constancy,
Saidly, that you hear? Impute it to the grief
Of this late slander.

[Exeunt Cast and Nano.]

Volp. What do you mean, sir?

Mos. I shall have instantly my Vulture, Crow,
Raven, come flying hither, on the news,
To peck for carrion, my she-wolf, and all,
Greedy, and full of expectation — Volp. And then to have it ravish'd from their months!

Volp. 'T is true. I will ha' thee put on a gown,
And take upon thee, as thou wert mine-heir;
Show 'em a will. Open that chest, and reach Forth one of those that has the blanks; I'll straight
Put in thy name.

Mos. It will be rare, sir.

[Volp. [Gives him a paper.]

Ay.

Vold. When they s'en gape, and find themselves deluded —

Mos. Yes. [patch, Volp. And thou use them scurrily! Dis-
Get on thy gown.

Mos. [putting on a gown.] But what, sir, if they ask
After the body?

Vold. Say, it was corrupted.

Mos. I'll say it stank, sir; and was fain to have it.

Coffin'd up instantly, and sent away.

Vold. Anything; what thou wilt. Hold, here's my will.

Get thee a cap, a count-book, pen and ink,
Papers afore thee; sit as thou wert taking
An inventory of parcels. I'll get up
Behind the curtain, on a stool, and hearken:
Sometime peep over, see how they do look,
With what degrees their blood doth leave their faces.

O, 't will afford me a rare meal of laughter!

Mos. [putting on a cap, and setting out the table, &c.] Your advocate will turn stark dull upon it.

Vold. It will take off his oratory's edge.

Mos. But your clarissimo, old roundback, he Will crump you like a hog-house, with the torch.

Vold. And what Corvino?

Mos. O, sir, look for him,
Tmorrow morning, with a rope and dagger,
To visit all the streets; he must run mad,
My lady too, that came into the court,
To bear false witness for your worship —

Vold. Yes,
And kiss'd me 'fore the fathers, when my face
Flow'd all with oils —

Mos. And sweat, sir, Why, your gold
Is such another med'cine, it dries up
All those offensive savours: it transforms
The most deformed, and restores them lovely,
As 't were the strange poetical girdle.

Jove
Could not invent 't himself a shroud more subtle
To pass Acraius' guards. It is the thing Makes all the world her grace, her youth, her beauty.

Vold. I think she loves me.

Mos. Who? The lady, sir?

She's jealous of you.

Vold. Dost thou say so?

[Mos. Knocking within.]

Hark.

Vold. There's some already.

Mos. Look. It is the Vulture;
He has the quickest scent.

Vold. I'll to my place,
Thou to thy posture. [Goes behind the curtain.]

1 Cestus. (Jonson.)

2 The father of Damiel.

Mos. I am set.

Vold. But, Mosca, 15

Play the artificer now, torture 'em rarely.

SCENE III.

Mosca. [Enter] Voltoire.

Vold. How now, my Mosca?

Mos. [writing]. "Turkey carpets, nine —"

Vold. Taking an inventory! that is well.

Mos. "Two suits of bedding, tissue —"

Vold. Where's the will?

Let me read that while.

[Enter Servants with Corbaccio in a chair.]

Corb. And get you home. [Exit Servants.]

Vold. Is he come now, to trouble us?

Mos. "Of cloth of gold, two more —"

Corb. Is it done, Mosca?

Mos. "Of several velvets, eight —"

Vold. I like his care.

Corb. Dost thou not hear?

[Enter Corvino.]

Corb. Ha! is the hour come, Mosca?

Vold. Ay, now they must.

Corb. Peeps from behind a traverse.

Corb. What does the advocate here, 15
Or this Corbaccio?

Corb. What do these here?

[Enter Lady Pol. Would-be.]

Lady P. Mosca!

Is his thread spun?

Mos. "Eight chests of linen —"

Vold. O,
My fine Dame Would-be, too!

Corb. Mosca, the will,
That I may show it these, and rid 'em hence.

Mos. "Six chests of diaper, four of dam-

'sak," — There.

[Gives them the will carelessly, over his shoulder.]

Corb. Is that the will?

Mos. "Down-beds, and bolsters —"

Vold. Rare! Be busy still. Now they begin to flatter:
They never think of me. Look, see, see, see! How
Their swift eyes run over the long deed,
Unto the name, and to the legacies,
What is bequeath'd them there —

Mos. "Ten suits of hangings —"

Vold. Ay, in their garters, Mosca. Now their hopes
Are at the gasp.

Vold. Mosca the heir.

Corb. What's that?

Vold. My advocate is dumb; look to my merchant,
He's heard of some strange storm, a ship is lost,
He faints; my lady will swoon. Old glaz'd-eyes,
He hath not reach'd his despair yet.

1 The name.
VOLPONE; OR, THE FOX

1. I am aavar'd, cheated, by a parasite. 2. Harlot; 4. slave; 5. Yes, sir. Stop your mouth, 6. Or I shall draw the only tooth is left. 7. Are not you he, that filthy covetous wretch, 8. With the three legs, that here, in hope of pray, 9. Have, any time this three years, snuff'd about, 10. With your most croylie nose, and would have 11. Me to the pois'n'ing of my patrons, sir? 12. Are not you he that have to-day in court 13. Perjur'd yourself? Go home, and die, and 14. stink; 15. If you but croak a syllable, all comes out: 16. Away, and call your porters! [Exit CORBACCO.] 17. Go, go, stink. 18. Volp. Excellent varlet! 19. Volt. 20. Now, my faithful Moses, 21. I find thy constancy — Sir! 22. Volt. 23. Sincere. 24. "A table of porphry" — I mar, 25. you'll be thus troublesome. 26. Volt. Nay, leave as now, they are gone. 27. Mos. 28. Why, who are you? 29. What! who did send for you? O, cry you mercy, 30. Reverend sir! Good faith, I am grieved for you; 31. That any chance of mine should thus defeat 32. Your (I must needs say) most deserving travails: 33. But I protest, sir, it was cast upon me, 34. And I could almost wish to be without it, 35. But that the will of the dead must be observ'd. 36. Marry, my joy is that you need it not; 37. You have a gift, sir (thank your education), 38. Will neglet you want, while there are men, 39. And malice, to breed canes. 40. Would I had 41. But half the like, for all my fortune, sir! 42. If I have any suits, as I do hope, 43. Things being so easy and direct, I shall not. 44. I will make bold with your obstreperous aid, 45. Conceive me — for your fee, sir. In mean time, 46. You that have so much law, I know ha' the 47. conscience 48. Not to be covetous of what is mine. 49. Good sir, I thank you for my plate; 't will help 50. To set up a young man. Good faith, you look 51. As you were covetous; best go home and purge, 52. sir. [Exit VOLTORE.] 53. Volp. [comes from behind the curtain.] Bid him 54. eat lettuce 8. well. My witty mischief, 55. Let me embrace thee. O that I could now 56. Transform thee to a Venus! — Moses, go, 57. Straight take my habit of clarissimo, 58. And walk the streets 8. he saipp, torment 'em more: 59. We must pursne, as well as plot. Who would 60. Have lost this feast? 61. Mos. 62. I doubt it will lose them. 63. 1. Fellow: formerly used of both sexes. 64. 2. Marvel. 65. 3. Law-suits. 66. 4. To make him sleep.
And studied them for words, as he has done — But — here he design to come. [Exit Woman.]

[Sir Politic.]
Sir P.
Sir, I must crave
Your courteous pardon. There hath chanced to-day
Unkind disaster 'twixt my lady and me;
And I was paining my apology,
To give her satisfaction, as you came now.

Per. Sir, I am griev'd I bring you worse disaster:
The gentleman you met at th' port to-day,
That told you he was newly arrived —
Sir P.
Ay, was A fugitive punk?
Per.
No, sir, a spy set on you:
And he has made relation to the senate,
That you protest to him to have a plot
To sell the states of Venice to the Turk.

[Sir O. Meets Per's time,
Per.
For which warrants are sign'd by this
To apprehend you, and to search your study
For papers —
Sir P.
Alas, sir, I have none, but notes
Drawn out of play-books —
Per.
All the better, sir.

Sir P.
And some essays. What shall I do?
Per.
Sirs, best
Convey yourself into a sugar-cabinet;
Or, if you could lie round, a frail 2 were rare;
And I could send you aboard:

[Sir P.
Sir, I but talk'd so.
For discourse sake merely. [They knock without.]
Per.
Hark! they are there.

Sir P.
I am a wretch, a wretch!

Per.
What will you do, sir?
Have you ne'er a currant-butt to leap into?
They'll put you to the rack; you must be sudden.

[Sir P.
Sir, I have an engine —
3 Mer. within.]
Sir Politic Would-be!
2 Mer. within. Where is he?

Sir P.
That I've thought upon before time.
Per.
What is it?

Sir P.
I shall ne'er endure the torture.
Marry, it is, sir, of a tortoise-shell,
Fitted for these extremities: pray you, sir, help me.

Here I've a place, sir, to put back my legs,
Please you to lay it on, sir, [Lies down while Per. places the shell upon him.] — with this cap,
And my black gloves. I'll lie, sir, like a tortoise,
Till they are gone.

Per.
And call you this an engine?
Sir P.
Mine own device. — Good sir, bid my wife's women
To burn my papers. [Exit Per.]

The three Merchants rush in.

1 Mer.
Where is he hid?

3 Mer.
We must,
And will sure find him.

2 Mer.
Which is his study?
1 Rush-basket.
2 Contrivance.
[Re-enter Perdigrine.]

1 Mer. What are you, sir?

Per. I'm a merchant, that came here to look upon this tortoise?

3 Mer. How!

1 Mer. St. Mark!

What beast is this?

2 Mer. It is a fish.

Per. There, you may strike him, sir, and tread upon him.

He'll bear a cart.

3 Mer. What, to run over him?

Per. Yes, sir.

2 Mer. Let's jump upon him.

Can he not go?

Per. He creeps, sir.

1 Mer. Let's see him creep.

Per. No, good sir, you will hurt him.

2 Mer. Heart, I will see him creep, or prick his guts.

3 Mer. Come out here!

Per. Pray you, sir, creep a little.

1 Mer. Forth.

2 Mer. Yet further.

Per. Good sir! -- Creep.

2 Mer. They pull off the shell and discover him.

3 Mer. God's, so he has garters!

2 Mer. Is this your fearful tortoise?

Per. [discovering himself.] Now, Sir Pol, we're even.

For your next project I shall be prepar'd: I am sorry for the funeral of your notes, sir.

1 Mer. 'Twere a rare motion to be seen in Fleet-street.

2 Mer. Ay, in the Term.

1 Mer. Or Smithfield, in the fair.

3 Mer. Methinks 'tis but a melancholy sight.

Per. Farewell, most politic tortoise!

[Execut. Pzn. and Merchants.]

[Re-enter Waiting-woman.]

Sir P. Where's my lady?

Wom. I know not, sir.

Sir P. Esquire.

O, I shall be the fable of all feasts,
The freight of the gazetti, ship-boys' tale;

And, which is worst, even talk for ordinaries.

Wom. My lady's come most melancholy home,

And says, sir, she will straight to sea, for physic.

Sir P. And I, to shun this place and clime for ever,

Creeping with house on back, and think it well

To shrink my poor head in my politic shell.

[Execut.]

SCENE V.

[Enter Mosca in the habit of a clarissimo, and Volpone in that of a commandatore.

Volp. Am I then like him?

Mos. O, sir, you are he;

No man can sever you.

Volp. Good.

Mos. But what am I?

Volp. 'Fore heaven, a brave clarissimo; thou becom'st it!

Pity thou wert not born one.

Mos. [Aside.] If I hold my made one, 'twill be well.

Volp. I'll go and see.

What news first at the court.

[Exit.]

Mos. Do so. My Fox is out of his hole, and ere he shall re-enter, I'll make him languish in his borrow'd case, except he come to composition with me. -- Androgyno, Castrone, Nano!

[Enter Androgyno, Castrone, and NANO.]

All. Here.

Mos. Go, recreate yourselves abroad; go sport.

[Exit.]

So, now I have the keys, and am possesst.

Since he will needs be dead afore his time, I'll bury him, or gain by 'm: I'm his heir, and so will keep me, till he share at least.

'To cozen him of all, were but a cheat.

Well plac'd; no man would construe it a sin:

Let his sport pay for 't. This is call'd the Fox-trap.

[Exit.]

SCENE VI.

[Enter Corbachio, Corvinio.

Corb. They say the court is set.

Corv. We must maintain our first tale good, for both our reputations.

Corb. Why, mine's no tale: my sea would there have kill'd ma.

Corv. That's true, I had forgot: mine is, I'm sure.

But for your will, sir.

Corb. Ay, I'll come upon him.

For that hereafter, now his patron's dead.

[Enter Volpone.]

Volp. Signior Corvino! and Corbachio! sir, much joy unto you.

Corv. Of what?

Volp. The sudden good

Dropt down upon you.

[Enter.]

Dropt down upon you.

Corv. Where?

Volp. And some knows how.

From old Volpone, sir.

Corv. Out, arrant knave!

Volp. Let not your too much wealth, sir, make you furious.

Corv. Away, thou varlet.

Volp. Why, sir?

Corv. Dost thou mock me?

1 A room in Volpone's house.

4 Disguise.

6 A street.
Volp. You mock the world, sir; did you not change wills?
Corb. Out, harlot!
Volp. O belike you are the man, Signior Corvino? Faith, you carry it well; 18 You grow not mad withal; I love your spirit: You are not over-lean'd with your fortune. You should ha' some would swallow now, like a wine-fat,
With such an autumn. — Did he gi' you all, sir?
Corb. Avoid, you rascal!
Volp. Troth, your wife has shown 10 Herself a very woman; but you are well, You need not care, you have a good estate, To bear it out, sir, better by this chance: Except Corbaccio have a share.
Corb. Hence, varlet.
Volp. You will not be acknowledged, sir; why, 'tis wise.
Thus do all gamsters, at all games, dissemble:
No man will seem to win. [Exeunt CORVINO and CORBACCIO.] Here comes my vulture,
Heaving his beak up 1 the air, and muffing.

SCENE VII. 1

VOLPONE. [Enter] VOLTORNE.

Volt. Outstrip thou, by a parasite! a slave, Would run on errands, and make legs for crumbs!
Volp. Well, what I'll do —
Volp. The court stays for your worship.
I e'en rejoice, sir, at your worship's happiness,
And that it fell into so learned hands,
That understand the spring —
What do you mean?
Volp. I mean to be a suitor to your worship,
For the small tenement, out of reparations, 2
That, at the end of your long row of houses,
By the Piscaria: it was, in Volpone's time, 10 Your predecessor, ere he grew diseas'd,
A handsome, pretty, custom'd 3 bawdy-house
As any was in Venice, none dispaiss'd;
But fell with him: his body and that house
Decay'd together.
Volp. Come, sir, leave your prating.
Volp. Why, if your worship give me but your hand
That I may ha' the refusal, I have done.
'Tis a mere toy to you, sir; candle-rents;
As your learned worship knows —
Volp. What do I know?
Volp. Marry, no end of your wealth, sir; God decrease it!
Volp. Mistaking knave! what, mock'st thou my misfortune? [Exit.]
Volp. His blessing on your heart, sir; would 't were more! —
Now to my first again, at the next corner. [Exit.]

SCENE VIII. 4

[Enter] CORBACCIO and CORVINO; — (MOSCA passant.)

Corb. See, in our habit! 6 see the impudent wench! — Corv. That I could shoot mine eyes at him, like gun-stones!

[Enter VOLPONE.]

Volp. But is this true, sir, of the parasite? Corb. Again, t' afflic't us! monster!
Volp. In good faith, sir, I'm heartily griev'd, a beard of your grave length
Should be so over-reach'd. I never brook'd
That parasite's hair; methought his nose should cozen: 8
There still was somewhat in his look, did promise
The bane of a clarissimo.
Corb. 9
Volp. Methinks yet you, that are so traded i' the world, 10
A witty merchant, the fine bird, Corvino,
That have such moral solemnities on your name,
Should not have sung your shame; and dropt your cheese.
To let the Fox laugh at your emptiness.
Corb. Sirrah, you think the privilege of the place,
And your red saucy cap, that seems to me
Nail'd to your jolt-head with those two chequins,
Can warrant your abuses; come you hither:
You shall perceive, sir, I dare beat you; approach.
Volp. No haste, sir, I do know your valour well.
Since you durst publish what you are, sir.
Corb. Tarry,
I'd speak with you.
Volp. Sir, sir, another time —
Corb. Nay, now.
Volp. O lord, sir! I were a wise man,
Would stand the fury of a distracted cuckold.
MOSCA walks by them.
Corb. What, come again!
Volp. Upon 'em, MOSCA; save me. 12
Corb. The air's infected where he breathes.
Corb. Let 's fly him.
[Exeunt CORV. and CORN.]
Volp. Excellent basilisk! turn upon the culture.

SCENE IX. 7

MOSCA, VOLPONE. [Enter] VOLTORNE.

Volt. Well, flesh-fly, it is summer with you now;
Your winter will come on.
Mos. Good advocate,
Prithsee no rail, nor threaten out of place thus;
Thou 'lt make a solecism, as madam says.

1 The same.  6 Well-frequented.
2 Out of repair.
4 The Scriverino, or Senate House.
5 Dressed like a clarissimo, or gentleman.
6 Swindle.
7 The same.
Get you a biggin more; your brain breaks loose.

Volv. Well sir. [Exit.]

Volv. Would you ha' me beat the insolent Throw dirt upon his first good clothes?

Volv. This same Is doubtless some familiar.

Volv. Sir, the court,

Volv. In truth, stays for you. I am mad, a mule That never read Justinian, should get up,

And ride an advocate. Had you no quirk To avoid gallage, sir, by such a creature?

I hope you do but jest; he has not done't:

This's but confederacy to blind the rest.

Are you the heir?

Volv. A strange, officious,

Troublesome knave! thou dost torment me.

Volv. I know——

It cannot be, sir, that you should be ooz'n'd;

'T is not within the use of man to do it;

You are so wise, so prudent; and 'tis fit

That wealth and wisdom should go togethers. [Exit.]

SCENE X.

[Enter] 4 Avocato, Notario, Bonario, Colla, Coccacio, Corvino, Commandadori, [Saffi, etc.]

1 Avoc. Are all the parties here?

Not. All but th' advocate.

2 Avoc. And here he comes.

[Enter Voltore and Volpone.]

1 Avoc. Then bring them forth to sentence.

Volv. O, my honour'd fathers, let your mercy

Once win upon your justice, to forgive — I am distracted——

Volv. (Aside.) What will be done now?

Volv. O,

I know not which 't address myself to first;

Whether your fatherhoods, or these innocents——

Corv. (Aside.) Will he betray himself?

Volv. Whom equally I have abused, out of most covetous ends——

Corv. The man is mad!

Corv. What's that?

Corv. He is possesst.

Volv. For which, now struck in conscience, here I prostrate Myself at your offended feet, for pardon.

1, 2 Avoc. Arise.

Cel. O heaven, how just thou art!

Volv. I'm caught

I'm mine and mine ——

Corv. [to Coccacio.] Be constant, sir; nought now

Can help but impudence.

1 Avoc. Speak forward.

Com. Silence!

Volv. It is not passion in me, reverend fathers,

But only conscience, conscience, my good sires,

That makes me now tell truth. That parasite, That knave, hath been the instrument of all.

1 Avoc. Where is that knave? Fetch him.

Volv. I go. [Exit.]

Corv. Grave fathers.

This man's distracted: he confest it now:

For, hoping to be old Volpone's heir,

Who now is dead——

2 Avoc. How?

2 Avoc. Is Volpone dead?

Corv. Dead since, grave fathers.

Bon. O sure vengeance!

1 Avoc. Stay,

Then he was no deceiver?

Volv. No, none:

This parasite, grave fathers.

Corv. He does speak

Out of mere envy, 'cause the servant's made

The thing he gat'd for. Please your fatherhoods——

This is the truth, though I'll not justify

The other, but he may be some-deal faulty.

Volv. Ay, to your hopes, as well as mine, Corvino: But I'll use modesty; Pleseth your wisdoms,

To view these certain notes, and but confer

And as I hope favour, they shall speak clear truth.

Corv. The devil has ent'red him!

Bon. Or bides in you.

4 Avoc. We have done ill, by a public officer

To send for him, if he be heir.

2 Avoc. For whom?

4 Avoc. Him that they call the parasite.

3 Avoc. 'T is true,

He is a man of great estate, now left.

4 Avoc. Go you, and learn his name, and say

Entreats his presence here, but to the clearing

Of some few doubts. [Exit Notary.]

2 Avoc. This same's a labyrinth!

1 Avoc. Stand you unto your first report?

Corv. My state,

My life, my name ——

Bon. Where is't?

Corv. Are at the stake.

1 Avoc. Is yours so too?

Corv. The advocate's a knave,

And has a forked tongue ——

2 Avoc. Speak to the point.

Corv. So is the parasite too.

1 Avoc. This is confusion.

Volv. I do beseech you your fatherhoods, read but those —— [Giving them papers.]

Corv. And credit nothing the false spirit hath writ:

It cannot be but he's possesst, grave fathers.

[The scene closes.]

SCENE XI.

[Enter] Volpone.

Volpone. To make a snare for mine own neck! and run

My head into it, wilfully! with laughter!
When I had newly scap'd, was free and clear,
Out of mere wantonness! O, the dull devil
Was in this brain of mine when I devis'd it;
And Mosca gave it second; he must now
Help to bear up this vein, or we bleed dead.

[Enter NANO, ANDROGNOY, and CASTRONE.]

How now! Who let you loose? Whither go you now?
What, to buy gingerbread, or to drown kitlings?

Nun. Sir, Master Mosca call’d us out of doors,
And bid us all go play, and took the keys.
    [Why, so!]

Volp. Did Master Mosca take the keys?
I’m farther in. These are my fine conceits!
I must be merry, with a mischief to me!
What a vile wretch was I, that could not bear
My fortune soberly? I must ha’ my crochets,
And my conundrums! Well, go you, and seek him:
    [Exeunt.]

His meaning may be truer than my fear.
Bid him, he straight come to me to the court;
Thither will I, and, if’t be possible,
Unscrew my advocate, upon new hopes:
When I provok’d him, then I lost myself.

SCENE XII.

AVOCATIORS, [BONARIO, CELEA, CORBACCIO, CON-
VINO, Commandadori, Saff] etc., [as before.]

1 Acoc. These things can ne’er be reconcil’d.
He here [showing the papers]
Professeth that the gentleman was wrong’d,
And that the gentlewoman was brought thither,
Ford’ by her husband, and there left.
Volp. Most true.
Cel. How ready is heaven to those that pray!

1 Acoc. But that
Volpone would have ravish’d her, he holds Utterly false, knowing his impotence.

Corv. Grave fathers, he’s possess’d; again, I say,
Possess: nay, if there be possession, and Obsession, he has both.

3 Acoc. Here comes our officer.

[Enter VOLPONE.]

Volp. The parasite will straight be here, grave fathers.

4 Acoc. You might invent some other name, sir varlet.

3 Acoc. Did not the notary meet him?
Volp. Not that I know.

4 Acoc. His coming will clear all.
2 Acoc. Yet it is misty.

Volp. May’t please your fatherhoods ——— Volp. (whispers Volp.) Sir, the parasite is Will’d me to tell you that his master lives;
That you are still the man; your hopes the
same;

And this was only a jest ———
Volp. Sir, to try

If you were firm, and how you stood affected.

Volp. Art sure he lives?

Volp. Do I live, sir?

Volp. O me!

I was too violent.

Volp. Sir, you may redeem it.

They said you were possess’d; fall down, and seem so:

I’ll help to make it good.  [VOLTORE falls.]

God bless the man! ———

Stop your wind hard, and swell — See, see,
see, see!

He vomits crooked pins! His eyes are set.
Like a dead hare’s hung in a poulter’s shop!
His mouth’s running away! Do you see, signor?
Now it is in his belly.

Corv. Ay, the devil!

Volp. Now in his throat.

Corv. Ay. I perceive it plain.

Volp. ’Twill out, ’twill out! stand clear.

See where it flies.

In shape of a blue toad, with a bat’s wings!
Do you not see it, sir?

Corv. ’Tis too manifest.

Volp. Look! he comes’ himself!

Volp. Where am I?

Volp. Take good heart, the worst is past, sir.
You’re dispossess’d.

1 Acoc. What accident is this!
2 Acoc. Sudden and full of wonder!
3 Acoc. If he were
Possest, as it appears, all this is nothing.

Corv. He has been often subject to these fits.
1 Acoc. Show him that writing:—do you know it, sir?

Volp. (whispers Volp.) Deny it, sir, foreswear it; know it not.

Volp. Yes, I do know it well, it is my hand;
But all that it contains is false.

Bon. O practice!
2 Acoc. What maze is this!

1 Acoc. Is he not guilty then,
Whom you there name the parasite?

Volp. Grave fathers,
No more than his good patron, old Volpone.

4 Acoc. Why, he is dead.

Volp. O no, my honour’d fathers,
He lives——

1 Acoc. How! Lives?

2 Acoc. This is subtler yet!

3 Acoc. Ye said he was dead.

Volp. Never.

3 Acoc. You said so.

Corv. I heard so.

4 Acoc. Here comes the gentleman; make him way.

[Enter MOSCA.]

3 Acoc. A stool.

4 Acoc. [Aside.] A proper man; and were Volpone dead,

A fit match for my daughter.
I'll hinder sure: my substance shall not glue you,
Nor screw you into a family.
Mso. Why, patron!
Volp. I am Volpone, and this is my knave;
[Pointing to Mosca.]
This [to Volt.], his own knave; this [to Corb.], avarice's fool;
This [to Corb.], a chimera of Wittol, fool, and knave:
And, reverend fathers, since we all can hope
Nought but a sentence, let's not now despair it.
You hear me brief.
Corb. May it please your fatherhoods—
Com. Silence.
1 Aoc. The knot is now undone by miracle.
2 Aoc. Nothing can be more clear.
3 Aoc. Or can more prove
These innocent.
1 Aoc. Give 'em their liberty.
Bon. Heaven could not long let such gross Crimes be hid.
2 Aoc. If this be held the highway to get Riches,
May I be poor!
3 Aoc. This is the gain, but torment.
1 Aoc. These possess wealth, as sick men possess fevers,
Which truller may be said to possess them.
2 Aoc. Disrobe that parasite.
Corb. Mos. Most honour'd fathers—
1 Aoc. Can you plead aught to stay the Course of justice?
If you can, speak.
Corv. Volt. We beg favour.
Cel. And mercy.
1 Aoc. You hurt your innocence, suing for the Guilt.
Stand forth; and first the parasite. You appear
To have been the shiestest minister, if not plotter.
In all these lewd impostures, and now, lastly,
Have with your impudence abused 1 the court,
And habit of a gentleman of Venice, 10
Being a fellow of no birth or blood:
For which our sentence is, first, thou be whipt;
Then live perpetual prisoner in our galleys. 116
Volp. I thank you for him.
Mos. Bane to thy wolfish nature!
1 Aoc. Deliver him to the saifi. 3 [Mosca is carried out.] Thou, Volpone,
By blood and rank a gentleman, canst not fall
Under like censure; but our judgment on thee
Is, that thy substance all be straight confiscate
To the hospital of the Incurables: 120
And since the most was gotten by imposture,
By feigning lame, gout, palsy, and such dis-
eses,
Thou art to lie in prison, cramp'd with irons,
Till thou be at sick and lame indeed. Remove [He is taken from the Bar.]
Volp. This is called mortifying of a Fox. 125
1 Aoc. Thou, Voltore, to take away the Scandal
Thou hast giv'n all worthy men of thy profession.
1 Desolated.
2 Under-bailiff.
Art banish'd from their fellowship, and our state.
Corbalario!—bring him near. We here possess
Thy son of all thy state, and confine thee
To the monastery of San Spirito.
Where, since thou knew'st not how to live well
Thou shalt be learn'd to die well.
Corb. Ha! what said he?
Com. You shall know anon, sir.
1 Avoe. Thou, Corvino, shalt
Be straight embark'd from thine own house,
Round about Venice, through the Grand Canal,
Wearing a cap, with fair long sea's ears,
Instead of horns! and go to mount a paper
Finn'd on thy breast, to the Berlina.
Corb. Yes.
And have mine eyes beat out with stinking fish, Bruis'd fruit, and rotten eggs—'tis well. I'm glad
I shall not see my shame yet.
1 Avoe. And to expiate
Thy wrongs done to thy wife, thou art to send her

Home to her father, with her dowry trebled:
And these are all your judgments.
All.
1 Avoe. Which may not be revok'd. Now you begin,
When crimes are done and past, and to be punish'd,
To think what your crimes are. Away with them!
Let all that see these vices thus rewarded,
Take heart, and love to study 'em. Mischief's feed
Like beasts, till they be fat, and then they bleed.

Volpone [comes forward].
"The seasoning of a play is the applause.
Now, though the Fox be punish'd by the laws,
He yet doth hope, there is no suff'ring due.
For any fact which he hath done 'gainst you: If there be, censure him; here he doubtful stands:
If not, fare jovially, and clap your hands."

[TO THE READER.]1

If thou best more, thou art an understander, and then I trust thee. If thou art one that tak'st up, and but a pretender, beware at what hands thou receiv'st thy commodity; for thou wert never more fair in the way to be cosned than in this age in poetry, especially in plays: wherein now the concurrence of jigs and dances 2 so reigneth, as to run away from nature and be afraid of her is the only point of art that tickles the spectators. But how out of purpose and place do I name art, when the professors are grown so obstinate conterminers of it, and presumpers on their own naturals, 3 as they are deriders of all diligence that way, and, by simple mocking at the terms when they understand not the things, think to get off wittily with their ignorance! Nay, they are esteem'd the more learned and sufficient for this by the multitude, 4 through their excellent vise 5 of judgment. For they commend writers as they do fencers or wrestlers; who, if they come in robustiously and put for it with a great deal of violence, are receiv'd for the braver fellows; when many times their own ruddiness is the cause of their disgrace, and a little touch of their adversary gives all that boisterous force the foil. 6 I deny not but that these men who always seek to do more than enough may some time happen on some thing that is good and great; but very seldom: and when it comes, it doth not remence the rest of their ill. It sticks out, perhaps, and is more eminent, because all is sordid and vile about it; as lights are more discern'd in a thick darkness than a faint shadow. I speak not this out of a hope to do good on any man against his will; for I know, if it were put to the question of theirs and mine, the worse would find more suffrages, because the most favour common errors. But I give thee this warning, that there is a great difference between those that (to gain the opinion of copie?) utter 7 all they can, however unfitly, and those that use election and a mean. For it is only the disease of the unskillful to think rude things greater than polish'd, or scatter'd more numerous than compos'd.

PROLOGUE

FORTUNE, that favours fools, these two short hours
We wish away, both for your sakes and ours,
Judging spectators; and desire in place,
To th’ author justice, to ourselves but grace.
Our scene is London, ’cause we would make known,
No country’s nirth is better than our own.
No clime breeds better matter for your whore,
Bawd, squire, impostor, many persons more,
Whose manners, now call’d humours, feed the stage;
And which have still been subject for the rage
Or spleen of comic writers. Though this pen
Did never aim to grieve, but better men;
How’er the age he lives in doth endure
The vices that she breeds, above their cure.
But when the wholesome remedies are sweet,
And, in their working gain and profit meet,
He hopes to find no spirit so much diseas’d,
But will with such fair correctives be pleas’d.
For here he doth not fear who can apply.
If there be any that will sit so nigh
Unto the stream, to look what it doth run,
They shall find things, they’d think, or wish, were done;
They are so natural follies, but so shown,
As even the doers may see, and yet not own.

ACT I

SCENE I.1

[Enter] Face, [in a captain’s uniform, with his sword drawn, and] Subtle [with a vial, quarrelling, and followed by] Dol Common.

Face. Believe’t, I will.
Sub. Thy worst. I fart at thee.
Dol. Ha’ you your wits? Why, gentlemen! I love —
Face. Sirrah, I’ll strip you —
Sub. What to do? [Lick figs 2
Out at my — [sleights. 3
Face. Rogue, rogue! — out of all your Dol. Nay, look ye, sovereign, general, are you madmen?
Sub. O, let the wild sheep loose. I’ll gum your silks
With good strong water, an you come.
Dol. Will you have
The neighbours hear you? Will you betray
all?
Hack ! I hear somebody.
Face. Sirrah —
Sub. I shall mar
All that the tailor has made, if you approach. 10
Face. You most notorious whelp, you insolent slave,
Dare you do this?
Sub. Yes, faith; yes, faith.
Face. Why, who
Am I, my mongrel, who am I?
Sub. I’ll tell you,
Since you know not yourself.
Face. Speak lower, rogue. 1

Sub. Yes. You were once (time’s not long past) the good, 13
Honest, plain, livery-three-pound-thrum, 4 that kept
Your master’s worship’s house here in the Friars, 5
For the vacations — —
Face. Will you be so loud?
Sub. Since, by my means, translated suburb-captain.
Face. By your means, doctor dog!
Sub. Within man’s memory, 8
All this I speak of.
Face. Why, I pray you, have I
Been countenance’d by you, or you by me?
Do but collect, sir, where I met you first.
Sub. I do not hear well.
Face. Not of this, I think it.
But I shall put you in mind, sir; — at Pie-corner,
Taking your meal of steam in, from look’s stools,
Where, like the father of hunger, you did walk
Piteously costive, with your pinch’d-horn-nose,
And your complexion of the Roman wash, 8
Stuck full of black and melancholy worms, 22
Like powder-corns 7 shot at the artillery-yard.
Sub. I wish you could advance your voice a little.
Face. When you went pinn’d up in the several rage
You had rak’d and pick’d from dunghills, before day;
Your feet in mouldy slippers, for your kibes; 3
A felt of rug, 8 and a thin threaden cloak,
That scarce would cover your no-buttons — —

1 A room in Lovewit’s house.
2 Rabelais, Bk. IV, ch. 45.
3 Drop your tricks.
4 Poorly paid servant.
5 The product of Blackfriars.
6 I. e. shallow.
7 Chilblains.
8 A hat of coarse material.
Sub. So, sir!
Face. When all your alchemy, and your algebra,
Your minerals, vegetals, and animals,
Your conjuring, cos’ning; and your dozen of trades,
Could not relieve your corpse with so much linen
Would make you tinder, but to see a fire;
Lga’ you count’nance, credit for your coals,
Your stills, your glases, your materials;
Built you a furnace, drew you customers,
Advaine’d all your black arts; lent you, beside,
A house to practise in——

Sub. Your master’s house!
Face. Where you have studied the more thriving skill
Of bawdry, since.
Sub. Yes, in your master’s house.
You and the rats here kept possession.
Make it not strange. I know you were one could keep
The buttery-hatch still lock’d, and save the chippings,
Sell the dole beer to aqua vitae men,
The which, together with your Christmas vails
At post-and-pair, your letting out of counters,
Made you a pretty stock, some twenty marks,
And gave you credit to converse with cobweb,
Here, since your mistress’ death hath broke up house.

Face. You might talk softlier, rascal.
Sub. I’ll thunder you in pieces, I will teach you
How to beware to tempt a Fury again
That carries tempest in his hand and voice.

Face. The place has made you valiant.
Sub. No, your clothes,
Thou vermin, have I ta’en thee out of dung,
So poor, so wretched, when no living thing
Would keep thee company, but a spider or worse?
Rais’d thee from brooms, and dust, and wat’ring-pots,
Sublim’d thee, and exalted thee, and fix’d thee
In the third region, call’d our state of grace;
Wrought thee to spirit, to quintessence, with pains
Would twice have won me the philosopher’s work?
Put thee in words and fashion? made thee fit
For more than ordinary fellowships?
Giv’n thee thy oaths, thy quarrelling dimensions:
Thy rules to cheat at horse-race, cock-pit, cards,
Dice, or whatever gallant tincture else?
Made thee a second in mine own great art?
And have I this for thanks! Do you rebel?
Do you fly out i’ the projection?
Would you be gone now?

Dol. Gentlemen, what mean you? —
Will you mar all?
Sub. Slave, thou hast had no name —
Dol. Will you undo yourselves with civil war?
Sub. Never been known, past equi clibanum,
The heat of horse-dung, under ground, in cellars,
Or an ale-house darker than deaf John’s; been lost
To all mankind, but laundresses and tapesters,
Had not I been.
Dol. Do you know who hears you, sovereign?
Face. Sirrah — [were civil.
Dol. Nay, general, I thought you
Face. I shall turn desperate, if you grow thus loud.
Sub. And hang thyself, I care not.
Face. Hang thee, collier,
And all thy pots and pans, in picture 1 will,
Since thou hast mov’d me——
Dol. [Aside] O, this ’ll o’erthrow all.
Face. Write thee up bawd in Paul’s; have all thy tricks
Of cos’ning with a hollow coal, dust, scrapings.
Searching for things lost, with a sieve and shears,
Erecting figures in your rows of houses,
And taking in of shadows with a glass,
Told in red letters; and a face cut for thee,
Worse than Gamaliel Ratsey’s.

Dol. Are you sound?
Face. Ha’ you your senses, masters?

Dol. I will have
A book, but rarely reckoning thy impostures,
Shall prove a true philosopher’s stone to printers.

Sub. Away, you trencher-rascal!
Face. Out, you dog-leech!
The vomit of all prisons — Will you be
Your own destructions, gentlemen?

Face. Still spew’d out
For lying too heavy o’ the basket.
Sub. Cheater!
Face. Bawd!
Sub. Cow-hard!
Face. Conjurer!
Face. Witch!
Dol. O me!

We are ruin’d, lost! Ha’ you no more regard
To your reputations? Where’s your judgment?
Slight,
Have yet some care of me, o’ your republic——
Face. Away, this brash! I’ll bring thee, rogue, within
The statute of sorcery, tricessimo tertio
Of Harry the Eighth; say, and perhaps thy neck
Within a noose, for laund’ring gold and barbing it.

10 Astrological tricks. 11 A notorious highwayman.
12 Eating more than his share of rations.
13 Bitch.
14 33 Henry VIII, the first act against witchcraft in England.
15 "Swearing" and clipping the coinage.
Dol. You 'll bring your head within a cockscomb, will you?
She catcheth out FACE his sword, and breaks SUBTLE's glass.

And you, sir, with your menstrue! — Gather it up.
'Sdeath, thou abominable pair of stinkards,
Leave off your barking, and grow one again,
Or, by the light that shines, I'll cut your throats.
I'll not be made a prey unto the marshal
For ne'er a snarling dog-bolt 8 o' you both.
Ha! you together ozen'd all this while,
And all the world, and shall it now be said,
You've made most courteous shift to ozen yourselves?
[To FACE.] You will accuse him! You will "Bring him in Within the statute!"  "Who shall take your word?"

A whoreson, upstart, apocryphal captain,
Whom not a Puritan in Blackfriars will trust
So much as for a feather: and you, too,

[to SUBTLE]
Will give the cause, forsooth! You will insult,
And claim a primacy in the divisions!
You shall be chief! As if you, only, had
The powder to project with, and the work
Were not begun out of equality!
The venture tripartite! All things in common!
Without priority! 'Sdeath! you perpetual curs,
Fall to your couples again, and ozen kindly,
And heartily, and lovingly, as you should,
And lose not the beginning of a term,
Or, by this hand, I shall grow factious too,
And take my part, and quit you.

FACE. 'Tis his fault;
He ever murmurs, and objects his pains,
And says, the weight of all lies upon him.

Sub. Why, so it does.

How does it? Do not we Sustain our parts?

Sub. Yes, but they are not equal.

Dol. Why, if your part exceed to-day, I hope
Ours may to-morrow match it.

Sub. Ay, they may.

Dol. May, murmuring mastiff? Ay, and do,
Death on me!

Help me to throttle him.

[Dol. Seizes Sub. by the throat.]

Sub. Dorothy! Mistress Dorothy!

'Ods precious, I'll do anything. What do you mean?

Dol. Because o' your fermentation and cibation?

Sub. Not I, by heaven —

Dol. Your Sol and Luna —— help me.

[To FACE.]

Sub. Would I were hang'd then! I'll conform myself.

Dol. Will you, sir? Do so then, and quickly:

swear.

Sub. What should I swear?

Dol. To leave your faction, 8 sir.
Ad labour kindly in the common work.

Sub. Let me not breathe if I meant aught beside.
I only us'd those speeches as a spur
To him.

Dol. I hope we need no spurs, sir. Do we?

Face. 'Slid, prove to-day who shall shark best.

Sub. Agreed.

Dol. Yes, and work close and friendly.

Sub. 'Slight, the knot
Shall grow the stronger for this breach, with me.
[They shake hands.]

Dol. Why, so, my good baboons! Shall we make
A sort 7 of sober, scurvy, precise neighbours,
That scarce have smil'd twice sin' the king came in.

A feast of laughter at our follies? Rascals,
Would run themselves from breath, to see me ride,
Oryou t' have but a hole to thrust your heads in,
For which you should pay ear-rent? No, agree,
And may Don Provoct ride a feasting long,
In his old velvet jerkin and stain'd scarfs,
My noble sovereign, and worthy general,
Ere we contribute a new crewel 11 garter
To his most worsted worship.

Sub. Royal Dol!

Spoken like Claridiana, 13 and thyself.

Face. For which at supper, thou shalt sit in triumph,
And not be styl'd Dol Common, but Dol Proper,
Dol Singular: the longest cut at night,
Shall draw thee for his Dol Particular.

[Bell rings without.]

Sub. Who's that? One rings. To the window.

Dol. [Exeunt Dol. — Pray heav'n, 15
The master do not trouble us this quarter.

Face. O, fear not him. While there dies one a week
O' the plague, he's safe from thinking toward London.
Beside, he's busy at his hop-yards now;

He had a letter from him. If he do.
He'll send such word, for airing o' the house,
As you shall have sufficient time to quitt it:
Though we break up a fortnight, 'tis no matter.

Re-enter Dol.

Sub. Who is it, Dol?

Dol. A fine young quodling. 18

Face. O,

My lawyer's clerk, I lighted on last night,
In Holborn, at the Dagger. He would have
(I told you of him) a familiar,
To rifle with at horses, and win cups.

Dol. O, let him in.

Sub. Stay. Who shall do t'?

Face. Get you 1

Your robes on; I will meet him, as going out.

7 Group. 8 Seven years before. 9 In the pillory. 10 Have your ears cut off.
11 Familiar pun. 12 Tom Hutt's. 13 The heroine of the "Mirror of Knighthood."
14 Green apple, a youth.
THE ALCHEMIST

DoL. And what shall I do?

Face. Not be seen; away! [Exit DoL.]

Sub. Enough. [Exit.]

Face. [Aloud and retiring.] God be wi' you, sir,

I pray you let him know that I was here:

His name is Dapper. I would gladly have staid, but —

SCENE II. 1

Face.

Dap. [within.] Captain, I am here. [doctor.]

Face. Who's that? — He's come, I think,

[Enter Dapper.]

Good faith, sir, I was going away.

Dap. In truth, I am very sorry, captain.

Face. But I thought surely I should meet you.

Dap. Ay, I am very glad.

I had a sev'ry writ or two to make, 8

And I had lent my watch last night to one

That dines to-day at the sheriff's, and so was rob'd

Of my pass-time. 8

[Re-enter Subtle in his velvet cap and gown.]

Is this the cunning-man?

Face. This is his worship.

Dap. Is he a doctor?

Face. Yes.

Dap. And ha' you broke 9 with him, captain?

Face. Ay.

Dap. And how? 10

Face. Faith, he does make the matter, sir, so dainty, 4

I know not what to say.

Dap. Not so, good captain.

Face. Would I were fairly rid on 't, believe me.

Dap. Nay, now you grieve me, sir. Why should you wish so?

I dare assure you, I'll not be ungrateful. 15

Face. I cannot think you will, sir. But the law
Is such a thing — and then he says, Read's 5 matter

Falling so lately —

Dap. Read! he was an ass,

And dealt, sir, with a fool.

Face. It was a clerk, sir. 19

Dap. A clerk!

Face. Nay, hear me, sir. You know the law

Better, I think —

Dap. I should, sir, and the danger:

You know, I shou'd the statute to you.

Face. You did so.

Dap. And will I tell then! By this hand of flesh,

Would it might never write good court hand

more,

If I discover. 8 What do you think of me, —

That I am a chiaus? 7

Face. What's that?

Dap. The Turk was here.

As one would say, do you think I am a Turk?

Face. I'll tell the doctor so.

Dap. Do, good sweet captain.

Face. Come, noble doctor, pray thee let's prevail:

This is the gentleman, and he is no chiaus. 5

Sub. Captain, I have return'd you all my answer.

I would do much, sir, for your love — But this

I neither may, nor can.

Face. Tut, do not say so.

You deal now with a noble fellow, doctor,

One that will thank you richly; and he's no

chiaus:

Let that, sir, move you.

Sub. Pray you, forbear —

Face. He has Four angels here.

Sub. You do me wrong, good sir.

Face. Doctor, wherein? To tempt you with these spirits?

Sub. To tempt my art and love, sir, to my peril.

'Fore heav'n, I scarce can think you are my friend,

That so would draw me to apparent danger.

Face. I draw you! A horse draw you, and a halter,

You, and your flies 8 together —

Dap. Nay, good captain.

Face. That know no difference of men.

Sub. Good words, sir.

Face. Good deeds, sir, doctor dogs'-meat.

'Slight, I bring you

No cheating Clim o' the Cloughs 9 or Claribels, 10

That look as big as five-and-fifty, and flush; 11

And spit out secrets like hot custard —

Dap. Captain!

Face. Nor any melancholy underscribe,

Shall tell the vicar; but a special gentle,

That is the heir to forty marks a year,

Consorts with the small poets of the time,

In the sole hope of his old grandmother;

That knows the law, and writes you six fair

hands,

Is a fine clerk, and has his ciph'ring perfect.

Will take his oath o' the Greek Xenophon, 12

If need be, in his pocket; and can court

His mistress out of Ovid.

Dap. Nay, dear captain —

Face. Did you not tell me so?

Dap. Yes; but I'd ha' you

Use master doctor with some more respect. 10

2. Reveal.
3. A Turkish interpreter, like the one who had recently cheated some merchants.
4. Familiar spirits.
5. An outlaw hero.
6. Probably a hero of romance. The name occurs in Spain.
7. Five-and-fifty was the highest number to stand on at the old game of Primero. If a flush accompanied this, the hand swept the table. (Gifford.)
8. The Q. reads Testament.
Face. Hang him, proud stag, with his broad velvet head! —
But for your sake, I'd choke ere I would change
An article of breath with such a puck-fist! [1]
Come, let 's be gone. [Going.]
Sub. Pray you le' me speak with you.
Dap. His worship calls you, captain.
Face. I am sorry
I 'e embarking myself in such a business. [2]
Dap. Nay, good sir; he did call you.
Face. Will he take then?
Sub. First, hear me —
Face. Not a syllable, 'less you take.
Sub. Pray ye, sir —
Face. Upon no terms but an assump't. [3]
Sub. Your humour must be law.
Face. Why now, sir, talk. [4]
Now I dare hear you with mine honour. Speak.
So may this gentleman too.
Sub. Why, sir —
[Offering to whisper Face.]
Face. No whist'ring.
Sub. Fore heav'n, you do not apprehend the loss
You do yourself in this.
Face. Wherein? for what?
Sub. Marry, to be so importunate for one
That, when he has it, will undo you all:
He 'll win up all the money 't the town.
Face. How? [gamester,]
Sub. Yes, and blow up gamester after
As they do crackers in a puppet-play.
If I do give him a familiar,
Give you him all you play for; never set him:
For he will have it.
Face. You're mistaken, doctor.
Why, he does ask one but for cups and horses,
A riffing fly; none o' your great familiars.
Dap. Yes, captain, I would have it for all games.
Sub. I told you so.
Face. [taking Dap. aside.] 'Slight, that is a new business!
I understood you, a game bird, to fly
Twice in a term, or so, on Friday nights,
When you had left the office; for a nag
Of forty or fifty shillings.
Dap. Ay, 't is true, sir; [5]
But I do think, now, I shall leave the law,
And therefore —
Face. Why, this changes quite the case.
Do you think that I dare move him?
Dap. If you please, sir;
All 's one to him, I see.
Face. What! for that money? [6]
I cannot with my conscience; nor should you
Make the request, methinks.
Dap. No, sir, I mean
To add consideration.
Face. Why, then, sir,
I 'll try. [Goes to Subtle.] Say that it were for all games, doctor?
Sub. I say then, not a mouth shall eat for him
1 Rigard.
2 That he has undertaken the affair.
3 Stake against.
4 To be used in raffles.
To any ordinary, [5] but o' the score, [5]
That is a gaming mouth, conceive me.
Face. Indeed!
Sub. He 'll draw you all the treasure of the realm,
If it be set him.
Face. Speak you this from art?
Sub. Ay, sir, and reason too, the ground of art.
He is o' the only best complexion,
The queen of Fairy loves.
Face. What! Is he?
Sub. Peace.
He 'll overhear you. Sir, should she but see him — [Face. What?]
Sub. Do not you tell him.
Face. Will he win at cards too?
Sub. The spirits of dead Holland, living Isaac, [7]
You 'd swear, were in him; such a vigorous luck
As cannot be resisted. 'Slight, he 'll put Six o' your gallants to a cloak, [8] indeed.
Face. A strange success, that some man shall be born to!
Sub. He hears you, man —
Dap. Sir, I 'll not be ingrateful.
Face. Faith, I have a confidence in his good nature:
You hear, he says he will not be ingrateful.
Sub. Why, as you please; my venture follows yours.
Face. Trith, do it, doctor; think him trusty, and make him.
He may make us both happy in an hour;
Win some five thousand pound, and send us two on 't.
Dap. Believe it, and I will, sir.
Face. And you shall, sir.
You have heard all? FACE takes him aside.
Dap. No, what was 't? Nothing, I, sir.
Face. Nothing?
Dap. A little, sir.
Face. Well, a rare star
Reign 'd at your birth.
Sub. At mine, sir! No. The doctor
Sways that you are —
Dap. Nay, captain, you 'll tell all now. [12]
Face. Allied to the queen of Fairy.
Dap. Who! That I am I? Believe it, no such matter — Face. Yes, and that You were born with a cauld o' your head.
Dap. Who says so?
Face. Come. You know it well enough, though you dissemble it.
Dap. I 'm fac', I do not; you are mistaken.
Face. How!

1 Table d'hôte restaurant.
2 The gamblers (who frequented ordinaries) will be so impoverished through his winnings that they will have to eat on credit.
3 Supposed to refer to two alchemists, but the dates do not agree.
4 Strip to the cloak.
5 Faith.
Swear by your fac, and in a thing so known
Unto the doctor? How shall we, sir, trust you
I' the other matter? Can we ever think,
When you have won five or six thousand pound,
You'll send us shares in 't, by this rate?
Dap. By Jove, sir, I
I'll win ten thousand pound, and send you half.
I' fac's no oath.
Sub. No, no, he did but jest.
Face. Go to. Go thank the doctor. He's your friend,
To take it so.
Dap. I thank his worship. So!

Another angel.
Dap. Must I?
Face. Must you! 'Slight, we
What else is thanks? Will you be trivial?
— Doctor, [DAPPER, gives him the money.]
When must he come for his familiar?
Dap. Shall I not ha' it with me?
Sub. O, good sir!
There must a world of ceremonies pass;
You must be bath'd and fumigated first:
Besides, the queen of Fairy does not rise
Till it be noon.
Face. Not if she danc'd to-night.
Sub. And she must bless it.
Face. Did you never see
Her royal grace yet?
Dap. Whom?
Face. Your aunt of Fairy?
Sub. Not since she kist him in the oraddle,
captain;
I can resolve you that.
Face. Well, see her grace,
What'er it cost you, for a thing that I know.
It will be somewhat hard to compass; but However, see her. You are made, believe it, If
If you can see her. Her grace is a lone woman,
And very rich; and if she take a fancy,
She will do strange things. See her, at any hand.
'Slid, she may hap to leave you all she has!
It is the doctor's fear.
Dap. How will 't be done, then?
Face. Let me alone, take you no thought. Do you
But say to me, "Captain, I'll see her grace."
Dap. "Captain, I'll see her grace."
Face. Enough. One knocks without.
Sub. Who's there?
Anon. — [Aside to Face.] Conduct him forth
by the back way.
Sir, against one o'clock prepare yourself;
Till when you must be fasting; only take
Three drops of vinegar in at your nose,
Two at your mouth, and one at either ear;
Then bathe your fingers' ends and wash your eyes.
To sharpen your five senses, and cry am
Thrice, and then buzz as often; and then come.

[Exit.]

Face. Can you remember this?
Dap. I warrant you.
Face. Well then, away. It is but your bestow-
ing
Some twenty nobles 'mong her grace's servants,
And put on a clean shirt. You do not know What grace her grace may do you in clean linen.
[Exeunt Face and Dapper.]

Scene III.

Sub. [within.] Come in! Good wives, I pray you forbear me now;
Trotl, I can do you no good till afternoon. —
[Enter Subtle, followed by Druggar.]
Sub. What is your name, say you? Abel Druggar?
Drug. Yes, sir.
Sub. A seller of tobacco?
Drug. Yes, sir.
Sub. Free of the grocers? 9
Drug. Ay, an't please you.
Sub. Well —
Your business, Abel?
Drug. This, an't please your worship; I am a young beginner, and am building Of a new shop, an't like your worship, just At corner of a street: — Here is the plot 9 on't——
And I would know by art, sir, of your worship, Which way I should make my door, by necro-mancy,
And where my shelves; and which should be for boxes,
And which for pots. I would be glad to thrive, sir:
And I was wish'd 4 to your worship by a gentle-
man,
One Captain Face, that says you know men's planets,
And their good angels, and their bad.
Sub. If I do see 'em —

[Enter Face.]

Drug. Troth, sir, I was speaking, Just as your worship came here, of your worship. I pray you speak for me to master doctor.
Face. He shall do anything. Doctor, do you hear? This is my friend, Abel, an honest fellow; He lets me have good tobacco, and he does not Sophisticate it with sack-less or oil,
Nor washes it in muscadel and grains,
Nor buries it in gravel, under ground,
Wrapp'd up in greasy leather, or pins'd clouts: But keeps it in fine lily pots, that, open'd, smell like conserve of roses, or French beans. He has his maple block, 6 his silver tongs, Winchester pipes, and fire of juniper: 4 A neat, spruce, honest fellow, and me goldsmith. 7

1 The same.
2 I.e., a member of the Grocers' Company.
3 Plan.
4 Recommended.
5 On which tobacco was shredded.
6 The coals of which were used to light pipes.
7 Usurer.
Sub. He's a fortunate fellow, that I am sure on.

Face. Already, sir, ha' you found it? Lo thee, Abel!

Sub. And in right way toward riches —

Face.

Sub.

Face. What, and so little beard?

Sub. Sir, you must think,

He may have a receipt to make hair come:

But he'll be wise, preserve his youth, and fine

for 't;

His fortune looks for him another way.

Face. 'Sild, doctor, how canst thou know this so soon?

I am amus'd at that.

Sub. By a rule, captain,

In metoposcopy, 4 which I do work by;

A certain star  it, the forehead, which you see

not.

Your chestnut or your olive-colour'd face

Does never fail: and your long ear doth promise.

I knew 't, by certain spots, too, in his teeth,

And on the nail of his mercurial finger.

Face. Which finger's that?

Sub. His little finger. Look.

You were born upon a Wednesday?

Drug. Yes, indeed, sir.

Sub. The thumb, in chiroancy, we give

Venus;

The forefinger to Jove; the midst to Saturn;

The ring to Sol; the least to Mercury,

Who was the lord, sir, of his horoscope,

His house of life being Libra; which forsook'd

He should be a merchant, and should trade with balance.

Face. Why, this is strange! Is it not, honest Nab?

Sub. There is a ship now coming from Ormus,

That shall yield him such a commodity

Of drugs — This is the west, and this the south?

[Pointing to the plan.]

Drug. Yes, sir.

Sub. And those are your two sides?

Drug. Ay, sir.

Sub. Make me your door then; south, your broad side, west:

And on the east side of your shop, aloft,

Write Mathlai, Tarzdel, and Barhabrat;

Upon the north part, Rasl, Velol, Thiel.

They are the names of those Mercurial spirits

That do fright flies from boxes.

Drug. Yes, sir.

And Beneath your threshold, bury me a loadstone

To draw in gallants that wear spurs: the rest,

They'll seem 5 to follow.

Face. That's a secret, Nab!

Sub. And, on your stall, a puppet, with a vice

And a court-focus, 6 to call city-dames:

You shall deal much with minerals.

Drug. Sir, I have.

At home, already —

Sub. Ay, I know, you 've arsenic, 7

Vitriol, sal-tartar, argaele, 8 alkali,

Cinnabar: 9 I know all. — This fellow, captain,

Will come, in time, to be a great distiller,

And give to say — I will not say directly,

But very fair — at the philosopher's stone.

Face. Why, how now, Abel! is this true?

Drug. [Aside to Face.] Good captain,

What must I give?

Face. Nay, I'll not counsel thee.

Thou hast what wealth (he says, spend what thou canst),

Thou 'rt like to come to.

Drug. I would gi' him a crown.

Face. A crown! and toward such a fortune?

Heart.

Thou shalt rather gi' him thy shop. No gold about thee?

Drug. Yes, I have a portague, 10 I ha' kept this half-year.

Face. Out on thee, Nab! 'Slight, there was such an offer —

Shalt keep 't no longer, I'll gi' it him for thee.

Doctor,

Nab prays your worship to drink this, and swears

He will appear more grateful, as your skill

Does raise him in the world.

Drug. I would entreast

Another favour of his worship.

Face. What is 't, Nab?

Drug. But to look over, sir, my almanac,

And cross out my ill-days, 11 that I may neither

Bargain, nor trust upon them.

Face. That he shall, Nab:

Leave it, it shall be done, 'gainst afternoon.

Sub. And a direction for his shelves.

Face. Now, Nab,

Art thou well pleas'd, Nab?

Drug. 'Thank, sir, both your worships.

Face. Away.

[Exit DRUGGER.]

Why, now, you smocky persecutor of nature!

Now do you see, that something 's to be done,

Beside your beech-coal, and your corrosive 12

waters,

Your crozets, 13 crucibles, and crucurbits? 14

You must have stuff brought home to you, to work on:

And yet you think, I am at no expense

In searching out these veins, then following

'em,

Then trying 'em out. 'Fore God, my intelligence

Costs me more money than my share oft comes to.

In these rare works.

Sub. You're pleasant, sir. — How now! 15

1 Wear the livery.  2 A branch of physiognomy.  3 Be sheriff.  4 Amazed.  5 Be seen.  6 Paint for the face.  7 Tartar deposited by wine.  8 Cinnabar, mercuric sulphid.  9 Alkali.  10 A gold coin worth about three pounds, twelve shillings.  11 Unlucky days.  12 Corrosive.  13 Crucible.  14 Glass retort, shaped like a gourd.
Seal, at all hours, in his shirt: no more,
If he deny, ha’ him beaten to ’t, as he is
That brings him the commodity; no more
Shall thirst of satyn, or the covetous hunger
Of velvet untrails i for a rude-spun cloak,
To be display’d at Madam Augusta’s, make
The sons of Sword and Hazard fall before
The golden calf, and on their knees, whole nights.
Commit idolatry with wine and trumpets:
Or go a feasting after drum and ensign.
No more of this. You shall start up young viceroys,
And have your punks and punkettes, my Surly,
And unto thee I speak it first, Be rich.
Where is my Subtle there? Within, ho!
[Ejac. within.]
Sir, =
He’ll come to you by and by.

Mam. That is his fire-drake,
His Lungs, his Zephyrus, he that puffs his coals,
Till he sirk 9 nature up, in her own centre.
You are not faithful; 10 sir. This night I’ll change
All that is metal in my house to gold:
And, early in the morning, will I send
To all the plumbers and the pewters,
And buy their tin and lead up; and to Louthbury
For all the copper.
Sur. What, and turn that, too?
Mam. Yes, and I’ll purchase Devonshire and Cornwall,
And make them perfect Indies! You admire
now?
Sur. No faith.
Mam. But when you see th’ effects of the Great Med’cine,
Of which one part projected on a hundred
Of Mercury, or Venus, or the Moon,
Shall turn it to as many of the Sun; =
Nay, to a thousand, so ad infinitum:
You will believe me.
Sur. Yes, when I see ’t, I will.
But if my eyes do oozn me so, and I Giving ’em no occasion, sure I’ll have
A whore, shall piss ’em out next day.

Mam. Ha! why? Do you think I fable with you? I assure you,
He that has once the flower of the sun,
The perfect ruby, which we call elixir,
Not only can do that, but by its virtue,
Can confer honour, love, respect, long life;
Give safety, valour, yea, and victory,
To whom he will. In eight and twenty days,
I’ll make an old man of fourscore, a child.
Sur. No doubt; he’s that already.

Mam. Nay, I mean, restore his years, renew him, like an eagle,
To the fifth age; make him get sons and daughters,
Young giants; as our philosophers have done,
The ancient patriarchs, afores the flood,
But taking, once a week, on a knife’s point,
The quantity of a grain of mustard of it;
Become stout Marses, and beget young Cupids.

ACT II

SCENE 1.

[Enter] Sir Epicure Mammou and Surly.

Mam. Come on, sir. Now you set your foot on shore
In Novo Orbe; = here’s the rich Peru:
And there within, sir, are the golden mines,
Great Solomon’s Ophir! He was sailing to ’t
Three years, but we have reach’d it in ten months.
This is the day wherein, to all my friends,
I will pronounce the happy word, Be rich;
This day you shall be spectactors. 6 You shall no more deal with the hollow die, 7
Or the frail card; no more be at charge of keeping
The livery-punk 8 for the young heir, that must

Scene II.

MAMMON, SURLY. [Enter FAce, as a Servant.]

Mam. Do we succeed? Is our day come? And holds it?

Face. The evening will set red upon you, sir; You have colour for it, crimson: the red ferment Has done his office; three hours hence prepare you To see projection.

Mam. Pertinax, my Surl. Again I say to thee, aloud, Be rich. This day thou shalt have ingots; and to-morrow Give lords th' affront.—Is it, my Zephyrus, right? Blushes the bolt's-head?

Face. Like a wench with child, sir, That were but now discover'd to her master. Mam. Excellent wit! Lingus!—My only care is Where to get stuff enough now, to project on: This town will not half serve me.

Face. No, sir? Buy The covering off o' churches.

Mam. That's true. Face. Let'em stand bare, as do their auditory; Or cap'em new with shingles.

Mam. No, good thech: Thatch will lie light upo' the rafters, Lingus. Lingus, I will manumit thee from the furnace; I will restore thee thy complexion, Puff, Lost in the embers; and repair this brain, Hurt wil' the fume o' the metals.

Face. I have blown, sir, Hard, for your worship; thrown by many a coal, When't was not beech; weigh'd those I put in, just To keep your heat still even. These blear'd eyes Have wak'd to read your several colours, sir, Of the pale citron, the green lion, the crow, The peacock's tail, the plummed swan.

Mam. And lastly, Thou hast descried the flower, the sangavis apis?

Face. Yes, sir. Mam. Where's master? Face. At 's prayers, sir, he; Good man, he's doing his devotions For the success.

Mam. Lingus, I will set a period To all thy labours; thou shalt be the master Of my seraglio.

Face. Yes, sir. Mam. For I do mean To have a list of wives and concubines Equal with Solomon, who had the stone Alike with me; and I will make me a back With the elixir, that shall be as tough

---

1. A disreputable locality.
2. Foul'd.
3. Quicksilver.
4. According to Boëtianus, the ancestor of all the gods.
5. The same.
6. Transmute.
7. A kind of flesh.
8. Congregation.
As Hercules, to encounter fifty a night.—
Thou 'rt sure thou saw 'at it blood?

Face. Both blood and spirit, sir.

Mam. I will have all my beds blown up, not stuf'ed;
Down is too hard: and then, mine oval room
Fill'd with such pictures as Tiberius took
From Elephants, and dull Areteine
But coldly imitated. Then, my glasses
Out in more subtle angles, to dispere
And multiply the figures, as I walk
Naked between my saucebse. My mists
I'll have of perfumes, vapour'd 'bout the room,
To lose our selves in; and my baths, like pits
To fall into; from whence we will come forth,
And roll us dry in gossamer and roses.—
Is it arrived at ruby?—Where I spy
A wealthy citizen, or [a] rich lawyer,
Have a sublim'd pure wife, unto that fellow
I'll send a thousand pound to be my suckold.

Face. And I shall carry it?

Mam. No, I'll ha' no bavds
But fathers and mothers: they will do it best,
Best of all others. And my flattaters
Shall be the pure and gravest of divines,
That I can get for money. My mero fools,
Elouent burgesses, and then my poets
The same that writ so subtly of the fart,
Whom I will entertain still for that subject.
The few that would give out themselves to be
Court and town-stallions, and, each-way, bore
Ladies who are known most innocent, for them—

Those will I beg, to make me eunuchs of:
And they shall fan me with ten estrich tails
A-piece, made in a plume to gather wind.
We will be brave, Puff, now we ha' the medicine.

My meat shall all come in, in Indian shells,
Dishes of agate set in gold, and studded
With emeralds, sapphires, hyacinths, and rubies.
The tongues of carps, dormice, and camels' heels.
Boil'd 1 the spirit of sol, and dissolv'd pearl
(Apician diet, gaiant the epilepsy):
And I will eat these broths with spoons of amber.
Headed with diamond and carbuncle.
My foot-boy shall eat pheasants, calver'd salmons.

Knotz, godwits, lampreys: I myself will have
The beards of barbel serv'd, instead of salads;
Oil'd mushrooms; and the swelling unctuous
Paps
Of a fat pregnant sow, newly cut off.
Drest with an exquisite and poignant sauce;
For which, I'll say unto my cook, 'Theres gold;
Go forth, and be a knight.'

Face. Sir, I'll go look
A little, how it heightens. [Exit.

Mam. Do.—My-shirts
I'll have of taffeta-sarret, 4 soft and light
As cobwebs; and for all my other raiment,

It shall be such as might provoke the Persian,
Wore he to teach the world riot anew.
My gloves of fishes and birds' skins, perfum'd
With gums of paradise, and Eastern air——

Sur. And do you think to have the stone with

Mam. No, I do think t' have all this with

Sur. Why, I have heard he must be home

A pious, holy, and religious man,
One free from mortal sin, a very virgin.

Mam. That makes it, sir; he is so. But I buy

It;
My venture brings it me. He, honest wretch,
A notable, superstitious, good soul,
Haa worn his knees bare, and his slippers bald,
With prayer and fasting for it: and, sir, let him
Do it alone, for me, stll. Here he comes.

Not a profane word asore him; 'tis poison.—

SCENE III.7

MAMMON, SURLY. [Enter] SUBTLE.

Mam. Good morrow, father.

Sub. Gentle son, good morrow,
And to your friend there. What is he with you?

Mam. An heretic, that I did bring along,
In hope, sir, to convert him.

Sub. Son, I doubt
You're covetous, that thus you meet your time
I' the just 8 point, prevent 9 your day at morning.

This argues something worthy of a fear
Of importunes and carnal appetite.
Take heed you do not cause the blessing leave
you.

With your unguern'd haste. I should be sorry
To see my labours, now e'en at perfection,
Got by long watching and large patience,
Not prosper where my love and zeal hath pla'd 'em.

Which (heaven I call to witness, with your self,
To whom I have pour'd my thoughts) in all my ends
Have look'd no way, but unto public good,
To pions uses, and Dear charity,
Now grown a prodigy with men. Wherein
If you, my son, should now prevaricate,
And to your own particular lusts employ
So great and catholic a bliss, be sure
A curse will follow, yea, and overtake
Your subtle and most secret ways.

Mam. I know, sir;
You shall not need to fear me; I but come
To ha' you confute this gentleman.

Sur. Who is, 10

Indeed, sir, somewhat costive of belief
Toward your stone; would not be gull'd.

Sub. Well, son,
All that I can convince him in, is this,
The work is done, bright Sol is in his robe.
We have a med'cine of the triple soul,

1 Mistresses. 2 Salmon elaborately prepared. 3 Soft silk. 4 A fish. 5 Robin-epices. 6 A virtuous man. 7 Exact. 8 The same. 9 Anticipate.
The glorified spirit. Thanks be to heaven, And make us worthy of it! — Him Θεῖα, 1

Face. [within.] Amen, sir.

Sub. Look well to the register.

And let your heat still lessen by degrees,

To the aludels. 2

Face. [within.] Yes, sir.

Sub. Did you look

O’ the bolt’s head yet?

Face. [within.] Which? On D, sir?

Sub. Ay;

What’s the complexion?

Face. [within.] Whitish.

Sub. Infuse vinegar,

To draw his volatile substance and his tincture:

And let the water in glass E be flit’red,

And put into the gripe’s egg. 3 Lute 4 him well;

And leave him close’d in balsem. 5

Face. [within.] I will, sir.

Sur. What a brave language here! I next to canting. 6

Sub. I have another work you never saw,

son,

That three days since past the philosopher’s wheel,

In the lent heat of Athanor; 7 and ’sc become Sulphur o’ Nature.

Mam. But’t is for me?

Sub. What need you?

You have enough, in that is, perfect.

Mam. O, but — 8

Sub. Why, this is covetise!

Mam. No, I assure you,

I shall employ it all in pious uses,

Founding of colleges and grammar schools,

Marrying young virgins, building hospitals,

And, now and then, a church.

[Re-enter FACE]

Sub. How now!

Face. Sir, please you,

Shall I not change the filter?

Sub. Marry, yes;

And bring me the complexion of glass B.

[Exit FACE.]

Mam. Ha’ you another?

Sub. Yes, son; were I assur’d

Your piety were firm, we would not want

The means to glorify it: but I hope the best.

I mean to tint C in sand–heat to-morrow,

And give him imbibition. 8

Mam. Of white oil?

Sub. No, sir, of red. F is come over the helm too,

I thank my maker, in S. Mary’s bath.

And shows loc virgins. Blessed be heaven! 9

I sent you of his fases there calcin’d:

Out of that calx, I ha’ won the salt of mercury.

Mam. By pouring on your rectified water?

Sub. Yes, and reverberating in Athanor.

How now! what colour says it?

Face. The ground black, sir. 10

Mam. That’s your crow’s head?

Sub. Your cock’s comb’s, is it not?

Sub. No, ’tis not perfect. Would it were the crow!

That work wants something.

Sur. [Aside.] O, I look’d for this,

The hay’s a pitching.

Sub. Are you sure you loos’d ’em

In their own menstrue? 11

Face. Yes, sir, and then married ’em, 12

And put ’em in a bolt’s-head nipp’d to digestion,

According as you bade me, when I set

The liquor of Mars to circulation

In the same heat.

Sub. The process then was right. 13

Face. Yes, by the token, sir, the retort brake,

And what was say’d was put into the pellican,

And sign’d with Hermes’ seal.

Sub. I think ’t was so.

We should have a new amalgama.

Sur. [Aside.] O, this ferret

Is rank as any polecat.

Sub. But I care not;

Let him e’en die; we have enough besides.

In embryon. H has his white shirt on?

Face. Yes, sir,

He’s ripe for inercation, he stands warm,

In his ash-fire. I would not you should let

Any die now, if I might counsel, sir,

For luck’s sake to the rest: it is not good.

Mam. He says right.

Sur. [Aside.] Ay, are you bolted?

Face. Nay, I know ’t, sir,

I’ve seen th’ ill fortune. What is some three ounces

Of fresh materials?

Mam. Is’t no more?

Face. No more, sir,

Of gold, t’ amalgam with some six of mercury.

Mam. Away, here’s money. What will serve?

Face. Ask him, sir. 14

Mam. How much?

[ten

Sub. Give him nine pound: you may gi’ him

Sur. Yes, twenty, and be cozen’d, do.

Mam. There ’t is. [Gives FACE the money.]

Sub. This needs not; but that you will have it so,

To see conclusions of all: for two

Of our inferior works are at fixation,

A third is in ascension. Go your ways.

Ha’ you set the oil of Luna in kemia?

Face. Yes, sir.

Sub. And the philosopher’s vinegar?

Face. Ay. [Exit.]

Sur. We shall have a salad!

Mam. When do you make projection?

Sub. Son, be not hasty, I exalt our med’cine,

By hanging him in balsem vaporoso, 15

And giving him solution; then congeal him.

And then dissolve him; then again congeal him;

1 The hero of a well-known German jest-book.
2 A pear-shaped vessel, open at both ends.
3 An egg-shaped vessel. Gripe is grizda.
4 Seal with clay.
5 A dish of warm water.
6 Magus’ slang.
7 An alchemical furnace.
8 Absorption.
9 A net for catching rabbits.
10 Dissolving fluids.
For look, how oft I iterate the work,
Some times I add unto his virtue.
As, if at first one ounce convert a hundred,
After his second loose, he'll turn a thousand; and his third solution, ten; his fourth, a hundred; and his fifth, a thousand thousand ounces.
Of any imperfect metal, into pure silver or gold, in all examinations,
As good as any of the natural mine.
Get you your stuff here against afternoon;
Your brass, your pewter, and your andirons.
Mam. Not those of iron?
Sub. Yes, you may bring them too.
We'll change all metals.
Sur. I believe you in that.
Mam. Then I may send my spits?
Sub. Yes, and your racks.
Sur. And dripping-pans, and pot-hangers, and hooks?
Shall he not?
Sub. If he please.
Sur. — To be an ass.
Sub. How, sir!
Mam. This gent' man you must bear withal.
I told you he had no faith.
Sur. And little hope, sir;
But much less charity, should I pull myself.
Sub. Why, what have you observ'd, sir, in our art,
Seems so impossible?
Sur. But your whole work, no more.
That you should hatch gold in a furnace, sir,
As they do eggs in Egypt?
Sub. Sir, do you believe that eggs are hatch'd so?
Sur. Why, I think that the greater miracle.
No egg but differs from a chicken more than metals in themselves.
Sub. That cannot be.
The egg's ordain'd by nature to that end,
And a chicken in potentia.
Sub. The same we say of lead and other metals,
Which would be gold if they had time.
Mam. And that our art doth further.
Sub. Ay, for 't was absurd.
To think that nature in the earth bred gold.
Perfect it the instant: something went before.
There must be remote matter.
Sur. Ay, what is that?
Sub. Marry, we say —
Mam. Ay, now it heats; stand, father,
Found him to dust.
Sub. It is, of the one part,
A humid exhalation, which we call materia liquida, or the aqueous water; on the other part, a certain crass and viscous portion of earth; both which, concorparate, do make the elementary matter of gold; which is not yet propria materia, but common to all metals and all stones; for, where it is foreshown of that moisture, and hath more dryness, it becomes a stone: where it retains more of the humid fatness, it turns to sulphur, or to quicksilver.
Who are the parents of all other metals.
Nor can this remote matter suddenly
Progress so from extreme unto extreme,
As to grow gold, and leap o'er all the means.
Nature doth first beget th' imperfect, then proceeds she to the perfect. Of that airy
And oily water, mercury is engend' red;
Sulphur o' the fat and earthly part; the one,
Which is the last, supplying the place of male,
The other of the female, in all metals.
Some do believe hermaphrodisty,
That both do act and suffer. But these two
Make the rest ductile, malleable, extensive.
And even in gold they are; for we do find
Seeds of them by our fire, and gold in them;
And can produce the species of each metal
More perfect thence, than nature doth in earth.
Aside, who doth not see in daily practice
Art can beget bees, horns, beetles, wasps,
Out of the earasses and dung of creatures;
Yes, scorpions of an herb, being rightly plac'd;
And these are living creatures, far more perfect
And excellent than metals.
Mam. Well said, father!
Nay, if he take you in hand, sir, with an argument,
He'll draw you in a mortar.
Sur. Pray sir, sir, stay.
Rather than I'll be bray'd, sir, I'll believe
That Alchemy is a pretty kind of game,
Somewhat like tricks o' the cards, to cheat a man
With charming.
Sub. Sir?
Sur. What else are all your terms?
Whereon no one o' your writers 'gree with other?
Of your elixir, your lac virginis,
Your stone, your med'cine, and your chryso-
Your sal, your sulphur, and your mercury,
Your oil of height, your tree of life, your blood,
Your mercuries, your tutie, your magnesia,
Your toad, your crows, your dragon, and your panther;
Your sun, your moon, your firmament, your adrop,
Your lato, azooh, zernich, chibrit, heantart,
And then your red man, and your white woman,
With all your broths, your menstrues, and materials
Of piss and egg-shells, women's terms, man's blood,
Hair o' the head, burnt clouts, chalk, mar's, and clay,
Powder of bones, scalings of iron, glass,
And worlds of other strange ingredients,
Would burst a man to name?
Sub. And all these, nam'd,
Intending but one thing; which art our writers
Us'd to obscure their art.
Mam. Sir, so I told him —
Because the simple idiot should not learn it,
And make it vulgar.
Sub. Was not all the knowledge

1 In order that.
Of the Egyptians write in mystic symbols?
Speak not, the scriptures oft in parables?
Are not the choicest fables of the poets,
That were the fountains and first springs of wisdom,
Wrept in perplexed allegories?
Mam.
I urg’d that,
And clear’d to him, that Sisyphus was dam’d
To roll the ceaseless stone, only because He would have made ours common. (Dol is seen] at the door.) — Who is this?
Sub. God’s precious! — What do you mean?
Go in, good lady.
Let me entreat you. [Dol retires.] Where’s this varlet?

[Re-enter Face.]

Face. Sir.
Sub. You very knave! do you use me thus?
Face. Wherein, sir?
Sub. Go in and see, you traitor. Go!
[Exit Face.]

Mam. Who is it, sir?
Sub. Nothing, sir; nothing.
Mam. What’s the matter, good sir?
I have not seen you thus distemp’red: who is ’t?
Sub. All arts have still had, sir, their adversaries;
But ours the most ignorant. —

FACE returns.

What now?
Face. ’T was not my fault, sir; she would speak with you.
Sub. Would she, sir! Follow me. [Exit.]
Mam. [stopping him.] Stay, Lungs.
Face. I dare not, sir.
Mam. How! pray thee, stay.
Face. She’s mad, sir, and sent hither —
Mam. Stay, man; what is she?
Face. A lord’s sister, sir.
He’ll be mad too. —
Mam. I warrant thee. — Why sent hither?
Face. Sir, to be our’d.
Sub. [within.] Why, rascal!
Face. Lo you! — Here, sir! Exit.
Mam. ’Fore God, a Bradamante, a brave piece.
Sur. Heart, this is a bawdy-house! I’ll be burnt else.
Mam. O, by this light, no: do not wrong him.
He’s
Too scrupulous that way: it is his vice.
No, he’s a rare physician, do him right,
An excellent Paracelsus, and has done
Strange cures with mineral physic. He deals all
With spirits, he; he will not hear a word
Of Galen; or his tedious recipes. —

FACE again.

How now, Lungs!
Face. Softly, sir; speak softly. I meant To ha’ told your worship all. This must not hear.
Mam. No, he will not be gull’d; let him alone.
Face. You’re very right, sir; she is a most rare scholar,

And is gone mad with studying Broughton’s works.
If you but name a word touching the Hebrew,
She falls into her fit, and will discourse
So learnedly of genealogies,
As you would run mad too, to hear her, sir.
Mam. How might one do t’ have conference with her, Lungs?
Face. O, divers have run mad upon the conference.
I do not know, sir: I am sent in haste
To fetch a vial.
Sur. Be not gull’d, Sir Mammon.
Mam. Wherein? Pray ye, be patient.
Sur. Yes, as you are,
And trust confederate knaves and bawds and whores.
Mam. You are too foul, believe it. — Come here, Ulm,
One word.
Face. I dare not, in good faith. [Going.]
Mam. Stay, knave.
Face. He’s extreme angry that you saw her,
sir.
Mam. Drink that. [Gives him money.] What is she when she’s out of her fit?
Face. O, the most affablest creature, sir! so merry!
So pleasant! She’ll mount you up, like quick-silver.
Over the helm; and circulate like oil,
A very vegetal: discourse of state,
Of mathematics, bawdry, anything —
Mam. Is she no way accessible? no means,
No trick to give a man a taste of her — wit —
Or so?
[Sub. within.] Ulm!
Face. I’ll come to you again, sir. [Exit.]
Mam. Surly, I did not think one o’ your breeding
Would traduce personages of worth.
Sur. Sir Epicure,
Your friend to use; yet still loth to be gull’d:
I do not like your philosophical bawds.
Their stone is lechery enough to pay for,
Without this bait.
Mam. Heart, you abuse yourself.
I know the lady, and her friends, and means;
The original of this disaster. Her brother
Has told me all.
Sur. And yet you ne’er saw her
Till now!
Mam. O yes, but I forgot. I have, believe
it,
One o’ the treacherous’st memories, I do think,
Of all mankind.
Sur. What call you her brother?
Mam. My lord —
He wi’ not have his name known, now I think
on’t.
Sur. A very treacherous memory!
Mam. O’ my faith —
Sur. Tut, if you ha’ it not about you, pass it Till we meet next.
Mam. Nay, by this hand, ’t is true.

1 A learned eccentric of the time.
THE ALCHEMIST

He's one I honour, and my noble friend;
And 1 respect his house.
Sir. Heart! can it be
That a grave sir, a rich, that has no need,
A wise sir, too, at other times, should thus,
With his own oaths, and arguments, make hard means
To gull himself? An this be your elixir,
Your lapis mineralis, and your lunary,
Give me your honest trick yet at primero,
Or gleeck, and take your futum sapiens.
Your menstrum simplex? I'11 have gold before
you,
And with less danger of the quicksilver,
Or the hot sulphur.

[Re-enter FACE.]

FACE. Here's one from Captain FACE, sir. (To SURLY.)
Desires you meet him? I' the Temple-church,
Some half-hour hence, and upon earnest
business.
Sir, (whispers MAMMON) if you please to quit us
now, and come
Again within two hours, you shall have
My master busy examining the works;
And I will steal you in unto the party,
That you may see her converse. — Sir, shall I
say
You'll meet the captain's worship?
SIR. I will. — [Walks aside.] But, by attorney, and to a second purpose.
Now, I am sure it was a bastard-house;
I'll swear it, were the marshal here to thank
me:
The naming this commander doth confirm it.
Don Face! why, he's the most authentic dealer in these commodities, the superintendent
To all the quainter traffickers in town!
He is the visitor, and does appoint
Who lies with whom, and at what hour; what price;
Which gown, and in what smock; what fall;
what tire.6

He will prove, by a third person, to find
The subtleties of this dark labyrinth:
Which if I do discover, dear Sir Mammon,
You'll give your poor friend leave, though no philosopher,
To laugh; for you that are, 'tis thought, shall weep.

FACE. Sir, he does pray you'll not forget.
SIR. I will not, sir.

SIR EPIEURUS, I shall leave you. [Exit]

MAMMON. I follow you straight.
FACE. But do so, good sir, to avoid suspicion.
This gent'man has a parlous head.
MAMMON. But wilt thou, him,
Be constant to thy promise? FACE.
As my life, sir,
MAMMON. And wilt thou insinuate what I am,
And praise me,
And say I am a noble fellow?
FACE. O, what else, sir? 220

And that you'll make her royal with the stone,
An empress? and yourself King of Bantam.
MAMMON. Wilt thou do this?
FACE. Will I, sir!
MAMMON. Lungs, my Lungs!
I love thee.
FACE. Send your stuff, sir, that my master
May busy himself about projection.
MAMMON. Thou'lt witch'd me, rogue; take, go.
[Give him money.]
FACE. Your jack, and, all, sir.
MAMMON. Thou art a villain — I will send my jack,
And the weights too. Slave, I could bite thine ear.
Away, thou dost not care for me.
FACE. Not I, sir!
MAMMON. Come, I was born to make thee, my good wensel, 220
Set thee on a bench, and ha' thee twirl a chain
With the best lord's vermin of 'em all.
FACE. Away, sir.
MAMMON. A count, say, a count palatine —
FACE. Good sir, go.
MAMMON. Shall not advance thee better: no, nor faster.
[Exit.]

SCENE IV.

FACE. [Re-enter SURLY and DOL.] SUBLE.
SUBLE. Has he bit? has he bit?
FACE. And swallow'd, too, my SUBLE. I ha' given him line, and now he plays, 'tis faith.
SUBLE. And shall we twitch him?
FACE. Thorough both the gills.
A wench is a rare bait, with which a man
No sooner's taken, but he straight firks mad.
SUBLE. DOL, my Lord What's-hum's sister, you must now
Bear yourself stoutly.
DOL. O, let me alone,
I'll not forget my race, I warrant you.
I'll keep my distance, laugh and talk aloud;
Have all the tricks of a proud scurvy lady, 20
And be as rude 's her woman.
FACE. Well said, sanguine! 16
SUBLE. But will he send his andirons?
DOL. His jack too,
And 's iron shoeing-horn; I ha' spoke to him.
Well,
I must not lose my wary gamester yonder.
SUBLE. O, Monsieur Caution, that will not be gull'd? 18
FACE. Ay.
If I can strike a fine hook into him, now! —
The Temple-church, there I have cast mine angle.
Well, pray for me. I'll about it.

SUBLE. What, more gudgeons! 7
DOL. scound, scound! [DOL goes to the window.]
Stay, FACE, you must go to the door;
'Pray God it be my anabaptist — Who is 't, Dol?

1 Games at cards.
2 A head-dress.
3 The same.
4 Red cheeks.
5 Buns mad.
6 Easy dupes.
7 A collar, or a veil.
Dol. I know him not: he looks like a gold-end-man. 1

Sub. Gods so! 't is he, he said he would send — what call you him?

The sanctified elder, that should deal =
For Mammon's jack and auditors. Let him in,
Stay, help me off, first, with my gown. [Exit

Face with the gown.] Away,
Madam, to your withdrawing chamber. Now. [Exit Dol.]

[Exit Dol.]

In a new tune, new gesture, but old language.—
This fellow is sent from one negotiates with me
About the stone too, for the holy brethren =
Of Amsterdam, the exil'd saints, that hope
To raise their discipline 2 by it. I must use him
In some strange fashion now, to make him admire me.

SCENE V. 3

Subtle. [Enter] Ananias.

Where is my drudge?

[Aloud.]

[Enter] Face.

Face. Sir!

Sub. Take away the recipient,
And rectify your menstrue from the phlegma,
Then pour it on the Sol, in the cucurbite,
And let 'em macerate together.

Face. Yes, sir.

And save the ground?

Sub. No: terra damnata 4 must not have entrance in the work. — Who are you?

Ana. A faithful brother, 5 if it please you.

Sub. What's that?

A Lullianist?  a Ripley? 6  Filius artis? 7 Can you sublume and dulcify?  Calcine?

Know you the sapor pontic?  Sapor stiptic?  8 Or what is homogene, or heterogene?

Ana. I understand no heathen language, truly.

Sub. Heathen! You Knipperdoling! 8 Is Ares sacra,

Or chrysopoeia, or spagyrica,
Or the paraphysis, or panarchio knowledge, 9
A heathen language?

Ana. Heathen Greek, I take it.

Sub. How! Heathen Greek?

Ana. All's heathen but the Hebrew.

Sub. Sirrah my varlet, stand you forth and speak to him
Like a philosopher: answer i' the language.
Name the vexations, and the martyrizations 10
Of metals in the work.

Face. Sir, putrefaction,
Solution, ablation, sublimation,
Cohabation, calcination, ceration, and Furation.

Sub. This is heathen Greek, to you, now! —
And when comes vivification?

Face. After mortification. =

Sub. What's cohabation?

Face. 'T is the pouring on
Your aqua regis, and then drawing him off,
To the trine circle of the seven spheres.

Sub. What's the proper passion of metals?

Face. Malleation.

Sub. What's your ultimum supplicium auri? 11

Face. Antimonium. =

Sub. This is heathen Greek to you! — And what's your mercury?

Face. A very fugitive, he will be gone, sir.

Sub. How know you him?

Face. By his viscerosity,
His olorosity, and his susciptibility.

Sub. How do you sublume him?

Face. With the calce of egg-shells, =
White marble, tale.

Sub. What's that?

Face. Shifting, sir, your elements,
Dry into cold, cold into moist, moist into hot,
Hot into dry.

Sub. This is heathen Greek to you still!

Your lapis philosophicus?  =

Face. 'T is a stone, =
And not a stone; a spirit, a soul, and a body:
Which if you dissolve, it is dissolv'd;
If you coagulate, it is coagulat'd;
If you make it m to fly, it flieh.

Sub. Enough. [Exit Face.]

This is heathen Greek to you! What are you, sir?

Ana. Please you, a servant of the exil'd brethren,
That deal with widows' and with orphans' goods,
And make a just account unto the saints:
A deacon.

Sub. O, you are sent from Master Wholesome,
Your teacher?

Ana. From Tribulation Wholesome, =
Our very zealous pastor.

Sub. Good! I have
Some orphans' goods to come here.

Ana. Of what kind, sir?

Sub. Pewter and brass, andirons and kitchew-ware.

Metals, that we must use our med'cine on: =
Wherein the brethren may have a penn'orth
For ready money.

Ana. Were the orphans' parents
Sincere professors?

Sub. Why do you ask?

Ana. Because
We then are to deal justly, and give, in truth,
Their utmost value.

Sub. 'Slid, you'd dozen else, =
An if their parents were not of the faithful! —
I will not trust you, now I think on it.
Till I ha' talk'd with your pastor. Ha' you brought money
To buy more coals?

Ana. No, surely.

Sub. No? How so?

Ana. The brethren bid me say unto you, sir,
THE ALCHEMIST

Surely, they will not venture any more
Till they may see projection.
Sub. How!
Ana. You’ve had
For the instruments, as bricks, and lumps, and Already thirty pound; and for materials,
They say, some ninety more: and they have heard since.
That one, at Heidelberg, made it of an egg;
And a small paper of pinch-dust.
Sub. What’s your name?
Ana. My name is Ananias.
Sub. Out, the varlet
That ozen’d the apostles! Hence, away!
Flee, mischief! I had your holy consistency
No name to send me, of another sound
Than wicked Ananias? Send your elders
Hither, to make atonement for you, quickly,
And gi’ me satisfaction; or out goes
The fire; and down th’ alembics, and the furna-ses.

Piger Henricus, or what not. Thou wretch!
Both sericons and bile shall be lost,
Tell ‘em. All hope of rooting out the bishops,
Or th’ anti-Christian hierarchy shall perish,
If they stay three-score minutes: the afinity,
Terreity, and sulphureity
Shall run together again, and all be annul’d, Thou wicked Ananias! [Exit ANANIAS.] This will fetch ‘em,
And make ’em haste towards their gulling more.
A man must deal like a rough nurse, and fright
Those that are froward, to an appetite.

SCENE VI. 1

SUBTLE. [Enter] FACE (in his uniform, followed by) DRUGGER.

Face. He’s busy with his spirits, but we’ll upon him.
Sub. How now! What mates, what Bayards 2
ha’t we here?
Face. I told you he would be furious.—Sir, here’s Nab
Has brought you another piece of gold to look
on;
— We must appease him. Give it me, — and prays you;
You would devise — what is it, Nab?

Drug. A sign, sir.

Face. Ay, a good lucky one, a thriving sign,
doctor.

Sub. I was devising now.

Face. [Aside to Subtle.] ‘Slight, do not say
so,
He will repent he ga’ you any more.—
What say you to his constellation, doctor, 10
The Balance?
Sub. No, that way is stale and common.
A townsmen born in Taurus, gives the bull,
Or the bull’s head: in Aries, the ram.—
A poor-device! No, I will have his name 14
Form’d in some mystic character; whose radii,
Striking the senses of the passers-by,
Shall, by a virtual 8 influence, breed affections,
That may result upon the party owns it:
As thus —

Face. Nab!
Sub. He first shall have a bell, that’s Abel;
And by it standing one whose name is Dee. 4
In a rug’s gown, there’s D, and Rug, that’s drug
And right aneath him a dog snarling or;
There’s Druggier, Abel Druggier. That’s his
sign.
And here’s now mystery and hieroglyphic!

Face. Abel, thou art made.

Drug. Sir, I do thank his worship.

Face. Six o’ thy legs 5 more will not do it,
Nab.

He has brought you a pipe of tobacco, doctor.

Drug. Yes, sir;
I have another thing I would impart —

Face. Out with it, Nab.

Drug. Sir, there is lodg’d, hard by me,
A rich young widow —

Face. Good! a bona roba? 7

Drug. But nineteen at the most.

Face. Very good, Abel.

Drug. Marry, she’s not in fashion yet, she wears
A hood, but ’t stands a cop. 8

Face. No matter, Abel.

Drug. And I do now and then give her a fu-cus 9

Face. What! dost thou deal, Nab?
Sub. I did tell you, captain.

Drug. And physio too, sometime, sir; for which she trusts me
With all her mind. She’s come up here of purpose

To learn the fashion.

Face. Good (his match too!) — On, Nab.

Drug. And she does strangely long to know her fortune.

Face. God’s lid, Nab, send her to the doctor,
hither.

Drug. Yes, I have spoke to her of his worship already;
But she’s afraid it will be blown abroad,
And hurt her a marriage.

Face. Hurt it! ’t is the way
To heal it, if ’t were hurt; to make it more Follow’d and sought. Nab, thou shalt tell her

this.

She’ll be more known, more talk’d of; and your widows
Are ne’er of any price till they be famous;
Their honour is their multitude of suitors.

Send her, it may be thy good fortune. What!
Thou dost not know?

Drug. No, sir, she’ll never marry
Under a knight: her brother has made a vow.

1 The same.
2 Blind horses.
3 Due to the virtue or power of the device.
4 A reference to Dr. Dee, the famous magician and astrologer, who died in 1608.
5 Of coarse frieze.
6 Bows.
7 Handsome wife.
8 Peaked (?) or straight on the top of her head, instead of tilted (?).
9 Paint for her face.
Face. What I and dost thou despair, my little Nab,
Knowing what the doctor has set down for thee,
And seeing so many o’ the city dubb’d? As
One glass o’ thy water, with a madam I know,
Will have it done, Nab. What’s her brother? a knight?

Drug. No, sir, a gentleman newly warm in’s land, sir,
Scarce cold in his one and twenty, that does govern
His sister here; and is a man himself.

Of some three thousand a year, and is come up
To learn to quarrel, and to live by his wits,
And will go down again, and die i’ the country.

Face. How I to quarrel?

Drug. Yes, sir, to carry quarrels,
As gallants do; to manage ’em by fine.

Face. ’Slid, Nab, the doctor is the only man
In Christendom for him. He has made a table,
With mathematical demonstrations;
Touching the art of quarrels: he will give him
An instrument to quarrel by. Go, bring ’em both.

Him and his sister. And, for thee, with her
The doctor happily may persuade. Go to:
’Shalt give his worship a new damask suit
Upon the premises.

Sub. O, good captain!

Face. He shall;
He is the honestest fellow, doctor. Stay not.
No offers; bring the damask, and the partie.

Drug. I’ll try my power, sir.

Face. And thy will too, Nab.

Sub. ’Tis good tobacco, this! What is ’t an ounce?

Face. He’ll send you a pound, doctor.

Sub. O no.

Face. He will do it.
It is the goodest soul! — Abel, about it.
Thou shalt know more anon. Away, be gone.

[Exit Abel]

A miserable rogue, and lives with cheese,
And has the worms. That was the cause, indeed,
Why he came now: he dealt with me in private,

To get a med’cine for ’em.

Sub. And shall, sir. This works.

Face. A wife, a wife for one on’s, my dear Subtle!
We’ll e’en draw lots, and he that fails shall have
The more in goods, the other has in tail.

Sub. Rather the less; for she may be so light
She may want graces.

Face. Ay; or be such a burden.

A man would scarce endure her for the whole.

Sub. Faith, best let ’s see her first, and then determine.

Face. Content: but Dol must ha’ no breath on ’t.

Sub. Mum.

Away you, to your Surly yonder, catch him.

Face. Pray God I ha’ not staid too long.

Sub. I fear it. [Exeunt.]
With a bare fricace ² of your med’cine; still ²
You increase your friends. ²
Tri. Ay, ’tis very pregnant.
Sub. And then the turning of this lawyer’s pewter
To plate at Christmas——
Ana. Christ-tide, I pray you.
Sub. Yet, Anaiaia!
Ana. I have done.
Sub. Or changing
His parcel ² gilt to massy gold. You cannot ²
But raise you friends. Withal, to be of power
To pay an army in the field, to buy
The King of France out of his realms, or Spain
Out of his Indies. What can you not do Against lords spiritual or temporal,
That shall oppose ² you?
Tri. Verily, ’tis true.
We may be temporal lords ourselves, I take it.
Sub. You may be anything, and leave off to make
Long-winded exercises; or suck up
Your ha! and hum! in a tune. I not deny, ²
But such as are not graced in a state,
May, for their ends, be adverse in religion,
And get a tune to call the flock together:
For, to say sooth, a tune does much with women
And other phlegmatic people; it is your bell. ²
Ana. Bells are profane; a tune may be religious.
Sub. No warning with you? Then farewell my patience.
Slight, it shall down; I will not be thus tortur’d.
Tri. I pray you, sir.
Sub. All shall perish. I have spoke it.
Tri. Let me find grace, sir, in your eyes; the
man,
He stands corrected: neither did his zeal,
But as yourself, allow a tune somewhere,
Which now, being tow’rd ² the stone, we shall not need.
Sub. No, nor your holy visard, ² to win widows
To give you legacies; or make zealous wives
To rob their husbands for the common cause:
Nor take the start of bonds broke but one day,
And say they were forfeited by providence.
Nor shall you need o’er night to eat huge meals,
To celebrate your next day’s fast the better; ²
The whilst the brethren and the sisters humbled,
Abate the stiffness of the flesh. Nor cast
Before your hungry hearers scrupulous bones; ²
As whether a Christian may hawk or hunt,
Or whether matrons of the holy assembly
May lay their hair out, or wear doublets,
Or have that idol, starch, about their linen.
Ana. It is indeed an idol.
Tri. Mind him not, sir.
I do command thee, spirit (of zeal, but trouble),
To peace within him! Pray you, sir, go on. ² Sub. Nor shall you need to libel against the prelates,
And shorten so your ears ² against the hearing
² Rubbing. ² Partly. ² Oppose.
² Near possession of. ² Set expression of face.
² The dry bones of discussion on such scruples.
² Have your ears cut off in the pillory.
Of the next wire-drawn grace, Nor of necessity Rail against plays, to please the alderman Whose daily custard you devour; nor lie With zealos ragil till you are hoarse. Not one Of these so singular arts. Nor call yourselves By names of Tribulation, Persecution, Restraint, Long-patience, and such like, affected By the whole family or wood 1 of you, Only for glory, and to catch the ear Of the disciple.

Tri. Truly, sir, they are Ways that the godly brethren have invented, For propagation of the glorious cause, As very notable means, and whereby also Themselves grow soon, and profitably, famous.

Sub. O, but the stone, all's idle to't! Nothing! The art of angels, nature's miracle, The divine secret that doth fly in clouds From east to west: and whose tradition Is not from men, but spirits.

Ana. I hate traditions; I do not trust them —

Tri. Peace!

Ana. They are popish all.

Tri. I will not peace: I will not —

Ana. Please the profane, to grieve the godly; I may not.

Sub. Well, Ananias, thou shalt overcome, 116

Tri. It is an ignorant zeal that haunts him, sir: But truly else a very faithful brother, A butcher, 3 and a man by revelation That hath a competent knowledge of the truth.

Sub. Has he a competent sum there? 4 the bag To buy the goods within? I am made guardian, And must, for charity and conscience' sake, Now see the most be made for my poor orphan; Though I desire the brethren, too, good gainers: There they are within. When you have look'd and bought 'em, 120

And take the inventory of what they are, They are ready for projection; there's no more To do: cast on the med'cine, so much silver As there is tin there, so much gold as brass, I'll gi' it you in by weight.

Tri. But how long time, 125

Sir, must the saints expect yet?

Sub. How's the moon now? Eight, nine, ten days hence.

He will be silver potato; then three days Before he citronise. 8 Some fifteen days, The magisterium 4 will be perfected. 120

Ana. About the second day of the third week, In the ninth month?

Sub. Yes, my good Ananias.

Tri. What will the orphans' goods arise to, think you?

Scene III.

Sub. Some hundred marks, as much as fill'd three ears, Unlaid now: you'll make six millions of 'em——

But I must ha' more coals laid in.

Tri. How?

Sub. Another load.

And then we ha' finish'd. We must now increase

Our fire to ignis ardens; 6 we are past

Fimus equinax, balnei, ciniris. 6 And all those lenter 1 heats. If the holy purse Should with this draught fall low, and that the saints

Do need a present sum, I have a trick

To melt the pewer, you shall buy now instantly, And with a tincture make you a good Dutch dollar As any are in Holland.

Tri. Can you so?

Sub. Ay, and shall bide the third examination.

Ana. It will be joyful tidings to the brethren.

Sub. But you must carry it secret.

Tri. Ay; but stay,

This act of coining, is it lawful?

Ana. Lawful!

We know no magistrate: or, if we did, This 's foreign coin.

Sub. It is no coining, sir.

It is but casting.

Tri. Ha! you distinguish well:

Casting of money may be lawful.

Ana. Tis, sir.

Tri. Truly, I take it so.

Sub. There is no scruple, Sir, to be made of it; believe Ananias; This case of conscience he is studied in.

Tri. I'll make a question of it to the brethren.

Ana. The brethren shall approve it lawful, doubt not.

Where shall 't be done?

Sub. For that we'll talk anon. Knock without.

There's some to speak with me. Go in, I pray you,

And view the parcels. That's the inventory.

I'll come to you straight. [Exeunt Tain. and Ana.] Who is it? — Face! appear.

---

1 Assembly.
2 Tailor. But the term was used generally of Puritans.
3 Become the color of citron—a stage in the process of producing the stone.
4 Full accomplishment.
All day, for one that will not yield us grains?
I know him of old.

Sub. O, but to ha' gall'd him,
Had been a mastery.

Face. Let him go, black boy!
And turn thee, that some fresh news may possess thee.

A noble count, a don of Spain (my dear)
Delicious compley, and my party—bawd,
Who is come hither private for his conscience
And brought munition with him, six great slops,
Bigger than three Dutch hoy's, beside round trunks,
Furnish'd with pistolets, and pieces of eight,
Will straight be here, my rogne, to have thy bath,
(That is the colour,!) to make his batt'ry
Upon our Dol, our castle, our cinqueport.
Our Dover pier, our what thou wilt. Where is she?
She must prepare perfumes, delicate linen,
The bath in chief, a banquet, and her wit,
Where is the doxy?

Sub. I'll send her to thee:
And but despatch my brace of little John Ley-
And come again myself.

Face. Are they within then?
Sub. Numbr'ing the sum.

Face. How much?
Sub. A hundred marks, boy. [Exit.]

Face. Why, this is a lucky day. Ten pounds of Mammon!

Three o' my clerk! A portague o' my grocer!
This o' the brethren! Beside reversions
And states to come, 'tis the widow, and my count!
My share to-day will not be bought for forty—

[Enter Dol.]

Dol. What?

Face. Pounds, dainty Dorothy! Art thou so near?

Dol. Yes; say, lord general, how fares our camp?

Face. As with the few that had entrench'd themselves
Safe, by their discipline, against a world, Dol,
And laugh'd within those trenches, and grew fat
With thinking on the booties, Dol, brought in Daily by their small parties. This dear hour,
A doughty don is taken with my Dol;
And then mayst make his ransom what thou wilt.

My Douzabel; he shall be brought here, fester'd
With thy fair looks, before he sees thee; and thrown
In a down-bed, as dark as any dungeon;

Where thou shalt keep him waking with thy drum;
Thy drum, my Dol, thy drum; till he be tame
As the poor blackbirds were i' the great frost,
Or bees are with a bason; and so hive him

I'th swan-skin coverlid and cambric sheets.
Till he work honey and wax, my little God's gift.

Dol. What is he, general?

Face. An adalantado.

A grandee, girl. Was not my Dapper here yet?

Dol. No.
Face. Nor my Druggar?

Dol. Neither.

Face. A pox on 'em,
They are so long a furnishing! such stinkards
Would not be seen upon these festival days.—

[Re-enter Subtle.]

How now! ha' you done?

Sub. Done. They are gone: the sum
Is here in bank, my face. I would we knew
Another chapman who would buy 'em outright.

Face. 'Slid, Nab shall do 't against he ha' the widow,
To furnish household.

Sub. Excellent, well thought on:
Pray God he come.

Face. I pray he keep away
Till our new business be o'ertast.

Sub. But, Face. How canst thou by this secret don?

Face. A spirit
Brought me th' intelligence in a paper here,
As I was conjuring yonder in my circle
For Surly; I ha' my flies abroad. Your bath
Is famous, Subtle, by my means. Sweet Dol,
You must go tune your virginal, no losing
O' the least time. And — do you hear? — good action

Firk like a flounder; kiss like a scallop, close;
And tickle him with thy mother-tongue. His great Verdugoship  has not a jot of language;

So much the easier to be cozen'd, my Dolly.
He will come here in a hir'd coach, obscure,
And our own coachman, whom I have sent as guide,
No creature else. (One knocks.) Who's that?

Sub. [Exit Dol.]

Face. O no, not yet this hour.

[Re-enter Dol.]

Sub. Who is t'?

Dol. Your clerk.

Face. God's will then, Queen of Fairy,
On with your tire; [Exit Dol.] and, doctor, with your robes.
Let's despatch him for God's sake.

Sub. 'T will be long.
Face. I warrant you, take but the cues I give you.
It shall be brief enough. [Goes to the window.]
"Slight, here's more!"
Abel, and I think the angry boy, the heir,
That fain would quarrel.
Sub. And the widow?
Face. No.
Not that I see. Away! [Exit Sub.]

SCENE IV.

FACE. [Enter DAFFER.]

Face. O, sir, you are welcome.
The doctor is within a moving for you;
I have had the most ado to win him to it! —
He sweares you 'll be the darling o' the dice;
He never heard his highness dote till now.
your aunt has giv'n you the most gracious words that can be thought on.
Dap. Shall I see her grace?
Face. See her, and kiss her too.—
[Enter Abel, followed by Kastril.]

What, honest Nab?
Hast brought the damask?
Nab. No, sir; here's tobacco.
Face. 'Tis well done, Nab; thou'lt bring the damask too?
Drug. Yes. Here's the gentleman, captain,
Master Kastril.
I have brought to see the doctor.
Face. Where's the widow?
Drug. Sir, as he likes, his sister, he says, shall come.
Face. O, is it so? Good time. Is your name
Kastril, sir?
Kas. Ay, and the best o' the Kastrils, I'd be sorry else.
By fifteen hundred a year. Where is this doctor?
My mad tobacco-boy here tells me of one
That can do things. Has he any skill?
Face. Wherin, sir? Kas. To carry a business, manage a quarrel fairly,
Upon fit terms.
Face. It seems, sir, you're but young.
About the town, that can make that a question.
Kas. Sir, not so young but I have heard some speech
Of the angry boys, and seen 'em take tobacco;
And in his shop; and I can take it too.
And I would fain be one of 'em, and go down
And practise i' the country.
Face. Sir, for the duello. The doctor, I assure you, shall inform you,
To the least shadow of a hair; and show you
An instrument he has of his own making,
Wherewith, no sooner shall you make report
Of any quarrel, but he will take the height on't
Most instantly, and tell in what degree

1 The same.  9 Follo adds (he says).
2 i. e. he is £1500 a year richer than any other of the Kastrils.
3 Boysters, young bloods.

Of safety it lies in, or mortality.
And how it may be borne, whether in a right line,
Or a half circle; or may else be cast
Into an angle, blunt, if not acute;
And this he will demonstrate. And then, rules
To give and take the lie by.
Kas. How! to take it?
Face. Yes, in oblique he 'll show you, or in circle;
But ne'er in diameter. The whole town
Study his theorems, and dispute them ordinarily
At the eating academies.
Kas. But does he teach
Living by the wits too?
Face. Anything whatever.
You cannot think that subtlety but he reads it.
He made me a captain. I was a stark pinp,
Just o' your standing, 'fore I met with him;
It 's not two months since. I'll tell you his method:
First, he will enter you at some ordinary.
Kas. No, I'll not come there: you shall pardon me.
Face. For why, sir?
Kas. There's gaming there, and tricks.
Face. Why, would you be
A gallant, and not game?
Kas. Ay, 't will spend a man.
Face. Spend you! It will repair you when you are spent.
How do they live by their wits there, that have vented
Six times your fortunes?
Kas. What, three thousand a year!
Face. Ay, forty thousand.
Kas. Are there such?
Face. Ay, sir,
And gallants yet. Here's a young gentleman Is born to nothing,—[Points to Dapper.] forty marks a year
Which I count nothing: — he's to be initiated,
And have a fly o' the doctor. He will win you
By irresistible luck, within this fortnight,
Enough to buy a barony. They will set him Upmost, at the groom porter's, all the Christmas:
And for the whole year through at every place Where there is play, present him with the chair,
The best attendance, the best drink, sometimes
Two glasses of Canary, and pay nothing;
The purest linen and the sharpest knife,
The partridge next his treasurers: and somewhere
The dainty bed, in private, with the dainty.
You shall ha' your ordinaries bid for him,
As playhouses for a poet; and the master
Pray him aloud to name what dish he affects,
Which must be butter'd shrimps: and those that drink
To no mouth else, will drink to his, as being
The godly president month of all the board.
Kas. Do you not gull one?

1 The lie circumstantial.  6 The lie direct.
7 An officer of the royal household, having charge of the cards, dice, etc. He had the privilege of keeping open table at Christmas.
III. V.

THE ALCHEMIST

347

Face. 'Ods my life! Do you think it? You shall have a cast commander, (can but get in credit with a glover, or a spurrer, For some two pair of either's ware aforesight.) Will, by most swift poets, dealing [but] with him, 80

Arrive at competent means to keep himself, His punk, and naked boy, in excellent fashion, And be admir'd for 't.

Kas. Will the doctor teach this?

Face. He will do more, sir: when your land is gone,
(As men of spirit hate to keep earth long),
In a vacation, when small money is stirring,
And ordinary suspended till the term,
He'll show a perspective, where on one side You shall behold the faces and the persons
Of all sufficient young heirs in town,
Whose bonds are current for commodity; On th' other side, the merchants' forms, and others.

That without help of any second broker,
Who would expect a share, will trust such parcels:
In the third square, the very street and sign
Where the commodity dwells, and does but wait.
To be deliver'd, be it pepper, soap,
Hops, or tobacco, oatmeal, wo'd, 4 or cheeses. All which you may so handle, to enjoy
To your own use, and never stand oblig'd.

Kas. I'th faith! is he such a fellow?

Face. Why, Nab here knows him. And then for making matches for rich widows, Young gentlewomen, heirs, the fortunate man!

He's sent to, far and near, all over England,
To have his counsel, and to know their fortunes.

Kas. God's will, my master shall see him.

Face. I'll tell you, sir, What he did tell me of Nab. It's a strange thing—(By the way, you must eat no cheese, Nab, it breeds melancholy, And that same melancholy breeds worms) but

He told me, honest Nab here was ne'er at tavern
But once in his life.

Drug. Truth, and no more I was not.

Face. And then he was so sick

Drug. Could he tell you that too?

Face. How should I know it?

Drug. In troth, we had been a shooting,
And had a piece of fat ram-mutton to supper,
That lay so heavy o' my stomach—

Face. And he has no head isf
To bear any wine; for what with the noise o' the fiddlers,
And care of his shop, for he dares keep no servants—

Drug. My head did so ache—

Face. As he was fain to be brought home.
The doctor told me: and then a good old woman—

Drug. Yes, faith, she dwells in Seacol-lane, —did cure me.

With sodden ale, and pellitory of the wall; Cost me but twopence. I had another sickness
Was worse than that.

Face. Ay, that was with the grief
Thou took'st for being cess'd at eighteen-pence,
For the waterwork.

Drug. In truth, and it was like Th' I've costs me almost my life.

Face. Thy hair went off?

Drug. Yes, sir; 't was done for spite.

Face. Nay, so says the doctor.

Kas. Pray thee, tobacco-boy, go fetch my master;
I'll see this learned boy before I go;
And so shall she.

Face. Sir, he is busy now:
But if you have a sister to fetch hither,
Perhaps your own pains may command her sooner;
And he by that time will be free.

Kas. I go. [Exit.]

Face. Dragger, she's thine: the damask! —

[Exit Abel.] Subtle and I

Must wrestle for her. [Aside.] Come on, Master Dapper,

You see how I turn clients here away,
To give your cause dispatch; ha' you perform'd
The ceremonies were enjoind you?

Dap. Yes, o' the vinegar,
And the clean shirt.

Face. 'T is well: that shirt may do you
More worship than you think. Your aunt's a fire,
But that she will not show it, t' have a sight of you.

Ha' you provided for her grace's servants?

Dap. Yes, here are six score Edward shillings.

Face. Good!

Dap. And an old Harry's sovereign.

Face. Very good!

Dap. And three James shillings, and an

Elizabeth groat.

Just twenty nobles.

Face. O, you are too just.

I would you had had the other noble in Maries.

Dap. I have some Philip and Maries.

Face. Ay, those same
Are best of all: where are they? Hark, the doctor.

SCENE V.

FACE. DAPPER. [Enter]. SUBTLE, disguised like a priest of Fairy [with a strip of cloth].

Sub. [in a feigned voice.] Is yet her grace's cousin come?

Face. He is come.

Sub. And is he fasting?
Face. Yes.
Sub. And hath cried "hum"?
Face. Thrice, you must answer.
Dap. Thrice.
Sub. And as oft "buz"?
Face. If you have, say.
Dap. I have.
Sub. Then, to her eze,
Hoping that he hath vinegar'd his senses,
As he was bid, the Fairy queen dispenses,
By me, this robe, the petticote of Fortune;
Which that he straight put on, she doth importune.
And though to Fortune near be her petticote,
Yet nearer is her smock, the queen doth note;
And therefore, even of that a piece she hath sent,
Which, being a child, to wrap him in was rent;
And prays him for a scarf; he now will wear it,
With as much love as then her grace did tear it,
About his eyes, (They blind him with the ray,) to show he is fortunate.
And, trusting unto her to make his state,
He'll throw away all worldly pelf about him;
Which that he will perform, she doth not doubt him.
Face. She need not doubt him, sir. Alas, he has nothing
But what he will part withal as willingly,
Upon her grace's word — throw away your purse
As she would ask it: — handkerchiefs and all
She cannot bid that thing but he'll obey. —
If you have a ring about you, cast it off,
Or a silver seal at your wrist; her grace will send (He throws away, as they bid him.)
Her fairies here to search you, therefore deal Directly with her highness; if they find
That you conceal a mite, you are undone.
Dap. Truly, there's all.
Face. All what?
Dap. My money; truly.
Face. Keep nothing that is transitory about you.
[Aside to Subtle.] Bid Dol play music. — Look,
the elves are come
Dol. enters with a cittern.
To pinch you, if you tell not the truth. Advise you.
They pinch him.
Dap. O! I have a paper with a spur-ryal in 't.
Face. Ti, ti, ti, ti.
They know 't, they say.
Sub. Ti, ti, ti, ti. He has more yet.
Face. Ti, ti-ti-ti, 't the other pocket?
Sub. Titi, tii-ti, tii-titi. They must pinch him or he will never confess, they say.
[They pinch him again.
Dap. O, O!
Face. Nay, pray you, hold: he is her grace's nephew
Ti, ti? What care you? Good faith, you shall care.
Deal plainly, sir, and shame the fairies. Show
You are innocent.

Dap. By this good light, I ha' nothing.
Sub. Ti, ti, ti, ti, to, ta. He does equivocate
she says:
Ti, ti do, ti ti do, ti da; and swears by the light when he is blinded.
Dap. By this good dark, I ha' nothing but a half-crown
Of gold about my wrist, that my love gave me;
And a leaden heart I wore 'sin' she foresook me.
Face. I thought 't was something. And would you incur Your aunt's displeasure for these trifles? Come, I had rather you had thrown away twenty-half crowns. [Takes it off.]
You may wear your leaden heart still. — How now!
Sub. What news, Dol?
Dol. Yonder's your knight, Sir Mammon.
Face. God's lid, we never thought of him till now!
Where is he?
Sub. Here hard by. He's at the door. And you are not ready now! Dol, get his suit. [Exit Dol.]
He must not be sent back.
Face. O, by no means. What shall we do with this same puffin? Here, now he's o' the spit?
[Re-enter Dol with Face's clothes.]
— Ti, ti, ti, ti, ti, ti. Would her grace speak with me?
I come. — Help, Dol! Knocking without.
Face. (speaks through the keyhole.) — Who's there? Sir Epicure,
My master's i' the way. Please you to walk Three or four turns, but till his back be turn'd,
And I am for you. — Quickly, Dol! Sub.
Her grace Commends her kindly to you, Master Dapper.
Dap. I long to see her grace.
Sub. She now is set
At dinner in her bed, and she has sent you From her own private trencher, a dead mouse, And a piece of gingerbread, to be merry withal, And stay your stomach, lest you faint with fasting:
Yet if you could hold out till she saw you, she says,
It would be better for you.
Face. Sir, he shall Hold out, an 't were these two hours, for her highness;
I can assure you that. We will not lose
All we ha' done. —
Sub. He must not see, nor speak
To anybody, till then.
Face. For that we 'll put, sir, A stay in's mouth.
Thus far, shall not now crinkle 1 for a little. —
Gape, sir, and let him fit you.

[They thrust a gag of gingerbread into his mouth.]

Sub. — Where shall we now
Bestow him?

Dol. I' the privy. —

Sub. Come along, sir. 6
I must now show you Fortune's privy lodgings.

Face. Are they perfum'd, and his bath ready?

Sub. All:

Only the fumigation's somewhat strong.

Face. [speaking through the keyhole.] Sir Epicure, I am yours, sir, by and by.

[Exeunt with Dapper.]

ACT IV

SCENE I. 8

[Enter] Face and Mammon.

Face. O, sir, you're come i' the only finest time. —

Mam. Where's master?

Face. Now preparing for projection, sir.

Your stuff will be all chang'd shortly.

Mam. Into gold?

Face. To gold and silver, sir.

Mam. Silver I care not for.

Face. Yes, sir, a little to give beggars.

Mam. Where's the lady? 7

Face. At hand here. I ha' told her such brave things o' you, Touching your bounty and your noble spirit —

Mam. Hast thou?

Face. As she is almost in her fit to see you.

But, good sir, no divinity i' the conference,

For fear of putting her in rage. —

Mam. I warrant thee. 10

Face. Six men [sir] will not hold her down.

And then,

If the old man should hear or see you —

Mam. Fear not.

Face. The very house, sir, would run mad.

You know it,

How scrupulous he is, and violent,

'Gainst the least act of sin. Physio or mathematics,

Poetry, state, 8 or bawdry, as I told you,

She will endure, and never startle; but

No word of controversy.

Mam. I am school'd, good Sir, 9

Face. And you must praise her house, remember that,

And her nobility.

Mam. Let me alone: 10

No herald, no, nor antiquary, Lungs,

Shall do it better. Go.

Face. [Aside.] Why, this is yet
A kind of modern happiness, 4 to have

Dol Common for a great lady.  [Exit.]

Mam. Now, Epicure, 6

Heighten thyself, talk to her all in gold; 8

Rain her as many showers as Jove did drops
Unto his Danaë; show the god a miser,

Compa'rd with Mammon. What! the stone will do't.

She shall feel gold, taste gold, hear gold, asleep gold;

Nay, we will concumbe gold: I will be puissant,

And mighty in my talk to her. —

[Re-enter Face with Dol. richly dressed.]

Here she comes. 8

Face. To him, Dol, suckle him. This is the noble knight

I told your ladyship —

Mam. Madam, with your pardon,

I kiss your vesture.

Dol. Sir, I were uncivil

If I would suffer that; my lip to you, sir. 8

Mam. I hope my lord your brother be in health, lady.

Dol. My lord my brother is, though I no lady,

sir.

Face. [Aside.] Well said, my Guinea bird.

Mam. Right noble madam —

Face. [Aside.] O, we shall have most fierce idolatry.

Mam. 'Tis your prerogative.

Dol. Rather your courtesy. 8

Mam. Were there nought else t' enhance your virtues to me,

These answers speak your breeding and your blood.

Dol. Blood we boast none, sir; a poor baron's dughter.

Mam. Poor! and gat you? Profane not. Had your father

Slept all the happy remnant of his life 9

After that act, lien but there still, and parted,

He 'd done enough to make himself, his issue,

And his posterity noble.

Dol. Sir, although

We may be said to want the gift and trappings,

The dress of honour, yet we strive to keep 8

The seeds and the materials.

Mam. I do see

The old ingredient, virtue, was not lost,

Nor the drug money us'd to make your compound.

There is a strange nobility i' the eye.

This lip, that chin! Methinks you do resemble

One o' the Austrian princes.

Face. [Aside.] Very like! 8

Her father was an Irish costermonger.

Mam. The house of Valois just had such a nose,

And such a forehead yet the Medici!

Of Florence boast.

Dol. Trutl, and I have been lik'ned 8

To all these princes.

Face. [Aside.] I' ll be sworn, I heard it.

Mam. I know not how! it is not any one,

But e'en the very choice of all their features.

Face. [Aside.] I' ll in, and laugh.  [Exit.]

Mam. A certain touch, or air,

That sparkles a divinity beyond

An earthly beauty!

Dol. O, you play the courtier.
Mam. Good lady, gi' me leave —

Dol. In faith, I may not,

To mock me, sir.

Mam. To burn i' this sweet flame;
The phoenix never knew a nobler death.

Dol. Nay, now you court the courtier, and destroy

What you would build. This art, sir, i' your words,

Calls your whole faith in question.

Mam. Hy my soul —

Dol. Nay, oaths are made o' the same air, sir.

Mam. Nature

Never bestow'd upon mortality

A more unblam'd, a more harmonious feature;

She playd the step-dame in all faces else:

Sweet madam, le' me be particular —

Dol. Particular, sir! I pray you, know your distance.

Mam. In no ill sense, sweet lady: but to ask

How your fair graces pass the hours? I see so

You're lodg'd here, i' the house of a rare man,

An excellent artist: but what's that to you?

Dol. Yes, sir; I study here the mathematics,

And distillation.

Mam. O, I cry your pardon.

He's a divine instructor! can extract

The souls of all things by his art; call all

The virtues, and the miracles of the sun,

Into a tempest furnace; teach dull nature

What her own forces are. A man, the empir'or

Has courted above Kelly; sent his medals

And chains, t' invite him.

Dol. Ay, and for his physic, sir —

Mam. Above the art of Aesculapius,

That drew the envy of the thunderer!

I know all this, and more.

Dol. Troth, I am taken, sir,

Whole with these studies that contemplate nature.

Mam. It is a noble humour; but this form

Was not intended to so dark a use.

Had you been crooked, foul, of some coarse mould,

A cloister had done well; but such a feature,

That might stand up the glory of a kingdom,

To live recluse is a mere solemnis.

Though in a nursery. It must not be,

I muse, my lord your brother will permit it;

You should spend half my land first, were I he.

Does not this diamond better on my finger

Than i' the quarry?

Dol. Yes.

Mam. Why, you are like it.

You were created, lady, for the light.

Here, you shall wear it; take it, the first pledge

Of what I speak, to bind you to believe me.

Dol. In chains of adamant?

Mam. Yes, the strongest bands.

And take a secret too. — Here, by your side,

Doth stand this hour the happiest man in Europe.

Dol. You are contented, sir?

Mam. Nay, in true being,

The envy of princes and the fear of states.

Mam. Say you so, Sir Epicure?

Dol. Yes, and thou shalt prove it,

Daughter of honour. I have cast mine eyes

Upon thy form, and I will rear this beauty

Above all styles.

Dol. You mean no treason, sir?

Mam. No, I will take away that jealousy.

I am the lord of the philosopher's stone,

And thou the lady.

Dol. How, sir! ha' you that?

Mam. I am the master of the mystery.

This day the good old wretch here o' the house

Has made it for us: now he's at projection.

Think therefore thy first wish now, let me hear

it;

And it shall rain into thy lap, no shower,

But floods of gold, whole catarracts, a deluge

To get a nation on thee.

Dol. You are pleas'd, sir,

To work on the ambition of our sex.

Mam. I am pleas'd the glory of her sex should know.

This nook here of the Friars is no climate

For her to live obsecrably in, to learn

Physic and surgery, for the constable's wife,

Of some odd hundred in Essex; but come forth,

And taste the air of palaces; eat, drink

The toils of empirics, and their boasted practice;

Tracture of pearl, and coral, gold, and amber;

Be seen at feasts and triumphs; have it ask'd,

What miracle she is; set all the eyes

Of court a-fire, like a burning glass,

And work 'em into cinders, when the jewels

Of twenty states adorn thee, and the light

Strikes out the stars that, when thy name is mention'd,

Queens may look pale; and, we but showing our

love,

Nero's Poppaea may be lost in story!

Thus will we have it.

Dol. I could well consent, sir.

But in a monarchy, how will this be?

The prince will soon take notice, and both seize

You and your stone, it being a wealth unfit

For any private subject.

Mam. If he knew it.

Dol. Yourself do boast it, sir.

Mam. To thee, my life.

Dol. O, but beware, sir! You may come to end

The remnant of your days in a loath'd prison,

By speaking of it.

Mam. 'Tis no idle fear.

We'll therefore go with all, my girl, and live

In a free state, where we will sat our mullets,

Sous'd in high-country wines, sup pheasant's eggs,

And have our coxkles boil'd in silver shells;

Our shrimps to swim again, as when they liv'd,

In a rare butter made of dolphins' milk,

Whose cream does look like opals; and with these

Delicate meats set ourselves high for pleasure,

And take us down again, and then renew

1 The art of transmutation.
Our youth and strength with drinking the elixir,
And so enjoy a perpetuity
Of life and lust! And thou shalt ha’ thy wardrobe
Richer than Nature’s, still to change thyself,
And vary oft’ner, for thy pride, than she,
Or Art, her wise and almost-equal servant.

[Re-enter Face.]

Face. Sir, you are too loud. I hear you every word.
Into the laboratory. Some fitter place;
The garden, or great chamber above. How like you her?

Mam. Excellent! Lungs. There’s for thee.

[Give him money.]

Face. But do you hear?

Good sir, beware, no mention of the rabbins.
Mam. We think not on ‘em.

[Excunt Mam. and Doll.]

Face. O, it is well, sir. — Subtle!

Scene II. 1

Face. [Enter] Subtle.

Dost thou not laugh?
Sub. Yes; are they gone?
Face. All’s clear.
Sub. The widow is come.
Face. And your quarreling disciple?
Sub. Ay.
Face. I must to my captainship again then.
Sub. Stay, bring ’em in first.
Face. So I meant. What is she?
A bonnibel?
Sub. I know not.
Face. We’ll draw lots: 2
You’ll stand to that?
Sub. What else?
Face. O, for a suit,
To fall now like a curtain, flap!
Sub. To th’ door, man.
Face. You’ll ha’ the first kiss, ’cause I am not ready.

[Exit.]

Sub. Yes, and perhaps hit you through both the nostrils. 3

Face. [within.] Who would you speak with?
Kas. [within.] Where’s the captain?
Face. [within.] Gone, sir,
About some business.

Kas. [within.] Gone!
Face. [within.] He’ll return straight.
But, master doctor, his lieutenant, is here.

[Enter Kasriel, followed by Dame Pliant.]

Sub. Come near, my worshipful boy, my terrae fili,
That is, my boy of land; make thy approaches: Welcome, I know thy lusts and thy desires, 4
And I will serve and satisfy ’em. Begin,
Charge me from thence, or thence, or in this line;
Here is my centre: ground thy quarrel.

Kas. You lie.

Sub. How, child of wrath and anger! the loud lie?
For what, my sudden boy?

Kas. Nay, that look you to, 5
I am aforehand.
Sub. O, this is no true grammar,
And as ill logic! You must render causes, child,
Your first and second intentions, know your canons
And your divisions, moods, degrees, and differences,
Your predicaments, substance, and accident, 6
Series extern and intern, with their causes,
Efficient, material, formal, final,
And ha’ your elements perfect?

Kas. What is this?
The angry tongue he talks in?

Sub. That false precept,
Of being aforehand, has deserv’d a number, 7
And made ’em enter quarrells oftentimes
Before they were aware; and afterward,
Against their wills.

Kas. How must I do then, sir?

Sub. I cry this lady mercy; she should first
Have been saluted. (Kisses her.) I do call you lady,
Because you are to be one ere’t be long,
My soft and buxom widow.

Kas. Is she, i’ faith?

Sub. Yes, or my art is an egregious liar.

Kas. How know you?

Sub. By inspection on her forehead, 8
And subtlety of her lip, which must be tasted
Often to make a judgment. (Kisses her again.)
‘Slight, she melts
Like a myrobalane. 4 Here is yet a line,
In rivo frontis, 6 tells me he is no knight.

Dame P. What is he then, sir?

Sub. Let me see your hand.
O, your linea fortunae makes it plain;

And stella here in monte Veneris.
But, most of all, junctura annularis. 6
He is a soldier, or a man of art, lady,
But shall have some great honour shortly.

Dame P. Brother,
He’s a rare man, believe me!

[Re-enter Face, in his uniform.]

Kas. Hold your peace. 5
Here comes t’ other rare man. — ’Save you, captain.

Face. Good Master Kasriel! Is this your sister?

Kas. Ay, sir.

Please you to kuss her, and be proud to know her.

Face. I shall be proud to know you, lady.

Dame P. 5 Brother,
He calls me lady, too.

Kas. Ay, peace; I heard it. 5

[Takes her aside.]

1 Swaggering.
2 A kind of dried plum, esteemed as a sweetmost.
3 Frontal vein.
4 These are the cant phrases of palmistry.
SCENE III.

[Enter FACE.]

FACE. Where are you, doctor?

SUB. What do you say?

FACE. Ha' you disposed of them?

SUB. I ha' sent 'em up.

FACE. Subtle, in troth, I needs must have this widow.

SUB. Is that the matter?

FACE. Nay, but hear me.

SUB. Go to.

If you rebel once, Dol shall know it all: Therefore be quiet, and obey your chance.

FACE. Nay, thou art so violent now. Do but conceive, Thou art old, and cannot serve —

SUB. Who cannot? I?

'Slight, I will serve her with thee, for a ——

FACE. Nay,

But understand: I 'll gi' you composition.

SUB. I will not treat with thee. What! sell my fortune?

'T is better than my birthright. Do not murmur: Win her, and carry her. If you grumble, Dol knows it directly.

FACE. Well, sir, I am silent.

Will you go help to fetch in Don in state?

[Exit.]
THE ALCHEMIST

IV. iv.

And then he will not pay, not half so well. Th's as a traffl'd punk-master, and does know All the delays; a notable hot rascal, And looks already rampant.

Sub. 'Sdeath, and Mammon
Must not be troubled.

Face. Mammon! I in no case.

Sub. What shall we do then? Face. Think: you must be sudden.7

Sur. Entiendo que la señora es tan hermosa, que codicia tan a verla como la bien aventurada de mi vida.3

Face. Mi vida! 'Slight, Subtle, he puts me in mind o' the widow.

What doth thou say to draw her to't, ha? And tell her 'tis her fortune? All our venture Now lies upon 't. It is but one man more, Which on's chance to have her: and beside, There is no maidenhead to be fear'd or lost?

What dost thou think on? Subtle?

Face. The credit of our house too is en-gaged.8

Sub. You made me an offer for my share ere-while.

What wilt thou gi' me, i' faith?

Face. O, by that light I'll not bay now. You know your doom to me. Can take your lot, obey your chances, sir; win her.

And wear her — out for me.

Sub. 'Slight, I'll not work her then.

Face. It is the common cause: therefore be-think you. Dol else must know it, as you said.

Sub. I care not.

Face. That's now no reason, sir.

Sur. Puede ser de hacer burla de mi amor?9

Face. You hear the Don too? By this air I call,
And loose the hinges. Doll!

Sub. A plague of hell —

Face. Will you then do?

Sub. You're a terrible rogue! I'll think of this. Will you, sir, call the widow? Face. Yes, and I'll take her too with all her faults.

Now I do think on't better.

Sub. With all my heart, sir;

Am I discharg'd o' the lot?

Face. As you please.

Sub. Hands. [They shake hands.] Face. Remember now, that upon any change You never claim her.

Sub. Much good joy and health to you, sir. Marry a whore! Fate, let me wed a witch first. Sur. Por estas honradas barbas? — Sub. He swears by his beard.

Dispatch, and call the brother too. [Exit Face.] Sur. Tengo duda, señores, que no me hagan alguna traccion.10 Sub. How, issue on? Yes, praesto, senor. Please you Entratha the chambratha, worthy don: Where if you please the fates, in your bathada, You shall be soak'd, and strok'd, and tupp'd, And scrubb'd, and fubb'd,9 dear don, before you go.

You shall in faith, my scurvy baboon don, Be carried, claw'd, and flaw'd, and taw'd, indeed. I will the heartier go about it now, And make the widow a punk so much the sooner:

To be reveng'd on this impetuous Face: The quickly doing of it is the grace.

[Exit Sub. and Subly.]

SCENE IV.12

[Enter] Face, Kastrill, and Dame Pliant.

[Face.] Come, lady: I knew the doctor would not leave Till he had found the very nick of her fortune. Kas. To be a countess, say you? [Face.] A Spanish countess, sir. Dame P. Why, is that better than an English countess? Face. Better! 'Slight, make you that a ques-tion, lady? Kas. Nay, she is a fool, captain, you must pardon her.

Face. Ask from your courtier to your inns-of-court-man,

To your mere milliner; they will tell you all,
Your Spanish jennet is the best horse; your Spanish Stoop is the best garb; your Spanish beard Is the best cut; your Spanish ruffs are the best Wear; your Spanish pav'n the best dance;
Your Spanish titillation in a glove
The best perfume: and for your Spanish pike, And Spanish blade, let your poor captain speak.—

Here comes the doctor.

[Enter Subtle with a paper.]

Sub. My most honour'd lady, For so I am now to style you, having found

7 “By this honored beard —”
8 “I fear, sir, that you are playing me some trick.”
9 Cheated.
10 Cracked.
11 Soaked, like a hide being tanned.
12 Another room in the same.
13 Folio gives this line also to Kastrill.
14 Bodily carriage.
By this my scheme, you are to undergo
An honourable fortune very shortly.
What will you say now, if some —

Face. I ha' told her all, sir,
And her right worshipful brother here, that she shall be
A countess; do not delay 'em, sir; a Spanish countess.

Sub. Still, my scarce-worshipful captain, you can keep
No secret! Well, since he has told you, madam,
Do you forgive him, and I do.

Kas. She shall do that, sir; —
I'll look to it; 'tis my charge.

Sub. Well then: nought rests
But that she fit her love now to her fortune.

Dame P. Truly I shall never brook a Spaniard.

Sub. No?

Dame P. Never sin' eighty-eight² could I abide 'em,
And that was some three years before I was born,
in truth.

Sub. Come, you must love him, or be miserable;
Choose which you will.

Face. By this good rush, persuade her,
She will cry² strawberries else within this twelve month.

Sub. Nay, shads and mackerel, which is worse.

Face. Indeed, sir!

Kas. God's lid, you shall love him, or I'll kick you.

Dame P. Why,

I'll do as you will ha' me, brother.

Kas. Do,

Or by this hand I'll maul you.

Face. Nay, good sir,

Be not so fierce.

Sub. No, my enraged child;
She will be rul'd. What, when she comes to taste

The pleasures of a countess! to be courted —

Face. And kiss'd and ruffled!

Sub. Ay, behind the hangings.

Face. And then come forth in pomp!

Sub. And know her state!

Face. Of keeping all th' idolators o' the chamber

Barer to her, than at their prayers!

Sub. Is serv'd

Upon the knee!

Face. And has her pages, ushers, —

Footmen, and coaches —

Sub. Her six mares —

Face. Nay, eight!

Sub. To hurry her through London, to th' Exchange,

Bet'lem, the China-houses —

Face. Yes, and have

1 Horoscope.
² If, since 1689, the year of the "Invincible Armada."
³ S'il on the street.
⁴ There were shops in the Royal Exchange.
⁵ The madhouse was often visited for entertainment.
⁶ Shops with merchandise from China.

The citizens gape at her, and praise her tires,³
And my lord's goose-turd bands,² that rides with her!

Kas. Most brave! By this hand, you are not my muser
If you refuse.

Dame P. I will not refuse, brother.

[Enter SURLY.]

Sur. Que es esto, señores, que no se venga?
Esta tardanza me mata.⁹

Face. It is the count come:
The doctor knew he would be here, by his art.

Sub. En gallanta, madama, Don! gallantísima!

Sur. Por todos los dioses, la mas acabada
Hermosura, que he visto en ma vida!¹⁰

Face. Is't not a gallant language that they speak?

Kas. An admirable language! Is't not French?

Face. No, Spanish, sir.

Kas. It goes like law French,
And that, they say, is the court-liest language.

Face. List, sir.

Sur. El sol ha perdido su lumbre, con el Resplandor que trae esta dama! Valga medios!¹¹

Face. H' admires your sister.

Kas. Must not she make curt'sy,³
Sub. 'Ods will, she must go to him, man,

And kiss him!

It is the Spanish fashion, for the women
To make first court.

Face. 'Tis true he tells you, sir:

His art knows all.

Sur. Porque no se acude?¹²

Kas. He speaks to her, I think.

Face. That he does, sir. —

Sur. Por el amor de dios, que es esto que se tarda?¹³

Kas. Nay, see: she will not understand him!

Gull. Noddy.

Dame P. What say you, brother?

Kas. Ass, my muser,
Go kuss him, as the cunning man would ha' you;
I'll thrust a pin i' your buttocks else.

Face. O no, sir.

Sur. Senora mia, mi personas muy indigna esta
Allgar a tanta hermosura.¹⁴

Face. Does he not use her bravely?

Kas. Bravely, i' faith!

Face. Nay, he will use her better.

Kas. Do you think so?

Sur. Senora, si sera servida, extremo.¹⁵

[Exit with Dame PLANT.]
Kas. Where does he carry her?
Face. Into the garden, sir; take you no thought: I must interpret for her.
Sub. Give Dol the word.
   [Aside to Face, who goes out.]
   — Come, my fierce child, advance.
   We'll to our quarrelling lesson again.
Kas. Agreed.
I love a Spanish boy with all my heart.
Sub. Nay, and by this means, sir, you shall be brother to a great count.
Kas. Ay, I knew that at first.
This match will advance the house of the Kas-trils.
Sub. 'Tis God your sister prove but pliant
Kas. Why, her name is so, by her other husband.
Sub. How!
Kas. The Widow Pliant. Knew you not that?
Sub. No, faith, sir; yet, by the erection of her figure, 'I guess'd
it.
Come, let's go practise.
Kas. Yes, but do you think, doctor, I 's'or shall quarrel well?
Sub. I warrant you. [Exeunt.]

Scene V. 2

Dol (in her fit of talking). For after Alexander's death—

Mam. Good lady—

Dol. That Perdiccas and Antigonus were slain,
The two that stood, Seleuc' and Ptolomy—

Mam. Madam. —

Dol. Make up the two legs, and the fourth beast,
That was Gog-north and Egypt-south: which after
Was called Gog-iron-leg and South-iron-leg—

Mam. Lady—

Dol. And then Gog-horned. So was Egypt,
too:

Then Egypt-clay-leg, and Gog-clay-leg—

Mam. Sweet madam—

Dol. And last Gog-dust, and Egypt-dust, which fall
In the last link of the fourth chain. And these 10
Be stars in story, which none see, or look at—

Mam. What shall I do?

Dol. For, as he says, except
We call the rabbins, and the heathen Greeks—

Mam. Dear lady—

Dol. To come from Salem, and from Athens,
And teach the people of Great Britain—

[Enter Face hastily, in his servant's dress.]

Face. What's the matter, sir? 18

Dol. To speak the tongue of Eber and Ja-

1 By her horoscope, with a pun on her bearing.
2 Another room in the same.
3 Doll's ravings are taken almost at random from the headings of columns, preface, etc., of the Comentary of Scripture, by Hugh Broughton.

Mam. O,
She's in her fit. —

Dol. We shall know nothing—

Face. Death, sir,

We are undone!

Dol. Where then a learned linguist
Shall see the ancient us'd communion
Of vowels and consonants.

Face. My master will hear! 18

Dol. A wisdom, which Pythagoras held most high—

Mam. Sweet honourable lady!

Dol. To comprise
All sounds of voices, in few marks of letters.

Face. Nay, you must never hope to lay her
now.

(Dol. [Aside.] They all speak together.)

Dol. And so we may arrive by Talmud skill, 4
And profane Greek, to raise the building up 5
Of Helen's house against the Ismaelites,
King of Thogarma, and his habergions
Brimstone, blue, and fiery; and the force
Of king Abaddon, and the beast of Cittim: 6

Which rabbi David Kimchi, Oncelos,
And Aben Ezra do interpret Rome.

Face. How did you put her into 't?

Mam. Alas, I talkt
Of a fifth monarchy I would erect 6

With the philosopher's stone, by chance, and she Falls on the other four straight.

Face. Out of Broughton!

I told you so. 'Srid, stop her mouth.

Mam. Is't best?

Face. She'll never leave else. If the old man hear her,

We are but faeces, ashes.

Sub. [within.] What's to do there?

Face. O, we are lost! Now she hears him, she is quiet.

[Enter Subtle.] 1 upon Subtle's entry they disperse.

Mam. Where shall I hide me?

Sub. How! What sight is here?

Close deeds of darkness, and that shun
the light!

Bring him again. Who is he? What, my son!
O, I have liv'd too long.

Mam. Nay, good, dear father,

There was no unchaste purpose.

Sub. Not? and flee me 6

When I come in?

Mam. That was my error.

Sub. Error?

Guilt, guilt, my son; give it the right name.

No marvel
If I found check in our great work within,
When such affairs as these were managing!

Mam. Why, have you so?

Sub. It has stood still this half hour:

And all the rest of our less works gone back.

Where is the instrument of wickedness,

My lewd false drudge?

4 In the early editions this speech is printed in parallel columns with the dialogue immediately following, to indicate simultaneous utterance.
5 Secret.
Mam. Nay, good sir, blame not him; Believe me, 't was against his will or knowledge: I saw her by chance.

Sub. Will you commit more sin, 'T' excuse a varlet?

Mam. By my hope, 't is true, sir.

Sub. Nay, then I wonder less, if you, for whom The blessing was prepar'd, would so tempt heaven.

And lose your fortunes.

Mam. Why, sir?

Sub. This will retard The work a month at least.

Mam. Why, if it do, What remedy? But think it not, good father: Our purposes were honest. As they were, So the reward will prove. (A great crack and noise within.) — How now! ay me!

God and all saints be good to us. —
[Re-enter Face.]

Face. What's that? O, sir, we are defeated! All the works Are flown in fume, every glass is burst; Furnace and all rent down, as if a bolt Of thunder had been driven through the house. Retorts, receivers, pelicans, bolt heads, All struck in shivers!

(Collectedly falls down as in a swoon.) Help, good sir! alas, Coldness and death invades him. Nay, Sir Mammon, Do the fair offices of a man! You stand, As you were ready to depart from him. Who's there? My lord her brother is come.

Mam. Ha, Lungs! Face. His coach is at the door. Avoid his sight, For he's as furious as his sister's mad.

Mam. Alas!

Face. My brain is quite undone with the fume, sir, I never must hope to be mine own man again. Mam. Is all lost, Lungs? Will nothing be preserve'd Of all our cost?

Face. Faith, very little, sir; A peck of coals or so, which is cold comfort, sir.

Mam. O, my voluptuous mind! I am justly punish'd.

Face. And so am I, sir.

Mam. Cast from all my hopes — Face. Nay, certainties, sir.

Mam. By mine own base affections.

Sub. (seeming to come to himself.) O, the cruel fruits of vice and lust!

Mam. Good father,

It was my sin. Forgive it.

Sub. Hang my roof

Over us still, and will not fall, O justice, Upon us, for this wicked man!

Face. Nay, look, sir, You grieve him now with staying in his sight. Good sir, the nobleman will come too, and take you, And that may breed a tragedy.

Mam. I'll go.

Face. Ay, and repent at home, sir. It may be, For some good penance you may ha' it yet; A hundred pound to the box at Bet'lem —

Mam. Yes.

Face. For the restoring such as — ha' their wits.

Mam. I'll do't.

Face. I'll send one to you to receive it.

Mam. Do.

Is no projection left?

Face. All sworn, or stricks, sir.

Mam. Will ought be sav'd that's good for med'cine, think'st thou?

Face. I cannot tell, sir. There will be perhaps Something about the scraping of the shards, Will cure the itch, — though not your itch of mind, sir. [Aside.] It shall be sav'd for you, and sent home. Good sir, This way, for fear the lord shall meet you.

[Exit Mammon.]

Sub. [raising his head.] Face. Ay.

Sub. Is he gone?

Face. Yes, and as heavily As all the gold he hop'd for were in 's blood. Let us be light though. [Leaping up.] Ay, as balls, and bound And hit our heads against the roof for joy: There's so much of our care now cast away. FACE. Now to our don.

Sub. Yes, your young widow by this time Is made a countess, Face; she's been in travel Of a young heir for you.

Face. Good, sir.

Sub. Off with your case. And greet her kindly, as a bridgroom should, After these common hazards.

Face. Very well, sir. Will you go fetch Don Diego off the while?

Sub. And fetch him over too, if you'll be pleas'd, sir.

Would Dol were in her place, to pick his pockets now! Face. Why, you can do 't as well, if you would set to 't. I pray you prove your virtue.

Sub. For your sake, sir. [Exeunt.]

SCENE VI. [Enter] Surly and Dame Pliant.

Sur. Lady, you see into what hands you are fall'n;

1. The lunatic asylum. 2. His costume as Lungs. 3. Capacity. 4. Another room in the same.
Mongst what a nest of villains! and how near your honour was! 't have catch'd a certain clap, Through your credulity, had I but seen So punctually forward, as place, time, And other circumstance would ha' made a man; For you 're a handsome woman: would you were wise too! I am a gentleman come here disguis'd, Only to find the knavery of this citadel; And where I might have wrong'd your honour, and have not, I claim some interest in your love. You are, They say, a widow, rich; and I'm a bachelor, Worth sought: your fortunes may make me a man, As mine ha' preserv'd you a woman. Think upon it, And whether I have deserv'd you or no. DAME P. I will, sir.
SURLY. And for these household-rogues, let me alone To treat with them.

[Enter SULTRY.]
SURLY. How doth my noble Diego, And my dear madam countess? Hath the count Been courteous, lady? liberal and open? Denzel, methinks you look melancholic, I do not like the dulness of your eye; It hath a heavy cast, 't is upse Dutch, And says you are a lumpsick whore-master. Be lighter, I will make your pockets so.
(Sur. [throws open his cloak.] Will you, don bawd and pick-purse? [Strikes him down.] )
How now! Real you?
Stand up, sir, you shall find, since I am so heavy, I '11 gi' you equal weight.
SURLY. Help! murder!
SURLY. No, sir. There's no such thing intended. A good part And a clean whip shall ease you of that fear. I am the Spanish don that should be cozen'd, Do you see? Cozen'd? Where's your Captain?
That parcel broker, and whole-bawd, all rascal?

[Enter FACE in his uniform.]
FACE. How, Surly?
SURLY. O, make your approach, good captain. I've found from whence your copper rings and spoons Come now, where with you cheat abroad in taverns.
'T was here you learn'd t' anoint your boot with brimstone, Then rub men's gold on t' for a kind of touch, And say, 't was naughty, when you had chang'd the colour, That you mightn't for nothing. And this doctor, Your sooty, smoky-bearded cozen, he

Will close you so much gold, in a bolt's-head, And, on a turn, convey t' the stead another With sublim'd mercury, that shall burst t' the heart, And fly out all in fumes! Then weeps Mammon; Then swoons his worship. Or, [FACE slips out.] He is the Faustus,
That casteth figures and can conjure, cures Plagues, piles, and pox, by the ephemeredes.
And holds intelligence with all the bawds And midwives of three shires: while you send in —
Captain! — what! is he gone? — damnsels with child, Wives that are barren, or the waiting-maid With the green sickness. [Seizes SULTRY as he is retiring.] — Nay, sir, you must tarry, Though he be scape'd; and answer by the ears, sir.

SCENE VII.

[Re-enter FACE with KASTRIL to SURLY and FACE.]
FACE. Why, now's the time, if ever you will quarrel Well, as they say, and be a true-born child: The doctor and your sister both are abus'd.
Kas. Where is he? Which is he? He is a slave. Whate'er he is, and the son of a whore. — Are you The man, sir, I would know?
SURLY. I should be loth, sir. To confess so much.
Kas. Then you lie! your throat.
FACE. [To KASTRIL.] A very arrant rogue, sir, and a cheater, Employ'd here by another conjurer That does not love the doctor, and would cross him If he knew how.
SURLY. Sir, you are abus'd. You lie: And 'tis no matter.
FACE. Well said, sir! He is the impudent'at rascal ——
SURLY. You are indeed. Will you hear me, sir? FACE. By no means: bid him be gone.
Kas. Begone, sir, quickly.
SURLY. This is strange! — Lady, do you inform your brother.
FACE. There is not such a foist in all the town, The doctor had him presently; and finds yet The Spanish count will come here. — Bear up, SULTRY. [Aside.]
SURLY. Yes, sir, he must appear within this hour.
FACE. And yet this rogue would come in a disguise, By the temptation of another spirit, To trouble our art, though he could not hurt it!
Kas. Ay,

1 Diminutives of Don.
2 As if you had been drinking heavy Dutch beer.
3 Referring to the punishment inflicted on bawds.
4 Part.
I know.—Away, [To his sister.] you talk like a foolish manther.¹
Sur. Sir, all is truth she says.
Face. Do not believe him, sir. ²
He is the lying'st swabber! Come your ways, sir.
Sur. You are valiant out of company!
Kas. Yes, how then, sir?
[Enter DRUGGER with a piece of damask.]
Face. Nay, here's an honest fellow too that knows him,
And all his tricks. (Make good what I say, Abel.)
This cheater would ha' oozed thee o' the widow.—
[Aside to DRUG.]
He owes this honest Drugger here seven pound,
He has had on him in twopenny'orths of tobacco.
Drug. Yes, sir. And he has dam'd himself three terms to pay me.
Face. And what does he Hawe for lotium? ²
Drug. Thirty shillings, sir;
And for six syringes.
Sur. Hydra of villainy!
Face. Nay, sir, you must quandrel him out o' the house.
Kas. I will:
—Sir, if you get not out o' doors, you lie;
And you are a pimp.
Sur. Why, this is madness, sir,
Not valour in you; I must laugh at this.
Kas. It is my humour; you are a pimp and a tric.³
And an Amadis de Gaul, or a Don Quixote.⁴
Drug. Or a knight o' the curious coxcomb, do you see?
[Enter ANANIAS.]
Ana. Peace to the household!
Kas. I'll keep peace for no man.
Ana. Casting of dollars is concluded lawful.
Kas. Is he the constable?
Sub. Peace, Ananias.
Face. No, sir.
Kas. Then you are an otter, and a shad, a whit,
A very tim.⁵
Sur. You'll hear me, sir?
Kas. I will not.
Ana. What is the motive?
Sub. Zeal in the young gentleman,
Against his Spanish slops.
Ana. They are profane,
Lewd, superstitious, and idolatrous breeches.
Sur. New rascals!
Kas. Will you be gone, sir?
Ana. Avoid, Satan! ⁶
Thou art not of the light! That ruff of pride
About thy neck, betrays thee; and is the same
With that which the unclean birds, in seventy-seven,⁷
Were seen to prank it with on divers coasts:
Thou look'st like anticrist, in that lewd hat. ⁸
¹ Girl.
² A lotion.
³ Dandy.
⁴ Kastri's terms of abuse are not meant to be approprise.
⁵ The allusion here has not been explained.
⁶ In Kyd's Spanish Tragedy.

Sur. I must give way.
Kas. Be gone, sir.
Sur. But I'll take
A course with you.—
Ana. Depart, proud Spanish fiend!
Sur. Captain and doctor.
Ana. Child of perdition!
Kas. Hence, sir! — [Exit SURLY.]
Did I not quarrel bravely?
Face. Yes, indeed, sir.
Kas. Nay, an I give my mind to't, I shall
do't.
Face. O, you must follow, sir, and threaten him tame:
He'll turn again else.
Kas. I'll re-turn him then. [Exit.] Face. Drugger, this rogue prevented us, for
thee:
We had determin'd that thou should'st ha'
come
In a Spanish suit, and ha' carried her so; and he,
A brokerly slave, goes, puts it on himself.
Hast brought the damask?
Drug. Yes, sir.
Face. Thou must borrow
A Spanish suit. Hast thou no credit with the players?
Drug. Yes, sir; did you never see me play
the Fool?
Face. I know not, Nab;—thou shalt, if I can help it.—
[Aside.]
Hieronimo's old cloak, ruff, and hat will serve;
I'll tell thee more when thou bring'st 'em.
[Exit DRUGGER.]
SUBTLE hath whisper'd with ANAN, this while.
Ana. Sir, I know.
The Spaniard hates the brethren, and hath spies
Upon their actions; and that this was one
I make no scruple. — But the holy synod
Have been in prayer and meditation for it;
And 'tis reveal'd no less to them than me,
That casting of money is most lawful.
Sub. True.
But here I cannot do it: if the house
Should chance to be suspected, all would out,
And we be lock'd up in the Tower for ever,
To make gold there for th' state, never come out:
And then are you defeated.
Ana. I will tell
This to the elders and the weaker brethren,
That the whole company of the separation
May join in humble prayer again.
Sub. And fasting.
Ana. Yes, for some fitter place. The peace of mind
Rest with these walls! [Exit.]
Sub. Thanks, courteous Ananias.
Face. What did he come for?
Sub. About casting dollars,
Presently out of hand. And so I told him,
A Spanish minister came here to spy,
Against the faithful—
That we can carry i' the two trunks. I’ll keep him
Off for to-day, if I cannot longer: and then. 134
At night, I’ll ship you both away to Ratcliff.
Where we will meet to-morrow, and there we’ll
share.
Let Mammon’s brass and pewter keep the cellar;
We’ll have another time for that. But, Dol,
Prathee go heat a little water quickly; 135
Subtle must shave me. All my captain’s beard Must off, to make me appear smooth Jeremy.
You’ll do it?
Sub. Yes, I’ll shave you as well as I can.
Face. And not cut my throat, but trim me? 136
Sub. You shall see, sir. [Exit.]

ACT V

SCENE I. 8

[Enter] Lovewit, [with several of the] Neighbours.

Love. Has there been such resort, say you?
1 Nei. Daily, sir.
2 Nei. And nightly, too.
3 Nei. Ay, some as brave as lords.
4 Nei. Ladies and gentlewoman.
5 Nei. Citizens’ wives.
1 Nei. And knights.
6 Nei. In coaches.
2 Nei. Yes, and oyster-women.
3 Nei. Beside other gallants.
4 Nei. Sailors’ wives.
4 Nei. Tobacco men. 9
5 Nei. Another Pimlico. 6

Love. What should my knave advance,
To draw this company? He hung out no banners
Of a strange calf with five legs to be seen,
Or a huge lobster with six claws?
3 Nei. We had gone in then, sir.

Love. He has no gift. 10
Of teaching i’ the nose, that e’er I knew of.
You saw no bill set up that promised’d cure
Of ague or the tooth-ache? 11

Love. Nor heard a drum struck for baboons or puppets?
5 Nei. Neither, sir.

Love. What device should he bring forth
now?

I love a teeming wit as I love my nourishment:
Pray God he ha’ not kept such open house,
That he hath sold my hangings, and my bedding.
I left him nothing else. If he have cast ‘em,
A plague o’ the moth, say I! Sure he has got
Some bawdy pictures to call all this ging; 12

8 Before Lovewit’s door.
9 A summer resort, where the citizens had oakes and 10 ale.
11 Like a Puritan preacher.
12 Gang.

3 Smart.
4 The district outside the walls subject to the city authorities.
5 Stolen goods, booty.
The Friar and the Nun; or the new motion
Of the knight's courser covering the parson's mare;
The boy of six year old, with the great thing: as Can't may be, he has the fleas that run at tilt
Upon a table, or some dog to dance.
When saw you him?

1 Net. Who, sir, Jeremy?
2 Net. Jeremy butler?

We saw him not this month.

Love. How!

4 Net. Not these five weeks, sir,[6] Net. These six weeks, at the least.
5 Net. You amaze me, neighbours!

5 Net. Sure, if your worship know not where he is,

He's alight away.

6 Net. Pray God he be not made away.

He knocks.

Love. Ha! it's no time to question, then.

6 Net. About some three weeks since I heard a dolorous cry,
As I sat up a-mending my wife's stockings.

Love. This's strange that none will answer!

Didst thou hear

A cry, sayst thou?

6 Net. Yes, sir, like unto a man
That had been strangled an hour, and could not speak.

2 Net. I heard it, too, just this day three weeks, at two o'clock

Next morning.

Love. These be miracles, or you make 'em so! And both you heard him cry?

3 Net. Yes, downward, sir.

Love. Thou art a wise fellow. Give me thy hand, I pray thee.

What trade art thou on?

3 Net. A smith, an't please your worship.

Love. A smith! Then lend me thy help to to get this door open.

3 Net. That I will presently, sir, but fetch my tools — [Exit.][a]

1 Net. Sir, best to knock again afore you break it.

SCENE II.[b]

LOVEWIT, Neighbours.

[Love. Knocks again.] I will.

[Enter Face in his butler's livery.]

Face. What mean you, sir?

1, 2, 4 Net. O, here's Jeremy!

Face. Good sir, come from the door.

Love. Why, what's the matter?

Face. Yet farther, you are too near yet.

Love. I the name of wonder,

What means the fellow!

Face. The house, sir, has been visited.

Love. What, with the plague? Stand thou then farther.

Face. No, sir,

I had it not.

[a puppet show.]
[b the same.
3 Nei. Like enough.
Love. Peace, and get hence, you changelings.

[Enter SURLY and MAMMON.]

Face. [Aside.] Surlly come, And Mammon made acquainted! They'll tell all.
How shall I beat them off? What shall I do?
Nothing's more wretched than a guilty conscience.

SCENE III. 1

SURLY, MAMMON, LOVEWIT, FACE, Neighbours.

Sur. No, sir, he was a great physician. This,
It was no bawdy-house, but a mere chance —
You know the lord and his sister.
Mam. Nay, good Surlly. —
Sur. The happy word, be rich —
Mam. Play not the tyrant. —
Sur. Should be to-day pronounced to all your friends.
And where be your andirons now? And your brass pots,
That should ha' been golden flagons, and great wedges?
Mam. Let me but breathe. What, they ha' shut their doors,
Methinks! He and SURLY knock.
Sur. Ay, now 'tis holiday with them.
Mam. Rogues, cozeners, impostors, bawds!
Face. What mean you, sir?
Mam. To enter if we can.
Face. Another man's house!
Sur. Here is the owner, sir; turn you to him,
And speak your business.
Mam. Are you, sir, the owner?
Love. Yes, sir. [cheaters!]
Mam. And are those knaves within, your Love. What knaves, what cheaters?
Mam. Subtle and his Lungs. 16
Face. The gentleman is distracted, sir! No lungs
Nor lights ha' been seen here these three weeks, sir.
Within these doors upon my word.

Sur. Your word, Groom arrogant!
Face. Yes, sir, I am the housekeeper,
And know the keys ha' not been out o' my hands.
Sur. This is a new Face.
Face. You do mistake the house, sir:
What sign was 't at?

Sur. You rascal! This is one
Of the confederacy. Come, let 's get officers,
And force the door.

Love. Pray you stay, gentlemen.
Sur. No, sir, we 'll come with warrant.
Mam. Ay, and then 17
We shall ha' your doors open.

[Exit Mam. and Sur.]

Love. What means this?

Face. I cannot tell, sir. These are two o' the gallants
That we do think we saw.

Face. Two o' the fools! You talk as silly as they. Good faith, sir,
I think the moon has craz'd 'em all. — [Aside.]
O me, 18

[Enter KASPHIL.]
The angry boy come too! He'll make a noise,
And ne'er away till he have betray'd us all.
Kas. (knocking.) What, rogues, bawds, slaves, you
You'll open the door anon!

Punk, cockatrice, my suster! By this light
I'll fetch the marshal to you. You are a whore!
To keep your castle —
Face. Who would you speak with, sir?
Kas. The bawdy doctor, and the cozening captain,
And puns my suster.

Love. This is something, sure.
Face. Upon my trust, the doors were never open, sir.
Kas. I have heard all their tricks told me
Twice over,
By the fat knight and the lean gentleman.

Love. Here comes another.

[Enter ANANIAS and TRIBULATION.]

Face. Ananias too!

And his pastor!
Tri. The doors are shut against us.

An. Come forth, you seed of sulphur, sons of fire!
Your stench it is broke forth; abomination 18
Is in the house.

Kas. Ay, my suster's there.

An. The place, It is become a cage of unclean birds.
Kas. Yes, I will fetch the scaverenger, and the constable.

Tri. You shall do well.
An. We'll join to weed them out.
Kas. You will not come then, punk devise, 2
My suster!

An. Call her not sister; she's a harlot verily.
Kas. I'll raise the street.

Love. Good gentleman, a word.

An. Satan avoid, and hinder not our zeal!

[Exeunt Anan. Thir., and Kast.]

Love. The world's turn'd Bet'lem.

Face. These are all broke loose,
Out of St. Katherine's, where they use to keep
The better sort of mad-folks.

1 Nei. All these persons 26
We saw go in and out here.

2 Nei. Yes, indeed, sir.

3 Nei. These were the parties.

Face. Peace, you drunkards! Sir, I wonder at it. Please you to give me leave
To touch the door; I'1l try an the look be chung'd.

Love. It makes me!

Face. [going to the door.] Good faith, sir, I believe

1 The same. 2 Perfect harlot.
There’s no such thing: ’tis all deceptio visus. —

Sub. You ha’ spoil’d all then.
Dap. No!
I hope my aunt of Fairy will forgive me.
Sub. Your aunt’s a gracious lady; but in truth
You were to blame.
Dap. The fume did overcome me, and I did do’t to stay my stomach. ’Pray you
So satisfy her grace.

[Enter Face in his uniform.]

Sub. Here comes the captain.
Face. How now! Is his mouth down?
Sub. Ay, he has spoken!
Face. A pox, I heard him, and you too. He’s undone then.

[Aside to Subtle.] I have been fain to say, the house is haunted.
With spirits, to keep churl back.

Sub. And hast thou done it?
Face. Sure, for this night.

Sub. Why, then triumph and sin,
Of Face so famous, the precious king
Of present wits.
Face. Did you not hear the coil about the door?
Sub. Yes, and I dwindle’d with it.
Face. Show him his aunt, and let him be dispatched:
I’ll send her to you.
[Exit Face.]
Sub. Well, sir, your aunt her grace Will give you audience presently, on my suit,
And the captain’s word that you did not eat your gag
In any contempt of her highness.

[Unbinds his eyes.]

Dap. Not I, in troth, sir.

[Enter] Dot, like the Queen of Fairy.

Sub. Here she is come. Down o’ your knees and wriggle:
She has a stately presence. [Dapper kneels and shuffles towards her.] Good! Yet nearer,
And bid, God save you!

Dap. Madam!
Sub. And your aunt.
Dap. And my most gracious aunt, God save your grace.

Dot. Nephew, we thought to have been angry with you;
But that sweet face of yours hath turn’d the tide,
And made it flow with joy, that ebb’d of love.
Arise, and touch our velvet gown.
Sub. The skirts,
And kiss ’em. So!

Dot. Let me now stroke that head.
Much, nephew, shalt thou win, much shall thou spend:
Much shalt thou give away, much shalt thou lend.

Sub. [Aside.] Ay, much! indeed. — Why do you not thank her grace?
Dap. I cannot speak for joy.

Sub. See, the kind wretch!
Your grace’s kinsman right.

THE ALCHEMIST

v. iv.

DoL. Give me the bird. — Here is your fly in a purse, about your neck, cousain;
Wear it, and feed it about this day sev’n-night, On your right wrist —
Sub. Open a vein with a pin And let it suck but once a week; till then, You must not look on’t.
DoL. No: and, kinsman, Bear yourself worthy of the blood you came on. Her grace would ha’ you eat no more Woolsack 1 pie, 41
Nor Dagger frumetry. 2 Nor break his fast In Heaven 1 and Hell. 3
Sub. She’s with you everywhere! Nor play with costermongers, at mumchance, traytrip, 4 God-make-you-rich 5 (when as your aunt has done it); but keep The gallant’s company, and the best games —
Dap. Yes, sir. Sub. Gleek 6 and primerro 3; and what you get, be true to us.
Dap. By this hand, I will. Sub. You may bring ‘s a thousand pound Before to-morrow night, if but three thousand Be stirring, an you will.
Dap. I swear I will then. Sub. Your fly will learn you all games.
Face. [within.] Ha’ you done there? Sub. Your grace will command him no more duties?
DoL. No:
But come and see me often. I may chance To leave him three or four hundred chests of treasure,
And some twelve thousand acres of fairy land, If he game well and comey with good gamesters.
Sub. There’s a kind aunt: kiss her departing part. —
But you must sell your forty mark a year now.
Dap. Ay, sir, I mean. Sub. Or, give ’t away; pox on ’t! Dap. I’ll gi’ ’t mine aunt. I’ll go and fetch the writings. [Exit.] 40
Sub. ’Tis well; away.
[Re-enter Face.]

And bid him fetch a parson presently.
Say he shall marry the widow. Thou shalt spend A hundred pound by the service! [Exit SubtlE.]

Now, Queen Dol,
Have you pack’d up all?
DoL. Yes.

1 Names of taverns. 2 Wheat boiled in milk. 3 Games of chance.

Face. And how do you like
The Lady Pliant?
DoL. A good dull innocent.

[Re-enter Subtle.]
Sub. Here’s your Hieronimo’s cloak and hat.
Face. Give me ‘em. Sub. And the ruff too?
Face. Yes; I’ll come to you presently. [Exit.]
Sub. Now he is gone about his project, DoL. I told you so, for the widow.
Sub. Tis direct Against our articles.
Face. Well, we will fit him, wench. Hast thou gull’d her of her jewels or her bracelets?
DoL. No; but I will do’t.
Sub. Soon at night, my Dolly, When we are ship, and all our goods aboard, Is Eastward for Katsliff, we will turn our course To Brainford, westward, if thou sayst the word, And take our leaves of this o’erweening rascal. This peremptory Face.
DoL. Content; I’m weary of him. Sub. Thou’st cause, when the slave will run at wiving, DoL. Against the instrument that was drawn between us.
DoL. I’ll pluck his bird as bare as I can. Sub. Yes, tell her She must by any means address some present To th’ cunning man, make him amends for wronging His art with her suspicion; send a ring, Or chain of pearl; she will be tortured else Extremely in her sleep, say, and ha’ strange things Come to her. Wilt thou?
DoL. Yes. Sub. My fine fitter-mouse, My bird o’ the night! We’ll tickle it at the Pigeons, When we have all, and may unlock the trunks, And say, this’s mine, and thine; and thine, and mine. They kiss.

[Re-enter Face.]

Face. What now! a billing?
Sub. Yes, a little exalted In the good passage of our stock-affairs.
Face. Dragger has brought his parson; take him in, Subtle. And send Nab back again to wash his face. [Exit.]
Sub. I will: and shave himself? [Exit.]
Face. If you can get him. DoL. You are hot upon it, Face, whate’er it is!
Face. A trick that DoL shall spend ten pound a month by.

[Re-enter Subtle.]

Is he gone?
Sub. The chaplain waits you i’ the hall, sir.

4 Bat. 5 An inn at Brentford.
Face. I’ll go bestow him.

Dol. He’ll now marry her instantly.

Sub. He cannot yet, he is not ready. Dear Dol.

Cozen her of all thou canst. To deceive him
Is no deceit, but justice, that would break
Such an inextricable tie as ours was.

Dol. Let me alone to fit him.

[Re-enter Face.]

Face. Come, my venturers,
You ha’ pack’d up all? Where be the trunks?
Bring forth.

Sub. Here.

Face. Let us see ’em. Where’s the money?

Sub. Here,

In this.

Face. Mammon’s ten pound; eight score
before:

The brethren’s money this. Druggar’s and Dapper’s.

What paper’s that?

Dol. The jewel of the waiting maid’s,
That stole it from her lady, to know certain —

Face. If she should have precedence of her mistress?

Dol. Yes.

Face. What box is that?

Sub. The fish-wives’ rings, I think,
And th’ale-wives’ single money. ’Is’t not, Dol?

Dol. Yes; and the whistle that the sailor’s wife brought you to know her husband was with Ward.

Face. We’ll wet it to-morrow; and our silver beakers
And tavern cups. Where be the French petticoats

Sub. Here, ’t’ trunk,
And the bolts of lawn.

Face. Is Druggar’s damask there,

Sub. Yes.

Face. Give me the keys.

Dol. Why you the keys?

Sub. No matter, Dol; because
We shall not open ’em before he comes.

Face. ’Tis true, you shall not open them, indeed;

Nor have ’em forth, do you see? Not forth, Dol.

Dol. No!

Face. No, my smoak-rampant. The right is,
my master
Knocks all, has pardon’d me, and he will keep
’em.

Doctor, ’tis true — you look — for all your figures:
I sent for him, indeed. Wherefore, good partners,

Both he and she, be satisfied: for here determines the indenture tripartite

’Twixt Subtle, Dol, and Face. All I can do

Is to help you over the wall, o’ the back-sides,
Or lend you a sheet to save your velvet gown,

Dol.

Here will be officers presently, bethink you

Of some course suddenly to scape the dock;

For thither you’ll come else. [Some knock.]

Hark you, thunder.

Sub. You are a precious fiend!

Off. [without.] Open the door.

Face. Dol, I am sorry for thee I’ faith; but hear’st thou?

It shall go hard but I will place thee somewhere:

Thou shalt ha’ my letter to Mistress Amo —

Dol. Hang you.

Face. Or Madam Caesarina.

Dol. Pox upon you, rogue, Would I had but time to beat thee!

Face. Subtle,

Let’s know where you’ll set up next; I will send you

A customer now and then, for old acquaintance.

What new course have you?

Sub. Rogue, I’ll hang myself;
That I may walk a greater devil than thou,

And haunt thee in the flock-bed and the butter.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE V.

[Enter] LOYEVIT [in the Spanish dress, with the Parson. Loud knocking at the door.]

Love. What do you mean, my masters?
Mam. [without.] Open your door,
Cheaters, bawds, conjurers.
Off. [without.] Or we’ll break it open.
Love. What warrant have you?
Off. [without.] Warrant enough, sir, doubt not,
If you’ll not open it.

Love. Is there an officer there?
Off. [without.] Yes, two or three for failing.
Love. Have but patience,

And I will open it straight.

[Enter Face, as butler.]

Face. Sir, ha’ you done?
Is it a marriage? Perfect?

Love. Yes, my brain.

Face. Off with your ruff and cloak then; be yourself, sir.

Sur. [without.] Down with the door.
Kas. [without.] Slight, ding it open.
Love. [opening the door.] Hold,

Hold, gentlemen, what means this violence?

[MAMMON, SURLY, KAPHEL, ANANIAS, TRIBULATION and OFFICERS rush in.]

Mam. Where is this collier?
Sur. And my Captain Face?
Mam. These day-owls?

Sur. That are birding in men’s purses.

Mam. Madam Suppository.
Kas. Doxy, my suster.

4 An outer room in the same.

5 A famous pirate.

6 Ends.
THE ALCHEMIST

Ana. Locusts.
Tri. Profane as Bel and the Dragon.
Ana. Worse than the grasshoppers, or the lice of Egypt.
Love. Good gentlemen, hear me. Are you officers,
And cannot stay this violence?
1 Off. Keep the peace.
Love. Gentlemen, what is the matter? Whom do you seek?
Mam. The chemical cozenor.
Sur. And the captain pandar.
Kas. The nun my sister.
Mam. Madam Rabbi.
Ana. Scorpions.
And caterpillars.
Love. Fewer at once, I pray you.
1 Off. One after another, gentlemen, I charge you,
By virtue of my staff.
Ana. They are the vessels
Of pride, lust, and the cart.
Love. Good seal, lies still
A little while.
Tri. Peace, Deacon Ananias.
Love. The house is mine here, and the doors are open;
If there be any such persons as you seek for,
Use your authority, search on God's name,
I am but newly come to town, and finding
This tumult 'bout my door, to tell you true,
It somewhat maz'd me; till my man here, fearing
My more displeasure, told me he had done
Somewhat an insolent part, let out my house
(Belike presuming on my known aversion)
From any air o' the town while there was sickness,
To a doctor and a captain: who, what they are
Or where they be, he knows not.
Mam. Are they gone?
Love. You may go in and search, sir. (MAMMON, ANA., and TRIB.go in.) Here, I find
The empty walls worse than I left 'em, smok'd,
A few crack'd pots, and glasses, and a furnace:
The ceiling fill'd with poxies of the candle,
And "Madam with a dildor" writ o' the walls.
Only one gentilwoman I met here
That is within, that said she was a widow —
Kas. Ay, that's my sister; I'll go thump her.
Where is she?
[GOES IN.]
Love. And should ha' married a Spanish count, but he,
When he came to't, neglected her so grossly,
That I, a widower, am gone through with her.
Sur. How! have I lost her then?
Love. Were you the don, sir?
Good faith, now she does blame you extremely,
and says
You swore, and told her you had ta'en the pains
To dye your beard, andumber o'er your face,
Borrowed a suit, and ruff, all for her love;
And then did nothing. What an oversight
And want of putting forward, sir, was this! 1

Well fare an old harquebusier 2 yet,
Could prime his powder, and give fire, and hit,
All in a twinkling!
Mammon comes forth.
Love. The whole nest are fled!
Mam. Of eight score and ten pounds within these five weeks,
Besides my first materials; and my goods,
That lie in the cellar, which I am glad they have left,
I may have home yet.
Love. Think you so, sir?
Ay. Love. By order of law, sir, but not otherwise.
Mam. Not mine own stuff!
Love. Sir, I can take no knowledge
That they are yours, but by public means.
If you can bring certificate that you were gull'd
Of 'em,
Or any formal writ out of a court,
That you did cozen yourself, I will not hold
Mam. I'll rather lose 'em.
Love. That you shall not, sir,
By me, in truth; upon these terms, they're yours.
What, should they ha' been, sir, turn'd into gold, all?
Mam. No.
I cannot tell. — It may be they should. — What
then?
Love. What a great loss in hope have you sustain'd?
Mam. Not I; the commonwealth has.
Face. Ay, he would ha' built
The city new; and made a ditch about it
Of silver, should have run with cream from Hogden;
That every Sunday in Moorsfields the younkers,
And tit's 4 and tom-boys should have fed on,
gratis.
Mam. I will go mount a turnip-cart, and preach
The end o' the world within these two months.
Surly.
What! in a dream?
Sur. Must I needs cheat myself
With that same foolish vice of honesty!
Come, let us go and hearken out the rogues:
That Face I'll mark for mine, if e'er I meet him.
Face. If I can hear of him, sir, I'll bring you word
Unto your lodging; for in troth, they were strangers
To me; I thought 'em honest as myself, sir.
They come forth.

[Re-enter Ananias and Tribulation.]
Tri. 'Tis well, the saints shall not lose all yet. Go
And get some carts ——
Love. For what, my zealous friends?
Ana. To bear away the portion of the righteous,
Out of this den of thieves.

Love. What is that portion?
Ana. The goods sometimes the orphans', that the brethren Bought with their silver pence.

Love. What, those 'tis the cellar, 8
The knight Sir Mammon claims?
Ana. I do defy
The wicked Mammon, so do all the brethren,
Thou profane man! I ask thee with what conscience
Thou canst advance that idol against us,
That have the seal? 1 Were not the shillings numb'\red 100
That made the pounds; were not the pounds told out
Upon the second day of the fourth month,
In the eighth month, upon the table dormant,
The year of the last patience of the saints,
Six hundred and ten?

Love. Mine earnest vehement botcher, 105
And deacon also, I cannot dispute with you:
But if you get you not away the sooner,
I shall confute you with a cudgel.
Ana. Sir!

Tri. Be patient, Ananias.
Ana. I am strong,
And will stand up, well girt, against an host 120
That threaten God in exile.

Love. I shall send you
To Amsterdam, to your cellar.
Ana. I will pray there,
Against thy house. May dogs defile thy walls,
And wasps and hornets breed beneath thy roof,
This seat of falsehood, and this cave of coz'nage!

[Enter ANA. and TRIB.]

Enter DRUGGER.

Love. Another too?
Drug. Not I, sir, I am no brother. 115
Love. (beats him.) Away, you Harry Nicho-

[Exit Drug.] 116

Face. No, this was Abel Dragger. Good sir, go,
(To the Parson.)

And satisfy him; tell him all is done:
He staid too long a washing of his face. 120
The doctor, he shall hear of him at Westchester;
And of the captain, tell him, at Yarmouth, or
Some good port-town else, lying for a wind.
[Exit Parson.]

If you can get off the angry child now, sir —

[Enter KASTRIL, dragging in] his sister.

Kas. Come on, you ewe, you have match'd most sweetly, ha' you not? 125
Did not I say, I would never ha' you tupt
But by a dubb'd boy, 8 to make you a lady-tom?

1 That are sealed as God's people.
8 The founder of the fanatical sect called "The Family of Love."
8 Knights.

'Slight, you are a mammet! 4 O, I could tous
you now.

Death, mung 6 you marry with a pox!

Love. You lie, boy;
As sound as you; and I'm aforesight with you.
Kas. Anon! 126

Love. Come, will you quarrel? I will feize 6
you, sirrah;
Why do you not buckle to your tools?
Kas. God's light,
This is a fine old boy as e'er I saw!

Love. What, do you change your copy now?
Proceed;
Here stands my dove: stoop 7 at her if you dare.

Kas. 'Slight, I must love him! I cannot choose, i' faith,
An I should be hang'd for 't! Suster, I protest,
I honour thee for this match.

Love. O, do you so, sir?
Kas. Yes, an thou canst take tobacco and drink, old boy,
I'll give her five hundred pound more to her marriage, 12
Than her own state.

Love. Fill a pipe full, Jeremy.

Face. Yes; but go in and take it, sir.

Love. We will.

Kas. I will be rule'd by thee in anything, Jeremy.

Kas. 'Slight, thou art not hide-bound, thou art a jovy 8 boy!

Come, let us in, I pray thee, and take our whiffs.

Love. Whiff in with your sister, brother boy.
[Exeunt Kas. and Dame F.]

That master
That had receiv'd such happiness by a serv-

In such a widow, and with so much wealth,
Were very ungrateful, if he would not be
A little indulgent to that servant's wit, 130
And help his fortune, though were some small

Of his own candour. 9 [Advancing.] Therefore, gentlemen,
And kind spectators, if I have onstrip
An old man's gravity, or strict canon, think 140
What a young wife and a good brain may do;
Stretch age's truth sometimes, and crack it too.

Speak for thyself, knave.

Face. So I will, sir. [Advancing to the front of the stage.] Gentlemen,
My part a little fell in this last scene,
Yet 't was decorum. 10 And though I am clean
Got off from Subtle, Surly, Mammon, Dol, 100
Hot Ananias, Dapper, Dragger, all
With whom I traded; yet I put myself
On you, that are my country! 11 and this pelf
Which I have got, if you do quit me, rests,
To feast you often, and invite new guests. 145

[Exeunt.]

THE PROLOGUE

As it was pronounced before the Queen's Majesty

As wretches in a storm, expecting day,
With trembling hands and eyes cast up to heaven,
Make prayers the anchor of their conquer'd hopes,
So we, dear goddess, wonder of all eyes,
Your meanest vassals, through mistrust and fear
To sink into the bottom of disgrace
By our imperfect pastimes, prostrate thus
On bended knees, our sails of hope drove,
Dreading the bitter storms of your dislike.
Since then, unhappy men, our hap is such
That to ourselves ourselves no help can bring,
But needs must perish, if your saint-like ears,
Locking the temple where all mercy sits,
Refuse the tribute of all begging tongues;
Oh, grant, bright mirror of true chastity,
From those life-breathing stars, your sun-like eyes,
One gracious smile; for your celestial breath
Must send us life, or sentence us to death.

ACT I

SCENE I.1

Enter the Lord Mayor and the Earl of Lincoln.

Linc. My lord mayor, you have sundry times
Feasted myself and many courtiers more;
Seldom or never can we be so kind
To make requital of your courtesy.
But leaving this, I hear my cousin Lacy
Is much affected to your daughter Rose.

1 A street in London.  2 In love with.

L. Mayor. True, my good lord, and she loves him so well
That I dislike her boldness in the chase.

Linc. Why, my lord mayor, think you it then a shame,
To join a Lacy with an Oatley's name?

L. Mayor. Too mean is my poor girl for his high birth;
Poor citizens must not with courtiers wed,
Who will in silks and gay apparel spend
More in one year than I am worth, by far; Therefore your honour need not doubt my girl.

2 Fear.
Linc. Take heed, my lord, advise you what you do! A verier unhurtif lives not in the world, Than is my cousin; for I'll tell you what: 'Tis now almost a year since he requested To travel countries for experience. So I furnisht him with coin, bills of exchange, Letters of credit, men to wait on him, Solicited my friends in Italy. But, to see the end, Scaint had he journey'd through half Germany, But all his coin was spent, his men cast off. His bills embezze1’d, 1 and my jolly cox. 2 Asham’d to show his bankrupt presence here, Became a shoemaker in Wittenberg, A goodly science for a gentleman. Of such descent! Now judge the rest by this: Suppose your daughter have a thousand pound, He did consume me more in one half year: And make him heir to all the wealth you have One twelvemonth’s rioting will waste it all. Then seek, my lord, some honest citizen To wed your daughter to.

L. Mayor. I thank your lordship.

[Aside.] Well, fox, I understand your subtlety. — As for your nephew, let your lordship’s eye But watch his actions, and you need not fear, For I have seen my daughter far enough. And yet your cousin Rowland might do well, Now he hath learn’d an occupation: And yet I scorn to call him son-in-law.

Linc. Ay, but I have a better trade for him. I thank his grace, he hath appointed him Chief colonel of all those companies. Must’red in London and the shires about, To serve his highness in those wars of France. See where he comes! —

Enter Lovell, Lacy, and Askew.

Lovell. My Lord of Lincoln, 'tis his highness’ will, That presently your cousin ship for France With all his powers; he would not for a million, But they should land at Dieppe within four days.

Linc. Go certify his grace, it shall be done. Exit Lovell.

Now, cousin Lacy, in what forwardness Are all your companies?

Lacy. All well prepar’d. The men of Hertfordshire lie at Mile-end, Suffolk and Essex train in Tothill-fields, The Londoners and those of Middlesex, All gallantly prepar’d in Kinsbury, With frolic spirits long for their parting hour.

L. Mayor. They have their impress, coats, and furniture; 5 And, if it please your cousin Lacy come To the Guildhall, he shall receive his pay; And twenty pounds besides my brethren

Will freely give him, to approve our loves We bear unto your lord, your uncle here.

Lacy. I thank your honour.

Linc. Thanks, my good lord mayor. Exit.

Linc. To approve your loves to me? No subtlety Nephew, that twenty pound he doth bestow For joy to rid you from his daughter Rose. But, cousins both, now here are none but friends, I would not have you cast an amorous eye Upon so mean a project as the love Of a gay, wanton, painted citizen. I know, this churl even in the height of scorn Doth hate the mixture of his blood with thine. I pray thee, do thou so! Remember, cox. What honourable fortunes wait on thee. Increase the king’s love, which so brightly shines, And gilds thy hopes. I have no heir but thee, — And yet not thee, if with a wayward spirit Thou start from the true bias 6 of my love.

Lacy. My lord, I will for honour, not desire Of land or livings, or to be your heir, So guide my actions in pursuit of France, As shall add glory to the Lacies’ name.

Linc. Cox, for those words here’s thirty Portuguese, 7 And, nephew Askew, there’s a few for you. Fair Honour, in her loftiest eminence, Stays in France for you, till you fetch her thence. Then, nephews, clap swift wings on your designs. Begone, begone, make haste to the Guildhall; There presently I’ll meet you. Do not stay: Where honour [beckons] 8 shame attends delay.

Askew. How gladly would your uncle have you gone!

Lacy. True, cox, but I’ll o’erreach his policies. I have some serious business for three days, Which nothing but my presence can dispatch. You, therefore, cousin, with the companies, Shall haste to Dover; there I’ll meet with you.

Or, if I stay past my prefixed time, Away for France; we’ll meet in Normandy. The twenty pounds my lord mayor gives to me You shall receive, and these ten Portuguese, Part of mine uncle’s thirty. Gentle cox, Have care to our great charge; I know, your wisdom Hath tried itself in higher consequence.

Askew. Cox, all myself am yours: yet have this care, To lodge in London with all secrecy; Our uncle Lincoln hath, besides his own, Many a jealous eye, that in your face Stares only to watch means for your disgrace.

Lacy. Stay, cousin, who be these?

1 Wasted.
2 Cousin; used of any relative not of one’s immediate family.
3 At once.
4 Advance-pay.
5 Equipment.
6 Qn. become. Malone emand.
Enter SIMON EYRE, [MARGERY] his wife, HODGE, FISK, JAME, and RALPH with a piece. 1

Eyre. Leave whining, leave whining! Away with this whimpering, this puling, these blubbing tears, and these wet eyes! I'll get thy husband discharge'd, I warrant thee, sweet Jane; go to the Anchor. 121

Hodge. Master, here be the captains.

Eyre. Peace, Hodge; husht, ye knave, husht! Fisk. Here be the cavaliers and the colonels, master. 146

Eyre. Peace, Fisk; peace, my fine Fisk! Stand by with your pishery-pashery, 2 away! I am a man of the best presence; I'll speak to them, and they were Fopes.—Gentlemen, captains, colonels, commanders! Brave men, brave leaders, may it please you to give me audience. I am Simon Eyre, the mad shoemaker of Tower Street; this wench with the mealy mouth that will never tire, is my wife, I can tell you; here's Hodge, my man, and my foreman; [134 here is Fisk, my fine firing 4 journeyman, and this is blubbered Jane. All we come to be suitors for this honest Ralph. Keep him at home, and as I am a true shoemaker and a gentleman of the gentle craft, buy spurs yourself, and I'll [146 find ye boots these seven years.

Marg. Seven years, husband?

Eyre. Peace, midriff, 5 peace! I know what I do. Peace!

Fisk. Truly, master cormorant, 6 you shall do God good service to let Ralph and his wife stay together. She's a young new-married woman; if you take her husband away from her at-night, you undo her; she may beg in the daytime; for he's as good a workman at a prick and an awl as any is in our trade.

Jane. O let him stay, else I shall be undone.

Fisk. Ay, truly, she shall be laid at one side like a pair of old shoes else, and be occupied for no use.

Lacy. Truly, my friends it lies not in my power:
The Londoners are press'd, 7 paid, and set forth. By the lord mayor; I cannot change a man.

Hodge. Why, then you were as good be a corporal as a colonel, if you cannot discharge 142 one good fellow; and I tell you true, I think you do more than you can answer, to press a man within a year and a day of his marriage.

Eyre. Well said, melancholy Hodge; gramey, my fine foreman.

Marg. Truly, gentlemen, it were ill done for such as you, to stand so stiffly against a poor young woman, considering her case, she is new-married; but let that pass. I pray, deal not roughly with her; her husband is a young man, and but newly entered; but let that pass. 171

Eyre. Away with your pishery-pashery, your pols and your edipols! 8 Peace, midriff; sit-lance, Cicely Bamtrinket! Let your head speak. 128

Fisk. Yes, and the horns too, master.

Eyre. Too soon, my fine Fisk, too soon! Peace, scoundrels! See you this man? Captains, you will not release him? Well, let him go; he's a proper shot; let him vanish! 140 Peace, Jane, dry up thy tears, they'll make his powder dankish. 9 Take him, brave men; Hector of Troy was an hackney to him, Hercules and Turgemant 10 scoundrels, Prince Arthur's Round-table — by the Lord of Ludgate — 145 ne'er fed such a tall, 11 such a dapper swordman; by the life of Pharaoh, a brave resolute swordman! Peace, Jane! I say no more, mad knaves. Fisk. See, see, Hodge, how my master raves in commendation of Ralph!

Hodge. Ralph, th' art a gull, 12 by this hand, an thou goest not.

Askew. I am glad, good Master Eyre, it is my hap to meet so resolute a soldier,
Trust me for your report and love to him. 153
A common slight regard shall not respect him.

Lacy. Is thy name Ralph?

Ralph. Yes, sir.

Lacy. Give me thine hand;
Then shalt not want, as I am, gentleman.
Woman, be patient; God, no doubt, will send Thy husband safe again; but he must go,
His country's quarrel says it shall be so.

Hodge. Th' art a gull, by my stirrup, if thou dost not go. I will not have thee strike thy gimlet into these weak vessels; prick thine enemies, Ralph. 167

Enter DODGER.

Dodger. My lord, your uncle on the Tower hill
Stays with the lord-mayor and the aldermen,
And doth request you, with all speed you may,
To hasten thither.

Askew. Cousin, let's go.

Lacy. Dodger, run you before, tell them we come,—

This Dodger is mine uncle's parasite. 172

Exit Dodger.

The arrant'st varlet that e'er breathed on earth;
He sets more discord in a noble house
By one day's broaching of his pickthahn tales, 178 Than can be sal'd 14 again in twenty years, 179
And he, I fear, shall go with us to France,
To pry into our actions.

Askew. Therefore, coz, It shall behave you to be circumspect.

Lacy. Fear not, good cousin.—Ralph, be to your colours. 184 [Exit Lacy and Askew.]

Ralph. I must, because there's no remedy; But, gentle master and my loving dame, As you have always been a friend to me, So in mine absence think upon my wife.

Jane. Alas, my Ralph.

Mary. She cannot speak for weeping. 189

1 Piece of leather. 8 Used as a term of contempt.
2 Twiddle-twaddle. 9 Quibbling on colonel.
3 If. 10 Impressed into service.
4 Frisky, tricky. 11 Brave.
5 Midriff. 12 Fool.
6 Damp. 13 Tales told to curry favor.
7 War. 14 Healed.
Eyre. Peace, you crack'd greats, you mustard tokens, disquiet not the brave soldier. Go thy ways, Ralph!

Jane. Ay, ay, you bid him go; what shall I do

When he is gone?

Firk. Why, be doing with me or my fellow Hodge; be not idle.

Eyre. Let me see thy hand, Jane. This fine hand, To white and red, these pretty fingers must spin, must card, must work; work, you Boston cotton-candle-queen; work for your living. With a posy to you. — Hold thee, Ralph, here's five sixpence for thee; fight for the honour of the gentle craft, for the gentlemen shoemakers, the courageous cordwainers, the flower of St. Martin's, the mad knives of Bedlam, Fleet Street, Tower Street and Whitechapel; crack me the crowns of the French knives; a posy on them, crack them; fight, by the Lord of Ludgate; fight, my fine boy!

Firk. Here, Ralph, here's three two-pence; two carry into France, the third shall wash our souls at parting, for sorrow is dry. For my sake, firk the Basa mon cues.

Hodge. Ralph, I am heavy at parting; but here's a shilling for thee. God send thee to cram thy soles with French crowns, and thy enemies bellies with bullets.

Ralph. I thank you, master, and I thank you all.

Now, gentle wife, my loving lovely Jane, Rich men, at parting, give their wives rich gifts. Jewels and rings, to grace their lily hands, Thou know'st our trade makes rings for women's heels;

Here take this pair of shoes, cut out by Hodge, Stitch'd by my fellow Firk, seam'd by myself, Made up and pink'd with letters for thy name.

Wear them, my dear Jane, for thy husband's sake, And every morning when thou pull'st them on, Remember me, and pray for my return.

Make much of them; for I have made them so That I can know them from a thousand mo.

Drum sounds. Enter the Lord Mayor, the Earl of Lincoln, Lacy, Askew, Dodger, and Soldiers. They pass over the stage; Ralph falls amongst them; Firk and the rest cry "Farewell," etc., and so exequit.

ACT II

SCENE I.

Enter Rose, alone, making a garland.

Rose. Here sit thou down upon this flow'ry bank

And make a garland for thy Lacy's head. These pinks, these roses, and these violets, These blushing gilliflowers, these marigolds, The fair embroidery of his coronet, Carry not half such beauty in their cheeks, As the sweet countenance of my Lacy doth. O my most unkind father! O my stars, Why lower'd you so at my nativity, To make me love, yet live robb'd of my love? Here as a grave am I imprisoned For my dear Lacy's sake within those walls, Which by my father's cost were builded up For better purposes. Here must I languish For him that doth as much lament, I know, Mine absence, as for him I pine in woe.

Enter Sybil.

Sybil. Good morrow, young mistress. I am sure you make that garland for me, against? I shall be Lady of the Harvest.

Rose. Sybil, what news at London?

Sybil. None but good; my lord mayor, your father, and master Philpot, your uncle, and Master Scot, your cousin, and Mistress Frig-bottom by Doctors' Commons, do all, by my troth, send you most hearty commendations.

Rose. Did Lacy send kind greetings to his love?

Sybil. O yes, out of cry, by my troth. I scant knew him; here 'a wore a scarf; and here a scarf, here a bunch of feathers, and here precious stones and jewels, and a pair of garters, — O, monstrous! like one of our yellow silk curtains at home here in Old Ford House here, in Master Belly-mount's chamber. I stood at our door in Cornhill, look'd at him, he at me indeed, spake to him, but he not as to me, not a word; marry go-up, thought I, with a wanion! He pass'd by me as proud — Marry foi! are you grown humorous, thought I; and so shut the door, and in I came.

Rose. O Sybil, how dost thou my Lacy wrong!

My Rowland is as gentle as a lamb, No dove was ever half so mild as he.

Sybil. Mild? yes, as a bushel of stamp crabs. He lookt upon me as sour as verjuice. Go thy ways, thought I, thou may'st be much as in my gaskins, but nothing in my nether-stocks. This is your fault, mistress, to love him that loves not you; he thinks scorn to do as he's done to; but if I were as you, I'd cry, "Go by, Jeronimo, go by!"

I'd set mine old debts against my new driblet, And the hare's foot against the goose giblets, For if ever I sigh, when sleep I should take, Pray God I may lose my mawkishness when I wake.

Rose. Will my love leave me then, and go to France?

Sybil. I know not that, but I am sure I see

In preparation. Crushed crab-apples. With a vengeance. Juices of green fruits. Capricious. Wides trousers. Stockings. The meaning seems to be that though we may be acquainted, we are not intimate friends.

A phrase from Kyd's Spanish Tragedy. him stalk before the soldiers. By my troth, he is a proper man; but he is proper that proper doth. Let him go snick-up, young mistress. 100

Rose. Get thee to London, and learn perfectly Whether my Lady go to France, or no.
Do this, and I will give thee for thy pains
My cambic apron and my Rosine gloves,
My purple stockings and a stomacher.
Say, wilt thou do this, Sybil, for my sake?
Sybil. Will I, quoth a? At whose suit? By my troth, yes, I'll go. A cambic apron, gloves, a pair of purple stockings, and a stomacher! I'll sweat in purple, mistress, for you; 105 I'll take anything that comes a' God's name.
O rich! a cambic apron! Faith, then have at 'up tails all.' I'll go jig-joy to London, and be here in a trice, young mistress. Exit.

Rose. Do so, good Sybil. Meantime wretched I Will sit and sigh for his lost company. Exit. 110

SCENE II. 8

Enter LACY, like a Dutch Shoemaker.

Lacy. How many shapes have gods and kings devis'd,
Thereby to compass their desired loves!
It is no shame for Rowland Lacy, then,
To clothe his cunning with the gentle craft,
That, thus disguis'd, I may unknown possess.
The only happy presence of my Rose.
For her have I forsook my charge in France,
Incur'd the king's displeasure, and stirred up
Rough hatred in mine uncle Lincoln's breast.
O love, how powerful art thou, that canst change
High birth to baseness, and a noble mind
To the mean semblance of a shoemaker!
But thus it must be; for her cruel father,
Hating the single union of our souls,
Has secretly convey'd my Rose from London.
To bear me of her presence; but I trust,
Fortune and this disguise will further me
Once more to view her beauty, gain her sight.
Here in Tower Street with Eyre the shoemaker
Mean I a while to work; I know the trade,
I learnt it when I was in Wittenberg.
Then cheer thy hoping spirits, be not dismay'd,
Thou canst not want: do Fortune what she can.
The gentle craft is living for a man. Exit.

SCENE III. 4

Enter EYRE, making himself ready. 5

Eyre. Where be these boys, these girls, these drabs, these scoundrels? They wallow in the fat brews 6 of my bounty, and lick up the crumbs of my table, yet will not rise to see my walks cleansed. Come out, you powder-beef! quenas! What, Nain! what, Madre Mumble-crust? 7 Come out, you fat midriff-sagga-belly-whores, and sweep me these kennels 8 that the noisome stench offend not the noses of my neighbours.

5 Watch dog.
10 Madman.
11 A woman who washed and pickled pig's faces.
13 Sowing.
14 The language is, of course, meant for Dutch.

What, Firk. I say; what, Hodge! Open my [10 shop windows! What, Firk, I say!

Enter Firk.

Firk. O master, is 't you that speak bandog 9 and Bedlam 10 this morning? I was in a dream, and mused what madman was got into the street so early. Have you drunk this morning that 11 your throat is so clear?

Eyre. Ah, well said, Firk; well said, Firk. To work, my fine knave, to work! Wash thy face, and thou'lt more be blest.

Firk. Let them wash my face that will eat it. Good master, send for a souse-wife, 11 if you'll have my face cleanser.

Enter HUDGE.

Eyre. Away, avelon! a vaunt, soundrel! — Good-morrow, Hodge; good-morrow, my fine foreman.

Hodge. O master, good-morrow; y'are an early stirrer. Here's a fair morning. — Good-morrow, Firk, I could have slept this hour. Here's a brave day towards. 12

Eyre. Oh, haste to work, my fine foreman, 13 haste to work.

Firk. Master, I am dry as dust to hear my fellow Roger talk of fair weather; let us pray for good leather, and let clowns and plough-boys and those that work in the fields pray 14 for brave days. We work in a dry shop; what care I if it rain?

Enter EYRE'S WIFE [MARGERY].

Eyre. How now, Dame Margery, can you see to rise? Trip and go, call up the drabs, your maids.

Marg. See to rise? I hope 'tis time enough, 'tis early enough for any woman to be seen abroad. I marvel how many wives in Tower Street are up so soon. Gods me, 'tis not noon — only, 's a sowing. 14

Eyre. Peace, Margery, peace! Where's Cisely Bumtrinket, your maid? She has a privy fault, she farts in her sleep. Call the quean up; if my men want shoe-thread, I'll swing her in a stirrup.

Firk. Yet, that's but a dry beating; here's still a sign of drought.

Enter LACY [dissguised], singing.

Lacy. Der was een borse van Gelderland Frolick sie been;
He was als dromck he cold nyt stand,
Upsole sie been.
Tap eens de canneken,
Drincke, schöhe mannekin. 14

1 Handsome.
6 Dressing himself.
8 A street in London.
7 Salted beef.
8 Before Eyre's house.
Firk. Master, for my life, yonder's a bro[ther of the gentle craft; if he bear not Saint Hugh's bones, I'll forfeit my bones; he's some uplandish workman: hire him, good master, that I may learn some gibble-gabble; 'twill make us work the faster.

Eyre. Peace, Firk! A hard world! Let him pass, let him vanish; we have journeymen enough. Peace, my fine Firk!

Mary. Nay, my good fellow, you're best follow your man's counsel; you shall see what will come o'nt. We have not men anew, but we must entertain every butter-box; but let that pass.

Hodge. Dame, fore God, if my master follow your counsel, he'll consume little beef. He shall be glad of men an he can catch them.

Firk. Ay, that he shall.

Hodge. Fore God, a proper man, and I warrant, a fine workman. Master, farewell; dame, adieu; if such a man as he cannot find work, Hodge is not for you.

Eyre. Stay, my fine Hodge.

Firk. Faith, an your foreman go, dame, you must take a journey to seek a new journeyman; if Roger remove, Firk follows. If Saint Hugh's bones shall not be set a-work, I may prick mine all in the walls, and go play. Fare ye well, master; good-bye, dame.

Eyre. Tarry, my fine Hodge, my brisk foreman! Stay, Firk! Peace, pudding-broth! By the Lord of Ludgate, I love my men as my life. Peace, you gallimaufry! Hodge, if he [sic] want work, I'll hire him. One of you to him; stay, — he comes to us.

Lacy. Goeden dach, meester, ende u vro oak.

Firk. Nails, if I should speak after him without drinking, I should choke. And you, [sic] friend Oake, are you of the gentle craft?

Lacy. Yaw, yaw, ik bin den skomaker.

Firk. Den skomaker, quoth 'a! And hark you, skomaker, have you all your tools, a good rubbing-pin, a good stopper, a good dresser, your four sorts of awl, and your two balls of wax, your paring knife, your hand-and-thumb-leathers, and good St. Hugh's bones to smooth up your work?

Lacy. Yaw, yaw; be niet voorward, Ik hab all de dingens voor mak skoens grot and cleans.

Firk. Ha, ha! Good master, hire him; he'll make me laugh so that I shall work more in mirth than I can in earnest.

Eyre. Hear ye, friend, have ye any skill in the mystery of cordwainers?

Lacy. Ik wet niet wat je seg; ich verstas you niet.

1 The bones of St. Hugh were supposed to have been made into shoemaker's tools.

2 Dutchman.

3 A dish of different hashed meats. The word is sometimes used contemptuously of a versatile person, but is applied to Margery without much appropriateness.

4 Good-day, master, and your wife too.

5 An oath.

6 Yes, yes, I am a shoemaker.

7 Yes, yes; be not afraid. I have everything to make boots big and little.

8 Trade.

9 I don't know what you say; I don't understand you.

Firk. Why, thus, man; [Imitating by ges- ture a shoemaker at work.] Ich vraste u niet, quoth 'a.

Lacy. Yaw, yaw, yaw; ick can dat wel doen.

Firk. Yaw, yaw! He speaks yawning like a jackdaw that gapes to be fed with cheese-curd. Oh, he'll give a villainous pull at a [sic] can of double beer; but Hodge and I have the vantage, we must drink first, because we are the oldest journeymen.

Eyre. What is thy name?

Eyre. Give me thy hand; th'art welcome. — Hodge, entertain him; Firk, bid him welcome; come, Hans. Run, wife, bid your maids, your trullibube, make ready my fine men's breakfast. To him, Hodge!

Hodge. Hans, th'art welcome; use thyself friendly, for we are good fellows; if not, thou shalt be fought with, wert thou bigger than a giant.

[Enter Boy.]

Lacy. O, ich werso you; ich moest een halve dosen cane betaelen; here, boy, nemst dis skilling, tap eens frelicke.

[Exit Boy.]

Eyre. Quick, snipper-snapper, away! Firk, scour thy throat; thou shalt wash it with Castilian liquor.

[Enter Boy.]

Come, my last of the fives, give me a can. Have to thee, Hans; here, Hodge; here, Firk; [sic] drink, you mad Greeks, and work like true Trojans, and pray for Simon Eyre, the shoemaker. — Here, Hans, and th'art welcome.

Firk. Lo, dame, you would have lost a good fellow that will teach us to laugh. This beer came hopping in well.

Mary. Simoun, it is almost seven.

Eyre. Is 't so, Dame Clapper-duddeson? Is 't seven a clock, and my men's breakfast not ready? Trip and go, you sous'd conger; [sic] away! Come, you mad hyperboresans; follow me, Hodge; follow me, Hans; come after, my fine Firk; to work, to work a while, and then to breakfast.

Firk. Soft! Yaw, yaw, good Hans, though my master have no more wit but to call you afore me, I am not so foolish to go behind you, I being the elder journeyman. — Exeunt.

SCENE IV.13

[Halloeing within.] Enter Warner and Ham- mon, like Hunters.

Ham. Cousin, beat every brake, the game's not far.

10 Yes, yes; I can do that well.

11 Blattemen.

12 O, I understand you; I must pay for half-a-dozen cows; here, boy, take this shilling, tap one freely.

13 Slang for beggar.

14 Couger-sell.

15 A field near Old Ford.
This way with winged feet he fled from death,
Whiles the pursuing hounds, scenting his steps,
Find out his highway to destruction.

Besides, the Miller's boy told me even now,
He saw him take soil, and he halloed him,
Affirming him to have been so embost
That long he could not hold.

_Warn._
If it be so,
'Tis best we trace these meadows by Old Ford.

_[A noise of Hunters within. Enter a Boy.]_

_Ham._ How now, boy? Where's the deer?
speak, saw'st thou him?

_Boy._ O yes; I saw him leap through a hedge, and then over a ditch, then at my lord mayor's pale, over he skipt me, and in he went me, and "holla" the hunters cried, and "there, is boy; there, boy!" But there he is, a' mine honesty.

_Ham._ Boy, Godamercy. Cousin, let's away;
I hope we shall find better sport to-day. _Exeunt._

_SCENE V._

_[Hunting within.] Enter ROSE and SYBIL._

_Rose._ Why, Sybil, wilt thou prove a forester?
Sybil. Upon some, no. Forester? Go by; no, faith, mistress. The deer came running into the barn through the orchard and over the pale; I wot well, I lookt as pale as a new cheese to see him. But whip, says Goodman Fin[e close, up with his flail, and our Nick with a prong, and down he fell, and they upon him, and I upon them. By my troth, we had such sport; and in the end we ended him; his throat we cut, flay'd him, unhorn'd him, and my [i lord mayor shall eat of him anon, when he comes._

_Horns sound within._

_Rose._ Hark, hark, the hunters come; y're best take heed,
They'll have a saying to you for this deed. _Enter_

_HAMMON, WARNER, Huntsmen, and_

_Boy._

_Ham._ God save you, fair ladies.
Sybil. Ladies! O gross!
_Warn._ Came not a buck this way?
_Rose._ No, but two does.
_Ham._ And which way went they? Faith, we'll hunt at those.

_Sybil._ At those? Upon some, no. When, can you tell?

_Warn._ Upon some, ay.
_Sybil._ Good Lord!

_Warn._ Wounds! Then farewell!

_Ham._ Boy, which way went he?

_Boy._ This way, sir, he ran.

_Ham._ This way he ran indeed, fair Mistress
_Rose;_
Our game was lately in your orchard seen.

_Warn._ Can you advise, which way he took his flight?
_Sybil._ Follow your nose; his horns will guide you right.

_Warn._ Th'art a mad wench.
_Sybil._ O, rich!
_Rose._ Trust me, not I.

_It is not like that the wild forest-deer
Would come so near to places of resort;
You are deceiv'd, he was fied some other way.

_Warn._ Which way, my sugar-candy, can you shew?
_Sybil._ Come up, good honey-snap, upon some, no.
_Rose._ Why do you stay, and not pursue your game?
_Sybil._ I'll hold my life, their hunting-nags be lame.

_Ham._ A deer more dear is found within this place.
_Rose._ But not the dear, sir, which you had in chase.

_Ham._ I chas'd the deer, but this dear chaseth
me.
_Rose._ The strangest hunting that ever I see.
But where's your park? She offers to go away.
_Ham._ 'Tis here: O stay!
_Rose._ Impale me, and then I will not stay.

_Warn._ They wrangle, wench; we are more kind than they.

_Sybil._ What kind of hart is that dear heart you seek?

_Warn._ A hart, dear heart.

_Sybil._ Who ever saw the like?
_Rose._ To lose your heart, is't possible you can?

_Ham._ My heart is lost.
_Rose._ Alack, good gentleman!
_Ham._ This poor lost heart would I wish you might find.

_Rose._ You, by such luck, might prove your hart a hind.

_Ham._ Why Luck had horns, so have I heard some say.

_Rose._ Now, God, an't be his will, send Luck into your way.

_Enter the LORD MAYOR and Servants._

_L. Mayor._ What, Master Hammon? Welcome to Old Ford!
_Sybil._ Gods pitykins, hands off, sir! Here's my lord.

_L. Mayor._ I hear you had ill luck, and lost your game.

_Ham._ 'Tis true, my lord.

_L. Mayor._ I am sorry for the same.
What gentleman is this?

_Ham._ My brother-in-law.

_L. Mayor._ Y' are welcome both; sith Fortune ofers you
Into my hands, you shall not part from hence,
Until you have refresh'd your weary limbs.
Go, Sybil, cover the board! You shall be guest
To no good cheer, but even a hunter's feast.

_Ham._ I thank your lordship. — Cousin, on
my life,
For our lost venison I shall find a wife.

_Exeunt [all but MAYOR]._

_L. Mayor._ In, gentlemen; I'll not be absent long. —

* By God's pity.
This Hammon is a proper gentleman,
A citizen by birth, fairly allied;
How fit an husband were he for my girl!
Well, I will in, and do the best I can,
To match my daughter to this gentleman.

Exit.

ACT III

SCENE I

Enter LACY [as HANS], Skipper, HODGE, and FIRK.

Skip. Ick sal yow wat segen, Hans; dis skip dat comen from Candy, is all vol, by Göt's sacrament, van sugar, ciec, almonds, cambrick, end dele dingen, twousand twousand ding. Nempt it, Hans, nempt it vor v meester. Daer be de bits [a] von laden. Your meester Simon Eyre sul hae good copen. Wat segen yow, Hans?

Firk. Wat segen de reggen de copen, slopen —laugh, Hodge, laugh!

Huns. Mine liever broder Firk, bringt Meester
Eyre tot det signe vn Suannekin; dier sul yow finde dis skipper end me. Wat segen yow, broder Firk? Doot it, Hodge.

Comme, skipper.

Exeunt.

Firk. Bring him, quoth you? Here's no [is] knavery, to bring my master to buy a ship worth the lading of two or three hundred three thousand pounds. Alas, that's nothing; a trifle, a bauble, Hodge.

Hodge. The truth is, Firk, that the merchant owner of the ship dares not shew his head, [is]
and therefore this skipper that deals for him, for the love he bears to Hans, offers my master Eyre a bargain in the commodities. He shall have a reasonable day of payment; he may sell [is] the wares by that time, and be an huge gainer himself.

Firk. Yea, but can my fellow Hans lend my master twenty pertainpes as an earnest penny?

Hodge. Portugese, thou wouldst say; here [is] they be, Firk; hark, they jingle in my pocket like st. Mary Overy's bells.

Enter Eyre and his Wife [MARGERY].

Firk. Mum, here comes my dame and my master. She'll scold on my life, for loitering that Sunday; but all's one, let them all say what they can, Monday's our holiday.

Merg. You sing, Sir Brian, but I beshow your heart.
I hear, for this singing we shall smart.

Firk. Smart for me, dame; why, dame, why?
Hodge. Master, I hope you'll not suffer my dame to take down your journeymen.

1 A room in Eyre's house.

2 My dear brother Firk. I'll bring Master Eyre to the sign of the Swan; there shall you find the skipper and me.
What say you, brother Firk? Do it, Hodge.
Hodge, I am a making a pair of shoes for my lord mayor's daughter, Mistress Rose. 108

Firk. And I a pair of shoes for Sybil, my lord's maid. I deal with her.

Eyre. Sybil? Fee, defile not thy fine workman fingers with the feet of kitchen stuff and basting-ladies. Ladies of the court, fine ladies, my lords, commit their feet to our aparellers; but gross work to Hans. Yark and seam, yark and seam! 116

Firk. For yarking and seaming let me alone, an I come to't. 122

Hodge. Well, master, all this is from the bias. Do you remember the ship my fellow Hans told you of? The skipper and he are both drinking at the Swan. Here be the Portuguese gueese to give earnest. If you go through with it, you cannot choose but be a lord at least.

Firk. Nay, dame, if my master prove not a lord, and you a lady, hang me.

Mary. Yea, like enough, if you may loiter and tittle too.

Firk. Tipple, dame? No, we have been bargaining with Skellum Skanderbag: can you Dutch speaken for a ship of silk Cyprus, laden with sugar-candy?

Enter Boy with a velvet coat and an Alderman's gown. Eyre puts them on.

Eyre. Peace, Firk; silence, Tittle-tattle! Hodge, I'll go through with it. Here's a seal-ring, and I have sent for a guarded gown and a damask cassock. See where it comes; look here, Maggy; help me, Firk; apparel me, Hodge; silk and satin, you mad Philistines, silk and satin.

Firk. Ha, ha, my master will be as proud as a dog in a doublet, all in beaten damask and velvet.

Eyre. Softly, Firk, for rearing of the nap, and wearing threadbare my garments. How dost thou like me, Firk? How do I look, my fine Hodge?

Hodge. Why, now you look like yourself, master. I warrant you, there's few in the city but will give you the wall, and come upon you with the right worshipful.

Firk. Nails, my master looks like a threadbare cloak new turn'd and drest. Lord, Lord, to see what good raiment doth! Dame, dame, are you not enamoured?

Eyre. How say'st thou, Maggy, am I not brisk? Am I not fine?

Mary. Fine? By my troth, sweetheart, very fine! By my troth, I never like thee so well in my life, sweetheart; but let that pass. I warrant, there be many women in the city not such handsome husbands, but only for their apparel; but let that pass too.

1 Prepare.
2 Beside the point.
3 German: Schelm, a scoundrel. Skanderbag, or Scander Beg (i.e. Lord Alexander), a Turkish name for John Kastriot, the Albanian hero, who freed his country from the yoke of the Turks (1443-1467). (Warnke and Proescholdt.)
4 A robe ornamented with guards or facings.
5 Stamped.
6 Yield precedence.
7 Buffing.
8 Address you as.

Re-enter HANS and SKIPPER.

Hans. Godden day, master. Dis be the skipper dat heb de skip van marchundice; de commodity ben good; nempt it, master, nempt it. 9

Eyre. Godamercy, Hans; welcome, skipper. Where lies this ship of merchandise?

Skip. De skip ben in revere; dor be van sugar, cimet, almonds, cambrick, and a thousand, thousand tings, gota sacrament; nempt it, master; ye sal heb good copen. 10

Firk. To him, master! O sweet master! 11 O sweet wares! Prunes, almonds, sugar-candy, carrot-roots, turnips, brave fattening meat! Let not a man buy a nutmeg but yourself.

Eyre. Peace, Firk! Come, skipper, I'll go aboard with you. — Hans, have you made him drink?

Skip. Yaw, yaw, ic heb beale gedrunk. 11

Eyre. Come, Hans, follow me. Skipper, thou shalt have my countenance in the city. Exeunt.

Firk. Yaw heb beale gedrunk, quoth 'e. They may well be called butter-boxes, when they drink fat veal and thick beer too. But come, dame, I hope you'll chide us no more.

Mary. No, faith, Firk; no, pordy; 12 Hodge, I do feel honour creep upon me, and which is more, a certain rising in my flesh; but let that pass.

Firk. Rising in your flesh do you feel, say you? Ay, you may be with child, but why should not my master feel a rising in his flesh, having a gown and a gold ring on? But you are such a shrew, you'll soon pull him down. 12

Mary. Ha, ha! prithese, peace! Thou makst my worship laugh; but let that pass. Come, I'll go in; Hodge, prithese, go before me; Firk, follow me.

Firk. Firk doth follow: Hodge, pass out in state.

Exeunt.

Enter the Earl of Lincoln and Dodger.

Linc. How now, good Dodger, what's the news in France?

Dodger. My lord, upon the eighteenth day of May

The French and English were prepar'd to fight; Each side with eager fury gave the sign Of a most hot encounter. Five long hours Both armies fought together; at the length The lot of victory fell on our side.

Twelve thousand of the Frenchmen that day died,

Four thousand English, and no man of name

But Captain Hyam and young Ardington.

Two gallant gentlemen, I knew them well.

10 A good day, master. This is the skipper that has the ship of merchandise; the commodity is good; take it, master, take it.
11 The ship lies in the river; there are sugar, cimet, almonds, cambrick, and a thousand thousand things. By God's sacrament, take it, master; you shall have a good bargain.
12 Yes, yes, I have drunk well.
13 Fr. For Dieu.
14 London: a room in Lincoln's house.
Linc. But Dodger, prithee, tell me, in this fight
How did my cousin Lacy bear himself?

Dodger. My lord, your cousin Lacy was not there.

Linc. Not there?

Dodger. No, my good lord.

Linc. Sure, thou mistakest. I saw him shipp’d, and a thousand eyes beside Were witnesses of the farewell which he gave,
When I, with weeping eyes, bid him adieu.

Dodger. Take heed.

Dodger. My lord, I am advis’d
That what I spake is true: to prove it so,
His cousin Askew, that suppli’d his place,
Sent me for him from France, that secretly
He might convey himself thither.

Linc. Is’t even so?

Dodger. He so carelessly venture his life
Upon the indignation of a king?

Linc. Has he despi’d my love, and spurn’d those favours
Which I with prodigal hand pour’d on his head?
He shall repent his rashness with his soul;
Since of my love he makes no estimate,
I’ll make him wish he had not known my hate.

Thou hast no other news?

Dodger. None else, my lord.

Linc. None worse I know thou hast.— Procure the king
To crown his giddy brows with ample honours,
Send him chief colonel, and all my hope
Thus to be dash’d! But ’tis in vain to grieve,
One evil cannot a worse relieve.

Upon my life, I have found out his plot;
That old dog, Love, that fawn’d upon him so,
Love to that puling girl, his fair-cheek’d Rose,
The lord mayor’s daughter, hath distracted him.

And in the fire of that love’s lunacy
Hath he burnt up himself, consum’d his credit,
Lost the king’s love, yea, and I fear, his life,
Only to get a wanton to his wife,

Dodger. It is so.

Dodger. I fear so, my good lord.

Linc. It is so,—nay, sure it cannot be!
I am at my wits’ end, Dodger! I

Dodger. Yes, my lord.

Linc. Thou art acquainted with my nephew’s haunts,
Spend this gold for thy pains; go seek him out.
Watch at my lord mayor’s—there if he live,
Dodger, thou shalt be sure to meet with him.

Prithhee, be diligent.— Lacy, thy name
Liv’d once in honour, now ’tis dead in shame.—
Be circumspect.

Dodger. I warrant you, my lord.

SCENE III.

Enter the L. Mayor and Master Scott.

L. Mayor. Good Master Scott, I have been bold with you,

To be a witness to a wedding-knot
Betwixt young Master Hammon and my daughter.

0, stand aside; see where the lovers come.

Enter Master Hammon and Rose.

Rose. Can it be possible you love me so?

No, no, within those eyeballs I espied
Apparent likenesses of flattery.

Pray now, let go my hand.

Ham. Sweet Mistress Rose,
Miscoeurte not my words, nor misconceive
Of my affection, whose devoted soul
Swears that I love thee dearer than my heart.

Rose. As dear as your own heart? I judge it right,

Men love their hearts best when th’ are out of sight.

Ham. I love you, by this hand.

Rose. Yet hands off now!

If flesh be frail, how weak and frail ’s your vow!

Ham. Then by my life I swear.

Rose. Then do not bawl; one quarrel loseth wife and life and all.
Is not your meaning thus?

Ham. In faith, you jest.

Rose. Love loves to sport; therefore leave love; y’ are best.

L. Mayor. What? square they, Master Scott?

Scott. Sir, never doubt,

Lovers are quickly in, and quickly out.

Ham. Sweet Rose, be not so strange in fancying me.

Nay, never turn aside, shun not my sight:
I am not grown so fond, to fond my love
On any that shall quit it with disdain;

If you will love me, so;—if not, farewell.

L. Mayor. Why, how now, lovers, are you both agreed?

Ham. Yes, faith, my lord.

L. Mayor. ’T is well, give me your hand,
Give me yours, daughter.— How now, both pull back!

What means this, girl?

Rose. I mean to live a maid.

Ham. (Aside.) But not to die one; pause, ere that be said.

L. Mayor. Will you still cross me, still be obstinate?

Ham. Nay, chide her not, my lord, for doing well;

If she can live an happy virgin’s life,
’Tis far more blessed than to be a wife.

Rose. Say, sir, I cannot; I have made a vow,
Whoever be my husband, ’tis not you.

L. Mayor. Your tongue is quick; but Master Hammon, know,
I bade you welcome to another end.

Ham. What, would you have me pule and pine and pray

With “lovely lady,” “mistress of my heart,”

“Pardon your servant,” and the rhymer play,

Railing on Cupid and his tyrant’s dart;

Or shall I undertake some martial spoil,

*Quarrel. * Found, set; a pun upon fond.
Wearing your glove at tourney and at tilt, —
And tell how many gallants I unhors’d —
Sweet, will this pleasure you?

L. Mayor. If you will have her, I'II make her agree.

Ham. Enforced love is worse than hate to me.

[Aside.] There is a wenches keep shop in the Old Change,
To her will I — it is not wealth I seek.
I have enough — and will prefer her love
Before the world. — [Aloud.] My good lord mayor, adieu.

Old love for me, I have no luck with new.

L. Mayor. Now, mammet, you have well behav’d yourself,
But you shall curse your coyness if I live. —
Who’s within there? See you convey your mistress.

Strait to the Old Ford! I’ll keep you straight enough,
Fore God, I would have sworn the puling girl
Would willingly accepted Hammon’s love;
But banish him, my thoughts! — Go, minion, in!

Exit Rose.

Now tell me, Master Scott, would you have thought
That Master Simon Eyre, the shoemaker,
Had been of wealth to buy such merchandise?
Scott. ’Tis well, my lord, your honour and myself
Grew partners with him; for your bills of lading
Shew that Eyre’s gains in one commodity
Rise at the least to full three thousand pound
Besides like gain in other merchandise.

L. Mayor. Well, he shall spend some of his thousands now.
For I have sent for him to the Guildhall.

Enter Eyre.

See, where he comes. — Good morrow, Master Eyre.

Eyre. Poor Simon Eyre, my lord, your shoemaker.

L. Mayor. Well, well, it likes yourself to term you so.

Enter Dodger.

Now Master Dodger, what’s the news with you?

Dodger. I’d gladly speak in private to your honour.

L. Mayor. You shall, you shall. — Master Eyre and Master Scott,
I have some business with this gentleman;
I pray, let me entreat you to walk before
To the Guildhall; I’ll follow presently.

Master Eyre, I hope ere noon to call you sheriff.

Eyre. I would not care, my lord, if you might call me
King of Spain. — Come, Master Scott.

[Exeunt Eyre and Scott.]

L. Mayor. Now, Master Dodger, what’s the news you bring?

Dodger. The Earl of Lincoln by me greets your lordship,
When wilt begin?
What, love rhymes, man? Fie on that deadly sin!

L. Mayor. If you will have her, I’ll make her agree.

Ham. Enforced love is worse than hate to me.

[Aside.] There is a wenches keep shop in the Old Change,
To her will I — it is not wealth I seek.
I have enough — and will prefer her love
Before the world. — [Aloud.] My good lord mayor, adieu.

Old love for me, I have no luck with new.

L. Mayor. Now, mammet, you have well behav’d yourself,
But you shall curse your coyness if I live. —
Who’s within there? See you convey your mistress.

Strait to the Old Ford! I’ll keep you straight enough,
Fore God, I would have sworn the puling girl
Would willingly accepted Hammon’s love;
But banish him, my thoughts! — Go, minion, in!

Exit Rose.

Now tell me, Master Scott, would you have thought
That Master Simon Eyre, the shoemaker,
Had been of wealth to buy such merchandise?
Scott. ’Tis well, my lord, your honour and myself
Grew partners with him; for your bills of lading
Shew that Eyre’s gains in one commodity
Rise at the least to full three thousand pound
Besides like gain in other merchandise.

L. Mayor. Well, he shall spend some of his thousands now.
For I have sent for him to the Guildhall.

Enter Eyre.

See, where he comes. — Good morrow, Master Eyre.

Eyre. Poor Simon Eyre, my lord, your shoemaker.

L. Mayor. Well, well, it likes2 yourself to term you so.

Enter Dodger.

Now Master Dodger, what’s the news with you?

Dodger. I’d gladly speak in private to your honour.

L. Mayor. You shall, you shall. — Master Eyre and Master Scott,
I have some business with this gentleman;
I pray, let me entreat you to walk before
To the Guildhall; I’ll follow presently.

Master Eyre, I hope ere noon to call you sheriff.

Eyre. I would not care, my lord, if you might call me
King of Spain. — Come, Master Scott.

[Exeunt Eyre and Scott.]

L. Mayor. Now, Master Dodger, what’s the news you bring?

Dodger. The Earl of Lincoln by me greets your lordship,
When wilt begin?
What, love rhymes, man? Fie on that deadly sin!

L. Mayor. If you will have her, I’ll make her agree.

Ham. Enforced love is worse than hate to me.

Master Eyre, I hope ere noon to call you sheriff.

Eyre. I would not care, my lord, if you might call me
King of Spain. — Come, Master Scott.

[Exeunt Eyre and Scott.]
he comes to be Master Sheriff of London— as we are all mortal— you shall see; I will have some odd thing or other in a corner for your: I will not be your back-friend; 1 but let that pass. Hans, pray thee, tie my shoe. 2

Hans. Yoo, ic sal, tro. 3

Marg. Roger, thou know’st the length of my foot; as it is none of the biggest, so I thank God, it is handsome enough; prithee, let me have a pair of shoes made, cork, good Roger, 4 and wooden heel too.

Hodge. You shall.

Hodge. [Aside.] As a cat out of a pillar. — Very well, I warrant you, mistress.

Marg. Indeed, all flesh is grass; and, 5 Roger, canst thou tell where I may buy a good hair?

Hodge. Yes, forsooth, at the poulterer’s in Gracious Street.

Marg. Thou art an ungracious wag: perdy, 6 I mean a false hair for my perivig.

Hodge. Why, mistress, the next time I cut my beard, you shall have the shavings of it; but they are all true hairs.

Marg. It is very hot, I must get me a fan 7 or else a mask.

Hodge. [Aside.] So you had need, to hide your wicked face.

Marg. Fie, upon it, how costly this world’s calling is; perdy, but that it is one of the won- 8 derful works of God, I would not deal with it. — Is not Firk come yet? Hans, be not so sad, let it pass and vanish, as my husband’s worship says.

Hans. Ick bin wroliecr, lot see you soo. 9

Hodge. Mistress, will you drink a pipe of tobacco?

Marg. Oh, fie upon it, Roger, perdy! These filthy tobacco-pipes are the most idle slavering babbles that ever I felt. Out upon it! God 10 bless us, men look not like men that use them.

Enter Ralph, being lame.

Hodge. What, fellow Ralph? Mistress, look here, Jane’s husband! Why, how now, lame? Hans, make much of him, he’s a brother of our trade, a good workman, and a tall 11 soldier. 12

Hans. You be welcome, broder.

Marg. Perdy, I knew him not. How dost thou, good Ralph? I am glad to see thee well.

Ralph. I would to God you saw me, dame, as well

As when I went from London into France. 13

Marg. Trust me, I am sorry, Ralph, to see thee impotent. Lord, how the wars have made him sunburnt! The left leg is not well; ‘twas a fair gift of God the infirmity took not hold a little higher, considering thou camest from 14 France; but let that pass.

1 Faithless friend. 2 Smoke. 3 Yes, I shall, mistress! 4 Brass. 5 I am merry; let’s see you so! 6 Scratch me, and I’ll scratch thee. 7 Fine. 8 Yes, I shall, dame. 9 Brighten up.

Ralph. I am glad to see you well, and I rejoice To hear that God hath blest me my master so Since my departure.

Marg. Yea, truly, Ralph, I thank my [as Maker; but let that pass.

Hodge. And, sirrah Ralph, what news, what news in France?

Ralph. Tell me, good Roger, first, what news in England?

How does my Jane? When didst thou see my wife 15 Where lives my poor heart? She’ll be poor indeed,

Now I want limbs to get whereon to feed.

Hodge. Limbs? Hast thou not hands, man? Thou shalt never see a shoemaker want bread, though he have but three fingers on a hand. 16

Ralph. Yet all this while I hear not of my Jane.

Marg. O Ralph, your wife, — perdy, we know not what’s become of her. She was here a while, and because she was married, grew more stately than became her; I check her, and 17 so forth; away she flung, never returned, nor said bye nor bah; and, Ralph, you know, ‘ka me, ka thee.’ 18 And, so as I tell ye — Roger, is not Firk come yet?

Hodge. No, forsooth.

Marg. And so, indeed, we heard not of her, but I hear she lives in London; but let that pass. If she had wanted, she might have opened her case to me or my husband, or to any of my men; I am sure, there’s not any of them, 19 perdy, but would have done her good to his power. Hans, look if Firk be come.

Hans. Yow, ic sal, tro. 20 Exit Hans.

Marg. And so, as I said — but, Ralph, why dost thou weep? Thou knowest that naked 21 we came out of our mother’s womb, and naked we must return; and, therefore, thank God for all things.

Hodge. No, faith, Jane is a stranger here; but, Ralph, pull up a good heart, I know thou hast one. Thy wife, man, is in London; one told me, he saw her a while ago very brave 22 and neat; we’ll ferret her out, an London hold her.

Marg. Alas, poor soul, he’s overcome 23 with sorrow; he does but as I do, weep for the loss of any good thing. But, Ralph, get thee in, call for some meat and drink, thou shalt find me worshipful towards thee.

Ralph. I thank you, dame; since I want limbs and lands, 24 I’ll trust to God, my good friends, and my hands.

Exit.

Enter Hans and Firk running.

Firk. Run, good Hans! O Hodge, O mistress! Hodge, heave up thine ears; mistress, smug up 25 your looks; on with your best apparel; my master is chosen, my master is called, nay, 26 condensed by the cry of the country to be sheriff of the city for this famous year now to come. And, time now being, a great many men in black gowns were askt for their voices and their hands, and my master had all their [fists about his ears presently, and they cried
'Ay, ay, ay, ay,' — and so I came away —
Wherefore without all other grieve
I do salute you, Mistress Shrieve.1
Hans. Yaw, my master is de groot man, de [fists about his ears presently, and they cried on his worship.
Marg. Good-morrow, good Roger. I thank [you, my good people all. — Firk, hold up thy hand: here's a three-penny piece for thy tidings.
Firk. 'Tis but three-half-pence, I think. Yes, 'tis three-pence, I smell the rose.2
Hodge. But, mistress, be rul'd by me, and do not speak so pulingly.
Firk. 'Tis her worship speaks so, and not she. No, faith, mistress, speak me in the old key: 'To it, Firk;' "there, good Firk;' "[playing your business, Hodge;' "Hodge, with a full mouth;" "I'll fill your bellies with good cheer, till they cry twang."3
Enter Eyre wearing a gold chain.
Hans. See, my lieuer broder, leer comy my meester.4
Marg. Welcome home, Master Shrieve; I pray God continue you in health and wealth.
Eyre. See here, my Maggy, a chain, a gold chain for Simon Eyre, I shall make thee a lady; here's a French hood for thee; on with it, on with it I dress thy brows with this flap of a shoulder of mutton,4 to make thee look lovely. Where be my fine men? Roger, I'll make over my shop and tools to thee; Firk, thou shalt be the foreman; Hans, thou shalt have [an hundred for twenty.5 Be as mad knaves as your master Sim Eyre hath been, and you shall live to be sheriffs of London. — How dost thou like me, Magery? Prince am I none, yet I am princely born. Firk, Hodge, and Hans! — All Three. Ay, forsooth, what says your worship, Master Sheriff? 6
Eyre. Worship and honour, you Babylonian knaves, for the gentle craft. But I forgot myself, I am bidden by my lord mayor to dine [inner to Old Ford; he's gone before, I must after. Come, Madge, on with your trinkets! Now, my true Trojans, my fine Firk, my dapper Hodge, my honest Hans, some device, some odd cratches, some morris, or such like, for the [honour of the gentlemens shoemakers. Meet me at Old Ford you know my mind. Come, Madge, away. Shut up the shop, knaves, and make holiday.

Scene V.

Enter the LORD MAYOR, [ROSE,] EYRE, his [MAGERY] in a French hood, SYBIL, and other Servants.

L. Mayor. Trust me, you are as welcome to Old Ford
As I myself.
Marg. Truly, I thank your lordship.
L. Mayor. Would our bad cheer were worth the thanks you give.
Eyre. Good cheer, my lord mayor, fine cheer! A fine house, fine walls, all fine and neat.
L. Mayor. Now, by my troth, I'll tell thee, Master Eyre, It does me good, and all my brethren, That such a madcap fellow as thyself Is enter'd into our society.
Marg. Ay, but, my lord, he must learn now to put on gravity.
Eyre. Peace, Maggy, a fig for gravity! When I go to Guildhall in my scarlet gown, I'll look as demurely as a saint, and speak as gravely as a justice of peace; but now I am here at Old Ford, at my good lord mayor's house, let it [go by, vanish, Maggy, I'll be merry; away with flip-flap, these fooleries, these gulleries. What, honey? Prince am I none, yet am I princely born. What says my lord mayor?
L. Mayor. Ha, ha, ha! I had rather [a thousand pound, I had an heart but half so light as yours.
Eyre. Why, what should I do, my lord? A pound of care pays not a dram of debt. Hum, let's be merry, whiles we are young; old age, it's sack and sugar will steal upon us, ere we be aware.

The First Three Men's Song

O the month of May, the merry month of May, So frollick, so gay, and so green, so green, so green! O, and then did I unto my true love say:
"Sweet Peg, thou shalt be my summer's queen!"
"Now the nightingale, the pretty nightingale, The sweetest singer in all the forest's choir, Estreat thee, sweet Peggy, to hear thy true love's tale; Lo, yonder she sitteth, her breast against a brier."
"But O, I spy the cuckoo, the cuckoo, the cuckoo; See where she sitteth: come away, my joy; Come away, I prithee: I do not like the cuckoo Should sing where my Peggy and I kiss and toy."

O the month of May, the merry month of May, So frollick, so gay, and so green, so green, so green! And then did I unto my true love say:
"Sweet Peg, thou shalt be my summer's queen!"

L. Mayor. It's well done. Mistress Eyre, pray, give good counsel
To my daughter.

Footnotes:
1 Sheriff.
2 "The three-farthning silver pieces of Queen Elisabeth had the profile of the sovereign with a rose at the back of her head." (Dyce.)
3 See, my dear brothers, heres comes my master.
4 The hood of a hood trimmed with fur or sheep's wool. (Rhys.)
5 I. e. for the twenty Portuguses previously lent.
6 A room at Old Ford.
7 A catch for three voices. It is by no means certain at what point in the play the songs were introduced.
Marg. I hope, Mistress Rose will have the grace to take nothing that's bad.
L. Mayor. Pray God she do; for I'll faith,
Mistress Eyre,
I would bestow upon that peevish girl
A thousand marks more than I mean to give her
Upon condition she'd be ruled by me.
The ape still crosseth me. There came of late
A proper gentleman of fair revenue,
Whom gladly I would call son-in-law:
But my fine cockney would have none of him.
You'll prove a coxcomb for it, ere you die:
A courtier, or no man, must please your eye.
Eyre. Be ruled, sweet Rose: th'art ripe for a man.
Marry not with a boy that has no more hair on his face than thou hast on thy cheeks.
A courtier, wash, go by, stand not upon Fishery-pashery: those asken fellows are but Painted images, outside, outside, Rose; their inner linings are torn.
No, my fine mouse, marry me with a gentleman grocer like my lord mayor, your father; a grocer is a sweet trade: plums, plums.
Had I a son or daughter should marry out of the generation and blood of the shoemakers, he should pack.
What, the gentle trade is a living for a man through Europe, through the world.
A noise within of a tabor and a pipe.
L. Mayor. What noise is this?
Eyre. O my lord mayor, a crew of good fellows that for love to your honour are come hither with a morris-dance. Come in, my Mesopotamians, cheerily.
Enter Hodge, HANS, RALPH, FULK, and other Shoemakers, in a morris; after a little dancing, the LOrd Mayor speaks.
L. Mayor. Master Eyre, are all these shoemakers?
Eyre. All cordwainers, my good lord mayor.
Rose. [Aside.] How like my Lacy looks your shoemaker!
Hans. [Aside.] O that I durst but speak unto my love!
L. Mayor. Sybil, go fetch some wine to make these drinks. You are all welcome.
All. We thank your lordship.
Rose. For his sake whose fair shape thou represent'st,
Good friend I drink to thee.
Hans. Ic bedesanke, good frister.
Marg. I see, Mistress Rose, you do not want judgment; you have drunk to the proper man I keep.
Fulk. Here be some have done their parts to be as proper as he.
L. Mayor. Well, urgent business calls me back to London.
Good fellows, first go in and taste our cheer;
And to make merry as you homeward go,
Spend these two angels in beer at Stratford-Bow.
Eyre. To these two, my mad lads, Sim Eyre adds another; then cheerily, Firk; tickle it, Hans, and all for the honour of shoemakers.

All go dancing out.
L. Mayor. Come, Master Eyre, let's have your company.
Exeunt.
Rose. Sybil, what shall I do?
Sybil. Why, what's the matter?
Rose. That Hans the shoemaker is my love.
Lacy, Disguis'd in that attire to find me out.
How should I find the means to speak with him?
Sybil. What, mistress, never fear; I dare venture my maidenhead to nothing, and that's great odds, that Hans the Dutchman, when we come to London, shall not only see and speak with you, but in spite of all your father's policies steal you away and marry you. Will not this please you?
Rose. Do this, and ever be assured of my love.
Sybil. Away, then, and follow your father to London, lest your absence cause him to suspect something:
To-morrow, if my counsel be obey'd,
I'll bind you prentice to the gentle trade.
[Exeunt.]

ACT IV

SCENE I.
JANE in a Seamster's shop, working; enter Master HAMMON, muffled: he stands aloof.
Ham. Yonder's the shop, and there my fair love sits.
She's fair and lovely, but she is not mine.
O, would she were! Thrice have I courted her,
Thrice hath my hand been moistened with her hand.
Whilst my poor famish'd eyes do feed on that
Which made them famish. I am unfortunate:
I still love one, yet nobody loves me.
I muse in other men what women see
That I so want! Fine Mistress Rose was coy,
And this too curious! Oh, no, she is chaste,
And for she thinks me wanton, she denies
To cheer my cold heart with her sunny eyes.
How prettily she works! Oh pretty hand!
Oh happy work! It doth me good to stand
Unseen to see her. Thus I oft have stood
In frosty evenings, a light burning by her,
Enduring biting cold, only to eye her.
One only look hath seem'd as rich to me
As a king's crown: such is love's lunacy.
Muffled I'll pass along, and by that try
Whether she know me.
Jane.
Sir, what is't you buy?
What is't you lack, sir, calico, or lawn,
Fine cambrié shirts, or bands, what will you buy?
Ham. [Aside.] That which thou wilt not sell.
Faith, yet I'll try:
How do you sell this handkerchief?
Jane.
Good cheap.

1 A street in London.
2 Fastidious.
Ham. And how these ruffs?
Jane. Cheap too.
Ham. And how this band?
Jane. Cheap too.
Ham. All cheap; how sell you then this Jane. My hands are not to be sold.
Ham. To be given then!

Nay, faith, I come to buy.
Jane. But none knows when.
Ham. Good sweet, leave work a little while;
let's play.
Jane. I cannot live by keeping holiday.
Ham. I'll pay you for the time which shall be lost.
Jane. With me you shall not be at so much cost.
Ham. Look, how you wound this cloth, so you would me.
Jane. It may be so.
Ham. 'Tis so.
Jane. What remedy?
Ham. Nay, faith, you are too coy.
Jane. Let go my hand.
Ham. I will do any task at your command,
I would let go this beauty, were I not
In mind to disobey you by a power
That controls kings: I love you!
Jane. So, now part.
Ham. With hands I may, but never with my heart.
In faith, I love you.
Jane. I believe you do.
Ham. Shall a true love in me breed hate in
you?
Jane. I hate you not.
Ham. Then you must love?
Jane. I do.
What are you better now? I love not you.
Ham. All this, I hope, is but a woman's fray,
That means, "Come to me," when she cries,
"Away!"

In earnest, mistress, I do not jest,
A true chaunts love hath ent'red in my breast.
I love you dearly, as I love my life;
I love you as a husband loves a wife;
That, and no other love, my love requires.
Thy wealth, I know, is little; my desires Thirst not for gold. Sweet, beautious Jane, what's mine
Shall, if thou make myself thine, all be thine.
Say, judge, what is thy sentence, life or death?
Mercy or cruelty lies in thy breath.
Jane. Good sir, I do believe you love me
well;
For 'tis a silly conquest, silly pride
For one like you — I mean a gentleman—
To boast that by his love-tricks he hath brought Such and such women to his amorous lure;
I think you do not so, yet many do,
And make it even a very trade to woo.
I could be coy, as many women be,
Feed you with sunshine smiles and wanton looks,
But I detect witchcraft; say that I
Do constantly believe, you constant have —
Ham. Why dost thou not believe me?
Jane. I believe you;
But yet, good sir, because I will not grieve you
With hopes to taste fruit which will never fall,
In simple truth this is the sum of all:
My husband lives, at least, I hope he lives.
Prest was he to these bitter wars in France;
Bitter they are to me by wanting him.
I have but one heart, and that heart's his due.
How can I then bestow the same on you?
Whilst he lives, his I live, be it ne'er so poor,
And rather be his wife than a king's whore.
Ham. Chaste and dear woman, I will not abuse thee,
Although it cost my life, if thou refuse me.
Thy husband, prest for France, what was his
name?
Jane. Ralph Dampfort.
Ham. Dampfort? — Here's a letter sent
From France to me, from a dear friend of mine,
A gentleman of place; here he doth write
Their names that have been slain in every fight.
Jane. I hope death's scroll contains not my love's name.
Ham. Cannot you read?
Jane. I can.
Ham. Feruse the same.
To my remembrance such a name I read
Amongst the rest. See here.
Jane. Ay me, he's dead!
He's dead! If this be true, my dear heart's slain!
Ham. Have patience, dear love.
Jane. Hence, hence!
Ham. Nay, sweet Jane,
Make not poor sorrow proud with these rich
tears.
I mourn thy husband's death, because thou r mourn'st.
Jane. That bill is forg'd; 'tis sign'd by forgers.
Ham. I'll bring thee letters sent besides to many,
Carrying the like report: Jane, 'tis too true.
Come, weep not: mourning, though it rise from
love,
Helps not the mourned, yet hurts them that mourn.
Jane. For God's sake, leave me.
Ham. Whither dost thou turn?
Forget the dead, love them that are alive;
His love is faded, try how mine will thrive.
Jane. 'Tis now no time for me to think on
love.
Ham. 'Tis now best time for you to think on
love,
Because your love lives not.
Jane. Though he be dead,
My love to him shall not be buried;
For God's sake, leave me to myself alone.
Ham. 'T would kill my soul, to leave thee
drown'd in moan.
Answer me to my suit, and I am gone;
Say to me yea or no.
Jane. No.
Ham. Then farewell!

One farewell will not serve, I come again;
Come, dry these wet cheeks; tell me, faith, sweet Jane,
Yea or no, once more.
Jane. Once more I say no;
Once more be gone, I pray; else will I go.
Ham. Nay, then I will grow rude, by this white hand,
Until you change that cold "no"; here I’ll stand.
Till by your hard heart —
Jane. Nay, for God’s love, peace! My sorrows by your presence more increase. Not that you thus are present, but all grief Desires to be alone; therefore in brief
Thus much I say, and saying bid adieu:
If ever I wed man, it shall be you.
Ham. O blessed voice! Dear Jane, I’ll urge no more, Thy breath hath made me rich.
Jane. Death makes me poor.

Exeunt.

SCENE II.

Hodge, at his shop-board, Ralphe, Firk, Hans, and a Boy at work.

All. Hey, down a down, down derry.
Hodge. Well said, my hearts; ply your work to-day, we loitered yesterday; to it pell-mell, that we may live to be lord mayors, or aldermen at least.

Firk. Hey, down a down, derry.
Hodge. Well said, i’ faith! How say’st thou, Hans, dost not Firk tickle it?
Hans. Yaw, mester.
Firk. Not so neither, my organ-pipe [squeaks this morning for want of liquor. Hey, down a down, derry!

Firk. Master!
Hodge. How now, boy?
Firk. Pray, now you are in the cutting vein, cut me out a pair of counterfeits, or else [my work will not pass current; hey, down a down!

Hodge. Tell me, sir’s, are my cousin Mrs. Priscilla’s shoes done?
Firk. Your cousin? No, master; one of your aunts, hang her; let them alone.

Ralph. I am in hand with them; she gave charge that none but I should do them for her.

Firk. Thou do for her? Then ’twill be a [lame doing, and that she loves not. Ralph, thou might’st have sent her to me, in faith, I would have yarked and tirked your Priscilla. Hey, down a down, derry. This gear will not hold.

Hodge. How say’st thou, Firk, were we not merry at Old Ford?

Firk. How, merry! Why, our buttocks went jigry-joggy like a quasmine. Wall, Sir Roger Oatmeal, if I thought all meal of that nature, I would eat nothing but bagpuddings.

Ralph. Of all good fortunes my fellow Hans had the best.

Firk. "Tis true, because Mistress Rose drank to him.

Hodge. Well, well, work space. They say, seven of the aldermen be dead, or very sick.
Firk. I care not, I’ll be none.

Ralph. No, nor I; but then my Master Eyre will come quickly to be lord mayor.

Enter Sybil.

Firk. Whoop, yonder comes Sybil.

Hodge. Sybil, welcome, i’ faith; and how dost thou, mad wench?
Firk. Sib-whoore, welcome to London.
Sybil. Godamercy, sweet Firk; good lord!

Hodge, what a delicious shop you have got! You tickle it, i’ faith.

Ralph. Godamercy, Sybil, for our good cheer at Old Ford.

Sybil. That you shall have, Ralph.

Firk. Nay, by the mass, we had tickling cheer, Sybil; and how the plague dost thou [and Mistress Rose and my lord mayor? I put the women in first.

Sybil. Well, Godamercy; but God’s me, I forget myself, where’s Hans the Fleming?
Firk. Hark, butter-box, now you must [yelp out some spraken.
Hans. Wat begaie you? Wat vod you, Frister? Sybil. Marry, you must come to my young mistress, to pull on her shoes you made last.
Hans. Vare ben your egle fro, vare ben your mistirs?

Sybil. Marry, here at our London house in Cornhill.

Firk. Will nobody serve her turn but Hans?

Sybil. No, sir, Come, Hans, I stand upon needles.

Hodge. Why then, Sybil, take heed of prick-
ing.

Sybil. For that let me alone. I have a trick in my budget. Come, Hans.

Hans. Yaw, yaw, iz sall meste yo gane.

Exit Hans and Sybil.

Hodge. Go, Hans, make haste again. Come, who lacks work?

Firk. I, master, for I lack my breakfast; ’tis munching-time, and past.

Hodge. Is’t so? Why, then leave work, Ralph. To breakfast! Boy, look to the tools.
Come, Ralph; come, Firk.

Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Enter a Serving-man.

Serv. Let me see now, the sign of the Last in Tower Street. Mass, yonder ’s the house. What, how I ’Who’s within?

1 London: a street before Hodge’s shop.
2 Forward, Firk, thou art a jolly youngster. Hark, ay, master, I pray you cut me a pair of vampees for Master Jeffrey’s boots. Vampees are the upper leathers of a show.
3 Counterfeits sometimes means vampee.
4 What do you want, what would you, girl?
5 Where is your noble lady, where is your mistress?
6 Yes, yes, I shall go with you.
7 The same.
Enter Ralph.

Ralph. Who calls there? What want you, sir?

Serv. Marry, I would have a pair of shoes made for a gentlewoman against to-morrow morning. What, can you do them?

Ralph. Yes, sir, you shall have them. But what length’s her foot?

Serv. Why you must make them in all parts like this shoe; but, at any hand, fail not to do them, for the gentlewoman is to be married very early in the morning.

Ralph. How? by this shoe must it be made?

By this? Are you sure, sir, by this?

Serv. How, by this? Am I sure, by this? Art thou in thy wits? I tell thee, I must have a pair of shoes dost thou mark me? A pair of shoes, two shoes, made by this very shoe, this same shoe, against to-morrow morning by four a clock. Dost understand me? Canst thou do’t?

Ralph. Yes, sir, yes — I — I — I can do’t. By this shoe, you say? I should know this shoe. Yes, sir, yes, by this shoe, I can do’t. Four as a clock, well. Whither shall I bring them?

Serv. To the sign of the Golden Ball in Watling Street; enquire for one Master Hammond, a gentleman, my master.

Ralph. Yes, sir; by this shoe, you say?

Serv. I say, Master Hammond at the Golden Ball; he’s the bridegroom, and these shoes are for his bride.

Ralph. They shall be done by this shoe. Well, well, Master Hammond at the Golden Shoe — I would say, the Golden Ball; very well, very well. But I pray you, sir, where must Master Hammond be married?

Serv. At Saint Faith’s Church, under Paul’s. But what’s that to thee? Prithee, dispatch these shoes, and so farewell. Exit: Ralph. By this shoe, said he. How am I amaz’d?

At this strange accident! Upon my life, This was the very shoe I gave my wife, When I was prest for France; since when, alas! I never could hear of her. It is the same, And Hammon’s bride no other but my Jane.

Enter Firk.

Firk. ’Snaile, Ralph, thou hast lost thy part of three pots, a countryman of mine gave me to breakfast.

Ralph. I care not; I have found a better thing.

Firk. A thing? Away! Is it a man’s thing, or a woman’s thing?

Ralph. Firk, dost thou know this shoe?

Firk. No, by my troth; neither doth that [know what I have no acquaintance with it, ’tis a mere stranger to me.

Ralph. Why, then I do; this shoe, I durst be sworn.

Once covered the instep of my Jane.

This is her size, her breadth, thus trod my love;

These true-love knots I prick. I hold my life, By this old shoe I shall find out my wife.

Firk. Ha, ha! Old shoe, that was new! How a murrain came this ague-fit of foolishness upon thee?

Ralph. Thus, Firk: even now here came a serving-man;

By this shoe would he have a new pair made Against to-morrow morning for his mistress, That’s to be married to a gentleman.

And why may not this be my sweet Jane?

Firk. And why may’st not thou be my sweet am?

Ha, ha!

Ralph. Well, laugh and spare not! But the truth is this:

Against to-morrow morning I’ll provide A lusty crew of honest shoemakers,

To watch the going of the bride to church.

If she prove Jane, I’ll take her in despite From Hammon and the devil, were he by.

If it be not my Jane, what remedy?

Hereof I am sure, I shall live till I die, Although I never with a woman lie.

Firk. Thou lie with a woman to build no thing but Cripplegate! Well, God sends fools fortune, and it may be, he may light upon his matrimony by such a device; for wedding and hanging goes by destiny.

Enter [Lady as] Hans and Rose, arm in arm.

Hans. How happy am I by embracing thee! Oh, I did fear such croes mishaps did reign That I should never see my Rose again.

Rose. Sweet Lacy, since fair opportunity Offers herself to further our escape, Let not too over-fond esteem of me Hinder that happy hour. Invent the means, And Rose will follow thee through all the world.

Hans. Oh, how I surfeit with excess of joy, Made happy by thy rich perfection!

But since thou pay’st sweet interest to my hopes, Redoubling love on love, let me once more Like to a bold-fac’d debitor crave of thee This night to steal abroad, and at Eyre’s house, Who now by death of certain aldermen Is mayor of London, and my master once, Meet thou thy Lacy, where in spite of change, Your father’s anger, and mine uncle’s hate, Our happy nuptials will we consummate.

Enter Sybil.

Sybil. Oh God, what will you do, mistress? Shift for yourself, you father is at hand. He’s coming, he’s coming! Master Lacy, hide yourself in my mistress! For God’s sake, shift for yourselves!

Hans. Your father come! Sweet Rose, what shall I do?

Where shall I hide me? How shall I escape?

Rose. A man, and want wit in extremity?
Come, come, be Hans still, play the shoemaker, Pull on my shoe.

Enter the LORD MAYOR.

Hans. Mass, and that’s well rememb’red.
Sybil. Here comes your father.
Hans. Forwar, metresse, ‘tis un good skoo, it sal vel dute, or ye sal neit betallen.¹
Rose. Oh God, it pincheth me; what will you do?
Hans. [Aside.] Your father’s presence pincheth, not the shoe.
L. Mayor. Well done; fit my daughter well, and she shall please thee well.
Hans. Yaw, yow, ick wet dat well; forwar, ’tis un good skoo, ’tis gimian van neitz leither: se ever, mine here.²

Enter a Prentice.

L. Mayor. I do believe it. — What’s the news with you? ⁴
Prentice. Please you, the Earl of Lincoln at the gate
Is newly lighted, and would speak with you.
L. Mayor. The Earl of Lincoln come to speak with me?
Well, well, I know his errand. Daughter Rose,
Send hence your shoemaker, dispatch, have done!
Syb, make things handsome! Sir boy, follow me.
Exit.
Hans. Mine uncle come! Oh, what may this portend?
Sweet Rose, this of our love threatens an end.
Rose. Be not dismay’d at this; whate’er befall,
Rose is thine own. To witness I speak truth,²
Where thou appoint’st the place, I’ll meet with thee.
I will not fix a day to follow thee,
But presently² steal hence. Do not reply:
Love which gave strength to bear my father’s hate,
Shall now add wings to further our escape. =

Exeunt.

Scene V.⁴

Enter the LORD MAYOR and the EARL OF LINCOLN.

L. Mayor. Believe me, on my credit, I speak truth:
Since first your nephew Lacy went to France,
I have not seen him. It seem’d strange to me,
When Dodger told me that he stay’d behind,
Neglecting the high charge the king imposed. ³
Lincoln. Trust me, Sir Roger Oateley, I did think
Your counsel had given head to this attempt,
Drawn to it by the love he bears your child.
Here I did hope to find him in your house;
But now I see mine error, and confess, ¹²
My judgment wrong’d you by conceiving so.
¹ Indeed, mistress, ’tis a good shoe, it shall fit well, or you shall not pay.
² Yes, yes, I know that well; indeed, ’tis a good shoe,
² It’s made of neath’s leather; see here, good sir!
³ As once. ⁴ Another room in the same house.

L. Mayor. Lodge in my house, say you? Trust me, my lord,
I love your nephew Lacy too too dearly,
So much to wrong his honour; and he hath done so.
18 That first gave him advice to stay from France.
To witness I speak truth, let you know
How careful I have been to keep my daughter
Free from all conference or speech of him;
Not that I scorn your nephew, but in love
I bear your honour, lest your noble blood
Should by my mean worth be dishonoured.
Lincoln. [Aside.] How far the churl’s tongue wanders from his heart! —
Well, well, Sir Roger Oateley, I believe you,
With more than many thanks for the kind love
So much you seem to bear me. But, my lord, =
Let me request your help to seek my nephew,
Whom if I find, I’ll straight embark for France.
So shall your Rose be free, my thoughts at rest,
And much care die which now lies in my breast.

Enter SYBIL.

Sybil. Oh Lord! Help, for God’s sake! [œ
My mistress; oh, my young mistress!
L. Mayor. Where is thy mistress? What’s become of her?
Sybil. She’s gone, she’s fled!
L. Mayor. Gone! Whither is she fled? =
Sybil. I know not, forsooth; she’s fled out of doors with Hans the shoemaker; I saw them send, send, send, asleep, asleep, asleep!
L. Mayor. Which way? What, John! Where be my men? Which way? =
Sybil. I know not, an it please your worship.
L. Mayor. Fled with a shoemaker? Can this be true?
Sybil. Oh Lord, sir, as true as God’s in Heaven.
Lincoln. Her love turn’d shoemaker? I am glad of this.
L. Mayor. A Fleming butter-box, a shoe-maker!
Will she forget her birth, requite my care
With such ingratitude? Scorn’d she young Hammon
To love a homiken,⁶ a needy knave?
Well, let her fly, I’ll not fly after her.
Let her starve, if she will: she’s none of mine.
Lincoln. Be not so cruel, sir.

Enter Firk with shoes.

Sybil. I am glad, she’s scapt.
L. Mayor. I’ll not account of her as of my child.
Was there no better object for her eyes,
But a foul drunken lubber, swill-belly,
A shoemaker? That’s brave!
Firk. Yes, forsooth; ’tis a very brave shoe, and as fit as a pudding.
L. Mayor. How now, what knave is this?
From whence camest thou?
Firk. No knave, sir. I am Firk the shoemaker, lusty Roger’s chief lusty journeyman, and I have come hither to take up the pretty ² Simplicien (?).

IV. V.
THE SHOEMAKERS' HOLIDAY

Leg of sweet Mistress Rose, and thus hoping your worship is in as good health, as I was at the making hereof, I bid you farewell, yours, [as Firk.
L. Mayor. Stay, stay, Sir Knave!
Lincoln. Come hither, shoemaker!
Firk. 'Tis happy the knife is put before the shoemaker, or else I would not have vouch[ed] so safely to come back to you. I am moved, for I stir.
L. Mayor. My lord, this villain calls us knaves by craft.
Firk. Then 'tis by the gentle craft, and [as to call one knave gently, is no harm. Sit your worship marry! Syb, your young mistress— I'll so bob [them, now my Master Eyre is lord mayor of London.
L. Mayor. Tell me, sirrah, whose man are you?
Firk. I am glad to see your worship so merry. I have no maw to this gear, no stomach as yet to a red petticoat. Pointing to Sisid.
Lincoln. He means not, sir, to woo you to his maid,
But only doth demand whose man you are.
Firk. I sing now to the tune of Rogero.
Roger, my fellow, is now my master.
Lincoln. Sirrah, know'st thou one Hans, a shoemaker?
Firk. Hans, shoemaker? Oh yes, stay, yes, I have him. I tell you what, I speak it in secret: Mistress Rose and he are by this time — no, not so, but shortly are to come over one another with "Can you dance the shakins of the [se sheets?" It is that Hans— [Aside. I'll so gull [these diggers! [135
L. Mayor. Know'st thou, then, where he is?
Firk. Yes, forsooth; yes, marry!
Lincoln. Canst thou, in sadness—
Firk. No, forsooth, no, marry!
L. Mayor. Tell me, good honest fellow, where he is.
And thou shalt see what I'll bestow on thee.
Firk. Honest fellow? No, sir; not so, sir; my profession is the gentle craft; I care not [139 for seeing, I love feeling; let me feel it here; aurium tenus, ten pieces of gold; genuum tenus, ten pieces of silver; and then Firk is your man— [Aside. in a new pair of stretchers. [144
L. Mayor. Here is an angel, part of thy reward.
Which I will give thee; tell me where he is.
Firk. No point. Shall I betray my brother? No! Shall I prove Judas to Hans? No! Shall I cry treason to my corporation? No, I shall be first and yerkat then. But give me your [154 ancel; your angel shall tell you.
Lincoln. Do so, good fellow; 'tis no hurt to thee.
Firk. Send simpering Syb away.
L. Mayor. Huswife, get you in.
Exit Sir Sil.
Firk. Pitchers have ears, and maids have wide mouths; but for Hans Prauns, upon my word, to-morrow morning he and young Mistress Rose go to this gear, they shall be married together, by this rush, or else turn Firk to a firkin of butter, to tan leather withal.

L. Mayor. But art thou sure of this?
Firk. Am I sure that Paul's steeple is a handful higher than London Stone, or that the Pissing-Conduit leaks nothing but pure [149 Mother Bunch? Am I sure I am lusty Firk? God's nails, do you think I am so base to gull you?
Lincoln. Where are they married? Dost thou know the church?
Firk. I never go to church, but I know the name of it; it is a swearing church— stay a while, 'tis— ay, by the mass, no, no, — 'tis— ay, by my troth, no, nor that; 'tis— ay, by my faith, that, that, 'tis, ay, by my Faith's Church under Paul's Cross. There they shall [151 be knit like a pair of stockings in matrimony; there they'll be incostic. [9
Lincoln. Upon my life, my nephew Lacy walks.
In the disguise of this Dutch shoemaker.
Firk. Yes, forsooth.
Lincoln. Doth he not, honest fellow?
Firk. No, forsooth; I think Hans is nobody but Hans, no spirit.
L. Mayor. My mind misgives me now, 'tis so, indeed.
Lincoln. My cousin speaks the language, knows the trade.
L. Mayor. Let me request your company, my lord;
Your honourable presence may, no doubt, Rebuff their headstrong rashness, when myself Going alone perchance may be o'orbore.
Shall I request this favour?
Lincoln. This, or what else.
Firk. Then you must rise betimes, for they mean to fall to their hey-pass and repase, [9 pindly-pandy, which hand will you have, very only.
L. Mayor. My care shall every way equal their haste.
This night accept your lodging in my house.
The earlier shall we stir, and at Saint Faith's Prevent this giddy hare-brain'd nuptial.
This traffic of hot love shall yield cold gains:
They ban [10 our loves, and we'll forbid their banms.
Exit. At Saint Faith's Church thou say'st?
Firk. Yes, by their truth.
Lincoln. Be secret, on thy life.
Exit.
Firk. Yes, when I kiss your wife! Ha, ha, here's no craft in the gentle craft. I came [116 hither of purpose with shoes to Sir Roger's worship, whilst Rose, his daughter, be conyen- catch by Hans. Soft now; these two gulls will be at Saint Faith's Church to-morrow; I'll morning, to take Master Bridegroom and Mis-

[5] A stone which marked the centre from which the old Roman roads radiated.
[7] Mother Bunch was a well-known ale-wife.
tress Bride napping, and they, in the mean time, shall chop up the matter at the Savoy.
But the best sport is, Sir Roger Oatesley will find my fellow lame Ralph’s wife going to [179] marry a gentleman, and then he’ll stop her instead of his daughter. Oh brave! there will be fine tickling sport. Soft now, what have I to do? Oh, I know; now a mess of shoemakers meet at the Woolpack in Ivy Lane, to cozen [1] my gentleman of lame Ralph’s wife, that’s [115]
true.
Allack, allack!
Girls, hold out tack!
For now stocks for this jumbling
Shall go to wrack.

ACT V

SCENE I.

Enter EYRE, his wife [MARGERY], HANS, and ROSE.

Eyre. This is the morning, then; stay, my bully, my honest Hans, is it not?
Hans. This is the morning that must make us two happy or miserable; therefore, if you—

Eyre. Away with these ifs and ans, Hans, and these et ceteras! By mine honour, Rowland Lacy, none but the king shall wrong thee.
Come, fear nothing, am not I Sim Eyre? Is not Sim Eyre lord mayor of London? Fear no— [110] thing, Rose: let them all say what they can;
dainty, come thou to me—laughest thou?
Marg. Good my lord, stand her friend in what thing you may.

Eyre. Why, my sweet Lady Madgy, think [115] you Simon Eyre can forget his fine Dutch journeyman? No, vah! Fee, I scorn it, it shall never be cast in my teeth, that I was unthankful. Lady Madgy, thou hadst never cover’d thy Saracen’s head with this French flap, nor [125] loaden thy bum with this farthingale, (’tis tush, trumpery, vanity); Simon Eyre had never walk’d in a red petticoat, nor wore a chain of gold, but for my fine journeyman’s Portugesse.
—and shall I leave him? No! Prince am I [130]
one, yet bear a prince’s mind.

Hans. My lord, ’tis time for us to part from hence.

Eyre. Lady Madgy, Lady Madgy, take two or three of my pie-crust-eaters, my buffalo-ker-varlets, that do walk in black gowns at [135]
Simon Eyre’s heels; take them, good Lady Madgy; trip and go, my brown queen of periwigs, with my delicate Rose and my jolly Rowland to the Savoy; see them link, countenance the marriage; and when it is done, cling, [140]
cling together, you Hamborough turtle-doves.
I’ll hear you out, come to Simon Eyre; come, dwell with me, Hans, thou shalt eat mince’- dpies and marmalades. [145] Rose, away, cricket; trip and go, my Lady Madgy, to the Savoy; Hans, wed, and to bed; kiss, and away! Go, vanish!

Marg. Farewell, my lord.
Rose. Make haste, sweet love.
Marg. She’d fain the deed were done.

Hans. Come, my sweet Rose; faster than deer we’ll run.

Exeunt HANS, ROSE, and MARGERY.

Eyre. Go, vanish, vanish! Avant, I say! By the Lord of Ludgate, ’tis a mad life to be a lord mayor; ’tis a stirring life, a fine life, a velvet life, a careful life. Well, Simon Eyre, yet set a good face on it, in the honour of Saint [150] Hugh. Soft, the king this day comes to dine with me, to see my new buildings; his majesty is welcome, he shall have good cheer, delicate cheer, princely cheer. This day, my fellow pren-tecies of London come to dine with me too, [155]
they shall have fine cheer, gentlemanlike cheer.
I promised the mad Cappadocians, when we all served at the Conduit together, that if ever I came to be mayor of London, I would fease them all, and I ’ll do ’t, I ’ll do ’t, by the life [157] of Pharaoh; by this beard, Sim Eyre will be no flincher. Besides, I have procur’d that upon every Shrove-Tuesday, at the sound of the pancake bell, my fine dapper Assyrian lads shall clap up their shop windows, and away. [160]
This is the day, and this day they shall do ’t, they shall do ’t.

Boys, that day are you free, let masters care,
And prentices shall pray for Simon Eyre.

Exit.

SCENE II.4

Enter HODGE, FIKK, RALPH, and five or six
Shoemakers, all with cudgels or such weapons.

Hodge. Come, Ralph; stand to it, Firk. My masters, as we are the brave bloods of the shoemakers, heirs apparent to Saint Hugh, and perpetual benefactors to all good fellows, thou shall have no wrong: were Hammon a king [165] of spades, he should not delve in thy close without thy suffrance. But tell me, Ralph, art thou sure ’tis thy wife?

Ralph. Am I sure this is Firk? This morning, when I stroked on her shoes, I look’d upon [170] her, and she upon me, and sigh’d, saith me if ever I knew one Ralph. Yes, said I. For his sake, saith she — tears standing in her eyes — and for thou art somewhat like him, spend this piece of gold. I took it; my lame leg and [175] my travel beyond sea made me unknown. All is one for that: I know she’s mine.

Firk. Did she give thee this gold? O glorious, glittering gold! She’s thine own, ’tis thy wife, and she loves thee; for I’ll stand to ’t, [180]
there’s no woman will give gold to any man, but she thinks better of him than she thinks of them she gives silver to. And for Hammon, either Hammon nor hangman shall wrong thee in London! Is not our old master Eyre, [185] our lord mayor? Speak, my hearts.

All. Yes, and Hammon shall know it to his cost.

4 A street near St. Faith’s Church.

Fitted.
Enter HAMMON, his man, JANE, and Others.

Hodge. Peace, my bullies; yonder they come.

Ralph. Stand to 't, my hearts. Firk, let me speak first.

Hodge. No, Ralph, let me — Hammon, whither away so early?

Ham. Unmannerly, rude slave, what's that to thee?

Firk. To him, sir? Yes, sir, and to me, and others. Good-morrow, Jane, how dost thou? Good Lord, how the world is changed with you! God be thanked!

Ham. Villains, hands off! How dare you touch my love?

All. Villains? Down with them! Cry clubs for prentices! 1

Hodge. Hold, my hearts! Touch her, Hammon? Yes, and more than that: we'll carry her away with us. My masters and gentlemen, never draw your bird-splits; shoemakers are steel to the back, men every inch of them, [as all spirit.

All of Hammon's side. Well, and what of all this?

Hodge. I'll show you. — Jane, dost thou [so know this man? 'Tis Ralph, I can tell thee; nay, 'tis he in faith, though he be lam'd by the wars. Yet look not strange, but run to him, fold him about the neck and kiss him.

Jane. Lives then my husband? Oh God, let me go,

Let me embrace my Ralph.

Ham. What means my Jane?

Jane. Nay, what meant you, to tell me, he was slain?

Ham. Pardon me, dear love, for being misled.
[To RALPH.] 'T was rumour'd here in London, thou wert dead.

Firk. Thou seest he lives. Lass, go, pack home with him.

Now, Master Hammon, where's your mistress, your wife?

Serv. 'Sounds down, master, fight for her! Will you thus lose her?

All. Down with that creature! Clubs! Down with him!

Hodge. Hold, hold!

Ham. Hold, fool! Sirs, he shall do no wrong. Will my Jane leave me thus, and break her faith?

Firk. Yes, sir! She must, sir! She shall, sir! What then? Mend it! 70

Hodge. Hark, fellow Ralph, follow my counsel: set the wench in the midst, and let her choose her man, and let her be his woman.

Jane. Whom shall I choose? Whom should my thoughts affect

But him whom Heaven hath made to be my love?

Thou art my husband, and these humble weeds

Make thee more beautiful than all his wealth. Therefore, I will but put off his attire,

1 "Clubs" was the rallying cry of the London apprentices.

Returning it into the owner's hand,

And after ever be thy constant wife.

Hodge. Not a rag, Jane! The law's on our side: he that sows in another man's ground, forfeits his harvest. Get thee home, Ralph; follow him, Jane; he shall not have so much as a busk-point 2 from thee.

Firk. Stand to that, Ralph; the appurtenances are thine own. Hammon, look not at her!

Serv. O, swounds, no!

Firk. Blue coat, be quiet, we'll give you a new livery else; we'll make Shrove Tuesday Saint George's Day for you. Look not, Hammon, leer not! I'll firk you! For thy head now, one glance, one sheep's eye, anything, at her! Touch not a rag, lest I and my brethren beat you to clouts.

Serv. Come, Master Hammon, there's no straining here.

Ham. God help fellows, hear me speak; and, honest Ralph,
Whom I have injured most by loving Jane,
Mark what I offer thee: here in fair gold
In twenty pound, I'll give it for thy Jane;
If this content thee not, thou shalt have more.

Firk. Sell not thy wife, Ralph; make her not a whore.

Ham. Say, wilt thou freely cease thy claim in her.

And let her be my wife?

All. No, do not, Ralph. 105

Ralph. Sirrah Hammon, Hammon, dost thou think a shoemaker is so base to be a bawd to his own wife for commodity? Take thy gold, choke with it! Were I not lame, I would make thee eat thy words.

Firk. A shoemaker sell his flesh and blood? Oh indignity! Sirrah, take up your pelf, and be packing.

Ham. I will not touch one penny, but in lieu Of that great wrong I offered thy Jane,
To Jane and thee I give that twenty pound.

Since I have fail'd of her, during my life, I vow, no woman else shall be my wife.

Farewell, good fellows of the gentle trade: Your morning mirth my mourning day hath made.

Firk. [to the Serving-man.] Touch the gold creature, if you dare! Y' are best be trudging. Here, Jane, take thou it. Now let's home, my hearts.

Hodge. Stay! Who comes here? Jane, on again with thy mask!

Enter the EARL OF LINCOLN, the LORD MAYOR, and Servants.

Lincoln. Yonder, the lying varet mockt us.

L. Mayor. Come hither, sirrah!

Firk. I, sir? I am sirrah? You mean me, do you not?

Lincoln. Where is my nephew married?

1 A lace with a tag, which fastened the busk, or piece of wood or whalebone used to keep the stays in position.
Firk. Is he married? God give him joy, I am glad of it. They have a fair day, and the sign is in a good planet, Mars in Venus.
L. Mayor. Villain, thou saidst that my daughter Rose
This morning should be married at Saint Faith’s;
We have watch’d there these three hours at the least,
Yet see we no such thing.
Firk. Truly, I am sorry for’t; a bride’s a pretty thing.
Hodge. Come to the purpose. Yonder’s the bride and bridgroom you look for, I hope.
Though you be lords, you are not to bar by your authority men from women, are you?
L. Mayor. See, see, my daughter’s maskt.
Lincoln. True, and my nephew.
To hide his guilt, counterfeits him lame.
Firk. Yes, truly; God help the poor captive, they are lame and blind.
L. Mayor. I’ll ease her blindness.
Lincoln. I’ll his lameness cure.
Firk. Lie down, sit, and laugh! My fellow Ralph is taken for Rowland Lacy, and Jane for Mistress Damsak Rose. This is all my knavery.
L. Mayor. What, have I found you, minion?
Lincoln. O base wretch! Nay, hide thy face, the horror of thy guilt Can hardly be wash’d off. Where are thy pow-er’s?
What battles have you made? O yes, I see,
Thou fought’st with Shame, and Shame hath conquer’d thee.
This lameness will not serve.
L. Mayor. Unmask yourself.
Lincoln. Lead home your daughter.
L. Mayor. Take your nephew hence.
Ralph. Hence! Swounds, what mean you?
Are you mad? I hope, you cannot enforce my wife from me. Where’s Hammon?
L. Mayor. Your wife?
Lincoln. What, Hammon?
Ralph. Yea, my wife; and, therefore, the proudest of you that lay hands on her first, I’ll lay my crutch ‘cross his pate.
Firk. To him, lame Ralph! Here’s brave
sport!
Ralph. Rose call you her? Why, her name is Jane. Look here else; do you know her now?
[Unmasking JANE.]
Lincoln. Is this your daughter?
L. Mayor. No, nor this your nephew.
My Lord of Lincoln, we are both abus’d
By this base, crafty valet.
Firk. Yea, forsooth, no varlet; forsooth, no bus; forsooth, I am but mean; no crafty neither, but of the gentle craft.
L. Mayor. Where is my daughter Rose?
Where is my child?
Lincoln. Where is my nephew Lacy married?
Firk. Why, here is good lac’d mutton, as I promis’d you.
Lincoln. Villain, I’ll have thee punish for this wrong.

Firk. Punish the journeyman villain, but not the journeyman shoemaker.

Enter Dodger.

Dodger. My lord, I come to bring unwelcome
news.
Your nephew Lacy and your daughter Rose
Early this morning wedded at the Savoy,
None being present but the lady mayor.
Besides, I learnt among the officers,
The lord mayor vows to stand in their defence
’Gainst any that shall seek to cross the match.
Lincoln. Dares Eyre the shoemaker uphold the deed?
Firk. Yes, sir, shoemakers dare stand in a woman’s quarrel, I warrant you, as deep as another, and deeper too.

Dodger. Besides, his grace to-day dines with the mayor;
Who on his knees humbly intends to fall
And beg a pardon for your nephew’s fault.
Lincoln. But I’ll prevent him! Come, Sir
Roger Oateley;
The king will do us justice in this case.
However their hands have made them man and wife,
I will disjoin the match, or lose my life.

Firk. Adieu, Monsieur Dodger! Farewell, fools! Ha, ha! Oh, if they had stay’d, I would have so lamb’d them with flouts! O heart, my codpiece-point is ready to fly in pieces every time I think upon Mistress Rose. But let that pass, as my lady mayor says.

Hodge. This matter is answer’d. Come, Ralph;
home with thy wife. Come, my fine shoemakers, et’s to our master’s the new lord mayor,
and there swagger this Shrove Tuesday.
I’ll promise you wine enough, for Madge keeps the cellar.

All. O rare! Madge is a good wench.

Firk. And I’ll promise you meat enough, f’ring Susan keeps the larder. I’ll lead you to victuals, my brave soldiers; follow your captain. O brave! Hark, hark! Bell rings.

All. The pancake-bell rings, the pancake-bell! Trill, my hearts!

Firk. Oh brave! Oh sweet bell! O delicate pancakes! Open the doors, my hearts, and shut up the windows! Keep in the house, let out the pancakes! Oh rare, my hearts! Let’s march together for the honour of Saint Hugh to the great new hall in Gracious Street corner, which our master, the new lord mayor, hath built.
Ralph. O the crew of good fellows that will dine at my lord mayor’s cost to-day!

Hodge. By the Lord, my lord mayor is a most brave man. How shall prentices be bound to pray for him and the honour of the gentlemen shoemakers! Let’s feed and be fat with my lord’s bounty.

Firk. O musical bell, still! O Hodge, O my brethren! There’s cheer for the heavens: venison-pasties walk up and down piping hot, like

1 A slang term for a woman.
sergeants; beef and brewees comes march- ing in dry-yats, fritters and pancakes comes trolling in in wheel-barrows; hens and orange hopping in porters' baskets, collops and eggs in scuttles, and tarts and custards comes quaver ing in in malt-shovels.

Enter more Prentices.

All. Whoop, look here, look here!

Hodge. How now, mad lads, whither away so fast?

1 Prentice. Whither? Why, to the great new hall, know you not why? The lord mayor hath bidden all the prentices in London to breakfast this morning.

All. Oh brave shoemakers, oh brave lord of incomprehensible good-fellowship! Whoo! Hark you! The pancake-bell rings.

Cast up caps.

Firk. Nay, more, my hearts! Every Shrove Tuesday is our year of jubilees; and when the pancake-bell rings, we are as free as my lord mayor; we may shut up our shops, and make holiday; I'll have it call'd Saint Hugh's Holiday.

All. Agreed, agreed! Saint Hugh's Holiday.

Hodge. And this shall continue for ever.

All. Oh brave! Come, come, my hearts! Away, away!

Firk. O eternal credit to us of the gentle craft! March fair, my hearts! Oh rare!

Exeunt.

SCENE III.4

Enter the King and his Train over the stage.

King. Is our lord mayor of London such a gallant?

Nobleman. One of the merriest madcaps in your land.

Your grace will think, when you behold the man, he's rather a wild ruffian than a mayor. Yet thus much I'll ensure your majesty, in all his actions that concern his state he is as serious, provident, and wise, as full of gravity amongst the grave, as any mayor hath been these many years.

King. I am with child till I behold this huff-cap. But all my doubt is, when we come in presence, his madness will be daish clean out of countenance.

Nobleman. It may be so, my liege.

King. Which to prevent, let some one give him notice, 'tis our pleasure that he put on his wonted merriment. Set forward!

All. On afores!

Exeunt.

SCENE IV.7

Enter Eyre, Hodge, Firk, Ralph, and other Shoemakers, all with napkins on their shoulders.

Eyre. Come, my fine Hodge, my jolly gentle men shoemakers; soft, where be these cannie-

1 Beef broth. 2 Hods. 3 Swaggerer. 4 Barrel. 5 A street in London. 6 A great hall. 7 In suspense.

bals, these varlets, my officers? Let them all walk and wait upon my brethren; for my meaning is, that none but shoemakers, none but the livery of my company shall in their satin hoods wait upon the trencher of my sovereign.

Firk. O my lord, it will be rare!

Eyre. No more, Firk; come, lively! Let your fellow-prentices want no cheer; let wine be plentiful as beer, and beer as water. Hang these penny-pinching fathers, that cram wealth in innocent lamb-skins. Rip, knaves, avaunt! Look to my guests!

Hodge. My lord, we are at our wits' end for room; those hundred tables will not feast the fourth part of them.

Eyre. Then cover me those hundred tables again, and again, till all my jolly prentices be feasted. Avoid, Hodge! Run, Ralph! Firk is about, my nimble Firk! Carouse me fathom-healts to the honour of the shoemakers. Do they drink lively, Hodge? Do they tickle it, Firk?

Firk. Tickle it? Some of them have taken their liquor standing so long that they can stand no longer; but for meat, they would eat it as they had it.

Eyre. Want they meat? Where's this swag-belley, this greasy kitchen stuff cook? Call " the varlet to me! Want meat? Firk, Hodge, lane Ralph, run, my tall men, beleaguer the shambles, beggar all Eastcheap, serve me whole oxen in chargers, and let sheep whine upon the tables like pies for want of good fellows to eat them. Want meat? Vanish, Firk! Avaunt, Hodge!

Hodge. Your lordship mistakes my man Firk; he means, their bellies want meat, not the boards; for they have drunk so much, they can eat nothing.

THE SECOND THREE Men's Song

Cold's the wind, and wet's the rain,
Saint Hugh be our good speed:
Ill is the weather that bringeth no gain,
Nor helps good hearts in need.

Trow! the bowl, the jolly nut-brown bowl,
And here, kind mate, to thee:
Let's sing a dirge for Saint Hugh's soul,
And down it merrily.

Down a down hey-down a down,
(With the tenor boy)
Hey derry derry, down a down!
Ho, well done! to me let come!
Ring, compass, gentle joy.

Trow! the bowl, the nut-brown bowl,
And here, kind mate, to thee etc.
Repeat as often as there men to drink;
And at last when all have drank, this verse:
Cold's the wind, and wet's the rain,
Saint Hugh be our good speed:
Ill is the weather that bringeth no gain,
Nor helps good hearts in need.

Enter Hans, Rose, and Wife [Margery].

Marg. Where is my lord?

Eyre. How now, Lady Madgy?

Footnotes:

1 Beef broth. 2 Hods. 3 Swaggerer. 4 A street in London. 5 A great hall. 6 In suspense.
A long flourish, or two. Enter the King, Nobles, EYRE, his Wife [MARGERY], LACY, ROSE. LACY and ROSE kneel.

King. Well, Lacy, though the fact was very foul
Of your revolting from our kingly love
And your own duty, yet we pardon you.

Rise both, and, Mistress Lacy, thank your lord mayor
For your young bridegroom here.

Eyre. So, my dear liege, Sim Eyre and my brethren, the gentlemen shoemakers, shall set your sweet majesty's image check by jowl by Saint Hugh for this honour you have done poor Simon Eyre. I beseech your grace, pardon me, my rude behaviour; I am a handcraftsman, yet my heart is without craft; I would be sorry at my soul, that my boldness should offend my king.

King. Nay, I pray thee, good lord mayor, be even as merry
As if thou wert among thy shoemakers;
It doth me good to see thee in this humour.

Eyre. Say'st thou me so, my sweet Dioclesian? Then, hump! Prince am I none, yet am I priscely born. By the Lord of Ludgate, my liege, I'll be as merry as a pie.

King. Tell me, in faith, mad Eyre, how old thou art.

Eyre. My liege, a very boy, a strippling, a younger; you see not a white hair on my head, not a gray in this beard. Every hair, I as sure thy majesty, that sticks in this beard, Sim Eyre values at the King of Babylon's ransom, Tamar Cham's beard was a rubbing brush to 't: yet I'll shave it off, and stuff tennis-balls with it, to please my bully king.

King. But all this while I do not know thy age.

Eyre. My liege, I am six and fifty year old, yet I can cry hump! with a sound heart for the honour of Saint Hugh. Mark this old wench, my king: I dance'd the shaking of the sheets with her six and thirty years ago, and yet I hope to get her or three young lord mayors, ere I die. I am lusty still, Sim Eyre still. Care and cold lodging brings white hairs. My sweet Majesty, let care vanish, cast it upon thy nobles, as it will make thee look always young like Apollo, and cry hump! Prince am I none, yet am I priscely born.

King. Ha, ha!

Say, Cornwall, didst thou ever see his like?

Nobleman. Not I, my lord.

Enter the Earl of Lincoln and the Lord Mayor.

King. Lincoln, what news with you? Lincoln. My gracious lord, have care unto yourself, For there are traitors here.

King. Where is the traitor, Lincoln?

Lincoln. Here he stands.

King. Cornwall, lay hold on Lacy! — Lincoln, speak,

What canst thou lay unto thy nephew's charge?

Lincoln. This, my dear liege: your Grace, to do me honour,

Heapt on the head of this degenerate boy Desartless favours; you made choice of him To be commander over powers in France. But he——

King. Good Lincoln, prithee, pause a while! Even in thine eyes I read what thou wouldst speak.

I know how Lacy did neglect our love, Ran himself deeply, in the highest degree, Into vile treason — Lincoln. Is he not a traitor?

King. Lincoln, he was; now have we pardoned him.

'Twas not a base want of true valour's fire, That held him out of France, but love's desire. Lincoln. I will not bear his shame upon my back.

Maggie.
As bright in the world’s eye as the gay beams
Of any citizen?

Lincoln. Yes, but, my gracious lord,
I do dislike the match far more than he;
Her blood is too base.

King. Lincoln, no more.
Dost thou not know that love respects no blood;
Cares not for difference of birth or state?

The maid is young, well born, fair, virtuous,
A worthy bride for any gentleman.
Besides, your nephew for her sake did stoop
To bear necessity, and, as I hear,
Forgetting honours and all courtly pleasures,
To gain her love, became a shoemaker.

As for the honour which he lost in France,
Thus I redeem it: Lacy, kneel thee down:—
Arie, Sir Rowland Lacy! Tell me now,
Tell me in earnest, Oateley, canst thou chide,
Seeing thy Rose a lady and a bride?

L. Mayor. I am content with what your grace hath done.

Lincoln. And I, my liege, since there’s no remedy.

King. Come on, then, all shake hands: I’ll have you friends;
Where there is much love, all discord ends.

What say my mad lord mayor to all this love?

Eye. O my liege, this honour you have done to my fine journeyman here, Rowland Lacy, and all these favours which you have shown to me this day in my poor house, will make Simon Eye live longer by one dozen of warm summers more than he should.

King. Nay, my mad lord mayor, that shall be thy name;
If any grace of mine can length thy life,
One honour more I’ll do thee: that new building,

Which at thy cost in Cornhill is erected,
Shall take a name from us: we’ll have it call’d The Leadenhall, because in digging it
You found the lead that covereth the same.

Eye. I thank your majesty.

Marg. God bless your grace!

King. Lincoln, a word with you!

Enter Hodge, Firks, Ralph, and more Shoemakers.

Eye. How now, my mad knaves? Peace, speak softly, yonder is the king.

King. With the old troop which there we keep in pay.
We will incorporate a new supply.
Before one summer more pass o’er my head,
France shall repent, England was injured.
What are all those?

Lacy. All shoemakers, my liege,
Sometime my fellows; in their companies
I liv’d as merry as an emperor.

King. My mad lord mayor, are all these shoemakers?

1 "A. D. 1412. This year Sir Symon Eyre built Leadenhall, at his proper expense, as it now appears, and gave the same to the City to be employed as a public granary for laying up corn against a time of scarcity."
According to below, Eyre was a draper, became Mayor in 1442, and died in 1459.
Eyre. All shoemakers, my liege; all gentlemen of the gentle craft, true Trojans, courageous cordwainers; they all kneel to the shrine of holy Saint Hugh.

All the Shoemakers. God save your majesty!

King. Mad Simon, would they anything with us?

Eyre. Mum, mad knaves! Not a word! I'll do't; I warrant you. They are all beggars, my liege; all for themselves, and I for them all on both my knees do entreat, that for the honour of poor Simon Eyre and the good of his brethren, these mad knaves, your grace would vouchsafe some privilege to my new Leadenhall, that it may be lawful for us to buy and sell leather there two days a week.

King. Mad Simon, I grant your suit, you shall have patent To hold two market-days in Leadenhall, Mondays and Fridays, those shall be the times. Will this content you?

Eyre. In the name of these my poor brethren, Jeems bless your grace! I must humbly thank your grace. But before I rise, seeing you are in the giving vein and we in the begging, grant Simon Eyre one barn more.

King. What is it, my lord mayor?

Eyre. Vouchsafe to taste of a poor banquet that stands sweetly waiting for your sweet presence.

King. I shall taste thee, Eyre, only with feasts; Already have I been too troublesome; Say, have I not?

Eyre. O my dear king, Sir Eyre was taken unawares upon a day of shroving, 1 which I promist long ago to the prentices of London. For, an't please your highness, in time past, I bare the water-tankard, 2 and my cost Sits not a whit the worse upon my back; And then, upon a morning, some mad boys, It was Shrove Tuesday, even as 'tis now, gave me my breakfast, and I swore then by the stopple of my tankard, if ever I came to be lord mayor of London, I would feast all the prentices. This day, my liege, I did it, and the slaves had an hundred tables five times covered; they are gone home and vanished, Yet add more honour to the gentle trade, Taste of Eyre's banquet, Simon's happy made.

King. Eyre, I will taste of thy banquet, and will say, I have not met more pleasure on a day. Friends of the gentle craft, thanks to you all, Thanks, my kind lady mayoress, for your cheer. — Come, lords, a while let's revel it at home! When all our sports and banqueting are done, Wars must right wrongs which Frenchmen have begun.

ACT I.

Scene I.²

Enter at one door a Funeral (a coronet lying on the hearse, scutcheon and garlands hanging on the sides), attended by Gaspare Trebbazi, Duke of Milan, Castruchio, Sinzen, Pirotato, Fulfiglio, and others. At another door enter Hippolito, in discontented appearance; and Matheo, a Gentleman, his friend, labouring to hold him back.

Duke. Behold, you comet shows his head again!
Twice hath he thus at cross-turns thrown on us Prodigious looks; twice hath he troubled The waters of our eyes. See, he's turn'd wild: — Go on, in God's name.

Cas., Sin. On aore there, ho!
Duke. Kinsmen and friends, take from your manly sides Your weapons to keep back the desperate boy From doing violence to the innocent dead.

Hip. 1 prithee, dear Matheo —-
Mat. Come, you're mad!

Hip. I do arrest thee, murderer! Set down, Villains, set down that sorrow, 'tis all mine. —
Duke. I do beseech you all, for my blood's sake Send hence your milder spirits, and let wrath Join in confederacy with your weapons' points;

If he proceed to vex us, let your swords
Seek out his bowels: funeral grief loathes words.

All. Set on.

Hip. Set down the body!

Mat. O my lord!
You're wrong! I 'th' open street? You see she's dead.

Hip. I know she is not dead.

Duke. Frantick young man, Wilt thou believe these gentlemen? — Pray speak. —

Thou dost abuse my child, and mock'st the tears That here are shed for her. If to behold Those roses withered, that set out her cheeks; That pair of stars that gave her body light, Dark'ned and dim for ever; all those rivers — That fed her veins with warm and crimson streams

Frozen and dried up; if these be signs of death, Then is she dead. Thou unreligions youth, Art not ashamed to empty all these eyes Of funeral tears, a debt due to the dead, As mirth is to the living? Shan'st thou not To have them stare on thee? Hark, thou art curst

Even to thy face, by those that scarce can speak, —

Hip. My lord —-

[Dreaded

Duke. What wouldst thou have? Is she not

Hip. Oh, you ha' kill'd her by your cruelty!

Duke. Admit I had, thou kill'st her now again;
And art more savage than a barbarous Moor. —

Hip. Let me but kiss her pale and bloodless lip.

Duke. O fie, fie, fie. —

Hip. Or if not touch her, let me look on her.
Mat. As you regard your honour —
Hip. Mat. Or if you lov’d her living, spare her now.
Duke. Ay, well done, sir, you play the gentleman.
Steal hence; — ‘tis nobly done; — away; — I’ll join
My force to yours, to stop this violent torment.

Exeunt with funeral, [all except the DUKK, HIPPOLITO and MATHEO].

Hip. Matheo, thou dost wound me more.
Mat. I give you physic, noble friend, not wounds.
Duke. O, well said, well done, a true gentleman!

Alack, I know the sea of lovers’ rage
Comes rushing with so strong a tide, it beats 40
And bears down all respects of life, of honour,
Of friends, of foes! Forget her, gallant youth.

Hip. Forget her?
Duke. Nay, nay, be but patient;
For why death’s hand has cut a strict divorce
Twixt her and thee. What’s beauty but a borse?

What but fair sand-dust are earth’s purest forms?
Queen’s bodies are but trunks to put in worms.
Mat. Speak no more sentences, my good lord, but slip hence; you see they are but fits; I’ll rule him, I warrant ye. Ay, so, tread gingerly; your grace is here somewhat too long already.

Exit Duke.] ‘Sblood, the jest were now, if, 100 having ta’en some knocks o’ th’ pate already,
he should get loose again, and like a mad ox, toss my new black cloaks into the kennel. I must humour his lordship. — My Lord Hip. 110 polito, is it in your stomach to go to dinner?

Hip. Where is the body?
Mat. The body, as the duke spake very wisely, is gone to be worm’d.

Hip. I cannot rest; I’ll meet it at next turn:
I’ll see how my love looks.

Mat.手持 him in ‘s arms.

Mat. How your love looks? Worse than a scare-crow.
Wrestle not with me: the great fellow gives the fall for a ducat.

Hip. I shall forget myself.
Mat. Pray, do so, leave yourself behind yourself, and go whither you will. ’Sblood, do you long to have base rogues that maintain a Saint Anthony’s fire in their noses by nothing but [120 swep’ny ale, make ballads of you? If the duke had but so much settle in him, as in a cobbler’s awl, he would ha’ been a vext thing:
he and his train had blown you up, but that their powder has taken the wet of cowards.
You’ll bleed three pottles of Alicant, by [130 this light, if you follow ’em, and then we shall have a hole made in a wrong place, to have surgeons roll thee up like a baby in swaddling clouts.

1 Dyce conI. forrent. 2 Because. 4 Gutter.
4 A red Spanish wine made at Alicant.

Hip. What day is today, Matheo?
Mat. Yea marry, this is an easy question:
why to-day is — let me see — Thursday.

Hip. Oh! Thursday.
Mat. Here’s a coil 6 for a dead commodity.
’Sblood, women when they are alive are but dead commodities, for you shall have one woman lie upon many men’s hands.

Hip. She died on Monday then.

Mat. And that’s the most villainous day of all the week to die in: and she was well, and eat a mess of water-gruel on Monday morning.

Hip. Ay? It cannot be Such a bright taper should burn out so soon.
Mat. O yes, my lord. So soon? Why, I ha’ known them that at dinner have been as [140 well, and had so much health, that they were glad to pledge it, yet before three a clock have been found dead — drunk.

Hip. On Thursday buried! and on Monday die’d?
Quick haste, by’r lady. Sure her winding sheet
Was laid out ’fore 7 her body; and the worms
That now must feast with her, were even be-spoke;
And solemnly invited like strange guests.

Mat. Strange feeders they are indeed, my lord, and, like your jester, or young courtier, will enter upon any man’s trencher without bidding.

Hip. Curtse be that day for ever that robb’d her
Of breath, and me of bliss! Henceforth let it stand
Within the wizard’s book (the calendar)
Markt with a marginal finger, to be chosen
By thieves, by villains, and black murderers,
As the best day for them to labour in.
If henceforth this adulterous bawdy world
Be got with child with treason, sacrilege,

Atheism, rapes, treacherous friendship, perjury,
Slander (the beggar’s sin), lies (sin of fools),
Or any other damn’d impieties,
On Monday let ‘em be delivered.

I swear to thee, Matheo, by my soul,
Hereafter weekly on that day I’ll grace
Mine eye-lids down, because they shall not gaze
On any female cheek. And being lockt up
In my close 8 chamber, there I’ll meditate
On nothing but my Infinelie’s end,
Or on a dead man’s skull draw out mine own.
Mat. You’ll do all these good works now every Monday, because it is so bad; but I hope upon Tuesday morning I shall take you with a wench.

Hip. If ever, whilst frail blood through my veins run,
On woman’s beams I throw affection,
Save her that’s dead, or that I loosely fly
To th’ shore of any other wafting eye,
Let me not prosper, Heaven! I will be true,
Even to her dust and ashes: could her tomb
Stand whilst I liv’d, so long that it might rot,
That should fall down, but she be ne’er forgot.

Mat. If you have this strange monster, hon-
THE HONEST WHORE: PART I

esty, in your belly, why so jig-makers and chroniclers shall pick something out of you; but an I smell not you and a bawdy house out within these ten days, let my nose be as big as an English bag-pudding. I'll follow your lordship, though it be to the place aforesaid. Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter FUSTIGO in some fantastic Sea-suit at one door, a Porter meets him at another.

Fus. How now, porter, will she come?
Por. If I may trust a woman, sir, she will come.

Fus. There's for thy pains [gives money]. God-amery, if I ever stand in need of a waggon that will come with a wet finger, porter, thou shalt earn my money before any clarissimo in Milan; yet, so God sa'me, she's mine own sister, body and soul, as I am a Christian gentleman. Farewell; I'll ponder till she come. Thou hast been no bawd in fetching this woman, I assure thee.

Por. For no matter if I had, sir; better men than porters are bawds.

Fus. O God, sir, many that have borne offices. But, porter, art sure thou went'st into a true house?
Por. I think so, for I met with no thieves.
Fus. Nay, but art sure it was my sister Viola?
Por. I am sure, by all supercurrences, it was the party you ciphered.

Fus. Not very tall?
Por. Nor very low; a middling woman.

Fus. 'Twas she, 'faith 'twas she. A pretty plump cheek, like mine?

Por. At a blush, a little very much like you.

Fus. Godsd, I would not for a ducat she had kick'd up her heels, for I ha' spent an abomination this voyage; marry, I did it amongst sailors and gentlemen. There's a little modicum more, porter, for making thee stay [gives money]; farewell, honest porter.

Por. I am in your debt, sir; God preserve you.

Enter VIOLA.

Fus. Not so, neither, good porter. God's lid, yonder she comes. Sister Viola, I am glad to see you stirring; it's news to me to have here, is't not, sister?

Vio. Yes, trust me. I wond'red who should be so bold to send for me. You're welcome to Milan, brother.

Fus. 'Tis true, sister, I heard you were mar-ried to a very rich stuff, and I was very sorry for it, that I had no better clothes, and that made me send; for you know we Milanese love to strut upon Spanish leather. And how do all our friends?

Vio. Very well. You ha' travelled enough now, I trow, to sow your wild oats.

Fus. A pox on 'em wild oats? I ha' not an ounce to sow at a horse. Truth, sister, I ha' sowed my oats, and reap't two hundred duzants if I had 'em here. Marry, I must entreat you to lend me some thirty or forty till the ship come. By this hand, I'll discharge at my day, by this hand. There are your old oats.

Fus. Why, sister, do you think I'll forswear my hand?

Vio. Well, well, you shall have them. Put yourself into better fashion, because I must employ you in a serious matter.

Fus. I'll sweat like a horse if I like the matter.

Vio. You ha' cast off all your old swaggering humour?

Fus. I had not sail'd a league in that great [flapmond, the sea, but I cast up my very gall.

Vio. I am the more sorry, for I must employ a true swaggerer.

Fus. Nay by this iron, sister, they shall find I am powder and touch-box, if they put fire 'twice into me.

Vio. Then lend me your ears.

Fus. Mine ears are yours, dear sister.

Vio. I am married to a man that has wealth enough, and wit enough.

Fus. A linen-drapper, I was told, sister.

Vio. Very true, a grave citizen; I want nothing that a wife can wish from a husband; but here's the spite, he has not all things belonging to a man.

Fus. God's my life, he's a very mandrake, or else (God bless us) one of these whiblins, and that's worse, and then all the children that he gets lawfully of your body, sister, are bastards by a statute.

Vio. O, you run over me too fast, brother; I have heard it often said, that he who cannot be angry is no man. I am sure my husband is a man in print, for all things else save only in this, no tempest can move him.

Fus. 'Shid, would he had been at sea with us! he should ha' been mov'd, and mov'd again, for I'll be sworn, is, our drunken ship reel'd like a Dutchman.

Vio. No loss of goods can increase in him [as a wrinkle, no crabbed language make his con-tenance sour, the stubbornness of no servant shake him; he has no more gall in him than a dove, no more sting than an ant; musician will he never be, yet I find much music in him, but he loves no frets, and is so free from anger, that many times I am ready to bite off my tongue, because it wants that virtue which all women's tongues have, to anger their husbands. Brother, mine can by no thunder turn him into a sharpness.

Fus. Bélake his blood, sister, is well brew'd then.

Vio. I protest to thee, Fustigo, I love him most affectionately; but I know not— I ha' such a tickling within me—such a strange longing; nay verily I do long.

Fus. Then you’re with child, sister, by all signs and tokens; nay, I am partly a physician, and partly something else. I ha’ read Al-berius Magnus, and Aristotle’s Emblems.

Vio. You’re wide a’ th’ bow hand still, brother: my longings are not wanton, but wayward. I long to have my patient husband eat up a whole porcupine, to the intent, the bristling [111] quills may stick about his lips like a Flemish mustard oil, and be shot at me. I shall be leaner than the new moon, unless I can make him horn-mad. 112

Fus. ’Sfoot, half a quarter of an hour does that; make him a cuckold.

Vio. Pooch, he would count such a cut no unkindness.

Fus. The honest citizen he; then make him drunk and cut off his beard.

Vio. Fie, fie, idle, idle! He’s no Frenchman, to fret at the loss of a little scald 8 hair. No, brother, thus it shall be— you must be secret.

Fus. As thy mid-wife, I protest, sister, or a barber-surgeon.

Vio. Repair to the Tortoise here in St. Christopher’s Street; I will send you money; turn yourself into a brave 8 man; instead of the arms of your mistress, let your sword and your 116 military scarf hang about your neck.

Fus. I must have a great horseman’s French feather too, sister.

Vio. O, by any means, to show your light head, else your hat will sit like a coxcomb. 110 To be brief, you must be in all points a most terribly wide-mouth’d swaggerer.

Fus. Nay, for swaggering points let me alone. Vio. Resort then to our shop, and, in my husband’s presence, kiss me, unfast rings, 103 jewels, or any thing, so you give it back again, brother, in secret.

Fus. By this hand, sister.

Vio. Swear as if you came but new from knight ing.

Fus. Nay, I’ll swear after four hundred a year.

Vio. Swagger worse than a lieutenant among freshwater soldiers; 8 call me your love, your uncle, your cousin, or so; but sister at no hand.

Fus. No, no, it shall be cousin, or rather coz; that’s the gulling word between the citizens’ wives and their mad-caps that man ’tem to the garden; to call you one a ’mine aunt, 8 sister, were as good as call you arrant whores; no, no, let me alone to cousin you rarely.

Vio. H’se heard I have a brother, but never saw him therefore put on a good face.

Fus. The best in Milan, I warrant.

Vio. Take up wares, but pay nothing, riffe my bosom, my pocket, my purse, the boxes for money to dize withal; but, brother, you must give all back again in secret. 114

Fus. By this wellkin that here roars I will, or else let me never know what a secret is: why, sister, do you think I’ll catch you, when you are my cousin? God’s my life, then I were a stark ass. If I fret not his guts, beg me for a fool. 110

Vio. Be circumspect, and do so then. Farewell.

Fus. The Tortoise, sister! I’ll stay there; forty ducats. Exit.

Vio. Thither I’ll send. — This law can none deny, 116 Women must have their longings, or they die. Exit.

[Scene III.] 11

Duke. Give charge that none do enter; lock the doors — [Speaking as he enters.] And fellows, what your eyes and ears receive, Upon your lives trust not the gadding air To carry the least part of it. The glass, the hour-glass!

Dact. Here, my lord.

Duke. Ah, ’tis near spent! 8 But, Doctor Benedict, does your art speak truth?

Art sure the soporiferous stream will ebb, And leave the crystal banks of her white body Pure as they were at first, just at the hour?

Dact. Just at the hour, my lord.

Duke. Uncurtain her: 8

[A curtain is drawn back and INFER- LUCE discovered lying on a couch.]

Softly! — See, 18 doctor, what a coldish heat Spreads over all her body!

Dact. Now it works. The vital spirits that by a sleepy charm Were bound up fast, and threw an icy lust 14 On her exterior parts, now ’gin to break; 12 Trouble her not, my lord.

Duke. Some stools! You call’d For music, did you not? Oh ho, it speaks. [Music.]

It speaks! Watch, sirs, her waking, note those sands.

Doctor, sit down. A dukedom that should weigh Mine own down twice, being put into one scale, And that fond 16 despiseful boy, Hippolito, 21 Making the weight up, should not at my hands Buy her i’ th’other, were her state more light Than hers, who makes a bowy np with alms. Doctor, I’ll starve her on the Apennine 28 Else he shall marry her. I must confess Hippolito is nobly born; a man — Did not mine enemies’ blood boil in his veins — Whom I would court to be my son-in-law; 9

Chest.

10 Ask the king to have the wardship of me as an idiot.

11 A chamber in the Duke’s Palace.

12 Dyce conj. Qq. mere, which may be right, meaning "entirely."

13 Qq. Sweet.

14 Dyce suggest crust.

15 Foolish.
L. iv.

THE HONEST WHORE: PART I

But princes, whose high spleens for empery swell,
Are not with easy art made parallel.

Servants. She wakes, my lord.

Duke. Look, Doctor Benedict — I charge you on your lives, maintain for truth
What e'er the doctor or myself aver,
For you shall bear her hence to Bergamo.

Inf. O God, what fearful dreams!

[Wakening.]

Duke. Thou wilt not so even now, sickness' pale hand
Laid hold on thee even in the midst of feasting;
And when a cup crown'd with thy lover's health,
Had touched thy lips, a sensible cold dew
Stood on thy cheeks, as if that death had wept
To see such beauty alter.

Inf. I remember
I sate at banquet, but felt no such change.

Duke. Thou hast forgot, then, how a messenger
 Came wildly in, with this unsavoury news,
That he was dead?

Inf. What messenger? Who's dead?

Inf. I saw no messenger, heard no such news.

Duke. Trust me you did, sweet lady.

Inf. La, you now!

1 Ser. Yes, indeed, madam.

Duke. Le, you now. — 'Tis well, good knaves!

Inf. You ha' slain him, and now you'll murder me.

Duke. Good Infelice, vex not thus thyself.

Of this the bad report before did strike
To coldly to thy heart, that the swift currents
Of life were all frozen up —

'T is most untrue, O most unnatural father!

Duke. And we had much to do by art's best enning.

To fetch life back again.

Inf. Most certain, lady.

Duke. Why, la, you now, you'll not believe me, Friends.

Sweat we not all? Had we not much to do?

Servants. Yes, indeed, my lord, much.

Duke. Death drew such fearful pictures in thy face,

That were Hippolito alive again,

I'd kneel and woo the noble gentleman
To be thy husband: now I sore repent
My sharpness to him, and his family,

Nay, do not weep for him; we all must die. —
Doctor, this place where she so oft hath seen
His lively presence, hurts her, does it not?

Doct. Doubtless, my lord, it does.

Duke. It does, it does:

Therefore, sweet girl, thou shalt to Bergamo.

Inf. Even where you will; in any place there's use.

Duke. A coach is ready; Bergamo doth stand
In a most wholesome air, sweet walks; there's deer,

Ay, thou shalt hunt and send us venison,
Which like some goddess in the Cyprian groves,
Thine own fair hand shall strike. — Sirs, you shall teach her
To stand, and how to shoot; ay, she shall hunt:
Cast off this sorrow. In, girl, and prepare
This night to ride away to Bergamo.

Inf. O most unhappy maid!

Duke. Follow her close.

No words that she was buried, on your lives!
Or that her ghost walks now after she's dead;
I'll hang you if you name a funeral.

1 Ser. I'll speak Greek, my lord, ere I speak that deadly word.

2 Ser. And I'll speak Welsh, which is harder

Than Greek.

Duke. Away, look to her. — Doctor Benedict,
Did you observe how her complexion altered
Upon his name and death? Oh, would 'twere true.

Duke. It may, my lord,

Duke. And you may have your wish; say but the word,
And 't is a strong spell to rip up his grave.

I have good knowledge with Hippolito;
He calls me friend, I'll creep into his bosom,

And sting him there to death; poison can do't.

Duke. Perform it; I'll create thee half mine heir.

Duke. It shall be done, although the fact

Be foul.

Duke. Greatness hides sin, the guilt upon my soul.

[Scene IV.]

Enter CASTRUCHIO, PIORATTO, and FLUELLO.
Cas. Signor Pioratto, Signor Fluello, shall's be merry? Shall's play the wags now?

Flu. Ay, any thing that may beget the child of laughter.

Cas. Truth, I have a pretty sportive conceit

New crept into my brain, will move excellent mirth.

Flu. Let's ha't, let's ha't; and where shall the scene of mirth lie?

Cas. At Signor Candido's house, the patient man, nay, the monstrous patient man. They say his blood is immovable, that he has taken all patience from a man, and all constancy from a woman.

Flu. That makes so many whomes now-a-days.

Cas. Ay, and so many knaves too.

Flu. W'ell, sir.

Cas. To conclude, the report goes, he's so mild, so affable, so suffering, that nothing indeed can move him: now do but think what sprint it will be to make this fellow, the mirror of patience, as angry, as vex, and as mad
as an English cuckold.
Fru. O. 't were admirable mirth, that; but how will 't be done, signor?
Cas. Let me alone, I have a trick, a conceit, a thing, a device will sting him, i' faith, if he have but a thimbleful of blood in 's belly, or a spleen not so big as a tavern token. 1
Pio. Thou stir him? Thou move him? Thou answer him? Alas, I know his approved temper. Thou vex him? Why he has a patience above man's injuries: thou may'st sooner raise a spleen in an angel, than rough humour in him.
Why, I'll give you instance for it. This wonderfully temper'd Signor Candido upon a time [as invited home to his house certain Neapolitan lords, of curious taste, and no mean palate;
conjouring his wife, of all loves,2 to prepare cheer fitting for such honourable tresher-men. She — just of a woman's nature, covetous to try [as the uttermost of vexation, and thinking at last to get the start of his humour — willingly neglected the preparation, and became unfurnishnot only of dainty, but of ordinary dishes. He, according to the mildness of his breast, entertained the lords, and with courtly discourse beguiled the time, as much as a citizen might do. To conclude, they were hungry lords, for there came no meat in; their stomachs were plainly gull'd, & their teeth dulled, and, [as if anger could have seiz'd a man, there was matter enough i' faith to vex any citizen in the world, if he were not too much made a fool by his wife.
Fru. Ay, I'll swear for 't. 'Sfoot, had it [as been my case, I should ha' play'd mad tricks with my wife and family. First, I would ha' spitted the men, stew'd the maids, and bak'd the mistresses, and so served them in.
Pio. Why 't would ha' tempted any blood but his,
And thou to vex him? thou to anger him
With some poor shallow jest?
Cas. 'Sblood, Signor Fioratto, you that dis-parage my conceit, I'll wage a hundred ducats upon the head on 't, that it moves him, frets [as him, and galls him.
Pio. Done. 't is a lay,4 join galls 5 on 't: witness Signor Fiuello.
Cas. Witness: 't is done.
Come, follow me: the house is not far off,
I'll thrust him from his humour, vex his breast,
And win a hundred ducats by one jest. Exeunt.

[SCENE V.]

Enter [VIOLA] Candido's wife, GEORGE, two Footmen in the shop.

Vio. Come, you put up your wares in good order here, do you not, think you? One piece cast this way, another that way! You had need have a patient master indeed.

Geo. [Aside.] Ay, I'll be sworn, for we have cure mistresses.
would your master or I could be a note more angry, for two patient folks in a house spoil all the servants that ever shall come under them. 10 1 Pren. [Aside.] You patient! Ay, so is the devil when he is horn-mad.

Enter CASTRUCHIO, FLUVELLO, and PIORATTO.

Geo. Gentlemen, what do you lack?
1 Pren. What is 't you buy?
2 Pren. See fine holland, fine cambria, fine lawns.
Geo. What 't you lack?
2 Pren. What is 't you buy?
Cas. Where's Signor Candido, thy master?
Geo. Faith, signor, he's a little negotiate,9 he'll appear presently.
Cas. Fellow, let's see a lawn, a choice one,
sirit.
Geo. The best in all Milan, gentlemen, and this is the piece. I can fit you gentlemen [as with fine callicoes too for doublets, the only sweet fashion now, most delicate and courtly, a moss gentle calico, cut upon two double affable taffetas, — ah, most neat, fast, and unmatch-able! 10 Fru. A notable valuable tongue'd villain.
Pio. I warrant this fellow was never begot without much praying.
Cas. What, and is this she, sayest thou?
Geo. Ay, and the purest she that ever you [as finger'd since you were a gentleman. Look how even she is, look how clean she is, ha! as even as the brow of Cynthia, and as clean as your sons and heirs when they ha' spent all.
Cas. Pooh, thou talk'st — pox on 't, 't is [as rough.
pox on 't, sir, 't will take away the roughness
presently.
Fru. Ha, signor; has he fitted your French [as curses?
Geo. Look you, gentlemen, here's another.
Compare them I pray, compara Virgilium cum Homeris, compare virgins with harlots.
Cas. Pooh, I ha' seen better, and as you [as term them, evener and cleaner.
Geo. You may see further for your mind, but trust me, you shall not find better for your body.

Enter CANDIDO.

Geo. O here he comes, let's make as though we pass.
Vio. Come, come, we'll try in some other shop.
Cond. How now? What's the matter?
Geo. The gentlemen find fault with this lawn, fall out with it, and without a cause too.
Cond. Without a cause?
And that makes you to let 'em pass away.
Ah, may I crave a word with you, gentlemen?
Fru. He calls us.

1 Qr. give first three speeches to All Three.
2 The shopkeeper's common cry at this period.
3 Engaged. 4 Pray, invoke.
THE HONEST WHORE: PART I

Cas. Makes the better for the jest.
Cand. I pray come near, you’re very welcome, gallants.
Pray pardon my man’s rudeness, for I fear me
H’as talkt above a prentice with you. Lawns! [Showing lawns.]
Look you, kind gentlemen, this — no — ay — this:
Take this upon my honest-dealing faith,
To be a true weaver, not too hard nor slack,
But o’en as far from falsehood as from black.
Cas. Well, how do you rate it?
Cand. Very conscionably, eighteen shillings a yard.
Cas. That’s too dear: how many yards does the whole piece contain, think you?
Cand. Why, some seventeen yards, I think, or thereabouts.
How much would serve your turn, I pray?
Cas. Why, let me see — would it were better too!
Cand. Truth ‘tis the best in Milan, at few words.
Cas. Well, let me have then — a whole penny-worth.
Cand. Ha, ha! you’re a merry gentleman.
Cas. A penn’orth I say.
Cand. Of lawn!
Cas. Of lawn? Ay, of lawn, a penn’orth.
‘Sblood, dost not hear? A whole penn’orth, are you deaf?
Cand. Deaf? no, sir; but I must tell you,
Our wares do seldom meet such customers.
Cas. Nay, an you and your lawns be so squeamish, fare you well.
Cand. Pray stay; a word, pray, signor: for what purpose is it, I beseech you?
Cas. ‘Sblood, what’s that to you: I’ll have a penny-worth.
Cand. A penny-worth! Why you shall, I’ll serve you presently.
Vio. A penn’orth, a penn’orth, mistress!
Vio. A penn’orth! Call you these gentlemen?
Cas. No, no: not there.
Cand. What then, kind gentlemen, what, at this corner here?
Cas. No, nor there neither;
I’ll have it just in the middle, or else not.
Cand. Just in the middle — ha — you shall too: what —
Have you a single penny?
Cas. Yes, here’s one.
Cand. Lend it me, I pray.
Flu. An excellent followed jest!
Vio. What, will he spoil the lawn now?
Cand. Patience, good wife.
Vio. Ay, that patience makes a fool of you.
— Gentlemen, you might ha’ found some other citizen to have made a kind gull on, besides my husband.
Cand. Pray, gentlemen, take her to be a woman:
Do not regard her language. — O kind soul, such words will drive away my customers.

Vio. Customers with a murrain! Call you these customers?
Cand. Patience, good wife.
Vio. Pox a’ your patience.
Geo. ‘Sfond, mistress, I warrant these are some cheating companions.
Cand. Look you, gentlemen, there’s your ware; I thank you, I have your money here; pray know my shop, pray let me have your custom.
Vio. Custom, quoth’s!
Cand. Let me take more of your money.
Vio. You had need so.
Pio. Hark in thine ear, thou’st lost an hundred ducats.
Cas. Well, well, I know ‘tis possible that homo
Should be nor man, nor woman: not once mov’d;
No not at such an injury, not at all!
Sure he’s a pigeon, for he has no gall.
Flu. Come, come, you’re angry though you
Smother it:
You’re vex’t! faith; confess.
Cand. Why, gentlemen, Should you conceive me to be vex’t or mov’d?
He has my ware, I have his money for ‘t,
And that’s no argument I’m angry: no:
The best logician cannot prove me so.
Flu. Oh, but the hateful name of a penn’orth of lawn,
And then out i’ th’ middle of the piece.
Pah, I guess it by myself, ‘t would move a lamb Were he a linen-drapier, ‘t would, i’ faith.
Cand. Well, give me leave to answer you for that:
We are set here to please all customers.
Their humours and their fancies; — offend none;
We get by many, if we lose by one.
May be his mind stood to no more than that,
A penn’orth serves him, and mongst trades ‘tis found.
Deny a penn’orth, it may cross a pound.
Oh, he that means to thrive, with patient eye
Must please the devil if he come to buy!
Flu. O wondrous man, patient ‘bove wrong or woe,
How blest were men, if women could be so!
Cand. And to express how well my breast is pleas’d,
And satisfied in all: — George fill a beaker.
Exit GEORGE.
I’ll drink unto that gentleman, who lately Bestow’d his money with me.
Vio. God’s my life,
We shall have all our gains drunk out in beakers,
To make amends for pennyworths of lawn!

[Re-enter GEORGE [with beaker].
Cand. Here wife, begin you to the gentleman.
Vio. I begin to him! [Spills the wine.]
Cand. George, fill’t up again: ‘T was my fault, my hand shook. Exit GEORGE.
Vio. How strangely this doth show!
A patient man linkt with a waspish shrew.

1 At once. 2 Dups. 3 Flugs. 4 Fellow. 5 Loss.
Fls. [Aside.] A silver and gilt beaker: I've a trick
To work upon that beaker, sure 'twill fret him;
It cannot choose but vex him. — Signor Castru-
chio,
In pity to thee I have a conceit,
Will save thy hundred ducats yet; 'twill do 't,
And work him to impatience.

Cas. Sweet Fluello,
I should be bountiful to that conceit.

Fls. Well, 'tis enough.

[Re-enter GEORGE [with beaker.]

Cas. Here, gentlemen, to you,
I wish your custom, you're exceeding welcome.

[Drinks.]

Cas. I pledge you, Signor Candido —

Here you that must receive a hundred ducats.

Pio. I'll pledge them deep, i' faith, Castru-
chio. —

Signor Fluello. [Drinks.]

Fls. Come: play 't off to me;
I am your last man.

Cas. George, supply the cup.

[Exit GEORGE who returns with beaker filled.]

Fls. So, so, good honest George,—

Here Signor Candido, all this to you.

Cas. O, you must pardon me, I use it not.

Fls. Will you not pledge me then?

Cas. Yes, but not that:
Great love is shown in little.

Fls. Blurt on your sentences!

'Sfoot, you shall pledge me all.

Cas. Indeed I shall not.

Fls. Not pledge me? 'Sblood, I'll carry away the beaker then.

Cas. The beaker? Oh! that at your pleasure,
sir.

Fls. Now by this drink I will.

[Drinks.]

Cas. Pledge him, he'll do't else.

Fls. So: I ha' done you right on my thumbnail. 8

What will you pledge me now?

Cas. You know me, sir,
I am not of that sort.

Fls. Why, then, farewell:
I'll bear away the beaker by this light.

Cas. That's as you please; 'tis very good.

Fls. Nay, say doth please me, and as you say,
'Tis a very good one. Farewell, Signor Candido.

Pio. Farewell, Candido.

Cas. You're welcome, gentlemen.

Cas. Art not mov'd yet? I think his patience is above our wit. 9

[Exeunt. [CASTRUCHIO, FLUELLO, CARRYING OFF THE BEAKER, AND PIO-RATTO.]

Geo. I told you before, mistress, they were all cheaters.

Vio. Why fool! why husband! why madman!

1 I am not accustomed to drink whole beakers full.
2 An explanation of contempt, equivalent to "a fig for." (Dyer.)
3 I emptied the cup so completely that the remaining drop will stand on the thumb-nail.

I hope you will not let 'em sneak away so with a silver and gilt beaker, the best in the house too. — Go, fellows, make hue and cry after them.

Cand. Pray let your tongue lie still, all will be well. —

Come hither, George, his to the constable, 225
And in calm order wish him to attach them.

Cas. Men of no great stir, because they're gentlemen, And a thing partly done in merriment.

'Tis but a size above a jest thou know'st,
Therefore pursue it mildly. Go, begone. 231

The constable's hard by, bring him along, —

Make haste again. 234

Vio. O you're a goodly patient woodcock, 4 are you not now? See what your patience comes to: every one saddles you, and rides you; (is you'll be shortly the common stone-horse 6 of Milan: a woman's well holtopt with such a meacoek. 8 I had rather have a husband that would swaddle me thrice a day, than such a one, that will be gull'd twice in half-an-hour. 239
Oh, I could burn all the wares in my shop for anger.

Cand. Pray wear a peaceable temper; be my wife,
That is, be patient; for a wife and husband
Share but one soul between them: this being known,

Why should not one soul then agree in one? 441

Vio. Hang your agreements but if my beaker be gone. —

[Re-enter CASTRUCHIO, FLUELLO, PICKARDO, and GEORGE.]

Cas. Oh, here they come.

Geo. The constable, sir, let 'em come along with me, because there should be no wondring: he stays at door.

Cas. Constable, Goodman Abram. 9

Fls. Now Signor Candido, 'sblood, why do you attach us?

Cas. 'Sheart! attach us!

Cas. Nay swear not, gallants.
Your oaths may move your souls, but not move me;

Cas. You have a silver beaker of my wife's.

Fls. You say not true: 'tis gilt.

Cas. Then you say true;

And being gilt, the guilt lies more on you.

Cas. I hope ye' are not angry, sir.

Cas. Then you hope right: for I'm not angry.

Fls. No, but a little mov'd.

Cas. I mov'd! 'Twas you were mov'd, you were brought hither.

Cas. But you, out of your anger and impatience, 461

Caus'd us to be attach'd.

Cas. Nay, you misplace it:

Out of my quiet sufferance I did that,

And not of any wrath. Had I shown anger,

I should have then pursu'd you with the law.

1 Simpleton. 4 Milkkop.
2 Stallion. 5 Best.
3 In order that. 6 A beggar, who pretended madness was called an Abraham man.

And hunted you to shame, as many worldlings
Do build their anger upon feeble grounds;
The more’s the pity; many lose their lives
For scarce so much coin as will hide their palm;
Which is most cruel; those have vexed spirits
That pursue lives. In this opinion rest,
The loss of millions could not move my breast.

Flu. Thou art a base man, and with peace
dost deal;
Such a meek spirit can bless a commonweal.

Cand. Gentlemen, now ’t is upon eating-time,
Pray part not hence, but dine with me to-day.
Cas. I never heard a carter yet say ray
To such a motion. I’ll not be the first.

Pio. Nor I.
Fis. Nor I.

Cand. The constable shall hear you company,
George, call him in: let the world say what it
Nothing can drive me from a patient man.

[ACT II]

[Scene I.1]

Enter ROGER with a stool, cushion, looking-glass and chafing-dish; those being set down, he pulls out of his pocket a phial with white colour in it, and two boxes, one with white; another red painting: he places all things in order, and a and candle by them, singing with the ends of old ballads as he does it. At last BELLAFONT, as he rubs his cheek with the colours, whiskies within.

Rog. Anon, forsooth.
Bell. [within.] What are you playing the rogue about?

Rog. About you, forsooth; I’m drawing up a hole in your white silk stockings.

Bell. Is my glass there? and my boxes of complexion?

Rog. Yes, forsooth: your boxes of complexion are here, I think: yes, ’tis here. Here’s your two complexions, — [Aside.] and if I had all the four complexions, I should ne’er set a good face upon’t. Some men I see are, born under hard-favoured planets as well as women.
Zounds, I look worse now than I did before and it makes her face glister most damnably.
There’s knavery in daubing, I hold my life; or else this is only female pomatum.

Enter BELLAFONT not full ready.1 without a gown; she sits down; with her bodkin2 curls her hair; and colours her lips.

Bell. Where’s my ruff and poker,3 you blockhead?

Rog. Your ruff, your poker, are engend’ring together upon the cupboard of the court, or in the court cupboard.

Bell. Fetch ’em. Is the pox in your hams, you can go no faster? [Strikes him.]

Rog. Would the pox were in your fingers, [as unless you could leave flinging! Catch. Exit.
Bell. I’ll catch you, you dog, by and by: do you grumble?

She sings.

Cupid is a God, as naked as my nall,
I’ll whip him with a rod, if he be my true love fall.

[Re-enter ROGER with ruff and poker.]

Rog. There’s your ruff, shall I poke it?4
Bell. Yes, honest Roger — no, stay; prithee, good boy, hold here.

[Sings. ROGER holds the glass and candle.]

Down, down, down, down, I fall down and arise, —

down —

I never shall arise.

Rog. Troth, mistress, then leave the trade if you shall never rise.

Bell. What trade, Goodman Abram?
Rog. Why that of down and arise, or the falling trade.

Bell. I’ll fall with you by and by.
Rog. If you do I know who shall smart for ’t.
Troth, mistress, what do I look like now?
Bell. Like as you are; a pandyker sixpenny rascal.

Rog. I may thank you for that: is faith, I look like an old proverb, “Hold the candle before the devil.”

Bell. Ud’s life, I’ll stick my knife in your guts as you prate to me so! — What? She sings.

Well met, peg, the pearl of beauty: umh, umh.
How now, Sir Knife! you forgot your duty, umh, umh,
Marry muff’ 4 sir, are you grown so dauntly: fa, la, la, etc.
Is it you, sir? the worst of twenty, fa, la, la, leaf, la.

Pox on you, how dost thou hold my glass?5

Rog. Why, as I hold your door: with my fingers.

Bell. Nay, pray thee, sweet honey Roger, hold up handsomely.

[Sings.]

Sing pretty wantons warble, etc.6

We shall ha’ guests to-day, I lay my little maidenshead; my nose itches so.

Rog. I said so too last night, when our fleas twinged me.

Bell. So, poke my ruff now: my gown, my gown! Have I my fall?7 Where’s my fall, Roger?

Rog. Your fall, forsooth, is behind.

Bell. God’s my pitikins!8 some fool or other knocks.

[Scene II.

Rog. Shall I open to the fool, mistress?
Bell. And all these babbies lying thus? Away with it quickly. — Ay, ay, knock, and be damned, whosoever you be! — So: give the fresh salmon line now: let him come ashore.8

[Exit ROGER.] He shall serve for my breakfast, though he go against my stomach.

ROGER fetch in FUERLO, CASTRUCHIO, and PIORATTO.

Flu. Morrow, col.
Cas. How does my sweet acquaintance?

1 A room in Bellafont’s house.
2 Dressed.
3 A stick used for plaiting ruffs.
4 Frizzling iron.
5 Slideboard.
6 An expression of contempt.
7 A kind of collar, falling flat round the neck.
8 A corruption of “God’s my pit.”
PIO. Save thee, little marmoset: how dost thou, good, pretty rogue? 1

Bell. Well, God's-mercy, good, pretty rascal.

Flu. Roger, some light, I prithee.

Rog. You shall, signor, for we that live here in this vale of misery are as dark as hell. 6

Bell. Exit for a candle.

Cas. Good tobacco, Flunello? 2

Flu. Smell.

PIO. It may be tickling gear: for it plays with much noise already.

Re-enter ROGER [with candle].

Rog. Here's another light angel, 1 signor. 2

Bell. What, you pidd curtail, 3 what's that you are neighing?

Rog. I say God send us the light of Heaven, or some more angels.

Bell. Go fetch some wine, and drink half of it.

Rog. I must fetch some wine, gentlemen, and drink half of it.  5

Flu. Here Roger.

Cas. No, let me send, prithee.

Flu. Hold, you wanker worm.

Rog. You shall send both, if you please, signora.

PIO. Stay, what's best to drink at a morning?

Rog. Hippocrates, 3 sir, for my mistress, if I fetch it, is most dear to her.

Flu. Hippocrates? There then, here's a teston 4 for you, you snake.

Rog. Right sir, here's three shillings and sixpence for a pottle 5 and a manchet. 6 Exit.

Cas. Here's most Herulanum 7 tobacco; ha' some, acquaintances? 8

Bell. Faugh, not I, makes your breath stink like the piss of a fox. Acquaintance, where sup' you last night?

Cas. At a place, sweet acquaintance, where your health dance'd the canaries, 8 I' faith; you should ha' been there.

Bell. I there among your punks 9 Marry, faugh, hang' em; I soorn 't. Will you never leave sucking of eggs in other folk's hens' nests? 11

Cas. Why, in good troth, if you'll trust me, acquaintance, there was not one hen at the board; ask Flunello.

Flu. No, faith, coz, none but cocks. Signor Malavella drunk to thee.

Bell. O, a pure beagle; that horse-leech there?

Flu. And the knight, Sir Oliver Lollio, swore he would bestow a taffeta petticoat on thee, but to break his fast with thee. 12

Bell. With me? I'll choke him then, hang him, molecatcher! It's the dreamin' stagy nose.

PIO. Well, many took that Lollio for a fool, but he's a subtle fool.

Bell. Ay, and he has fellows: of all filthy,

1 A gold coin worth about ten shillings.
2 A docked horse.
3 Spiced and sweetened wine.
4 Sixpence.
5 Q. Herulanum.
6 Half a gallon.
7 A sprightly dance.
8 A roll of fine bread.
9 A small red plum.
Mat. Nay, sweet Bellafront, for a little pig's whisker.

Cas. Here Roger, fetch more. [Gives money.] A mischance, i' faith, acquaintance.

Bell. Out of my sight, thou ungodly puritanical creature.

Rog. For the t'other pottle? Yes, forsooth.

Bell. Spill that too. [Exit ROGER.] What gentleman is that, servant? Your friend?

Mat. Gods so; a stool, a stool! If you love me mistress, entertain this gentleman respectively, and bid him welcome.

Bell. He's very welcome, — pray, sir, sit.

Hip. Thanks, lady.

Fls. Count Hippolito, is't not? Cry you mercy, signor; you walk here all this while, and we not heard you! Let me bestow a stool upon you, beseech you; you are a stranger here, we know the fashions a' th' house.

Cas. Please you be here, my lord?

Hip. No, good Castruchio.

Fls. You have abandoned the Court, I see, my lord, since the death of your mistress. Well, as she was a delicate piece, — Beseech you, sweet, come let us serve under the colours of your acquaintance still for all that. — Please you to meet here at [the] lodging of my cox, I shall bestow a banquet upon you.

Hip. I never can deserve this kindness, sir.

What may this lady be, whom you call cox?

Fls. Faith, sir, a poor gentlewoman, of passing good carriage; one that has some suits in law, and lies here in an attorney's house.

Hip. Is she married?

Fls. Ha, as all your punks are, a captain's wife, or so. Never saw her before, my lord.

Hip. Never, trust me: a goodly creature!

Fls. By gad, when you know her as we do, you'll swear she is the prettiest, kindest, sweetest, most bewitching honest ape under the pole. A skin, your satin is not more soft, nor lawn whiter.

Hip. Bulike, then, she's some sale courte-san.

Fls. Troth, as all your best faces are, a good wench.

Hip. Great pity that she's a good wench.

Mat. Thon shall ha', i' faith, mistress. — How now, signors? What, whispering? Did not I lay a wager I should take you, within seven days, in a house of vanity?

Hip. You did; and, I beseech your heart, you've won.

Mat. How do you like my mistress?

Hip. Well, for such a mistress; better, if your mistress be not your master. — I must break manners, gentlemen; fare you well.

Mat. Shoot, you shall not leave us.

Bell. The gentleman likes not the taste of our company.

All. Beseech you stay.

Hip. Trust me, my affairs beckon me; pardon me.

Mat. Will you call for me half an hour hence here?

Hip. Perhaps I shall.

Mat. Perhaps? laugh! I know you can swear to one you will.

Hip. Since you will press me, on my word, I will.

Exit.

Bell. What sullen picture is this, servant?

Mat. It's Count Hippolito, the brave count.

Pio. As gallant a spirit as any in Milan, you sweet Jew.

Fls. Oh! he's a most essential gentleman, comma.

Cas. Did you never hear of Count Hippolito, acquaintance?

Bell. Marry, muff a' your counts, an be no more life in 'em.

Mat. He's so malcontent! Sirrah Bellafront, and you be honest gallants, let's sup together, and have the count with us: — thou shalt sit at the upper end, punk.

Bell. Punk, you souse'd & gurnet?

Mat. King's truce! Come, I'll bestow the supper to have him but lunch.

Cas. He betrays his youth too grossly to [see] that tyrant melancholy.

Mat. All this is for a woman.

Bell. A woman? Some whore! What sweet jewel is 't?

Pio. Would she heard you!

Fls. Troth, so would I.

Cas. And I, by Heaven.

Bell. Nay, good servant, what woman?

Mat. Pah!

Bell. Prithhee, tell me; a buss, and tell me. I warrant he's an honest fellow, if he take on thus for a wench. Good rogue, who?

Mat. By th' Lord I will not, must not, faith, mistress. Is 't a match, sire? this night, at th' Antelope: ay, for there's best wine, and good boys.

All. It's done; at th' Antelope.

Bell. I cannot be there to-night.

Mat. Cannot? By th' Lord you shall.

Bell. By the Lady I will not. Shall!

Fls. Why, then, put it off till Friday; wου come then, coz?

Bell. Well.

Re-enter ROGER.

Mat. You are the waspishest ape. Roger, put your mistress in mind to sup with us on Friday next. You're best come like a madwoman, without a band, in your waistcoat, and the linings of your kirtle outward, like every common hackney that steals out at the back gate of her sweet knight's lodging.

Bell. Go, go, hang yourself!

Rog. Bastard wine, for if it had been truly begotten, it would not ha' been asham'd to 1 Respectedly. 2 For sale.

2 The term sirrah was applied often to women as well as to men.

3 Prostitute. 4 Pickled. 5 Kiss. 6 I. e. without your upper dress. 7 Harlot. 8 A sweet Spanish wine.
come in. Here's six shillings to pay for nursing the bastard.
Bell. A company of rooks! 1 O good sweet Rog. Run to the poulter's, and buy me some fine larks! 1
Bell. Yes, faith, a couple, if they be not dear.
Rog. I'll buy but one, there's one already here.

Enter HIPPOLITO.

Hip. Is the gentleman, my friend, departed.
Bell. His back is but new turn'd, sir.
Hip. Fare you well. Bell. I can direct you to him.
Hi. What part? Can you, pray? Bell. If you please, stay, he'll not be absent long.

If I may use your room, I'll rather walk.
Bell. At your best pleasure.—Whew! some rubbers 3 there! Bell. Indeed, I'll none:—indeed I will not:
thanks.
Pretty fine lodging. I perceive my friend is old in your acquaintance.
Bell. Troth, sir, he comes 2
As other gentlemen, to spend spare hours.
If yourself like our roof, such as it is,
Your own acquaintance may be as old as his.

Hip. Say I did like; what welcome should I find?
Bell. Such as my present fortunes can afford.
Hip. But would you let me play Matheo's affairs?

Faith, tell me, will you leave him and love me?
Bell. I am in bonds to no man, sir.

Hip. Why then,
You're free for any man; if any, me. 4
But I must tell you, lady, were you mine,
You should be all mine; I could brook no sharers.
I should be covetous, and sweep up all.
I should be pleasure's usurer; faith, I should.

Bell. O fate!

Hip. Why sigh you, lady? May I know?
Bell. 'T's never been my fortune yet to single
Out that one man, whose love could fellow
mine,
As I have ever wished it. O my stars!
Had I but met with one kind gentleman,
That would have purchased sin alone to himself,
For his own private use, although scarce proper. 5
Indifferent handsome; meetly legg'd and thigh'd;
And my allowance reasonable, i' faith,
According to my body, by my truth,

1 Simplestons. 2 Towels. 3 Fine-looking.

I would have been as true unto his pleasures,
Yea, and as royal to his afternoons,
As ever a poor gentlewoman could be.

Hip. This were well now to one but newly fledg'd,
And scarce a day old in this subtle world;
'T were pretty art, good bird-like, cunning
net;
But come, come, faith, confess: how many men
Have drunk this self-same protestation,
From that red 'ticking lip?

Bell. Indeed, not any.
Hip. "Indeed," and blush not!
Bell. No, in truth, not any.
Hip. "Indeed!" "In truth!"—how warily
you swear!
'Tis well, if ill it be not; yet had I
The ruffian in me, and were drawn before you
But in light colours, I do know indeed,
You could not swear indeed, but thunder oaths
That should shake Heaven, drown the harmonious spheres,
And pierce a soul that lov'd her maker's honour
With horror and amazement.

Bell. Shall I swear?—
Will you believe me then?

Hip. Worst then of all;
Our sins by custom, seem at last but small.
Were I but o'er your threshold, a next man,
And after him a next, and then a fourth,
Should have this golden hook, and lascivious
bait,
Thrown out to the full length. Why let me tell
you:
I ha' seen letters sent from that white hand,
Tuning such music to Matheo's ear.

Bell. Matheo! that's true, but believe it, I
No sooner had laid hold upon your presence,
But straight mine eye convey'd you to my heart.

Hip. Oh, you cannot feign with me! Why, I know, lady,
This is the common passion of you all,
To hook in a kind gentleman, and then
Abuse his coin, conveying it to your lover,
And in the end you show him a French trick,
And so you leave him, that a coach may run
Between his legs for breath.

Bell. Oh, by my soul,
Not I! therein I 'll prove an honest whore,
In being true to one, and to no more.

Hip. If any be disposed to trust your oath,
Let him: I'll not be he. I know you feign
All that you speak; ay, for a mingled harlot
Is true in nothing but in being false.
What shall I teach you how to loath yourself?
And mildly too, not without sense or reason.

Bell. I am content; I would feign loath myself
If you not love me.

Hip. Then if your gracious blood
Be not all wasted, I shall assay to do 't.
Lend me your silence, and attention.
You have no soul, that makes you weigh so light;
THE HONEST WHORE: PART I

Heaven's treasure bought it: And half a crown hath sold it: — for your body is like the common-shore, that still receives all the town's flit. The sin of many men is within you; and thus much I suppose. That if all your committers stood in rank, They'd make a lane, in which your shame might dwell, And with their spaces reach from hence to hell. Nay, shall I urge it more? There has been known As many by one harlot, maim'd and dismember'd. As would ha' stift an hospital: This I might apply to you, and perhaps do you right. O you're as base as any beast that bears, — Your body is e'en hir'd, and so are theirs. For gold and sparkling jewels, if he can, You'll let a Jew get you with Christian: Be he a Moor, a Tartar, though his face Look uglier than a dead man's skull. Could the devil put on a human shape, If his purse shake out crowns, up then he gets: Whores will be rid to hell with golden bits. So that you're crueller than Turks, for they Sell Christians only, you sell yourselves away. Why, those that love you, hate you and will term you Liquorish damnation; with themselves half-sunk After the sin is laid out, and e'en curse Their fruitless riot; for what one begets Another poisons: lust and murder hit: A tree being often shook, what fruit can knit? Bell. O me unhappy! Hip. I can vex you more: A harlot is like Dunkirk, true to none, Swallows both English, Spanish, fustone Dutch. Back-door'd Italian, last of all, the French, And he sticks to you, faith, gives you your diet. Brings you acquainted, first with Monsieur Doctor, And then you know what follows. Bell. Misery. Rank, stinking, and most loathsome misery. Hip. Methinks a toad is happier than a whore; That with one poison swells, with thousands more The other stocks her veins. Harlot? fie, fie! You are the miserablest creatures breathing, The very slaves of nature; mark me else: You put on rich attire, others' eyes wear them, You eat, but to supply your blood with sin: And this strange curse e'en haunts you to your graves. From fools you get, and spend it upon slaves. Like bears and apes, you're baited and show tricks. For money; but your bawd the sweetness licks. Indeed, you are their journey-women, and do All base and damn'd works they list set you to;

So that you ne'er are rich; for do but show me, In present memory, or in ages past, The fairest and most famous courtesan, Whose flesh was dearst; that rais'd the price of sin, And held it up; to whose intemperate bosom, Princes, earls, lords, the worst has been a knight, The mean'st a gentleman, have off'red up Whole hecatombs of sighs, and rain'd in showers Handfuls of gold; yet, for all this, at last Diseases suckt her marrow, then grew so poor, That she has begg'd e'en at a beggar's door. And (wherein Heav'n has a finger) when this idol, From coast to coast, has leapt on foreign shores, And had more worship than th' outlandish whores; When several nations have gone over her, When for each several city she has seen, Her maidenhead has been new, and been sold dear: Did live well there, and might have died unknown, And undefam'd; back comes she to her own, And there both miserably lives and dies, Soorn'd even of those that once ador'd her eyes, As if her fatal circle'd life thus ran, Her pride should end there where it first began. What? do you weep to hear your story read? Nay, if you spoil your cheeks, I'll read no more. Bell. O yes, I pray, proceed: Indeed, 't will do me good to weep, indeed. Hip. To give those tears a reliish, this I add, You're like the Jews, scatter'd, in no place certain; Your days are tedious, your hours burdensome: And were 't not for full suppress, midnight revels, Dancing, wine, riotous meetings, which do drown And bury quite in you all virtuous thoughts, And on your eyelids hang so heavily, They have no power to look so high as Heav'n. You'd sit and muse on nothing but despair, Curse that devil Lust, that so burns up your blood. And in ten thousand shivers break your glass For his temptation. Say you taste delight, To have a golden gull from rise to set, To mete 8 you in his hot luxurious arms, Yet your nights pay for all. I know you dream Of warrants, whips, and beadles, and then start At a door's windy creak: think every wassel To be a constable, and every rat A long-tail'd officer. Are you now not slaves? Oh, you've damnation without pleasure for it!
Such is the state of harlots. To conclude: When you are old and can well paint no more, You turn bawd, and are then worse than before: Make use of this: farewell.

Bell. Oh, I pray, stay.

Hipp. I see Mathoe comes not: time hath barr’d me;

Would all the harlots in the town had heard me.

Bell. Stay yet a little longer! No? quite gone!

Curst be that minute — for it was no more, So soon a maid is chang’d into a whore — Wherein I first fell! Be it for ever black! For why should sweet Hippolito abun mine eyes, For whose true love I would become pure-honest, Hate the world’s mixtures, and the smiles of gold?

Am I not fair? Why should he fly me then? Fair creatures are dear’d, not scorn’d of men.

How many gallants have drunk healths to me, Out of their dagger’d arms, and thought them blest, Enjoying but mine eyes at prodigal feasts! And does Hippolito detect my love?

Oh, sure their heedless lusts but flatt’r red me, I am not pleasing, beautiful, nor young.

Hippolito hath spied some ugly blemish,

Eclipsing all my beauties: I am foul.

Hartol! Ay, that’s the spot that stains my soul.

What! has he left his weapon here behind him And gone forgetful? O fit instrument To let forth all the poison of my flesh!

Thy master hates me, ‘cause my blood hath rang’d:

But when’t is forth, then he’ll believe I’m chang’d.

[As she is about to stab herself] re-enter HIPPO- LITO.

Hipp. Mad woman, what art doing?

Bell. Either love me, or split my heart upon thy rapier’s point: Yet do not neither; for thou then destroy’st That which I love thee for — thy virtues.

Here, here;

[Gives sword to Hippolito.]

Th’ art crueler, and kill’st me with disdain: To die so, sheds no blood, yet ’tis worse pain.

Exit HIPPO- LITO.

Not speak to me! Not bid farewell? A scorn? Hated! this must not be; some means I’ll try.

Would all whores were as honest now as I!

Exit.

[ACT III]

SCENE I.

Enter Candido, his wife (Viola), George, and two Prentices in the shop: Fustigo enters, walking by.

Geo. See, gentlemen, what you lack; a fine holland, a fine cambic: see what you buy.

1 Pren. Holland for shirts, cambic for bands; what is’t you lack?

Fus. [Aside.] ’Sfoot, I lack ’em all; nay, ay, more, I lack money to buy ’em. Let me see, let me look again: massa, this is the same. What coz! sweet coz! how dost, I’ faith, since last night after candlelight? We had good sport, I’ faith, had we not? And when shall’s laugh again?

Vio. When you will, cous’n.

Fus. Spoke like a kind Lacedemonian. I see youder ’s thy husband.

Vio. Ay, there’s the sweet youth, God bless him!

Fus. And how is ’t, cousin? and how, how is ’t, thou scalawag?

Vio. Well, cous’n, how fare you?

Fus. How fare I? For sixpence a-meal, wench, as well as heart can wish, with calves’ chaldrons and chitterlings; besides, I have a punk after supper, as good as a roasted apple.

Cand. Are you my wife’s cousin?

Fus. I am, sir; what hast thou to do with thee that?

Cand. O, nothing, but y’ are welcome.

Fus. The devil’s dung in thy teeth! I’ll be welcome whether thou wilt or no, I — What ring’s this, coz? Very pretty and fantastical, I’ faith! let’s see it.

Vio. Pooh! nay, you wrench my finger.

Fus. I ha’ sworn I’ll ha’ it, and I hope you will not let my oaths be crack’d in the ring, will you? [Seizes the ring.] I hope, sir, you are not malic’ly at this, for all your great looks. Are you angry?

Cand. Angry? Not I, sir, nay if she can part So easily with her ring, ’t is with my heart.

Geo. Suffer this, sir, and suffer all. A whore- son gull, to —

Cand. Peace, George, when she has reap’d what I have sown, She’ll say, one grain tastes better of her own, Than whole sheaves gather’d from another’s land.

Wit’s never good, till bought at a dear hand.

Geo. But in the mean-time she makes an ass of some body.

2 Pren. See, see, see, see, sir, as you turn your back they do nothing but kiss.

Cand. No matter, let ’em; when I touch her lip, I shall not feel his kisses, no, nor miss Any of her lip: no harm in kissing is.

Look to your business, pray, make up your wares.

Fus. Troth, coz, and well rememb’red. I would thou wouldst give me five yards of lawn, to make my punk some falling bands a’ the fashion; three falling one upon another, for that’s the new edition now. She’s out of linen horribly, too; troth, ah’s never a good smack to her back; neither, but one that has a great many patches in ’t, and that I’m fain to —

1 Wench. 2 Calv’ry. 3 Tripe. 4 J. s. false, like an uncourtly coin. 5 A corruption of the word “ melancholy.” 6 Collars lying flat on the neck.
wear myself for want of shift, too. Frithney, put me into wholesome napery, and bestow some clean commodities upon us.

Vio. Reach me those cambrics, and the lawns
hither.

Cand. What to do, wife? To lavish out my goods upon a fool?

Fus. Fool? Snails, sat the fool, or I'll so batter your crown, that it shall scarce go for five shillings. 70

2 Pren. Do you hear, sir? You're best be quiet, and say a fool tells you so.

Fus. Nails, I think so, for thou tell'st me.

Cand. Are you angry, sir, because I nam'd thée fool?

Trust me, you are not wise in my own house 80
And to my face to play the antic thus.

If you'll needs play the madman, choose a stage
Of lesser compass, where few eyes may note
Your action's error: but if still you miss,
As here you do, for one clap, ten will hiss. 86

Fus. Zounds, cousin, be talk to me, as if I were a scurril tragedian.

2 Pren. Sirrah George, I ha' thought upon a device, how to break his pate, beat him soundly, and ship him away. 90

Geo. Do't.

2 Pren. I'll go in, pass through the house, give some of our fellow-prentices the watchword when they shall enter; then come and fetch my master in by a wile, and place one 99

in the hall to hold him in conference, whilst we engage the gull out of his coxcomb.

[Exit 2 Prentice.]

Geo. Do't; away, do't. 100

Vio. Must I call twice for these cambrics and lawns?

Cand. Nay see, you anger her, George; prithee despacht.

1 Pren. Two of the choicest pieces are in the warehouse, sir.

Cand. Go fetch them presently. 109

[Exit 1 Prentice.

Fus. Ay, do, make haste, sirrah.

Cand. Why were you such a stranger all this while, being my wife's cousin?

Fus. Stranger? No sir, I'm a natural Milanor

born. 106

Cand. I perceive still it is your natural guise to mistake me, but you are welcome, sir; I much wish your acquaintance.

Fus. My acquaintance? I soon that, i' faith; 120

I hope my acquaintance goes in chains of gold three and fifty times double: — you know who I mean, coz; the posts of his gate are a-painting too. 107

Re-enter the 2 Prentice.

2 Pren. Signor Pandulfo the merchant desires conference with you.

Cand. Signor Pandulfo? I'll be with him

straight,

Attend your mistress and the gentleman. Exit.

Vio. When do you show those pieces?

Fus. Ay, when do you show those pieces?

Prentices. [within.] Presently, sir; presently:

we are but charging them. 131

Fus. Come, sirrah: you flat-cap, 4 where be these whites?

[Re-enter 1 Prentice with pieces.]

Geo. Flat-cap? Hark in your ear, sir, you're a flat fool, an ass, a gull, and I'll thrum 6 you.

—Do you see this cambric, sir? 134

Fus. 'Sfoot coz, a good jest, did you hear him? He told me in my ears, I was a "flat fool, an ass, a gull, and I'll thrum you: — do you see this cambric, sir?" 135

Vio. What, not my men, I hope? 136

Fus. No, not your men, but one of your men, i'

faith.

1 Pren. I pray, sir, ome hither, what say you to this? Here's an excellent good one. 138

Fus. Ay, marry, this likes 4 me well; cut me off some half-score yards. 139

2 Pren. Let your whores cut; you're an impudent coxcomb; you get none, and yet I'll thrum you. — A very good cambric, sir. 146

Fus. Again, again, as God judge me! 'Sfoot, 145

coz, they stand thrumming here with me all day, and yet I get nothing.

1 Pren. A word, I pray, sir, you must not be angry. Prentices have hot bloods, young fellows.

— What say you to this piece? Look you, 146

't is so delicate, so soft, so even, so fine a thread,

that a lady may wear it.

Fus. 'Sfoot, I think so; if a knight marry my puck, a lady shall wear it. Cut me off twenty yards; thou'rt an honest lad. 150

1 Pren. Not without money, gull, and I'll thrum you too.

All. Gull, we'll thrum you.

Fus. O Lord, sister, did you not hear something cry thrum? Zounds, your men here make a plain ass of me.

Vio. What, to my face so impudent?

Geo. Ay, in a cause so honest, we'll not suffer

Our master's goods to vanish moneyless.

Vio. You will not suffer them?

2 Pren. No, and you may blush. 160

In going about to vex so mild a breast,

As is our master's.

Vio. Take away those pieces,

Cousin, I give them freely.

Fus. Mass, and I'll take 'em as freely.

All. We'll make you lay 'em down again more freely. 165

[They all attack Fustigo with their clubs.]

Vio. Help, help! my brother will be murdered.

[Re-enter Candido. 170

Cand. How now, what coil 7 is here? Forbear

I say.

[Exeunt all the Prentices except the

1 and 2.]

Geo. He calls us flat-caps, and abuses us.
Cand. Why, sirs, do such examples flow from me?
Vio. They're of your keeping, sir. Alas, poor brother.

Fus. I 'faith they ha' pepper'd me, sister; look, dost not spin? Call you these prentices? I'll ne'er play at cards more when clowns is trump. I have a goodly coxcomb, sister, have I not?

Cand. Sister and brother? Brother to my wife?
Fus. If you have any skill in heraldry, you may soon know that; break but her pate, and you shall see her blood and mine is all one.

Cand. A surgeon! run, a surgeon! [Exit 1 Prentice.] Why then were you that forged name of cousin?

Fus. Because it's a common thing to call coz and ningle now-a-days all the world over.

For under that common abused word,
Many an honest-temp'red citizen
Is made a monster, and his wife train'd out
To foul adulterous action, full of fraud.
I may well call that word, a city's bawd.

Fus. Troth, brother, my sister would needs ha' me take upon me to gull your patience a little: but it has made double guiles on my coxcomb.

Vio. What, playing the woman? Blabbing now, you fool?

Cand. Oh, my wife did but exercise a jest upon your wit.

Fus. 'Sfoot, my wit bleeds for 't; methinks.

Cand. Then let this warning more of sense afford.

The name of cousin is a bloody word.

Fus. I'll ne'er call coz again whilst I live, to have such a coil about it. This should be a coronation day; for my head runs claret lustily.

Enter an Officer.

Cand. Go, wish the surgeon to have great respect — Exit 2 Prentice.

How now, my friend? What, do they sit to-day?

Off. Yes, sir, they expect you at the senate-house.

Cand. I thank your pains; I'll not be last man there. — Exit Officer.

My gown, George, go, my gown. [Exit GEORGE.]

A happy land,
Where grave men meet each cause to understand;
Whose consciences are not cut out in bribes
To gull the poor man's right; but in even scales,
Peize rich and poor, without corruption's vails.

Re-enter GEORGE.

Come, where's the gown?

Geo. I cannot find the key, sir.

Cand. Request it of your mistress.

Vio. Come not to me for any key.

1 Mine inkle, t. e. my intimate.
2 The heraldic term for red.
3 Desires.
4 Weigh.
5 Perquisitions.

I'll not be troubled to deliver it.

Cand. Good wife, kind wife, it is a needful trouble, but for my gown!

Vio. Moths swallow down your gown!

You set my teeth on edge with talking on 't. —
Cand. Nay, prithee, sweet, — I cannot meet without it,

I should have a great fine set on my head.

Vio. Set on your coxcomb; tush, fine me no finer.

Cand. Believe me, sweet, none greets the senate-house,
Without his robe of reverence, — that's his gown.

Vio. Well, then, you're like to cross that custom once;

You get nor key, nor gown; and so depart. —

[Aside.] This trick will vex him sure, and fret his heart.

Cand. Stay, let me see, I must have some device,
My cloak's too short: fie, fie, no cloak will do;

It must be something fashioned like a gown,
With my arms out. Oh George, come hither, George,
I prithee, lend me thine advice.

Geo. Troth, sir, were't any but you, they would break open chest.

Cand. O no! break open chest! that's a thief's office.

Therein you counsel me against my blood;
'Twould show impatience that: any meek means
I would be glad to embrace. Mass, I have got it.
Go, step up, fetch me down one of the carpets,
The saddest! colour'd carpet, honest George,
Cut thou a hole i' th' middle for my neck,
Two for mine arms. Nay, prithee, look not strange.
Geo. I hope you do not think, sir, as you mean.

Cand. Prithee, about it quickly, the hour chides me;

Warily, George, softly, take heed of eyes.

Out of two evils he's accounted wise,
That can pick out the least; the fine impos'd
For an un-gowned senator, is about Forty crusades; the carpet not 'bove four.

Thus have I chosen the lesser evil yet,
Preserv'd my patience, foil'd her desperate wit.

Re-enter GEORGE [with carpet].

Geo. Here, sir, here's the carpet.

Cand. O well done, George, we'll cut it just i' th' midst.

[They cut the carpet.]
'Tis very well; I thank thee: help it on.

Geo. It must come over your head, sir, like a wench's petticoat.

Cand. Thou 'rt in the right, good George; it must indeed.

Fetch me a night-cap; for I'll gird it close,

* Table covers.
7 Quietett.
8 Portuguese coins, worth about 2s. 10d. each, varying in value.
As if my health were queasy: 'twill show well
For a rude, careless night-gown, will 't not, think'st?
Geo. Indifferent well, sir, for a night-gown, being girt and pleased.
Cas. Ay, and a night-cap on my head.
Geo. That's true, sir, I'll run and fetch one, and a staff. Exit.
Casd. For thus they cannot choose but conster 1 it.
One that is out of health, takes no delight,
Wears his apparel without appetite,
And puts on heedless raiment without form.
Re-enter GEORGE [with night-cap and staff].
So, so, kind George, [puts on night-cap]—be secret now; and, prithee, do not laugh at me
' till I'm out of sight.
Casd. Now to the senate-house.
Methinks, I'd rather wear, without a frown,
A patient carpet, than an angry gown. Exit.
Geo. Now, looks my master just like one [as] of our carpet knights, only he's somewhat the honester of the two.
Re-enter VIOLA.
Vio. What, is your master gone?
Geo. Yes, forsooth, his back is but new 'turn'd.
Vio. And in his cloak? Did he not vex and swear?
Geo. [Aside.] No, but he'll make you swear
anon. —
No indeed, he went away like a lamb.
Vio. Key, sink to hell! Still patient, patient still?
I am with child 2 to vex him. Prithee, George,
If 'er thou look'st for favour at my hands,
Uphold one jest for me.
Geo. Against my master?
Vio. 'Tis a mere jest, in faith. Say, wilt thou do 't?
Geo. Well, what is 't?
Vio. Here, take this key; thou know'st where all things lie.
Put on thy master's best apparel, gown,
Chain, cap, ruff, every thing, be like himself;
And 'gainst his coming home, walk in the shop;
Feign the same carriage, and his patient look,
'T will breed but a jest, thou know'st; speak,
wilt thou?
Geo. 'T will wrong my master's patience.
Vio. Prithee, George. 3
Geo. Well, if you'll save me harmless, and put me under covert barn, 4 I am content to please you, provided it may breed no wrong against him.
Vio. No wrong at all. Here take the key, be gone.
If any vex him, this; if not this, none. Exeunt.

---

SCENE [II].

Enter a Bawd [Mistress FINGERLOCK] and ROGER.

Miss F. O Roger, Roger, where's your mis-stress, where's your mistress? There's the finest, neatest gentleman at my house, but newly come over. Oh, where is she, where is she, where is she?

Roger. My mistress is abroad, but not amongst 'em. My mistress is not the whore now that you take her for.

Miss F. How? Is she not a whore? Do you go about to take away her good name, [as]
Roger? You are a fine pander indeed.

Roger. I tell you, Madonna Fingerlock, I am not sad for nothing; I ha' not eaten one good meal this three and thirty days. I had wont to get sixteen pence by fetching a pottle [as] of hippocraes; but now those days are past.
We had as good things, Madonna Fingerlock, shew within doors, and I without, as any poor young couple in Milan.

Miss F. God's my life, and is she chang'd [as]
now?

Roger. I ha' lost by her squamishness more than would have builted twelve bawdy-houses.

Miss F. And had she no time to turn honest but now? What a vile woman is this! [as] Twenty pound a night, I'll be sworn, Roger, in good gold and no silver. Why here was a time!
If she should ha' pick't out a time, it could not be better; gold enough stirring; choice of men, choice of hair, choice of beards, choice of [as] legs, and choice of every, every, everything. It cannot sink into my head, that she should be such an ass. Roger, I never believe it.

Roger. Here she comes now.

Enter BELLAFRONT.

Miss F. O sweet madonna, on with your [as] loose gown, your felt 5 and your feather; there's the sweetest, prop'rest, gallantest gentleman at my house; he smelt all of musk and amber-grits, in his pocket full of crowns, flame-coloured doublet, red satin hose, carnation silk stock-[in], and a leg, and a body,—oh!
Bell. Hence thou, our sex's monster, poisonous bawd,
Lust's factor, and damnation's orator!
Gossip of hell! were all the harlots' sins
Which the whole world contains, numb'red together,

Thine far exceeds them all: of all the creatures
That ever were created, thou art basest.
What serpent would beguile thee of thy office?
It is detestable: for thou livest
Upon the dregs of harlots, guard'st the door;
Whilst couples go to dancing. O coarse devil!
Thou art the bastard's curse, thou brand'st his birth;
The lecher's French disease, for thou drysuck'st him;
The harlot's poison, and thine own confusion.

1 Construe.
2 i.e. I long.
3 When he may rob under protection. Barn is a corrupution of baron, and in law a wife is said to be under covert barn, being sheltered by marriage under her husband. (Dryce.)
4 An outer apartment in Bellafront's house.
5 Hat.
6 Handseemest.
Marry come up, with a pox! Have you nobody to rail against but your bawd now? Bawd. And you, knave pander, kinsman to a bawd.

Roq. You and I, madonna, are cousins. Bawd. Of the same blood and making, near allied;
Thou that slave to sixpence, base metall’d villain!

Roq. Sixpence? Nay, that’s not so: I never took under two shilling’s four-pence; I hope I know my fee.

Bell. I know not against which most to inveigh;
For both of you are damn’d so equally.
Thou never spar’st for oaths, swear’st at anything,
As if thy soul were made of shoe-leather:
"God damn me, gentlemen, if she be within!"
When in the next room she’s found dallying.

Roq. If it be my vocation to swear, every man in his vocation. I hope my betters swear and damn themselves, and why should not I?

Bell. Roger, you cheat kind gentlemen. Roq. The more gulls they.

Bell. Slave, I cashier thee.

Mis. An you do cashier him, he shall be entertained.

Roq. Shall I? Then blurt a’ your service.

Bell. As hell would have it, entertain’d by you! I dare the devil himself to match those two.

Mis. F. Marry gan, are you grown so holy, so pure, so honest with a pox?

Roq. Scurry honest punk! But stay, madonna, how must our agreement be now? for, you know, I am to have all the comings-in at the hall-door, and you at the chamber-door.

Mis. F. True, Roger, except my vails.

Roq. Vails? What vails?

Mis. F. Why as thus: if a couple come in a coach, and light to lie down a little, then, Roger, that’s my fee, and you may walk abroad; for the coachman himself is their pandar.

Roq. Is a so? In truth I have almost forgot, for want of exercise. But how if I fetch this citizen’s wife to that gull, and that madonna to that gallant, how then?

Mis. F. Why then, Roger, you are to have sixpence a lane; so many lanes, so many sixpences.

Roq. Is’t so? Then I see we two shall agree, and live together.

Mis. F. Ay, Roger, so long as there be any taverns and bawdy-houses in Milan. Exit.

Scene III.

Enter BELLAFRONT with lute, pen, ink, and paper being placed before her.

Some.

[Bell.]

The courtier’s flattering jewels, Temptation’s only fuels;

1 Go up, get out.  2 Parquiltas.  3 Assignation (?) Customer (?) Fair (?)  4 A chamber in Bellafront’s house.
iv. i.

THE HONEST WHORE: PART I

For 'stead of children, they breed rank diseases,
And all you gallants can bestow on them
Is that French infant, which ne'er acts, but speaks.

What shallow son and heir, then, foolish gallants,
Would waste all his inheritance, to purchase
A filthy, loath'd disease? and pawn his body
To a dry evil: that marly 's worst of all,
When th' interest will eat out the principal.

Mat. [Aside.] 'Soot, she gulls 'em the best!
This is always her fashion, when she would be [reid of any company that she cares not for, to slap a dole alone.

Flu. What's here? Instructions, admonitions, and cates? Come out, you scabard of vengeance.

Mat. Fluello, spurn your hounds when they faint, you shall not spurn my punk, I can tell you: my blood is vext.

Flu. Fox a' your blood! I make it a quarrel.

Mat. You 're a slave! Will that serve turn?

All. 'Sblood, hold, hold!

Cas. Matheo, Fluello, for shame, put up!

Bell. O how many thus

Mov'd with a little folly, have let out Their souls in brothel houses! fell down and died

Just at their harlot's foot, as 'twere in pride.

Flu. Matheo, we shall meet.

Mat. Ay, ay; any where, saving at church;
Pray take heed we meet not there.

Flu. Adieu, damnation!

Cas. Cookatrice, farewell!

Pio. There's more deceit in women, than in hell.

Excunt [CASTRUCIIO, FLUELLO,

and PIORATTO]:

Mat. Ha, ha, thou dost gull 'em so rarely, so naturally! If I did not think thou hadst been in earnest
Thou art a sweet rogue for 't! faith.

Bell. Why are not you gone too, Signor Matheo?

I pray depart my house: you may believe me,
In troth, I have no part of harlot in me.

Mat. How 's this?

Bell. Indeed, I love you not: but hate you

worse

Than any man, because you were the first
Gave money for my soul: you brake the ice,
Which after turn'd a puddle; I was led

By your temptation to be miserable.

I pray, seek out some other that will fall,

Or rather, I pray seek out none at all.

Mat. Is 't possible to be impossible! An honest whore! I have heard many honest wenches turn strumpets with a wet finger; but for a harlot to turn honest is one of Hercules' labours.

It was more easy for him in one night to make fifty quires, than to make one of them honest again in fifty years. Come, I hope thou dost but jest.

Bell. 'T is time to leave off jesting; I had al-
mast

Jested away salvation. I shall love you,
If you will soon forsake me.

Mat. God be with thee!

Bell. O tempt no more women! Shun their weighty curse!

Women, at best, are bad, make them not worse,
You gladly seek our sex's overthrow;
But not to raise our states. For all your wrongs,
Will you vouchsafe me but due recompense,

To marry with me?

Mat. How! marry with a punk, a cockatrice, a harlot? Marry, laugh, I'll be burnt through the nose first.

Bell. Why, la, these are your oaths! you love to undo us.

To put Heaven from us, whilst our best hours

waste;

You love to make us lewd, but never chaste.

Mat. I'll hear no more of this, this ground
upon;

Thou 'rt damn'd for alt'ring thy religion.

Bell. Thy lust and sin speak so much. Go thou, my ruin,
The first fall my soul took! By my example
I hope few maidens now will put their heads Under men's girdles; who least trusts is most wise:

Men's oaths do cast a mist before our eyes.
My best of wit, be ready! Now I go,

By some device to greet Hippolito.

[ACT IV]

SCENE [I].

Enter a Servant, setting out a table, on which he places a skull, a picture [of INFELICE], a book, and a taper.

Ser. So, this is Monday morning, and now must I to my huswifery. Would I had been created a shoemaker, for all the gentle craft are gentlemen every Monday by their copy; and soon thence to work one true stitch. My MASTER means sure to turn me into a student, for here's my book, here my desk, here my light, this my close chamber, and here my punk:
so that this dull drowsy first day of the week makes me half a priest, half a chamber, half a painter, half a sexton, ay, and half a bawd; for all this day my office is to do nothing but keep the door. To prove it, look you, this good face and yonder gentleman, so soon as ever my back is turn'd, will be taught together.

Enter HIPPOLITO.

Hip. Are all the windows shut?

Ser. Close, sir, as the fist of a courtier that hath stood in three reigns.

Hip. Thou art a faithful servant, and observ-'st
The calendar both of my solemn vows,

And ceremonious sorrow. Get thee gone;

1 A chamber in Hippolito's house.
2 Certificate of membership in the craft.
I charge thee on thy life, let not the sound
Of any woman's voice pierce through that door.
Ser. If they do, my lord, I'll pierce some of them;
What will your lordship have to breakfast?
Hip. Sighs.
Ser. What to dinner?
Hip. Tears.
Ser. The one of them, my lord, will fill you too full of wind, the other wet you too much. [23
What to supper?
Hip. That which now thou canst not get me,
the constancy of a woman.
Ser. Indeed that's harder to come by than ever was Ondest.1
Hip. Friches, away.
Ser. I'll make away myself presently, which few servants will do for their lords; but rather help to make them away. Now to my door-keeping; I hope to pick something out of it. 40
Exit.

Hip. [taking up INFELICE's picture.] My Infelice's face, her brow, her eye,
The dimple on her cheek! and such sweet skill,
Hath from the cunning workman's pencil flown,
These lips look fresh and lively as her own, 50
Seeming to move and speak. 'Las! now I see,
The reason why fond 2 women love to buy
Adulterate complexion! Here, 'tis read:
False colours last after the true be dead.
Of all the roses grafted on her cheeks,
Of all the graces dancing in her eyes, 60
Of all the music set upon her tongue,
Of all that was past woman's excellence,
In her white bosom,—look! a painted board
Circumscribes all. Earth can no bliss afford,
Nothing of her but this. This cannot speak, 70
It has no lap for me to rest upon,
No lip worth tasting; here the worms will feed,
As in her coiffin. Hence, then, idle art!
True love's best picture'd in a true-love's heart.
Here art thou drawn, sweet maid, till this be dead;
So that thou liv'st twice, twice art buried.
Thou figure of my friend, lie there. What's here?
[ Takes up the skull.]
Perhaps this shrewd pate was mine enemy's:
'Las! say it were; I need not fear him now! 80
For all his braves, his contumelious breath, his Frowns, though dagger-pointed, all his plot,
Though ne'er so mischievous, his Italian pills,
His quarrels, and that common fence, his law,
See, see, they're all eaten out! Here's not left
one:
How clean they're pickt away to the bare bone!

How mad are mortals, then, to rear great names
On tops of swelling houses! or to wear out
Their fingers' ends in dirt, to scrape up gold!
Not caring, so that sumpter-horse, the back,
Be hung with gaudy trappings, with what coarse—

Yeas, rags most beggarly, they clothe the soul:
Yet, after all, their gayness looks thus foul.
What fools are men to build a garish tomb,
Only to save the carcasse whilst it rots,
To maintain 't long in stinking, make good carriage,
But leave no good deeds to preserve them
sound!
For good deeds keep men sweet, long above
ground.
And must all come to this? fools, wise, all
hither?
Must all heads thus at last be laid together?
Draw me my picture then, thou graveest work-
man,
After this fashion, not like this; these colours
In time, kissing but air, will be kiss'd off:
But here's a fellow; that which he lays on Till doomsday alters not complexion.
Death's the best painter then: they that draw
shapes,
And live by wicked faces, are but God's apes.
They come but near the life, and there they stay;
This fellow draws life too: his art is fuller,
The pictures which he makes are without colour.

Re-enter Servant.

Ser. Here's a person would speak with you, sir.
Hip. Hah!
Ser. A parson, sir, would speak with you.
Hip. Vicar?
Ser. Vicar! No, sir; has too good a face to be a vicar yet; a youth, a very youth.
Hip. What youth? Of man or woman?

Lock the doors.
Ser. If it be a woman, marrow-bones 4 and potato pies 4 keep me from meddling with her, for the thing has got the breeches!' Tis a [8] 9 male-variety sure, my lord, for a woman's tailor ne'er measureth him.

Hip. Let him give thee his message and be gone.
Ser. He says he's Signor Matheo's man, but I know he lies. 119

Hip. How dost thou know it?
Ser. 'Cause he has ne'er a beard. 'Tis his boy, I think, sir, whose ever paid for his nursing.
Hip. Send him and keep the door.

[Exit Servant.]

(Reads.) "Fota si liceat mihi,
Fingere arbitrio meo,
Temperem sephiro levi
Velia."
I'd sail were I to choose, not in the ocean;
Cedars are shaken, when shrubs do feel no bruise.

Enter BELLAFRONT, like a Page, [with a letter].
How? from Matheo?
Bell. Yes, my lord.
Hip. Art sick? 120

1 Oustend held out for three years and ten weeks, and was eventually captured by the Marquis of Spinola on Sept. 8, 1604.
2 Foolish.
3 Q 1635, brought.
4 Used as provastives.
5 Seneca, Oedipus, 869.
Bell. Not all in health, my lord.
Hip. Keep off.
Bell. I do.—
[Aside.] Hard fate when women are compell’d to woo.
Hip. This paper does speak nothing.
Bell. Yes, my lord,

Matter of life, it speaks, and therefore writ
In hidden character: to me instruction
My master gives, and, "less you please to stay
Till you both meet, I can the text display.
Hip. Do so; read out.
Bell. I am already out.¹

Look on my face, and read the strangest story!
Hip. What, villain, ho? —

Re-enter Servant.

Ser. Call you, my lord?
Hip. Thou slave, thou hast let in the devil!
Ser. Lord bless us, where? He’s not cloven, my lord, that I can see: besides the devil goes [125] more like a gentleman than a page. Good my lord, Buon coraggio.²

Hip. Thou hast let in a woman in man’s shape.
And thou art damn’d for’t.

Ser. Not damn’d I hope for putting in a woman to a lord,

Hip. Fetch me my rapier,—do not; I shall kill thee.

Purge this infected chamber of that plague,
That runs upon me thus. Slave, thrust her hence.

Ser. Alas, my lord, I shall never be able to thrust her hence without help! Come, mermaid, you must to sea again.

Bell. Hear me but speak, my words shall be all music;
Hear me but speak. [Knocking within.

Hip. Another beats the door,

T’other she-devil look.

Ser. Why, then, hell’s broke loose.

Hip. Hence; guard the chamber: let no more come on. Exit [Servant.

One woman serves for man’s damnation—
Behawre thee, thou dost make me violate
The chastest and most sanctimonious vow,
That e’er was ent’d in the court of Heaven!
I was, on meditation’s spotless wings,

Upon my journey thither; like a storm
Thou best’st my ripened cogitations,
Flat to the ground; and like a thief dost stand,
To steal devotion from the holy land.

Bell. If woman were thy mother—if thy heart,
Be not all marble, or if’t marble be,
Let my tears soften it, to pity me—
I do beseech thee, do not thus with scorn
Destroy a woman!

Hip. Woman, I beseech thee,²²
Get thee some other suit, this fits thee not;
I would not grant it to a kneeling queen,
I cannot love thee, nor I must not: see

[Points to INFELICE’s picture.]

The copy of that obligation,
Where my soul’s bound in heavy penalties. ²³

Bell. She’s dead, you told me; she’ll let fall her suit.

Hip. My vow’s to her fled after her to Heaven.

Were thine eyes clear as mine, thou might’st behold her,
Watching upon ye battles of stars,—
How I observe them! Should I break my bond,
This board would rive in twain, these wooden lips
Call me most perjur’d villain. Let it suffice,
I ha’ set thee in the path; ’s not a sign I love thee, when with one so most dear, I’ll have thee fallows? All are fellows there.²⁴

Bell. Be greater than a king; save not a body,
But from eternal shipwreck keep a soul.
If not, and that again sin’s path I tread,
The grief be mine, the guilt fall on thy head!

Hip. Stay, and take physic for it; read this book.

Ask counsel of this head, what’s to be done:
He’ll strike it dead, that ‘s is damnation
If you turn Turk again. Oh, do it not!
Though Heaven cannot allure you to do well,
From doing ill let hell fright you; and learn this,

The soul whose bosom lust did never touch,
Is God’s fair bride, and maidens’ souls are such:
The soul that leaving chastity’s white shore,
Swims in hot sensual streams, is the devil’s whore.—

Re-enter Servant [with letter].

How now, who comes?

Ser. No more knaves, my lord, that wear smocks: here’s a letter from Doctor Benedict.

I would not enter his man, though he had hairs at his mouth, for fear he should be a woman, for some women have beards; marry, they are half-witches. "Slip! you are a sweet youth to wear a cod-piece, and have no pins to stick upon it."

Hip. I'll meet the doctor, tell him; yet to-night
I cannot; but at morrow rising sun
I will not fail.—Go, woman; fare thee well.

Exeunt [HIPPOLOTO and Servant.

Bell. The lowest fall can be but into hell;
It does not move him: I must therefore fly
From this undoing city, and with tears
Wash all anger from my father’s brow:²²
He cannot sure but joy, seeing me new born.
A woman honest first, and then turn whore,
Is, as with me, common to thousands more;²²
But from a strumpet to turn chaste, that sound
Has oft been heard, that woman hardly found.

Exit.

SCENE [III].²

Enter FUSTIGO, CHAMBO, and POLL.

Fus. Hold up your hands, gentlemen, here’s one, two, three [giving money]—nay, I warrant they are sound pistoles, and without flaws; I had them of my sister and I know she uses to put [up] nothing that's crackt—four, five, six, seven, eight, and nine; by this hand bring me but a piece of his blood, and you shall have nine more. I'll lurk in a tavern not far off, and provide supper to close up the end of the tragedy. The linen-drawer's, remember. Stand [as to 't]; I beseech you, and play your parts perfect.

Cram. Look you, signor, 'tis not your gold that we weigh—

Fus. Nay, nay, weigh it and spare not; if 'tis it lack one grain of corn, I'll give you a bushel of wheat to make it up.

Cram. But by your favour, signor, which of the servants is it? because we'll punish justly. Fus. Marry, 'tis the head man; you shall taste him by his tongue; a pretty, tall, praying fellow, with a Tuscanolitan beard.

Fus. God's life, I was ne'er so thrummed since I was a gentleman. My coxcomb was dry beaten, as if my hair had been hemp.

Cram. We'll dry-beat some of them.

Fus. Nay, it grew so high, that my sister cried out murder, very manfully. I have her consent, in a manner, to have him pepper'd; else I'll not do 't, to win more than ten cheaters do at a rising. Break but his pate, or so, only his mazer, because I'll have his head in a cloth as well as mine; he's a linen-drawer, and may take enough. I could enter mine action as of battery against him, but we may perhaps be both dead and rotten before the lawyers would end it.

Cram. No more to do, but ensconce yourself in the tavern; provide no great cheer, a couple of capons, some pheasants, plowers, an orangeade-pie, or so: but how bloody howsoever the day be, sally you not forth.

Fus. No, no; nay, if I stir, somebody shall stink. I'll not budge; I'll lie like a dog in a manger.

Cram. Well, well, to the tavern, let not our supper be raw, for you shall have blood enough, your bellyful.

Fus. That's all, so God as me, I thirst after; blood for blood, bump for bump, nose for nose, head for head, plaster for plaster; and so farewell. What shall I call your names? because I'll leave word, if any such come to the bar.

Cram. My name is Corporal Crambo.

Poli. And mine, Lieutenant Poli. Exit. Cram. Poli is a tall man as ever opened oyster; I would not be the devil to meet Poli.

Fus. Nor I, by this light, if Poli be such a Poli.

Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Enter Candido's wife [VIOLETA] in her shop, and the two Prentices.

Vio. What's a'clock now?

Tis almost twelve.

Vio. That's well, The Senate will leave wording presently: But is George ready?

Fren. Yes, forsooth, he's furniahed.

Vio. Now, as you ever hope to win my favour, Throw both your duties and respects on him, With the like awe as if he were your master; Let not your looks betray it with a smile Or jeering glance to any customer; Keep a true settled countenance, and beware You laugh not, whatsoever you hear or see.

Fren. I warrant you, mistress, let us alone for keeping our countenance: for, if I list, there's ne'er a fool in all Milan shall make me laugh, let him play the fool never so like an ass, whether it be the fat court-fool, or the lean city-fool.

Vio. Enough then, call down George.

2 Fren. I hear him coming.

Enter GEORGE [in CANDIDO's apparel].

Vio. Be ready with your legs then; let me see How courtesy would become him. — Gallantly! Beastly my blood, a proper seemly man.

Of a choice carriage, walks with a good port!

Geo. I thank you, mistress, my back's broad enough, now my master's gown's on.

Vio. Sure, I should think it were the least of sin To mistake the master, and to let him in.

Geo. 'Twere a good Comedy of Errors that, faith.

2 Fren. Whist, whist! my master.

Enter CANDIDO, [dressed as before in the carpet he stares at GEORGE,] and exit presently.

Vio. You all know your tasks. — God's my life, what's that he has got on's back? Who can tell? Geo. [Aside.] That can I, but I will not.

Vio. Girt about him like a madman! What, has he lost his cloak too? This is the maddest fashion that e'er I saw. What said he, George, when he passed by thee?

Geo. Truth, mistress, nothing: not so much as a bee, he did not hum; not so much as a bawd, he did not hem; not so much as a buck-old, he did not ha; neither hum, hem, nor ha; only stared me in the face, passed along, and made haste in, as if my looks had worked [with him, to give him a stool.

Vio. Sure he's vex't now, this trick has mov'd his spleen, He's anger'd now, because he utt'red nothing; And wordless wrath breaks out more violent. May be he'll strive for place, when he comes down.

But if thou lov'st me, George, afford him none.

Geo. Nay, let me alone to play my master's prize, as long as my mistress warrants me. I'm sure I have his best clothes on, and I scorn to give place to any that is inferior in apparel to me; that's an axiom, a principle, and is ob-

Bown.

A quibble. There were three degrees in fenshing, the master's, the provost's, and the scholar's, for each of which a "prise was played."
serv'd as much as the fashion. Let that persuade you then, that I'll shoulder with him for the upper hand in the shop, as long as this chain will maintain it.

Vio. Spoke with the spirit of a master, though with the tongue of a prentice.

Re-enter CANDIDO like a Prentice.

Why how now, madman? What in your tricksy-coats?

Cand. O peace, good mistress.

Enter CRAMBO and POLI.

See, what you lack? What is't you buy? [e Pure calicoes, fine Hollands, choice cambrics, neat lawns? See, what you buy? Pray come near, my master will use you well, he can afford you a penny-worth.

Vio. Ay, that he can, out of a whole piece of lawn, i'faith.

Cand. Pray see your choice here, gentlemen.

Vio. O fine fool! What, a madman! A patient madman! Who ever heard of the like? Well, sir, I'll fit you and your humour presently. [e What, cross-points? I'll untie 'em all in a trice:

I'll vex you! faith: boy take your cloak, quick, come.

Cand. Be covered, George, this chain and welted gown.

Bare to this coat? Then the world's upside down.

Geo. Umm, umm, hum.

Cram. That's the shop, and there's the fellow.

Poli. Ay, but the master is walking in there.

Cram. No matter, we'll in.

Poli. 'Sblood, dost long to lie in limbo?

Cram. An limbo be in hell, I care not.

Cand. Look you, gentlemen, your choice: cambrics?

Cram. No, sir, some shirting.

Cand. You shall.

Cram. Have you none of this strip'd canvas for doublets?

Cand. None strip'd, sir, but plain.

2 Prem. I think there be one piece strip'd within.

Geo. Stop, sirrah, and fetch it, hum, hum, hum.

[Exit 2 Prem., and returns with the piece.]

Cand. Look you, gentleman, I'll make but one spreading, here's a piece of cloth, fine, [e yet shall wear like iron. 'Tis without fault; take this upon my word, 'tis without fault.

Cram. Then 'tis better than you, sirrah.

Cand. Ay, and a number more. Oh, that each soul

Were but as spotless as this innocent white, and had as few breaks in it!.

Cram. 'T would have some then:

There was a fray here last day in this shop.

Cand. There was, indeed, a little flea-biting.

Poli. A gentleman had his pate broke; call you that but a flea-biting?

Cand. He had so.

Cram. Zounds, do you stand to it? He strikes him.

Geo. 'Sfoot, clubs, clubs! Prentices, down with 'em!

[Enter several Prentices with clubs, who disarm CRAMBO and POLI.]

Ah, you rogues, strike a citizen in 's shop?

Cand. None of you stir, I pray; forbear, good George.

Cram. I beseech you, sir, we mistook our marks; deliver us our weapons.

Geo. Your head bleeds, sir; cry clubs!

Cand. I say you shall not; pray be patient, give them their weapons. Sirs, y'are best be gone;

I tell you there is boys more tough than bears. Hence, less, more flats do walk about your ears.

Cram. Poli. We thank you, sir. Exeunt.

Cand. You shall not follow them; let them alone, pray; this did me no harm.

Troth, I was cold, and the blow made me warm, I thank 'em for't: besides, I had decreed to have a vein prickt, I did mean to bleed: So that there's money saved. They're honest men, pray use 'em well when they appear again.

Geo. Yes, sir, we 'll use 'em like honest men.

Cand. Ay, well said, George, like honest men, though they be arrant knaves, for that's the phrase of the city. Help to lay up these wares.

Re-enter his Wife with Officers.

Vio. Yonder he stands.

1 Off. What in a prentice-coat?

Vio. Ay, ay; mad, mad; pray take heed. 123

Cand. How now! what news with them? What make they with my wife? Officers, is she attach'd? — Look to your wares.

Vio. He talks to himself: oh, he's much gone indeed.

1 Off. Pray, pluck up a good heart, be not so fearful:

Sirs, hark, we'll gather to him by degrees.

Vio. Ay, ay, by degrees I pray. Oh me! What makes he with the lawn in his hand? He'll tear all the ware in my shop.

1 Off. Fear not, we'll catch him on a sudden. Vio. Oh! you had need do so; pray take heed of your warrant.

1 Off. I warrant, mistress. Now, Signor CANDIDO.

Cand. Now, sir, what news with you, sir?

Vio. What news with you? he says: oh, he's far gone!

1 Off. I pray, fear nothing; let's alone with him.

Signor, you look not like yourself, methinks. — Steal you a' t'other side; — you're chang'd, you're alt'rod.

Cand. Chang'd sir, why true, sir. Is change strange? 'Tis not

1 With ornamental border.
The fashion unless it alter! Monarchs turn
To beggars, beggars creep into the nests
Of princes, masters serve their prentices,
Ladies their serving-men, men turn to women.

1 Qf. And women turn to men.

Cand. Ay, and women turn to men, say true.
Ha, ha, a mad world, a mad world.

[Officers seize CANDIDO.]

1 Qf. Have we caught you, sir?

Cand. Caught me? Well, well, you have caught me.

Vio. He laughs in your faces.

Geo. A rescue, prentices! My master’s catch-poll’d.

1 Qf. I charge you, keep the peace, or have your legs

Gartered with irons! We have from the duke
A warrant strong enough for what we do.

Cand. I pray, rest quiet, I desire no rescue.

Vio. La, he desires no rescue, ’las poor
heart,

He talks against himself.

Cand. Well, what’s the matter?

1 Qf. Look to that arm. Pray, make sure work, double the cord. [Officers bind CANDIDO.]

Cand. Why, why?

Vio. Look how his head goes. Should he get but loose.

Oh ’t were as much as all our lives were worth!

1 Qf. Fear not, we’ll make all sure for our own safety.

Cand. Are you at leisure now? Well, what’s the matter?

Why do I enter into bonds thus, ha?

1 Qf. Because y’are mad, put fear upon your wife.

Vio. Oh ay, I went in danger of my life every minute.

Cand. What, am I mad, say you, and I not know it?

1 Qf. That proves you mad, because you know it not.

Vio. Pray talk to him as little as you can.

You see he’s too far spent.

Cand. Bound, with strong cord!

A sister’s thread, ’t faith, had been enough,

To lead me anywhere. — Wife, do you long?

You are mad too, or else you do me wrong.

Geo. But are you mad indeed, master?

Cand. My wife says so, I know it not.

And what she says, George, is all truth, you
know.

And whither now, to Bethlehem Monastery?

Has I whither?

1 Qf. Faith, e’en to the madmen’s pound.

Cand. A God’s name! still I feel my patience sound. [Exeunt [Officers with CANDIDO].

Geo. Come, we’ll see whither he goes. If [118 the master be mad, we are his servants, and must follow his steps; we’ll be mad-caps too. Farewell, mistress, you shall have us all in Bedlam.

[Exeunt [GEORGE and Prentices].

Vio. I think I ha’ fitted you now, you and your clothes.

If this move not his patience, nothing can;
I’ll swear then I’ve a saint, and not a man.

[Exit.]
THE HONEST WHORIE: PART I

Duke. Which to prevent —

Duchess. I'm from my heart as far.

Duke. No matter, doctor; 'cause I'll fearlessly sleep.

And that you shall stand clear of that suspicion,

I banish them for ever from my court.

This principle is old, but true as fate.

Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate.

Duchess. Exit.

Duchess. Is't so? Nay then, duke, your state principle.

With one as state, the doctor thus shall quit.

He falls himself that digs another's pit.

Enter the Doctor's Man.

How now! where is he? will he not meet me?

Man. Meet you, sir? He might have met with three fencers in this time, and have received less hurt than by meeting one doctor of physic.

Why, sir, he has waltz under the old abbey-wall yonder this hour, till he's more cold than a citizen's country house in Janivere. You may mash him smell behind, sir: is, you, yonder he comes.

Enter Hippolito.

Duchess. Leave me.

Duchess. Th' lurch, if you will. Exit.

Duchess. O my most noble friend!

Duchess. Few but yourself,

Could have enticed me thus, to trust the air

With my close sibs. You sent for me; what news?

Duchess. Come, you must doff this black, dye that pale cheek

Into his own colour, go, attire yourself

Fresh as a bridegroom when he meets his bride.

The duke has done much treason to thy love;

'Tis now reveal'd, 'tis now to be reveng'd.

Be merry, honour'd friend, thy lady lives.

Duchess. What lady?

Duchess. Infelice, she's reviv'd.

Reviv'd? Alack! death never had the heart,

To take breath from her.

Duchess. Umm: I thank you, sir,

Physic prolongs life, when it cannot save;

This helps not my hopes, mine are in their grave,

You do some wrong to mock me.

Duchess. By that love

Which I have ever borne you, what I speak

Is truth: the maiden lives; that funeral,

Duchess. The tears, the mourning, was all counterfeit.

A sleepy draught cox'ned the world and you;

I was his minister, and then chambr'd red,

To stop discovery.

Duchess. O treacherous duke!

Duchess. He cannot hope so certainly for bliss,

As he believes that I have poison'd you.

He woo'd me to; I yielded, and confirm'd him

In his most bloody thoughts.

Duchess. A very devil!

Duchess. Her did he closely coach to Bergamo,

And thither —

Duchess. Will I ride, Stood Bergamo

In the low countries of black hell, I'll to her.

Duchess. You shall to her, but not to Bergamo.
Geo. Truly, mistress, I cannot tell; I think you'll hardly get him forth. Why, 'tis strange! 'Foot, I have known many women that [have had mad rascals to their husbands, whom they could labour by all means possible to keep 'em in their right wits; but of a woman to long to turn a tame man into a madman, why the devil himself was never us'd so by his dam. "

Vio. How does he talk, George? Has good George, tell me.

Geo. Why, you're best go see.

Vio. Alas, I am afraid!

Geo. Afraid! you had more need be [as asham'd. He may rather be afraid of you.

Vio. But, George, he's not stark mad, is he? He does not rave, he is not horn-mad, George, is he?

Geo. Nay I know not that, but he talks [like a justice of peace, of a thousand matters, and to no purpose.

Vio. I'll to the monastery. I shall be mad till I enjoy him, I shall be sick until I see him; yet when I do see him I shall weep out mine eyes. [As Geo. I'd fain see a woman weep out her eyes! That's as true as to say, a man's cloak burns, when it hangs in the water. I know you'll weep, mistress, but what says the painted cloth? 1

Trust not a woman when she cries.
For she'll pump water from her eyes
With a wet finger, 2 and in faster showers
Than April when he rains down flowers.

Vio. Ay, but George, that painted cloth is worthy to be hung up for lying. All women [has not tears at will, unless they have good cause.

Geo. Ay, but mistress, how easily will they find a cause, and as one of our cheese-trenchers 3 says very learnedly,

As out of wormwood bees suck honey,
As from poor clients lawyers firk money,
As parsley from a roasted onion;
So, though the day be no' so funny,
If wives will have it rain, down then it drives,
The coldest husbands make the stormiest wives.

Vio. Tame, George. But I ha' done storming now.

Geo. Why that's well done. Good mistress, throw aside this fashion of your humour, be [not so fantastical in wearing it; storm no more, long no more. This longings has made you come short of many a good thing that you might have had from my master. Here comes the duke.

Enter DUKE, FLUERLO, FIORATTO, and SINEE.

Vio. O, I beseech you, pardon my offence, in that I durst abuse your grace's warrant; Deliver forth my husband, good my lord.

Duke. Who is her husband?

Flu. Candido, my lord.

Duke. Where is he?

Vio. He's among the lunatics;

He was a man made up without a gall;
Nothing could move him, nothing could convert
His meek blood into fury; yet like a monster,
I often beat at the most constant rock
Of his unshaken patience, and did long
To vex him.

Duke. Did you so?

Vio. And for that purpose [Had warrant from your grace, to carry him
To Bethlehem Monastery, whence they will not free him Without your grace's hand that sent him in.

Duke. You have long'd for fair; 'tis you are mad, I fear;
It's fit to fetch him thence, and keep you there.

If he be mad, why would you have 'im forth?
Geo. An please your grace, he's not stark mad, but only talks like a young gentleman, somewhat fantastically, that's all. There's a thousand about your court, city, and country, try madder than he.

Duke. Provide a warrant, you shall have our hand.

Geo. Here's a warrant ready drawn, my lord.

Duke. Get pen and ink, get pen and ink.

[Exit GEORGE.]

Enter CASTRUCHIO.

Cas. Where is my lord, the duke?

Duke. How now! more madmen?

Cas. I have strange news, my lord.

Duke. Of what? Of whom?

Cas. Of Infelice, and a marriage.

Duke. Hal! where? with whom?

Cas. Hippolito.

Re-enter GEORGE, with pen and ink.

Geo. Here, my lord.

Duke. Hence, with that woman! Voids the room!

Flu. Away! the duke's next.

Geo. Whoop, come, mistress, the duke's mad too.

Exeunt [VIOLA and GEORGE].

Duke. Who told me that Hippolito was dead?

Cas. He that can make any man dead, the doctor: but, my lord, he's as full of life as wild-  is fire, and as quick. Hippolito, the doctor, and one more r'd hence this evening; the inn at which they light is Bethlehem Monastery; Infelice comes from Bergamo to meets them there. Hippolito is mad, for he means this day to [be married; the afternoon is the hour, and Friar Anselmo is the knitter.

Duke. From Bergamo? Is't possible? it can't be.

It cannot be.

Cas. I will not swear, my lord;
But this intelligence I took from one whose brains work in the plot.

Duke. What's he?

Cas. Matheo.

Flu. Matheo knows all.

Pior. He's Hippolito's bosom.

Duke. How far stands Bethlehem hence?

All. Six or seven miles.
Duke. Is’t so? Not married till the afternoon: Stay, stay, let’s work out some prevention. How! 128
This is most strange; can none but mad men serve
To dress their wedding dinner? All of you Get presently to horse, disguise yourselves Like country-gentlemen, Or riding citizens, or so: and take 128 Each man a several path, but let us meet At Bethlehem Monastery; some space of time Being spent between the arrival each of other, As if we came to see the lunatics.
To horse, away! Be secret on your lives. 128 Love must be punish’d that unjustly thrives.

[Exeunt [all but FLUELLO].

FLU. Be secret on your lives! Castruchio, You’re but a scurvy Spaniel. Honest lord, Good lady! Zounds, their love is just, ’tis good, And I’ll prevent you, though I swim in blood. 154

Exit.

[SCENE II.] 1

Enter Friar ANSELMO, HIPPOLITO, MATEO, and INFELICE.

HIP. Nay, nay, resolve, 2 good father, or deny.

ANS. You press me to an act both full of danger And full of happiness; for I behold Your father’s frowns, his threats, nay, perhaps death To him that dare do this: yet, noble lord, Such comfortable beams break through these clouds By this blest marriage, that your honour’d word Being pawn’d in my defence, I will tie fast The holy wedding-knot.

HIP. Tush, fear not the duke.

ANS. O son! wisely to fear, is to be free from fear.

HIP. You have our words, and you shall have our lives.

To guard you safe from all ensuing danger.

MAT. Ay, ay, chop ’em up, and away.

ANS. Stay, when is’t fit for me, and safest for you, To entertain this business?

HIP. Not till the evening.

ANS. Be’t so, there is a chapel stands hard by, Upon the west end of the abbey wall; Thither convey yourselves, and when the sun Hath turn’d his back upon this upper world, I’ll marry you; that done, no thund’ring voice Can break the sacred bond: yet, lady, here 218 You are most safe.

INF. Father, your love’s most dear.

MAT. Ay, well said; lock us into some little room by ourselves, that we may be mad for an hour or two. 218

HIP. O, good Matheo, no, let’s make no noise.

1 An apartment in Bethlem Monastery.
2 Consent.

MAT. How! no noise! Do you know where you are? ’sfoot, amongst all the madcaps in Milan; so that to throw the house out at window will be the better, and no man will 144 suspect that we lurk here to steal mutton. The more sober we are, the more scurvy 4 ’tis. And though the friar tell us that here we are safest, I am not of his mind; for if those lay here that had lost their money, none would ever look 26 after them; but here are none but those that have lost their wits, so that if hue and cry be made, hither they’ll come; and my reason is, because none goes to be married till he be stark mad.

HIP. Muffle yourselves, yonder’s Fluello.

[Enter FLUELLO.

FLU. O my lord, these cloaks are not for this rain! The tempest is too great. I come sweet-sounding to tell you of it, that you may get out of it.

MAT. Why, what’s the matter?

FLU. What’s the matter? You have matter’d it fair; the duke’s at hand.

ALL. The duke?

FLU. The very duke.

HIP. Then all our plots Are turn’d upon our heads and we’re blown up With our own undermarchings. ’Sfoot, how comes he? 26

What villain durst betray our being here?

FLU. Castruchio told the duke, and Matheo here told Castruchio.

HIP. Would you betray me to Castruchio?

MAT. ’Sfoot, he damn’d himself to the pit [26 of hell, if he spake on’t again.

HIP. So did you swear to me: so were you damn’d.

MAT. Fox on ’em, and there be no faith in men, if a man shall not believe oaths. He took bread and salt, by this light, that he would 32 never open his lips.

HIP. O God, O God!

ANS. Son, be not desperate, Have patience, you shall trip your enemy Down by his own slights. 4 How far is the duke hence?

FLU. He’s but now set out; Castruchio, [PIO Ratto, and Sinezi come along with him. You have time enough yet to prevent 4 them, if you have but courage.

ANS. Ye shall steal secretly into the chapel, And presently be married. If the duke 36 Abide here still, spite of ten thousand eyes, You shall escape hence like friars.

HIP. O blest disguise! O happy man!

ANS. Talk not of Happiness till your cloe’d hand Have her by th’ forehead, like the lock of Time.

Be not too slow, nor hasty, now you climb Up to the tower of bliss; only be wary And patient, that’s all. If you like my plot, Build and despatch; if not, farewell, then not.

1 I. e. to steal a wench. 2 Artifices.
3 Suspicious. 4 Anticipate.
Hipp. O yea, we do applaud it! we'll dispute.
No longer, but will hence and execute.
Fluellen, you'll stay here; let us be gone.
The ground that frightened lovers tread upon
Is stuck with thorns.

Ansc. Come, then, away; 'tis meet,
To escape those thorns, to put on winged feet. [Exeunt [Anselmo, Hippolito, and In Felice.]

Mat. No words, I pray, Fluellen, for 't stands upon.

Flu. Oh, sir, let that be your lesson!

[Exit Mathew.]

Alas, poor lovers! On what hopes and fears Men toss themselves for women! When she's got,
The best has in her that which pleaseth not.
Enter to Fluellen the Duke, Castruchio, Pio-Batto, and Sinezzi from several doors, muffled.

Duke. Who's there?

Cas. My lord.

Duke. Peace; send that "lord" away.
A lordship will spoil all; let's be all fellows.

What's he?

Cas. Fluellen, or else, Sinezzi, by his little leg.

All. All friends, all friends.

Duke. What? Met upon the very point of time?

Is this the place?

Pio. This is the place, my lord.

You have not seen these lovers yet?

All. Not yet.

Duke. Castruchio, art thou sure this wedding feast
Is not till afternoon?

Cas. 'Tis given out, my lord.

Duke. Nay, nay, 'tis like; thieves must observe their hours;
Lovers watch minutes like astronomers;

How shall the interim hours by us be spent?

Flu. Let's all go to see the madmen.

Enter a Sweeper.¹

Duke. Oh, here comes one; question him, question him.

Flu. Now, honest fellow? dost thou belong to the house?

Sweep. Yes, forsooth, I am one of the implements; I sweep the madmen's rooms, and fetch straw for 'em, and buy chains to tie 'em, and rods to whip 'em. I was a mad wag myself here once, but I thank Father Anselmo, he leased me into my right mind again.

Duke. Anselmo is the friar must marry them;
Question him where he is.

Cas. And where is Father Anselmo now?

Sweep. Marry, he's gone but 'en now.

Duke. Ah, well done. — Tell me, whither is he gone?

Sweep. Why to God a'mighty.

Flu. Ha, ha! this fellow's a fool, talks idly.

Pio. Sirrah, are all the mad folks in Milan brought hither?

Sweep. How, all? There's a question indeed! Why if all the mad folks in Milan is should come hither, there would not be left ten men in the city.

Duke. Be gentlemen or courtiers here, ha?

Sweep. O yea, abundance, abundance! Lands no sooner fall into their hands, but straight they run out a' their wits. Citizens' sons and heirs are free of the house by their fathers' copy. Farmers' sons come hither like geese, in flocks, and when they ha' sold all their cornfields, here they set and pick the straws.

Sir. Methinks you should have women here as well as men.

Sweep. Oh, ay, a plague on 'em, there's no bole with 'em; they're madder than March hares.

Flu. Are there no lawyers amongst you?

Sweep. Oh no, not one; never any lawyer. We dare not let a lawyer come in, for he'll make 'em mad faster than we can recover 'em.

Duke. And how long 's 'er you recover any of these?

Sweep. Why, according to the quantity of the moon that's got into 'em. An alderman's son will be mad a great while, a very great while, especially if his friends left him well. A whore will hardly come to her wits again. A puritan, there's no hope of him, unless he may pull down the steeple, and hang himself in the bell-ropes.

Flu. I perceive all sorts of fish come to your net.

Sweep. Yes, in truth, we have blocks for all heads; we have good store of wild-owls here; for the courtier is mad at the citizen, the citizen is mad at the countryman; the shoemaker is mad at the cobbler, the cobbler at the carman; the punck is mad that the merchant's wife is no whore, the merchant's wife is mad that the punck is so common a whore. Gods so, here's Father Anselmo; pray say nothing that I tall tales out of the school.

Exit.

Re-enter Anselmo (and Servants).

All. God bless you, father.

Ans. I thank you, gentlemen.

Cas. Pray, we may see some of those wretched souls.

That here are in your keeping?

Ans. Yes, you shall.

But gentlemen, I must disarm you then.

There are of mad men, as there are of tame, All humour'd not alike: we have here some, So aspish and fantastic, play with a feather, And, though 't would grieve a soul to see God's image So blemish and despoil'd, yet do they act

Such antics and such pretty lunacies,
That spite of sorrow they will make you smile.
Others again we have like hungry lions,
Fiercely as wild-bulls, untameable as tigers,
And these have oftentimes from strangers’
sides
Snatcht rapiers suddenly, and done much harm,
Whom if you’ll see, you must be weaponless.
All. With all our hearts.

(Giving their weapons to Anselmo.)

Here, take these weapons in. — [Exit Servant with weapons.

Stand off a little, pray; so, so, ’tis well.
I’ll show you here a man that was sometimes
A very grave and wealthy citizen;
Has serv’d a prenticeship to this misfortune,
Been here seven years, and dwelt in Bergano.

Duke. How fell he from his wit?

Ans. By loss of sea; I’ll stand aside, question him you alone,
For if he spy me, he’ll not speak a word,
Unless he’s thoroughly vex’d.

Discover an old man, wrapt in a net.

Flu. Alas, poor soul!

Cas. A very old man.

Duke. God speed, father!

1 Mad. God speed the plough, thou shalt not speed me.

Pio. We see you, old man, for all you dance in a net.

Ans. Oh do not vex him, pray.

Cas. Are you a fisherman, father?

1 Mad. No, I am neither fish nor flesh.

Flu. What do you with that net then?

1 Mad. Dost not see, fool? There’s a fresh salmon in’t; if you step one foot farther, you’ll be over shoes, for you see I’m over head and ears in the salt-water: and if you fall into this whirl-pool where I am, you’re drown’d: you’re a drown’d rat. I am fishing here for five ships, but I cannot have a good draught, for my net breaks and is broken; but I’ll break some of your necks and I catch you in my clutches.

Stay, stay, stay, stay, where’s the wind? where’s the wind? where’s the wind? where’s the wind? Out, you gulls, you goose-caps, you gudgeon-eaters! Do you look for the wind in the heavens? Ha, ha, ha! no, no, Look there, there, there, the wind is always at that door: hark how it blows, puff, puff, puff!

All. Ha, ha, ha!

1 Mad. Do you laugh at God’s creatures? Do you mock old age, you rogues? Is this gray beard and head counterfeit that you cry, ha, ha, ha! Sirrah, art not thou my eldest son?

Pio. Yes, indeed, father.

1 Mad. Then th’art a fool, for my eldest son had a poft-foot, crooked legs, a verjuisc face, and a pear-colour’d beard. I made him a scholar, and he made himself a fool. — Sirrah, thou there: hold out thy hand.

1 Mad. Look, look, look, look! Has he not long nails, and short hair?

Flu. Yes, monstrous short hair, and abominable long nails.

1 Mad. Ten-penny nails, are they not?

Flu. Yes, ten-penny nails.

1 Mad. Such nails had my second boy. Kneel down, thou varlet, and ask thy father’s blessing. Such nails had my middlemost son, and I made him a promenter: and he spread, and scraped, and scraped, and scraped, till he got the devil and all: but he scraped thus, and thus, and thus, and it went under his legs, till at length a company of kites, taking him for carrion, swept up all, all, all, all, all, all. If you love your lives, look to yourselves: see, see, see, see, the Turks’ galleys are fighting with my ships! Bounce goes the guns! Ooh! ooh the men! Rumble, rumble, go the waters! Alas, there is sunk, ’tis sunk, ’tis sunk! I am undone, I am undone! You are the damned pirates have undone me: you are, by the Lord, you are, you are! — Stop ’em — you are!

Ans. Why, how now sirrah? Must I fall to tame you?

1 Mad. Take me! No, I’ll be madder than a roasted cat. See, see, I am burnt with gunpowder, — these are our close fights!

Ans. I’ll whip you, if you grow unruly thus.

1 Mad. Whip me? Out you toad! Whip me? What justice is this, to whip me because I am a beggar? Alas! I am a poor man: a very poor man! I am starv’d, and have not meat by this light, ever since the great flood; I am a poor man.

Ans. Well, well, be quiet, and you shall have meat.

1 Mad. Ay, ay, pray do; for, look you, here by my guts: these are my ribs — you may look through my ribs — see how my guts come out! These are my red guts, my very guts, oh, oh!

Ans. Take him in there.

[Servants remove 1 Madman.

All. A very pitious sight.

Cas. Father, I see you have a busy charge.
Ans. They must be us’d like children, please’d with toys.

And anon whipt for their unruliness.
I’ll show you now a pair quite different.
From him that’s gone. He was all words; and these Unless you urge ’em, seldom spend their speech, But save their tongues.

[Opens another door, from which enter 2 and 3 Madmen.

La, you; this hithercmost
Fall from the happy quietness of mind
About a maiden that he lov’d, and died.
He followed her to church, being full of tears,
And as her body went into the ground,
He fell stark mad. This is a married man,
Was jealous of a fair, but, as some say,
A very virtuous wife; and that spoil’d him.
THOMAS DEKKER
v. II.

3 Mad. All these are wheromongers, and lay with my wife: where, where, where, where, where!

Flu. Observe him.

3 Mad. Gaffer shoemaker, you pull'd on my wife's pumps, and then crept into her pantofles; lie there, lie there! — This was her tailor. You cut her loose-bodied gown, and put in a yard more than I allowed her; lie there by the shoemaker. O master doctor, are you here? You gave me a purgation, and then crept into my wife's chamber to feel her pulses, and you said, and she said, and her maid said, that they went pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat. Doctor, I'll put you anon into my wife's urnal. Heigh, come aloft, Jack! This was her school-master, and taught her to play upon the virginals, and still his jacks leapt up, up. You prick't her out nothing but bawdy lessons, but I'll prick you all, fiddler — doctor — tailor — shoemaker — shoemaker — fiddler — doctor — tailor! So! I lie with my wife again, now.

Cas. See how he notes the other, now he feeds.

3 Mad. Give me some porridge.

2 Mad. I'll give thee none.

3 Mad. Give me some porridge.

2 Mad. I'll not give thee a bit.

3 Mad. Give me that flap-dragon.

2 Mad. I'll not give thee a spoonful. Thou hast, it's no dragon, 'tis a parrot that I bought for my sweetheart, and I'll keep it.

3 Mad. Here's an almand for porridge.

2 Mad. Hang thyself!

3 Mad. Here's a rope for porrot.

2 Mad. Eat it, for I'll eat this.

3 Mad. I'll shoot at thee, an thou 't give me none.

2 Mad. Wilt thou?

3 Mad. I'll run a tilt at thee, an thou 't give me none.

2 Mad. Wilt thou? Do an thou dar'st.

3 Mad. Bounce! [Strikes him.]

2 Mad. O wretches! I am slain! Murder, murder! I am slain; my brains are beaten out.

Ans. How now, you villains! Bring me whips: I'll whip you.

2 Mad. I am dead! I am slain! ring out the bell, for I am dead.

3 Mad. I'll answer 't at sessions: he was eating of almond-butter, and I long'd for 't. The child had never been delivered out of my belly, if I had not kill'd him. I'll answer 't at sessions, so my wife may be burnt i' th' hand, too.

Ans. Take 'em in both: bury him, for he's dead.

1 The Qu. read 2 Mad. for 3 Mad. and 3 Mad. for 3 Mad.
2 Slippers.
3 Pieces of wood fixed to the key-levers of virginals, spinets, and harpsichords, which rose when the keys were pressed down.
4 Wrote in musical notes.
5 A raisin floating on burning brandy.
6 A proverbial phrase.

2 Mad. Indeed, I am dead; put me, I pray, into a good pit-hole.

3 Mad. I'll answer 't at sessions.

[Servants remove 2 and 3 Madmen.]

Enter Bellafront mad.

Ans. How now, huswife, whither gad you?

Flu. 'Tis Bellafront!

Pio. 'Tis the punk, by th' Lord!

Duke. Father, what's she, I pray?

Ans. As yet I know not. She came in but this day; talks little idly, and therefore has the freedom of the house.

Bell. Do not you know me? — nor you? — nor you? — nor you? — nor you?

All. No, indeed.

Bell. Then you are an ass, — and you an ass, — and you an ass, — for I know you.

Ans. Why, what are they? Come, tell me, what are they?

Bell. They're fish-wives, will you buy any gudgeons?

God's sa'nt! yonder come friars, I know them too.

Enter Hippolito, Matheo, and Infelice disguised in the habits of Friars.

How do you, friar?

Ans. Nay, nay, away, you must not trouble friars.

[Aside to Hippolito, etc.] The duke is here, speak nothing.

Bell. Nay, indeed, you shall not go; we'll run at barley-break first, and you shall be in hell.

Mat. My punk turn'd mad whore, as all her fellows are!

Hip. Say nothing; but steal hence, when you spy time.

Ans. I'll lock you up, if you're unruly: fie!

Bell. Fie! Marry, so, they shall not go indeed, till I ha' told 'em their fortunes.

Duke. Good father, give her leave.

Bell. Ay, pray, good father, and I'll give you my blessing.

Ans. Well then, be brief, but if you're thus unruly,

I'll have you lockt up fast.

Pio. Come, to their fortunes.

Bell. Let me see, one, two, three, and four.

I'll begin with the little friar first. Here's a fine hand, indeed! I never saw friar have such a dainty hand: here's a hand for a lady! Here's your fortune: —

You love a friar better than a nun;
Yet long you 'll love no friar, nor no friar's son.
Bow a little, the line of life is out, yet I'm afraid,

1 A corruption of God's sanctity or God's saints. (Steevens.)
2 In the game of barley-break the ground was divided into three compartments, the middle one of which was called "hell."
All. Beseech your lordship!

Duke. You beseech fair, you have me in place fit

To bridle me. — Rise friar, you may be glad

You can make madmen tame, and tame men mad.

Since Fate hath conquer’d, I must rest content;

To strive now, would but add new punishment.

I yield unto your happiness; be blest.

Our families shall henceforth breathe in rest.

All. Oh, happy change!

Duke. Your’s now is my content,

I throw upon your joys my full consent.

Bell. Am not I a good girl, for finding [as "the friar in the well?" — Gods so, you are a brave man! Will not you buy me some sugarplums, because I am so good a fortune-teller?

Duke. Would thou hadst wit, thou pretty soul, to ask,

As I have will to give.

Bell. Pretty soul? A pretty soul is better than a pretty body. Do not you know my pretty soul? I know you. Is not your name Matheo?

Mat. Yes, lamb.

Bell. Baa lamb! there you lie, for I am mutton.

— Look, fine man! he was mad for me once, and I was mad for him once, and he was mad for her once, and were you never mad?

Yes, I warrant; I had a fine jewel once, a very fine jewel, and that raft boy stole it away from me, — a very fine and a rich jewel.

Duke. What jewel, pretty maid?

Bell. Maid? Nay, that’s a lie. O, ’twas a very rich jewel, called a maidenhead, and had not you it, learer?

Mat. Out, you mad ass! away.

Duke. Had he thy maidenhead?

He shall make thee amends, and marry thee.

Bell. Shall he? O brave Arthur of Bradley

then!

Duke. And if he bear the mind of a gentleman,

I know he will.

Mat. I think I rifled her of some paltry jewel.

Duke. Did you? Then marry her; you see the wrong

Has led her spirits into a lunacy.

Mat. How? Marry her, my lord? ’Sfoot, marry a madwoman? Let a man get the tamest wife he can come by, she’ll be mad enough afterward, do what he can.

Duke. Nay then, Father Anselmo here shall do his best,

To bring her to her wits; and will you then?

Mat. I cannot tell, I may choose.

Duke. Nay, then, law shall compel. I tell you, sir,

So much her hard fate moves me, you should not breathe

Under this air, unless you married her.

Mat. Well, then, when her wits stand in their right place,

I’ll marry her.

Bell. I thank your grace. — Matheo, thou art

mine.

[An smuggling.] I have a hand, dear lord,

deep in this act,

For I foresaw this storm, yet willingly

Put forth to meet it. Oft have I seen a father

Washing the wounds of his dear son in tears.

A son to curse the sword that struck his father,

Both slain i’ th’ quarrel of their families.

Those scars are now ta’en off; and I beseech you

To seal our pardon! All was to this end,

To turn the ancient hates of your two houses

To fresh green friendship, that your loves might

look

Like the spring’s forehead, comfortably sweet;

And your next souls in peaceful union meet.

Their blood will now be yours, yours will be theirs,

And happiness shall crown your silver hairs.

Pis. You see, my lord, there’s now no remedy.

1 A rubble. “Table” also meant the palm of the hand. (Dyso.)

I am not mad, but put on this disguise,
Only for you, my lord; for you can tell
Much wonder of me; but you are gone: farewell.
Matheo, thou didst first turn my soul black,
Now make it white again. I do protest,
I'm pure as fire now, chaste as Cynthia's breast.
Hipp. I durst be sworn, Matheo, she's indeed.
Mat. Cony-catch, gull'd! Must I sail in your fly-boat.
Because I help'd to rear your main-mast first?
Plague foaire you for't, 'tis well.
The 'one to 'all goes current in all nations,
Some men ha' horns giv'n them at their creations;
If I be one of those, why so: 'tis better
To take a common wench, and make her good,
Then one that sippers, and at first will scarce
Be tempted forth over the threshold door,
Yet in one ses'night, zounds, turns arrant whore!
Come, in truth, thou shalt be mine, give me thy goll's.
We'll talk of legs hereafter.—See, my lord,
God give us joy!
All. God give you joy!

Enter Candido's wife [VIOLA] and GEORGE.

Geo. Come mistress, we are in Bedlam now;
Mass and see, we come in pudding-time, for here's the duke.
Vio. My husband, good my lord!
Duke. Have I thy husband?
Cast. It's Candido, my lord, be he here among the lunatics. Father Anselmo, pray fetch him forth. [Exit ANSELMO.] This mad woman is his wife, and though she were not with child, yet did she long most spitefully to have her [his] husband mad; and because she would be sure he should turn Jew, she placed him here in Bethlem. Yonder he comes.

Enter Candido with ANSELMO.

Duke. Come hither, signor; are you mad?
Cand. You are not mad.
Duke. Why, I know that.
Cand. Then may you know I am not mad, that know
You are not mad, and that you are the duke.
None is mad here but one.—How do you, wife?
What do you long for now?—Pardon, my lord:
She had lost her child's nose else. I did cut out
Pennyworths of lawn, the lawn was yet mine own:
A carpet was my gown, yet 't was mine own:
I wore my man's coat, yet the cloth mine own:

Confound.
Hand.

Had a crackt crown, the crown was yet mine own.
She says for this I 'm mad: were her words true,
I should be mad indeed. O foolish skill!
Is patience madness? I'll be a madman still.
Vio. Forgive me, and I'll vex your spirit no more.

Kneels.
Duke. Come, come, we'll have you friends;
Join hearts, join hands.
Cand. See, my lord, we are even,
Nay, rise, for ill deeds kneel unto none but Heaven.
Duke. Signor, methinks patience has laid on you
Such heavy weight, that you should lose it.
Cand. Loathe it!
Duke. For he whose breast is tender, blood so cool,
That no wrongs heat it, is a patient fool.
What comfort do you find in being so calm?
Cand. That which green wounds receive from some warm balm.
Patience, my lord! why, 'tis the soul of peace;
Of all the virtues, 'tis nearest kin to Heaven;
It makes men look like gods. The best of men
That ever wore earth about him, was a sufferer,
A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit,
The first true gentleman that ever breathed.
The stock of patience, then, cannot be poor;
All it desires, it has; what monarch more?
It is the greatest enemy to law
That can be; for it doth embrace all wrongs,
And so chains up lawyers' and women's tongues.
'Tis the perpetual prisoner's liberty,
His walks and orchards: 'tis the bond slave's freedom,
And makes him seem proud of each iron chain,
As though he wore it more for state than pain:
It is the beggars' music, and thus sings
Although their bodies beg, their souls are kings.
O my dread liege! It is the sap of bliss
Rears us aloft, makes men and angels kiss.
And last of all, to end a household strife,
It is the honey 'gainst a waspish wife.

Duke. Thou giv'st it lively colours: who dare say
He's mad, whose words march in so good array?
'T were sin all women should such husbands have,
For every man must then be his wife's slave.
Come, therefore, you shall teach our court to shine,
So calm a spirit is worth a golden mine.
Wives with meek husbands that yet them wrong.

In Bedlam must they dwell, else dwell they long.

Exeunt.

Lod. Good day, gallants.
All. Good morrow, sweet Lodovico.
Lod. How dost thou, Carolo?
Car. Faith, as the physicians do in a plague, see the world sick, and am well myself.
Fon. Here’s a sweet morning, gentlemen.
Lod. Oh, a morning to tempt Jove from his mingle, Ganymede; which is but to give dairy-wench green gowns as they are going a-milking. What, is thy lord stirring yet?
Ast. Yes, he will not be horst this hour, sure.
Ber. My lady swears he shall, for she longs to be at court.
Car. Oh, we shall ride with switch and spur; would we were there once.

Enter BRYAN, the Footman.

Lod. How now, is thy lord ready?
Bry. No, so o’er sea’s me; my lady will have some little ting in her pelly first.
Car. Oh, then they’ll to breakfast.
Lod. Footman, does my lord ride i’ th’ coach with my lady, or on horseback?
Bry. No, foot, ha; my lady will have me lord sheet wid her, my lord will sheet in de one side, and my lady sheet in de toder side. Exit.

scene. — milan.

lod. my lady sheet in de toder side! did [s you ever hear a rascal talk so like a pagan?
is ’t not strange that a fellow of his star, should be seen here so long in italy, yet speak so from a christian?

enter antonio georgo, a poor scholar [with a book].

ast. an irishman in italy! that so strange! why, the nation have running heads. exchange walk.

lod. nay, carolo, this is more strange, i ha’ been in france, there’s few of them. marry, england they count a warm chimney corner, and there they swarm like crickets to the crevice of a brew-house; but sir, in england i [s have noted one thing.

all. what’s that, what’s that of england?
lod. marry this, sir.—what’s he yonder? ber. a poor fellow would speak with my lord.
lod. in england, sir,—troth, i ever laugh when i think on’t: to see a whole nation should be markt i’ th’ forehead, as a man may say, with one iron: why, sir, there all coesteremons are irishmen.

ast. oh, that’s to show their antiquity, as coming from eve, who was an apple-wife, and they take after the mother.

all. good, good! ha, ha!

lod. why, then, should all your chimney-[s sweeperes likewise be irishmen? answer that now; come, your wit.

ast. faith, that’s soon answered; for st. patrick, you know, keeps purgatory; he makes

1 A hall in Hippolito’s house.
2 Darling.
3 Christ save.
4 Unlike.
5 Fromenada, as on the exchange.
The fire, and his countrymen could do nothing, [as if they cannot sweep the chimneys.

All. Good again.

Lod. Then, sir, have you many of them, like this fellow, especially those of his hair, footmen to noblemen and others, and the knives are [so very faithful where they love. By my faith, very proper men, many of them, and as active as the clouds,—whirr, hah!

All. Are they so?

Lod. And stout! exceeding stout; why, I [is warrant, this precious wild villain, if he were put to't, would fight more desperately than sixteen Dunkirkers.1

Ast. The women, they say, are very fair.

Lod. No, no, our country bona-robas,2 are oh! the sugarest, delicious rogues!

Ast. Oh, look, he has a feeling of them!

Lod. Not I, I protest. There's a saying when they commend nations. It goes, the Irishman for his hand, the Welshmen for a leg, [is the Englishman for a face, the Dutchman for a beard.

Fon. I' faith, they may make swabbers3 of them.

Lod. The Spaniard,—let me see,—for a little foot, I take it; the Frenchman,—what [is a pox hath he? And so of the rest. Are they at breakfast yet? Come walk.

Ast. This Lodovico is a notable tongueed fellow.

Fon. Discourses well.

Ber. And a very honest gentleman.

Ast. Oh! he's well valued by my lord.

Enter Bellafront, with a petition.

Fon. How now, how now, what's she?ofi

Ber. Let's make towards her.

Bell. Will it be long, sir, are my lord come forth?31

Ast. Would you speak with my lord?

Lod. How now, what's this, a nurse's bill? Hath any here got thee with child and now will not keep it?4

Bell. No, sir, my business is unto my lord.

Lod. He's about his own wife's now, he'll hardly dispatch two causes in a morning.

Ast. No matter what he says, fair lady; he's a knight, there's no bold to be taken at his words.

Fon. My lord will pass this way presently.

Ber. A pretty, plump rogue.

Ast. A good lusty, bounding baggage.

Ber. Do you know her?

Lod. A pox on her, I was sure her name was in my table-book once. I know not what cut her die is now, but she has been more common than tobacco: this is she that had the name of the Honest Whore.

All. Is this she?

Lod. This is the blackamoor that by washing was turned white; this is the birding-piece new secured: this is she that, if any of her religion can be saved, was saved by my lord Hippolito.

Ast. She has been a goodly creature.

Lod. She has been! that's the epitaph of all whores. I'm well acquainted with the poor gentleman her husband. Lord! what fortunes that man has overreached! She knows not [as me, yet I have been in her company; I scarce know her, for the beauty of her cheek hath, like the moon, suff'd strange eclipses since I behold it: but women are like medlars,—no sooner ripe but rotten.

A woman last was made, but is spent first; Yet man is oft proved in performance worst.

All. My lord is come.

Enter Hippolito, Infeliciss, and two Waiting-women.

Hipp. We ha' wasted half this morning. Morrow, Lodovico.

Lod. Morrow, madam.

Hip. Let's away to horse.

All. Ay, ay, to horse, to horse.

Bell. I do beseech your lordship, let your eye read o'er this wretched paper.

Hip. I'm in haste; pray thee, good woman, take some after time.

Inf. Good woman, do.

Bell. Oh, 'las! it does concern a poor man's life.

Hip. Life!—Sweetheart, seat yourself, I'll but read this and come.

Lod. What stockings have you put on this morning, madam? If they be not yellow,4 change them; that paper is a letter from some wench to your husband.

Inf. Oh, sir, that cannot make me jealous.

Exeunt [all except Hippolito, Bellafront, and Antonio].

Hip. Your business, sir? To me?

Ant. Yes, my good lord.

Hip. Presently, sir,—Are you Matheo's wife?

Bell. That most unfortunate woman.

Hip. I'm sorry these storms are fallen on him; I love Matheo, And any good shall do him; he and I Have seal'd two bonds of friendship, which are strong In me, however fortune does him wrong. He speaks here he's condemn'd. Is't so?

Bell. Too true.

Hip. What was he whom he killed? Oh, his name's here;

Old Giacomo, son to the Florentine; Giacomo, a dog, that, to meet profit, Would to the very eyelids wade in blood Of his own children. Tell Matheo. The duke, my father, hardly shall deny His signed pardon. 'Twas fair fight, yes, If rumour's tongue go true; so writes he here.—

To-morrow morning I return from court, Pray be you here then.—I'll have done, sir, straight:—

[To Antonio.]

But in troth say, are you Matheo's wife? You have forgot me.

Bell. No, my lord.

Hip. Your turner,

1 Dunkirk pirates.
2 Courtesan.
3 Mop for cleaning decks, etc.
4 Yellow was typical of jealousy.
That made you smooth to run an even bias.
You know I lov'd you when your very soul
Was full of discord: art not a good wench still?
Bell. Umph, when I had lost my way to Heaven, you show'd it:
I was new born that day.

Re-enter LODOVICO.

lod. 'Stoot, my lord, your lady asks if [167]
you have not left your wench yet? When you get in once, you never have done. Come, come, come, pay your old score, and send her packing;
come.

Hip. Ride softly on before, I'll o'ertake
you.
Lod. Your lady swears she'll have no riding on before, without ye.
Hip. Frithothe, good Lodovico.
Lod. My lord, pray hasten.
Hip. I come.
[Exit LODOVICO.]

To-morrow let me see you, fare you well;
Commend me to Mathew. Pray one word more:
Does not your father live about the court?
Bell. I think he does, but such rude spots of shame
Stick on my cheek, that he scarce knows my
name.

Hip. Orlando Friscobaldo, is 't not?
Bell. Yes, my lord.
Hip. What does he for you?
Bell. All he should: when children
From duty start, parents from love may swerve.
He nothing does; for nothing I deserve.
Hip. Shall I join him unto you, and restore you to wonted grace?
Bell. It is impossible.
[Exit BELLAFRONT.]

Hip. It shall be put to trial: fare you well.
The face I would not look on! Sure then 't was rare.

When, in despite of grief, 't is still thus fair.
Now, sir, your business with me.

Ant.
I am bold
To express my love and duty to your lordship
In these few leaves.

Hip. A book!
Ant. Yes, my good lord.
Hip. Are you a scholar?
Ant. Yes, my lord, a poor one.
Hip. Sir, you honour me.
Kings may be scholars' patrons, but, faith, tell
me,

To how many hands besides hath this bird flown,

How many partners share with me?
Ant. Not one,
In truth, not one: your name I hold more dear.
I'm not, my lord, of that low character.

Hip. Your name I pray?
Ant. Antonio Georgio.

Hip. Of Milan?
Ant. Yes, my lord.

Hip. I'll borrow leave
To read you o'er, and then we'll talk: till then Drink up this gold; good wits should love good wine;
This of your loves, the earnest that of mine.

[Gives money.]

Re-enter BRYAN.

How now, sir, where's your lady? Not gone yet?
Bry. I fart li lady is run away from doe, a mighty deal of ground; she sent me back [203] for dine own sweet face. I pray dee come, my lord, away, wu't tow go now?
Hip. Is the coach gone? Saddel my horse,
the sorrel.
Bry. A poz a' de horse's nose, he is a lousy rascally fellow. When I came to gird his belly, his scurv'y guts rumbled; di horse farted in my face, and dow knowest, an Irishman cannot abide a fart. But I have saddled de hobby-horse, di fine hobby is ready. I pray dee, my good [207] sweet lord, wit' tow go now, and I will run to de devil before dee?

Hip. Well, sir. — I pray let's see you, master student.

Bry. Come, I pray dee, wu't come, sweet face? Go.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.1

Enter LODOVICO, CAROLO, ASTOLFO, and BER-ALDO.

lod. Gods, gentlemen, what do we forget?
All. What?
Lod. Are we not all enjoined as this day? — Thursday is 't not? Ay, as that day to be at the linen-draper's house at dinner?
Car. Signor Candido, the patient man.
Ast. Afore Jove, true, upon this day he's marrid.

Ber. I wonder, that being so stung with a wasp before, he dares venture again to [209] come about the eaves amongst bees.
Lod. Oh 'tis rare sucking a sweet honey comb!
Pray Heaven his old wife be buried deep enough, that she rise not up to call for her dance! The poor fiddlers' instruments would crack for [210] it; she'd tickle them. At any hand let's try what mettle is in his new bride; if there be one, we'll put in some. Troth, 'tis a very noble citizen, I pity he should marry again; I'll walk along, for it is a good old fellow.
Car. I warrant the wives of Milan would give any fellow twenty thousand ducats, that could but have the face to beg of the duke, that all the citizens in Milan might be bound to the peace of patience, as the linen-draper is.
Lod. Oh, fie upon 't! 't would undo all us that are curtiars; we should have no who with the wenches then.

Enter HIPPOLITO.

All. My lord's come.
Hip. How now, what news?
All. None.
Lod. Your lady is with the duke, her father.
Hip. And we'll to them both presently —
[Enter ORLANDO FRISCOBALDO.]

Who's that!
All. Signor Friscobaldo.

1 An apartment in the Duke's Palace.
Thomas Dekker

this hand, and empty this; and when the bell shall toll for me, if I prove a swan, and go singing to my nest, why so? If a crow I throw me out like a carrion, and pick out mine eyes. May not old Friscobaldo, my lord, be merry now! ha?

Hip. You may; would I were partner in your mirth.

Ori. I have a little, have all things. I have nothing; I have no wife, I have no child, have no chick; and why should not I be in my jocundare?

Hip. Is your wife then departed?

Ori. She's an old dweller in those high countries, yet not from me. Here, she's here: but, before me, when a knave and a quæn are married, they commonly walk like serjeants together; but a good couple are seldom parted.

Hip. You had a daughter too, sir, had you not?

Ori. O my lord! this old tree had one branch, but one branch growing out of it. It was young, it was fair, it was straight; I prun'd it daily, drest it carefully, kept it from the wind, help'd it to the sun, yet for all my skill in planting, it grew crooked, it bore crabs. I hewed it down; what's become of it, I neither know, nor care.

Hip. Then I can tell you what's become of it; That branch is wither'd.

Ori. So 'twas long ago.

Hip. Her name I think was Bellafont; she's dead.

Ori. Ha? dead?

Hip. Yes; what of her was left, not worth the keeping,

Even in my sight was thrown into a grave.

Ori. Dead! I my last and best peace go with her! I see Death's a good trencherman; he can eat coarse homely meat, as well as the daintiest.

Hip. Why, Friscobaldo, was she homely?

Ori. O my lord! a trumpet is one of the devil's vines; all the sins, like so many poles, are stuck upright out of hell, to be her props, that she may spread upon them. And when she's ripe, every slave has a pull at her, then must she be prest. The young beautiful grape sets the teeth of lust on edge, yet to taste that lickerish wine, is to drink a man's own damnation. Is she dead?

Hip. She's turned to earth.

Ori. Would she were turn'd to Heaven! Umph, is she dead? I am glad the world has lost one of his idols; no whoremonger will at midnight beat at the doors. In her grave asleep all my shame, and her own; and all my sorrows, and all her sins!

Hip. I'm glad you're wax, not marble; you are made

Of man's best temper; there are now good hopes

That all these heaps of ice about your heart,

By which a father's love was frozen up, Are thaw'd in these sweet showers, fetched from your eyes;
We are ne'er like angels till our passion dies.
She is not dead, but lives under worse fate; 124
I think she's poor; and, more to clip her wings,
Her husband at this hour lies in the jail,
For killing of a man. To save his blood, 126
Join all your force with mine: mine shall be shown:
The getting of his life preserves your own. 128

Ovl. In my daughter, you will say! Does she live then? I am sorry I wasted tears upon a harlot; but the best is I have a handkercher to drink them up; soap can wash them all out again. Is she poor?

Hip. Trust me, I think she is. 130

Ovl. Then she's a right strumpet; I ne'er knew any of their trade rich two years together. Sieves can hold no water, nor harlots hoard up money; they have many vents, too many almsites to let it out; taverns, tailors, bawds, 170 panders, fiddlers, swaggerers, fools, and knaves do all wait upon a common harlot's treacher. She is the gallipot to which these drones fly, not for love to the pot, but for the sweet suckets 1 within it, her money, her money. 170

Hip. I almost dare pawn my word, her bosom Gives warmth to no such snakes. When did you see her?

Ovl. Not seventeen summers. 172

Hip. Is your hate so old?

Ovl. Older; it has a white head, and shall never die till she be buried: her wrongs shall be my bedfellow.

Hip. Work yet his life, since in it lives her fame.

Ovl. No let him hang, and half her infamy departs out of the world. I hate him for her; 178 he taught her first to taste poison; I hate her for herself, because she refused my physic.

Hip. Nay, but Frisocaldo! —

Ovl. I detest her, I defy 8 both; she's not mine, she's — 180

Hip. Hear her but speak.

Ovl. I love no mermaids, I'll not be caught with a quail-pipe. 3

Hip. You're now beyond all reason. 184

Ovl. I am then a beast. Sir, I had rather be a beast, and not dishonour my creation, than be a dotting father, and like Time, be the destruction of mine own brood.

Hip. Is't dotage to relieve your child, being poor?

Ovl. Is't fit for an old man to keep a whore?

Hip. 'Tis charity, too.

Ovl. 'Tis foolery; relieve her!

Were her cold limbs stretched out upon a bier, I would not sell this dirt under my nails. To buy her an hour's breath, nor give this hair, Unless it were to choke her. 190

Hip. Fare you well, for I'll trouble you no more.

Ovl. And fare you well, sir. Go thy ways; we have few lords of thy making, that love wenches for their honesty. 'Las my girl! 192

Art thou poor? Poverty dwells next door to despair, there's but a wall between them. Despair is one of hell's catch-poles; and lest he devil arrest her, I'll to her. Yet she shall not know me; she shall drink of my wealth, 196 as beggars do of running water, freely, yet never know from what fountain's head it flows. Shall a silly bird pick her own breast to nourish her young ones, and can a father see his child starve? That were hard; the pelican does 198 it, and shall not I? Yes, I will victual the camp for her, but it shall be by some stratagem. That knave there, her husband, will be hanged. I fear; I'll keep his neck out of the noose if I can, he shall not know how.

Enter two Serving-men.

How now, knaves? Whither wander you?

1 Ser. To seek your worship.

Ovl. Stay, which of you has my purse? What money have you about you?

2 Ser. Some fifteen or sixteen pounds, sir.

Ovl. Give it me. [Takes purses.] — I think I have some gold about me; yes, it's well. Leave my lodging at court, and get you home. Come, sir, though I never turned any man out of doors, yet I'll be so bold as to pull your coat over your ears.

[ORLANDO puts on the coat of 1 Serving-man, and gives him in exchange his cloak.]

1 Ser. What do you mean to do, sir?

Ovl. Hold thy tongue, knave; take thou my cloak. I hope I play not the pauly merchant in this bart'ring; bid the steward of my 203 house sleep with open eyes in my absence, and to look to all things. Whatevver I command by letters to be done by you, see it done. So, does it sit well?

2 Ser. As if it were made for your worship.

Ovl. You proud varlets, you need not be ashamed to wear blue, 4 when your master is one of your fellows. Away, do not see me.

Both. This is excellent.

Exc. 210

Ovl. I should put on a worse suit, too; perhaps I will. Myizard is on; now to this masque. Say I should shave off this honour of an old man, or tie it up shorter. Well, I will spoil a good face for once.

My beard being off, how should I look? Even like

A winter cuckoo, or unfeather'd owl; Yet better lose this hair, than lose her soul.

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter Candido, Lodovico, Carlo, 2 Astolufo, other guests, and Bride with Prentices.

Cand. O gentlemen, so late! Y' are very welcome, pray sit down.

Lod. Carlo, didst s'er see such a nest of caps? 5

Ast. Methinks it's a most civil and most comely sight.

Lod. What does he th'middle look like?

4 The color of servants' livery.

6 Citizen.
Ast. Troth, like a spire steeple in a country village overpeering so many thatch houses.

Lod. It overthrew a long pine-staff against so many bucklers without pikes; they sit for all the world like a pair of organs, and he's the tall great roaring pipe 'th' midst.

Ast. Ha, ha, ha, ha!

Cand. What's that you laugh at, signors?

Lod. Troth, shall I tell you, and aloud I'll tell it;

We laugh to see, yet laugh we not in scorn.

Amongst so many caps that long hut worn.

[1 Guest.] Mine is as tall a felt as any is this day in Milan, and therefore I love it, for the block was clout out for my head, and fits me to a hair.

Cand. Indeed you're good observers; it shows strange:

But gentlemen, I pray neither contemn,

Nor yet deride a civil ornament;

I would not be so much in the round cap's praise,

That 'bove this high roof, I this flat would raise.

Lod. Frithee, sweet bridegroom, do't.

Cand. So all these guests will pardon me, I'll do't.

All. With all our hearts.

Cand. Thus, then, in the cap's honour:

To every sex, and state, both nature, time,

The country's laws, yes, and the very clime

Do allot distinct habits: the spruce courtier

Jets up and down in silk; the warrior

Marches in buff; the clown plods on in gray:

But for these upper garments thus I say,

The seaman has his cap, par'd without trim;

The gallant's head is feather'd, that fits him;

The soldier has his morion, women ha' tires;

Beasts have their head-pieces, and men ha' theirs.

Lod. Proceed.

Cand. Each degree has his fashion, it's fit then,

One should be laid by for the citizen,

And that's the cap which you see swells not high.

For caps are emblems of humility.

It is a citizen's badge, and first was worn

By th' Romans; for when any bondman's turn

Came to be made a freeman, thus 't was said,

He to the cap was call'd, that is, was made

Of Rome a freeman; but was first close shorn:

And so a citizen's hair is still short worn.

Lod. That close shaving made barbers a company,

And now every citizen uses it.

Cand. Of geometric figures the most rare,

And perfect's, are the circle and the square;

The city and the school much build upon

These figures, for both love proportion.

The city-cap is round, the scholar's square,

To show that government and learning are

The perfect'st limbs 'th' body of a state;

For without them, all's disproportionate.

If the cap had no honour, this might rear it,

The reverend fathers of the law do wear it.

It's light for summer, and in cold it sits

Close to the skull, a warm house for the wits;

It shows the whole face boldly, 't is not made

As if a man to look on 't were afraid,

Nor like a draper's shop with broad dark shad,

For he's no citizen that hides his head.

Flat caps as proper are to city towns,

As to armours helmets, or to kings their crowns.

Let them the city-cap by none be scorn'd.

Since with it princes' heads have been adorn'd.

If more the round cap's honour you would know,

How would this long gown with this steeple show?

All. Ha, ha, ha! most vile, most ugly.

Cand. Pray, signor, pardon me, 't was done in jest.

Bride. A cup of claret wine there.

1 Pren. Wine? yes, forsooth, wine for the bride.

Cand. You ha' well seat out the cap, sir.

Lod. Nay, that's flat.

Cand. A health!

Lod. Since his cap's round, that shall go round. Be bare,

For in the cap's praise all of you have share.

They bore their heads and drink.

As 1 Prentice offers the wine to the Bride, she bites him on the lips, [breaking the glass].

The bride's at cuffs.

Cand. Oh, peace, I pray thee; thus far off I stand,

I spied the error of my servants;

She call'd for claret, and you fill'd out sack.

That cup give me, 't is for an old man's back,

And not for hers. Indeed, 't was but mistaken;

Ask all these else.

Guests. No faith, 't was but mistaken.

1 Pren. Nay, she took it right enough.

Cand. Good Luke, reach her that glass of claret.

Here mistress bride, pledge me there.

Cand. How now?

Lod. Look what your mistress ails.

1 Pren. Nothing, sir, but about filling a wrong glass,—a scriver's trick.

Cand. I pray you, hold your tongue.—My servant there tells me she is not well.

Guests. Step to her, step to her.

Lod. A word with you: do ye hear? This wench, your new wife, will take you down in [set] your wedding shoes, unless you hang her up in her wedding garters?

Cand. How, hang her in her garters?

Lod. Will you be a tame pigeon still? Shall your back be like a tortoise shell, to let carts go over it, yet not to break? This she-cat will have more lives than your last puss had, and will scratch worse, and mouse you worse: look to 't.

Cand. What would you have me do, sir?

Lod. What would I have you do? Swear, swagger, brawl, fling! for fighting it's no mat-

THE HONEST WHORE: PART II

Bell. Matheo, prithee, make thy prison thy glass.
And in it view the wrinkles and the scars
By which thou wert disfigur’d: viewing them, mend them.

Mat. I’ll go visit all the mad rogues now, and the good roasting boys.

Bell. Thou dost not hear me?

Mat. Yes, faith, do I.

Bell. Thou has been in the hands of misery, and ta’en strong physic; prithee now be sound.

Mat. Yes, ’Sfoot, I wonder how the inside of a tavern looks now. Oh, when shall I bizzle, bizzle.

Bell. Nay, see, thou’rt thirsty still for poison! Come,
I will not have thee swagger.

Mat. Honest ape’s face!

Bell. ’Tis that sharpened an axe to cut thy throat.

Good love, I would not have thee sell thy substance
And time, worth all, in those damn’d shops of hell;
Those diceing houses, that stand never well
But when they stand most ill; that four-squar’d sin;
Has almost lodg’d us in the beggar’s inn.
Besides, to speak which even my soul does
grieve,
A sort of ravens have hung upon thy sleeve,
And fed upon thee: good Mat, if you please,
Scorn to spread wing amongst so base a
these;
By them thy fame is speckled, yet it shows
Clear amongst them; so crows are fair with

Custom in sin, gives sin a lovely dye;
Blackness in Moore is no deformity.

Mat. Bellafront, Bellafront, I protest to thee,
I swear, as I hope for my soul, I will turn over a new leaf. The prison I confess has bit me;
the best man that sails in such a ship,
may be lousy. [Knocking within.]

Bell. O who knocks at door.

Mat. I’ll be the porter. They shall see a jail cannot hold a brave spirit, I’ll fly high.

Bell. How wild is his behaviour! Oh, I fear He’s spoilt by prison, he’s half damn’d comes dمفه
But I must sit all storms: when a full sail
His fortunes spread, he lov’d me; being now poor,
I’ll beg for him, and no wife can do more.

Re-enter Matheo, with Orlando like a Serving-man.

Mat. Come in, pray! would you speak with me, sir?

Orl. Is your name Signor Matheo?

Mat. My name is Signor Matheo.

Orl. Is this gentlewoman your wife, sir?

Mat. This gentlewoman is my wife, sir.

---

1 Hystiera.
2 A room in Matheo’s house.
3 Rosemary was an emblem of remembrance.
4 Ital. A term of abuse or contempt.
5 A vague exclamation. Hang it all! (?)
Orl. The Destinies spin a strong and even thread of both your loves! — [Aside.] The mother's own face, I ha' not forgot that. — I'm an old man, sir, and am troubled with a few wrinkles on my head, that I cannot hold my water. — Gentlewoman, the last man I served was your father.

Orl. I can speak no more.

Mat. How, old lad, what, dost cry?

Orl. The rheum still, sir, nothing else; I should be well season'd, for mine eyes lie in brine. Look you, sir, I have a suit to you.

Mat. What is 't, my little white-pate?

Orl. Troth, sir, I have a mind to serve your worship.

Mat. To serve me? Troth, my friend, my fortunes are, as a man may say —

Orl. Nay, look you, sir, I know, when all sins are old in us, and go upon creches, that covetousness does but then lie in her cradle; 'tis not so with me. Leechery loves to dwell in the fairest lodging, and covetousness in the oldest buildings, that are ready to fall: but my white head, sir, is no inn for such a gossip. If a serving-man at my years be not stored with biscuit enough, that has sailed about the world, to serve him the voyage out of his life, and to bring him East home, ill pity but all his days should be fasting days. I care not so much for wages, for I have scraped a handful of gold together. I have a little money, sir, which I would put into your worship's hands, not so much to make it more.

Mat. No, no, you say well, thou sayest well; but I must tell you, — How much is the money, sayest thou?

Orl. About twenty pound, sir.

Mat. Twenty pound? Let me see: that shall bring thee in, after ten per centum per annum.

Orl. No, no, no, sir, no: I cannot abide to have money engender: fie upon this silver leechery, fie! If I may have meat to my mouth, and rags to my back, and a flock-bed to snort upon when I die, the longer liver take all.

Mat. A good old boy, 'tis faith! If thou servest me, thou shalt eat as I eat, drink as I drink, lie as I lie, and ride as I ride.

Orl. [Aside.] That's if you have money to hire horses.

Mat. Front, what dost thou think on't? This good old lad here shall serve me.

Bell. Alas, Mathew, wilt thou load a back That is already broke?

Mat. Peace, pox on you, peace. There's a trick in 't, I fly high; it shall be so, Front, as I tell you. Give me thy hand, thou shalt serve me 't faith: welcome. As for your money —

Orl. Nay, look you, sir, I have it here.

Mat. Fish, keep it thyself, man, and then thou 'rt sure 'tis safe.

Orl. Safe! I am 't were ten thousand ducats, your worship should be my cash-keeper. I have heard what your worship is, an excellent dunghill cock, to scatter all abroad; but I will venture twenty pounds on 's head.

[Gives money to Matheo.]

Mat. And didst thou serve my worshipful father-in-law, Signor Orlando Friscobaldo, that madman, once?

Orl. I served him so long, till he turned me out of doors.

Mat. It's a notable chuff; I ha' not seen him many a day.

Orl. No matter anyon ne'er see him; it's an arrant grandee, a churl, and as damn'd a cut-throat.

Bell. Thou villain, curb thy tongue! Thou art a Judas, to sell thy master's name to slander thus.

Mat. Away, ass! He speaks but truth, thy father is a — Bell. Gentleman.

Mat. And an old knave. There's more deceit in him than in sixteen 'pothecaries: it's a devil; thou may'st beg, starve, hang, damn! does he send thee so much as a cheese?

Orl. Or so much as a gammon of bacon; he'll give it his dogs first.

Mat. A jail, a jail.

Orl. A Jew, a Jew, sir.

Mat. A dog!

Orl. An English maistiff, sir.

Mat. Fox rot out his old stinking garbage!

Bell. Art not ash'ram'd to strike an absent man thus?

Art not ash'ram'd to let this wild dog bark, and bite my father thus? I'll not endure it. Out of my doors, base slave!

Mat. Your doors? a vengeance! I shall live to cut out that old rogue's throat, for all you take his part thus.

Orl. [Aside.] He shall live to see thee hang'd first.

Enter Hippolito.

Mat. Gods so, my lord, your lordship is most welcome.

I'm proud of this, my lord.

Hip. Was bold to see you.

Is that your wife?

Mat. Yes, sir.

Hip. I'll borrow her lip. [Kisses Bellafont.]

Mat. With all my heart, my lord.

Orl. Who's this, I pray, sir.

Mat. My Lord Hippolito: what's thy name?

Orl. Pacheco.

Mat. Pacheco, fine name: thou seest, Pacheco. I keep company with no sowndrels, nor base fellows.

Hip. Came not my footman to you?

Bell. Yes, my lord.

1 Notorious churl. 2 Vil.
THE HONEST WHORE: PART II

Would thou wouldst leave my house; thou ne'er shalt please me!

Weave thy nets ne'er so high,
Thou'rt rank with poison; poison temer'd well
Is food for health; but thy black tongue doth swell
With venom, to hurt him that gave thee bread.

To wrong men abroad, is to spur the dead; 118
And so did'st thou thy master, and my father.

Orl. You have small reason to take his part;
For I have heard him say five hundred times, you were as a servant a whore as ever stiffened taffy neckcloths in water-starch upon a [118 Saturday i' th' afternoon.

Bell. Let him say worse. When for the earth's offence
Hot retribution through the marble clouds is driven,

Is 't fit earth should again those darts at heaven?

Orl. And so if your father call you whore [119 you 'll not call him old knave. [Aside.] Friscobaldo, she carries thy mind up and down;
She's thine own flesh, blood, and bone. — Troth, mistress, to tell you true, the fireworks that ran from me upon lines against my good [120 old master, your father, were but to try how my young master, your husband, loved such a quible: but it's well known, I love your father as myself; I'll ride for him at midnight, run for you by owl-light; I'll die for him, [121 drudge for you; I'll fly low, and I'll fly high, as my master says, to do you good, if you'll forgive me.

Bell. I am not made of marble; I forgive thee.

Orl. Nay, if you were made of marble, a good stone-cutter might cut you. I hope the twenty pound I delivered to my master is in a sure hand.

Bell. In a sure hand, I warrant thee, for spending.

Orl. I see my young master is a mad-cap, [122 and a bonnie scot. 4 I love him well, mistresse:
yet as well as I love him, I'll not play the knave with you. Look you, I could cheat you of this purse full of money; but I am an old lad, and I soon to cosy-catch: 4 yet I ha' been dog [123 at a cony in my time. [Gives purse.

Bell. A purse? Where hadst it?

Orl. The gentleman that went away whisper'd in mine ear, and charged me to give it you.

Bell. The Lord Hippolito?

Orl. Yes, if he be a lord, he gave it me.

Bell. Tis all gold.

Orl. 'Tis like so. It may be, he thinks you want money, and therefore bestows his alma [124 bravely, like a lord.

Bell. He thinks a silver net can catch the poor;
Here's bait to choke a man, and turn her whore.

Wilt thou be honest to me?

Foot 1 Foolish.

1 Lower, take off.
Orl. As your nails to your fingers, which I think never deceived you.
Bell. Thou to this lord shalt go, commend me to him,
And tell him this, the town has hold out long; Because within 't was rather true than strong;
To sell it now were base. Say 't is no hold
Built of weak stuff, to be blown up with gold.
He shall believe thee by this token, or this;
If not, by this. [Giving purse, ring, and letters.]
Orl. Is this all this?
Bell. This is all.
Orl. [Aside.] Mine own girl still!
Bell. A star may shoot, not fall. Exit.
Orl. A star? Nay, thou art more than the moon, for thou hast neither changing quarters, nor a man standing in thy circle with a bush of thorns. Is't possible the Lord Hippolito, whose face is as civil as the outside of a dedicate-book, should be a muttonmonger? A [as poor man has but one ewe, and this grandee sheep-biter leaves whole flocks of fat wethers, whom he may knock down, to devour this, I'll treat neither lord nor butcher with quick flash for this trick; the cuckoo, I see now, as sings all the year, though every man cannot hear him; but I'll spoil his notes. Can neither love-letters, nor the devil's common pick-looks, gold, nor precious stones make my girl draw up her percellis? [Hold out still, wench. All are not bawds, I see now, that keep doors, Nor all good wenchers are that markt for whores. [Exit.

Scene II.

Enter Candido, and Lodovico like a Prentice.

Lod. Come, come, come, what do ye lack, sir? What do ye lack, sir? What is 't ye lack, sir? Is not my worship well suited? Did you ever see a gentleman better disguised?
Cand. Never, believe me, signor.
Lod. Yes, but when he has been drunk.
There be prentices would make mad gallants, for they would spend all, and drink, and whore, and so forth; and I see we gallants could make mad prentices. How does thy wife like me? Nay, I must not be so saucy, then I spoil all. Pray how does my mistress like me?
Cand. Well; for she takes you for a very simple fellow.
Lod. And they that are taken for such are commonly the arrantest knaves: but to our comedy, come.
Cand. I shall not act it; chide, you say, and first,
And grow impatient: I shall never do't.
Lod. 'Sblood, cannot you do as all the world does, counterfeit?
Cand. Were I a painter, that should live by drawing
Nothing but pictures of an angry man,
I should not earn my colours; I cannot do't.
Lod. Remember you're a linen-draper, and [as that if you give your wife a yard, she'll take an ell: give her not therefore a quarter of your yard, not a nail.
Cand. Say I should turn to ice, and nip her love
Now 't is but in the bud.
Lod. Well, say she's nipt.
Cand. It will so overcharge her heart with grief,
That like a cannon, when her sighs go off, She in her duty either will recoil, Or break in pieces and so die: her death,
By my unkindness might be counted murder.
Lod. Die? never, never. I do not bid you beat her, nor give her black eyes, nor pinch her sides; but cross her humours. Are not baker's arms the scales of justice? Yet is not their bread light? And may not you, I pray, bridle her with a sharp bit, yet ride her gently?
Cand. Well, I will try your pills.
Do you your faithful service, and be ready —
Still at a pinch to help me in this part,
Or else I shall be out clean.
Lod. Come, come, I'll prompt you.
Cand. I'll call her forth now, shall I?
Lod. Do, do, bravely.
Cand. Sirrah, bid my wife come to me: why, when?
1 Pren. (within.) Presently, sir, she comes.
Lod. La, you, there's the echo! She comes.

Enter Bride.

Bride. What is your pleasure with me?
Cand. Marry, wife, I have intent; and you see this stripling here, as He bears good will and liking to my trade, And means to deal in linen.
Lod. Yes, indeed, sir, I would deal in linen, if my mistress like me so well as I like her.
Cand. I hope to find him honest, pray; good wife.
Lod. Look that his bed and chamber be made ready.
Bride. You're best to let him hire me for his maid.
I look to his bed? Look to 't yourself.
Cand. Even so?
Lod. I swear to you a great oath —
Cand. [Aside.] Swear, cry "Zounds!" —
Lod. I will not — go to, wife — I will not — Cand. [Aside.] That your great oath?
Lod. Swallow these jugs hence!
Lod. [Aside.] Well said!
Bride. Then fast, then you may choose.
Cand. You know at table
What tricks you play'd, swagger'd, broke glasses, fie!
Fie, fie, fie! and now before my prentice here, You make an ass of me, thou — what shall I call thee?
Bride. Even what you will.

1 Whoremonger.  2 Portellia.  3 Before Candido's shop.  4 An expression of impatience.  5 Be so imposed upon.
THE HONEST WHORE: PART II

III. i.

Lod. [Aside.] Call her arrant whore.
Cand. [Aside.] Oh fie, by no means! then she'll call me cuckold.—
Sirrah, go look to th' shop.—How does this show? 15
Lod. [Aside.] Excellent well—I'll go look to the shop, sir.
Fine cambrics, lawns; what do you lack?
Cand. A curt’s cow’s milk I ha’ drunk once before,
And ’t was so rank in taste, I’ll drink no more.
Wife, I’ll tame you.
Bride. You may, sir, if you can, 30
But at a wrestling I have seen a fellow
Limbd’like an ox, thrown by a little man.
Cand. And so you’ll throw me?—Reach me, knives, a yard! 35
Lod. A yard for my master.
[LODOVICO returns from the shop with a yard-wand and followed by Prentices.]

1 Pres. My master is grown valiant. 40
Cand. I’ll teach you fencing tricks.
Prentices. Rare, rare! a prize! 1
Lod. What will you do, sir?
Cand. Marry, my good prentice, nothing but breathe my wife.
Bride. Breathe me with your yard? 45
Lod. No, he’ll but measure you out, forsooth.
Bride. Since you’ll needs fetch, handle your weapon well,
For if you take a yard, I’ll take an ell.
Reach me an ell! 50
Lod. [Brings an ell-wand from the shop.]
Keep the laws of the noble science, sir, and measure weapons with her; your yard is a plain heathenish weapon. ’Tis too short, she may give you a handful, and yet you’ll not reach her.
Cand. Yet I ha’ the longer arm. — Come fall
to’t roundly,
And spare not me, wife, for I’ll lay’t on soundly:
If o’er husbands their wives will needs be masters.
We men will have a law to win’t at wasters. 2
Lod. ’Tis for the breeches, is’t not?
Cand. For the breeches! 55
Bride. Husband, I’m for you, I’ll not strike in jest.
Cand. Nor I.
Bride. But will you sign to one request?
Cand. What’s that?
Bride. Let me give the first blow.
Cand. The first blow, wife? [Aside to Lod.]
Shall I? Prompt? 60
Lod. Let her ha’ t:
If she strike hard, in to her, and break her pate.
Cand. A bargain: strike! 65
Bride. Then guard you from this blow,
For I play all at legs, but ’tis thus low.
She kneels.
Behold, I’m such a cunning fencer grown,

I keep my ground, yet down I will be thrown
With the least blow you give me; I disdain us
The wife that is her husband’s sovereign.
She that upon your pillow first did rest,
They say, the breeches wore, which I detest:
The tax which she impos’d on you, I abate you;
If me you make your master, I shall hate you. 70
The world shall judge who offers fairest play;
You win the breeches, but I win the day.
Cand. Thou wilt’t the day indeed, give me thy hand;
I’ll challenge thee no more. My patient breast
Play’d thus the rebel, only for a jest. 75
Here’s the rank rider that breaks colts; ’tis he
Can tame the mad folks, and curst wives.
Bride. Who? Your man?
Cand. My man? My master, though his head be bare,
But he’s so courteous, he’ll put off his hair.
Lod. Nay, if your service be so but a [us man cannot keep his hair on, I’ll serve you no longer. [Takes off his false hair.]
Bride. Is this your schoolmaster?
Lod. Yes, faith, wench, I taught him to take thee down. I hope thou canst take him down [us without teaching;
You ha’ got the conquest, and you both are friends.
Cand. Bear witness else.
Lod. . . My prenticeship then ends.
Cand. For the good service you to me have done,
I give you all your years.
Lod: I thank you, master. 85
I’ll kiss my mistress now, that she may say
My man was bound, and free all in one day.

Exeunt.

ACT III

[SCENE I.] 1

Enter INFELICE, and ORLANDO [disguised as a Serving-man].

Inf. From whom say’st thou? 90
Orl. From a poor gentlewoman, madam, whom I serve.
Inf. And what’s your business? 95
Orl. This madam: my poor mistress has a [s waste piece of ground, which is her own by inheritance, and left to her by her mother.
There’s a lord now that goes about not to take it clean from her, but to enclose it to himself, and to join it to a piece of his lordship’s. 100
Inf. What would she have me do in this?
Orl. No more, madam, but what one woman should do for another in such a case. My honoruble lord your husband, would do any thing in her behalf, but she had rather put herself [s into your hands, because you, a woman, may do more with the duke, your father.
Inf. Where lies this land?
Orl. Within a stone’s cast of this place. My mistress, I think, would be content to let [s him enjoy it after her decease, if that would

1 A fencing contest. Cf. p. 414, note 5. 2 Cadgola.

An apartment in Hippolito’s house serve his turn, so my master would yield too; but she cannot abide to hear that the lord should meddle with it in her lifetime.

Inf. Yes she then married? Why stirs not [as his husband in it?

Ori. Her husband stirs in it underhand: but because the other is a great rich man, my master is loth to be seen in it too much.

Inf. I hope her in writing draw the cause at large.

And I will move the duke.

Ori. 'Tis set down, madam, here in black and white already. Work it so, madam, that she may keep her own without disturbance, grievance, molestation, or meddling of any [as other; and she bestows this purse of gold on your ladyship.

Inf. Old man, I'll plead for her, but take no fees.

Give lawyers them, I swim not in that flood; I touch no gold, till I have done her good.

Ori. I would all proctors' clerks were of your mind, I should law more amongst them than I do then. Here, madam, is the survey, not only of the manor itself, but of the grange-house, with every meadow pasture, plough-land, [as cony-burrow, fish-pond, hedge, ditch, and bush, that stands in it. [Gives a letter.]

Inf. My husband's name, and hand and seal at arms
To a love letter? Where hadest thou this writing?

Ori. From the foresaid party, madam, that [as would keep the foresaid land out of the foresaid lord's fingers.

Inf. My lord turn'd ranger now?

Ori. You're a good huntress, lady; you ha' found your game already. Your lord would [as fain be a ranger, but my mistress requests you to let him run a course in your own park. If you'll not do 't for love, then 't for money! She has no white money, but there's gold; or else she prays you to ring him by this token, [as and so you shall be sure his nose will not be rooting other men's pastures.

[Gives purse and ring.]

Inf. This very purse was woven with mine own hands;
This diamond on that very night, when he Untied my virgin girdle, gave it him;
And must a common harlot share in mine?
Old man, to quit thy pains, take thou the gold.

Ori. Not I, madam, old serving-men want no money.

Inf. Cupid himself was sure his secretary; [as These lines are even the arrows love let flies, The very ink dropt out of Venus' eyes.

Ori. I do not think, madam, but he fetcht off some poet or other for those lines, for they are parlous hawks to fly at wenches.

Inf. Here's honied poison! To me he never thus writ;
But lust can set a double edge on wit.

Ori. Nay, that's true, madam, a wench will what any thing, if it be not too dull.

Inf. Oaths, promises, preferments, jewels, gold,

What smears should break, if all these cannot hold?
What creature is thy mistress?

Ori. One of those creatures that are contrary to man; a woman.

Inf. What manner of woman?

Ori. A little tiny woman, lower than your ladyship by head and shoulders, but as mad a wench as ever unlaced a petticoat: these things should I indeed have delivered to my lord, your husband.

Inf. They are delivered better: why should she Send back these things?

Ori. 'Ware, 'ware, there's knavery.

Inf. Strumpets, like cheating gamblers, will not win
At first; these are but baits to draw him in.
How might I learn his hunting hours?

Ori. The Irish footman can tell you all his hunting hours, the park he hunts in, the doe he would strike; that Irish shuckatery 1 beats the bush for him, and know's all; he bought that letter, and that ring; he is the carrier.

Inf. Knowest thou what other gifts have past between them?

Ori. Little Saint Patrick knows all.

Inf. Him I'll examine presently.

Ori. Not whilst I am here, sweet madam.

Inf. Be gone then, and what lies in me command.

Exi ORLANDO.

Enter BRYAN.

Inf. How much cost those satins,
And clothe of silver, which my husband sent
By you to a low gentlewoman yonder?

Inf. She there, to whom you carried letters.

Bry. By dis hand and bod dow saist true, if I did so, oh how? I know not a letter a' de [his book i'fasset, la.

Inf. Did your lord never send you with a ring, sir,
Set with diamond?

Bry. Never, as cresce sa' me, never! He may run at a townes ring i'fasset, and I never i'fasset hold his stirrup, till he leap into de saddle. By St. Patrick, madam, I never touch my lord's diamond, nor ever had to do, i'fasset, la, with any of his precious stones.

Enter HIPPOLITO.

Inf. Are you so close, 2 you hawd, you pandaring slave?

[Strikes BRYAN.]

Hip. How now? Why, Infelice; what's your quarrel?

Inf. Out of my sight, base varlet! get thee gone.

Hip. Away, you rogue!

Bry. Slaun loot, 3 fare de well, fare de well. Ah marrogh frie bat boda.'k breen! 4

Exi.

1 Hound. 2 Secret. 3 Irish: Sfón loot, fare the well. 4 Irish: As a midach fromach boda hvren — On the morrow of a lease, a clown is a beast. (Rhym.)
III. 1. THE HONEST WHORE: PART II 437

A dog; whom I’ll scarce spurn. Long’d you for shantrook? Were it my father’s father, heart, I’ll kill him, Although I take him on his death-bed gasping ‘Twixt Heaven and hell! A shag-hair’d cur! Bold strumpet.

Why hang’st thou on me? Think’st I’ll be a bawd To a whore, because she’s noble?

I beg but this Set not my shame out to the world’s broad eye Yet let thy vengeance, like my fault, soar high, So it be in dark’ned clouds.

Dark’ned! my horns Cannot be dark’ned, nor shall my revenge. A harlot to my slave? The act is base, Common, but foul, so shall not thy disgrace. Could not I feed your appetite? O women You were created angels, pure and fair; But since the first fell, tempting devils you are You should be men’s bliss, but you prove their rods:

Were there no women, men might live like gods.

You ha’ been too much down already; rise, Get from my sight, and henceforth shun my bed; I’ll with no strumpet’s breath be poisoned. As for your Irish lubrican, that spirit Whom by post’rous charms thy lust hath raised In a wrong circle, him I’ll damn more black Then any tyrant’s soul.

Hippolito!

Tell me, didst thou bait hooks to draw him to thee, Or did he bewitch thee?

The slave did woo me.

Tu-whose in that screech-owl’s language! Oh, who’d trust Your cork-heel’d sex? I think to sate your lust You’d love a horse, a bear, a croaking toad, So your hot itching veins might have their bound:

Then the wild Irish dart was thrown? Come, how? The manner of this fight?

’T was thus, he gave me this battery first.—Oh, I Mistake—believe me, all this in beaten gold; Yet I held out, but at length thus was charmed. [Gives letter, purse and ring.] What? change your diamond, wench? The act is base, Common, but foul, so shall not your disgrace. Could not I feed your appetite? O men You were created angels, pure and fair; But since the first fell, worse than devils you are. You should our shields be, but you prove our rods.

Were there no men, women might live like gods.

Guilty, my lord?

Yes, guilty, my good lady.

1 At once.
2 An Irish foot-soldier: often used contemptuously.
Inf. Nay, you may laugh, but henceforth shun my bed,
With no whore's leavings I'll be poisoned.    Exit.

Hip. O'er-reached so finely? 'Tis the very diamond
And letter which I sent. This villany 16
Some spider closely weaves, whose poison'd bulk
I must let forth. Who's there without?
Ser. (within.) My lord calls?
Hip. Stoop me the footman.
Ser. (within.) Call the footman to my lord —
Bryan, Bryan!

Re-enter Bryan.

Hip. It can be no man else, that Irish Judas,
Bred in a country where no venomous prosperous
But in the nation's blood, hath thus betray'd me —
Slave, get you from your service.
Bry. Fast meanest thou by this now?
Hip. Question me not, nor tempt my fury, villain!

Couldst thou turn all the mountains in the land?
To hills of gold, and give me, here thou stayest not.
Bry. I fa'st, I care not.
Hip. Fa'te not, but get thee gone, I shall send else.

Bry. Ay, do prodly, I had rather have thee
Make a scabbard of my guts, and let out all de
Irish puddings in my poor belly, den to be a false knave to de, i' fa'st! I will never see dine own sweet face more. A mawhid deer a gra,' fare deer well, fare deer well; I will go steal [14] ow again in Ireland. Exit.

Hip. He's damn'd that raised this whirlwind, which hath blown
Into her eyes this jealousy: yet I'll on,
I'll on, stood armed devils staring in my face.
To be pursued in flight, quickens the race, 16
Shall my blood-streams by a wife's lust be barr'd?

Fond 2 woman, no: iron grows by strokes more hard;
Lawless desires are seas scornin all bounds,
Or sulphur, which being ramm'd up, more confounds;
Strugglin with madmen madness nothing
 tame's;
Winds wrestling with great fires incense the flames. Exit.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Belknap, and Orlando [disguised
as a Serving-man, Matheo [following].

Bel. How now, what ails your master?
Orl. Has taken a younger brother's purge, forsooth, and that works with him.
Bel. Where is his cloak and rapier?
Orl. He has given up his cloak, and his rapier is bound to the peace. If you look a little higher, you may see that another hath ent'red into hathand for him too. Six and four have put him into this sweat.

Bel. Where's all his money?

Orl. 'Tis put over by exchange; his doubloes was going to be translated, but for me. If any man would ha' lent but half a ducat on his beard, the hair of it had stuf a pair of breeches by this time. I had but one poor penny, and [16] that I was glad to niggil out, 16 and buy a hollywond to grace him through the street. As hap was, his boots were on, and them I dustied, to make people think he was being ridden, and I had run by him. —

Bel. Oh me! — How does my sweet Matheo?

[Matheo comes forward.]

Mat. Oh rogue, of what devilish stuff are these dice made of, — the parings of the devil's corns of his toes, that they run thus damnable?

Bel. I prithee, vex not.

Mat. If any handicraft's-man was ever suf-f'ed to keep shop in hell, it will be a dice-maker; he's able to undo more souls than the devil; I play'd with mine own dice, yet lost.

Ha' you any money?
Bel. 'Las, I ha' none.

Mat. Must have money, must have some, must have a cloak, and rapier, and things. Will you go set your lime-twigs, and get me some birds, some money?

Bel. What lime-twigs should I set?

Mat. You will not then? Must have cash and pictures, do ye hear, frailty? Shall I walk in a Plymouth cloak, 8 that's to say, like a rogue, in my hose and doublet, and a crabtree cedge! 16 in my hand, and you swim in your satins? Must have money, come! [Taking off her gown.]

Orl. Is't bed-time, master, that you undo my mistress?

Bel. Unde me? Yes, yes, at these rufflings I have been too often.

Mat. Help to play, Pacheco. 8

Orl. Playing call you it?

Mat. I'll pawn you, by th' lord, to your very eyebrows.

Bel. With all my heart, since Heaven will have me poor;

As good be drown'd at sea, as drown'd at shore.

Orl. Why, hear you, sir? I 'faith, do not make away her gown.

Mat. Oh! it's summer, it's summer; your only fashion for a woman now is to be light, to be light.

Orl. Why, pray sir, employ some of that = money you have of mine.

Mat. Thine? I'll starve first, I'll beg first; when I touch a penny of that, let these fingers end rot.

Orl. [Aside.] So they may, for that's past = touching. I saw my twenty pounds fly high.

Mat. Knowest thou never a damn'd broker about the city?

Orl. Damn'd broker? Yes, five hundred.

Mat. The gown stood me in ' above twenty [16]

1 Irish: A mawhid deer a gra', O master, O love.
2 Foolish.
3 A room in Matheo's house.
4 J. e. diding.
5 J. e. with a staff.
6 Draw out unwillingly.
7 Cost me.
ducats; borrow ten of it. Cannot live without silver.

Orl. I'll make what I can of it, sir, I'll be your broker. — [Aside] But not your damn'd broker. Oh thou scurvy knave!

What makes a wife turn whore, but such a slave? Exit [with Bellafonte’s gown].

Mat. How now, little chick, what ailest? Weeping for a handful of tailor’s shreds? Pox on them, are there not silks enough at mercer’s?

Bell. I care not for gay feathers, I. 15

Mat. What dost care for then? Why dost grieve?

Bell. Why do I grieve? A thousand sorrows strike
At one poor heart, and yet it lives. Matheo,
Thou art a gamer; prithée, throw at all, 90
Set all upon one cast. We kneel and pray,
And struggle for life, yet must be cast away.
Meet misery quickly then, split all, sell all,
And when thou’st sold all, spend it; but, I be-

Build not thy mind on me to coin thee more; 100
To get it wouldst thou have me play the whore?

Mat. ’T was your profession before I married
you.

Bell. Umh? it was indeed. If all men should be branded
For sins long since laid up, who could be saved?
The quarter-day is at hand, how will you do?
To pay the rent, Matheo? 110

Mat. Why, do as all of our occupation do against 2 quarter-days: break up house, remove, shift your lodgings: pox a’ your quarters! 115

Enter Lodovico.

Lod. Where’s this gallant?

Mat. Signor Lodovico? how does my little
Mirror of Knighthood? 8 This is kindly done, 1 faith: welcome, by my troth.

Lod. And how dost, frolic? — Save you fair
Thou lookest snug and bravely, noble Mat.

Mat. Drink and feed, laugh and lie warm.

Lod. Is this thy wife?

Mat. A poor gentlewoman, sir, whom I make use of a’ nights. 125

Lod. Pay to your lips, sweet lady. 128

[ Kisses her. ]

Mat. Borrow some shills of him. — Some wine, sweetheart.

Lod. I’ll send for’t then, i faith.

Mat. You send for’t! — Some wine, I prithe.

Bell. I ha’ no money. 118

Mat. ’Sblood, nor I. — What wine love you, signor?

Lod. Here! [offering money] or I’ll not stay, I protest; trouble the gentlewoman too much? 130

[ Exit Bellafonte. ]

And what news flies abroad, Matheo? 114

Mat. Troth, none. Oh, signor, we ha’ been merry in our days.

Lod. And no doubt shall again.

The divine powers never shoot darts at men
Mortal, to kill them.

Mat. You say true.

Lod. Why should we grieve at want? Say the world made thee
Her minion, that thy head lay in her lap,
And that she danc’d thee on her wanton knee,
She could but give thee a whole world: that’s
all,

And that all’s nothing; the world’s greatest part
Cannot fill up one corner of thy heart.
Say the three corners were all fill’d, alas!
Of what art thou pomeast? A thin blown glass,
Such as is by boys puf’t into the air!
Went twenty kingdoms thine, thou’st live in
care:

Thou couldst not sleep the better, nor live longer,
Nor marrier be, nor healthfuller, nor stronger.
If, then, thou want’st, thus make that want thy pleasure,
No man wants all things, nor has all in measure.

Mat. I am the most wretched fellow: sure 100 some left-handed priest hath christn’d me, I am so unlucky; I am never out of one puddle or another; still falling.

Re-enter Bellafonte [with wine] and Orland.

Fill out wine to my little finger. — With my heart, I’t faith. 140

[ Drinks. ]

Lod. Thanks, good Matheo. To your own sweet self.

[ Drinks. ]

Re-enter Orlando.

Orl. All the brokers’ hearts, sir, are made of flint. I can with all my knocking strike but six sparks of fire out of them; here’s six duces, if you’ll take them.

Mat. Give me them! [Taking money.] An evil conscience gnaw them all! Moths and plagues hang upon their lousy wardrobes!

Lod. Is this thy man, Matheo?

Mat. [to Lod.] An old serving-man.

Orl. You may give me t’ other half too, sir;
that’s the beggar.

Lod. What hast there, — gold?

Orl. A sort 6 of rascals are in my debt, God knows what, and they feed me with bits, with crumbs, a pox choke them.

Lod. A word, Matheo; be not angry with me;
Believe it that I know the touch of time,

And can parse copper, though it be gilded o’er.
From the true gold: the sals which thou dost spread,

Would show well if they were not borrowed.
The sound of thy low fortun’es drew me hither,
I give my self unto thee; prithée, use me,
I will bestow on you a suit of satin,

And all things else to fit a gentleman,
Because I love you.

Mat. Thanks, good, noble knight!

Lod. Call on me when you please; till then farewell.

[ Exit. ]

Mat. Hast angled? Hast out up this fresh salmon?

1 On.
2 In preparation for.
3 An allusion to a well-known romance.
4 A cant term for money.
5 Bard.
Bell. Wouldst have me be so base?
Mat. It's base to steal, it's base to be a whore:
Thou 'lt be more base, I'll make thee keep a door. Exit.
Bell. Thou sest he does.
Ori. Nay then, it's well. I set my brains upon an upright last,2 though my wits be old,
Yet they are like a wither'd pippin, wholesome.
Look you, mistress, I told him I had but six100
ducats of the knave broker, but I had eight,
And kept these two for you.
Bell. Thou shouldst have given him all.
Ori. What, to fly high?
Bell. Like waves, my misery drives on misery.
Exit.
Ori. Sell his wife's clothes from her back?115
Do any poulterer's wife pull chickens alive?
He rots all abroad, wants all at home; he dices, whores, swaggers, swears, cheats, bor-rrows, pawn's. I'll give him hook and line, a little more for all this;
Yet sure 'th' end he'll delude all my hopes,
And show me a French trick dano'd on the ropes.8
Exit. 122

[Scene III.]

Enter at one door Lodovico and Carolo; at another Bots, and Mistress Horstlech. Candido and His Wife appear in the Shop.

Lod. Hist, hist, Lieutenant Bots! How dost,
man?
Car. Whither are you ambling, Madam
Horstlech?

Mis. H. About worldly profit, sir: how [s]
do your worships?

Bots. We want tools, gentlemen, to furnish the trade: they wear out day and night, they wear out till no metal be left in their back. We hear of two or three new wench's are come [c] up with a carrier, and your old goshawk here
is flying at them.

Lod. And, faith, what flesh have you at home?

Mis. H. Ordinary dishes; by my troth, [t] sweet men, there's few good 'th' city. I am as well furnish as any, and, though I say it, as well custom'd.

Bots. We have meats of all sorts of dressing;
we have stewn' meat for your Frenchman, [n] pretty light, picking meat for your Italian, and that which is rotten roasted for Don Spaniard.

Lod. A poz on 't.

Bots. We have poulterer's ware for your sweet bloods, as dove, chicken, duck, tea, [l] woodcock, and so forth: and butcher's meat for the citizen: yet mutations fall very bad this year.

Lod. Stay, is not that my patient linen-draper yonder, and my fine young smugg mistresses, [m]
his wife?

Car. Sirrah,6 grannam, I'll give thee for thy

1 J. e. turn bawd. 2 J. e. My expectation was just.
3 Will be hanged. 4 Prostitutes.
5 Formerly used to both sexes.
6 Gardens with summer-houses were very common in the suburbs of London at the time, and were often used as places of intrigue. (Dyce.)
There was much bawdry us’d among the soldiers,
Though they were lusty.
Cand. It may be so, that’s likely. — True, indeed,
In every garden, sir, does grow that weed.
Bry. Pox on de gardens, and de weeds, and de fool’s cap dere, and de clouts! Hear?
dost make a hobby-horse of me.
[Teasing the cambric.]
All. Oh, fie! he has torn the cambric.
Cand. ’Tis no matter.
Ast. It frets me to the soul.
Cand. So does’t not me.
My customers do oft for remittants call,
These are two remittants, now, no loss at all.
But let me tell you, were my servants here,
It would ha’ cost more. — Thank you, gentlemen,
I use you well, pray know my shop again.

Exit.
All. Ha, ha, ha! come, come, let’s go, let’s go.

Exeunt.

[ACT IV]

[SCENE I.]

Enter MATHEW brave, 4 and BELLAFRONT.

Mat. How am I suited, Front? Am I not gallant, ha?
Bell. Yes, sir, you are suited well.
Mat. Exceeding passing well, and to the time. 6
Bell. The tailor has play’d his part with you.
Mat. And I have play’d a gentleman’s part with my tailor, for I owe him for the making of it.
Bell. And why did you so, sir?
Mat. To keep the fashion; it’s only in fashion now, of your best rank of gallants, to make their tailors wait for their money; neither were it wisdom indeed to pay them upon the first edition 6 of a new suit; for commonly the suit is owing for, when the linings 15 are worn out, and there’s no reason, then, that the tailor should be paid before the merce.
Bell. Is this the suit the knight bestowed upon you?
Mat. This is the suit, and I need not shame to wear it, for better men than I would be 21 glad to have suits bestowed on them. It’s a generous fellow, — but — pox on him — we whose perierans are the very limbecks and still tories of good wit and fly high, must drive liquor out of stale gaping oysters. Shallow 22 as knight, poor squire Timachos: I’ll make a wild Catalaun 1 of forty such: hang him, he’s an ass, he’s always sober.
Bell. This is your fault to wound your friends
still.
Mat. No, faith, Front, Lodovicio is a noble

2  Finely attired.  5 Delivery.
3  “It would take forty such knights to make a thief.” Catala is China; the Chinese were supposed to be great thieves.

Slavonian: it’s more rare to see him in a woman’s company, than for a Spaniard to go into England, and to challenge the English [as fencer there. — (Knocking within.) One knocks, — see. — [Exit BELLAFRONT. — La, fa, sol, la, fa, la, [sings] rustle in silks and satins! There’s music in this, and a taffeta petticoat, it makes both fly high. Cateso.

Re-enter BELLAFRONT; after her ORLANDO, like himself, with four men after him.

Bell. Matheo! ’tis my father.
Mat. Ha! father? It’s no matter, he finds no tarder’d prodigals here.

Orl. Is not the door good enough to hold your blue coats? Away, knaves, wear not your clothes threadbare at knees for me; beg Heaven’s blessing, not mine. [Exeunt Servants.] — Oh cry your worship mercy, sir; was somewhat bold to talk to this gentlewoman, your wife here.

Mat. A poor gentlewoman, sir.

Orl. Stand not, sir, bare to me; I ha’ read oft That serpents who creep low, belch ranker poison Than winged dragons do that fly aloft.

Mat. If it offend you, sir, ’tis for my pleasure.

Orl. Your pleasure be’t, sir. Umh, is this your palace?

Bell. Yes, and our kingdom, for ’tis our content.

Orl. It’s a very poor kingdom then; what, are all your subjects gone a sheep-shearing? Not a maid? not a man? not so much as a cat? You keep a good house belike, just like one of your profession, every room with bare walls, and a half-headed bed to vault upon, as all your bawdy-houses are. Pray who are your upholsters? Oh, the spiders, I see, they bestow hangings upon you.

Mat. Bawdy-house? Zounds, sir —

Bell. Oh sweet Matheo, peace. Upon my knees
I do beseech you, sir, not to arraign me
For sins, which Heaven, I hope, long since hath pardoned!

Those flames, like lightning flashes, are so spent,
The heat no more remains, than where ships went,
Or where birds cut the air, the print remains.

Mat. Pox on him, kneel to a dog.

Bell. She that’s a whore,

Lives gallant, fares well, is not, like me, poor. I ha’ now as small acquaintance with that sin, As if I had never known ’t, that never been.

Orl. No acquaintance with it? What maintains thee then? How dost live then? Has thy husband any lands, any rents coming in, any stock going, any ploughs jogging, any ships sailing? Hast thou any wares to turn, so much as to get a single penny by? Yes thou hast ware to sell;

Knaves are thy chapmen, and thy shop is hell.

Mat. Do you hear, sir?

Orl. So, sir, I do hear, sir, more of you than you dream I do.

Mat. You fly a little too high, sir.

Orl. Why, sir, too high?

Mat. I ha’ suffred your tongue, like a barr’d cater-tray, to run all this while, and ha’ not stopt it.

Orl. Well, sir, you talk like a gamer.

Mat. If you come to bark at her because she’s a poor rogue, look you, here’s a fine path, sir, and there, there, the door.

Bell. Matheo!

Mat. Your blue coats stay for you, sir. I love a good honest roaring boy, and so —

Orl. That’s the devil.

Mat. Sir, sir, I’ll ha’ no Joves in my house to thunder avaunt. She shall live and be maintained when you, like a kog of musty stur-geon, shall stink. Where? In your coffin. How? Be a musty fellow, and lousy.

Orl. I know she shall be maintained, but how? She like a queen, thou like a knave; she like a whore, thou like a thief.

Mat. Thief? Zounds! Thief?

Bell. Good, dearest Mat! — Father!

Mat. Pox on you both! I’ll not be blandished now satin scorn to be put down with bare bawdy velvet. Thief!

Orl. Ay, thief, th’ art a murderer, a cheater, a whoremonger, a pot-hunter, a borrower, a beggar —

Bell. Dear father —

Mat. An old ass, a dog, a churl, a chuff, an usurer, a villain, a moth, a mangy mule, with an old velvet foot-cloth on his back, sir.

Bell. Oh me!

Orl. Varlet, for this I’ll hang thee.

Mat. Ha, ha, alas!

Orl. Thou keepest a man of mine here, under my nose.

Mat. Under thy beard.

Orl. As arrant a small-smock, for an old mutton-monger as thyself.

Mat. No, as yourself.

Orl. As arrant a purse-taker as ever cried, Stand I yet a good fellow I confess, and valiant; but he’ll bring thee to th’ gallows. You both have robb’d of late two poor country pedlars.

Bell. Oh, sir, no more.

Orl. Ay, knave, two pedlars. Hue and cry is up, warrants are out, and I shall see thee climb a ladder.

Mat. And come down again as well as a bricklayer or a tiler. — [Aside.] How the vengeance knows he this? — If I be hang’d. [Is I’ll tell the people I married old Friscobaldo’s daughter; I’ll frisco you, and your old carcass.

Orl. Tell what you canst; if I stay here longer, I shall be hang’d too, for being in thy company; therefore, as I found you, I leave you —

A kind of false dice.

Whoremonger.
Mat. Kneel, and get money of him.
Orl. A knave and a queen, a thief and a strumpet, a couple of beggars, a brace of beggarwomen.
Mat. Hang upon him—Ay, ay, sir, fare you well; we are so—follow close—we are beggar—sat in—at him.
Bell. Is this your comfort, when so many years
You ha' left me frozen to death?
Orl. Freeze still, starve still!
Bell. Yes, so I shall: I must: I must and will.
If, as you say, I'm poor, relieve me then,
Let me not sell my body to base men.
You call me strumpet, Heaven knows I am
none:
Your cruelty may drive me to be one:
Let not that sin be yours; let not the shame
Of common whore live longer than my name.
That cunning bawd, Necessity, night and day
Plots to undo me; drive that hag away,
Least being at lowest ebb, as now I am,
I sink for ever.
Orl. Lowest ebb, what ebb?
Bell. So poor, that, though to tell it be my
shame,
I am not worth a dish to hold my meat;
I am yet poorer, I want bread to eat.
Orl. It's not seen by your cheeks.
Mat. [Aside.] I think she has read an homily
to tickle the old rogue.
Orl. Want bread! There's a satín: bake that.
Mat. 'Sblood, make pasties of my clothes?
Orl. A fair new cloak, stow that; an excellent gift rapier.
Mat. Will you eat that, sir?
Orl. I could feast ten good fellows with these hangers.
Mat. The pox, you shall!
Orl. I shall not, till thou beg'st, think thou art poor;
And when thou beg'st I'll feed thee at my door,
As I feed dogs, with bones; till then beg, borrow,
Pawn, steal, and hang, turn bawd, when thou art whore,— [Aside.] My heart-strings sure would crack, were they strind'm more.
Mat. This is your father, your damn'd—Confusion light upon all the generation of you!
He can come bragging hither with four white herrings at 'taii in blue coats, without roes in their bellies; but I may starve ere he give me so much as a cob.
Bell. What tell you me of this? alas!
Mat. Go, trot after your dad, do you capit-ulate; I'll pawn not for you; I'll not steal to be hanged for such an hypocritical, close, common harlot; away, you dog! —
Brave 't faith! fool, give me some meat.
Bell. Yes, sir.
Mat. Good slave, my man too, is gallop'd to the devil a' the other side: Pacheco, I'll cheeo you. Is this your dad's day? Eug—[see land, they say, is the only hell for horses, and only paradise for women; pray get you to that paradise, because you're called an honest whore; there they live none but honest whores with a pox. Marry, here in our city, all your [so sex are but foot-clot nags; the master no sooner lights but the man leaps into the saddle.
Re-enter Bellafront [with meat and drink].
Bell. Will you sit down, I pray, sir?
Mat. [sitting down.] I could tear by th' Lord, his flesh, and eat his midriff in salt, as I eat this:—must I choke?—My father Friscobaldo,
I shall make a pitiful hog-louse of you, Orlando, if you fall once into my fingers—Here's the davarest meat! I ha' got a stomach with chafing. What rogue should tell him of those [so two pedlars? A plague choke him, and gnaw him to the bare bones!—Come fill.
Bell. Thou sweatest with very anger, good
sir. Though I, 'tis no fault of mine. 1
Mat. Where didst buy th' mutton? I never felt better ribs.
Bell. A neighbour sent it me.
Re-enter Orlando [disguised as a Serving-
man].
Mat. Hah, neighour? Foh, my mouth stinks.
You whore, do you beg victuals for me? Is this satín doublet to be bombasted 5 with broken [so meat? Takes up the stool.
Orl. What will you do, sir?
Mat. Beat out the brains of a beggarly—
Orl. Beat out an ass's head of your own.—
Away, Mistress! [Exeunt. Bellafront.] Zounds, do but touch one hair of her, and I'll so quiet your cap with old iron, that your oxcorb shall ache the worse these seven years for 't. Does she look like a roasted rabbit, that you must have the head for the brains?
Mat. Ha! ha! go out of my doors, you rogue!
Away, four marks! A judge.
Orl. Four marks? No, sir, my twenty pound that you ha' made fly high, and I am gone.
Mat. Must I be fed with chippings? You're best get a clapdiah, and say y' are proctor to some spittle-house. —Where hast thou been,
Pacheco? Come hither my little turkey-cock.
Orl. I cannot abide, sir, to see a woman wrong'd, not I.
SIRR. Here was my father-in-law to-day.
Orl. Fish, then y' are full of crowns.
Mat. Hang him! he would ha' thrust crowns upon me, to have fall'n in again, but I scorn cast clothes, or any man's gold.
Orl. [Aside.]—But mine. How did he brook that, sir?
Mat. Oh, swore like a dozen of drunken tinkers; at last growing foul in words, he and [so four of his men drew upon me, sir.

1 The straps attached to the girdle, from which a dagger or sword hung. They were often richly embroidered.
2 Herring's head.

8 Horses with long housings.
9 An appetite with anger.
10 Stuffed out.
11 A dish carried by beggars, with a lid used to rattle to attract notice.
12 Hospital.
Orl. In your house? Would I had been by!

Mat. I made no more ado, but fell to my old look, and so thrashed my blue-coats and old trash-tree face my father-in-law, and then walkt like a lion in my grate. 1

Orl. O noble master!

Mat. Sirrah, he could tell me of the robbing the two pedlars, and that warrants are out for us both. 2

Orl. Good sir, I like not those crackers. 3

Mat. Crackhalter, 4 won't set thy foot to mine?

Orl. How sir, at drinking.

Mat. We' ll pull that old crow my father:
rob thy master. I know the house, thou [5] the servants: the purchase 6 is rich, the plot to get it is easy; the dog will not part from a bone.

Orl. Pluck't out of his throat, then. I' ll snarl for one, if this 6 can bite.

Mat. Say no more, say no more, old coal; [90 meet me anon at the sign of the Shipwreck.

Orl. Yes, sir.

Mat. And dost hear, man? — the Shipwreck.
Exit.

Orl. Th' art at the shipwreck now, and like a swimmer,
Bold, but unexpert, with those waves dost play,
Whose dalliance, whorslike, is to cast thee
away.

Enter HIPPOUETO AND BELLAFRONT.
And here's another vessel, better fraught,
But as ill-mann'd; her sinking will be wrought,
If rescue come not: like a man of war
I'll therefore bravely out; somewhat I' ll do,
And either save them both, or perish too. 45

Hip. It is my fate to be bewitched by those eyes.

Bell. Fates? your folly.
Why should my face thus mad you? 'Las, those colours 31
Are wound up long ago, which beauty spread;
The flowers that once grew here, are withered.
You turn'd my black soul white, made it look new,
And should I sin, it me'er should be with you.

Hip. Your hand, I' ll offer you fair play.

When first
We met 'th lists together, you remember
You were a common rebel; with one parsley
I won you to come in.

Bell. You did.

Hip. I' ll try
If now I can beat down this chastity
With the same ordinance. Will you yield this
fort,
If the power of argument now, as then,
I get of you the conquest: as before
I turn'd you honest, now to turn you whore,
By force of strong persuasion?

Bell. If you can,
I yield.

Hip. The alarum 's struck up; I'm your man.

Bell. A woman gives defiance.

Hip. Sit. [They seat themselves.]

Bell. Begin: 36
'Tis a brave battle to encounter sin.

Hip. You men that are to fight in the same war
To which I'm prest, and plead at the same bar,
To win a woman, if you 'd have me speed, 35
Send all your wishes!

Bell. No doubt you're heard; proceed.

Hip. To be a harlot, that you stand upon,
The very name's a charm to make you one.

Harlotta 7 was a dame of so divine
And ravishing touch 6 that she was concubine
To an English king; her sweet bewitching eye
Did the king's heart-string in such love-knots tie.

That even the coyest was proud when she could hear
Men say, ''Behold, another Harlot there!''
And after all the women that were fair
Were harlots call'd, as to this day some are:
Besides, her dainty she so well does mix,
That she's in Latin call'd the Meretrix
Thus for the name; for the profession, this;
Who lives in bondage, lives lac'd; the chief
bliss
This world below can yield, is liberty:
And who, than whom, with lesser wings dare fly?
As Juno's proud bird spreads the fairest tail,
So does a strumpet hoist the loftiest sail,
She's no man's slave; men are her slaves; 53
Her eye
Moves not on wheels screw'd up with jealousy,
She, hons' or coach'd, does merry journeys
make.
Free as the sun in his gilt zodiac:
As bravely does she shine, as fast she's driven,
But stays not long in any house of heaven;
But shifts from sign to sign, her amorous
prizes
More rich being when she's down, than when she rises.
In brief, gentlemen haunt them, soldiers fight for them.
Few men but know them, few or none abhor
them.
Thus for sport's sake speak I, as to a woman Whom, as the worst ground, I would turn to common:
But you I would enclose for mine own bed.

Bell. So should a husband be dishonour'd.

Hip. Dishonour'd? Not a whit: to fall to
one
Besides, your husband is to fall to none,
For one no number is.

Bell. Faith, should you take
One in your bed, would you that reckoning
make?

'Tis time you found retreat.

Hip. Say, have I won,
Is the day ours?

1 Trick. 2 Beasters. 3 Booty.
4 Cage. 5 Gallows-bird. 6 His sword.
7 The mistress of the father of William the Conqueror.
8 Quality.
Bell. The battle’s but half done,
None but yourself have yet sounded alarms.
Let us strike too, else you dishonour arms.

Hip. If you can win the day, the glory’s yours.

Bell. To prove a woman should not be a whore:
When she was made, she’d one man, and no more;
Yet she was tied to laws then, for even than.
’T is said, she was not made for men, but man.
Anon, ’t increase earth’s brood, the law was varied,
Men should take many wives: and though they married
According to that act, yet ’t is not known
But that those wives were only tied to one.

New parliaments were since: for now one woman
Is shar’d between three hundred, nay she’s common,
Common as spotted leopards, whom for sport
Man hunts to get the flesh, but care not for ’t.
So spread they nets of gold, and tune their calls,
To enchant silly women to take falls;
Sweating they’re angels, which that they may win
They’ll hire the devil to come with false dice
in.

Oh Sirens’ subtle tunes! yourselves you flatter,
And our weak sex betray: so men love water;
It serves to wash their hands, but being once foul,
The water down is pour’d, cast out of doors;
And even of such base use do men make whores.

A harlot, like a hen, more sweetness reaps,
To pick men one by one up, than in heaps:
Yet all feeds but confounding.  Say you should taste me,
I serve but for the time, and when the day
Of war is done, am cashier’d out of pay:
If like lame soldiers I could beg, that’s all,
And there’s lust’s rendezvous, an hospital.
Who then would be a man’s slave, a man’s woman?

She’s half starv’d the first day that feeds in common.

Hip. You should not feed so, but with me alone.

Bell. If I drink poison by stealth, is’t not all one?
Is’t not rank poison still with you alone?
Nay, say you spid a courtesan, whose soft side
To touch you’d sell your birth-right, for one kiss
Be rank’d; she’s won, you’re sated: what follows this?
Oh, then you curse that bawd that toll’d you in.
The night: you curse your lust, you loathe the sin,
You loathe her very sight, and ere the day
Arise, you rise glad when y’ are stol’n away.
Even then when you are drunk with all her sweetes,

There’s no true pleasure in a strumpet’s sheets.
Women whom lust so prostitutes to sale,
Like dainties upon ropes, once seen, are stale.

Hip. If all the threads of harlot’s lives are spun,
So coarse as you would make them, tell me why
You so long lov’d the trade?

Bell. If all the threads
Of harlot’s lives be fine as you would make them,
Why do you persuade your wife turn whore,
And all dames else to fall before that sin?
Like an ill husband, though I knew the same
To be my undoing, followed I that game.  Oh, when the work of lust had earn’d my bread,

To taste it how I trembled, lest each bit,
Ere it went down, should choke me chewing it!
My bed seem’d like a cabin hung in hell,
The bawl, bell’s porter, and the licking wine

The pander fetch’d, was like an easy fine,
For which, most thought, I less’d away my soul;
And oftentimes, even in my quaffing bowl,
Thus said I to myself, I am a whore,
And have drunk down thus much confusion more.

Hip. It is a common rule, and ’t is more true,
Two of one trade ne’er love: no more do you.
Why are you sharp ’gainst that you once pro-fest?

Bell. Why dote you on that, which you did once detest?
I cannot, seeing she’s woven of such bad stuff,
Set colours on a harlot base enough.

Nothing did make me, when I lov’d them best,
To loathe them more than this: when in the street
A fair young modest damsel I did meet,
She seem’d to all a dove, when I pass’d by,
And I to all a raven: every eye
That followed her went with a bashful glance,
At me each bold and joering contemnance
Darted forth scorn; to her as if she had been
Some tower unvanquished, would they vail,
Gainst me sown rumour hoisted every sail;
She, crown’d with reverend praises, pass’d by them,
I, though with face mask’d, could not escape the “Hem!”

For, as if Heaven had set strange marks on whores,
Because they should be pointing stocks to man,
Drest up in civilest shape, a courtesan —

Let her walk saint-like, noteless, and unknown,
Yet she’s betray’d by some trick of her own.
Were harlots therefore wise, they’d be sold dear:
For men account them good but for one year,
And then like almanacs whose dates are gone.

They are thrown by, and no more look’d upon.
Who 'll therefore backward fall, who will launch forth
In seas so foul, for ventures no more worth?
Lust's voyage hath, if not this course, this cross,
Buy never so cheap, your ware comes home with loss. 450
What, shall I sound retreat? The battle's done:
Let the world judge which of us two have won.

[SCENE II.] 1

Enter the Duke, Lodovico, and Orlando [disguised as a Serving-man]; after them Infelice, Camillo, Astolfo, Beroldo, and FONTINEL.

Orl. I beseech your grace, though your eye be so piercing as under a poor blue coat to cut out an honest father from an old serving-man, yet, good my lord, discover not the plot to any, but only this gentleman that is now to be an actor in our ensuing comedy.
Duke. Thou hast thy wish, Orlando, pass unknown.
Sforza shall only go along with thee,
To see that warrant serv'd upon thy son.

Lod. To attach him upon felony, for two [is pedlars: is 't not so?
Orl. Right, my noble knight: those pedlars were two knaves of mine; he fied'd the men before, and now he purposes to play the master. He will rob me; his teeth water to be nibbling at my gold; but this shall hang him by their gills, till I pull him on shore.

Orl. Thanks to your grace: but, my good lord, for my daughter —
Duke. You know what I have said.
Orl. And remember what I have sworn. She's more honest, on my soul, than one of the Turks' wenches, watcht by a hundred emnuchs.
Lod. So she had need, for the Turks make them whores.
Orl. He's a Turk that makes any woman a whore; he's no true Christian, I'm sure. I commit your grace.

Duke. Infelice. 460
Inf. Here, sir.
Lod. Signor Friscobaldo.
Orl. Frisking again? Pacheco.
Lod. Uds so, Pacheco! We'll have some sport with this warrant: 'tis to apprehend [as all suspected persons in the house. Besides, there's one Bota, a pander, and one Madam Horasolech, a bawd, that have abus'd my friend;

those two comies will we ferret into the purse-net. 2
Orl. Let me alone for dabbing them o' th' neck. Come, come.
Lod. Do ye hear, gallants? Meet me anon at Blatho's.
All. Enough.

Exeunt LODOVICO and ORLANDO.

Duke. 'Th' old fellow sings that note thou didst before,
Only his tunes are, that she is no whore,
But that she sent his letters and his gifts,
Out of a noble triumph o'er his lust,
To show she trampled his assaults in dust.

Inf. 'Tis a good honest servant, that old man.
Duke. I doubt no less.
Inf. And it may be my husband,
Because when once this woman was unmask'd,
He levell'd all her thoughts, and made them fit,
Now he'd mar all again, to try his wit.

Duke. It may be so too, for to turn a harlot Honest, it must be by strong antidotes;
'Tis rare, as to see panthers change their spots.
And when she's once a star fix'd and shines bright,
Though 't were impiety then to dim her light,
Because we see such tapers seldom burn,
Yet 't is the pride and glory of some men,
To change her to a blazing star again,
And it may be, Hippolito does no more. —
It cannot be but you're acquainted all
With that same madness of our son-in-law,
That dotes so on a courtesan.

All. Yes, my lord.
Car. All the city thinks he's a whoremonger.
Ast. Yet I warrant he'll swear no man marks him.

Her. 'Tis like so, for when a man goes a wenching, is as if he had a strong stinking breath, every one smells him out, yet he feels it not, though it be ranker than the sweat of sixteen bears' warders.

Duke. I doubt then you have all those stinking breaths;
You might be all small out.
Car. Troth, my lord, I think we are all as you ha' been in your youth when you went amaying; we all love to hear the cuckoo sing 469 upon other men's trees.

Duke. It's well; yet you confess. But, girl, thy bed Shall not be parted with a courtesan.
'Tis strange.

No frown of mine, no frown of the poor lady, 470
My abus'd child, his wife, no care of fame,
Of honour, heaven, or hell, no not that name
Of common strumpet, can affright, or woo him
To abandon her; the harlot does undo him;
She has bewitch't him, robb'd him of his shape,
Turn'd him into a beast; his reason's lost;
You see he looks wild, does he not?

Cirr. I ha' noted
New moons in 's face, my lord, all full of change.
Duke. He's no more like unto Hippolito

1 An apartment in the Duke's Palace.
Than dead men are to living—never sleeps. 63
Or if he do, it's dreams: and in those dreams
His arms work, and then cries, "Sweet"— what's her name.

What's the drab's name?

Ais. In troth, my lord, I know not,
I know no drabs, not 1.

Duke. Ah, Bellofron!—

And, catching her fast, cries, "My Bellofron!"

Car. A drench that's able to catch a horse cannot kill this disease of smell-smelling, my lord, if it have once eaten deep.

Duke. I'll try all physic, and this medicine
first:

I have directed warrants strong and peremptory
To purge our city Milan, and to cure
The outward parts, the suburbs, for the at-tackings
Of all these women, who, like gold, want weight:

Cities, like ships, should have no idle freight. 100
Car. No, my lord, and light wenchers are no idle freight; but what's your grace's reach 1 in this?

Duke. This, Carolo. If she whom my son dotes on,
Be in that master-book enroll'd, he'll shame
Ever t' approach one of such noted name. 105
Car. But say she be not?

Duke. Yet on harlots' heads
New laws shall fall so heavy, and such blows
Shall give to those that haunt them, that Hippopolito
If not for fear of law, for love to her,
If he love truly, shall her bed forbear. 110 Car. At all the high heels i' the city and clap'em up? Why, my lord, you dive into a well unsearchable: all the whores within the walls, and without the walls? I would not be he should meddle with them for ten such duk-dom; the army that you speak on is able to fill all the prisons within this city, and to leave not a drinking-room in any tavern besides.

Duke. Those only shall be caught that are of note;

Harlots in each street flow:

The fish being thus 'th net, onself will sit,
And with eye most severe dispose of it.

Come, girl. [Exeunt DUKE AND INFELICE.]

Car. Araign the poor whores! 115

Ais. I'll not miss that sessions. 120

Font. Nor I.

Brr. Nor I, though I hold up my hand there myself. [Exeunt.

[SCENE III.] 2

Enter MATHEO, LODOVICO, and ORLANDO [disguised as a Serving-man].

Mat. Let who will come, my noble chevalier; I can but play the kind host, and bid 'em welcome.

Lod. We'll trouble your house, Matheo, but as Dutchmen do in taverns, drink, be merry, 6 and be gone.

1 Ains.
2 A room in Matheo's house.

Orl. Indeed, if you be right Dutchmen; if you fall to drinking, you must be gone.

Mat. The worst is, my wife is not at home;
but we'll fly high, my generous knight, for all that. There's no music when a woman is in 11 the concert.

Orl. No; for she's like a pair of virginals,
Always with jacks at her tail.

Enter ASTOLFO, CAROLO, BERALDO, and FON-TINELL.

Lod. See, the covey is sprung.

All. Save you, gallants.

Mat. Happily encounter'd, sweet bloods.

Lod. Gentlemen, you all know Signor Can-dido, the linen-draper, he that's more patient than a brown baker upon the day when he heats his oven, and has forty scolds about him. 31

All. Yes, we know him all; what of him?

Lod. Would it not be a good fit of mirth, to make a piece of English cloth of him, and to stretch him upon the tenters, 2 fill the threads of his own natural humour crack, by making 4 him drink healths, tobacco, dance, sing bawdy songs, or to run any bias 4 according as we think good to cast him? 35

Car. 'Twere a morris-dance worth the seeing.

Ais. But the old fox is so crafty, we shall hardly hunt him out of his den.

Mat. To that train I ha' given fire already;
and the hooch to draw him hither, is to see certain pieces of lawn, which I told him I have 5
as to sell, and indeed have such; fetch them down, Pacheco.

Orl. Yes, sir, I 'm your water-spaniel, and will fetch any thing— [Aside.] but I 'll fetch one dish of meat anon shall turn your stomach, and that's a constable. 38

Exit.

Enter BOTS ushering Mistress HORSELECH.

All. How now? how now?

Car. What galleys are 6 this? 39

Lod. Peace, two dishes of stewed prunes, 6 a bawd and a pandar. My worthy lieutenant Bots;
why, now I see thou 'rt a man of thy word, 40
welcome. — Welcome Mistress Horselech. 41

Pray, gentlemen, salute this reverend matron.

Mis. H. Thanks to all your worship's.

Lod. I bade a drawer send in wine, too: did none come along with thee, grammam, but the lieutenant?

Mis. H. None came along with me but Bots, it if like your worship.

Bots. Who the pox should come along with you but Bots.

Enter two Vintners [with wine].

All. Oh brave ! march fair.

Lod. Are you come? That's well.

Mat. Here's ordainable able to sack a city.

Lod. Come, repeat, read this inventory. 42

1 Vint. Imprima, a pottle 7 of Greek wine, a

1 A frame used for stretching cloth.
4 In any direction.
5 A state barge.
6 A common dish in the brothels of the time.
7 Two quarts.
pottle of Peter-sameene,\(^1\) a pottle of Charneco,\(^2\) and a pottle of Lestacion.\(^3\)

Lod. You’re paid?

2 Vint. Yes, Sir. \(^{Exc} \text{Y} \text{u} \text{e} \text{e} \text{t} \text{e} \text{r} \text{n} \text{e} \text{m} \text{e} \text{r} \text{s} \text{a} \text{r} \text{l} \text{e} \text{n} \text{t} \text{a} \text{l} \text{y} \text{e}nt.\)

Mat. So shall some of us be anon, I fear.\(^9\)

Bots. Here’s a hot day towards; but sounds, this is the life out of which a soldier sucks sweetness! When this artillery goes off roundly, some must drop to the floor:
ca non, demi-cannon, saker, and basilliak.\(^4\)

Lod. Give fire, lieutenant.

Bots. So, so: must I venture first upon the breach? To you all, gallants; Bots sets upon you all. \(^{7} \text{[Drinks.]}\)

All. It’s hard, Bots, if we pepper not you, as well as you pepper us.

Enter CANDIDO.

Lod. My noble linen-draper!—Some wine!—Welcome, old lad!

Mat. You’re welcome, signor.

Cand. These lawns, sir?

Mat. Presently; my man is gone for them.

We ha’ rigged a fleet, you see here, to sail about the world.

Cand. A dangerous voyage, sailing in such sharks.

Bots. There’s no casting over board yet.

Lod. Because you are an old lady, I will have you be acquainted with this grave citizen. Pray bestow your lips upon him, and bid him welcome.

Mis. H. Any citizen shall be most welcome to me:—I have used to buy ware at your shop.

Cand. It may be so, good madam.

Mis. H. Your prentices know my dealings well; I trust your good wife be in good case.
If it please you, bear her a token from my lips, by word of mouth. \(^{7} \text{[Kisses him.]}\)

Cand. I pray, no more; forsooth, ’tis very
well.

Indeed I love no sweetmeats.—[Aside.] Sh’s a breath

Stinks worse than fifty polecats. — Sir, a word,
Is she a lady?

Lod. A woman of a good house, and an ancient; she’s a hawd.

Cand. A bawd? Sir, I’ll steal hence, and see your laws

Some other time.

Mat. Steal out of such company? Pacheco, my man, is but gone for ’em. Lieutenant Bots, drink to this worthy old fellow, and teach him to fly high.

All. Swagger; and make him do’t on his knees.

Cand. How, Bots? Now bless me, what do I with Bots?

No wine in sooth, no wine, good master Bots.\(^{114}\)

Bots. Gray-beard, goat’s pizzle, ’tis a health; have this in your guts, or this, there [touching his sword]. I will sing a bawdy song, sir, be-1 A corruption of Pedro Ximenes; a sweet Spanish wine.
2 A Portuguese wine.
3 J. A. Alenccio, a red Italian muscatel wine.
4 Kind of cannon.
Mat. Is the wind turn’d? Well, this is that old wolf, my father-in-law.—Seek out your mistress, sirrah.

Orl. Yes, Sir,—[Aside.] As shafts by piecing are made strong, So shall thy life be straight’ned by this wrong.

All. In troth, we are sorry.

Mat. Brave men must be crost; pah, it’s but Fortune’s dice roving against me. Come, sir, pray use me like a gentleman; let me not be carried through the streets like a pageant.

Const. If these gentlemen please, you shall go along with them.

All. Be’t so: come.

Const. What are you, sir?

Bots. I, sir? Sometimes a figure, sometimes a cipher, as the State has occasion to cast up her accounts. I’m a soldier.

Const. Your name is Bots, is’t not?

Bots. Bots is my name; Bots is known to this company.

Const. I know you are, sir: what’s she?

Bots. A gentlewoman, my mother.

Const. Take ’em both along.

Bots. Me, sir?

Billmen. [Away, sir!]

Const. If he swagger, raise the street.

Bots. Gentlemen, gentlemen, whither will you drag us?

Lord. To the garden house. Bots, are we even with you?

Const. To Bridewell with ‘em.

Bots. You will answer this.

Const. Better than a challenge. I have warrant for my work, sir.

Lord. We’ll go before.

Const. Pray do.—

Exeunt [Matheo with Lodovico, Aatolfo, Carolo, Beraldo, and Fontinell; Bots and Mistress Horseleech, with Billmen.]

Who, Signor Candido? a citizen Of your degree consorted thus, and revelling In such a house.

Lord. Why, sir? what house, I pray?

Const. Lawd, and defam’d.

Const. Is’t so? thanks, sir: I’m gone.

Const. What have you there?

 Const. Lawns which I bought, sir, of the gentleman.

That keeps the house.

Const. And I have warrant here, To search for such stol’n ware: these lawns are stol’n.

Lord. Indeed!

Const. So he’s the thief, you the receiver: I’m sorry for this chance, I must commit you.

Lord. Me, sir, for what?

Const. These goods are found upon you, And you must answer’t.

Lord. Must I so?

Const. Most certain.

Lord. I’ll send for bail.

Const. I dare not: yet because...
Lod. Oh me! what monsters are men made by whores!
If this false fire do kindle him, there’s one faggot
More to the bonfire. Now to my Bridewell birds;
What song will they sing? Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter Duke, Infelice, Carolo, Astolfo, Bharlado, Fontinell, and three or four Masters of Bridewell.

Duke. Your Bridewell? that the name? For beauty, strength, Capacity and form of ancient building, Besides the river’s neighbourhood, few houses Wherein we keep our court can better it.

1. Must. Hither from foreign courts have princes come,
And with our duke did acts of State commence. Here that great cardinal had first audience, The grave Campayne; that duke dead, his son That famous prince, gave free possession Of this, his palace, to the citizens, To be the poor man’s ware-house; and endow’d it With lands to th’ value of seven hundred mark, With all the bedding and the furniture, once proper, As the lands then were, to an hospital Belonging to a Duke of Savoy. Thus Fortune can toss the world; a prince’s court Is thus a prison now.

Duke. ’Tis Fortune’s sport:
These changes common are: the wheel of fate Turns kingdoms up, till they fall desolate. But how are these seven hundred marks by th’ year Employ’d in this your work-house?

1. Must. War and peace Feed both upon those lands: when the iron doors Of war burst open, from this house are sent Men furnish’d in all martial compliment. The moon hath through her bow scarce drawn to th’ head, Like to twelve silver arrows, all the months, Since sixteen hundred soldiers went abroad. Here providence and charity play such parts, The house is like a very school of arts; For when our soldiers, like ships driven from sea, With ribs all broken, and with tatter’d sides, Cast anchor here again, their ragged bags How often do we cover that, like men, They may be sent to their own homes again. All here are but one swarm of bees, and strive To bring with wearied thighs honey to the hive. The sturdy beggar, and the lazy loon, Gets here hard hands, or lac’d corset. The vagabond grows staid and learns t’ obey.

The drone is beaten well, and sent away. As other prisons are, some for the thief, Some, by which undue credit gets relief From bridled debtors; others for the poor, So this is for the bawd, the rogue, the whore. Car. An excellent team of horse!

1. Must. Nor is it seen That the whip draws blood here, to cool the spleen Of any rugged bencher; nor does offence Feel smart on spiteful or rash evidence; But pregnant testimony forth must stand, Ere justice leave them in the beadle’s hand. As iron, on the anvil are they laid, Not to take blows alone, but to be made And fashion’d to some charitable use.

Duke. Thus wholsom’s laws spring from the worst abuse.

Enter Orlando, disguised as a Serving-man, before Bellafront.

Bell. Let mercy touch your heart-strings, gracious lord.

Duke. Is this the party?

Orl. This is the hen, my lord, that the cock with the lordly comb, your son-in-law, would crow over, and tread.

Duke. Are your two servants ready?

Orl. My two pedlars are pack’d together, my good lord.

Duke. ’Tis well; this day in judgment shall be spent: Vice, like a wound lanced, mends by punishment. Inf. Let me be gone, my lord, or stand unseen;

’Tis rare when a judge strikes and that none die, And ’t is unfit then women should be by.

1. Must. We’ll place you, lady, in some private room.

Inf. Pray do so.

Exit [with a Master, who returns alone].

Orl. Thus nice dames swear, it is unfit their eyes Should view men car’d up for anatomies, Yet they’ll see all, so they may stand unseen; Many women sure will sin behind a screen.

Enter Lodovico.

Lod. Your son, the Lord Hippolito, is ent’red.

Duke. Tell him we wish his presence. A word, Sforza;

On what wings flew he hither?

Lod. These:—I told him his lark whom he loved, was a Bridewell-bird; he’s mad that Tavern loafers. Subjects for dissection.
THE HONEST WHORE: PART II

this cage should hold her, and is come to let her out.

Duke. 'Tis excellent: away, go call him hither.

Exit LODOVICO. [34

Re-enter one of the Governors of the House;
BELAFRONT after him with MATHEO; after him the Constable; at another door LODovico and HIPPOLITO. ORLANDO steps forth and brings in two of his Servants disguised as Pedlars.

Duke. You are to us a stranger, worthy lord; 'Tis strange to see you here.

Hip. It is most fit

That where the sun goes, atomies follow it, Duke. Atomies neither shape nor honour bear.

Be you yourself, a sunbeam to shine clear. — Is this the gentleman? Stand forth and hear your accusation.

Mat. I'll hear none; I fly high in that: rather than kites shall seize upon me, and [94 pick out mine eyes to my face, I'll strike my talons through mine own heart first, and spit my blood in theirs. I am here for shriving those two foxes of your sinful pack. When those jackdaws have caw'd over me, then must I cry as guilty, or not guilty. The law has work enough already and therefore I'll put no work of mine into his hands; the hangman shall not's first. I did pluck those ganders, did rob them.

Duke. 'Tis well done to confess.

Mat. Confess and be hanged, and then I fly high, is't not so? That for that; a gallows is the worst rub that a good bowler can meet with; I stumbled against such a post, else this night I had play'd the part of a true son in these days, undone my father-in-law; with him would I ha' run at leap-frog, and come over his gold, though I had broke his neck for 't: but the poor salmon-trout is now in the net.

Hip. And now the law must teach you to fly high.

Mat. Right, my lord, and then may you fly love no more words: — a mouse, mum, you are stop'd.

Bell. Be good to my poor husband, dear my lords.

Mat. Ass!

Why shouldst thou pray them to be good to me, When no man here is good to one another? Duke. Did any hand work in this theft but yours?

Mat. O yes, my lord, yes: — the hangman has never one son at a birth, his children always come by couples. Though I cannot give the old dog, my father, a bone to gnaw, the daughter shall be sure of a choke-pear.

Yes, my lord, there was one more that fiddled my fine pedlars, and that was my wife.

Bell. Alas, I?

Orl. [Aside.] O everlasting, supernatural, sup-perlative villain!

All. Your wife, Matheo?

Hip. Sure it cannot be.

Mat. Oh, sir, you love no quarters of mutton that hang up, you love none but whole mutton. She set the robbery, I perform'd it; she spur'd me on, I gallop'd away.

1 Atomies

Orl. My lords, —

Bell. My lords, — fellow, give me speech, —

if my poor life May ransom thine, I yield it to the law.

Thou hurt'st thy soul, yet wip'st off no offence, By casting blots upon my innocence.

Let not the spare me, but tell truth; no, no, Who slip's his neck out of the misery.

Though not out of the mischief, let thy servant That 'shad in this base act accuse me here, Why should my husband perish, he go clear?

Orl. [Aside.] A good child, hang thine own father

Duke. Old fellow, was thy hand in too?

Orl. My hand was in the pie, my lord, I confess it. My mistress, I see, will bring me to the gallows, and so leave me; but I'll not leave her so: I had rather hang in a woman's com[68 pany, than in a man's; because if we should go to hell together, I should scarce be letten in, for all the devils are afraid to have any women come amongst them. As I am true thief, she neither consented to this felony, nor knew of it.

Duke. What fury prompts thee on to kill thy wife?

Mat. It is my humour, sir, 'tis a foolish bag-pipe that I make myself merry with. Why should I eat hemp-seed at the hangman's thirteen-pence halfpenny ordinary, and have this whore laugh at me, as I swing, as I totter?

Duke. Is she a whore?

Mat. A six-penny mutton pasty, for any to cut up.

Orl. Ah, toad, toad, toad.

Mat. A barber's citern for every serring-man to play upon; that lord, your son, knows it.

Hip. I, sir? Am I her bawd then?

Mat. No, sir, but she's your whore then.

Orl. [Aside.] Yea, spider; dost catch at great flies?

Hip. My whore?

Mat. I cannot talk, sir, and tell of your rees and your rees and your whirligigs and devices: but, my lord, I found 'em like sparrows in one nest, billing together, and billing of me. I took 'em in bed, was ready to kill him, was up to stab her—

Hip. Close thy rank jaws: — pardon me, I am vex'd. —

Thon art a villain, a malicious devil;

Deep as the place where thou art lost, thou liest.

Since I am thus far got into this storm,

I'll through, and thou shalt see I'll through unto me,

When thou shalt perish in it.

Re-enter INFELICE.

Inf. 'Tis my cue

To enter now. — Room! let my prize be play'd;

1 The amount of the hangman's fee.

2 Musical instruments hung in the barbers' shops of the period.

3 Bout. A term in fencing.
All. Ha, ha, ha.

Duke. Even now she wept, and pray'd; now does she curse?
1 Must. Seeing me; if still she had stay'd, this had been worse.

Hip. Was she ever here before?
1 Must. Five times at least, And thus, if men come to her, have her eyes Wrung, and wept out her bail.

All. Bots, you know her? Bots. Is there any gentleman here, that knows not a whore, and is he a hair the worse for that?

Duke. Is she a city-dame? She's so attired.
1 Must. No, my good lord, that's only but the veil
To her loose body. I have seen her here In gayer masking suits; as several sauces Give one dish several tastes, so change of habits In whores is a bewitching art: to-day She's all in colours to besot gallants, then In modest black, to catch the citizen, And this from their examination's drawn. Now shall you see a monster both in shape And nature quite from these, that sheds no tear Nor yet is nice, 'tis a plain raving bear; Many such whales are cast upon this shore.

All. Let's see her. 1 Must. Then behold a swaggering whore, Exeunt [Masters and Constables].

Orl. Keep your ground, Bots. Bots. I do but traverse to spy advantage how to arm myself.

Re-enter the two Masters first; after them the Constable; after them a Beadle beating a basin; then CATHERINA BOUNTINNALL, with Mistress HORSELEKECH; after them another Beadle with a blue head guarded with yellow.

Cat. Sire, when I cry, hold your hands, hold, you rogue-catcher, hold. — Bawd, are the French chiblands in your heels, that you can come no faster? Are not you, bawd, a whore's ancient, and must not I follow my colours? Mis. H. O Mistress Catherine, you do me wrong to accuse me here as you do, before the right worshipful. I am known for a motherly, honest woman, and no bawd.

Cat. Marry, how honest? Burnt at fourteen, seven times whipt, six times carted, nine times duck'd, search'd by some hundred and fifty constables, and yet you are honest? Honest Mistress Horselekech, is this world a world to keep bawds and whores honest? How many times hast thou given gentlemen a quart of wine in a gallon pot? How many twelve-penny fees, may two shilling fees, nay, when any ambassador's here been here, how many half-crown fees hast thou taken? How many carriers hast thou bribed for country wench's? How often have I rins your lungs in aqua vitae, and yet you are honest?

Duke. And what were you the whilst?

Cat. Marry hang you, master slave, who made you an examiner?

Lod. Well said! belike this devil spare no man.

Cat. What art thou, prithee? [To Bots.] Bots. Nay, what art thou, prithee?

Cat. A whore, art thou a thief?

Bots. A thief, no, I defy the calling; I am a soldier, have borne arms in the field, been in many a hot skirmish, yet come off sound.

Mis. H. Lieutenant Bots, where have ye been this many a day?

Bots. Old bawd, do not discredit me, seem not to know me.

Mis. H. Not to know ye, Master Bots? As long as I have breath, I cannot forget thy sweet face.

Duke. Why, do you know him? He says he is a soldier.

Cat. He a soldier? A pander, a dog that will lick up sixpence. Do ye hear, you master swines-smout, how long is 't since you held the door for me, and cried, 'To't again, no body comes!' Ye rogue, you?

All. Ha, ha, ha! y' are smelt out again, Bots. Bots. Pox ruin her nose for 't! An I be not revenged for this — um, ye bitch!

Lod. D'y hear me, madam? Why does your ladyship swagger thus? You 're very brave, methinks.

Cat. Not at your cost, master cod's-head; Is any man here bear-eyed to see me brave?

Ast. Yes, I am.

Because good clothes upon a whore's back Is like fair painting upon a rotten wall.

Cat. Marry muff, master whoremaster, you come upon me with sentences.

Ber. By this light, has small sense for 't.

Lod. O fie, fie, do not vex her! And yet methinks a creature of more scurrilous conditions should not know what a good petticoat were.

Cat. Marry, come out; you're so busy about my petticoat, you'll creep up to my placket, an ye could but attain the honour: but an the outsides offend your rogue-ships, look o' the lining, 'tis silk.

Duke. Is 't silk? 't is lined with, then?

Cat. Silk? Ay, silk, master slave, you would be glad to wipe your nose with the skirt on 't. This 't is to come among a company of cod's-heads that know not how to use a gentlewoman.

Duke. Tell her the duke is here.

1 Must. Be modest, Kate, the duke is here.

Cat. If the devil were here, I care not. Set forward, ye rogues, and give attendance according to your places! Let bawds and whores be sad, for I'll sing an the devil were a-dying.

Exit [with Mistress Horselekech and Beadles].

* Disdain.
* Fools.
Duke. Why before her does the basin ring?

1 Mast. It is an emblem of their revelling. The whips we use set forth their wanton blood, Making them calm; and, more to calm their pride, Instead of coaches they in carts do ride.

Will your grace see more of this bad ware?

Duke. No, shut up shop, we'll now break up the fair.

Yet ere we part — you, sir, that take upon ye The name of soldier, that true name of worth, Which, action, not vain boasting, best sets forth, To let you know how far a soldier’s name Stands from your title, and to let you see Soldiers must not be wrong’d where princes be; This be your sentence: —

All. Defend yourself, Bots.

Duke. First, all the private sufferance that the house Inflicts upon offenders, you, as the basest, Shall undergo it double, after which You shall be whipt, sir, round about the city, Then banished from the land.

Bots. Beseech, your grace!

Duke. Away with him, see it done. Panders and whosee Are city-plagues, which, being kept alive, Nothing that looks like goodness ere can thrive. Now good Orlando, what say you to your bad son-in-law?

Orl. Marry this, my lord, he is my son-in-law, and in law will I be his father: for if law can pepper him, he shall be so parboil’d, that he shall stink no more i’ th’ nose of the common-wealth.

Bell. Be yet more kind and merciful, good father.

Orl. Dost thou beg for him, thou precious man’s meat, thou? Has he not beaten thee, kickst thee, trod on thee, and dost thou fawn on him like his spaniel? Has he not pawn’d thee to thy petticoat, sold thee to thy smock, made ye leap at a crust, yet wouldst have me save him?

Bell. Oh yes, good sir, women shall learn of me, To love their husbands in greatest misery; Then show him pity, or you wrack myself.

[Orl.] Have ye eaten pigeons, that you’re so kindhearted to your mate? Nay, you’re a couple of wild bears, I’ll have ye both baited at one stake: but as for this knave, the gal- lows is thy due, and the gallows thou shalt have. I’ll have justice of the duke, the law shall have thy life. — What, dost thou hold him? Let go his hand. If thou dost not forsake him, a father’s everlasting blessing fall upon both your heads! Away, go, kiss out of my sight, play thou the whore no more, nor thou the thief again; my house shall be thine, my meat shall be thine, and so shall my wine, but my money shall be mine, and yet when I die, so thou dost not fly high, take all: Yet, good Matheo, mend. Thus for joy weeps Orlando, and doth end.

Duke. Then hear, Matheo: all your woes are stayed By your good father-in-law: all your ills Are clear purg’d from you by his working pills.

Come, Signor Candido, these green young wits, We see by circumstance, this plot have laid Still to provoke thy patience, which they find A wall of brass; no armour’s like the mind. Thou hast taught the city patience, now our court Shall be thy sphere, where from thy good report, Rumours this truth unto the world shall sing, A patient man’s a pattern for a king. Exit.
In. Nay, you may laugh, but henceforth shun my bed,
With no whortle's leavings I'll be poisoned.

Exit.

Hip. O'er-reached so finely? 'Tis the very diamond
And letter which I sent. 'Tis villainy
Some spider closely weaves, whose poison'd bulk
I must let forth. Who's there without?

Ser. (within.) My lord calls?

Hip. Send me the footman.

Ser. (within.) Call the footman to my lord.—

Bryan, Bryan!

Re-enter Bryan.

Hip. It can be no man else, that Irish Judas,
Bred in a country where no venom prospers
But in the nation's blood, hath thus betray'd me.

Slave, get you from your service.

Bry. Fast meanest thou by this now?

Hip. Question me not, nor tempt my fury, villain!

Couldst thou turn all the mountains in the land
To hills of gold, and give me, here thou stayest not.

Bry. I fast, I care not.

Hip. Prate not, but get thee gone, I shall send else.

Bry. Ay, do prudy, I had rather have thee make a scabbard of my guts, and let out all de Irish puddings in my poor belly, den to be a false knife to de, 'tis fast! I will never see dine own sweet face more. A mauhind deer a gra, fare dee well, fare dee well; I will go steal owes again in Ireland. Exit.

Hip. He's damn'd that raised this whirlwind, which hath blown
Into her eyes this jealousy: yet I'll on,
I'll on, stood armed devils staring in my face.
To be pursued in flight, quickens the race.

Shall my blood-streams by a wife's lust be
bar'd?

Fond woman'd no: iron grows by strokes more

hard;

Lawless desires are sea scorning all bounds,
Or sulphur, which being ram'd up, more confound;

Struggling with madmen madness nothing stains;

Winds wrestling with great fires incense the flames.

Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter Bellafront, and Orlando [disguised
as a Serving-man], Matheo [following].

Bell. How now, what ails thy master?
Ori. Has taken a younger brother's purge,
forsooth, and that works with him.

Bell. Where is his cloak and rapier?

Ori. He has given up his cloak, and his rapier is bound to the peace. If you look a little higher, you may see that another hath entred into handfast for him too. Six and four have put him into this sweet.

Bell. Where's all his money?

Ori. 'Tis put over by exchange; his doublet was going to be translated, but for me. If any man would have lent but half a ducat on his beard, the hair of it had stuff a pair of breeches by this time. I had but one poor penny, and is that I was glad to nibgle out, and buy a hollywood to grace him through the street. As hap was, his boots were on, and them I dustied, to make people think he had been riding, and I had run by him.—

Bell. Oh me! — How does my sweet Matheo?

[Matheo comes forward.]

Mat. Oh rogue, of what devilish stuff are these dice made of, — the parings of the devil's corns of his toes, that they run thus damnably?

Bell. Pr'ythee, vex not.

Mat. If any handicraft's-man was ever suf-fer'd to keep shop in hell, it will be a dice-maker; he's able to undo more souls than the devil; I play'd with mine own dice, yet lost.

Ha! you any money?

Bell. 'Las, I ha' none.

Mat. Must have money, must have some, must have a cloak, and rapier, and things. Will you go set your lime-twiggs, and get me some birds, some money?

Bell. What lime-twiggs should I set?

Mat. You will not them? Must have cash and pictures, do ye hear, frailty? Shall I walk in a Plymouth cloak, that's to say, like a rogue, in my hose and doublet, and a crabtree endgel [in my hand, and you swim in your satins? Must have money, come! [Taking off her gown.

Ori. Is 't bed-time, master, that you undo my mistress?

Bell. Undo me? Yes, yes, at these ridings I
Have been too often.

Mat. Help to play, Pacheco.

Ori. Playing call you it?

Mat. I'll pawn you, by th' lord, to your very eyebrows.

Bell. With all my heart, since Heaven will have me poor;

As good be drown'd at sea, as drown'd at ashore.

Ori. Why, hear you, sir? I 'faith, do not make away her gown.

Mat. Oh! it's summer, it's summer; your only fashion for a woman now is to be light, to be light.

Ori. Why, pray sir, employ some of that [tell money you have of mine.

Mat. Thine? I'll starve first, I'll beg first; when I touch a penny of that, let these fingers ends rot.

Ori. [Aside.] So they may, for that's past [tell touching. I saw my twenty pounds fly high.

Mat. Knowest thou never a damn'd broker about the city?

Ori. Damn'd broker? Yes, five hundred.

Mat. The gown stood me in above twenty [tell
1 Irish: A maugheid ir a grith, O master, O love.

ducati; borrow ten of it. Cannot live without silver.

Ovl. I'll make what I can of it, sir; I'll be your broker. —

[Aside] But not your damn'd broker. Oh thou scurvy knave!

What makes a wife turn whore, but such a slave? Exit [with BELLAFFONT's gown].

Mat. How now, little chick, what ail'st thou? Weeping for a handful of tailor's shreds? Pox on them, are there not silks down at mercer's?

Bell. I care not for gay feathers, I.

Mat. What doest care for them? Why dost grieve?

Bell. Why do I grieve? A thousand sorrows strike
At one poor heart, and yet it lives. Matheo, Thou art a gamester; prithee, throw at all;
Set all upon one cast. We kneel and pray, And struggle for life, yet must be cast away. Meet misery quickly then, spit all, sell all, And when thou 'st sold all, spend it; but, I beseech thee, Build not thy mind on me to coin thee more; as To get it wouldst thou have me play the whore?

Mat. 'T was your profession before I married you.

Bell. Umh? it was indeed. If all men should be branded
For sins long since laid up, who could be saved? The quarter-day's at hand, how will you do?
To pay the rent, Matheo?

Mat. Why, do as all of our occupation do against 2 quarter-days: break up house, remove, shift your lodgings: pox a' your quarters!!

Enter LODOVICO.

Lod. Where's this gallant?

Mat. Signor Lodovico? how does my little Mirror of Knighthood? 9 This is kindly done, i' faith; welcome, by my trotch.

Lod. Then how dost, frolic? — Save you fair lady. —

Thou lookest snug and bravely, noble Mat.

Mat. Drink and feed, laugh and lie warm.

Lod. Is this thy wife?

Mat. A poor gentlewoman, sir, whom I make use of a' nights.

Lod. Pay custom to your lips, sweet lady.

Mat. [Kisses her.]

Lod. Some wine, sweetheart.

Mat. I'll send for 't then, i' faith.

Lod. You send for 't! — Some wine, I prithee.

Bell. I ha' no money.

Mat. 'Sblood, nor I. — What wine love you, signor?

Lod. Here! [offering money] or I'll not stay, I protest; trouble the gentlewoman too much?

Exit BELLAFFONT.

And what news flies abroad, Matheo?

Mat. Troth, none. Oh, signor, we ha' been merry in our days.

Lod. And no doubt shall again.

1 On. 2 In preparation for. 3 An allusion to a well-known romance. 4 A cast term for money.

The divine powers never shoot darts at men Mortal, to kill them.

Mat. You say true.

Lod. Why should we grieve at want? Say the world made thee
Her minion, that thy head lay in her lap, And that she dano'd thee on her wanton knee, She could but give thee a whole world: that's all,

And that all's nothing; the world's greatest part Cannot fill up one corner of thy heart.

Say the three corners were all fill'd, alas! Of what art thou possessest? A thin blown glass, Such as is by boys put into the air! Were twenty kingdoms thine, thou'dst live in care:

Thou couldst not sleep the better, nor live longer,

Nor merrier be, nor healthfuller, nor stronger.

If, then, thou wantst, thus make that want thy pleasure,

No man wants all things, nor has all in measure.

Mat. I am the most wretched fellow: sure 12 some left-handed priest hath christ'ned me, I am so unlucky; I am never out of one puddle or another; still failing.

Re-enter BELLAFFONT [with wine] and ORLANDO.

Fill out wine to my little finger. — With my heart, i' faith, [Drinks.]

Lod. Thanks, good Matheo. To your own sweet self. [Drinks.]

Re-enter ORLANDO.

Ovl. All the brokers' hearts, sir, are made of flint. I can with all my knocking strike but six sparks of fire out of them; here's six ducati, if you'll take them.

Mat. Give me them! [Taking money.] An evil conscience gnaw them all! Moths and plagues hang upon their lousy wardrobes!

Lod. Is this your man, Matheo?

Mat. [An old serving-man.]

Ovl. You may give me t'other half too, sir; that's the beggar.

Lod. What hast there, — gold?

Mat. A sort 5 of rascals are in my debt. God knows what, and they feed me with bits, with crumbs, a pox chok' them.

Lod. A word, Matheo; be not angry with me; believe it that I know the touch of time,

And can part copper, though it be gilded o'er. From the true gold: the sails which thou dost spread,

Would show well if they were not borrowed.

The sound of thy low fortunes drew me hither, I give my self unto thee; prithee, use me, I will bestow on you a suit of satin, And all things else to fit a gentleman,

Because I love you.

Mat. Thanks, good, noble knight!

Lod. Call on me when you please; till then farewell. Exit.

Mat. Hast angled? Hast out up this fresh salmon?

5 Band.
Bell. Wouldst have me be so base?
Mat. It's base to steal, it's base to be a whore:
Thou'lt be more base, I'll make thee keep a door. Exit.
Orol. I hope he will not mean away with all the money, will he?
Bell. Thou seest he does.
Orol. Nay then, it's well. I set my brains upon an upright last; though my wits be old, yet they are like a wither'd pippin, wholesom.
Look you, mistress, I told him I had but six [150]
ducats of the knave broker, but I had eight,
and kept these two for you.
Bell. 'Thou should'st have given him all.
Orol. What, to fly high?
Bell. Like waves, my misery drives on misery.
Exit.[180]
Orol. Sell his wife's clothes from her back! [185]
Does any poult and wench pull chickens alive?
He riots all abroad, wants all at home: he does, whereas he swaggers, swears, cheats, bor-rorts, pawns. I'll give him book and line, and more all this for little;
Yet sure 'tis end he'll delude all my hopes,
And show me a French trick danc'd on the ropes.[195] Exit.[200]

[SCENE III.]

Enter at one door LODOVICO and CAROLEO; at another BOTS, and MISTRESS HORSELEECH.
CANDIDO and his wife appear in the Shop.

Lod. Hist, hist, Lieutenant Bots! How dost,
man?
Car. Whither are you ambling, Madam
Horseleech?
Mist. H. About worldly profit, sir; how [205]
do your worships?
Bots. We want tools, gentlemen, to furnish the trade: they wear out day and night, they wear out till no metal be left in their back. We hear of two or three new wenchers are come [220] up with a carrier, and your old goshawk here
is flying at them.
Lod. And, faith, what flesh have you at
home?
Mist. H. Ordinary dishes; by my broth, [225] sweet men, there's few good i' th' city. I am as well furnish'd as any, and, though I say it, as well custom'd.
Bots. We have meats of all sorts of dressing;
we have stew'd meat for your Frenchman, [230] pretty light, picking meat for your Italian, and that which is rotten roasted for Don Spaniardo.
Lod. A pox on 't.
Bots. We have poulters' ware for your sweet bloods, as dove, chicken, duck, teal, [235] woodcock, and so forth: and butcher's meat for the citizen: yet meatmen fall very bad this year.
Lod. Stay, is not that my patient linen-drape yonder, and my fine young smugg mistress, [240]
his wife?
Car. Sirrah, grannam, I'll give thee for thy

1 I. e. turn bawd. 2 I. e. My expectation was just.
3 Will be hanged. 4 Prostitutes.
5 Formerly used to both sexes.
6 These words were often used as terms of endearment for female servants, indicating affection or familiarity. (Dyce.)
7 Gardens with summer-houses were very common in the suburbs of London at the time, and were often
8 used as places of intrigue. (Dyce.)
There was much bawdry us’d among the soldiers, 36
Though they were lousy. 36

Cand. It may be so, that’s likely. — True, indeed,
In every garden, sir, does grow that weed.
Bry. Pox on de gardens, and de weeds, and de fool’s cap dere, and de clouts! Hear? do
dost make a hobby-horse of me. 123

[Teasing the cambric.]

All. Oh, fie! he has torn the cambric.
Cand. 'Tis no matter.
Ast. It frets me to the soul.
Cand. So does’t not me.
My customers do oft for remnants call,
These are two remnants, now, no loss at all.
But let me tell you, were my servants here, 118
It would ha’ cost more. — Thank you, gentle-
men,
I use you well, pray know my shop again.

Exit.

All. Ha, ha, ha! come, come, let’s go, let’s go.

Exeunt.

[ACT IV]

[Scene I.]

Enter Matheo brave, 4 and Bellafont.

Mat. How am I suited, Front? Am I not gal-lan, ha?

Bell. Yes, sir, you are suited well.

Mat. Exceeding passing well, and to the time. 6

Bell. The tailor has play’d his part with you.

Mat. And I have play’d a gentleman’s part with my tailor, for I owe him for the making of it.

Bell. And why did you so, sir?

Mat. To keep the fashion; it’s your only 6 fashion now, of your best rank of gallants, to make their tailors wait for their money; nether were it wisdom indeed to pay them upon the first edition 6 of a new suit; for commonly the suit is owing for, when the linings 15
are worn out, and there’s no reason, then, that the tailor should be paid before the mercer.

Bell. Is this the suit the knight bestowed upon you?

Mat. This is the suit, and I need not shame to wear it, for better men than I would be [8 glad to have suits bestowed on them. It’s a generous fellow,—but—pox on him—we whose perianchons are the very limbecks and stillatories of good wit and fly high, must drive liquor out of stale gaping oysters. Shallow is knight, poor squire Tinschæo: I’ll make a wild Catalan 7 of forty such: hang him, he’s an ass, he’s always sober.

Bell. This is your fault to wound your friends
still.

Mat. No, faith, Front, Lodovico is a noble

1 A room in Matheo’s house. 8 In the fashion.
4 Finely attired. 9 Delivery.
7 "It would take forty such knights to make a thief." Catala is China; the Chinese were supposed to be great thieves.
Orl. So, sir, I do hear, sir, more of you than you dream I do.

Mat. You fly a little too high, sir.

Orl. Why, sir, too high?

Mat. I ha' suff'red your tongue, like a barr'dcerer-tray, 2 to run all this while, and ha' not stopt it.

Orl. Well, sir, you talk like a gamester.

Mat. If you come to bark at her because she's a poor rogue, look you, here's a fine path, a sir, and there, there, there, the door.

Bell. Matheo!

Mat. Your blue coats stay for you, sir. I love a good honest roaring boy, and so —

Orl. That's the devil.

Mat. Sir, sir, I'll ha' no Juves in my house to thunder avast. She shall live and be maintained when you, like a keg of musty stur —[ acompañe, shall stink. Where? In your coffin. How? Be a musty fellow, and lowly.

Orl. I know she shall be maintained, but how? She like a queen, thou like a knave; she like a whore, thou like a thief.

Mat. Thief? Zounds! Thief?

Bell. Good, dearest Mat! — Father!

Mat. Fox on you both! I'll not be braved. New satin clothes to be put down with bare budy velvet. Thief!

Orl. Ay, thief, 1'art a murderer, a cheat, a whoremonger, a pot-hunter, a borrower, a beggar —

Bell. Dear father —

Mat. An old ass, a dog, a churl, a chuff, an usurer, a villain, a moth, a marge mule, [with an old velvet foot-cloth on his back, sir.

Bell. Oh me!

Orl. Varlet, for this I'll hang thee.

Mat. Ha, ha, alas!

Orl. Thou keepest a man of mine bare, [under my nose.

Mat. Under thy beard.

Orl. As arrant a smell-smock, for an old mutton-monger 3 as thyself.

Mat. No, as yourself.

Orl. As arrant a pursé-taker as ever cried, Stand I yet a good fellow I confess, and valiant; but he'll bring thee to' th' gallows. You both have robb'd of late two poor country peddlers.

Bell. Oh, sir, no more.

Orl. Ay, knave, two peddlars. Hue and cry [is up, warrants are out, and I shall see thee climb a ladder.

Mat. And come down again as well as a bricklayer or a tiler. — [Aside.] How the vengeance knows he this? — If I be hanged, [I'll tell the people I married old Friscobaldo's daughter; I'll frisco you, and your old carcass.

Orl. Tell what you canst; if I stay here longer, I shall be hang'd too, for being in thy company; therefore, as I found you, I leave [or you —

1 Turn over, sell. 2 Whoremonger.
Mat. Kneel, and get money of him.

Orl. A knife and a queen, a thief and a strumpet, a couple of beggars, a brace of beggars.

Mat. Hang upon him — Ay, ay, sir, fare you well; we are so — follow close — we are beggars — in satin — to him.

Bell. Is this your comfort, when so many years

You ha' left me frozen to death?

Orl. Freeze still, starve still!

Bell. Yes, so I shall: I must: I must and will.

If, as you say, I'm poor, relieve me then,

Let me not sell my body to base men.

You call me strumpet, Heaven knows I am none:

Your cruelty may drive me to be one:

Let not that sin be yours; let not the shame

Of common whore live longer than my name.

That cunning bawd, Necessity, night and day

Plots to undo me; drive that hag away,

Lest being at lowest ebb, as now I am,

I sink for ever.

Orl. Lowest ebb, what ebb?

Bell. So poor, that, though to tell it be my shame,

I am not worth a dish to hold my meat;

I am yet poorer, I want bread to eat.

Orl. It’s not seen by your cheeks.

Mat. [Aside.] I think she has read an homily
to tickle the old rogue.

Orl. Want bread! There’s, satin: bake that.

Mat. ‘Sblood, make pasties of my clothes?

Orl. A fair new cloak, stew that; an excellent gift rapier.

Mat. Will you eat that, sir?

Orl. I could feast ten good fellows with these hangers.1

Mat. The pox, you shall!

Orl. I shall not, till thou begg’st, think thou art yet;

And when thou begg’st I’ll feed thee at my door,

As I feed dogs, with bones; till then beg, borrow,

Paw, steal, and hang, turn bawd, when thou art whore.

[Aside.] My heart-strings sure would crack,

were they strain’d more.

Exit. 150

Mat. This is your father, your damn’d — Confusion light upon all the generation of you! He can come bragging hither with four white herrings at’tail in blue coats, without roses in their bellies; but I may starve ere he give me so much as a cob.2

Bell. What tell you me of this? alas!

Mat. Go, trot after your dad, do you capitulate; I’ll pawn not for you; I’ll not steal to be hanged for such an hypocritical, close, common harlot: away, you dog! —

Brave! faith! Udefoot, give me some meat.

Bell. Yes, sir.

Exit.

Mat. Goodman slave, my man too, is gallop’d to the devil a’ the’ other side: Pacheco, I’ll checho you. Is this your dad’s day? Eng- [ese land, they say, is the only hell for horses, and only paradise for women: pray get you to that paradise, because you’re called an honest whore; there they live none but honest whores with a pox. Marry, here in our city, all your [134] sex are but foot-cloth nags: the master no sooner lights but the man leaps into the saddle.

Re-enter Bellafont [with meat and drink].

Bell. Will you sit down, I pray, sir?

Mat. [sitting down.] I could tear, by th’ Lord, his flesh, and eat his midriff in salt, as I eat this: — must I choke? — My father Friscohaldo, I shall make a pitiful hog-lose of you, Orlando, if you fall once into my fingers — Here’s the savouriest meat! I ha’ got a stomach with chafing.4 What rogue should tell him of those [135] two pedlars? A plague choke him, and gnavw him to the bare bones! — Come fill.

Bell. Thou sweatest with very anger, good sweet. You not, ’las, is no fault of mine. I never felt better ribs.

Bell. A neighbour sent it me.

Re-enter Orlando [disguised as a Serving-man].

Orl. What will you do, sir?

Mat. Beat out the brains of a beggarly —

Orl. Beat out an ass’s head of your own.

Away, Mistress! [Exit Bellafont.] Zounds, do but touch one hair of her, and I’ll so quit your cap with old iron, that your corxoall shall ache the worse these seven years for’t. Does she look like a roasted rabbit, that you must have the head for the brains?

Mat. Ha, ha! go out of my doors, you rogue! Away, four marks; trudge.

Orl. Four marks? No, sir, my twenty pound that you ha’ made fly high, and I am come.

Mat. Must I be fed with chippings? You’re best get a clapdish,6 and say y’ are proctor to some spittle-house. — Where hast thou been, Pacheco? Come hither my little turkeys-cock.

Orl. I cannot abide, sir, to see a woman wrong’d, not I.

Mat. Sirrah, here was my father-in-law to-day.

Orl. Fish, then y’ are full of crowns.

Mat. Hang him! he would ha’ thrust crowns upon me, to have fall’n in again, but I scorn cast clothes, or any man’s gold.

Orl. [Aside.] — But mine. How did he brook that, sir?

Mat. Oh, swore like a dozen of drunken tinkers; at last growing foul in words, he and [136] four of his men drew upon me, sir.

1 Horses with long housings.

2 A dish carried by beggars, with a lid used to rattte to attract notice.

3 Hospital.
Equato. Is't pity?

Mal. Ay, marry is't, philosophical Equato;
And 'tis pity that thou, being so excellent a scholar by art, should be so ridiculous a fool by nature. — I have a thing to tell you, duke: bid James avoint, bid James avanto.

Pietro. Leave us, leave us.

Exeunt all saving Pietro and Malevole.

Now, sir, what is't?

Mal. Duke, thou art a becco, 1 a cornuto. 2

Pietro. How!

Mal. Thou art a cuckold.

Pietro. Speak, unsheal him quick.

Mal. With most tumbler-like nimbleness.

Mal. Mendoza is the man makes thee a horn'd beast; duke, 'tis Mendoza corneutes thee.

Mal. As a lawyer's beard.

There is an old crone in the court, her name is Maquerelle,

She is my mistress, sooth to say, and she doth ever tell me.

Blirt, 5 o' rhyme, blirt o' rhyme! Maquerelle is a cunning bawd; I am an honest villain; thy wife is a close drab; 6 and thou art a notorious cuckold. Farewell, duke.

Pietro. Stay, stay.

Mal. Dull, dull duke, can lazy patience make lame revenge? O God, for a woman to make a man that which God never created, never made?

Pietro. What did God never make?

Mal. A cuckold: to be made a thing that's hoodwinked with kindness, whilst every rascal slipes his brows; to have a coxoomb with egregious horns pinn'd to a lord's back, every page sporting himself with delightful laughter, whilst he must be the last must know it. Pistols and poniards! pistols and poniards!

Pietro. Death and damnation!

Mal. Lightning and thunder!

Pietro. Vengeance and torture!

Mal. Cato! [7

Pietro. O, revenge!

Mal. [8 Nay, to select among ten thousand fairs

A lady far inferior to the most,

In fair proportion both of limb and soul;
To take her from austerer check of parents,
To make her by his most devoutest rites,
Make her commandress of a better essence

Than is the gorgeous world, even of a man;
To hug her with as rai'd an appetite
As unners do their dul'd-up treasury

(Thinking none tells it but his private self);
To meet her spirit in a nimble kiss,
Distilling panting ardour to her heart;

True to her sheets, nay, diet's strong his blood,
To give her height of hymenial sweets,

Pietro. O God!

Mal. Whilst she lisps, and gives him some court-quarquechose,

Made only to provoke, not satiate:

And yet, even then, the thaw of her delight
Flows from cold heat of apprehension,

Only from strange imagination's rankness,

That forms the adulterer's presence in her soul,

And makes her think she slips the foul knave's loins.

Pietro. Affliction to my blood's root!

Mal. Nay, think, but think what may proceed of this; adultery is often the mother of incest.

Pietro. Incest!

Mal. Yes, incest: mark: — Mendoza of his wife begets perchance a daughter: Mendoza dies, his son marries this daughter: say you? nay, 'tis frequent, not only probable, but no [10 question often acted, whilst ignorance, fearless ignorance, clasps his own seed.

Pietro. Hidous imagination!

Mal. Adultery! Why, next to the sin of simony, 'tis the most horrid transgression under the cope of salvation.

Pietro. Next to simony!

Mal. Ay, next to simony, in which our men in next age shall not sin.

Pietro. Not sin! why?

Mal. Because (thanks to some churchmen) our age will leave them nothing to sin with. But adultery, O dulness! should show exemplary punishment, that intemperate bloods may freeze but to think it. I would damn him and all his generation: my own hands should do it; ha, I would not trust heaven with my vengeance anywhere.

Exit Pietro.

[12 Mal. Farewell.

Lean thoughtfulness, a sallow meditation,
Such thy veins dry! Distemperance rob thy sleep!

The heart's disquiet is revenge most deep:

He that gets blood, the life of flesh but spills,

But he that breaks heart's peace, the dear soul kills.

Well, this disguise doth yet afford me that Which kings do seldom hear, or great men use, —

Free speech: and though my state's usurped,

Yet this affected strain gives me a tongue

As fretless as is an emperor's,

I may speak foolishly, ay, knavishly,

Always carelessly, yet no one thinks it fashion

To poise 12 my breath; for he that laughs and strikes

Duke. I'll torment thee now: my just revenge From heaven than crown a richer gem shall part; Beneath God, naught's so dear as a calm heart.]

SENEZ IV.1

Enter CELSO.

CELIO. My honour'd lord,—

MAL. Peace, speak low, peace! O Celso, constant lord,

Thou to whose faith I only rest discovered,

Thou, one of full ten millions of men,

That loves virtue only for itself;

Thou in whose hands old Ops² may put her soul

Behold forever-banish'd Altofront,

This Genoa's last year's duke. O truly noble! I wanted those old instruments of state,

Dissemblance and suspect: I could not time it,

Celso; My thoughts stood like a point in midst of a circle,

To all of equal nearness; bore with none;

Rein'd all alike; so slept in fearless virtue,

Suspectless, too suspectless; till the crowd,

Still likerous of² untired novelties)

Impatient with severer government,

Made strong with Florence, banish't Altofront.

CELIO. Strong with Florence! ay, thence your Thrice chief rose;

For when the daughter of the Florentine

Was match'd once with this Pisto, now duke,

No stratagem of state untried was left,

Till you of all—

MAL. Of all was quite bereft:

ALAS. M aria too, close prisoned,

My true faith'd duchess, ¹ the citadel!²

CELIO. I'll still adhere: let's mutiny and die.

MAL. O, no, climb not a falling tower, Celso;

'Tis well held desperation, no zeal,

Hopeless to strive with fate. Peace! Temporize!

Hope, hope, that never forsk' st the wretched' st man,

Yet bidst me live, and lurk in this disgrace!

What, play I well the free-breath'd discontent?

Why, man, we are all philosophical monarchs

Or natural fools. Celso, the court's a fire;
The duchess' sheets will smoke for 't ere be long:

Impure Mendoza, that sharp-nos' d lord, that made

The cursed match that linkt Genoa with Florence,

Now broad-horns the duke, which he now knows.

Dissord to malcontents is very manna:

When the weaks are burst, then scuffle, Alto-front.

CELIO. Ay, but durt,—

1 The same.
2 The goddess of plenty.
3 Having an appetite for.
4 Or print the rest of this speech as prose, perhaps rightly.

MAL. 'Tis gone; 't is swallowed like a mineral.

Some say 't will work; plent, I'll not shrink:

He's resolute who can no lower sink:

[Enter BILISO, MALVOLE shifts his speech.

O the father of May-poles! did you never see a fellow whose strength consisted in his breath, [as respect in his office, religion in his lord, and love in himself, why, then, behold!]

BIL. Signior,—

MAL. My right worshipful lord, your court night-cap makes you have a passing high forehead.

BIL. I can tell you strange news, but I am sure you know them already: the duke speaks much good of you.

MAL. Go to, then: and shall you and I now enter into a strict friendship?

BIL. Second one another?

MAL. Yes.

BIL. Do one another good offices?

MAL. Just: what though I call'd thee old ox, egregious wittol, broken-bellied coward, rotten mummy? yet, since I am in favour—

BIL. Words of course, terms of disport. His grace presents you by me a chain, as his grateful remembrance for—I am ignorant for [as what; marry, ye may impart—yet howsoever—come— dear friend; dost know my son?

MAL. Your son?

BIL. He shall eat wood-cocks, dance jigs, make possets, and play at shuttle-cock with [is any young lord about the court: he has as sweet a lady, too; dost know her little bitch?

MAL. 'T is a dog, man.

BIL. Believe me, a she-bitch. O, 't is a good creature! thou shalt be her servant. I'll [set make thee acquainted with my young wife too: what! I keep her not at court for nothing. 'Tis grown to supper-time; come to my table: that, anything I have, stands open to thee.

MAL. (Aside to CELZNO.) How smooth to him that is in state of grace,

How servile is the rugged' st courtier's face! What profit, nay, what nature would keep down, Are heav'd to them are minions to a crown.

Envious ambition never sates his thirst,

Till, sucking all, he swells and swells, and bursts.

BIL. I shall now leave you with my always-best wishes; only let's hold betwixt us a firm correspondence, a mutual friendly-reciprocal kind of a steady-unanimous-heartily-

leagued—

MAL. Did your signorship ne'er see a pigeon-house that was smooth, round, and white without, and full of holes and stink within? He' ye not old courtier?

BIL. O, yes, 'tis the form, the fashion of them all.

MAL. Adieu, my true court-friend; farewell, my dear Castilio.²

Exit BILISO.

² Q. omits II. 44-46.
³ An allusion to Castiglione, author of The Courtier.
Celso. Yonder’s Mendoza.

Mal. True, the privy-key.

Celso. I take my leave, sweet lord.

Mal. ’Tis fit; away! Exit Celso.

SCENE V.1

Enter Mendoza with three or four Suitors.

Men. Leave your suits with me; I can and will. Attend my secretary; leave me.

[Exeunt Suitors.]

Mal. Mendoza, hark ye, hark ye. You are a treacherous villain: God b’w i’ ye!

Men. Out, you base-born rascal!

Mal. We are all the sons of heaven, though a tripe-wife were our mother: ah, you whoreson, hot-breind he-marmoset! Aegisthus! I didst ever hear of one Aegisthus?

Men. Gisthus?

Mal. Ay, Aegisthus: he was a filthy incontinent flesh-monger, such a one as thou art.

Men. Out, grubning rogue!

Mal. Creastes, beware Creastes!

Men. Out, beggar!

Mal. I once shall rise!

Men. Thou rise!

Mal. At the resurrection.

No vulgar seed but once may rise and shall;
No king so huge but ’fore he die may fall.

[Exit.

Men. Now, good Elysium! what a delicious heaven is it for a man to be in a prince’s favour! O sweet God! O pleasure! O fortune! O all thou best of life! What should I think, what say, what do to be a favourite, a minion? [as to have a general timorous respect observe a man, a stateful silence in his presence, a solitari ness in his absence, a confused hum and busy murmur of obsequious suitors training him; the cloth held up, and way proclaim’d be fore him; petitionary vassals latching the pavement with their alavish knees, whilst some odd palace-lampreals that engender with snakes, and are full of eyes on both sides, with a kind of inanition humbleness, fix all [as their delights upon his brow. O blessed state! what a ravishing prospect doth the Olympus of favour yield! Death, I corpute the duke! Sweet women! most sweet ladies! nay, angels! by heaven, he is more assured than a devil [as that hates you, or is hated by you; and happier than a god that loves you, or is beloved by you. You preservers of mankind, life-blood of society, who would live, nay, who can live without you? O paradise! how majestical is your [as masterer presence! how imperiously chaste is your more modest face! but, O, how full of ravishing attraction is your pretty, petulant, languishing, lasciviously-composed countenance! these amorous smiles, these soul- [as warming sparkling glances, ardent as those flames that singed the world by heedless Phae ton! in body how delicate, in soul how witty, in discourse how pregnant, in life, how wary, in favours how judicious, in day how sociable, and [as in night how — O pleasure unutterable! indeed, it is most certain, one man cannot deserve only to enjoy a beatuous woman: but a duchess! In despite of Phoebus, I’ll write a sonnet instantly in praise of her. Exit.

SCENE VI.6

Enter Ferneze ushering Aurelia, Emilia and Maquerelle bearing up her train, Bianca attending; then exeunt Emilia and Bianca.

Aurel. And is’t possible? Mendoza slight me! Possible?

Fer. Possible!

What can be strange in him that’s drunk with favour.

Grows insolent with grace? — Speak, Maquerelle.

Maq. To speak feelingly, more, more richly in solid sense than worthless words, give me those jewels of your ears to receive my enforced duty. As for my part, ’tis well known I can put anything (Ferneze privately feeds Maq. and Maquerelle’s hands with jewels during this speech) can bear patiently with any man: but when I heard he wrung your precious sweetness, I was enforced to take deep offence. ’Tis most certain he loves Emilia with high appetite: [as and, as she told me (as you know we women impart our secrets one to another), when she reproached his suit, in that he was possessed with your endeared grace, Mendoza most ingrate fully renounced all faith to you.

Fer. Nay, call’d you — Speak, Maquerelle, speak.

Maq. By heaven, witch, drie’d biscuit; and contested blushlessly he lov’d you but for a spur or so.

Fer. For maintenance.

Maq. Advancement and regard.

Aurel. O villain! O impudent Mendoza!

Maq. Nay, he is the rustiest-jay’d, the foulest mouth’d knave in railing against our sex: he will rail again’ women—

Aurel. How? how?

Maq. I am ashamed to speak ’t. I. Aurel. I love to hate him: speak.

Maq. Why, when Emilia scorn’d his base unsteadiness, the black-throated rascal scolded, and said—

Aurel. What?

Maq. Troth, ’tis too shameless.

Aurel. What said he?

Maq. Why, that, at four, women were [as fools; at fourteen, drabs; at forty, bawds; at fourscore, witches; and [at] a hundred, cats.

Aurel. O unlimitable impudence!

Fer. But as for poor Ferneze’s fixed heart,

Was never shadeless meadow drier parched

Under the scorching heat of heaven’s dog,

Then is my heart with your enforcing eyes.

Maq. A hot simile.

1 The same.
2 Following.
3 Fay obsequious attention to.
4 Lampreys.
5 The same.
Fer. Your smiles have been my heaven, your frowns my hell:
O, pity, then! grace should with beauty dwell.

Maq. Reasonable perfect, by 'r lady.

Aurel. I will love thee, be it but in despite
Of that Mendoza: — witch! Fernesse, — witch! —
Fernesse, thou art the duchess' favourite:
Be faithful, private: but 'tis dangerous.

Fer. His love is lifeless that for love fears death:
The worst that's due to sin, O, would 't were death!

Aurel. Enjoy my favour. I will be sick instantly and take physic: therefore in depth of night visit —

Maq. Visit her chamber, but conditionally you shall not offend her bed: by this diamond!
Fer. By this diamond. Gives it to Maq.
Maq. Nor tarry longer than you please: by this ruby!
Fer. By this ruby. Gives again.
Maq. And that the door shall not creak.
Fer. And that the door shall not creak.
Maq. Nay, but swear.
Fer. By this purse. Giving her his purse.
Maq. Go to, I'll keep your oaths for you: [11 remember, visit.

Enter Mendoza, reading a sonnet.

Aurel. Dried biscuit! — Look where the base wretch comes.

Men. "Beauty's life, heaven's model, love's queen."

Maq. That's his Emilia.

Maq. Meaning Emilia.

Men. "Thou only wonder that the world hath seen."

Maq. That's Emilia.

Aurel. Must I, then, hear her praise? — Mendoza!

Men. Madam, your excellency is graciously encount'red: I have been writing passionate flashes in honour of —

Erst Fernesse.

Aurel. Out, villain, villain! O judgment, where have been my eyes? what Bewitch'd election made me dote on thee? what sorcery made me love thee? But, be gone; Bury thy head. O, that I could do more Than losst thee! hence, worst of ill! No reason else, our reason is our will.

Erst with Maquerelle.

Men. Women I nay, Furies; nay, worse; [2 for they torment only the bad, but women good and bad. Damnation of mankind! Breath, hast thou prai'd them for this? and is 't you, Fernesse, are wriggled into smock-grace? Sit sure. O, that I could rail against these monsters in nature, models of hell, curse of the earth, women I that dare attempt anything, and what they attempt they care not how they accomplish; without all premeditation or prevention; rash in taking, desperate in working; impa- tient is suffering; extreme in desiring; slaves unto appetite, mistresses in dissembling, only constant in unconstancy, only perfect in counterfeit; their words are feigned, their eyes forg'd, their sighs dissembled, their looks counterfeit, their hair false, their given hopes deceitful, their very breath artificial; their blood is the only god; bad clothes and old age are only the devils they tremble at. That I could rail now!

Scene VII.

Enter Pietro, his sword drawn.

Pietro. A mischief fill thy throat, thou foul-jaw'd slave!

Say thy prayers.

Men. I ha' forgot 'em.

Pietro. Thou shalt die.

Men. So shalt thou. I am heart-mad.

Pietro. I am born-mad.

Men. Extreme mad.

Pietro. Monstrously mad.

Men. Why?

Pietro. Why! thou, thou hast dishonoured my bed.

Men. I! Come, come, sit; here's my bare heart to thee, As steadily as is the centre to this glorious world:
And yet, hark, thou art a cornuto, — but by me?

Pietro. Yes, slave, by thee.

Men. Do not, do not with tart and spleenful breath

Lose him can lose thee. I offend my duke!

Bear record, O ye dumb and raw-air'd nights, How vigilant my sleepless eyes have been To watch the traitor! Record, thou spirit of truth.

With what debasement I ha' thrown myself To under offices, only to learn The truth, the party, time, the means, the place,

By whom, and when, and where thou Wert disgrace'd!

And am I paid with "slave"? Hath my intrusion To places private and prohibited,

Only to observe the closer passages, Heaven knows with vows of revelation, Made me suspected, made me deem'd a villain? What rogue hath wrong'd us?

Pietro. Mendoza, I may err.

Men. Err! 'tis too mild a name: but err and err,

Run giddy with suspect, 'fore through me thou know That which most creatures, save thyself, do know:

Nay, since my service hath so loath'd reject, 'Fore I'll reveal, shalt find them alight together.

Pietro. Mendoza, thou know'st I am a most plain-breasted man.

Men. The fitter to make a cuckold: would your brows were most plain too!
[SCENE VIII.]

[Enter Malevole and Passarelo.]

Mal. Fool, most happily encountred: cannot sing, fool?

Pass. Yes, I can sing, fool, if you'll bear the burden; and I can play upon instruments, secretly, as gentlemen do. O, that I had been a guided! I should then have been a fat fool for a chamber, a squeaking fool for a tavern, and a private fool for all the ladies.

Mal. You are in good case since you came to court, fool: what, guarded, guarded!

Pass. Yes, faith, even as footmen and bawds wear velvet, not for an ornament of honour, but for a badge of drudgery; for, now the duke is discontented, I am fain to fool him asleep every night.

Mal. What are his griefs?

Pass. He hath sore eyes.

Mal. I never observed so much.

Pass. Horrible sore eyes; and so hath every cuckold, for the roots of the horns spring in the eyeballs, and that's the reason the horn of a cuckold is as tender as his eye, or as that growing in the woman's forehead, twelve years since, that could not endure to be touch'd. The duke hangs down his head like a columbine.

Mal. Passarelo, why do great men beg fools?

Pass. As the Welshman stole rushes when there was nothing else to fetch; only to keep bogging in fashion.

Mal. Pooh, thou givest no good reason; thou speakest like a fool.

Pass. Faith, I utter small fragments, as your knight counts your city widow with jingling of his gilt spurs, advancing his bush-coloured beard, and taking tobacco: this is all the mirror of their knotty complements. Nay, I shall talk when my tongue is a-going; 'tis like a citizen on horseback, evermore in a false gallop.

Mal. And how doth Maquerelle fare nowadays?

Pass. Faith, I was wont to salute her as our English women are at their first landing in Flushing: 'I would call her whore: but now she with that antiquity leaves her as an old piece of plastic to work by, I only ask her how her rotten teeth fare every morning, and so leave her. She was the first that ever invented perfum'd smocks for the gentlewomen, and [woollen shoes, for fear of creaking for the visitant. She wore an excellent lady, but that her face peeleth like Muscovy glass.

Men. Who cannot feign friendship can never produce the effects of hatred. Honest fool duke! subtle lascivious duchess! silly novice Fernese! I do laugh at ye. My brain is in labour till it produce mischief, and I feel sudden throst, proofs sensible, the issue is at hand. As bears shape young, so I'll form my device, Which grows more horrid: vengeance makes men wise.

[Exit.]
II. i.

THE MALCONTENT

Mal. And how doth thy old lord, that hath wit enough to be a flatterer, and conscience enough to be a knave?

Pass. O, excellent! he keeps beside me fifteen jesters, to instruct him in the art of fooling, and utters their jests in private to the duke and duchess. He’ll lie like to your Switzer or [so lawyer; he’ll be of any side for most money.

Mal. I am in haste, be brief.

Pass. As your fiddler when he is paid. — He’ll thrive, I warrant you, while your young [as courtier stands like Good Friday in Lent; men long to see it, because more fatting days come after it; else he’s the leastest and pitifullest actor in the whole pageant. Adieu, Malevole.

Mal. O world most vile, when thy loose vanities, Taught by this fool, do make the fool seem wise! [Pass. You’ll know me again, Malevole.

Mal. O, ay, by that velvet.

Pass. Ay, as a petitfogger by his buckram bag. I am as common in the court as an host- [as’s lips in the country; knights, and clowns, and lawyers, and all share me; the court cannot possibly be without me. Adieu, Malevole. [Exit.]

ACT II

SCENE I.1

Enter MENDOZA, with a scone;2 to observe Ferneze’s entrance, who, whilst the act is playing, enters unbruced, two Pages before him with lights; met by MAQUERELLE and convey’d in; the Pages are sent away.

Men. He’s caught, the woodcock’s head is i’ th’ nose.

Now treads Ferneze in dangerous path of lust, Swareing his sense is merely deified:

The fool grasps clouds, and shall beget Centaurs:

And now, in strength of panting faint delight,3 The goat bids heaven envy him. — Good gooses, I can afford thee nothing
But the poor comfort of calamity, pity.

Lust’s like the plumesmats hanging on clocklines, Will never fare till all is quite undone:4
Sneak is the course salt sallow lust doth run; Which thou shalt try, I’ll be reveng’d. Duke, thy suspect;

Duchess, thy disgrace; Ferneze, thy rivalship; Shall have swift vengeance. Nothing so holy, No band of nature so strong,5

No law of friendship so sacred, But I’ll profane, burst, violate, ’fore I’ll endure disgrace, contempt, and poverty. Shall I, whose very “Hum” struck all heads bare,

Whose face made silence, creaking of whose shoe For’d the most private passages fly ope,

Scraper like a servile dog at some latch’d door? Learn how to make a leg; and cry Betseesoye, Pray ye, is such a lord within? be aw’d
At some odd usher’s scoff’d formality?

First swear my brains! Unde cadis non quo, re-fert;6 My heart cries. “Perish all!” How I how I what fate Can once avoid revenge, that’s desperate? I’ll to the duke; if all should ope — If I tush.

Fortune still dotes on those who cannot blush. [Exit.]

SCENE II.6

Enter MALEVOLS at one door; BIANCA, EMILIA, and MAQUERELLE at the other door.

Mal. Bless ye, cast o’ ladies! — Ha, Dipas! how dost thou, old coal?

Mac. Old coal!

Mal. Ay, old coal; methinks thou liest like a brand under these billets of green wood. He who will assume a young wench’s heart, let him lay close to her an old coal that hath been fir’d, a panderess, my half-burnt lint, who though thou canst not flame thyself, yet art able to set a thousand virgin’s tapers alight. — And how does Jamiere thy husband, my little periwinkle? Is he troubled with the cough o’ the lungs still? Does he hawk o’ nights still? He will not bite.

Byr. No, by my troth, I took him with [as his mouth empty of old teeth.

Mal. And he took thee with thy belly full of young bones: marry, he took his main by the stroke of his enemy.

Bian. And I mine by the stroke of my friend.

Mal. The close stock! O mortal wench! Lady, ha’ ye now no restoratives for thy decayed Jasons? Look ye, crab’s guts bak’d, distill’d ox-pith, the pulverized hairs of a lion’s upper-lip, jelly of cock-sparrows, he-mon[ — key’s marrow, or powder of fox-stones? — And whither are all you ambling now?

Bian. Why, to bed, to bed.

Mal. Do your husbands lie with ye?

Bian. That were country fashion, I’ faith.

Mal. Ha’ ye no foregoers about you? Come, whither in good deed, la’ now?

Mac. In good indeed, la now, to eat the most miraculously, admirably, astonishable comest’d posset with three curds, without any drink. [Will ye help me with a he-fcox? — Here’s the duke.

Exeunt Ladies.

[Mal. Fri’d frogs are very good, and French-like too.]

SCENE III.8

Enter DUKE PIETRO, COUNT CELSO, COUNT EQUATO, BILISO, FERRARDO, and MENDOZA.

Pietro. The night grows deep and foul: what hour is ’t?

Celso. Upon the stroke of twelve.

4  It is whence you fall, not whither, that matters.
5  Chamber in the Duke’s Palace.
6  Absolutely.
7  Stuck, stocados, a thrust.
8  Chamber in the Duke’s Palace.
Mal. Save ye, Duke!

Pietro. From thee: begone, I do not love thee! Let me see thee no more; we are displeas'd.

Mal. Why, God b'w' thee! Heaven hear my curse,—may thy wife and thee live long together! 10

Agamemnon — Menelaus — was ever any duke a computer? 15

Pietro. Begone, hence!

Mal. With most servile patience.—Time will come

When wonder of thy error will strike dumb

Thy bezzled senses,—

Slaves! ay, favour: ay, marry, shall he rise:

Good God! how subtle hell doth flatter vice!

Mounts him aloft, and makes him seem to fly,

As fowl the tortoise mock'd, who to the sky

The ambitious shell-fish rais'd! The end of the All

Is only, that from height he might dead fall.

Mal. I shall now leave ye with all my best wishes.

Bil. Out, ye cur! Mal. Only let's hold together a firm correspondence.

kind of steady-unanimous-heartily-leagued —

Bil. Hence, ye gross-jaw'd, pleasantly — out, go!

Mal. Adieu, pigeon-house; thou b'rrl, that only stickest to nappay fortunes. The serpigo, [the strangury, an eternal uneffectual priapism seize thee!

Bil. Out, rogue!

Mal. May'st thou be a notorious wittily pardon to thine own wife, and yet get no office, [but live to be the utmost misery of mankind, a beggarly cuckold!] Exit.

Pietro. It shall be so.

Men. It must be so, for where great states revenge,

"Tis requisite the parts be closely dogg'd, (Which piety and soft respect forbears.)

Lay one into his breast shall sleep with him,

Feed in the same dish, run in self-faction,

Who may discover any shape of danger;

For once disgrac'd, displayed in offence,

It makes man blushless, and man is (all confess)

More prone to vengeance than to gratefulness.

Favours are writ in dust; but stripes we feel

Depra'd nature stamps in lasting steel.

Pietro. You shall be engag'd with the duchess.

Eguano. The plot is very good.

Men. You shall both kill, and seem the corse to save.

1 Drunken. 2 Q. omits ll. 27-47. 3 An eruption.
4 Bullen's emend. Qn. read

"T is requisite, the parts with piety
And soft respect forbears, be closely dogg'd.

For soft, other copies read left, least.

Fer. A most fine brain-trick.

Celso. (Aside.) Of a most cunning knave. 4

Pietro. My lords, the heavy action we intend

Is death and shame, two of the ugliest shapes

That can confound a soul; think, think of it.

I strike, but yet, like him that 'gainst stone walls

Directs, his shafts rebound in his own face;

My lady's shame is mine, O God, 'tis mine! 6

Therefore I do conjure all secrecy:

Let it be as very little as may be,

Pray ye, as may be,

Make frightless entrance, salute her with soft eyes,

Stain nought with blood; only Fernese dies, 7

But not before her brows. O gentlemen, God knows I love her! Nothing else, but this: — I am not well; if grief, that sucks veins dry, Rivals the skin, casts ashes in men's faces, Be-dulls the eye, unstrengthens all the blood, 8

Chance to remove me to another world.

As sure I once must die, let him succeed:

I have no child; all that my youth begot

Hath been your loves, which shall inherit me:

Which as it ever shall, I do conjure it,

Mendoza may succeed: he's nobly born;

With me of much desert.

I thank you. Come on now. O, that I might die

Before her shame's display'd! Would I were for'd

To burn my father's tomb, unheal'd his bones,

And dash them in the dirt, rather than this! 9

This both the living and the dead offends:

Sharp surgery where naught but death amends.

Exeunt.

SCENE IV.

Enter Maquerelle, Emilia, and Bianca with a posset.

Maq. Even here it is, three curds in three regions individually distinct, most methodically according to art compos'd, without any drink.

Bian. Without any drink! 4 Maq. Upon my honour. Will ye sit and eat? Emilia. Good; the composure, the receipt, how is't? Maq. 'T is a pretty pearl; by this pearl (how does 't with me?) thus it is: Seven and thirty yolks of Barbary hens' eggs; eighteen spoon-fulls and a half of the juice of cock-sparrow bones; one ounce, three drams, four scruples, and one quarter of the syrup of Ethiopian dates; sweetened with three quarters of a pound of pure candied Indian aringoes; stewed in with the powder of pearl of America, amber of Cataiai, and lamb-stones of Muscovia.

Bian. Trust me, the ingredients are very cordial, and, no question, good, and most powerful in restoration.

Maq. I know not what you mean by restoration; but this it doth, — it purifith the 8 Wrinkles.

* How does it become me?
blood, smoothest the skin, enliveneth the eye, strengtheneth the veins, mundifisth the teeth, comforteth the stomach, fortifieth the back; [35] and quickeneth the wit; that’s all.

Emil. By my troth, I have eaten but two spoonfuls, and methinks I could discourse most swiftly and witty already.

Mqg. Have you the art to seem honest?

Bian. Ay, thank advice and practice.

Mqg. Why, then, eat me o’ this posset, quicken your blood, and preserve your beauty. Do you know Doctor Plaster-face? by this curd, he is the most exquisite in forging of veins, [35] sprightening of eyes, dying of hair, sleeking of skins, blushing of cheeks, surphiling[2] of breasts, Blanching and bleaching of teeth, that ever made an old lady gracious by torchlight; by this curd, la.

Bian. Well, we are resolved, what God has given us we shall cherish.

Mqg. Chaste is nuestro saving your husband; keep him not too high, lest he leap the pale: but, for your beauty, let it be your saint; [35] bequeath two hours to it every morning in your closet. I ha’ been young, and yet, in my conscience, I am not above five and twenty: but, believe me, preserve and use your beauty; for youth and beauty once gone, we are like bee-[35] hives without honey, out-o’-fashion apparel that no man will wear: therefore use your beauty.

Emil. Ay, but men say—

Mqg. Men say! let men say what they will: life o’ woman! they are ignorant of our wants. The more in years, the more in perfection they grow; if they lose youth and beauty, they gain wisdom and discretion: but when our beauty fades, good-night with us. There [35] cannot be an uglier thing than to see an old woman: from which, O pruning, pinching, and painting, deliver all sweet beauties!

[Music within.]

Bian. Hark! music!

Mqg. Peace, ’tis i! the duchess’ bed-chamber.

Good rest, most prosperously-graced ladies.

Emil. Good night, sentinel.

Bian. Night, dear Maquerelle.

Exeunt all but Mqg.

Mqg. May my posset’s operation send you my wit and honesty; and me, your youth and [35] beauty; the pleasing’st rest!—

Exit.

SCENE V.

A Song [within].

Whilst the song is singing, enter MENDOZA with his sword drawn, standing ready to murder FERNZE as he flies from the duchess’ chamber. —

Tumult within.

All [within.] Strike, strike!

Aur. [within.] Save my Fernenze! O, save my Fernenze!

Enter FERNZE in his shirt, and is receiv’d upon MENDOZA’s sword.

All [within.] Follow, pursue!

Aur. [within.] O, save Fernenze!

Men. Pierce, pierce! — Thou shallow fool, drop there!

He that attempts a princess’ lawless love

Must have broad hands, close heart, with Argus’ eyes,

And back of Hercules, or else he dies.

Thrusts his rapier in Fern.

Enter AURELLA, PIETRO, FERRARDO, BILIOSO, CELSO, and EUQUATO.

All. Follow, follow!

Men. Stand off, forbear, ye most uncivil lords!

PIETRO. Strike! A Ur. Do not; tempt not a man resolv’d: MENDOZA bestrides the wounded body of FERNZE, o’ Fernenze, and seems to save him.

Would you, inhuman murderers, more than death?

Aur. O poor Fernenze!

Men. Alas, now all defenses too late!

Aur. He’s dead.

PIETRO. I am sorry for our shame. — Go to your bed:

Weep not too much, but leave some tears to shed When I am dead.

Aur. What, weep for thee! my soul no tears shall find.

PIETRO. Alas, alas, that women’s souls are blind!

Men. Betray such beauty!

MURDER such youth! Contemn civility!

He loves him not that rails not at him.

PIETRO. Thou canst not move us: we have blood enough. —

And please you, lady, we have quite forget All your defects: if not, why, then—

PIETRO. Not: the best of rest: good-night.

Exit PIETRO, with other Courtiers.

Aur. Despite go with thee!

Men. Madam, you ha’ done me foul disgrace; you have wrong’d him much loves you too much: go to, your soul knows you have.

Aur. I think I have.

Men. Do you but think so?

Aur. Nay, sure, I have: my eyes have wit- nessed thy love: thou hast stood too firm for me.

Men. Why, tell me, fair-cheeked lady, who even in tears art powerfully beauteous, what unadvised passion struck ye into such a violent heat against me? Speak, what mis-chief wrong’d us? What devil injur’d us? Speak.

Aur. The thing ne’er worthy of the name of man, Fernenze;

Fernenze swore thou lov’st Emilisa;

Which to advance, with most reproachful breath

Thou both didst blemish and denounce my love.

Men. Ignoble villain: did I for this bestride
Thy wounded limbs? for this, rank opposite
Even to my sovereign; for this, O God, for this, &c. Sunk all my hopes, and with my hopes my life? Rippd b'are my threat unto the hangman’s axe?—
Thou most dis honour’d trunk! — Emilia!
By life, I know her not — Emilia —!
Did you believe him?

Aur. Pardon me, I did.
Men. Did you? And thereupon you grace’d him?

Aur. I did.

Men. Took him to favour, nay even clasp’d
With him?

Aur. Alas, I did!

Men. This night?

Aur. This night.

Men. And in your lustful twines the duke took you?

Aur. A most sad truth.

Men. O God, O God! how we dull honest souls,
Heavy brain’d men, are swallowed in the bog,
Of a deceitful ground, whilst nimble bloods,
Light-jointed spirits, speed; — cut good men’s throats,
And scape! Alas, I am too honest for this age,
Too full of phlegm and heavy steadiness; —
Stood still whilst this slave cast a noose about me:
Nay, then to stand in honour of him and her,
Who had even slic’d my heart!

Aur. Come, I did err,
And am most sorry I did err.

Men. Why, we are both but dead: the duke hates us;
And those whom princes do once grossly hate,
Let them provide to die, as sure as fate.
Prevention is the heart of policy.

Aur. Shall we murder him?

Men. Instantly?

Aur. Instantly: before he casts a plot,
Or further blaze my honour’s much-known blot,
Let’s murder him.

Men. I would do much for you: will ye marry me?

Aur. I’ll make thee duke. We are of Medici;
Florence our friend; in court my faction
Not meanly strengthful; the duke then dead;
We well prepar’d for change; the multitude
Irresolutely reeling, we in force;
Our party seconded; the kingdom maz’d;
No doubt of swift success all shall be grace’d.

Men. You do confirm me, we are resolute:
To-morrow look for change: rest confident.
’Tis now about the immodest waist of night:
The mother of moist dew with pallid light
Spreads gloomy shades about the numbed earth.

Sleep, sleep, whilst we contrive our mischief’s birth.

This man I’ll get inhum’d. Farewell: to bed;

Ay, kiss thy pillow, dream the duke is dead.
So, so, good night. Exit Aurelia.

How fortune doth on impudence! —
I am in private the adopted son
Of you good prince:
I must be duke: why, if I must, I must.
Most slyly lord, name me! O heaven! I see
God made honest fools to maintain crafty knives.

The duchess is wholly mine too; must kill her husband
To quit her shame. Much! then marry her! Ay, O, I grow proud in prosperous treachery!
As wrestlers clip, so I’ll embrace you all,
Not to support, but to procure your fall.

Enter Malevole.

Mal. God arrest thee!

Men. At whose suit?

Mal. At the devil’s. Ah, you treacherous, damnable monster, how dost? how dost, thou treacherous rogue? Ah, ye rascal! I am ban’d — iashed the court, sirrah.

Men. Prithée, let’s be acquainted; I do love thee, faith.

Mal. At your service, by the Lord, La: shall’s go to supper? Let’s be once drunk together, and so unite a most virtuously-strengthened friendship: shall’s Huguenot? shall’s?

Men. Wilt fall upon my chamber to-morrow morn?

Mal. As a raven to a dunghill. They say there’s one dead here: prick for the pride of the flesh.

Men. Fernее: there he is; prithée, bury him.

Mal. O, most willingly: I mean to turn pure Rochelle churchman, I.

Men. Thou churchman! Why, why?

Mal. Because I’ll live lazily, rail upon authority, deny kings’ supremacy in things indifferent, and be a pope in mine own parish.

Men. Wherefore dost thou think churches were made?

Mal. To scour plough-shares: I ha’ seen oxen plough up altars; et nunc seges ubi Sion fuit?

Men. Strange!

Mal. Nay, monstros: I ha’ seen a sumptuous steeple turned to a stinking privy; more beastly, the sacrased place made a dog’s kennel; nay, most inhuman, the stoned coffins of long-dead Christians burst up, and made hogs’ troughs: hic finis Primii. Shall I ha’ some sack and cheese at thy chamber? Good night, good mischievous incarnate devil; good night, Mendoza; ah, ye inhuman villain, good night! night, fub?

Mal. Ay, I will come, friendly damnation, I will come. I do descry cross-paints; honesty and courtship straddle as far asunder as a true Frenchman’s legs.

Fer. O!

Mal. Proclamations! more proclamations!

Fer. O! a surgeon!
Malf. Hark! last cries for a surgeon. What news from Ambo? How does the grand count, old Luise? 144
Ford. O, help, help! conceal and save me.
Ferre. Sire, and Malfavole helps him up and conveys him away.
Malf. Thy shame more than thy wounds do grieve me far:
Thy wounds but leav upon thy flesh some scar;
But fame ne'er heals, still rankles worse and worse;
Such is of uncontrolled lust the curse.
Think what it is in lawless sheets to lie;
But, O, Fernez, what in lust to die?
Then thou that shame respect'st, O, fly converse
With women's eyes and lusting wantonness!
Stick candies 'gainst a virgin wall's white back.
If they not burn, yet at the least they'll black.
Come, I'll convey thee to a private port,
Where thou shalt live (O happy man!) from court.
The beauty of the day begins to rise,
From whose bright form night's heavy shadow flies.
Now 'gin close plots to work; the scene grows full,
And craves his eyes who hath a solid skull.

Exeunt.

ACT III
SCENE I.

Enter Pietro, Mendoza, Equato, and Billogo.

Pietro. 'Tis grown to youth of day: how shall we waste this light?
My heart's more heavy than a tyrant's crown.
Shall we go hunt? Prepare for field.

Exit Equato.

Men. Would ye could be merry!

Exit Mendoza.

I would fain shift place; O vain relief!
Sad souls may well change place, but not change grief:
As deer, being struck, fly thorough many soils,
Yet still the shaft sticks fast, so —

Bill. A good old simile, my honest lord.

Pietro. I am not much unlike to some sick man
That long desired hurtful drink; at last
Swills in and drinks his last, ending at once
Both life and thirst. O, would I ne'er had known
My own dishonour! Good God, that men should desire
To search out that, which, being found, kills all
Their joy of life! to taste the tree of knowledge,
And then be driven from out paradise! —
Canst give me some comfort?

Bill. My lord, I have some books which [as have been dedicated to my honour, and I ne'er read 'em, and yet they had very fine names,

Physic for Fortune, Lexicon of Sanctified Sincerity; very pretty works of curates, scriveners, and schoolmasters. Marry, I remember one [as Seneca, Lucius Annaeus Seneca. —

Pietro. Out upon him I he writ of temperance and fortitude, yet lived like a voluptuous epicure, and died like an effeminate coward. —

Haste thee to Florence:

Here, take our letters; see 'em seal'd; away! Report in private to the honour'd duke
His daughter's for'd disgrace; tell him at length
We know too much: due compliments advance;
There's naught that's safe and sweet but ignorance.

Exit. 33

[Enter Bianca.

Bill. Madam, I am going ambassador for Florence: 't will be great charges to me.

Bian. No matter, my lord, you have the leases of two houses come out next Christmas; you may lay your tenants on the greater rack [as for it: and when you come home again, I'll teach you how you shall get two hundred pounds a-year by your teeth.

Bill. How, madam?

Bian. Cut off so much from house-keep [as ing: that which is saved by the teeth, you know, is got by the tooth.

Bill. 'Tis God, and so I may; I am in wondrous credit, lady.

Bian. See the use of flattery: I did ever [as counsel you to flatter greatness, and you have profitted well: any man that will do so shall be sure to be like your Scotch barrel, 6 now a block, instantly a worm, and presently a great goose: this it is to rot and putrefy in the bosom of greatness.

Bill. Thou art ever my politician. O, how happy is that old lord that hath a politician to his young lady! I'll have fifty gentlemen shall attend upon me; marry, the most of them shall be farmer's sons, because they shall bear their own charges; and they shall go appareled thus, — in sea-water-green suits, ash-colour cloaks, watchet stockings, and popinjay-green feathers: will not the colours do excellent?

Bian. Out upon 't! they'll look like citizens riding to their friends at Whitenattle; their apparel just so many several parishes.

Bill. I'll have it so; and Passarello, my fool, shall go along with me; marry, he shall be in velvet.

Bian. A fool in velvet!

Bill. Ay, 'tis common for your fool to wear satin; I'll have mine in velvet.

Bian. What will you wear, then, my lord? —

Bill. Velvet too; marry, it shall be embroidered, because I'll differ from the fool somewhat. I am horribly troubled with the gout: nothing grieves me but, that my doctor hath forbidden me wine, and you know your ambassador [as must drink. Didst thou ask thy doctor what was good for the gout?

Bil. Nay, thou hast such a wit! What was good to cure it, said he?

Bian. Why, the rack. All your empirics could never do the like cure upon the gout the rack did in England, or your Scotch boot. The French harlequin will instruct you.

Bil. Surely, I do wonder how thou, having for the most part of thy lifetime been a country body, shouldst have so good a wit.

Bian. Who, I? why, I have been a courtier thrice two months.

Bil. So have I this twenty year, and yet there was a gentleman-usher called me coxcomb the other day, and to my face too: was 't not a backing rascal? I would I were better travelled, that I might have been better acquainted with the fashions of several countries; but my secretary, I think, he hath sufficiently instructed me.

Bian. How, my lord?

Bil. "Marry, my good lord," quoth he, your lordship shall ever find amongst a hundred Frenchmen forty hot-shots; amongst a hundred Spaniards, three-score braggets; amongst a hundred Dutchmen, four-score drunkards; amongst an hundred Englishmen, four-score and ten madmen; and amongst an hundred Welshmen.

Bian. What, my lord?

Bil. "Four-score and nineteen gentlemen."

Bian. But since you go about a sad embassy, I would have you go in black, my lord.

Bil. Why, dost think I cannot mourn, unless I wear my hat in cypress, like an alderman's heir? That's vile, very old, in faith.

Bian. I'll learn of you shortly: O, we should have a fine gallant of you, should not I instruct you! How will you bear yourself when you come into the Duke of Florence's court?

Bil. Proud enough, and 't will do well enough.

As I walk up and down the chamber, I'll 119 spit frowns about me, have a strong perfume in my jerkin, let my beard grow to make me look terrible, salute no man beneath the fourth button; and 't will do excellent.

Bian. But there is a very beautiful lady there; how will you entertain her?

Bil. I'll tell you that, when the lady hath entertained me: but to satisfy thee, here comes the fool.

Enter Passarelo.

Fool, thou shalt stand for the fair lady.

Pass. Your fool will stand for your lady most willingly and most uprightly.

Bil. I'll salute her in Latin.

Pass. O, your fool can understand no Latin.

Bil. Ay, but your lady can.

Pass. Why, then, if your lady take down your fool, your fool will stand no longer for your lady.

Bil. A pestilent fool! 'fore God, I think the world be turned upside down too.

Pass. O, no, sir; for then your lady and all the ladies in the palace should go with their heels upward, and that were a strange sight, you know.

Bil. There be many will repine at my preferment.

Pass. O, ay, like the envy of an elder sister, that hath her younger made a lady before her.

Bil. The duke is wondrous discontented.

Pass. Ay, and more melancholic than a usurer having all his money out at the death of a prince.

Bil. Didst thou see Madam Floria to-day?

Pass. Yes, I found her repairing her face to-day; the red upon the white showed as if her cheeks should have been served in for two dishes of barberries in stewed broth, and the flesh to them a woodcock.

Bil. A bitter fool! Come, madam, this night thou shalt enjoy me freely, and tomorrow for Florence.

Pass. What a natural fool is he that would be a pair of bodies to a woman's petticoat, to be teased and pointed to them! Well, I'll dog my lord; and the word is proper; for when I was a fawn upon him, he fed me; when I snap him by the fingers, he spits in my mouth. If a dog's death were not strangling, I had rather be one than a serving-man; for the corruption of coin is either the generation of a usurer or a lousy beggar.

Exeunt Bianca and Passarelo.

SCENE II.

Enter MALVOLE in some frieze gown, whilst BILIBISO reads his patent.

MAL. I cannot sleep; my eyes' ill-neighbouring lids

Will hold no fellowship. O thou pale sober night,

Thou that in sluggish fumes all sense dost steep;

Thou that giv'st all the world full leave to play,

Unbend'st the feeble veins of sweaty labour

The galleys; slave, that all the toilsome day

Tugs at his car against the stubborn wave,

Straining his rugged veins, moves fast;

The stooping sceptre-man, that doth barb the field,

Thou mak'st wink sure: in night all creatures sleep

Only the malcontent, that 'gainst his fate

Repines and quarrels,—alas he's a good man, tell-clock!

His sallow jaw-bones sink with wasting moan;

Whilst others' beds are down, his pillow's stone.

BIL. Malevole!

MAL. Elder of Israel, thou honest defect of

6. Pair of stays, bodice.

9. Share; here, now.
wicked nature and obstinate ignorance, when did th'wy wife let thee lie with her?

Bill. I am going ambassador to Florence.

Mal. Ambassador! Now, for thy country's honour, prithee, do not put up mutton and porridge in thy cloak-bag. Th' young lady wife goes to Florence with thee too, does she not?

Bill. No, I leave her at the palace.

Mal. At the palace! Now, discretion shield, man! For God's love, let's have no more cuckolds! Hymen begins to put off his saffron robe; keep thy wife in the state of grace. Hear it, I would sooner leave my lady singleton in a bordello than in the Genoese palace.

Sin. There appearing in her slutish shape, would soon grow loathsome, even to blouses' sense:

Surfeit would choke intemperate appetite,

Make the soul scint the rotten breath of lust.

When in an Italian lascivious palace,

A lady guardianless,

Left to the push of all allurements,

The strongest incitements to immodesty,

To have her bound, incens'd with wanton sweets,

Her veins fill'd high with heating delicacies,

Soft rest, sweet music, amorous masquerers,

Lascivious banquet, sin itself gilt o'er,

Strong fantasy tricking up strange delights,

Presenting it dress'd pleasingly to sense,

Sense leading it unto the soul, confirm'd

With potent examples, impudent custom,

Entic'd by that great bawd, Opportunity;

Thus being prepar'd, clap to her easy ear,

Youth in good clothes, well-shap'd, rich,

Fair-spoken, promising, noble, ardent, bloodful,

Witty, flattering. — Ulysses absent.

O Ithaca, can chastest Penelope hold out?

Bill. Massa, I'll think on't. Farewell.

Mal. Farewell. Take thy wife with thee.

Farewell. Er't Bilioso.

To Florence; um! it may prove good; it may!

And we may once unmask our brow.

SCENE III.

EnterCOUNT CELSO.

Celso. My honour'd lord —

Mal. Celso, peace! how is't? Speak low; pale fears,

Suspect that hedges, walls, and trees, have ears:

Speak, how runs all?

Celso. I faith, my lord, that beast with many heads,

The staggering multitude, recoils space:

Though thorough great men's envy, most men's malice.

Their much-intemperate heat hath banish'd you,

Yet now they find envy and malice ne'er Produce faint reformation.

The duke, the too soft duke, lies as a block,

For which two tagging factions seem to saw;

But still the iron through the ribs they draw.

Mal. I tell thee, Celso, I have ever found Thy breast most far from shifting cowardice.

And fearful baseness; therefore I'll tell thee,

Celso, I find the wind begins to come about;

I'll shift my suit of fortune.

I know the Florentine, whose only force,

By marrying his proud daughter to this prince,

Both banish'd me and made this weak lord duke,

Will now forsake them all; be sure he will.

I'll lie in ambush for convenience,

Upon their severance to confirm myself.

Celso. Is Fernandez interr'd?

Mal. Of that at leisure; he lives.

Celso. But how stands Mendoza? How is't with him?

Mal. Faith, like a pair of snuffers, snipe filth in other men, and retains it in himself.

Celso. He does fly from public notice, methinks, as a hare does from hounds; the feet whereon he flies betray him.

Mal. I can track him, Celso.

O, my disguise fools him most powerfully!

For that I seem a desperate malcontent,

He fain would clasp with me; he's the true slave

That will put on the most affected grace

For some vile second cause.

EnterMENDOZA.

Celso. He's here.

Mal. Give place.

ExitCelso.

I'llo, ho, ho, ho! art there, old truepenny?

Where hast thou spent thyself this morning?

I see flattery in thine eyes, and damnation in thy soul. Ha, ye huge rascal!

Men. Thou art very merry.

Mal. As a scholar, futursa gratis. How does the devil go with thee now?

Men. Malevole, thou art an arrant knave.

Mal. Who, I? I have been a sergeant, man.

Men. Thou art very poor.

Mal. As Job, an alchymist, or a poet.

Men. The duke hates thee.

Mal. As Irishmen do bum-cracks.

Men. Thou hast lost his amity.

Mal. As pleasing asmaids lose their virginity.

Men. Would thou wert of a lusty spirit!

Would thou wert noble!

Mal. Why, sure my blood gives me I am noble, sure I am of noble kind; for I find myself possessed with all their qualities; — love dogs, dice, and drabs, scorn wit in stuff-clothes; have beat my shoemaker, knocked my seamstress, held(ed) my botheicary, and undone my tailor. Noble! why not? since the stoic said, Neminem servum non ex regibus, neminem regem non ex servis esse orindum: only busy fortune-tours, and the provident Chances...
blest them together. I'll give you a simile: did you e'er see a well with two buckets, whilst one comes up full to be emptied, another goes down empty to be filled? Such is the state of all humanity. Why, look you, I may be the son of some duke; for, believe me, intemperate lascivious bastardy makes nobility doubtful: I have a lusty daring heart, Men- doza.

Men. Let's grasp; I do like thee infinitely. Wilt enact one thing for me?

Mal. Shall I get by it? (Men. gives him his purse.) Command me; I am thy slave, beyond death and hell.

Men. Murder the duke.

Mal. My heart's wish, my soul's desire, my fantasy's dream, my blood's longing, the only height of my hopes! How, O God, how! O, how my united spirits thong together, to strengthen my resolve!

Men. The duke is now a-hunting.

Mal. Excellent, admirable, as the devil would have it! Lust me, lend me, rapier, pistol, cross-bow; so, so, I'll do it.

Men. Then we agree.

Men. Know that this weak-brain'd duke, who only stands
On Florence's stilts, hath out of witless seal
Made me his heir, and secretly confirm'd
The wreath to me after his life's full point.

Mal. Upon what merit?

Men. Merit! by heaven, I horn him.
Only Farnese's death gave me state's life.
Tut, we are politic, he must not live now.

Mal. No reason, marry: but how must he die now?

Men. My utmost project is to murder the duke, that I might have his state, because he makes me his heir; to banish the duchess, that I might be rid of a cunning Lacedemonian, because I know Florence will forsake her, and then to marry Maria, the banished Duke Alfordon's wife, that her friends might strengthen me and my faction: that is all.

Mal. Do you love Maria?

Men. Faith, no great affection, but as wise men do love great women, to ennable their blood and augment revenue. To accomplish this now, thus now. The duke is in the forest, next the sea: I sing him, kill him, hurl him into the main, and proclaim thou sawest wolves eat him.

Mal. Um! Not so good. Methinks when he is slain,
To get some hypocrite, some dangerous wretch
That's muffled o'er with feigned holiness.
To swear he heard the duke on some steep cliff
Lament his wife's dishonour, and, in an agony
Of his heart's torture, hurl'd his groaning sides
Into the swolen sea, — this circumstance
Well made sounds probable: and hereupon
The duchess.

Men. May well be banish'd:

O unpeerable invention! rare!
Thou god of policy! it honeys me.

Mal. Then fear not for the wife of Alto-front;
I'll close to her.

Men. Thou shalt, thou shalt. Our excellency
Is pleas'd:
Why wart not thou an emperor? When we
Are duke, I'll make thee some great man,
Sure.

Mal. Nay. Make me some rich knave, and I'll make myself
Some great man.

Men. In thee be all my spirit:
Retain ten souls, unite thy virtual powers:
Resolve; ha, remember greatness! Heart,
farewell;
The fate of all my hopes in thee doth dwell.

[Exit.]

Re-enter Celso.

Mal. Celso, didst hear? — O heaven, didst hear
Such devilish mischief? Suffer'st thou the world
Carouse damnation even with greedy swallow,
And still dost wink, still does thy vengeance slumber?
If now thy brows are clear, when will they thunder?

[Exit.

Scene IV. 4

Enter Pietro, Ferrando, Prepasso, and Three Pages.

Fer. The dogs are at a fault.

Pietro. Would God nothing but the dogs were at it! Let the deer pursue safety, the dogs follow the game, and do you follow the dogs: as for me, 'tis unfit one beast should hunt another; 'tis one chaseth me: an 't please you, I would be rid of ye a little.

Fer. Would your grief would, as soon as we, leave you unwitness.

Pietro. I thank you.

[Exit [Ferrando and Prepasso].

Boy, what dost thou dream of now?
1 Page. Of a dry summer, my lord; for here's a hot world towards: but, my lord, I had a strange dream last night.

Pietro. What strange dream?

1 Page. Why, methought I pleased you with singing, and then I dreamt that you gave me that short sword.

Pietro. Prettyligged: hold thee, I'll prove thy dream true; take it. [Giving sword.] 6

1 Page. My duty: but still I dreamt on, my lord; and methought, an't shall please your excellency, you would needs out of your royal bounty give me that jewel in your hat.

Pietro. O, thou didst but dream, boy; do as not believe it: dreams prove not always true;
they may hold in a short sword, but not in a jewel. But now, sir, you dreamt you had

1 A forest near the sea.

6 Qu. safely.
THE MALCONTENT

pleased me with singing; make that true, as I ha' made the other.

1 Page. Faith, my lord, I did but dream, and dreams, you say, prove not always true; they may hold in a good sword, but not in a good song. The truth is, I ha' lost my voice.

Pietro. Lost thy voice! How?  2

1 Page. With dreaming, faith: but here's a couple of sirenical rascals shall enchant ye. What shall they sing, my good lord?

Pietro. Sing of the nature of women: and then the song shall be surely full of variety, [so old crochets, and most sweet closes; it shall be humorous, grave, fantastic, amorous, melancholy, sprightly, one in all, and all in one.

1 Page. All in one!

Pietro. By'r lady, too many. Sing: my speech grows culpable of untruthy idleness: 1

Song [by 2 and 3 Pages].

SCENE V.  2

[To Pietro] Enter Malevole, with cross-bow and pistol.

Pietro, Ah, so, so, sing. I am heavy: walk off; I shall talk in my sleep: walk off.

Mal. Brief, brief; who? The Duke! Good heaven, that fools Should stumble upon greatness! — Do not sleep, duke; Give ye good-morrow. I must be brief, duke; I am fee'd to murder thee: — start not: — Men- doza, Mendoza his'd me; here's his gold, his pistol, Cross-bow, [and] sword: 't is all as firm as earth. O fool, fool, choked with the common maze Of easy idiots, credulity!

Make him thine hair! What, thy sworn murderer!

Pietro. O, can it be?

Mal. Can!

Pietro. Discover'd he not Fernesse?

Mal. Yes, but why? but why? For love to thee?  3

Much, much! To be reveng'd upon his rival, Who had thrust his jaws awry:

Who being slain, suppos'd by thine own hands, Defended by his sword, made thee most lost-some,

Him most gracious with thy loose princes; 5

Thou, closely yielding egress and regress to her, Madest him heir; whose hot unquiet lust Straight touns'd thy sheets, and now would seize thy state.

Politician! Wise man! Death! I to be Led to the stake like a bull by the horns;  6

To make even kindness cut a gentle threat!

Life, why art thou numb'd? Thou foggy dulness, sleep:

Lives not more faith in a home-thrusting tongue

Than in those fenceing-tip-tap courtiers?

1 Vanity, frivolity.  2 Q. omits; Q. you.  3 The same, continued.  4 Secretly.  5 Q. Cel.  6 Palace of the Duke.  7 The tags of the laces fastening the "buck, the whole-bone in the front of the stays."
Emil. Is the duke returned from hunting yet?

Mag. They say not yet.

Bian. 'Tis now in midst of day.

Emil. How bears the duchess with this blemish now?

Mag. Faith, boldly; strongly defies defiance, as one that has a duke to her father. And [as there's a note to you: be sure of a stout friend in a corner, that may always save your husband. Mark the behaviour of the duchess now: she dares defiance; cries, "Duke, do what thou canst, I'll quit mine honour: 'tis nay, as one [as confirmed in her own virtue against ten thousand mouths that mutter her disgrace, she's presently for dances.

Enter Ferrando.

Bian. For dances!

Mag. Most true.

Emil. Most strange. See, here's my servant, 1 young Ferrando. How many servants thinkest thou I have, Maquerelle? 2

Mag. The more, the merrier. 'T was well said, use your servants as you do your smoaks; have many, use one, and change often; for that's most sweet and courtlike.

Fer. Save ye, fair ladies! Is the duke return'd?

Bian. Sweet sir, no voice of him as yet in court.

Fer. 'Tis very strange.

Bian. And how like you my servant, Maquerelle?

Mag. I think he could hardly draw Ulysses' bow; but, by my fidelity, were his nose narrower, his eyes broader, his hands thinner, 3 his lips thicker, his legs bigger, his feet lesser, his hair blacker, and his teeth whiter, he were a tolerable sweet youth, i' faith. And he will come to my chamber, I will read him the fortune of his beard. Cornets sound. 4

Fer. Not yet return'd! I fear—but the duchess approacheth.

Scene II. 5

Enter Mendoza supporting the Duchess and Guerrino: the ladies that are on the stage rise: Ferrando ushers in the Duchess, and then takes a lady to treat a measure. 6

Aur. We will dance; music!—we will dance.

Guer. Les quatro, 7 lady, Pesnez bien, Passa regis, or Bianca's brawl?

Aur. We have forgot the brawl.

Fer. So soon? 'T is wonder.

Guer. Why, 'tis but two singles on the left, two on the right, three doubles forward, a traverse of six round; of this twice, three singles side, galliard trick-of-twenty, coranto-pace; a figure of eight, three singles broken down, 8 come up, meet, two doubles, fall back, and then honour.

Aur. O Daedalus, thy maze! I have quite forgot it.

Mag. Trust me, so have I, saving the falling-back, and then honour.

Enter Prefumo.

Aur. Music, music! Prep. Who saw the duke? the duke?

Enter Equato.

Aur. Music!

Equato. The duke? is the duke returned?

Aur. Music!

Enter Celso.

Celso. The duke is either quite invisible, or else is not.

Aur. We are not pleased with your intrusion upon our private retirement; we are not pleased: you have forgot yourselves.

Enter a Page.

Celso. Boy, thy master? Where's the duke? Page. Alas, I left him burying the earth with his spread joyless limbs: he told me he was heavy, would sleep; bade me walk off, 9 for that the strength of fantasy oft made him talk in his dreams. I straightway obeyed, nor ever saw him since: but whereas he is, he's sad. Aur. Music, sound high, as is our heart! Sound high!

Scene III. 6

[To them] enter Malevole, and Pietro disguised like an hermit.

Mal. The duke,—peace!—the duke is dead.

Aur. Music!

Mal. Is't music?

Men. Give proof.

Fer. How?

Celso. Where?

Prep. When?

Mal. Rest in peace, as the duke does: quietly sit: for my own part, I beheld him but dead; that's all. Marry, here's one can give you a more particular account of him.

Men. Speak, holy father, nor let any brow Within this presence fright thee from the truth:

Speak confidently and freely.

Aur. We attend.

Pietro. Now had the mounting sun's all-rippening wings 10 Swept the cold sweat of night from earth's dank breast.

When I, whom men call Hermit of the Rock, Forsook my cell, and clambered up a cliff Against whose base the heady Neptune dash'd His high-enrild brows; there 'twas I eas'd my limbs:

When, lo! my entrails melted with the moan

The same, continued.
Some one, who far love me was climb'd, did make—
I shall offend.
  Men. Not.
  Aur. On.
  Pietro. Methinks I hear him yet:—"O female faith!
Go sow the ingratitude sand, and love a woman!
And do I live to be the scoff of men?
To be their wit-wit—took, even to hug My poison? Thou knowest, O truth!
Sooner hard steel will melt with southern wind,
A seaman's whistle calm the ocean,
A town on fire be extinct with tears,
Than women, vow'd to bushless impudence,
With sweet behaviour and soft mincing.
Will turn from that where appetite is fix'd.
O powerful blood! how thou dost slaye their soul!
I wash'd an Ethiopian, who, for recompense,
Sullied my name: and must I, then, be fore'd
To walk, to live thus black? Must! must! must! fie!
He that can bear with 'must,' he cannot die."
With that he sigh'd so passionately deep,
That the dull air even groan'd: at last he cries,
"Sink shame in seas, sink deep enough!" so
dies;
For then I viewed his body fall, and saw
Into the foamy main. O, then I saw,
That which methinks I see, it was the duke;
Whom straight the nicer-stomach'd sea belch'd up:
But then—
  Mal. Then came I in; but, 'la, all was too late!
For even straight he sunk.
  Pietro. Such was the duke's sad fate.
  Celio. A better fortune to our Duke Mendoza!
  Omnes. Mendoza! Cornets flourish.
  Men. A guard, a guard!
  Enter a Guard.
  We, full of hearty tears,
For our good father's loss,
(For so we well may call him)
Who did beseech your loves for our succession,
Cannot so lightly over-jump his death
As leave his woes revengeless. — (To Aurelia.)
Woman of shame,
We banish thee for ever to the place
From whence this good man comes; nor permit,
On death, unto thy body any ornament;
But, base as was thy life, depart away.
  Aur. Ungrateful!
  Men. Away!
  Aur. Villain, hear me!
  PREFASO and GUERRINO lead away AURELIA.
  Men. Begone! My lords,
Address to 1 public council; 'tis most fit:
The train of fortune is borne up by wit.
Away! our presence shall be sudden; haste.
  All depart saving MENDOZA, MAL-
  EVOLVE, and PIETRO.
  Mal. Now, you egregious devil! Ha, ye mur-
  Men. How did you kill him?
  Mal. Slatted his brains out, then couched him in the briny sea.
  Men. Brained him, and drowned him too?
  Mal. O 't was best, sure work; for he that strikes a great man, let him strike home, or else 'ware, he'll prove no man. Shoulder not [a huge fellow, unless you may be sure to lay in the kennel.
  Men. A most sound brain-pan! I'll make you both emperors.
  Mal. Make us Christians, make us Christians.
  Men. I'll hoist ye, ye shall mount.
  Mal. To the gallows, say ye? Come: premium incertum petit, certum scelus.
  How stands the progress?
  Men. Here, take my ring unto the citadel; [Giving ring.
Have entrance to Maria, the grave duchess.
Of banish'd Altofront. Tell her we love her;
Omit no circumstance to grace our person: do't.
  Mal. I'll make an excellent pander: duke, farewell; 'dieu, adieu, duke.
  Men. Take Maquereille with thee; for 'tis found
None cuts a diamond but a diamond.
  Exit MALVEOLE.
  Hermit,
Thou art a man for me, my confessor:
O thou selected spirit, born for my good,
Sure thou wouldst make
An excellent elder in a deform'd church.
Come, we must be inward, thou and I all one.
  Pietro. I am glad I was ordained for ye.
  Men. Go to, then; thou must know that Mal-evole is a strange villain; dangerous, very dangerous: you see how broad 'a speaks; a gross-jawed rogue: I would have thee poison him: he's like a corn upon my great toe, I cannot go for him; he must be oord out, he must.
Wilt do 't, ha?
  Pietro. Anything, anything.
  Men. Heart of my life! thus, then. To the citadel.
Thou shalt consort with this Malveole;
There being at supper, poison him. It shall be laid Upon Maria, who yields love or dies.
  Send quick.
  Pietro. Like lightning; good deeds crawl, but mischief flies.
  Exit.
  Re-enter MALVEOLE.
  Mal. Your devilship's ring has no virtues:
the buff-captain, the sallow Westphalian gammon-faced saza cries, "Stand out!" must have a stiffer warrant, or no pass into the castle
ris of comfort.
  Men. Command our sudden letter. — Not enter! sha't; what place is there in Genoa but that shalt? Into my heart, into my very heart:
come, let's love: we must love, we two, soul and body.
1 Adapted from Seneca. Phoen. 632. "He seeks an uncertain reward, but certain guilt."
2 Intimate.
Mendoza; mark him for a villain: but heaven will send a plague upon him for a rogue. 50
Pietro. 0 world!

Mal. World! 'tis the only region of death, the greatest shop of the devil; the cruelest prison of men, out of which none pass without paying their dearest breath for a fee; [as there's nothing perfect in it but extreme, extreme calamity, such as comes yonder.

SCENE V.5
Enter Aurella, two halberts before and two after, supported by Celso and Ferrando; Aurella in base mourning attire.

Aur. To banishment! led on to banishment!
Pietro. Lady, the blessedness of repentance to you!
Aur. Why, why, I can desire nothing but death.
Nor deserve anything but hell.
If heaven should give sufficiency of grace
To clear my soul, it would make heaven graceless:
My sins would make the stock of mercy poor;
O, they would tire heaven's goodness to reclaim them!
Judgment is just, yet from that vast villain,
But, sure, he shall not miss sad punishment
'Fore he shall rule.—On to my cell of shame!
Pietro. My cell 'tis, lady; where, instead of masks,
Music, tilts, tourneys, and such court-like shows,
The hollow murmur of the checkless winds
Shall groan again; whilst the unquiet sea
Shakes the whole rock with foamy battery.
There waterless the air comes in and out:
The rheumy vault will force your eyes to weep,
Whilst you behold true desolation.
A rocky barrenness shall pain your eyes,
Where all at once one reaches where he stands,
With brows the roof, both walls with both his hands.
Aur. It is too good.—Bless'd spirit of my
lord,
O, in what orb so'er thy soul is throne'd,
Behold me worthily most miserable!
O, let the anguish of my contrite spirit
Entreat some reconciliation!
If not, O, joy, triumph in my just grief!
Death is the end of woes and tears' relief.
Pietro. Belike your lord not lov'd you, was unkind.
Aur. 0 heaven!
As the soul loves the body, so lov'd he:
'Twas death to him to part my presence,
heaven
To see me pleas'd.
Yet I, like a wretch given o'er to hell,
Brake all the sacred rites of marriage,
To clip a base ungentle faithless villain;
O God! a very pagan reprobate—
What should I say? ungrateful, throws me out,
For whom I lost soul, body, fame, and honour.
But 'tis most fit: why should a better fate
Attend on any who forsake chaste sheets;
Fly the embrace of a devoted heart,
Join'd by a solemn vow 'fore God and man,
To taste the brackish flood of beastly lust
In an adulterous touch! O ravenous immorality!
Innate impudence of appetite!
Look, here's your end; for mark, what sap in dust.
What good in sin," even so much love in lust.
Joy to thy ghost, sweet lord! pardon me to me!
Celso. 'Tis the duke's pleasure this night you rest in court.
Aur. Soul, lurk in shades; run, shame, from brightsome skies;
In night the blind man misses not his eyes.
Exit [with CELSO, FERRARDO, and halberts].
Mal. Do not weep, kind eneckold: take comfort, man; thy betters have been becoos: " Agamemnon, emperor of all the merry Greeks, that tickled all the true Trojan, was a cornuto;
Prince Arthur, that cut off twelve kings' [s beards, was a cornuto; Heroules, whose back bore up heaven, and got forty wenches with child in one night.
Pietro. Nay, 't was fifty.
Mal. Faith, forty's enow, o'conscience, & yet was a cornuto. Patience; mischief grows pride: be wise.
Pietro. Thou pincheest too deep; art too keen upon me.
Mal. Tut, a pitiful surgeon makes a dangerous sore; I'll tent thee to the ground.
Thinkest I'll sustain myself by flattering thee, because thou art a prince? I had rather follow a drunkard, and live by licking up his vomit, than by servile flattery.
Pietro. Yet great men ha' done 't.
Mal. Great slaves fear better than love, born naturally for a coal-basket; " though the common usher of princes' presence, Fortune, ha' blindly given them better place. I am [s vowed to be thy affliction.
Pietro. Primo, they are:
I love much misery, and be thou son to me.
Mal. Because you are an usurping duke.—

Enter BILIEGO.
Your lordship's well returned from Florence.
Bil. Well return'd, I praise my horse.
Mal. What news from the Florentines?
Bil. I will conceal the great duke's pleasure; only this was his charge: his pleasure is, that his daughter die; Duke Pietro be banished [s for publishing his blood's dishonour; and that Duke Altofront be re-accepted. This is all: but I hear Duke Pietro is dead.
Mal. Ay, and Mendoza is duke: what will you do?
Bil. Is Mendoza strongest?
Mal. Yet he is.

to draw her picture; when they have done, she most courteously finds fault with them one after another, and never fetches them. They, in revenge of this, execute her in pictures as they do in Germany, and hang her in their shops. By this means is she better known to the stinkards than if she had been five times carted.

Bil. 'Fore God, an excellent policy.
Pass. Are there any revels to-night, my lord?
Bil. Yes.
Pass. Good my lord, give me leave to break a fellow's pate that hath abused me.
Bil. Whose pate?
Pass. Young Ferrando, my lord.
Bil. Take heed, he's very valiant; I have known him fight eight quarrels in five days, believe it.
Pass. O, is he so great a quarreller? Why, then, he's an arrant coward.
Bil. How prove you that?
Pass. Why, thus. He that quarrels seeks to fight; and he that seeks to fight seeks to die; and he that seeks to die seeks never to fight more; and he that will quarrel, and seeks means never to answer a man more, I think he's a coward.
Bil. Thou canst prove anything.
Pass. Anything but a rich knife; for I can flatter no man.
Bil. Well, be not drunk, good fool: I shall see you anon in the presence.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE I,

Enter Malvolio and Maquerelle, singing.

Mal. "The Dutchman for a drunkard," —
Maq. "The Dane for golden locks," —
Mal. "The Irishman for usquebaugh," — Maq. "The Frenchman for the ( )."
Mal. O, thou art a blessed creature! Had I a modest woman to conceal, I would put her to thy custody; for no reasonable creature would ever suspect her to be in thy company. Ah, thou art a melodious Maquerelle, — thou picture of a woman, and substance of a beast!

[Enter Passarello with wine.

Maq. O fool, will ye be ready anon to go with me to the revels? The hall will be so poster-

Pass. Ay, as the country is with attorneys.
Mal. What hast thou there, fool?
Pass. Wine; I have learned to drink since I went with my lord ambassador: I'll drink to the health of Madam Maquerelle.
Mal. Why, thou wast wont to raiul upon her.
Pass. Ay; but since I borrowed money of her, I'll drink to her health now as gentlemen visit brokers, or as knights send venison to the city, either to take up more money, or to procure longer forbearance.
Mal. Give me the bowl. I drink a health to Altofront, our deposed duke. [Drinks.]
THE MALCONTENT

Pass. I'll take it [drinks]: — so. Now I'll begin a health to Madam Maquerelle. [Drinks.]
Mal. Pooh! I will not pledge her.
Pass. Why, I pledged your lord.
Mal. I care not.
Pass. Not pledge Madam Maquerelle! Why, then, will I sput your lord again with this fool's finger.
Mal. Hold; I'll take it. [Drinks.]
Pass. To think thou hast drunk my health, [fool, I am friends with thee.
Pass. Art? art?
When Griffin saw the reconciled queen
Offering about his neck his arms to cast,
He threw off sword and heart’s malignant spleen,
And lovely her below the loins embrac’d.—

Adien, Madam Maquerelle. Exit.]

Mal. And how dost thou think o’ this transformation of state now?

Maq. Verily, very well; for we women always note, the falling of the one is the rising of the other; some must be fat, some must be lean; some must be fools, and some must belords; some must be knaves, and some must be officers; some must be beggars, some must be knights; some must be cokolds, and some must be citizens.
As for example, I have two court-dogs, the most fawning curs, the one called Watch, the other Catch: now I, like Lady Fortune, sometimes love this dog, sometimes raise that [dog sometimes favour Watch, most commonly fancy Catch. Now, that dog which I favour I feed; and he’s so ravenous, that what I give him never chaws it, gulps it down whole, without any relish of what he has, but with a greedy [suit expectation of what he shall have. The other dog now—

Mal. No more dog, sweet Maquerelle, no more dog: And what hope hast thou of the [Duchess Maria? Will she stoop to the duke’s lure? Will she come, thinkst?

Maq. Let me see, where’s the sign now? Ha’ ye a calendar? Where’s the sign, trow you?

Mal. Sign! why is there any moment in that?

Maq. O, believe me, a most secret power: look ye, a Chaldean or an Assyrian, I am sure ‘twas a most sweet Jew, told me, court any woman in the right sign, you shall not miss. But you must take her in the right vein [then; as, when the sign is in Pisces, a fishmonger’s wife is very sociable; in Cancer, a prince’s wife is very flexible; in Capricorn, a merchant’s wife hardly holds out; in Libra, a lawyer’s wife is very tractable, especially if [her husband he at the term; only in Scorpio’s he very dangerous meddling. Has the duke sent any jewel, any rich stones?

Enter Captain.

Mal. Ay, I think those are the best signs to [as take a lady in. By your fav’r, signor, I must discourse with the Lady Maria, Altofront’s duchess; I must enter for the duke.

Capt. She here shall give you interview. I [received the guardship of this citadel from the good Altofront, and for his use I’ll keep’t, till I am of no use.

Mal. Wilt thou? O heavens, that a Christian should be found in a buff-jerkin! Captain Conscience, I love thee, captain. [Exit Captain.] We attend. And what hope hast thou of this duchess’ easiness?

Maq. 'Twill go hard, she was a cold creature ever; she hated monkeys, fools, jesters, [and gentlemen-ushers extremely; she had the vile trick on’t, not only to be truly modestly honourable in her own conscience, but she would avoid the least wanton carriage that might incur suspicion; as, God bless me, she had almost brought bed-praising out of fashion; I [could scarce get a fine for the lease of a lady’s fav’r one in a fortnight.

Mal. Now, in the name of immodesty, how many maidsheads has thou brought to the block?

Maq. Let me see: heaven forgive us our misdeeds! — Here’s the duchess.

SCENE II.

[To them] enter Maria with Captain.

Mal. God bless thee, lady!

Maria. Out of thy company!

Mal. We have brought thee tender of a husband.

Maria. I hope I have one already.

Maq. Nay, by mine honour, madam, as good ha’ ne’er a husband as a banished husband; he’s in another world now. I’ll tell ye, lady, I have heard of a sect that maintained, when the husband was asleep the wife might lawfully entertain another man, for then her husband was as dead; much more when he is banished.

Maria. Unhonest creature!

Maq. Pish, honesty is but an art to seem so: Pray ye, what’s honesty, what’s constancy, But fables feign’d, odd old fools’ chat, devils’ By jealous fools to wrong our liberty?

Mal. Molly, he that loves thee is a duke, Mendoza; he will maintain thee royally, love thee ardently, defend thee powerfully, marry thee sumptuously, and keep thee in despite of Rosiclerie [ or Donzel del Phebo. There’s jewels: if thou wilt, so; if not, so.

Maria. Captain, for God’s love, save poor wretchedness

From tyranny of lustful insolence!

Enforce me in the deepest dungeon dwell,
Rather than here; here round about is hell,— O my dear’st Altofront! where’er thou breathes,

Let my soul sink into the shades beneath,
Before I stain thine honour! ’Tis thy has’t, And long as I can die, I will live chaste.

Mal. ‘Gainst him that can enforce how vain is strife!

knaves, honest men should be angry — why, look ye, we must collogue sometimes, forswear sometimes.

Mal. Be damned sometimes.

Bil. Right: nemo omnibus horis sapit; "no man can be honest at all hours:" necessity often depraves virtue.

Mal. I will commend thee to the duke.

Bil. Do: let us be friends, man.

Mal. And knaves, man.

Bil. Right: let us prosper and purchase: our lordships shall live, and our knavery be forgotten.

Mal. He that by any ways gets riches, his means never abashes him.

Bil. True.

Mal. For impudence and faithlessness are the main stays to greatness.

Bil. By the Lord, thou art a profound lad.

Mal. By the Lord, thou art a perfect knave: out, ye ancient damnation!

Bil. Peace, peace! and thou wilt not be a friend to me as I am a knave, be not a knave to me as I am thy friend, and discard me. Peace! corneal!

Enter PREPASO and FERRARDO, two Pages with lights, CLESIO and EQUATO, MENDOZA in duke's robes, and GUERRINO.

Men. Oh, oh; leave us, leave us.

Exeunt all saving MALEVOLI and MENDOZA.

Stay, where is the hermit?

Men. Is he dead? Is he poisoned?

Mal. Dead, as the duke is.

Men. Good, excellent: he will not blab; security lives in secrecy. Come hither, come hither.

Mal. Thou hast a certain strong villainous scent about thee my nature cannot endure.

Men. Scent, man! What returns Maria, what answer to our suit?

Mal. Cold, frosty; she is obstinate.

Men. Then she's but dead; 'tis resolute, she dies:

"Black deed only through black deed safely flies."

Mal. Pooh! per sceleris semper sceleribus tutus est iter.

Men. What, art a scholar? Art a politician?

Sure, thou art an arrant knave.

Mal. Who, I? I ha' been twice an under-sheriff, man.

Well, I will go rail upon some great man, that I may purchase the bastinado, or else go marry some rich Genco lady, and instantly go travel.

Men. Travel, when thou art married?

---

1 Talk closely together, as if conspiring.

2 Benaca, Apan. 115. (Bullen.)

3 Q. omits this.

4 Mend. Hast been with Maria?

Mal. As your scrivener to your weaver, I have dealt about tasting of this commodity, but she's cold-frosty. These lines seem to have been meant to take the place of lines 69-86 which were left in by mistake. Q. omits ll. 59-72.
Mal. Ay, 'tis your young lord's fashion to do so, though he was so lazy, being a bachelor, that he would never travel so far as the university: yet, when he married her, takes off, and, Catso, for England!

Men. And why for England?

Mal. Because there is no brothel-houses there.

Men. Nor courtesans?

Mal. Neither; your whore went down with the stews, and your punk came up with your puritan.

Men. Canst thou empoison? Canst thou empoison?

Mal. Excellently; so Jew, 'pothecary, or politician better. Look ye, here's a box: who wouldst thou empoison? Here's a box (giving it), which opened and the fumes taken up in conduits thorough which the brain purges it: self, doth instantly for twelve hours' space bind up all show of life in a deep senseless sleep; here's another (giving it), which, being opened under the sleeper's nose, choaks all the pores of life, kills him suddenly.

Men. I'll try experiments; 'tis good not to be deceived. — So, so; catso!

Seems to poison Malevole [who falls].

Who would fear that may destroy?
Death hath no teeth nor tongue;
And he that's great, to him are slaves.
Shame, murder, fame, and wrong.

Cels. Enter Cels.

Cels. My honour'd lord?

Men. The good Malevole, that plain-tongu'd man,
Alas, is dead on sudden, wondrous strangely!
He held in our esteem good place. Celsso,

See him buried, see him buried.

Cels. I shall observe ye.

Men. And, Celsso, prithee, let it be thy care
To have some pretty show, to solemnize
Our high instalment; some music, masquerie.
We'll give fair entertain unto Maria,
The duchess to the banish'd Altofront;
Thou shalt conduct her from the citadel
Unto the palace. Think on some masquerie.

Cels. Of what shape, sweet lord?

Men. What shape! Why, any quick-done fiction;
As some brave spirits of the Genoan dukers,
To come out of Elysium, forsooth,
Led in by Mercury, to gratulate
Our happy fortune; some such anything,
Some far-fet trick good for ladies, some stale
Or other, no matter, so't be of our devising.
Do thou prepare 't: 'tis but for fashion sake.
Fear not, it shall be gra'd, man, it shall take.

Cels. All service.

Men. All thanks; our hand shall not be close to thee; farewell.

(Aside.) Now is my treachery secure, nor can we fall.
Mischief that prospers, men do virtue call.
I'll trust no man: he that by tricks gets wreathes
Keeps them with steel; no man securely breathes
Out of deserved ranks; the crowd will mutter,
"fool!"
Who cannot bear with spite, he cannot rule.
The chiefest secret for a man of state
Is, to live senseless of a strengthless hate. Exit.

Mal. (starts up and speaks.) Death of the [as damned thief] I'll make one i the masque;
thou shalt ha' some brave spirits of the antique dukers.

Most happy, dear Celsso, poisoned with an empty box: I'll give thee all, anon. My lady comes to court; there is a whirl of fate comes tumbling on; the castle's captain stands for me, the apprentice pray for me, and the great leader of the just stands for me: then courage, Celsso;
For no disastrous chance can ever move him
That leaveth nothing but a God above him.

Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Bilioso and Prepasso, two Pages before them; Ma Querelle, Blanca, and Emilia.

Bil. Make room there, room for the ladies! Why, gentlemen, will not ye suffer the ladies to be entered in the great chamber? Why, gallants and you, sir, to drop your torch where the beauties must sit too?

Pre. And there's a great fellow plays the knave; why dost not strike him?

Bil. Let him play the knife, o' God's name; thinkest thou I have no more wit than to strike a great fellow? — The music! more lights! is revelling-scaffolds! do you hear? Let there be oaths enow ready at the door, swear out the devil himself. Let 's leave the ladies, and go see if the lords be ready for them.

Exeunt Bilioso, Prepasso, ana Pages.

Mag. And, by my troth, beauties, why do ye not put you into the fashion? This is a stale cut; you must come in fashion: look ye, you must be all felt, felt and feather, a felt upon your bare hair. Look ye, these tiring things are justly out of request now: and, do ye 's hear? you must wear falling-bands, ye must come into the falling fashion: there is such a deal o' pinning these ruffs, when the fine clean fall is worth all: and again, if ye should chance to take a nap in the afternoon, your falling- [as band requires no potting-stick] to recover his form: believe me, no fashion to the falling, I say.

1 Qt. Why. 2 Niggardly.
Maria. Not meet!
She that dear loves, her love's still in her soul.

Men. You are but a woman, lady, you must yield.

Maria. O, save me, thou innate bashfulness
Thou only ornament of woman's modesty!

Men. Modesty! death, I'll torment thee.

Maria. Do, urge all torments, all affictions try;
I'll die my lord's as long as I can die.

Men. Thou obstinate, thou shalt die.—Captain, that lady's life
Is forfeited to justice; we have examin'd her,
And we do find she hath empoisoned

The reverend hermit; therefore we command
Severest custody.—Nay, if you'll do 's no good,
You 'st do's no harm: a tyrant's peace is blood.

Maria. O, thou art merciful; O gracious devil,
Rather by much let me condemned be
For seeming murder than be damn'd for thee!
I'll mourn no more; come, girt my brows with Flowers: Revel and dance, soul, now thy wish thou hast;

Die like a bride, poor heart, thou shalt die

chaste.

Enter Aurelia in mourning habit.

Aur. "Life is a feast of cold felicity,
And death the thaw of all our vanity:"

Was 't not an honest priest that wrote so?

Men. Who let her in?

Men. Be wise as you are fair, give way to fate.

Maria. What wouldst thou, thou affliction to our house?
Thou ever-devil, 'twas thou that banished

My truly noble lord!

Men. I! Maria. Ay, by thy plots, by thy black stratagems:

Twelve moons have suffer'd change since I beheld

The loved presence of my dearest lord.
O thou far worse than Death! he parts but soul
From a weak body; but thou soul from soul is Dissever'd, that which God's own hand did knit;

Thou scant of honour, full of devilish wit!

Men. We'll check your too-intemperate lavishment:

I can and will.

Maria. What canst thou?

Men. Go to; in banishment thy husband dies.

Maria. He ever is at home that 's ever wise.

Men. You 'st ne'er meet more: reason should love control.

1 So Q. Some copies of Q, windle. Bullen suggests wimble, irrible.
2 Outweigh.
Maria. With me, sir?

MALVOLIE takes MARIA to dance.

MAL. Yes; more loved than my breath;
With you I'll dance.

MARIA. Why, then, you dance with death.
But, come, sir, I was ne'er so apt for mirth.
Death gives eternity a glorious breath:
O, to die honour'd, who would fear to die?
MAL. They die in fear who live in villany.
MEN. Yes, believe him, lady, and be ruled by him.

PIETRO. Madam, with me.

PIETRO takes AURELLA to dance.

AUR. Wouldst, then, be miserable?

PIETRO. I need not wish.

AUR. O, yet forbear my hand! away! fly!

O, seek not her that only seeks to die!

PIETRO. Poor loved soul!

AUR. Wouldst court misery?

PIETRO. Yes.

AUR. She'll come too soon:—O my grieved heart!

PIETRO. Lady, ha' done, ha' done:
Come, let us dance: be once from sorrow free.

AUR. Art a sad man?

PIETRO. Yes, sweet.

AUR. Then we'll agree.

FERNEZE takes MAURERELLE and CELESTIANA: then the cornets sound the measure, one change and rest.

FER. (to CELESTIANA,) Believe it, lady; shall I swear? Let me enjoy you in private, and I'll marry you, by my soul.

CELESTIANA. I had rather you swear by your body: I think that would prove the more regarded oath with you.

FER. I'll swear by them both, to please you.

CELESTIANA. O, damn them not both to please [as I have for God's sake!]

FER. Faith, sweet creature, let me enjoy you to-night, and I'll marry you to-morrow fortnight, by my troth, la.

MAURERELLE. On his troth, la! believe him not; [as that kind of ony-catching! is as stale as Sir Oliver Anchovy's perfumed jerkin: promise of matrimony by a young gallant, to bring a virgin lady into a fool's paradise; make her a great woman, and then cast her off;—'t is as common, [73] natural to a courtier, as jealousy to a citizen, gluttony to a puritan, wisdom to an alderman, pride to a tailor, or an empty hand-basket to one of these six-penny damations: of his troth, la! believe him not; traps to [74] catch pole-cats.

MAL. (to MARIA.) Keep your face constant, let no sudden passion
Speak in your eyes.

MARIA. O my Alfofrunt!

PIETRO. (to AURELLA.) A tyrant's jealoysies
Are very nimble: you receive it all?

AUR. My heart, though not my knees, doth humbly fail
Low as the earth, to thee.

MAL. Peace! next change; no words.

MARIA. Speech to such, say, O, what will affords!

CORNETS sound the measure over again; which danced, they unmask.

MEN. Malevole!

MAL. No.

CORNETS, a flourish.—They seize upon MENDOZA.

MEN. Are we surpris'd? What strange de clasions mock
Our senses? Do I dream? or have I dreamt
This two days' space? Where am I?

MAL. Where an arch-villain is.

MEN. O, lend me breath till I am fit to die!
For peace with heaven, for your own souls' sake,
Vouchsafe me life!

PIETRO. Ignoble villain! whom neither heaven
nor hell,
Goodness of God or man, could once make

MAL. Base, treacherous wretch! what grace cast thou expect,
That hast grown impudent in gracelessness?

MEN. O, life!

MAL. Slave, take thy life.

Wert thou defenced, th'o'roughout blood and wounds,
The sternest horror of a civil fight,
Would I achieve thee; but prostrate at my feet,
I scorn to hurt thee: 'tis the heart of slaves
That daigns to triumph over peasants' graves;
For such thou art, since birth doth ne'er enroll
A man 'mong monarcbs, but a glorious soul.

O, I have seen strange accidents of state!

The flatterer, like the ivy, clip the oak,
And waste it to the heart; just so confirm'd,
That the black act of sin itself not shammed
To be term'd courtship.

O, they that are as great as be their sins,

LET them remember that th' inconstant people
Love many princes merely for their faces
And outward shows; and they do covet more
To have a sight of these than of their virtues.
Yet thus much let the great ones still conceive,
When they observe not heaven's impose'd conditions.

They are no kings, but forfeit their commissions.

MAURERELLE. O good my lord, I have lived in the court this twenty year: they that have been old courtiers, and come to live in the city, they [75] are spit at, and thrust to the walls like apricocks, good my lord.

BIL. My lord, I did know your lordship in this disguise; you heard me ever say, if Alfofrunt did return, I would stand for him: besides, 't was your lordship's pleasure to call me witto! and enckold: you must not think, but that I knew you, I would have put it up so patiently.]
Mal. You o'er-joy'd spirits, wipe your long-wet eyes. To Pietro and Aurelia. Hence with this man (kicks out Mendoza): an eagle takes not flies.

You to your vows (to Pietro and Aurelia): and thou into the suburbs.

To Maquerelle.

You to my worst friend I would hardly give; Thou art a perfect old knave (to Bilioso): all-pleas'd live

You two unto my breast (to Celio and the Captain): thou to my heart. (To Maria.) The rest of idle actors idly part: And as for me, I here assume my right, To which I hope all 's pleas'd: to all, good-night.

Cornets, a flourish. Exeunt omnes.

AN IMPERFECT ODE, BEING BUT ONE STAFF

SPOKEN BY THE PROLOGUE.

To wrest each hurtless thought to private sense Is the foul use of ill-bred impudence: Immodest censure now grows wild, All over-running. Let innocence be ne'er so chaste, Yet to the last She is des'fil'd With too nice-brained cunning.

1 The disreputable district.

O you of fairer soul, Control
With an Herculean arm This harm;
And once teach all old freedom of a pen, Which still must write of fools, whilsts 't writes of men!

EPILOGUS

Your modest silence, full of heedly stillness, Makes me thus speak: a voluntary illness Is merely senseless; but unwilling error, Such as proceeds from too rash youthful fervour, May well be call'd a fault, but not a sin: Rivers take names from fountains where they begin. Then let not too severe an eye peruse The slighter brakes of our reformed Muse, Who could herself of faults detect, But that she knows 't is easy to correct, Though some men's labour: truth, to err is fit, As long as wisdom's not profess'd, but wit. Then till another's happier Muse appears, Till his Thalia feast your learned ears, To whose desertful lamps pleased Fates impart Art above nature, judgment above art. Receive this piece, which hope nor fear yet daunteth: He that knows most knows most how much he wanteth.

PROLOGUE

I come but like a harbinger, being sent
To tell you what these preparations mean.
Look for no glorious state; our Muse is bent
Upon a barren subject, a bare scene.
We could afford this twig a timber-tree,
Whose strength might boldly on your favours build;
Our russet, tissue; drone, a honey-bee;
Our barren plot, a large and spacious field;
Our coarse fare, banquets; our thin water, wine;
Our brook, a sea; our hat’s eyes, eagle’s sight;
Our poet’s dull and earthy Muse, divine;
Our ravens, doves; our crow’s black feathers, white.
But gentle thoughts, when they may give the foil,
Save them that yield, and spare where they may spoil.

[ACT I]

[SCENE I.]

Enter Master John Frankford, Mistress (Frankford), Sir Francis Acton, Sir Charles Mountford, Master Malby, Master Wendoll, and Master Cranwell.

Sir F. Some music, there! None lead the bride a dance?
Sir C. Yes, would she dance The Shaking of the Sheets?
But that’s the dance her husband means to lead her.
Wen. That’s not the dance that every man must dance.
According to the ballad. 4

Sir F. 4 Music, ho!
By your leave, sister, — by your husband’s
leave,
I should have said, — the hand that but this day
Was given you in the church I’ll borrow. — Sound!
This marriage music hoists me from the ground.
Frank. Ay, you may caper; you are light and free!
Marriage hath yok’d my heels; pray, then, pardon me.
Sir F. I’ll have you dance too, brother!
Sir C. Master Frankford,
You are a happy man, sir, and much joy
Succeed your marriage mirth: you have a wife
So qualified, and with such ornaments
Both of the mind and body. First, her birth
Is noble, and her education such
As might become the daughter of a prince;
Her own tongue speaks all tongues, and her own hand.
Can teach all strings to speak in their best grace.
From the shrill'st treble to the lowest base.
To end her many praises in one word,
She's Beauty and Perfection's eldest daughter,
Only found'd by yours, though many a heart hath sought her
Frank. But that I know your virtues and chaste thoughts.
I should be jealous of your praise, Sir Charles.
Cran. He speaks no more than you approve.
Mal. Nor flatters he that gives to her her due.
Mrs. F. I would your praise could find a fitter theme Than my imperfect beauties to speak on!
Such as they be, if they my husband please,
They suffice me now I am married.
His sweet content is like a flattering glass,
To make my face seem fairer to mine eye;
But the least wrinkle from his stormy brow
Will blast the roses in my cheeks that grow.
Sir F. A perfect wife already, meek and patient.
How strangely the word husband fits your neck?
Not married three hours since! Sister, 'tis good.
You that begin betimes thus must Needs prove Flint and dusteons in your husband's love. —
Gramercies, brother! Wrought her to 't already,
'S sweet husband,' and a curtsey, the first day?
Mark this, mark this, you that are bachelors,
And never took the grace 1 of honest man;
Mark this, against you marry, this one phrase:
In a good time that man both wins and woos
That takes his wife down 2 in her wedding shoes.
Frank. Your sister takes not after you, Sir Francis,
All his wild blood your father spent on you;
He got her in his age, when he grew civil.
All his mad tricks were to his land entailing,
And you are heir to all; your sister, she Hath to her fervor of her mother's modesty.
Sir C. Lord, sir, in what a happy state live
you!
This morning, which to many seems a burden,
Too heavy to bear, is unto you a pleasure.
This lady is no clog, as many are;
She doth become you like a well-made suit,
In which the tailor hath us'd all his art;
Not like a thick coat of unseason'd friezes,
Po'd on your back in summer. She's no chain
To tie your neck, and curb you to the yoke;
But she's a chain of gold to adorn your neck.
You both adorn each other, and your hands,
Marthinks, are matches. There's equality
In this fair combination; you are both
Scholars, both young, both being descended nobly.
There's music in this sympathy; it carries
Counsel and expectation of much joy.
Which God bestow on you from this first day
Until your dissolution, — that's for aye!

Sir F. We keep you have too long, good brother Frankford.
Into the hall; away! Go cheer your guests.
What! Bride and bridegroom both withdrawn
at once?
If you be mist, the guests will doubt their welcome.
And charge you with unkindness.
Frank. To prevent it,
I'll leave you here, to see the dance within.
Mrs. F. And so we will.

Cran. [Master and Mistresses FRANKFORD.

Sir F. To part we it were sin.
Now, gallants, while the town musicians
Finger their frets 4 within, and the maid looks
And country lasses, every mother's child,
With nosegay's and bride-bees 5 in their kites,
Dance all their country measures, rounds, and jigs.
What shall we do? Hark! They're all on the hoist:
They toll like mill-horses, and turn as round.
Marry, noon the toe! Ay, and they care, [Not] without cutting; you shall see, tomorrow.
The hall-floor pecked and dinted like a mill-
stone,
Made with their shoes. Though their skill be
Yet they tread heavy where their hobnails fall.
Sir C. Well, leave them to their sports! —
Sir Francis Acton,
I'll make a match with you! Meet me tomorrow
At Chevy Chase; I'll fly my hawk with yoss.
Sir F. For what? For what?
Sir C. Why, for a hundred pound.
Sir F. Pawn me some gold of that!
Sir C. Here are ten angels;
I'll make them good a hundred pound to-morrow.

Cran. Upon my hawk's wing,
Sir F. "t is a match; 't is done.
Another hundred pound upon your dogs; —
Dare ye, Sir Charles?
Sir C. I dare; were I sure to lose,
I durst do more than that; here is my hand, —
The first course for a hundred pound!

Sir F. A match.

Sir F. We be stirring early with the lark tomorrow;
1. Gained the dignity.
2. In preparation for marrying.
3. Reduces her to submissión.
4. The prints where the strings of a musical instrument are stopped.
5. Stemmers.
7. QF But.
8. Gold coins worth about $2.50.
9. Shake hands on it.
A WOMAN KILLED WITH KINDNESS

But see, they all have left me; only one
Cling to my sad misfortune, my dear sister.
I know you for an honest gentleman;
I yield my weapons, and submit to you.
Convey me where you please!
Sher.
To prison, then, 160
To answer for the lives of these dead men.
Saxon. O God! O God!
Sir C. Sweet sister, every strain
Of sorrow from your heart augments my pain;
Your grief abounds, 2 and hits against my breast.
Sher. Sir, will you go?
Sir C. Even where it likes you best. 160
[Execut.]

[ACT II]

[SCENE I]

Enter Master Frankford in a study.

Frank. How happy am I amongst other men,
That in my mean estate embrace content!
I am a gentleman, and by my birth
Companion with a king; a king's no more.
I am possess'd of many fair revenues,
Sufficient to maintain a gentleman;
Touching my mind, I am studied in all arts;
The riches of my thoughts and of my time
Have been a good proficient; 3 but, the chief
Of all the sweet felicities on earth,
I have a fair, a chaste, and loving wife, —
Perfection all, all truth, all ornament.
If man on earth may truly happy be,
Of these at once possesse, sure, I am be.

Enter Nicholas.

Nich. Sir, there's a gentleman attends without
To speak with you.

Frank. On horseback?

Nich. Yes, on horseback.

Frank. Entreat him to alight, I will attend him.

Know'st thou him, Nick?

Nich. Know him? Yes; his name's Wendell.

Frank. It seems, he comes in haste: his horse is booted up
To the flank in mire, himself all spotted
And stain'd with plashing. Sure, he rid in fear,
Or for a wager. Horse and man both sweat;
I ne'er saw two in such a smoking heat.

Frank. Entreat him in: about it instantly!

[Exit Nicholas.]

This Wendell I have noted, and his carriage Hath pleas'd me much; by observation I have noted many good deserts in him.
He's affable, and seen in many things;
Discourses well; a good companion;
And though of small means, yet a gentleman
Of a good house, though somewhat pretext by want.
I have preferr'd him to a second place
In my opinion and my best regard.

Enter Wendell, Mistress Frankford, and Nicholas.

Mrs. F. Oh, Master Frankford! Master Wendell here
Brings you the strangest news that e'er you heard.

Frank. What news, sweet wife? What news, good Master Wendell?

Wen. You knew the match made 'twixt Sir Francis Acton
And Sir Charles Mountford?

Frank. True; with their hounds and hawks.

Wen. The matches were both play'd.

Frank. Ha? And which won?

Wen. Sir Francis, your wife's brother, had the worst,
And lost the wager.

Frank. Why, the worse his chance;
Perhaps the fortune of some other day
Will change his luck.

Mrs. F. Oh, but you hear not all.

Sir Francis lost, and yet was loth to yield.
At length the two knights grew to difference,
From words to blows, and so to banding sides;
Where valorous Sir Charles slew, in his spleen,
Two of your brother's men, — his falconer,
And his good huntsman, whom he lov'd so well.

More men were wounded, no more slain outright.

Frank. Now, trust me, I am sorry for the knight.

But is my brother safe?

Wen. All whole and sound.
His body not being blemish'd with one wound.
But poor Sir Charles is to the prison led
To answer at th' assize for them that's dead.

Frank. I thank your pains, sir. Had the news been better,
Your will was to have brought it, Master Wendell.

Sir Charles will find hard friends; his case is heinous
And will be most severely censur'd on.

Wen. I'm sorry for him. Sir, a word with you!

I know you, sir, to be a gentleman
In all things; your possibilities but mean:
Please you to use my table and my purse;
They're yours.

Frank. O Lord, sir! I shall ne'er deserve it.

Frank. Sir, disparage not your worth too much:
You are full of quality and fair desert.

Wen. Master Frankford, I have oft been bound to you
By many favours; this exceeds them all,
That I shall never merit your least favour;
But when your last remembrance I forget,
Heaven at my soul exact that weighty debt!

1 Overflows. 2 Splashed. 3 Judged. 4 Accomplishments.
Enter SIR CHARLES and his Keeper.

Keeper. Discharge your fees, and you are then at freedom.

Sir C. Here, Master Keeper, take the poor remainder.

Of all the wealth I have! My heavy feet have made my purse light; but, alas! to me 'tis wealth enough that you have set me free.

Mal. God give you joy of your delivery!

I am glad to see you abroad, Sir Charles.

Sir C. The poorest knight in England, Master Malby.

My life has cost me all my patrimony.

My father left his son. Well, God forgive them.

That are the authors of my penury!

Enter SHAFTON.

Shaft. Sir Charles! A hand, a hand! At liberty?

Now, by the faith I owe, I am glad to see it.

What want you? Wherein may I pleasure you?

Sir C. Oh me! Oh, most unhappy gentleman!

I am not worthy to have friends stirr'd up, whose hands may help me in this plague of want.

I would I were in Heaven, to inherit there Th' immortal birthright which my Saviour keeps,

And by no unthrifty can be bought and sold;

For here on earth what pleasures should we trust!

Shaft. To rid you from these contemplations, Three hundred pounds you shall receive of me;

Nay, five for fail. Come, sir, the sight of gold Is the most sweet receipt for melancholy,

And will revive your spirits. You shall hold law

With your proud adversaries. Tush! let Frank Acton

Wage, with his knighthood, like expense with me.

And he will sink, he will. — Nay, good Sir Charles,

Applaud your fortune and your fair escape From all these perils.

Sir C. Oh, sir! they have undone me.

Two thousand and five hundred pound a year My father at his death possest me of;

All which the envious Acton made me spend;

And, notwithstanding all this large expense, I had much ado to gain my liberty;

And I have only now a house of pleasure, With some five hundred pounds reser'v'd, Both to maintain me and my loving sister.

Shaft. [Aside.] That must I have, it lies convenient for me.

If I can fasten but one finger on him, With my full hand I'll grip him to the heart.

'Tis not for love I proffer'd him this coin, But for my gain and pleasure. — Come, Sir Charles,

I know you have need of money; take my offer.

1 Grieve. 4 The Goul.
2 Use. 5 Changed.
Sir C. Sir, I accept it, and remain indebted
Even to the best of my unable power.
Come, gentlemen, and see it tend red down! [Exeunt.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter WENDOLL, melancholy.

Wen. I am a villain, if I apprehend
But such a thought! Then, to attempt the deed,
Slave, the heart damned without redemption. —
I'll drive away this passion with a song.
A song! Ha! ha! A song! As if, fond man,
Thy eyes could swim in laughter, when thy soul
Lies drench'd and drowned in red tears of blood!
I'll pray, and see if God within my heart
Plant better thoughts. Why, prayers are meditations,
And when I meditate (oh, God forgive me!)
It is on her divine perfections.
I will forget her; I will arm myself
Not t'entertain a thought of love to her;
And, when I come by chance into her presence,
I'll hale these balls until my eye-strings crack.
From being pull'd and drawn to look that way.

Enter, over the Stage, FRANKFORD, his Wife, and NICHOLAS [and exit].

O God, O God! With what a violence
I'm hurried to mine own destruction!
There goest thou, the most perfectest man
That ever England bred a gentleman,
And shall I wrong his bed? — Thou God of thunder!
Stay, in Thy thoughts of vengeance and of wrath,
Thy great, almighty, and all-judging hand
From speedy execution on a villain,
A villain and a traitor to his friend.

Enter JENKIN.

Jen. Did your worship call?
Wen. He doth maintain me; he allows me largely Money to spend.
Jen. By my faith, so do you me: I cannot get a cross of you.
Wen. My golding, and my man.
Jen. That's Sorrel and I.
Wen. This kindness grows of no alliance 'twixt us.
Jen. Nor is my service of any great acquaintance.
Wen. I never bound him to me by desert.
Of a mere stranger, a poor gentleman,
A man by whom in no kind he could gain,
He hath plac'd me in the height of all his thoughts,
Made me companion with the best and chiefest
In Yorkshire. He cannot eat without me,
Nor laugh without me; I am to his body

As necessary as his digestion,
And equally do make him whole or sick.
And shall I wrong this man? Base man! Ingrate!
Hast thou the power, straight with thy gory hands,
To rip thy image from his bleeding heart,
To scratch thy name from out the holy book
Of his remembrance, and to wound his name
That holds thy name so dear? Or rend his heart
To whom thy heart was knit and join'd together?
And yet I must. Then Wendoll, be content!
Thus villains, when they would, cannot repent.
Jen. What a strange humour is my new master in! Pray God he be not mad; if he should be so, I should never have any mind to serve him in Bedlam. It may be he's mad for missing of me.
Wen. What, Jenkin! Where's your mistress?
Jen. Is your worship married?
Wen. Why dost thou ask?
Jen. Because you are my master; and if I have a mistress, I would be glad, like a good servant, to do my duty to her.
Wen. I mean Mistress Frankford.
Jen. Marry, sir, her husband is riding out of town, and she went very lovingly to bring him on his way to horse. Do you see, sir? Here she comes, and here I go.
Wen. Vanish! [Exit JENKIN.]

Enter MISTRESS FRANKFORD.

Mrs. F. You are well met, sir; now, in truth, my husband
Before he took horse, had a great desire
To speak with you; we sought about the house,
Hallow'd into the fields, sent every way,
But could not meet you. Therefore, he enjoin'd me
To do unto you his most kind commands,—
Nay, more: he wills you, as you prize his love,
Or hold in estimation his kind friendship,
To make bold in his absence, and command
Even as himself were present in the house; for you must keep his table, use his servants, and be a present Frankford in his absence.
Wen. I thank him for his love.—
[Aside.] Give me a name, you, whose infectious tongues
Are tipt with gall and poison: as you would Think on a man that had your fathers slaine,
Murd'red your children, made your wives base strumpets,
So call me, call me so; print in my face
The most stigmatic title of a villain,
For hatching treason to so true a friend! —
Mrs. F. Sir, you are much beholding to my husband;
You are a man most dear in his regard.
Wen. I am bound unto your husband, and you too.
[Aside.] I will not speak to wrong a gentleman. Of that good estimation, my kind friend. I will not; zounds! I will not. I may choose, And I will choose. Shall I be so misled, Or shall I purchase 1 to my father's cost The motto of a villain? If I say I will not do it, what thing can enforce me? What can compel me? What sad destiny Hath such command upon my yielding thoughts? I will not;—ha! Some fury pricks me on; The swift fate drag me at their chariot wheel, And hurry me to mischief. Speak I must: 163
Injure myself, wrong her, deceive his trust! Mrs. F. Are you not well, sir, that you seem thus troubled? There is sedition in your countenance. Wen. And in my heart, fair angel, chaste and wise.
I love you! Start not, speak not, answer not; I love you,—nay, let me speak the rest; Bid me to swear, and I will call to record The host of Heaven. Mrs. F. The host of Heaven forbid Wendoll should hatch such a disloyal thought? Wen. Such is my fate; to this suit was I born To wear rich pleasure's crown, or fortune's soorn. Mrs. F. My husband loves you. Wen. I know it. Mrs. F. He esteems you, Even as his brain, his eye-ball, or his heart. Wen. I have tried it. Mrs. F. His purse is your exchequer, and his table 158 Doth freely serve you. Wen. So I have found it. Mrs. F. Oh! With what face of brass, what brow of steel, Can you, unblushing, speak this to the face Of the espous'd wife of so dear a friend? It is my husband that maintains your state. Will you dishonour him that in your power Hath left his whole affairs? I am his wife, It is to me you speak. Wen. O speak no more; For more than this I know, and have recorded Within the red-leav'd table of my heart. Fair, and of all belov'd, I was not fearful Bluntly to give my life into your hand, And at one hazard all my earthly means. Go, tell your husband; he will turn me off, And I am then undone. I care not, I; 'T was for your sake. Perchance, in rage he'll kill me; I care not, 'twas for you. Say I incur The general name of villain through the world, Of traitor to my friend; I care not, I. Beggary, shame, death, scandal, and reproach,— For you I'll hazard all. Why, what care I? For you I live, and in your love I'll die. 1 Acquire, add.

Mrs. F. You move me, sir, to passion and to pity. The love I bear my husband is as precious As my soul's health. Wen. I love your husband too, 158 And for his love I will engage my life. Mistake me not; the augmentation Of my sincere affection borne to you Doth no whit lessen my regard to him. I will be secret, lady, close as night; And not the light of one small glorious star Shall shine here in my forehead, to bewray That act of night. Mrs. F. What shall I say? My soul is wandering, hath lost her way. Oh, Master Wendoll! Oh! Wen. Sigh not, sweet saint; 17 For every sigh you breathe draws from my heart A drop of blood. Mrs. F. I ne'er offended yet: My fault, I fear, will in my brow be writ. Women that fall, not quite bereft of grace, Have their offences noted in their face. 158 I blush, and am ashamed. Oh, Master Wen- doll, Pray God I be not born to curse your tongue, That hath enchanted me! This maze I am born in I fear will prove the labyrinth of sin.

Enter Nicholas [behind]. Wen. The path of pleasure and the gate to bliss, Which on your lips I knock at with a kiss! Nic. I'll kill the rogue. Wen. Your husband is from home, your bed's no blab. Nay, look not down and blush! [Enter WENDOLL and MISTRESS FRANKFORD.]

Nic. Zounds! I'll stab. Ay, Nick, was it thy chance to come just in the nick? I love my master, and I hate that slave; I love my mistress, but these tricks I like not. My master shall not pocket up this wrong; I'll eat my fingers first. What say'st thou, metal? Does not that rascal Wendoll go on legs? That thou must cut off? Hath he not hammer-stings That thou must hough? Nay, metal, thou shalt stand To all I say. I'll henceforth turn a spy, And watch them in their close conveyances. I never look'd for better of that rascal, Since he came mewing 8 first into our house. It is that Satan hath corrupted her: For she was fair and chaste. I'll have an eye In all their gestures. Thus I think of them: If they proceed as they have done before, Wendoll's a knave, my mistress is a ———

III. 1.  A WOMAN KILLED WITH KINDNESS 493

[ACT III]

[SCEENE I.] 1

Enter Sir CHARLES MOUNTFORD and SUSAN.

Sir C. Sister, you see we are driven to hard shift.
To keep this poor house we have left unsold.
I'm now enforc'd to follow husbandry,
And yoke to milk, and do we not live well?
No, I thank God.

Susan. Oh, brother! here's a change. 5
Since old Sir Charles died in our father's house.
Sir C. All things on earth thus change, some up, some down;
Content's a kingdom, and I wear that crown.

Enter SHAF'TON, with a Sergeant.

Shaf't. Good morrow, morrow, Sir Charles! 9
What! With your sister,
Plying your husbandry?—Sergeant, stand off!—
You have a pretty house here, and a garden,
And goodly ground about it. Since it lies
So near a lordship that I lately bought,
I would fain buy it of you. I will give you —
Sir C. Oh, pardon me; this house successively
Hath long'd me and my progenitors
Three hundred years. My great-great-grandfather,
He in whom first our gentle style began,
Dwelt here, and in this ground increase this mole-hill
Unto that mountain which my father left me,
Where he the first of all our house began, 31
I now the last will end, and keep this house,—
This virgin title, never yet deflower'd
By any unthrift of the Mountfords' line.
In brief, I will not sell it for more gold
Than you would hide or pave the ground withal.

Shaf't. Ha, ha! a proud mind and a beggar's purse!
Where's my three hundred pounds, besides the use? 2
I have brought it to an execution
By course of law. What! Is my money ready?
Sir C. An execution, sir, and never tell me
You put my bond in suit? You deal extremely. 3

Shaf't. Sell me the land, and I'll acquit you straight.

Sir C. Alas, alas! 'Tis all trouble hath left me
To cherish me and my poor sister's life. 35
If this were sold, our names should then be quite Raz'd from the bead-roll 4 of gentility.
You see what hard shift we have made to keep it
Allied still to our name. This palm you see,
Labour hath glow'd within; her silver brow,
That never tasted a rough winter's blast
Without a mask or fan, doth with a grace
Defy cold winter, and his storms outface.

1 Sir Charles Mountford's house.
2 Interest.
3 Extremely rigorously.
4 List. Properly a list of names to be prayed for.

Susan. Sir, we feed sparing, and we labour hard.
We lie uneasy, to reserve to us
And our succession this small spot of ground.

Sir C. I have so bent my thoughts to husbandry,
That I protest I scarce can remember
What a new fashion is; how silk or satin
Feels in my hand. Why, pride is grown to us
A mere, mere stranger. I have quite forgot
The names of all that ever waited on me.
I cannot name ye any of my hounds.
Once from whose echoing mouths I heard all music
That e'er my heart desired. What should I say?
To keep this place, I have chang'd myself away.

Shaf't. Arrest him at my suit!—Actions and actions.
Shall keep thee in perpetual bondage fast;
Nay, more, I'll sue thee by a late appeal,
And call thy former life in question. 60
The keeper is my friend; thou shalt have irons,
And usage such as I 'll deny to dogs. —
Away with him!

Sir C. You are too timorous. 6
But trouble is my master,
And I will serve him truly. — My kind sister,
Thy tears are of no use to mollify
The flinty man. Go to my father's brother,
My kinsmen, and allies; entreat them for me,
To ransom me from this injurious man
That seeks my ruin.

Shaf't. Come, irons! Come away; 70
I'll see thee lodg'd far from the sight of day.

Susan [except SUSAN].

Susan. My heart's so hard'n'd with the frost of grief,
Death cannot pierce it through.—Tyrant too fell!
So lead the fiends condemned souls to hell.

Enter Sir FRANCIS ACTON and MALBY.

Sir F. Again to prison! Malby, hast thou seen
A poor slave better tortur'd? Shall we hear
The music of his voice cry from the grate. 75
Meat, for the Lord's sake? No, no; yet I am not Thoroughly reveng'd. They say, he hath a pretty wench
Unto his sister; shall I, in mercy-sake
To him and to his kindred, brie the fool
To shame herself by lewd, dishonest lust?
I'll proffer largely; but, the deed being done,
I'll smile to see her base confusion.
Mal. Methinks, Sir Francis, you are full re-

9 Interest.
10 Extremely rigorously.
11List. Properly a list of names to be prayed for.
6 Ed. conj. tyrannous.
8 Of the debtor's prison.
To strike my soul through with thy piercing eye!
I am enchanted; all my spirits are fled.
And with one glance my envious spleen struck dead.

Susan. Acton! That seeks our blood!

Sir F. Runs away.

Mal. Sir Francis! Why, Sir Francis! Zounds, in a trance?

Sir Francis! What cheer, man? Come, come, how is 't?

Sir F. Was she not fair? Or else this judging eye
Cannot distinguish beauty.

Mal. She was fair.

Sir F. She was an angel in a mortal's shape,
And ne'er descended from old Mountford's line.
But soft, soft, let me call my wits together!
A poor, poor wench, to my great adversary
Sister, whose very souls denounce stern war
One against other! How now, Frank, turn'd fool
Or madman, whether? But no! Master of My perfect senses and discretion.
Then why should I be in this violent humour
Of passion and of love? And with a person So different every way, and so oppos'd
In all contractions and still-warring actions? Fie, fie! How I dispute against my soul!
Come, come; I'll gain her, or in her quest
Purchase my soul free and immortal rest.

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE II.]

Enter three or four Serving-men, one with a voice 4 and a wooden knife, to take away all; another the salt and bread; another with the table-cloth and napkins; another the carpet; 5 Jenkin with two lights after them.

Jen. So; march in order, and retire in battle array! My master and the guests have supp'd already; all's taken away. Here, now spread for the serving-men in the hall! — Butler, it belongs to your office.

But. I know it. Jenkin. What d' ye call the gentleman that supp'd there to-night?

Jen. Who? My master?

But. No, no; Master Wendell, he's a daily guest. I mean the gentleman that came 6 but this afternoon.

Jen. His name's Master Cranwell. God's light! Hark, within there; my master calls to say more billets 4 upon the fire. Come, come! Lord, how we are in office here in the 1st house are troubled! One spread the carpet in the parlour, and stand ready to snuff the lights; the rest be ready to prepare their stomachs! More lights in the hall, there! Come, Nicholas.

Nich. I cannot eat; but had I Wendell's heart, I would eat that. The rogue grows impudent, Oh! I have seen such vile, notorious tricks,
And I am plung’d into strange agonies.
What didst thou say? If any word that touched
His credit, or her reputation,
It is as hard to enter my belief,
As Dives into heaven.

_Nich._ I can gain nothing:
They are two that never wrong’d me. I knew before
'T was but a thankless office, and perhaps
As much as is my service, or my life Is worth. All this I know; but this, and
more,
More by a thousand dangers, could not hire
me
To smother such a heinous wrong from you.
I saw, and I have said.

_Frank._ 'T is probable. Though blunt, yet he is Though I durst pawn my life, and on their Hazard the dear salvation of my soul,
Yet in my trust I may be too secure.
May this be true? Oh, may it? Can it be?
Is it by any wonder possible?
Man, woman, what thing mortal can we trust,
When friends and bosom wives prove so unjust?

What instance hast thou of this strange report?

_Nich._ Eyes, [master’s] eyes.

_Frank._ Thy eyes may be deceiv’d, I tell thee;
For should an angel from the heavens drop
down,
And preach this to me that thyself hast told,
He should have much ado to win belief;
In both their loves I am so confident.

_Shall I disclose the same by circumstance?
Fran_. No more! To supper, and command your fellows
To attend us and the strangers! Not a word,
I charge thee, on thy life! Be secret then;
For I know nothing.

_Nich._ I am dumb; and, now that I have eas’d my stomach,
I will go fill my stomach.

[Exit._

_Frank._ Away! Begone! —
She is well born, descended nobly;
Virtuous her education; her repute
Is in the general voice of all the country
Honest and fair; her carriage, her demeanour,
In all her actions that concern the love
To me her husband, modest, chaste, and godly.
Is all this seeming gold plain copper?
But he, that Judas that hath borne my purse,
Hath sold me for a sin. O God! O God!

_Shall I put up these wrongs? No! Shall I trust
The bare report of this suspicious groom,
Before the double-gilt, the well-hatch’d
Of their two hearts? No, I will lose these
thoughts;
Distraction I will banish from my brow,

And from my looks exile sad discontent.
Their wonted favours in my tongue shall flow;
Till I know all, I’ll nothing seem to know.
Lights and a table there! Wife, Master
Wendoll,
And gentle Master Cranwell!

_Enter Mistress Frankford, Master Wendoll, Master Cranwell, Nicholas, and Jenkin with cards, carpets, stools, and other necessaries.

_Frank._ O! Master Cranwell, you are a stranger here,
And often bakk’d my house; faith, y’are a churl! —
Now we have supp’d, a table, and to cards!

_Jen._ A pair of cards, Nicholas, and a carpet to cover the table! Where’s Cicely, with her counters and her box? Candles and candlesticks, there! Fie! We have such a household of servants-creatures! Unless it be Nick and I, there’s not one amongst them all that can say bo to a goose. — Well said, Nick!

_They spread a carpet: set down lights and cards._

_Mrs. F._ Come, Mr. Frankford, who shall take my part?

_Frank._ Marry, that will I, sweet wife.

_Wen._ No, by my faith, when you are togethers, I sit out. It must be Mistress Frankford and I, or else it is no match.

_Frank._ I do not like that match.

_Nich. [Aside.] You have no reason, marry, knowing all.

_Frank._ 'Tis no great matter, neither. — Come, Master Cranwell, shall you and I take them up?

_Cran._ At your pleasure, sir.

_Frank._ I must look to you, Master Wendoll, for you’ll be playing false. Nay, so will my wife, too.

_Nich. [Aside.] Ay, I will be sworn she will.
Mrs. F. Let them that are taken playing false, forfeit the set!

_Frank._ Content; it shall go hard but I’ll take
you.

_Cran._ Gentlemen, what shall our game be?

_Wen._ Master Frankford, you play best at noddly.

_Frank._ You shall not find it so; indeed, you shall not.

_Mrs. F._ I can play at nothing so well as double-ruff.

_Frank._ If Master Wendoll and my wife be together, there’s no playing against them at double-band.

_Nich._ I can tell you, sir, the game that Master Wendoll is best at.

_Wen._ What game is that, Nick?

_Nich._ Marry, sir, knave out of doors.

_Wen._ And I will take you at lodam.

_Mrs. F._ Husband, shall we play at saint?

_Avoid. Be their opponents.
_Pack. A game like cribbage.
_Well done. An earlier kind of whist.
_Be my partner.
To strike my soul through with thy piercing eye!
I am enchanted; all my spirits are fled.
And with one glance my envious spleen struck
dead.

Susan. Acton! That seeks our blood!
Sir F. Runs away.
Mal. Sir Francis! Why, Sir Francis! Zounds, in a trance?
Sir Francis! What cheer, man? Come, come,
how is’t?
Sir F. Was she not fair? Or else this judging eye
Cannot distinguish beauty.

Mal. She was fair.

A poor, poor wench, to my great adversary
Sister, whose very souls denounce stern war
One against other! How now, Frank, turn’d fool
Or madman, whether? But no! Master of
My perfect senses and directest wits.
Then why should I be in this violent humour
Of personal sense of love? And with a person
So different every way, and so opposed
In all contractions and still-warring actions?
Fe, fie! How I dispute against my soul!
Come, come; I’ll gain her, or in her fair quest
Purchase my soul free and immortal rest.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II. Enter three or four Serving-men, one with a voi-der 8 and a wooden knife, to take away all;
another the salt and bread; another with the table-cloth and napkins; another the carpet; and JENKIN with two lights after them.

Jen. So; march in order, and retire in battle array! My master and the guests have supp’d already; all’s taken away. Here, now spread for the serving-men in the hall! — But-er, it belongs to your office.

the rest be ready to prepare their stomachs!
More lights in the hall, there! Come, Nicholas.

[Exeunt [all but Nicholas].

Nich. I cannot eat; but had I Wendell’s
heart,
I would eat that. The rogue grows impudent,
Oh! I have seen such vile, notorious tricks,

1 Legal transactions. 4 Table-cover.
2 Frankford’s house. 5 Small logs.
3 Tray for removing dishes.

Ready to make my eyes dart from my head.
I’ll tell my master; by this air, I will;
Fall what may fall, I’ll tell him. Here he comes.

Enter MASTER FRANKFORD, as it were brushing the crumbs from his clothes with a napkin, as newly risen from supper.

Frank. Nicholas, what make you here? Why are not you
At supper in the hall, among your fellows?
Nich. Master, I stay’d your rising from the board,
To speak with you.

Frank. Be brief then, gentle Nicholas;
My wife and guests attend me in the parlour. Why dost thou pause? Now, Nicholas, you want money, And, unthrift-like, would eat into your wages
Ere you had earn’d it. Here, sir, ’s half-a-crown;
Play the good husband;— and away to supper!
Nich. By this hand, an honourable gentleman! I will not see him wrong’d.
Mal. Sir, I have serv’d you long; you entertain’d me
Seven years before your beard; you knew me, sir,
Before you knew my mistress.
Frank. What of this, good Nicholas?
Nich. I never was a make-bate 8 or a knave; I have no fault but one — I’m given to quarrel,
But not with women, I will tell you, master,
That which will make your heart leap from your breast,
Your hair to startle from your head, your ears to tingle.

Frank. What preparation’s this to dismal
news?
Nich. ’Sblood! sir, I love you better than your wife.
I’ll make it good.

Frank. You are a knave, and I have much ado
With wonted patience to contain my rage,
And not to break thy patte. Thou art a knave.
I’ll turn you, with your base comparisons,
Out of my doors.

Nich. Do, do.

There is not room for Wendell and me too,
Both in one house. O master, master,
That Wendell is a villain!

Frank. Ay, saucy?
Nich. Strike, strike, do strike; yet hear me!
I am no fool;
I know a villain, when I see him act
Deeds of a villain. Master, master, the base slave
Enjoys my mistress, and dishonours you.

Frank. Thou hast kill’d me with a weapon, whose sharp point
Hath prick’d quite through and through my shiv’ring heart.
Drops of cold sweat sit dangling on my hairs,
Like morning’s dew upon the golden flowers,
And I am plunge’d into strange agonies.
What didst thou say? If any word that touched
His credit, or her reputation,
It is as hard to enter my belief,

Wen. What game is that, Nick?

Nick. Marry, sir, kneave out of doors.

Wen. She and I will take you at lodam.

Mrs. F. Husband, shall we play at saint?

4 Evidence.
5 Resentment.
6 Of noble origin.

Frank. [Aside.] My saint's turn'd devil. —
No, we'll none of saint: 190
You are best at new-cout, wife, you'll play at that.

Wen. If you play at new-cout, I'm soonest hitter of any here, for a wager.
Frank. [Aside.] 'Tis me they play on. —
Well, you may draw out; 194
For all your cunning, 't will be to your shame; I'll teach you, at your new-cout, a new game.
Come, come!

Cran. If you cannot agree upon the game,
To post and pair! 178
Wen. We shall be soonest pairs; and my good host,
When he comes late home, he must kiss the post.1
Frank. Whoever wins, it shall be to thy cost.

Cran. Faith, let it be vide-ruff, and let's make honours! 196
Frank. If you make honours, one thing let me crave:
Honour the king and queen, except the knave. 179
Wen. Well, as you please for that. — Lift,2 who shall deal?
Mrs. F. The least in sight. What are you, Master Wendoll? 180
Wen. I am a knave.

Nich. [Aside.] I'll swear it.
Mrs. F. I a queen.
Frank. [Aside.] A queen, thou should'st say.
— Well, the cards are mine:
They are the grossest pair that o'er I felt. 180
Mrs. F. Shuffle, I'll cut: would I had never dealt!

Frank. I have lost my dealing.
Wen. Sir, the fault's in me;
This queen I have more than mine own, you see.
Give me the stock! 18
Frank. My mind's not on my game,
Many a deal I've lost; the more's your shame.
You have serv'd me a bad trick, Master Wendoll. 180

Wen. Sir, you must take your lot. To end this strife,
I know I have dealt better with your wife.

Frank. Thou hast dealt falsely, then.
Mrs. F. What 's tricks? 180

Frank. [Aside.] Thou robb'st me of my soul,
of her chaste love;
In thy false dealing thou hast robb'd my heart,—
Booty you play; I like a loser stand,
Having no heart, or here or in my hand. 188
I will give o'er the set, I am not well.
Come, who will hold my cards?
Mrs. F. Not well, sweet Master Frankford? 180
Alas, what ails you? 'T is some sudden qualm.
Wen. How long have you been so, Master Frankford? 200
Frank. Sir, I was lusty, and I had my health,

But I grew ill when you began to deal. —
Take hence this table! — Gentle Master Cranwell,
Y' are welcome; see your chamber at your pleasure!
I am sorry that this megrim takes me so, 202
I cannot sit and hear you company. —
Jenkin, some lights, and show him to his chamber!
Mrs. F. A nightgown for my husband;
Quicker, there! It is some rheum or cold.
Wen. Now, in good faith,
This illness you have got by sitting late Without your gown.
Frank. I know it, Master Wendoll.
Go, go to bed, lest you complain like me! —
Wife, prithee, wife, into my bed-chamber! The night is raw and cold, and rheumatic.
Leave me my gown and light; I'll walk away my fit.
Wen. Sweet sir, good night!
Frank. Myself, good night! [Exit Wendoll.]
Mrs. F. Shall I attend you, husband?
Frank. No, gentle wife, thou'lt catch cold in thy head.

Prithee, begone, sweet; I'll make haste to bed.
Mrs. F. No sleep will fasten on mine eyes, you know,
Until you come. [Exit.]

Frank. Sweet Nan, I prithee, go! —
I have bethought me; get me by degrees
The keys of all my doors, which I will mould
In wax, and take their fair impression,
To have by them new keys. This being compest,
At a set hour a letter shall be brought me,
And when they think they may securely play,
They nearest are to danger.—Nick, I must rely Upon thy trust and faithful secrecy.
Nich. Build on my faith!
Frank. To bed, then, not to rest! 285
Care lodges in my brain, grief in my breast. [Exeunt.]

[Scene III.]

Enter Sir Charles's Sister, Old Mountford, Sandy, Roder, and Tidy.

Old Mount. You say my nephew is in great distress;
Who brought it to him but his own lewd life?
I cannot spare a cross. I must confess,
He was my brother's son; why, niece, what then?
This is no world in which to pity men. 2
Susan. I was not born a beggar, though he extremes Enforce this language from me. I protest
No fortune of mine own could lead my tongue
To this base key. I do beseech you, uncle,

1 This line should probably be given to Mrs. F. If not, Cranwell exit here with Jenkin.
2 Old Mountford's house.
For the name's sake, for Christianity, —
Nay, for God's sake, to pity his distress.
He is deni'd the freedom of the prison,
And in the hole is laid with men condemn'd;
Plenty he hath of nothing but of iron,
And it remains in you to free him thence.

Old Aunt. Money I cannot spare; men should take heed.
He lost my kindred when he fell to need. Exit.

Susan. Gold is but earth; thou earth enough shalt have,
When thou hast once took measure of thy grave.
You know me, Master Sandy, and my suit.
Sandy. I knew you, lady, when the old man liv'd;
I knew you ere your brother sold his land.
Then you were Mistress Sue, trick'd up in jewels;
Then you sung well, play'd sweetly on the lute;
But now I neither know you nor your suit.  28

Susan. You, Master Roder, was my brother's tenant;
Rent-free he plac'd you in that wealthy farm,
Of which you are possesst.

Roder. True, he did; and have I not there dwells still for his sake?
I have some business now; but, without doubt,
They that have hurl'd him in, will help him out.  31

Susan. Cold comfort still. What say you, cousin Tidy?

Tidy. I say this comes of roysting, 1 swag-g'ring.
Call me not cousin; each man for himself!
Some men are born to mirth, and some to sorrow!

I am no cousin unto them that borrow. Exit.

Susan. O Charity, why art thou fled to heaven,
And left all things [up]on this earth uneven?
Their scoffing answers I will ne'er return,
But to myself his grief in silence mourn.  40

Enter Sir Francis and Malby.

Sir F. She is poor, I'll therefore tempt her with this gold.
Go, Malby, in my name deliver it,
And I will stay thy answer.

Mal. Fair mistress, as I understand your grief
Doth grow from want, so I have here in store
A means to furnish you, a bag of gold,
Which to your hands I freely tender you.

Susan. I thank you, Heavens! I thank you, gentle sir;
God make me able to requite this favour!

Mal. This gold Sir Francis Acton sends by me,
And prays you ——

Susan. Acton? O God! That name I'm born to curse.
Hence, bawd; hence, broker! See, I spurn his gold.
My honour never shall for gain be sold.

Sir F. Stay, lady, stay!

Susan. From you I'll posting his, —
Even as the doves from feather'd eagles fly.  50

Exit.

Sir F. She hates my name, my face; how should I woo?
I am disgrac'd in every thing I do.
The more she hates me, and dislikes my love,
The more I am rapt in admiration
Of her divine and chaste perfections.
Woo her with gifts I cannot, for all gifts
Sent in my name she spurns; with looks I cannot.
For she abhors my sight; nor yet with letters,
For none she will receive. How then? how then?
Well, I will fasten such a kindness on her,
As shall o'recome her hate and conquer it.
Sir Charles, her brother, lies in execution
For a great sum of money; and, besides,
The appeal is sued still for my huntsmen's death.

Which only I have power to reverse.
In her I'll bury all my hate of him. —
Go seek the Keeper, Malby, bring him to me!
To save his body, I his debts will pay;
To save his life, I his appeal will stay. [Exeunt.]

[ACT IV]

(Scene 1.)

Enter Sir Charles [Mountford], in prison, with iron, his feet bare, his garments all ragged and torn.

Sir C. Of all on the earth's face most miserable,
Breathe in this hellish dungeon thy lament's!
Thus like a slave ragg'd, like a felon gyv'd,—
That huris thee headlong to this base estate.
Oh, unkind uncle! Oh, my friends ingrante!  5
Unthankful kinsmen! Mountford's all too base,
To let thy name be fetter'd in disgrace.
A thousand deaths here in this grave I die; Fear, hunger, sorrow, cold, all threat my death,
And join together to deprive my breath.  10
But that which most torments me, my dear sister
Hath left 3 to visit me, and from my friends
Hath brought no hopeful answer; therefore, I
Divine they will not help my misery.
If it be so, shame, scandal, and contempt
Attend their covetous thoughts; need make their graves!
Usurers they live, and may they die like slaves!

Enter Keeper.

Keep. Knight, be of comfort, for I bring thee freedom
From all thy troubles.

Sir C. Then, I am doom'd to die:
Death is the end of all calamity.  30

Keep. Live! Your appeal is stay'd; the execution
Of all your debts discharg'd; your creditors
Even to the utmost penny satisfied.

1 Rioting.
2 a
3 York Castle. 4 Ceased.
In sign whereof your shackles I knock off.
You are not left so much indebted to us.
As for your fees; all is discharge’d; all paid.
Go freely to your house, or where you please;
After long miseries, embrace your ease.

Sir C. Thou grumbling out the sweetest music to my ears.

That ever organ play’d. — Is this a dream?
Or do my waking senses apprehend
The pleasing taste of these applauseive news?
Slave that I was, to wrong such honest friends,
My loving kinsman, and my near allies!
Tongue, I will bite thee for the scandal breath’d
Against such faithful kinsmen; they are all
Compose’d of pity and compassion,
Of melting charity and of moving ruth;
That which I spoke before was in my rage;
They are my friends, the mirrors of this age;
Bounteous and free. The noble Mountford’s race
Ne’er bred a covetous thought, or humour base.

Enter SUSAN.

Susan. I cannot longer stay from visiting
My woful brother. While I could, I kept
My harless tidings from his hopeful ear.

Sir C. Sister, how much am I indebted to thee
And to thy travail!
Susan. What, at liberty?

Sir C. Thou seest I am, thanks to thy industry.

Oh! Unto which of all my courteous friends Am I thus bound? My uncle Mountford, he Even of an infant joy’d me; was it he?
So did my cousin Tidy; was it he?
So Master Roder, Master Sandy, too.

Which of all these did this high kindness do?

Susan. Charles, can you mock me in your poverty,
Knowing your friends deride your misery?

Now, I protest I stand so much amaz’d,
To see your bonds free, and your irons knock’d off,
That I am rapt into a maze of wonder;
The rather for I know not by what means
This happiness hath chanc’d.

Sir C. Why, by my uncle,
My cousins, and my friends; who else, I pray,
Would take upon them all my debts to pay?

Susan. Oh, brother! they are men [made] all of flint,
Pictures of marble, and as void of pity
As chased bears. I begg’d, I sned, I kneel’d,
Laid open all your griefs and miseries,
Which they derided; more than that, don’t us
A part in their alliance; but, in pride,
Said that our kindred with our plenty died.

Sir C. Drudges too much, — what did they?
Oh, known evil!
Rich fly the poor, as good men shun the devil.
Whence should my freedom come? Of whom alive,
Saving of those, have I deserved so well?
Guess, sister, call to mind, remember me!

1 Joyful.
2 Too base in their conduct. (Ward.)

These have I rais’d, they follow the world’s guise,
Whom rich [they] honour, in woe despise.
Susan. My wits have lost themselves; let’s ask the keeper!

Sir C. Gaoler!
Keep. At his hand, sir.

Sir C. Of course may resolve me one demand!
What was he took the burden of my debts
From off my back, staid my appeal to death,
Discharge’d my fees, and brought me liberty?
Keep. A courteous knight, one call’d Sir Francis Acton.

Sir C. Ha! Acton! Oh me! More distress’d in this Than all my troubles! Hail me back,
Double my irons, and my sparing meals
Put into halves, and lodge me in a dungeon
More deep, more dark, more cold, more comfortless!

By Acton freed! Not all thy manacles
Could fetter so my heels, as this one word
Hath thrall’d my heart; and it must now lie bound
In more strict prison than thy stony gaol.
I am not free, I go but under bail.
Keep. My charge is done, sir, now I have my fees.

As we get little, we will nothing loose.
Sir C. By Acton freed, my dangerous opposite!

Why, to what end? On what occasion? Ha!
Let me forget the name of enemy,
And with indifference balance this high favour!

Ha!
Susan. [Aside.] His love to me, upon my soul,
’tis so!
That is the root from whence these strange things grow.

Sir C. Had this proceed from my father, he
That by the law of Nature is most bound
In offices of love, it had deserving
My best employment to requite that grace.
Had it you freed from my friends, or him,
From them this action had deserving’s life, —
And from a stranger more, because from such
There is less execution of good deeds.
But he, nor father, nor ally, nor friend,
More than a stranger, both remote in blood,
And in his heart oppos’d my enemy,
That this high bounty should proceed from him,
Oh! there I lose myself. What should I say,
What think, what do, his bounty to repay?

Susan. You wonder, I am sure, whence this strange kindness
Proceeds in Acton; I will tell you, brother.
He dotes on me, and oft hath sent me gifts,
Letters, and tokens; I refuse them all.

Sir C. I have enough, though poor: my heart is set,
In one rich gift to pay back all my debt.

Exeunt.
[SCENE II.]

Enter Frankford and Nicholas, with keys and a letter in his hand.

Frank. This is the night that I must play my part,
To try two seeming angels.—Where's my keys? Nick. They are made according to your mould in wax.
I bade the smith be secret, gave him money,
And here they are. The letter, sir!
Frank. True, take it, there it is;
And when thou seest me in my pleasant' st vein,
Ready to sit to supper, bring it me!
Nick. I'll do't; make no more question, but I'll do it. Exit.

Enter Mistress Frankford, Cranwell, Wendoll, and Jenkin.

Mrs. F. Sirrah, 'tis six o'clock already struck;
Go bid them spread the cloth, and serve in supper!
Jen. It shall be done, forsooth, mistress.
Where's Spigot, the butler, to give us out salt and trenchers?
Wen. We have that been a hunting all the day,
Come with prepared stomachs.—Master Frankford,
We wish'd you at our sport.
Frank. My heart was with you, and my mind was on you.
Fie, Master Cranwell! You are still thus sad.—
A stool, a stool! Where's Jenkin, and where's Nick?
'Tis supper time at least an hour ago.
What's the best news abroad?
Wen. I know none good.
Frank. [Aside.] But I know too much bad.

Enter Butler and Jenkin, with a table-cloth, bread, trenchers, and salt; [then exit.]

Cran. Methinks, sir, you might have that interest
In your wife's brother, to be more remiss
In his hard dealing against poor Charles,
Who, as I hear, lies in York Castle, needy
And in great want.
Frank. Did not more weighty business of mine own
Hold me away, I would have labour'd peace Betwixt them with all care; indeed I would,
sir.
Mrs. F. I'll write unto my brother earnestly
In that behalf.

Wen. A charitable deed,
And will beget the good opinion
Of all your friends that love you, Mistress
Frankford.
Frank. That's you, for one; I know you love Sir Charles,
[Aside.] And my wife too, well.

Wen. He deserves the love
Of all true gentlemen; be yourselves judge!

Frank. But supper, ho!—Now, as thou lov'st me, Wendoll,
Which I assure thou dost, be merry, pleasant,
And frolic it to-night! — Sweet Mr. Cranell,
Do you the like! — Wife, I protest, my heart
Was ne'er more bent on sweet alacrity.
Where be those lazy knaves to serve in supper?

Enter Nicholas.

Nick. Here's a letter, sir.
Frank. Whence comes it, and who brought it?
Nick. A stripling that below attends your answer,
And, as he tells me, it is sent from York.

Frank. Have him into the cellar, let him taste
A cup of our March beer; go, make him drink!
Nick. I'll make him drank, if he be a Trojan.

Frank. [after reading the letter.] My boots and spurs! Where's Jenkin? God forgive me,
How I neglect my business! — Wife, look here!
I have a matter to be tri'd to-morrow
By eight o'clock; and my attorney writes me,
I must be there betimes with evidence,
Or it will go against me. Where's my boots?

Enter Jenkin, with boots and spurs.

Mrs. F. I hope your business graves no such despatch;

That you must ride to-night?
Wen. [Aside.] I hope it doth.

Frank. God's me! No such despatch?
Jenkin, my boots! Where's Nick? Saddle my roan,
And the grey dapple for himself! — Content ye,
It much concerns me. — Gentle Master Cran-
well,
And Master Wendoll, in my absence use
The very riper pleasure of my house!

Wen. Lord! Master Frankford, will you ride to-night?

The ways are dangerous.

Frank. Therefore will I ride
Appointed well; and so shall Nick, my man.
Mrs. F. I'll call you up by five o'clock tomorrow.

Frank. No, by my faith, wife, I'll not trust to that:
Tis not such easy rising in a morning.
From one I love so dearly. No, by my faith,
I shall not leave so sweet a bedfellow,
But with much pain. You have made me a sluggard
Since I first knew you.

Mrs. F. Then, if you needs will go
This dangerous evening, Master Wendoll,
Let me entreat you bear him company.
Wen. With all my heart, sweet mistress.—
My boots, there!

Frank. Fie, fie, that for my private business,
I should disease a friend, and be a trouble
To the whole house! — Nick!

* Good fellow.  ° Armed.  * Cause discomfort to.
Nich. Anon, sir! — As you love me, sir,
Use no more words: a hand, good Master Cran-
well!
Cran. Sir, be God your good speed!
Frank. Good night, sweet Nan; nay, nay, a kiss, and part!
[Aside.] Dissembling lips, you suit not with my heart.
Exeunt [Frankford and Nicholas].
Wen. [Aside.] How business, time, and hours,
al all gracious prove,
And are the furtherers to my new-born love!
I am husband now in Master Frankford’s place,
And must command the house. — My pleasure
is
We will not sup abroad so publicly,
But in your private chamber, Mistress Frankford.
Mrs. F. Oh, sir! you are too public in your
love,
And Master Frankford’s wife —
Cran. Might I crave favour,
I would entreat you I might see my chamber.
I am on the sudden grown exceeding ill,
And would be spar’d from supper.
Wen. Light there, ho! —
See you want nothing, sir, for if you do,
You injure that good man, and wrong me too.
Cran. I will make bold; good night! [Exit.]
Wen. How all conspire
To make our bosom sweet, and full entire!
Come, Nan, I pr’ythee, let us sup within!
Mrs. F. Oh! what a clog unto the soul is sin!
We pale offenders are still full of fear;
Every suspicious eye brings danger near;
When they, whose clear hearts from offence are free,
Despise report, base scandal do obtance,
And stand at mere defiance with disgrace.
Wen. Fie, fie! You talk too like a puritan.
Mrs. F. You have tempted me to mischief,
Master Wendell:
I have done I know not what. Well, you plead custom;
That which for want of wit I granted erst,
I now must yield through fear. Come, come,
Let’s in;
Once over shoes, we are straight o’er head in sin.
Wen. My jocond soul is joyful beyond measure;
I’ll be profuse in Frankford’s richest treasure.
[Scene III.]
Enter Cicely, Jenkin, Butler, and other Serving-men.
Jen. My mistress and Master Wendell, my master, sup in her chamber to-night, Cicely, you are preferr’d, from being the cook, to be chambermaid. Of all the loves betwixt thee and me, tell me what thou think’st of this?
Cic. Mmm; there’s an old proverb, — when the cat’s away, the mouse may play.

Jen. Now you talk of a cat, Cicely, I smell a rat.
Cic. Good words, Jenkin, lest you be call’d [as to answer them!
Jen. Why, God make my mistress an honest woman! Are not these good words? Pray God my new master play not the knave with my old master! Is there any hurt in this? God send [as no villainy intended; and if they do sup together, pray God they do not lie together! God make my mistress chaste, and make us all His servants! What harm is there in all this? Nay, more; here in my hand, thou shalt never have [as my heart, unless thou say, Amen.
Enter Serving-man.
Serving-man. My mistress sends that you should make less noise. So, look up the doors, and see the household all got to bed! You, [as Jenkin, for this night are made the porter, to see the gates shut in.
Jen. Thus by little and little I creep into office. Come, to kennel, my masters, to kennel;
’tis eleven o’clock already.
Serving-man. When you have lock’d the gates in, you must send up the keys to my mistress.
Cic. Quickly, for God’s sake, Jenkin; for I must carry them. I am neither pillow nor bolster, but I know more than both.
Jen. To bed, good Spigot; to bed, good honest serving-creatures; and let us asleep as snug as pigs in peace-straw!
Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]
Enter Frankford and Nicholas.
Frank. Soft, soft! We’ve tied our geldings to a tree,
Two flight-shot off, lest by their thundering hoofs
They blab our coming back. Hear’st thou no noise?
Nich. Hear? I hear nothing but the owl and
you.
Frank. So; now my watch’s hand points upon twelve;
And it is dead midnight. Where are my keys?
Nich. Here, sir.
Frank. This is the key that opens my outward gate;
This, the hall-door; this, the withdrawing-chamber;
But this, that door that’s baw’d unto my shame,
Fountain and spring of all my bleeding thoughts,
Where the most hallowed order and true knot
Of nuptial sanctity hath been profan’d.
It leads to my poultered bed-chamber,
Once my terrestrial heaven, now my earth’s
hell,
The place where sins in all their ripeness
dwell. —
But I forget myself; now to my gate!
Nich. It must ope with far less noise than Cripplegate, or your plot’s dash’d.

Outside the house.
Bow-shots.
IV. V.
A WOMAN KILLED WITH KINDNESS

Frank. So; reach me my dark lantern to the rest!
Tread softly, softly!

Nich. I will walk on eggs this pace.

Frank. A general silence hath surpris'd the house,
And this is the last door. Astonishment,
Fear, and amazement, beat upon my heart,
Even as a madman beats upon a drum.
Oh, keep my eyes, you Heavens, before I enter,
From any sight that may transfix my soul;
Or, if there be so black a spectacle,
Oh, strike mine eyes stark blind; or if not so,
Lend me such patience to digest my grief,
That I may keep this white and virgin hand
From any violent outrage, or red murder! —
And with that prayer I enter.

[Execunt into the house.]

[SCENE V.]

Nich. Here's a circumstance!
A man may be made cuckold in the house
That he's about it. An the case were mine,
As 'tis my master's, 'sblood! (that he makes me swear!),
I would have plac'd his action, enter'd there;
I would, I would!

[Enter Frankford.]

Frank. Oh! oh!

Nich. Master! 'Sblood! Master, master!
Frank. Oh me unhappy! I have found them lying Close in each other's arms, and fast asleep.
But that I would not damn two precious souls,
Bought with my Saviour's blood, and send them, laden
With all their scarlet sins upon their backs,
Unto a fearful judgment, their two lives
Had met upon my rapier.

Nich. Master, what, have you left them asleep

Frank. Let me go wake 'em!

Nich. Stay, let me pause awhile! —
Oh, God! Oh, God! 'That it were possible
To undo things done; to call back yesterday;
That Time could turn up his swift sandy glass,
To untell the days, and to redeem these hours!
Or that the sun

Frank. Could, rising from the west, draw his coach backward;
Take from th' account of time so many minutes,
Till he had all these seasons call'd again,
Those minutes, and those actions done in them,
Even from her first offence; that I might take her

As spotless as an angel in my arms!
But, oh! I talk of things impossible.
And cast beyond the moon. God give me patience;
For I will in, and wake them.

Exit.

Frank. Here's patience perform'd!
He needs must trot afoot that tires his horse.

[Exit.]

Enter Wendell, running over the stage in a night-gown.

Frank. Good night. Go to him with his sword drawn; a maid in her smock stays his hand, and clasps hold on him. He poures for a while.

Frank. I thank thee, maid; thou, like the angel's hand,
Hast stay'd me from a bloody sacrifice. —
Go, villain; and my wrongs sit on thy soul
As heavy as this grief doth upon mine!
When thou record'st my many courtesies,
And shalt compare them with thy treacherous heart,
Lay them together, weigh them equally, —
'T will be revenge enough. Go, to thy friend
A Judas; pray, pray, lest I live to see
Thoe, Judas-like, hang'd on an elder-tree!

Enter Mistress Frankford in her smock, night-gown, and night-attire.

Mrs. F. Oh, by what word, what title, or what name,
Shall I entreat your pardon? Pardon! Oh! I am as far from hoping such sweet grace,
As Lucifer from Heaven. To call you husband, —
(Oh me, most wretched!) I have lost that name;
I am no more your wife.

Nich. 'Sblood, sir, she swoons.

Frank. Spare thou thy tears, for I will weep for thee;
And keep thy count'nance, for I'll blush for thee.
Now, I protest. I think 'tis I am tainted,
For I am mistaken; and 'tis more hard
For me to look upon thy guilty face
Than on the sun's clear brow. What! Wouldst thou speak?

Mrs. F. I would I had no tongue, no ears, no eyes,
No apprehension, no capacity.
When do you spurn me like a dog? When tread me
Under feet? When drag me by the hair?
Though I deserve a thousand, thousand fold,
More than you can inflict — yet, once my husband,
For womanhood, to which I am a shame,
Though once an ornament — even for His sake,
That hath redeem'd our souls, mark not my face,
Nor lack me with your sword; but let me go
Perfect and undeformed to my tomb!
I am not worthy that I should prevail
In the least suit; no, not to speak to you,
Nor look on you, nor to be in your presence;
Yet, as an abject,
This granted. I am ready for my grave.

Frank. My God, with patience arm me! —
Rise, nay, rise.
And I'll debate with thee. Was it for want

1 The hall of the house. Note that in the Qq, these scenes are continuous.
2 Delvy.
3 Established his case. (Ward.)
4 Count backwards.
5 Dressing-gown.
6 Outcast.
Thou play'dst the strumpet? Wast thou not supply'd
With every pleasure, fashion, and new toy,—
Nay, even beyond my calling?—
Mrs. F. I was.
Frank. Was it, then, disability in me;
Or in thine eye seem'd he a proper man?
Mrs. F. Oh, no!
Frank. Did I not lodge thee in my bosom?
Wear thee here in my heart?
Mrs. F. You did.
Frank. I did, indeed; witness my tears, I did—
Go, bring my infants hither!—
[Two Children are brought in.]
Oh, Nan! Oh, Nan!
If neither fear of shame, regard of honour,
The blemish of my house, nor my dear love,
Could have withheld thee from so low'd a fact;
Yet for these infants, these young, harmless souls,
On whose white brows thy shame is character'd,
And grows in greatness as they wax in years,—
Look but on them, and melt away in tears!
Away with them; lest, as her spotted body
Hath stain'd their names with stripe of bastardy,
So her adulterous breath may blast their spirits
With her infectious thoughts! Away with them!
Mrs. F. In this one life, I die ten thousand deaths.
Frank. Stand up, stand up! I will do nothing rashly.
I will retire awhile into my study,
And thou shalt hear thy sentence presently.
Mrs. F. 'Tis welcome, be it death. Oh me, base strumpet,
That, having such a husband, such sweet children,
Must enjoy neither! Oh, to redeem mine honour,
I'd have this hand cut off, these my breasts
seard;
Be rack'd, strappado'd, put to any torment:
Nay, to whip but this scandal out, I'd hazard
The rich and dear redemption of my soul!
He cannot be so base as to forgive me,
Nor I so shameless to accept his pardon.
Oh, women, women, you that yet have kept
Your holy matrimonial vow unstain'd,
Make me your instance; when you tread awry,
Your sins, like mine, will on your conscience lie.

Enter CICELY, SPIGOT, all the Serving-men, and JENKIN, as newly come out of bed.
All. Oh, mistress, mistress! What have you done, mistress?
Nich. 'Sblood, what a water-wailing keep you here!
Jen. O Lord, mistress, how comes this to pass? My master is run away in his shirt, and never so much as call'd me to bring his clothes after him.
Mrs. F. See what guilt is! Here stand 1 in this place,
Asham'd to look my servants in the face.
Enter FRANKFORD and CRANWELL: whom seeing,
she falls on her knees.
Frank. My words are regist'red in Heaven already.
With patience hear me! I will not martyr thee,
Nor mark thee for a strumpet; but with usage
Of more humility torment thy soul,
And kill thee even with kindness.
Cran. Master Frankford—
Frank. Good Master Cranwell!—Woman, hear thy judgment!
Go make thee ready in thy best attire;
Take with thee all thy gowns, all thy apparel;
Leave nothing that did ever call thee mistress,
Or by whose sight, being left here in the house,
I may remember such a woman by.
Choose thee a bed and hangings for thy chamber;
Take with thee every thing which hath thy mark,
And get thee to my manor seven mile off,
Where live;—'tis thine; I freely give it thee.
My tenants by shall furnish thee with wains carry all thy stuff within two hours;
No longer will I limit thee my sight.
Choose which of all my servants thou lik'est best,
And are they thine to attend thee.
Mrs. F. A mild sentence.
Frank. But, as thou hop'st for Heaven, as thou believest
Thy name's recorded in the book of life,
I charge thee never after this sad day
To see me; or to meet me; or to send,
By word or writing, gifts or otherwise,
To move me, by thyself, or by thy friends;
Nor challenge any part in my two children.
So farewell, Nan; for we will henceforth be
As we have never seen, or more shall see.
Mrs. F. How full my heart is, in mine eyes appears;
What wants in words, I will supply in tears.
Frank. Come, take your coach, your stuff;
all must along.
Servants and all make ready; all begone!
It was thy hand cut two hearts out of one.
[Exeunt.]

[ACT V]

[SCENE I] 4
Enter SIR CHARLES MOUNTFORD, gentleman-like, and his Sister, gentlewoman-like.
Susan. Brother, why have you trick'd 6 me like a bride,
Bought me this gay attire, these ornaments?
Forget you our estate, our poverty?

A WOMAN KILLED WITH KINDNESS

Sir C. Call me not brother, but imagine me some barbarous outlaw, or uncivil kinsman, for if thou shuttest thine eye, and only hearest the words that I shall utter, thou shalt judge me some starving ruffian, not thy brother Charles. Oh, sister! -

Susan. Oh, brother! what doth this strange language mean?

Sir C. Doth love me, sister? Wouldst thou have me live in bankruptcy beggar in the world’s disgrace, and die indebted to mine enemies? Wouldst thou behold me stand like a huge beam in the world’s eye, a byword and a scorn? It lies in thee of these to acquit me free, and all my debt I may outstrip by thee.

Susan. By me? Why, I have nothing, nothing left; I owe even for the clothes upon my back; I am not worth —

Sir C. O sister, say not so! It lies in you my downcast state to raise; to make me stand on even points with the world. Come, sister, you are rich; indeed you are, and in your power you have, without delay, Acton’s five hundred pounds back to repay. Susan. Till now I had thought you lov’d me.

By my honour (Which I have kept as spotless as the moon), I never was mistress of that single doit Which I reserv’d not to supply your wants; and do you think that I would hoard from you?

Now, by my hopes in Heaven, knew I the means To buy you from the slavery of your debts (Especially from Acton, whom I hate), I would redeem it with my life or blood!

Sir C. I challenge it, and, kindred set apart, Thus, ruffian-like, I lay siege to thy heart. What do I owe to Acton?

Susan. Why, some five hundred pounds; towards which, I swear, in all the world I have not one denier.

Sir C. It will not prove so. Sister, now resolve me:

What do you think (and speak your conscience) Would Acton give, might he enjoy your bed?

Susan. He would not shrink to spend a thousand pound To give the Mountfords’ name so deep a wound. Sir C. A thousand pound! I but five hundred owes.

Grant him your bed; he’s paid with interest so.

Susan. Oh, brother!

Sir C. Oh, sister! only this one way, With that rich jewel you my debts may pay, In speaking this my cold heart shakes with shame; Nor do I woo you in a brother’s name.

But in a stranger’s. Shall I die in debt To Acton, my grand foe, and you still wear The precious jewel that he holds so dear?

Susan. My honour I esteem as dear and precious As my redemption.

Sir C. I esteem you, sister, as dear for so dear pricing it.

Susan. Will Charles have me cut off my hands, and send them to Acton? Rip up my breast, and with my bleeding heart Present him as a token?

Sir C. Neither, sister; but hear me in my strange assertion! Thy honour and my soul are equal in my regard; Nor will thy brother Charles survive thy shame. His kindness, like a burden, hath surcharged me.

And under his good deeds I stooping go, Not with an upright soul. Had I remain’d in prison still, there doubtless I had died. Then, unto him that freed me from that prison, Still do I owe this life. What mov’d my foe To enfranchise me? I was, sister, for your love; With full five hundred pounds he bought your love; And shall he not enjoy it? Shall the weight of all this heavy burden lean on me, And will not you bear part? You did partake the joy of my release; will you not stand In joint-bond bound to satisfy the debt?

Shall I be only charg’d?

Susan. But that I know These arguments come from an honour’d mind, As in your most extremity of need Scouring to stand in debt to one you hate; Thy, rather, would engage your unassu’d honour, Than to be held ingrater, I should condemn you. I see your resolution, and assent; So Charles will have me, and I am content.

Sir C. For this I trick’d you up.

Susan. But here’s a knife, To save mine honour, shall slice out my life. Sir C. I know thou pleasest me a thousand times More in that resolution than thy grant. Observe her love; to soothe it to my suit, Her honour she will hazard, though not lose; To bring me out of debt, her rigorous hand Will pierce her heart, O wonder! that will choose, Rather than stain her blood, her life to lose. Come, you said sister to a woful brother, This is the gate. I’ll bear him such a present, Such an acquaintance for the knight to seal, As will amaze his senses, and surprise With admiration all his fantasies.

Enter Sir Francis Acton and Malby.

Susan. Before his unhaste thoughts shall seize on me, 'Tis here shall my imprison’d soul set free.

1 A Celtic foot-soldier; often used in contempt.
2 A small coin.
3 Penny.
4 Tell.
5 Dressed finely.
Sir F. How! Mountford with his sister, hand in hand!

What miracle’s afoot?

Mal. It is a sight

Begets in me much admiration.

Sir C. Stand not amaz’d to see me thus attended!

Acton, I owe thee money, and, being unable

To bring thee the full sum in ready coin,

Lo! for thy more assurance, here’s a pawn,—

My sister, my dear sister, whose chaste honour

I prize above a million. Here! Nay, take her;

She’s worth your money, man; do not forsake her.

Sir F. I would he were in earnest!

Susan. Impute it not to my immodesty.

My brother, being rich in nothing else

But in his interest that he hath in me,

According to his poverty hath brought you,

Me, all my store; whom, howsoever you prize,

As forfeit to your hand, he values highly,

And would not sell, but to acquit your debt,

For any emperor’s ransom.

Sir F. Stern heart, relent,

Thy former cruelty at length repent!

Was ever known, in any former age,

Such honourable, wrested courtesy?

Lands, honours, life, and all the world forego,

Rather than stand engag’d to such a foe!

Sir C. Acton, she is too poor to be thy bride,

And I too much oppos’d to be thy brother.

There, take her to thee; if thou hast the heart

To seize her as a rape, or lustful prey;

To blur our house, that never yet was stain’d;

To murder her that never meant thee harm;

To kill me now, whom once thou sav’dst from death:

Do them at once; on her all these rely,

And perish with her spotless chastity.

Sir F. You overcome me in your love, Sir Charles.

I cannot be so cruel to a lady

I love so dearly. Since you have not spar’d

To engage your reputation to the world,

Your sister’s honour, which you prize so dear,

Nay, all the comforts which you hold on earth,

To grow out of my debt, being your foe,—

Your honour’d thoughts, lo! thus I recompense.

Your metamorphos’d foe receives your gift

In satisfaction of all former wrongs.

This jewel I will wear here in my heart;

And where before I thought her, for her wants,

Too base to be my bride, to end all strife,

I seal you my dear brother, her my wife.

Susan. You still exceed us. I will yield to fate,

And learn to love, where I till now did hate.

Sir C. With that enchantment you have Charm’d my soul

And made me rich even in those very words I

I pay no debt, but am indebted more;

Rich in your love, I never can be poor.

Sir F. All’s mine is yours; we are alike in state;

Let’s knit in love what was oppos’d in hate!

1 Wonder.

Come, for our nuptials we will straight provide,

Blest only in our brother and fair bride.

Enter Cranwell, Frankford, and Nicholas.

Cran. Why do you search each room about your house,

Now that you have despatch’d your wife away?

Frank. Oh, sir! To see that nothing may be left

That ever was my wife’s. I lov’d her dearly;

And when I do but think of her unkindness,

My thoughts are all in hell; to avoid which torment,

I would not have a bodkin or a cuff,

A bracelet, necklace, or rabato wire,

Nor anything that ever was call’d hers.

Left me, by which I might remember her.—

Seek round about.

Nich. ’Blood! master, here’s her lute slung in a corner.

Frank. Her lute! Oh, God! Upon this instrument

Her fingers have rung quick division,

Sweeter than that which now divides our hearts.

These frets have made me pleasant, that have now

Frets of my heart-strings made. Oh, Master Cranwell,

Oft hath she made this melancholy wood

(Now mute and dumb for her disastrous chance)

Speak sweetly many a note, sound many a strain

To her own ravishing voice; which being well strung,

What pleasant strange airs have they jointly sung!—

Post with it after her!—Now nothing’s left;

Of her and hers I am at once bereft.

Nich. I’ll ride and overtake her; do my message,

And come back again.

Cran. Meantime, sir, if you please,

I’ll to Sir Francis Acton, and inform him

Of what hath past betwixt you and his sister.

Frank. Do as you please.—How ill am I bested,

To be a widower ere my wife be dead!

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter Mistress Frankford; with Jenkin, her maid Cicely, her Coachmen, and three Carters.

Mrs. F. Bid my coach stay! Why should I ride in state,

Being hur’d so low down by the hand of fate?

A seat like to my fortunes let me have,—

Earth for my chair, and for my bed a grave!

Jen. Comfort! good mistress; you have [s watered your coach with tears already. You have but two miles now to go to your manor.

1 Frankford’s house.

8 Variation.

Wire used to support a ruff.

Marry.

Road near Mistress Frankford’s manor.
A man cannot say by my old master Frankford as he may say by me, that he wants masters; for he hath three or four, of which this is one that we are going to now.

Cic. Good mistress, be of good cheer! Sorrow, you see, hurts you, but helps you not; we all mourn to see you so sad.

Carter. Mistress, I spy one of my landlord’s men

Come riding post: ‘tis like he brings some news.

Mrs. F. Comes he from Master Frankford, he is welcome;

So is his news, because they come from him.

Enter Nicholas.

Nich. There!

Mrs. F. I know the lute. Oft have I sung to thee;

We both are out of tune, both out of time.

Nich. Would that had been the worst instrument that ever you played on! My master commends him to ye; there’s all he can find was ever yours; he hath nothing left that ever you could lay claim to but his own heart,—and [s] he could afford you that! All that I have to deliver you is this: he prays you to forget him; and so he bids you farewell.

Mrs. F. I thank him; he is kind, and ever was.

All you that have true feeling of my grief,

That know my loss, and have relating hearts,

Gird me about, and help me with your tears

To wash my spoiled sins! My lute shall groan;

It cannot weep, but shall lament my moan.

[She plays.]

Enter Wendell [behind].

Wen. Purs’d with horror of a guilty soul,

And with the sharp scourge of repentance lash’d;

I fly from mine own shadow. O my stars!

What have my parents in their lives deserved?

That you should lay this penance on their son?

When I but think of Master Frankford’s love,

And lay it to my treason, or compare

My murdering him for his relieving me,

It strikes a terror like a lightning’s flash,

To scorched my blood up. Thus I, like the owl,

Asham’d of day, live in these shadowy woods,

Afraid of every leaf or murmuring blast,

Yet longing to receive some perfect knowledge

How he hath dealt with her. [Singing Mistress

FRANKFORD.] O my sad fate!

Here, and so far from home, and thus attended!

Oh, God! I have divorce’d the truest turtles

That ever liv’d together, and, being divided,

In several places make their several moan;

She in the fields laments, and he at home;

So poets write that Orpheus made the trees

And stones to dance to his melodious harp,

Meaning the rustic and the barbarous minds,

That had no understanding part in them:

So she from these rude carter’s tears extracts,

Making their flint hearts with grief to rise,

And draw down rivers from their rocky eyes.

Mrs. F. [to Nicholas.] If you return unto my master, say

(Of not from me, for I am all unworthy

To blast his name so with a strumpet’s tongue)

That you have seen me weep, wish myself dead!

Nay, you may say, too (for my vow is past),

Last night you saw me eat and drink my last.

This to your master you may say and swear;

For it is writ in heaven, and decreed here.

Nich. I’ll say you wept; I’ll swear you made me sad.

Why, how now, eyes? What now? What’s there to do?

I’m gone, or I shall straight turn baby too.

Wen. [Aside.] I cannot weep, my heart is all on fire.

Curs’d be the fruits of my unheaste desire!

Mrs. F. Go, break this lute upon my coach’s wheel.

As the last music that I e’er shall make,—

Not as my husband’s gift, but my farewell

To all earth’s joy; and so your master tell!

Nich. It is too late for crying.

Wen. [Aside.] Grief, have done,

Or, like a madman, I shall frantic run.

Mrs. F. You have beheld the wofull’st wretch on earth,—

A woman made of tears; would you had words

To express but what you see! My inward grief

No tongue can utter; yet unto your power

You may describe my sorrow, and disclose

To thy sad master my abundant woes.

Nich. I’ll do your commendations.

Mrs. F. Oh, no!

I dare not so presume; nor to my children!

I am disclaim’d in both; alas! I am.

Oh, never teach them, when they come to speak,

To name the name of mother: chide their tongue,

If they by chance light on that hated word;

Tell them ’t is naught; for when that word they name,

Poor, pretty souls! they hang on their own shame.

Wen. [Aside.] To recompense their wrongs,

what canst thou do?

Thou hast made her husbandless, and childless too.

Mrs. F. I have no more to say.—Speak not for me;

Yet you may tell your master what you see.

Wen. [Aside.] I’ll speak to her, and comfort her in grief.

Oh, but her wound cannot be cur’d with words!

No matter, though; I’ll do my best good will

To work a cure on her whom I did kill.

Mrs. F. So, now unto my coach, then to my home,

So to my death-bed; for from this sad hour,

I never will nor eat, nor drink, nor taste

Of any estate that may preserve my life.

I never will nor smile, nor sleep, nor rest;

But when my tears have wash’d my black soul white,

Sweet Saviour, to thy hands I yield my sprite.
Wen. [coming forward.] Oh, Mistress Frankford!

Mrs F. Oh, for God's sake, fly! The devil doth come to tempt me, ere I die.
My coach!—This sin, that with an angel's face
Conjur'd mine honour, till he sought my wreck,
In my repenent eye seems ugly, black.

Exeunt all [except WENDOLL and JENKIN]; the Carters whistling.

Jen. What, my young master, that fled in his shirt! How come you by your clothes again? You have made our house in a sweet pickle, ha' ye not, think you? What, shall I serve you still, or cleave to the old house?

Wen. Hence, slave! Away, with thy unseason'd mirth!
Unless thou canst shed tears, and sigh, and howl,
Curse thy bad fortunes, and exclaim on fate,
Thou art not for my turn.

Jen. Marry, an you will not, another will; farewell, and be hang'd! Would you had [never come to have kept this coil within our doors! We shall ha' you run away like a sprite again.

Wen. She's gone to death; I live to want and woe,
Her life, her sins, and all upon my head.
And I must now go wander, like a Cain,
In foreign countries and remoted climes,
Where the report of my ingratitude
Cannot be heard. I'll over first to France,
And so to Germany and Italy;
Where, when I have recovered, and by travel Gotten those perfect tongues, and that these rumours
May in their height abate, I will return:
And I divine (however now dejected),
My worth and parts being by some great man prais'd,
At my return I may in court be rais'd. Exit.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Sir FRANCIS ACTON, SIR CHARLES MOUNTFORD, CRANWELL, [MALBY], and SUSAN.

Sir F. Brother, and now my wife, I think these troubles,
Fall on my head by justice of the heavens,
For being so strict to you in your extremities;
But we are now aton'd. I would my sister
Could with like happiness o'ercome her griefs
As we have ours.

Susan. You tell us, Master Cranwell, wondrous things
Touching the patience of that gentleman,
With what strange virtue he demean'd his grief.

1 Enchanted, seduced.
2 Made this trouble.
3 Acquired those languages perfectly.
4 Before the Manor House.
5 Conducts.

Cran. I told you what I was a witness of;—
It was my fortune to lodge there that night.

Sir F. Oh, that same villain, Wendell! 'T was his tongue
That did corrupt her; she was of herself
Chaste and devoted well. Is this the house?

Cran. Yes, sir; I take it, here your sister lies.

Sir F. My brother Frankford show'd too mild a spirit
In the revenge of such a loathed crime.
Leaves of his rage. He did not do it. I am so far from blaming his revenge,
That I commend it. Had it been my case,
Their souls at once had from their breasts been freed;

Death to such deeds of shame is the due meed.

Enter JENKIN and CICELY.

Jen. Oh, my mistress, mistress! My poor mistress!

Cicely. Alas! that ever I was born; what [shall I do for my poor mistress?

Sir C. Why, what of her?

Jen. Oh, Lord, sir! She no sooner heard that her brother and her friends had come to see how she did, but she, for very shame of her [guilty conscience, fell into such a swoon, that we had much ado to get life in her.

Susan. Alas, that she should bear so hard a fate!
Pity it is repentance comes too late.

Sir F. Is she so weak in body?

Jen. Oh, sir! I can assure you there's no hope of life in her; for she will take no sust'nance: she hath plainly starv'd herself, and now she's as lean as a lath. She ever looks for the good hour. Many gentlemen and gentlewomen of the [country are come to comfort her.

[Scene V.]

[SIR CHARLES MOUNTFORD, SIR FRANCIS ACTON, MALBY, CRANWELL, and SUSAN.]

Enter MISTRESS FRANKFORD in her bed.

Mal. How fare you, Mistress Frankford? How are you, Mistress Frankford?—
Mrs F. Sick, sick, oh, sick! Give me some air, I pray you!

Tell me, oh, tell me, where is Master Frankford?

Will not he deign to see me ere I die?

Mal. Yes, Mistress Frankford; divers gentlemen,

Your loving neighbours, with that just request
Have mov'd, and told him of your weak estate: Who, though with much ado to get belief, Examining of the general circumstance, Seeing your sorrow and your penitence,

And hearing therewithal the great desire
You have to see him, ere you left the world, He gave to us his faith to follow us,
And sure he will be here immediately.

6 Dutiful.
7 Dwells.
8 The Manor House. The scene was really unchanged.
9 Condition.
Mrs. F. You have half reviv’d me with the pleasing news.
I’ll sigh and sob, but, by my faith, not die.
Sir F. Oh, Master Frankford, all the near alliance
I lose by her, shall be suppli’d in thee.
You are my brother by the nearest way;
Her kindred hath fall’n off, but yours doth
stay.
Frank. Even as I hope for pardon, at that day
When the Great Judge of heaven in scarlet sits,
So be thou pardoned! Though thy rash offence
Divore’d our bodies, thy repentant tears
Unite our souls.
Sir C. Then comfort, Mistress Frankford!
You see your husband hath forgiven your
fall;
Then rouse your spirits, and cheer your fainting
soul!
Susan. How is it with you?
Sir F. How d’ye feel yourself?
Mrs. F. Not of this world.
Frank. I see you are not. And I weep to see
it.
My wife, the mother to my pretty babes!
Both those lost names I do restore thee back,
And with this kiss I wed thee once again.
Though thou art wounded in thy honour’d
name,
And with that grief upon thy death-bed liest,
Honest in heart, upon my soul, thou diest.
Mrs. F. Pardon’d on earth, soul, thou in heaven art free;
Once more thy wife, dies thus embracing
thee.
Frank. New-married, and new-widow’d.—
Oh! she’s dead.
And a cold grave must be her nuptial bed.
Sir C. Sir, be of good comfort, and your heavy sorrow
Part equally amongst us; storms divided Abate their force, and with less rage are guided.
Cran. Do, Master Frankford; be that hath least part,
Will find enough to drown one troubled heart.
Sir F. Peace with thee, Nan!—Brothers and gentlemen,
All we that can plead interest in her grief,
Bestow upon her body funeral tears!
Brother, had you with threats and usage bad
Punish’d her sin, the grief of her offences
Had not with such true sorrow touch’d her heart.
Frank. I see it had not; therefore, on her grieve
Will I bestow this funeral epitaph,
Which on her marble tomb shall be engrav’d.
In golden letters shall these words be fill’d:
Here lies she whom her husband’s kindness kill’d.

1 Verity suggests, Once more (i. e. Kiss me once more); thy wife dies, etc.
2 Cut and filled in with gold.
THE EPILOGUE

An honest crew, disposed to be merry,
Came to a tavern by, and call'd for wine.
The drawer brought it, smiling like a cherry,
And told them it was pleasant, neat\(^1\) and fine.

'Taste it,' quoth one. He did so. 'Fie!'

(Quoth he)

'This wine was good; now it runs too near the lee.'

Another sipp'd, to give the wine his due,
And said unto the rest, it drank too flat;

\(^1\) Purse.

The third said, it was old; the fourth, too new;
Nay, quoth the fifth, the sharpness likes me not.
Thus, gentlemen, you see how, in one hour,
The wine was new, old, flat, sharp, sweet, and sour.

Unto this wine we do allude\(^2\) our play,
Which some will judge too trivial, some too grave:
You as our guests we entertain this day,
And bid you welcome to the best we have.
Excuse us, then; good wine may be disgrace'd,
When every several mouth hath sundry taste.

\(^2\) Compare.

TO THE READERS OF THIS COMEDY.2

The world is so nice in these our times, that for apparel there is no fashion; for music (which is a rare art, though now slighted) no instrument; for diet, none but the French kickahaws that are delicate; and for plays, no invention but that which now runneth an invective way, touching some particular persons, or else it is condemned before it is thoroughly understood. This is all that I have to say: that the author had no intent to wrong any one in this comedy; but, as a merry passage, here and there interlaced it with delight, which he hopes will please all, and be hurtful to none.

PROLOGUE.4

Where the bee can suck no honey, she leaves her sting behind; and where the bear cannot find origanum5 to heal his grief, he blasteth all other leaves with his breath. We fear it is like to fare so with us; that, seeing you cannot draw from our labours sweet content, you leave behind you a sour mistake, and with open reproach blame our good meaning, because you cannot reap the wonted mirth. Our intent was at this time to move inward delight, not outward lightness; and [s to breed (if it might be) soft smiling, not loud laughing; knowing it, to the wise, to be a great pleasure to hear counsel mixed with wit, as to the fool, to have sport mingled with rudeness. They were banished the theatre of Athens, and from Rome hissed, that brought parasites on the stage with apish actions, or fools with uncivil habits, or courtiers with immodest words. We have endeavoured to be as far from unseemly speeches, to make your ears glow, as we hope you [s will be free from unkind reports, or mistaking the authors'6 intention, (who never aimed at any one particular in this play,) to make our cheeks blush. And thus I leave it, and thee to thine own censure, to like or dislike. — VÆL.

[INDUCTION]

[Several Gentlemen sitting on Stools upon the Stage. The Citizen, his Wife, and RALPH sitting below among the Audience.]

Enter Prologue.

[Prol.]7 From all that's near the court, from all that's great,

Within the compass of the city-walls,

We now have brought our scene ——8

Citizen [leaps on the stage].

Cit. Hold your peace, good man boy!

Pro. What do you mean, sir?

Cit. That you have no good meaning: this

1 The Q spellings Raifr and Raftph indicate the pronunciation. 2 Favidious.
4 Idem. "This Prologue is almost an exact Transcript of 'The Prologue at the Black Fryers' prefixed to Lyly's Sapho and Phaon." (Murch.) 5 Marjoram.
6 Disapproval.
7 Q, authors.
seven years there hath been plays at this house, 1 I have observed it, you have still girls 2 at citizens; and now you call your play "The London Merchant." Down with your title, boy! down with your title!
Pro. Are you a member of the noble city?
Cit. I am.
Pro. And a freeman?
Cit. Yes, and a grocer. 3
Pro. So, grocer, then, by your sweet favour, we intend no abuse to the city.
Cit. No, sir! yes, sir. If you were not resolv'd to play the Jacks, 4 what need you study for new subjects, purposely to abuse your betters? Why could not you be contented, as well as others, with "The Legend of Whittington," 5 or "The Life and Death of Sir Thomas Gresham, with the building of the Royal Exchange," 6 or "The story of Queen Eleanor, 7 with the rearing of London Bridge upon wool-sacks?" 8
Pro. You seem to be an understanding man: what would you have us do, sir?
Cit. Why present something notably in honour of the commons of the city.
Pro. Why, what do you say to "The Life and Death of fat Drake, or the Repairing of Fleet-privies?" 9
Cit. I do not like that; but I will have a citizen, and he shall be of my own trade.
Pro. Oh, you should have told us your mind a month since; our play is ready to begin now.
Cit. 'Tis all one for that; I will have a grocer, and he shall do admirable 9 things.
Pro. What will you have him do?
Cit. Marry, I will have him —
Wife. (below.) Husband, husband!
Ralph. (below.) Peace, mistress.
Wife. (below.) Hold thy peace, Ralph; I know what I do, I warrant 'ee. — Husband, husband!
Cit. What sayst thou, cony? 10
Wife. (below.) Let him kill a lion with a staff, husband! Let him kill a lion with a staff!
Cit. So he shall. — I 'll have him kill a lion with a staff!
Wife. (below.) Husband shall I come up, husband?
Cit. Ay, cony. — Ralph, help your mistress this way. — Pray, gentlemen, make her a little room. — I pray you, sir, lend me your hand to help up my wife: I thank you, sir. — So.
[Wife comes on the stage.]
Wife. By your leave, gentlemen all; I'm something troublesome. I'm a stranger here; I was ne'er at one of these plays, as they say, before; but I should have seen 11 "Jane Shore," 12 once; and my husband hath promised me, any time this twelvemonth, to carry me 13 to "The Bold Beauchamps," 14 but in truth he did not. I pray you, bear with me.
Cit. Boy, let my wife and I have a couple of stools and then begin; and let the grocer do rare things.
Pro. But, sir, we have never a boy 14 to play him: every one hath a part already.
Wife. Husband, husband, for God's sake, let Ralph play him! Be thrashed me, if I do not think he will go beyond them all.
Cit. Well remembr'd, wife. — Come up, Ralph. — I'll tell you, gentlemen; let them but lend him a suit of reparation 15 and necessaries, and, by gad, if any of them all blow wind in the tail on him. 16 I'll be hang'd. 17

[Ralph comes on the stage.]

Wife. I pray you, youth, let him have a suit of repair! — I'll be sworn, gentlemen, my husband tells you true. He will act you sometimes at our house, that all the neighbours cry out on him; he will fetch you up a courting part so in the garret, that we are all as fear'd, I warn you, that we quake again: we'll fear our children with him; if they be never so unruly, do but cry, "Ralph comes, Ralph comes!" to them, and they'll be as quiet as lambs. — Hold up thy head, Ralph; show the gentlemen what thou canst do; speak a huffing 17 part; I warrant you, the gentlemen will accept of it.
Cit. Do, Ralph, do.
Ralph. "By Heaven, methinks, it were an easy leap To pluck bright honour from the pale-faco'd moon; Or dive into the bottom of the sea, Where never fathom-line toucht any ground, And pluck up drowned honour from the lake of hell." 18
Cit. How say you, gentlemen, is it not as I told you?
Wife. Nay, gentlemen, he hath play'd before, my husband says, "Mucedorus," 19 before the wardens of our company.
Cit. Ay, and he should have play'd Jeronimo 20 with a shoemaker for a wager.
Pro. He shall have a suit of apparel, if he will go in.
Cit. In, Ralph, in, Ralph; and set out the grocery in their kind, if thou lov'st me. 21

[Exeunt.]

Wife. I warrant, our Ralph will look finely when he's drest.
Pro. But what will you have it call'd?
Cit. "The Grocer's Honour."
Pro'l. Methinks "The Knight of the Burning Pestle" were better.
Wife. I'll be sworn, husband, that's as good a name as can be.
Cit. Let it be so.—Begin, begin; my wife and I will sit down.
Pro'l. I pray you, do.
Cit. What stately music have you? You have shawms?¹
Pro'l. Shawms? No.
Cit. No! I'm a thief if my mind did not [us give me so. Ralph plays a stately part, and he must needs have shawms. I'll be at the charge of them myself, rather than we'll be without them.¹²
Pro'l. So you are like to be.
Cit. Why, and so I will be: there's two shillings;—[Gives money.]—let's have the waits of Southwark; they are as rare fellows as any are in England; and that will fetch them all over the water with a vengeance, as if they [us were mad.
Pro'l. You shall have them. Will you sit down then?
Cit. Ay.—Come, wife.
Wife. Sit you merry all, gentlemen; I'm bold to sit amongst you for my ease.

[Citizen and Wife sit down.]

Pro'l. "From all that's near the court, from all that's great,
Within the compass of the city-walls,
We now have brought our scene. Fly far from hence

All private taxes, ² immodest phrases,
Whatever may but show like vicious!
For wicked mirth never true pleasure brings,
But honest minds are pleas'd with honest things,"¹³
Thas much for that we do; but for Ralph's part you must answer for yourself.¹²
Cit. Take you no care for Ralph; he'll discharge himself, I warrant you.

[Exit Prologue.]

Wife. I' faith, gentlemen, I'll give my word for Ralph.

ACT I

SCENE I.³

Enter Merchant [Venturewell] and Jasper, his Prentice.

Vent. Sirrah, I'll make you know you are my prentice,
And whom my charitable love redeem'd
Even from the fall of fortune; gave thee heat
And growth, to be what now thou art, new-cast thee;
Adding the trust of all I have, at home,
In foreign staples,⁴ or upon the sea,
To thy direction; tied the good opinions

Both of myself and friends to thy endeavours;
So fair were thy beginnings. But with these,
As I remember, you had never charge
To love your master's daughter, and even then
When I had found a wealthy husband for her;
I take it, sir, you had not: but, however,
I'll break the neck of that commission,
And make you know you are but a merchant's factor.

Jasp. Sir, I do liberally confess I am yours,
Bound both by love and duty to your service,
In which my labour hath been all my profit:
I have not lost in bargain, nor delighted
To wear your honest gains upon my back;
Nor have I given a pension to my blood,
Or lavishly in play consum'd your stock;
These, and the miseries that do attend them,
I dare with innocence proclaim are strangers to all my temperate actions. For your daughter,
If there be any love to my deservings
Borne by her virtuous self, I cannot stop it;
Nor am I able to refrain her wishes.
She's private to herself, and best of knowledge;
Whom she will make so happy as to sigh for:
Beside, I cannot think you mean to match her
Unto a fellow of so lame a presence,
One that hath little left of nature in him.

Vent. 'Tis very well, sir: I can tell your wisdom
How all this shall be ear'd.

Jasp. Your care becomes you. Vent. And thus it must be, sir: I here discharge you
My house and service; take your liberty;
And when I want a son, I'll send for you. Exit. Jasp. These be the fair rewards of them that love!
Oh, you that live in freedom, never prove
The travail of a mind led by desire!

Enter Luc. Luc. Why, how now, friend? Struck with My father's thunder!

Jasp. Struck, and struck dead, unless the remedy
Be full of speed and virtue; I am now,
What I expected long, no more your father's. Luc. But mine.

Jasp. But yours, and only yours, I am.
That's all I have to keep me from the statute.
You dare be constant still?

Luc. Oh, fear me not! In this I dare be better than a woman:
Nor shall his anger nor his offers move me,
Were they both equal to a prince's power.

Jasp. You know my rival?
Luc. Yes, and love him dearly,
Even as I love an ague or foul weather.
I praise thee, Jasper, fear him not.

Jasp. Oh, no! I do not mean to do him so much kindness.

But to our own desires: you know the plot
We both agreed on?

Luce. Yes, and will perform
My part exactly.
Jasp. I desire no more.
Farewell, and keep my heart; 'tis yours.
Luce. I take it; He must do miracles makes me forsake it.
Exeunt [severally].

Cit. Fie upon 'em, little infidels! what a matter's here now! Well, I'll be hang'd for a halfpenny, if there be not some abominable knavery in this play. Well; let 'em look to 't; Ralph must come, and if there be any tricks--
Wife. Let 'em brew and bake too, husband, a' God's name; Ralph will find all out, I warrant you, an they were older than they are.--[Enter Boy.]-I pray, my pretty youth, is [70] Ralph ready?
Boy. He will be presently.
Wife. Now, I pray you, make my commendations unto him, and withal carry him this stick of liquorice. Tell him his mistress sent it to [75] him; and bid him bite a piece; 't will open his pipes the better, say.

[Scene II.] 1

Enter Merchant [Venturewell] and Master Humphrey.

Vent. Come, sir, she's yours; upon my faith, she's yours.
You have my hand: for other idle lets 2
Between your hopes and her, thus with a wind
They are scattered and no more. My wanton prentice,
That like a bladder blew himself with love,
I have let out, and sent him to discover
New masters yet unknown.
Hum. I thank you, sir,
Indeed, I thank you, sir; and, ere I stir,
It shall be known, however you do deem,
If I vent of gentle blood and gentle seem.
Vent. Oh, sir, I know it certain.
Hum. Sir, my friend,
Although, as writers say, all things have end,
And that we call a puddling hath his two,
Oh, let it not seem strange, I pray, to you,
If in this bloody simile I put
My love, more endless than frail things or gutl

Wife. Husband, I prithee, sweet lamb, tell me one thing; but tell me truly.--Stay, youtha, I beseech you, till I question my husband.
Cit. What is it, mouse? 30
Wife. Sirrah, didst thou ever see a prettier child? how it behaves itself, I warrant ye, and speaks and looks, and perts up the head! -- I pray you, brother, with your favour, were you never none of Master Monkester's 4 scholars? 35
Cit. Chicken, I prithee hearken, contain thyself: the childer are pretty childer; but when Ralph comes, lamb--

Luce. Beshrew me, sir, 't were good I yielded, then;
Weak women cannot hope, where valiant men Have no resistance.
Hum. Yield, then; I am full
Of pity, though I say it, and can pull
Out of my pocket thus a pair of gloves.
Look, Luce, look; the dog's tooth nor the dove's Are not so white as these; and sweet they be, And whipt 1 about with silk, as you may see. If you desire the price, shoot from your eye
A beam to this place, and you shall espy

Luce. Well, sir, I take them kindly, and I thank you: What would you more?
Hum. Nothing.
Luce. Why, then, farewell.
Hum. Nor so, nor so; for, lady, I must tell,
Before we part, for what we met together: God grant me time and patience and fair weather!
Luce. Speak, and declare your mind in terms so brief.
Hum. I shall: then, first and foremost, for relief I call to you, if that you can afford it; I care not at what price, for, on my word, it Shall be repaid again, although it cost me More then I'll speak of now; for love hath test me In furious blanket like a tennis-ball, And now I rise aloft, and now I fall.
Luce. Alas, good gentleman, alas the day!
Hum. I thank you heartily; and, as I say, Thus do I still continue without rest, 'Tis' morning like a man, at night a beast. Roaring and bellowing mine own disquiet, That much I fear, forsaking of my diet Will bring me presently to that quandary, I shall bid all adieu.
Luce. Now, by St. Mary, That were great pity.
Hum. So it were, beshrew me; 188 Then, ease me, lusty Luce, and pity show me.
Luce. Why, sir, you know my will is nothing worth Without my father's grant; get his consent, And then you may with assurance try me.
Hum. The worshipful your sire will not deny me; For I have ask it, and he hath repli'd, "Sweet Master Humphrey, Luce shall be thy bride."
Luce. Sweet Master Humphrey, then I am content.
Hum. And so am I, in truth.
Luce. Yet take me with you; 8

There is another clause must be annexed, 115 And this it is: I swore, and will perform it, No man shall ever joy me as his wife But he that stole me hence. If you dare venture, I am yours (you need not fear; my father loves you)

If not, farewell for ever!

Hum. Stay, nymph, stay: 150 I have a double gelding, colour'd bay, Sprung by his father from Barbarian kind; Another for myself, though somewhat blind, Yet true as trusty tree.
Luce. I am satisfied; And so I give my hand. Our course must lie Through Waltham-forest, where I have a friend Will entertain us. So, farewell, Sir Humphrey, And think upon your business.
Exeunt.
Hum. Though I die, I am resolv'd to venture life and limb For one so young, so fair, so kind, so trim.

Wife. By my faith and troth, George, and as I am virtuous, it is even the kindest young man that ever trod on shoe-leather. — Well, go thy ways; if thou hast her not, 't is not thy fault, 't is faith.
Cit. I prithee, mouse, be patient; 'a shall have her, or I'll make some of 'em smoke for 't.
Wife. That's my good lamb, George. — Fie, this stinking tobacco kills me! would there were none in England! Now, I pray, gentlemen, what good does this stinking tobacco do you? Nothing, I warrant you: make chimney's of your faces! Oh, husband, husband, now, now! there's Ralph, there's Ralph.

SCENE III.

Enter Ralph, like a Grocer in's shop with two Prentices [Tim and George], reading "Palmerin of England.""

Cit. Peace, fool! let Ralph alone. — Hark you, Ralph; do not strain yourself too much at the first. — Peace! — Begin, Ralph.

Ralph. [reads.] Then Palmerin and Trinias, snatching their lances from their dwarfs, 5 and clapping their helmets, galloped amain after the giant; and Palmerin, having gotten a sight of him, came posting amain, saying, "Stay, traitorius thief! for thou mayst not so carry away her, that is worth the greatest lord in 10 the world;" and, with these words, gave him a blow on the shoulder, that he struck him besides 6 his elephant. And Trinias, coming to the knight that had Agricola behind him, set him soon besides his horse, with his neck [is broken in the fall]; so that the prince, getting out of the throng, between joy and grief, said, "All happy knight, the mirror of all such as follow arms, now may I be well assured of the love thou bearest me."1 I wonder why the [as kings do not raise an army of fourteen or fifteen hundred thousand men, as big as the army that the Prince of Portigo brought against Rosicleer, and destroy those giants; they do much hurt to wanding damsels, that go in [as quest of their knights.

Wife. Faith, husband, and Ralph says true; for they say the King of Portugal cannot sit at his meat, but the giants and the ettins2 will come and snatch it from him.

Cit. Hold thy tongue.—On, Ralph!

Ralph. And certainly those knights are much to be commended, who, neglecting their possessions, wander with a squire and a dwarf through the deserts to relieve poor ladies.

Wife. Ay, by my faith, are they, Ralph; let 'em say what they will, they are indeed. Our knights neglect their possessions well enough, but they do not the rest.

Ralph. There are no such courteous and [as fair well-spoken knights in this age: they will call one "the son of a whore," that Palmerin of England would have called "fair sir;" and one that Rosicleer would have call'd "right beaming damsels," they will call "darn'd [as bitch."

Wife. I'll be sworn will they, Ralph; they have call'd me so an hundred times about a scurvy pipe of tobacco.

Ralph. But what brave spirit could be [as content to sit in his shop, with a flappet of wood,3 and a blue apron before him, selling mithridatum4 and dragon's-water5 to visited houses, that might pursue feats of arms, and, through his noble achievements, procure such a fam-[ous history to be written of his heroic prowess?

Cit. Well said, Ralph; some more of those words, Ralph!

Wife. They go finely, by my troth.

Ralph. Why should not I, then, pursue [as this course, both for the credit of myself and our company? For amongst all the worthy books of achievements, I do not call to mind that I yet read of a grocer-errant. I will be the said knight. — Have you heard of any that hath wand'red [as unfurnished of his squire and dwarf? My elder prentice Tim shall be my trusty squire, and little George my dwarf. Hense, my blue apron! Yet, in remembrance of my former trade, upon my shield shall be portray'd a Burning Pestle, [as and I will be call'd the Knight of the Burning Pestle.

Wife. Nay, I dare swear thou wilt not forget thy old trade; thou wert ever meek.

Ralph. Tim!

Tim. Anon.

Ralph. My beloved squire, and George my dwarf, I charge you that from henceforth you never call me by any other name but "the right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle;" and that you never call any female by the name of a woman or wench, but "fair lady," if she have her desires, if not, "distressed damsel;" that you call all forests and heaths "deserts," and all horses "palfreys."

Wife. This is very fine, faith.—Do the gentlemen like Ralph, think you, husband?

Cit. Ay, I warrant thee; the players would give all the shoes in their shop for him.

Ralph. My beloved squire Tim, stand out. [as Admit this were a desert, and over it a knight-errant pricking,6 and I should bid you inquire of his intents, what would you say?

Tim. Sir, my master sent me to know whither you are riding?

Ralph. No, thus: "Fair sir, the right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle commanded me to inquire upon what adventure you are bound, whether to relieve some distressed damsels, or otherwise." 7

Cit. Whoreson blockhead, cannot remember! Wife. I' faith, and Ralph told him on 't before: all the gentlemen heard him.—Did he not, gentlemen? Did not Ralph tell him on 't?

George. Right courteous and valiant [as Knight of the Burning Pestle, here is a distressed damsel to have a halfpenny-worth of pepper.

Wife. That's a good boy! See, the little boy can hit it; by my troth, it's a fine child.

Ralph. Relieve her, with all courteous language. Now shut up shop; no more my prentices, but my trusty squire and dwarf. I must bespeak my shield and arming of pestle.

[Exeunt Tim and George.]

Cit. Go thy ways, Ralph! As I am a true8 man, thou art the best on 'em all.

Wife. Ralph, Ralph!

Ralph. What say you, mistress?

Wife. I prithee, come again quickly, sweet Ralph.

Ralph. By and by. [Exit.

[Scene IV.]

Enter JASPER and his mother, MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT.

Mist. Mer. Give thee my blessing? No, I'll ne'er give thee my blessing; I'll see thee hang’d first; it shall ne’er be said I gave thee my blessing. Th’ art thy father’s own son, of the right blood of the Merrythoughts. I may [s curse the time that e’er I knew thy father; he hath spent all his own and mine too; and when I tell him of it, he laughs, and dances, and sings, and cries, “A merry heart lives long-a.” And thou art a wastethrift, and art run [s away from thy master that lov’d thee well, and art come to me; and I have laid up a little for my younger son Michael, and thou think’st to bezzle 1 that, but thou shalt never be able to do it. — Come hither, Michael! 5

Enter Michael.

Come, Michael, down on thy knees; thou shalt have my blessing.

Mich. [kneels.] I pray you, mother, pray to God to bless me.

Mist. Mer. God bless thee! but Jasper shall [s never have my blessing; he shall be hang’d first; shall he not, Michael? How sayst thou? Mich. Yes, forsooth, mother, and grace of God.

Mist. Mer. That’s a good boy!

Wife. I’ faith, it’s a fine spoken child.

Jasp. Mother, thou forgett a parent’s love; I must preserve the duty of a child. I ran not from my master, nor return To have your stock maintain my idleness.

Wife. Ungracious child, I warrant him; hark, how he chops logic with his mother! — Thou hadst best tell her she lies; do, tell her she lies.

Cit. If he were my son, I would hang him [s up by the heels, and flay him, and salt him, whoreson haltersack. 2

Jasp. My coming only is to beg your love, Which I must ever, though I never gain it; And, howsoever you esteem of me, There is no drop of blood hid in these veins But, I remember well, belongs to you That brought me forth, and would be glad for you To rip them all again, and let it out.

Mist. Mer. I’ faith, I had sorrow enough [s for thee, God knows; but I’ll hamper thee well enough. Get thee in, thou vagabond, get thee in, and learn of thy brother Michael,

[Execut Jasper and Michael.]

Mer. (within.)

Nose, nose, jolly red nose,
And who gave thee this jolly red nose? 3

Mist. Mer. Hark, my husband! he’s singing and hoisting; and I’m fain to cark 4 and care, and all little enough. — Husband! Charles! Charles Merrythought!

Enter old Merrythought.

Mer. [sings.]

Nutmegs and ginger, cinnamon and cloves; 5
And they gave me this jolly red nose.

Squander. 6 Gallows-bird. 7 To be careful.

Mist. Mer. If you would consider your state, you would have little list to sing, i-wis. 4

Mer. It should never be considered, while it were an estate, if I thought it would spoil [s my singing.

Mist. Mer. But how wilt thou do, Charles? Thou art an old man, and thou canst not work, and thou hast not forty shillings left, and thou eatest good meat, and drinkest good drink, [s and laughest.

Mer. And will do.

Mist. Mer. But how wilt thou come by it, Charles?

Mer. How! why, how have I done hitherto [s this forty years? I never came into my dining room, but, at eleven and six o’clock, 6 I found excellent meat and drink a th’ table; my clothes were never worn out, but next morning a tailor brought me a new suit; and with-[s out question it will be so ever; use makes perfectness. If all should fail, it is but a little straining myself extraordiary, and laugh my- self to death.

Wife. It’s a foolish old man this; is not [s he, George?

Cit. Ye cony.

Wife. Give me a penny i’ th’ purse while I live, George.

Cit. Ay, by lady, cony, hold thee there. 6

Mist. Mer. Well, Charles; you promis’d to provide for Jasper, and I have laid up for Michael. I pray you, pay Jasper his portion: he’s come home, and he shall not consume Michael’s stock; he says his master turn’d him away, [s but, I promise you truly, I think he ran away.

Wife. No, indeed, Mistress Merrythought; though he be a notable gallows, 7 yet I’ll assure you his master did turn him away, even in this place; ’twas, i’ faith, within this half- [s hour, about his daughter; my husband was by.

Cit. Hang him, rogue! he serv’d him well enough: love his master’s daughter! By my troth, cony, if there were a thousand boys, [s thou wouldst spoil them all with taking their parts; let his mother alone with him.

Wife. Ay, George; but yet truth is truth.

Mer. Where is Jasper? He’s welcome, how- ever. Call him in; he shall have his portion. [s As he merry?

Mist. Mer. Ah, foul chive 8 him, he is too merry! — Jasper! Michael!

Re-enter Jasper and Michael.

Mer. Welcome, Jasper! though thou run’st away, welcome! God bless thee! ’Tis thy [s mother’s mind thou shouldst receive thy portion; thou hast been abroad, and I hope hast learn’d experience enough to govern it; thou art of sufficient years. Hold thy hand — one,

6 To be careful.
two, three, four five, six, seven, eight, nine, [114] there's ten shillings for thee. [Gives money.]
Thrust thyself into the world with that, and take some settled course. If fortune cross thee, thou hast a retiring place; come home to me; I have twenty shillings left. Be a good hus- [116] band; 1 that is, wear ordinary clothes, eat the best meat, and drink the best drink; be merry, and give to the poor, and, believe me, thou hast
no end of thy goods.

Jasp. Long may you live free from all thought of ill, 118
And long have cause to be thus merry still!
But, father —

Mer. No more words, Jasper; get thee gone.
Thou hast my blessing; thy father's spirit upon
thee!
Farewell, Jasper!

[Sings.] 119

But yet, or ere you part (Oh, cruel!)
Kiss me, kiss me, sweetling, mine own dear jewel!

So, now begone; no words. Exit Jasper.

Mist. Mer. So, Michael, now get thee gone too.

Mick. Yes, forsooth, mother; but I'll have my father's blessing first.

Mist. Mer. No, Michael; 't is no matter for his blessing; thou hast my blessing; begone.
I'll fetch my money and jewels, and follow [120] thee; I'll stay no longer with him, I warrant thee. [Exit Michael.] Truly, Charles, I'll be gone too.

Mer. What! you will not?

Mist. Mer. Yes, indeed will I. 121

Mer. [sings.]

Ha! ha! farewell, Nan!
I'll never trust wench more again, if I can.

Mist. Mer. You shall not think, when all your own is gone, to spend that I have been scraping up for Michael.

Mer. Farewell, good wife; I expect it not:
all I have to do in this world, is to be merry;
which I shall, if the ground be not taken from me; and if it be,

[Sings,]

When earth and seas from me are raft, 122
The skies slop for me are left.

[Exeunt severally.]

Wife. I'll be sworn he's a merry old gentleman for all that. ([Music.] Hark, hark, husbond! hark! fiddles, fiddles! now surely they go finely. They say 'tis present death for these [123] fiddlers, to tune their rebeckes 3 before the great Turk's grace; it's not, George? ([Boy dance-th.) But, look, look! here's a youth dances!
— Now, good youth, do a turn a' th' toe.
Sweetheart, 'tis faith, I'll have Ralph [125] come and do some of his gambols. He'll ride the wild mare gentlemen, 't would do your hearts good to see him. — I thank you, kind youth; pray, bid Ralph come.

Cit. Peace, cony! — Sirrah, you scurvy boy,

1 Be frugal.

ACT II

SCENE I.5

Enter Merchant [VENTUREWELL] and Humphrey.

Vent. And how, faith, how goes it now, son Humphrey?

Hum. Right worshipful, and my beloved friend
And father dear, this matter's at an end.

Vent. 'Tis well; it should be so. I'm glad the girl
Is found so tractable.

Hum. Nay, she must whirl;
From hence (and you must wink; for so, I say,
The story tells,) to-morrow before day.

Wife. George, dost thou think in thy conscience now 't will be a match? Tell me but what thou think'st, sweet rogue. Thou seest [130] the poor gentleman, dear heart, how it labours and throbs, I warrant you, to be at rest! I'll go move the father for 't.

Cit. No, no; I prithee, sit still, honeyuckle; thou 'tis spoil all. If he deny him, I'll bring [135] half-a-dozen good fellows myself, and in the shutting 6 of an evening, knock 't up, and there's an end.

Wife. I'll buss thee for that, i' faith, boy.
Well, George, well, you have been a wag in [139]
your days; I warrant you; but God forgive you, and I do with all my heart.

Vent. How was it, son? You told me that to-morrow
Before day-break, you must convey her hence.

Hum. I must, I must; and thus it is agreed:
Your daughter rides upon a brown-bay steed, [140]
on a sorrel, which I bought of Brian,
The honest host of the Red roaring Lion,
In Waltham situate. Then, if you may,
Consent in seemly sort; lest, by delay,

The Fatal Sisters come, and do the office,
And then you'll sing another song.

Vent. Alas,
Why should you be thus full of grief to me,
That do as willing as you yourself agree
To any thing, so it be good and fair? [142]
Then, steal her when you will, if such a pleasure
Content you both; I'll sleep and never see it,
To make your joys more full. But tell me why
You may not here perform your marriage?

Wife. God's blessing a' thy soul, old man! 146
I' faith, thou art loth to part true hearts. I see
'a has her, George; and I'm as glad on 't! —
Well, go thy ways, Humphrey, for a fair-spoke man; I believe thou hast not thy fellow within the walls of London; and I should say the [as suburbs too, I should not lie.]—Why dost not rejoice then?—

Cit. If I could but see Ralph again, I were as merry as mine host, i' faith.

_Hum._ The cause you seem to ask, I thus declare—

Help me, O Muses nine! Your daughter aware
A foolish oath, and more it was the pity;
Yet no one but myself within this city
Shall dare to say so, but a bold defiance—
Shall meet him, were he of the noble science; 4
And yet she aware, and yet why did she swear?
Truly, I cannot tell, unless it were
For her own ease; for, sure, sometimes an oath,
Being sworn thereafter, is like cordial broth;
And this it was she swore, never to marry
But such a one whose mighty arm could carry
(As meaning me, for I am such a one)
Her bodily away, through stick and stone,
Till we arrive, at her request.
Some ten miles off, in the wild Waltham-forest.

_Vent._ If this be all, you shall not need to fear
Any denial in your love: proceed;
I'll neither follow, nor repent the deed.

_Hum._ Good night, twenty good nights, and twenty more,
And twenty more good nights,—that makes three-score! 7

_Exit (severely)._ 7

[SORNE II.] 2

_Enter Mistress Merrythought and her son Michael._

_Mist. Mer._ Come, Michael: art thou not weary, boy?

_Mich._ No, forsooth, mother, not I.

_Mist. Mer._ Where be we now, child? 2

_Mich._ Indeed, forsooth, mother, I cannot [estell, unless we be at Mile-End. Is not all the world Mile-End, mother?

_Mist. Mer._ No, Michael, not all the world, boy; but I can assure thee, Michael, Mile-End is a goodly matter: there has been a pitch: 10 field, 2 my child, between the naughty Spaniels 4 and the Englishmen; and the Spaniels ran away, Michael, and the Englishmen followed:
my neighbor Coaxstone was there, boy, and kill'd them all with a birding-piece. 4

_Mich._ Mother, forsooth—

_Mist. Mer._ What says my white boy? 4

_Mich._ Shall not my father go with us too?

_Mist. Mer._ No, Michael, let thy father go smack-up; 't he shall never come between a [as pair of sheats with me again while he lives;
let him stay at home, and sing for his supper, boy.
Come, child, sit down, and I'll show my boy fine knacks, indeed. [They sit down: and she takes out a casket.] Look here, Michael; here's a ring, and here's a brooch, and here's a [as bracelet, and here's two rings more, and here's money and gold by th' eye, 2 my boy.

_Mich._ Hail! have I kill this, mother?

_Mist. Mer._ Ay, Michael, thou shalt have [as all, Michael.

_Cit._ How likest thou this, wench?
_Wife._ I cannot tell; I would have Ralph,
George; I'll see no more else, indeed, Ia; and I pray you, let the youths understand so [as much by word of mouth; for, I tell you truly,
I'm afraid a' my boy. Come, some, George, let's be merry and wise: the child a's fatherless child; and say they should put him into a straight pair of gaskins, 6 't were worse than [as knot-grass; 11 he would never grow after it.

_Enter Ralph, Squire [Tim], and Dwarf
[George].

_Cit._ Here's Ralph, here's Ralph!
_Wife._ How do you do, Ralph! you are welcome, Ralph, as I may say. It's a good boy, hold up thy head, and be not afraid; we are thy friends, Ralph; the gentlemen will praise thee, Ralph, if thou playst thy part with and-city. Begin, Ralph, a' God's name!

_Ralph._ My trusty squire, unlace my helm;
give me my hat.

_Where are we, or what desert may this be? 2
George._ Horror of knighthood, this is, as I take it, the perilous Waltham-down; in whose bottom stands the enchanted valley.

_Mist. Mer._ Oh, Michael, we are betray'd, we are betray'd! Here be giants! Fly, boy! fly, boy, fly!

_Exit with Michael [leaving the casket].

_Ralph._ Lace on my helm again. What noise is this?

A gentle lady, flying the embrace
Of some uncurtesious knight! I will relieve her.
Go, squire, and say, the Knight that wears this Pestle
In honour of all ladies, swears revenge
Upon that recreant coward that pursues her;
Go, comfort her, and that same gentle squire
That bears her company.

_Tim._ I go, brave knight. [Exit.]

_Ralph._ My trusty dwarf and friend, reach me
my shield;

And hold it while I swear. First, by my knight-
hood;

Then by the soul of Amadis de Gaul,
My famous ancestor; then by my sword
The beauteous Brionella 11 get me about me;
By this bright burning Pestle, of mine honour
The living trophy; and by all respect
Due to distressed damsels; here I vow
Never to end the quest of this fair lady
And that forsaken squire till by my valour
I gain their liberty! 1

II. iv.

George.

Heaven bless the knight! That thus relieves poor errant gentlewomen! Exeunt.

Wife. Ay, marry, Ralph, this has some savour in’t; I would see the proudest of them all offer to carry his books after him. But, George, I will not have him go away so soon; I shall be sick if he go away, that I shall. Call Ralph [again, George, call Ralph again; I prithee, sweetheart, let him come fight before me, and let’s ha’ some drums and some trumpets, and let him kill all that comes near him, an thou lov’st me, George! Cit. Peace a little, bird: he shall kill them all, and they were twenty more on ‘em than there are.

Enter JASPER.

Jasp. Now, Fortune, if thou be’t not only ill,
Show me thy better face, and bring about
Thy desperate wheel, that I may climb at length,
And stand. This is our place of meeting,
If love have any constancy. Oh, age
Where only wealthy men are counted happy! How shall I please thee, how deserve thy smiles, When I am only rich in misery?
My father’s blessing and this little coin
Is my inheritance; a strong revenue!
From earth thou art, and to the earth I give thee:
[Throws away the money.]
There grow and multiply, whilst fresher air
Breeds me a fresher fortune. — How! illusion?
Spies the casket.

What, hath the devil coin’s himself before me?
’Tis metal good, it rings well; I am waking,
And taking too, I hope. Now, God’s dear blessing
Upon his heart that left it here! ’Tis mine;
These pearls, I take it, were not left for swine. Exit [with the casket].

Wife. I do not like that this untruthful youth should embezzle away the money; the poor gentlewoman his mother will have a heavy heart for it, God knows.

Cit. And reason good, sweetheart.

Wife. But let him go; I’ll tell Ralph a tale in’s ear shall fetch him again with a warren! I warrant him, if he be above ground; and besides, George, here are a number of sufi-endowment gentlemen can witness, and myself, and yourself, and the musicians, if we be call’d in question. But here comes Ralph, George; thou shalt hear him speak as he were an emperor.

[SCENE III.]

Enter RALPH and Dwarf [GEORGE]. Ralph. Comes not sir squire again?
George. Right courteous knight,

Your squire doth come, and with him comes the lady,

Enter MISTRESS MERRYTHought, MICHAEL, and Squire [Tim].

For and the Squire of Damsels, as I take it.
Ralph. Madam, if any service or devoir
Of a poor errant knight may right your wrongs,
Command it; I am prest to give you succour;
For to that duty and my armour, in which Mist. Mer. Alas, sir, I am a poor gentlewoman, and I have lost my money in this forest!
Ralph. Desert, you would say, lady; and not lost

Whilst I have sword and lance. Dry up your tears,
Which ill besits the beauty of that face,
And tell the story, if I may request it,
Of your disastrous fortune.

Mist. Mer. Out, alas! I left a thousand pound, a thousand pound, o’er all the money I had laid up for this youth, upon the sight of your mastership, you lookt so grim, and, as I may say it, saving your presence, more like a giant than a mortal man.
Ralph. I am as you are, lady; so are they;
All mortal. But why weeps this gentle squire?
Mist. Mer. Have he not cause to weep, do you think, when he hath lost his inheritance?
Ralph. Young hope of valour, weep not; I am here
That will confound thy foe, and pay it dear
Upon his coward head, that dares deny
Distressed squires and ladies equity.
I have but one horse, on which shall ride
This fair lady behind me, and before,
This courteous squire: fortune will give us more
Upon our next adventure. Fairly speed
Beside us, squire and dwarf, to do us need!

[SCENE IV.]

Enter HUMPHREY and LUCY.

Hum. Good Mistress Lucy, however I in fault am
For your lame horse, you’re welcome unto Waltham;
But which way now to go, or what to say,
I know not truly, till it be broad day.

Wife. And so they may, i’faith; for I dare speak it boldly, the twelve companies of London cannot match him, timber for timber.
Well, George, an he be not inveigled by some of these paltry players, I ha’ much marvel: but, George, we ha’ done our parts, if the boy have any grace to be thankful.

Cit. Yes, I warrant thee, duckling.

[HUMPHREY and LUCY exit. A long pause.]

[SCENE III.] Ralph and Dwarf [GEORGE]. Ralph. Comes not sir squire again?
George. Right courteous knight,
THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE

Luce. Oh, fear not, Master Humphrey; I am guide for this place good enough.

Hum. Then, up and ride; or, if it please you, walk, for your repose; or sit, or, if you will, go pluck a rose; either of which shall be indifferent to your good friend Humphrey, whose consent is so entangled ever to your will, as the poor harmless horse is to the mill.

Luce. Faith, as you say the word, we'll sit down, and take a nap.

Hum. 'Tis better in the town, where we may nap together; for, believe me, to sleep without a snatch would mickle grieve me.

Luce. You're merry, Master Humphrey.

Hum. So I am, and have been ever merry from my dam.

Luce. Your nurse had the least labour.

Hum. Faith, it may be, unless it were by chance I did berse.

Enter Jasper.

Jasp. Luce! dear friend Luce!

Luce. Here, Jasper.

Jasp. You are mine.

Hum. If it be so, my friend, you use me fine. What do you think I am?

Jasp. An arrant noddy,

Hum. A word of obloquy! Now, by God's body, I'll tell thy master; for I know thee well.

Jasp. Nay, an you be so forward for to tell, take that, and that; and tell him, sir, I gave it; and say, I paid you well. [Beats him.]

Hum. Oh, sir, I have it, and do confess the payment! Pray, be quiet.

Jasp. Go, get you to your night-cap and the diet.

To curse your beaten bones.

Luce. Alas, poor Humphrey; get thee some wholesome broth, with sage and comfrey; a little oil of roses and a feather, to 'no't thy back withal.

Hum. When came hither, would I had gone to Paris with John Dory!

Luce. Farewell, my pretty nunc; I am very sorry I cannot bear thee company.

Hum. Farewell: The devil's dam was ne'er so bang'd in hell.

Exeunt Luce and Jasper.

Wife. This young Jasper will prove me another thing, a' my conscience, an he may be suffered. George, dost not see, George, how 'a swaggerers, and flies at the very heads a' folks, [A healing herb.]

1 Cf. Changeling, I. ii. 76 and note.

as he were a dragon? Well, if I do not do his lesson for wronging the poor gentleman, I am no true woman. His friends that brought him up might have been better occupied, i-wis, than he taught him these verses: 'He ran in at the high way to the gallows, God bless him!' Cit. You're too bitter,ony; the young man may do well enough for all this.

Wife. Come hither, Master Humphrey; has he hurt you? Now, be sure, he's a joker; for 't! Here, sweetheart, here 's some green ginger for thee. Now, be sure, he's a joker, and has peppernut in 'e head, as big as a pullet's egg! Alas, sweet lamb, how thy temples [beat! Take the peace on him, sweetheart, take the peace on him.

Cit. No, no; you talk like a foolish woman: I'll ha' Ralph fight with him, and swungu him up well-favour'dly. — Sirrah boy, come hither. (Enter Boy.) Let Ralph come in and fight [w Jasper.

Wife. Ay, and beat him well; he's an unhappy boy.

Boy. Sir, you must pardon; the plot of our play lies contrary; and 't will hazard the spoiling of our play.

Cit. Plot me no plots! I'll ha' Ralph come out; I'll make your house too hot for you else.

Boy. Why, sir, he shall; but if any thing fall out of order, the gentlemen must pardon us. Cit. Go your ways, good man boy! [Exit Boy. I'll hold him a penny, he shall have his bollyful of fighting now. Ho, here comes Ralph! No more! [Scene V.]

[HUMPHREY MANT.] Enter RALPH, MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT, MICHAEL, Squire [TIM], and Dwarf [GEORGE].

Ralph. What knight is that, sir? Ask him if he keep the passage, bound by love of lady fair, or else but prickant.

Hum. Sir, I am no knight, but a poor gentleman, that this same night had stolen from me, on yonder green, my lovely wife, and suffered (to be seen yet extant on my shoulders) such a greeting, that whilst I live I shall think of that meeting.

Wife. Ay, Ralph, he beat him unmercifully; Ralph, an thou sparest him, Ralph, I would thon were hang'd.

Cit. No more, wife, no more.

Ralph. Where is the satchel-wretch hath done this deed?

Lady. Your pardon, that I may proceed Upon the quest of this injurious knight. —

And thou, fair squire, repute me not the worse, In leaving the great venture of the purse And the rich casket, till some better leisure.

1 Teach him. 2 Vagaries. 3 A lump. 4 Apparse (?). (Moorman.) Perhaps, have him bound to keep the peace.

5 Miscles. 6 Wager. 7 Silence! 8 The same. 9 Travelling, spurring along.

Enter Jasper and Lucie.

Hum. Here comes the broker hath parliom’d my treasure.

Ralph. Go, squire, and tell him we are here, as An errant knight-at-arms, to crave delivery Of that fair lady to her own knight’s arms. If he deny, bid him take choice of ground, And so defy him.

Tim. From the Knight that bears The Golden Pestle, I defy thee, knight, Unless thou make fair restitution Of that bright lady.

Jasp. Tell the knight that sent thee, He is an ass; and I will keep the wench, And knock his head-piece.

Ralph. Knight, thou art but dead If thou recall not thy unceremonious terms.

Wife. Break’s pate, Ralph; break’s pate, Ralph, soundly!

Jasp. Come, knight; I am ready for you. Now your Pestle (Snatches away his pestle.) Shall try what temper, sir, your mortar’s of.

"With that he stood upright in his stirrups, and gave the Knight of the calf-skin such a knock (Knocks Ralph down.) that he forsook his horse, and down he fell; and then he leaped upon him, and plucking off his helmet —"

Hum. Nay, an my noble knight be down so soon,

Though I can scarcely go, I needs must run. Exeunt Humphrey and Ralph.

Wife. Run, Ralph, run, Ralph; run for thy life, boy; Jasper comes, Jasper comes!

Jasp. Come Lucie, we must have other arms for you; Humphrey, and Golden Pestle, both adieu! Exeunt.

Wife. Sure the devil (God bless us!) is in this springald! Why, George, didst ever see such a fire-dracon? I am afraid my boy’s miscarried; if he be, though he were Master Merrythought’s son a thousand times, if there be any law in [So England, I’ll make some of them smart for!”

Cit. No, no; I have found out the matter, sweetheart; Jasper is enchanted; as sure as we are here, he is enchanted; he could no more have stood in Ralph’s hands than I can in [my lord mayor’s. I’ll have a ring to discover all enchantments, and Ralph shall beat him yet. Be no more vex, for it shall be so.

[Scene VI.]

Enter Ralph, Minxteress Merrythought, Michael, Squire [Tim], and Dwarf [George].

Wife. Oh, husband, here’s Ralph again! — Stay, Ralph, let me speak with thee. How dost thou, Ralph? Art thou not shrivell’d?

1 Youth. 2 Fiery dragon. 3 Severely.

hurt? — The foul great lungies laid unmercifully on thee: there’s some sugar-candy for [s thee. Proceed; thou shalt have another bout with him.

Cit. If Ralph had him at the fencing-school, if he did not make a puppy of him, and drive him up and down the school, he should ne’er [i come in my shop more.

Mich. Indeed, is, mother, and I am very hungry.

Ralph. Take comfort, gentle dame, and you fair squire;

For in this desert there must needs be plac’d Many strong castles held by courteous knights; And till I bring you safe to one of those, I swear by this my order ne’er to leave you.

Wife. Well said, Ralph! — George, Ralph was ever comfortable, was he not?

Cit. Ye duck.

Wife. I shall ne’er forget him. When we had lost our child, (you know it was stray’d al- [as most, alone, to Puddle-Wharf, and the criers were abroad for it, and there it drown’d itself but for a sculler,) Ralph was the most comfortablist to me: "Peace, mistress," says he, "let it go; I’ll get you another as good." Did he not, George, did he not say so?

Cit. Yes, indeed did he, mouse.

George. I would we had a mess of pottage and a pot of drink, squire, and were going to bed! Tim. Why, we are at Waltham town’s [east, and that’s the Bell Inn.

George. Take courage, valiant knight, damsel, and squire!

I have discovered, not a stone cast off, An ancient castle, held by the old knight Of the most holy order of the Bell. Who gives to all knights-errant entertain.

There plenty is of food, and all prepar’d By the white hands of his own lady dear.

He hath three squires that welcome all his guests;

The first, hight Chamberino, who will see Our beds prepar’d, and bring us snowy sheets, Where never footman stretch’d his butter’d hams;

The second, hight Tapetero, who will see Our pots full filled, and no froth therein;

The third, a gentle squire, Osterlo hight, Who will our palfreys slick with wisps of straw, And in the manger put them oats enough, And never grease their teeth with candle-snuff.

Wife. That same dwarf’s a pretty boy, but the squire’s a groatnol.

1 Great dirty lout. 2 Consulting.
3 Running footmen had their legs greased to keep them supple.
4 A common trick of the ostlers of the time to prevent the horses from eating the hay. (Weber.) 5 Blockhead.
Ralph. Knock at the gates, my squire, with stately lance. [Tim knocks at the door.]

Enter TAPSTER.

Tap. Who's there? — You're welcome, gentlemen: will you see a room?

George. Right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle, this is the Squire [to Tapster.]

Ralph. Fair Squire Tapster, I a wandering knight,

Hight of the Burning Pestle, in the quest

Of this fair lady’s casket and wrought purse,

Losing myself in this vast wilderness,

Am to this castle well by fortune brought;

Where, hearing of the goodly entertain

Your knight of holy order of the Bell,

Gives to all damsel and all errant knights,

I thought to knock, and now am bold to enter.

Tap. An't please you see a chamber, you are very welcome. [Exeunt.]

Wife. George, I would have something done, and I cannot tell what it is.

Cit. What is it, Nell?

Cit. So he shall, Nell; and if I join with him, we’ll knock them all.

[SCENE VII.]

Enter HUMPHREY and Merchant [VENTUREWELL.]

Wife. Oh, George, here’s Master Humphrey again now, that lost Mistress Lucie, and Mistress Lucie’s father. Master Humphrey will do somebody’s errand, I’ll warrant him.

Hum. Father, it’s true in arms I never shall slay her;

For she is stolen away by your man Jasper.

Wife. I thought he would tell him.

Vent. Unhappy that I am, to lose my child! Now I begin to think on Jasper’s words, Who oft hath urg’d [to] me thy foolishness. Why didst thou let her go? Thou lov’st her not, That wouldst bring home thy life, and not bring her.

Hum. Father, forgive me. Shall I tell you true?

Look on my shoulders, they are bleak and blue. Whilst to and fro fair Lucie and I were winding,

He came and basted me with a hedge-binding.

Vent. Get men and horses straight: we will be there

Within this hour. You know the place again?

Hum. I know the place where he my loins did swaddle;

I’ll get six horses, and to each a saddle.

Vent. Mean time I will go talk with Jasper’s father.

[Exeunt severally.]

Wife. George, what wilt thou lay with me now, that Master Humphrey has not Mistress Lucie yet? Speak, George, what wilt thou lay with me?

Cit. No, Nell; I warrant thee Jasper is at Puckeridge with her by this.

Wife. Nay, George, you must consider Mistress Lucie’s feet are tender; and besides ‘tis dark; and, I promise you truly, I do not see how he should get out of Waltham-forest with her yet.

Cit. Nay, ony, what wilt thou lay with me, that Ralph has her not yet?

Wife. I will not lay against Ralph, honey, because I have not spoken with him. But look, George, peace! here comes the merry old gentleman again.

[SCENE VIII.]

Enter old MERRITHOUGHT.

Mer. [sings.]

When it was grown to dark midnight,

And all were fast asleep,

In came Margaret’s grimy ghost,

And stood at William’s feet.

I have money, and meat, and drink before—and a woman that will sing a catch in her travail!

I have seen a man come by my door [with a serious face, in a black cloak, without a hat, carrying his head as if he looked for pins

in the street; I have looked out of my window half a year after, and have spied that man’s head upon London-bridge. ‘Tis a vilo: never [trust a tailor that does not sing at his work; his mind is of nothing but sifting.

Wife. Mark this, George; ’tis worth noting: Godfrey my tailor, you know, never sings, and and he had fourteen yards to make this gown: [as and I’ll be sworn, Mistress Penistone the draper’s wife had one made with twelve.

Mer. [sings.]

’Tis a sight that fills the veins with blood,

More than wine, or sleep, or food;

Let each man keep his heart at ease,

No man dies of that disease.

A room in Merrithought’s house.

Where the heads of traitors and heretics were exposed.

Three miles beyond Waltham.

A room in Merrithought’s house.

Pass.
FRANCIS BEAUMONT AND JOHN FLETCHER

III. i.

He that would his body keep From disease, must not weep; But whoever laughs and sings, Never be his body brings Into fevers, gouts, or rimes, Or ling'ringly his lungs consumes, Or meets with aches in the bone, Or cataracts or gripping stone; But contented lives for eye; 8
The more he laughs, the more he may.

Wife. Look, George; how sayest thou by this, George? Is't not a fine old man?—Now, God's blessing a' thy sweet lips!—When wilt thou be so merry, George? Faith, thou art as the frowning'st little thing, when thou art angry, in a country.

Enter Merchant [VENTUREWELL].

Cit. Peace, cony; thou shalt see him taken down too, I warrant thee. Here's Luce's father come now.

Mer. [sings.] As you came from Waltham, From that holy land, There met you not with my true love By the way as you came?

Vent. Oh, Master Merrythought, my daughter's gone! This mirth becomes you not; my daughter's gone.

Mer. [sings.] Why, so if she be, what care I? Or let her come, or go, or tarry.

Vent. Mock not my misery; it is your son (Whom I have made my own, when all forsook him) Has stoin my only joy, my child, away.

Mer. [sings.] He set her on a milk-white steed, And himself upon a grey; He never turned his face again, But he bore her quite away.

Vent. Unworthy of the kindness I have shown To thee and thine! too late I well perceive Thou art consenting to my daughter's loss. Mer. Your daughter! what a stir's here wi' your daughter? Let her go, think no more is on her, but sing loud. If both my sons were on the gallows, I would sing, Down, down, down they fall; Down, and arise they never shall.

Vent. Oh, might I behold her once again, And she once more embrace her aged sire! Mer. Fie, how scurvily this goes! "And she once more embrace her aged sire?" You'll make a dog on her, will ye? She cares much for her aged sire, I warrant you.

[Sings.] She cares not for her daddy, nor She cares not for her mummy, For she is, she is, she is My lord of Llowgave's lazy.

Vent. For this thy scorn I will pursue that son Of thine to death.

Mer. Do; and when you ha' kill'd him, [Sings.] Give him flowers snow, palmer, give him flowers snow; Give him red, and white, and blue, green, and yellow.

Vent. I'll fetch my daughter—— Mer. I'll hear no more a' your daughter; it spoils my mirth.

Vent. I say, I'll fetch my daughter.

Mer. [sings.] Was never man for lady's sake, Down, down, Tormented as I, poor Sir Guy, Do derry down, For Lucy's sake, that lady bright, Down, down, As ever men beheld with eye, Do derry down.

Vent. I'll be reveng'd, by Heaven!

Exeunt [severally].

Music.

Wife. How dost thou like this, George?

Cit. Why, this is well, cony; but if Ralph were not once, thou shouldst see more.

Wife. The fiddlers go again, husband.

Cit. Ay, Nell; but this is scurvy music. I gave the whoreson gallowes money, and I think he has not got me the waits of Southwark. If I hear 'em not anon, I'll wringe him by the ears,—You musicians, play Bagad! Wife. No, good George, let's ha' Lackrymae!

Cit. Why, this is it, cony.

Wife. It's all the better, George. Now, sweet lamb, what story is that painted upon the cloth? The Confutation of St. Paul?

Cit. No, lamb; that's Ralph and Lucree.

Wife. Ralph and Lucree! Which Ralph? Our Ralph?

Cit. No, mouse; that was a Tartarian. Wife. A Tartarian! Well, I would the [se fiddlers had done, that we might see our Ralph again!

ACT III

SCENE I. 3

Enter JASPER and LUCE.

Jasp. Come, my dear dear; though we have lost our way.

We have not lost ourselves. Are you not weary With this night's wand'ring, broken from your rest, And frighted with the terror that attends The darkness of this wild unpeopled place?

Luce. No, my best friend; I cannot either fear, Or entertain a weary thought, whilst you (The end of all my full desires) stand by me. Let them that lose their hopes, and live to languish

1 Thief. 3 Waltham-forest.
Amongst the number of forsaken lovers,
Tell the long weary steps, and number time,
Start at a shadow, and shrink up their blood,
Whilst I (possess with all content and quiet)
Thus take my pretty love, and thus embrace him.

Jasp. You have caught me, Lucce, so fast, that, whilst I live,
I shall become your faithful prisoner.
And wear these chains for ever. Come, sit down,
And rest your body, too, too delicate
For these disturbances. — [They sit down.] So:
will you sleep?
Come, do not be more able than you are;
I know you are not skilful in these watches,
For women are no soldiers. Be not nice,
But take it; I sleep, I say.

Lucce. Indeed, I cannot, friend.
Jasp. Why, then we'll sing,
And try how that will work upon our senses.

Lucce. I'll sing it, or say, or any thing but sleep.

Jasp. Come, little mermaid, rob me of my heart
With that enchanting voice,

Lucce. You mock me, Jasper. [They sing.]

Song.

Jasp. Tell me, dearest, what is love?

Lucce. "Tis a lightning from above;
"Tis an arrow, 'tis a fire,
"Tis a boy they call Desire;
"Tis a smile,

Both beguile

Jasp. The poor hearts of men that prove.

Tell me more, are women true?

Lucce. Some love change, and so do you.

Jasp. Are they fair and never kind?

Lucce. Yes, when men turn with the wind.

Jasp. Are they forward?

Lucce. Ever toward

Those that love, to love anew.

Jasp. Dissemble it no more; I see the god
Of heavy sleep lay on his heavy mace.

Upon your eyelids.

Lucce. I am very heavy. [Sleeps.]

Jasp. Sleep, sleep; and quiet rest crown thy sweet thoughts!
Keep from her fair blood distempers, startings,
Horrors, and fearful shapes! Let all her dreams
Be joys, and chaste delights, embraces,
And such new pleasures as the ravished soul
Gives to the senses. — So; my charms have took.

Keep her, you powers divine, whilst I contemplate
Upon the wealth and beauty of her mind!
She is only fair and constant, only kind,
And only to thee, Jasper. Oh, my joys!
Whither will you transport me? Let not falseness

Of my poor buried hopes come up together
And overcharge my spirits! I am weak.
Some say (however ill) the sea and women
Are govern'd by the moon; both ebb and flow,
Both full of changes; yet to them that know,
And truly judge, these but opinions are,
And heresies, to bring on pleasing war.
Between our tempers, that without these were Both void of after-love and present fear;
Which are the best of Cupid. Oh, thou child
Bred from despair, I dare not entertain thee,
Having a love without the faults of women,
And greater in her perfect goods than men!
Which to make good, and please myself the stronger,
Though certainly I am certain of her love,
I'll try her, that the world and memory
May sing to after-times her constancy.—

Lucce! Lucce! awake!

Lucce. Why do you fright me, friend,
With these distempered looks? What makes your sword

Drawn in your hand? Who hath offended you?
I prithee, Jasper, sleep; thou art wild with watching.

Jasp. Come, make your way to Heaven, and bid the world,
With all the villanies that stick upon it,
Farewell; you're for another life.

Lucce. Oh, Jasper,
How have my tender years committed evil,
Especially against the man I love,
Thus to be errot untimely?

Jasp. Foolish girl,
Canst thou imagine I could love his daughter?
That flung me from my fortune into nothing?
Discharged me his service, shut the doors
Upon my poverty, and scorn'd my prayers,
Sending me, like a boat without a mast,
To sink or swim? Come; by this hand you die;
I must have life and blood, to satisfy
Your father's wrongs.

Wife. Away, George, away! I raise the watch
At Lodgate, and bring a mithimus from the justice
For this desperate villain! — Now, I charge you, gentlemen, see the king's peace kept! — Oh, my heart, what a varlet's this to offer manslaughter upon the harmless gentlewoman!

Cit. I warrant thee, sweetheart, we'll have him hampered.

Lucce. Oh, Jasper, be not cruel!
If thou wilt kill me, smile, and do it quickly,
And let not many deaths appear before me.
I am a woman, made of fear and love.
A weak, weak woman; kiss not with thy eyes,
They shoot me through and through. Strike, I am ready;

And, dying, still I love thee.
Enter Merchant [VENTUREWELL], HUMPHREY, and his men.

Vent. Whereabouts?
Jasp. No more of this; now to myself again.

[Aside.

Hum. There, there he stands, with sword, like martial knight, Drawn in his hand; therefore beware the fight, You that be wise; for, were I good Sir Bevis, I would not stay his coming, by your leaves. Vent. Sirrah, restore my daughter.
Jasp. Sirrah, no.

Vent. Upon him, then!
[They attack JASPER, and force LUCE from him.]

Wife. So; down with him, down with him, down with him!
Cutt him i’ th’ leg, boys, cut him i’ th’ leg! 118

Vent. Come your ways, minion: I’ll provide a cage
For you, you’re grown so tame. — Horse her away.

Hum. Truly, I’m glad your forces have the day.

Exeunt all except JASPER.

Jasp. They are gone, and I am hurt; my love is lost,
Never to get again. Oh, me unhappy!
Bleed, bleed and die! I cannot, Oh, my folly,
Thou hast betray’d me! Hope, where art thou fled?
Tell me, if thou be’st anywhere remaining,
Shall I but see my love again? Oh, no!
She will not deign to look upon her butcher,
Nor is it fit she should; yet I must venture.
Oh, Chance, or Fortune, or what’er thou art,
That men adore for powerful, hear my cry,
And let me loving live, or losing die! — Exit.

Wife. Is a gone, George?

Cit. Ay, cony.

Wife. Marry, and let him go, sweetish. By the faith a’ my body, a has put me into such a fright, that I tremble (as they say) as if t were an aspen-leaf. Look a’ my little finger, George, how it shakes. Now, I’ truth, every member of my body is the worse for’t.

Cit. Come, hug in mine arms, sweet mouse; he shall not fright thee any more. Alas, mine own dear heart, how it quivers!

[Scene II.]

Enter MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT, RALPH, MICHAEL, Squire [TIM], Dwarf [GEORGE], Host, and Tapster.

Wife. Oh, Ralph! how dost thou, Ralph? How hast thou slept to-night? Has the knight set thee well?

Cit. Peace, Nell; let Ralph alone.

Tap. Master, the reckoning is not paid.

Ralph. Right courteous knight, who, for the order’s sake

Which thou hast ta’en, hang’st out the holy Bell.
As I this flaming Pestle bear about,
We render thanks to thy puissant self,
Your beauteous lady, and your gentle squires. 19
For thus refreshing of our wearied limbs,
Stiff’ned with hard achievements in wild desert.

Tap. Sir, there is twelve shillings to pay.

Ralph. Thou merry Squire Tapetero, thanks to thee
For comforting our souls with double jugs:
And, if advent’rous fortune prick thee forth,
Thou jovial square, to follow feasts of arms,
Take heed thou tender every lady’s cause,
Every true knight, and every damsel fair;
But spill the blood of treacherous Saracens,
And false enchanters that with magic spells
Have done to death full many a noble knight.

Host. Thou valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle, give ear to me; there is twelve shillings to pay, and, as I am a true knight, I will not Wife. George, I prithee, tell me, must Ralph pay twelve shillings now?

Cit. No, Nell, no; nothing but the old knight is merry with Ralph.
Wife. Oh, is’t nothing else? Ralph will be

Ralph. Sir Knight, this mirth of yours becomes you well;
But, to requite this liberal courtesy,
If any of your squires will follow arms,
He shall receive from my heroic hand
A knighthood, by the virtue of this Pestle.

Host. Fair knight, I thank you for your noble offer:

Therefore, gentle knight,
Twelve shillings you must pay, or I must cap

Wife. Look, George! did not I tell thee as much? The knight of the Bell is in earnest. Ralph shall not be behold to him: give him his money, George, and let him go; snick up.

Cit. Cap Ralph? No. — Hold your hand, [at Sir Knight of the Bell; there’s your money] [Gives money]: have you any thing to say to Ralph now? Cap Ralph!

Wife. I would you should know it, Ralph has friends that will not suffer him to be cap, for ten times so much, and ten times to the end of that. — Now take thy course, Ralph.

Mist. Mer. Come, Michael; thou and I will go home to thy father; he hath enough left to keep us a day or two, and we’ll set fellows as abroad to cry our purse and our casket: shall we, Michael?

Mich. Ay, I pray, mother; in truth my feet are full of chillblains with travelling.

Wife. Faith, and those chillblains are a foul trouble. Mistress Merrythought, when

"A room in the Bell Inn, Waltham.

"Arrest.

"Go hang.
your youth comes home, let him rub all the soles of his feet, and his heels, and his ankles, with a mouse-skin; or, if none of your people can catch a mouse, when he goes to bed, let [as him roll his feet in the warm embers, and, I warrant you, he shall be well; and you may make him put his fingers between his toes, and small to them; it’s very sovereign for his head,
if he be costive. 70

Mist. Mer. Master Knight of the Burning
Pestle, my son Michael and I bid you farewell:
I thank your worship heartily for your kindness.

Ralph. Farewell, fair lady, and your tender squire. 77

If pricking through these deserts, I do hear
Of any traitorus knight, who through his guile
Hath light upon your casket and your purse,
I will dispoise him of them, and restore them.
Mist. Mer. I thank your worship.

Ralph. Dwarf, bear my shield; squire, elevate my lance: —
And now farewell, you Knight of holy Ball.

Cit. Ay, ay, Ralph, all is paid.

Ralph. But yet, before I go, speak, worthy
knight,
If aught you do of sad adventures know,
Where errant knight may through his prowess win
Eternal fame, and free some gentle souls
From endless bonds of steel and ling’ring pain.
Host. Sirrah, go to Nick the barber, and bid him prepare himself, as I told you before, [as quickly.

Tap. I am gone, sir.

Host. Sir Knight, this wilderness affordeth
none
But the great venture, where full many a knight
Hath tri’d his prowess, and come off with
shame;
And where I would not have you lose your life
Against no man, but furious fiend of hell.
Ralph. Speak on, Sir Knight; tell what he is and where:

For here I vow, upon my blazing badge,
Never to blase a day in quietness,
But bread and water will I only eat,
And the green herb and rock shall be my couch;
Till I have quell’d 8 that man, or beast, or fiend,
That works such damage to all errant knights.
Host. Not far from hence, near to a craggy clift,
At the north end of this distressed town,
There doth stand a low house,
Knapped builded, and in it a cave
In which an ugly giant now doth won; 4
Yoledo Barbaroso: in his hand

He shakes a naked lance of purest steel,
With sleeves turn’d up; and him before he wears
A motley garment, to preserve his clothes
From blood of those knights which he massacres,
And ladies gent.: 4 without his door doth hang
A copper basin on a prickant 5 spear;

At which no sooner gentle knights can knock,
But the shrill sound fierce Barbaroso hears,
And rushing forth, brings in the errant knight
And sets him down in an enchanted chair;

Then with an engine, which he hath prepar’d,
With forty teeth, he claws his courteously crown;
Next makes him wink, and underneath his chin

He plants a brason piece of mighty bord;

And knocks his bullets 7 round about his cheeks;

Whilst with his fingers, and an instrument
With which he snaps his hair off, he doth fill
The wretch’s ears with a most hideous noise.
Thus every knight-adventurer he doth trim,
And now no creature dares encounter him.

Ralph. In God’s name, I will fight him. Kind
sir,
Go but before me to this dismal cave,
Where this huge giant Barbaroso dwells,
And, by that virtue that brave Rosicler
That dammed brood of ugly giants slew,
And Palmerin Frannarco overthrew,
I doubt not but to curb this traitor foul,
And to the devil send his guilty soul.

Host. Brave-sprighted knight, thus far I will perform
This your request: I’ll bring you within sight
Of this most loathsome place, inhabited
By a more loathsome man; but dare not stay,
For his main force swoops all he sees away.

Ralph. Saint George, set on before! March squire and page!

Wife. George, dost think Ralph will con- 142 found the giant?

Cit. I hold my cap to a farthing he does.
Why, Neil, 8 he saw him wrestle with the great
Dutchman, and hurl him.

Wife. Faith, and that Dutchman was a goodly man, if all things were answerable to his [58 bigness. And yet they say there was a Scotchman higher than he, and that they two and a knight met, and saw one another for nothing.
But of all the sights that ever were in Lon- 154 don, since I was married, methinks the little child that was so fair grown about the members was the prettiest; that and the hermaphrodite.

Cit. Nay, by your leave, Nell, Ninivie 9 was better.

Wife. Ninivie! Oh, that was the story of Jone and the wall, 9 was it not, George?

Cit. Yea, lamb.

1 Serious. 2 Killed. 3 Dwelt. 4 Elegant, courteous, noble.
5 Pointing upward. The reference is, of course, to the usual site of the barber-surgeon.
6 Circumference.

7 Balls of soap.
8 f. e. The puppet-show of Nineveh.
9 Jonah and the whale.
Enter Mistress Merrythought.

Wife. Look, George, here comes Mistress Merrythought again! and I would have Ralph come and fight with the giant; I tell you true, I long to see it.

Cit. Good Mistress Merrythought, begone; [s
I pray you, for my sake; I pray you, forbear a little; you shall have audience presently; I have a little business.

Wife. Mistress Merrythought, if it please you to refrain your passion a little, till Ralph [s has despatched the giant out of the way, we shall think ourselves much bound to you. I thank you, good Mistress Merrythought.

Exit Mistress Merrythought.

Enter a Boy.

Cit. Boy, come hither. Send away Ralph and this wasteful giant quickly.

Boy. In good faith, sir, we cannot; you'll utterly spoil our play, and make it to be hiat; and it cost money; you will not suffer us to go on with our plot. — I pray, gentlemen, rule him.

Cit. Let him come now and despatch this, [s and I'll trouble you no more.

Boy. Will you give me your hand of that?

Wife. Give him thy hand, George, do; and I'll kiss him. I warrant thee, the youth means plainly.

Boy. I'll send him to you presently.

Wife. [kissing him.] I thank you, little youth.

(Exit Boy.) Faith, the child hath a sweet breath, George; but I think it be troubled with the worms; cardus benedictus and mare's milk [s were the only thing in the world for 't.

Enter Barber.

Wife. Oh, George, the giant, the giant! — Now, Ralph for thy life!

Bar. What fond unknowing wight is this, that dares
So rudely knock at Barbarossa's cell, Where no man comes but leaves his fleece behind?

Ralph. I, traitorous caithiff, who am sent by fate
To punish all the sad enormities
Thou hast committed against ladies gent
And errant knights. Traitor to God and men,
Prepare thyself! This is the dismal hour
Appointed for thee to give strict account
Of all thy beastly treacherous villainies.

Bar. Fool-hardy knight, full soon thou shalt aby
This fond reproach: thy body will I hang;

Takes down his pole.

And, lo, upon that string thy teeth shall hang!
Prepare thyself, for dead soon shalt thou be.

Ralph. Saint George for me! They fight.

Bar. Gargantua for me!

Wife. To him, Ralph, to him! hold up the giant; set out thy leg before, Ralph!

Cit. Falsify 't a blow, Ralph, falsify a blow!

The giant lies open on the left side.

Wife. Bear 't off, bear 't off still! there, boy!—

Oh, Ralph's almost down, Ralph's almost down!

Ralph. Susan, inspire me! Now have up again.

(Enter Wife, up, up, up, up, up, so, Ralph! down with him, down with him, Ralph!)

Cit. Fetch him o'er the hip, boy!

[RALPH knocks down the Barber.] Wife. There, boy! kill, kill, kill, kill, kill, Ralph!

Cit. No, Ralph; get all out of him first.

Ralph. Presumptuous man, see to what desperate end
Thy treachery hath brought thee! The just gods,
Who never prosper those that do despise them,
For all the villainies which thou hast done
To knights and ladies, now have paid thee home
By my stiff arm, a knight adventurous.
But say, vile wretch, before I send thy soul
To sad Avernus, whither it must go,
What captives holdest thou in thy sable cave?
Bar. Go in, and free them all; thou hast the day.

Ralph. Go, squire and dwarf, search in this dreadful cave,
And free the wretched prisoners from their bonds.

Exit Tim and George.

Enter Ralph, Host, Tim, and George.

Wife. Oh, Ralph 's here, George! — God send thee good luck, Ralph!

Host. Puissant knight, yonder his mansion is.
Lo, where the spear and copper basin are!
Behold that string, on which hangs many a tooth,
Drawn from the gentle jaw of wand'ring knights!
I dare not stay to sound; he will appear.

Ralph. Oh, faint not, heart! Susan, my lady dear,
The cobbler's maid in Milk-street, for whose sake
I take these arms, oh, let the thought of thee Carry thy knight through all adventurous deeds;
And, in the honour of thy beauteous self,
May I destroy this monster Barbarossa!

Knock, squire, upon the basin, till it break
With the shrill strokes, or till the giant speak.

[Tim knocks upon the basin.]

1. The street before Merrythought's house.
2. At once.
3. Before a barber's shop, Waltham.
4. Knock.
5. Foolish.
6. Pay for.
7. Faint.
Bar. I crave for mercy, as thou art a knight, And scorn’st to spill the blood of those that beg.
Ralph. Thou show’st no mercy, nor shalt thou have any; Prepare thyself, for thou shalt surely die.

Re-enter Squire [TIM], leading one winking, with a Basin under his Chin.

Tim. Behold, brave knight, here is one prisoner, Whom this wild man hath used as you see.

Wife. This is the first wise word I heard the squire speak.

Ralph. Speak what thou art, and how thou hast been us’d, That I may give him condign punishment.

1 Kn. I am a knight that took my journey post Northward from London; and in courteous wise This quest train’d me to his lostsome den, Under pretense of killing of the itch; And all my body with a powder strew’d, That smarts and stings; and cut away my beard, And my curl’d locks wherein were ribands ti’d; And with a water wath my tender eyes, (Whilst up and down about me still he skipt,) Whose virtue is, that, till my eyes be wipt With a dry cloth, for this my foul disgrace, I shall not dare to look a dog i’ th’ face.

Wife. Alas, poor knight!—Relieve him, Ralph; relieve poor knights, whilst you live.

Ralph. My trusty squire, convey him to the town, Where he may find relief.—Adieu, fair knight. Exit 1 Knight.

Re-enter Dwarf [GEORGE], leading one, with a patch o’er his nose.

George. Puissant Knight, of the Burning Pestle light, See here another wretch, whom this foul beast Hath scorcht and soor’d in this inhuman wise. Ralph. Speak me thy name, and eke thy place of birth, And what hast been thy usage in this cave.

2 Kn. I am a knight, Sir Pockhole is my name, And by my birth I am a Londoner, Free by my copy, but my ancestors Were Frenchmen all; and riding hard this way Upon a trotting horse, my bones did ache; And I, faint knight, to ease my weary limbs, Light at this cave; when straight this furious fiend, With sharpest instruments of purest steel,

Did out the gristle of my nose away, And in the place this velvet plaster stands. Relieve me, gentle knight, out of his hands! ==

Wife. Good Ralph, relieve Sir Pockhole, and send him away; for in truth his breath stinks.

Ralph. Convey him straight after the other knight.—

Sir Pockhole, fare you well.

2 Kn. Kind sir, good night. Exit.

Man. [within.] Deliver us! Cries within.

Woman. [within.] Deliver us! 116

Wife. Hark, George, what a wofeful cry there is! I think some woman lies-in there.

Man. [within.] Deliver us!

Wom. [within.] Deliver us!

Ralph. What ghastly noise is this? Speak, Barbarosa, Or, by this blazing steel, thy head goes off!

Bar. Prisoners of mine, whom I in diet keep. Send lower down into the cave, And in a tub that’s heated smoking hot, There may they find them, and deliver them. 115

Ralph. Run, squire and dwarf; deliver them with speed. Exeunt Tim and George.

Wife. But will not Ralph kill this giant? Surely I am afeard, if he let him go, he will do as much hurt as ever he did.

Ct. Not so, mouse, neither, if he could convert him.

Wife. Ay, George, if he could convert him; but a giant is not so soon converted as one of us ordinary people. There’s a pretty tale of a witch, that had the devil’s mark about her, (God bless us!) that had a giant to her son, [as that was call’d Lob-lye-by-the-fire; didst never hear it, George?

Re-enter Squire [TIM], leading a Man, with a glass of liquor in his hand, and Dwarf [GEORGE], leading a Woman, with diet-bread and drink [in her hand].

Ct. Peace, Nell, here comes the prisoners.

George. Here be these pined wretches, manful knight,

That for this six weeks have not seen a night. Ralph. Deliver what you are, and how you came.

To this sad cave, and what your usage was?

Man. I am an errant knight that followed arms
With spear and shield; and in my tender years I stricken was with Cupid’s fiery shaft, And fell in love with this my lady dear, And stole her from her friends in Turnbull-street, And bore her up and down from town to town, Where we did eat and drink, and music hear; Till at the length at this unhappy town We did arrive, and coming to this cave,
This beast us caught, and put us in a tub,
Where we this two mouthes sweat, 1 and should have done.
Another month, if you had not reliev'd us. 15

Woman. This bread and water hath our diet been,
Together with a rib cut from a neck
Of burned mutton; hard hath been our fare.
Release us from this ugly giant's snare!

Man. This hath been all the food we have receiv'd;
But only twice a day, for novelty,
He gave a spoonful of this hearty broth
To each of us, through this same slender quill.

Pulls out a syringe.

Ralph. From this infernal monster you shall go,
That useth knights and gentle ladies so! — 15
Convey them hence.

Exeunt Man and Woman.

Cit. Cony, I can tell thee, the gentlemen like Ralph.

Wife. Ay, George, I see it well enough.

Gentlemen, I thank you all heartily for graceing my man Ralph; and I promise you, you shall see him oft'ner.

Bar. Mercy, great knight! I do reant my ill,
And henceforth never gentle blood will spill.

Ralph. I give thee mercy; but yet shalt thou swear
Upon my Burning Pistle, to perform
Thy promise uttered.

Bar. I swear and kiss. [Kisses the Pistle.]

Ralph. Depart, then, and amend.—

[Exit Barber.]

Come, aquire and dwarf; the sun grows towards his set,
And we have many more adventures yet.

Exeunt.

Cit. Now Ralph is in this humour, I know he would ha' beaten all the boys in the house, if they had been set on him.

Wife. Ay, George, but it is well as it is. I warrant you, the gentlemen do consider what it is to overthrow a giant. But, look, 17 George; here comes Mistress Merrymought, and her son Michael.—Now you are welcome, Mistress Merrymought; now Ralph has done, you may go on.

[Scene V.]

Enter MISTRESS MERRYMOUGHT and Michael.

Mist. Mrs. Mick, my boy —
Mick. Ay, forsooth, mother.

Mist. Mrs. Be merry, Mick; we are at home now; where, I warrant you, you shall find the house flung out of the windows. [Music within.]

Hark! hey, dogs, hey! this is the old world! 3 I' faith, with my husband. If I get in among 1 A common method of treating syphilis.

2 The street before Merrymought’s house.
3 His old habitation.

'em, I'll play 'em such a lesson, that they shall have little lust to come scraping hither again.— 10
Why, Master Merrymought! husband! Charles Merrymought!

Mrs. [appearing above, and singing.]

If you will sing, and dance, and laugh,
And hollow, and laugh again,
And then cry, "There, boys, there!" why, then,
One, two, three, and four,

We shall be merry within this hour.

Mist. Mrs. Why, Charles, do you not know your own natural wife? I say, open the door, and turn me out those mangy companions; 'tis more than time that they were fellow and fellow-like with you. You are a gentleman, Charles, and an old man, and father of two children; and I myself, (though I say it) by my mother's side niece to a worshipful gentleman and a conductor; 'tis he has been three times — 30 in his majesty's service at Chester, and is now the fourth time, God bless him and his charge, upon his journey.

Mrs. [sings.] 35

Go from my window, love, go;
Go from my window, my dear! —

The wind and the rain
Will drive you back again;
You cannot be lodged here.

Hark you, Mistress Merrymought, you that walk upon adventures, and forsake your husband, because he sings with never a peany in his purses; what, shall I think myself the worse? Faith, no, I'll be merry. You can come not here; here's none but lads of mettle, lives of a hundred years and upwards; care never — drunk their bloods, nor want made 'em wrangle

"Heigh-ho, my heart is heavy."

Mist. Mrs. Why, Master Merrymought, what am I, that you should laugh me to scorn thus abruptly? Am I not your fellow-feeler, as we may say, in all our miseries? Your comforter in health and sickness? Have I not brought you children? Are they not like you, Charles? look upon thine own image, hard-hearted man! and yet for all this —

Mrs. [sings.]

Begone, begone, my merry, my merry,
Begone, my love, my dear!
The weather is warm,
'T will do thee no harm:
Thou canst not be lodged here. —

Be merry, boys! some light music, and more wine!

[Exit above.]

Wife. He's not in earnest, I hope, George, is he?

Cit. What if he be, sweetheart?

Wife. Merry, if he be, George, I'll make bold to tell him he's an ingrunt 4 old man to use his bed-fellow so sneerly.

Cit. What! how does he use her, honey?

Wife. Merry, come up, sir, sacebox! I think you'll take his part, will you not? Lord, how [is hot you are grown! You are a fine man, as you had a fine dog; it becomes you sweetly!

4 Military leader.

6 Ignorant (?) ingrates(?)
Cit. Nay, prithee, Nell, chide not; for, as I am an honest man and a true Christian grocer, I do not like his doings.

Wife. I cry you mercy, then, George! you know we are all frail and full of infirmities. — D’ye hear, Master Merrythought? May I crave a word with you?

Mr. [appearing above.] Strike up lively, lads!

Wife. I had not thought, in truth, Master Merrythought, that a man of your age and discretion, as I may say, being a gentleman, and therefore known by your gentle conditions, could have used so little respect to the weakness of his wife; for your wife is your own flesh, the staff of your age, your yoke-fellow, with whose help you draw through the mire to this stately world; nay, she’s your own rib: and again —

Mr. [sings.]
I come not hither for thee to teach,
I have no pulpit for thee to preach,
I would thou hadst kiss me under the breech,
As thou art a lady gay.

Wife. Marry, with a vengeance! I am heartily sorry for the poor gentlewoman: but if I were thy wife, I’d faith, greybeard, I’d faith —

Cit. I prithee, sweet honey suckle, be content with me:

Wife. Give me such words, that am a gentlewoman born! Hang him, hoary rascal! Get me some drink, George; I am almost molten with fretting: now, be assurance of my heart's love for it!

[Exit Citizen.]

Mer. Play me a slight volata. Come, be frolic.

Fill the good fellows wine.

Mist. Mer. Why, Master Merrythought, are you disposed to make me wait here? You’ll be open, I hope; I’ll fetch them that shall open else.

Mer. Good woman, if you will sing, I’ll give you something; if not —

[Mer. Singing.]
You are no love for me, Margaret,
I am no love for you.

Come aloft, boys, aloft!

Mist. Mer. Now a churl's fart in your teeth, sir. — Come, Mick, we’ll not trouble him; a shall not ding us i’ th’ teeth with his bread and his broth, that he shall not. Come, boy; I’ll provide for thee, I warrant thee. We’ll go to Master Venturewell’s, the merchant; I’ll get his letter to mine host of the Bell in Waltham; there I’ll place thee with the tapster; will not that do well for thee, Mick? And let me alone for that old cussoldly knave your father; I’ll use him in his kind, I warrant thee.

[Execute Citizen with Beer.]

Wife. Come, George, where’s the beer?

Cit. Here, love.

Wife. This old fornicate fellow will not out of my mind yet. — Gentlemen, I’ll begin to you all; and I desire more of your acquaintance with all my heart. [Drinks.] Fill the gentlemen some beer, George. Music. Boy dancest. Look, George, the little boy’s come again: methinks he looks something like the Prince of Orange in his long stockin; if he had a little harness about his neck, George, I will have him dance Fading. — Fading is a fine jig. I’ll assure you, gentlemen. — Begin, brother. — Now a capers, sweetheart! — Now a turn i’ th’ toe, and then tumble! I cannot you tumble, youth?

Boy. No, indeed, forsooth.

Wife. Nor eat fire?

Boy. Neither.

Wife. Why, then, I thank you heartily; there’s a twopence to buy you points’ withal.

ACT IV

SCENE I.

Enter Jasper and Boy.

Jasp. There, boy, deliver this; but do it well.

Hast thou provided me four lusty fellows,

[Give a letter.]

Able to carry me? and art thou perfect In all thy business?

Boy. Sir, you need not fear; I have my lesson here, and cannot miss it:

The men are ready for you, and what else Pertains to this employment.

Jasp. There, my boy; Take it, but buy no land.

[Give money.]

Boy. Faith, sir, ’twere rare To see so young a purchaser. I fly, And on my wings carry your destiny.

Jasp. Go and be happy! [Exit Boy.] Now, my latest hope, Forsoake me not, but bind thy anchor out, And let it hold! Stand fitch, thou rolling stone, Till I enjoy my dearest! Hear me, all You powers, that rule in men, celestial! Exit.

Wife. Go thy ways; thou art as crocked a spring as ever grew in London. I warrant him, he’ll come to some naughty end or other; for his looks say no less: besides, his father (you know, George) is none of the best; you heard [him take me up like a flirt-girl, and sing bawdy songs upon me; but i’ faith, if I live, George —

Cit. Let me alone, sweetheart: I have a trick in my head shall lodge him in the Arches for one year, and make him sing peccavi ere [I leave him; and yet he shall never know who hurt him neither.

Wife. Do, my good George, do!

1 Qualities.
2 A lively dance.
3 Be lively.
4 After his own nature.
Cit. What shall we have Ralph do now, boy?

Boy. You shall have what you will, sir.

Cit. Why, so, sir; go and fetch me him then, and let the Sophy of Persia come and christen him a child.¹

Boy. Believe me, sir, that will not do so well; 'tis stale; it has been had before at the Red Bull.²

Wife. George, let Ralph travel over great hills, and let him be very weary, and come as to the King of Crasovia's house, covered with velvet; and there let the king's daughter stand in her window, all in beaten gold, combing her golden locks with a comb of ivory; and let her spy Ralph, and fall in love with him, and come down to him, and carry him into her father's house; and then let Ralph talk with her.

Cit. Well said, Neill; it shall be so. — Boy, let's ha' done quickly.

Boy. Sir, if you will imagine all this to be as done already, you shall hear them talk together; but we cannot present a house covered with black velvet, and a lady in beaten gold.

Cit. Sir boy, let's ha' as you can, then.

Boy. Besides, it will show ill-favouredly as to have a grocer's prentice to court a king's daughter.

Cit. Will it so, sir? You are well read in history! I pray you, what was Sir Dagonet? Was not he prentice to a grocer in London? [Read the play of “The Four Prentices of London,” where they toss their pikes so. I pray you, fetch him in, sir, fetch him in.

Boy. It shall be done. — It is not our fault, gentlemen. Exit.³

Wife. Now we shall see fine doings, I warrant 'ee, George.

[SCENE II.]⁴

Enter the Lady [POMPIONA], RALPH, Squire, and Dwarf.

Wife. Oh, here they come, how prettily the King of Crasovia's daughter is drest!

Cit. Ay, Neill, it is the fashion of that country, I warrant 'ee.

Pomp. Welcome, Sir Knight, unto my father's court.

King of Moldavia: unto me Pompiona, His daughter dear! But, sure, you do not like Your entertainment, that will stay with us No longer but a night.

Ralph. Damsel right fair, I am on many sad adventures bound, That call me forth into the wilderness; Besides, my horse's back is something gall'd, Which will enforce me ride a sober pace. But many thanks, fair lady, be to you For using errant knight with courtesy!⁵

₁ An allusion to an incident in a play called The Travels of the Three English Brothers, by Day, Bowley, and Wiltins.
² Another theatre. ³ Tales.
⁴ By Heywood. But Dagonet is in Malory. ⁵ A Hall in the King of Moldavia’s Court. ⁶ Serious.

Pomp. But say, brave knight, what is your name and birth?

Ralph. My name is Ralph; I am an Englishman,
As true as steel, a hearty Englishman,
And prentice to a grocer in the Strand
By deed indent,⁷ of which I have one part:
But fortune calling me to follow arms,
On me this holy order I did take
Of Burning Pestle, which in all men's eyes I bear, confounding ladies' enemies.

Pomp. Oft have I heard of your brave countrymen,
And fertile soil, and store of wholesome food;
My father oft will tell me of a drink
In England found, and nipitato called,
Which drieth all the sorrow from your hearts.

Ralph. Lady, 'tis true; you need not lay your lips
To better nipitato than there is.

Pomp. And of a wild fowl he will often speak.
Which pow'dred⁸ beef-and-mustard called is:
For there have been great wars 'twixt us and you;
But truly, Ralph, it was not 'long of me.

Tell me then, Ralph, could you conteneted be
To wear lady's favour in your shield?

Ralph. I am a knight of religious order,
And will not wear a favour of a lady
That trusts in Antichrist and false traditions.

Cit. Well said, Ralph! I convert her, if thou canst.

Ralph. Besides, I have a lady of my own
In merry England, for whose virtuous sake I took these arms; and Susan is her name,⁹ A cobbler's maid in Milk Street; whom I yow Ne'er to forsake whilst life and Pestle last.

Pomp. Happy that obbling dame, whose'er she be,
That for her own, dear Ralph, hath gotten thee!

Unhappy I, that ne'er shall see the day
To see thee more, that bear'st my heart away!

Ralph. Lady, farewell; I must needs take my leave.

Pomp. Hard-hearted Ralph, that ladies dost deceive!

Cit. Hark thee, Ralph: there's money for thee [gives money]; give something in the King of Crasovia's house; be not beholding to him.

Ralph. Lady, before I go, I must remember Your father's officers, who truth to tell, Have been about me very diligent.

Hold up thy snowy hand, thou princely maid! There's twelve-pence for your father's chamberlain;

And another shilling for his cook.

For, by my troth, the goose was roasted well;
And twelve-pence for your father's horse-keeper,
For noting my horse's back, and for his butter
There is another shilling; to the maid
That washt my boot-hose there's an English groat,
And two-pence to the boy that wipt my boots;
And last, fair lady, there is for yourself
Three-pence, to buy you pins at Bumbo Fair.
Pomp. Full many thanks; and I will keep them safe
Till all the heads be off, for thy sake, Ralph.
Ralph. Advance, my squire and dwarf! I cannot stay.
Pomp. Thou kill'st my heart in passing thus away.
	Exeunt.

Wife. I commend Ralph yet, that he will not stoop to a Crosseian; there's proper women in London than any are there, I-wis. But here comes Master Humphrey and his love again, George.
Cit. Ay, comy; peace.

SCENE III.

Enter Merchant [Venturewell], Humphrey, Luce, and Boy.
Vent. Go, get you up; I will not be entertained;
And, gossip mine, I'll keep you sure hereafter
From gadding out again with boys and untrusties.
Come, they are women's tears; I know your fashion,—
Go, sirrah, lock her in, and keep the key
Safe as you love your life.
	Exeunt Luce and Boy.
Now, my son Humphrey,
You may both rest assured of my love
In this, and rest your own desire.
Hum. I see this love you speak of, through your daughter,
Although the hole be little; and hereafter
Will yield the like in all I may or can,
Fitting a Christian and a gentleman.
Vent. I do believe you, my good son, and thank you;
For 't were an impudence to think you flattered.
Hum. It were, indeed: but shall I tell you why?
I have been beaten twice about the lie.
Vent. Well, son, no more of compliment. My daughter
Is yours again: appoint the time and take her.
We'll have no stealing for it; I myself
And some few of our friends will see you married.

Hum. I would you would, I'faith! for, be it known,
I ever was afraid to lie alone.
Vent. Some three days hence, then.
Hum. Three days! let me see:
'Tis somewhat of the most; yet I agree,
Because I mean against the appointed day
To visit all my friends in new array.

Enter Servant.
Serv. Sir, there's a gentlewoman without would speak with your worship.
Vent. What is she?
Serv. Sir, I ask her not.
Vent. Bid her come in.
[Exit Servant.]

Enter Mistress Merrythought and Michael.

Mist. Mer. Peace be to your worship! I come as a poor suitor to you, sir, in the behalf of this child.
Vent. Are you not wife to Merrythought?
Mist. Mer. Yes, truly. Would I had ne'er seen his eyes! His has undone me and himself and his children; and there he lives at home, and sings and hoists and revels among his drunken companions! but, I warrant you, to where to get a penny to put bread in his mouth he knows not: and therefore, if it like your worship, I would entreat your letter to the honest host of the Bell in Waltham, that I may place my child under the protection of his tapster, in some settled course of life.
Vent. I'm glad the heavens have heard my prayers. Thy husband,
When I was ripe in sorrows, laought at me;
Thy son, like an unthankful wretch, I having redeem'd him from his fall, and made him mine,
To show his love again, first stole my daughter,
Then wronged this gentleman, and, last of all,
Gave me that grief had almost brought me down
Unto my grave, had not a stronger hand
Reliev'd my sorrows. Go, and weep as I did,
And be unpitied: for I here profess
An everlasting hate to all thy name.
Mist. Mer. Will you so, sir? how say you by that?—Come, Mick; let him keep his wind to cool his porridge. We'll go to thy nurse's: as Mick; she knits silk stockings, boy; and we'll knit too, boy, and be beholding to none of them all.
[Exit with Michael.

Enter a Boy with a letter.

Boy. Sir, I take it you are the master of this house.
Vent. How then, boy?
Boy. Then to yourself, sir, comes this letter.
Vent. From whom, my pretty boy?
Boy. From him that was your servant; but no more Shall that name ever be, for he is dead:

"Pretty long."
"In anticipation of."
Grief of your purchas'd anger broke his heart.
I saw him die, and from his hand receiv'd
This paper, with a charge to bring it hither:
Read it, and satisfy yourself in all.

Vent. [reads.] Sir, that I have wronged your love I most confess; in which I have purchast to myself, beside mine own undoing, the ill opinion of my friends. Let not your anger, good sir,大纲me out, but suffer me to rest in peace with your forgiveness: let my (se) body (if a dying man may so much prevail with you) be brought to your daughter, that she may truly know my hot flames are now buried, and within receive a testimony of the zeal I bore her virtue. Farewell for ever, and be ever [as happy]!

Jasper.

God's hand is great in this. I do forgive him;
Yet I am glad he's quiet, where I hope
He will not bite again. — Boy, bring the body,
And let him have his will, if that be all.

Boy. He is here without, sir.

Vent. So, sir; if you please,
You may conduct it in; I do not fear it.

Humph. I'll be your usher, boy; for, though I say it,
He ow'd me something once, and well did pay
it.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Luce.

Luce. If there be any punishment inflicted Upon the miserable, more than yet I feel,
Let it together seize me, and at once
Press down my soul! I cannot bear the pain
Of these delaying tortures. — Thou that art
The end of all, and the sweet rest of all,
Come, come, oh, Death! bring me to thy peace,
And blot out all the memory I nourish
Both of my father and my cruel friend! —
Oh, wretched maid, still living to be wretched,
To be a say to Fortune in her changes,
And grow to number times and woes together!
How happy had I been, if, being born,
My grave had been my cradle!

Enter Servant.

Serv. By your leave,
Young mistress; here's a boy hath brought a coffin:

What 'a would say, I know not; but your father
Charg'd me to give you notice. Here they come.

[Exit.]

Enter two bearing a Coffin, Jaspér in it.

Luce. For me I hope 'tis come, and 'tis most welcome.

Boy. Fair mistress, let me not add greater grief
To this, that great store you have already. Jaspér
(That whilst he liv'd was yours, now dead
And here enclos'd) commanded me to bring
His body hither, and to crave a tear

From those fair eyes, (though he deserv'd not pity.)
To deck his funeral; for so he bid me
Tell her for whom he died.

Luce. He shall have many, — Good friends, depart a little, whilst I take
My leave of this dead man, that once I lov'd.

Exit Coffin-carrier and Boy.

Hold yet a little, life! and then I give thee
To thy first heavenly being. Oh, my friend! I
Hast thou deserv'd me thus, and got before me?
I shall not long be after. But, believe me,
Thou wast too cruel, Jaspér. against thyself,
In punishing the fault I could have pardon'd,
With so untimely death: thou didst not wrong me,

But ever wert most kind, most true, most lov-
ing;
And I the most unkind, most false, most cruel!
Didst thou but ask a tear? I'll give thee all,
Even all my eyes can pour down, all my sighs,
And all myself, before thou goest from me.
These are but sparing rites; but if thy soul
Be yet about this place, and can behold
And see what I prepare to deck thee with,
It shall go up, borne on the wings of peace,
And satisfied. First will I sing thy dirge,
Then kiss thy pale lips, and then die myself,
And fill one coffin and one grave together.

Some.

Come, you whose loves are dead,
And, whiles I sing,
Weep, and wring
Every hand, and every head
Bind with cypress and sad yew;
Ribands black and candles blue
For him that was of men most true!

Come with heavy mourning, and
On his grave
Let him have
Sacrifice of sighs and groaning;
Let him have fair flowers snow,
White and purple, green and yellow,
For him that was of men most true!

Thou sable cloth, and cover of my joys,
I lift thee up, and thus I meet with death.

[Removes the Cloth, and Jasper rises out of the Coffin.]

Jaspér. And thus you meet the living.
Luce. Save me, Heaven!
Jaspér. Nay, do not fly me, fair; I am no spirit:
Look better on me; do you know me yet?
Luce. Oh, thou dear shadow of my friend!
Jaspér. Dear substance, I swear I am no shadow; feel my hand,
It is the same it was; I am your Jaspér,
Your Jaspér that 's yet living, and yet loving.

Pardon my rash attempt, my foolish proof
I put in practice of your constaney;
For sooner should my sword have drank my blood.
And set my soul at liberty, than drawn
The least drop from that body: for which bold-
ness

THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE

Doom to any thing; if death, I take it, And willingly.

Luce. This death I'll give you for it; [Kisses him.]

So, now I am satisfied you are no spirit, But my own trust, trust, trust, trust, friend: Why do you come thus to me?

Jasp. First, to see you; — Then to convey you hence.

Luce. It cannot be;
For I am lockt up here, and watcht at all hours, That 't is impossible for me to scape.

Jasp. Nothing more possible. Within this coffin Do you convey yourself. Let me alone,
I have the wits of twenty men about me;
Only I crave the shelter of your closet
A little, and then fear me not.1 Creep in,
That they may presently convey you hence: — Fear nothing, dearest love; I'll be your second;

[Luce lies down in the Coffin, and JASPON covers her with the cloth.]

Lue close: so; all goes well yet. — Boy!

[Re-enter Boy and Men.]

Boy. At hand, sir.
Jasp. Convey away the coffin, and be wary.

Boy. 'Tis done already.

Jasp. Now must I go conjure. [Exit into a Closet.]

Enter Merchant [VENDUERWELL.

Vent. Boy, boy!

Boy. Your servant, sir.

Vent. Do me this kindness, boy; (hold, here's a crown;) Before thou bury the body of this fellow, Carry it to his old merry father, and salute him From me, and bid him sing; he hath cause.

Boy. I will sir.

Vent. And then bring me word what tune he is in,
And have another crown; but do it truly.
I have fitted him a bargain now will vex him.

Boy. God bless your worship's health, sir!

Vent. Farewell, boy! [Exit [severally.]

SCENE V.]

Enter MERRYTHOUGHT.

Wife. Ah, old Merrythought, art thou there again? Let's hear some of thy songs.

Mar. [sings.]

Who can sing a merrier note
Than he that cannot change a groat?

Not a denier2 left, and yet my heart leaps. I's do wonder yet, as old as I am, that any man will follow a trade, or serve, that may sing and laugh, and walk the streets. My wife and both my sons are I know not where; I have nothing left, nor know I how to come by meat to sup-10 per; yet am I merry still, for I know I shall find it upon the table at six o'clock; therefore, hang thought!

1 Fear not for me. — 2 Denier. — 3 Hidden. — 4 In Q. this speech is in prose; possibly correctly. — 5 A street before Merrithought's house. — 6 Poxy.

[Sings.]

I would not be a serving-man To carry the cloak-bag still,
Nor would I be a falconer
The greedy hawks to fill;
But I would be in a good house,
And have a good master too;
But I would eat and drink of the best,
And work with, and go your way.

This is it that keeps life and soul together,—mirth; this is the philosopher's stone that they write so much on, that keeps a man ever young.

Enter a Boy.

Boy. Sir, they say they know all your money is gone, and they will trust you for no more drink.

Mer. Will they not? let 'em choose! The best is, I have mirth at home, and need not send abroad for that; let them keep their drink to themselves.

[Sings.]

For Julian of Berry, she dwells on a hill,
And she hath good beer and ale to sell,
And of good fellows she thinks no ill;
And thin she will go now, now, now,
And thin she will go now.

And when you have made a little stay,
You need not ask what is to pay,
But kiss your hostess, and go your way;
And thin she will go now, now, now,
And thin she will go now.

Enter another Boy.

2 Boy. Sir, I can get no bread for supper.

Mer. Hang bread and supper! Let's preserve our mirth, and we shall never feel hunger, [as I'll warrant you. Let's have a catch; boy, follow me, come sing this catch.

Ho, ho, nobody at home!
Meat, nor drink, nor money ha' we none.
Fill the pot, Eedy, Never more need I.

Mer. So, boys; enough. Follow me: let's change our place, and we shall laugh afresh.

Exeunt.

Wife. Let him go, George; 'a shall not have any countenance from us, nor a good word from any i' th' company, if I may strike stoke in 't.

Cit. No more 'a sha'not, love. But, Nell, I [will have Ralph do a very notable matter now, to the eternal honour and glory of all greezers. — Sirrah! you there, boy! Can none of you hear?

[Enter Boy.]

Boy. Sir, your pleasure?

Cit. Let Ralph come out on May-day in the morning, and speak upon a conduit, with all his scars about him, and his feathers, and his rings, and his knacks. 50
Boy. Why, say, you do not think of our plot; what will become of that, then?
Cid. Why, sir, I care not what become on't: I'll have him come out, or I'll fetch him out myself; I'll have something done in honour of the city. Besides, he hath been long enough upon adventures. Bring him out quickly; or, if I come in amongst you —
Boy. Well, sir, he shall come out, but if our play miscarry, sir, you are like to pay for't. 55
Cid. Bring him away then! 60
Exit Boy.
Wife. This will be brave, i' faith! George, shall not he dance the morris too, for the credit of the Strand? 65
Cid. No, sweetheart, it will be too much for the boy. Oh, there he is, Nell! he's reasonable well in repaire: but he has not rings enough.
Enter Ralph [dressed as a May-lord]. 70
Ralph. London, to thee I do present the merry month of May; 75
Let each true subject be content to hear what I say:
For from the top of conduit-head, as plainly may appear,
I will both tell my name to you, and wherefore I came here.
My name is Ralph, by due descent though not ignoble I
Yet far inferior to the flock of gracious grocery;
And by the common counsel of my fellows in the Strand,
With gilded staff and crossed scarf, the May-lord here I stand.
Rejoice, oh, English hearts, rejoice! rejoice, oh, lovers dear!
Rejoice, oh, city, town, and country! rejoice, zwe every shire!
For now the fragrant flowers do spring and sprout in seemly sort,
The little birds do sit and sing, the lambs do make fine sport;
And now the birch-tree doth bud, that makes the schoolboy cry;
The morris rings, while hobby-horse doth foot it featorously;
The lords and ladies now abroad, for their disport and play,
Do kiss sometimes upon the grass, and sometimes in the hay;
Now butter with a leaf of sage is good to purge the blood;
Fly Venus and phlebotomy, for they are neither good;
Now little fish on tender stone begin to cast their bellies,
And sluggish snails, that erst were meadow, do creep out of their shells;
The rumbling rivers now do warm, for little boys to paddle;
The sturdy steed now goes to grass, and up they hang his saddle;
The heavy hart, the bellowing buck, the rascal, and the pricket,
Are now among the yeoman's peas, and leave the fearful thicket:
And be like them, oh, you, I say, of this same noble town,
And lift aloft your velvet heads, and slipping off your gown,
With bells on legs, and napkins clean unto your shoulders tied,
With scarfs and garters as you please, and "He for our town!" cried,
March out, and show your willing minds, by twenty and by twenty,
To Hogdon or to Newington, where ale and cakes are plenty;
And let it ne'er be said for shame, that we the youths of London
Lay thrumming of our cape at home, and left our custom undone.
Up, then, I say, both young and old, both man and maid a-maying,
With drums, and guns that bounce aloud, and merry tabor playing!
Which to prolong, God save our king, and send his country peace,
And root out treason from the land! and so, my friends, I cease. 195
Exit. 96

ACT V

SCENE I. 11

Enter Merchant [Venturewell].

Vent. I will have no great store of company at the wedding; a couple of neighbours and their wives: and we will have a capon in stewed broth, with marrow, and a good piece of beef stuck with rosemary.

Enter Jasper, his face mealed.

Jasp. Forbear thine pains, fond man! it is too late.

Vent. Heaven bless me! Jasper!

Jasp. Ay, I am his ghost. Whom thou hast injur'd for his constant love, Fond worldly wretch! who dost not understand In death that true hearts cannot part. 170
First know, thy daughter is quite borne away On wings of angels, through the liquid air, To far out of thy reach, and never more Shalt thou behold her face: but she and I Will in another world enjoy our loves; Where neither father's anger, poverty, Nor any cross that troubles earthy men, Shall make us sever our united hearts. And never shalt thou sit or be alone

11 A room in the house of Venturewell. 12 Foolish.
In any place, but I will visit thee With ghastly looks, and put into thy mind The great offences which thou didst to me. When thou art at thy table with thy friends, Merry in heart, and fill'd with swelling wine, I'll come in midst of all thy pride and mirth, As invisible to all men but thyself, And whisper such a sad tale in thine ear Shall make thee let the cup fall from thy hand, And stand as mute and pale as death itself.

Vent. Forgive me, Jasper! Oh, what might I do,
Tell me, to satisfy thy troubled ghost?
Jasp. There is no means; too late thou think'st of this.
Vent. But tell me what were best for me to do?
Jasp. Repent thy deed, and satisfy my father,
And best fond Humphrey out of thy doors.

Wife. Look, George; his very ghost would have folks beaten.

Enter HUMPHREY.

Hum. Father, my bride is gone, fair Mistress Luce:
My soul's the fount of vengeance, mischief's sluice.
Vent. Hence, fool, out of my sight with thy fond passion!
Thou hast undone me. [Beats him.] Hum. Hold, my father dear,
For Luce thy daughter's sake, that had no peer!
Vent. Thy father, fool! There's some blows more; begone. [Beats him.] Jasper, I hope thy ghost be well appeas'd To see thy will perform'd. Now will I go To satisfy thy father for thy wrongs.

Hum. What shall I do? I have been beaten too,
And Mistress Luce is gone. Help me, device! Since my true love is gone, I never more, Whilst I do live, upon the sky will pore; But in the dark will wear out my shoe-soles In passion ¹ in Saint Faith's church under Paul's.

Wife. George, call Ralph hither; if you love me, call Ralph hither: I have the bravest thing for him to do, George; prithee, call him quickly.

Cit. Ralph! why, Ralph, boy!

Enter RALPH.

Ralph. Here, sir.

Cit. Come hither, Ralph; come to thy mistress, boy.

Wife. Ralph, I would have thee call all ² so the youths together in battle-ray, with drums, and guns, and flags, and march to Mile-End in pompous ³ fashion, and there exhort your soldiers to be merry and wise, and to keep their beards from burning, Ralph; and then skir mish, and let your flags fly, and cry, "Kill, kill, kill!" My husband shall lend you his jerkin, Ralph, and there's a scarf; for the rest, the house shall furnish you, and we'll pay for't. Do it bravely, Ralph; and think before ⁴ whom you perform, and what person you represent.

Ralph. I warrant you, mistress; if I do it not for the honour of the city and the credit of my master, let me never hope for free- ⁵ dom.

Wife. 'Tis well spoken, i' faith. Go thy ways; thou art a spark indeed.

Cit. Ralph, Ralph, double your files bravely, Ralph!

Ralph. I warrant you, sir.

Cit. Let him look narrowly to his service; I shall take him else. I was there myself a pike-man once, in the hottest of the day, wench; had my feather shot sheer away, the fringe of my pike burnt off with powder, my pate ⁶ broken with a scouring-stick, ⁷ and yet, I thank God, I am here.

Wife. Look, George, the drums!

Cit. Ran, tan, tan, tan; ran, tan! Oh, wench, an thou hadst but seen little Ned of Aldgate, ⁸ in Drum Ned, how he made it roar again, and laid on like a tyrant, and then struck softly till the ward ⁹ came up, and then thund'red again, and together we go! "Sa, sa, sa, bounce!" ¹⁰ quot the guns; "Courage, my hearts!" quot the captains; "Saint George!" quot the pikemen; and withal, here they lay, and there they lay: and yet for all this I am here, wench.

Wife. Be thankful for it, George; for indeed 'tis wonderful.

[SCENE II.]

Enter RALPH and Company of Soldiers (among whom are WILLIAM HAMMERTON, and GEORGE GREENGOOSE), with drums and colours.

Ralph. March fair, my hearts! Lieutenant, beat the rear up. — Ancient, ¹¹ let your colours fly; but have a great care of the butchers' hooks at Whitechapel; they have been the death of many a fair ancient. — Open your ² files, that I may take a view both of your persons and munition. — Sergeant, call a muster.

Serg. A stand! — William Hammerton, pewterer!

Hum. Here, captain!

Ralph. A corselet and a Spanish pike; 't is well: can you shake it with a terror?

Ham. I hope so, captain.

Ralph. Charge upon me. [He charges on RALPH.] — 'Tis with the weakest: put more ³ strength, William Hammerton, more strength, As you were again! — Proceed, Sergeant.

Serg. George Greengoose, polturer!

  ⁴ I. e. Rancred.
  ⁵ Unarmed.
  ⁶ Guard (Moorman); regiment (Murch).
  ⁷ A street (and afterwards Mile-End).
  ⁸ Ensign (the flag or its bearer).
Green. Here!
Ralph. Let me see your piece, neighbour; who was she shot in?
Green. An't like you, master captain, I made a show even now, partly to scour her, and partly for anndauty.
Ralph. It should seem so certainly, for her breath is yet inflamed; besides, there is a main fault in the touch-hole, it runs and stiffketh; and I tell you moreover, and believe it, ten such touch-holes would breed the pox in the army. Get you a feather, neighbour, get you a feather, sweet oil, and paper, and your piece may do well enough yet. Where's your powder?
Green. Here.
Ralph. What, in a paper! As I am a soldier and a gentleman, it wrinkles a martial court! as you ought to die for't. Where's your horn? An't you to die for't. Where's your horn? Answer me to that.
Green. An't like you, sir, I was oblivious.
Ralph. It likes me not you should be so; 'tis a shame for you, and a scandal to all our neighbours being a man of worth and estimation; as let us your horn behind you: I am afraid 'twill breed example. But let me tell you more on't.—Stand, till I view you all. What's become of th' nose of your flask?
1 Sold. Indeed, is, captain, 'twas blown away with powder.
Ralph. Put on a new one at the city's charge.
—Where's the stone of this piece?
2 Sold. The drummer took it out to light tobacco.
Ralph. 'Tis a fault, my friend; put it in again.—You want a nose, and you a stone. Sergeant, take a note on't, for I mean to stop it in the pay.—Remove, and march! [They march.] Soft and fair, gentlemen, soft and fair! Double your files! As you were! Faces about! Now, you with the sodden face, keep in there! Look to your match, sirrah, it will be in your fellow's flask anon. So, make a crescent now; [advancing your pikes and give ear! —Gentlemen, countrymen, friends, and my fellow-soldiers, I have brought you this day, from the shops of security and the counters of content, to measure out in these furious fields honour by the ell, and prowess by the pound. Let it not, oh, let it not, I say, be told hereafter. the noble issue of this city famed yet, but bear yourselves in this fair action like men, valiant men, and free men! Fear not the face of the enemy, nor the noise of the guns, for, believe me, brethren, the rude rumbling of a brewer's cart is far more terrible, of which you have a daily experience; neither let the stink of powder offend you, since a more valiant stink is nightly with you.
To a resolved mind his home is every-where: I speak not this to take away The hope of your return; for you shall see (I do not doubt it) and that very shortly Your loving wives again and your sweet children, Whose care doth bear you company in baskets.

Remember, then, whose cause you have in hand, And, like a sort of true-bom scavengers, Scour me this famous realm of enemies. As I have no more to say but this: stand to your taskings, lads, and show to the world you can as well brandish a sword as shake an apron, Saint George, and on, my hearts!
All. Saint George, Saint George! Exeunt.

Wife. 'T was well done, Ralph! I'll send thee a cold capon a-field and a bottle of March beer; and it may be, come myself to see thee.
Oh. Nell, the boy has deceived me much; I did not think it had been in him. He has performed such a matter, wench, that, if I live, next year I'll have him captain of the galley-foist; or I'll want my will.

[Scene III.]

Enter Merrythought.

Mer. Yet, I thank God, I break not a wrinkle more than I have. Not a stoop' boys? Care, live with care; I defy thee! My heart is as sound as an oak; and though I want drink to wet my whistle, I can sing; [Sings.] Come no more there, boys, come no more there; For we shall never whilst we live come any more there.

Enter Boy, [and two Men] with a Coffin.

Boy. God save you, sir!
Mer. It's a brave boy. Canst thou sing?
Boy. Yes, sir, I can sing; but 'tis not so necessary at this time.
Mer. [Sings.] Sing we, and chant it; Whilest love doth grant it.

Boy, Sir, sir, if you knew what I have brought you, you would have little list to [sings.

Mer. [sings.]
Oh, the Minon round, Full long, long I have wooed, And now I have thee found, And what hast thou here brought?

Boy. A coffin, sir, and your dead son Jasper in it. [Exit with Men.]

Mer. Dead! Why, farewell he! Thou wast a bonny boy, And I did love thee.

Enter Jasper.

Jasp. Then, I pray you, sir, do so still.
Mer. Jasper's ghost! [Sings.]
Thou art welcome from Stygian lake so soon; Declare to me what wondrous things in Pluto's court are done.

Jasp. By my troth, sir, I ne'er came there; 'tis too hot for me, sir.
Mer. A merry ghost, a very merry ghost! [Sings.]
And where is your true love? Oh, where is yours?

Band. [Sings.]
The Lord Mayor's barge.
A room in Merrythought's house.
Tankard.
V. iii. THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE 537

Jasp. Marry, look you, sir! — how do you do? —

Mer. Ah, ha! art thou good at that! faith?

[Sings.]

With hey, trysty, teresty-wistery, away,
The world it runs on wheels:
When the young man's up,
Up goes the maiden's head.

Mrs. MERRYTHOUGHT and MICHAEL within.

Mist. Mer. [within.] What, Master Merrythought? will you not let's in? What do you think shall become of us?

Mer. [sings.]

What voice is that, that calleth at our door?

Mist. Mer. [within.] You know me well as enough; I am sure I have not been such a stranger to you.

Mer. [sings.]

And so they whistled, and some they sung,
Hey, down, down! and some did loudly say,
Ever as the Lord Barnet's horn blew,
Away, Musgrave, away! —

Mist. Mer. [within.] You will not have us starve here, will you, Master Merrythought? Jasp. Nay, good sir, be persuaded; she is my mother.

If her offences have been great against you,
Let your own love remember she is yours,
And so forgive her.

Luce. Good Master Merrythought,
Let me entreat you; I will not be denied.

Mist. Mer. [within.] Why, Master Merrythought, will you be a vexing still?

Mer. Woman, I take you to my love again;
but you shall sing before you enter; therefore

Mist. Mer. [within.] Well, you must have your will, when all's done. — Mick, what song canst thou sing, boy?

Mick. [within.] I can sing none, forsooth, but
A Lady's Daughter, of Paris properly.

Mist. Mer. [Song.]

It was a lady's daughter, &c.

[MERRYTHOUGHT opens the Door; enter MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT and MICHAEL.

Mer. Come, you're welcome home again.

[Sings.]

If such danger be in playing,
And jest must to earnest turn,
You shall go no more a-maying —

Vent. [within.] Are you within, sir? Master Merrythought!

Jasp. It is my master's voice! Good sir, go

In, whilst we convey ourselves into
Some inward room. [Exit with Luce.]

Mer. What are you? Are you merry?

You must be very merry, if you enter.

Vent. [within.] I am, sir.

Mer. Sing, then.

Vent. [within.] Nay, good sir, open to me.

Mer. Sing, I say, or by the merry heart, you come not in!

Vent. [within.] Well, sir, I'll sing. [Sings.]

Fortune, my foe, &c.

[MERRYTHOUGHT opens the Door: Enter VENTUREWELL.]

Mer. You are welcome, sir, you are welcome: you see your entertainment; pray you, be merry.

Vent. Oh, Master Merrythought, I'm come to ask you Forgiveness for the wrongs I offered you
And your most virtuous son! They're infinite;
Yet my contrition shall be more than they:
I do confess my hardness broke his heart,
For which just Heaven hath given me punishment
More than my age can carry. His wand's ring spirit,
Not yet at rest, pursues me every where,
Crying, "I'll haunt thee for thy cruelty."
My daughter, she is gone, I know not how,
Taken invisible, and whether living
Or in [the] grave, 'tis yet uncertain to me.
Oh, Master Merrythought, these are the weights
Will sink me to my grave! Forgive me, sir,
Mer. Why, sir, I do forgive you; and be merry.

And if the wag in 's lifetime play'd the knave.
Can you forgive him too?

Vent. With all my heart, sir.

Mer. Speak it again, and heartily.

Vent. I do, sir;

Now, by my soul, I do.

Re-enter LUCE and JASPER.

Mer. [sings.]

With that came out his paramour;
She was as white as the lily flower:
Hay, trou, trou, jolly!
With that came out her own dear knight;
He was as true as ever did fight, &c.

Sir, if you will forgive him, clap their hands [us] together; there's no more to be said i' th' matter.

Vent. I do, I do.

Cit. I do not like this. Peace, boys! Hear me, one of you! Every body's part is come to an end but Ralph's, and he's left out.

Boy. 'Tis 'long of yourself, sir; we have nothing to do with his part.

Cit. Ralph, come away! — Make [an end] on him, as you have done of the rest, boys; come.

Wife. Now, good husband, let him come out and die.

Cit. He shall, Nell. — Ralph, come away quickly, and die, boy!

Boy. 'Twill be very unfit he should die, sir, upon no occasion — and in a comedy too.

Cit. Take you no care of that, sir boy; is not his part at an end, think you, when he's dead? — Come away, Ralph!

1 So printed in Qc.

2 Qu. omits. Added in Ed. of 1778.
Enter RALPH, with a forked Arrow through his Head.

RALPH. When I was young, this my custive corps
Did lap up figs and raisins in the Strand;
Where sitting, I espied a lovely dame,
Whose master wrought with lugel and withawl,
And underground he vamp'd many a booz. 146
Straight did her love prick forth me, tenderly and spry,
To follow feats of arms in warlike wise
Through Waltham-dessert; where I did perform
Many achievements, and did lay on ground
Huge Barbaroso, that insulting giant; 148
And all his captives soon at liberty.
Then honour prick'd me from my native soil
Into Moldavia, where I gain'd the love
Of Pompiona, his beloved daughter;
But yet provid'n constant to the black thumb'd maid 150
Susan, and scorn'd Pompiona's love;
Yet liberal I was, and gave her pins,
And money for her father's officers.
I then returned home, and thrust myself
In action, and by all men chosen was
Lord of the May, where I did flourish it,
With scarves and rings, and posy in my hand.
After this action I preferred was,
And chosen city-captain at Mile-End, 150
With hat and feather, and with leading-staff. 25
And train'd my men, and brought them all off clear.
Save one man that beray'd him with the noise. 27
But all these things I Ralph did undertake
Only for my beloved Susan's sake.
Then coming home, and sitting in my shop 150
With apron blue, Death came into my stall,
To cheapen aqua vitae; but ere I could take the bottle down and fill a taste,
Death caught a pound of pepper in his hand,
And sprinkled all my face and body o'er, 170
And in an instant vanished away.

CIT. 'Tis a pretty fiction, i' faith.

RALPH. Then took I up my bow and shaft in hand,
And walk'd into Moorfields to cool myself;
But there grim cruel Death met me again, 178
And shot this forked arrow through my head;

And now I faint; therefore be warn'd by me,
My fellows every one, of forked heads!
Farewell, all you good boys in merry London!
Ne'er shall we more upon Shrove-Tuesday meet.
And pluck down houses of iniquity; 25
My pain increaseth — I shall never more hold open, whilst another pumpe both legs,
Nor daub a satin gown with rotten eggs;
Set up a stake, oh, never more I shall! 255
I die! fly, fly, my soul, to Grocers' Hall!
Oh, oh, oh, &c. 256

WIFE. Well said, Ralph! do your obeisance to the gentlemen, and go your ways: well said, Ralph! 300

RALPH [riess, makes obeisance and exit.

MER. Methinks all we, thus kindly and unexpectedly reconciled, should not depart without a song.

VENT. A good motion.

MER. Strike up, then!

SONG. Better music ne'er was known
Than a choir of hearts in one.
Let each other, that hath been Troubled with the gall or spleen,
Learn of us to keep his brow
Smooth and plain, as ours are now:
Sing, thou'gh before the hour of dying;
He shall rise, and then be crying,
"Hey, ho, 'tis sought but mir'd
That keeps the body from the earth!"

Exeunt.

Epilogue.

CIT. Come, Nell, shall we go? The play's done.

WIFE. Nay, by my faith, George, I have more manners than so; I'll speak to these gentlemen first. — I thank you all, gentlemen, for your patience and countenance to Ralph, a poor fatherless child; and if I might see you at my house, it should go hard but I would have a bottle of wine and a pipe of tobacco for you: for, truly, I hope you do like the youth, but [as I would be glad to know the truth; I refer it to your own discretions, whether you will applaud him or no; for I will wink, and whilst you shall do what you will. I thank you with all my heart. God give you good night! — Come, [to George.

[Exeunt.]

BY

FRANCIS BEAUMONT AND JOHN FLETCHER

[DRAMATIS PERSONAE]

THE KING OF SICILY.

PHILASTER, Heir to the Crown. —

PHARAOH, Prince of Spain.

DION, a Lord.

Clermont, Noble Gentlemen,

Thrasillum, his associates.

An Old Captain.

Five Citizens.

A Country Fellow.

Two Woodmen.

The King's Guard and Train.

Ariadne, Daughter of the King.

Eugenia, Daughter of Dion, but disguised like a Page.

And called Bellario.

Megara, a lascivious Lady.

Galatea, a wise, modest Lady attending the Princess.

Two other Ladies.

SCENE. — Sicily.

ACT I

SCENE I.²

Enter Dion, Clermont, and Thrasillum.

Cler. Here's nor lords nor ladies.

Dion. Credit me, gentlemen, I wonder at it. They receiv'd strict charge from the King to attend here; besides, it was boldly published that no officer should forbid any gentleman [as that desired to attend and hear.

Cle. Can you guess the cause?

Dion. Sir, it is plain, about the Spanish Prince that's come to marry our kingdom's heir and be our sovereign.⁶

Thra. Many that will seem to know much say she looks not on him like a maid in love.

Dion. Faith, sir, the multitude, that seldom know any thing but their own opinions, speak that they would have; but the prince, before his own approach, receiv'd so many confidential messages from the state, that I think she's resolv'd to be rul'd.

Cle. Sir, it is thought, with her he shall enjoy both these kingdoms of Sicily and Calabria.

Dion. Sir, it is without controversy so; but't will be a troublesome labour for him to enjoy both these kingdoms with safety, the right heir to one of them living, and living so virtuously: especially, the people admiring the bravery of his mind and lamenting his injuries.

Cle. Who? Philaster?

Dion. Yes; whose father, we all know, was by our late King of Calabria unrighteously [as deposited from his fruitful Sicily. Myself drew this list is taken with slight changes from Q. Q. omits it.

³ Some blood in these wars, which I would give my hand to be washed from.

Cle. Sir, my ignorance in state-policy will not lett me know why, Philaster being heir to one of these kingdoms, the King should suffer him to walk abroad with such free liberty.

Dion. Sir, it seems your nature is more constant than to inquire after state-news. But the King, of late, made a hazard of both the [as kingdoms, of Sicily and his own, with offering but to imprison Philaster, at which the city was in arms, not to be charm'd down by any state-order or proclamation, till they saw Philaster ride through the streets pleas'd and without a guard: at which they threw their hats and their arms from them; some to make bonfires, some to drink, all for his deliverance: which wise men say is the cause the King labours to bring in the power of a foreign nation to save his own with.

Enter Galatea, a Lady, and Megara.

Thra. See, the ladies! What's the first?

Dion. A wise and modest gentlewoman that attends the princes.

Cle. The second?⁵

Dion. She is one that may stand still discreetly enough and ill-favour'dly dance her measure; simper when she is courted by her friend, and slight her husband.

Cle. The last?

Dion. Faith, I think she is one whom the state keeps for the agents of our confederate princes; she'll cog like a soldiary army, before the league shall break. Her name is common through the kingdom, and the tro- [as phies of her dishonour advanced beyond Hercules' Pillars. She loves to try the several constitutions of men's bodies; and, indeed, has destroyed the worth of her own body by making experiment upon it for the good of the com-weal.

Cle. She's a profitable member.

Meg. Peace, if you love me! You shall see these gentlemen stand their ground and not court us.

Gal. What if they should?

La. What if they should?

Meg. Nay, let her alone.—What if they should! Why, if they should, I say they were never abroad. What foreigner would do so? It writes them directly untravell'd.

Gal. Why, what if they be?

La. What if they be!

Meg. Good madam, let her go on.—What if they be! Why, if they be, I will justify, [54] they cannot maintain discourse with a judicious lady, nor make a leg nor say "Excuse me."

Gal. Ha, ha, ha!

Meg. Do you laugh, madam?

Dion. Your desires upon you, ladies!

Meg. Then you must sit beside us.

Dion. I shall sit near you then, lady.

Meg. Near me, perhaps; but there's a lady endures no stranger; and to me you appear a very strange fellow. [60]

La. Methinks he's not so strange; he would quickly be acquainted.

Thra. Peace, the King!

Enter King, Pharamond, Arethusa, and Train.

King. To give a stronger testimony of love Than sickly promises (which commonly In princes find both birth and burial) [100] In one breath we have drawn you, worthy sir, To make your fair endearments to our daughter.

And worthy services known to our subjects, Now lov'd and wondered at; next, our intent To plant you deeply our immediate heir Both to our blood and kingdoms. For this lady, (The best part of your life, as you confirm me, And I believe,) though her few years and sex Yet teach her nothing but her fears and blushes, Desires without desire, discourse and knowledge Only of what herself is to herself, Make her feel moderate health; and when she sleeps, In making no ill day, knows no ill dreams. Think not, dear sir, these undivided parts, That must mould up a virgin, are put on To show her so, as borrowed ornaments To speak her perfect love to you, or add An artificial shadow to her nature, — No, sir; I boldly dare proclaim her yet No woman. But woo her still, and think her modesty A sweeter mistress than the offer'd language

Of any dame, were she a queen, whose eye Speaks common loves and comforts to her serv-

last, noble son (for so I now must call you), What I have done thus public, is not only To add a comfort in particular To you or me, but all; and to confirm The nobles and the gentry of these kingdoms By oath to your succession, which shall be Within this month at most.

Thra. This will be hardly done.

Cle. It must be ill done, if it be done.

Dion. When 'tis at best, 'twill be but half done, whilst So brave a gentleman is wrong'd and flung off.

Thra. I fear.

Thra. Who does not?

Dion. I fear not for myself, and yet I fear too.

Well, we shall see, we shall see. No more.

Pha. Kissing your white hand, mistress, I take leave To thank your royal father; and thus far To be my own free trumpet. Understand, Great King, and these your subjects, mine that must be, (For so deserving you have spoke me, sir, And so deserving I dare speak myself,) To what a person, of what eminence, Ripe expectation, of what faculties. Manners and virtues, you would wed your kingdoms;

You in me have your wishes. Oh, this country! By more than all the gods, I hold it happy; Happy in their dear memories that have been Kings great and good; happy in yours that is; And from you (as a chronicle to keep Your noble name from eating age) do I Opine myself most happy. Gentlemen, Believe me in a word, a prince's word, [150] There shall be nothing to make up a kingdom Mighty and flourishing, defended, fear'd, Equal to be commanded and obeyed, But through the travails of my life I'll find it, And tie it to this country. By all the gods, My reign shall be so easy to the subject, That every man shall be his prince himself, And his own law — yet I his prince and law. And dearest lady, to your dearest self (Dear in the choice of him whose name and lustre Must make you more and mightier) let me say, You are the blessed' st living; for, sweet princess, You shall enjoy a man of men to be Your servant; you shall make him yours, for whom Great queens must die.

Thra. Miraculous!

Cle. This speech calls him Spaniard, being nothing but a large inventory of his own commendations.

Dion. I wonder what's his price; for certainly

He'll sell himself, he has so prais'd his shape.
Enter Philaster.

But here comes one more worthy those large speeches. Than the large speaker of them. Let me be swallowed quick, if I can find, In all the anatomy of man's virtues, One sinew sound enough to promise for him, He shall be constable. By this sun, He'll ne'er make king unless it be of trifles, In my poor judgment.

Phil. [kneeling.] Right noble sir, as low as my obedience, And with a heart as loyal as my knee, I beg your favour.

King. Rise; you have it, [Philaster.

Dion. Mark but the King, how pale he is— He fears.

Oh, this same whorson conscience, how it jars us!

King. Speak your intents, sir.

Phil. Shall I speak 'am freely? 10 Be still my royal sovereign.

King. As a subject,
We give you freedom.

Dion. Now it heats.

Phil. Then thus I turn My language to you, prince; you, foreign man! Ne'er stare nor put on wonder, for you must Endure me, and you shall. This earth you tread upon (A dowry, as you hope, with this fair princess, By my dead father (oh, I had a father, Whose memory I bow to!) was not left To your inheritance, and I up and living— Having myself about me and my sword, The souls of all my name and memories, These arms and some few friends beside the gods— To part so calmly with it, and sit still And say, "I might have been." I tell thee, Pharamond,

When thou art king, I look I be dead and rotten, And my name ashes: 1 for, hear me, Pharamond! This very ground thou goest on, this fat earth, My father's friends made fertile with their faiths, Before that day of shame shall gape and swallow Thee and thy nation, like a hungry grave, Into her hollow bowels. Prince, it shall; By the just gods, it shall!

Pha. He's mad; beyond cure, mad.

Dion. Here is a fellow has some fire in's veins: The outlandish prince looks like a tooth-drawer. Phil. Sir Prince of popinjays, I'll make it well Appear to you I am not mad.

King. You displease us:

You are too bold.

Phil. No, sir, I am too tame, Too much a turtle, a thing born without passion, 1 Q7 and Q3 insert as I.

A faint shadow, that every drunken cloud Sails over, and makes nothing.

King. I do not fancy this. 2 Call our physicians; sure, he's somewhat tainted.

Thra. I do not think 't will prove so.

Dion. He's given him a general purge already,
For all the right he has; and now he means To let him blood. Be constant, gentlemen: By heaven, I'll run his hazard,

Although I run my name out of the kingdom! Cle. Peace, we are all one soul.

Pha. What you have seen in me to stir offence I cannot find, unless it be this lady, 3

Thra. I'd force into mine arms with the succession; Which I must keep, (though it hath pleas'd 4 your fury To mutiny within you,) without disputing Your genealogies, or taking knowledge Whose branch you are. The King will leave it me And I dare make it mine. You have your answer.

Phil. If thou wert sole inheritor to him That made the world his, 5 and couldst see no sun Shine upon any thing but thine; were Pharamond As truly valiant as I feel him cold, 6 And ring'd amongst the choicest of his friends (Such as would blush to talk such serious follies, Or back such bellied 7 commendations, And from this presence, spite of all these bugs, 8 You should hear further from me. 9

King. Sir, you wrong the prince; I gave you not this freedom To brave our best friends. You deserve our frown.

Go to; be better temper'd.

Phil. It must be, sir, when I am nobler us'd.

Gal. Ladies, This would have been a pattern of successions. 10 Had he ne'er met this mischief. By my life, He is the worthiest the true name of man This day within my knowledge.

Meg. I cannot tell what you may call your knowledge; But the other is the man set in mine eye. Oh, 'tis a prince of wax! 11 A dog it is. 12

Gal. King. Philaster, tell me The injuries you aim at in your riddles.

Phil. If you had my eyes, sir, and sufferance, My griefs upon you, and my broken fortunes, My wants great, and now nought but hopes and fears, My wrongs would make ill riddles to be laught at. Do you be still my king, and right me not? King. Give me your wrongs in private.

1 Unbalanced in mind.
2 J. a. Alexander the Great.
3 Swollen. Q7 and Q3 inserted. 4 To succeedings kings.
5 Burgheare. 6 A model prince.
7 The phrase, a dog of wax, is used elsewhere in a contemptuous sense, but has not been explained.
8 Refer to.
Phi. Take them. And ease me of a load would bow strong Atlas.

They whisper.

Cle. He dares not stand the shock.

Dion. I cannot blaffe him; there’s danger in ‘t. Every man in this age has not a soul of crystal, for all men to read their actions [1] through men’s hearts and faces are so far aumder, that they hold no intelligence. Do but view you stranger well, and you shall see a fever through all his bravery, 2 and feel him shake like a true tenant. 3 If he give not back his crown again upon the report of an elder-gun, I have no augury.

King. Go to; Be more yourself, as you respect our favour; you’ll stir us else. Sir, I must have you know, that you are and shall be, at our pleasure, what fashion we will put upon you. Smooth your brow.

Or by the gods —

Phi. I am dead, sir; you are my fate. It was not I

Said, I was wrong’d: I carry all about me

My weak stars lead me to, all my weak fortunes.

Who dares in all this presence speak, (that is

But man of flesh, and may be mortal,) tell me

I do not most entirely love this prince,

And honour his full virtues!

King. Sure, he’s possess’d.

Phi. Yes, with my father’s spirit. It’s here, O King,

A dangerous spirit! Now he tells me, King,

I was a king’s heir, bids me be a king,

And whisper me, these are all my subjects.

’Tis strange he will not let me sleep, but dives

Into my fancy, and there gives me shapes

That kneel and do me service, cry me king,

But I’ll suppress him; he’s a factsion spirit,

And will undo me.—[To PHAR.] Noble sir, your hand;

I am your servant.

Dion. Away! I do not like this:

You’ll make me tamer, or I’ll dispossess you

Both of your life and spirit. For this time

I pardon your wild speech, without so much

As your imprisonment.

Exit KING, PHARAMOND, ARThUS [and Train.]

Dion. I thank you, sir; you dare not for the people.

Gal. Ladies, what think you now of this brave fellow?

Meg. A pretty talking fellow, hot at hand.

But eye you stranger: is he not a fine complete gentleman? Oh, these strangers, I do affect them strangely! They do the rarest home—[1] things, and please the fullest! As I live, I could love all the nation over and over for his sake.

Gal. Gods comfort your poor head-piece, lady! ’Tis a weak one, and had need of a night-cap.

Exit Ladies.
Thy. But are you sure it was the princess sent?

It may be some foul train to catch your life.

Phi. I don’t think it, gentlemen; she’s no noble.

Her eye may shoot me dead, or those true red

And white friends in her cheeks may steal my soul out;

There’s all the danger in ’t. But, be what may,

Her single 1 name hath arm’d me. Exit. Dian.

Go on, and be as truly happy as thou’rt fearless! —

Come, gentlemen, let’s make our friends acquainted,

Lest the King prove false. Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Arethusa and a Lady.

Are. Comes he not?

Lady. Madam?

Are. Will Philaster come?

Lady. Dear madam, you were wont to credit

me

At first.

Are. But didst thou tell me so?

I am forgetful, and my woman’s strength

Is so o’ercharg’d with dangers like to grow

About my marriage, that these under-things

Dare not abide in such a troubled sea.

How lookt he when he told thee he would come?

Lady. Why, well.

Are. And not a little fearful?

Lady. Fear, madam! Sure, he knows not what it is.

Are. You all are of his faction; the whole

court

Is bold in praise of him: whilst I

May live neglected, and do noble things,

As fools in strife throw gold into the sea,

Drown’d in the doing. But, I know he fears.

Lady. Fear, madam! Methought, his looks hid more

Of love than fear.

Are. Of love! To whom? To you?

Did you deliver those plain words I sent,

With such a winning gesture and quick look

That you have caught him?

Lady. Madam, I mean to you.

Are. Of love to me! Alas, thy ignorance

Lest thee not see the crosses of our births!

Nature, that loves not to be questioned

Why she did this or that, but has her ends,

And knows she does well, never gave the world

Two things so opposite, so contrary

As he and I: if a bowl of blood

Drawn from this arm of mine would poison

thee,

A draught of his would cure thee. Of love to me!

Lady. Madam, I think I hear him.

Are. Bring him in. [Exit Lady.] You gods, that would not have your dooms withstood,

Whose holy wisdoms at this time it is

To make the passion of a feeble maid

The way unto your justice, I obey.

1 More. 2 Arethusa’s apartment in the palace.

[Re-enter [Lady with] PHILASTER.

Lady. Here is my Lord Philaster.

Are. Oh, ’t is well. Withdraw yourself.

[Exit Lady.]

Phi. Madam, your messenger

Made me believe you wish’d to speak with me.

Are. ’T is true, Philaster; but the words are

such

I have to say, and do so ill beseeem

The mouth of woman, that I wish them said,

And yet am loth to speak them. Have you known

That I have aught detracted from your worth?

Have I in person wrong’d you, or have set

My baser instruments to throw disgrace

Upon your virtues?

Phi. Never, madam, you.

Are. Why, then, should you, in such a public place,

Injure a princess, and a scandal lay

Upon my fortunes, fam’d to be so great,

Calling a great part of my dowry in question?

Phi. Madam, this truth which I shall speak will be

Foolish: but, for your fair and virtuous self,

I could afford myself to have no right

To any thing you wish’d.

Are. Philaster, know, —

I must enjoy these kingdoms.

Phi. Madam, both?

Are. Both, or I die: by heaven, I die, Phil-

aster,

If I not calmly may enjoy them both.

Phi. I would do much to save that noble life;

Yet would be loth to have posterity

Find in our stories, that Philaster gave

His right unto a sceptre and a crown

To save a lady’s longing.

Are.

Nay, then, hear:

I must and will have them, and more ——

Phi. What more?

Are. Or lose that little life the gods prepared

To trouble this poor piece of earth withal.

Phi. Madam, what more?

Are. Turn, then, away thy face.

Phi. No.

Are. Do.

Phi. I can endure it. Turn away my face! —

I never yet saw enemy that look’d

So dreadfully, but that I thought myself

As great a basilisk 2 as he; or spake

So horrible, but that I thought my tongue

Bore thunder underneath, as much as his;

Nor beast that I could turn from. Shall I then Begin to fear sweet sounds? A lady’s voice,

Whom I do love? Say you would have my life;

Why, I will give it you: for ’t is of me

A thing so loath’d, and unto you that ask

Of so poor use, that I shall make no price:

If you entreat, I will unmov’dly hear.

Are. Yet, for my sake, a little bend thy looks.

Phi. I do.

Are. Then know, I must have them and thee.

Phi. And me?

1 A fabulous serpent that killed with a glance.
Arc. Thy love; without which, all the land Discovered yet will serve me for no use
But to be buried in.
Phi. Is 't possible?
Arc. With it, it were too little to bestow
On thee. Now, though thy breath do strike me dead, (Which, know, it may,) I have unript my breast.
Phi. Madam, you are too full of noble
thoughts,
To lay a train for this contemned life,
Which you may have for asking. To suspect
Were base, where I deserve no ill. Love you!
By all my hopes, I do, above my life!
But how this passion should proceed from you
So violently, would amaze a man
That would be jealous.

Arc. Another soul into my body shot Could not have fill’d me with more strength and spirit
Than this thy breath. But spend not hasty

time
In seeking how I came thus: 'tis the gods,
The gods, that make me so; and, sure, our love
Will be the nobler and the better blest,
In that the secret justice of the gods
Is mingled with it. Let us leave, and kiss;
Lest some unwelcome guest should fall betwixt
us,
And we should part without it.
Phi. I will abide here long.
Arc. 'Tis true; and worse
You should come often. How shall we devise
To hold intelligence, that our true loves,
On any new occasion, may agree
What path is best to tread?
Phi. I have a boy,
Sent by the gods, I hope, to this intent,
Not yet seen in the court. Hunting the buck,
I found him sitting by a fountain’s side,
Of which he borrow’d some to quench his thirst,
And paid the nymph again as much in tears.
A garland lay him by, made by himself
Of many several flowers bred in the vale,
Stuck in that mystic order that the rareness
Delighted me: but ever when he turn’d
His tender eyes upon ‘em, he would weep,
As if he meant to make ’em grow again.
Seeing such pretty helpless innocence
Dwell in his face, I ask’d him all his story.
He told me that his parents gentle died,
Leaving him to the mercy of the fields,
Which gave him roots; and of the crystal springs,
Which did not stop their courses; and the sun,
Which still, he thank’d him, yielded him his light.
Then took he up his garland, and did show
What every flower, as country-people hold,
Did signify, and how all, ordered thus,
Express his grief; and, to my thoughts, did
read
The prettiest lecture of his country-art

That could be wist: so that methought I could
Have studied it. I gladly entertain’d
Him, who was glad to follow; and have got
The trustiest, loving’st, and the gentlest boy
That ever master kept. Him will I send
To wait on you, and bear our hidden love.
Arc. 'Tis well; no more.

Re-enter Lady.

Lady. Madam, the prince is come to do his service.
Arc. What will you do, Philaster, with yourself?
Phi. Why, that which all the gods have pointed out for me.
Arc. Dear, hide thyself.

[Exit Lady.]

Pha. Hid me from Pharamond.

[Enter the prince.

Arc. He cannot know it.

Phi. Though it should sleep for ever to the world,
It is a simple sin to hide myself,
Which will for ever on my conscience lie.
Arc. Then, good Philaster, give him scope and way
In what he says; for he is apt to speak
What you are loth to hear. For my sake, do."
Phi. I will.

[Re-enter [Lady with] Pharamond.

Pha. My princely mistress, as true lovers ought,

[Exit Lady.]

I come to kiss these fair hands, and to show,
In outward ceremonials, the dear love
Wit in my heart.

Phi. If I shall have an answer no directer,
I am gone.
Pha. To what would he have answer?
Arc. To his claim unto the kingdom.
Pha. Sirrah, I forbear you before the King—
Phi. Good sir, do so still; I would not talk with you.

Pha. But now the time is fitter. Do but offer
To make mention of right to any kingdom,
Though it be scarce habitable —
Phi. Good sir, let me go.
Pha. And by the gods—

Phi. Peace, Pharamond! if thou —

Arc. Leave us, Philaster.

Pha. I have done. [Going.] You are gone! by Heaven I’ll fetch you back.
Phi. You shall not need.

[Returning.]
Pha. What now?
Phi. Know, Pharamond, I loathe to brawl with such a blast as thou,
Who art nought but a valiant voice; but if Thou shalt provoke me further, men shall say,
Thou wert, and not lament it.
PHILASTER

ACT II

SCENE I.

PHI. And thou shalt find her honourable, boy;

Bel. Sir, you did take me up
When I was nothing; and only yet am something
By being yours. You trusted me unknown;
And that which you were apt to conster
A simple innocence in me, perhaps
Might have been craft, the cunning of a boy
Hard'ned in lies and theft: yet ventur'd you
To part my miseries and me: for which,
I never can expect to serve a lady
That bears more honour in her breast than you.

PHI. But, boy, it will prefer thee. Thou art young,
And bear'st a childish overlooking love.
To them that clap thy cheeks and speak thee fair yet;
But when thy judgment comes to rule those passions,
Thou wilt remember best those careful friends
That plac'd thee in the noblest way of life.

Bel. In that small time that I have seen the world,
I never knew a man hasty to part
With a servant he thought trusty. I remember;
My father would prefer the boys he kept
To greater men than he; but did it not Till they were grown too saucy for himself.

PHI. Why, gentle boy, I find no fault at all
In thy behaviour.

Bel. Sir, if I have made
A fault is ignorance, instruct my youth:
I shall be willing, if not apt, to learn;
Age and experience will adorn my mind
With larger knowledge; and if I have done
A wilful fault, think me not past all hope
For once. What master holds so strict a hand
Over his boy, that he will part with him
Without one warning? Let me be corrected
To break my stubbornness, if it be so,
Rather than turn me off; and I shall mend.

PHI. Thy love doth plead so prettily to stay,
That, trust me, I could weep to part with thee.
Alas, I do not turn thee off! Thou knowest
It is my business that doth call thee hence;
And when thou art with her, thou dwellest with me.

Bel. Think so, and 'tis so; and when time is full,
That thou hast well discharge'st this heavy trust,
Laid on so weak a one, I will again
With joy receive thee; as I live, I will
Nay, weep not, gentle boy. 'Tis more than time
Thou didst attend the princess.

Bel. I am gone.

But since I am to part with you, my lord,
And none knows whether I shall live to do
More service for you, take this little prayer:
Heaven bless your loves, your fights, all your designs!

May sick men, if they have your wish, be well;
And Heaven hate those you curse, though I be one!

PHI. The love of boys unto their lords is strange;
I have read wonders of it: yet this boy
For my sake (if a man may judge by looks And speech) would out-do story. I may see
A day to pay him for his loyalty.

[SCENE II.]

Enter PHARAMOND.

PHA. Why should these ladies stay so long?
They must come this way. I know the queen employs 'em not; for the reverend mother sent me word, they would all be for the garden.
If they should all prove honest, now, I were in a fair taking; I was never so long without sport in my life, and, in my conscience, 'tis not my fault. Oh, for our country ladies!

Enter GALATEA.

Here's one bolted; I'll hound at her.—Madam! Gal. Your grace!

A gallery in the palace.
In charge of the maids of honor.
Chaste.
Pha. Shall I not be a trouble?

Gal. Not to me, sir. 11

Pha. Nay, nay, you are too quick. By this sweet hand—

Gal. You'll be forsworn, sir; 'tis but an old glove.

If you will talk at distance, I am for you:

But, good prince, be not bawdy, nor do not brag:

These two I bar;

And then, I think, I shall have sense enough

To answer all the weighty apothegms

Your royal blood shall manage.

Pha. Dear lady, can you love?

Gal. Dear prince! how dear? I ne'er cost you a coach yet, nor put you to the dear repnsance of a banquet. Here's no scarlet, sir, to blush the sin out it was given for. This wire mine own hair covers; and this face has been so far from being dear to any, that it ne'er cost penny painting; and, for the rest of my wardrobe, such as you see, it leaves no hand behind it, to make the jealous mercer's wife curse our good doings.

Pha. You mistake me, lady.

Gal. Lord, I do so; would you or I could help it?

[Pha. You're very dangerous bitter, like a potion.

Gal. No, sir, I do not mean to purge you, though

I mean to purge a little time on you.] 2

Pha. Do ladies of this country use to give

No more respect to men of my full being?

Gal. Full being! I understand you not, unless your grace means growing to fatness; and then your only remedy (upon my knowledge) is, in a morning, a cup of neat white wine brewed with carduam, then fast till supper; about eight you may eat; use exercise, and keep a swamp-hawk; you can shoot in a tiller: but, of all, your grace must fly phlebotomy, fresh pork, conger, and clarified whey; they are all duller of the vital spirits.

Pha. Lady, you talk of nothing all this while.

Gal. 'Tis very true, sir; I talk of you.

[Pha. Aside.] This is a crafty wench; I like her wit well; 'twill be rare to stir up a leaden appetite. She's a Danaé, and must be courted in a shower of gold. — Madam, look here; all these, and more than—

Gal. What have you there, my lord? Gold! now, as I live, 'tis fair gold! You would have silver for it, to play with the pages. You could not have taken me in a worse time; but, if you have present use, my lord, I'll send my man with silver and keep your gold for you.

Pha. Lady, lady!

Gal. She's coming, sir, behind, will take [Aside.] Yet for all this I'll match ye.

Exit behind the hangings.

Pha. If there be but two such more in this kingdom, and near the court, we may even 20

4 Cross-bow.

hang up our harps. Ten such campire 7 constitutions as this would call the golden age again in question, and teach the old way for every ill-faco'd husband to get his own children; and what a mischief that would breed, let all consider.

Enter Mega.

Here's another: if she be of the same last, the devil shall pluck her on. — Many fair mornings, lady!

Meg. As many mornings bring as many days, Fair, sweet and hopeful to your grace! 20

Pha. [Aside.] She gives good words yet; sure this wench is free. —

If your more serious business do not call you, Let me hold quarter with you; we will talk An hour out quickly.

Meg. What would your grace talk of?

Pha. Of some such pretty subject as yourself:

I'll go no further than your eyes, or lip;

There's theme enough for one man for an age.

Meg. Sir, they stand right, and my lips are yet even,

Smooth, young enough, ripe enough, and red enough,

Or my glass wrongs me.

Pha. Oh, they are two twinn'd cherries dy'd in blushes

Which those fair suns above with their bright beams

Reflect upon and ripe. Sweetest beauty,

Bow down those branches, that the longing taste

Of the faint looker-on may meet those blessings,

And taste and live. They kiss.

Meg. [Aside.] Oh, delicate sweet prince! She that hath snow enough about her heart To take the wanton spring of ten such lines off, May be a nun without probation. — Sir,

You have in such neat poetry gathered a kiss, That if I had but five lines of that number, Such pretty begging blanks, I should commend

Your forehead or your cheeks, and kiss you too.

Pha. Do it in prose; you cannot miss it, madam.

Meg. I shall, I shall.

Pha. By my life, but you shall not;

I'll prompt you first. [Kisses her.] Can you do it now?

Meg. Methinks 'tis easy, now you ha' done 't before me;

But yet I should stick at it. [Kisses him.]

Pha. Stick till to-morrow; I'll ne'er part you, sweetest. But we lose time:

Can you love me?

Meg. Love you, my lord! How would you have me love you?

Pha. I'll teach you in a short sentence; 'cause I will not load your memory; this is all: love me, and lie with me.

Meg. Was it "lie with you" that you said?

'T is impossible.
PHILASTER

II. iii.

Pha. Not to a willing mind, that will endue in one night as you'll go to bed, I'll lose my royal blood for't. 12

Meg. Why, prince, you have a lady of your own that yet wants teaching.

Pha. I'll sooner teach a mare the old measures 1 than teach her anything belonging to [120] the function. She's afraid to lie with herself if she have but any masculine imaginations about her. I know, when we are married, I must ravish her.

Meg. By mine honour, that's a foul fault, indeed; 125
But time and your good help will wear it out, sir.

Pha. And for any other I see, excepting your dear self, dearest lady, I had rather be Sir Tim the schoolmaster, and keep a dairy-maid, madam.

Meg. Has your grace seen the court-star, Galatea?

Pha. Out upon her! She's as cold of her favour as an apoplexy; she sail'd by but now.

Meg. And how do you hold her wit, sir? 128
Pha. I hold her wit? The strength of all the guard cannot hold it, if they were tied to it; she would blow 'em out of the kingdom. They talk of Jupiter; he's but a squib-cracker to her: look well about you, and you may find a tongue- [130] bolt. But speak, sweet lady, shall I be freely welcome.

Meg. Whither?

Pha. To your bed. If you mistrust my faith, you do me the unnobldest wrong. 135

Meg. I dare not, prince, I dare not.

Pha. Make your own conditions, my purse shall seal 'em, and what you dare imagine you can want, I'll furnish you withal. Give two hours to your thoughts every morning about it. Come I know you are bashful;

Speak in my ear, will you be mine? Keep this,
And with it, me: soon I will visit you.

Meg. My lord, my chamber's most unsafe;
but when 'tis night,
I'll find some means to slip into your lodging;
Till when— [thee!]

Pha. Till when, this and my heart go with

Exeunt several ways.

Re-enter Galatea from behind the hangings.

Gal. Oh, thou pernicious petticoat prince! are these your virtues? Well, if I do not lay a train to blow your sport up, I am no woman: and, Lady Towssabel, I'll fit you for 't. Exit. 140

[SCENE III.]

Enter Arethusa and a Lady.

Are. Where's the boy?

Lady. Within, madam.

Are. Gave you him gold to buy him clothes?

Lady. I did.

Are. And has he done 't?

Lady. Yes, madam.

Are. 'Tis a pretty sad-talking boy, is it not?

Lady. He must be discovered?

Gal. I have strain'd a point of modesty for you.

Are. I prithee, how?

Gal. In list'ning after bawdry. I see, let a lady live never so modestly, she shall be sure to find a lawful time to hearken after bawdry. Your prince, brave Pharamond, was so hot on't! 145

Are. With whom?

Gal. Why, with the lady I suspected. I can tell the time and place.

Are. Oh, when, and where?

Gal. To-night, his lodging.

Are. Run thyself into the presence; mingle there again

With other ladies; leave the rest to me. [Exit Galatea.]

If destiny (to whom we dare not say," Why didst thou this?!") have not decreed it so,
In lasting leaves (whose smallest characters 155 Were never alter'd yet), this match shall break.—
Where's the boy?

Lady. Here, madam.

Enter Bellario.

Are. Sir, you are sad to change your service
Is't not so?

Bel. Madam, I have not chang'd; I wait on you,

To do him service.

Are. Thou disclaim'st in me.

Tell me thy name.

Bel. Bellario.

Are. Thou canst sing and play?

Bel. If grief will give me leave, madam, I can.

Are. Alas, what kind of grief can thy years know?

Hadst thou a curst master when thou went'st to school?

Thou art not capable of other grief:
Thy brows and cheeks are smooth as waters be
When no breath troubles them. Believe me, boy,
Care seek'st out wrinkled brows and hollow eyes,
And builds himself caves, to abide in them.

Come, sir, tell me truly, dost thy lord love me?

Bel. Love, madam! I know not what it is

Are. Canst thou know grief, and never yet knew'st love?

Thou art deceiv'd, boy. Does he speak of me
As if he wish'd me well?
Bel. If it be love
To forget all respect of his own friends
With thinking of your face; if it be love
To sit cross-arm’d and sigh away the day,
Mingled with startis, crying your name as loud
And hastily as men ’t the streets do fire;
If it be love to weep himself away
When he but hears of any lady dead
Or kill’d, because it might have been your chance:
If, when he goes to rest (which will not be),
’Tis every prayer he says, to name you once,
As others drop a bead, be to be in love,
Then, madam, I dare swear he loves you.

Arc. Oh you’re a cunning boy, and taught to lie
For your lord’s credit! But thou know’st a lie
That bears this sound is welcome to me
Than any truth that says he loves me not.
Lead the way, boy. — [To Lady.] Do you attend me too?
’Tis thy lord’s business hastes me thus. Away!
Exeunt.

[Scene IV.] 1

Enter Dion, Cleremont, Thebasiline, Megra, and Galatea.

Dion. Come, ladies, shall we talk a round?
As men
Do walk a mile, women should talk an hour
After supper: ’tis their exercise.
Gal. ’Tis late.
Meg. ’Tis all
My eyes will do to lead me to my bed.
Gal. I fear, they are so heavy, you ’ll scarce find
The way to your own lodging with ’em to-night.

Enter Pharamond.

Thra. The prince!

Pha. Not a-bed, ladies? You’re good sitters-up.
What think you of a pleasant dream, to last
Till morning?
Meg. I should choose, my lord, a pleasing wake before it.

Enter Arthusa and Bellario.

Arc. ’Tis well, my lord; you’re courting of these ladies.
Is’t not late, gentlemen?

Cla. Yes, madam.
Arc. Wait you there. Exit.
Meg. [Aside.] She’s jealous, as I live. — Look
you, my lord.
The princess has a Hylas, an Adonis.
Pha. His form is angel-like.
Meg. Why. This is he that must, when you are wed;
Sit by your pillow, like young Apollo, with His hand and voice binding your thoughts in sleep,
The princess does provide him for you and for herself.

1 Before Pharamond’s lodging in the court of the palace.

Pha. I find no music in these boys.

Meg. Nor I.

They can do little, and that small they do,
They have not wit to hide.

Dion. Serves he the princess?

Thra. Yes. [keeps him]

Dion. ’Tis a sweet boy: how brave she

Pha. Ladies all, good rest; I mean to kill a

To-morrow morning ere you’ve done your

Meg. All happiness attend your grace! [Exit
Pharamond.] Gentlemen, good rest.

Come, shall we go to bed?

Gal. Yes. — All good night.

Dion. May your dreams be true to you! —

Exeunt Galathea and Megra.
What shall we do, gallants? ’tis late. The

King
Is up still: see, he comes; a guard along
With him.

Enter King, Arthusa, and Guard.

King. Look your intelligence be true.
Arc. Upon my life, it is; and I do hope
Your highness will not tie me to a man
That in the heat of wooling throws me off,
And takes another.

Dion. What should this mean? 2

King. If it be true,
That lady had been better have embrac’d Cureless diseases. Get you to your rest:
You shall be righted.

Exeunt Arthusa and Bellario.

— Gentlemen, draw near;
We shall employ you. Is young Pharamond
Come to his lodging?

Dion. I saw him enter there.

King. Haste, some of you, and cunningly discover
If Megra be in her lodging. [Exit Dion.]

Cla. Sir,
She parted hence but now, with other ladies.

King. If she be there, we shall not need to make
A vain discovery of our suspicion.

[Aside.] You gods, I see that who unrighteously
Holds wealth or state from others shall be curt;
In that which meaner men are blest withal:
Ages to come shall know no male of him
Left to inherit, and his name shall be Blotted from earth; if he have any child,
It shall be crossly match’d; the gods themselves
Shall sow wild strife betwixt her lord and her.
Yet, if it be your will, forgive the sin
I have committed; let it not fail
Upon this understanding child of mine!
She has not broke your laws. But how can I Look to be heard of gods that must be just,
Praying upon the ground I hold by wrong?

Re-enter Dion.

Dion. Sir, I have asked, and her women swear she is within; but they, I think, are bawds.

2 Fairly dressed.
I told 'em, I must speak with her; they laughed, and said, their lady lay speechless. I said, 'twas my business was important; they said, their lady was about it. I grew hot, and cried, my business was a matter that concern'd life and death; they answered, so was sleeping, at which their lady was. I urg'd again, she had scarce time to be so since last I saw her: they smil'd again, and seem'd to instruct me that sleeping was nothing but lying down and winking. Answers more direct I could not get: in short, sir, I think she is not there.

King. 'Tis then no time to dally. — You o' the guard.

Wait at the back door of the prince's lodging, and see that none pass thence, upon your lives. [Exit Guards.]

Knock, gentlemen; knock loud; louder yet. [Dion, Cler., &c., knock at the door of Pharamond's Lodging.]

What has their pleasure taken off their beds? —

I'll break your meditations. — Knock again. — Not yet? I do not think he sleeps, having this Laran by him. — Once more. — Pharamond! prince! Pharamond! (appears above.)

Where be our waiters? By my vexed soul, he meets his death that meets me, for his boldness.

King. Prince, prince, you wrong your thoughts; we are your friends:

Come down.

Pha. The King!

King. The same, sir. Come down, sir: We have cause of present counsel with you.

Pha. If your grace please To use me, I'll attend you to your chamber.

- Enter.

Pha. I will not be dishonour'd. He that enters, enters upon his death.

Sirs, 'tis a sign you make no stranger of me, To bring these renegadoes to my chamber At these unseasoned hours.

King. Why do you Chafe yourself so? You are not wrong'd nor shall be; Only I'll search your lodging, for some cause To myself known. — Enter, I say.

Pha. I say, no.

Enter Megra above.

Meg. Let 'em enter, prince, let 'em enter; I am up and ready: 'I know their business; "It's the poor breaking of a lady's honour. They hunt so hotly after; let 'em enjoy it. — We have your business, gentlemen; I lay here. Oh, my lord the King, this is not noble in you To make public the weakness of a woman!

King. Come down.

Meg. I dare, my lord. Your hootings and your clamours,

Your private whispers and your broad seeings, Can no more vex my soul than this base carriage. But I have haps whispers and your broad seeings, Shall, in the most contempt you have the of me, Be joy and nourishment.

King. Will you come down?

Meg. Yes, to laugh at your worst but I shall wring you.

If my skill fail me not. [Exit above.]

King. Sir, I must dearly chide you for this looseness,

You have wrong'd a worthy lady; but, no more. — Conduct him to my lodging and to bed. [Exit Pharamond and Attendants.]

Cle. Get him another wench, and you bring him to bed indeed.

Dion. 'Tis strange a man cannot ride a stage Or two, to breathe himself, without a warrant. If his horse hold, that lodgings be search'd thus, Fray God we may lie with our own wives in safety,

That they be not by some trick of state mistaken!

[Enter Attendants with Megra below.]

King. Now, lady of honour, where's your honour now?

No man can fit your palate but the prince. Thou most ill-schooled wanton, thou piece Made by a painter and a pothecary,

Thou troubled sea of lust, thou wilderness Inhabited by wild thoughts, thou swoln cloud Of infection, thou ripe mine of all diseases, Thou all-sin, all-hell, and last, all-devil, tell me, Had you nose to pull on with your courtesies But he that must be mine, and wrong my daughter? By all the gods, all these, and all the pages, And all the court, shall hoot thee through the court, Fling rotten oranges, make ribald rhymes, And sear thy name with candles upon walls? Do you laugh, Lady Venus?

Meg. Faith, sir, you must pardon me; I cannot choose but laugh to see you merry. If you do this, 0 King! nay, if you dare do it, By all those gods you swore by, and as many More of my own, I will have fellows, and such Fellows in it, as shall make noble mirth! The princess, your dear daughter, shall stand by me On walls, and sung in ballads, any thing. Urge me no more; I know her and her haunts, Her lays, leaps, and outlays, and will discover all; Nay, will dishonour her. I know the boy. "Closing the eyes. "Convinced. "Dressed. "Behavior.
She keeps; a handsome boy, about eighteen;
Know what she does with him, where, and
when.

Come, sir, you put me to a woman’s madness,
The glory of a fury; and if I do not
Do’t to the height —

King. What boy is this she raves at?
Maj. Alas! good-minded prince, you know not these things!
I am loth to reveal ’em. Keep this fault,
As you would keep your health from the hot
air
Of the corrupted people, or, by Heaven,
I will not fall alone. What I have known
Shall be as public as a print; all tongues Shall speak it as they do the language they
Are born in, as free and commonly; I’ll set it,
Like a prodigious star, for all to gaze at,
And so high and glowing, that other kingdoms far and foreign Shall read it there, nay, travel with it, till they find
No tongue to make it more, nor no more people;
And then behold the fall of your fair princess!
King. Has she a boy?
Cle. So please your grace, I have seen a boy wait
On her, a fair boy.
King. Go, get you to your quarter:
For this time I will study to forget you.
Maj. Do you study to forget me, and I’ll study
To forget you.

Exeunt King, Megr, and Guard.

Cle. Why, here’s a male spirit fit for Herseus. If ever there be Nine Worthies of women, this wench shall ride astride and be their captain.

Dion. Sure, she has a garrison of devils in her tongue, she uttered such balls of wild-fire. She has so nettled the King, that all the doctors in the country will scarce cure him. That boy was a strange-found-out antidote to cure her [154] infected; that boy, that princess’ boy; that brave, chaste, virtuous lady’s boy; and a fair boy, a well-spoken boy! All these considered, can make nothing else — but there I leave you,
gentlemen.

Thra. Nay, we’ll go wander with you.

Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I.

Enter Dion, Clere, and Thras.

Cle. Nay, doubtless, ’tis true.

Dion. Ay; and ’tis the gods
That raised this punishment, to scourge the
King
With his own issue. Is it not a shame
For us that should write noble in the land,
For us that should be freemen, to behold
A man that is the bravery of his age,

1 Portentous, ominious. 2 The court of the palace.
Are not yet ripe. Suffice it, that are long
I shall employ your loves; but yet the time
Is short of what I would.
Dion. The time is fuller, sir, than you expect;
That which hereafter will not, perhaps, be reach'd
By violence, may now be caught. As for the King,
You know the people have long hated him;
But now the princess, whom they lov'd—
Phi. Why, what of her?
Dion. Is loath'd as much as he.
Phi. By what strange means?
Dion. She's known a whore.
Phi. Thou liest.
Dion. My lord——
Phi. Thou liest.

Offers to draw and is held.

And thou shalt feel it! I had thought thy mind
Had been of honour. Thus to rob a lady
Of her good name is an infectious sin;
Not to be parden'd. Be it false as hell,
'Twill never be redeem'd, if it be sown
Amongst the people, fruitful to increase
All evil they shall hear. Let me alone
That I may cut off falsehood whilst it springs!
Set hills on hills betwixt me and the man
That utters this, and I will scale them all,
And from the utmost top fall on his neck,
Like thunder from a cloud.
Dion. This is most strange:
Sure, he does love her.
Phi. I do love fair truth.
She is my mistress, and who injures her Draws vengeance from me. Sirs, let go my arms.
Thra. Nay, good my lord, be patient.
Cle. Sir, remember this is your honour'd
friend,
That comes to do his service, and will show you
Why he utter'd this.
Phi. I ask your pardon, sir;
My zeal to truth made me unmann'ry:
Should I have heard dishonour spoke of you,
Behind your back, untruly, I had been
As much distemper'd and enrag'd as now.
Dion. But this, my lord, is truth.
Phi. Oh, say not so!
Good sir, forbear to say so: 'tis then truth,
That womankind is false: urge it no more;
It is impossible. Why should you think
The princess light?
Dion. Why, she was taken at it.
Phi. 'Tis false! by Heaven, 'tis false! It cannot be!
Can it? Speak, gentlemen; for God's love, speak!
Is 't possible? Can women all be damn'd?
Dion. Why, no, my lord.
Phi. Why, then, it cannot be.
Dion. And she was taken with her boy.
Phi. What boy?
Dion. A page, a boy that serves her.
Phi. Oh, good gods!
A little boy?

Dion. Ay; know you him my lord?
Phi. [Aside.] Hell and sin know him! — Sir,
you are deceiv'd;
I'll reason it a little coldly with you.
If she were lustful, would she take a boy,
That knows not yet desire? She would have
one Should meet her thoughts and know the sin he acts,
Which is the great delight of wickedness.
You are abus'd, and so is she, and I.
Dion. How you, my lord?
Phi. Why, all the world's abus'd,
In an unjust report.
Dion. Oh, noble sir, your virtues Cannot look into the subtle thoughts of woman!
In short, my lord, I took them; I myself.
Phi. Now, all the devils, thou didst! Fly from my rage!
Would thou hadst ta'en devils engend'ring
plagues,
When thou didst take them! Hide thee from mine eyes!
Would thou hadst taken thunder on thy breast,
When thou didst take them; or been strucken dumb
For ever; that this foul deed might have slept
In silence!
Thra. Have you known him so ill-temper'd?
Cle. Never before.
Phi. The winds that are let loose
From the four several corners of the earth,
And spread themselves all over sea and land,
Kiss not a chaste one. What friend bears a sword
To run me thorough?
Dion. Why, my lord, are you
So mov'd at this?
Phi. When any fall from virtue,
I am distract; I have an interest in't.
Dion. But, good my lord, recall yourself, and think
What's best to be done.
Phi. I thank you; I will do it.
Please you to leave me; I'll consider of it.
To-morrow I will find your lodging forth,
And give you answer.
Dion. All the gods direct you
The readiest way!
Thra. He was extreme impatient.
Dion. He was his virtue and his noble mind.
Thra. He had forgot to ask him where he took
them;
I'll follow him. Oh that I had a sea
Within my breast, to quench the fire I feel!
More circumstances will but fan this fire:
It more afflicts me now, to know by whom
This deed is done, than simply that 'tis done;
And he that tells me this is honourable,
As far from lies as she is far from truth.
Oh, that, like beasts, we could not grieve ourselves

1 Deceived.
With that we see not! Bulls and rams will fight
To keep their females standing in their sight;
But take 'em from them, and you take at once
Their spleens away; and they will fall again
Unto their pastures, growing fresh and fat,
And taste the waters of the springs as sweet
As 'twas before, finding no start in sleep;
But miserable man——

Enter Bellario.

See, see, you gods,
He walks still; and the face you let him wear
When he was innocent is still the same,
Not blasted! Is this justice? Do you mean
To intrap mortality, that you allow Teason so smooth a brow? I cannot now Think he is guilty.

Bel. Health to you, my lord!
The princess doth command her love, her life,
And this, unto you.

Gives a letter.

Phi. Oh, Bellario,
Now I perceive she loves me: she does show it
In loving thee, my boy, she has made thee brave.

Bel. My lord, she has attir’d me past my wish,
Past my desert: more fit for her attendent,
Though far unfit for me who do attend.

Phi. Thou art grown courtly, boy.—Oh, let all women
That love black deeds, learn to dissemble here,
Here, by this paper! She does write to me
As if her heart were mines of adamant
To all the world besides; but, unto me,
A maiden-snow that melted with my looks.
Tell me, my boy, how doth the princess use thee?

For I shall guess her love to me by that.

Bel. Scarce like her servant, but as if I were,
Something allied to her, or had preserv’d
Her life three times by my fidelity;
As mothers fond do use their only sons,
As I’d use one that’s left unto my trust,
For whom my life should pay if he met harm.
So she does use me.

Phi. Why, this is wondrous well:
But what kind language does she feed thee with?

Bel. Why, she does tell me she will trust my youth
With all her loving secrets, and does call me
Her pretty servant; bids me weep no more
For leaving you; she’ll see my services
Regarded: and such words of that soft strain
That I am nearer weeping when she ends
Than ere she spake.

Phi. This is much better still.

Bel. Are you not ill, my lord?

Phi. Ill? No, Bellario.

Bel. Methinks your words
Fall not from off your tongue so evenly,
Nor is there in your looks that quietness
That I was wont to see.

Phi. Thou art doessiv’d, boy:
And she strokes thy head?

Bel. Yes.

Phi. And she does clap thy cheeks?

Bel. She does, my lord.

Phi. And she does kiss thee, boy? ha!

Bel. How, my lord?

Phi. She kisses thee?

Bel. Never, my lord, by heaven.

Phi. That’s strange, I know she does.

Bel. No, by my life.

Phi. Why then she does not love me. Come, she does.

I bade her do it; I charg’d her, by all charms
Of love between us, by the hope of peace
We should enjoy, to yield thee all delights
Naked as to her bed; I took her oath
Thou shouldst enjoy her. Tell me, gentle boy,
Is she not parallelless? Is not her breath
Sweet as Arabian winds when fruits are ripe?
Are not her breasts two liquid ivory balls?
Is she not all a lasting mine of joy?

Bel. Ay, now I see why my disturbed thoughts
Were so perplex’d. When first I went to her,
My heart held augury. You are abus’d;
Some villain has abus’d you; I do see Wherein you tend. Fall rocks upon his head
That put this to you! There is some subtle train
To bring that noble frame of yours to nought.

Phi. Then thinkst thou I will be angry with thee?
Come, thou shalt know all my drift. I hate her more Than I love happiness, and plac’d thee there
To pry with narrow eyes into her deeds.
Hast thou discovered? Is she fallen to lust,
As I would wish her? Speak some comfort to me.

Bel. My lord, you did mistake the boy you sent.

Had she the lust of sparrows or of goats,
Had she a sin that way, hid from the world,
Beyond the name of lust, I would not aid
Her base desires; but what I came to know
As servant to her, I would not reveal,
To make my life last ages.

Phi. Oh, my heart!
This is a salve worse than the main disease.—
Tell me thy thoughts; for I will know the least
That dwells within thee, or will rip thy heart
To know it. I will see thy thoughts as plain
As I do now thy face.

Bel. Why, so you do,
She is (for aught I know) by all the gods,
As chaste as ice! But were she foul as hell,
And I did know it thus, the breath of kings,
The points of swords, tortures, nor bulls of brass,
Should draw it from me.

Phi. Then it is no time
To dally with thee; I will take thy life,
For I do hate thee. I could curse thee now,
Bel. If you do hate, you could not curse me worse;
The gods have not a punishment in store
Greater for me than is your hate.

Phi. Fig, fie, so young and so dissembling! Tell me when
And where thou didst enjoy her, or let plagues
Fall on me, if I destroy thee not!

_Bel._ By heaven, I never did; and when I
lie
To save my life, may I live long and loath'd! I
Hew me asunder, and, whilst I can think,
I'll love those pieces you have cut away Better than those that grow, and kiss those limbs
Because you made 'em so.

_Phi._ Fear'st thou not death?

Can boys contemn that?

_Bel._ Oh, what boy is he
Can be content to live to be a man,
That sees the best of men thus passionate,
Thus without reason?

_Phi._ Oh, but thou dost not know
What 'tis to die.

_Bel._ Yes, I do know, my lord:
'Tis less than to be burn'd; a lasting sleep;
A quiet resting from all jealously,
A thing we all pursue. I know, besides,
It is but giving over a game
That must be lost.

_Phi._ But there are pains, false boy,
For perjur'd souls. Think but on those, and
then
Thy heart will melt, and thou wilt utter all.

_Bel._ May they fall all upon me whilst I live,
If I be perjur'd, or have ever thought
Of that you charge me with! If I be false,
Send me to suffer in those palpitations
You speak of; kill me!

_Phi._ Oh, what should I do?
Why, who can but believe him? He does swear
So earnestly, that if it were not true,
The gods would not endure him. Rise, Bel-lario:

Thy protestations are so deep, and thou
Dost look so truly when thou utter'st them,
That, though I know 'em false as were my hopes,
I cannot urge thee further. But thou wilt
To blame to injure me, for I must love
Thy honest looks, and take no revenge upon
Thy tender youth. A love from me to thee
Is firm, whate'er thou dost; it troubles me
That I have call'd the blood out of thy cheeks,
That did so well become thee. But, good boy, Let me not see thee more: something is done
That will distract me, that will make me mad,
If I behold thee. If thou tender'st me,
Let me not see thee.

_Bel._ I will fly as far
As there is morning, ere I give distaste
To that most honour'd mind. But through these tears,
Shed at my hopeless parting, I can see
A world of treason practis'd upon you,
And her, and me. Farewell for evermore!
If you shall hear that sorrow struck me dead,
And after find me loyal, let there be
A tear shed from you in my memory,
And I shall rest in peace.

_EXIT.

_Phi._ Blessing be with thee,
Whatever thou deserv'st! Oh, where shall I Go battle this body? Nature too unkind;
That made no medicine for a troubled mind!

_Exit._

[SCENE II.]

_ENTER ARTHUSA._

_Are_. I marvel my boy comes not back again:
But that I know my love will question him
Over and over,—how I slept, wak'd, talk'd,
How I rememb'red him when his dear name
Was last spoke, and how when I sigh'd, wept, sung,
And ten thousand such,—I should be angry at his stay.

_ENTER KING._

_King_. What, at your meditations! Who attends
you?
_Are_. None but my single self. I need no
guard,
I do no wrong, nor fear none.
_King_. Tell me, have you not a boy?
_Are_. Yes, sir.

_King_. What kind of boy?
_Are_. A page, a waiting-boy.
_King_. A handsome boy?

_Are_. I think he be not ugly:
Well qualified and dutiful I know him;
I took him not for beauty.
_King_. He speaks and sings and plays?

_Are_. Yes, sir.

_King_. About eighteen?

_Are_. I never ask'd his age.

_King_. Is he full of service?

_Are_. By your pardon, why do you ask?

_King_. Put him away.

_Are_. Sir!

_King_. Put him away, I say.

_Has_ done you that good service shames me to speak of.

_Are_. Good sir, let me understand you.

_King_. If you fear me, show it in duty; put away that boy.

_Are_. Let me have reason for it, sir, and then
Your will is my command.

_King_. Do not you blush to ask it? Cast him off.

Or I shall do the same to you. You're one
Shame with me, and so near unto myself,
That, by my life, I dare not tell myself
What you, myself, have done.

_Are_. What have I done, my lord?

_King_. 'Tis a new language, that all love to learn:
The common people speak it well already;
They need no grammar. Understand me well;
There be foul whispers stirring. Cast him off,
And suddenly, Do it! Farewell.

_EXIT.

_Are_. Where may a maiden live securely free,
Keeping her honour fair? Not with the living,
They feed upon opinions, errors, dreams,
And make 'em truths; they draw a nourish-

_Arethusa's apartment in the palace._
Out of defamings, grow upon disgrace.
And, when they see a virtue fortified
Strongly above the batt'ry of their tongues,
Oh, how they cast 1 to sink it! and, defeated,
(Soul-sick with poison) strike the monuments 46
Where noble names lie sleeping, till they sweat,
And the cold marble melt.

Enter Philaster.

Phi. Peace to your fairest thoughts, nearest mistress!

Are. Oh, my dearest servant, 2 I have a war within me!

Phi. He must be more than man that makes these crystals Run into rivers. Sweetest fair, the cause? 46
And, as I am your slave, tied to your goodness,
Your creature, made again from what I was
And newly-spirited, I'll right your honour.

Are. Oh, my best love, that boy?

Phi. What boy?

Are. The pretty boy you gave me—

Phi. What of him? 46

Are. Must be no more mine.

Phi. Why?

Are. They are jealous of him.

Phi. Jealous! Who?

Are. The King.

Phi. [Aside.] Oh, my misfortune!

Then 'tis no idle jealousy. — Let him go.

Are. Oh, cruel!

Are you hard-hearted too? Who shall now tell
How much I lov'd you? Who shall swear it to you,
And weep the tears I send? Who shall now bring you Letters, rings, bracelets? Lose his health in service?

Wake tedious nights in stories of your praise?
Who shall now sing your crying elegies?
And strike a sad soul into senseless pictures,
And make them mourn? Who shall take up his lute,
And turn it till he crowns a silent sleep
Upon my eyes, making me dream, and cry,
"Oh, my dear, dear Philaster!"

Phi. [Aside.] Oh, my heart! 46
Would he had broken thee, that made me know
This lady was not loyal! — Mistress,
Forget the boy; I'll get thee a far better.

Are. Oh, never, never such a boy again
As my Bellario!

Phi. 'Tis but your fond affection.

Are. With thee, my boy, farewell for ever
All secrecy in servants! Farewell, faith,
And all desire to do well for itself.
Let all that shall succeed thee for thy wrongs
Sell and betray chaste love! 46

Phi. And all this passion for a boy?

Are. He was your boy, and you put him to me,
And the loss of such must have a mourning for.

Phi. Oh, thou forgetful woman!

Are. How, my lord?

Phi. False Arethusa! 46
Hast thou a medicine to restore my wits,
When I have lost 'em? If not, leave to talk,
And do thus.

Are. Do what, sir? Would you sleep?

Phi. For ever, Arethusa. Oh, you gods
Give me a worthy patience! Have I stood,
Naked, alone, the shock of many fortunes?
Have I seen mischiefs numberless and mighty Grow like a sea upon me? Have I taken
Danger as stern as death into my bosom,
And laught upon it, made it but a mirth,
And flung it by? Do I live now like him,
Under this tyrant King, that languishing
Hears his sad bell and sees his mourners? Do I bear
All this bravely, and must sink at length
Under a woman's falsehood? Oh, that boy,
That cursed boy! None but a villain boy
To ease your lust?

Are. Nay, then, I am betrayed;
I feel the plot cast for my overthrow.
Oh, I am wretched!

Phi. Now you may take that little right I have
To this poor kingdom. Give it to your joy;
For I have no joy in it. Some far place,
Where never woman kind durst see her foot
For 3 bursting with her poisons, must I seek,
And live to curse you;

There dig a cave, and reach to birds and beasts
What woman is, and help to save them from you;
How heaven is in your eyes, but in your hearts
More hell than hell has; how your tongues, like scorpions,
Both beat and poison; 4 how your thoughts are woven
With thousand changes in one subtle web,
And worn so by you; how that foolish man,
That reads the story of a woman's face
And dies believing it, is lost for ever;
How all the good you have is but a shadow,
I' the morning with you, and at night behind you.
Past and forgotten; how your vows are frosts,
Fast for a night, and with the next sun gone;
How you are, being taken all together,
A mere confusion, and so dead a chaos,
That love cannot distinguish. These sad texts,
Till my last hour, I am bound to utter of you.
So, farewell all my woes, all my delight! 46

Are. Be merciful, ye gods, and strike me dead!

What way have I deserved this? Make my breast
Transparent as pure crystal, that the world,
Jealous of me, may see the foulest thought
My heart holds. Where shall a woman turn her eyes,
To find out constancy?

Enter Bellario.

Save me, how black
And guiltily, methinks, that boy looks now! 46

3 For fear of.
4 It was believed that scorpions, applied to the wound they made, cured it.
Oh, thou dissembler, that, before thou spak'st,
Wert in thy cradle false, sent to make lies
And betray innocents! Thy lord and thou
May glory in the shame of a maid
Fool'd by her passion; but the conquest is Nothing so great as wicked. Fly away!
Let my command force thee to that which Thou wouldst do without it. If thou understood'st
The loathed office thou hast undergone,
Why, thou wouldst hide thee under heaps of hills.

Bel. Oh, what god, angry with men, hath sent this strange disease
Into the noblest minds! Madam, this grief
You add unto me is no more than drops
To seas, for which they are not seen to swell.
My lord hath struck his anger through my heart,
And let out all the hope of future joys.
You need not bid me fly; I came to part,
To take my latest leave. Farewell for ever!
I durst not run away in honesty

Tis from such a lady, like a boy that stole
Or made some grievous fault. The power of gods Assist you in your sufferings! Hasty time
Reveal the truth to your abused lord
And mine, that he may know your worth;
whilst I
Go seek out some forgotten place to die! Exit.

Are. Peace guide thee! Thou hast overthrown me once;
Yet, if I had another Troy to lose,
Thou, or another villain with thy looks,
Might talk me out of it, and send me naked,
My hair dishevell'd, through the fiery streets.

Enter a Lady.

Lady. Madam, the King would hunt, and calls for you
With earnestness.

Are. I am in tune to hunt!

Diana, if thou canst rage with a maid
As with a man, let me discover thee
Bathing, and turn me to a fearful hind,
That I may die pursued by cruel hounds,
And have my story written in my wounds!

Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I.

Enter King, Pharamond, Arethusa, Galatea, Megra, Dion, Cleremont, Thrasilion, and Attendants.

King. What, are the hounds before and all the woodmen?

Dion. All, sir.

King. [to Pharamond.] You are cloudy, sir.
Come, we have forgotten

A Sheik. Before the palace.

Your venial trespass; let not that sit heavy
Upon your spirit; here's none dare utter it.

Dion. He looks like an old surfeited stallion, dull as a dormouse. See how he sinks! The wench has shot him between wind and water, and, I hope, sprung a leak.

Thra. He needs no teaching, he strikes sure enough. His greatest fault is, he hunts too much in the purisious; would he would leave off poisoning!

Dion. And for his horn, he's left it at the lodge where he lay late. Oh, he's a precious limehound! Turn him loose upon the pursuit of a lady, and if she lose her, hang him up! the slip. When my fox-bitch Beauty grows proud, I'll borrow him.

King. Is your boy turn'd away?

Are. You did command, sir, and I obey'd you.

King. 'Tis well done. Hark ye further.

[They talk apart.]...

Cle. Is 't possible this fellow should repent? Methinks, that were not noble in him; and yet he looks like a mortified member, as if he had a sick man's salve in a mouth. If a worse man had done this fault now, some physical justice or other would presently (without the help of an almanack) have opened the occlusions of his liver, and let him blood with a dog-whip.

Dion. See, see how modestly you lady looks, as if she came from churching with her neighbours! Why, what a devil can a man see in her face but that she's honest!

Thra. Faith, no great matter to speak of: a foolish twinkling with the eye, that spoils her countenance, but he must be a cunning herald that finds it.

Dion. See how they muster one another! Oh, there's a rank regiment where the devil carries the colours and his drum-major! Now the world and the flesh come behind with the carriage.

Cle. Sure this lady has a good turn done her against her will; before she was common talk, no one dare say cantharides can stir her. Her face looks like a warrant, willing and commanding all tongues, as they will answer it, to be tied up and bolted when this lady means to let herself loose. As I live, she has got her a goodly protection and a gracious; and may use her body discreetly for her health's sake, once a week, excepting Lent and dog-days. Oh, as if they were to be got for money, what a great sum would come out of the city for these licences!

King. To horse, to horse! we lose the morning, gentlemen.

Exeunt.

1 A hunting dog. Lyme = loath.

2 An allusion to a religious work, Thomas Bacon's The Sheik Men's Sover, 1561.

3 Acting as a doctor.

4 Almanacs gave the proper seasons for blood-letting.

5 Chaste.

6 Coat of arms. Mason explains that the reference is to the introduction of stars into a coat of arms, denoting a younger branch.

7 Baggage.

8 Spanish fly, used as a provocativo.
FRANCIS BEAUMONT AND JOHN FLETCHER

My large coarse issue! This had been a life
Free from vexation.

Enter Bellario.

Bel. Oh, wicked men!
An innocent may walk safe among beasts;
Nothing assaults me here. See, my griev’d lord
Sits as his soul were searching out a way
To leave his body!—Pardon me, that must Break thy last commandment; for I must speak.

You that are griev’d can pity; hear, my lord!

Phi. Is there a creature yet so miserable, That I can pity?

Bel. Oh, my noble lord,
View my strange fortune, and bestow on me,
According to your bounty (if my service
Can merit nothing), so much as may serve
To keep that little piece I hold of life
From cold and hunger!

Phi. Is it thou? Be gone!
Go, sell those misbecoming clothes thou wearst,
And feed thyself with them.

Bel. Alas, my lord, I can get nothing for them!
The silly country-people think ’tis treason
To touch such gay things.

Phi. Now, by the gods, this is Unkindly done, to vex me with thy sight.
Thou’rt fallen again to thy dissembling trade;
How shouldst thou think to cozen me again? n
Remains there yet a plague untried for me?
Even so thou wept’st, and look’st, and spok’st
when first
I took thee up.
Curse on the time! If thy commanding tears
Can work on any other, use thy art;
I’ll not betray it. Which way wilt thou take,
That I may shun thee, for thine eyes are poison
To mine, and I am loth to grow in rage?

This way, or that way?

Bel. Any will serve; but I will choose to have
That path in chase that leads unto my grave.

Enter [on one side] Dion, and [on the other] the two Woodmen.

Dion. This is the strangest sudden chance!
—You, woodmen!

1 Wood. My lord Dion?

Dion. Saw you a lady come this way on a saddle horse studded with stars of white?

2 Wood. Was she not young and tall?

Dion. Yes. Rode she to the wood or to the plain?

2 Wood. Faith, my lord, we saw none.

Enter Clermont.

Cle. What, is she found?

Dion. Let him seek his daughter himself.
She cannot stray about a little necessary natural business, but the whole court must be in arms.
When she has done, we shall have peace.
Cle. There's already a thousand fatherless tales amongst us. Some say, her horse ran away with her; some, a wolf pursued her; others, 'twas a plot to kill her, and that arm'd men were seen in the wood: but questionless she rode away willingly.

Enter KING and TREASURELINE.

King. Where is she?
Cle. Sir, I cannot tell.
King. How's that?
Answer me so again!
Cle. Sir, shall I lie?
King. Yes, lie and damn, rather than tell me that.
I say again, where is she? Mutter not! — Sir, speak you; where is she?
Dion. Sir, I do not know.
King. Speak that again so boldly, and, by Heaven,
It is thy last! — You, fellows, answer me;
Where is she? Mark me, all; I am your king:
I wish to see my daughter; show her me;
I do command you all, as you are subjects,
To show her me! What! Am I not your king?
If ay, then am I not to be obeyed?
Dion. Yes, if you command things possible
and honest.
King. Things possible and honest! Hear me, thou,— Thou traitor, that darst confide thy King to things
Possibly and honest! Show her me,
Or, let me perish, if I cover not
All Sicily with blood!
Dion. Faith, I cannot,
Unless you tell me where she is.
King. You have betray'd me; you have let me lose
The jewel of my life. Go, bring her to me,
And set her here before me. 'Tis the king
Will have it so; whose breath can still the winds,
Uncloud the sun, charm down the swelling sea,
And stop the floods of heaven. Speak, can it not?
Dion. No.
[This?
King. No! I cannot the breath of kings do Dion. No; nor smell sweet itself, if once the lungs
Be but corrupted.
King. Is it so? Take heed!
Dion. Sir, take you heed how you dare the powers
That must be just.
King. Alas! what are we kings!
Why do you gods place us above the rest,
To be serv'd, flatter'd, and ador'd, till we Believe we hold within our hands your thunder
And when we come to try the power we have,
There's not a leaf shakes at our threat'nings.
I have sworn 'tis true, and here stand to be punish'd,
Yet would not thus be punish'd. Let me choose
My way, and lay it on!
Dion. [Aside.] He articles with the gods.

Would somebody would draw bonds for the performance of covenants betwixt them!

Enter PHARAMOND, GALATEA, and MELO.

King. What, is she found?
Pha. No; we have ta'en her horse;
He gallopt empty by. There is some treason.
You, Galatea, rode with her into the wood;
Why left you her?
Gal. She did command me.
King. Command I you should not.
Gal. 'T would ill become my fortunes and my birth
To disobey the daughter of my king.
King. You're all cunning to obey us for our hurt;
But I will have her.
Pha. If I have her not,
By this hand, there shall be no more Sicily.
Dion. [Aside.] What, will he carry it to Spain
in a pocket?
Pha. I will not leave one man alive, but the
king,
A cook, and a tailor.
Dion. [Aside.] Yes; you may do well to spare your lady-bedfellow; and her you may keep for a spawner.
King. [Aside.] I see the injuries I have done must be reveng'd.
Dion. Sir, this is not the way to find her out.
King. Run all, disperse yourselves. The man that finds her,
Or (if she be kill'd) the traitor, I'll make him
great.
Dion. I know some would give five thousand pounds to find her.
Pha. Come, let us seek.
King. Each man a several way; here I myself.
Dion. Come, gentlemen, we here.
Cle. Lady, you must go search too.
Meg. I had rather be search'd myself.

Exeunt [severally].

[ACT III.]

Enter ARISTUSA.

Are. Where am I now? Feet, find me out a way,
Without the counsel of my troubled head,
I'll follow you boldly about these woods,
O'er mountains, thorough brambles, pits, and floods.
Heaven, I hope, will ease me: I am sick.
Sits down.

Enter BELLARIO.

Bel. [Aside.] Yonder's my lady. God knows
I want nothing,
Because I do not wish to live; yet I Will try her charity. — Oh hear, you have plenty!
From that flowing store drop some on dry ground. — See,
The lively red is gone to guard her heart!

1 Another part of the forest.
I fear she faints. — Madam, look up! — She breathes not.—

Open once more those rosy twins, and send Unto my lord your latest farewell! — Oh, she stirs.—

How is it, Madam? Speak comfort.

_Are._ 'Tis not gently done,
To put me in a miserable life,
And hold me there. I prithee, let me go;
I shall do best without thee; I am well.

Enter Phillaster.

_Phi._ I am to blame to be so much in rage.
I'll tell her coolly when and where I heard
This killing truth. I will be temperate
In speaking, and as just in hearing. —
Oh, monstrous! Tempt me not, you gods! good gods,
 Tempt not a frail man! What's he, that has a
 heart,
 But he must see it here! —
_Bel._ My lord, help, help! I the princess! —
_Are._ I am well; forbear.

_Phi._ [Aside.] Let me love lightning, let me be embrac'd
 And kist by scorpions, or adore the eyes
 Of basilisks, rather than trust the tongues
 Of hell-bred women! Some good god look down,
 And shrink these veins up! Stick me here a stone.
 Lasting to ages in the memory
 Of this damn'd act! — Hear me, you wicked ones!
 You have put hills of fire into this breast,
 Not to be quench'd with tears; for which may guilt
 Sit on your bosoms! At your meals and beds Despair await you! What, before my face?
 Poison of asps between your lips! Diseases
 Be your best issues! Nature make a curse,
 And throw it on you!

_Are._ Dear Phillaster, leave me.

_Phi._ I have done;
Forgive my passion. Not the calm sea,
When Aeolus locks up his windy brood,
Is less disturb'd than I. I'll make you know 't.

_Dear Arethusa, do but take this sword, as Offers his drawn sword._

And search how temperate a heart I have;
Then you and this your boy may live and reign
In lust without control. — Wilt thou, Bellario?
I prithee kill me; thou art poor, and may'st

Nourish ambitious thoughts; when I am dead,
Thy way were freer. Am I raging now?
If I were mad, I should desire to live.
_Sirs._ feel my pulse, whether you have known
 A man in a more equal tune to die.

_Bel._ Alas, my lord, your pulse keeps madman's time!

So does your tongue.

_Phi._ You will not kill me, then?

_Are._ Kill you! —

_Bel._ Not for the world.

_Phi._ I blame not thee, Bellario; thou hast done but that which gods Would have transform'd themselves to do. Be gone,
Leave me without reply; this is the last
Of all our meetings — (Exit BELLARIO.) Kill me with this sword;
Be wise, or worse will follow: we are two Earth cannot bear at once. Resolve to do,
Or suffer.

_Are._ If my fortune be so good to let me fall
Upon thy hand, I shall have peace in death.
Yet tell me this, will there be no slanders,
No jealousy in the other world; no ill there?

_Phi._ No.

_Are._ Show me, then, the way.

_Phi._ Then guide my feeble hand,
You that have power to do it, for I must Perform a piece of justice! — If your youth
Have any way offended Heaven, let prayers
Short and effectual reconcile you to it.

_Are._ I am prepared.

Enter a Country Fellow.

_C. Fell._ I'll see the King, if he be in the forest; I have hunted him these two hours. If I should come home and not see him, my sisters would laugh at me. I can see nothing [so but people better hor'sd than myself, that out-ride me; I can hear nothing but shouting.
These kings had need of good brains; this whooping is able to put a mean man out of his wits. There's a courtier with his sword [as drawn; by this hand, upon a woman, I think I _Phi._ Are you at peace?

_Are._ With heaven and earth.

_Phi._ May they divide thy soul and body! Wounds her.

_C. Fell._ Hold, dastard! strike a woman! Thou' rt a craven. I warrant thee, thou [wouldst be lot to play half a dozen ven

at wasters [with a good fellow for a broken head.

_Phi._ Leave us, good friend,

_Are._ What ill-bred man art thou, to intrude thyself
Upon our private sports, our recreation? —

_C. Fell._ God 'uds me, I understand you not; but I know the rogue has hurt you.

_Phi._ Pursue thy own affairs: it will be ill
To multiply blood upon my head; which thou Wilt force me to.

_C. Fell._ I know not your rhetoric; but I can lay it on, if you touch the woman.

_Phi._ Slave, take what thou deservest!

_Are._ They fight.

_C. Fell._ Oh, do you breathe?

_Phi._ I hear the tread of people. I am hurt.
The gods take part against me: could this boor
Have held me thus else? I must shift for life,
Though I do loathe it. I would find a course

_FORMERLY used to women as well as to men.

_Rosia._

_Cudgcda._

_God judge._
To lose it rather by my will than force.
C. Fell. I cannot follow the rogue. I pray thee, wench, come and kiss me now.

Enter PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMONT, THRESILINE, and Woodmen.

Pha. What art thou?
C. Fell. Almost kill’d I am for a foolish woman; a knife has hurt her.
Pha. The princess, gentlemen! — Where’s the wound, madam! Is it dangerous?
Are. He has not hurt me.
C. Fell. By God, she lies; ’s he’s hurt her in the breast.

Look else.

Pha. O sacred spring of innocent blood!
Dion. ’Tis above wonder! Who should dare this?
Are. I felt it not.
Pha. Speak, villain, who has hurt the prince?
C. Fell. Is it the princess?
Dion. Ay.
C. Fell. Then I have seen something yet.
Pha. But who has hurt her?
C. Fell. I told you, a rogue; I ne’er saw him before, I.
Pha. Madam, who did it?
Are. Some dishonest wretch; Alas, I know him not, and do forgive him!
C. Fell. He’s hurt too; he cannot go far; I made my father’s old fox fly about his ears.
Pha. How will you have him kill’d?
Are. Not at all; ’tis some distracted fellow.
Pha. By this hand, I’ll leave ne’er a piece of him bigger than a nut, and bring him all to you in my hat.
Are. Nay, good sir, If you do take him, bring him quick to me, And I will study for a punishment Great as his fault.
Pha. I will.
Are. But swear.
Cha. By all my love, I will. — Woodmen, conduct the princess to the King, And bear that wounded fellow to dressing. — Come, gentlemen, we’ll follow the chase close.

Exeunt [on one side] PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMONT, and THRESILINE; [exit on the other] ARETHURA [attended by] 1 Woodman.

C. Fell. I pray you, friend, let me see the King.
2 Wood. That you shall, and receive thanks.
C. Fell. If I get clear with this, I’ll go see no more gay sights.

[Scene IV.]

Enter BELLARIO.

Bel. A heaviness near death sits on my brow, And I must sleep. Bear me, thou gentle bank,

For ever, if thou wilt. You sweet ones all,
Let me unworthy press you; I could wish I rather were a corse strew’d d’er with you Than quick above you. Dullness shuts mine eyes,
And I am giddy: oh, that I could take So sound a sleep that I might never wake!

[Sleeps.]

Enter PHILASTER.

Phi. I have done ill; my conscience calls me false. To strike at her that would not strike at me. When I did fight, me thought I heard her pray The gods to guard me. She may be abus’d, And I a loathed villain; if she be, She will conceal who hurt her. He has wounds And cannot follow; neither knows he me. Who’s this? Bellario sleeping! If thou be’t Guilty, there is no justice that thy sleep Should be so sound, and mine, whom thou hast wrong’d.
So broken. [Cry within.] Hark! I am pursued.
You gods I’ll take this offer’d means of my escape. They have no mark to know me but my blood, If she be true; if false, let mischief light On all the world at once! Sword, print my wounds Upon this sleeping boy! I ha’ none, I think, Are mortal, nor would I lay greater on thee. Wounds BELLARIO.

Bel. Oh, death, I hope, is come! Blest be that hand!
It meant me well. Again, for pity’s sake!
Phi. I have caught myself; Falls. The loss of blood hath stay’d my flight. Here, here, Is he that struck thee: take thy full revenge; Use me, as I did mean thee, worse than death; I’ll teach thee to revenge. This luckless hand Wounded the princess; tell my followers Thou didst receive these hurts in staying me, And I will second thee; get a reward. Bel. Fly, fly, my lord, and save yourself! Phi. How’s this? Wouldst thou I should be safe?
Bel. Else were it vain For me to live. These little wounds I have Ha’ not bled much. Reach me that noble hand; I’ll help to cover you.
Phi. Art thou then true to me?
Bel. Or let me perish loath’d! Come, my good lord, Creep in amongst those brashes; who does know But that the gods may save your much-lov’d breath?
Phi. Then I shall die for grief, if not for this, That I have wounded thee. What wilt thou do?

* Sleepiness.
* Furrers.
Bel. Shift for myself well. Peace! I hear 'em come. [PHILASTER creeps into a bush.]

[Voices] within. Follow, follow, follow! that way they went.

Bel. With my own wounds I'll bloody my own sword.

I need not counterfeit to fall; Heaven knows
That I can stand no longer. [Fails.]

Enter PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMONT, and THRESILINE.

Pha. To this place we have trackt him by his blood.

Cle. Yonder, my lord, creeps one away.

Dion. Stay, sir! what are you?

Bel. A wretched creature, wounded in these woods.

By beasts. Relieve me, if your names be men,
Or I shall perish.

Dion. This is he, my lord.

Upon my soul, that hurt her. 'Tis the boy.

That wicked boy, that serv'd her.

Pha. Oh, thou dam'd

In thy creation! What came couldst thou shape
To hurt the princess?

Bel. Then I am betrayed. [Dion. Betrayered! No, apprehended.]

Bel. I confess,
(Urge it no more) that, big with evil thoughts
I set upon her, and did make my aim,
Her death. For charity let fall at once
The punishment you mean, and do not load
This weary flesh with tortures.

Pha. I will know
Who hir'd thee to this deed.

Bel. Mine own revenge.

Pha. Revenge! for what?

Bel. It pleas'd her to receive
Me as her page and, when my fortunes ebb'd,
That men strid o'er them careless, she did shower
Her welcome graces on me, and did swell
My fortunes till they overflow'd their banks,
Threat'nig the men that cros't 'em; when, as swift
As storms arise at sea, she turn'd her eyes
To burning suns upon me, and did dry
The streams she had bestow'd, leaving me worse
And more contem'n that other little brooks,
Because I had been great. In short, I knew
I could not live, and therefore did desire
To die reveng'd.

Pha. If tortures can be found
Long as thy natural life, resolve to feel
The utmost rigour.

[PHILASTER creeps out of the bush.]

Cle. Help to lead him hence.

Pha. Turn back, you ravers of innocence!

Know ye the price of that you bear away
So rudely?

Pha. Who's that?

Dion. 'Tis the Lord Philaster.

Pha. 'Tis not the treasure of all kings in one,
The wealth of Tygres, nor the rocks of pearl,
That pave the court of Neptune, can weigh down

That virtue. It was I that hurt the princess.

Place me, some god, upon a pyramid.

Higher than hills of earth, and lend a voice
Loud as your thunder to me, that from hence
I may discourse to all the world
The worth that dwells in him!

Pha. How's this?

Bel. My lord, some man
Weary of life, that would be glad to die.

Phi. Leave these untimely courtesies, Belario.

Bel. Alas, he's mad! Come, will you lead me on?

Phi. By all the oaths that men ought most to keep,
And gods to punish most when men do break,
He touch'd her not.—Take heed, Bellario.

How thou dost drowst the virtues thou hast shown
With perjury.—By all that's good, 't was I!
You know she stood betwixt me and my right.

Pha. Thy own tongue be thy judge!

Cle. It was Philaster.

Dion. Is't not a brave boy?

Well, sir, I fear me we were all deceived.

Phi. Have I no friend here?

Dion. Yes.

Phi. Then show it; some

Good boy lend a hand to draw us nearer.
Would you have tears shed for you when you die?
Then lay me gently on his neck, that there
I may weep floods and breathe forth my spirit.
'Tis not the wealth of Plutus, nor the gold
[Embraces Bel.]

Lockt in the heart of earth, can but away
This arm-fall from me; this had been a ransom.

To have redeem'd the great Augustus Cesar,
Had he been taken. You hard-hearted men,
More stony than these mountains, can you see
Soch clear pure blood drop, and not cut your flesh
To stop his life, to bind whose bitter wounds,
Queens ought to tear their hair, and with their tears

Bathe 'em?—Forgive me, thou that art the wealth
Of poor Philaster!

Enter KING, ARETHUSA, and Guard.

Kng. Is the villain ta'en?

Phi. Sir, here be two confess the deed; but sure

It was Philaster.

Phi. Question it no more;

It was.

Kng. The fellow that did fight with him, will tell us that.

Are. Ays me I know he will.

Kng. Did not you know him?

Are. Sir, if it was he,

He was disguis'd.

Phi. I was so.—Oh, my stars,

That I should live still. [Aside.]

1 Pyramid.
King. Thou ambitious fool, Thou hast laid a train for thy own life! — Now I do mean to do, I’ll leave to talk. Bear them to prison.

Are. Sir, they did plot together to take hence This harmless life; should it pass unrevel’d, I should to earth go weeping. Grant me, then, By all the love a father bears his child. Their custodies, and that I may appoint Their tortures and their deaths. Dion. Death! Soft; our law will not reach that for this fault.

King. ’Tis granted; take ’em to you with a guard.—

Come, princely Pharamond, this business past, We may with security go on To your intended match. [ Except all except Dion, Clermont, and Thrasiline.]

Cle. I pray that this action lose not Philaster the hearts of the people. Dion. Fear it not; their over-wise heads will think it but a trick. [Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I.

Enter Dion, Clermont, and Thrasiline.

Thra. Has the King sent for him to death? Dion. Yes; but the King must know ’tis not in his power to war with Heaven. Cle. We linger time; the King sent for Philaster and the headsman an hour ago. Thra. Are his wounds well? Dion. All; they were but scratches; but the loss of blood made him faint. Cle. We dally, gentlemen. Thra. Away! Dion. We’ll scuffle hard before we perish. [Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Philaster, Arthusa, and Bellario.

Are. Nay, faith, Philaster, grieve not; we are well.

Bel. Nay, good my lord, forbear; we’re woundrous well.

Phi. Oh, Arthusa, oh, Bellario, Leave to be kind! I shall be shut from Heaven, as now from earth, If you continue so. I am a man False to a pair of the most tryesty ones That ever earth bore; can it bear us all? Forgive, and leave me. But the King hath sent To call me to my death: oh, shew it me, And then forget me! And for thee, my boy, I shall deliver words will mollify The hearts of beasts to spare thy innocence.

Bel. Ails, my lord, my life is not a thing Worthy your noble thoughts! ’Tis not a life, ’Tis but a piece of childhood thrown away. Should I ontive you, I should then ontive Virtue and honour; and when that day comes,

If ever I shall close these eyes but once, May I live spotted for my perjury, And waste my limbs to nothing!

Are. And I (the woeful maid that ever was, Forc’d with my hands to bring my lord to death) Do by the honour of a virgin swear To tell no hours beyond it!

Phi. Make me not hated so. Are. Come from this prison all joyful to our deaths!

Phi. People will tear me, when they find you true To such a wretch as I; I shall die lost’d. Enjoy your kingdoms peaceably, whilst I For ever sleep forgotten with my faults. Every just servant, every maid in love, Will have a piece of me, if you be true. Are. My dear lord, say not so.

Bel. A piece of you! He was not born of woman that can cut It and look on.

Phi. Take me in tears betwixt you, for my heart Will break with shame and sorrow.

Are. Why, ’tis well.

Bel. Lament no more.

Phi. Why, what would you have done If you had wrong’d me basely, and had found Your life no price compar’d to mine? For love, sir, Deal with me truly.

Bel. ’Twas mistaken, sir.

Phi. Why, if it were?

Bel. Then, sir, we would have ask’d You pardon.

Phi. And have hope to enjoy it?

Are. Enjoy it I say.

Bel. We would, my lord.

Phi. Forgive me, then.

Are. So, so.

Bel. ’Tis as it should be now.

Phi. Lead to my death. [Exeunt.

[SCENE III.]

Enter King, Dion, Clermont, Thrasiline [and Attendants].

King. Gentlemen, who saw the prince? Cle. So please you, sir, he’s gone to see the city And the new platform, with some gentlemen Attending on him.

King. Is the princess ready To bring her prisoner out?

Thra. She waits your grace.

King. Tell her we stay. Exit Thrasiline. Dion. [Aside.] King, you may be deceiv’d yet. The head you aim at cost more setting on Than to be lost so lightly. If it must off, — Like a wild overflow, that swoops before him A golden stack, and with it shakes down bridges.

1 Before the palace.  2 A prison.  3 Mason conj. Q. F. my . . . yours.  4 A state-room in the palace.
Cracks the strong hearts of pines, whose cable-roots
Held out a thousand storms, a thousand thunders,
And, built, made mightier, takes whole villages
Upon his back, and in that heat of pride 14
Charges strong towns, towers, castles, palaces,
And lays them desolate; so shall thy head,
Thy noble head, bury the lives of thousands,
That must bleed with thee like a sacrifice,
In thy red ruins.

Enter Arthusa, Philaster, Bellario in a robe and garland [and Thrasilline].

King. How now? What masque is this? =

Bel. Right royal sir, I should Sing you an epithalamion of these lovers,
But having lost my best airs with my fortunes,
And wanting a celestial harp to strike
This blessed union on, thus in glad story
I give you all. These two fair cedar-branches,
The noblest of the mountain where they grew,
Straitest and tallest, under whose still shades
The worshipers beasts have made their lairs, and slept
Free from the fervour of the Sirian star
And the fell thunder-stroke, free from the clouds
When they were big with humour, and deliver’d
In thousand spouts their issues to the earth;
Oh, there was none but silent quiet there!
Till never-pleased Fortune shot up shrubs,
Base under-rambles, to divorce these branches;
And for a while they did so, and did reign
Over the mountain, and choke up his beauty.
With brakes, rude thorns and thistles, till the sun
Soreth them even to the roots and dries them there.

And now a gentle gale hath blown again,
That made these branches meet and twine together,
Never to be divided. The god that sings
His holy numbers over marriage-beds
Hath knit their noble hearts; and here they stand
Your children, mighty King; and I have done.

King. How, how? =

Are. Sir, if you love it in plain truth,
(For now there is no masquing in ‘t,) this gentle-man,
The prisoner that gave you, is become
My keeper, and through all the bitter throns
Your jealousies and his ill fate have wrought him,
Thus nobly hath he struggled, and at length
Arrived here my dear husband.

King. Your dear husband! —
Call in the Captain of the Citadel—
There you shall keep your wedding. I’ll provide
A masque shall make your Hymen turn his safron
Into a sullen coat, and sing sad requiem
To your departing souls.
Blood shall put out your torches; and, instead
Of gaudy flowers about your wanton necks,
An axe shall hang, like a prodigious meteor,
Ready to crop your lovers’ sweets. Hear, you gods!
From this time do I shake all title off
Of father to this woman, this base woman;
And wait what there is of vengeance in a lion
Chaft among dogs or robb’d of his dear young,
The same, enforc’d more terrible, more mighty,
Expect from me!

Are. Sir, by that little life I have left to swear by,
There’s nothing that can stir me from myself.
What I have done, I have done without repentance,
For death can be no bugbear unto me,
So long as Pharamond is not my headman.

Dion. [Aside.] Sweet peace upon thy soul, thou worthy maid, Whence’er thou diest! For this time I’ll excuse thee,
Or be thy prologue.

Phi. Sir, let me speak next; and let my dying words be better with you.

Than my dull living actions. If you aim
At the dear life of this sweet innocent,
You are a tyrant and a savage monster.

[That feeds upon the blood you gave a life to;] 1
Your memory shall be as soul behind you,
As you are living; all your better deeds
Shall be in water writ, but this in marble;
No chronicle shall speak you, though your own,
But for the shame of men. No monument,
Though high and big as Pelion, shall be able
To cover this base murder: make it rich
With brass, with purest gold, and shining jasper.

Like the Pyramids; lay on epitaphs
Such as make great men gods; my little marble,
That only clothes my ashes, not my faults,
Shall far outshine it. And for after-issues,
Think not so madly of the heavenly wisdoms,
That they will give you more for your mat-rage.

To cut off, unless it be some snake, or something like yourself, that in his birth shall strangle you.
Remember my father, King! There was a fault,
But I forgive it. Let that sin persuade you
To love this lady; if you have a soul,
Think, save her, and be saved. For myself,
I have so long expected this glad hour,
So long anticipated you. And daily wittered,
That, Heaven knows, it is a joy to die;
I find a recreation in’t.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. Where is the King?

King. Here.

Mess. Get you to your strength;
And rescue the Prince Pharamond from danger;
He’s taken prisoner by the citizens,
Fearing he, the Lord Philaster.

1 Q. Other edd. om. J. a. fearing too.
Dion. [Aside.] Oh, brave followers! Mutiny, my fine dear countrymen, mutiny! 115 Now, my brave valiant foemen, show your weapons In honour of your mistresses! Enter a Second Messenger.

2 Mess. Arm, arm, arm, arm! King. A thousand devils take 'em! 2

Dion. [Aside.] A thousand blessings on 'em! 2 Mess. Arm, O King! The city is in mutiny. Led by an old gray ruffian, who comes on In rescue of the Lord Philaster.

King. Away to the citadel! I'll see them safe, And then cope with these burghers. Let the guard And all the gentlemen give strong attendance. Execute all except Dion, Clermont, and Thrasiline.

Cle. The city's up! This was above our wishes. Dion. Ay, and the marriage too. By my life, This noble lady has deceiv'd us all. A plague upon myself, a thousand plagues, For having such unworthy thoughts of her dear honour! Oh, I could beat myself! Or do you beat me, And I'll beat you; for we had all one thought. Cle. No no, 'twill but lose time. Dion. You say true. Are your swords sharp? Well, my dear countrymen What-ye-looks, if you continue, and fall not broken upon the first broken skin, I 'll have you chronicled and chronicled, and cut and not Chronicled, and all-to be-prais'd and sung in sonnets, and bawled in new brave ballads, that all tongues shall hurl you in sacculus sacculus, my kind car-riers. Thra. What, if a toy take 'em i th' heels now, and they run all away, and cry, "the devil take the hindmost"? Dion. Then the same devil take the foremost too, and cause him for his breakfast! If they all prove cowards, my curses fly among them, and be speeding! May they have murrains reign to keep the gentlemen at home un- bound in easy frieze! May the moths' branch their velvets, and their silks only be worn before sore eyes! May their false lights undo 'em, and discover presses, holes, stains, and oldness in their stuffs, and make them shop- rid! May they keep horses and children, and break; and live mewed up with necks of beef and turpines! May they have many children, and none like the father! May they know no language but that gibberish they prattle to their parcels, unless it be the gothic Latin they write in their bonds — and may they write that false, and lose their debts!

Re-enter King.

King. Now the vengeance of all the gods confound them! How they swarm together! What a hum they raise! — Devils choke your I. e. shopkeepers, who were in the habit of thus addressing passers-by. Trifle, whim. Eat patterns on. Greases.

wild threats! — If a man had need to use their valours, he must pay a brokerage for it, and then bring 'em on, and they will fight like sheep. 'Tis Philaster, none but Philaster, must allay this heat. They will not hear me speak, but [sic] fling dirt at me and call me tyrant. Oh, run, dear friend, and bring the Lord Philaster! Speak him fair; call him prince; do him all the courtesy you can; commend me to him. Oh, my life, our wits! Exit Clermont.

Dion. [Aside.] Oh, my brave countrymen! As I live, I will not buy a pin out of your walls for this. Nay, you shall cross me, and I'll thank you, and send you brawn and bacon, and soil you every long vacation a brace of fore-men, that at Michaelmas shall come up fat and kicking.

King. What they will do with this poor prince, the gods know, and I fear. Dion. [Aside.] Why, sir, they'll flay him, and make church-buckets on's skin, to quench rebellion; then clap a rivet in's sconce, and hang him up for a sign.

Enter Clermont with Philaster.

King. Oh, worthy sir, forgive me! Do not make Your miseries and my faults meet together, To bring a greater danger. Be yourself, Still sound amongst diseases. I have wrong'd you; And though I find it last, and beaten to it, Let first your goodness know it. Calm the people. And be what you were born to. Take your love, And with her my repentance, all my wishes, And all my prayers. By the gods, my heart speaks this; And if the least fall from me not perform'd, May I be struck with thunder! Phi. Mighty sir, I will not do your greatness so much wrong, As not to make your word truth. Free the princess And the poor boy, and let me stand the shock Of this mad sea-brash, which I'll either turn, Or parish with it.

King. Let your own word free them, Phi. Then thus I take my leave, kissing your hand, And hanging on your royal word. Be kingly, And be not mov'd, sir. I shall bring you peace Or never bring myself back.

'King. All the gods go with thee. Execute. [Scene IV.]

Enter an old Captain and Citizens with Pharamond.

Cap. Come, my brave myrmidons, let us fall on. Let your caps swarm, my boys, and your nimble tongues

Enter.
Forget your mother-gibberish of “what do you look?”
And set your mouths ope, children, till your pallets
Fall frightened half a fathom past the cure
Of bay-salt and gross pepper, and then cry
“Philaster, brave Philaster!” Let Philaster
Be deeper in request, my dingle-dong, 1
My pairs of dear indentures, 2 kings of clines, 3
Than your cold water-camlets, 4 or your paintlings, 5
Spitted with copper. 4 Let not your hasty silks,
Or your branch’d cloth of bodkin, 6 or your tissues,
Dearly belov’d of spiced cake and custards,
Your Robin Hood, Scarlet and Johns, tie your affections
In darkness to your shops. No dainty duckers, 7
Up with your three-pil’d spirits, your wrouth valours, 8
And your stout stomach choler’s 9 make the King feel
The measure of your mightiness. Philaster!
Cry, my rose-nobles, cry!
All.
Philaster! Philaster!
Cap. How do you like this, my lord-prince?
These are mad boys, I tell you; these are things
That will not strike their top-sails to a foist, 10
And let a man of war, an argosy,
Hull 11 and cry cookies. 12
Pha. Why, you rude slave, do you know
What you do? 11
Cap. My pretty prince of puppets, we do know;
And give your greatness warning that you talk
No more such bug’s-words, 13 or that soldier’d crown
Shall be scratch’d with a musket. 14 Dear prince Pippin,
Down with your noble blood, or, as I live,
I’ll have you coddled. 15 – Let him loose, my spirits:
Make us a round ring with your bills, my Hectors,
And let us see what this trim man dares do.
Now, sir, have at you! here I lie;
And with this swashing blow (do you see, sweet prince?)
I could hulk your grace, and hang you up cross-legg’d.
Like a hare at a poulter’s, and do this with this wiper. 17

Pha. You will not see me murder’d, wicked villains?
1 Cit. Yes, indeed, will we, sir; we have not seen one
For a great while.
Cap. He would have weapons, would he? 18
Give him a broadside, my brave boys, with your pikes;
Branch me his skin in flowers like a satin,
And between every flower a mortal cut. –
Your royalty shall ravel! 19 – Jag him, gentlemen;
I’ll have him cut to the kell, 20 then down the seams.
O for a whip to make him galloon-laces! 21
I’ll have a coach-whip.
Pha. Oh, spare me, gentlemen!
Cap. Hold, hold;
The man begins to fear and know himself.
He shall for this time only be seel’d up, 22
With a measure through his nose, that he may only See heaven, and think whither he is going.
Nay, my beyond-sea sir, we will proclaim you:
You would be king!
Thon tender heir apparent to a church-ale, 23 =
Thon slight prince of single saccarat, 24
Thon royal ring-tail, 25 fit to fly at nothing
But poor men’s poultry, and have every boy
Beat thee from that too with his bread and butter!
Pha. Gods keep me from these half-hounds!
1 Cit. Shall’s geld him, captain? 26
Cap. No, you shall spare his dowcoets, my dear donsels: 27
As you respect the ladies, let them flourish.
The curses of a longing woman kill
As speedy as a plague, boys.
1 Cit. I’ll have a leg; that’s certain.
2 Cit. I’ll have an arm.
3 Cit. I’ll have his nose, and at mine own charge build
A college and clap’t upon the gate. 28
4 Cit. I’ll have his little gut to string a kit 29 with;
For certainly a royal gut will sound like silver.
Pha. Would they were in thy belly, and I past
My pain once!
5 Cit. Good captain, let me have his liver to feed ferrets.
Cap. Who will have parcel or else? Speak.
Pha. Good gods, consider me! I shall be tortur’d.
1 Cit. Captain, I’ll give you the trimming of your two-hand sword,
And let me have his skin to make false scabbards.

1 Darlings.
2 Apprentices, who were bound by indentures, and whose usual weapons were clubs. Throughout these scenes, it is, of course, London citizens who are in view.
3 A cloth, made of wool, sometimes mixed with silk, with a watered surface.
4 Colored cloth interwoven with copper.
5 Embroidered cloth, originally of gold and silk.
6 Cringers (?), duck-hunters (?).
7 A pun on valour.
8 A pun on collars.
9 Another pun. Rose-nobles were gold coins.
10 A small vessel.
11 Be barely occupied.
12 Pickled.
13 Swaggering words.
14 A male sparrow-hawk, with a pun on the weapon.
15 Stewed.
16 Diefast bowel.
17 Instrument for cleaning a gun.
18 Pray out.
19 The cowl about the hart’s pachment.
20 Ribbons, tape.
21 Have his eyelids sewed together like a hawk’s.
22 I. e. a bastard, one born after the convivialities of a church feast.
23 Thin silk.
24 A sort of kite.
25 Diminutive of downs.
26 In allusion to Brasenose College, Oxford.
27 Citrons.
Deliver me the prince. I'll warrant you
I shall be old enough to find my safety.

2 CIt. Good sir, take heed he does not hurt you;
He is a fierce man, I can tell you, sir.

Cap. Prince, by your leave, I'll have a sur-cingle.

And make you like a hawk. [PEar.] strives.
Phi. Away, away, there is no danger in him:
Alas, he had rather sleep to shake his fit off!
Look you, friends, how gently he leads! Upon my word,
He's tame enough, he needs no further watching.

Good my friends, go to your houses,
And by me have your pardons and my love;
And know there shall be nothing in my power
You may deserve, but you shall have your wishes.

To give you more thanks, were to flatter you.
Continue still your love; and for an earnest,

Drink this. [Gives money.]

All. Long mayst thou live, brave prince, brave prince, brave prince!

Exeunt Phi. and PhaER.

Cap. Go thy ways, thou art the king of courtesey!

Fall off again, my sweet youths. Come,
And every man trace to his house again,
And hang his pewter up; then to the tavern,
And bring your wives in muffs. We will have
music;
And the red grape shall make us dance and rise,
boys.

[SCENE V.]

Enter King, AstETHura, GaLATAA, MeGERa, Dion, ClermOnt, ThRAzLINE, BellarIo,
and Attendants.

King. Is it appeas'd?
Dion. Sir, all is quiet as this dead of night,
As peaceable as sleep. My lord Philaster
Brings on the prince himself.

King. Kind gentleman! I will not break the least word I have given
In promise to him. I have heasp'd a world
Of grief upon his head, which yet I hope
To wash away.

Enter PHILASTER and PHARAMOND.

ClE. My lord is come.

King. My son! Blest be the time that I have leave to call Such virtue mine! Now thou art in mine arms,
Methinks I have a saive unto my breast; 11
For all the stings that dwell there. Streams of grief
That I have wrong'd thee, and as much of joy
That I repent it, issue from mine eyes;
Let them appease thee. Take thy right; take her;
She is thy right too; and forget to urge
My vexed soul with that I did before.

Phi. Sir. It is blotted from my memory,

1 Horrible animal.
2 A hero in The Mirror of Knighthood, a romance from the Spanish. See The Knight of the Burning Palms.
3 Restitting blades.
4 Steel caps.
5 Courtiers clad in scarlet.
6 Caok (Pharamond).
Past and forgotten. — For you, prince of Spain, Whom I have thus redeem'd, you have full leave To make an honourable voyage home. And if you would go furnish'd to your realm With fair provision, I do see a lady, Methinks, would gladly bear you company. How like you this piece?

Meg. Sir, he likes it well, For he hath tried it, and hath found it worth His princely liking. We were ta'en abed; I know your meaning. I am not the first That nature taught to seek a fellow forth; Can shame remain perpetually in me, And not in others? Or have princes saved To cure ill names, that meaner people want? Phi. What mean you?

Meg. You must get another ship, To bear the princess and her boy together. — Dion. How now!

Meg. Others took me, and I took her and him At that all women may be ta'en sometime. Ship us all four; my lord; we can endure Weather and wind alike.

King. Clear thou thyself, or know not me for father.

Are. This earth, how false it is! What means is left for me To clear myself? It lies in your belief. My lords, believe me; and let all things else Struggle to get dishonour me. Bel. Oh, stop your ears, great King, that I may speak As freedom would! Then I will call this lady As base as are her actions. Hear me, sir; Believe your heated blood when it rebels Against your reason, sooner than this lady. Meg. By this good light, he bears it handsomely.

Phi. This lady! I will sooner trust the wind With feathers, or the troubled sea with pearl, Than her with any thing. Believe her not. Why, think you, if I did believe her words, I would outlive 'em? Honour cannot take Revenge on you; then what were to be known But death?

King. Forget her, sir, since all is knit Between us. But I must request of you One favour, and will sadly 1 be denied. Phi. Command, what'er it be.

King. Swear to be true To what you promise.

Phi. By the powers above, Let it not be the death of her or him, And it is granted!

King. Bear away that boy
To torture; I will have her clear'd or buried.

Phi. Oh, let me call my word back, worthy sir! Ask something else; bury my life and right In one poor grave; but do not take away 1: My life and fame at one. King. Away with him! It stands irrevocable. Phi. Turn all your eyes on me. Here stands a man, 1

The falsest and the basest of this world. Setswords against this breast, some honest man, For I have liv'd till I am pitied! My former deeds were hateful; but this last Is pitiful, for I unwillingly Have given the dear preserver of my life Unto his torture. Is it in the power Of flesh and blood to carry this, and live? Offers to stab himself.

Are. Dear sir, be patient yet! Oh, stay that hand!

King. Sirs, strip that boy. Dion. Come, sir; your tender flesh Will try your constancy.

Bel. Oh, kill me, gentlemen! — Dion. No.— Help, sir.

Bel. Will you torture me?

King. Haste there; Why stay you?

Bel. Then I shall not break my vow, You know, just gods, though I discover all. King. How's that? Will he confess?

Dion. Sir, so he says.

King. Speak then.

Bel. Great King, if you command This lord to talk with me alone, my tongue Urg'd by my heart, shall utter all the thoughts My youth hath known; and stranger things than these You hear not often.

King. Walk aside with him. [DION and BELDAM walk apart.] Dion. Why speak'st thou not?

Bel. Know you this face, my lord?

Dion. No.

Bel. Have you not seen it, nor the like?

Dion. Yes, I have seen the like, but readily I know not where.

Bel. I have been often told In court of one Euphrosyn, a lady, And daughter to you; betwixt whom and me They that would flatter my bad face would swear There was such strange resemblance, that we two Could not be known strainer, drest alike.

Dion. By Heaven, and so there is!

Bel. For her fair sake, Who now doth spend the spring-time of her life In holy pilgrimage, move to the King, That I may scape this torture.

Dion. But thou speak'st As like Euphrosyn as thou dost look. How came it to thy knowledge that she lives In pilgrimage? Bel. I know it not, my lord; But I have heard it, and do scarce believe it. Dion. Oh, my shame! is it possible? Draw near, That I may gaze upon thee. Art thou she, Or else her murderer? Where worth thou for my born? Bel. In Syracuse.

Dion. What's thy name?

Bel. Euphrosyn.

1 In some barbarous countries, it was believed that the murderer inherited the form and qualities of his victim. (Mason.)
To entertain you. Never was a man,
Heav’d from a sheep-cote to a sceptre, rais’d.
So high in thoughts as I. You left a kiss Upon these lips then, which I mean to keep
From you for ever. I did hear you talk,
Upon a lofty chair, above my face; After you were gone,
I grew acquainted with my heart, and spok’d 190
What stirr’d it so: alas, I found it love!
Yet far from lust; for, could I but have liv’d
In presence of you, I had had my end. 195
For this I did deduce my noble father
With a feign’d pilgrimage, and drest myself
In habit of a boy; and, for I knew
My birth no match for you, I was past hope
Of having you; and, understanding well
That when I made discovery of my sex
I could not stay with you, I made a vow,
By all the most religious things a maid
Could call together, never to be known,
Whilst there was hope to hide me from men’s
eyes, 200
For other than I seem’d, that I might ever Abide with you. Then sat I by the fount,
Where first you took me up. 205
King. Search out a match
Within our kingdom, where and when thou wilt,
And I will pay thy dowry; and thyself
Wilt well deserve him. 210
Bel. Never, sir, will I
Marry; it is a thing within my vow:
But, if I may have leave to serve the princess,
To see the virtues of her lord and her,
I shall have hope to live. 215
Are. I, Philaster,
Cannot be jealous, though you had a lady
Drest like a page to serve you; nor will I Suspect her living here.—Come, live with me;
Live free as I do, She that loves my lord,
Curtz be the wife that hates her! 220
Phi. I grieve such virtue should be laid in earth
Without an heir.—Hear me, my royal father:
Wrong not the freedom of our souls so much,
To think to have revenge of that base woman;
Her malice cannot hurt us. Set her free 225
As she was born, saving from shame and sin.
King. Set her at liberty.—But leave the court;
This is no place for such.—You, Pharamond,
Shall have free passage, and a conduct home
Worthy so great a prince. When you come there, 230
Remember’t was your faults that lost you her,
And not my purpose’d will. 235
Phi. I do confess,
Renowned sir.
King. Last, join your hands in one. Enjoy,
Philaster,
This kingdom, which is yours, and, after me, 240
Whatever I call mine. My blessing on you!
All happy hours be at your marriage-joy;
That you may grow yourselves over all lands,
And live to see your bounteous branches spring
Wherever there is sun! Let princes learn 245
By this to rule the passions of their blood;
For what Heaven wills can never be withstood. 250

1 Quick to understand.
Bel. Shift for myself well. Peace! I hear 'em come. [Facade creeps into a bush.] [Voices within. Follow, follow, follow! that way they want.
Bel. With my own wounds I'll bloody my own sword.
I need not counterfeit to fall; Heaven knows
That I can stand no longer. falls.

Enter PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMON, and THRASILUNE.

Pha. To this place we have trackt him by his blood.
Cle. Yonder, my lord, creeps one away.
Dion. Stay, sir! what are you?
Bel. A wretched creature, wounded in these woods
By beasts. Believe me, if your names be men,
Or I shall perish.

Dion. This is he, my lord.
Up on my soul, that hurt me. 'Tis the boy.
That wicked boy, that serv'd her.

Pha. Oh, thou dam'ed
In thy creation! What shame couldst thou shape
To hurt the princess?
Bel. Then I am betrayed.
Dion. Betrayed! No, nor apprehended.
Bel. I confess,
(Urge it no more) that, big with evil thoughts
I set upon her, and did make my aim,
Her death. For charity let fall at once
The punishment you mean, and do not load
This weak flesh with tortures.

Pha. I will know
Who hir'd thee to this deed.
Bel. Mine own revenge.
Pha. Revenge! for what?
Bel. It pleas'd her to receive
Me as her page and, when my fortunes 'sb'd,
That men strid o'er them careless, she did shower
Her welcome graces on me, and did swell
My fortunes till they overflow'd their banks,
Threat'n'ing the men that crost 'em; when, as swift
As storms arise at sea, she turn'd her eyes
To burning suns upon me, and did dry
The streams she had bestow'd, leaving me worse
And more contempt'd than other little brooks,
Because I had been great. In short, I knew
I could not live, and therefore did desire
To die reveng'd.

Pha. If tortures can be found
Long as thy natural life, resolve to feel
The utmost rigour.

Philaster creeps out of the bush.

Help to lead him hence.

Phi. Turn back, you ravishers of innocence!
Know ye the price of that you bear away
So rudely?

Pha. Who's that?
Dion. 'Tis the Lord Philaster.

Phi. 'Tis not the treasure of all kings in one,
The wealth of Tagus, nor the rocks of pearl
That pave the court of Neptune, can weigh down
That virtue. It was I that hurt the princess.
Place me, some god, upon a pyramid;
Higher than hills of earth, and lend a voice
Loud as your thunder to me, that from hence
I may discourse to all the under-world
The worth that dwells in him!

Pha. How's this?
Bel. My lord, some man
Weary of life, that would be glad to die.

Phi. Leave these untimely courtesies, Bellarico.

Bel. Alas, he's mad! Come, will you lead me on?

Phi. By all the oaths that men ought most to keep,
And gods to punish most when men do break,
He touch'd her not. —Take heed, Bellarico;
How thou dost drown the virtues thou hast shown
With perjury. — By all that's good, 't was I!
You know she stood betwixt me and my right.

Pha. Thy own tongue be thy judge!

Cle. It was Philaster.

Dion. Is 't not a brave boy?

Phi. Then show it: some
Good body lend a hand to draw us nearer.
Would you have tears shed for you when you die?
Then lay me gently on his neck, that there
I may weep floods and breathe forth my spirit.
'T is not the wealth of Plutus, nor the gold

[Embraces Bel.]
Lockt in the heart of earth, can buy away
This arm-full from me; this had been a ransum
To have redeem'd the great Augustus Caesar,
Had he been taken. You hard-hearted men,
More stony than these mountains, can you see
Such clear pure blood drop, and not cut your flesh
To stop his life, to bind whose bitter wounds,
Queens ought to tear their hair, and with their tears
Bathe 'em? — Forgive me, thou that art the wealth
Of poor Philaster!

Enter King, Arethusa, and Guard.

King. Is the villain ta'en?

Pha. Sir, here be two confess the deed; but sure
It was Philaster.

Phi. Question it no more;
It was.

King. The fellow that did fight with him,
Will tell us that.

Are. Ay me! I know he will.

King. Did not you know him?

Are. Sir, if it was he,
He was disguis'd.

Phi. I was so.—Oh, my stars.

That I should live still.
King.

Thou ambitious fool,
Thou that hast laid a train for thy own life! —
Now I do mean to do, I'll leave to talk. 131
Bear them to prison.

Are. Sir, they did plot together to take hence
This harmless life; should it pass unreveng'd,
I should to earth go weeping. Grant me, then,
By all the love a father bears his child, 135
Their custodies, and that I may appoint
Their tortures and their deaths.

Dion. Death! Soft; our law will not reach that for this fault.

King. 'T is granted; take 'em to you with a guard. — 140
Come, princely Pharamond, this business past,
We may with security go on
To your intended match.

[Exit all except Dion, Clermont, and Thrasiline.]

Cle. I pray that this action lose not Philas-ter the hearts of the people. 145 Dion. Fear it not; their over-wise heads will think it but a trick. 150

ACT V

SCENE I.

Enter Dion, Clermont, and Thrasiline.

Thra. Has the King sent for him to death?
Dion. Yes; but the King must know 'tis not in his power to war with Heaven.

Cle. We linger time; the King sent for Philas-ter and the headman an hour ago.

Thra. Are all his wounds well? 5 Dion. All; they were but scratches; but the loss of blood made him faint.
Cle. We daily, gentlemen.

Thra. Away!

Dion. We'll scuffle hard before we perish.

[Exit.

SCENE II.]

Enter Philaster, Arthusa, and Bellario.

Are. Nay, faith, Philaster, grieve not; we are
well.

Bel. Nay, good my lord, forbear; we're wondrous well.

Phi. Oh, Arthusa, oh, Bellario,
Leave to be kind!
I shall be shut from Heaven, as now from earth,
If you continue so. I am a man
False to a pair of the most trusty ones
That ever earth bore; can it bear us all?
Forgive, and leave me. But the King hath sent
To call me to my death: oh, shew it me, 15
And then forget me! And for thee, my boy,
I shall deliver words will mollify
The hearts of beasts to spare thy innocence.

Bel. Alas, my lord, my life is not a thing Worthy your noble thoughts! 'T is not a life, 15
'Tis but a piece of childhood thrown away.
Should I outlive you, I should then outlive
Virtue and honour; and when that day comes,

If ever I shall close these eyes but once,
May I live spotted for my perjury,
And waste my limbs to nothing!

Are. And I (the woful'ast maid that ever was,
For'd with my hands to bring my lord to death)
Do by the honour of a virgin swear
To tell no hours beyond it!

Phi. Make me not hated so.
Are. Come from this prison all joyful to our deaths!

Phi. People will tear me, when they find you true
To such a wretch as I; I shall die loath'd.
Enjoy your kingdoms peaceably, whilst I
For ever sleep forgotten with my faults.
Every just servant, every maid in love,
Will have a piece of me, if you be true.
Are. My dear lord, say not so.

Bel. A piece of you!
He was not born of woman that can cut
It and look on.

Phi. Take me in tears betwixt you, for my heart
Will break with shame and sorrow.

Are. Why, 't is well.
Bel. Lament no more.
Phi. Why, what would you have done
If you had wrong'd me basely, and had found Your life no price compar'd to mine? For love, sire

Deal with me truly.

Bel. 'T was mistaken, sir.
Phi. Why, if it were?
Bel. Then, sir, we would have ask'd
You pardon.

Phi. And have hope to enjoy it?
Are. Enjoy it I say.

Bel. We would, my lord.

Phi. Forgive me, then.
Are. So, so. 16

Bel. 'Tis as it should be now.

Phi. Lead to my death. 16

[Exit.

SCENE III.]

Enter King, Dion, Clermont, Thrasiline
[and Attendants].

King. Gentlemen, who saw the prince?

Cle. So please you, sir, he's gone to see the city
And the new platform, with some gentlemen
Attending on him.

King. Is the princess ready
To bring her prisoner out?

Thra. She waits your grace.

King. Tell her we stay. Erst Thrasiline.

Dion. [Aside.] King, you may be deceiv'd yet.
The head you aim at cost more setting on
Than to be lost so lightly. If it must off, —

Like a wild overflow, that swoops before him
A golden stack, and with it shakes down

3 Mason conj. Qu. F. m. ... yours.
4 A state-room in the palace.
FRANCIS BEAUMONT AND JOHN FLETCHER

But if you laugh at my rude carriage
In peace, I'll do as much for you in war,
When you come thither. Yet I have a mistress
To bring to your delights; rough though I am,
I have a mistress, and she has a heart
She says; but, trust me, it is stone, no better;
There is no place that I can challenge in 't.
But you stand still, and here my way lies.

[Exeunt severally.]

[SCENE II.]

Enter Callanax with Diagonoas.

Cal. Diagonoas, look to the doors better, for shame! You let in all the world, and anon the King will rail at me. Why, very well said. By Jove, the King will have the show 't's court! Diag. Why do you swear so, my lord? You know he'll have it here.

Call. By this light, if he be wise, he will not. Diag. And if he will not be wise, you are forsworn.

Cal. One may wear his heart out with swearing, and get thanks on no side. I'll be gone, [it look to 't who will.

Diag. My lord, I shall never keep them out. Pray, stay; your looks will terrify them.

Cal. My looks terrify them, you coxcombs; baffly ass, you! I'll be judged by all the company whether thou hast not a worse face than I.

Diag. I mean, because you and your office.

Cal. Office! I would I could put it off! I [so am sure I sweat quite through my office. I might have made room at my daughter's wedding; — they ha' near kill'd her among them; and now I must do service for him that hath forsaken her. Serve that will!

Diag. He's so humorous since his daughter was forsaken! (Knock within.) Hark, hark! there, there! so, so! codes, codes! What now?

Mel. (within.) Open the door.

Diag. Who's there?

Mel. (within.) Melantius.

Diag. I hope your lordship brings no troop with you; for, if you do, I must return them. [Opens the door.]

Enter Melantius and a Lady.

Mel. None but this lady, sir.

Diag. The ladies are all plac'd above, save those that come in the King's troop; the best of Rhodes sit there, and there's room.

Mel. I thank you, sir. — When I have seen you placed, madam, I must attend the King; but the masque done, I'll wait on you again.

Diag. (opening another door.) Stand back there! — Room for my Lord Melantius! (Exeunt Melantius and Lady, other door.) — Pray, bear back — this is no place for such youth and their trulls — let the doors shut again. — No! — do your heads itch? I'll scratch them for [a] —[Shuts the door.]—So, now thrust and hang!

[Knocking within.] — Again! who is 't now? — I cannot blame my Lord Callanax for going away; would he were here! He would run [sc raging among them, and break a dozen wiser heads than his own in the twinkling of an eye.

—What's the news now?

[Voice within.] I pray you, can you help me to the speech of the master-cook? —

Diag. If I open the door, I'll cook some of your calves' heads. Peace, rogues! [Knocking within.] — Again! who is 't? —

Mel. (within.) Melantius.

Re-enter Callanax.

Cal. Let him not in.

Diag. O, my lord, I must. [Opening the door.] — Make room there for my lord. Is your lady placed?

Re-enter Melantius.

Mel. Yes, sir.

— I thank you. — My Lord Callanax, well met. — Your causeless hate to me I hope is buried. Cal. Yes, I do service for your sister here, That brings my own poor child to timeless death.

She loves your friend Amintor; such another False-hearted lord as you.

Mel. You do me wrong, a most unmanly one, and I am slow

In taking vengeance: but be well advis'd.

Cal. It may be so. — Who plac'd the lady there

So near the presence of the King?

Mel. I did.

Cal. My lord, she must not sit there.

Mel. Why? —

Cal. The place is kept for women of more worth.

Mel. More worth than she! It misbecomes your age

And place to be thus womanish: forbear!

What you have spoke, I am content to think

The palsy shook your tongue to.

Cal. Why, 'tis well.

If I stand here to place men's wench's. I Shall quite forget this place, thy age, my safety, And, through all, out that poor sickly week Thou hast to live away from thee.

Cal. Nay, I know you can fight for your whore.

Mel. Hate me the King, and, be he flesh and blood,

He lies that says it! Thy mother at fifteen Was black and sinful to her.

Diag. — Good my lord —

Mel. Some god pluck thousands years from that fond man,

That I may kill him, and not stain mine honour! It is the curse of soldiers, that in peace They shall be brav'd by such ignoble men As, if the land were troubled, would with tears And knees beg succour from 'em. Would that blood,

THE MAID'S TRAGEDY

Enter Cynthia.

How dull and black am I! I could not find
This beauty without thee, I am so blind:
Methinks they show like to those eastern streaks,
That warn us hence before the morning breaks.
Back, my pale servant! for these eyes know
To shoot far more and quicker rays than
thee.
Cynth. Great queen, they be a troop for whom alone
One of my clearsest moons I have put on;
A troop, that looks as if thyself and I
Had plucked our reins in and our whips laid
by,
To gaze upon these mortals, that appear
Brighter than we.
Night. Then let us keep 'em here,
And never more our chariots drive away;
But hold our places and outshine the Day.
Cynth. Great queen of shadows, you are pless'd to speak
Of more than may be done. We may not break
The gods' decrees; but, when our time is
come,
Must drive away, and give the Day our room.
Yet, while our reign lasts, let us stretch our power
To give our servants one contented hour,
With such unwonted solemn grace and state,
As may forever after force them hate
Our brother's glorious beams, and wish the Night
Crownd' with a thousand stars and our cold
light:
For almost all the world their service bend
To Phoebus, and in vain my light I lend,
Gaz'd on unto my setting from my rise
Almost of none but of unquiet eyes.
Night. Then shine at full, fair queen, and by thy power
Produce a birth, to crown this happy hour,
Of nymphs and shepherds; let their songs discover,
Easy and sweet, who is a happy lover;
Or, if thou woo'st, then call thine own Endymion
From the sweet flow'ry bed he lies upon,
On Latmus' top, thy pale beams drawn away,
And of his long night let him make a day.
Cynth. Thou dream'st, dark queen; that fair boy was not mine,
Nor went I down to kiss him. Ease and wine
Have bred these bold tales: poets, when they
rage,
Turn gods to men, and make an hour an age.
But I will give a greater state and glory,
And raise to time a nobler memory
Of what these lovers are. — Rise, rise, I say,
Thou power of deeps, thy surge laid away,
Neptune, great king of waters, and by me.
Be proud to be commanded

1 Quarrel. 2 Flageolets. 3 Q; quenching.
NEPTUNE rises.

Nept. Thy word hath fethert me hither: let me know Why I ascend. Cynth. Doth this majestic show Give thee no knowledge yet? Nept. Yes, now I see Something intended, Cynthia, worthy thee. Go on; I'll be a helper.

Cynth. Hie thee, then, And charge the Wind fly from his rocky den, Let loose his subjects; only Boras, Too foul for our intentions as he was, Still keep him fast chain'd: we must have none here But vernal blasts and gentle winds appear, Such as blow flowers, and through the glad boughs sing Many soft welcomes to the lusty spring; These are our music. Next, thy wat'ry race Bring on in couples (we are pleas'd to grace This noble night), each in their richest things Your own deeps or the broken vessel brings. Be prodigal, and I shall be as kind And shine at full upon you.

Nept. Oh, the Wind! Commanding Aeolus!

Enter AEOLUS out of a Rock.

Aeol. Great Neptune!

Nept. Ha.

Aeol. What is thy will? Nept. We do command thee free Favonius and thy milder winds, to wait Upon our Cynthia; but tie Boras strait, He's too rebellious.

Aeol. I shall do it. [Exit AEOLUS.]

Nept. Do.

Aeol. [within.] Great master of the flood and all below, Thy full command has taken. — Oh, the Main!

Nept. Here.

[Re-enter AEOLUS, followed by FAVONIUS and other Winds.]

Aeol. Boras has broken his chain, And, struggling with the rest, has got away. Nept. Let him alone, I'll take him up at sea; I will not long be thence. Go once again, And call out of the bottoms of the main Blue Proteus and the rest; charge them put on Their greatest pearls, and the most sparkling stone The beaten rock breeds; tell this night is done By me a solemn honour to the Moon: Fly, like a full sail.

Aeol. I am gone. [Exit.]

Cynth. Dark Night, Strike a full silence, do a thorough right To this great chorus, that our music may Touch high as Heaven, and make the east break day At midnight.

[Flute] Some.

[During which PROTEUS and other Sea-deities enter.]

Cynthia, to thy power and thee We obey. Joy to this great company! Come to steal this night away, Till the rites of love are ended, And the lusty bridegroom say, Welcome, light, of all befriended!

Pace out, you watery powers below; Let your feet, Like the galleys when they row, Even beat. Let your unknown measures, set To the still winds, tell to all, That gods are come, immortal, great, To honour this great nuptial.

The Measure.

SECOND SONG.

Hold back thy hours, dark Night, till we have done; The Day will come too soon: Young maids will curse thee, if thou steal'st away, And leave their losses open to the day:

Stay, stay, and hide The blushes of the bride.

Stay, gentle Night, and with thy darkness cover The kisses of her lover; Stay, and confound her tears and her shrill cryings, Her weak denials, vows, and often-dying; Stay, and hide all: But help not, though she call.

Nept. Great queen of us and Heaven, hear what I bring To make this hour a full one.

Cynth. Speak, sea's king.

Nept. The tunes my Amphitritis joys to have, When she will dance upon the rising wave, And court me as she sailes. My Tritons, play Music to lay a storm! I'll lead the way.

A Measure, NEPTUNE leads it.

[Flute] Some.

To bed, to bed! Come, Hymen, lead the bride, And lay her by her husband's side; Bring in the virgins every one, That grieve to be alone, That they may kiss while they may say a maid; To-morrow 'twill be other face and said. Hesperus, be long a-shining, Whilst these lovers are a-twinging.

Aeol. [within.] Ho, Neptune!

Nept.

[Re-enter AEOLUS.]

Aeol. The sea goes high, Boras hath rais'd a storm; go and apply Thy trident; else, I prophesy, ere day

1. Crushed (?) or beaten by the waves (?).
THE MAID'S TRAGEDY

Many a tall ship will be cast away.
Descend with all the gods and all their power,
To strike a calm.

Cynth. [We thank you for this hour:]
My favour to you all.] To gratulate
So great a service, done at your desire,
Ye shall have many floods, fuller and higher
Than you have wight for; and no enmity
Then let the Day see where your dwellings are.
Now back unto your governments in haste,
Lest your proud charge should swell above the waste.
And win upon the island.

Nept. We obey.

NEPTUNE descends and the Sea-Gods. [Exeunt FAVORIOUS and other Winds.]

Cynth. Hold up thy head, dead Night; see'st thou not Day?
The east begins to lighten. I must down,
And give my brother place.

Night. Oh, I could frown
To see the Day, the Day that slings his light
Upon my kingdom and contemns old Night!
Let him go on and flame! I hope to see
Another wild fire in his axel-tree,
And all fall drenchet. But I forget; — speak, queen:
The Day grows on; I must no more be seen.

Cynth. Heave up thy drowsy head and see
A greater light, a greater majesty,
Between our set and us! Whip up the team:
The Day breaks here, and you same flashing
Shot from the south. Say, which way wilt thou go?

Night. I'll vanish into mists.

Cynth. Into Day.

Exeunt Night and CYNTHIA.

Finis Masque.

King. Take lights there! — Ladies, get the bride to bed. —
We will not see you laid; good night, Amintor;
We'll ease you of that tedious ceremony.
Were it my case, I should think time run slow.
If thou be'st noble, youth, get me a boy,
That may defend my kingdom from my foes.

Amin. All happiness to you!

King. Good night, Melantium. Exeunt.

ACT II

[SCENE I.]

Enter Evadne, ASPATIA, DULA, and other Ladies.

Dula. Madam, shall we undress you for this fight?
The wars are nak'd that you must make tonight.

Evad. You are very merry, Dula.

Dula. I should be Far merrier, madam, if it were with me
As it is with you.

Evad. How's that?

Dula. That I might go
To bed with him wi' th' credit that you do.

Evad. Why, how now, wench?

Dula. Come, ladies, will you help?

Evad. I am soon undone.

Dula. And as soon done:
Good store of clothes will trouble you at both.
Evad. Art thou drunk, Dula?

Dula. Why, here's none but we.

Evad. Thou think'st belike there is no modesty
When we're alone.

Dula. Ay, by my troth, you hit my thoughts aright.

Evad. You prick me, lady.

1 Lady. 'Tis against my will.

Dula. Anon you must endure more and lie still;

You're best to practise.

Evad. Sure, this wench is mad.

Dula. No, faith, this is a trick that I have had Since I was fourteen.

Evad. 'Tis high time to leave it.

Dula. Nay, now I'll keep it till the trick leave me.

A dozen wanton words put in your head
Will make you livelier in your husband's bed.

Evad. Nay, faith, then take it.

Dula. Take it, madam! Where are we, if I hope, will take it that are here.

Evad. Nay, then I'll give you o'er.

Dula. So will I make
The ablest man in Rhodes, or his heart ache.

Evad. Wilt take my place to-night?

Dula. I'll hold your cards
Against any two I know.

Evad. What wilt thou do?

Dula. Madam, we'll do't, and make 'em leave play too.

Evad. Aspatia, take her part.

Dula. I will refuse it:
It she will pluck down a side; she does not use it.

Evad. Why, do, I prithee.

Dula. You will find the play
Quickly, because your head lies well that way.

Evad. I thank thee, Dula. Would thou couldst instil
Some of thy mirth into Aspatia!

Nothing but sad thoughts in her breast do dwell!

Methinks, a mean betwixt you would do well.

Dula. She is in love: hang me, if I were so,
But I could run over my country. I love too
To do those things that people in love do.

Asp. It were a timeless smile should prove My cheek.

I. e. the trick. (Thornriker.)

Cause the loss of the game.

Drive at a fast pace.

Untimely.
It were a fitter hour for me to laugh,
When at the altar the religious priest
Were pacifying the offended powers
With sacrifice, than now. This should have been My rite; and all your hands have been employ'd.

In giving me a spotless offering
To young Amintor's bed, as we are now
For you. Pardon, Evadne: would my worth
Were great as yours, or that the King, or he,
Or both, thought so! Perhaps he found me worthless:

But till he did so, in these ears of mine,
These credulous ears, he pour'd the sweetest words
That art or love could frame. If he were false,
Pardon it, Heaven! and, if I did want
Virtue, you safely may forgive that too;
For I have lost none that I had from you.
Evad. Nay, leave this sad task, madam.
Nay, would I could!
Then I should leave the cause.
Evad. See, if you have not spoil'd all Dula's mirth!
Asp. Thou think'st that thy heart hard; but, if Thou be'st caught,
Remember me; thou shalt perceive a fire
Shot suddenly into thee.
Dula. That's not so good;
Let 'em shoot anything but fire, I fear, or not.
Asp. Well, wench, thou may'st be taken.
Evad. Ladies, good-night; I'll do the rest
Myself.
Dula. Nay, let your lord do some.
Asp. [singing:]
Lay a garland on my hearse
Of the dismal yew—
Evad. That's one of your sad songs, madam.
Asp. Believe me, 'tis a very pretty one.
Evad. How is it, madam?
Asp. [singing:]
Lay a garland on my hearse
Of the dismal yew;
Maidens, willow-branches bear;
Say I died true.
My love was false, but I was firm
From my hour of birth;
Upon my buried body lie
Lightly, gentle earth!
Evad. Fear not, madam! The words are so strange, they Are able to make one dream of hobgoblins.
"I could never have the power"—sing that, Dula.
Dula. [singing:]
I could never have the power
To love one above an hour,
But my heart would prompt mine eye
On some other man to fly.
Venus, fix mine eye fast,
Or, if not, give me all that I shall see at last!
Evad. So, leave me now.
Dula. Nay, we must see you laid.

Asp. Madam, good night. May all the marriage-joys
That longe-maid's imagine in their beds
Prove so unto you! May all discontent
Grow 'twixt your love and you; but, if there do,
Inquire of me, and I will guide your moan;
Teach you an artificial way to grieve,
To keep your sorrow waking. Love your lord
No worse than I; but, if you love so well,
Alas, you may displease him so did I.
This is the last time you shall look on me.——Ladies, farewell. As soon as I am dead,
Come all and watch one night about my hearse;
Bring each a mournful story and a tear,
To offer at it when I go to earth;
With flatteringivy clasp my coffin round;
Write on my brow my fortune; let my bier
Be borne by virgins, that shall sing by course
The truth of maids and perjuries of men.
Evad. Alas, I pity thee.
All. Madam, good night.
Exit[ Evadne.
1 Lady. Come, we'll let in the bridegroom.
Dula. Where's my lord?
1 Lady. Here, take this light.

Enter Amintor.

Dula. You'll find her in the dark.
1 Lady. Your lady's scarce a-bed yet; you must help her.
Asp. Go, and be happy in your lady's love.
May all the wrongs that you have done to me
Be utterly forgotten in my death!
I'll trouble you no more; yet I will take
A parting kiss, and will not be denied.

[ kisses Amintor.]

You'll come, my lord, and see the virgins weep
When I am laid in earth, though you yourself
Can know no pity. Thus I wind myself
Into this willow-garland, and am prouder
That I was once your love, though now re-fus'd,
Than to have had another true to me.
So with my prayers I leave you, and must try
Some yet unpractis'd way to grieve and die.

Exit.

Dula. Come, ladies, will you go?
All. Good night, my lord.
Amin. Much happiness unto you all!

Exit [Dula and] Ladies.

I did that lady wrong. Methinks, I feel
A grief shoot suddenly through all my veins;
Mine eyes rain: this is strange at such a time.

It was the King first mov'd me 't'it; but he Has not my will in keeping. Why do I
Perplex myself thus? Something whispers me, Go not to bed. My guilt is not so great
As mine own conscience, tooensible.
Would make me think; I only brake a promise,
And 't was the King that fore'd me. Timorous flesh,
Why shake'st thou so? Away, my idle fears!

THE MAID’S TRAGEDY

Re-enter Evadne.

Yonder she is, the lustre of whose eye
Can blot away the sad remembrance
Of all these things. — Oh, my Evadne, spare
That tender body; let it not take cold!

The vapours of the night will not fail here.

To bed, my love; Hymen will punish us
For being slack performers of his rites.

Can’t thou to call me?

Evad. No.

Amin. Come, come, my love,
And let us lose ourselves to one another.

Why art thou up so long?

Evad. I am not well.

Amin. To bed then; let me wind thee in these arms

Till I have banished sickness.

Evad. Good my lord.

I cannot sleep.

Amin. Evadne, we will watch;

I mean no sleeping.

Evad. I’ll not go to bed.

Amin. I prithee, do.

Evad. I will not for the world.

Amin. Why, my dear love?

Evad. Why! I have sworn I will not.

Amin. Sworn!

Evad. Ay.

Amin. How? Sworn, Evadne!

Evad. Yes, sworn, Amintor; and will swear
again,
If you will wish to hear me.

Amin. To whom have you sworn this?

Evad. If I should name him, the matter were not great.

Amin. Come, this is but the coyness of a bride.

Evad. The coyness of the bride!

Amin. How prettily

That frown becomes thee!

Evad. Do you like it so?

Amin. Thou canst not dress thy face in such a look

But I shall like it.

Evad. What look likes1 you best?

Amin. Why do you ask?

Evad. That I may show you one less pleasing
to you.

Amin. How’s that?

Evad. That I may show you one less pleasing
to you.

Amin. I prithee, put thy jests in milder
looks;

It shows as thou wert angry.

Evad. So perhaps

I am indeed.

Amin. Why, who has done thee wrong?

Name me the man, and by thyself I swear,

Thy yet unconquered self, I will revenge thee!

Evad. Now I shall try thy truth. If thou dost love me,

Thou weigh’st not anything compar’d with
me:

Life, honour, joys eternal, all delights

This world can yield, or hopeful people feign,
Or in the life to come, are light as air

To a true lover when his lady frowns,

And bids him, “Do this.” Wilt thou kill this
man?

Swear, my Amintor, and I’ll kiss the sin

Off from thy lips.

Amin. I wo’st not swear, sweet love,

Till I do know the cause.

Evad. I would thou wouldest.

Why, it is thou that wrong’st me; I hate

Thee;

Thou shouldst have kill’d thyself.

Amin. If I should know that, I should quickly kill

The man you hated.

Evad. Know it, then, and do’t.

Amin. Oh, no! what look so’er thou shalt put on

To try my faith, I shall not think thee false;

I cannot find one blemish in thy face,

Where falsehood should abide. Leave, and to bed.

If you have sworn to any of the virgins

That were your old companions, to preserve

Your maidenhead a night, it may be done

Without this means.

Evad. A maidenhead, Amintor,

At my years!

Amin. Sure she raves; this cannot be

Her natural temper. — Shall I call thy maids?

Either thy healthful sleep hath left thee long,

Or else some fever rages in thy blood.

Evad. Neither, Amintor: think you I am mad,

Because I speak the truth?

Amin. [Is this the truth?] Will you not lie with me to-night?

Evad. To-night!

You talk as if [you thought] I would hereafter.

Amin. Hereafter! yes, I do.

Evad. You are deceiver’d.

Put off amazement, and with patience mark

What I shall utter, for the oracle

Knows nothing truer. ’T is not for a night

Or two that I forbear thy bed, but ever.

Amin. I dream. Awake, Amintor!

Evad. You hear right;

I sooner will find out the beds of snakes,

And with my youthful blood warm their cold

flesh,

Letting them curl themselves about my limbs,

Than sleep one night with thee. This is not feign’d,

Nor sounds it like the coyness of a bride.

Amin. Is flesh so earthly to endure all

this?

Are these the joys of marriage? Hymen, keep

This story, that will make succeeding youth

Neglect thy ceremonies, from all ears;

Let it not rise up, for thy shame and mine.

To after-ages: we will scorn thy laws,

If thou no better bless them. Torch the heart

Of her that thou hast sent me, or the world

Shall know; there’s not an altar that will smoke

1 Please.

2 Only in Q.
In praise of thee; we will adopt us sons;
Then virtue shall inherit, and not blood.
If we do lust, we'll take the next we meet,
Serving ourselves as other creatures do;
And never take note of the female more,
Nor of her issue. — I do rage in vain;
She can but jest. — Oh, pardon me, my love!
So dear the thoughts are that I hold of thee,
That I must break forth. Satisfy my fear;
It is a pain, beyond the hand of death.
To be in doubt. Confirm it with an oath,
If this be true.

Evad. — Do you invent the form;
Let there be in it all the binding words
Devils and conjurers can put together,
And I will take it. I have sworn before,
And here by all things holy do again,
Never to be acquainted with thy bed!
Is your doubt over now?

Amin. I know too much; would I had doubted still!
Was ever such a marriage-night as this!
You powers above, if you did ever mean
Man should be us'd thus, you have thought a way
How he may bear himself, and save his honour:
Instruct me in it; for to my dull eyes
There is no mean, no moderate course to run;
I must live scorn'd, or be a murderer.
Is there a third? Why is this night so calm?
Why does not Heaven speak in thunder to us,
And drown her voice?

Evad. This rage will do no good.
Amin. Evadne, hear me. Thou hast ta'en an oath,
But such a rash one, that to keep it were Worse than to swear it. Call it back to thee;
Such vows as that never ascend to Heaven;
A tear or two will wash it quite away.
Have mercy on my youth, my hopeful youth,
If thou be pitiful! For, without boast,
This land was proud of me. What lady was there,
That men call'd fair and virtuous in this isle,
That would have shunn'd my love? It is in thee
To make me hold this worth. Oh, we vain men,
That trust [out! all our reputation
To rest upon the weak and yielding hand
Of feeble woman! But thou art not stone;
Thy flesh is soft, and in thine eyes doth dwell
The spirit of love; thy heart cannot be hard.
Come, lead me from the bottom of despair
To all the joys thou hast; I know thou wilt;
And make me careful lest the sudden change
O'ercome my spirits.

Evad. When I call back this oath,
The pains of hell environ me!
Amin. I sleep, and am too temperate. Come to bed!
Or by those hairs, which, if thou hadst a soul
Like to thy looks, were threads for kings to wear.
About their arms —

Amin. Why, so perhaps they are Evad. I'll drag thee to my bed, and make thy tongue
Undo this wicked oath, or on thy flesh
I'll print a thousand wounds to let out life!
Evad. I fear thee not: do what thou dar'st to me!
Every ill-sounding word or threat'ning look
Thou shew'st to me will be reveng'd at full.
Amin. It will not sure, Evadne!
Evad. Do not you hazard that.
Amin. Ha! ye your champions?
Evad. Alas, Amintor, think'st thou I forbear
To sleep with thee, because I have put on
A maiden's strictness? Look upon these cheeks,
And thou shalt find the hot and rising blood
Untap for such a vow. No; in this heart
There dwells as much desire and as much will
To put that wished act in practice as ever yet
Was known to woman; and they have been shown
Both. But it was the folly of thy youth
To think this beauty, to what land soe'er
It shall be call'd, shall stoop to any second.
I do enjoy the best, and in that height
Have sworn to stand or die. You guess the man.

Amin. No; let me know the man that wrongs me so,
That I may cut his body into mores,
And scatter it before the northern wind.
Evad. You dare not strike him.
Amin. Do not wrong me so.
Yes, if his body were a poisonous plant
That it were death to touch, I have a soul
Will throw me on him.

Evad. Why, 'tis the King.
Amin. The King!
Evad. What will you do now?
Amin. 'Tis not the King!
Evad. What did he make this match for, dull Amintor?
Amin. Oh, thou hast nam'd a word, that Wipes away
All thoughts revengeful! In that sacred name,
"The King," there lies a terror. What frail man Dares lift his hand against it? Let the gods
Speak to him when they please: till when, let us
Suffer and wait.

Evad. Why should you fill yourself so full of heat,
And haste so to my bed? I am no virgin.
Amin. What devil put it in thy fancy, then,
To marry me?

Evad. Alas, I must have one
To father children, and to bear the name
Of husband to me, that my sin may be More honourable!
Amin. What strange thing am I?
Evad. A miserable one; one that myself Am sorry for.
Amin. Why, show it then in this:

In Q. only.

So Q. Q. wish.
Bullen conjectures Amin.
If thou hast pity, though thy love be none,
Kill me; and all true lovers, that shall live
In after ages crost in their desires,
Shall bless thy memory, and call thee good,
Because such mercy in thy heart was found,
To rid a lording wrrench.

Evad. I must have one
To fill thy room again, if thou wert dead;
Else, by this night, I would I pity thee.

Amin. Their strange and sudden injuries have fall'n.
So thick upon me, that I lose all sense
Of what they are. Methinks, I am not wrong'd;
Nor is it aught, if from the censuring world
I can but hide it. Reputation,
Thou art a word, no more! — But thou hast shown
An impudence so high, that to the world
I fear thou wilt betray or shame thyself.

Evad. To cover shame, I took thee; never fear
That I would blawe 2 myself.

Amin. Nor let the King
Know I conceive he wrongs me; then mine honour
Will thrust me into action, though 8 my flesh
Could bear with patience. And it is some ease
To me in these extremes, that I know this Before I touched thee; else, had all the sins
Of mankind stood between me and the King,
I had gone through 'em to his heart and thine.
I have lost 4 once desire: 'tis not his crown
Shall buy me to thy bed, now I resolve.
He has dishonour'd thee. Give me thy hand: 8
Be careful of thy credit, and sin close: 8
'Tis all I wish. Upon thy chamber-floor
I'll rest to-night, that morning visitors
May think we did as married people use:
And prithee, smile upon me when they come,
And seem to toy, as if thou hast been pleased
With what we did.

Evad. Fear not; I will do this.

Amin. Come, let us practise; and, as wantonly
As ever loving 7 bride and bridegroom met,
Let's laugh and enter here.

Evad. I am content.

Amin. Down all the swellings of my troubled heart!

When we walk thus intwined, let all eyes see
If ever lovers better did agree.

Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter ASPATIA, ANTIPHILA, and OLYMPIAS.

Asp. Away, you are not sad! force it no further.
Good gods, how well you look! Such a full Young bashful brides put on: sure, you are
New married!

Ant. Yes, madam, to your grief.

Asp. Alas, poor wenches!

Go learn to love first; learn to lose yourselves; 8
Learn to be flattered, and believe and bless
The double tongue that did it; make a faith
Out of the miracles of ancient lovers,
Such as spake truth and died in 't; and, like me,
Believe all faithful, and be miserable. 8
Did you ne'er love yet, wenches? Speak, Olymias:
Thou hast an easy temper, fit for stamp.

Olym. Never. Nor you, Antiphila? Nor I.

Asp. Then, my good girls, be more than women, wise;
At least be more than I was; and be sure
You credit any thing the light gives life to,
Before a man. Rather believe the sea
Weeps for the ruin'd merchant, when he roars;
Rather, the wind courts but the pregnant sails,
When the strong cordage cracks; rather, the sun
Comes but to kiss the fruit in wealthy autumn,
When all falls blasted. If you needs must love, (For'd by ill fate,) take to your maiden-bosoms
Two dead-cold aspers, and of them make lovers.
They cannot flatter nor forewear; one kiss
Makes a long peace for all. But man
Oh, that beast man! Come, let's be sad, my girls:
That down-cast of thine eye, Olymias,
Shows a fine sorrow. — Mark, Antiphila;
Just such another was the nymph Oenone,
When Paris brought home Helen. — Now, a tear;
And then thou art a piece expressing fully
The Carthage queen, when from a cold sea-rock Full with her sorrow, she tied fast her eyes
To the fair Trojan ships; and, having lost them,
Just as thine does, down stole a tear. — Antiphila,
What would this wench do, if she were Aspasia?
Here she would stand, till some more pitying
God
Turn'd her to marble! — 'Tis enough, my wench!
Show me the piece of needlework you wrought.

Ant. Of Ariadne, madam?

Asp. Yes, that piece. 8
This should be Theseus; he's a loving face. —
You meant him for a man?

Ant. He was so, madam.

Asp. Why, then, 'tis well enough. — Never look back;
You have a full wind and a false heart, Theseus.

Does not the story say, his keel was split,
Or his masts spent, or some kind rock or other
Met with his vessel?

Ant. Not as I remember.

Asp. It should ha' been so. Could the gods know this,
And not, of all their number, raise a storm? 8
But they are all as evil. This false smile
Was well express; just such another caught me.—
You shall not go so. — Antiphila, in this place work a quicksand, and over it a shallow smiling water, and his ship ploughing it; and then a Fear: Do that Fear to the life, wench.

Ant. 'Twill wrong the story.

Asp. 'Twill make the story, wrong'd by wanton poets, live long and be believ'd. But where's the lady?

Ant. There, madam.

Asp. Fie, you have mist it here, Antiphila; you are much mistaken, wench. These colours are not dull and pale enough to show a soul so full of misery as this sad lady's was. Do it by me, Do it again by me, the lost Aspasia; and you shall find all true but the wild island. I stand upon the sea-breach now, and think, mine arms thus, and mine hair blown with the wind. Wild as that dessert; and let all about me tell that I am forsaken, Do my face (If thou hadst ever feeling of a sorrow) thus, thus, Antiphila: strive to make me look like sorrow's monument; and the trees about me, let them be dry and leafless; let the rocks groan with continual surge, and behind me, make all a desolation. See, see, wenchas, a miserable life of this poor picture!

Olym. Dear madam!

Asp. I have done. Sit down; and let us upon that point fix all our eyes, that point there. Make a dull silence, till you feel a sudden sadness, give us new souls.

Enter Callianax.

Cal. The King may do this, and he may not do it: My child is wrong'd, disgrac'd. — Well, how now, huswives? What, at your ease! Is this a time to sit still? Up, you young lazy whores, up, or I'll swinge you.

Olym. Nay, good my lord — Cal. You'll lie down shortly. Get you in, and work.

What, are you grown so resty you want heats? We shall have some of the court-boys do that office.

Ant. My lord, we do no more than we are charg'd: it is the lady's pleasure we be thus in grief she is forsaken.

Cal. There's a rogue too, a young dissembling slave! — Well, get you in.

I'll have a bont with that boy. 'Tis high time now to be valiant: I confess my youth was never prone that way. What, made an ass!

1 Addressed to Theseus. 2 Q. reads Suppose I... now.

A court-staté! Well, I will be valiant, and beat some dozen of these whelps; I will! and there's another of 'em, a trim cheating soldier;

I'll maunt that rascal; has out-brav'd me twice; but now, I thank the gods, I am valiant. — Go, get you in. — I'll take a course with all.

Exeunt.

ACT III

[SCENE I.]

Enter Cleon, Strato, and Diphilus.

Cle. Your sister is not up yet.

Diph. Oh, brides must take their morning's rest; the night is troublesome.

Strat. But not tedious.

Diph. What odds, he has not my sister's [s

Strat. None; it's odds against any bridegroom living, he ne'er gets it while he lives.

Diph. You're merry with my sister; you'll please to allow me the same freedom with [to your mother.

Strat. She's at your service.

Diph. Then she's merry enough of herself; she needs no tickling. Knock at the door.

Strat. We shall interrupt them.

Diph. No matter; they have the year before them.

[Strato knocks at the door.] Good morrow, sister. Spare yourself to-day; the night will come again.

Enter Amintor.

Amin. Who's there? My brother! I'm no reader yet.

Your sister is but now up.

Diph. You look as you had lost your eyes to-night:

I think you ha' not slept.

Amin. 'Tis true. — (Aside.) But she,

As if she had drank Lethe, or had made

Even with Heaven, did fetch so still a sleep, —

So sweet and sound —

Diph. What's that?

Amin. Your sister frets this morning; and does turn her eyes upon me, as people on their headman. She does chafe, and kiss, and chafe again, and clap my cheeks: she's in another world.

Diph. Then I had lost! I was about to lay

You had not got her maidenhead to-night.

Amin. [Aside.] Ha! does he not mock me?

You'd lost indeed;

I do not use to bungle.

1 Laughing-stock.

2 Ante-room to Evadne's bed-chamber.

3 No more dressed.
Cleo. You do deserve her.
Amin. (Aside.) I laid my lips to hers, and that wild breath.
That was so rude and rough to me last night,
Was sweet as April. I'll be guilty too,
If these be the effects.

Enter Melanarius.

Mel. Good day, Amintor; for to me the name
Of brother is too distant: we are friends,
And that is nearer.
Amin. Dear Melanarius!
Let me behold thee. Is it possible?
Mel. What sudden gaze is this?
Amin. 'Tis wondrous strange!
Mel. Why does thine eye desire so strict a view
Of that it knows so well? There's nothing here
That is not thine.
Amin. I wonder much, Melanarius,
To see those noble looks, that make me think
How virtuous thou art: and, on the sudden,
'Tis strange to me thou shouldst have worth and honour;
Or not be base, and false, and treacherous,
And every ill. But ——

Mel. Stay, stay, my friend;
I fear this sound will not become our loves.
No more; embrace me.
Amin. Oh, mistake me not!
I know thee to be full of all those deeds
That we frail men call good; but by the course
Of nature thou shouldst be as quickly chang'd
As are the winds; dissembling as the sea,
That now wears brows as smooth as virgins' be,
Tempering the merchant to invade his face,
And in an hour calls his bills up,
And shoots 'em at the sun, destroying all
'A carries on him.—(Aside.) Oh, how near am I
To utter my sick thoughts.

Mel. But why, my friend, should I be so by nature?
Amin. I have wed thy sister, who hath virtuous thoughts
Enough for one whole family; and it is strange
That you should feel no want.

Mel. Believe me, this is compliment too cunning for me.
Diph. What should I be then by the course of nature.

They having both robb'd me of so much virtue?
Str. Oh, call the bride, my Lord Amintor,
That we may see her blush, and turn her eyes down.

It is the prettiest sport!
Amin. Evadne!

Eoad. (within.) My lord?

Amin. Come forth, my love;
Your brothers do attend to wish you joy.
Eoad. (within.) I am not ready yet.
Amin. Enough, enough.
Eoad. (within.) They'll mock me.

Amin. Faith, thou shalt come in.

Enter Evadne.

Mel. Good morrow, sister. He that understands
Whom you have wed, need not to wish you joy;
You have enough: take heed be you not proud.
Diph. Oh, sister, what have you done?
Eoad. I done it! why, what have I done?
Str. My Lord Amintor swears we are no maid now.
Eoad. Fish!
Str. 1 faith, he does.

Eoad. I know I should be mock'd.
Diph. With a truth.

Eoad. If 't were to do again,
In faith would I not marry.
Amin. (Aside.) Nor I, by Heaven!
Diph. Sister, Dula swears
She heard you cry two rooms off.
Eoad. Fie, how you talk!
Diph. Let's see you walk, Evadne. By my troth,
You're spoil'd,
Amin. Amintor,—
Amin. Ha!

Mel. Thou art sad.
Amin. Who, I? I thank you for that.
Shall Diphilus, thou, and I, sing a catch?

Mel. How?
Amin. Frith, let's.
Mel. Nay, that's too much the other way.
Amin. I'm so light'ned with my happiness! —
How dost thou, love? Kiss me.
Eoad. I cannot love you, you tell tales of me.
Amin. Nothing but what becomes us. —

Gentlemen,
Would you had all such wives, and all the world,
That I might be no wonder! You're all sad:
What, do you envy me? I walk, methinks,
On water, and ne'er sink. I am so light.
Mel. 'Tis well you are so.
Amin. Well! how can I be other,
When she looks thus? — Is there no music there?
Let's dance.

Mel. Why this is strange, Amintor!
Amin. I do not know myself; yet I could wish
My joy were less.
Diph. I'll marry too, if it will make one thus.
Eoad. (Aside.) Amintor, hark.
Amin. What says my love? — I must obey.
Eoad. You do it servily, 't will be perceiv'd.
Cleo. My lord, the King is here.

Enter King and Lyceus.

Amin. Where?
Str. And his brother.

King. Good morrow, all! —
Amintor, joy on joy fall thick upon thee! —
And, madam, you are alter'd since I saw you;

1 The Q. have no point after more; F. has a comma.

8 In Q. and F this sentence is given to Evadne, her name becoming a speech-tag.
They that break word with Heaven will break
again

With all the world, and so dost thou with me.
Eevad. How, sir?

King. This subtle woman's ignorance will not excuse you: thou hast taken oaths, so great that, methought, they did misbecome a woman's mouth, that thou wouldst no' er enjoy a man but me.
Eevad. I never did swear so; you do me wrong.

King. Day and night have heard it. I swore indeed that I would never love a man of lower place; but, if your fortune

Should throw you from this height, I bade you trust I would forsake you, and would bend to him. That won your throne. I love with my ambition.

Not with my eyes. But, if I ever yet

Touched any other, leprosy light here Upon my face! which for your royalty I would not stain!

King. Why, thou dissemblest, and it is in me to punish thee.

Eevad. Why, it is in me, then, not to love you, which will more afflict your body than your punishment can mine.

King. But thou hast let Amintor lie with thee.

Eevad. I ha' not.

King. Impudence! he says himself so.

Eevad. 'A lies.

King. 'A does not.

Eevad. By this light, he does.

Strangely and basely! and I'll prove it so.
I did not only shun him for a night, but told him I would never close with him.

King. Speak lower; it is false.

Eevad. I am no man to answer with a blow; or, if I were, you are the King. But urge me not; 'tis most true.

King. Do not I know the uncontrolled thoughts that youth brings with him, when his blood is high? With expectation and desire of that He long hath waited for? Is not his spirit, though he be temperate, of a valiant strain as this our age hath known? What could he do, if such a sudden speech had met his blood, but ruin thee for ever, if he had not kill'd thee?
He could not bear it thus: he is as we, or any other wrong'd man.

Eevad. It is dissembling.
King. Take him! farewell: henceforth I am thy foe;
And what disgraces I can blot thee with, look for.

Eevad. Stay, sir! — Amintor! — You shall hear. — Amintor!

Amin. [coming forward.] What, my love.
Thou, that dar’st talk unto thy husband thus,
Profess thyself a whore, and, more than so,
Resolve to be so still! — It is my fate
To bear and bow beneath a thousand griefs,
To keep that little credit with the world! —
But there were wise ones too; you might have ta’en

Another.

King. No: for I believ’d thee honest,
As thou wert valiant.

Amin. All the happiness
Bestow’d upon me turns into disgrace.
Gods, take your honesty again, for I Am loaden with it! — Good my lord the King,
Be private in it.

King.
Thou mayst live, Aminter,
Free as thy king, if thou wilt wink at this,
And be a means that we may meet in secret.

Amin. A bawd! Hold, hold, my breast! A bitter curse
Seize me, if I forget not all respects
That are religious, on another word
Sounded like that; and through a sea of sins
Will wade to my revenge, though I should call Pains here and after life upon my soul!

King. Well, I am resolute
you lay not with her;
And so I leave you.

Exit.
Ewav. You must needs be prating;
And see what follows!

Amin. Prithee, vex me not.
Leave me; I am afraid some sudden start
Will pull a murder on me.

Ewav. I am gone;

I love my life well.

Exit.
Amin. I hate mine as much.
This ‘tis to break a truth! I should be glad,
If all this tide of grief would make me mad.

Exit.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Melantius.

Mel. I’ll know the cause of all Aminter’s
griefs,
Or friendship shall be idle.

Enter Callanax.

Cal. Oh, Melantius,

Mel. My daughter will die!

Cal. Trust me, I am sorry:

Mel. Would thou hast ta’en her room!

Cal. Thou art a slave,
A out-throast slave, a bloody treacherous slave!
Mel. Take heed, old man; thou wilt be heard to rave,
And lose thine offices.

Cal. I am valiant grown
At all these years, and thou art but a slave!

Mel. Leave!

Cal. Leave me!
Some company will come, and I respect
Thy years, not thee, so much, that I could wish
To laugh at thee alone.

Cal.
I’ll spoil your mirth:
I mean to fight with thee. There lie, my cloak.

*Fortunate qualities.
A room in the palace.
Convinced.
This was my father’s sword, and he durst fight. Are you prepar’d?

Mel.  Why wilt thou dote thyself out of thy life? Hence, get thee to bed, Have careful looking-to, and eat warm things, And trouble not me: my head is full of thoughts More weighty than thy life or death can be.

Cal. You have a name in war, where you stand safe Amongst a multitude; but I will try What you dare do unto a weak old man In single fight. You will give ground, I fear. Come, draw.

Mel. I will not draw, unless thou pull’st thy death Upon thee with a stroke. There’s no one blow, That thou canst give bath strength enough to kill me. Tempt me not so far, then: the power of earth Shall not redeem thee.

Cal. [Aside.] I must let him alone; He’s stout and able; and, to say the truth, However I may set a face and talk, I am not valiant. When I was a youth, I kept my credit with a testy trick I had ’most lov’d bowards, but durst never fight.

Mel. I will not promise to preserve your life, If you do stay.

Cal. [Aside.] I would give half my land That I durst fight with that proud man a little. If I had men to hold him, I would beat him Till he ask me mercy.

Mel. Sir, will you be gone? Cal. [Aside.] I dare not stay; but I will go home, and beat My servants all over for this. Exit. Mel. This old fellow haunts me. But the distracted carriage of mine Amintor Takes deeply on me. I will find the cause: I fear his conscience cries, he wrong’d Aspasia.

Enter Amintor.

Amin. [Aside.] Man’s eyes are not so subtle to perceive My inward misery: I bear my grief Hid from the world. How art thou wroth then? For aught I know, all husbands are like me; And every one I talk with of his wife Is but a well dissemer of his woes, As I am. Would I knew it! for the rareness Afflicts me now.

Mel. Amintor, we have not enjoy’d our friendship of late, for we were wont to change our souls in talk.

Amin. Melanius, I can tell thee a good jest of Strato and a lady the last day.

Mel. How was’t?

Amin. Why, such an odd one!

Mel. I have long’d to speak with you; not of an idle jest, that’s foro’d, but of matter you are bound, to utter to me.

Amin. What is that, my friend?

Mel. I have observ’d your words fall from your tongue

Wildly; and all your carriage Like one that strove to show his merry mood, When he was ill dispos’d. You were not wont To put such scorn into your speech, or wear Upon your face ridiculous jollity.

Some sadness sits here, which your cunning would be Cover o’er with smiles, and ’t will not be. What is it?

Amin. A sadness here! What cause Can fate provide for me to make me so? Am I not lov’d through all this isle? The King Rains greatness on me. Have I not received A lady to my bed, that in her eye Keeps mounting fire, and on her tender cheeks Inevitable colour, in her heart A prison for all virtue? Are not you, Which is above all joys, my constant friend? What sadness can I have? No; I am light, And feel the courses of my blood more warm And stirring than they were. Faith, marry too; And you will feel so unexpress a joy In chaste embraces, that you will indeed Appear another.

Mel. You may shape, Amintor, Causes to cozen the whole world withal, And you yourself too; but ’t is not like a friend To hide your soul from me. ’T is not your nature To be thus idle. I have seen you stand As you were blasted midst all your mirth; Call thrice aloud, and then start, feigning joy So coldly! — World, what do I here? A friend Is nothing. Heaven, I would ha’ told that man My secret sins! I ’ll search an unknown land, And there plant friendship; all is withered here. Come with a compliment I would have fought, Or told my friend ’a lied, ere sooth’d him so.— Out of my bosom!

Amin. But there is nothing.

Mel. Worse and worse! farewell: From this time have acquaintance, but no friend. Amin. Melanius, stay: you shall know what that is. Mel. See how you play’d with friendship! Be advis’d How you give cause unto yourself to say You ha’ lost a friend.

Amin. Forgive what I ha’ done; For I am so o’ergone with injuries Unheard of, that I lose consideration Of what I ought to do. Oh, oh!

Mel. Do not weep. What is ’t? May I once but know the man Hath turn’d my friend thus!

Amin. I had spoke at first, But that ——

Mel. But what?

Amin. I held it most unfit For you to know. Faith, do not know it yet.

Mel. Thou see’st my love, that will keep company

With thee in tears; hide nothing, then, from me; For when I know the cause of thy distemper, With mine old armour I’ll adorn myself,

* Irresistible.  2 Caioled.
To urge a weighty secret from your friend, 126
And then rage at it. I shall be at ease,
If I be kill’d; and, if you fall by me,
I shall not long outlive you.

Mel. Stay awhile.—
The name of friend is more than family,
Or all the world besides: I was a fool.
Thou searching human nature, that didst wake
To do me wrong; thou art inquisitive,
And thrustest me upon questions that will take
My sleep away! Would I had died, ere known
This sad dishonour! — Pardon me, my friend!

[Scheath's his sword.]

If thou wilt strike, here is a faithful heart;
Pierce it, for I will never leave my hand
To thine. Behold the power thou hast in me!
I do believe my sister is a whore,
A leprous one. Put up thy sword, young man.
Amin. How should I bear it, then, she being so?
I fear, my friend, that you will lose me shortly;

[Scheath's his sword.]

And I shall do a foul act on myself,
Through these disgraces.

Mel. Better half the land 128
Were buried quick together. No, Amintor;
Thou shalt have ease. Oh, this adulterous King,
That drew her to 't! Where got he the spirit
To wrong me so?

Amin. What is it, then, to me,
If it be wrong to you?

Mel. Why, not so much. 128
The credit of our house is thrown away.
But from his iron den I'll waken Death,
And hurl him on this King. My honesty
Shall steel my sword; and on its horrid point
I'll wear my cause, that shall amaze the eyes
Of this proud man, and be too glittering
For him to look on.

Amin. I have quite undone my fame.
Mel. Dry up thy watery eyes,
And cast a manly look upon my face; 130
For nothing is so wild as thy friend,
Till I have freed thee. Still this swelling breast.
I go thus from thee, and will never cease
My vengeance till I find thy heart at peace.

Amin. It must not be so. Stay. Mine eyes would tell
How loth I am to this; but, love and tears,
Leave me awhile! for I have hazard'd
All that this world calls happy. — Thou hast wrought
A secret from me, under name of friend,
Which art could ne'er have found, nor torture wrong
From out my bosom. Give it me again;
For I will find it, whereas'er it lies,
Hid in the mortal's part. Invent a way
To give it back.

Mel. Why would you have it back?
I will to death pursue him with revenge, 118 Amin. Therefore I call it back from thee; for I
know
Thy blood so high, that thou wilt stir in this,
And shame me to posterity. Take to thy weapon!

[Draws his sword.]
Mel. Hear thy friend, that bears more years than thou.
Amin. I will not hear: but draw, or I——
Mel. Amintor! Amin.
Amin. Draw, then; for I am full as resolute
As fame and honour can enforce me be:
I cannot linger. Draw!
Mel. I do. But is not
My share of credit equal with thine,
If I do stir?
Amin. No; for it will be call'd
Honour in thee to spill thy sister's blood,
If she her birth abuse; and, on the King
A brave revenge: but on me, that have walkt
With patience in it, it will fix the name
Of fearful cuckold. Oh, that word! Be quick.
Mel. Then, join with me.
Amin. I dare not do a sin, or else I would. Be speedy.
Mel. Then, dare not fight with me; for that's A sin.
His grief distracts him. — Call thy thoughts again,
And to thyself pronounce the name of friend,
And see what that will work. I will not fight.
Amin. You must.
Mel. [sheathing his sword.] I will be kill'd first.
Though my passions
Offered the like to you, 't is not this earth
Shall buy my reason to it. Think awhile,
For you are (I must weep when I speak that)
Almost besides yourself.
Amin. [sheathing his sword.] Oh, my soft temper!
So many sweet words from thy sister's mouth,
I am afraid would make me take her to Embrace, and pardon her. I am mad indeed,
And know not what I do. Yet, have a care
Of me in what thou dost.
Mel. Why, thinks my friend
I will forget his honour? or, to save
The bravery of our house, will lose his fame,
And fear to touch the throne of majesty?
Amin. A curse will follow that; but rather
And suffer with me.
Mel. I will do what worth
Shall bid me, and no more.
Amin. Faith, I am sick,
And desperately I hope; yet, leaning thus,
I feel a kind of ease.
Mel. Come, take again
Your mirth about you.
Amin. I shall never do't.
Mel. I warrant you; look up; we'll walk togeth'er;
Put thine arm here; all shall be well again.
Amin. Thy love (oh, wrested!) ay, thy love
Melantius;
Why, I have nothing else.
Mel. Be merry, then. Exeunt.

Re-enter Melantius.

Mel. This worthy young man may do violence
Upon himself; but I have cherished him
To my best power, and sent him smiling from
me,
To counterfeit again. Sword, hold thine edge;
My heart will never fail me.

Enter Diphilus.

Diphilus! Thou com'st as sent.
Diph. Yonder has been such laughing.
Mel. Betwixt whom?
Diph. Why, our sister and the King.
I thought their spleens would break; they laught us all
Out of the room.
Mel. They must weep, Diphilus.
Diph. Must they?
Mel. They must.
Thou art my brother; and, if I did believe
Thou hadst a base thought, I would rip it out,
Lye where it durst.
Diph. You should not; I would first
Mangle myself and find it.
Mel. That was spoke.
According to our straws. Come, join thy hands to mine,
And swear a firmness to what project I Shall lay before thee.
Diph. You do wrong us both.
People hereafter shall not say there past
A bond, more than our loves, to tie our lives
And deaths together.
Mel. It is as nobly said as I would wish.
Anon I'll tell you wonders: we are wrong'd.
Diph. But I will tell you now, we'll right ourselves.
Mel. Stay not: prepare the armour in my house;
And what friends you can draw unto our side,
Not knowing of the cause, make ready too.
Haste, Diphilus, the time requires it, haste! —
Exit Diphilus.

I hope my cause is just; I know my blood
Tells me it is; and I will credit it.
To take revenge, and lose myself withal,
Were idle; and to escape impossible,
Without I had the fort, which (misery!)
Remaining in the hands of my old enemy
Calianax — but I must have it. See

Re-enter Calianax.

Where he comes shaking by me! — Good my
lord,
Forget your spleen to me. I never wrong'd you,
But would have peace with every man.
Cal. 'Tis well;
If I durst fight, your tongue would lie at quiet.
Mel. You're touchy without all cause.
Cal. Do, mock me.
Mel. By mine honour, I speak truth.
Cal. Honour! where is 't?
Mel. See, what starts you make
Into your idle hatred, to my love
And freedom to you. I come with resolution
To obtain a suit of you.
Cal. A suit of me! 'Tis very like it should be granted, sir.
Mel. Nay, go not hence.

1 Race, stock.
IV. 1. THE MAID'S TRAGEDY

'Tis this; you have the keeping of the fort,
And I would wish you, by the love you ought
To bear unto me, to deliver it
Into my hands.

Cal. I am in hope thou art mad,
To talk to me thus.

Mel. But there is a reason
To move you to it: I would kill the King,
That wrong'd you and your daughter.

Cal. Out, traitor!

Mel. Nay, but stay: I cannot escape, the deed
Once done.

Without I have this fort.

Cal. And should I help thee?
Now thy treacherous mind betrays itself.

Mel. Come, delay me not;
Give me a sudden answer, or already Thy last is spoke! Refuse not offered love
When it comes clad in secrets.

Cal. [Aside.] If I say
I will not, he will kill me; I do see't Writ in his looks; and should I say I will,
He'll run and tell the King.—I do not shun
Your friendship, dear Melantium; but this cause
Is weighty: give me but an hour to think.

Mel. Take it.—[Aside.] I know this goes unto the King;
But I am arm'd. Exit.

Cal. Methinks I feel myself
But twenty now again. This fighting fool
Wants policy: I shall revenge my girl,
And make her red again. I pray my legs
Will last that pace that I will carry them:
I shall want breath before I find the King.

Exit.

ACT IV

SCENE I. 1

Evad, Melantius, Evadne, and Ladies.

Mel. Save you!

Evad. Save you, sweet brother.

Mel. In my blunt eye, methinks, you look,
Evadne—

Evad. Come, you would make me blush.

Mel. I would, Evadne;

Evad. I shall displease my ends else.

Evad. You shall, if you
Commend me; I am bashful. Come, sir, how do
I look?

Mel. I would not have your women hear me
Break into commendation of you; 't is not Seemly.

Evad. Go wait me in the gallery.

Evadne. Execunt Ladies.

Now speak.

Mel. I'll lock the door first.

Evad. Why?

Mel. I will not have your gilded things, that dance
In visitation with their Milan skins, 2
Choke up my business.

1 An apartment of Evadne.
2 Gloves manufactured at Milan.

Evad. You are strangely dispose'd, sir.

Mel. Good madam, not to make you marry.

Evad. No; if you praise me, it will make me sad.

Mel. Such a sad commendation I have for you.

Evad. Brother,

The court hath made you witty, and learn to riddle.

Mel. I praise the court for 't: has it learn'd you nothing?

Evad. Me!

Ay, Evadne; thou art young and handsome,
A lady of a sweet complexion,
And such a flowing carriage, that it cannot Choose but inflame a kingdom.

Evad. Gentle brother!

Mel. 'Tis yet in thy repentance, foolish woman,
To make me gentle.

Evad. How is this?

Mel. 'Tis base;

And I could blush, at these years, through all
My honour's scars, to come to such a parley.

Evad. I understand you not.

Mel. You dare not, fool!

They that commit thy faults fly the remembrance.

Evad. My faults, sir! I would have you know,
I care not;

If they were written here, here in my forehead.

Mel. Thy body is too little for the story;
The lusts of which would fill another woman,
Though she had twins within her.

Evad. This is savor:

Look you intrude no more! There's your way.

Mel. Thou art my way, and I will tread upon these.

Till I find truth out.

Evad. What truth is that you look for?

Mel. Thy long-lost honour. Would the gods had set me
Rather to grapple with the plague, or stand
One of their loudest bolts! Come, tell me quickly,

Do it without enforcement, and take heed

You swell me not above my temper.

Evad. How, sir!

Where got you this report?

Mel. Where there was people.

In every place.

Evad. They and the seconds of it
Are base people: believe them not, they lied.

Mel. Do not play with mine anger; do not wretch!

[Seizes her.]

I come to know that desperate fool that drew
these
From thy fair life. Be wise, and lay him open.

Evad. Unhand me, and learn manners! Such another

Forgetfulness forfeits your life.

Mel. Quench me this mighty humour, and then tell me

Whose where you are; for you are one, I know it.

Theobald read, As though ad'ad. Other edd. take all in sense of "cover with writing;" Dyce as "inflame," which is perhaps best.
Let all mine honours perish but I'll find him
Though he lie lock'd up in thy blood! Be sudden;
There is no facing it; and be not flatter'd.
The burnt air, when the Dog reigns, is not to you:
Than thy contagious name, till thy repentance
(If the gods grant thee any) purge thy sickness.
Eiad. Begone! you are my brother; that's your safety.
Mel. I'll be a wolf first. 'Tis to, be thy brother,
An infamy below the sin of coward.
I am as far from being part of thee
As thou art from thy virtue. Seek a kindred Mongst sensual beasts, and make a goat thy brother;
A goat is cooler. Will you tell me yet?
Eiad. If you stay here and rail thus, I shall tell you
I 'll ha' you whipt! Get you to your command,
And there preach to your sentiments, and tell them
What brave man you are: I shall laugh at you.
Mel. You're grown a glorious whore! Where be your fighters?
What mortal fool dare raise thee to this daring,
And I alive! By my just sword, he'd safer
Bestride a billow when the angry North
Ploughs up the sea, or made Heaven's fire his foe!
Work me no higher. Will you discover yet?
Eiad. The fellow's mad. Sleep, and speak sense.
Mel. Force my swole'nt heart no further; I would save thee.
Your great maintainers are not here, they dare not.
Would they were all, and armed! I would speak loud;
Here's one should thunder to 'em! Will you tell me then—
Thou hast no hope to scape. He that dares
And damns away his soul to do thee service,
Will sooner snatch meat from a hungry lion
Than come to resone thee. Thou hast death about thee;
Has undone thine honour, poison'd thy virtue,
And, of a lovely rose, left thee a canker.
Eiad. Let me consider.
Mel. Do, whose child thou wert,
Whose honour thou hast murdered, whose grave opened,
And so pull'd on the gods that in their justice
They must restore him flesh again and life,
And raise his dry bones to revenge this scandal.
Eiad. The gods are not of my mind; they had better
Let 'em lie sweet still in the earth; they 'll stink here.
Mel. Do you raise mirth out of my easiness?
Forsake me, then, all weaknesses of nature.
[Draws his sword.]
THE MAID'S TRAGEDY

IV. i.

Mel. Dost thou not feel, 'mongst all those, one brave anger, That breaks out nobly, and directs thine arm
To kill this base King?

Evad. All the gods forbid it!

Mel. No, all the gods require it; They are dishonoured in him.

Evad. 'Tis too fearful.

Mel. You're valiant in his bed, and bold enough
To be a stale whore, and have your madam's name

Discourse for grooms and pages; and hereafter, When his cool majesty hath laid you by,

To be at pension with some needy sir
For meat and coarser clothes; thus far you know

No fear. Come, you shall kill him.

Evad. An 't were to kiss him dead, thou 'dst

Another him:

Be wise, and kill him. Canst thou live, and know

What noble minds shall make thee, see thyself

Found out with every finger, made the shame

Of all succeeded, and in this great ruin

Thy brother and thy noble husband broken?

Thou shalt not live thus. Kneel, and swear to help me,

When I shall call thee to it; or, by all

Holy in Heaven and earth, thou shalt not live

To breathe a full hour longer; not a thought!

Come 't is a righteous oath. Give me thy hands,

And, both to Heaven held up, swear by that wealth

This lustful thief stole from thee, when I say it,

To let his foul soul out.

Evad. Here I swear it; [Kneels.] And, all you spirits of abused ladies,

Help me in this performance!

Mel. [raising her] Enough. This must be known to none

But you and I, Evadne; not to your lord,

Though he be wise and noble, and a fellow

Dares step as far into a worthy action

As the most daring, ay, as far as justice.

Ask me not why. Farewell. Exit. 118

Evad. Would I could say so to my black disgrace!

Oh, where have I been all this time? How friended,

That I should lose myself thus desperately.

And none for pity show me how I wand'red?

There is not in the compass of the light

A more unhappy creature: sure, I am monstrous:

For I have done those follies, those mad mischiefs,

Would dare 1 a woman. Oh, my loaden soul,

Be not so cruel to me; choke not up

The way to my repentance!

Enter AMINOR.

Amin. How now?

Amin. This cannot be!

Evad. I do not kneel to live; I dare not hope

it;

The wrongs I did are greater. Look upon me,

Though I appear with all my faults.

Amin. This is a new way to beget more sorrow;

Heaven knows I have too many. Do not mock me;

Though I am tame, and bred up with my wrongs,

Which are my foster-brothers, I may leap,

Like a hand-wolf, 2 into my natural wildness,

And do an outrage. Prithee, do not mock me.

Evad. My whole life is so leprous, it infects

All my repentance. I would buy your pardon,

Though at the highest set, 3 even with my life:

That slight contrition, that's no sacrifice,

For what I have committed.

Amin. Sure, I dazle:

There cannot be a faith in that foul woman,

That knows no god more mighty than her mischiefs,

Thou dost still worse, still number on thy faults,

To press my poor heart thus. Can I believe

There's any seed of virtue in that woman

Left to shoot up, that dares go on in sin

Known, and so known as thine is? Oh, Evadne!

Would there were any safety in thy sex.

That I might put a thousand sorrows off,

And credit thy repentance! but I must not.

Thou hast brought me to that dull calamity,

To that strange misbelieve of all the world

And all things that are in it, that I fear

I shall fall like a tree, and find my grave,

Only rememb'ring that I grieve.

Evad. Give me your griefs: you are an innocent,

A soul as white as Heaven; let not my sins

Perish your noble youth. I do not fall here

To shadow by dissembling with my tears,

(As all say women can,) or to make less

What my hot will hath done, which Heaven and you

Know to be tougher than the hand of time

Can cut from man's remembrance; no, I do not;

I do appear the same, the same Evadne,

Drest in the shames I liv'd in, the same monsster.

But these are names of honour to what I am;

I do present myself the foulest creature,

Most poisonous, dangerous, and despis'd of men,

Lerna 4 e'er bred or Nilus, I am hell,

Till you, my dear lord, shoot your light into me,

The beams of your forgiveness; I am soul-sick,

And wither with the fear of one condemn'd,

Till I have got your pardon.

Amin. Rise, Evadne,

Those heavenly powers that put this good into thee

Grant a continuance of it! I forgive thee:

Make thyself worthy of it; and take heed,

1 Frighten.

2 A tame wolf.

3 Stake.

4 The marsh where the Hydra lived which Hercules slew.
Take heed, Evadne, this be serious.
Mook not the powers above, that can and dare
Give thee a great example of their justice.
To all ensuing ages, if thou play'st at

Evad. I have done nothing good to win belief,
My life hath been so faithless. All the creatures,
Made for Heaven's honours, have their ends,
And good ones.
All but the oozing crocodiles, false women.
They reign here like those plagues, those killing sores.

Men pray against; and when they die, like tales
Ill told and unbeliev'd, they pass away,
And go to dust forgotten. But, my lord,
Those short days I shall number to my rest
(As many must not see me) shall, though too late,
Though in my evening, yet perceive a will,
Since I can do no good, because a woman,
Reach constantly at something that is near it:
I will redeem one minute of my age,
Or, like another Niobe, I'll weep,

Till I am water.

*Min. I am now dissolv'd:
My frozen soul melts. May each sin thou hast,
Find a new mercy! Rise; I am at peace.*

Hadst thou been thus, thus excellently good,

Before that devil-king tempted thy frailty,
Sure thou hadst made a star. Give me thy hand.
From this time I will know thee; and, as far
As honour gives me leave, be thy Amintor.
When we meet next, I will salute thee fairly,
And pray the gods to give thee happy days:
My charity shall go along with thee,
Though my embraces must be far from thee,
I should ha' kill'd thee, but this sweet repentence
Locks up my vengeance: for which thus I kiss thee.

The last kiss we must take: and would to Heaven
The holy priest that gave our hands together
Had given us equal virtues! Go, Evadne;
The gods thus part our bodies. Have a care
My honour falls no farther: I am well, then.

Evad. All the dear joys here, and above hereafter,
Crown thy fair soul! Thus I take leave, my lord;
And never shall you see the foul Evadne.
Till she have tried all honoured means, that may

Set her in rest and wash her stains away.

Exit [severally].

[Sceane II.] 3

A Banquet spread. Enter King and Callianax, Hautboys play within.

King. I cannot tell how I should credit this
From you, that are his enemy.

Cal. I am sure

He said it to me; and I'll justify it.
What way he dares oppose—but with my sword.

King. But did he break, without all circumstance
To you, his foe, that he would have the fort, 9
To kill me, and then escape?

Cal. If he deny it,

King. It sounds incredibly.

Cal. Ay, so does every thing I say of late.

King. Not so, Callianax.

Cal. Yes, I should sit
Mute, whilst a rogue with strong arms cuts your throat.

King. Well, I will try him; and, if this be true,
I'll pawn my life I'll find it; if 't be false,
And that you clothe your hate in such a lie,
You shall hereafter dote in your own house,
Not in the court.

Cal. Why, if it be a lie.

Minstrels are false, for I'll be sworn I heard it.
Old men are good for nothing; you were best
Put me to death for hearing, and free him
For meaning it. You would ha' trusted me
Once, but the time is altered.

King. And will still,
Where I may do with justice to the world.
You have no witness.

Cal. Yes, myself.

King. No more,
I mean, there were that heard it.

Cal. How? no more!
Would you have more? Why, am I not enough
To hang a thousand rogues?

King. But so you may
Hang honest men too, if you please.

Cal. Sir?

King. Why, where's all the company? Call Amintor in Evdane. Where's my brother, and Melantius?
Bid him come too; and Diphilus. Call all
That are without there.

Exit Strato.

Strato.

King. If he should desire
The combat of you; 'tis not in the power
Of all our laws to hinder it, unless
We mean to quit 'em.

Cal. Why, if you do think
'Tis fit an old man and a councillor
To fight for what he says, then you may grant it.

Enter Amintor, Evadne, Melantius, Diphilus, Lynippos, Cleon, Strato, and Diagonas.

King. Come, sirs!—Amintor, thou art yet a bridegroom,
And I will use thee so; thou shalt sit down.—
Evdane, sit; — and you, Amintor, too;
This banquet is for you, sir. — Who has brought
A merry tale about him, to raise laughter
Amongst our wine? Why, Strato, where art thou?
Thou wilt chop out with them unseasonably,
When I desire 'em not.
Str. 'T is my ill luck, sir, so to spend them,
then.
King. Reach me a bowl of wine.— Melantius, thou
Art sad.
Mel. I should be, sir, the merriest here,
But I ha' ne'er a story of mine own
Worth telling at this time.
King. Give me the wine. —
Melantius, I am now considering
How easy 'twere for any man we trust
To poison one of us in such a bowl.
Mel. I think it were not hard, sir, for a knife.
Cal. [Aside.] Such as you are.
King. 'T faith, 'twere easy. It becomes us well
To get plain-dealing men about ourselves;
Such as you all are here.— Amintor, to thee;
And to thy fair Evdane. [Drinks.] Mel. [Aside.]
Have you thought
Of this, Calianax?
Cal. Yes, marry, have I.
Mel. And what's your resolution?
Cal. You shall have it, —
[Aside.] Soundly, I warrant you.
King. Reach to Amintor, Strato.
Amin. Here, my love;
[Drinks and then hands the cup to EVADNE.]
This wine will do these wrong, for it will set
Blushes upon thy cheeks; and, till thou dost
A fault, 't were pity.
King. Yet I wonder much
[At the strange desperation of these men,
That dare attempt such acts here in our state:
He could not scarce that did it.
Mel. Were he known,
Unpossible.
King. It would be known, Melantius.
Mel. It ought to be. If he got then away,
He must wear all our lives upon his sword:
He need not fly the island; he must leave
No one alive.
King. No; I should think no man
Could kill me, and scarce clear, but that old man.
Cal. But I! Heaven bless me! I! should I,
my liege?
King. I do not think thou wouldst; but yet thou mightest,
For thou hast in thy hands the means to scape,
By keeping of the fort.— He has, Melantius,
And he has kept it well.
Mel. From cobwebs, sir,
'Tis clean swept; I can find no other art
In keeping of it now. 'T was me'er besieg'd
Since he commanded.
Cal. I shall be sure
Of your good word; but I have kept it safe
From such as you.
Mel. Keep your ill temper in:
I speak no malice; had my brother kept it,
I should ha' said as much.
King. You are not merry.
Brother, drink wine. Sit you all still: — (Aside.)
Calianax,
I cannot trust this. I have thrown out words,
That would have fetched warm blood upon the cheeks
Of guilty men, and he is never mov'd;
He knows no such thing.
Cal. Impudence may escape,
When feeble virtue is assay'd.
King. 'A must,
If he were guilty, feel an alteration
At this our whisper, whilst we point at him:
You see he does not.
Cal. Let him hang himself; —
What care I what he does? This he did say.
King. Melantius, you can easily conceive
What I have meant; for men that are in fault
Can subtly apprehend when others aim
At what they do amiss: but I forgive
Freely before this man, — Heaven do so too!
I will not touch thee, so much as with shame
Of telling it. Let it be so no more.
Cal. Why, this is very fine!
Mel. I cannot tell
What 't is you mean; but I am apt enough
Rudely to thrust into an ignorant fault.
But let me know it. Happily 't is sought
But misconstruction; and, where I am clear,
I will not take forgiveness of the gods,
Much less of you.
King. Nay, if you stand so stiff,
I shall call back my mercy.
Mel. I want smoothness
To thank a man for pardoning of a crime
I never knew.
King. Not to intrust your knowledge, but to show you
My ears are every where; you meant to kill me,
And get the fort to scape.
Mel. Pardon me, sir;
My bluntness will be pardoned. You preserve
A race of idle people here about you,
Rascals and talkers, to defame the worth
Of those that do things worthy. The man that uttered this
Had perisht without food, be 't who it will,
But for this arm, that fence'd him from the foe;
And if I thought you gave a faith to this,
The plainness of my nature would speak more.
Give me a pardon (for you ought to do 't)
To kill him that spake this.
Cal. [Aside.] Ay, that will be
The end of all; then I am fairly paid
For all my care and service.
Mel. That old man,
Who calls me enemy, and of whom I
(Though I will never match my hate so low)
Have no good thought, would yet, I think, excuse me,
And swear he thought me wrong’d in this,
Cal.
Thou shameless fellow! didst thou not speak to me
Of it thyself?
Mel. Oh, then it came from him! 150
Cal. From me, who should it come from but from me?
Mel. Nay, I believe your malice is enough;
But I have lost my anger.—Sir, I hope
You are well satisfied.
King.
Lysippus, cheer Amintor and his lady.—There’s no sound 155
Comes from you; I will come and do’t myself.
Amin. [Aside.] You have done already, sir, for me, I thank you.
King. Melanius, I do credit this from him,
How slight soever you make’t.
Mel. ’Tis strange you should. 160
Cal. ’T is strange ’a should believe an old man’s word
That never lied in ’s life!
Mel. I talk not to thee.—Shall the wild words of this distempered man, Frantic with age and sorrow, make a breach
Betwixt your majesty and me? ’T was wrong
To hearken to him; but to credit him, 165
As much as least as I have power to bear.
But pardon me—whilst I speak only truth,
I may commend myself—I have bestow’d
My careless blood with you, and should be loth
To think an action that would make me lose 170
That and my thanks too. When I was a boy,
I thrust myself into my country’s cause,
And did a deed that placeth five years from time.
And styld me man then. And for you, my
King,
Your subjects all have fed by virtue of 175
My arm. This sword of mine hath plough’d
the ground,
And reap’d the fruit in peace;
And you yourself have liv’d at home in ease.
So terrible I grew, that without swords,
My name hath fetch’d you conquest: and my heart 180
And limbs are still the same; my will as great
To do you service. Let me not be paid
With such a strange distrust.
King. Melanius,
I held it great injustice to believe
Thine enemy, and did not; if I did, 185
I do not; let that satisfy.—What, struck
With sadness all! More wine!
Cal. A few fine words
Have overthrown my truth. Ah, thou’rt a villain!
Mel. [Aside.] Why, thou wert better let me have the fort:
Dotard, I will disgrace thee thus for ever! 190
There shall no credit lie upon thy words.
Think better, and deliver it.
Cal. My liege,
He’s at me now again to do it.—Speak;
Deny it, if thou canst.—Examine him
Whilst he is hot; for, if he cool again,
He will forswear it.
King. This is lunacy,
I hope, Melanius.
Mel. He hath lost himself
Much, since his daughter mist the happiness
My sister gain’d; and, though he call me foe,
I pity him.
Cal. Pity! A pox upon you! 195
Mel. Mark his disordered words: and at the masque
Diagoras knows he rag’d and rail’d at me,
And call’d a lady "whore," so innocent
She understood him not. But it becomes
Both you and me too to forgive distraction: 200
Pardon him, as I do.
Cal. I’ll not speak for thee,
For all thy cunning.—If you will be safe,
Chop off his head; for there was never known
So impudent a rascal.
King. Some, that love him,
Get him to bed. Why, pity should not let Age make itself contemptible; we must be
All old. Have him away.
Mel. [Aside.] Calianax,
The king believes you; come, you shall go
home,
And rest; you ha’ done well. You’ll give it up,
When I have us’d you thus a month, I hope. 205
Cal. Now, now, ’tis plain, sir; he does move me still.
He says, he knows I’ll give him up the fort,
When he has us’d me thus a month. I am mad, Am I not, still?
All. Ha, ha, ha!
Cal. I shall be mad indeed, if you do thus.
Why should you trust a sturdy fellow there? 210
(That has no virtue in him, all’s in his sword)
Before me? Do but take his weapons from him,
And he’s an ass; and I am a very fool,
Both with ‘em 2 and without ‘em, as you use me.
All. Ha, ha, ha!
King. ’T is well, Calianax: but if you use
This once again, I shall entreat some other
To see your offices be well discharge’d.—
Be merry, gentlemen.—It grows somewhat late.—
Amintor, thou wouldst be a-bed again.
Amin. Yes, sir.
King. And you, Evadne.—Let me take Thee in my arms, Melanius, and believe
Thou art, as thou dost, to be, my friend
Still and for ever. —Good Calianax,
Sleep soundly; it will bring thee to thyself.
Exeunt all except MELANIUS and CALIANAX.
Cal. Sleep soundly! I sleep soundly now, I hope;
I could not be thus else.—How darst thou
stay
Alone with me, knowing how thou hast us’d me?
So Dyce. Old add. him.
Mel. You cannot blast me with your tongue, and that's the strongest part you have about you.

Cal. Do look for some great punishment for this; for I begin to forget all my hate, and take't unkindly that mine enemy should use me so extraordinarily sourly. Mel. I shall melt too, if you begin to take unkindness: I never meant you hurt.

Cal. Thou 'st anger me again. Thou wretched rogue, Meant me no hurt! Disgrace me with the King! Lose all my offices! This is no hurt. Is it? I prithee, what dost thou call hurt?

Mel. To poison men, because they love me not; To call the credit of men's wives in question; To murder children betwixt me and land; This is all hurt.

Cal. All this thou think'st is sport; For mine is worse: but use thy will with me; For betwixt grief and anger I could cry.

Mel. Be wise, then, and be safe; thou may'st revenge.

Cal. Ay, o' the King: I would revenge of thee.

Mel. That you must plot yourself.

Cal. I'm a fine plotter.

Mel. The short is, I will hold thee with the King In this perplexity, till peevishness And thy disgrace have laid thee in thy grave. But if thou wilt deliver up the fort, I'll take thy trembling body in my arms, And bear thee over dangers. Thou shalt hold Thy wonted state.

Cal. If I should tell the King, Canst thou deny 't again?

Mel. Try, and believe.

Cal. Nay, then, thou canst bring any thing about.

Melanius, thou shalt have the fort.

Mel. Why, well. Here let our hate be buried; and this hand shall right us both. Give me thy aged breast To compass.

Cal. Nay, I do not love thee yet; I cannot well endure to look on thee; And if I thought it were a courtesy, Thou shouldest not have it. But I am disgrac'd; My offices are to be ta'en away; And, if I did but hold this fort a day, I do believe the King would take it from me, And give it thee, things are so strangely carried.

Ne'er thank me for 't; but yet the King shall know There was some such thing in 't I told him of, And that I was an honest man.

Re-enter Diphilus. He'll buy That knowledge very dearly.

Diphilus.

Diph. This were a night indeed To do it in: the King hath sent for her.

Mel. She shall perform it then. — Go, Diphilus, And take from this good man, my worthy friend, The fort; he 'll give it thee. Diph. Ha' you got that? Cal. Art thou of the same breed? Canst thou deny This to the King too?

Diph. With a confidence As great as his.

Cal. Faith, like enough.

Mel. Away, and use him kindly.

Cal. Touch not me; I hate the whole strain. If thou follow me A great way off, I 'll give thee up the fort; And hang yourselves.

Mel. Begone.

Diph. He's finely wrought.

Exeunt Calianax and Diphilus.

Mel. This is a night, spite of astronomers, To do the deed in. I will wash the stain That rests upon our house off with his blood.

Re-enter AMINTOR.

Amin. Melanius, now assist me: if thou be'st That which thou say'st, assist me. I have lost All my distempers, and have found a rage So pleasing! Help me.

Mel. [Aside.] Who can see him thus, And not swear vengeance? — What's the matter, friend?

Amin. Out with thy sword; and, hand in hand with me, Rush to the chamber of this hated King, And sink him with the weight of all his sins To hell for ever.

Mel. 'T were a rash attempt, Not to be done with safety. Let your reason Plot your revenge, and not your passion.

Amin. If thou refusest me in these extremes, Thou art no friend. He sent for her to me; By Heaven, to me, myself I and, I must tell you, I love her as a stranger: there is worth In that vile woman, worthy things, Melanius; And she repents, I 'll do myself alone, Though I be slain. Farewell.

Mel. [Aside.] He'll overthrow My whole design with madness. — Amintor, Think what thou dost: I dare as much as value: But 'tis the King, the King, the King, Amintor, With whom thou fightest! (Aside.) — I know he is honest. And this will work with him.

Amin. I cannot tell What thou hast said; but thou hast charm'd my sword Out of my hand, and left me shaking here, Defenceless.

1 Family. 2 Astrologers. 3 Loyal.
Mel. I will take it up for thee.
Amin. What a wild beast is uncollected man!
The thing that we call honour bears us all headlong unto sin, and yet itself is nothing.
Mel. Alas, how variable are thy thoughts! Amin. Just like my fortunes. I was run to that I purpose'd to have chid thee for. Some plot, I did distrust, thou hadst against the King, By that old fellow's carriage. But take heed; There's not the least limb growing to a King But carries thunder in't.
Mel. I have none.
Against him. Amin. Why, come, then; and still remember We may not think revenge.
Mel. I will remember. Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I.

Enter Evadne and a Gentleman [of the Bedchamber].

Evad. Sir, is the King a-bed?
Gen. Madam, an hour ago.
Evad. Give me the key, then, and let none be near;
'T is the King's pleasure.
Gen. I understand you, madam; would 't were mine!
I must not wish good rest unto your ladyship.
Evad. You talk, you talk.
Gen. 'T is all I dare do, madam; but the King
Will wake, and then, methinks—
Evad. Saving your imagination, pray, good night, sir.
Gen. A good night be it, then, and a long one, madam.
I am gone. Exit.

Evad. The night grows horrible; and all about me
Like my black purpose. Oh, the conscience
King abed.
Of a lost virgin, whither wilt thou pull me?
To what things dismal as the depth of hell
Wilt thou provoke me? Let no woman dare
From this hour be dialogal, if her heart be flesh, If she have blood, and can fear. 'T is a daring
Above that desperate fool's that left his peace, And went to sea to fight: 't is so many sins, An age cannot repent'em; and so great,
The gods want mercy for. Yet I must through 'em:
I have begun a slaughter on my honour, And I must end it there. —'A sleeps. Good Heavens!
Why give you peace to this untemperate beast, That hath so long transgress you? I must kill him,
And I will do it bravely: the mere joy
Without self-control. A room in the palace.
Mel. Thou dost not mean this; 't is impossible;
The number of his wrongs and punishments. I'll shape his sins like Furies, till I waken His evil angel, his sick conscience. And then I'll strike him dead. — King, by your leave; — Evad. Tis his arms to the bed. I dare not trust your strength; your grace and I Must grapple upon even terms no more. No more. — My lord! — Is he not dead already?
Sir! My lord!
King. Who's that?
Evad. Oh, you sleep soundly sir!
King. My dear Evadne, I have been dreaming of thee; come to bed.
Evad. I am come at length, sir; but how welcome?
King. What pretty new device is this, Evadne?
What do you tis me to you? By my love, This is a quaint one. Come, my dear, and kiss me;
I'll be thy Mars; to bed, my queen of love. Let us be caught together, that the gods May see and envy our embraces.
Evad. Stay, sir; stay;
You are too hot, and I have brought you physic To temper your high veins.
King. Prifsee, to bed, then; let me take it warm;
There thou shalt know the state of my body better.
Evad. I know you have a surfeited soul body;
And you must bleed. [Draws a knife.
King. Bleed!
Evad. Ay, you shall bleed. Lie still; and, if the devil, Your lust will give you leave, repent. This steel Comes to redeem the honour that you stole, King, my fair name; which nothing but thy death Can answer to the world.
King. How's this, Evadne?
Evad. I am not ahe; nor bear I in this breast So much cold spirit to be call'd a woman:
I am a tiger; I am any thing
That knows not pity. Stir not! If thou dost, I'll take thee unprepared, thy fears upon thee.
That make thy sins look double, and so send thee
(By my revenge, I will!) to look those torments Prepar'd for such black souls.
King. Thou dost not mean this; 't is impossible;
Thou art too sweet and gentle.
Evad. No, I am not:
I am as foul as thou art, and can number As many such hell's here. I was once fair, Once I was lovely; not a blowing rose.
More chastely sweet, till thou, thou, thou, foul Sinner.
(Stir not!) didst poison me. I was a world of virtue,
Till your curt'rous court and you (Hail bless you
for't!)
With your temptations on temptations
Made me give up mine honour; for which,
King,
I am come to kill thee.
King.
Evad.
I am.
King.
I prithee speak not these things. Thou art gentle,
And wert not meant thus rugged.
Evad.
Peace, and hear me.
Stir nothing but your tongue, and that for mercy
To those above us; by whose lights I vow,
Those blessed fires 3 that shot to see our sin,
If thy hot soul had substance with thy blood,
I would kill that too; which, being past my steel,
My tongue shall reach. Thou art a shameless
villain;
A thing out of the overcharge of nature
Sent, like a thick cloud, to disperse a plague
Upon weak catching 4 women; such a tyrant,
That for his lust would sell away his subjects,
Ay, all his Heaven hereafter!
King.
Hear, Evadne,
Thou soul of sweetness, hear! I am thy King.
Evad.
Thou art my shame! Lies still; there's none about you,
Within your cries; all promises of safety
Are but deluding dreams. Thus, thus, thou foul
man,
Thus I begin my vengeance!
King.
Stabs him.
Evad.
I do command thee hold.
Evad.
I do not mean, sir, 128
To part so fairly with you; we must change
More of these love-tricks yet.
King.
What bloody villain
Provok't thee to this murder?
Evad.
Thou, thou monster!
King.
Oh!
Evad.
Thou keepest me brave 4 at court, and whor'd me, King;
Then married me to a young noble gentleman,
And whor'd me still.
King.
Evadne, pity me!
Evad.
Hell take me, then! This for my lord
Amintor.
This for my noble brother! And this stroke.
For the most wrong'd of women!
Kills him.
King.
Oh! I die. 128
Evad.
Dis all our faults together! I forgive
thee.
Exit.

Enter two [Gentlemen] of the bed-chamber.
1 Gent. Come, now she's gone, let's enter; the King expects it, and will be angry.
2 Gent. 'Tis a fine wench; we'll have a snap at her one of these nights, as she goes from 128
him.
1 Gent. Content. How quickly he had done with her! I see kings can do no more that way than other mortal people.
2 Gent. How fast he is! I cannot hear him breathe.
1 Gent. Either the tapers give a feeble light,
Or he looks very pale.
2 Gent.
And so he does:
Pray Heaven he be well; let's look. — Alas!
He's stiff, wounded, and dead! Treason,
treason!
1 Gent. Run forth and call.
2 Gent.
Treason, treason!
Exit.
1 Gent. This will be laid on us;
Who can believe a woman could do this?

Enter Cleon and Lyssippus.

Cleon. How now! where's the traitor?
1 Gent. Fle'd, fle'd away; but there her woeful act
Lies still. 128
Cleon.
Her act! a woman!

Lyss.
Where's the body?
1 Gent. There.
Lyss.
Farewell, thou worthy man! There were two bonds
That tied our loves, a brother and a king,
The least of which might fetch a flood of tears;
But such the misery of greatness is, 128
They have no time to mourn; then, pardon me!
Sirs, which way went she?

Enter Strato.

Strato.
Never follow her;
For she, alas! was but the instrument.
News is now brought in that Melanthius 128
Has got the fort, and stands upon the wall,
And with a loud voice calls those few that pass
At this dead time of night, delivering
The innocence of this act.

Lyss.
Gentlemen,
I am your King.
Strato.
We do acknowledge it.

Lyss.
I would I were not! Follow, all; for this Must have a sudden stop.

Exit.

[Scene II.] 6

Enter Melanthius, Diphilus, and Callianax,
On the Walls.

Mel. If the dull people can believe I am arm'd,
(Be constant, Diphilus,) now we have time
Either to bring our banish't honours home,
Or create new ones in our ends.

Diph.
I fear not:
My spirit lies not that way.—Courage, Calianax!

Cal.
Would I had any! you should quickly
know it.

Mel.
Speak to the people; thou art eloquent.

6 Before the Fort.
Cal. 'Tis a fine eloquence to come to the gallows:
You were born to be my end; the devil take
you!
Now must I hang for company. 'Tis strange, 16
I should be old, and neither wise nor valiant.

Enter LYSPHUS, DIAGORAS, CLEON, STRATO, and Guard.

Lys. See where he stands, as boldly confident
As if he had his full command about him.

Strat. He looks as if he had the better cause, sir;
Under your gracious pardon, let me speak
it!
Though he be mighty-spirited, and forward
To all great things, to all things of that danger
Worse men shake at the telling of, yet certainly
I do believe him noble, and this action
Rather pull'd on than sought: his mind was ever
As worthy as his hand.

Lys. 'Tis my fear, too.

Heaven forgive all! — Summon him, Lord
CLEON.

CLEON. Ho, from the walls there!

Mel. Worthy Cleon, welcome:
We could have wished you here, lord; you are honest.

Cal. (Aside.) Well, thou art as flattering a knave, though
I dare not tell thee so —

Lys. Melanitus! 66

Lys. Sir?

Lys. I am sorry that we meet thus; our old
love
Never requireth such distance. Pray to Heaven,
You have not left yourself, and sought this safety
More out of fear than honour! You have lost
A noble master, which your faith, Melanitus,
Some think might have preserved: yet you know best.

Cal. (Aside.) When time was, I was mad:
some that dares fight,
I hope will pay this rascal.

Mel. Royal young man, those tears look lovely on thee:
Had they been shed for a deserving one,
They had been lasting monuments. Thy
brother,
Whilst he was good, I call'd him King, and serv'd him.
With that strong faith, that most unwearied
valuour,
Pull'd people from the farthest sun to seek
him,
And buy his friendship. I was then his soldier.
But since his hot pride drew him to disgrace
me,
And brand my noble actions with his lust,
(That never-cur'd dishonour of my sister, Base stain of whose, and, which is worse, the joy
To make it still so,) like myself, thus I

Have flung him off with my allegiance;
And stand here, mine own justice, to revenge
What I have suffered in him, and this old man
Wrong'd almost to lunacy.

Cal. Who, I? 66

You would draw me in. I have had no wrong;
I do disclaim ye all.

Mel. The short is this.

'Tis no ambition to lift up myself
Urgeth me thus; I do desire again
To be a subject, so I may be free:
If not, I know my strength, and will unbuild
Thisгодly town. Be speedy, and be wise,
In a reply.

Strat. Be sudden, sir, to tie
All up again. What's done is past recall,
And past you to revenge; and there are thousands

That wait for such a troubled hour as this.

Throw him the blank.

Lys. Melanitus, write in that Thy choice: my seal is at it.

[Throws a paper to Melanitus.]

Mel. It was our honours drew us to this act,
Not gain; and we will only work our pardons.

Cal. Put my name in too.

Diph. You disclaim'd us all
But now, Calianax.

Cal. That's all one;

I'll not be hang'd hereafter by a trick:
I'll have it in.

Mel. You shall, you shall.

Come to the back gate, and we'll call you
King,

And give you up the fort.

Away, away. Exeunt.

[Scene III.] 1

Enter ASPATIA, in man's apparel, [and with artificicial scars on her face.]

Asp. This is my fatal hour. Heaven may forgive
My rash attempt, that causelessly hath laid
Griev's on me that will never let me rest;
And put a woman's heart into my breast.
It is more honour for you that I die;
For she that can endure the misery
That I have on me, and be patient too,
May live and laugh at all that you can do.

Enter Servant.

God save you, sir!

Ser. And you, sir! What's your business?

Asp. With you, sir, now; to do me the fair office

To help me to your lord.

Ser. What, would you serve him?

Asp. I'll do him any service; but, to haste,
For my affairs are earnest, I desire
To speak with him.

Ser. Sir, because you are in such haste, I would

Be loth delay you longer: you can not.

1 Anteroom to Amintor's apartments.
I am but young, and would be loth to lose
Honour, that is not easily gain’d again.
Fairly I mean to deal: the age is aright,
For single combats; and we shall be stoop’d,
If it be publish’d. If you like your sword,
Use it; if mine appear a better to you,
Change; for the ground is this, and this the time,
To end our difference. [Draws.]

Amin. Charitable youth,
If thou be’st such, think not I will maintain
So strange a wrong; and, for thy sister’s sake,
Know, that I could not think that desperate thing
I durst not do; yet, to enjoy this world,
I would not see her; for, beholding thee,
I am I know not what. If I have aught
That may content thee, take it, and begone,
For death is not so terrible as thou;
Thine eyes shoot guilt into me.

Aasp. Thus, she swore,
Thou wouldst behave thyself, and give me words
That would fetch tears into my eyes; and so
Thou dost indeed, but yet she bade me watch
Last I were o’er; and be sure to fight
Ere I return’d.

Amin. That must not be with me.
For her I’ll die directly; but against her
Will never hazard it.

Aasp. You must be urg’d.
I do not deal uncivilly with those
That dare to fight; but such a one as you Must be us’d thus. She strikes him.

Amin. I prithee, youth, take heed.
Thy sister is a thing to me so much
Above mine honour, that I can endure
All this — Good gods! a blow I can endure;
But stay not, lest thou draw a timeless death
Upon thyself.

Aasp. Thou art some prating fellow;
One that hath studied out a trick to talk,
And move soft hearted people; to be kickt,
She kicks him.

Thy sister is a thing to me so much

Thus to be kickt. — [Aside.] Why should he be so slow
In giving me my death?

Amin. A man can bear
No more, and keep his flesh. Forgive me, then
I would endure yet, if I could. Now show
The spirit thou pretend’st, and understand
Thou hast no hour to live.

They fight; [Aspasia is wounded.]
What dost thou mean?
Thou canst not fight: the blows thou mak’st at me
Are quite beside; and those I offer at thee,
Thou spread’st thine arms, and tak’st upon thy breast,
Alas, defenceless!

Aasp. I have got enough.
And my desire. There is no place so fit
For me to die as here. [Falls.]

* Only in Q.

* Untimely.
Enter Evadne, her hands bloody, with a knife.

Evad. Amintor, I am laden with events, That fly to make thee happy; I have joys, 118
That in a moment can call back thy wrongs, And settle thee in thy free state again.
It is Evadne still that follows thee,
But not her mischiefs. 114
Amin. Thou canst not fool me to believe again;
But thou hast looks and things so full of news, That I am stay’d.
Evad. Noble Amintor, put off thy amaze, Let thine eyes loose, and speak. Am I not fair? Looks not Evadne beauteous with these rites now?
Were those hours half so lovely in thine eyes
When our hands met before the holy man?
I was too foul inside to look fair then:
Since I knew ill, I was not free till now.
Amin. There is presage of some thing
About which, it seems, thy tongue hath lost.
Thy hands are bloody, and thou hast a knife.
Evad. In this consists thy happiness and mine.
Joy to Amintor! for the King is dead.
Amin. Those have most power to hurt us, that we love; 120
We lay our sleeping lives within their arms. 120
Who thou hast rain’d up mischief to his height,
And found one to out-name th other faults; 120
Thou hast no intermission of thy sins
But all thy life is a continued ill.
Black is thy colour now, disease thy nature.
Joy to Amintor! Thou hast touch’d a life,
The very name of which had power to chain
Up all my rage, and calm my wildest wrongs.
Evad. ’Tis done; and, since I could not find
A way
To meet thy love so clear as through his life,
I cannot now repent it.
Amin. Couldst thou procure the gods to speak to me,
To bid me love this woman and forgive,
I think I should fall out with them. Behold,
Here lies a youth whose wounds bleed in my breast,
Sent by a violent fate to fetch his death
From my slow hand! And, to augment my woe,
You now are present, stain’d with a king’s blood
Violently shed. This keeps night here.
And throws an unknown wilderness about me.
Asp. Oh, oh, oh!
Amin. No more; pursue me not.
Evad. Forgive me, then,
And take me to thy bed: we may not part.
[A Kneels.]
Amin. Forbear, be wise, and let my rage go this way.
Evad. ’Tis you that I would stay, not it.
Amin. Take heed;
It will return with me.

---

Evad. If it must be,
I shall not fear to meet it. Take me home.
Amin. Thou monster of cruelty, forbear!
Evad. For Heaven’s sake look more calm!
Thine eyes are sharper
Than thou canst make thy sword.
Amin. Away, away!
Thy knees are more to me than violence.
I am worse than sick to see knees follow me
For that I must not grant. For God’s sake, stand.
Evad. Receive me, then.
Amin. I dare not stay thy language.
In midst of all my anger and my grief,
Thou dost awake something that troubles me,
And says, I lov’d thee once. I dare not stay;
There is no end of woman’s reasoning.
Leaves her.
Evad. [rising.] Amintor, thou shalt love me now again.
Go; I am calm. Farewell, and peace for ever!
Evadne, whom thou hast, will die for thee.
Stabs herself.
Amin. (returning.) I have a little human nature yet,
That’s left for thee, that bids me stay thy hand.
Evad. Thy hand was welcome, but it came too late.
Oh, I am lost! the heavy sleep makes haste.
She dies.
Asp. Oh, oh, oh!
Amin. This earth of mine doth tremble, and I feel
A stark affrighted motion in my blood.
My soul grows weary of her house, and I 170
All over am a trouble to myself.
There is some hidden power in these dead things,
That calls my flesh unto ‘em; I am cold.
Be resolute and bear ‘em company.
There’s something yet, which I am loth to leave:
There’s man enough in me to meet the fears
That death can bring; and yet would it were done!
I can find nothing in the whole discourse
Of death, I durst not meet the boldest way;
Yet still, betwixt the reason and the act,
The wrong I to Aspatia did stands up;
I have not such another fault to answer.
Though she may justly arm herself with scorn
And hate of me, my soul will part less troubled.
When I have paid to her in tears my sorrow.
I will not leave this act unsatisfied.
If all that’s left in me can answer it.
Asp. Was it a dream? There stands Amintor still;
Or I dream still.
Amin. How dost thou? speak; receive my love and help.
Thy blood climbs up to his old place again;
There’s hope of thy recovery.
Asp. Did you not name Aspatia?
Amin. I did.
Asp. And talkt of tears and sorrow unte her?
Asm. 'Tis true; and, till these happy signs in thee
Did stay my course, 't was thither I was going.
Asp. Thou art there already, and these wounds are here.
Those threats I brought with me sought not revenge,
But came to fetch this blessing from thy hand:
I am Aspasia yet.
Amin. Dare my soul ever look abroad again?
Asp. I shall sure live, Amintor; I am well;
A kind of healthful joy wanders within me.
Amin. The world wants lives to excuse thy loss;
Come, let me bear thee to some place of help.
Asp. Amintor, thou must stay; I must rest here;
My strength begins to disobey my will.
How dost thou, my best soul? I would fain live
Now, if I could. Wouldst thou have lov'd me,
then?
Amin. Alas,
All that I am's not worth a hair from thee!
Asp. Give me thy hand; mine hands grope up and down,
And cannot find thee; I am wondrous sick.
Have I thy hand, Amintor?
Amin. Thou greatest blessing of the world,
thou hast.
Asp. Do I believe thee better than my sense.
Oh, I must go! farewell!
Amin. She swoons. — Aspasia! — Help! for God's sake, water,
Such as may chain life ever to this frame! —
Aspasia, speak! — What, no help yet? I fool!
I'll chafe her temples. Yet there's nothing
stirs.
Some hidden power tell her, Amintor calls,
And let her answer me! — Aspasia, speak! I have heard, if there be any life, but bow
The body thus, and it will show itself.
Oh, she is gone! I will not leave her yet.
Since out of justice we must challenge nothing,
I'll call it mercy, if you'll pity me,
You heavenly powers, and lend for some few years
The blessed soul to this fair seat again!
No comfort comes; the gods deny me too.
I'll bow the body once, again. — Aspasia! —
The soul is fled for ever; and I wrong
Myself, so long to lose her company.
Must I talk now? Here's to be with thee, love!

Re-enter Servant.
Serv. This is a great grace to my lord, to take the new king come to him. I must tell him he is ent'ring. — Oh, God! — Help, help!

Enter LYCIPPOS, MELANTIUS, CALLANAX,
CLEON, DIPHILUS, and STRATO.

Lys. Where's Amintor?
Str. Oh, there, there! 1

Lys. How strange is this!
Col. What should we do here? 2
Mel. These deaths are such acquainted things with me,
That yet my heart dissolves not. May I stand Stiff here for ever! — Eyes, call up your tears!
This is Amintor. Heart, he was my friend;
Melt! now it flows. — Amintor, give a word
To call me to thee.
Amin. Oh!
Mel. Melantius calls his friend Amintor. Oh,
Thy arms are kinder to me than thy tongue!
Speak, speak!
Amin. What?
Mel. That little word was worth all the sounds.
That ever I shall hear again.
Diph. Oh, brother, Here lies your sister slain! You lose yourself in sorrow there.
Mel. Why, Diphilus, it is
A thing to laugh at, in respect of this.
Here was my sister, father, brother, son;
All that I had. — Speak once again; what youth
Lies slain there by thee?
Amin. 'Tis Aspasia.
My last is said. Let me give up my soul
Into thy bosom. 3
[Dies]
Cal. What's that? What's that? Aspasia!
Mel. I never did
Repent the greatness of my heart till now;
It will not burst at need.
Cal. My daughter dead here too! And you have all fine new tricks to grieve; but I ne'er knew any but direct crying.
Mel. I am a pratterer: but no more.
[Offers to stab himself.]
Diph. Hold, brother.
Lys. Stop him.
Diph. Fie, how unmanly was this offer in
you!
Does this become our strain? 4
Cal. I know not what the matter is, but I am grown very kind, and am friends with you all now. You have given me that among you will kill me quickly; but I'll go home, and live as long as I can.
[Exit]
Mel. His spirit is but poor that can be kept
From death for want of weapons.
Is not my hands a weapon sharp enough
To stop my breath? or, if you tie down those,
I vow, Amintor, I will never eat,
Or drink, or sleep, or have to do with that
That may preserve life! This I swear to keep.
Lys. Look to him, though, and bear those bodies in.
May this a fair example be to me
To rule with temper; for on lustful kings Unlook'd-for sudden deaths from God are sent;
But curse is he that is their instrument. 5

[Exeunt.]

TO THE READER

If you be not reasonably assur'd of your knowledge in this kind of poem, lay down the book, or read this, which I would wish had been the prologue. It is a pastoral tragi-comedy, which the people seeing when it was played, having ever had a singular gift in defining, concluded to be a play of country hired shepherds in gray cloaks, with curtail'd dogs in strings, sometimes laughing together, and sometimes killing one another; and, missing Whitsun-ales, cream, wassail, and morris-dances, began to be angry. In their error I would not have you fall, lest you incur their censure. 1 Understand, therefore, a pastoral to be a representation of shepherds and shepherdesses with their actions and passions, which must be such as may agree with their nature, at least not exceeding former fictions and vulgar traditions; they are not to be adorn'd with any art, but such improper ones as nature is said to bestow, as singing and poetry; or such as experience may teach them, as the virtues of herbs and fountains, the ordinary course of the sun, moon, and stars, and such like. But you are ever to remember shepherds to be such as all the ancient poets, and modern, of understanding, have received them; that is, the owners of flocks, and not hirelings. A tragi-comedy is not so called in respect of mirth and killing, but in respect it wants deaths, which is enough to make it no tragedy; yet brings some near it, which is enough to make it no comedy, which must be a representation of familiar people, with such kind of trouble as no life be question'd; 2 so that a god is as lawful in this as in a tragedy, and mean people as in a comedy. Thus much I hope will serve to justify my poem, and make you understand it; to teach you more for nothing, I do not know that I am in conscience bound.

John Fletcher.

ACT I

SCENE I.

Enter Cloen, a shepherdess, having buried her love in an arbour.

Cloen. Hail, holy earth, whose cold arms do embrace
The truest man that ever fed his flocks
By the fat plains of fruitful Thessaly!
Thus I salute thy grave; thus do I pay
My early vows and tribute of mine eyes
To thy still-loved ashes; thus I free
Myself from all ensuing heats and fires
Of love; all sports, delights, and [jolly] games,
That shepherds hold full dear, thus put I off.

1 i.e. the judgment which must be passed on them.
2 Called in question; endangered.
3 Q. Q. omits some copies of Q.; read merry.

Now no more shall these smooth brows be begirt
With youthful coronals, 4 and lead the dance;
No more the company of fresh fair maids
And wanton shepherds be to me delightful,
Nor the shrill pleasing sound of merry pipes
Under some shady dell, when the cool wind 5
Plays on the leaves: all be far away,
Since thou art far away, by whose dear side
How often have I sat crown'd with fresh flowers
For summer's queen, whilst every shepherd's boy
Puts on his lusty green, with gaudy hook,
And hanging scrip of finest cordevan, 6
But thou art gone, and these are gone with thee,
And all are dead but thy dear memory;

4 Garlands. 5 Leather (from Cordova in Spain).

\[\text{End of page}\]
That shall outlive thee, and shall ever spring,
Whilst there are pipes or jolly shepherds sing.
And here will I, in honour of thy love,
Dwell by thy grave, forgetting all those joys
That former times made precious to mine eyes;
Only remembr’ring what my youth did gain
In the dark, hidden virtuous use of herbs:
That will I practise, and as freely give
All my endeavours, as I gained them, free.
Of all green wounds I know the remedies
In men or cattle, be they stung with snakes,
Or charm’d with powerful words of wicked art,
Or be they love-sick, or through too much heat
Grown wild or lunatic, their eyes or ears
Thick’ned with misty film of dulling rheum;
These I can cure, such secret virtue lies
In herbs applied by a virgin’s hand.
My meat shall be what these wild woods afford,
Berries and chestnuts, plantains, on whose cheeks
The sun sits smiling, and the lofty fruit
Pulled from the fair head of the straight-grown pine;
On these I’ll feed with free content, and rest,
When night shall blind the world, by thy side blest.

Enter a Satyr [with a basket of fruit].

Satyr. Through you same bending plain,
That fings his arms down to the main,
And through these thick woods, have I run,
Whose botton never kist the sun
Since the lusty spring began;
All to please my master Pan,
Have I trotted without rest
To get him fruit; for at a feast
He entertains, this coming night,
His paramour, the Syrinx bright.
At, but behold, a fairer sight!

He stands amazed,

By that heavenly form of thine,
Brightest fair, thou art divine,
Sprung from great immortal race
Of the gods; for in thy face
Shines more awful majesty
Than dull weak mortality
Dare with misty eyes behold,
And live: therefore on this mould
Lowly do I bend my knee
In worship of thy deity.
Deign it, goddess, from my hand
To receive what’er this land
From her fertile womb doth send
Of her choice fruits; and but lend Belief to that the Satyr tells:
Fairer by the famous walls
To this present day ne’er grew,
Never better nor more true.
Here be grapes, whose lusty blood
Is the learned poets’ good,
Sweetest yet did never crown
The head of Bacchus; nuts more brown
Than the squirrel’s teeth that crack them;
Deign, O fairest fair, to take them!

For those black-eyed Dryope
Hath oftentimes commanded me
With my clasped knee to climb:
See how well the lusty time
Hath deckt their rising cheeks in red,
Such as on your lips is spread!
Here be berries for a queen,
Some be red, some be green;
These are of that luscious meat,
The great god Pan himself doth eat;
All these, and what the woods can yield,
The hanging mountain or the field,
I freely offer, and ere long
Will bring you more, more sweet and strong;
Till when, humbly leave I take,
Lest the great Pan do awake,
That sleeping lies in a deep glade,
Under a broad beech’s shade.
I must go, I must run
Swifter than the fiery sun. Exit.

Clio. And all my fears go with thee!
What greatness, or what private hidden power,
Is there in me, to draw submission
From this rude man and beast? Sure I am mortal,
The daughter of a shepherd; he was mortal,
And she that bore me mortal: prick my hand,
And it will bleed; a fever shakes me, and
The self-same wind that makes the young
Lambs shrink
Makes me a cold: my fear says I am mortal.
Yet I have heard (my mother told it me,
And now I do believe it, if I keep
My virgin-flower uncropt, pure, chaste, and fair,
No goblin, wood-god, fairy, elf, or fiend,
Satyr, or other power that haunts these groves,
Shall hurt my body, or by vain illusion
Draw me to wander after idle fires;
Or voices calling me in dead of night,
To make me follow, and so toll me on,
Through mires and standing pools [to find my rain:]
Else why should this rough thing, who never knew
Manners nor smooth humanity, whose heats
Are rougher than himself and more mis-shapen,
Thus mildly kneel to me? Sure there is a power
In that great name of virgin, that binds fast
All rude uncivil bloods, all appetites
That break their confines. Then, strong chastity,
Be thou my strongest guard, for here I’ll dwell
In opposition against fate and hell!

[Retires into her bower.]

[Scene II.]

Enter an Old Shepherd, with four couples of Shepherds and Shepherdesses, [among whom are PERIOT and AMORET.]

Old Shep. Now we have done this holy festival
In honour of our great god, and his rites
Perform'd, prepare yourselves for chaste
And uncorrupted fires; that as the priest
With powerful hand shall sprinkle on your brows
His pure and holy water, ye may be
From all those flames of lust and loose thoughts free.
Kneel, shepherds, kneel; here comes the priest
Of Pan.

Enter Priest.

Priest. Shepherds, thus I purge away
[Sprinkling them with water.]
Whatever this great day,
Or the past hours, gave not good,
To corrupt your maiden blood.
From the high rebellious heat
Of the grapes, and strength of meat,
From the wanton quick desires
They do kindle by their fires
I do wash you with this water;
Be you pure and fair hereafter!
From your livers and your veins
Thus I take away the stains;
All your thoughts be smooth and fair:
Be ye fresh and free as air!
Never more let lustful fire
Through your purged conduits 1 best,
Or a plighted troth be broken,
Or a wanton verse be spoken
In a shepherdess's ear;
Go your ways, ye are all clear.

They rise and sing in praise of Pan.

The Song.

Sing his praises that doth keep
Our flocks from harm,
Pan, the father of our sheep;
And arm in arm
Tread we softly in a round,
Whilst the hollow neighbouring ground
Fills the music with her sound.

Pan, O great god Pan, to thee
Thou that keep'st us chaste and free
As the young spring;
Ever be thy honour spoke,
From that place the Morn is broke
To that place Day doth unyoke!

Exeunt omnes but Perigo and Amoret.

Peri. Stay, gentle Amoret, thou fair-brow'd maid;
Thy shepherd prays thee stay, that holds thee dear,
Equal with his soul's good.

Amo. Speak; I give
Thee freedom, shepherd; and thy tongue be still
The same it ever was, as free from ill
As he whose conversation never knew
The court or city; he thou ever true!

Peri. When I fail off from my affection,

Or mingle my clean thoughts with foul desires,
First, let our great god cease to keep my flocks,
That, being left alone without a guard,
The wolf, or waster's rage, summer's great heat
And want of water, rots, or what to us
Of ill is yet unknown, fall speedily,
And in their general ruin let me go!

Amo. I pray thee, gentle shepherd, wish not so:
I do believe thee; 'tis as hard for me
To think thee false, and harder, than for thee
To hold me foul.

Peri. Oh, you are fairer far
Than the chaste blushing morn, or that fair star
That guides the wand'ring seaman through the deep;
Straightener than the straightest pine upon the steep.
Head of an aged mountain; and more white
Than the new milk we strip before day-light
From the full freighted bags of our fairs flock;
Your hair more beauteous than those hanging locks
Of young Apollo!

Amo. Shepherd, be not lost;
Y' are sail'd too far already from the coast
Of your discourse.

Peri. Did you not tell me once
I should not love alone, I should not lose
Those many passions, vows, and holy oaths,
I've sent to heaven? Did you not give your hand,
Even that fair hand, in hostage? Do not then, Give back again those sweets to other men,
You yourself vow'd were mine.

Amo. Shepherd, so far as maiden's modesty
May give assurance, I am once more thine,
Once more I give my hand. Be ever free
From that great foe to faith, foul jealousy!

Peri. I take it as my best good; and desire,
For stronger confirmation of our love,
To meet this happy night in that fair grove,
Where all true shepherds have rewarded been
For their long service: say, sweet, shall it hold?

Amo. Dear friend, you must not blame me, if I make
A doubt of what the silent night may do,
Coupled with this day's heat, to move your blood.
Maidens must be fearful. Sure you have not been Wash'd white enough; for yet I see a stain Stuck in your liver; 2 go and purge again.

Peri. Oh, do not wrong my honest simple truth!
Myself and my affections are as pure
As those chaste flames that burn before the shrine
Of the great Dian: only my intent
To draw you thither was to plight our troth,
With interchange of mutual chaste embraces,
And ceremonious tying of our souls.
For to that holy wood is consecrate
A virtuous well, about whose flowery banks
The nimble-footed fairies dance their rounds
By the pale moonshine, dipping oftentimes

1 Veins.

2 Best of the passions.
Their stolen children, so to make them free
From dying flesh and dull mortality.
By this fair fount hath many a shepherd sworn,
And given away his freedom, many a troth
Been plight, which neither envy nor old time
Could ever break, with many a chaste kiss given,
In hope of coming happiness; by this
Fresh fountain many a blushing maid
Hath crown’d the head of her long-loved shep-heardly
With gaudy flowers, whilst he happy sung
Lays of his love and dear captivity.
There grows all herbs fit to cool looser flames
Our sensual parts provoke, chiding our bloods,
And quenching by their power those hidden sparks
That else would break out, and provoke our sense
To open fires; so virtuous is that place.
Then, gentle shepherdess, believe, and grant.
In truth, it fits not with that face to scant.
Your faithful shepherd of those chaste desires
He ever aim’d at, and——
Amor. Thou hast prevail’d: farewell. This coming night
Shall crown thy chaste hopes with long-wish’d delight.
Peregrine. Our great god Pan reward thee for that good
Thou hast given thy poor shepherd! fairest bud
Of maiden virtues, when I leave to be
The true admirer of thy chastity.
Let me deserve the hot polluted name
Of a wild woodman, or affect some dame
Whose often prostitution hath begot
More foul diseases than ever yet the hot
Sun bred thorough his burnings, whilst the dog
Pursues the raging Lion, throwing fog
And deadly vapour from his angry breath,
Filling the lower world with plague and death!

Exit Amoret.

Enter Amazanillis, another Shepherdess that is in love with Peregrine.

Amor. Shepherd, may I desire to be believ’d,
What shall I tell the blushing maid?
Peregrine. Fair maid, you may.
Amor. Then, softly thus: I love thee, Peregrine;
And would be gladder to be lov’d again
Than the cold earth in his frozen arms
To clip the wanton spring. Nay, do not start,
Nor wonder that I woo thee; thou that art
The prime of our young grooms, even the top
Of all our lusty shepherds. What dull eye,
That never was acquainted with desire,
Hath seen these wrestling, run, or cast the stone
With nimble strength and fair delivery.
And hath not sparkled fire, and speedily
Sent secret heat to all the neighbouring veins?
Who e’er heard thee sing, that brought again
That freedom back was lent unto thy voice?
Then, do not blame me, shepherd, if I be

One to be numb’red in this company,
Since none that ever saw thee yet were free.

Peregrine. Fair shepherdess, much pity I can lend
To your complaints; but sure I shall not love.
All that is mine, myself and my best hopes,
Are given already. Do not love him, then,
That cannot love again; on other men
Bestow those heats, more free, that may return
You fire for fire, and in one flame equal burn.
Amar. Shall I rewarded be so slenderly
For my affection, most unkind of men?
If I were old, or had agreed with art
To give another nature to my cheeks,
Or were I common mistress to the love
Of every swain, or could I with such ease
Call back my love as many a wanton doth,
Thou mightest refuse me, shepherd; but to thee
I am only fit and set; let it not be
A sport, thou gentle shepherd, to abuse
The love of silly maid.

Peregrine. Fair soul, ye use
These words to little end: for, know, I may Better call back that time was yesterday,
Or stay the coming night, than bring my love
Home to myself again, or recreant prove.
I will no longer hold you with delays:
This present night I have appointed been
To meet that chaste fair that enjoys my soul,
In yonder grove, there to make up our loves.
Be not deceived no longer, choose again:
Those neighbouring plains have many a comely
swain,
Fresher and freer than I ever was;
Bestow that love on them, and let me pass.
Farewell: be happy in a better choice!

Amar. Cruel, thou hast struck me deader with thy voice
Than if the angry heavens with their quick flames
Had shott me through. I must not leave to love,
I cannot; no, I must enjoy thee, boy.
Though the great dangers twixt my hopes and
that
Be infinite. There is a shepherd dwells
Down by the moor, whose life hath ever shown
More sullen discontent than Saturn’s bow
When he sits frowning on the births of men;
One that doth wear himself away in loneliness,
And never joys, unless it be in breaking
The holy plighted troths of mutual souls;
One that lusts after every several beauty,
But never yet was known to love or like,
Were the face fairer or more full of truth
Than Phoebe in her fulness, or the youth
Of smooth Lycaeus; whose nigh-starved flocks
Are always scabby, and infect all sheep
They feed withal; whose lambs are ever last,
And die before their weaning: and whose dog
Looks, like his master, lean and full of scurf,
Not caring for the pipe or whistle. This man may
If he be well wrought, do a deed of wonder,
Forcing me passage to my long desires:
And here he comes, as fitly to my purpose
As my quick thoughts could wish for.
Enter Sullen Shepherd.

Sull. Shep. Fresh beauty, let me not be thought uncivil, Thus to be partner of your loneliness: 't was My love (that ever-working passion) drew
Me to this place, to seek some remedy
For my sick soul. Be not unkind and fair,
For such the mighty Cupid in his doom
Hath sworn to be aveng'd on; then, give room
To my consuming fires, that so I may Enjoy my long desires, and so allay
Those flames that else would burn my life away.

Amar. Shepherd, were I but sure thy heart were sound.
As thy words seem to be, means might be found.
To cure thee of thy long pains; for to me
That heavy youth-consuming misery
The love-sick soul endures never was pleasing.
I could be well content with the quick easing
Of thee and thy hot fires, might it procure
Thy faith and farther service to be sure.

Sull. Shep. Name but that work, danger, or what can Be compass'd by the wit or art of man;
And, if I fail in my performance, may
I never more kneel to the rising day! —
Amar. Then, thus I try thee, shepherd. This same night
That now comes stealing on, a gentle pair
Have promis'd equal love, and do appoint
To make you wood the place where hands and hearts
Are to be tied for ever. Break their meeting.
And their strong faith, and I am ever thine.

Sull. Shep. Tell me their names, and if I do not move
By my great power, the centre of their love
From his fixt being, let me never more
Warm me by those fair eyes I thus adore.

Amar. Come; as we go, I'll tell thee what they are,
And give thee fit directions for thy work.

[Scene III.]

Enter Cloe.

Cloe. How have I wrong'd the times or men, that thus,
After this holy feast, I pass unknown
And unsalted? 'T was not wont to be Thus frozen with the younger company
Of jolly shepherds; 't was not then held good
For lusty grooms to mix their quicker blood
With that dull humour, most unfit to be
The friend of man, cold and dull chastity.
Sure I am held not fair, or am too old,
Or else not free enough, or from my fold
Drive not a flock sufficient great to gain
The greedy eyes of wealth-aluring swain.
Yet, if I may believe what others say,
My face has soil enough; nor can they lay
Justly too strict a censure to my charge;

My flocks are many, and the downs as large
They feed upon. Then, let it ever be
Their coldness, not my virgin-modesty
Makes me complain.

Enter Thenot.

The. Was ever man but I
Thus truly taken with uncertainty;
Where shall that man be found that loves a mind
Made up of constancy, and dares not find
His love rewarded? Here, let all men know,
A wretch that lives to love his mistress so.

Cloe. Shepherd, I pray thee stay. Where hast thou been?
Or whither go'st thou? Here be woods as green
As any; air [likewise] as fresh and sweet
As where smooth Zephyrus plays on the fleet
Face of the curled streams; with flowers as many
As the young spring gives, and as choice as any;
Here be all new delights, cool streams and wells,
Arbours o'ergrown with woodbine, caves, and dells;
Choose where thou wilt, whilst I sit by and sing,
Or gather rushes, to make many a ring
For thy long fingers; tell thee tales of love,—
How the pale Phoebe, hunting in a grove,
First saw the boy Endymion, from whose eyes
She took eternal fire that never dies;
How she convey'd him softly in a sleep,
His temples bound with poppy, to the steep
Head of old Latmus, where she stoops each night,
Gilding the mountain with her brother's light,
To kiss her sweetest.

The. Far from me are these
Hot flashes, bred from wanton heat and ease;
I have forgot what love and loving meant;
Rhymes, songs, and merry rounds, that oft are sent
To the soft ear of maid, are strange to me:
Only I live t' admire a chastity,
That neither pleasing age, smooth tongue, nor gold,
Could ever break upon, so sure a mould
Is that her mind was cast in; 't is to her
I only am reserv'd; she is my form I stir,
By, breathe and move; 't is she and only she,
Can make me happy, or give misery.

Cloe. Good shepherd, may a stranger crave to know
To whom this dear observance you do owe?

The. You may, and by her virtue learn to square
And level out your life; for to be fair,
And nothing virtuous, only fits the eye
Of gaudy youth and swelling vanity.
Then, know, she's call'd the Virgin of the Grove,
She that hath long since buri'd her chaste love,
And now lives by his grave, for whose dear soul

1 Another part of the wood. 2 Beauty.
She hath vow'd herself into the holy roll
Of strict virginity: 'tis her I so admire, 65
Not any looser blood or new desire. [Exit.
Cloe. Farewell, poor swain! thou art not for my bend; 1
I must have quicker souls, whose words may tend
To some free action. Give me him dare love
At first encounter, and as soon dare prove! 70

The Song.
[Sings.] Come, shepherds, come!
Come away
Without delay,
Whilst the gentle time doth stay.
Green woods are dumb,
And will never tell to any
Those dear kisses, and those many Sweet embracements that are given;
Dainty pleasures, that would even Raise in coldest age a fire,
And give virgin-blood desire.
Then, if ever,
Now or never,
Come and have it:
Think not I
Dare deny,
If you crave it.

Enter Daphnis.

[Aside.] Here comes another. Better be my speed.
Thou god of blood! But certain, if I read
Not false, this is that modest shepherd, he 90
That only dare salute, but ne'er could be Brought to kiss any, hold discourse, or sing,
Whisper, or boldly ask that wished thing
We all are born for; one that makes loving faces
And could be well content to covet graces,
Were they not got by boldness. In this thing
My hopes are frozen; and, but fate doth bring Him hither, I would sooner choose
A man made out of snow, and freer use
An eunuch to my ends; but since he's here, 100
Thus I attempt him. — Thou, of men most dear,
Welcome to her that only for thy sake
Hath been content to live! Here, boldly take
My hand in pledge, this hand, that never yet
Was given away to any; and sit Down on this rusky bank, whilst I go pull Fresh blossoms from the boughs, or quickly pull
The choicest delicates from yonder mead,
To make thee chains or chaplets, or to spread
Under our fainting bodies, when delight 110
Shall lock up all our senses. How the sight
Of those smooth rising cheeks renew the story
Of young Adonis, when in pride and glory
He lay infolded 'twixt the beauteous arms
Of willing Venus! Methinks stronger charms 115
Dwell in those speaking eyes, and on that brow
More sweetness than the painters can allow
To their best pieces. Not Narcissus, he
That wept himself away in memory
Of his own beauty, nor Silvanus’ boy, 9

Nor the twice-ravish’d maid, for whom old Troy
Fell by the hand of Pyrrhus, may to thee
Be otherwise compar’d, than some dead tree
To a young fruitful olive.

Daph. I can love,
But I am loth to say so, lest I prove Too soon unhappy.

Cloe. Happy, thou wouldst say.
My dearest Daphnis, blushed not; if the day
To thee and thy soft hearts be enemy,
Then take the coming night; fair youth, 'tis free
To all the world. Shepherd, I'll meet thee
Then. 120
When darkness hath shut up the eyes of men,
In yonder grove. Speak, shall our meeting hold?
Indeed you are too bashful; be more bold,
And tell me so.

Daph. I am content to say so,
And would be glad to meet, might I but pray Much from your fairness, that you would be true.
Cloe. Shepherd, thou hast thy wish.

Daph. Fresh maid, adieu.
Yet one word more; since you have drawn me
On
to come this night, fear not to meet alone
That man that will not offer to be ill,
Though your bright self would ask it, for his fill
Of this world's goodness; do not fear him, then,
But keep your pointed time. Let other men
Set up their bloods to sale, mine shall be ever
Fair as the soul it carries, and unchangeable forever.

Cloe. Yet am I poorer than I was before.
Is it not strange, among so many a score
Of lusty bloods, I should pick out these things
Whose veins, like a dull river far from springs,
Is still the same, slow, heavy, and unfit
For stream or motion, though the strong wins hit
With their continual power upon his sides?
Oh, happy be your names that have been brides.
And tasted those rare sweets for which I pine!
Thou lazy swain, that mayst relieve my needs,
Than his, upon whose liver always feeds
A hungry vulture!

Enter Alexis.

Alex. Can such beauty be Safe in his own guard, and not draw the eye
Of him that passeth on, to greedy gaze
Or covetous desire, whilst in a maze
The better part contemplates, giving rein,
And wished freedom to the labouring vein?
Fairer and whiter, may I crave to know
The cause of your retirement, why you go Thus all alone? Methinks the downs are sweeter,
And the young company of swains more meeter,
Than these forsaken and untrodden places.
Give not yourself to loneliness, and those graces

Hid from the eyes of men, that were intended
To live amongst us swains.

Cloe. Thou art befriended.
Shepherd: in all my life I have not seen
A man in whom greater contents hath been,
Than thou thyself art. I could tell thee more,
Were there but any hope left to restore
My freedom lost. Oh, lend me all thy red,
Thou shame-fast Morning, when from Tithonus’ bed
Thou risest ever-maiden!
Alex. If for me,
Thou sweetest of all sweetests, these flashes be,
Speak, and be satisfied. Oh, guide her tongue,
My better angel; force my name among
Her modest thoughts, that the first word may be—

Cloe. Alexis, when the sun shall kiss the sea,
Taking his rest by the white Thetis’ side,
Meet me in the holy wood, where ’ll abide Thy coming, shepherd.

Alex. If I stay behind,
An everlasting dulness, and the wind,
That as he passeth by shuts up the stream
Of Rhine or Volga, whilst the sun’s hot beam
Beats back again, seize me, and let me turn
To coldness more than ice! Oh, how I burn
And rise in youth and fire! I dare not stay.
Cloe. My name shall be your word.
Alex. Fly, thy, thou day! Exit.
Cloe. My grief is great, if both these boys should fail:
He that will use all winds must shift his sail.

Exit.

ACT II

SCENE I

Enter Old Shepherd with a bell ringing, and the Priest of Pan following.

Priest. Shepherds all, and maidens fair,
Fold your flocks up, for the air
‘Gins to thicken, and the sun
Already his great course hath run.
See the dew-drops how they kiss
Every little flower that is;
Hanging on their velvet heads,
Like a rope of crystal beads;
See the heavy clouds down falling,
And bright Hesperus loud calling
The dead Night from under ground;
At whose rising mists unsound,
Damps and vapours fly apace,
Hovering o'er the wanton face
Of these pastures, where they come,
Striking dead both bud and bloom.
Therefore, from such danger look
Every one his loved flock;
And let your dogs lie loose without,
Lest the wolf come as a scout
From the mountain, and, ere day,
Bear a lamb or kid away;

Or the crafty thievish fox
Break upon your simple flocks.
To secure yourselves from these,
Be not too secure in ease.
Let one eye his watches keep,
Whilst the t’other eye doth sleep;
So you shall good shepherds prove,
And for ever hold the love
Of our great god. Sweetest alumsers,
And soft silence, fall in numbers
On your eyelids! So, farewell;
Thy and end my evening’s knell.

Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Clorin, the Shepherdess, sorting of herbs, and telling the natures of them.

Cloe. Now let me know what my best art hath done,
Help’d by the great power of the virtuous moon
In her full light. Oh, you sons of earth,
You only brood, unto whose [happy] birth
Virtue was given, holding more of nature
Than man, her first-born and most perfec’t creature,
Let me adore you! you, that only can Help or kill nature, drawing out that span
Of life and breath even to the end of time;
You, that these hands did [crop] long before prime
Of day; give me your names, and, next, your hidden power.
This is the clote, bearing a yellow flower;
And this, black horehound; both are very good
For sheep or shepherd bitten by a wood
Dog’s venom’d teeth: these rhamnus branches are,
Which, stuck in entries, or about the bar
That holds the door, kill all enchantments, charms
(Were they Medea’s verses), that do harms
To men or cattle: these for frenzy be
A speedy and a sovereign remedy,
The bitter wormwood, sage, and marigold;
Such sympathy with man’s good they do hold:
This tormentil, whose virtue is to part
All deadly killing poison from the heart:
And, here, narcissus root, for swellings best:
Yellow lymnecus, to give sweet rest
To the faint shepherd, killing, where it comes,
All busy gnats, and every fly that hums:
For leprosy, danel and ocelandine,
With calamint, whose virtues do refine
The blood of man, making it free and fair
As the first hour it breath’d, or the best air:
Here, other two; but your rebellious use
Is not for me, whose goodness is abuse;
Therefore, foul staudergrass, from me and mine
I banish thee, with lustful turpentince;
You that entice the veins and stir the heat
To civil mutiny, scaling the seat
Our reason moves in, and deluding it

1 Tithonus’. F. reads Titans.

2 A pasture.

3 Drye emend. Qq. 1-4 transpose down and loud, F.

4 New falling . . . down calling.

5 Unwholesome.
With dreams and wanton [fancies] till the fit
Of burning lust be quenched, by appetite
Robbing the soul of blessedness and light:
And thou, light vernal, too, thou must go after,
Provoking easy sorrows to mirth and laughter;
No more shall I dip thee in water now,
And sprinkle every post and every bough
With thy well-pleasing juice, to make the ground
Swell with high mirth, and with joy all the rooms.

Enter THENOT.

Th. This is the cabin where the best of all
Her sex that ever breath’d, or ever shall Give heat or happiness to the shepherd’s side,
Both only to her worthy self abide.
Thou blessed star, I thank thee for thy light,
Thou by whose power the darkness of sad night
Is banished from the earth, in whose dull place
Thy chaster beams play on the heavy face
Of all the world, make the blue sea smile,
To see how cunningly thou dost beguile
Thy brother of his brightness, giving day
Again from chaos; whiter than that way
That leads to Jove’s high court, and chastener far
Than chastity itself, blessed star
That brightly shines thou, all the constancy
That in all women was or e’er shall be;
From whose fair eye-balls flies that holy fire
That styleth is the mother of desire,
Infusing into every gentle breast
A soul of greater price, and far more blest,
Than that quick power which gives a difference
Twixt man and creatures of a lower sense!

Clo. Shepherd, how canst thou hither to this place?
No way is trodden; all the verdant grass
The spring shot up stands yet unbruised here
Of any foot; only the dappled deer,
Far from the feared sound of crooked horn,
Dwells in this fastness.

Th. Chaster than the morn,
I have not wand’red, or by strong illusion
Into this virtuous place have made intrusion:
But hither am I come (believe me, fair),
To seek you out, of whose great good the air
Is full, and strongly labours, whilst the sound
Breaks against heaven, and drives into a stound 2
Th’ amazed shepherd, that such virtue can
Be resident in lesser than a man.

Clo. If any art I have, or hidden skill,
May cure thee of disease or fast’red ill
Whose grief or greenness to another’s eye
May seem unpossible of remedy,
I dare yet undertake it.

Th. ’Tis no pain
I suffer through disease, no beating vein
Conveys infection dangerous to the heart,
No part imposthum’d, to be cm’d by art,
This body holds; and yet a feller grief
Than ever skillful hand did give relief;

Dwells on my soul, and may be heal’d by you,
Fair, beauteous virgin.

Clo. Then, shepherd, let me see
To know thy grief: that man yet never knew
The way to health that durst not show his sore.

Th. Then, fairest, know, I love you.

Clo. Swain, no more!
Thou hast abus’d the strictness of this place,
And off red sacrilegious foul disgrace
To the sweet rest of these interred bones;
For fear of whose ascending, fly at once,
Thou and thy idle passions, that the sight
Of death and speedy vengeance may not fright
Thy very soul with horror.

Th. Let me not,
Thou all perfection, merit such a blot
For my true zealous faith.

Clo. Darst thou abide
To see this holy earth at once divide,
And give her body up? for sure it will.
If thou pursu’st with wanton flame to fill
This hallowed place: therefore repent and go,
Whilst I with prayers appease his ghost below,
That else would tell thee what it were to be
A rival in that virtuous love that he Embraces yet.

Th. ’Tis not the white or red
Inhabits in your cheek that thus can wed
My mind to adoration; nor your eye,
Though it be full and fair, your forehead high
And smooth as Pelops’ shoulder; not the smile
Lies watching in those dimples to beguile
The easy soul; your hands and fingers long,
With veins enamell’d richly; nor your tongue,
Though it spoke sweeter than Arion’s harp;
Your hair woven into many a curious warp,
Able in endless error to enfold
The [wand’ring] 4 soul; not the true perfect mould
Of all your body, which as pure doth show
In maiden-whiteness as the Alpine snow:
All these, were but your constancy away,
Would please me less than a black stormy day
The wretched seaman toiling through the deep.
But, whilst this honour’d strictness you do keep,
Though all the plagues that e’er begotten were
In the great womb of air were settled here,
In opposition, I would, like the tree,
Shake off those drops of weakness, and be free
Even in the arm of danger.

Clo. Wouldst thou have Me raise again, fond man, from silent grave
Those sparks, that long ago were buried here
With my dead friend’s cold ashes?

Th. Dearest dear,
I dare not ask it, nor you must not grant:
Stand strongly to your vow, and do not fail.
Remember how he lov’d you, and be still
The same opinion speaks you: let not will,
And that great god of women, appetite,
Set up your blood again; do not invite Desire and fancy from their long exile,
To seat them once more in a pleasing smile:
Be, like a rock, made firmly up ‘gainst all

1 Q. forces.
2 Amusement.
3 Q. servant.
The power of angry heaven, or the strong fall
Of Neptune's battery. If you yield, I die
To all affection; 'tis that loyalty
You tie unto this grave I so admire:
And yet there's something else I would desire,
If you would hear me, but withal deny. 188
Oh, Pan, what an uncertain destiny
Hugs over all my hopes! I will retire;
For, if I longer stay, this double fire
Will lick my life up.

Clo.
What art and nature cannot bring about.
The. Farewell, thou soul of virtue, and be blest
For ever, whilst [that here] I wretched rest
Thus to myself! Yet grant me leave to dwell
In kenning 2 of this arbour: you same dell,
O'erlOpp with mourning cypress and sad yew,
Shall be my cabin, where I'll early rue,
Before the sun hath kist this dew away,
The hard uncertain chance which faith doth lay
Upon his head.

Clo.
The gods give quick release 176
And happy sure unto thy hard disease! 176

[Scene III.] 18

Enter Sullen Shepherd.

Sull. Shep. I do not love this wench that I should meet;
For ne'er did my unconstant eye yet greet
That beauty, were it sweeter or more fair
Than the new blossoms when the morning-air
Blows gently on them, or the breaking light,
When many maiden-blusses to our sight
Shot from his early face: were all these set
In some neat form before me, 't would not get
The least love from me; some desire it might,
And present burning. All to me in sight
Are equal; be they fair, or black, or brown,
Virgin, or careless wanton, I can crown
My appetite with any; swear as oft,
And weep, as any; melt my words as soft
Into a maiden's ears, and tell how long
My heart has been her servant, and how strong
My passions are; call her unkind and cruel;
Offer her all I have to gain the jewel
Maidsen so highly [prize]; 't then loathe, and fly:
This do I hold a blessed destiny.

Enter AMARILLIS.

Amar. Hail, shepherd! Pan bless both thy flock and thee.
For being mindful of thy word to me

Sull. Shep. Welcome, fair shepherdess! Thy loving swain
Gives thee the self-same wishes back again; 34
Who till this present hour ne'er knew that eye
Could make me cross mine arms, or daily die
With fresh consumings. Boldly tell me, then,
How shall we part their faithful loves, and
when?
Shall I believe him to her? Shall I swear
His faith is false and he loves everywhere? 36

I'll say he mock't her 'th other day to you;
Which will by your confirming show as true,
For she 4 is of so pure an honesty,
To think, because she will not, none will lie.
Or else to him I'll slander Amoret.
And say, she but seems chaste; I'll swear she met
Me 'mongst the shady sycamores last night,
And loosely off'red up her flame and sprits
Into my bosom; made a wanton bed
Of leaves and many flowers, where she spread
Her willing body to be prest by me;
There have I carv'd her name on many a tree,
Together with mine own. To make this show
More fall of seeming. — Hobinal, you know,
Son to the aged shepherd of the glen,
Him I have sort'd out of many men,
To say he found us at our private sport,
And rous'd us 'fore our time by his resort.
This to confirm, I've promis'd to the boy
Many a pretty knock and many a toy;
As gins to catch him birds, with bow and bolt
To shoot at conies, 4 squirrels, in the holt;
A pair of painted buskins, and a lamb
Soft as his own locks or the down of swan.
This I have done to win you; which doth give Me double pleasure; discord makes me live.

Amar. Lov'd swain, I thank ye. These tricks might prevail
With other rustic shepherds, but will fail
Even once to stir, much more to overthrow,
His fixed love from judgment, whodoth know
Your nature, my end, and his chosen merit;
Therefore some stronger way must force his spirit.
Which I have found: give second, and my love
Is everlasting thine.

Sull. Shep. Try me, and prove.

Amar. These happy pair of lovers meet straightway,
Son soon as they fold their flocks up with the day,
In the thick grove bordering upon yon hill,
In whose hard side nature hath carv'd a well,
And, but that matchless spring which poets
know,
Was ne'er the like to this. By it doth grow,
About the sides, all herbs which witches use,
All simples good for medicine or abuse,
All sweets that crown the happy nuptial day,
With all their colours; there the month of May
Is ever dwelling, all is young and green;
There's not a grass on which was ever seen
The falling autumn or cold winter's hand;
So full of heat and virtue is the land
About this fountain, which doth slowly break,
Below yon mountain's foot, into a creek
That waters all the valley, giving fish
Of many sorts to fill the shepherd's dight.
This holy well, my grandam that is dead,
Right wise in charms, hath often to me said,
Hath power to change the form of any creature,
Being thrice dipt 'o'er the head, into what feature
Or shape 'twould please the letter-down crave.

1 Q.-Q. omit. 2 Another part of the wood. 3 Q.-Q. omit.
4 Q.-Q. praise. 5 Q. F. As. 6 Q. ff. nimble.
Who must pronounce this charm too, which she gave [Shewing a scroll.]
Me on her death-bed; told me what, and how,
I should apply unto the patient's brow
That would be chang'd, casting them thriee asleep,
Before I trusted them into this deep.
All this she show'd me, and did charge me to prove
This secret of her art, if crost in love.
I'll this attempt now, shepherd; I have here all
Her prescriptions, and I will not fear
To be myself dipt. Come, my temples bind
With these sad herbs, and when I sleep you find,
As you do speak your charm, thrice down me let.
And bid the water raise me Amoret;
Which being done, leave me to my affair,
And ere the day shall quite itself outwear,
I will return unto my shepherd's arm;
Dip me again, and then repeat this charm,
And pluck me up myself, whom freely take,
And the hottest fire of thine affection alake.

Sull. Shep. And if I fit thee not, then fit me not.

I long the truth of this well's power to see.

Exeunt.

SCENE IV.1

Enter DAPHNIS.

Daph. Here will I stay, for this the covert is wh
Where I appointed Cloe. Do not miss,
Thou bright-eyed virgin; come, oh come, my fair!
Be not abus'd with fear, nor let cold care
Of honour stay thee from thy shepherd's arm,
Who would as hard be won to offer harm
To thy chaste thoughts, as whiteness from the day,
Or you great round to move another way.
My language shall be honest, full of truth,
My name as smooth and spotless as my youth;
I will not entertain that wand'ring thought,
Whose easy current may at length be brought
To a loose vastness.

Alexis. (within.) Cloe!

Daph. 'Tis her voice, And I must answer. -- Cloe! -- Oh, the choice
Of dear embraces, chaste and holy strains
Our hands shall give! I charge you, all my veins,
Through which the blood and spirit take their way,
Look up your disobedient hearts, and stay
Those mutinous desires that else would grow
To strong rebellion; do not wilder show
Than blushing modesty may entertain.

Alexis. (within.) Cloe!

Daph. There sounds that blessed name
And I will meet it. Let me not mistake;

1 Another part of the wood.

Enter ALEXIS.

This is some shepherd. Sure, I am awake:
What may this riddle mean? I will retire.
To give myself more knowledge. [Retires.]

Alexis. Oh, my fire,
How thou consum'st me! -- Cloe, answer me!
Alexis, strong Alexis, high and free,
Calls upon Cloe. See, mine arms are full
Of entertainment, ready for to pull
That golden fruit which too, too long hath hung Tempting the greedy eye. Thou stay'st too long;
I am impatient of those mad delays:
I must not leave unsought those many ways
That lead into this centre, till I find Quench for my burning lust. I come, unkink!

Erit.

Daph. [coming forward.] Can my imagination work me so much ill,
That I may credit this for truth, and still Believe mine eyes? Or shall I firmly hold
Her yet untainted, and these sights but bold Illusion? Sure, such fancies oft have been Sent to abuse true love, and yet are seen
Daring to blind the virtuous thought with error;
But be they far from me with their fond terror!
I am resolv'd my Cloe yet is true.

(CLOE within.)

Cloe! Hark! Cloe! Sure, this voice is new,
Whose shrillness, like the sounding of a bell,
Tells me it is a woman. -- Cloe, tell
Thy blessed name again.

Cloe. (within.) Here!

Daph. Oh, what a grief is this, to be so near,
And not encounter!

Enter CLOE.

Cloe. Shepherd, we are met:
Draw close into the covert, lest the wet,
Which falls like lazy mist upon the ground,
Soak through your startups.2

Daph. Fairest, are you found?
How have we wand'red, that the better part
Of this good night is past? Oh, my heart! How have I long'd to meet you, how to kiss
Those lily hands, how to receive the bliss
That charming tongue gives to the happy ear
Of him that drinks your language! But I fear
I am too much unmann'd, far too rude,
And almost grown lascivious, to intrude
These hot behaviours; where regard of fame,
Honour and modesty, a virtuous name,
And such discourse as one fair sister may
Without offence unto the brother say,
Should rather have been tend'red. But, believe,
Here dwells a better temper: do not grieve,
Then, ever-kindest, that my first salute
Seasons so much of fancy; I am mute

2 High laced boots.
Henceforth to all discourses but shall be
Suiting to your sweet thoughts and modesty.
Indeed, I will not ask a kiss of you,
No, not to wring your fingers, nor to sue
To those blest pair of fixed stars for smiles;
All a young lover’s cunning, all his wiles,
And pretty wanton dyings shall to me
Be strangers; only to your chastity
I am devoted ever.

Clotho. Honest swain,
First let me thank you, then return again
As much of my love. — [Aside.] No, thou art too cold,
Unhappy boy, not temp’red to my mould;
Thy blood falls heavy downward. ’Tis not fear
To offend in boldness wiss; they never wear Deserved favours that deny to take
When they are offered freely. Do I wake,
To see a man of his youth, years, and feature,
And such a one as we call goodly creature,
Thus backward? What a world of precious art
Were merely lost, to make him do his part!
But I will shake him off, that dares not hold:
Let men that hope to be belov’d be bold.
Daphnis, I do desire, since we are met
So happily, our lives and fortunes set
Upon one stake, to give assurance now,
By interchange of hands and holy vow,
Never to break again. Walk you that way,
Whilst I in zealous meditation stray
A little this way. When we both have ended
These rites and duties, by the woods befriended
And secrecy of night, retire and find
An aged oak, whose hollowness may bind
Us both within his body; thither go;
It stands within you bottom.

Daphnis. Be it so. Exit. Cloe. And I will meet there never more with thee, Thou idle shamefastnes! Alexis. (within.) Cloe! Thon idle shamefastnes! Alexis. (within.) Cloe! That dare, I hope, be bolder.

Cloe. Great Pan, for Syrinx’ sake, bid speed our plough!

ACT III

SCENE I.1

Enter Sullen Shepherd, with Amarillus in a sleep.

Sull. Shep. From thy forehead thus I take These herbs, and charge thee not awake
Till in yonder holy well
Thrice, with powerful magic spell
Fill’d with many a baleful word
Thou hast been dipt. Thus, with my cord
Of blasted hemp, by moonlight twin’d
I do thy sleepy body bind.

I turn thy head unto the east,
And thy feet unto the west,
Thy left arm to the south put forth,
And thy right unto the north.
I take thy body from the ground,
In this deep and deadly swoond,
And into this holy spring
I let thee slide down by my string; —

[Let her down into the well.]

Take this maid, thou holy pit,
To thy bottom; nearer yet;
In thy water pure and sweet,
By thy leave I dip her feet;
Thus I let her lower yet,
That her ankles may be wet;
Yet down lower, let her knee
In thy waters washed be;
There stop. — Fly away,
Every thing that loves the day!
Truth, that hath but one face,
I charm thee from this place.
Snakes that cast your coats for new,
Chameleons that alter hue,
Hares that yearly sexes change,
Proteus alt’ring oft and strange,
Hecate with shapes three,
Let this maiden changed be,
With this holy water wet,
To the shape of Amoret!
Cynthia, work thou with my charm! —
Thus I draw thee, free from harm,
[Draws her out of the well, in the shape of Amoret.]
Up out of this blessed lake.
Rise both like her and awake! She awaketh. Amar. Speak, shepherd, am I Amoret to sight?
Or hast thou mist in any magic rite,
For want of which any defect in me
May make our practices discovered be?
Sull. Shep. By yonder moon, but that I here do stand,
Whose breath hath thus transform’d thee, and whose hand
Let thee down dry, and pluck thee up thus wet,
I should myself take thee for Amoret!
Thon art in clothes, in feature, voice and hue;
So like, that sense cannot distinguish you.
Amar. Then, this deceit, which cannot crossed be,
At once shall lose her him, and gain thee me.
Hither she needs must come, by promise made;
And, sure, his nature never was so bad.
To bid a virgin meet him in the wood;
When night and fear are up, but understood
’T was his part to come first. Being come, I’ll say,
My constant love made me come first and stay;
Then will I lead him further to the grove:
But stay you here, and, if his own true love
Shall seek him here, set her in some wrong path,
Which say her lover lately trodden hath;
I’ll not be far from hence. If need there be,
Here is another charm, whose power will free
The dazzled sense, read by the moonbeams clear,
And in my own true shape make me appear.

Enter Perigot.

Sull. Shep. Stand close; here's Perigot, whose constant heart
Longs to behold her in whose shape thou art. [Retires with Amarillis.]

Peri. This is the place. — Fair Amoret! — The hour
Is yet scarce come. Here every sylvan power
Delights to be, about you sacred well,
Which they have blest with many a powerful spell;
For never traveller in dead of night,
Nor stray'd beasts have fall'n in; but when sight
Hath fail'd them, then their right way they have found.
By help of them, so holy is the ground.
But I will farther seek, lest Amoret
Should be first come, and so stray long unmet. —

My Amoret, Amoret! — Exit.

[Amor. coming forward. Perigot!]

Peri. [within.] My love!

Amar. I came, my love! Exit.

Sull. Shep. Now she hath got Her own desires, and I shall gainer be.
Of my longlook'd-for hopes, as well as she.
How bright the moon shines here, as if she strove
To show her glory in this little grove.

Enter Amoret.

To some newloved shepherd ! Yonder is Another Amoret. Where differs this
From that? But that she Perigot hath met,
I should have taken this for the counterfeit.
Herbs, woods, and springs, the power that in you lies,
If mortal men could know your properties!

Amar. Methinks it is not time; I have no fear,
Walking this wood, of lion or of bear,
Whose names at other times have made me quake,

When any shepheresses in her tale spake
Of some of them, that underneath a wood
Have torn true lovers that together stood;
Methinks there are no goblins, and men's talk,
That in these woods the nimble fairies walk,
Are fables: such a strong heart I have got Because I come to meet with Perigot. —

My Perigot! Who's that? my Perigot?

Sull. Shep. [coming forward.] Fair maid!

Amar. Aye me, thou art not Perigot?

Sull. Shep. But I can tell you news of Perigot.

An hour together under yonder tree
He sat with wreathed arms, and call'd on thee
And said, "Why, Amoret, stay'st thou so long?"

Then starting up, down yonder path he flung,
Lest thou hadst miss'd thy way. Were it day-light.
He could not yet have borne him out of sight.

Amar. Thanks, gentle shepherd; and bear my stay,

That made me fearful I had lost my way.
As fast as my weak legs (that cannot be Weary with seeking him) will carry me,
I'll follow; and, for this thy care of me,
Pray Pan thy love may ever follow thee! Exit.

Sull. Shep. How bright she was, how lovely
Did she show!

Was it not pity to decease her so?
She plucked her garments up, and tript away,
And with a virgininnocence did pray
For me that perjur'd her. Whilst she was here,
Met thought the beams of light that did appear
Were shot from her; methought the moon gave none
But what it had from her. She was alone
With me; if then her presence did so move,
Why did I not assay to win her love?

[Would she] not sure have yielded unto me?
Women love only opportunity,
And not the man; or if she had deni'd,
Alone, I might have forc'd her to have trie'd
Who had been stronger. Oh, vain fool, to let Such blest occasion pass! I'll follow yet;
My blood is up; I cannot now forbear.

Enter Alexis and Cloe.

I come, sweet Amoret! — Soft, who is here?
A pair of lovers? He shall yield her me:

Now lust is up, alike all women.

Alexis. Where shall we rest? But for the love of me, Cloe, I know, ere this would weary be.

Cloe. Alexis, let us rest here, if the place
Be private, and out of the common trace
Of every shepherd; for, I understood,

This night a number are about the wood:
Then, let us choose some place, where, out of sight,
We freely may enjoy our stol'n delight.

Alexis. Then, boldly here, where we shall ne'er be found.
No shepherd's way lies here, 'tis hallow'd ground;
No maid seeks here her strayed cow or sheep;
Fairies and fawns and satyrs do it keep.
Then, carelessly rest here, and clip and kiss,
And let no fear make us our pleasures miss.

Cloe. Then, lie by me: the sooner we begin,
The longer ere the day desery our sin.

[They lie down.]

Sull. Shep. [coming forward.] Forbear to touch my love; or, by you name,
The greatest power that shepherds dare to name,
Here where thou sit'st, under this holy tree,
Her to dishonour, thou shalt buried be!

Alexis. If Pan himself should come out of the lawns,
With all his troops of satyrs and of fawns,

1 Early edd. Ex. Amarillis, Perigot.
2 F. I'll seek him out; and for thy Courtseis.
3 Ed. conj. Early edd. She would.
And bid me leave, I swear by her two eyes
(A greater oath than thine), I would not rise!
Sull. Sheep. Then, from the cold earth never thou shalt move.

But lose at one stroke both thy life and love.
[\textit{Wounds him with his spear.}]
\textit{Cloe.} Hold, gentle shepherd!
Sull. Sheep. Fairest shepherdess,
Come you with me; I do not love you less Than that fond man, that would have kept you
there
From me of more desert.
Aleris. Oh, yet forbear
To take her from me! Give me leave to die
By her!

\textit{Enter Satyr; Sullen Shepherd runs one way, and Cloe another.}

Sat. Now, whilst the moon doth rule the sky,
And the stars, whose feeble light
Gives a pale shadow to the night,
Are up, great Fan commanded me
To walk this grove about, whilst he,
In a corner of the wood,
Where never mortal foot hath stood,
Keeps dancing, music, and a feast,
To entertain a lovely guest;
Where he gives her many a rose,
Sweeter than the breath that blows
The leaves; grapes, berries of the best;
I never saw so great a feast.
But, to my charge. Here must I stay,
To see what mortals lose their way,
And by a false fire, seeming bright,
Train them in and leave them right,
Then must I watch if any be Forcing of a chastity;
If I find it, then in haste
Give my wreathed horn a blast,
And the fairies all will run,
Wildly dancing by the moon.
And will pinch him to the bone,
Till his lustful thoughts be gone.
Aleris. Oh, death!

Sat. Back again about this ground;
Sure, I hear a mortal sound.
I bind thee by this powerful spell,
By the waters of this well,
By the glimmering moonbeams bright,
Speak again, thou mortal wight!
Aleris. Oh!

Sat. Here the foolish mortal lies,
Sleeping on the ground. — Arise! —
The poor wight is almost dead;
On the ground his wounds have bled,
And his clothes foul'd with his blood:
To my goddess in the wood
Will I lead him, whose hands pure
Will help this mortal wight to cure.
[\textit{Exit carrying Aleris.}]

\textit{Re-enter Cloe.}

Cloe. Since I beheld you shaggy man, my breast
Doth pant; each bush, methinks, should hide a beast.
Yet my desire keeps still above my fear:

I would fain meet some shepherd, knew I where;
For from one cause of fear I am most free,
It is impossible to ravish me,
I am so willing. Here upon this ground
I left my love, all bloody with his wound;
Yet, till that fearful shape made me beseem,
Though he were hurt, I furnished was of one;
But now both lost. — Alexis, speak or move,
If thou hast any life; thou art yet my love! —
He's dead, or else is with this little might Crest from the bank for fear of that ill sprite.
Then, where after thou that struckst my love?
Oh, stay!
Bring me thyself in change, and then I'll say
Thou hast some justice. I will make thee trim
With flowers and garlands that were meant for
him;
I'll clip thee round with both mine arms, as fast
As I did mean he should have embraced.
But thou art fled. — What hope is left for me?
I'll run to Daphnis in the hollow tree, Whom I did mean to mock; though hope be small
To make him bold, rather than none at all,
I'll try him; his heart, and my behaviour, too,
Perhaps may teach him what he ought to do.

\textit{Exit.}

\textit{Re-enter Sullen Shepherd.}

\textit{Sull. Sheep.} This was the place. 'Twas but my feeble sight,
Mixt with the horror of my deed, and night,
That shapt these fears, and made me run away,
And lose my beauteous hardly-gotten prey.
Speak, gentle shepherdess! I am alone,
And tender love for love. — But she is gone
From me, that, having struck her lover dead,
For silly fear left her alone and fled.
And see, the wounded body is remov'd
By her of whom it was so well belov'd.

\textit{Enter Perigot, and Amaryllis in the shape of Amoret.}

But all these fancies must be quite forgot,
I must lie close; here comes young Perigot,
With subtle Amaryllis in the shape
Of Amoret. Pray, love, he may not scape!
[\textit{Retires.}]

\textit{Amar.} Beloved Perigot, show me some place,
Where I may rest my limbs weak with the chase
Of thee, an hour before thou cam'st at least.

\textit{Peri.} Beheld my tardy steps! Here shalt thou rest
Upon this holy bank: no deadly make
Upon this turf herself in folds doth make;
Here is no poison for the toad to feed;
Here boldly spread thy hands; no venom'd weed
Dares blister them; no slimy naiad dare creep
Over thy face when thou art fast asleep;
Here never durst the babbling cackoo spit;
No slough of falling star did ever hit

\textsuperscript{1} The popular explanation of the foam secreted by the cicada.
Upon this bank: let this thy cabin be; This other, set with violets, for me.

Amar. Thou dost not love me, Perigot.

Peri. Fair maid, you only love to hear it often said; You do not doubt.

Amar. Believe me, but I do. Peri. What, shall we now again begin to woo? 'Tis the best way to make your lover last, To play with him when you have caught him fast. Amar. By Pan I swear, beloved Perigot, And by your moon, I think thou lovest me not. Peri. By Pan I swear, and, if I falsely swear, Let him not guard my flocks; let foxes eat My earliest lambs, and wolves, whilst I do sleep, Fall on the rest; a rote among my sheep,— I love thee better than the careful ewe. The new-year'd lamb that is of her own hue: I dote upon thee more than that young lamb Doth on the bag that feeds him from his dam! Were there a sort of wolves got in my fold, And one ran after thee, both young and old Should be devour'd, and it should be my strife To save thee, whom I love above my life. Amar. How should I trust thee, when I see thee choose Another bed, and dost my side refuse? Peri. 'Twas only that the chaste thoughts might be shown 'Twixt thee and me, although we were alone. Amar. Come, Perigot will show his power, that he Can make his Amoret, though she weary be, Rise nimbly from her couch, and come to his. Here, take thy Amoret; embrace and kiss.

Amar. What means my love? Peri. To do as lovers should, That are to be enjoy'd, not to be woo'd. There are no' er a shepherdess in all the plain Can kiss thee with more art; there's none can feign More wanton tricks. Peri. Forbear, dear soul, to try Whether my heart be pure; I'll rather die Than nourish one thought to dishonour thee. Amar. Still think'st thou such a thing as chastity Is amongst women? Perigot, there's none That with her love is in a wood alone, And would come home a maid: be not abus'd With thy fond first belief; let time be us'd. [Perigot rises.]

Amar. Sweet love, lie down. Peri. Since this I live to see, Some bitter north wind blast my flocks and me! Amar. You swore you lov'd, yet will not do my will. Peri. Oh, be as thou wert once, I'll love thee still! Amar. I am as still I was, and all my kind; Though other shows we have, poor men to blind. Peri. Then, here I end all love; and, lest my vain Belief should ever draw me in again, Before thy face, that hast my youth misled, I end my life! my blood be on thy head! [Offers to kill himself with his spear.] Amar. [rising.] Oh, hold thy hands, thy Amoret doth cry! Peri. Thou counsel'st well; first, Amoret shall die, That is the cause of my eternal smart! Amar. Oh, hold! [Exit.] Peri. This steel shall pierce thy lustful heart! [Exit, running after her. The Sullen Shepherd steps out and uncharms her.]

Sull. Shep. Up and down, every where, I strew the herbs, to purge the air: Let your odour drive hence All mists that dazzle sense, Herbs and springs, whose hidden might Alters shapes, and mocks the sight, Thus I charge ye to undo All before I brought ye to! Let her fly, let her escape; Give again her own shape! [Retires.]

Re-enter Amarillia in her own shape, [and Perigot following with his spear.]

Amar. Forbear, thou gentle swain! thou dost mistake; She whom thou follow'st fled into the brake, And as I crost thy way, I met thy wrath; The only fear of which near slaine me hath. Peri. Pardon, fair shepherdess: my rage and night Were both upon me, and beguil'd my sight: But far be it from me to spill the blood Of harmless maids that wander in the wood! Exit Amarillia.

Enter Amoret.

Amo. Many a weary step, in yonder path, Poor hopeless Amoret twice trodden hath, To seek her Perigot; yet cannot hear His voice. — My Perigot! She loves thee dear That calls. Peri. See yonder where she is! How fair She showeth! and yet her breath infects the air. Amo. My Perigot! Peri. Here. Amo. Happy! Peri. Hapless! first It lights on thee: the next blow is the worst. [Wounds her.]
Amo. Stay, Perigot! My love, thou art unjust. [Falls.]

Pert. Death is the best reward that's due to lust.

Exit.

Sull. Shep. Now shall their love be crost: for, being struck,
I'll throw her in the fount, lest being took
By some night-traveller, whose honest care
May help to cure her. —

[Comes forward.]
Shepherdess, prepare yourself to die!

Amo. No mercy I do crave;
Thou canst not give a worse blow than I have,
Tell him that gave me this, who lov'd him too,
He struck my soul, and not my body through;
Tell him, when I am dead, my soul shall be
At peace, if he but think he injur'd me.

Sull. Shep. In this fount be thy grave. Thou cure for a woman, thou art so innocent. —

He flings her into the well.

She cannot escape, for, underneath the ground,
In a long hollow the clear spring is bound,
Till on yon side, where the morn's sun doth look,
The struggling water breaks out in a brook.

Exit.

The God of the River Seeth with Amoret in his arms.

God of the R. What powerful charms my streams do bring Back again unto their spring,
With such force that I their god,
Three times striking with my rod,
Could not keep them in their ranks?
My fishes shoot into the banks;
There's not one that stays and feeds,
All have hid them in the weeds.
Here's a mortal almost dead,
Fall'n into my river-head,
Hallowed so with many a spell,
That till now none ever fell.
'Tis a female young and clear,
Cast in by some ravisher:
See, upon her breast a wound,
On which there is no plaster bound.
Yet, she's warm, her pulses beat,
'Tis a sign of life and heat. —
If thou be'st a virgin pure,
I can give a present cure:
Take a drop into thy wound,
From my watery locks, more round
Than orient pearl, and far more pure
Than unchaste flesh may endure,—
See, she pants, and from her flesh
The warm blood gusheth out afresh.
She is an unpolluted maid;
I must have this bleeding stay'd.
From my banks I pluck this flower
With holy hand, whose virtuous power
Is at once to heal and draw.
The blood returns, I never saw
A fairer mortal. Now doth break
Her deadly slumber. — Virgin, speak.

Amo. Who hath restor'd my sense, given me new breath,
And brought me back out of the arms of death?

God of the R. I have heal'd thy wounds.

Amo. Aye, me! [Sings]

God of the R. Fear not him that succour'd thee.
I am this fountain's god: below,
My waters to a river grow.
And 'twixt two banks with osiers set,
That only prosper in the wet,
Through the meadows do they glide,
Wheeling still on every side,
Sometimes winding round about,
To find the everest channel out.
And if thou wilt go with me,
Leaving mortal company,
In the cool streams shalt thou lie,
Free from harm as well as I:
I will give thee for thy food,
No fish that useth in the mud;
But trout and pike, that love to swim
Where the gravel from the brim
Through the pure streams may be seen;
Orient pearl fit for a queen,
Will I give, thy love to win,
And a shell to keep them in;
Not a fish in all my brook
That shall disobey thy look,
But, when thou wilt, some sliding by,
And from thy white hand take a fly:
And, to make thee understand
How I can my waves command,
They shall bubble, whilst I sing,
Sweeter than the silver string. [Sings.]

The Rose

Do not fear to put thy foot
Bare in the river sweet;
Think not leech, or newt, or toad,
Will bite thy foot when thou hast trod;
Nor let the water rising high,
As thou wadst in, make thee cry.
And sob; but ever live with me,
And not a wave shall trouble thee.

Amo. Immortal power, that rulest this holy flood.

I know myself unworthy to be woe'd
By thee, a god; for ere this, but for thee,
I should have shown my weak mortality:
Besides, by holy oath betwixt us twain,
I am betroth'd unto a shepherd-swain,
Whose comely face, I know, the gods above
May make me leave to see, but not to love.

God of the R. May he prove to thee as true!
Fairest virgin, now adieu:
I must make my waters fly,
Least they leave their channels dry,
And beasts that come unto the spring
Miss their morning's watering;
Which I would not; for of late
All the neighbour-people sate
On my banks, and from the fold
Two white lambs of three weeks old
Offered to my deity;
For which this year they shall be free.
From raging floods, that, as they pass,
Leave their gravel in the grass;
Nor shall their meads be overflowed
When their grass is newly mown.

_Amo._ For thy kindness to me shown,
Never from thy banks be blown
Any tree, with wendi force,
Cross thy streams, to stop my course;
May no beast that comes to drink,
With his horns cast down thy brink;
May none that for thy fish do look,
Cut thy banks to dam thy brook;
Barefoot may no neighbour wade
In thy cool streams, wife nor maid,
When the spawn on stones do lie,
To wash their hemp, and spoil the fry!

_God of the _R._ Thanks, virgin. I must down
Thy wound will put thee to no pain.

Wonder not so soon 'tis gone;
A holy hand was laid upon

_Amo._ And I, unhappy horn to be,
Must follow him that flies from me.

_ACT IV._

_SCENE I._

_Enter Perigot._

_Peri._ She is untrue, unconstant, and unkind;
She's gone, she's gone! Blow high, thou north-west wind,
And raise the sea to mountains; let the trees
That dare oppose thy raging fury leese2
Their firm foundation; creep into the earth,
And shake the world, as at the monstrous birth
Of some new prodigy; whilst I constant stand,
Holding this trusty boar-spear in my hand,
And falling thus upon it.

[Offers to fall on his spear.]

_Enter Amarillis running._

_Amar._ Stay thy dead-doing hand! Thou art too hot Against thyself. Believe me, comely swain,
If that thou diest, not all the showers of rain
The heavy clouds send down can wash away
That foul unmanly guilt the world will lay
Upon thee. Yet thy love untainted stands:
Believe me, she is constant; not the sands
Can be so hardly numb'red as she won.
I do not trifle, shepherd; by the moon,
And all those lesser lights our eyes do view,
All that I told thee, Perigot, is true.

Then, be a free man; put away despair
And will to die; smooth gently up that fair
Dejected forehead; be as when eyes
Took the first heat.

_Peri._

_Amar._ Alas, he doth die
That would believe, but cannot! 'Tis not well
You keep me thus from dying, here to dwell
With many worse companions. But, oh, death!
I am not yet enamou'd of this breath
So much but I dare leave it; 't is not pain

ACT IV

_SCENE II._

_Enter Satyr with Alexis._

_Sat._ Softly gliding as I go,
With this barthen full of woe,
Through still silence of the night
Guided by the glow-worm's light,
Hither and I come at last.

Many a thicket have I past;
Not a twig that durst deny me,
Not a bush that durst desory me
To the little bird that sleeps
On the slender spray; nor creeps
That hardy worm with pointed tail,
But if I be under sail,
Flying faster than the wind,
Leaving all the clouds behind,
But dought hide her tender head
In some hollow tree, or bed
Of seeded nettles; not a hare
Can be started from his fare
By my footing; nor a wish
Is more sudden, nor a fish
Can be found with greater ease
Cut the vast unbounded seas,
Leaving neither print nor sound,
Than I, when nimbly on the ground
I measure many a league an hour.

But, behold, the happy power
That must ease me of my charge,
And by holy hand enlare
The soul of this sad man, that yet
Lies fast bound in deadly fit:

Heaven and great Pan succour it! —

1 Part of the wood.
2 Loss.
3 Lace bought at St. Audrey's Fair at Ely.
4 The wood before Clorin's bower.
5 Q.Q. tower.
Hail, thou beauty of the bower,
Whiter than the paramour
Of my master! Let me crave
Thy virtuous help, to keep from grave
This poor mortal, that here lies,
Waiting when the Destinies
Will undo his thread of life:
View the wound, by cruel knife
Trench't into him.

Clo. [coming from the bower.] What art thou call'd me from my holy rites,
And with the feared name of death affrights
My tender ears? Speak me thy name and will.
Sat. I am the Satyr that did fill
Your lap with early fruit; and will,
When I hap to gather more,
Bring you better and more store.
Yet I come not empty now:
See, a blossom from the bough:
But bestraw his heart that pull'd it,
And his perfect sight that call'd it
From the other springing blooms!
For a sweeter youth the grooms
Cannot show me, nor the downs,
Nor the many neighbouring towns.
Low in yonder glade I found him;
Softly in mine arms I bound him;
Hither have I brought him sleeping
In a trance, his wounds fresh weeping,
In remembrance such youth may
Spring and perish in a day.

Clo. Satyr, they wrong thee that do term thee rude;
Though thou best outward-rough and tawny-hud',
Thy manners are as gentle and as fair
As his who brags himself born only heir
To all humanity. — Let me see thy wound:
This herb will stay the current, being bound
Fast to the orifice, and this restrain
Ulcers and swellings, and such inward pain
As the cold air hath fore'd into the sore;
This to draw out such putrefying gore
As inward falls.

Sat. Heaven grant it may do good!
Clo. Fairly wipe away the blood.
Hold him gently, till I fling
Water of a virtuous spring
On his temples; turn him twice
To the moonbeams; pinch him throe;
That the labouring soul may draw
From his great eclipse.

Sat. I saw
His eyelids moving.
Clo. Give him breath;
All the danger of cold death
Now is vanisht! With this plaster
And thisunction do I master
All the fest'red ill that may Give him grief another day.
Sat. See, he gathers up his spirits,
And begins to hunt for light;
Now 'a gaps and breathes again:
How the blood runs to the vein
That erst was empty!

Alexis. O my heart!
My dearest, dearest Cloe! Oh, the smart
Runs through my side! I feel some pointed thing
Pass through my bowels, sharper than the sting
Of scorpion. —
Pan, preserve me! — What are you?
Do not hurt me: I am true
To my Cloe, though she fly,
And leave me to this destiny.
There she stands, and will not lend
Her smooth white hand to help her friend.
But I am much mistaken, for that face
Bears more austerity and modest grace,
More reproving and more awe,
Than these eyes yet ever saw
In my Cloe. Oh, my pain
Eagerly renew's again!
Give me your help for his sake you love best.

Clo. Shepherd, thou canst not possibly take rest,
Till thou hast laid aside all heats, desires,
Provoking thoughts that stir up lusty fires,
Commerce with wanton eyes, strong blood, and will
To execute; these must be purg'd until
The vein grow whiter; then repent, and pray
Great Pan to keep you from the like decay,
And I shall undertake your cure with ease;
Till when, this virtuous plaster will displease
Your tender sides. Give me your hand, and rise!
Help him a little, Satyr; for his thighs
Yet are feeble.

Alexis. [rising.] Sure, I have lost much blood.
Sat. 'Tis no matter; 't was not good.
Mortal, you must leave your wooing:
Though there be a joy in doing,
Yet it brings much grief behind it;
They best feel it, that do find it.

Clo. Come, bring him in; I will attend his sore. —
When you are well, take heed you lust no more.

[ALEXIS is led INTO THE BOWER.]
Sat. Shepherd, see, what comes of kissing;
By my head, 't were better missing.
Brightest, if there be remaining
Any service, without feigning
I will do it; were I set
To catch the nimble wind, or get
Shadows gliding on the green,
Or to steal from the great queen
Of fairies all her beauty;
I would do it, so much duty
Do I owe those precious eyes.
Clo. I thank thee, honest Satyr. If the cries
Of any other, that be hurt or ill
Draw thee unto them, prithee, do thy will
To bring them hither.

Sat. I will; and when the weather
Serves to angle in the brook,
I will bring a silver hook,
With a line of finest silk,
And a rod as white as milk,
To deceive the little fish.

1 F, cut off.  2 Abundance.  3 Potent.  4 Discomfort.
So I take my leave, and wish
On this bower may ever dwell
Spring and summer!
Clo.
Friend, farewell.

Enter Amoret.

Amo. This place is ominous; for here I lost
My love and almost life, and since have crost
All these woods over; ne'er a nook or dell,
Where any little bird or beast doth dwell,
But I have sought it; ne'er a bending brow
Of any hill, or glade the wind sings through,
Nor a green bank nor shade where shepherds use
To sit and riddle, sweetly pipe, or choose
Their valentines, that I have mist, to find My love in. Perigot! Oh, too unkind,
Why hast thou fled me? Whither art thou gone?
How have I wrong'd thee. Was my love alone
To thee worthy this scorn'd recompense? 'Tis well;
I am content to feel it. But I tell
Thee, shepherd, and these lusty woods shall hear,
Forsaken Amoret is yet as clear
Of any stranger fire, as heaven is
From foul corruption, or the deep abyss
From light and happiness; and thou mayst know
All this for truth, and how that fatal blow
Thou gav'st me, new from desert of mine
Fell on my life, but from suspicion of thine,
Or fury more than madness. Therefore here,
Since I have lost my life, my love, my dear,
Upon this cursed place, and on this green
That first divers'd us, shortly shall be seen
A sight of so great pity, that each eye
Shall daily spend his spring in memory
Of my untimely fall.

Enter Amarihllis.

Amar. [Aside.] I am not blind,
Nor is it through the working of my mind
That this shows Amoret. Forsake me, all
That dwell upon the soul, but what men call
Wonder, or, more than wonder, miracle!
For, sure, so strange as this, the oracle
Never gave answer of; it passeth dreams,
Or madmen's fancy, when the many streams
Of new imaginations rise and fall.
'Tis but an hour since these ears heard her call
For pity to young Perigot; whilst he Directed by his fury, bloodily
Lanc'd up her breast, which bloodless fell and cold;
And, if belief may credit what was told,
After all this, the Melancholy Swain
Took her into his arms, being almost slain,
And to the bottom of the holy well
Flung her, for ever with the waves to dwell.
'T is she, the very same; 'tis Amoret,
And living yet; the great powers will not let

Their virtuous love he crost.—Maid, wipe away
Those heavy drops of sorrow, and allay
The storm that yet goes high, which, not despair,
Breaks heart and life and all before it rest.
Thy Perigot——
Amor. Where, which is Perigot?
Amor. Sits there below, lamenting much,
God-fo't
Thee and thy fortune. Go, and comfort him;
And thou shalt find him underneath a brim
Of sailing pines, that edge yon mountain in.
Amo. I go, I run. Heaven grant me I may win
His soul again!

Enter Sullen Shepherd.

Sull. Shep. Stay, Amarihllis, stay!
You are too fleet; 'tis two hours yet to day.
I have perform'd my promise; let us sit
And warm our bloods together, till the fit
Come lively on us.
Amar. Friend, you are too keen;
The morning riseth, and we shall be seen;
Forbear a little.
Sull. Shep. I can stay no longer.
Amar. Hold, shepherd, hold! I learn not to be a wronger
Of your word. Was not your promise laid,
To break their loves first?
Sull. Shep. I have done it, maid.
Amar. No; they are yet unbroken, met again,
And are as hard to part yet as the stain
Is from the finest lawn.
Sull. Shep. I say they are Now at this present parted, and so far
That they shall never meet
Amar. Swain, 't is not so;
For do but to yon hanging mountain go,
And there believe your eyes.
Sull. Shep. You do but hold
Off with delays and trifles. — Farewell, cold
And frozen bashfulness, unfit for men! —
Thus I salute thee, virgin!

[ Attempts to seize her. ]
Amar. And thus, then,
I bid you follow: catch me if you can! Exit.
Sull. Shep. And, if I stay behind, I am no man! Exit, running after her.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Perigot.

Peri. Night, do not steal away; I woo thee yet
To hold a hard hand o'er the rusty bit
That guides thy lazy team. Go back again,
Boûtes, thou that driv'st thy frozen wain
Round as a ring, and bring a second night,
To hide my sorrows from the coming light;
Let not the eyes of men stare on my face,
And read my falling; give me some black place,
Where never sunbeam shot his wholesome light,
That I may sit and pour out my sad sprite
Like running water, never to be known
After the forced fall and sound is gone.

Enter Amoret, looking for Perigot.

Amo. This is the bottom. — Speak, if thou be here,
My Perigot! Thy Amoret, thy dear,
Calls on thy loved name.

Peri. What art thou dare
Tread these forbidden paths, where death and care
Dwell on the face of darkness?

Amo. 'Tis thy friend,
Thy Amoret, come hither, to give end
To these consumings. Look up, gentle boy:
I have forgot those pains and dear annoy
I suffer'd for thy sake, and am content
To be thy love again. Why hast thou rend
Those curled locks, where I have often hung Ribands and damask-roses, and have flung
Waters distill'd, to make thee fresh and gay,
Swetter than nosegay's on a bridal day?
Why dost thou cross thine arms, and hang thy face?

Down to thy bosom, letting fall space
From those two little heavens, upon the ground,
Showers of more price, more orient, and more round,
Than those that hang upon the moon's pale brow.

Cease these complaining, shepherd: I am now
The same I ever was, as kind and free,
And can forgive before you ask of me;
Indeed, I can and will.

Peri. So spoke my fair! —
Oh, you great working powers of earth and air,
Water and forming fire, why have you lent
Your hidden virtues of so ill intent?

Amo. Ev'n such a face, so fair, so bright of hue,
Had Amoret; such words, so smooth and new,
Came flowing from her tongue; such was her eye,
And such the pointed sparklet that did fly
Forth like a bleeding shaft: all is the same,
The robe and buskins, painted hook, and frame
Of all her body. Oh me, Amoret!

Amo. Shepherd, what means this riddle? Why hath set
So strong a difference 'twixt myself and me,
That I am grown another? Look, and see
The ring thou gav'est me, and about my wrist
That curious bracelot thou thyself dist twist
From those fair tresses. Know'st thou Amoret?
Hath not some newer love fore'd thee forget
Thy ancient faith?

Peri. Still nearer to my love!

Amo. Still nearer to my love!

These be the very words she oft did prove Upon my temper; so she still would take Wonder into her face, and silent make Signs with her head and hand, as who would say,
"Shepherd, remember this another day."

Amo. Am I not Amoret? Where was I lost?
Can there be heaven, and time, and men, and most Of these unconstant? Faith, where art thou fled?
Are all the vows and protestations dead,
The hands held up, the wishes and the heart?
Is there not one remaining but a part
Of all the links to be found? Why, then, I see Men never knew that virtue, constancy.

Peri. Men ever were most blessed, till cross fate
Brought love and women forth, unfortunate
To all that ever tasted of their smiles;
Whose actions are all double, full of wiles;
Like to the subtle hare, that 'fore the hounds
Makes many turnings, leaps, and many rounds,
This way and that way, to deceive the scent
Of her pursuers.

Amo. 'Tis but to prevent
Their speedy coming on, that seek her fall;
The hands of cruel men, more bestial,
And of a nature more refusing good
Then beasts themselves, or fishes of the flood.

Peri. Thou art all these, and more than nature meant
When she created all; frowns, joys, content;
Extreme fire for an hour, and presently
Colder than sleepy poison, or the sea
Upon whose face sits a continual frost;
Your actions ever driven to the most,
Then down again as low, that none can find
The rise or falling of a woman's mind.

Amo. Can there be any age, or days, or time,
Or tongues of men, guilty so great a crime
As wronging simple maid? Oh, Perigot,
Thou that wast yesterday without a blot;
Thou that wast every good and every thing
That men call blessed; thou that wast the spring
From whence our looser grooms drew all their best;
Thou that wast always just and always blest
In faith and promise; thou that hast the name
Of virtues given thee, and made good the same.

Ev'n from thy cradle; thou that wast all
That men delighted in! Oh, what a fall
Is this, to have been so, and now to be
The only best in wrong and infamy!

And I to live to know this! and by me,
That lov'd thee dearer than mine eyes, or that
Which we esteem'd our honour, virgins state!
Dearer than swallows love the early morn,
Or dogs of chase the sound of merry horn;
Dearer than thou canst love thy new love, if thou hast
Another, and far dearer than the last;
Dearer than thou canst love thyself, though all
The self-love were within thee that did fail
With that coy swarm that now is made a flower,
For whose dear sake Echo weeps many a shower!

And am I thus rewarded for my flame?
Lov'd I all worthily to get a wanton's name?
Come, thou forsaken willow, wind my head,
And noise it to the world, my love is dead!
I am forsaken, I am cast away,
And left for every lazy groom to say
I was unconstant, light, and sooner lost
IV. V.

THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERDESS 617

Than the quick clouds we see, or the chill frost
When the hot sun beats on it! Tell me yet,
Canst thou not love again thy Amoret?

Peri. Thou art not worthy of that blessed name;
I must not know thee. Fling thy wanton flame
Upon some lighter blood that may be hot
With words and feigned passions; Perigot
Was ever yet unta’en, and shall not now
Stoop to the sulliness of a borrowed brow.

Amo. Then hear me, Heaven, to whom I call for right,
And you, fair twinkling stars, that crown the night;

And hear me, woods, and silence of this place,
And ye, sad hours, that move a sullen pace;
Hear me, ye shadows, that delight to dwell
In horrid darkness, and ye powers of hell,
While I breathe out my last! I am that maid,
That yet-untainted Amoret, that play’d
The careless prodigal, and gave away
My soul to this young man that now dares say
I am a stranger, not the same, more void:
And thus with much belief I was beguill’d,
I am that maid, that have delay’d, demi’d,
And almost scorn’d the loves of all that tri’d
To win me, but this swain; and yet confess
I have been woe’d by many with no less Soul of affection; and have often had Rings, belts, and cranknels, sent me from the lad
That feeds his flocks down westward; lambs
And doves
By young Alexis; Daphnis sent me gloves;
All which I gave to thee; nor these nor they
That sent them did I smile on, or e’er lay
Up to my after-memory. But why
Do I resolve to grieve, and not to die?
Happy had been the stroke thou gav’st, if home;
By this time had I found a quiet room,
Where every slave is free, and every breast,
That living bred new care, now lies at rest;
And thither will poor Amoret.

Peri. Thou must.
Was ever any man so loth to trust
His eyes as I? or was there ever yet
Any so like as this to Amoret?
For whose dear asks I promise, if there be
A living soul within thee, thus to free
Thy body from it? He hurts her again.

Amo. [falling.] So, this work hath end.
Farewell, and live; be constant to thy friend
That loves thee next.

Enter Satyr; Perigot runs off.

Sat. See, the day begins to break,
And the light shoots like a streak
Of subtle fire; the wind blows cold,
Whilst the morning doth unfold;
Now the birds begin to rouse,
And the squirrel from the boughs
Leaps, to get him nuts and fruit.
The early lark, that erst was mute,
Carols to the rising day
Many a note and many a lay:

Therefore here I end my watch.
Lest the wand’ring swain should catch
Harm, or lose himself.

Amo. Ah me!
Sat. Speak again, what’er thou be;
I am ready; speak, I say;
By the dawning of the day,
By the power of night and Pan,
I enforce thee speak again!

Amo. Oh, I am most unhappy.
Sat. Yet more blood!
Sure, these wanton swains are wood.
Can there be a hand or heart
Dare commit so vile a part
As this murder? By the moon,
That hid herself when this was done,
Never was a sweeter face;
I will bear her to the place
Where my goddess keeps, and crave
Her to give her life or grave.

Exit [carrying Amoret].

[Scene V.]

Enter Clorin.

Clo. Here whilst one patient takes his rest secure,
I stand abroad to do another cure. —
Pardon, thou buried body of my love,
That from thy side I dare so soon remove;
I will not prove unconstant, nor will leave
Thee for an hour alone. When I deceive
My first-made vow, the wildest of the wood
Tear me, and o’er thy grave let out my blood!
I go by wit to cure a lover’s pain,
Which no herb can; being done, I’ll come again.

Exit.

Enter Thenot.

The. Poor shepherd, in this shade for ever lie,
And seeing thy fair Clorin’s cabin, die!

[lying down.]
Oh, hapless love, which being answer’d, ends!
And, as a little infant cries and bents
His tender brows, when, rolling of his eyes,
He hath sepi’d something that glisters nigh,
Which he would have; yet, give it him, away
He throws it straight, and cries afresh to play
With something else, such my affection; set
On which that I should loathe, if I could get.

Re-enter Clorin.

Clo. [Aside.] See, where he lies! Did ever man but he Love any woman for her constancy
To her dead lover, which she needs must end
Before she can allow him for her friend,
And he himself must needs the cause destroy
For which he loves, before he can enjoy?
Poor shepherd, Heaven grant I at once may free
Thee from thy pain, and keep my loyalty! —
Shepherd, look up.

The. Thy brightness doth amaze;
So Phoebus may at noon bid mortals gaze;
Thy glorious constancy appears so bright,
I dare not meet the beams with my weak sight.
Clo. Why dost thou pine away thyself for me?
The. Why dost thou keep such spotsless constancy?
Clo. Thou holy shepherd, see what for thy sake
Clarin, thy Clarin, now dare undertake.

The. Stay there, thou constant Clarin! If there be Yet any part of woman left in thee,
To make thee light, think yet before thou speak.

Clo. See, what a hol. o'vow for thee I break;
I, that already have my fame far spread
For being constant to my lover dead.
The. Think yet, dear Clarin, of thy love; how true,
If you had died, he would have been to you.

Clo. Yet, all I'll lose for thee—
The. Think but how blest
A constant woman is above the rest!
Clo. And offer up myself, here on this ground,
To be disposs'd by thee.

The. Why dost thou wound
His heart with malice against women more,
That hated all the sex but thee before?
How much more pleasant had it been to me
To die than to behold this change in thee!
Yet, yet return; let not the woman stay!

Clo. Insult not on her now, nor use delay,
Who for thy sake hath ventur'd all her fame.

The. Thou hast not ventur'd, but bought certain shame;
Your sex's curse, foul falsehood, must and shall,
I see, once in your lives, light on you all.
I hate thee now. Yet turn!

Clo. Be just to me:
Shall I at once lose both my fame and thee?

The. Thou hast no fame; that which thou didst like good
Was but thy appetite that sway'd thy blood
For that time to the best: for as a blast
That through a house comes, usually doth cast
Things out of order, yet by chance may come,
And blow some one thing to his proper room,
So did thy appetite, and not thy zeal,
Sway thee by chance to do some one thing well.
Yet turn!

Clo. Thou dost but try me, if I would Forsake thy dear embraces for my old
Love's, though he were alive: but do not fear.
The. I do contend thee now, and dare come near,
And gaze upon thee; for methinks that grace,
Austerity, which sate upon that face,
Is gone, and thou like others. False maid, see,
This is the gain of foul inconstancy!

Clo. 'Tis done: great Pan, I give thee thanks for
it—
What art could not have heal'd is cur'd by wit.

Re-enter Thenot.
The. Will ye be constant yet? Will ye remove
Into the cabin to your buried love?
THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERDESS

v. ii.

Priest. God pardon sin! — Show me the way that leads To any of their haunts.

Old Shep. This to the meads,
And that down to the woods.

Priest. Then, this for me.

Come, shepherd, let me crave your company.

Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Clorin in her cabin, Alexis with her.

Clo. Now your thoughts are almost pure,
And your wound begins to cure;
Strive to banish all that's vain,
Lost it should break out again.

Alex. Eternal thanks to thee, thou holy maid!

I find my former wand'ring thoughts well staid
Through thy wise precepts: and my outward pain
By thy choice herbs is almost gone again.
Thy sex's vice and virtue are reveal'd
At once; for what one hurt another heal'd.

Clo. May thy grief more appease!
Relapses are the worst disease.
Take heed how you in thought offend;
So mind and body both will mend.

Enter Satyr, carrying Amoret.

Amo. Be'est thou the wildest creature of the wood,

That bear'st me thus away, drown'd in my blood,
And dying, know I cannot injur'd be;
I am a maid; let that name fight for me.

Sat. Fairest virgin, do not fear
Me, that doth thy body bear,
Not to hurt, but heal'd to be;
Men are ruder far than we,—
See, fair goddess, in the wood
They have let out yet more blood.

Some savage man hath struck her breast,
So soft and white, that no wild beast
Durst ha' touch'd, asleep or 'wake;
So sweet, that adder, newt, or snake,
Would have lain, from arm to arm,
On her bosom to be warm.

All a night, and, being hot,
Gone away, and stung her not.
Quickly clap herbs to her breast.

A man, sure, is a kind of beast.

Clo. With spotless hand on spotless breast
I put these herbs, to give thee rest;
Which till I heal thee, will abide,
If both be pure; if not, off slide.—

See, it falls off from the wound!
Shepherdess, thou art not sound,
The full of lust.

Sat. Who would have thought it?
So fair a face!

Clo. Why, that hath brought it.

Amo. For aught I know or think, these words my last.
Yet, Pan so help me as my thoughts are chaste!

Clo. And so may Pan bless this my cure,

As all my thoughts are just and pure!
Some uncleanness nigh doth lurk,
That will not let my medicines work.—

Satyr, search if thou canst find it.

Sat. Here away methinks I wind 2 it:

Stronger yet,—Oh, here they be;
Here, here, in a hollow tree,
Two fond mortals have I found.

Clo. Bring them out; they are unsound.

Enter Cloe and Daphnis.

Sat. By the fingers thus I wring ye,
To my goddess thus I bring ye;
Strife is vain, come gently in.—
I scented them; they're full of sin.

Clo. Hold, Satyr; take this glass,
Sprinkle over all the place.

Purge the air from lustful breath,
To save this shepherdess from death:
And stand you still whilst I do dress
Her wound, for fear the pain increase.

Sat. From this glass I throw a drop
Of crystal water on the top
Of every grass, on flowers a pair:
Send a fume, and keep the air
Pure and wholesome, sweet and blest,
Till this virgin's wound be best.—

Clo. Satyr, help to bring her in.

Sat. By Pan, I think she hath no sin.

She is so light.—Lie on these leaves.
Sleep, that mortal sense deceives,
Crown thine eyes and ease thy pain;

May'st thou soon be well again!

Clo. Satyr, bring the shepherd near;
Try him, if his mind be clear.

Sat. Shepherd, come.

Daph. My thoughts are pure.

Sat. The better trial to endure.

Clo. In this flame his finger thrust,
Which will burn him if he last;
But if not, away will turn,
As loth unsotted flesh to burn.—

[Satyr applies Daphnis's finger to the taper.]

See, it gives back; let him go.

Farewell, mortal: keep thee so.

Exit Daphnis.

Stay, fair nymph; fly not so fast;
We must try if you be chaste.—

Here's a hand that quakes for fear;
Sure, she will not prove so clear.

Clo. Hold her finger to the flame;
That will yield her praise or shame.

Sat. To her doom she dares not stand,
[Applies Cloe's finger to the taper.]

But plucks away her tender hand;
And the taper darting sends
His hot beams at her fingers' ends.—

Oh, thou art foul within, and hast
A mind, if nothing else, unchaste!

Alex. Is not that Cloe? 'Tis my love, 'tis she!

Cloe. Fair Cloe!

Cloe. My Alexis!

1 The wood before Clorin's bower.

2 Scent.

3 Withdraws.
Hida the faint traveller be bold and free; 160
'Twere but to me like thunder 'gainst the bay,
Whose lightning may enclose, but never stay 165
Upon his charmed branches; such am I
Against the catching flames of woman's eye.
Priest. Then, wherewith hast thou wand'red?
The.
'Twas a vow
That drew me out last night, which I have now
Strictly perform'd, and homewards go to give as Fresh pasture to my sheep, that they may live.
Priest. 'Tis good to hear you, shepherd, if the heart
In this well-sounding music bear his part.
Where have you left the rest?
The. 1
I have not seen,
Since yesternight we met upon this green
To fold our flocks up, any of that train;
Yet have I walk'd those woods round, and have lain
All this long night under an aged tree;
Yet neither wond'ring shepherd did I see,
Or shepherdess; or drew into mine ear
The sound of living thing, unless it were
The nightingale, among the thick-leav'd spring
That sits alone in sorrow, and doth sing
Whole nights away in mourning; or the owl,
Or our great enemy, 2 that still doth howl
Against the moon's cold beams.
Priest. Go, and beware
Of after-falling.
The. Father, 'tis my care. Exit.
Enter DAPHNIS.
Old Shep. Here comes another straggler; sure I see
A shame in this young shepherd. — Daphnis?
Daph. He.
Priest. Where hast thou left the rest, that should have been Long before this grazing upon the green
Their yet-imprison'd flocks?
Daph. Thou holy man,
Give me a little breathing, till I can
Be able to unfold what I have seen;
Such horror, that the like hath never been Known to the ear of shepherd. Oh, my heart
Labours a double motion to impart
So heavy tidings! You all know the border
Where the chase Clarin lives, by whose great power
Sick men and cattle have been often cur'd;
There lovely Amoret, that was assur'd 3
To Insty Parigot, bleeds out her life,
Fell'd by some iron hand and fatal knife;
And, by her, young Alexia.
Enter AMARILLIS, running from her Sullen
Shepherd.
Amar. If there be
Ever a neighbour-brook or hollow tree,
Receive my body, close me up from lust
That follows at my heels! Be ever just,
Thou god of shepherds, Pan, for her dear sake
That loves the rivers' brink and still doth shake
The wolf. 4
Retros.
In cold remembrance of thy quick pursuit;
Let me be made a reed, and, ever mute,
Nod to the waters’ fall, whilst every blast Sings through my slender leaves that I was a chaste!

Priest. This is a night of wonder. — Amarill,
Be comforted: the holy gods are still
Revengers of these wrongs.

Amar. Thou blessed man,
Honour’d upon these plains, and lov’d of Pan,
Hear me, and save from endless infamy
My yet-unblasted flower, virginity!
By all the garlands that have crown’d that head,
By thy chaste office, and the marriage-bed
That still is blessed by thee; by all the rites
Due to our god, and by those virgin-lights
That burn before his altar; let me not Fall from my former state, to gain the blot
That never shall be purg’d! I am not now
That wanton Amarillis: here I vow
To Heaven, and thee, grave father, if I may Scape this unhappy night, to know the day
A virgin, never after to endure
The terrors or complicity of men unrave!
I hear him come; save me!

Priest. Retire a while
Behind this bush, till we have known that vile Abuser of young maidens. [They retire.]

Enter Sullen [Shepherd].

Sull. Shep. Stay thy pace,
Most lov’d Amarillis; let the chase
Grow calm and milder: fly me not so fast:
I fear the pointed brambles have unlack’d
Thy golden buckskins. Turn again, and see
Thy shepherd follow, that is strong and free,
Able to give thee all content and ease.
I am not bashful, virgin; I can please
At first encounter, hug thee in mine arm,
And give thee many kisses, soft and warm
As those the sun prints on the smiling cheek
Of plums or mellow peaches; I am sleek
And smooth as Neptune when stern Aulis
Locks up his surly winds, and nimbly thus
Can show my active youth. Why dost thou fly?
Remember, Amarillis, it was I
That kill’d Alexa for thy sake, and set
An everlasting hate ’twixt Amoret
And her beloved Perigot; ’twas I
That drown’d her in the well, where she must lie
Till time shall leave to be. Then, turn again,
Turn with thy open arms, and clip me the swain
That hath perform’d all this; turn, turn, I say;
I must not be deluded.

Priest [coming forward.] Monster, stay! Thou
That art like a cannker to the state
Thou livest and breath’st in, eating with debate
Through every honest bosom, forcing still
The veins of any that may serve thy will;
Thou that hast offer’d with a sinful hand
To seize on this virgin, that doth stand
Yet trembling here! Good holiness, declare

What had the danger been, if being bare
I had embrac’d her; tell me, by your art,
What coming wonders would that sight impart.

Priest. Lust and a branded soul.

Sull. Shep. Yet, tell me more;
Hast not our mother Nature, for her store
And great excuse, it is said and just,
And will’d that every living creature must Beget his like?

Priest. You’re better read than I,
I must confesse, in blood and lechery. —
Now to the bowre, and bring this beast along,
Where he may suffer penance for his wrongs.

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Perigot, with his hand bloody.

Peri. Here will I wash it in the morning’s dew,
Which she on every little grass doth strew
In silver drops against the sun’s appear; —
’Tis holy water, and will make me clear.
My hand will not be cleans’d. — My wronged love,
If thy chaste spirit in the air yet move,
Look mildy down on him that yet doth stand
All full of guilt, thy blood upon his hand;
And though I struck thee undeservedly,
Let my revenge on her that injur’d thee
Make less a fault which I intended not,
And let these dew-drops wash away my spot —
It will not cleanse. Oh, to what sacred blood
Shall I resort, to wash away this blood?
Amidst these trees the holy Clarion dwells,
In a low cabin of cut boughs, and heals
All wounds: to her I will myself address,
And my rash faults repentantly confess;
Perhaps she’ll find a means, by art or prayer,
To make my hand, with chaste blood stained,
fair.
That done, not far hence, underneath some tree
I’ll have a little cabin built, since she Whom I adore’d is dead: there will I give Myself to strictness, and, like Clarion, live.

Exit.

[SCENE V.]

The curtain is drawn, Clarion appears sitting in the cabin, Amoret sitting on the one side of her, Alexis and Cloe on the other; the Satyr standing by.

Clo. Shepherd, once more your blood is staid:
Take example by this maid.
Who is heald ere you be pure;
So hard it is lewd lust to cure.
Take heed, then, how you turn your eye
On this other lustfully. —
And, shepherdess, take heed lest you
Move his willing eye thereto:
Let no ringing, nor pinch, nor smile,
Of yours he weaker sense beguile. —
In your love yet true and chaste,
And for ever so to last?
Alexis. I have forgot all vain desires,

1 Embrace.
2 Part of the wood.
3 Appearance.
4 The wood before Clarion’s bower.
5 Q-Q. these; F, each.
All looser thoughts, ill-temper'd fires: True love I find a pleasant fume, Whose moderate heat can ne'er consume.
Clo. And I a new fire feel in me, Whose chaste flame is not quenched to be.
Clo. Join your hands with modest touch, And for ever keep you such.

Enter Perigot.

Peri. [Aside.] You is her cabin: thus far off I'll stand, And call her forth; for my unhallowed hand I dare not bring so near you sacred place. — Clarin, come forth, and do a timely grace To a poor swain.

Clo. What art thou that dost call me? Clarin is ready to do good to all:
Come near.

Peri. I dare not.

Clo. Satyr, see who it is that calls on me.

Sat. [coming from the bower.] There, at hand, some swain doth stand, Stretching out a bloody hand.
Peri. Come, Clarin, bring thy holy waters clear, To wash my hand.

Clo. [coming out.] What wonders have been here To-night! Stretch forth thy hand, young swain; Wash and rub it, whilst I rain Holy water.

Peri. Still you pour, But my hand will never scour.
Clo. Satyr, bring him to the bower: We will try the sovereign power Of other waters.

Sat. Mortal, sure, 'T is the blood of maiden pure That stains thee so.

The Satyr leadeth him to the bower, where he spith; Amoret, and kneeling down, she knoweth him.

Peri. What'ser thou be, Be'st thou her sprite, or some divinity, That in her shape thinks good to walk this grove, Pardon poor Perigot!

Amor. I am thy love, Thy Amoret, for evermore thy love: Strike once more on my naked breast, I'll prove As constant still. Oh, couldst thou love me yet, How soon could I my former griefs forget!
Peri. So over-great with joy that you live, now I am, that no desire of knowing how Doth seize me. Hast thou still power to forgive?

Amor. Whilst thou hast power to love, or I to live: More welcome now than hadst thou never gone.

Astray from me!

Peri. And when thou lov'st alone, As and not I thee,] death, or some lingering pain That's worse, light on me!

Clo. Now your stain Perhaps will cleans'd be; once again. See, the blood that erst did stay, With the water drops away. All the powers again are pleas'd, And with this new knot are appease'd. Join your hands, and rise together: Pan be blest that brought you hither!

Enter Priest of Pan and Old Shepherd.

Go back again, what'ser thou art; unless Smooth maiden-thoughts possess thee, do not press This hallowed ground. — Go, Satyr, take his hand, And give him present trial.

Sat. Mortal, stand, Till by fire I have made known Whether thou be such a one That mayst freely tread this place. Hold thy hand up. — Never was [Applying the Priest's hand to the taper.] More untainted flesh than this. Fairest, he is full of bliss.

Clo. Then boldly speak, why dost thou seek this place?

Priest. First, honour'd virgin, to behold thy face, Where all good dwells that is; next, for to try The truth of late report was given to me, — Those shepherds that have met with foul mischance Through much neglect and more ill government, Whether the wounds they have may yet endure The open air, or stay a longer cure; And lastly, what the doom may be shall light Upon those guilty wretches, through whose spite All this confusion fell; for to this place, Thou holy maiden, have I brought the race Of those offenders, who have freely told Both why and by what means they gave this bold Attempt upon their lives.

Clo. Fume all the ground, And sprinkle holy water, for unsound And foul infection 'gins to fill the air: It gathers yet more strongly; take a pair [The Satyr fumes the ground, etc.] Of censers fill'd with frankincense and myrrh, Together with cold campfire: quietly stir Thee, gentle Satyr, for the place begins To sweat and labour with th' abhorred sins Of those offenders: let them not come nigh, For full of itching flame and leprosy Their very souls are, that the ground goes back, And shrinks to feel the sullen weight of black And so unheard-of venom. — Hie thee fast, Thou holy man, and banish from the chastise

1 Moorman's conj. for Qq. cleanseth thee. F, reads. This perhaps will cleanseth again.
These manlike monsters; let them never
more
Be known upon these downs, but, long before
The next sun's rising, put them from the sight
And memory of every honest wight:
Be quick in expedition, lest the sores
Of these weak patients break into new gores.

Exeunt Priest.

Peri. My dear, dear Amoret, how happy are These blessed pairs, in whom a little jar
Hath bred an everlasting love, too strong
For time, or steel, or envy to do wrong!
How do you feel your hurts? Alas, poor heart,
How much I was abus'd! Give me the smart,
For it is justly mine.

Amo. I do believe.
It is enough, dear friend; leave off to grieve,
And let us once more, in despite of ill,
Give hands and hearts again.

Peri. With better will
Than e'er I went to find in hottest day
Cool crystal of the fountain, to allay
My eager thirst. May this hand never break!
Hear us, oh, Heaven!

Amo. Be constant.

Peri. Else Pan wreak
With double vengeance my disloyalty!
Let me not dare to know the company
Of men, or any more behold those eyes!

Amo. Thus, shepherd, with a kiss all envy
dies.

Re-enter Priest of Pan.

Priest. Bright maid, I have perform'd your will. The swain
In whom such heat and black rebellions reign
Hath undergone your sentence and disgrace;
Only the maid I have resolv'd, whose face Shows much amendment; many a tear doth
fall
In sorrow of her fault. Great fair, recall
Your heavy doom, in hope of better days,
Which I dare promise; once again upraise
Her heavy spirit, that near drowned lies
In self-consuming care that never dies.

Clo. I am content to pardon: call her in.—
The air grows cool again, and doth begin
To purge itself: how bright the day doth show
After this stormy cloud! — Go, Satyr, go,
And with this taper boldly try her hand.
If she be pure and good, and firmly stand
To be so still, we have perform'd a work
Worthy the gods themselves.

Satyr brings AMARILLIS in.

Sat. Come forward, maiden; do not lurk,
Nor hide your face with grief and shame;
Now or never get a name
That may raise thee, and re-cure
All thy life that was impure.
Hold your hand unto the flame;
If thou be'st a perfect dame,
Or hast truly vow'd to mend,
This pale fire will be thy friend.

[Applies her hand to the taper.]

See, the taper hurts her not!

Go thy ways; let never spot
Henceforth seize upon thy blood:
Thank the gods, and still be good.

Clo. Young shepherdess, now ye are brought
again
To virgin-state, be so, and so remain
To thy last day, unless the faithful love
Of some good shepherd force thee to remove;
Then labour to be true to him, and live
As such a one that ever strives to give
A blessed memory to after-time;
Be famous for your good, not for your crime.—
Now, holy man, I offer up again
These patients, full of health and free from pain.

Keep them from after-ills; be ever near Unto their actions; teach them how to clear
The tedious way they pass through from suspect;

Keep them from wronging others, or neglect
Of duty in themselves; correct the blood
With thirsty bite and labour; let the flood,
Or the next neighbouring spring, give remedy
To greedy thirst and travail, not the tree
That hangs with wanton clusters; let not wine,
Unless in sacrifice or rites divine,
Be ever known of shepherds; have a care,
Thou man of holy life! Now do not spare Their faults through much remissness, nor forget
To cherish him whose many pains and sweat
Hath giv'n increase and added to the downs.
Sort all your shepherds from the lazy clowns
That feed their helpers in the budded brooms.
Teach the young maidens strictness, that the grooms
May ever fear to tempt their blowing youth.
Banish all compliment, but single truth,
From every tongue and every shepherd's heart;
Let them still use persuading, but no art.
Thus, holy priest, I wish to thee and these
All the best goods and comforts that may
please.

All. And all those blessings Heaven did ever give,
We pray upon this bower may ever live.

Priest. Kneel, every shepherd, whilst with powerful hand
I bless your after-labours, and the land
You feed your flocks upon. Great Pan defend
you
From misfortune, and amend you;
Keep you from those dangers still
That are followed by your will;
Give ye means to know at length,
All your riches, all your strength,
Cannot keep your foot from falling
To lewd lust, that still is calling
At your cottage, till his power
Bring again that golden hour
Of peace and rest to every soul;
May his care of you control
All diseases, sores, or pain,
That in after-time may reign
Either in your flocks or you;
Give ye all affections new,
New desires, and tempers new,
That ye may be ever true!
Now rise, and go; and, as ye pass away,
Sing to the God of Sheep that happy lay
That honest Dorus taught ye.—Dorus, he
That was the soul and god of melody.

They all sing [and strewe the ground with flowers].

The Song.

All ye woods, and trees, and bowers,
All ye virtues and ye powers
That inhabit in the lakes,
In the pleasant springs or brakes,
Move your feet
To our sound,
Whilst we greet
All this ground
With his honour and his name
That defends our flocks from blame.

He is great, and he is just,
He is ever good, and must
Thus be honour'd. Daffadillies,
Roses, pinks, and loved lilies,
Let us sing,
Whilst we sing,
Ever holy,
Ever holy,
Ever honour'd, ever young!
Thus great Pan is ever sung!

Exeunt [all except Clorin and Satyr].

Sat. Thou divinest, fairest, brightest,
Thou most powerful maid and whitest,
Thou most virtuous and most blessed,
Eyes of stars, and golden-tressed
Like Apollo; tell me, sweetest,
What new service now is meetest
For the Satyr? Shall I stray
In the middle air, and stay
The sailing rack, or nimbly take Hold by the moon, and gently make Suit to the pale queen of night
For a beam to give thee light?
Shall I dive into the sea,
And bring thee coral, making way
Through the rising waves that fall
In snowy fiesces? Dearest, shall
I catch thee wanton fawns, or flies
Whose woven wings the summer dyes
Of many colours? get thee fruit,
Or steal from Heaven old Orpheus' lute?
All these I'll venture for, and more,
To do her service all these woods adore.
Clo. No other service, Satyr, but thy watch
About these thicks, lest harmless people catch
Mischief or sad mischance.

Sat. Holy virgin, I will dance
Round about these woods as quick
As the breaking light, and prick
Down the lawns and down the vales
Faster than the windmill sails.
So I take my leave, and pray
All the comforts of the day,
Such as Phoebus' heat doth send
On the earth, may still befriend
Thee and this armour!
Clo. And to thee
All thy master's love be free!

Cloud-drift.
Q, R, thickets.
Speed.

SCENE.—Paris.

ACT I.

SCENE I. 1

Enter Monsieur De GARD and a Foot-boy.

De Gard. Sirrah, you know I have rid hard; stir my horse well, and let him want no litter.

F. Boy. I am sure I have run hard; would somebody would walk me, and see me litter'd,

For I think my fellow-horse cannot in reason desire more rest, nor take up his chamber before me:

But we are the beasts now, and the beasts are our masters.

De Gard. When you have done, step to the ten-crowned ordinary —

F. Boy. With all my heart, sir; for I have a twenty-crowned stomach.

De Gard. And there bespeak a dinner.

F. Boy. [going.] Yes, sir, presently. 2 At once.

De Gard. For whom, I beseech you, sir?

F. Boy. For myself, I take it, sir.

De Gard. In truth, you shall not take it; 'tis not meant for you.

There's for your provender. [Gives money.] Bespeak a dinner

For Monsieur Mirabel and his companions.

They'll be in town within this hour. When you have done, sirrah,

---

1 A hall in the house of La Castre. 2 At once.

Make ready all things at my lodging for me, and wait me there.

F. Boy. The ten-crowned ordinary?

De Gard. Yes, sir, if you have not forgot it.

F. Boy. I'll forget my feet first;

'Tis the best part of a footman's faith. Exit.

De Gard. These youths,

For all they have been in Italy to learn thrift,

And seem to wonder at men's lavish ways,

Yet they cannot rub off old friends, their French itches;

They must meet sometimes to disport their bodies

With good wine and good women, and good store too.

Let 'em be what they will, they are arm'd at all points,

And then hang saving, let the sea grow high!

This ordinary can fit 'em of all sizes.

Enter La Castre and Oriana.

They must salute their country with old customs.

Ori. Brother!

De Gard. My dearest sister!

Ori. Welcome, welcome! 3 30

Indeed, ye are welcome home, most welcome!

De Gard. Thank ye.

You are grown a handsome woman, Oriana (Blush at your faults): I am wondrous glad to see ye.

Monsieur La Castre, let not my affection

To my fair sister make me be held unmann'rily.
I am glad to see ye well, to see ye lusty,
Good health about ye, and in fair company;
Believe me, I am proud—

La Cast. Fair sir, I thank ye.
Monsieur De Gard, you are welcome from your journey;
Good men have still good welcome. Give me your hand, sir.
Once more, you are welcome home. You look still younger.

De Gard. Time has no leisure to look after us.
We wander everywhere; Age cannot find us.

La Cast. And how does all?
De Gard. All well, sir, and all lusty.

La Cast. I hope my son be so. I doubt not, sir.
But you have often seen him in your journeys,
And bring me some fair news.

De Gard. Your son is well, sir,
And grown a proper gentleman; he is well and lusty.
Within this eight hours I took leave of him,
And over-heard him, having some slight business
That fore’d me out o’ th’ way. I can assure you,
He will be here to-night.

La Cast. Ye make me glad, sir,
For, o’ my faith, I almost long to see him.
Methinks, he has been away—

De Gard. ’Tis but your tenderness.
What are three years? A love-sick wench will allow it.

His friends that went out with him are come back too,
Belleur and young Pinax. He bid me say little,
Because he means to be his own glad messenger.

La Cast. I thank ye for this news, sir. He shall be welcome,
And his friends too; indeed, I thank you heartily,
And how (for I dare say you will not flatter him)
Has Italy wrought on him? Has he mew’d 1 yet
His wild fantastic toys? They say that climate
Is a great purger of those humours fluxes.

How is he improved, I pray ye?

De Gard. No doubt, sir, well;—
Ha’s borne himself a full and noble gentleman:
To speak him farther is beyond my charter.

La Cast. I am glad to hear so much good.
Come, I see
You long to enjoy your sister; yet I must treat ye,
Before I go, to sup with me to-night,
And must not be denied.

De Gard. I am your servant.

La Cast. Where you shall meet fair, merry,
And noble company;

My neighbour Nantolet and his two fair daughters.

De Gard. Your supper’s season’d well, sir; I shall wait upon ye.

La Cast. Till then I’ll leave ye; and y’are once more welcome. Exit.  8

De Gard. I thank ye, noble sir! Now, Oriana,
How have ye done since I went? Have ye had your health well?
And your mind free?

Ori. You see, I am not bated;
Merry, and eat my meat.

De Gard. A good preservative.
And how have you been us’d? You know,
Oriana,
Upon my going out, at your request,
I left your portion in La Castre’s hands,
The main means you must stick to. For that reason,
And ’tis no little one, I ask ye, sister,
With what humanity he entertains ye,
And how ye find his courtesy?

Ori. Most ready.
I can assure you, sir, I am us’d most nobly.

De Gard. I am glad to hear it; but, I pray thee,
tell me
And tell me true, what end had you, Oriana,
In trusting your money here? He is no kin-
man,
Nor any tie upon him of a guardian;
Nor dare I think ye doubt my prodigality.

Ori. No, certain, sir; none of all this provoked 2 me;

Another private reason.

De Gard. ’Tis not private,
Nor carried so: ’tis common, my fair sister;
Your love to Mirabel: your blushes tell it.
’Tis too much known, and spoken of too largely;
And with no little shame I wonder at it.

Ori. Is it a shame to love?

De Gard. To love undiscreetly:
A virgin should be tender of her honour,
Close, and secure.

Ori. I am as close as can be,
And stand upon as strong and honest guards too;
Unless this warlike age need a porteullis:
Yet I confess, I love him.

De Gard. Hear the people.

Ori. Now, I say, hang the people! He that dares Believe what they say dares be mad, and give
His mother, nay, his own wife, up to rumour.
All grounds of truth they build on in a tavern.
And their best commerce’s sack, sack in abundance;
For, as they drink, they think: they ne’er speak modestly,
Unless the wine be poor, or they want money.
Believe them! Believe Amadis de Gauld,
The Knight o’ the Sun, or Palmerin of England;
For these, to them, are modest and true stories.
Pray, understand me; if their tongues be truth,
And if in vino veritas be an oracle,
What woman is, or has been ever, honest?
Give ’em but ten round cups, they’ll swear
Lucretia
Died not for want of power to resist Tarquin,
But want of pleasure, that he stay’d no longer;
And Portia, that was famous for her piety

1 Moulded.
2 Incited.
To her lov'd lord, they'll face ye out, died o' th' pox.

De Gard. Well, there is something, sister.

Ori. If there be, brother, 'tis none of their things; 'tis not yet so monstrous:

My thing is marriage; and, at his return, I hope to put their s-quant eyes right again.

De Gard. Marriage? 'Tis true his father is a rich man,

Rich both in land and money; he his heir,

A young and handsome man, I must confess,

But of such qualities, and such wild fings,

Such admirable imperfections, sister,

(For all his travel and bought experience,)

I should be loth to own him for my brother.

Methinks, a rich mind in a state indifferent

Would prove the better fortune.

Ori. If he be wild, the reclaiming him to good and honest, brother,

Will make much for my honour; which, if I prosper,

Shall be the study of my love, and life too.

De Gard. Ye say well; would he thought as well, and loved too!

He marry! He'll be hanged first. He knows no more

What the conditions and the ties of love are,

The honest purposes and grounds of marriage,

Nor will know, nor be ever brought t' endeavour,

Than I do how to build a church. He was ever

A loose and strong defier of all order;

His loves are wanderers, they knock at each door,

And taste each dish, but are no residents.

Or say, he may be brought to think of marriage,

(As 't will be no small labour, thy hopes are strangers).

I know there is a labour'd match now follow'd,

Now at this time, for which he was sent for home too.

Be not abus'd: Nantolet has two fair daughters,

And he must take his choice.

Ori. Let him take freely.

For all this I despair not; my mind tells me

That I, and only I, must make him perfect;

And in that hope I rest.

De Gard. Since y' are so confident,

Prosper your hope! I'll be no adversary,

Keep yourself fair and right, he shall not wrong ye.

Ori. When I forget my virtue, no man know me!

SCENE II. 2

Enter MIRABEL, PINAC, BELLEUR, and Servants.

Mir. Welcome to Paris, once more, gentlemen!

We have had a merry and a lusty ordinary,

And wine, and good meat, and a bounting reckoning;

And let it go for once; 'tis a good physic.

Only the wenches are not for my diet;

They are too lean and thin, their embraces brawn-fallen.

Give me the plump Venetian, fat and lusty,

That meets me soft and supple; smiles upon me,

As if a cup of full wine leapt'd to kiss me,

These slight things I affect not.

Pin. They are ill-built; Pin-buttocked, like your dainty Barbies,

And weak i' the pasterns; they'll endure no hardness.

Mir. There's nothing good or handsome bred amongst us:

Till we are travell'd, and live abroad, we are coxcombs.

Ye talk of France — a slight unseason'd country,

Abundance of gross food, which makes us blockheads.

We are fair set out indeed, and so are fore-horses:

Men say, we are great courtiers, — men abuse us;

We are wise, and valiant too, — non credo, signor;

Our women the best linguists, — they are parrots;

O' this side the Alps they are nothing but mere drolleries.

Ha! Roma la Santa, Italy for my money!

Their policies, their customs, their frugalities,

Their courtesies so open, yet so reserv'd too,

As, when you think y' are known best, ye are a stranger.

Their very pick-teeth speak more man than we do.

And season of more salt.

Pin. 'Tis a brave country;

Not pester'd with your stubborn precise puppies,

That turn all useful and allow'd contentments

To scabs and scruples — hang 'em, capon-worshippers.

Bel. I like that freedom well, and like their women too,

And would fain do as others do; but I am so bashful,

So naturally an ass! Look ye, I can look upon 'em,

And very willingly I go to see 'em,

(There's no man willinger), and I can kiss 'em,

And make a shift —

Mir. But, if they chance to fliot ye,

Or say, "Ye are too bold! Fie, sir, remember!

I pray, sit farther off —"

Bel. "Tis true — I am humbled,

I am gone; I confess ingenuously, I am silenced;

The spirit of amber cannot force me answer.

Pin. Then would I sing and dance —

Bel. You have wherewithal, sir,

Pin. And charge her up again.

Bel. I can be hang'd first:

Yet, where I fasten well, I am a tyrant.

Mir. Why, thou darst fight?

1 Deceived. 2 A street before the same house.

1 Fowle. 2 Barbary horses. 3 With narrow buttocks. 4 Puppets. 5 Tooth-picks. 6 Supposed to be a provocative.
Bel. Yes, certainly, I dare fight,
And fight with any man at any weapon.
Wou’d th’ other were no more! But, a pox on’t!
When I am sometimes in my height of hope,
And reasonable valiant that way, my heart harden’d,
Some scornful jest or other chaps between me
And my desire. What would ye have me to do, then, gentlemen?
Mir. Ballour, you must be bolder. Travel three years,
And bring home such a baby to betray ye
As bashfulness! A great fellow, and a soldier!
Bel. You have the gift of impudence; be thankful.
Every man has not the like talent. I will study,
And, if it may be reveal’d to me—
Mir. Learn of me,
And of Pincus. No doubt, you’ll find employment;
Ladies will look for courtship,
Pin. ’Tis but fleshing,
But standing one good brunt or two. Hast thou any mind to marriage?
We’ll provide thee some soft-natur’d wenches,
that’s dumb too.
Mir. Or an old woman that cannot refuse thee in charity.
Bel. A dumb woman, or an old woman, that were easier,
And car’d not for discourse, I were excellent at.
Mir. You must now put on boldness, there’s no avoiding it,
And stand all hazards, fly at all games bravely;
They’ll say, you went out like an ox, and return’d like an ass, else.
Bel. I shall make danger,1 sure.
Mir. I am sent for home now;
I know it is to marry; but my father shall pardon me:
Although it be a weighty ceremony,
And may concern me hereafter in my gravity,
I will not lose the freedom of a traveller.
A new strongusty bark cannot ride at one anchor.
Shall I make divers suits to show to the same eyes?
’Tis dull and homespun;—study several pleasures,
And want employments for ’em? I’ll be hang’d first.
Tie me to one smock? Make my travels fruitful?
I’ll none of that; for every fresh behaviour,
By your leave, father, I must have a fresh mistress,
And a fresh favour2 too.
Bel. I like that passingly;
As many as you will, so they be willing,
Willing, and gentle, gentle.
Pin. There’s no reason
A gentleman, and a traveller, should be clapt up.

(For ’tis a kind of bilboes4 to be married.
Before he manifest to the world his good parts;
Tug ever, like a rascal, at one ear?
Give me the Italian liberty!
Mir. That I study,
And that I will enjoy. Come, go in, gentlemen;
There mark how I behave myself, and follow.

Scene III.6

Enter La Castre, Nantolet, Lugier, Rosaluna, and Lillia Bianca.

La Cast. You and your beauteous daughters are most welcome.
Beahrew my blood, they are fair ones!—Welcome,
Welcome, sweet birds. [A courtesies.
Nant. They are bound much to your
La Cast. I hope we shall be nearer acquainted.
Nant. That’s my hope too:
For, certain, sir, I much desire your alliance.
You see ’em; they are no gypsies. For their breeding,
It has not been so coarse but they are able
To rank themselves with women of fair fashion.
Indeed, they have been trained well.
Lug. Thank me.
Nant. Fit for the heirs of that state I shall leave ’em:
To say more, is to sell ’em. They say your son,
Now he has travell’d, must be wondrous curious
And choice in what he takes; these are no coarse ones.
Sir, here’s a merry wenches—let him look to himself—
All heart, i’ faith—may chance to startle him;
For all his care, and travell’d caution,
May creep into his eye. If he love gravity,
Affect a solemn face, there’s one will fit him.
La Cast. So young and so demure?
Nant. She is my daughter,
Else I would tell you, sir, she is a mistress
Both of those manners and that modesty
You would wonder at. She is no often-speaker,
But, when she does, she speaks well; nor no reveller,
Yet she can dance, and has studied the court elements,
And sings, as some say, handsomely; if a woman,
With the decency of her sex, may be a scholar,
I can assure ye, sir, she understands too.
La Cast. These are fit garments, sir.
Lug. Thank them that cut ’em. Yes, they are handsome women; they have handsome parts too,
Pretty becoming parts.
La Cast. ’Tis like they have, sir.
Lug. Yes, yes, and handsome education they have had too,
Had it abundantly; they need not blush at it.
I taught it, I’ll avouch it.

1 Attempt it.
2 Old add. witty.
3 Countenance.

4 A bar of iron with fetters attached.
5 Room in the house of La Castre.
La Cast. Ye say well, sir.
Lug. I know what I say, sir, and I say but right, sir.

I am not trumpet of their commendations
Before their father; else I should say farther.
La Cast. Pray ye, what's this gentleman?
Nant. One that lives with me, sir; a man well bred and learnt, but blunt and bitter;
Yet it offends no wise man; I take pleasure in't.

Many fair gifts he has, in some of which,
That lie most easy to their understandings.
He's handsomely bred up my girls, I thank him.
[Lug.] I have put it to 'em, that's my part, I have urg'd it.

It seems, they are of years now to take hold on't.

Nant. He's wondrous blunt.
La Cast. By my faith, I was afraid of him.
Does he not fall out with the gentlewomen sometimes?
Nant. No, no; he's that way moderate and discreet.
Ros. If he did, we should be too hard for him.
Lug. Well said, sulphur!
Too hard for thy husband's head, if he wear not armour.

Enter Mirabel, Ping, Belleur, De Gard, and Oriana.

Nant. Many of these bickerings, sir.
La Cast. I am glad they are no oracles.
Sure as I live, he beats them, he's so puissant.
Ori. Well, if ye do forget —
Mir. Frithe, hold thy peace. I know thou art a pretty wench; I know thou lovest me; preserve it till we have a fit time to discourse on't.
And a fit place. I'll ease thy heart, I warrant thee.
Thou best I have much to do now.
Ori. I am answer'd, sir; with me ye shall have nothing on these conditions.

De Gard. Your father and your friends.
La Cast. You are welcome home, sir; Bless ye, ye are very welcome! Pray, know this gentleman, and these fair ladies.

Nant. Monsieur Mirabel, I am much affected with your fair return, sir; You bring a general joy.

Mir. I bring you service.

And these bright beauties, sir.

Nant. Welcome home, gentlemen, welcome with all my heart!
Bel. & Pin. We thank ye, sir.
La Cast. Your friends will have their share too.
Bel. Sir, we hope They'll look upon us, though we show like strangers.

Nant. Monsieur De Gard, I must salute you also, And this fair gentlewoman; you are welcome from your travel too.
All welcome, all.

De Gard. We render ye our loves, sir.
The best wealth we bring home. — By your favours, beauties. —

[Aside to Ori.] One of these two: you know my meaning.
Ori. Well, sir;
They are fair and handsome, I must needs confess it,
And, let it prove the worst, I shall live after it.
Whilst I have meat and drink, love cannot starve me;
For, if I die o' th' first fit, I am unhappy,
And worthy to be buried with my heels upward.

Mir. To marry, sir?
La Cast. You know I am an old man, and every hour declining to my grave,
One foot already in; more sons I have not,
Nor more I dare not seek whilst you are worthy.
In you lies all my hope, and all my name,
The making good or wither'd of my memory,
The safety of my state.

Mir. And you have provided, Out of this tenderness, these handsome gentlewomen, Daughters to this rich man, to take my choice of?

La Cast. I have, dear son.
Mir. "Tis true, ye are old and feeble:
Would ye were young again, and in full vigour!
I love a bounteous father's life, a long one;
I am none of those that, when they shoot to ripeness,
Do what they can to break the boughs they grew on.
I wish ye many years and many riches,
And pleasures to enjoy 'em; but, for marriage,
I neither yet believe in 't, nor affect it;
Nor think it fit.

La Cast. You will render me your reasons?
Mir. Yes, sir, both short and pithy, and these they are: —

You would have me marry a maid?

La Cast. A maid! what else?
Mir. Yes, there be things called widows, dead men's wills,
I never lov'd to prove those; nor never long'd yet
To be buried alive in another man's cold monument.

And there be maids appearing, and maids being:
The appearing are fantastical, mere shadows;
And, if you mark 'em well, they want their heads, too;

Only the world, to cozen his misty eyes,
Has clapt 'em on new faces: the maids being
A man may venture on, if he be so mad to marry,

1 Desire.
2 Chest.
If he have neither fear before his eyes, nor fortune;
And let him take heed how he gather these too;
For, look ye, father, they are just like melons,
Musk-melons are the emblems of these maids;
Now they are ripe, now cut 'em, they taste pleasantly,
And are a dainty fruit, digested easily;
Neglect this present time, and come to-morrow,
They are so ripe they are rotten gone, their sweetness
Run into humour, and their taste to surfeit.
Lea Cast. Why, these are now ripe, son.
Mir. I'll try them presently,
And, if I like their taste —
Lea Cast. Pray ye, please yourself, sir.
Mir. That liberty is my due, and I'll maintain it.
Lady, what think you of a handsome man now?
Ros. A wholesome too, sir?
Mir. That's as you make your bargain.
A handsome, wholesome man, then, and a kind man,
To cheer your heart up, to rejoice ye, lady?
Ros. Yes, sir, I love rejoicing.
Mir. To lie close to ye?
Close as a cockle? Keep the cold nights from ye?
Ros. That will be look'd for too; our bodies ask it.
Mir. And get two boys at every birth?
Ros. I have known a cobbler do it, a poor thin cobbler,
A cobbler out of mouldy cheese perform it.
Cabbage, and coarse black bread. Methinks, a gentleman
Should take foul soorn to have an awl out-name
Two at a birth! Why, every house-dove has it.
That man that feeds well, promises as well too,
I should expect indeed something worth of from
You talk of two!
Mir. [Aside.] She would have me get two dozen,
Like buttons, at a birth.
Ros. You love to brag, sir.
If you proclaim these offers at your marriage,
(You are a pretty-timber'd man, take heed,)
They may be taken hold of, and expected,
Yes, if not hoped for at a higher rate too.
Mir. I will take heed, and thank ye for your counsel.
Father, what think ye?
Lea Cast. 'Tis a merry gentlewoman;
Will make, no doubt, a good wife.
Mir. Not for me.
I marry her, and, happily, get nothing:
In what a state am I then, father? I shall suffer,
For any thing I hear to the contrary, more murther;

1 Surpass.
2 Haply.

I were as sure to be a cuckold, father,
A gentleman of antler —
La Cast. Away, away, fool!
Mir. As I am sure to fail her expectation.
I had rather get the pox than get her babies.
La Cast. Ye are much to blame. If this do not affect ye,
Pray, try the other; she's of a more demure way,
Bel. [Aside.] That I had but the audacity to talk thus!
I love that plain-spoken gentlewoman admirably;
And, certain, I could go as near to please her,
If down-right doing — she has a per'rous countenance —
If I could meet one that would believe me,
And take my honest meaning without circumstance —
Mir. You shall have your will, sir; I will try the other;
But 'twill be to small use. — I hope, fair lady,
(For, methinks, in your eyes I see more mercy,)
You will enjoin your lover a less pittance;
And though I'll promise much, as men are liberal,
And vow an ample sacrifice of service,
Yet your discretion, and your tenderness,
And thriftiness in love, good huswife's carefulness
To keep the stock entire —
Lil. Good sir, speak louder,
That these may witness, too, you talk of nothing.
I should be loth alone to bear the burden
Of so much indiscretion.
Mir. Hark ye, hark ye!
'Ods-bobs, you are angry, lady.
Lil. Angry! no, sir;
I never own'd an anger to lose poorly.
Mir. But you can love, for all this; and delight too,
For all your strict austerity to hear.
Lil. Of a good husband, lady?
Lil. You say true, sir;
For, by my troth, I have heard of none these ten year,
They are so rare; and there are so many, sir,
So many longing women on their knees too,
That pray the dropping-down of these good husbands —
The dropping-down from Heaven; for they are not bred here —
That you may guess at all my hope, but hearing —
Mir. Why may not I be one?
Lil. You were near 'em once, sir,
When ye came o'er the Alps; those are near Heaven.
But since ye miss'd that happiness, there's no hope of ye,
Mir. Can ye love a man?
Lil. Yes, if the man be lovelv,
That is, be honest, modest. I would have him valiant,
The Wild-Goose Chase

His anger slow, but certain for his honour; Travell'd he should be, but through himself exactly, For 'tis far fairer to know manners well than countries. He must be no vain talker, nor no lover To hear himself talk; they are brags of a wanderer, Of one finds no retreat for fair behaviour. Would ye learn more? Mr. Yes. Lil. Learn to hold your peace, then: Fond girls are got with tongues, women with tempers. Mr. Women, with I know what; but let that vanish. So thy way, good-wife Bias! Sure, thy husband Must have a strong philosopher's stone, he will ne'er please thee else.— Here's a starch'd piece of austerity!—Do you hear, father? Do you hear this moral lecture? La Cast. Yes, and like it. Mr. Why, there's your judgment now; there's an old bolt shot! This thing must have the strangest observation, (Do you mark me, father?) when she is married once, The strangest custom too of admiration On all she does and speaks, 'twill be past suffering. I must not lie with her in common language, Nor cry, "Have at thee, Kate!"—I shall be his's then; Nor eat my meat without the sauce of sentences, Your powder'd beef and problems, a rare diet! My first son, Mousier Aristotyle, I know it, Great master of the metaphysics, or so; The second, Solon, and the best law-setter; And I must look to Egyptian god-fathers, Which will be no small trouble; my eldest daughter, Sappho, or such a fiddling kind of poetess. And brought up, invita Minerva, at her needle! My dogs must look their names too, and all, Greek, Spartan, Laplas, Melampus; no more Fox and Bowdy face. I married to a sullen set of sentences! To one that weighs her words and her behaviours In the gold-weights of discretion! I'll be hang'd first. La Cast. Pray thee, reclaim thyself. Mr. Pray ye, give me time, then. If they can set me any thing to play at, That seems fit for a gamester, have at the fairest, Till I see more, and try more! La Cast. Take your time, then; I'll bar ye no fair liberty. —Come, gentlemen;

And ladies, come; to all, once more, a welcome! And, now let's in to supper.

[Exeunt La Castre, Nantinolet, Lugier, Rosalarpa, and Lillia Bianca.]

Mr. How dost like 'em?
Fin. They are fair enough, but of so strange behaviours—

Mr. Too strange for me. I must have those have mettle, And mettle to my mind. Come, let's be merry. Bel. Bless me from this woman! I would stand the cannon, Before ten words of hers.

[Exeunt Mirabel, Pinac, and Belleur.]

De Gard. Do you find him now? Do you think he will be ever firm? Ori. I fear not. Exeunt.

ACT II

SCENE I.

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, and Belleur.

Mr. No'er tell me of this happiness; 'tis nothing: The state they bring with being sought-to, scurvys.

I had rather make mine own play, and I will do. My happiness is in mine own content, And the despising of such glorious trifles, As I have done a thousand more. For my humour, Give me a good free fellow, that sticks to me, A jovial fair companion; there's a beauty! For women, I can have too many of them; Good women too, as the age reckons 'em, More than I have employment for.

Fin. You are happy. Mr. My only fear is, that I must be forced, Against my nature, to conceal myself: Health and an able body are two jewels.

Fin. If either of these two women were offered to me now, I would think otherwise, and do accordingly; Yes, and reant my heresies; I would, sir; And be more tender of opinion, And put a little of my travell'd liberty Out of the way, and look upon 'em seriously. Methinks, this grave-carried wench —— Bel. Methinks, the other, The home-spoken gentlewoman, that desires to be fruitful, That treats of the full manage of the matter, (For there lies all my aim,) that wench, methinks, If I were but well set on, for she is affable, If I were but hounded right, and one to teach me —— She speaks to th' matter, and comes home to th' point ——

1 Foolish. 2 Obsequious attention. 3 Seek. 4 I. e. with great precision.
Now do I know I have such a body to please her.
As all the kingdom cannot fit her with, I am sure on't.
If I could but talk myself into her favour.

MIR. That's easily said; would 't were done!
You should see then how I would lay about me.
If I were virtuous, it would never grieve me,
Or any thing that might justly my modesty;
But when my nature is prone to do a charity,
And my call's tongue will not help me.

MIR. Will ye go to 'em?
They cannot but take it courteously.

FIN. I'll do my part,
Though I am sure 't will be the hardest I ever play'd yet.
A way I never tried too, which will stagger me;
And, if it do not shame me, I am happy.

MIR. Win 'em, and wear 'em; I give up my interest.

FIN. What say you, Monsieur Belleur?

BEL. Would I could say;
Or sing, or any thing that were but handsome! I would be with her presently.

FIN. Yours is no venture.

A merry ready wench.

BEL. A vengeance squibber; she'll fleer me out of faith too.

MIR. I'll be near thee;
Pluck up thy heart; I'll second thee at all brunts.
Be angry, if she abuse thee, and beat her a little;
Some women are won that way.

BEL. Pray, be quiet,
And let me think: I am resolv'd to go on;
But how shall I get off again?

MIR. I am persuaded
Thou wilt so please her, she will go near to ravish thee.

BEL. I would 't were come to that one! Let me pray a little.

MIR. Now, for thine honour, Pinax, board me this modesty;
Warm but this frozen snow-ball, 't will be a conquest (Altho' I know thou art a fortunate wench,
And hast done rarely in thy days) above all thy ventures.

BEL. You will be ever near?

MIR. At all necessities;
And take thee off, and set thee on again, boy,
And cherish thee, and stroke thee.

BEL. Help me out too;
For I know I shall stick i' th' mire. If you see us close once,
Be gone, and leave me to my fortune, suddenly,
For I am then determin'd to do wonders.

Farewell, and fling an old shoe. How my heart throbs!

Would I were drunk! Farewell, Pinax; Heaven send us

A joyful and a merry meeting, man!

FIN. Farewell, and cheer thy heart up; and remember, Belleur,
They are but women.

BEL. I had rather they were lions.

MIR. About it; I'll be with you instantly.

EXECUT [BELLUR and PINAX].

ENTER ORLANA.

Shall I ne'er be at rest? No peace of conscience?

No quiet for these creatures? Am I ordain'd
To be devour'd quick by these she-cannibals?
Here's another they call handsome; I care not for her.

I ne'er look after her. When I am half-tipp'd,
It may be I should turn her, and peruse her;
Or, in my want of women, I might call for her;
But to be haunted when I have no fancy,
No maw to th' matter. [Aside.] Now, why do you follow me?

ORT. I hope, sir, 'tis no blazon to my virtue;
Nor need you, out of scruple, ask that question,
If you remember ye, before your travel,
The contract you tied to me. 'Tis my love, sir,
That makes me seek ye, to confirm your memory;
And, that being fair and good, I cannot suffer.
I come to give ye thanks too.

MIR. For what, prithee?

ORT. For that fair piece of honesty you show'd sir,
That constant nobleness.

MIR. How? for I am short-headed.
ORT. I'll tell you then; for refusing that free offer
Of Monsieur Nantolet's, those handsome beauties,
These two prime ladies, that might well have press'd ye
If not to have broken, yet to have bow'd your promise.
I know it was for my sake, for your faith-sake,
You slip 'em off; your honesty compell'd ye;
And let me tell ye, sir, it show'd most handsomely.

MIR. And let me tell thee, there was no such matter;
Nothing intended that way, of that nature.
I have more to do with my honesty than to fool it,
Or venture it in such leak barks as women.
I put 'em off because I lov'd 'em not.
Because they are too quassy for my temper,
And not for thy sake, nor the contract-sake,
Nor vows, nor oaths; I have made a thousand of 'em;
They are things indifferent, whether kept or broken;
Mere venial slips, that grow not near the conscience;
Nothing concerns those tender parts; they are trifles;
For, as I think, there was never man yet hop'd for Either constancy or secrecy from a woman.
Unless it were an ass ordain'd for suffrance;
Nor to contract with such can be a tie-all. 119
So let them know again; for 'tis a justice
And main point of civil policy.
Whate'er we say or swear, they being repro-bates,
Out of the state of faith, we are clear of all sides,
And 'tis a curious blindness to believe us. 115
Ori. You do not mean this, sure?
Mir. Yes, sure, and certain;
And hold it positively, as a principle,
As ye are strange things, and made of strange fires and fluxes,
So we are allow'd as strange ways to obtain ye,
But not to hold; we are all created errant. 120
Ori. You told me other tales.
Mir. I do not deny it;
I have tales of all sorts for all sorts of women,
And protestations likewise of all sizes,
As they have vanities to make us oxcombs.
If I obtain a good turn, so it is,
I am thankful for it; if I be made an ass,
The 'mends are in mine own hands, or the surgeon's,
And there's an end on 't.
Ori. Do not you love me, then?
Mir. As I love others; heartily I love thee;
When I am high and lusty, I love thee cruelly.
After I have made a plentiful meal, and satisfied,
My senses with all delicats, come to me,
And thou shalt see how I love thee.
Ori. Will you not marry me?
Mir. No, certain, no, for any thing I know yet.
I must not lose my liberty, dear lady,
And, like a wanton slave, cry for more shackles.
What should I marry for? Do I want any thing?
Am I an inch the farther from my pleasure?
Why should I be at charge to keep a wife of
mine own,
When other honest married men will ease me,
And thank me too, and be beholdening to me?
Thou think'st I am mad for a maidenhead;
thou art cozen'd:
Or, if I were addicted to that diet,
Can you tell me where I should have one? Thou art eighteen now,
And, if thou hast thy maidenhead yet extant,
Sure, 'tis as big as cods-head; and those grave dishes
I never love to deal withal. Dost thou see this book here?
[Shows a book.]
Look over all these ranks; all these are women, Maids, and pretenders to maidenheads; these are my conquests;
All these I swore to marry, as I swore to thee,
With the same reservation, and most right-
ously:
Which I need not have done neither; for, alas,
they made no scruple,
And I enjoy'd 'em at my will, and left 'em.
Some of 'em are married since, and were as pure maids again,
Nay, o' my conscience, better than they were bred for;
The rest, fine sober women.

Ori. Are ye not ashamed, sir?
Mir. No, by my troth, sir; 1 there's no shame belongs to it;
I hold it as commendable to be wealthy in pleasure,
As others do in rotten sheep and pasture. 128

Enter De Gard.
Ori. Are all my hopes come to this? Is there no faith,
No troth, nor modesty, in men?  [Weeps.
De Gard. How now, sister?
Why weeping thus? Did I not prophesy?
Come, tell me why —
Ori. I am not well; pray ye pardon me.
Exit.

De Gard. Now, Monsieur Mirabel, what ails
my sister?
You have been playing the wag with her.
Mir. As I take it,
She is crying for a cod-piece. Is she gone?
Lord, what an age is this! I was calling for ye;
For, as I live, I thought she would have ravish'd
me.
De Gard. Ye are merry, sir. 170
Mir. Thou know'st this book, De Gard, this inventory?
De Gard. The debt-book of your mistresses;
I remember it.
Mir. Why, this was it that anger'd her; she was stark mad.
She found not her name here; and cried downright.
Because I would not pity her immediately,
And put her in my list.
De Gard. Sure, she had more modesty.
Mir. Their modesty is anger to be overdone;
They'll quarrel sooner for precedence here,
And take it in more dudgeon to be slighted,
Than they will in public meetings; 'tis their natures;
And, alas, I have so many to despateh yet,
And to provide myself for my affairs too,
That, in good faith —

De Gard. Be not too glorious 2 foolish; 3
Sum not your travels up with vanities;
It ill becomes your expectation. 3
Temper your speech, sir: whether your loose story
Be true or false, (for you are so free, I fear it.)
Name not my sister in 't; I must not hear it.
Upon your danger, name her not! I hold her
A gentlemanwoman of those happy parts and carriage,
A good man's tongue may be right proud to speak her.
Mir. Your sister, sir! D'ye blech at that?
D'ye covil?
Do you hold her such a piece she may not be play'd withal?
I have had an hundred handsomer and nobler
Have su'd to me, too, for such a courtesy;
Your sister comes i' the rear. Since ye are so angry,

1 Formerly used to women as well as to men.
2 Boastful.
3 The expectation formed of you.
And hold your sister such a strong recusant,
I tell ye, I may do it; and, it may be, will too;
It may be, have too; there's my free confession;
Work upon that now!

De Gard. If I thought ye had, I would work,
And work such stubborn work should make your heart ache:
But I believe ye, as I ever knew ye,
A glorious talker, and a legend-maker
Of idle tales and trifles; a depraver
Of your own truth: their honours fly about ye!
And so, I take my leave; but with this caution,
Your sword be surer than your tongue; you'll smart else.

Mir. I laugh at thee, so little I respect thee;
And I'll talk louder, and despise thy sister;
Set up a chamber-maid that shall outshine her,
And carry her in my coach too, and that will kill her.

Go, get thy rents up, go!

De Gard. Ye are a fine gentleman! Exit.

Mir. Now, have at my two youths! I'll see how they do;
How they behave themselves; and then I'll study
What wonch shall love me next, and when I'll loose her.

Exit.

SCENE II.

Enter Pinax and Servant.

Pin. Art thou her servant, sayest thou?
Serv. Her poor creature;
But servant to her horse, sir.

Pin. Canst thou show me
The way to her chamber, or where I may conveniently
See her, or come to talk to her?

Serv. That I can, sir;
But the question is, whether I will or no.

Pin. Why, I'll content thee.
Serv. Why, I'll content thee, then; now ye come to me.

Pin. There's for your diligence.

[Give money.]

Serv. There's her chamber, sir,
And this way she comes out; stand ye but here, sir, ye have her at your prospect or your pleasure,
Pin. Is she not very angry?
Serv. You'll find that quickly.

Pin. May be she 'll call ye saucy, scurvy fellow,
Or some such familiar name; may be she knows ye
And will fling a piss-pot at ye, or a pantofole,
According as ye are in acquaintance. If she like ye,
May be she 'll look upon ye; may be no;
And two months hence call for ye.

Pin. This is fine.

She is monstrously proud, then?
Serv. She is a little haughty;
Of a small body, she has a mind well mounted.
Can you speak Greek?

Pin. No, certain.
Serv. Get ye gone, then! —
And talk of stars, and firmaments, and fire-drakes?

Do you remember who was Adam's schoolmaster,
And who taught Eve to spin? She knows all these,
And will run ye over the beginning o' th' world
As familiar as a fiddler.
Can you sit seven hours together, and say nothing?

Which she will do, and, when she speaks, speak oracles,
Speak things that no man understands, nor herself neither.
Pin. Thou mak'st me wonder.
Serv. Can ye smile?
Pin. Yes, willingly;
For naturally I bear a mirth about me.
Serv. She'll ne'er endure ye, then; she is never merry;
If she see one laugh, she 'll swound past aqua vitae,
Never come near her, sir; if ye chance to venture,
And talk not like a doctor, you are damn'd too.
I have told ye enough for your crown, and so, good speed you!

Exit.

Pin. I have a pretty task, if she be thus cautious,
As, sure, it seems she is! If I fall off now,
I shall be laugh'd at fearfully; if I go forward,
I can but be abus'd, and that I look for;
And yet I may hit right, but 'tis unlikely.
Stay: in what mood and figure shall I attempt her?

A careless way? No, no, that will not awaken her:
Besides, her gravity will give me line still,
And let me lose myself: yet this way often
Has hit, and handsomely. A wanton method?
Ay, if she give it leave to sink into her consideration:
But there's the doubt: if it but stir her blood once,
And creep into the crannies of her fancy,
Set her a-gog; — but, if she chance to slight it,
And by the power of her modesty fling it back,
I shall appear the arrant'st rascal to her,
The most licentious knave, for I shall talk lewdly,
To bear myself austerely? Rate my words?
And fling a general gravity about me,
As if I meant to give laws? But this I cannot do.

This is a way above my understanding;

Or, if I could, 'tis odds she 'll think I mock her;

For serious and sad things are ever still suspicious.

Well, I 'll say something:
But learning I have none, and less good manners;

Especially for ladies. Well I 'll set my best face.

1 Symposion suggests above.
2 Get rid of. F, lose.
3 A ball in the house of Nantolet.
4 Slipper.
Enter Lillia Blanca and Petella.

I hear some coming. This is the first woman I ever fear'd yet, the first face that shakes me.

Lil. Give me my hat, Petella; take this veil off, This sullen cloud; it darkens my delights.

Come, wench, be free, and let the music warble:

Play me some lusty measure.

Music within, to which presently Lillia dances.

Pin. [Aside.] This is she, sure, The very same I saw, the very woman, The gravity I wonder'd at. Stay, stay;

Let me be sure. Ne'er trust me, but she danceth;

Summer is in her face now, and she skippeth!

I'll go a little nearer.

Lil. Quicker time, follows!

Enter Mirabel [and remains at the side of the stage].

I cannot find my legs yet — Now, Petella!

Pin. [Aside.] I am amaz'd; I am founder'd in my fancy!

Mir. [Aside.] Ha! say you so? Is this your gravity?

This the austerity you put upon you?

I'll see more o' this sport.

Lil. A song now!

Call in for a merry and a light song;

And sing it with a liberal spirit.

Enter a Man.

Man. Yes, madam.

Lil. And be not amaz'd, sirrah, but take us for your own company. —

[A song by the Man who then exit.]

Let's walk ourselves; come, wench. Would we had a man or two!

Pin. [Aside.] Sure, she haspi'd me, and will abuse me dreadfully.

She has put on this for the purpose: yet I will try her. —

[Advances.]

Madam, I would be loth my rude intrusion, Which I must crave a pardon for —

Lil. Oh, ye are welcome, Ye are very welcome, sir! We want such a one.

Strike up again! — I dare presume ye dance well:

Quick, quick, sir, quick! the time steals on.

Pin. I would talk with you.

Lil. Talk as you dance. [They dance.]

Mir. [Aside.] She'll beat him off his legs first.

This is the finest masque!

Lil. Now, how do ye, sir?

Pin. You have given me a shrewd heat.

Lil. I'll give you a hundred.

Come, sing now, sing: for I know ye sing well;

I see ye have a singing face.

Pin. [Aside.] A fine modesty!

If I could, she'd never give me breath. —

Madam, would I might sit and recover!

Lil. Sit here, and sing now;

Let's do things quickly, sir, and handsomely.—

Sit close, wench, close. — Begin, begin.

Pin. I am lessons'd. A song [by Pinac].

Lil. 'Tis very pretty, i' faith. Give me some wine now.

Pin. I would fain speak to you.

Lil. You shall drink first, believe me.

Here's to you a lusty health. [They drink.]

Pin. I thank you, lady. — [Aside.] Would I were off again! I smell my misery;

I was never put to this rack: I shall be drunk too.

Mir. [Aside.] If thou be'st not a right one, I have lost mine aim much:

I thank Heaven that I have scape thee. To her, Pinac!

For thou art as sure to have her, and to groan for her. —

I'll see how my other youth does; this speed trimly.

A fine grave gentilwoman, and worth much honour! Exit.

Lil. Now, how do ye like me, sir?

Pin. I like ye rarely.

Lil. Ye see, sir, though sometimes we are grave and silent, And put on sadder dispositions, Yet we are compounded of free parts, and sometimes too Our lighter, airy, and our fiery mettles Break out, and show themselves: and what think you of that, sir?

Pin. Good lady, sit (for I am very weary), And then I'll tell ye.

Lil. Fie! a young man idle!

Up, and walk; be still in action; The motions of the body are fair beauties; Besides, 'tis cold. 'Ods me, sir, let's walk faster! What think ye now of the Lady Felicia? And Bellafronte, the duke's fair daughter? hal Are they not handsome things? There is Duarta,

And brown Olivia —

Pin. I know none of 'em.

Lil. But brown must not be cast away, sir, If young Lelia Had kept herself till this day from a husband, Why, what a beauty, sir! You know Lumenia, The fair gem of Saint-Germaines?

Pin. By my troth, I do not.

Lil. And, then, I know, you must hear of Brisa,

How unlike a gentleman —

Pin. As I live, I have heard nothing.

Lil. Strike me another galliard! —

Pin. By this light, I cannot! In troth, I have sprite'd my leg, madam.

Lil. Now sit ye down, sir, And tell me why ye came hither? Why ye chose me out?

What is your business? Your errand? Despatch, despatch.

Maybe, you are some gentleman's man, and I mistake ye,
Sink under his proud soorings, he'll laugh at ye.
For me, secure yourself; and, for my sister,
I partly know her mind too: howsoever,
To obey my father, we have made a tender
Of our poor beauties to the travell'd monsieur;
Yet two words to a bargain. He slights us:
As skittish things, and we shun him as curious.
May be, my free behaviour turns his stomach,
And makes him seem to doubt a loose opinion.
I must be so sometimes, though all the world saw it.

Ori. Why should not ye? Are our minds only measur'd?
As long as here ye stand secure —
As long as mine own conscience makes no question,
What care I for report? That woman's miserable,
That's good or bad for their tongues' sake.
Come, let's retire,
And get my veil, wench. By my troth, your sorrow,
And the consideration of men's humorous mad-
dings,
Have put me into a serious contemplation.

Enter MIRABEL and BELLEUR.

Ori. Come, faith, let's sit and think.
Ros. That's all my business.
[They go into the summer-house, and sit down. ROSALUHA having taken her veil from a table, and put it on.]

Mir. Why stand'st thou peeping here? Thou great slug, forward!
Bel. She is there; peace!

Mir. Why stand'st thou here, then, as sneaking and peaking as thou wouldst steal linen?
Hast thou not place and time?
Bel. I had a rare speech
Studied, and almost ready; and your violence
Has beat it out of my brains.
Mir. Hang your rare speeches!
Go me on like a man.
Bel. Let me set my beard up.
Mir. How has Pinace performed?
Bel. He has won already;
He stands not thrumming of caps thus.
Bel. Lord, what should I sill
What a cold I have over my stomach! Would I had some hum!
Certain I have a great mind to be at her,
A mighty mind.
Mir. On, fool!
Bel. Good words, I beseech ye;
For I will not be abus'd by both.
Mir. Adieu, then
(I will not trouble you; I see you are valiant);
And work your own way.
Bel. Hist, hist! I will be rul'd;
I will, i' faith; I will go presently.

1. Moderation.
2. Admirers.
3. Contemptuously treated.
4. A garden belonging to the house of Mantolat, with a summer-house in the back-ground.
5. Peeping.
6. Idly fingering.
7. This & D. is from Dyce.
Will ye forsake me now, and leave me i' th' suds?
You know I am false-hearted this way. I beseech ye,
Good sweet Mirabel — I'll cut your throat, if ye leave me,
Indeed I will — sweet-heart —
Mir. I will be ready,
Still at thine elbow. Take a man’s heart to thee,
And speak thy mind; the plainer still the better.
She is a woman of that free behaviour,
Indeed, that common courtesy, she cannot deny thee.
Go bravely on.
Bel. Madam — keep close about me,
Still at my beck — Madam, sweet madam —
Ros. Ha!
What noise is that? What saucy sound to trouble me?
Mir. What said she?
Bel. I am saucy.
[ROSALIUS AND ORIANA RISE AND COME FORWARD.]
Mir. It is the better.
Bel. She comes; must I be saucy still?
Mir. More saucy.
Ros. Still troubled with these vanities?
Heaven bless us!
What are we born to? — Would you speak with any of my people?
Go in, sir; i am busy.
Bel. This is not she, sure:
Is this two children at a birth? I 'll be hang'd, then:
Mine was a merry gentlewoman, talk’d daintily,
Talked of those matters that befitted women;
This is a parcel prayer-book. I'm serv’d sweetly!
And now I am to look to; I was prepar’d for th' other way.
Ros. Do you know that man?
Ori. Sure, I have seen him, lady.
Ros. Methinks 'tis pity such a lusty fellow
Should wander up and down, and want employment.
Bel. She takes me for a rogue! — You may do well, madam,
To stay this wanderer, and set him a-work, forsooth;
He can do something that may please your ladyship.
I have heard of women that desire good breeding,
Two at a birth, or so.
Ros. The fellow's impudent.
Ori. Sure, he is craz'd.
Ros. I have heard of men too that have had good manners.
Sure, this is want of grace: indeed, 'tis great pity
The young man has been bred so ill; but this lew'd age
is full of such examples.
Partly a prayer-book.

Bel. I am founder'd,
And some shall rue the setting of me on.
Mir. Ha! so bookish, lady? Is it possible?
Turn'd holy at the heart too? I 'll be hang'd then:
Why, this is such a feat, such an activity,
Such fast and loose! A veil too for your knavery?
O Dio, Dio!
Ros. What do you take me for, sir?
Mir. An hypocrite, a wanton, a dissenser,
How'er ye seem; and thus ye are to be handled! —
Mark me, Belleur; — and this you love, I know it.
[Attempts to remove the veil.]
Ros. Stand off, bold sir!
Mir. You wear good clothes to this end,
Jewels; love feasts and masques.
Ros. Ye are monstrous saucy.
Mir. All this to draw on fools: and thus,
thus, lady. [Attempts to remove the veil.]
You are to be lull'd.
Bel. Let her alone, I 'll swinge ye else,
I will, i' faith! I for, though I cannot skil 'o'
this matter
Myself, I will not see another do it before me,
And do it worse.
Ros. Away! ye are a vain thing.
You have travell'd far, sir, to return again
A windy and poor bladder. You talk of women,
That are not worth the favour of a common
one.
The grace of her grew in an hospital!
Against a thousand such blown fooleries
I am able to maintain good women's honours,
Their freedoms, and their fames, and I will do
it. —
Mir. She has almost struck me dumb too.
Ros. And declare Against your base malicious tongues, your oises,
For they are nothing else. You teach behav'iors!
Or touch us for our freedoms! Teach yourselves manners,
Truth and sobriety, and live so clearly
That our lives may shine in ye; and then task us.
It seems ye are hot; the suburbs will supply ye:
Good women scorn such gamesters. So, I 'll leave ye.
I am sorry to see this: faith, sir, live fairly.
Exit with ORIANA.
Mir. This woman, if she hold on, may be virtuous;
'Tis almost possible: we 'll have a new day.
Bel. Ye brought me on, ye forc'd me to this folly.
I am ashamed, I am soorn'd, I am flouted;
I am so;
Though I cannot talk to a woman like your worship,

*Accuse, tax.
*Where the houses of ill-repute were situated.
*Disolute fellows.
Flouted.
And use my phrases and my learn'd figures,
Yet I can fight with any man.
Mir. Fie! I can, sir;
Bel. And I will fight.
Mir. With whom?
Bel. With you; with any man;
For all men now will laugh at me.
Mir. Prithhee, be moderate.
Bel. And I'll beat all men. Come.
Mir. I love thee dearly. Bel. I [will] beat all that love; love has undone me.
Never tell me; I will not be a history.
Mir. Thou art not.
Bel. 'Sfoot, I will not! Give me room,
And let me see the proudest of ye jeer me,
And I'll begin with you first.
Mir. Prithhee, Belleur.—
Bel. If I do not satisfy thee—
Bel. Well, look ye do.
But, now I think on 't better, 't is impossible;
I must beat somebody. I am mauled myself.
And I ought in justice—
Mir. No, no, no; you are cozen'd:
Bel. But walk, and let me talk to thee.
Mir. Talk wisely.
Bel. And see that no man laugh, upon no occasion;
For I shall think then 't is at me.
Mir. I warrant thee.
Bel. Nor no more talk of this.
Mir. Doest think I am maddish?
Bel. I must needs fight yet; for I find it concerns me:
A pox on 't: I must fight.
Mir. I 'faith, thou shalt not.

ACT III

SCENE I. Enter De Gard and Lugier.

Lug. I know ye are a scholar, and can do wonders.
De Gard. I warrant thee. What I am, I am. I pity your poor sister,
And heartily I hate these travellers,
These grim-cracks, made of mops and motions,
There's nothing in their houses here but hummings;
A bee has more brains. I grieve and vex too
The insolent licensious carriage
Of this out-facing fellow Mirabel;
And I am mad to see him prick his plumes up.
Lug. Do not you stir, sir; 11
Since he has begun with wit, let wit revenge it:
Keep your sword close; we'll cut his throat a new way.
I am ashamed the gentlewoman should suffer
Such base lewd wrongs.
De Gard. I will be rul'd: he shall live, 13
And left to your revenge.

1 A public walk. 2 Grimacs. 3 Gestures, antica.

Lug. Ay, ay, I'll fit him.
He makes a common scorn of handsome women;
Modesty and good manners are his May-games;
He takes up maidenheads with a new commission—
The church-warrant's out of date. Follow my counsel,
For I am zealous in the cause.
De Gard. I will, sir, And will be still directed; for the truth is,
My sword will make my sister seem more monstrous.
Besides, there is no honour won on reprobates.
Lug. You are i' th' right. The slight he has show'd my pupils Sets me a'fire too. Go; I'll prepare your sister.
And as I told ye——
De Gard. Yee; all shall be fit, sir.
Lug. And seriously, and handsomely.
De Gard. I warrant ye.
Lug. A little counsel more. [Whispers.] De Gard. 'Tis well.
Lug. Most stately:
See that observ'd; and then——
De Gard. I have ye every way.
Lug. Away, then, and be ready.
De Gard. With all speed, sir. Exit.

Enter Lillia Bianca, Rosalba, and Orianna.

Lug. We'll learn to travel too, may be, beyond him. —
Good day, fair beauties!
Lil. You have beautified us,
We thank ye, sir; ye have set us off most gallantly
With your grave precepts.
Ros. We expected husbands 2
Out of your documents 1 and taught behaviours,
Excellent husbands; thought men would run stark mad on us,
Men of all ages and all states; we expected
An inundation of desires and offers,
A torrent of trim suitors; all we did,
Or said, or purposed, to be spells about us,
Spells to provoke.
Lil. Ye have provok'd us finely!
We follow'd your directions, we did rarely,
We were stately, oay, demure, careless, light, giddy,
And play'd at all points: this, you swore,
would carry.
Ros. We made love, and contemn'd love; now seem'd holy,
With such a reverent put-on reservation
Which could not miss, according to your principles;
Now gave more hope again; now close, 2 now public,
Still up and down we beat it like a billow;
And ever those behaviours you read to us,
Subtle and new: but all this will not help us.
Lil. They help to hinder us of all acquaintance,
They have frighted off all friends. What am I better

1 Instructions. 2 Private.
For all my learning, if I love a dance,
A handsome dance? To what use serves my reading?

You should have taught me what belongs to horses,
Dogs, dice, hawks, banquets, masques, free and fair meetings,
To have studied gowns and dressings.

Lug. Ye are not mad, sure!
Ros. We shall be, if we follow your encouragements.

I'll take mine own way now.

Lil. And I my fortune;
We may live maids else till the moon drop milestones.

I see, your modest women are taken for monsters;
A dowry of good breeding is worth nothing.

Lug. Since ye take it so to th' heart, pray ye, give me leave yet.
And ye shall see how I'll convert this heretic. Mark how this Mirabel —

Lil. Name him no more; For, though I long for a husband, I hate him, And would be married sooner to a monkey, Or to a Jack of Straw, than such a juggler.

Ros. I am of that mind too. He is too nimble, And plays at fast and loose too learnedly, For a plain-meaning woman; that's the truth on 't. Here's one too, that we love well, would be angry: [Pointing to Oriana.] And reason why. — No, no, we will not trouble ye.

Nor him at this time: may he make you happy! We'll turn ourselves loose now to our fair fortunes; And the downright way —

Lil. The winning way we'll follow; We'll bait that men may bite fair, and not be frightened.

Yet we'll not be carried so cheap neither; we'll have some sport.

Some mad-morris or other for our money, tutor.

Lug. 'Tis like enough: prosper your own devices!

Ye are old enough to choose. But, for this gentlewoman, So please her give me leave —

Ori. I shall be glad, sir, To find a friend whose pity may direct me.

Lug. I'll do my best, and faithfully deal for ye;

But then ye must be rul'd.

Ori. In all, I vow to ye.

Ros. Do, do: he has a lucky hand sometimes, I'll assure ye, And hunts the recovery of a lost lover deadly.

Lug. You must away straight.

Ori. Yes.

Lug. And I'll instruct ye: —

Here ye can know no more.

Ori. By your leave, sweet ladies; And all our fortunes arrive at our own wishes!

Lil. Amen, amen!

Lug. I must borrow your man.

Lil. Pray, take him;

He is within. To do her good, take any thing.

Take us and all.

Lug. No doubt, ye may find takers; —

And so, we'll leave ye to your own disposes.

Exeunt [LUGIER and ORIANA].

Lil. Now, which way, wench?

Ros. We'll go a brave way, fear not; A safe and sure way too; and yet a by-way. I must confess I have a great mind to be married.

Lil. So have I too a grudging 1 of good-will that way,

And would as fain be despacht'd. But this Monsieur Quicksilver —

Ros. No, no; we'll bar him, bye and main. 2 Let him trample;

There is no safety in his surquedry. 3

An army-royal of women are too few for him; He keeps a journal of his gentleness, 4 And will go near to print his fair despachtes, And call it his "Triumph over time and women." 5

Let him pass out of memory! What think you Of his two companions?

Lil. Pinac, methinks, is reasonable; A little modesty he has brought home with him,

And might be taught, in time, some handsome duty.

Ros. They say, he is a wenchier too.

Lil. I like him better;

A free light touch or two becomes a gentleman, And sets him seemly off: so he exceed not, But keep his compass clear, he may be lookt at.

I would not marry a man that must be taught, And conjur'd up with kisses; the best game Is play'd still by the best gamers.

Ros. Pie upon thee!

What talk hast thou?

Lil. Are not we alone, and merry? Why should we be ashamed to speak what we think? Thy gentleman, 6

The tall fat fellow, he that came to see thee —

Ros. Is it not a goodly man?

Lil. A wondrous goodly!

H's weight enough, I warrant thee. Mercy upon me, What a serpent wilt thou seem under such a St. George.

Ros. Thou art a fool! Give me a man brings mettle,

Brings substance with him, needs no broths to lare 6 him.

These little fellows shew like fleas in boxes, Hop up and down, and keep a stir to vex us. Give me the puissant pike; take you the small shot.

Lil. Of a great thing, I have not seen a duller; Therefore, methinks, sweet sister —

Ros. Peace, he's modest; A bashfulness; which is a point of grace, wench:

1 Secret inclination.
2 Entirely: a phrase from the game of hazard.
3 Arrogance. 4 Limits. 5 Perhaps laird, fatten.
But, when these fellows come to moulding, sister,
To beat, and handling — As I live, I like him;

Enter Mirabel.

And, methinks, I could form him.

Lil. Peace; the fire-drake. 125
Mir. Bless ye, sweet beauties, sweet incomparable ladies, Sweet wits, sweet humours! Bless you, learned lady!
And you, most holy nun, bless your devotions!
Lil. And bless your brains, sir, your most pregnant brains, sir!

They are in travail; may they be delivered
Of a most hopeful wild-geese!

Ros. Bless your manhood!
They say ye are a gentleman of action,
A fair accomplish'd man, and a rare engineer.
You have a trick to blow up maidheads,
A subtle trick, they say abroad.
Mir. I have, lady. 144
Ros. And often glory in their ruins.
Mir. Yes, forsooth; I have a speedy trick, please you to try it;
My engine will despatch you instantly.
Ros. I would I were a woman, sir, fit for you!
As there be such, no doubt, may engine you too;
May, with a counter-mine, blow up your valour:
But, in good faith, sir, we are both too honest;
And, the plague is, we cannot be persuaded;
For, look you, if we thought it were a glory
To be the last of all your lovely ladies — 138
Mir. Come, come, leave prating; this has spoil'd your market!
This pride and puff-up heart will make ye fast,
ladies.

Fast when ye are hungry too.

Ros. The more our pain, sir.
Lil. The more our health, I hope too.
Mir. Your becomings
Have made men stand amaz'd; those men that love'd ye,
Men of fair states 1 and parts. Your strange conversions
Into I know not what, nor how, nor wherefore;
Your sores of those that came to visit ye;
Your studied whim-whams and your fine set faces —

What have these got ye? Proud and harsh opinions.
A travel'd monsieur was the strangest creature,
The wildest monster to be wond'red at;
His person made a public scoff, his knowledge
(As if he had been bred 'mongt bears or bandogs) 2
Shunn'd and avoided; his conversation stuff'd at; 4 —

What harvest brings all this?

Ros. I pray you, proceed, sir.
Mir. Now ye shall see in what esteem a travel-

1 Estates. 2 Ft. conversions. 4 Dogs kept chained on account of their feroceness. 4 Treated contemptuously.

An understanding gentleman, and a monsieur,
Is to be held; and, to your griefs, confesse it,
Both to your griefs and galls.

Ros. We would be glad to understand your excellence.

Mir. Go on, sweet ladies; it becomes ye rarely!
For me, I have blest me from ye; scoff on seri-
And note the man ye mock'd. You, Lad; Learning,
Note the poor traveller that came to visit you,
That flat unfinish'd fellow; note him throughly;
You may chance to see him anon.

Lil. 'Tis very likely.
Mir. And see him courted by a travel'd lady,
Held dear and honoured by a virtuous virgin;
May be, a beauty not far short of yours neither;
It may be, clearer.

Lil. Not unlikely.

Mir. Younger: 148
As killing eyes as yours, a wit so poigniant;
May be, a state, too, that may top your fortune;
Inquire how she thinks of him, how she holds
His good parts, in what precious price already;
Being a stranger to him, how she courts him;
A stranger to his nation too, how she dotes on
him.
Inquire of this; be sick to know: curse, lady,
And keep your chamber; cry, and curse: a sweet one,
A thousand in yearly land, well bred, well
friended.
Travell'd, and highly followed for her fashions.
Lil. Bless his good fortune, sir!

Mir. This scurvy fellow,
I think they call his name Pinae, this serving-
man
That brought ye venison, as I take it, madam,
Note but this scar: 't is strange that this coarse creature,
That has no more set-off but his juggling,
His travel'd tricks —

Lil. Good sir, I grieve not at him,
Nor envy not his fortune: yet I wonder.
He's handsome; yet I see no such perfection.
Mir. Would I had his fortune! For 'tis a woman
Of that sweet-temper'd nature, and that judgment,
Besides her state, that care, clear understanding,
And such a wife to bless him —

Ros. Pray you, whence is she?

Mir. Of England, and most accomplish'd lady;
So modest that men's eyes are frighted at her,
And such a noble carriage —

Enter a Boy.

How now, sirrah?

Roy. Sir, the great English lady —

Mir. What of her, sir?
Boy. Has newly left her coach, and coming this way,
Where you may see her plain: Monsieur Pinac
The only man that leads her.

Enter PINAC, MARIANA, and Attendants.

Mir. He is much honoured; [Exit Boy.]
Would I had such a favour! — Now vex, ladies,
Envy, and vex, and rail!
Ros. You are short of us, sir.
Mir. Bless your fair fortune, sir!
Pin. I nobly thank ye.
Mir. Is she married, friend?
Pin. No, no.
Mir. A goodly lady;
A sweet and delicate aspect! — Mark, mark,
And wonder! —

Hast thou any hope of her?
Pin. A little.
Mir. Follow close, then;

Lose not that hope.
Pin. To you, sir.

[MARIANA courtesies to MIRABEL.]

Mir. Gentle lady!
Ros. She is fair, indeed.
Lil. I have seen a fairer; yet
She is well.
Ros. Her clothes sit handsome too.
Lil. She dresses prettily.
Ros. And, by my faith, she is rich; she looks still sweeter.

A well-born woman, I warrant her.
Lil. Do you hear, sir? May I crave this gentlewoman's name?
Pin. Mariana, lady.
Lil. I will not say I owe ye a quarrel, monsieur,
For making me your slave: a noble gentleman
Would have had more courtesy, at least more faith,
Than to turn off his mistress at first trial.
You know not what respect I might have shov'd ye; I find ye have worth.
Pin. I cannot stay to answer ye; Ye see my charge. I am beholding to ye
For all your merry tricks ye put upon me, [Exit Belloir.]
Your bobs, and base accounts. I came to love ye,
To woo ye, and to serve ye; I am much indebted to ye
For dancing me off my legs, and then for walking me;
For telling me strange tales I never heard of,
More to abuse me; for mistaking me,
When you both knew I was a gentleman,
And one deserv'd as rich a match as you are.

Lil. Be not so bitter, sir.

Pin. You see this lady: She is young enough and fair enough to please me;
A woman of a loving mind, a quiet, And one that weighs the worth of him that loves her:

I am content with this, and bless my fortune.
Your curious wits, and beauties —

Lil. Faith, see me once more.
Pin. I dare not trouble ye.
Lil. May I speak to your lady?
Pin. I pray ye, content yourself. I know ye are bitter,
And, in your bitterness, ye may abuse her;
Which if she comes to know (for she understands ye not),
It may breed such a quarrel to your kindred,
And such an indiscretion fling on you too
(For she is nobly friended) —

Lil. [Aside.] I could eat her. —
Pin. Rest as ye are, a modest noble gentle-
woman,
And afford your honest neighbours some of your prayers.

[Exeunt [PINAC, MARIANA, and Attendants.]

Mir. What think you now?
Lil. Faith, she's a pretty whiting; 8
She has got a pretty catch too.
Mir. You are angry, Monstrous angry now, grievously angry; 9
And the pretty heart does swell now.
Lil. No, in troth, sir.
Mir. And it will cry anon, "A pox upon it!"
And it will curse itself, and eat no meat, lady; And it will sigh. 4
Lil. Indeed, you are mistaken;
It will be very merry.
Ros. Why, sir, do you think
There are no more men living, nor no hand-
Some, Than he or you? By this light, there be ten thousand,
Ten thousand thousand! Comfort yourself, dear monsieur;
Faces, and bodies, wits, and all abilitments 6 —
There are so many we regard 'em not. 7

[Enter BELLIOIR and two Gentlemen.

Mir. That such a noble lady — I could burst now! —

So far above such trifles —
Bel. You did laugh at me;
And I know why ye laughed.
1 Gent. I pray ye, be satisfied:
If we did laugh, we had some private reason,
And not at you.
2 Gent. Alas, we know you not, sir! 7
Bel. I'll make you know me. Set your faces soberly; Stand this way, and look sad; I'll be no May-
game;
Sadder, demurer yet.
Ros. What is the matter?
What ails this gentleman?
Bel. Go off now backward, that I may behold ye;
And not a simper, on your lives! —

[Exeunt Gentlemen, walking backwards.]
Lil. He's mad, sure.

1 Stalking-horse. 9 Bitter jests.
8 Fair one. 4 Old edd. fight. 6 Accomplishments.
BEL. Do you observe me too?
MIR. I may look on ye.
BEL. Why do you grin? I know your mind.
MIR. You do not.

You are strangely humorous. Is there no mirth or pleasure
But you must be the object?
BEL. Mark, and observe me. Wherever I am
man'd,
The very word shall raise a general sadness,
For the disgrace this scurril woman did me,
This proud pretent thing. Take heed ye laugh not at me,
Provoke me not; take heed.

ROS. I would fain please ye;
BEL. Do any thing to keep ye quiet.
ROS. Hear me.

Till I receive a satisfaction
Equal to the disgrace and scorn ye gave me,
Ye are a wretched woman; till thou woo'rt me,
And I scorn thee as much, as seriously
Jeer and abuse thee; ask what gall thou art,
Or any baser name; I will proclaim thee,
I will so sing thy virtue, so be paint thee —
ROS. Nay, good sir, be more modest.

BEL. Do you laugh again? —
Because ye are a woman, ye are lawless,
And out of compass of an honest anger.

ROS. Good sir, have a better belief of me.
LIL. Away, dear sister!

MIR. Is not this better now, this seeming madness,
Than falling out with your friends?
BEL. Have I not frightened her?
MIR. Into her right wits, I warrant thee.
Follow this humour,
And thou shalt see how prosperously 't will guide thee.

BEL. I am glad I have found a way to woo yet; I was afraid one
I never should have made a civil suitor.
Well, I 'll about it still.

MIR. Do, do, and prosper.

What sport do I make with these fools! What pleasure
Feeds me, and fats my sides at their poor innocence!

Enter LUGIER, [disguised.]
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

You may believe; if not, stand to the danger! Exit.

Mir. A lord of Savoy, says he? The duke’s nephew?
A man so mighty? By lady, a fair marriage!
By my faith, a handsome fortune! I must leave prating:
For, to confess the truth, I have abus’d her, 370
For which I should be sorry, but that will seem scurril.
I must confess she was, ever since I knew her,
As modest as she was fair; I am sure she lov’d me;
Her means good, and her breeding excellent;
And for my sake she has refus’d fair matches.
I may play the fool finely.—Stay: who are these?

Re-enter De Gard with Oriana, [both of them disguised, and in rich dresses;] and Attendants.

[Aside.] ’Tis she, I am sure; and that the lord, it should seem.
He carries a fair port, is a handsome man too.
I do begin to feel I am a coxcomb. 370
Ori. Good my lord, choose a nobler; for I know
I am so far below your rank and honour,
That what ye can say this way I must credit.
But spoken to begot yourself sport. Alas, sir,
I am so far off from deserving you,
My beauty so unfit for your affection,
That I am grown the scorn of common rascals,
Of such injurious things that, when they cannot —Reach at my person, lie with my reputation!
I am poor, besides.

De Gard. Ye are all wealth and goodness;
And none but such as are the scum of men,
The ulcers of an honest state, spite-weavers,
That live on poison only, like swarm spiders,
Dare once profane such excellence, such —Be what he will —

Mir. This man speaks loud indeed.

De Gard. Name but the men, lady;
Let me but know these poor and base depravers,
Any and to my revenge their persons open.
And you shall see how suddenly, how fully,
For your most beauteous sake, how direfully,
I’ll handle their despites. Is this thing one?

Mir. Sir?
De Gard. Dare your malicious tongue, sir —
Mir. I know you not, nor what ye mean.
Ori. Good my lord —
De Gard. If he, or any he —
Ori. I beseech your honour —

This gentleman’s a stranger to my knowledge;
And, no doubt, sir, a worthy man.
De Gard. Your mercy! —

But, had he been a tainter of your honour,
A blaster of those beauties reign within ye —
But we shall find a fitter time. Dear lady,
As soon as I have freed ye from your guardian,
And done some honour’d offices unto ye, —
I’ll take ye with those faults the world flings on ye,

And dearer than the whole world I’ll esteem ye! Exit [with Oriana and Attendants].

Mir. This is a thund’ring lord: I am glad I scap’d him.
How lovingly the wench disclaim’d my villany!
I am vex’d now heartily that he shall have her;
Not that I care to marry, or to lose her,
But that this bilbo-lord shall reap that maid- enhead;
That was my due; that he shall rig and top her:
I’d give a thousand crowns now, he might miss her.

Enter a Servant.

Serv. Nay, if I bear your blows, and keep your counsel,
You have good luck, sir: I teach ye to strike lightly.
Mir. Come hither, honest fellow: canst thou tell me
Where this great lord lies, this Savoy lord?
Thou mett’st him;
He now went by thee, certain.
Serv. Yes, he did, sir; I know him, and I know you are fool’d.
Mir. Come hither: 380
Serv. Here’s all this, give me truth. [Gives money.]
Serv. Not for your money,
(And yet that may do much) but I have been beaten,
And by the worshipful contrivers beaten, and I’ll tell ye:
This is no lord, no Savoy lord.

Mir. Go forward.

Serv. This is a trick, and put upon you grossly
By one Lugier. The lord is Monsieur De Gard,
An honest gentleman, and a neighbour here;
Their ends you understand better than I, sure.
Mir. Nor I know him; know him now plain.
Serv. I have discharg’d my colours, 380
God by ye, sir! —

Mir. What a purlingd’ry colours was I. Now I remember him;
All the whole cast on’s face, though it were umber’d,
And mask’d with patches. What a dunder- whelp,
To let him domineer thus! How he struttred,
And what a load of lord he clapt upon him!
Would I had him here again! I would so bounce him,
I would so thank his lordship for his lewd 4 plot!
Do they think to carry it away, with a great band made of bird-pots?
And a pair of pin-buttock’d breeches? — Ha!
’t is he again;
He comes, he comes, he comes I have at him! 400

1 Fool.
2 Swaggering lord.
3 Several editors read choler.
4 Stupid dog.
5 Brownd.
6 Vile.
7 Apparently some extravagance of dress.
Re-enter De Gard, Omiata, [both disguised as before and Attendants.]

[MIRABEL sings.]

My Savoy lord, why dost thou frown on me?
And will that favour never sweeter be?
Wilt thou, I say, for ever play the fool?
De Gard, be wise, and, Savoy, go to school!
My lord De Gard, I thank you for your antic;
My lady bright, that will be sometimes frantic;
You worthy train, that wait upon this pair,
Send you more wit, and them a bouncing bair! 8

And so I take my humble leave of your honours!

Exit. De Gard. We are discover'd; there's no remedy.

Lillia Bianca's man, upon my life,
In stubbornness, because Lugier corrected him—
A shameless slave! Plague on him for a rascal!
Ori. I was in a perfect hope. The bane on't is now,
He will make mirth on mirth, to persecute us.
De Gard. We must be patient; I am vex'd to the proof too.
I'll try once more; then, if I fail, here's one speaks. [Puts his hand on his sword.]
Ori. Let me be lost and scorn'd first!
De Gard. Well, we'll consider.
Away, and let me shift; I shall be hooted else.

Exit.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

Enter Lugier, Lillia Bianca, and Servant [carrying a willow garland.]

Lug. Fainst not, but do as I direct ye: trust me;
Believe me too; for what I have told ye, lady,
As true as you are Lillia, is authentic;
I know it, I have found it: 'tis a poor courage
Flies off for one repulse. These travellers shall find, before we have done, a home-spun wit,
A plain French understanding, may cope with 'em.
They have had the better yet, thank your sweet squire here!
And let 'em brag. You would be reveng'd?
Lil. Yes, surely.
Lug. And married too?

Lil. I think so.
Lug. Then be counsell'd; 10
You know how to proceed. I have other irons
Heating as well as yours, and I will strike
Three blows with one stone home. Be rul'd, and happy;
And so, I leave ye. Now is the time.
Lil. He do come to dor 14 me. [Exit Lugier.]

Serv. Will ye stand here, 12

And let the people think ye are God knows what, mistress?
Let boys and prentices presume upon ye?
Lil. Prithee, hold thy peace.
Serv. Stand at his door that hates ye?
Lil. Prithee, leave prating.
Serv. Pray ye, go to the tavern: I 'll give ye a pint of wine there.

If any of the mad-cap gentlemen should come by,
That take up women upon special warrant,
You were in a wise case now.

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, Mariana, Priest, and Attendants.

Lil. Give me the garland;
And wait you here.

[Mir. Takes the garland from Servant, who retires.] She is here to seek thee, sigh rh.
I told thee what would follow; she is mad for thee.

Show, and advance. — So early stirring, lady?
It shows a busy mind, a fancy troubled.
A willow garland too? Is 't possible?
'T is pity so much beauty should lie musty;
But 't is not to be help'd now.

Lil. The more 's my misery. —
Good fortune to ye, lady! you deserve it;
To me, too late repentance! I have sought it.
I do not envy, though I grieve a little,
You are mistress of that happiness, those joys,
That might have been, had I been wise — but fortune —

Pin. She understands ye not; pray ye, do not trouble her;
And do not cross me like a hare thus; 't is as ominous.

Lil. I come not to upbraud your levity
(Though ye made show of love, and though I liked ye),
To claim an interest (we are yet both strangers;
But what we might have had, ye per- serve—)

To be an eye-sore to your loving lady:
This garland shows I give myself forsaken (Yet, she must pardon me, 't is most unwillingly);
And all the power and interest I had in ye
(As, I persuade myself, somewhat ye lov'd me)

Thus patiently I render up, I offer
To her that must enjoy ye, and so bless ye;
Only, I heartily desire this courtesy,
And would not be dem'd, to wait upon ye
This day, to see ye tied, then no more trouble ye.

Pin. It needs not, lady.
Lil. Good sir, grant me so much.
Pin. 'Tis private, and we make no invitation.

Lil. My presence, sir, shall not proclaim it public.

Pin. May be, 't is not in town.
Lil. I have a coach, sir,
And a most ready will to do you service.
Mir. [Aside to Pimac.] Strike now or never; make it yet. I tell thee, she will hang herself, if she have thee not.

Pin. Pray ye, sir, entertain my noble mistress: only a word or two
With this important woman, and I'll relieve ye.
Now ye see what your flings are, and your fancies,
Your states, and your wild stubbornness; now ye find
What it is to gird and kick at men's fair services,
To raise your pride to such a pitch and glory
That goodness shows like gnats, sores under ye.
'Tis ugly, naught; a self-will in a woman,
Chain'd to an overweening thought, is pestilent,
Murders fair fortune first, then fair opinion.
There stands a pattern, a true patient pattern,
Humble and sweet.

Lil. I can but grieve my ignorance. Repentance, some say too, is the best sacrifice; for, sure, sir, if my chance had been so happy (As I confess I was mine own destroyer) As to have arriv'd at you, I will not prophesy. But certain, as I think, I should have pleas'd ye.

Have made ye as much wonder at my courtesy, My love, and duty, as I have dishearten'd ye. Some hours we have of youth, and some of folly; And being free-born maids, we take a liberty, And, to maintain that, sometimes we strain highly.

Pin. Now you talk reason.
Lil. But, being yok'd and govern'd, Married, and those light vanities purg'd from us, How fair we grow, how gentle, and how tender! We twine about those loves that shoot up with us! A sullen woman fear, that talks not to ye; She has a sad and darken'd soul, loves dully. A merry and a free wench, give her liberty, Believe her, in the lightest form she appears to ye, Believe her excellent, though she despise ye; Let but these fits and flashes pass, she will show to ye As jewels rubb'd from dust, or gold new burnish'd:

Such had I been, had you believ'd.

Pin. Is 't possible? Lil. And to your happiness, I dare assure ye, If true love be accounted so: your pleasure, Your will, and your command, had tied my motions! But that hope's gone. I know you are young and giddy, And, till you have a wife can govern with ye, You sail upon this world's sea light and empty, Your bark in danger daily. 'Tis not the name neither

1 Scoff. 2 Reputation.

Of wife can steer you, but the noble nature, The diligence, the care, the love, the patience: She makes the pilot, and preserves the husband, That knows and reckons every rib he is built on.

But this I tell ye, to my shame.

Pin. I admire ye; And now am sorry that I aim beyond ye.

Mir. [Aside.] So, so, so: fair and softly! She is thine own, boy; She comes now without lure.

Pin. But that it must needs Be reckon'd to me as a wantonness, Or worse, a madness, to forsake a blessing, A blessing of that hope —

Lil. I dare not urge ye; And yet, dear sir —

Pin. 'T is most certain, I had rather, If 't were in mine own choice — for you are my countrywoman, A neighbour here, born by me; she a stranger, And who knows how her friends —

Lil. Do as you please, sir; If ye be fast, not all the world — I love ye. It is most true, and clear, I would persuade ye; And I shall love ye still.

Pin. Go, get before me — So much ye have won upon me — do it presently.
Here's a priest ready — I'll have you.

Lil. Not now, sir; No, you shall pardon me. Advance your lady; I dare not hinder your most high preferment: 'T is honour enough for me I have unmask'd you.

Pin. How's that? Lil. I have caught ye, sir. Alas, I am no stateswoman, Nor no great traveller, yet I have found ye; I have found your lady too, your beautiful lady; I have found her birth and breeding too, her discipline, Who brought her over, and who kept your lady, And, when he laid her by, what virtuous numer; Receiv'd her in: I have found all these. Are ye blank now? Methinks, such travel'd wisdoms should not fool thus. —

Such excellent indiscretions!

Mir. How could she know this?

Lil. 'T is true she's English-born; but most part French now, And so I hope you'll find her to your comfort. Alas, I am ignorant of what she cost ye! The price of these hired clothes I do not know, gentleman! Those jewels are the broker's, how ye stand bound for 'em!

Pin. Will you make this good?
Lil. Yes, yes; and to her face, sir, That she is an English whore, a kind of flinging dust,
One of your London light-o'loves, a right one;
Came over in this pumps and half a petticote,
One faith, and one smock, with a broken hab-
I know all this without a conjurer.
She's first a lady's chambermaid, there
And broke her leg above the knee; departed,
And set up shop herself; stood the fierce conf-
Of many a furious term; there lost her col-
And last ship'd over hither.

Mir. We are betray'd!
Lil. Do you come to fright me with this mystery?
To stir me with a stink none can endure, sir?
I pray ye, proceed; the wedding will become ye:
Who gives the lady? You? An excellent
A careful man, and one that knows a beauty!
Send ye fair shipping, sir! and so, I'll leave
Be wise and manly; then I may chance to love
Exit [with Servant].

Mir. As I live, I am asham'd this wench has Monstrous asham'd; but there's no remedy.
This shaw'd-oy'd carrion. —
Pia. This I suspected ever.—
Come, come, uncase; we have no more use of
Your clothes must back again.
Mari. Sir, you shall pardon me;
'T is not our English use to be degraded.
If you will visit me, and take your venture,
You shall have pleasure for your properties.
And so, sweetheart. — [Exit.]
Mir. Let her go, and the devil go with her!
We have never better luck with these prelud-

SCENE II. 2

Enter ROSALURA and Lugire.

Ros. You have now redeem'd my good opinitutor,
And ye stand fair again.
Lug. I can but labour,
And sweat in your affairs. I am sure Belleur
Will be here instantly, and use his anger,
His wonted harshness.
Ros. I hope he will not beat me.
Lug. No, sure, he has more manners. Be you ready.
Ros. Yes, yes, I am; and am resolv'd to fit
With patience to outdo all he can offer.
But how does Oriana?

Lug. Worse and worse still;
There is a sad house for her; she is now,
Poor lady, utterly distracted.
Ros. Pity,
Infinite pity! 't is a handsome lady:
That Mirabel's a beast, worse than a monster,
If this affliction work not.

Enter LILLIA BLANCA.

Lil. Are you ready?
Belleur is coming on here, hard behind me:
I have no leisure to relate my fortune;
Only I wish you may come off as handsomely.
Upon the sign, you know what.
Ros. Well, well; leave me.
Exeunt [LILLIA BLANCA AND LUGIRE].

Enter BELLEUR.

Bel. How now?
Ros. Ye are welcome, sir.
Bel. 'T is well ye have manners.
That court'ye again, and hold your countenance staidly.
That look's too light; take heed: so; sit ye down now;
And, to confirm me that your gall is gone,
Your bitterness diapers'd (for so I'll have it),
Look on me stedfastly, and, whataco'ri say
ye,
Move not, nor alter in your face; ye are gone,
then;
For, if you do express the least distaste,
Or show an angry wrinkle. (mark me, woman!
We are now alone,) I will so conjure thee,
The third part of my exaction
Cannot be spoke.
Ros. I am at your dispose, sir.
Bel. Now rise, and woo me a little; let me hear that faculty:
But touch me not; nor do not lie, I charge
ye.
Begin now.
Ros. If so mean and poor a beauty
May ever hope the grace —
Bel. Ye cog, ye flatter;
Like a lewd 4 thing, ye lie: "May hope that grace!"
Why, what grace canst thou hope for? Answer
not;
For, if thou dost, and liest again, I'll swinge
thee.
Do not I know thee for a pestilent woman?
A prond at both ends? Be not angry,
Nor stir not, o' your life.
Ros. I am counsell'd, sir.
Bel. Art thou not now (confess, for I'll have the truth out)
As much unworthy of a man of merit,
Or any of ye all, nay, of mere man,
Though he were crooked, cold, all wants upon
him.
Nay, of any dishonest thing that bears that figure,
As devils are of mercy?
Ros. We are unworthy.
IV. ii. THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

To threaten gentlewomen! Thou a man! A Maypole,
A great dry pudding.
[3] Wom. Come, come, do your worst, sir; Be angry, if thou dar'st.
Bel. The Lord deliver me! 4 Wom. Do but look securily upon this lady,
Or give us one foul word! — We are all mistaken;
This is some mighty dairy-maid in man's clothes.
Lil. I am of that mind too.
Bel. [Aside.] What will they do to me?
Lil. And hired to come and abuse us. — A man has manners;
A gentleman, civility and breeding: —
Some tinker's trull, with a beard, gla'd on.
1 Wom. Let's search him,
And, as we find him —
Bel. Let me but depart from ye,
Sweet Christian women!
Lil. Hear the thing speak, neighbours.
Bel. 'Tis but a small request: if e'er I trouble ye,
If s'er I talk again of beating women,
Or beating any thing that can but turn to me;
Of ever thinking of a handsome lady
But virtuously and well; of ever speaking
But to her honour, — this I'll promise ye,
I will take rhubarb, and purge choler 4 mainly,
Abundantly I'll purge.
Lil. I'll send ye broth's, sir.
Bel. I will be laugh'd at, and endure it pa-tiently;
I will do any thing.
Ros. I'll be your bail, then.
When ye come next to woo, pray ye come not boisterously,
And furnish'd like a bear-ward.
Bel. No, in truth, forsooth.
Ros. I scented ye long since.
Bel. I was to blame, sure:
I will appear a gentleman.
Ros. 'T is the best for ye,
For a true noble gentleman's a brave thing.
Upon that hope, we quit ye. You fear seri-
Bel. Yes, truly do I; I confess I fear ye, 110
And honour ye, and any thing.
Ros. Farewell, then.
Wom. And, when ye come to woo next,
bring more mercy.

Exeunt [all except BELLEUR].
Enter two Gentlemen.

Bel. A dairy-maid! A tinker's trull! Heaven bless me!
Sure, if I had provok'd 'em, they had quarter'd me.
I am a most ridiculous ass, now I perceive it;
A coward, and a knave too.
1 Gent. 'Tis the mad gentleman; 118
Let's set our faces right.

1 Arrogance.  2 Handsome.  3 Gulled.
4 Bile, the supposed cause of anger.
5 Thoroughly.  6 Bear-keeper.
Enter ROSALURA and LILLIA BLANCA.

Ros. Oh, pity, pity! thousand, thousand pities!

Lil. Alas, poor soul, she will die! She is grown senseless;
She will not know nor speak now.

Ros. Die for love! And love of such a youth! I would die for a dog first:
He that kills me, I'll give him leave to eat me;
I'll know meu better, ere I sigh for any of 'em.

Lil. You have done a wortly act, sir, a most famous;
Ye have killed'd the wrong way; ye are a conqueror.

Ros. A conqueror? A cobbler! Hang him, sowter! —
Go hide thyself, for shame! Go lose thy memory! Live not 'mongst men; thou art a beast, a monster.

A blatant beast!

Lil. If ye have yet any honesty, —
Or ever heard of any, take my counsel:
Off with your garters, and seek out a bough, —
A handsome bough, for I would have ye hang like a gentleman;
And write some doleful matter to the world,
A warning to hard-hearted men.

Mir. Out, kitlings! — What caterwauling 's here! What gibing! —
Do you think my heart is soft'ned with a black santis?

Show me some reason.

Enter ORIANA on a bed.

Ros. Here then, here is a reason.

Nant. Now, if ye be a man, let this sight shake ye!

Lia Cast. Alas, poor gentlewoman! — Do ye know me, lady?

Luc. How she looks up, and stares!

Ori. I know ye very well;
You are my godfather: and that's the monsieur.

De Gard. And who am I?

Ori. You are Amadis de Gaul, sir. —
Oh, oh, my heart! — Were you never in love, sweet lady?
And do you never dream of flowers and gardens?

I dream of walking fires: take heed; it comes now.

Who's that? Pray, stand away. I have seen that face, sure.

How light my head is!

Ros. Take some rest.

Ori. I cannot;
For I must be up-morrow to go to church,
And I must dress me, put my new gown on,
And be as fine to meet my love! Heigh-ho! —
Will you not tell me where my love lies buried?

Mir. He is not dead. — [Aside.] Beathrew my heart, she stirs me!

1 Cobbler.
2 Cab-likes behavior.
3 I.e. black-santus, a burlesque hymn accompanied by discordant noises.

5 Hinder. Fl. set.
6 A hall in the house of La Castr.

SCENE III.

Enter NANTOLET, LA CASTRE, DE GARD, LUGIER, and MIRABEL.

Mir. Your patience, gentlemen; why do ye bate me?

Nant. Is't not a shame you are so stubborn-hearted,
So stony and so dull, to such a lady,
Of her perfections and her misery?

Lug. Does she not love ye? Does not her distraction
For your sake only, her most pitted lunacy
Of all but you, show ye? Does it not compel ye?

Mir. Soft and fair, gentlemen; pray ye, proceed temperately.

Luc. If ye have any feeling, any sense in ye,
The least touch of a noble heart —

La Cast. Let him alone:
It is his glory that he can kill beauty,—
Ye bear my stamp, but not my tenderness;
Your wild unsavoury courses let that in ye!
For shame, be sorry, though ye cannot cure her;

Show something of a man, of a fair nature.

Mir. Ye make me mad!

De Gard. Let me pronounce this to ye:
You take a strange felicity in slighting
And wrongdoing women, which my poor sister feels now;

Heaven's hand be gentle on her! Mark me, sir;
That very hour she dies (there's small hope otherwise),
That minute, you and I must grapple for it;
Either your life or mine.

Mir. Be not so hot, sir; I am not to be wronged by these policies,
I am not; nor do I fear the tricks,
Or the high-sounding threats, of a Savoyan.
I glory not in cruelty, ye wrong me,
Nor grow up water'd with the tears of women,
This let me tell ye, howsoever I show to ye,
Wild, as you please to call it, or self-will'd,
When I see cause, I can both do and suffer,
Freely and feelingly, as a true gentleman.

1 Foot.
2 Hinder. Fl. set.
3 A hall in the house of La Castr.

Enter ROSALURA and LILLIA BLANCA.
Ori. He is dead to me.

Mir. [Aside.] Is 't possible my nature
Should be so damnable to let her suffer? —
Give me your hand.

Ori. How soft ye feel, how gentle!
I'll tell you your fortune, friend.

Mir. How she stares on me!

Ori. You have a flattering face, but 'tis a fine one;
I warrant you may have a hundred sweethearts.
Will ye pray for me? I shall die to-morrow; —
And will ye ring the bells?

Mir. I am most unworthy,
I do confess, unhappy. Do you know me?

Ori. I would I did!

Mir. Oh, fair tears, how ye take 'em me!

Ori. Do you weep too? You have not lost your lover?

You mock me: I'll go home and pray.

Mir. Pray ye, pardon me; —
Or, if ye please ye to consider justly,
Scorn me, for I deserve it; scorn and shame
me,

Sweet Oriana!

Lil. Let her alone; she trembles;
Her fits will grow more strong, if ye provoke
her.

La Cast. Certain she knows ye not, yet loves to see ye.

How she smiles now!

Enter BELLEUR.

Bel. Where are ye? Oh, why do not ye laugh? Come, laugh at me:
Why a devil art thou sad, and such a subject,
Such a ridiculous subject, as I am,
Before thy face?

Mir. Prithee, put off this lightness; —
This is no time for mirth, nor place; I have us'd too much on't.
I have undone myself and a sweet lady
By being too indulgent to my foolery,
Which truly I repent. Look here.

Bel. What ails she?

Mir. Alas, she's mad!

Bel. Mad!

Mir. Yes, too sure; for me too. —
Bel. Dost thou wonder at that? By this good light, they are all so;
They are cox'ning-mad, they are brawling-mad,
they are proud-mad;
They are all, all mad. I came from a world of mad women,
Mad as March hares. Get 'em in chains, then deal with 'em.

There's one that's mad; she seems well, but she is dog-mad.

Is she dead, do't think?

Mir. Dead! Heaven forbid!

Bel. Heaven further it!

For, till they be key-cold dead, there's no trusting
of 'em:
Whate'er they seem, or howsoever they carry it,
Till they be chap-fallen, and their tongues at tame;

Nail'd in their coffins sure, I'll ne'er believe
'om.

Shall I talk with her?

Mir. No, dear friend, be quiet,
And be at peace a while.

Bel. I'll walk aside,
And come again anon. But take heed to her:
You say she is a woman?

Mir. Yes.

Bel. Take great heed;
For, if she do not cozen thee, then hang me; —
Let her be mad, or what she will, she'll cheat
thee!

Exit.

Mir. Away, wild fool! — How wild this shows in him now! —
Now take my faith, (before ye all I speak it,) And with it my repentant love.

La Cast. This seems well.

Mir. Were but this lady clear again, whose sorrows
My very heart melts for, were she but perfect,
(For thus to marry her would be two miseries,
Before the richest and the noblest beauty,
France or the world could show me, I would take her.

As she is now, my tears and prayers shall wed
her.

De Gard. This makes some small amends.

Ros. She becoms to ye;
To us, too, to go off.

Nast. [Exit all except ORIANA and MI-RABEL.]

Ori. Oh, my best friend! I would fain —

Mir. [Aside.] What, she speaks well,
And with another voice.

Ori. But I am fearful,
And shame a little stopes my tongue —

Mir. Speak boldly.

Ori. Tell ye, I am well. I am perfect well (pray ye, mock not);
And that I did this to provoke your nature;
Out of my infinite and restless love,
To win your pity. Pardon me!

Mir. Go forward:
Who set ye on?

Ori. None, as I live, no creature; —
Not any knew or ever dream'd what I meant.
Will ye be mine?

Mir. 'Tis true, I pity ye;
But, when I marry ye, ye must be wiser.
Nothing but tricks? devices?

Ori. Will ye shame me?

Mir. Yes, marry, will I. — Come near, come near a miracle!

The woman's well; she was only mad for marriage,
Stark mad to be ston'd to death: give her good counsel.
Will this world never mend? — Are ye caught, damsel?

Enter BELLEUR, NANTOLET, LA CASTRE, DE
GARD, LUGIERS, ROSALURA, and LILLIA BI-ANCA.

Bel. How goes it now?

Mir. Thou art a kind of prophet;
The woman's well again, and would have gull'd me;
Well, excellent well, and not a taint upon her.
Bel. Did not I tell ye? Let 'em be what can be,
Saints, devils, any thing, they will abuse us:
Thou wert an ass to believe her so long, a concomb:
Give 'em a minute, they'll abuse whole milions.
Mir. And am not I a rare physician, gentlemen,
That can cure desperate mad minds?
De Gard. Be not insolent.
Mir. Well, go thy ways: from this hour I disclaim thee,
Unless thou hast a trick above this; then I'll love thee.
Ye owe me for your cure. — Pray, have a care of her.
For fear she fall into relapse. — Come, Belleur;
We'll set up bills to cure diseased virgins.
Bel. Shall we be merry?
Mir. Yes.
Bel. But I'll no more projects:
If we could make 'em mad, it were some mystery.
Exeunt [Mirabel and Belleur].
Lil. I am glad she is well again.
Ros. So am I, certain. — 138
Be not ashamed.
Ori. I shall never see a man more.
De Gard. Come, ye are a fool: had ye but told me this trick,
He should not have gloried thus.
Lug. He shall not long, neither.
La Cast. Be rul'd, and be at peace. Ye have my consent.
And what power I can work with.
Nunt. Come, leave blushing:
We are your friends: an honest way compell'd ye:
Heaven will not see so true a love unrecompens'd.
Come in, and slight him too.
Lug. The next shall hit him. Exeunt.

ACT V
SCENE I. ¹
Enter De Gard and Lugier.
De Gard. 'T will be discover'd.
Lug. That's the worst can happen:
If there be any way to reach, and work upon him,
Upon his nature suddenly, and catch him — That he loves,
Though he dissemble it, and would show contrary,
And will at length relent, I'll lay my fortune;
Nay, more, my life.
De Gard. Is she won?
Lug. Yes, and ready. ²
And my designments set.

² Approves.
³ A public walk.
⁴ Morris-dances.
⁵ Lively dances.
⁶ Bastards.
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

Mir. Yes, certain; I will out again.

Pin. We are for ye, sir; we are your servants once more;*

Once more we'll seek our fortune in strange countries;

Ours is too scornful for us. Bel. Is there ne'er a land
That you have read or heard of (for I care not how far it be, Nor under what pestiferous star it lies),
A happy kingdom, where there are no women,
Nor have been ever, nor no mention
Of any such lewd things with lewder qualities,
(For thither would I travel) where 't is felony
To confess he had a mother; a mistress, treason?

La Cast. Are you for travel too?

Bel. For any thing,*

For living in the moon, and stopping hedges,†
Ere I stay here to be abus'd and baff'd.‡

Nant. Why did ye not break your minds to me? They are my daughters;
And, sure, I think should have that command over 'em,
To see 'em well bestow'd. I know ye are gentlemen,
Men of fair parts and states; I know your parents,
And, had ye told me of your fair affections—
Make but one trial more, and let me second ye.

Bel. No; I'll make hob-nails first, and mend old kettles.

Can ye lend me an armour of high proof, to appear in,

And two or three field-pieces to defend me?

The king's guard are mere pigmies.

Nant. They will not eat ye.

Bel. Yes, and you too, and twenty fatter monsieurs,
If their high stomachs hold. They came with chopping-knives,

To cut me into rands and sirloins, and so powder me.—*

Come, shall we go?

Nant. You cannot be so discourteous,

If ye intend to go, as not to visit 'em,

And take your leaves.

Mir. That we dare do, and civilly,

And thank 'em too.

Pin. Yes, sir, we know that honesty.¶

Bel. I'll come i' the rear, forty foot off, I'll assure ye,§

With a good gun in my hand. I'll no more Amazons,

I mean, no more of their frights. I'll make my three legs,*

Kiss my hand twice, and, if I smell no danger,

If the interview be clear, may be I'll speak to her;

I'll wear a privy coat too, and behind me,*

To make those parts secure, a bandog.

La Cast. You are a merry gentleman.

Bel. A wary gentleman, I do assure you.

I have been warn'd; and must be arm'd.†

1 Like the man-in-the-moon with his bundle of sticks.
2 Degraded.
3 Good breeding.
4 Bows.
5 Secret coat of mail.
6 Secret coat of mail.

La Cast. Well, son,

These are your hasty thoughts; when I see you are bent to it,

Then I'll believe, and join with ye: so, we'll leave ye.—

Aside.] There's a trick will make ye stay.

Nant. [Aside.] I hope so.

Erwan [La Castre and Nantolet].

Mir. We have won immortal fame now, if we leave 'em.

Pin. You have; but we have lost.

Mir. Pinac, thou art ozone'd.

I know they love ye; and to gain ye hand-somely,*

Not to be thought to yield, they would give millions.

Their father's willingness, that must needs show ye.

Pin. If I thought so ——

Mir. Ye shall be hang'd, you recreant!

Would ye turn renegade now?

Bel. No; let's away, boys, *

Out of the air and tumult of their villainies.

Though I were married to that grasshopper,

And had her fast by the legs, I should think she would ozone me.

Enter a Young [Man, disguised as a Factor.

Y. Man. Monsieur Mirabel, I take it?

Mir. Y'are i'm th' right, sir.

Y. Man. I am come to seek ye, sir. I have been at your father's,

And, understanding you were here ——

Mir. May I crave your name?

Y. Man. Fosse, sir, and your servant.

That you may know me better, I am factor

To your old merchant, Leverdure.

Mir. How does he?

Y. Man. Well, sir, I hope; he is now at Orleans,

About some business.

Mir. You are once more welcome.

Your master's a right honest man, and one

I am much beholding to, and must very shortly

Trouble his love again.

Y. Man. You may be bold, sir.

Mir. Your business, if you please now?

Y. Man. This, it is sir. *

I know ye well remember in your travel

A Genoa merchant ——

Mir. I remember many.

Y. Man. But this man, sir, particularly; your own benefit

Must needs imprit him in ye; one Alberto,

A gentleman you sav'd from being murder'd*

A little from Bologna; I was then myself in Italy, and supplied ye;

Though haply you have forgot me now.

Mir. No, I remember ye,

And that Alberto too; a noble gentleman:

More to remember were to thank myself, sir. *

What of that gentleman?

Y. Man. He is dead.

Mir. I am sorry.

Y. Man. But on his death-bed, leaving to his sister
All that he had, beside some certain jewels, Which, with a ceremony, he bequeath’d to you. 110
In greatful memory, he commanded strictly
His sister, as she lov’d him and his peace,
To see those jewels safe and true deliver’d,
And, with them, his last love. She, as tender
To observe his will, not trusting friend nor serving man.
With such a weight, is come herself to Paris
And at my master’s house.

Sir. You tell me a wonder.

You tell me a truth, sir. She is young and handsome,
And well attended; of much state and riches;
So loving and obedient to her brother,
That, on my conscience, if he had given her also,
She would most willingly have made her tender.

Sir, may I see her?

She desires it heartily.

Sir. And presently?

She is now about some business.
Passing accounts of some few debts have owing;

And buying jewels of a merchant.

Is she wealthy?

I would ye had her, sir, at all adv-venture!

Her brother had a main state. 1

And fair too?

The prime of all those parts of Italy,

For beauty and for courtesy.

I must see her.

’Tis all her business, sir. Ye may now see her;
But to-morrow will be fitter for your visitation,
For she is not yet prepared.

Sir. Only her sight, sir;
And, when you shall think fit, for further visit.

Sirs, ye may see her, and I’ll wait your coming.

And I’ll be with ye instantly; I know
the house;—
Meantime, my love and thanks, sir.

Your poor servant. Exit.

Thou hast the strangest luck! What was that Alberto?

An honest noble merchant ‘twas my chance.

To rescue from some rogues had almost slain
him;
And he in kindness to remember this!

Now we shall have you
For all your protestations and your forward,
Find out strange fortunes in this lady’s eyes, 118
And new entertainments to put off your journey;
And who shall have honour then?

No, no, never fear it:
I must needs see her to receive my legacy.

If it be tied up in her smock, Heaven help thee!
May not we see too?

Yes, afores we go! 120

I must be known myself, ars I be able To make thee welcome. Wouldst thou see more women?

I thought you had been out of love with all.

I may be (I find that), with the least encouragement:
Yet I desire to see whether all countries
Are naturally possess’d with the same spirits,
For, if they be, I’ll take a monastery,
And never travel: for I had rather be a friar,
And live mew’d up, than be a fool, and flouted.

Well, well, I’ll meet ye anon, then tell you more, boys;

However, stand prepared, prest 4 for our journey;

For certain we shall go, I think, when I have seen her,
And view’d her well.

Go, go, and we’ll wait for ye;
Your fortune directs ours.

You shall find us at’ th tavern,
Lamenting in sack and sugar for our losses.
If she be right Italian, and want servants,
You may prefer the properest man. How I could Worry a woman now!

Come, come, leave prating;
Ye may have enough to do, without this boast-
ing.

Enter Lucio, de GaRD, Rosalura, and Lillia Bianca.

This is the last adventure.

And the happiest,
As we hope, too.

We should be glad to find it.

And conduct us thither?

Your man is ready,
For I must not be seen; no, nor this gentleman;
That may begat suspicion; all the rest 5
Are people of no doubt. I would have ye, ladies,
Keep your old liberties, and as we instruct ye.
Come, look not pale; you shall not lose your wishes,
Nor beg ’em neither; but be yourselves and happy.

I tell you true, I cannot hold off longer,
Nor give no more hard language.

You shall not need.

I love the gentleman, and must now shew it:

Shall I beat a proper man out of heart?

There’s none advise ye.

Repent and spoil all;
Tell what ye know, ye had best.

I’ll tell what I think; 6
For, if he ask me now if I can love him,
I’ll tell him, yes, I can. The man’s a kind man,
And out of his true honesty affects me.

Shut. 1

Ready. 4

A room in the house of Nantolet.

1 Large fortune.

5
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

Although he play’d the fool, which I requited,
Must I still hold him at the staff’s end?

Log.
You are two strange women.

Ros.
We may be, if we fool still.

Log.
Dare ye believe me?
Follow but this advice I have set you in now,
And if ye lose—Would ye yield now so basely?
Give up without your honours say’d?

De Gard.
Fie, ladies!

Preserve your freedom still.

Lit.
Well, well, for this time.

Log.
And carry that full state—

Ros.
That’s as the wind stands;
If it begin to chop about, and scant us,
Hang me, but I know what I’ll do! Come, direct us;

I make no doubt we shall do handsomely.

De Gard.
Some part o’ th’ way we’ll wait upon ye, ladies;

The rest your man supplies.

Log.
Do well, I’ll honour ye. Exeunt.

SCENE IV.

ORIANA [disguised as an Italian lady,] and two [persons disguised as] Merchants, [discovered above.] Enter, [below, the Young Man disguised as a] Factor, and MIRABEL.

Y. Man.
Look ye, sir, there she is; you see how busy.
Methinks you are infinitely bound to her for her journey.

Mir.
How gloriously she shows! She is a tall woman.

Y. Man.
Of a fair size, sir. My master not being at home,
I have been so out of my wits to get her company—

I mean, sir, of her own fair sex and fashion—

Mir.
Afar off, she is most fair too.

Y. Man.
Near, most excellent. —
At length, I have entreated two fair ladies
(And happily you know ’em), the young daughters Of Monsieur Nantolet.

Mir.
I know ’em well, sir.

What are these? Jewels?

Y. Man.
All.

Mir.
They make a rich show.

Y. Man.
There is a matter of ten thousand pounds, too.

Was owing here. You see those merchants with her;

They have brought it in now.

Mir.
How handsomely her shape shows!

Y. Man.
Those are still neat; your Italians are most curious.

Now she looks this way.

Mir.
She has a goodly presence;

How tall of courtesy!—Well, sir, I’ll leave ye;
And, if I may be bold to bring a friend or two,
Good noble gentlemen—

Y. Man.
No doubt, ye may, sir;

For you have most command.

Mir.
I have seen a wonder! Erit.

Ori.
Is he gone?

Y. Man.
Yes.

Ori.
How?

Y. Man.
Taken to the utmost:

A wonder dwells about him.

Ori.
He did not guess at me?

Y. Man.
No, be secure; ye show another woman.

He is gone to fetch his friends.

Ori.
Where are the gentlewomen?

Y. Man.
Here, here: now they are come,

Sit still, and let them see ye.

Enter [below] ROSALURA, LILLIA BIANCA, and Servant.

Ros.
Pray you, where’s my friend, sir?

Y. Man.
She is within, ladies; but here’s another gentlewoman.

A stranger to this town: so please you visit her,
’Twill be well taken.

Lit.
Where is she?

Y. Man.
There, above, ladies.

Serv.
Bless me, what thing is this? Two pinacles.

Upon her pate! Is’t not a glode to catch woodcocks?

Ros.
Peace, you rude knave!

Serv.
What a bouncing bum she has too!

There’s a sail enough for a carkack.

Ros.
What is this lady?

For, as I live, she is a goodly woman.

Y. Man.
Guess, guess.

Lit.
I have not seen a nobler presence.

Serv.
’Tis a lusty wench: now could I spend my forty-pence,

With all my heart, to have but one flying at her,

to give her but a [s]washing blow.

Lit.
Ye races!
Serv.
Ay, that’s all a man has for ‘s good will.

’Twill be long enough.

Before ye cry, “Come, Anthony, and kiss me.”

Lit.
I’ll have ye whipt.

Ros.
Has my friend seen this lady?

Y. Man.
Yes, yes, and is well known to her.

Ros.
I much admire her presence.

Lit.
So do I too;

For, I protest, she is the handsomest,

The rarest, and the newest to mine eye,

That ever I saw yet.

Ros.
I long to know her;

My friend shall do that kindness.

Ori.
So she shall, ladies:

Come, pray ye, come up.

Ros.
Oh me!

Lit.
Hang me, if I knew her!—

Were I a man myself, I should now love ye;

Nay, I should dote.

Ros.
I dare not trust mine eyes;:

For, as I live, ye are the strangest alter’d!

I must come up to know the truth.

Serv.
So must I, lady:

For I’m a kind of unbeliever too.

Lit.
Get ye gone, sirrah;

Glede. The space between the pinacles is compared to the opening in a wood, where nets were spread to snare woodcocks.

A large ship of burden.
And what ye have seen be secret in; you are paid else!

No more of your long tongue.

Y. Man. Will ye go in, ladies, and talk with her? These venturers will come straight.

Away with this fellow.

Lil. There, sirrah; go, disport you.

Serv. I would the trunk-hoe'd woman would go with me.

Exeunt, [on one side, Rosalura, Lillia Bianca, and the Young Man disguised as a Factor; on the other, Servant.]

Scene V.1

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, and Belleur.

Pin. Is she so glorious handsome?

Mir. You would wonder; our women look like gipsies, like gills2 to her; their clothes and fashions beggarly and bankrupt, base, old, and scurvy.

Bel. How looks her face?

Mir. Most heavenly;

And the becoming motion of her body
So sets her off!

Bel. Why then, we shall stay.

Mir. Pardon me, that’s more than I know. If she be that woman she appears to be——

Bel. As’t is impossible.

Mir. I shall then tell ye more.

Pin. Did ye speak to her?

Mir. No, no, I only saw her; she was busy.

Now I go for that end; and mark her, gentlemen, if she appear not to ye one of the sweetest, the handsomest, the fairest in behaviour!

We shall meet the two wenches there too; they come to visit her,

To wonder, as we do.

Pin. Then we shall meet ‘em.

Bel. I had rather meet two bears.

Mir. There you may take your leaves, despight that business.

And, as ye find their humours——

Pin. Is your love there too?

Mir. No, certain; she has no great heart to set out again.

This is the house; I’ll usher ye.

Bel. I’ll bless me, and take a good-heart, if I can.

Mir. Come, nobly. [Exeunt [into the house].

Scene VI.2

Enter [the Young Man disguised as a Factor, Rosalura, Lillia Bianca, and Oriana [disguised as before].

Y. Man. They are come in. Sit you two off, as strangers.— There, lady.—Where’s the boy?

1 The street, before the same house.
2 A room in the same house.

[Enter Boy.]

Be ready, sirrah,

And clear your pipes.—The music now; they enter.

[Music.

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, and Belleur.

Pin. What a state she keeps! How far off they sit from her!

How rich she is! Ay, marry, this shows bravely!

Bel. She is a lusty wench, and may allure a good man;

But, if she have a tongue, I’ll not give two pence for her.

There sits my fury; how I shake to see her!

Y. Man. Madam, this is the gentleman.

Mir. How sweet she kisses!

[MirABEL salutes OrIAna.]

She has a spring dwells on her lips, a paradise!

This is the legacy?

Song [by the Boy, while he presents a casket to Mirabel.]

From the honour’d dead I bring
This his love and last off’ring.
Take it nobly, it is your due,
From a friendship ever true;
From a faith, &c.

Ori. Most noble sir,

This from my now-dead brother, as his love;

And grateful memory of your great benefit;

From me your thanks, my wishes, and my service.

Till I am more acquainted, I am silent;

Only I dare say this,— you are truly noble.

Mir. What should I think?

Pin. Think you have a handsome fortune:
Would I had such another!

Ros. Ye are all well met, gentlemen;
We hear ye are for travel.

Pin. You hear true, lady;—
And come to take our leaves.

Lil. We’ll along with ye;

We see you are grown so witty by your journey,
We cannot choose but step out too. This lady we mean to wait upon as far as Italy.

Bel. I’ll travel into Wales, amongst the mountains,

In hope they cannot find me.

Ros. If you go further,
So good and free society we hold ye,
We’ll jog along too.

Pin. Are you so valiant, lady?

Lil. And we’ll be merry, sir, and laugh.

Pin. It may be

We’ll go by sea.

Lil. Why, ’tis the only voyage!—

I love a sea-voyage, and a blust’ring tempest;
And let all split!

Pin. This is a dainty damosel!—
I think ’t will tame ye. Can yo ride post?

Lil. Oh, excellently! I am never weary that way:

A hundred mile a day is nothing with me. 3
Enter La Castre, Nantolet, Lugier, and Dr Gaard.

La Cast., Nant., &c. And we’ll make up the rest, lady.

Ori. Then Oriana takes ye! Nay, she has caught ye;

If ye start now, let all the world cry shame on ye! I have out-travelled ye.

Bel. Did not I say she would cheat thee? a

Mir. I thank ye: I am pleas’d ye have deceiv’d me,

And willingly I swallow it, and joy in’t;

And yet, perhaps, I knew ye. Whose plot was this?

Luc. He is not ashamed that cast it; he that executed, Follow’d your father’s will.

Mir. What a world’s this! a

Nothing but craft and cozenage!

Ori. Who begun, sir? a

Mir. Well; I do take thee upon more compassion:

And I do think I shall love thee. As a testimony, I’ll burn my book, and turn a new leaf over.

But these fine clothes you shall wear still.

Ori. I obey you, sir, in all. a

Nant. And how, how, daughters? What say you to these gentlemen? —

What say ye, gentlemen, to the girls?

Pin. By my troth — if she can love me —

Lil. How long?

Pin. Nay, if once ye love —

Lil. Then take me, and take your chance.

Pin. Most willingly: ye are mine, lady;

And, if I use ye not that ye may love me —

Lil. A match, I’faith.

Pin. Why, now ye travel with me.

Ros. How that thing stands!

Bel. It will, if ye urge it:

Bless your five wits!

Ros. Nay, prithee, stay; I’ll have thee,

Bel. You must ask me leave first.

Ros. Wilt thou use me kindly, Bel?

Bel. If you deserve no more. a

Ros. And wilt thou get me with child?

Bel. Dost thou ask me seriously?

Ros. Yes, indeed, do I.

Bel. Yes, I will get thee with child. Come, presently,

An’t be but in revenge, I’ll do thee that courtesy.

Well, if thou wilt fear God and me, have at thee!

Ros. I’ll love ye, and I’ll honour ye.

Bel. I am pleas’d, then.

Mir. This Wild-Goose Chase is done; we have won o’ both sides.

Brother, your love: and now to church of all hands;

Let’s lose no time.

Pin. Our travelling lay by.

Bel. No more for Italy; for the Low Countries, [1]

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

Ferdinando [Duke of Calabria].
Cardinal [his brother].
Antonio [Bolognese, Steward of the Household to the Duke].
Delio [his friend].
Don Carlos de Bosola [Gentleman of the Horse to the Duke].
Castrocco, an old Lord. Marques of Fiescara.
[Count] Malatesta.

Ladies, Three Young Children, Two Pilgrims, Executioners, Court Officers, and Attendants.

[Scene.—Amalfi, Rome, Loreto, Milan. Time.—Early Sixteenth Century.]

ACT I

SCENE I

[Enter] Antonio and Delio.

Delio. You are welcome to your country, dear Antonio;
You have been long in France, and you return
A very formal Frenchman in your habit.
How do you like the French court?
Ant. I admire it.
In seeking to reduce both state and people
To a fixed order, their judicious king
Begins at home; quits first his royal palace
Of flatter'ring sycophants, of dissolute
And infamous persons, — which he sweetly

His master's master-piece, the work of heaven;
Considering duly that a prince's court
Is like a common fountain, whosese should flow
Pure silver drops in general, but if 't chance
Some curb'd example poison 't near the head,
Death and diseases through the whole land
spread.

And what 't makes this blessed government
But a most provident council, who dare freely
Inform him the corruption of the times?
Though some o' th' court hold it presumption
To instruct princes what they ought to do,
It is a noble duty to inform them
What they ought to forsee. — Here comes Bosola,
The only court-gall; yet I observe his railing
Is not for simple love of piety:
Indeed, he rails at those things which he

WOUld be as lecherous, covetous, or proud,
Bloody, or envious, as any man,
If he had means to be so. — Here's the cardinal.

[Enter Cardinal and Bosola.]

Card. So. I do haunt you still.

Bos. I have done you better service than to be slighted thus. Miserable age, where only the reward of doing well is the doing of it!

Card. You enforce your merit too much.

Bos. I fell into the galleys in your service; where, for two years together, I wore two towels instead of a shirt, with a knot on the shoulder, after the fashion of a Roman matron. Slighted thus! I will thrive some way. Blackbirds fatten best in hard weather; why not [as]

In these dog-days?

Card. Would you could become honest!

Bos. With all your divinity do but direct me the way to it. I have known many travel far for it, and yet return as arrant knaves as [as] they went forth, because they carried themselves always along with them. [Exeunt CARDINAL.] Are you gone? Some fellows, they say, are possessed with the devil, but this great fellow were able to possess the greatest devil, and make him [as]

worse.

Ant. He hath denied thee some suit?

Bos. He and his brother are like plum-trees That grow crooked over standing-ponds; they are rich and o'erladen with fruit, but none but crows, pies, and caterpillars feed on them. [as]

Could I be one of their flatter'ring panders, I would hang on their ears like a horseleech, till
I were full, and then drop off. I pray, leave me.
Who would rely upon these miserable dependancies, in expectation to be advanc'd to [as] morrow? What creature ever fed worse than hoping Tantalus? Nor ever died any man more fearfully than he that hop'd for a pardon. There are rewards for hawks and dogs when [as they have done us service; but for a soldier that hazards his limbs in a battle, nothing but a kind of geometry is his last supportation.

Delia. Geometry?

Bos. Ay, to hang in a fair pair of slings, take his latter swing in the world upon an hon- [n ourable pair of crutches, from hospital to hospital. Fare ye well, sir: and yet do not you scorn us; for places in the court are but like beds in the hospital, where this man's head lies at that man's foot, and so lower and lower. [Exit.]

Del. I knew this fellow seven years in the galleys For a notorious murder; and 'tis was thought The cardinal's bear'd it: he was releas'd By the French general, Gaston de Foix, When he recover'd Naples.

Ant. 'Tis great pity He should be thus neglected: I have heard He's very valiant. This foul melancholy Will poison all his goodness; for, I'll tell you, If too immediate sleep be truly said To be an inward rest unto the soul, It then doth follow want of action Breeds all black malcontents; and their close rearing,

Like moths in cloth, do hurt for want of wear-

SCENE II. 1

ANTONIO, DELIO. [Enter] SILVIO, CASTRUCO, JULIA, RODERIGO, and GISOLON.

Delio. The presence 'gins to fill: you prom-is'd me To make me the partaker of the natures Of some of your great courtiers.

Ant. The lord cardinal's: And other strangers' that are now in court? I shall. — Here comes the great Calabrian duke.

[Enter FERDINAND and ATTENDANTS.]

Ferd. Who took the ring off'test? 2
Sil. Antonio Bologna, my lord.

Ferd. Our sister duchess' great master of her household? Give him the jewel. — When shall we leave this sportive fall, and action to action indeed? 11

Cast. Methinks, my lord, you should not desire to go to war in person.
Ferd. Now for some gravity. — Why, my lord? 9

Cast. It is fitting a soldier arise to be a prince, but not necessary a prince descede to be a captain.

Ferd. No?
Cast. No, my lord; he were far better do it by a deputy. 81

Ferd. Why should he not as well sleep or eat by a deputy? This might take idle, offensive, and base office from him, whereas the other deprives him of honour.

Cast. Believe my experience, that realm is never long in quiet where the ruler is a soldier.

Ferd. Thou told'st me thy wife could not endure fighting.

Cast. True, my lord.

Ferd. And of a jest: she broke of? a captain she met full of wounds: I have forgot it.

Cast. She told him, my lord, he was a pitiful fellow, to lie, like the children of Iamael, in tents. 4

Ferd. Why, there's a wit were able to undo all the chirurgeons 6 o' the city; for although gallants should quarrel, and had drawn their weapons, and were ready to go to it, yet her persuasions would make them put up.

Cast. That she would, my lord. — How do you like my Spanish gennet? 9

Rod. He is all fire.

Ferd. I am of Pliny's opinion, I think he was begot by the wind; he runs as if he were bal-as'd? with quicksilver.

Sil. True, my lord, he reeks from the tilt oft.

Rod. Gris. Ha, ha, ha!

Ferd. Why do you laugh? Methinks you that are courtiers should be my touch-wood, [as take fire when I give fire; that is, laugh when I laugh, were the subject never so witty.

Cast. True, my lord: I myself have heard a very good jest, and have scorn'd to seem to have so silly a wit as to understand it.

Ferd. But I can laugh at your fool, my lord. Cast. He cannot speak, you know, but he makes faces; my lady cannot abide him.

Ferd. No?
Cast. Nor endure to be in merry company; for she says too full laughing, and too much company, fills her too much of the wrinkle.

Ferd. I would, then, have a mathematical instrument made for her face, that she might not laugh out of compass. — I shall shortly visit [you at Milan, Lord Silvio.

Sil. Your grace shall see us most welcome.

Ferd. You are a good horseman, Antonio: you have excellent riders in France; what do you think of good horsemanship? 1

Ant. Nobly, my lord: as out of the Grecian horse issued many famous princes, so out of brave horsemanship arise the first sparks of growing resolution, that raise the mind to noble action.

Ferd. You have bespoke it worthily.

Sil. Your brother, the lord cardinal, and sister duchess.

[Enter CARDINAL, with DUCHESS, and CAI-

GOLA.]

Card. Are the galleys come about?

Gris. They are, my lord.

Ferd. Here's the Lord Silvio is come to take his leave.

1 At the expense of.
2 Rolls of list used to dress wounds.
3 Surgeons. 4 A small horse. 5 Ballasted.
Delio. Now, sir, your promise: what’s that cardinal?
I mean his temper. They say he’s a brave fellow.
Will play his five thousand crowns at tennis, dance,
Court ladies, and one that hath fought single combats.

Ant. Some such flashes superficially hang on him for form; but observe his inward character: he is a melancholy churchman. The spring in his face is nothing but the engend’ring of toads; where he is jealous of any man, he lays worse plots for them than ever was im- [210] posed on Hercules, for he steers in his way flatterers, panders, intelligencers, atheists, and a thousand such political monsters. He should have been Pope; but instead of coming to it by the primitive descent of the churchman, he did bestow bribes so largely and so impudently as if he would have carried it away without heaven’s knowledge. Some good he hath done—

Delio. You have given too much of him.

What’s his brother?

Ant. The duke there? A most perverse and turbulent nature.

What appears in him mirth is merely outside; If he laughed heartily, it is to laugh
All honesty out of fashion.

Delio. Twins?

Ant. In quality. He speaks with others’ tongues, and hears men’s suits

With others’ ears; will seem to sleep o’ th’ bench

Only to entrap offenders in their answers;

Dooms men to death by information;

Rewards by hearsay.

Delio. Then the law to him

I like a soul, black cobweb to a spider,—

He makes it his dwelling and a prison

To entangle those shall feed him.

Ant. Most true:

He never pays debts unless they be shrewd turns,

And those he will confess that he doth owe.

Last, for his brother there, the cardinal,

They that do flatter him most say oracles

Hang at his lips; and verily I believe them,

For the devil speaks in them.

But for their sister, the right noble duchess,

You never fix’d your eye on three fair medallars

Cast in one figure, of so different temper.

For her discourse, it is so full of rapture,

You only will begin then to be sorry

When she doth end her speech, and wish, in wonder,

She held it less vain-glory to talk much,

Than your penance to hear her. Whilst she speaks,

She throws upon a man so sweet a look

That it were able to raise one to a galliard

That lay in a dead palys, and to dote

On that sweet countenance; but in that look

There speakesth so divine a continent

As cuts off all lascivious and vain hope.
Her days are practis’d in such noble virtue,
That sure her nights, say, more, her very sleeps,
Are more in heaven than other ladies’ shifts.
Let all sweet ladies break their flatt’ring glasses,

And dress themselves in her.

Delio. Fie, Antonio.

You play the wire-drawer with her commendations.

Ant. I’ll case the picture up: only thus much;

All her particular worth grows to this sum,—

She stains[3] the time past, lights the time to come.

Cari. You must attend my lady in the gallery.

Some half an hour hence.

Ant. I shall. [Exeunt Antonio and Delio.]

Ferd. Sister, I have a suit to you.

Duch. To me, sir?

Ferd. A gentlemen here, Daniel de Bosola,

One that was in the galleys—

Duch. Yes, I know him. [4]

Ferd. A worthy fellow he’s: pray, let me entertain for

The provisorship of your horse.

Duch. Your knowledge of him

Commends him and prefers him.

Ferd. Call him hither. [Exit Attendants.]

We are now upon parting. Good Lord Silvio,

Do us commend to all our noble friends

At the leaguer.

Sil. Sir, I shall.

[Exit.]

Duch. You are for Milan?

Sil. I am.

Duch. Bring the caroche. — We’ll bring you down

To the haven.

[Exeunt Duchesse, Silvio, Cas-

truccio, Roderigo, Ghislan,

Cariola, Julia, and Attendants.]

Card. Be sure you entertain that Bosola. He is your intelligence. I would not be seen in’t; And therefore many times I have slighted him When he did court our furtherance, as this morning, Ferd. Antonio, the great master of her household,

Had been far fitter.

Card. You are deceiv’d in him. His nature is too honest for such business. —

He comes: I’ll leave you. [Exit.]

[Re-enter Bosola.]

Bos. I was lur’d to you.

Ferd. My brother, here, the cardinal could never Abide you.

Bos. Never since he was in my debt.

Ferd. May be some oblique character in your face

Made him suspect you.

1 A lively dance.
I. iii.

THE DUCHESS OF MALFI

Bos. Doth he study physiognomy?  188
There's no more credit to be given to th' face
Than to a sick man's urine, which some call
The Physician's whore, because she cozens  189
him.
He did suspect me wrongfully.
Ferd. For that You must give great men leave to take their times.

Distrust doth cause us seldom to deceive'd.
You see the oft shaking of the cedar-tree
Fastens it more at root.
Bos. Yet take heed;
For to suspect a friend unworthily
Instructs him the next way to suspect you.  195
And prompts him to deceive you.
Ferd. There's gold.
Bos. So:
What follows? — [Aside.] Never rain'd such showers as these Without thunderbolts i' th' tail of them. —
Whose throat must I cut?
Ferd. Your inclination to shed blood rides post
Before my occasion to use you. I give you that
To live i' th' court here, and observe the duchess;  199
To note all the particulars of her behaviour,
What suitors do solicit her for marriage,
And whom she best affects.  She's a young widow:
I would not have her marry again.
Bos. No, sir?  205
Ferd. Do not you ask the reason; but be satisfied.
I say I would not.
Bos. It seems you would create me
One of your familiars.
Ferd. Familiar! What's that?
Bos. Why, a very quaint invisible devil in flesh, —
An inteligencer.  212
Ferd. Such a kind of thriving thing
I would wish thee; and ere long thou mayst arise
At a higher place by 't.
Bos. Take your devils,
Which hell calls angels! These cur'sd gifts would make
You a corrup'ter, me an impudent traitor;
And should I take these, they'd take me [to] hell.
Ferd. Sir, I'll take nothing from you that I have given.
There is a place that I proc'rd for you
This morning, the proviship o' th' horse;
Have you heard on 't?
Bos. No.
Ferd. 'Tis yours: 'is not worth thanks?
Bos. I would have you curse yourself now, that your bounty  220
(Which makes men truly noble) o'er should
A villain, O, that to avoid ingratitude
For the good deed you have done me, I must do

1 Cheats.  2 Likes.  3 Spy.

All the ill man can invent! Thus the devil
Candies all sins o'er: and what heaven TERMS
vile,
That names he complimentary.
Ferd. Be yourself;
Keep your old garb of melancholy; 't will express
You envy those that stand above your reach,
Yet strive not to come near 'em. This will gain
Access to private lodgings, where yourself
May, like a politic dormouse —
Bos. As I have seen some Feed in a lord's dish, half asleep, not seeming
To listen to any talk; and yet these rogues
Have out his throat in a dream. What's my place?
The proviship o' th' horse? Say, then, my corruption Grew out of horse-dung: I am your creature.
Ferd. Away! [Exit.]
Bos. Let good men, for good deeds, covet good fame,
Since place and riches oft are bribes of shame.
Sometimes the devil doth preach.

[SCENE III.]

[Enter FERDINAND, DUCHESS, CARDINAL, and CARIOLA.]

Card. We are to part from you; and your own discretion
Must now be your director.
Ferd. You are a widow:
You know already what man is; and therefore Let not youth, high promotion, eloquence —
Card. No,
Nor anything without the addition, honour,
Sway your high blood.
Ferd. Marry! They are most luxurious  235
Will wed twice.
Card. O, fie!
Ferd. Their livers are more spotted
Than Laban's sheep.  239
Duch. Diamonds are of most value,
They say, that have past through most jewelers' hands.
Ferd. Whores by that rule are precious.
Duch. Will you hear me?
I'll never marry.
Card. So most widows say;
But commonly that motion  lasts no longer
Than the turning of an hour-glass: the funeral sermon
And it end both together.
Ferd. Now hear me:  245
You live in a rank pasture, here, i' th' court;
There is a kind of honey-dew that's deadly;
'T will poison your fame; look to 't. Be not enning;
For they whose faces do belie their hearts
Are witches ere they arrive at twenty years,  250
Ay, and give the devil succ.
Ferd. Hypocrisy is woven of a fine small thread.
Subter than Vulcan's engine: 1 yet, believe't,
Your darkest actions, nay, your privat thoughts,
Will come to light.
Card. You may flatter yourself,
And take your own choice; privately be married
Under the shade of night—
Ferd. Think't the best voyage
That e'er you made; like the irregular crab,
Which, though 't goes backward, thinks that it goes right.
Because it goes its own way: but observe,
Such weddings may more properly be said
To be executed than celebrated.
Card. The marriage night
Is the entrance into some prison.
Ferd. And those joys,
Those lustful pleasures, are like heavy sleeps
Which do fore-run man's mischief.
Card. Fare you well.
Wisdom begins at the end: remember it.
[Exeunt.]
Duch. I think this speech between you both was studied,
It came so roundly off.
Ferd. You are my sister;
This was my father's poniard, do you see?
I'd be loth to see 't look rusty, 'cause 't was his.
I would have you give o'er these chargeable revels:
A visor and a mask are whispering-rooms
That were nev'r built for goodness,—fare ye well—
And women like that part which, like the lamprey,
Has nev'r a bone in 't.
Duch. Fis, sir!
Ferd. Nay,
I mean the tongue; variety of courtship.
What cannot a neat knave with a smooth tale
Make a woman believe? Farewell, lusty widow.
[Exeunt.]
Duch. Shall this move me? If all my royal kindred
Lay in my way unto this marriage, I'd make them my low footsteps. And even
now,
Even in this hate, as men in some great battles,
By apprehending danger, have achiev'd Almost impossible actions (I have heard soldiers say so),
So I through frights and threat'nings will assay
This dangerous venture. Let old wives report
I wink'd and chose a husband. —Cariola,
To thy known secrecy I have given up
More than my life,—my fame.
Cari. Both shall be safe; 3
For 'I'll conceal this secret from the world
As warily as those that trade in poison
Keep poison from their children.
Duch. Thy protestation

Is ingenious and hearty; I believe it.
Is Antonio come?
Cari. He attends you.
Duch. Good dear soul, 2
Leave me; but place thyself behind the arras,
Where thou mayest overhear us. Wish me good speed;
For I am going into a wilderness,
Where I shall find nor path nor friendly clue
To be my guide.
[CARIO LA goes behind the arras.]
[Enter ANTONIO.]
I sent for you: sit down;
Take pen and ink, and write: are you ready?
Ant. Yes.
Duch. What did I say?
Ant. That I should write somewhat.
Duch. O, I remember.
After these triumphs and this large expense
It's fit, like thirsty husbands, 4 we inquire
What's laid up for to-morrow.
Ant. So please your beauteous excellence.
Duch. Beauteous! Indeed, I thank you. I look young for your sake;
You have ta'en my cares upon you.
Ant. I'll fetch your grace
The particulars of your revenue and expense.
Duch. O, you are
An upright treasurer, but you mistook;
For when I said I meant to make inquiry
What's laid up for to-morrow, I did mean
What's laid up yonder for me.
Ant. Where?
Duch. In heaven.
I am making my will (as 't is fit princes should,
In perfect memory), and, I pray, sir, tell me,
Were not one better make it smiling, thus,
Than in deep groans and terrible ghostly looks,
As if the gifts we parted with procured 5
That violent distraction?
Ant. O, much better.
Duch. If I had a husband now, this care were quit:
But I intend to make you oversee.
What good deed shall we first remember? Say.
Ant. Begin with that first good deed began in thy world
After man's creation, the sacrament of marriage.
I'd have you first provide for a good husband;
Give him all.
Duch. All!
Ant. Yes, your excellent self.
Duch. In a winding-sheet?
Ant. In a couple.
Duch. Saint Winifred, that were a strange
will!
Ant. 'T were strange 6 if there were no will in you
To marry again.
Duch. What do you think of marriage?
Ant. I take 't, as those that deny purgatory,

1 & 2 Housekeeper.  3 Q. read strange.
4 5 Produced.
It locally contains or heaven or hell;
There's no third place in 't.

Duch. How do you affect it? 188

Ant. My banishment, feeding my melancholy,
Would often reason thus: —

Duch. Pray, let 's hear it.

Ant. Say a man never marry, nor have children,
What takes that from him? Only the bare name

Of being a father, or the weak delight
To see the little wanton ride a cook-horse
Upon a painted stick, or hear him chatter
Like a taught starling.

Duch. Flie, flie, what's all this? One of your eyes is blood-shot; use my ring
t.

They say 't is very sovereign. 'T was my wedding-ring.

And I did vow never to part with it
But to my second husband.

Ant. You have parted with it now.

Duch. Yes, to help your eye-sight.

Ant. You have made me stark blind.

Duch. How? 188

Ant. There is a saucy and ambitious devil
In dancing in this circle.

Duch. Remove him. 188

Ant. Duch. How?

Duch. This needs small conjuration, when your finger
May do it: thus. Is it fit?

[She puts the ring upon his finger]:
he kneels.

Ant. What said you? Sir,

This goodly roof of yours is too low built;
I cannot stand upright in 't nor discourse,
Without I raise it higher. Raise yourself;
Or, if you please, my hand to help you: so.

[ Raises him.]

Ant. Ambition, madam, is a great man's madness,
That is not kept in chains and close-pent rooms,
But in fair lightsome lodgings, and is gilt
With the wild noise of prattling visitants,
Which makes it lunatic beyond all cure.
Conscience not I am so stupid but I aim
Where to your favours tend: but he's a fool
That, being a-sold, would thrust his hands i' th' fire
To warm them.

Duch. So, now the ground's broke,
You may discover what a wealthy mine
I make you lord of.

Ant. O my unworthiness!

Duch. You were ill to sell yourself: —
This dark'nig of your worth is not like that
Which tradesmen use i' th' city; their false
Lights are to rid bad wares off: and I must tell you,
If you will know where breathes a complete man
(I speak it without flattery), turn your eyes.

And progress through yourself.

1 Genoa.

Ant. Were there nor heaven nor hell,
I should be honest: I have long serv'd virtue,
And ne'er ta'en wages of her.

Duch. Now she pays it.

The misery of us that are born great!
We are for'd to woo, because none dare woo us;
And as a tyrant doubles with his words
And fearfully equivocates, so we
Are for'd to express our violent passions
In riddles and in dreams, and leave the path
Of simple virtue, which was never made
To seem the thing it is not. Go, go brag
You have left me heartless; mine is in your bosom:
I hope 't will multiply love there. You do tremble:
Make not your heart so dead a piece of flesh,
To fear more than to love me. Sir, be confident:
What is 't that distresses you? This is flesh and blood, sir;
'T is not the figure cut in alabaster
Kneels at my husband's tomb. Awake, awake,
man!
I do here put off all vain ceremony,
And only do appear to you a young widow
That claims you for her husband, and, like a widow,
I use but half a blush in 't.

Ant. Truth speake for me;
I will remain the constant sanctuary
Of your good name.

Duch. I thank you, gentle love:
And 'cause you shall not come to me in debt,
Being now my steward, here upon your lips
I sign your Quietus est. This you should have be beg'n now.
I have seen children oft eat sweetsmats thus,
As fearful to devour them too soon.

Ant. But for your brothers?

Duch. Do not think of them:
All discord without this circumference
Is only to be pitied, and not fear'd:
Yet, should they know it, time will easily
Seatter the tempest.

Ant. These words should be mine,
And all the parts you have spoke, if some part of
it
Would not have savour'd flattery.

[Cariola comes from behind the arbor.]

Ant. Ha!

Duch. Be not amaz'd: this woman's of my counsel.
I have heard lawyers say, a contract in a chamber
Per verba [de] presenti is absolute marriage.

[She and Antonio kneel.]

Bless, heaven, this sacred gordin, which let violence
Never untwine.

* The phrase used to indicate that accounts had been examined and found correct.

* Using words of present time:  t. e. "I take," not "I will take."

* Kneel.
ACT II.

Scene I.

[Enter] Bosola and Castruccio.

Bos. You say you would fain be taken for an eminent courtier?

Castr. 'Tis the very main of my ambition.

Bos. Let me see: you have a reasonable good face for 't; already, and your night-cap expresses your ears sufficient large. I would have you learn to twirl the strings of your band with a good grace, and in a set speech, at th' end of every sentence, to hum three or four times, or blow your nose till it smart again, to recover your memory. When you come to be a presi- dent in criminal causes, if you smile upon a prisoner, hang him; but if you frown upon him and threaten him, let him be sure to scape the gallowes.

Bos. I would be a very merry president. Is Bos. Do not sup o' nights; 't will beget you an admirable wit.

Castr. Rather it would make me have a good stomach to quarrel; for they say, your roaring boys eat meat seldom, and that makes them so valiant. But how shall I know whether the people take me for an eminent fellow?

Bos. I will teach a trick to know it: give out you lie a-dying, and if you hear the common people curse you, be sure you are taken for one of the prime night-caps.

Bos. [Enter an Old Lady.]
You come from painting now.

Old Lady. From what?

Bos. Why, from your scurry face-physic. To behold thee not painted inclines somewhat near a miracle. These in thy face here were deep ruts and foul sloughs the last progress. There was a lady in France that, having had the small-pox, flayed the skin off her face to make it more level; and whereas before she looked like a nutmeg-grater, after she resembled an abortive hedge-hog. Old Lady. Do you call this painting?

Bos. No, no, but you call [it] careening? of an old morpew'd lady, to make her disembogone again: there's rough-cast phrase to your plaste.

Old Lady. It seems you are well acquainted with my closet.

Bos. One would suspect it for a shop of witchcraft, to find in it the fat of serpents, spawn of snakes, Jews' spittle, and their young children's ordure; and all the rest of the face. I would sooner set a dead pigeon taken from the soles of the feet of one sick of the plague, than kiss one of you fasting. Here are two of you, whose sin of your youth is the very patrimony of the physician; makes him renew his foot-cloth with the spring, and change his high-priced court bondsman with the fall of the leaf. I do wonder you do not loose yourselves. Observe my meditation now.

What thing is in this outward form of man to be belov'd? We account it ominous, if nature do produce a colt, or lamb, a fawn, or goat, in any limb resembling a man, and fly from 't as a prodigy.

Man stands amaz'd to see his deformity in any other creature but himself. But in our own flesh we bear diseases which have their true names only ta'en from their soreness.

As the most ulcerous wolf and swinish meal.

Though we are eaten up of lie and worms, and though continually we bear about us a rotten and dead body, we delight to hide it in rich tissue: all our fear, Nay, all our terror, is, lest our physician should put us in the ground to be made sweet. - Your wife's gone to Rome: you two couple, and get you to the walls at Lucca to recover your aches. I have other work on foot.

[Exeunt Castruccio and Old Lady.]

I observe our duchess in sick a-days, she pukes, her stomach seethes, bullies (Haslett); lawyers (Vaughan).

Royal journey.

Turning a boat on its side for repairs.

Empty.

Face-modelling. (Sampron.) "There's a plain statement of your practices."

Lupus.

A disease of swine.
The furs of her eye-lids look most teasing blue,
She wanes i' th' cheek, and waxes fat i' th' flank,
And, contrary to our Italian fashion,
Wears a loose-bodied gown: there's somewhat in 't.
I have a trick may chance discover it,
A pretty one; I have bought some apricocks,
The first our spring yields.

[Enter Antonio and Delio, talking together apart.]

Delio. And so long since married? You amaze me.
Ant. Let me seal your lips for ever:
For, did I think that anything but th' air
Could carry these words from you, I should wish.
You had no breath at all—Now, sir, in your contemplation?
You are studying to become a great wise fellow.

Bos. O, sir, the opinion of wisdom is a foul etter that runs over a man's body:
If simplicity direct us to have no evil, it directs us to a happy being;
For the subtlest folly proceeds from the subtlest wisdom. Let me be simply honest.

Ant. I do understand your inside.

Bos. Do you so?
Ant. Because you would not seem to appear
To th' world
Puff'd up with your preferment, you continue
This out-of-fashion melancholy: leave it, leave it.

Bos. Give me leave to be honest in any phrase, in any compliment whatsoever. Shall I confess myself to you? I look no higher than I can reach: they are the gods that must ride on winged horses. A lawyer's mule of a slow pace will both suit my disposition and business; for, mark me, when a man's mind rides faster than his horse can gallop, they quickly both tire.

Ant. You would look up to heaven, but I think
The devil, that rules i' th' air, stands in your light.

Bos. O, sir, you are lord of the descendant, chief man with the duchess: a duke was your cousin-german remov'd. Say you were lineally descended from King Pepin, or he himself, what of this? Search the heads of the greatest rivers in the world, you shall find them but bubbles of water. Some would think the souls of princes were brought forth by some more weighty cause than those of meaner persons: they are deceiv'd, there's the same hand to them; the like passions sway them; the same reason that makes a viceroy go to law for a tithe-pig, and undo his neighbours, makes them spoil a whole province, and batter down goodly cities with the cannon.

1 Blue like those of a woman with child.
2 Scarc.
3 Person of highest influence.
A whirlwind strike off these bawd farthingales! For, but for that and the loose-bodied gown, I should have discover'd apparently 1
The young sprigal cutting a caper in her belly.

Duch. I thank you, Bosola: they were right good ones.

If they do not make me sick.

Ant. How now, madam! 178

Duch. This green fruit and my stomach are not friends:

How they swell me!

Bos. [Aside.] Nay, you are too much swell'd already.

Duch. O, I am in an extreme cold sweat!

Bos. I am very sorry. [Exit.]

Duch. Lights to my chamber! — O good Antonio,

I fear I am undone!

Delio. Lights there, lights!

[Exeunt Duchess and Ladies.]

Ant. O my most trusty Delio, we are lost!
I fear she's fall'n in labour; and there's left
No time for her removal.

Delio. Have you prepar'd
Those ladies to attend her; and procur'd 130
That politic safe conveyance for the midwife
Your duchess plotted?

Ant. I have.

Delio. Make use, then, of this forc'd occasion.

Give out that Bosola hath poison'd her
With these apricocks; that will give some colour
For her keeping close.

Ant. Fie, fie, the physicians
Will then flock to her.

Delio. For that you may pretend
She'll use some prepar'd antidote of her own,
Lest the physicians should re-poison her. 130

Ant. I am lost in amazement: I know not what to think on 't.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II. 8

[Enter] Bosola and Old Lady.

Bos. So, so, there's no question but her tech-

1930

ness 4 and most vulturous eating of the apricocoks are apparent signs of breeding. — Now?

Old Lady. I am in haste, sir.

Bos. There was a young waiting-woman had a monstrous desire to see the glass-house — 3

Old Lady. Nay, pray, let me go.

Bos. And it was only to know what strange instrumert it was should swell up a glass to the fashion of a woman's belly. 17

Old Lady. I will hear no more of the glass-

9 house. You are still 6 abusing women!

Bos. Who? I? No; only, by the way now and then, mention your frailties. The orange-tree

1 bears ripe and green fruit and blossoms all [is together; and some of you give entertainment

I Serv. By this hand, 'twas credibly reported by one o' th' black guard.
[Exeunt all except Antonio and Delio.]

Delio. How fares it with the duchess?
Ant. She's expos'd
Unto the worst of torture, pain and fear.
Delio. Speak to her all happy comfort.
Ant. How do I play the fool with mine own danger!
You are this night, dear friend, to post to Rome:
My life lies in your service.
Delio. Do not doubt me.
Ant. O, 'tis far from me: and yet fear presents me
Somewhat that looks like it.
Delio. Believe it,
'Tis but the shadow of your fear, no more.
How superstitiously we mind our evils!
The throwing down salt, or crossing of a hare,
Bleeding at nose, the stumbling of a horse,
Or singing of a cricket, are of power
To daunt whole man in us. Sir, fare well you;
I wish you all the joys of a bless'd father;
And, for my faith, lay this unto your breast.
Old friends, like old swords, still are trusted best. [Exit.]

[Enter Carmiola.]

Carm. Sir, you are the happy father of a son:
Your wife commands him to you.
Ant. Blessed comfort! —
For heaven's sake, tend her well; I'll presently Go set a figure for 's nativity. [Exit.]

Scene III.
[Enter Bosola, with a dark lantern.]

Bos. Sure I did hear a woman shriek: list, ha!
And the sound came, if I receiv'd it right,
From the duchess' lodgings. There's some stratagem
In the confining all our couriers
To their several wards: I must have part of it;
My intelligence will freeze else. List, again! —
It may be 't was the melancholy bird,
Best friend of silence and of solitude,
The owl, that scream'd so. — Ha! Antonio!

[Enter Antonio with a candle, his sword drawn.]

Ant. I heard some noise. — Who's there?
What art thou? Speak.
Bos. Antonio, pure not your face nor body
To such a false' expression of fear; I am Bosola, your friend.
Ant. [Aside.] This mole does undermine me.
Heard you not
A noise even now?
Bos. From whence?
Ant. From the duchess' lodging.
Bos. Not I; did you?
1 The meaner servants.
2 At once.
6 Cast his horoscope.
5 The court of the same palace.

Ant. I did, or else I dream'd.
Bos. Let's walk towards it.
Ant. No: it may be 't was
But the rising of the wind.
Bos. Very likely.
Moch' thinks 't is very cold, and yet you sweat:
You look wildly.
Ant. I have been setting a figure
For the duchess' jewels.
Bos. Ah, and how falls your question?
Do you find it radical?
Ant. What's that to you?
'Tis rather to be question'd what design,
When all men were commanded to their lodges,
Makes you a night-walker.
Bos. In sooth, I'll tell you: —
Now all the court's asleep, I thought the devil
Had ast to do here; I came to say my prayers;
And —'t do offend you I do so,
You are a fine courtier.
Ant. [Aside.] This fellow will undo me,—
You gave the duchess apricocks to-day:
Pray heaven they were not poison'd!
Bos. Poison'd! a Spanish fig
For the imputation?
Ant. Traitors are ever confident
Till they are discover'd. There were jewels stol'n too:
In my conceit, none are to be suspected
More than yourself.
Bos. You are a false steward.
Ant. Saucy slave, I'll pull the up by the roots.
Bos. May be the ruin will crush you to pieces.
Ant. You are an impudent snake indeed, sir:
Are you scarce warm, and do you show your sting?
You libel well, sir?
Bos. No, sir: copy it out,
And I will set my hand to 't.
Ant. [Aside.] My nose bleeds.
One that were superstitious would count
This ominous, when it merely comes by chance.
Two letters that are wrung here for my name, —
Are drown'd in blood!
Mere accident. — For you, sir, I'll take order
I' th' morrow you shall be safe. — [Aside.] 'Tis that must colour
Her lying-in. — Sir, this door you pass not:
I do not hold it fit that you come near
The duchess' lodgings, till you have quitted yourself.
[Aside.] The great are like the base, nay, they are the same,
When they seek shameful ways to avoid shame.

Exit.

Bos. Antonio hereabout did drop a paper: —
Some of your help, false friend. — O, here it is.
What is here? a child's nativity calculated! —

[Reads.]

"The duchess was deliver'd of a son, 'tween the hours twelve and one in the night, Anno Dom. 1504. — that’s this year — ‘decimo nono December,’ — that’s this night — ‘taken according to the meridian of Mali,’ — that’s our duchess; happy discovery! — ‘The lord of the first house being combust in the ascending signifies short life; and Mars being in a human sign, joined to the tail of the Dragon, in the eighth [as house, death threaten a violent death. Caetera non scutitur.’

Why now’tis most apparent; this precise follow
Is the duchess’ bawd: — I have it to my wish!
This is a parcel of intelligency.
Our courtiers were one’d up for: it needs must follow
That I must be committed on pretence
Of poisoning her; which I’ll endure, and laugh at.
If one could find the father now! but that
Time will discover. Old Castruccio
In the morning posts to Rome: by him I’ll send
A letter that shall make her brothers’ galls
O’erflow their livers. This was a thrifty way!
Though Lust do mask in me so estrange disguise,
She’s oft found witty, but is never wise.

[Exit.]

SCENE IV.

[Enter] Cardinal and Julia.

Card. Sit thou my best of wishes. Pri-thee, tell me
What trick didst thou invent to come to Rome Without thy husband?
Julia. Why, my lord, I told him
I came to visit an old anchorite
Here for devotion.
Card. Thou art a witty false one, — I mean to him.
Julia. You have prevail’d with me
Beyond my strongest thoughts; I would not now Find you insistant.
Card. Do not put thyself
To such a voluntary torture, which proceeds
Out of your own guilt.
Julia. How, my lord!
Card. You fear
My constancy, because you have approv’d
Those giddy and wild turnings in yourself.
Julia. Did you e’er find them?
Card. Sooth, generally for women,
A man might strive to make glass malleable,
Ere he should make them fixed.
Julia. So, my lord. —
Card. We had need go borrow that fantastic glass Invented by Galileo the Florentine
To view another spacious world i’ th’ moon,
And look to find a constant woman there.
Julia. This is very well, my lord.
Card. Why do you weep?

Are tears your justification? The self-same tears
Will fall into your husband’s bosom, lady,
With a loud protestation that you love him Above the world. Come, I’ll love you wisely, That’s jealousy; since I am very certain You cannot make me ecckold.

To my husband.
Card. You may thank me, lady,
I have taken you off your melancholy perch,
Bore you upon my flat, and show’d you game,
And let you fly at it. — I pray thee, kiss me.

When thou wast with thy husband, thou wast watch’d
Like a tame elephant: — still you are to thank me: —
Thou hast only kisses from him and high feeding;
But what delight was that? ’T was just like one
That hath a little fing’ring on the late,
Yet cannot tune it: — still you are to thank me.
Julia. You told me of a piteous wound i’ th’ heart.
And a sick liver, when you woo’d me first,
And spake like one in physick. —
Card. Who’s that? —

[Enter Servant.]

Rest firm for my affection to thee,
Lightning moves slow to t.
Serv. Madam, a gentleman
That’s comes post from Mali, desires to see you.
Card. Let him enter: I’ll withdraw. [Exit. Serv.]
He says Your husband, old Castruccio, is come to Rome,
Most pitifully tir’d with riding post. [Exit.]

[Enter Delio.]

Julia. [Aside.] Signior Delio! ’t is one of my old suitors.
Delio. I was bold to come and see you.
Julia. Sir, you are welcome.
Delio. Do you lie here?
Julia. Sure, your own experience
Will satisfy you: our Roman prelates
Do not keep lodging for ladies.
Delio. Very well: —
I have brought you no commendations from your husband,
For I know none by him.
Julia. I hear he’s come to Rome.
Delio. I never knew man and beast, of a horse and a knight,
So weary of each other. If he had had a good back,
He would have undertook to have borne his horse,
His breech was so pitifully sore.

Julia. [Sick.] Your laughes.
Julia. Is my pity.
Delio. Lady, I know not whether You want money, but I have brought you
some.
Julia. From my husband?
Delio. No, from mine own allowance.
Julia. I must hear the condition, ere I be bound to take it.
Delio. Look on 't, 'tis gold; hath it not a two colour?
Julia. I have a bird more beautiful.
Delio. Try the sound on 't.
Julia. A lute-string far exceeds it.
It hath no smell, like cassia or civet;
Nor is it physical, 1 though some fond doctors
Persuade us seethe 't in culisses. 2 I'll tell you,
This is a creature bred by —

[Re-enter Servant.]

Serv. Your husband's come, Hath deliver'd a letter to the Duke of Casabria
That, to my thinking, hath put him out of his wits. 9 Exi. 9
Julia. Sir, you hear:
Pray, let me know your business and your suit
As briefly as can be.
Delio. With good speed: I would wish you,
At such time as you are non-resident 4
With your husband, my mistress.
Julia. Sir, I'll go ask my husband if I shall,
And straight return your answer. 9 Exit.
Delio. Very fine!
Is this her wit, or honesty, that speaks thus?
I heard one say the duke was highly mov'd 30
With a letter sent from Malfi. I do fear Antonio is betray'd. How fearfully Shows his ambition now! Unfortunate fortune!
They pass through whirl-pools, and deep woes
do shun,
Who the event weary ere the action's done. 30

Scene V. 9

[Enter] Cardinal and Ferdinand with a letter.
Ferd. I have this night digg'd up a man-prendre. 4
Card. Say you?
Ferd. And I am grown mad with 't.
Card. What's the prodigy?
Ferd. Read there,—a sister damn'd: she's loose i' th' hilt; 5
Grown a notorious strumpet.
Card. Speak lower.
Ferd. Lower!
Rogues do not whisper 't now, but seek to publish 6
(As servants do the bounty of their lords)
Aloud; and with a covetous searching eye,
To mark who note them. O, confusion seize
her!

1 Medicinal.
2 Strong broth.
3 Another apartment in the same palace.
4 The mandrake was supposed to give forth shrieks when uprooted, which drove the bearer mad.
5 Unchaste.

She hath had most cunning bawds to serve her turn,
And more secure conveyances for lust
Than towns of garrison for service.
Card. Is't possible?
Can this be certain?
Ferd. Rhubarb, O, for rhubarb
To purge this cholera! Here's the cursed day
To prompt my memory; and here 't shall stick
Till of her bleeding heart I make a sponge
To wipe it out.
Card. Why do you make yourself
So wild a temper?
Ferd. Would I could be one,
That I might toss her palace 'bout her ears,
Root up her goodly forests, blast her meads,
And lay her general territory as waste
As she hath done her honours.
Card. Shall our blood,
The royal blood of Arragon and Castile,
Be thus attained?
Ferd. Apply desperate physic:
We must not now use balsamum, but fire,
The smarting cupping-glass, for that's the mean
To purge infected blood, such blood as hers.
There is a kind of pity in mine eye,—
I'll give it to my handkercher; and now 'tis
here,
I'll bequeath this to her bastard.
Card. What to do?
Ferd. Why, to make soft lint for his mother's wounds.
When I have hew'd her to pieces.
Card. Curs'd creature!
Unequal nature, to place women's hearts
So far upon the left side! 6
Ferd. Foolish men.
That o'er will trust their honour in a bark
Made of so slight weak bulrush as is woman, 6
Apt every minute to sink it!
Card. Thus ignorance, when it hath purchased honour,
It cannot wield it.
Ferd. Methinks I see her laughing,—
Excellent hyena! Talk to me somewhat quickly.
Or my imagination will carry me
To see her in the shameful act of sin.
Card. With whom?
Ferd. [bargeman]
Ferd. Happily with some strong-thigh'd Or one o' th' wood-yard that can quoit the sledge
Or toss the bar, or else some lovely squire
That carries coals up to her privy lodgings.
Card. You fly beyond your reason.
Ferd. Go to, mistress!
'Tis not your whore's milk that shall quench
my wild-fire.
But your whore's blood.
Card. How idly shows this rage, which carries you,
As men convey'd by witches through the air.
On violent whirlwinds! This intemperate noise
Fitly resembles deaf men's shrill discourse.

6 Supposed to be a sign of folly.
7 Throw the hammer.
Who talk aloud, thinking all other men
To have their imperfection.
Ferd. Have not you
My palay?
Card. Yes, [but] I can be angry
Without this rupture. There is not in nature
A thing that makes man so deform’d, so beastly,
As doth intemperate anger. Chide yourself.
You have divers men who never yet express’d
Their strong desire of rest but by unrest,
By vexing of themselves. Come, put yourself
In tune.
Ferd. So I will only study to seem
The thing: I am not. I could kill her now,
In you, or in myself; for I do think
It is some sin in us heaven doth revenge
By her.
Card. Are you stark mad?
Ferd. I would have their bodies
Burnt in a coal-pit with the vantage stopp’d,
That their corne’d smoke might not ascend to heaven;
Or dip the sheets they lie in pitch or sulphur, 26
Wrap them in’t, and then light them like a match;
Or else to boil 27 their bastard to a cullis,
And give’t his lecherous father to renew
The sin of his back.
Card. I’ll leave you.
Ferd. Nay, I have done.
I am confident, had I been damn’d in hell, 28
And should have heard of this, it would have put me
Into a cold sweat. In, in; I’ll go sleep.
Till I know who leaps my sister, I’ll not stir:
That known, I’ll find scorpions to string my whips.
And fix her in a general eclipse. 29

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter] ANTONIO and DELIO.

Ant. Our noble friend, my most beloved Delio! 30
O, you have been a stranger long at court:
Came you along with the Lord Ferdinand?
Delio. I did, sir; and how fares your noble duchess?
Ant. Right fortunately well: she’s an excellent
Feeder of pedigrees; since you last saw her,
She hath had two children more, a son and daughter.
Delio. Methinks ’t was yesterday. Let me but wink.
And not behold your face, which to mine eye
Is somewhat lenner, verily I should dream
It were within this half hour.
Ant. You have not been in law, friend Delio,
Nor in prison, nor a suitor at the court,
Nor begg’d the reversion of some great man’s place,
Nor troubled with an old wife, which doth make
Your time so insensibly hasten.
Delio. Pray, sir, tell me,
Hath not this news arriv’d yet to the ear
Of the lord cardinal?
Ant. I fear it hath:
The Lord Ferdinand, that’s newly come to court,
Doth bear himself right dangerously.
Delio. Pray, why?
Ant. He is so quiet that he seems to sleep
The tempest out, as dormice do in winter.
Those houses that are haunted are most still
Till the devil be up.
Delio. What say the common people?
Ant. The common rabble do directly say
She is a strumpet.
Delio. And your graver heads
Which would be politic, what censure they?
Ant. They do observe I grow to infinite purchase,
The left hand way; and all suppose the duchess
Would amend it, if she could; for, say they,
Great princes, though they grudge their officers
Should have such large and unconfined means
To get wealth under them, will not complain.
Lest thereby they should make them odious
Unto the people. For other obligation
Of love or marriage between her and me
They never dream of.

The Lord Ferdinand
Is going to bed.

[Enter DUCHESS, FERDINAND, and Attendants.]

Ferd. I’ll instantly to bed,
For I am weary.—I am to bespeak
A husband for you.
Duch. For me, sir! Pray, who is ’t? 31
Ferd. The great Count Malatesti.
Duch. Fie upon him!
A count! He’s a mere stick of sugar-candy;
You may look quite through him. When I choose
A husband, I will marry for your honour.
Ferd. You shall do well in ’t. — How is ’t, worthy Antonio?
Duch. But, sir, I am to have private conference
With you About a scandalous report is spread Touching mine honour.
Ferd. Let me be ever deaf to ’t:
One of Pasquill’s paper-bullets, 4 court-calumny,
A pestilent air, which princes’ palaces
Are seldom pur’d of. Yet, say that it were true,
I pour it in your bosom, my dear love
Would strongly excuse, extenuate, nay, deny Faults, were they apparent in you. Go, be safe
In your own innocency.
Duch. [Aside.] O bless’d comfort! 32
This deadly air is pur’d.

[Exeunt [DUCHESS, ANTONIO, DELIO, and Attendants.]

Ferd. Her guilt trends on Hot-burning coulters. 5

4 Ball to shreds. (Dyo.) Qto. to bolt.
5 Amal. An apartment in the palace of the Duchess.
6 Wealth. 7 Laman. 8 Ploquhaberes.
Enter Bosola.

Now, Bosola,
How thrive our intelligence? 1

Bos. Sir, uncertainly:
'Tis rumour'd she hath had three bastards, but
By whom we may go read i' th' stars.

Ferd. Why, some 60
Hold opinion all things are written there.

Bos. Yes, if we could find spectacles to read them.

I do suspect there hath been some sorcery
Us'd on the duchess.

Ferd. Sorcery! to what purpose?

Bos. To make her dote on some desertless fellow 60

She shames to acknowledge.

Ferd. Can your faith give way
To think there's power in potions or in charms,
To make us love whether we will or no?

Bos. Most certainly.

Ferd. Away! these are mere gulleries, 2 horrid things, 20
Invented by some cheating mountebanks
To abuse us. Do you think that herbs or charms
Can force the will? Some trials have been made
In this foolish practice, but the ingredients Were lenitive 3 poisons, such as are of force, 12
To make the patient mad; and straight the witch
Swears by equivocation they are in love.

The witch-craft lies in her rank blood. This night
I will force confession from her. You told me
You had got, within these two days, a false key 60

Into her bed-chamber.

Bos. I have.

Ferd. As I would wish.

Bos. What do you intend to do?

Ferd. Can you guess?

Bos. No.

Ferd. Do not ask, then:

He that can compass me, and know my drifts,
May say he hath put a girdle 'bout the world,
And sounded all her quick-sands.

Bos. I do not Think so.

Ferd. What do you think, then, pray?

Bos. That you
Are your own chronicle too much, and grossly Flatter yourself.

Ferd. Give me thy hand; I thank thee: I never gave pension but to flatterers,
Till I entertained thee. Farewell. 69
That friend a great man's ruin strongly checks, Who rai's in his belief all his defects.

Exeunt.

Scene II.

Enter Duchess, Antonio, and Carolina.

Duch. Bring me the casket hither, and the glass.

You get no lodging here to-night, my lord.

Ant. Indeed, I must persuade one.

1 Spying. 2 Deceptions. 3 Soothing. 6 The bed-chamber of the Duchess in the same.

Duch. Very good:
I hope in time 't will grow into a custom,
That noblemen shall come with cup and knee 8
To purchase a night's lodging of their wives.

Ant. I must lie here.

Duch. Must! You are a lord of mis-rule.

Ant. Indeed, my rule is only in the night.

Duch. To what use will you put me?

Ant. We 'll sleep together.

Duch. Alas, what pleasure can two lovers find in sleep?

Car. My lord, I lie with her often, and I
know
She 'll much disquiet you.

Ant. See, you are complain'd of.

Car. For she's the sprawling'st bedfellow.

Ant. I shall like her the better for that.

Car. Sir, shall I ask you a question?

Ant. I pray thee, Carolina.

Car. Wherefore still when you lie with my lady
Do you rise so early?

Ant. Labouring men
Count the clock oft'nest, Carolina,
Are glad when their task 's ended.

Duch. I'll stop your mouth. [Kisses him.] 60

Ant. Nay, that's but one; Venus had two soft doves.

To draw her chariot; I must have another.—[She kisses him again.]

When wilt thou marry, Carolina?

Car. Never, my lord.

Ant. O, fie upon this single life I forgo it.

We read how Daphne, for her peevish [flight,] 68

Became a fruitless bay-tree; Syrinx turn'd 60
To the pale empty reed; Anaxaret 8

Was frozen into marble: whereas those
Which married, or prov'd kind unto their friends,

Were by a gracious influence trans-shap'd 68

Into the olive, pomegranate, mulberry,

Became flowers, precious stones, or eminent stars.

Car. This is a vain poetry: but I pray you,

If there were propos'd me, wisdom, riches, and
beauty,

In three several young men, which should I

Ant. 'T is a hard question. This was Paris' case,

And he was blind in't, and there was a great cause;

For how was 't possible he could judge right,
Having three amorous goddesses in view,

And they stark naked? 'T was a motion 68

Were able to bethink the apprehension
Of the severest censsor of Europe.

Now I look on both your faces so well form'd, It puts me in mind of a question I would ask.

Car. What is it there.

Ant. I do wonder why hard-favour'd ladies,

For the most part, keep worse-favour'd waiting-

To attend them, and cannot endure fair ones.

8 Qq. read slight.
Duch. O, that's soon answer'd.
Did you ever in your life know an ill painter Desire to have his dwelling next door to the shop
Of an excellent picture-maker? 'T would disgrace
His face-making, and undo him. I prithee,
When were we so merry? My hair tangles.
Ant. Pray thee, Cariola, let's steal forth the room,
And let her talk to herself: I have divers times
Serv'd her the like, when she hath chaf'd me terribly.
I love to see her angry. Softly, Cariola.
[Exeunt [ANTONIO and CARIOLA].
Duch. Doth not the colour of my hair get to change?
When I wax gray, I shall have all the court
Powder their hair with arras, to be like me, so You have cause to love me; I ent'red you into my heart
[Enter FERDINAND unseen.]
Before you would-vouchsafe to call for the keys.
We shall one day have my brothers take you napping.
Methinks his presence, being now in court,
Should make you keep your own bed; but you'll say
Love mixt with fear is sweetest. I'll assure you,
You shall get no more children till my brothers Consent to be your gossips. Have you lost your tongue?
'Tis welcome:
For know, whether I am doom'd to live or die,
I can do both like a prince.
Ferd. Die, then, quickly.
Giving her a poniard.
Virtue, where art thou hid? What hideous thing
Is it that doth eclipse thee?
Duch. Pray, sir, hear me. Ferd. Or is it true thou art but a bare name,
And no essential thing?
Duch. Sir ——
Ferd. Do not speak.
Duch. No, sir:
I will plant my soul in mine ears, to hear you.
Ferd. O most imperfect light of human reason,
That mak'st [us] so unhappy to foresee
What we can least prevent! Pursue thy wishes,
And glory in them: there's in shame no comfort
But to be past all bounds and sense of shame.
Duch. I pray, sir, hear me: I am married.
Ferd. I say. Duch. Happily, not to your liking: but for that,
Alas, your shears do come untimely now
To clip the bird's wings that's already flown!
Will you see my husband?
Ferd. Yes, if I could change
Eyes with a basilisk.

Duch. Sure, you came hither
By his confederacy.
Ferd. The howling of a wolf =
Is music to thee, screech-owl: prithee, peace.—
Whate'er thou art that hast enjoy'd my sister,
For I am sure thou hear'st me, for thine own sake
Let me not know thee. I came hither prepar'd
To work thy discovery; yet am now persuaded
It would beget such violent effects
As would damn us both. I would not for ten millions
I had beheld thee: therefore use all means
I never may have knowledge of thy name;
Enjoy thy lust still, and a wretched life,
On that condition. — And for thee, wold woman,
If thou do wish thy lecher may grow old
In thy embraces, I would have thee build
Such a room for him as our anchorites
To holier use inhabit. Let not the sun Shine on him till he's a dead; let dogs and monkeys
Only converse with him, and such dumb things
To whom nature denies use to sound his name;
Do not keep a paradoxi, lest she lean it;
If thou do love him, cut out thine own tongue,
Less it bewray him.
Duch. Why might not I marry? I have not gone about in this to create
Any new world or custom.
Ferd. Thou art undone;
And thou hast ta'en that massy sheet of lead
That hid thy husband's bones, and folded it
About my heart.
Duch. Mine bleeds for 't.
Ferd. Thine! thy heart! =
What should I name 't, unless a hollow bullet
Fill'd with unquenchable wild-fire?
Duch. You are in this Too strict; and were you not my princely
brother,
I would say, too wilful: my reputation
Is safe.
Ferd. Dost thou know what reputation is?
I'll tell thee, — to small purpose, since th' instruction
Comes now too late.
Upon a time Reputation, Love, and Death,
Would travel o'er the world; and it was concluded
That they should part, and take three several ways.
Death told them, they should find him in great battles,
Or cities plagi'd with plagues; Love gives them counsel
To inquire for him 'mongst unambitious shepherds.
Where dowries were not talk'd of and sometimes
'Mongst quiet kindred that had nothing left
By their dead parents: 'Stay,' quothis Reputation,
Do not forsake me; for it is my nature,
If once I part from any man I meet,
'I am never found again.' And so for you:
You have shook hands with Reputation,
And made him invisible. So, fare you well: I will never see you more.

Duch. Why should only I, Of all the other princes of the world, Be cas’d up, like a holy relic? I have youth And a little beauty. Ford. So you have some virgins. That are witches. I will never see thee more.

Exit.

Re-enter ANTONIO with a pistol, [and CARIOLA.]

Duch. You saw this apparition?

Ant. Yes: we are Betray’d. How came he hither? I should turn This to thee, for that. Cari. Pray, sir, do; and when That you have cleft my heart, you shall read there Mine innocence.

Duch. That gallery gave him entrance.

Ant. I would this terrible thing would come again, That, standing on my guard, I might relate My warrantable love.

(Shewing the poniard.) Ha! what means this?

Duch. He left this with me.

Ant. And it seems did wish

You would use it on yourself.

Duch. His action seem’d To intend so much.

Ant. This hath a handle to’t, As well as a point: turn it towards him, and So fasten the keen edge in his rank gall.

Knocking within.

How now! who knocks? More earthquakes?

Duch. I stand.

As if a mine beneath my feet were ready To be blown up.

Cari. ’Tis Bosola.

Duch. Away!

O misery! methinks unjust actions Should wear these masks and curtains, and not we.

You must instantly part hence: I have fashion’d it already.

Exit ANTONIO.

[Enter BOSOLA.]

Bos. The duke your brother is ta’en up in a whirlwind;

Hath took horse, and ’s rid post to Rome.

Duch. So late?

Bos. He told me, as he mounted into th’ saddle,

You were undone.

Duch. Indeed, I am very near it.

Bos. What’s the matter?

Duch. Antonio, the master of our household, Hath dealt so falsely with me in’s accounts. My brother stood engag’d with me for money Ta’en up of certain Neapolitan Jews, And Antonio lets the bonds be forfeit.

Bos. Strange! —[Aside.] This is coming.

Duch. And hereupon

My brother’s bills at Naples are protested Against. — Call up our officers.

Bos. I shall. Exit.

[Re-enter ANTONIO.]

Duch. The place that you must fly to is Ancona:

Hire a house there; I’ll send after you. My treasure and my jewels. Our weak safety Runs upon ingenious wheels: I short syllables Must stand for periods. I must now accuse you Of such a feigned crime as Tasso calls Magnanima menzogna, a noble lie,

’Cause it must shield our honours.— Hark! they are coming.

[Re-enter BOSOLA and Officers.]

Ant. Will your grace hear me?

Duch. I have got well by you; you have yielded me A million of loss: I am like to inherit The people’s curses for your stewardship.

You had the trick in audit-time to be sick,

Till I had sign’d your quietus; and that cur’d you Without help of a doctor. — Gentlemen,

I would have this man be an example to you all;

So shall you hold my favour; I pray, let him;

For b’as done that, alas, you would not think of,

And, because I intend to be rid of him, I mean not to publish. — Use your fortune else-where.

Ant. I am strongly arm’d to brook my over-throw,

As commonly men bear with a hard year.

I will not blame the cause on ’t; but do think The necessity of my malevolent star

Procures this, not her humour. O, the inconstant

And rotten ground of service! You may see,

’T is even like him, that in a winter night,

Takes a long snubber o’er a dying fire,

A-loth to part from ’t; yet parts thence as cold

As when he first sat down.

Duch. We do confiscate,

Towards the satisfying of your accounts,

All that you have.

Ant. I am all yours; and ’t is very fit

All mine should be so.

Duch. So, sir, you have your pass.

Ant. You may see, gentlemen, what ’t is to serve A prince with body and soul.

Exit. Bos. Here’s an example for extortion: what moisture is drawn out of the sea, when foul weather comes, pours down, and runs into the sea again.

Duch. I would know what are your opinions Of this Antonio.

2 Off. He could not abide to see a pig’s head gaping: I thought your grace would find him a Jew.

3 Off. I would you had been his officer, for your own sake.

4 Off. You would have had more money.

1 Wheels of craft.

8 Certificate that the books were found correct.
1 Off. He stopp'd his ears with black wool, and to those came to him for money said he was thicke of hearing.
2 Off. Some said he was an hermaphrodite, for he could not abide a woman.
4 Off. How scurvy proud he would look when the treasury was full! Well, let him go.
1 Off. Yes, and the chippings of the butterfly fly after him, to scorr his gold chain.1

Duch. Leave us. Exeunt [Officers].

What do you think of these?

 Bos. That these are rogues that in's prosperity,
But to have waited on his fortune, could have wish'd
His dirty stirrup riveted through their noses,
And follow'd after 's mule, like a bear in a ring;
Would have prostituted their daughters to his lust;
Made their first-born intelligencers; 2 thought none happy
But such as were born under his blest planet,
And wore his livery: and do these lice drop off now?

Well, now look to have the like again: 3 He hath left a sort of flatt'ring rogues behind him;
Their doom must follow. Princes pay flatt'lers
In their own money: flatt'lers disemburse their vices,
And they disemburse their lies; that's justice.
Alas, poor gentleman!

Duch. Poor! he hath amply fill'd his coffers.
 Bos. Sure, he was too honest. Pluto, 4 the god of riches,
When he's sent by Jupiter to any man,
He goes limping, to signify that wealth
That comes on God's name comes slowly; but when he's sent
On the devil's errand, he rides post and comes in by senttles. 5
Let me show you what a most unvalued jewel
You have in a wanton humour thrown away,
To bless the man shall find him. He was an excellent Courtier and most faithful; a soldier that thought it
As beastly to know his own value too little
As devilish to acknowledge it too much.
Both his virtue and form deserv'd a far better fortune:
His discourse rather delighted to judge itself
than show itself:
His breast was fill'd with all perfection,
And yet it seem'd a private whispering-room,
It made so little noise of't.

Duch. But he was basely descended.
 Bos. Will you make yourself a mercenary herald,
Rather to examine men's pedigrees than virtues?

You shall want 6 him:
For know an honest statesman to a prince

1 The badge of a steward. 2 Por Plutus. 3 Quick steps. 4 God. 5 Miss.

Is like a cedar planted by a spring;
The spring bathes the tree's root, the grateful tree
Rewards it with his shadow: you have not done so.
I would sooner swim to the Bermoothes on
Two politicos' rotten bladders, tied Together with an intelligencer's heart-string,
Than depend on so changeable a prince's favour.
Fare thee well, Antonio! Since the malice of the world
Would needs down with thee, it cannot be said yet
That any ill happen'd unto thee, considering thy fall
Was accompanied with virtue.

Duch. O, you render me excellent music!
 Bos. Say you?

Duch. This good one that you speak of is my husband.

Duch. Do I not dream? Can this ambitious age
Have so much goodness in 't as to prefer
A man merely for worth, without these shadows
Of wealth and painted honours? Possible?

Duch. I have had three children by him.
 Bos. Fortunate lady! For you have made your private nuptial bed
The humble and fair seminary of peace,
No question but: many an unbenefic'd scholar
Shall pray for you for this deed, and rejoice
That some preferment in the world can yet arise from merit. The virgins of your land
That have no dowries shall hope your example
Will raise them to rich husbands. Should you want Soldiers, 'twould make the very Turks and Moors
Turn Christians, and serve you for this act.
Last, the neglected poets of your time,
In honour of this trophy of a man,
Rain'd by that curious engine, your white hand,
Shall thank you in your grave for 't, and make that
More reverend than all the cabinets
Of living princes. For Antonio,
His fame shall likewise flow from many a pen,
When heralds shall want coats to sell to men.

Duch. As I taste comfort in this friendly speech,
So would I find concealment.

 Bos. O, the secret of my prince,
Which I will wear on th' inside of my heart!
Duch. You shall take charge of all my coin and jewels,
And follow him; for he retires himself
To Ancona.

Duch. So.

Duch. Whither, within few days, I mean to follow thee.

 Bos. Let me think:
I would wish your grace to feign a pilgrimage
To our lady of Loreto, scarce seven leagues
From fair Ancona; so may you depart
Your country with more honour, and your flight
The Duchess of Malfi

Will seem a princely progress, retaining
Your usual train about you.

Duch. Sir, your direction
Shall lead me by the hand.

Curt. In my opinion,
She were better progress to the baths at Lucce,
Or go visit the Spa
In Germany; for, if you will believe me,
I do not like this jesting with religion,
This feigned pilgrimage.

Duch. Thou art a superstitious fool:
Prepare us instantly for our departure.
Past sorrows, let us moderately lament them,
For those to come, seek wisely to prevent them.

[Exeunt Duchess and Cardiola.]

Bos. A politician is the devil’s quilted anvil;
He fashions all sins on him, and the blows
Are never heard: he may work in a lady’s chamber,
As here for proof. What rests\(^1\) but I reveal
All to my lord? O, this base quality\(^2\)
Of intelligenza! Why, every quality ‘tis world
Prefers but gain or commendation:
Now, for this act I am certain to be rais’d;
And men that paint weeds to the life are rais’d.

Exit.

Scene III.

[Enter Cardinal, Ferdinando, Malatesti, Pescearo, Delio, and Silvio.

Card. Must we turn soldier, then?
Mal. The emperor.

Card. Hearing your worth that way, ere you attain’d
This reverend garment, join you in commission
With the right fortunate soldier the Marquis of Pescearo,
And the famous Lanoy.

Card. He that had the honour
Of taking the French king prisoner?
Mal. The same.

Card. Here’s a plot drawn for a new fortification
At Naples.

Ferd. This great Count Malatesti, I perceive,
Hath got employment?

Delio. No employment, my lord;
A marginal note in the muster-book that he is
A voluntary lord.

Ferd. He’s no soldier?

Delio. He has worn gun-powder in ‘s hollow tooth for the tooth-ache.

Sil. He comes to the leagueur with a full intent to eat fresh beef and garlic, means to stay
Till the scent be gone, and straight return to court.

Delio. He hath read all the late service
As the City Chronicle relates it;
And keeps two pewterers going, only to express
Battles in model.

Sil. Then he’ll fight by the book.

Delio. By the almanac, I think.

To choose good days and shun the critical;
That’s his mistress’ scarf.

Sil. Yes, he protests
He would do much for that taffeta.

Delio. I think he would run away from a battle,
To save it from taking prisoner.

Sil. He is horribly afraid
Gun-powder will spoil the perfume on’t.

Delio. I saw a Dutchman break his pate once
For calling him a pot-gun; he made his head
Have a bore in ‘t like a musket.

Sil. I would he had made a touch-hole to ‘t. He is indeed a guarded sumpter-cloth,\(^4\)
Only for the remove of the court.

[Enter Bosola.]

Pes. Bosola arriv’d! What should be the business?

Some falling-out among the cardinals.
These factions amongst great men, they are like
Foxes, when their heads are divided,
They carry fire in their tails, and all the country
About them goes to wrack for’t.

Sil. What’s that Bosola?

Delio. I knew him in Padua, — a fantastical scholar, like such who study to know how many knots was in Hercules’ club, of what colour [\(^*\)]
Achilles’ beard was, or whether Hector were not troubled with the tooth-ache. He hath studied himself half clear-ey’d to know the true symmetry of Caesar’s nose by a shoeing-\(^*\) horn; and this he did to gain the name of a speculative man.

Pes. Mark Prince Ferdinand:
A very salamander lives in ‘s eye,
To mock the eager violence of fire.

Sil. That cardinal hath made more bad faces
With his oppression than ever Michael Angelo made good ones. He lifts up ‘s nose, like a foul porpoise before a storm.

Pes. The Lord Ferdinand laughs.

Delio. Like a deadly cannon
That lightens as it smokes.

Pes. These are your true pangs of death,
The pangs of life, that struggle with great statesmen.

Delio. In such a deformed silence witches
Whisper their charms.

Card. Both she make religion her riding-hood
To keep her from the sun and tempest?

Ferd. That, that damns her. Methinks her fault and beauty,
Blended together, show like leprosy,
The whiter the fouler. I make it a question
Whether her beggarly brats were ever christ’n’d.

Card. I will instantly solicit the state of Ancona
To have them banish’d.

Ferd. You are for Loretto:

---

\(^1\) Remains.

\(^2\) Profession.

\(^3\) An apartment in the Cardinal’s palace at Rome.

\(^4\) A decorated horse-cloth, used only when the court is traveling.
I shall not be at your ceremony, fare you well—
Write to the Duke of Malfi, my young nephew.
She had by her first husband, and acquaint
him.
With 's mother's honesty.
Bos. I will.
Ferd. Antonio!
A slave that only smell'd of ink and counters,
And nevr 'in 's life look'd like a gentleman,
But in the audit-time. — Go, go presently,
Draw me out an hundred and fifty of our horse,
And meet me at the foot-bridge.

Scene IV.

[Enter] Two Pilgrims to the Shrine of our Lady of Loretto.

1 Pil. I have not seen a goodlier shrine than
this;
Yet I have visited many.
2 Pil. The Cardinal of Arragon
Is this day to resign his cardinal's hat;
His sister duchess likewise is arriv'd
To pay her vow of pilgrimage. I expect

A noble ceremony.

1 Pil. No question. — They come.

Here the ceremony of the Cardinal's instalment in the habit of a soldier perform'd in delivering up his cross, bat, robes and ring at the shrine, and investing him with sword, helmet, shield, and spurs.
Then Antonio, the Duchess and their children, having presented themselves at the shrine, are, by a form of banishment in dumb-show expressed towards them by the Cardinal, and the state of Ancona, banished: during which ceremony, this ditty is sung, to very solemn music, by divers church-men; and then exequi [all except the Two Pilgrims],

Arms and honours deck thy story,
To thy fame's eternal glory!
Adverse fortune ever fly thee;
No disastrous fate come nigh thee!
I alone will sing thy praises,
Whom to honour virtue raises,
And thy study, that divine is,
Bent to martial discipline is;
Lay aside all those robes lie by thee;
Crowns thy arts with arms, they'll beautify thee.

O worthy of worthiest name, adorn'd in this manner,
Lead bravely thy forces on under war's warlike banner!
O, mayst thou prove fortunate in all martial courses!
Guide thou still by skill in arts and forces;
Victory attend thee nigh, whilst fame sings loud thy
powers;
Triumphant conquest crown thy head, and blessings
pour down showowers!

1 Pil. Here's a strange turn of state! who would have thought
So great a lady would have match'd herself

1 The first quarto has in the margin: "The author disclaims this ditty to be his."
[Enter Bosola with a letter.]

Bos. You are happily o'erta'en.
Duch. From my brother?
Bos. Yes, from the Lord Ferdinand your brother
All love and safety.
Duch. Thou dost blanch mischief, Would'st make it white. See, see, like to calm weather
At sea, before a tempest, false hearts speak
fair
To those they intend most mischief. [Reads.]
"Send Antonio to me; I want his head in a business."

A politic equivocation!
He doth not want your counsel, but your head;
That is, he cannot sleep till you be dead.
And here's another pitfall that's stew'd o'er
With roses; mark it, 'tis a cunning one:
[Reads.]
"I stand engaged for your husband for several debts at Naples; let not that trouble him; I had rather have his heart than his money." —
And I believe so too.

Bos. What do you believe?
Duch. That he so much distrusts my husband's
love,
He will by no means believe his heart is with him
Until he see it: the devil is not cunning enough
To circumvent us in this wise.
Bos. Will you reject that noble and free league
Of amity and love which I present you?
Duch. Their league is like that of some politie
kings,
Only to make themselves of strength and power
To be our after-ruin: tell them so.
Bos. And what from you?
Ant. Thus tell him; I will not come.
Bos. And what of this?
Ant. My brothers have dispair'd Bloodhounds abroad; which till I hear are muzzled,
No trace, though hatch'd with ne'er such politie
skill,
Is safe, that hangs upon our enemies' will.
I'll not come at them.

Bos. This proclaims your breeding.
Every small thing draws a base mind to fear
As the adamant draws iron. Fare you well, sir;
You shall shortly hear from 's. [Exit.]
Duch. I suspect some ambush;
Therefore by all my love I do conjure you
To take your eldest son, and fly towards Milan,
Let us not venture all this poor remainder
In one unlucky bottom.

Ant. You counsel safely.
Best of my life, farewell. Since we must part,
Heaven hath a hand in 't: but no otherwise
Than as some curious artist takes in sunder
A clock or watch, when it is out of frame,
To bring 't in better order.
Duch. I know not which is best,
To see you dead, or part with you. Farewell, boy:
Thou art happy that thou hast not understand-
ing
To know thy misery; for all our wit
And reading brings us to a truer sense
Of sorrow. — In the eternal church, sir,
I do hope we shall not part thus.

Ant. O, be of comfort!
Make patience a noble fortitude,
And think not how unkindly we are us'd:
Man, like to cassia, is prov'd best, being bruised.
Duch. Must I, like to a slave-born Russian,
Account it praise to suffer tyranny?
And yet, O heaven, thy heavy hand is in 't!
I have seen my little boy oft scourge his top,
And compar'd myself to 't: naught made me
'ser
Go right but heaven's scourge-stick.

Ant. Do not weep:
Heaven fashion'd us of nothing; and we strive
To bring ourselves to nothing. — Farewell, Carlo.
And thy sweet armful. — If I do never see thee
more,
Be a good mother to your little ones,
And save them from the tiger: fare you well.
Duch. Let me look upon you once more, for that speech
Came from a dying father. Your kiss is colder
Than that I have seen an holy anchorite
Give to a dead man's skull.

Ant. My heart is turn'd to a heavy lump of lead,
With which I sound my danger: fare you well.

Exeunt [ANTONIO and his son].

Duch. My laurel is all withered.

Curt. Look, madam, what a troop of armed men
Make toward us!

Re-enter Bosola [visarded,] with a Guard.

Duch. O, they are very welcome:
When Fortune's wheel is over-charg'd with princes,
The weight makes it move swift: I would have my ruin
Be sudden. — I am your adventure, am I not?
Bos. You are: you must see your husband no
more.
Duch. What devil art thou that counterfeit'st heaven's thunder?
Bos. Is that terrible? I would have you tell me whether
Is that note worse that frights the silly birds
Out of the corn, or that which doth allure them
To the nets? You have heark'n'd to the last too much.

Duch. O misery! I like to a rusty o'ercharg'd cannon,
Shall I never fly in pieces? Come, to what prison?

Bos. To none.

Duch. Whither, then?

Bos. To your palace.

Duch. I have heard
That Charon's boat serves to convey all o'er
The dismal lake, but brings none back again.
Bos. Your brothers mean you safety and pity.
ACT IV

SCENE I.

[Enter Ferdinand and Bosola.]

Ferd. How doth our sister duchess bear herself In her imprisonment?

Bos. Nobly: I'll describe her. She's sad as one long us'd to, and she seems Rather to welcome the end of misery Than shun it; a behaviour so noble As gives a majesty to adversity:

1 His vizir. 2 Amaidi. An apartment in the palace of the Duchess.

You may discern the shape of loveliness More perfect in her tears than in her smiles: She will muse four hours together; and be silence, Methinks, expresseth more than if she spake. * Ferd. Her melancholy seems to be fortified With a strange disdain.

Bos. 'Tis so; and this restraint, Like English mastivies that grow fierce with tying, Makes her too passionately apprehend Those pleasures she is kept from.

Ferd. I will no longer study in the book Of another's heart. Inform her what I told you. Exit.

[Enter Duchess and Attendants.]

Bos. All comfort to your grace! I will have none. Pray thee, why dost thou wrap thy poison'd pills In gold and sugar?

Bos. Your elder brother, the Lord Ferdinando.

Ferd. Is come to visit you, and sends you word, 'Cause once he rashly made a solemn vow Never to see you more, he comes i' th' night; And prays you gently neither torch nor taper shine in your chamber. He will kiss your hand, And reconcile himself; but for his vow He dares not see you.

Duch. At his pleasure.— Take hence the lights.—He's come.

[Exeunt Attendants with lights.]

[Enter Ferdinand.]

Ferd. Where are you? Duch. This darkness suits you well. Ferd. I would ask you pardon. Duch. You have it; For I account it the honorablest revenge, Where I may kill, to pardon. — Where are your cables? Duch. Whom?

Ferd. Call them your children; For though our national law distinguish bastards, From true legitimate issue, compassionate nature Makes them all equal.

Duch. Do you visit me for this? You violate a sacrament o' th' church Shall make you bowl in hell for 't.

Ferd. It had been well Could you have liv'd thus always; for, indeed, You were too much i' th' light! — but no more; I come to seal my peace with you. Here's a hand; Gives her a dead man's hand. To which you have vow'd much love; the ring upon 't

You gave.

Duch. I affectionately kiss it.

Ferd. Pray, do, and bury the print of it in your heart.

I will leave this ring with you for a love-token;
And the hand as sure as the ring; and do not doubt
But you shall have the heart too. When you need a friend
Send it to him that ow'd it; you shall see
Whether he can aid you.

Duch. You are very cold; so
I fear you are not well after your travel.—
Ha! lights! — O, horrible!
Ferd. Let her have lights enough. Exit.
Duch. What witchcraft doth he practise, that he hath left
A dead man's hand here?

Here is discover'd, behind a traverse.1
the artificial figures of ANTONIO and his children, appearing as if they were dead.

Bos. Look you, here's the piece from which
't was ta'en.

He doth present you this sad spectacle,
That now you know directly they are dead,
Hereafter you may wisely cease to grieve
For that which cannot be recovered.
Duch. There is not between heaven and earth one wish
I stay for after this. It wastes me more
Than were 't my picture, fashion'd out of wax,
Stuck with a magical needle, and then buried
In some foul dung hill; and you're an excellent property
For a tyrant, which I would account mercy.
Bos. What's that? 2
Duch. If they would bind me to that lifeless trunk,
And let me freeze to death.

Bos. Come, you must live.
Duch. That's the greatest torture souls feel in hell,
In hell, that they must live, and cannot die.
Portia,3 I'll new kindle thy coals again,
And revive the rare and almost dead example
Of a loving wife.
Bos. O, fie! despair? Remember
You are a Christian.
Duch. The church enjoins fasting:
I'll starve myself to death.
Bos. Leave this vain sorrow.
Things being at the worst begin to mend: the bee
When he hath shot his sting into your hand,
May then play with your eye-lid.
Duch. Good comfortable fellow,
Persuade a wretch that's broke upon the wheel
To have all his bones new set; entreat him live
To be executed again. Who must despatch me?
I account this world a tedious theatre,
For I do play a part in 't 'gainst my will.

Bos. Come, be of comfort; I will save your life.
Duch. Indeed, I have not leisure to tend so small a business.
Bos. Now, by my life, I pity you.
Duch. Thou art a fool, then,
To waste thy pity on a thing so wretched

1 Curtain.
2 The wife of Brutus, who died by swallowing fire.

As cannot pity itself. I am full of daggers.
Puff, let me blow these vipers from me.

[Enter Servant.]

What are you?
Serv. One that wishes you long life.
Duch. I would thou wert hang'd for the horrible curse
Thou hast given me: I shall shortly grow one
Of the miracles of pity. I'll go pray: —

[Exit Serv.]

No, I'll go curse.
Bos. O, fie!
Duch. I could curse the stars —
Bos. O, fearful!
Duch. And those three smiling seasons of the year
Into a Russian winter; nay, the world
To its first chaos.
Bos. Look you, the stars shine still.
Duch. O, but you must Remember, my curse hath a great way to go. — Plagues, that make lanes through largest families,
Consume them! —

Bos. Fie, lady!
Duch. Let them, like tyrants, 4
Never be remembered but for the ill they have done;
Let all the zealous prayers of mortified
Churchmen forget them! —
Bos. O, uncharitable!
Duch. Let heaven a little while cease crowning martyrs,
To punish them! —

Go, howl them this, and say, I long to bleed:
It is some mercy when men kill with speed.

[Re-enter Ferdinando.]

Ferd. Excellent, as I would wish; she's plagued in art.4
These presentations are but fram'd in wax
By the curious master in that quality.4
Vincentio Lauriola, and she takes them
For true substantial bodies.
Bos. Why do you do this?
Ferd. To bring her to despair.
Bos. Faith, end here,
And go no farther in your cruelty:
Send her a penitential garment to put on Next to her delicate skin, and furnish her
With beads and prayer-books.
Ferd. Damn her! that body of hers,
While that my blood ran pure in 't, was more worth
Than that which thou wouldst comfort, call'd a soul.
I will send her masques of common courtesans,
Have her meat serv'd up by bawds and ruffians,
And, 'cause she'll needs be mad, I am resolv'd
To move forth the common hospital
All the mad-folk, and place them near her lodging;

3 By artificial means.
4 Profession.
John Webster

There let them practise together, sing and dance.

And set their gambols to the full o' th' moon:
If she can sleep the better for it, let her.

Your work is almost ended.

Bos. Must I see her again?

Ferd. Yes.

Bos. Never.

Ferd. You must.

Bos. Never in mine own shape;

That 's forfeited by my intelligence. And this last cruel lie: when you send me next,

The business shall be comfort.

Ferd. — Very likely,

Thy pity is nothing of kin to thee. Antonio Lurks about Milan: thou shalt shortly shiver,

To feed a fire as great as my revenge, Which nev' r will slack till it hath spent his fuel:

Intemperate agues make physicians cruel. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Duchess and Cariola.

Duch. What hideous noise was that?

Cari. 'Tis the wild consort Of madmen, lady, which your tyrant brother Hath plae'd about your lodging. This tyranny, I think, was never practis'd till this hour.

Duch. Indeed, I thank him. Nothing but noise and folly. Can keep me in my right wits; whereas reason And silence make me stark mad. Sit down; Discourse to me some dismal tragedy.

Cari. O, 't will increase your melancholy!

Duch. Thou art deceiv'd:

To hear of greater grief would lessen mine.

This is a prison?

Cari. Yes, but you shall live

To shake this durance off.

Duch. Thou art a fool! The robin-red-breast and the nightingale Never live long in cages.

Cari. Pray, dry your eyes.

What think you of, madam?

Duch. Of nothing;

When I muse thus, I sleep.

Cari. Like a madman, with your eyes open?

Duch. Dost thou think we shall know one another In the world?

Cari. Yes, out of question.

Duch. O, that it was possible we might But hold some two days' conference with the dead! From them I should learn somewhat, I am sure, I never shall know here. I 'll tell thee a miracle:

I am not mad yet, to my cause of sorrow: Th' heaven o'er my head seems made of molten brass.

The earth of flaming sulphur, yet I am not mad. I am acquainted with sad misery

As the tann'd galley-slave is with his car; Necessity makes me suffer constantly, And custom makes it easy. Who do I look like now?

Cari. Like to your picture in the gallery, A gem of life in show, but none in practice; Or rather like some reverend monument Whose ruins are even pitied.

Duch. Very proper; And Fortunes seems only to have her eye-sight To behold my tragedy. — How now!

What noise is that?

[Enter Servant.]

Serv. I am come to tell you Your brother hath intended you some sport. A great physician, when the Pope was sick Of a deep melancholy, presented him With several sorts of madmen, which wild objects Being full of change and sport, forc'd him to laugh, And so the imposthume broke: the self-same cure The duke intends on you.

Duch. Let them come in.

Serv. There's a mad lawyer; and a secular priest;

A doctor that hath forfeited his wits By jealousy; an astrologian That in his works said such a day o' th' mouth Should be the day of doom, and, failing of t's, Run mad; an English tailor craz'd i' th' brain With the study of new fashions; a gentleman-Schreuder Quite beside himself with care to keep in mind The number of his lady's salutations, Or 'How do you,' she employ'd him in each morning;

A farmer, too, an excellent knave in grain. Mad 'cause he was hind'red transportation: And let one broker that 's mad loose to these, You'd think the devil were among them.

Duch. Sit, Cariola. — Let them loose when you please, For I am chain'd to sadde o' all your tyranny.

[Enter Madman.]

Here by a Madman this song is sung to a dismal kind of music.

O, let us howl some heavy note, Some deadly dogged howl, Sounding as from the threatening throat Of beasts and fatal fowl! As ravens, screech-owls, bulls, and bears, We'll bell, and bawl our parts, Till loresome noise have clo'd your ears And corrossiv'd your heart.

At last, when as our choir wants breath, Our bodies being blest, We'll sing, like swans, to welcome death, And die in love and rest.

1 Madman. Doom's-day not come yet! I'll draw it nearer by a perspective, or make a [a] Banda. Boll. Punning on the two senses of "dye" and "corn." From exporting his grain. Optical glass.
glass that shall set all the world on fire upon an instant. I cannot sleep; my pillow is stuff with a litter of porcupines.

2 Madman. Hell is a mere glass-house, where the devils are continually blowing up women's souls on hollow irons, and the fire never goes out.

3 Madman. I will lie with every woman in my parish the tenth night. I will tithe them over like hay-cocks.

4 Madman. Shall my 'pochaery out-go me, because I am a cuckold? I have found out his roguery: he makes alum of his wife's urine, and sells it to Puritans that have sore throats with over-straining.

1 Madman. I have skill in heraldry.

2 Madman. Hast?

1 Madman. You do give for your crest a woodcock's head with the brains pick'd out on't; you are a very ancient gentleman.

3 Madman. Greek is turn'd Turk: we are only to be sav'd by the Helvetian translation.

1 Madman. Come on, sir, I will lay the law to you.

2 Madman. O, rather lay a corrosive: the law will eat to the bone.

3 Madman. He that drinks but to satisfy nature is damn'd.

4 Madman. If I had my glass here, I would show a sight which should make all the women here call me mad doctor.

1 Madman. What's he? A rope-maker?

2 Madman. No, no, no; a snuffing knave that while he shows the toms, will have his hand in a wench's placket.

3 Madman. Woe to the caroche that brought home my wife from the masque at three o'clock in the morning! It had a large feather-bed in it.

4 Madman. I have pared the devil's nails forty times, roasted them in raven's eggs, and car'd agues with them.

3 Madman. Get me three hundred milk-bats, to make possets to procure sleep.

4 Madman. All the college may throw their caps at me: I have made a soap-boiler cosmetic; it was my masterpiece.

Here the dance, consisting of Eight Madmen, with music answerable thereunto; after which, Bosola, like an old man, enters.

Duch. Is he mad too?

Serv. Pray, question him. I'll leave you.

[Exit Servant and Madmen.]

Bos. I am come to make thy tomb.

Duch. Thou speakest as if I lay upon my death-bed, gasping for breath. Dost thou perceive me sick?

Bos. Yes, and the more dangerously, since thy sickness is insensible.

Duch. Thou art not mad, sure: dost know me?

Bos. Yes.

Who am I?

Bos. Thou art a box of worm-seed, at best but a salutory of green nummery. What's this flesh? A little curdled milk, fantastical puff-paste. Our bodies are weaker than those paper-boys use to keep flies in; more contemptible, since ours is to preserve earth-worms. Didst thou ever see a lark in a cage? Such is the soul in the body: this world is like her little turf of grass, and the heaven o'er our heads, like her looking-glass, only gives us a miserable knowledge of the small compass of our prisons.

Duch. Am I not thy ducesse?

Bos. Thou art some great woman, sure, for riot begins to sit on thy forehead (clad in gray hairs) twenty years sooner than on a merry milk-maid's. These sleep not worse than if a mouse should be for'd to take up her lodging in a cat's ear; a little infant that breeds its teeth, should it lie with thee, would cry out, as if thou wert the more unquiet bedfellow.

Duch. I am Duchess of Malfi still.

Bos. That makes thy sleep so broken: glories, like glow-worms, are off shine bright, but, look'd to near, have neither heat nor light.

Duch. Thou art very plain.

Bos. My trade is to flatter the dead, not the living; I am a tomb-maker.

Duch. And thou com'st to make my tomb?

Bos. Yes.

Duch. Let me be a little merry:—of what stuff wilt thou make it?

Bos. Nay, resolve me first, of what fashion?

Duch. Why, do we grow fantastical on our deathbed?

Do we affect fashion in the grave?

Bos. Most ambitiously. Princess' images on their tombs do not lie, as they were wont, seeming to pray up to heaven; but with their hands under their cheeks, as if they died of the tooth-ache. They are not carved with their eyes fix'd upon the stars, but as their minds were wholly bent upon the world, the self-same way they seem to turn their faces.

Duch. Let me know fully therefore the effect of this thy dismal preparation, this talk fit for a charnel.

Bos. Now I shall:

[Enter Executioners, with a coffin, cords, and a bell.]

Here is a present from your princely brothers; and may it arrive welcome, for it brings last benefit, last sorrow.

Duch. Let me see it:

I have so much obedience in my blood. I wish it in their veins to do them good.

Bos. This is your last presence-chamber.

Cari. O my sweet lady!

Duch. Peace; it affrights not me.

Bos. I am the common bellman.

1 The Geneva Bible. 2 Petticoat. 3 Coach. 4 A warm drink containing milk, wine, etc. 5 Receptacle. 6 A drug supposed to come from embalmed bodies. 7 Curdled. 8 Printed as vera in Qq.
That usually is sent to condemn’d persons
The night before they suffer.

Duch. Even now thou say’st
Thou wast a tomb-maker.

Bos. ’Twas to bring you
By degrees to mortification. Listen.

Hark, now every thing is still,
The screech-owl and the whistler shrill
Call upon our dame aloud,
And bid her quickly don her shroud! 120
Much you lack of land and rent;
Your length in clay is now competent:
A long war disturb’d your mind,
Mere your perfect peace is sign’d.
Of what is ’t fools make such vain keeping? 130
Sin their conception, their birth weeping,
Their life a general mist of error,
Their death a hideous storm of terror.
Strew your hair with powders sweet,
Don clean linen, bathe your feet, 140
And (the fool tend more to check)
A crucifix let bless your neck.
’Tis now full tide ‘twixt night and day;
End your groan, and come away.

Cari. Hence, villains, tyrants, murderers! 150
Alas!
What will you do with my lady? — Call for help!
Duch. To whom? To our next neighbours?
Bos. They are mad-folks.
Duch. Farewell, Cariola.
In my last will I have not much to give:
A many hungry guests have fed upon me; 160
Thine will be a poor reversion.
Cari. I will die with her.
Duch. I pray thee, look thou giv’st my little boy
Some syrup for his cold, and let the girl
Say her prayers ere she sleep.

[CARIOLA IS FORCED OUT BY THE EXECUTIONERS]

Now what you please:

What death?

Bos. Strange; here are your executioners.
Duch. I forgive them. 180
The apoplexy, catarrh, or cough o’ th’ lungs,
Would do as much as they do.
Bos. Doth not death fright you?
Duch. Who would be afraid on ’t.
Knowing to meet such excellent company 190
In th’ other world?
Bos. Yet, methinks,
The manner of your death should much afflict you:
This cord should terrify you.
Duch. Not a whit:
What would it please me to have my throat cut 200
With diamonds? or to be smothered
With cassia? or to be shot to death with pearls?
I know death hath ten thousand several doors
For men to take their exits; and ’t is found
They go on such strange geometrical hinges, 210
You may open them both ways: any way, for heaven-sake,
So I were out of your whispering. Tell my brothers
That I perceive death, now I am well awake,

Best gift is they can give or I can take.
I would fain put off my last woman’s-fault, 220
I’d not be tedious to you.
1 Execut. We are ready.
Duch. Dispose—my breath how please you; 230
but my body
Bestow upon my women, will you?
1 Execut. Yes.
Duch. Pull, and pull strongly, for your able strength
Must pull down heaven upon me: — 240
Yet stay; heaven-gates are not so highly arch’d
As princes’ palaces; they that enter there
Must go upon their knees.[kneel].—Come, violent death,
Serve for mandragora to make me sleep! —
Go tell my brothers, when I am laid out, 250
They then may feed in quiet. They is longrange her.
Bos. Where’s the waiting-woman?
Fetch her: some other strangle the children.

[Enter CARIOLA.]

Look you, there sleeps your mistress.
Cari. O, you are damn’d Perpetually for this! My turn is next; —
Is ’t not so ordered?
Bos. Yes, and I am glad
You are so well prepar’d for ’t.
Cari. You are deceiv’d, sir,
I am not prepar’d for ’t, I will not die;
I will first come to my answer; and know
How I have offended.
Bos. Come, despacht her. — 270
You keep her counsel; now you shall keep ours.
Cari. I will not die, I must not; I am con- 220 tracted
To a young gentleman.
1 Execut. Here’s your wedding-ring.
Cari. Let me but speak with the duke. I’ll discover Treason to his person.
Bos. Delays: — throttle her. 270
3 Execut. She bites and scratches.
Cari. If you kill me now,
I am damn’d; I have not been at confession
This two years.
Bos. [To Executioners.] When!
Cari. I am quick with child.
Bos. Why, then,
Your credit’s saved.
[EXECUTIONERS STRANGLE CARIOLA.]

Bear her into th’ next room; 270
Let these lie still.

[EXECUTIONERS WITH BODY OF CARIOLA.]

[Enter FERDINAND.] 270

Ferd. How is she dead?
Bos. She is what
You’d have her. Bnt here begin your pity: 280
Shows the Children Strangled.
Alas, how have they been offended?
Ferd. The death
Of young wolves is never to be pitied.
1 Trial. An exclamation of impatience.
Bos. Fix your eye here.
Ferd. Constantly.
Bos. Do you not weep?
Other sins only speak; murder shrieks out. The element of water moistens the earth, But blood flies upwards and bedews the heavens.
Ferd. Cover her face; mine eyes dazzle: she died young.
Bos. I think not so; her infidelity seem'd to have years too many.
Ferd. She and I were twins: and should I die this instant, I had liv'd Her time to a minute.
Bos. It seems she was born first: You have bloody approv'd the ancient truth, That kindred commonly do worse agree Than remote strangers.
Ferd. Let me see her face. Again. Why didst thou not pity her? What An excellent honest man mightst thou have been.
If thou hadst borne her to some sanctuary Or, bold in a good cause, oppos'd thyself, With thy advanced sword above thy head, Between her innocences and my revenge! I bade thee, when I was distracted of my wits, Go kill my dearest friend, and thou hast done 't.
For let me but examine well the cause: What was the meanness of her match to me? Only I must confess I had a hope, Had she continu'd widow, to have gain'd An infinite mass of treasure by her death: And that was the main cause,—her marriage, That drew a stream of gall quite through my heart.
For thee, as we observe in tragedies That a good actor many times is curs'd For playing a villain's part, I hate thee for 't, And, for my sake, say, thou hast done much ill well.
Bos. Let me quicken your memory, for I perceive You are falling into ingratitude: I challenge The reward due to my service.
Ferd. I'll tell thee.
What I'll give thee.
Bos. Do.
Ferd. I'll give thee a pardon for this murder.
Bos. —— Her.
Ferd. Yes, and 'tis the largest bounty I can study to do thee. By what authority didst thou execute this bloody sentence?
Bos. By yours.
Ferd. Mine! Was I her judge? Did any ceremonious form of law Doom her to not-being? Did a complete jury Deliver her conviction up? th' court? Where shalt thou find this judgment register'd, Unless in hell? See, like a bloody fool, Thou 'st forfeited thy life, and thou shalt die for 't.
Bos. The office of justice is perverted quite When one thief hangs another. Who shall dare To reveal this?
Ferd. O, I'll tell thee; The wolf shall find her grave, and scrape it up, Not to devour the corpse, but to discover The buried murder.
Bos. You, not I, shall quake for 't.
Ferd. Leave me.
Bos. I will first receive my pension.
Ferd. You are a villain.
Bos. When your ingratitude is judge, I am so.
Ferd. O horror! That not the fear of him which binds the devils Can prescribe man obedience! — Never look upon me more.
Bos. Why, fare thee well. Your brother and yourself are worthy men! You have a pair of hearts are bellows graceful, Rotten, and rotting others; and your vengeance, Like two child's bullethes, still goes arm in arm: You may be brothers; for treason, like the plague, Doth take much in a blood. I stand like one That long hath t'a'en a sweet and golden dream:
I am angry with myself now, that I wake.
Ferd. Get thee into some unknown part o' the world. That I may never see thee.
Bos. Let me know— Wherefore I should be thus neglected. Sir, I serv'd you tyranniz'd and rather strove To satisfy yourself than all the world: And though I loath'd the evil, yet I lov'd You that did counsel it; and rather sought To appear a true servant than an honest man.
Ferd. I'll go hunt the badger by owl-light: 'Tis a deed of darkness. Exit.
Bos. He's much distracted. Off, my painted honour!
While with vain hopes our faculties we tire, We seem to sweat in ice and freeze in fire. What would I do, were this to do again? I would not change my peace of conscience For all the wealth of Europe.—She stirs; here's life: Return, fair soul, from darkness, and lead mine Out of this sensible hell! — She's warm, she breathes: — Upon thy pale lips I will melt my heart, To store them with fresh colour. Who's there?
Some cordial drink! — Alas! I dare not call: So pity would destroy pity. — Her eye opens, And heaven in it seems to ope, that late was shut, To take me up to mercy.
Duch. Antonio!
Bos. Yes, madam, he is living; The dead bodies you saw were but feign'd statues. He's reconcile'd to your brothers; the Pope hath wrought the atonement.
Duch. Mercy! Dies.
Bos. O, she's gone again! there the cords of life broke.
O sacred innocence, that sweetly sleeps
On turtles’ feathers, whilst a guilty conscience
Is a black register wherein is writ
All our good deeds and bad, a perspective
That shows us hell! That we cannot be suffer’d to do good when we have a mind to it!

This is a manly sorrow:
These tears, I am very certain, never grew
In my mother’s milk. My estate is sunk
Below the degree of fear: where were
These penitent fountains while she was living?
O, they were frozen up! Here is a sight
As direful to my soul as is the sword
Unto a wretch hath slain his father.
Come, I’ll bear thee hence,
And execute thy last will: that’s deliver
Thy body to the reverend dispose
Of some good women: that the cruel tyrant
Shall not deny me. Then I’ll post to Milan,
Where somewhat I will speedily enact Worth my dejection. Exit [with the body].

ACT V

SCENE I.1

[Enter] ANTONIO and DELILO.

Ant. What think you of my hope of reconcile
To the Arragonian brethren?

Deliolo. I misdoubt it;
For though they have sent their letters of safe-conduct
For your repair to Milan, they appear
But not to entrap you. The Marquis of Pesca,
Under whom you hold certain land in cheat,2
Much ‘gainst his noble nature hath been mov’d
To seize those lands; and some of his dependants
Are at this instant making it their suit
To be invested in your revenues.

I cannot think they mean well to your life
That do deprive you of your means of life,
Your living.

Ant. You are still an heretic?3
To any safety I can shape myself.

Deliolo. Here comes the marquis: I will make myself
Petitioner for some part of your land,
To know whither it is flying.

Ant. I pray, do. [Withdraws.]

[Enter PESCARA.]

Deliolo. Sir, I have a suit to you.

Pet. To me?

Deliolo. An easy one:
There is the Citadel of Saint Bennet,
With some demeanors, of late in the possession
Of Antonio Bologna,— please you bestow them on me.

Pet. You are my friend; but this is such a suit,
Nor fit for me to give, nor you to take.

Deliolo. No, sir?

Pet. I will give you ample reason for’t
Soon in private:—here’s the cardinal’s mistress.

[Enter JULIA.]

Julia. My lord, I am grown your poor petititioner.

Ant. And should be an ill baggar, had I not
A great man’s letter here, the cardinal’s,
To court you in my favour. [Gives a letter.]

Pet. He entreats for you
The Citadel of Saint Bennet, that belong’d
To the banish’d Bologna.

Julia. Yes.

Pet. I could not have thought of a friend I could rather Pleasure with it: ’tis yours.

Julia. Sir, I thank you;
And he shall know how doubly I am engag’d
Both in your gift, and speediness of giving,
Which makes your grant the greater. [Exit.]

Ant. How they fortify
Themselves with my ruin!

Deliolo. Sir, I am
Little bound to you.

Pet. Why?

Deliolo. Because you deni’d this suit to me, and Gave ’t
To such a creature.

Pet. Do you know what it was?
It was Antonio’s land; not forfeited
By course of law, but ravish’d from his throat
By the cardinal’s entreaty. It were not fit
I should bestow so main a piece of wrong
Upon my friend; ’tis a gratification
Only due to a strumpet, for it is injustice.
Shall I sprinkle the pure blood of innocents
To make those followers I call my friends
Look ruder upon me? I am glad
This land, ta’en from the owner by such wrong,
Returns again unto so foul an use
As salary to his lust. Learn, good Deliolo,
To ask noble things of me, and you shall find
I’ll be a noble giver.

Deliolo. You instruct me well.

Ant. [Aside.] Why, here’s a man now would fright impudence
From sauciest baggers.

Pet. Prince Ferdinand’s come to Milan,
Sick, as they give out, of an apoplexy;
But some say ’tis a frenzy: I am going
To visit him. [Exit.]

Ant. ’Tis a noble old fellow.

Deliolo. What course do you mean to take,
Antonio?

Ant. This night I mean to venture all my fortune,
Which is no more than a poor ling’ring life,
To the cardinal’s worst of malice. I have got Private access to his chamber; and intend
To visit him about the mid of night.
As once his brother did our noble deceased.
It may be that the sudden apprehension
Of danger,—for I’ll go in mine own shape,—
When he shall see it fraught with love and duty,

1 Milan. A public place.
2 Disbeliever.
3 Fraught.
May draw the poison out of him, and work
A friendly reconciliation. If it fail,
Yet it shall rid me of this infamous calling;
For better fall once than be ever falling.
Dei. I'll second you in all danger; and,
how'er,
My life keeps rank with yours.
Ant. You are still my lov'd and best friend.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.]

[Enter] Pescara and Doctor.

Pesc. Now, doctor, may I visit your patient?
Doc. If 't please your lordship; but he's instantly
To take the air here in the gallery
By my direction.

Doc. Pray thee, what's his disease?

Pesc. They call lycanthropia.

Doc. What's that?

Pesc. I need a dictionary to 't.
Doc. I'll tell you.
In those that are possess'd with 't there o'er-flows
Such melancholy humour they imagine Themselves to be transformed into wolves;
Steal forth to church-yards in the dead of night,
And dig dead bodies up: as two nights since
One met the duke 'bout midnight in a lane
Behind Saint Mark's churchyard, with the leg of a
man
Upon his shoulder; and he how'd fearfully;

Doc. Said he was a wolf, only the difference
Was, a wolf's skin was hairy on the outside,
His on the inside; bade them take their swords,
Rip up his flesh, and try. Straight I was sent for,
And, having minister'd to him, found his grace
Very well recovered.

Pesc. I am glad on 't.
Doc. Yet not without some fear
Of a relapse. If he grow to his fit again,
I'll go a nearer way to work with him
Than ever Paracelsus dream'd of; if They 'll give me leave, I'll buffet his madness out of him.

Stand aside; he comes.

[Enter Ferrando, Cardinal, Malatesta, and Bosola.]

Ferr. Leave me.

Mal. Why doth your lordship love this solitariness?

Ferr. Eagles commonly fly alone: they are as crows, daws, and starlings that flock together.

Doc. Look, what's that follows me?

Mal. Nothing, my lord.

Ferr. Yes.

Mal. 'Tis your shadow.

Ferr. Stay it; let it not haunt me.

Mal. Impossible, if you move, and the sun shine.

Ferr. I will throttle it.

[Throws himself down on his shadow.]

Mal. O, my lord, you are angry without nothing.

Ferr. You are a fool: how is 't possible I should catch my shadow, unless I fall upon 't?
When I go to liell, I mean to carry a bribe; for, look you, good gifts evermore make way for the worst persons.

Pesc. Rise, good my lord.

Ferr. I am studying the art of patience.

Pesc. 'Tis a noble virtue.

Ferr. To drive six snails before me from this town to Moscow; neither use good nor whip to them, but let them take their own time; — if the patient's man 's th' world match me for an experiment: — an I 'll crawl after like a sheep-

Ferr. Force him up. [They raise him.]

Pesc. Use me well, you were best. What I have done, I have done: I 'll confess nothing.

Doc. Now let me come to him. — Are you mad, my lord?

Ferr. What's he?

Pesc. Your doctor.

Ferr. Let me have his beard saw'd off, and his eye-brows fil'd more civil.

Doc. I must do mad tricks with him, for that
's the only way on 't. — I have brought your grace a salamander's skin to keep you from sun-burning.

Ferr. I have cruel sore eyes.

Doc. The white of a cockatrice's egg is present remedy.

Ferr. Let it be a new-laid one, you were best.
Hide me from him: physicians are like kings,—
They brook no contradiction.

Doc. Now he begins to fear me: now let me alone with him:

Card. How now! put off your gown!

Doc. Let me have some forty urinals filled with rose-water: he and I'll go pelt one another with them. — Now he begins to fear me.

Ferr. Can you fetch a frisk, sir? — Let him go, let him go, upon my peril: I find by his eye he stands in awe of me; I'll make him as tame as a dormouse.

Ferr. Can you fetch your frisks, sir! — I will stump him into a culris, flay off his skin to cover one of the anatomies: this rogue hath set i' th' cold yonder in Barber-Chirurgeon's-hall. — Hence, hence! you are all of you like as beasts for sacrifice. [Throws the Doctor down and beats him.] There's nothing left of you but tongue and belly, flattery and lechery. [Exit.]

Pesc. Doctor, he did not fear you thoroughly.

Doc. True; I was somewhat too forward.

Bos. Mercy upon me, what a fatal judgment
Hath fall'n upon this Ferrando!

Pesc. Knows your grace
What accident hath brought unto the prince
This strange distraction?

Card. [Aside.] I must feign somewhat.

Thus they say it grew.

You have heard it rumour'd, for these many years

1 A gallery in the residence of the Cardinal and Ferdinand.

2 A dog which worries sheep.

3 A fabulous serpent that killed by its glance.

4 Cut a caper.

5 Broth.

6 Skeletons.
None of our family dies but there is seen
The death of an old woman, which is given
By tradition to have been murder'd 90
By her nephews for her riches. Such a figure
One night, as the prince sat up late at 's book,
Appear'd to him; when crying out for help,
The gentleman of 's chamber found his grace
All on a cold sweat, alter'd much in face
And language: since which apparition, 130
He hath grown worse and worse, and I much fear
He cannot live.
Bos. Sir, I would speak with you.
Pet. We'll leave your grace,
Wishing to the sick prince, our noble lord,
All health of mind and body.
Card. You are most welcome.
[Exit Pescara, Malatesti, and Doctor.
Are you come? so. [Aside.] This fellow-mast not know 411
By any means I had intelligence
In our duchess' death; for, though I counsel'd it,
The full of all th' engagement seem'd to grow
From Ferdinand. — Now, sir, how fares our sister? 118
I do not think but sorrow makes her look
Like to an off-dy'd garment; she shall now
Take comfort from me. Why do you look so wildly?
O, the fortune of your master here, the prince,
Deprest you; but be you of happy comfort: 138
If you 'll do one thing for me I 'll entreat,
Though he had a cold tomb-stone o'er his bones,
I 'd make you what you would be.
Bos. Give it me in a breath, and let me fly to 't.
They that think long small expedition win,
For musing much o' th' end cannot begin.
[Enter Julia.

Julia. Sir, will you come in to supper?
Card. I am busy; leave me.
Julia. [Aside.] What an excellent shape hath that fellow!
Card. 'Tis thus. Antonio lurks here in Milan:
Inquire him out, and kill him. While he lives,
Our sister cannot marry; and I have thought Of an excellent match for her. Do this, and style me Thy advancement.
Bos. But by what means shall I find him out?
Card. There is a gentleman call'd Delio 148
Here in the camp, that hath been long approv'd
His loyal friend. Set eye upon that fellow;
Follow him to mass; may be Antonio,
Although he do account religion
But a school-name, for fashion of the world 168
May accompany him; or else go inquire out
Delio's confessors; and see if you can brire
Him to reveal it. There are a thousand ways
A man might find to trace him; as to know
What fellows haunt the Jews for taking up
Great sums of money, for sure he 's in want;
Or else to go to th' picture-makers, and learn
Who bought 1 her picture lately: some of these Happily may take.
Bos. Well, I 'll not freeze i' th' business:
I would see that wretched thing, Antonio,
Above all sights i' th' world.
Card. Do, and be happy. Exit.
Bos. This fellow doth breed basilisks in 's eyes,
He 's nothing else but murder; yet he seems
Not to have notice of the duchess' death.
"Tis his cunning: I must follow his example;
There cannot be a surer way to trace
Than that of an old fox.

[Re-enter Julia, with a pistol.

Julia. So, sir, you are well met.
Bos. How now!
Julia. Nay, the doors are fast enough:
Now, sir, I will make you confess your treachery.
Bos. Treachery!
Julia. Yes, confess to me
Which of my women 't was you hired to put Love-powder into my drink?
Bos. Love powder!
Julia. Yes, when I was at Malp.
Why should I fall in love with such a face else?
I have already suffer'd for these so much pain,
The only remedy to do me good
Is to kill my longing.
Bos. Sure, your pistol holds
Nothing but perfumes or kissing-comfits. 3
Excellent lady!
You have a pretty way on 't to discover
Your longing. Come, come, I 'll disarm you,
And arm you thus: yet this is wondrous strange.
Julia. Compare thy form and my eyes togeth'r,
You 'll find my love no such great miracle.
Now you 'll say
I am wanton: this nice modesty in ladies
Is but a troublesome familiar
That haunts them.
Bos. Know you me, I am a blunt soldier.
Julia. The better:
Sure, there wants fire where there are no lively sparks
Of roughness.
Bos. And I want compliment.
Julia. Why, ignorance
In courtship cannot make you do amiss,
If you have a heart to do well.
Bos. You are very fair.
Julia. Nay, if you lay beauty to my charge,
I must plead unguilt.
Bos. Your bright eyes
Carry a quiver of darts in them, sharper
Than sun-beams. [Aside.  178
Julia. You will mar me with commend's.
Put yourself to the charge of courting me,
Whereas now I woo you.
Bos. [Aside.] I have it, I will work upon this creature,

1 So Dyce. Qu. brought.
2 Perfumed sweetness for the breath.
Let us grow most amorous familiar:
If the great cardinal now should see me thus,
Would he not count me a villain?
Julia. No; he might count me a wanton,
Not lay a scruple of offence on you;
For if I see and steal a diamond,
The fault is not 't' th' stone, but in me the thief
That purloins it. I am suddenly a woman.
We that are great women of pleasure use to out-off
These uncertain wishes and unquiet longings,
And in an instant join the sweet delight
And the pretty excuse together. Had you been
' i' th' street,
Under my chamber-window, even there
I should have courted you.
Bos. O, you are an excellent lady!
Julia. Bid me do somewhat for you presently
To express I love you.
Bos. I will; and if you love me,
Fail not to effect it.
The cardinal is grown wondrous melancholy;
Demand the cause, let him not put you off.
With feign'd excuse; discover the main ground
on 't.
Julia. Why would you know this?
Bos. I have depended on him,
And I hear that he is fall'n in some disgrace
With the emperor: if he be, like the mire
That forsake falling houses, I would shift
To other dependance.
Julia. Ye shall not need
Follow the wars: I'll be your maintenance.
Bos. And I your loyal servant: but I cannot Leave my calling.
Julia. Not leave an ungrateful
General for the love of a sweet lady!
You are like some cannot sleep in feather-beds,
But must have blocks for their pillows.
Bos. Will you do this?
Julia. Cunningly.
Bos. To-morrow I'll express th' intelligence.
Julia. To-morrow! Get you into my cabinet!
You shall have it with you. Do not delay me,
No more than I do you: I am like one
That is condemned; I have my pardon promised,
But I would see it seal'd. Go, get you in:
You shall see me wind my tongue about his heart.
Like a skein of silk.

[Exit Bosola.]

[Re-enter Cardinal.]

Card. Where are you?

[Enter Servants.]

Servants. Here.
Card. Let none, upon your lives, have conference
With the Prince Ferdinand, unless I know it.
Julia. [Aside.] In this distraction he may reveal
The murder.

[Exeunt Servants.]

Yond's 's my lingering consumption:
I am weary of her, and by easy means
Would be quit of.
Card.  No?
    Come, I will swear you to 't upon this book.
    Julia.  Most religiously.
    Card.  Kiss it. [She kisses the book.]
    Now you shall never utter it; thy curiosity has undone thee; thou 'rt poison'd with that book.
    Because I knew thee couldst not keep my counsel,
    I have bound thee to 't by death.

    [Re-enter Bosola.]

    Bos.  For pity sake, hold!
    Card.  Ha, Bosola! I forgive you
    This equal piece of justice you have done;
    For you betray'd your counsel to that fellow;
    He over-heard it; that was the cause I said
    It lay not in me to conceal it.
    Bos.  O foolish woman,
    Couldst not thou have poison'd him?
    Julia.  'Tis weakness.
    Too much to think what should have been done. I go,
    I know not whither.  [Dies.]
    Card.  Wherefore com'st thou hither?
    Bos.  That I might find a great man like yourself,
    Not out of his wits, as the Lord Ferdinand,
    To remember my service.
    Card.  I'll have thee h'ard in pieces.
    Bos.  Make not yourself such a promise of that life
    Which is not yours to dispose of.
    Card.  Who plac'd thee here?
    Bos.  Her lust, as she intended.
    Card.  Very well.
    Now you know me for your fellow-murderer.
    Bos.  And wherefore should you lay fair marble colours
    Upon your rotten purpose to me?
    Unless you imitate some that do plot great treasons,
    And when they have done, go hide themselves
    'I th' graves

    Of those were actors in 't?
    Card.  No more; there is a fortune attends thee.
    Bos.  Shall I go sue to Fortune any longer?
    'Tis the fool's pilgrimage.
    Card.  I have honours in store for thee.
    Bos.  There are many ways that conduct to seeming Honour, and some of them very dirty ones.
    Card.  Throw to the devil
    Thy melancholy. The fire burns well;
    What need we keep a stirring of 't, and make
    A greater-smother? 1 Thou wilt kill Antonio?
    Bos.  Yes.
    Card.  Take up that body.
    Bos.  I think I shall
    Shortly grow the common bier for church-yards.
    Card.  I will allow thee some dozen of attendants
    To aid thee in the murder.

    Bos.  O, by no means. Physicians that apply horse-leeches to any rank swelling use to cut off their tails, that the blood may run through them the faster; let me have no train when I go [as to shed blood, less it make me have a greater when I ride to the gallows.
    Card.  Come to me after midnight, to help to remove That body to her own lodging. I'll give out
    She died o' th' plague; 't will breed the less inquir
    After her death.
    Bos.  Where's Castruccio her husband?
    Card.  He's rode to Naples, to take possess
    Of Antonio's citadel.
    Bos.  Believe me, you have done a very happy turn.
    Card.  Fail not to come. There is the master-key
    Of our lodgings; and by that you may conceive
    What trust I plant in you.
    Bos.  You shall find me ready.
    Exit CARDINAL.

    O poor Antonio, though nothing be so needful
    To thy estate as pity, yet I find
    Nothing so dangerous! I must look to my footi
    In such slippery ice-pavements men had need
    To be frost-nail'd well, they may break their necks else;
    The precedent's here afores. How this man
    Bears up in blood! it seems fearless! Why, 'tis well.
    Security some men call the suburbs of hell,
    Only a dead wall between. Well, good Antonio,
    I'll seek thee out; and all my care shall be
    To put thee into safety from the reach
    Of these most cruel biters that have got
    Some of thy blood already. It may be,
    I'll join with thee in a most just revenge.
    The weakest arm is strong enough that strikes
    With the sword of justice. Still methinks the duchess Haunts me; there, there! — 'Tis nothing but my melancholy.
    O Penitence, let me truly taste thy cup,
    That throws men down only to raise them up!

    Exit.

    SCENE III. 2

    [Enter] ANTONIO and DELIO. ECHO (from the Duchess's Grave).

    Delio. Yond's the cardinal's window. This fortification
    Grew from the ruins of an ancient abbey;
    And to yond side o' th' river lies a wall,
    Piece of a cloister, which in my opinion
    Gives the best echo that you ever heard,
    So hollow and so dismal, and withal
    So plain in the distinction of our words,
    That many have supposed it is a spirit
    That answers.
    Ant.  I do love these ancient ruins.
    We never tread upon them but we set

    1 Emilia.
    2 A fortification.
Our foot upon some reverend history;
And, questionless, here in this open court,
Which now lies naked to the injuries
Of stormy weather, some men lie inter'd Lov'd the church so well, and gave so largely
't,
They thought it should have canopied their bones
Till dooms-day. But all things have their end; Churches and cities, which have diseases like to men,
Must have like death that we have.
Echo. Like death that we have.
Delio. Now the echo hath caught you.
Ant. It groan'd methought, and gave
A very deadly accent.
Echo. Deadly accent.
Delio. I told you 't was a pretty one. You may make it
A huntsman, or a falconer, a musician,
Or a thing of sorrow.
Echo. A thing of sorrow.
Ant. Ay, sure, that suits it best.
Echo. That suits it best.
Ant. 'T is very like my wife's voice.
Echo. Ay, wife's voice.
Delio. Come, let us walk further from 't.
I would not have you go to the cardinal's to-night:
Do not.
Echo. Do not.
Delio. Wisdom doth not more moderate waning sorrow
Than time. Take time for 't; be mindful of thy safety.
Echo. Be mindful of thy safety.
Ant. Necessity compels me.
Make scrutiny throughout the passages
Of your own life, you'll find it impossible
To fly your fate.
Echo. O, fly your fate!
Delio. Hark! the dead stones seem to have pity on you.
And give you good counsel.
Ant. Echo, I will not talk with thee,
For thou art a dead thing.
Echo. Thou art a dead thing.
Ant. My duchess is asleep now,
And her little ones, I hope sweetly. O heaven,
Shall I never see her more?
Echo. Never see her more.
Ant. I mark'd not one repetition of the echo
But that; and on the sudden a clear light
Presented me a face folded in sorrow.
Delio. Your fancy merely.
Ant. Come, I'll be out of this ague.
For to live thus is not indeed to live:
It is a mockery and abuse of life.
I will not henceforth save myself by halves;
Lose all, or nothing.
Delio. Your own virtue save you!
I'll fetch your eldest son, and second you.
It may be that the sight of his own blood
Sprawls in so sweet a figure may beget
The more compassion. However, fare you well.
Though in our miseries Fortune have a part,
Yet in our noble sufferings she hath none.
Contempt of pain, that we may call our own.
Exeunt.

Scene IV.

[Enter] CARDINAL, PESCARA, MALATESTI,
RODERIGO, and GRISOLAN.

Card. You shall not watch to-night by the sick prince;
His grace is very well recover'd.
Mal. Good my lord, suffer us.
Card. O, by no means;
The noise, and change of object in his eye,
Doth more distract him. I pray, all to bed:
And though you hear him in his whistled fit,
Do not rise, I entreat you.
Pes. So, sir; we shall not.
Card. Nay, I must have you promise
Upon your honours, for I was enjoin'd to 't
By himself; and he seem'd to urge it sensibly.
Pes. Let our honours bind this trifle.
Card. Nor any of your followers.
Mal. Neither.
Card. It may be, to make trial of your promise,
When he's asleep, myself will rise and feign
Some of his mad tricks, and cry out for help,
And feign myself in danger.
Mal. If your throat were cutting,
I'd not come at you, now I have protested against it.
Card. Why, I thank you.
Gris. 'T was a foul storm to-night.
Rod. The Lord Ferdinand's chamber shook like an osier.
Mal. 'T was nothing but pure kindness in the devil
To rock his own child.
Exeunt [all except the CARDINAL].
Card. The reason why I would not suffer
these
About my brother, is, because at midnight
I may with better privacy convey Julia's body to her own lodging. O, my conscience!
I would pray now; but the devil takes away
my heart.
For having any confidence in prayer.
About this hour I appointed Bosola To fetch the body. When he hath serv'd my turn,
He dies.

Enter [BOSOLA].

Bos. Ha! 't was the cardinal's voice; I heard him name Bosola and my death. Listen; I hear one's footing.

[Enter FERDINAND.]

Ferd. Strangling is a very quiet death.
Bos. [Aside.] Nay, then, I see I must stand upon my guard.
Ferd. What say to that? Whisper softly: do you agree to 't? So; it must be done i' th'

1 Milan. An apartment in the residence of the Cardinal and Ferdinand.
dark; the cardinal would not for a thousand pounds the doctor should see it. Exit. Bos. Banded with a black band, here’s the consequence of murder.

We value not desert nor Christian breath. When we know black deeds must be cur’d with death.

[Enter Antonio and Servant.]

Serv. Here stay, sir, and be confident, I pray; I’ll fetch you a dark lantern. Exit.
Ant. Could I take him at his prayers, There were hope of pardon.

Bos. Fall right, my sword! — [Stab him.]
I’ll not give thee so much leisure as to pray.
Ant. O, I am gone! Thou hast ended an old suit
In a minute.

Bos. What art thou?
Ant. A most wretched thing, That only have thy benefit in death, To appear myself.

[Re-enter Servant with a lantern.]

Serv. Where are you, sir?
Ant. Very near my home. — Bosola!
Serv. O, misfortune!
Bos. Smother thy pity, thou art dead else. — Antonio!
The man I would have sav’d ’bove mine own life! We are merely the stars’ tennis-balls, struck and bounded!

Which way please them. — O good Antonio, I’ll whisper one thing in thy dying ear Shall make thy heart break quickly! Thy fair duchess
And two sweet children —— Their very names
Kindle a little life in me.

Bos. Are murder’d.
Ant. Some men have wish’d to die At the hearing of sad tidings; I am glad That I shall do’t in sadness. I would not now Wish my wounds balm’d nor heal’d, for I have no use
To put my life to. In all our quest of greatness, Like wanton boys whose pastime is their care, We follow after bubbles blown in th’ air. Pleasure of life, what is ’t? Only the good hours Of an age; merely a preparative to rest, To endure vexation. I do not ask The process of my death; only commend me To Delia.

Bos. Break, heart!
Ant. And let my son fly the courts of princes. [Dies.]

Bos. Thou seem’st to have lov’d Antonio.
Serv. I besought him, To have reconcil’d him to the cardinal.
Bos. I do not ask thee that. Take him up, if thou tend’st thine own life, And bear him where the lady Julia Was wont to lodge. — O, my fate moves swift! I have this cardinal in the forge already;
Now I’ll bring him to th’ hammer. O direful misprision!

I will not imitate things glorious, No more than base, I’ll be mine own example.— On, and look thou represent, for silence, The thing thou bear’st.

SCENE V. [Enter Cardinal, with a book.

Card. I am puzzl’d in a question about hell; He says, in hell there’s one material fire, And yet it shall not burn all men alike. Lay him by. How tedious is a guilty conscience! When I look into the fish-ponds in my garden, Methinks I see a thing arm’d with a rake, That seems to strike at me.

[Enter Bosola, and Servant bearing Antonio’s body.]

Now, art thou come? Thou look’st ghastly; There sits in thy face some great determination Mix’d with some fear.
Bos. Thus it lightens into action: I am come to kill thee.
Card. He! — Help! our guard! Bos. Thou art deceiv’d; they are out of thy howling.
Card. Hold; and I will faithfully divide Revenues with thee.
Bos. Thy prayers and proffers Are both unseasonable.
Card. Raise the watch! We are betray’d! I have confin’d thy flight: I’ll suffer your retreat to Julia’s chamber, But no further.
Card. Help! we are betray’d!

[Enter, above, Prescara, Malatesti, Roderigo, and Grisolan.]

Mal. Listen.
Card. My dukedom for rescue!
Rod. Fie upon his countenance!
Mal. Why, ’t is not the cardinal.
Rod. Yes, yes, ’t is he;
But, I’ll see him hang’d ere I go down to him.
Card. Here’s a plot upon me; I am assault’d; I am lost;
Unless some rescue!
Gris. He doth this pretty well; But it will not serve to laugh me out of mine honour.
Card. The sword’s at my throat!
Rod. You would not bawl so loud then.
Mal. Come, come, let’s go to bed: he told us this much aforehand.

Psz. He wish’d you should not come at him; but, believe’t.
The accent of the voice sounds not in jest. I’ll down to him, howsoever, and with engines Force ope the doors. [Exit above.]
Rod. Let’s follow him alow.
And note how the cardinal will laugh at him.

[Exit, above, Malatesti, Roderigo, and Grisolan.]

1 Banded.
2 Reality.
3 Mistake.
4 I.e. the dead body. 5 Another apartment in the same.
Bos. There's for you first,
'Tis ready to part from me. I do glory
That thou, which stood'st like a2 hugh pyramid
Begun upon a large and ample base,
Shalt end in a little point, a kind of nothing.
[Enter, below, Pescara, Malatesti, Roderigo, and Grisolan.]

Pês. How now, my lord!
Mal. 0 sad disaster;
Rod. How comes this?

Bos. Revenge for the Duchess of Malfi murdered

By th' Aragonian brethren; for Antonio
Slain by this hand; for lustful Julia
Poison'd by this man; and lastly for myself,
That was an actor in the main of all
Much 'gainst mine own good nature, yet i' th' end Neglected.

Pês. How now, my lord!
Card. Look to my brother:
He gave us these large wounds, as we were struggling

Here i' th' rushes. And now, I pray, let me
Be laid by and never thought of. [Dies.]
Pês. How fatally, it seems, he did withstand
His own revenge!
Mal. Thou wretched thing of blood,
How came Antonio by his death?

Bos. In a mist; I know not how;
Such a mistake as I have often seen
In a play. O, I am gone!
We are only like dead walls or vaulted graves,
That, ruin'd, yields no echo. Fare you well!
It may be pain, but no harm, to me to die
In so good a quarrel. O, this gloomy world!
In what a shadow, or deep pit of darkness.
Doth womanish and fearful mankind live!
Let worthy minds ne'er stagger in distrust
To suffer death or shame for what is just:
Mine is another voyage.

Pês. The noble Delio, as I came to th' palace,
Told me of Antonio's being here, and show'd me
A pretty gentleman, his son and heir.
[Enter Delio, and Antonio's Son.]

Mal. O sir, you come too late!
Delio. I heard so, and

Was arm'd for 't, ere I came. Let us make noble
Use
Of this great ruin; and join all our force
To establish this young hopeful gentleman
In 's mother's right. These wretched eminent things:
Leave no more fame behind 'em, than should one
Fall in a frost, and leave his print in snow;
As soon as the sun shines, it ever melts,
Both form and matter. I have ever thought
Nature doth nothing so great for great men.
As when she's pleas'd to make them lords of truth:
Integrity of life is fame's best friend—
Which nobly, beyond death, shall crown the end.

Exeunt

[ACT I]

SCENE I.]¹

Enter Witgood, a gentleman, solus.

Wit. All's gone! still thou 'rt a gentleman, that's all; but a poor one, that's nothing. What milk brings thy meadows forth now? Where are thy goodly uplands, and thy downlands? All sunk into that little pit, lechery. ² Why should a gallant pay but two shillings for his ordinary that nourishes him, and twenty times two for his brothel that consumes him? But where's Longacre?³ In my uncle's conscience, which is three years' voyage about: [²] he that sets out upon his conscience ne'er finds the way home again; he is either swallowed in the quicksands of law-quillets, or splits upon the piles of a praemunire;⁴ yet these old fox-brain'd and ox-brow'd uncles have still de- [²] fences for their avarice, and apologies for their practices, and will thus greet our follies:

He that doth his youth expose
To brothel, drink, and danger,
Let him that is his nearest kin
Cheat him before a stranger:

and that's his uncle; 'tis a principle in usury.
I dare not visit the city: there I should be too soon visited by that horrible plague, my debts; and by that means I lose a virgin's love, her [²] portion, and her virtues. Well, how should a man live now that has no living? Hum, — why, are there not a million of men in the world that only sojourn upon their brain, and make their wits their mercers; and am I but one amongst that million, and cannot thrive upon 't? Any [²] trick, out of the compass of law, now would come happily to me.

Enter Courissian.

Cour. My love!

Wit. My loathing! I have been the secret consumption of your purse, and now com'st to undo my last means, my wits? Wilt leave no virtue in me, and yet thou ne'er the better? Hence, courteisan, round-web'd tarantula, That dry'st the roses in the cheeks of youth!⁵

Cour. I've been true unto your pleasure; and all your lands Thrice rack'd ⁶ was never worth the jewel which I prodigially gave you, my virginity. Lands mortgag'd may return, and more esteem'd.

But honesty ⁷ once pawner'd, is ne'er redeem'd. ⁷

Wit. Forgive; I do thee wrong
To make thee sin, and then to chide thee for 't.

Cour. I know I am your loathing now; farewell.

Wit. Stay, best invention, stay.

Cour. I that "have been the secret consumption of your purse," shall I stay now "to undo your last means, your wits? Hence, courteisan," away!

Wit. I prithee, make me not mad at my own weapon: stay (a thing few women can do), I [²]

⁴ Excessively rented.
⁵ Chastity.
know that, and therefore they had need wear stays), be not contrary. Dost love me? Fate has so cast it that all my means I must derive from thee.

COUR. From me? be happy then;

What lies within the power of my performance
Shall be commanded of thee.

WIT. Spoke like
An honest drab, i'th faith. It may prove something;
What trick is not an embryo at first,
Until a perfect shape come over it?

COUR. Come, I must help you: whereabouts left you?

I'll proceed:
Though you beget, it is I must help to breed.
Speak, what is 't? I'd fain conceive it.

WIT. So, so, so: thou shalt presently take the name and form upon thee of a rich country widow, four hundred a-year valiant² in woods, in bullocks, in barns, and in rye-stacks. We'll to London, and to my covetous uncle.

COUR. I begin to applaud thee; our states are both desperate, they are soon resolute. But how for horses?

WIT. Mass, that's true; the jest will be of some concomitance. Let me see; horses now, a bolt on'em! Stay, I have acquaintance with a mad host, never yet bawd to thee. I have rins'd the whoreson's guns in mull-sack many a time and often. Put but a good tale into his ear now, so it come off cleanly, and there's horse and man for us, I dare warrant thee.

COUR. Arm your wits then Speedily; there shall want nothing in me, Either in behaviour, discourse, or fashion, That shall discredit your intended purpose. I will so artfully disguise my wants, And set so good a courage on my state, That I will be believed.

WIT. Why, then, all's furnisht. I shall go nigh to catch that old fox, mine uncle. Though he make but some amends for my un-doing; yet there's some comfort in 't; he cannot otherwise choose (though it be but in hope to come off the again) but supply any hasty want that I bring to town with me. The device well and cunningly carried, the name of a rich widow, and four hundred a-year in good earth, will so conurage up a kind of usurer's love in him to me, that he will not only desire my presence, — which at first shall scarce be granted him, I'll keep off a purpose, — but I shall find him so officious to deserve, so ready to supply! I know the state of an old man's affection so well; if his nephew be poor indeed, why, he let's God along with him; but if he be once rich, then he'll be the first man that helps him.

COUR. 'Tis the right world; ² for, in these days, an old man's love to his kindred is like his kindness to his wife, 'tis always done before he comes at it.

WIT. I owe thee for that jest. Begone: here's all my wealth; prepare thyself, away. I'll to mine host with all possible haste; and with the best art, and most profitable form, pour the sweet circumstance into his ear, which shall have the gift to turn all the wax to honey. [Exit Courtesan.]— How now? O, the right worshipful signors of our country!

[Enter Onesiophorus Hoard, Limber, and Kix.]

O. HOA. ? Who's that?
[LIM.] O, the common rioter; take no note of him.

WIT. [Aside.] You will not see me now; the comfort is, Ere it be long you will scarce see yourselves.

[Exit.]

O. HOA. I wonder how he breathes; he's consum'd all

Upon that courtesan.

[LIM.] We have heard so much.

O. HOA. You've heard all truth. His uncle and my brother

Have been these three years mortal adversaries:
Two old tough spirits, they seldom meet but fight, Or quarrel when 'tis calmest:
I think their anger be the very fire

That keeps their age alive.

[LIM.] What was the quarrel, sir?

O. HOA. Faith, about a purchase, fetching over a young heir. Master Hoard, my brother, having wasted much time in beating the bargain, what did me old Lucrè, but as his conscience mov'd him, knowing the poor gentleman, stopt in between 'em and consented him himself.

[LIM.] And was this all, sir?

O. HOA. This was 'en it, sir; yet for all this, I know no reason but the match might go forward betwixt his wife's son and my niece; though there be a dissension between the two old men, I see no reason it should put a difference between the two younger; 'tis as it is natural for old folks to fall out, as for young to fall in. A scholar comes a-wooing to my niece; well, he's wise, but he's poor: her son comes a-wooing to my niece; well, he's a fool, but he's rich.

[LIM.] Ay, marry, sir.

O. HOA. Pray, now, is not a rich fool better than a poor philosopher?

[LIM.] One would think so, i'th faith.

O. HOA. She now remains at London with my brother, her second uncle, to learn fashions, practise music; the voice between her lips, and the viol between her legs, she'll be fit for a consort very speedily: a thousand good pound is her portion; if she marry, we'll ride up and be merry.

[KIX.] A match, if it be a match. Exeunt.

Enter at one door, Witgood, at the other, Host.

Wit. Mine host!

Host. Young Master Witgood.

Wit. I have been laying all the town for thee.

Host. Why, what's the news, bully Had- [s] land?

Wit. What geldings are in the house, of thine own? Answer me to that first.

Host. Why, man, why?

Wit. Mark me what I say: I'll tell thee such a tale in thine ear, that thou shalt trust me spite of thy teeth, furnish me with some money willy nilly, and ride up with me thyself contra voluntatem et professionem. 4

Host. How? Let me see this trick, and I'll say thou hast more art than a conjurer.

Wit. Dost thou joy in my advancement? Host. Do I love sack and ginger?

Wit. Comes my prosperity desiredly to thee?

Host. Come forfeitures to a usurer, fees to an officer, pence to an host, and pigs to a person desiredly? Why, then, la.

Wit. Will the report of a widow of four hundred a-year, boy, make thee leap, and sing; and dance, and come to thy place again?

Host. Wit! wilt thou command me now? I am thy spirit; conjure me into any shape.

Wit. Ha! ha! thou hast h' brought her from her friends, 6 turn'd back the horse of a slight; not so much as one among her six men, goody large yeomanly follows, will she trust with this her purpose: by this light, all unnam'd, 4 regardless of her estate, neglectful of vain-glorious ceremony, all for my love. O, 'tis a fine little volatile tongue, mine host, that wins a widow!

Host. No, 'tis a tongue with a great T, my boy, that wins a widow.

Wit. Now, sir, the case stands thus: good mine host, if thou lovest my happiness, assist me.

Host. Command all my beasts i' th' house, Wit. Nay, that's not all neither: prithee take truce with thy joy, and listen to me. 13 Thou know'st I have a wealthy uncle i' th' city, somewhat the wealthier by my follies. The report of this fortune, well and cunningly carried, might be a means to draw some goodness from the usuring rascal; for I have put her in hope already of some estate that I have either in land or money. Now, if I be found true in neither, what may I expect but a sudden breach of our love, utter dissolution of the match, and confusion of my fortunes for ever?

Host. Wilt thou but trust the managing of thy business with me?

Wit. Wilt thee? Why, will I desire to thrive in my purpose? Will I lug four hundred a-year, that know the misery of nothing? Will that man wish a rich widow, that has ne'er a [8 hole to put his head in? With thee, mine host? Why, believe it, sooner with thee than with a crew of counsellors.

Host. Thank you for your good report, 8 faith, sir; and if I stand you not in stead, 8 why then let an host come off hic et nunc hostis, a deadly enemy to dice, drink, and venery. Come, where's this widow?

Wit. Hard at Park-end.

Host. I'll be her serving-man for once. 8 Wit. Why, there we let off together, keep full time; my thoughts were striking then just the same number.

Host. I knew't: shall we then see our merry days again?

Wit. Our merry nights — [Aside.] which no'er shall be more seen.

Exeunt.

[SCENE III.]

Enter at several doors, old Lucrè and old Hoard; [Lamprey, Spichcock, Freedom; and Moneylove;] gentlemen coming between them to pacify them.

Lam. Nay, good Master Lucrè, and you, Master Hoard, anger is the wind which you're both too much troubled withal.

Hoa. Shall my adversary thus daily affront me, ripping up the old wound of our malice, 8 which three summers could not close up? into which wound the very sight of him drops scalding lead instead of balsamum.

Luc. Why, Hoard, Hoard, Hoard, Hoard, I may not pass in the state of quiet- 8 ness to mine own house? Answer me to that before witness, and why? I'll refer the case to honest, even-minded gentlemen, or require the mere indifferences 6 of the law to decide this matter. I got the purchase; 7 true: was 't not any man's case? Yes. Will a wise man stand as a bawd, whilst another wipes his hose 8 of the bargain? No; I answer no in that case.

Lam. Nay, sweet Master Lucrè.

Hoa. Was it the part of a friend — no, 8 rather of a Jew; — mark what I say — when I had beaten the bush to the last bird, or, as I may term it, the price to a pound, then, like a cunning usurer, to come in the evening of the bargain, and glean all my hopes in a minute? 8 to enter, as it were, at the back door of the purchase? for thou ne'er camest the right way by it.

Luc. Hast thou the conscience to tell me so without any impeachment to thyself?

Hoa. Thon that canst defeat thy own nephew, Lucrè, lap his lands into bonds, and take the extremity of thy kindred's forfeitures, because he's a riotor, a wastethrift, a brothel-master, and so forth,— what may a stranger expect 8 from thee but swinda dilacerate, as the poet says, dilacerate dealing?

Luc. Upbraided thou me with nephew? Is all imputation laid upon me? What acquaintance have I with his follies? If he riot, 'tis 8 he must want it; if he surfeit, 'tis he must feel it; if he drab it, 'tis he must lie by: what's this to me?

_Hoo._ What's all to thee? Nothing, nothing; save be the gift of thy desire and the wolf of thy conscience: but be assured, old Pecunius Lucrè, if ever fortune so bless me that I may be at leisure to vex thee, or any means so favour me that I may have opportunity to madd thee, I will pursue it with that flame of hate, as spirit of malice, unrepressed wrath, that I will blast thy comforts.

_Luc._ Ha, ha, ha!

_Lam._ Nay, Master Hoard, you're a wise gentleman—

_Hoo._ I will so cross thee—

_Luc._ And I thee.

_Hoo._ So without mercy fret thee—

_Luc._ So monstrously oppose thee—

_Hoo._ Dost soff at my just anger? O, that as I had as much power as usurp has over thee!—

_Luc._ Then thou wouldst have as much power as the devil has over thee.

_Hoo._ Toad!

_Luc._ Aspie! 2

_Hoo._ Serpent!

_Luc._ Viper!

_Spi._ Nay, gentlemen, then we must divide you perfecor.

_Lam._ When the fire grows too unreason-able hot, there's no better way than to take off the wood.

[Exeunt [LAMPREY and SPICHOOK, drawing off LUCRE and HOARD different ways].

_Free._ A word, good signior.

_Mon._ How now, what's the news?

_Free._ 'Tis given me to understand that you are a rival of mine in the love of Mistress Joyce, Master Hoard's niece: say me ay, say me no?

_Mon._ Yes, 'tis so.

_Free._ Then look to yourself, you cannot as long live. I'm practising every morning; a month hence I'll challenge you.

_Mon._ Give me your bond upon't; there's my pledge I'll meet you. _Strikes him, and exit._

_Free._ O, O! what reason had you for that, sir, to strike before the month? You knew [as I was not ready for you, and that made you so crank: I am not such a coward to strike again, I warrant you. My ear has the law of her side, for it burns horribly. I will teach him to strike a naked face, the longest day of his life. 'Slid, it shall cost me some money but I'll bring this box into the choasery._

[Scene IV.] 4

_Enter Witgood and Host._

_Host._ Fear you nothing, sir; I have lodg'd her in a house of credit, I warrant you.

_Wit._ Has he taken the writings?

_Host._ Firm, sir.

_Wit._ Prithlee, stay, and behold two the most prodigious rascals that ever alipt into the shape of men; Dampit, sirrah, and young Gulf, his fellow-caterpillar.

_Host._ Dampit? Sure I have heard of that Dampit?

_Wit._ Heard of him! Why, man, he that has lost both his ears may hear of him; a famous infamous trampler of time; his own phrase. Note him well: that Dampit, sirrah, he in the uneven beard and the serge cloak, is the most notorious, usurping, blasphemous, atheistical, brothel-vomiting rascal, that we have in these latter times now extant; whose first beginning was the stealing of a mastiff dog from a farmer's house.

_Host._ He lookt as if he would obey the commandment[s] well, when he began first with stealing.

_Wit._ True: the next town he came at, he set the dogs together by th' ears.

_Host._ A sign he should follow the law, by my faith.

_Wit._ So it followed, indeed; and being destitute of all fortunes, stak't his mastiff against a noble, 7 and by great fortune his dog had the day. How he made it up ten shillings, I know not, but his own boast is, that he came to town with but ten shillings in his purse, and now is credibly worth ten thousand pound.

_Host._ How the devil came he by it?

[Enter Dampit and Gulf.]

_Wit._ How the devil came he not by it? If you put in the devil once, riches come with a vengeance. Has been a trampler of the law, sir; and the devil has a care of his footmen. The rogue has spied me now; he nibbled me finely once, too:—a pox search you!—O, Master Dampit!—the very loins of thee!—Cry thou mercy, Master Gulf; you walk so low, I promise you I saw you not, sir.

_Gulf._ That walks low walks safe, the poets tell us.

_Wit. [Aside.] And nigher hell by a foot and a half than the rest of his fellows. —But, my old Harry!

_Dam._ My sweet Theodorus!

_Wit._ T was a merry world when thou cam'st to town with ten shillings in thy purse.

_Dam._ And now worth ten thousand pound, my boy. Report it; Harry Dampit, a trampler of time, say, he would be up in a morning, 8 and be here with his serge gown, dash it up in a cause; have his feet stink about Westminster Hall, and come home again; see the galleons, the galleys, 9 the great armadas of the law; then there be hovys and petty vessels, ears and scullers of the time; there be picklocks of the time too; then would I be here; I would trample up and down like a mule: now to the judge. May it please your reverend honourable fatherhood, 10 then to my counsellor, "May it please your worshipful

Wit. And when to the cellar again?

Dam. When thou wilt again : trampers of time, motions of Fleet Street, and visions of Holborn; here I have fees of one, there I have fees of another; my clients come about me, the fooliaminy and coxcombry of the country: I still trasht and trotted for other men's causes. Thus was poor Harry Dampit [8s made rich by others' laziness, who though they would not follow their own suits, I made 'em follow me with their purses.

Wit. Didst thou so, old Harry?

Dam. Ay, and I sous'd 'em with bills of [8s charge, i faith; twenty pound a-year have I in boat-hire, and I ne'er stepped into boat in my life.

Wit. Trampers of time!

Dam. Ay, trampers of time, rascals of [8s time, bull-beggars!

Wit. Ah, thou'rt a mad old Harry! — Kind Master Gulf, I am bold to renew my acquaintance.

Gulf. I embrace it, sir. Exeunt.

MUSIC

ACT II

[SCENE I.]

ENTER LUCKE.

Luc. My adversary evermore twits me with my nephew, forsooth, my nephew: why may not a virtuous uncle have a dissolute nephew? What though he be a brotheller, a wastethrift, a common surfeiter, and, to conclude, a beggar, must sin in him call up shame in me? Since we have no part in their follies, why should we have part in their infamy? For my strict hand toward his mortgage, that I deny not: I confess I had an uncle's pen'worth; [10 let me see, half in half, true. I saw neither hope of his reclaiming, nor comfort in his being; and was it not then better bestow'd upon his uncle than upon one of his aunts? — I need not say bawd, for every one knows what "aunt" stands for in the last translation.

[Enter Servant.]

Now, Sir?

Serv. There's a country serving-man, sir, attends to speak with your worship.

Luc. I'm at best leisure now; send him in [8s to me.

[Exit Servant.]

Enter Host like a serving-man.

Host. Bless your venerable worship.

Luc. Welcome, good fellow.

Host. [Aside.] He calls me thief at first sight, yet he little thinks I am an host.

Luc. What's thy business with me?

Host. Faith, sir, I am sent from my mistress to any sufficient gentleman indeed, to ask advice upon a doubtful point: 'tis indifferent, sir, to whom I come, for I know none, nor [8s did my mistress direct me to any particular man, for she's as mere a stranger here as myself; only I found your worship within, and 'tis a thing I ever lov'd, sir, to be despatched as soon as I can.

Luc. [Aside.] A good, blunt honesty; I like him well.—What is thy mistress?

Host. Faith, a country gentlewoman, and a widow, sir. Yesterday was the first flight of us; but now she intends to stay till a little [8s term business be ended.

Luc. Her name, I prithee?

Host. It runs there in the writings, sir, among her lands; Widow Medler.

Luc. Medler? Mass, have I ne'er heard [8s of that widow?

Host. Yes, I warrant you, have you, sir; not the rich widow in Staffordshire?

Luc. Cuda [8s me, there 'tis indeed; thou hast put me into memory. There's a widow in [8s deed; ah, that I were a bachelor again!

Host. No doubt your worship might do much then; but she's fairly promised to a bachelor already.

Luc. Ah, what is he, I prithee?

Host. A country gentleman too; one of whom your worship knows not, I'm sure; he's spent some few follies in his youth, but marriage, by my faith, begins to call him home. My mistress loves him, sir, and love covers faults, you [8s know: one Master Witgood, if ever you have heard of the gentleman.

Luc. Ha! Witgood, sayst thou?

Host. That's his name indeed, sir; my mistress is like to bring him to a goodly seat [8s yonder; four hundred a-year, by my faith.

Luc. But, I pray, take me with you.

Host. Ay, sir.

Luc. What countryman might this young Witgood be?

Host. A Leicestershire gentleman, sir.

Luc. [Aside.] My nephew, by th' mass, my nephew! I'll fetch out more of this, i' faith: a simple country fellow, I'll work 't out of him. — And is that gentleman, sayst thou, presently to marry her?

Host. Faith, he brought her up to town, sir; he's the best card in all the bunch for 't, her heart; and I know my mistress will be married ere she go down; 10 nay, I'll swear that, for [8s she's none of those widows that will go down first, and be married after; she hates that, I can tell you, sir.

Luc. By my faith, sir, she is like to have a proper gentleman, and a comedy; I'll give her that gift.

Host. Why, does your worship know him, sir?

Luc. I know him? Does not all the world know him? Can a man of such exquisite qualities be hid under a bushel?

Host. Then your worship may save me a labour, for I had charge given me to inquire after him.

Luc. Inquire of him? If I might counsel thee, thou should'st ne'er trouble thyself further; inquire of him no more, but of me; I'll fit thee. I grant he has been youthful; but is he not now reclaim'd? Mark you, sir: has not your mistress, think you, been wanton in her youth? If men be wages, are there not women wags tails?

Host. No doubt, sir.

Luc. Does not he return wisest that comes home whipt with his own follies?

Host. Why, very true, sir.

Luc. The worst report you can hear of him, I can tell you, is that he has been a kind gentleman, a liberal, and a worthy; who but lusty Witgood, thrice-noble Witgood!

Host. Since your worship has so much knowledge in him, can you resolve me, sir, what his living might be? My duty binds me, sir, to have a care of my mistress' estate; she has been ever a good mistress to me, though I say it. Many wealthy suitors has she nonsuit for his sake; yet, though her love be so fixt, a man cannot tell whether his non-performance may help to remove it, sir; he makes us believe he has lands and living.

Luc. Who, young Master Witgood? Why, believe it, he has as goodly a fine living out yonder, what do you call the place?

Host. Nay, I know not, 1 faith.

Luc. Host. — see, like a beast, if I have not forgot the name — pooh! and out yonder, again goodly woods and fair meadows: pax 1 on 't, I can ne'er hit of that place neither. — He? Why, he's Witgood of Witgood Hall; he an unknown thing!

Host. Is he so, sir? To see how rumour will alter! Trust me, sir, we heard once he had no lands, but all lay mortgage'd to an uncle he has in town here.

Luc. Push! 'tis a tale, 'tis a tale.

Host. I can assure you, sir, 'tis credibly reported to my mistress.

Luc. Why, do you think, 1 faith, he was ever so simple to mortgage his lands to his uncle, or his uncle so unnatural to take the extremity of such a mortgage?

Host. That was my saying still, sir.

Luc. Pooh, ne'er think it.

Host. Yet that report goes current.

Luc. Nay, then you urge me:

Cannot I tell that best that am his uncle?

1 A corruption of "pax."

Host. How, sir? what have I done!

Luc. Why, how now? In a swoon, man?

Host. Is your worship his uncle, sir?

Luc. Can that be any harm to you, sir?

Host. I do beseech you, sir, do me the favour to conceal it. What a beast was I to utter so much! Pray, sir, do me the kindness to keep it in; I shall have my coat pull'd o'er my ears, an't should be known; for the truth is, an't please your worship, to prevent much rumour and many suitors, they intend to be married very suddenly and privately.

Luc. And dost thou think it stands with my judgment to do them injury? Must I needs say the knowledge of this marriage comes from thee? Am I a fool at fifty-four? Do I lack subtlety now, that have got all my wealth by it? There's a leach of angels 2 for thee: come, let me woo thee speak where lie they?

Host. So I might have no anger, sir.

Luc. Passion of me, not a jot; prithee, come.

Host. I would not have it known, sir, it came by my means.

Luc. Why, am I a man of wisdom?

Host. I dare trust your worship; sir; but I'm a stranger to your house; and to avoid all intelligencers, I desire your worship's ear.

Luc. [Aside.] This fellow's worth a matter of trust. — Come, sir. [Host whispers to him.] Why, now, thou'rt an honest lad. — Ah, sirrah, nephew!

Host. Please you, sir, now I have begun with your worship, when shall I attend for your advice upon that doubtful point? I must come warily now.

Luc. Tut, fear thou nothing; to-morrow's evening shall resolve the doubt.

Host. The time shall cause my attendance.

Exit.

Luc. Fare thee well. — There's more true honesty in such a country serving-man than in a hundred of our cloak companions: 4 I may well call 'em companions, 4 for since blue coats have been turn'd into cloaks, we can scarce know the man from the master. — George! 100

[Enter George.]

Geo. Anon, sir.

Luc. List hither: [whispers] keep the place secret: commend me to my nephew; I know no cause, tell him, but he might see his uncle. Geo. I will, sir.

Luc. And, do you hear, sir?

Take heed to use him with respect and duty.

Geo. [Aside.] Here's a strange alteration; one day he must be turn'd out like a beggar, and now he must be call'd in like a knight.

Exit.

Luc. Ah, sirrah, that rich widow! — four hundred a-year! beside, I hear she lays claim to a title of a hundred more. This falls unhappily that he should bear a grudge to me now, being likely to prove so rich. What [100]

is’t, trow, that he makes me a stranger for? Hum,—I hope he has not so much wit to apprehend that I cozened him; he deceives me then. Good Heaven, who would have thought it would ever have come to this pass! Yet, it’s a proper gentleman, I’ll faith, give him his due,—marry, that’s his mortgage; but that I never mean to give him. I’ll make him rich enough in words, if but be good; and if it come to a piece of money, I will not greatly stick for’t; there may be some hope of one of the widow’s lands, too, may one day fall upon me, if things be carried wisely.

[Re-enter George.]

Now, sir, where is he?
Geo. He desires your worship to hold him [excus’d; he has such weighty business, it commands him wholly from all men.
Luc. Were those my nephew’s words?
Geo. Yes, indeed, sir.
Luc. [Aside.] When men grow rich, they grow proud too, I perceive that. He would not have sent me such an answer once within this twelvemonth: see what ‘t is when a man comes to his lands! Return to him again, sir; tell him his uncle desires his company for an hour; if I’ll trouble him but an hour, say; ‘t is for his own good, tell him; and, do you hear, sir? put “worship” upon him. Go to, do as I bid you; he’s to be a gentleman of worship very shortly.

Geo. [Aside.] This is good sport, i’ faith. It.
Luc. Troth, he uses his uncle discourteously now. Can he tell what I may do for him? Goodness may come from me in a minute, that comes not in seven year again. He knows my hu [mourn; I am not so usually good; ‘t is no small thing that draws kindness from me, he may know that an he will. The chief cause that invites me to do him most good is the sudden astonishment of old Hoard, my adversary. How pale his malice will look at my nephew’s advancement! With what a dejected spirit he will behold his fortunes, whom but last day he proclaimed rister, penurious makeshift, despised brothel-master! Haha! ‘t will do me more secret joy than my last purchase, more precious comfort than all these widow’s revenues.

[Re-enter George, showing in] Witgood.

Now, sir?
Geo. With much extremity he’s at length come, sir.
[Exit.
Luc. O, nephew, let me salute you, sir. You’re welcome, nephew.
Wit. Uncle, I thank you.
Luc. You’ve a fault, nephew; you’re a stranger here. Well, Heaven give you joy!
Wit. Of what, sir?
Luc. Hah, we can hear!
You might have known your uncle’s house, i’ faith,
You and your widow: go to, you were to blame:

If I may tell you so without offence.
Wit. How could you hear of that, sir?
Luc. O, pardon me!
’T was your will to have kept it from me, I perceive now.
Wit. Not for any defect of love, I protest, uncle.
Luc. Oh, ‘t was unkindness, nephew! fie, fie, fie.
Wit. I am sorry you take it in that sense, sir.
Luc. Pooh, you cannot colour it, i’ faith, [nephew.
Wit. Will you but hear what I can say in my just excuse, sir?
Luc. Yes, faith, will I, and welcome.
Wit. You that know my danger i’ th’ city, sir, so well, how great my debts are, and how extreme my creditors, could not out of your pure judgment, sir, have waisht us hither.
Luc. Mass, a firm reason indeed.
Wit. Else, my uncle’s house! why, ‘t had been the only make-match.
Luc. Nay, and thy credit.
Wit. My credit? Nay, my countenance. Pish, nay, I know, uncle, you would have wrought it so by your wit, you would have made her believe in time the whole house had been mine.
Luc. Ay, and most of the goods too.
Wit. La, you there! Well, let ’em all prate what they will, there’s nothing like the bringing of a widow to one’s uncle’s house.
Luc. Nay, let nephews be rul’d as they list, they shall find their uncle’s house the most natural place when all’s done.
Wit. There they may be bold.
Luc. Life, they may do anything there, [excus’d; fear neither beadle nor summoner. An uncle’s house! a very Cole-Harbour. Sirrah, I’ll touch thee near now: hast thou so much interest in thy widow, that by a token thou couldst presently send for her?
Wit. Troth, I think I can, uncle.
Luc. Go to, let me see that.
Wit. Fray, command one of your men hither, uncle.
Luc. George!

[Re-enter George.]

Geo. Here, sir.
Luc. Attend my nephew. [Witgood whispers to George, who then goes out.] — [Aside.] I love a life to prattle with a rich widow; ‘t is pretty, methinks, when our tongues go together: and then to promise much and perform little. I love that sport a life, i’ faith; yet I am in the mood now to do my nephew some good, if he take me handsomely. What, have you despatch’t?
Wit. I ha’ sent, sir.
Luc. Yet I must condemn you of unkindness, nephew.
Wit. Heaven forbid, uncle!
Luc. Yes, faith, must I. Say your debts be many, your creditors importunate, yet the kind—ness of a thing is all, nephew: you might have sent me a close word on't, without the least deception or prejudice to your fortunes.

Wit. Troth, I confess it, uncle; I was to blame there; but, indeed, my intent was to have clapt it up suddenly, and so have broke forth like a joy to my friends, and a wonder to the world. Beside, there's a trifle of a forty pound matter toward the setting of me forth; [as] my friends should never have known on't; I meant to make shift for that myself.

Luc. How, nephew? let me not hear such a word again, I beseech you. Shall I be beholding
to you?

Wit. To me? Alas, what do you mean, uncle?

Luc. I charge you, upon my love, you trouble
nobody but myself.

Wit. You've no reason for that, uncle.

Luc. Troth, I'll never be friends with you
while you live, an you do.

Wit. Nay, if you say so, uncle, here's my hand; I will not do't.

Luc. Why, well said! there's some hope in thee when thou wilt be rul'd. I'll make it [as] up fifty, faith, because I see thee so reclaim'd.
Peace; here comes my wife with Sam, her
t'other husband's son.

[Enter Mistress Lucre and Freedom.]

Wit. Good aunt.

Fre. Cousin Witgood, I rejoice in your salute;
you're most welcome to this noble city, gov-
ern'd with the sword in the scabbard.

Wit. [Aside.] And the wit in the pomell. —
Good master Sam Freedom, I return the salute.

Luc. By the mass, she's a coming, wife; let [as] me see how thou wilt entertain her.

Mis. L. I hope I am not to learn, sir, to entertain a widow; 'tis not so long since I was myself.

[Enter Countess.]

Wit. Uncle —

Luc. She's come indeed.

Wit. My uncle was desirous to see you, widow, and I presumed to invite you.

Cour. The presumption was nothing, Master
Witgood. Is this your uncle, sir?

Luc. Marry am I, sweet widow; and his good uncle he shall find me; ay, by this smack that
I give thee, thou 'rt welcome. — Wife, bid the widow welcome the same way again.

Fre. [Aside.] I am a gentleman now too by my father's occupation, and I see no reason but I may kiss a widow by my father's copy: truly,
I think the charter is not against it; surely these are the words. 'The son once a gentleman may revel it, though his father were a dunbar;' 't's about the fifteenth page: I'll to her.
[Offers to kiss the Countess, who repulses
him.]

Luc. You're not very busy now; a word with thee, sweet widow.

Fre. Coads-niga! I was never so disgrac'd since the hour. My mother whipt me.

Luc. Beside, I have no child of mine own to care for; she's my second wife, old, past bearing; clap sure to him, widow; he's like to be my heir, I can tell you.

Cour. Is he so, sir?

Luc. He knows it already, and the knave's proud on't; jolly rich widows have been offer'd him here i' th' city, great merchants' wives; and do you think he will once look upon [as]
'em? Forsooth, he'll none. You are beholding to him i' th' country, then, are we could be:
nay, I'll hold a washer, widow, if he were once known to be in town, he would be presently [as] sought after; nay, and happy were they that could catch him first.

Cour. I think so.

Luc. O, there would be such running to and fro, widow! He should not pass the streets for 't, he'd be took up in one great house or i' th' other presently: faith! they know he has it, and must have it. You see this house here, widow; this house and all comes to him; goody rooms, ready furnish'd, ceil'd with plaster [as] of Paris, and all hang about with cloth of armes.

—Nephew.

Wit. Sir.

Luc. Show the widow your house; carry her into all the rooms, and bid her welcome. — [As to her.] You shall see, widow. [Aside to Witgood.]
Nephew, strike all sure above an thou beest a good boy, — ah!

Mis. Alas, sir, I know not how she would take it!

Luc. The right way, I warrant t'ee. A pox, art an am? Would I were in thy stead I get you up, I am ashamed of you. [Exeunt Wit good and Countess.] So let 'em agree as they will now: many a match has been struck up in my house at this fashion: let 'em try all manner of ways, still there's nothing like an uncle's house to strike the stroke in. I'll hold my wife in talk a little. — Now Jenny, your son there goes a-wooing to a poor gentlewoman but of [as] a thousand pound portion: see my nephew, a lad of less hope, strikes at four hundred a-year in good rubbish.

Mis. L. Well, we must do as we may, sir.

Luc. I'll have his money ready told for him again5 he come down. Let me see, too; by — [as]
'th' mass, I must present the widow with some jewel, a good piece a plate, or such a device;
it will hearten her on well. I have a very fair standing cup; and a good high standing cup [as] will please a widow above all other pieces.

Exit.

Mis. L. Do you mock us with your nephew?

— I have a plot in my head, son; — ' t' faith, husband, to crown you.

Fre. Is it a tragedy plot, or a comedy plot, good mother?

Mis. L. 'Tis a plot shall vex him. I charge you, of my blessing, son Sam, that you presently

1 Secret.

trade guilds of London.

5 A corrupt oath: God's niga.
6 Against, by the time that.
withdraw the action of your love from Master Hoard's niece.

Free. How, mother?

Mis. L. Nay, I have a plot in my head; I' faith.
Here, take this chain of gold, and this fair diam-mond: dog me the widow home to her lodging, and at thy best opportunity, fasten 'em [as] both upon her. Nay, I have a reach: I can tell you thou art known what thou art, son, among the right worshipful, all the twelve companions.

Free. Truly, I thank 'em for it.

Mis. L. He? he's a snob to thee: and so cert-tify her thou hast two hundred a-year of thyself, besides thy good parts—a proper person and a lovely. If I were a widow, I could find in my heart to have thee myself, son; ay, [as] from 'em all.

Free. Thank you for your good will, mother;
but, indeed, I had rather have a stranger: and if I woo her not in that violent fashion, that we
I will make her be glad to take these gifts ere I leave her, let me never be called the heir of your body.

Mis. L. Nay, I know there's enough in you, son, if you once come to put it forth.

Free. I'll quickly make a bolt or a shaft
on 't.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Hoard and Moneylove.

Mon. Faith, Master Hoard, I have bestowed many months in the suit of your niece, such was the dear love I ever bore to her virtues: but since she hath so extremely denied me, I am to lay out for my fortunes elsewhere.

Hoa. Heaven forbid but you should, sir! I ever told you my niece stood otherwise affected.

Mon. I must confess you did, sir; yet, in regard of my great loss of time, and the zeal with which I sought your niece, shall I desire one [as] favour of your worship?

Hoa. In regard of those two, 'tis hard but you shall, sir.

Mon. I shall rest grateful: 'tis not full three hours, sir, since the happy rumour of a rich [as] country widow came to my hearing.

Hoa. How? a rich country widow?

Mon. Four hundred a-year landed.

Hoa. Yes?

Mon. Most firm, sir; and I have learnt her lodging. Here my suit begins, sir; if I might but entreat your worship to be a countenance for me, and speak a good word (for your words will pass), I nothing doubt but I might set fair for the widow; nor shall your labour, sir, end altogether in thanks; two hundred angels—

Hoa. So, so: what suitors has she?

Mon. There lies the comfort, sir; the report of her is yet but a whisper; and only solicited

by young riotous Witgood, nephew to your mortal adversary.

Hoa. Ha! art certain he's her suitor?

Mon. Most certain, sir; and his uncle very industrious to beguile the widow, and make up the match.

Hoa. So: very good.

Mon. Now, sir, you know this young Witgood is a spendthrift, dissolute fellow.

Hoa. A very rascal.

Mon. A midnight surfeiter.

Hoa. The spume of a brothel-house.

Mon. True, sir; which being well told in your worship's phrase, may both heave him out of her mind, and drive a fair way for me to the widow's affections.

Hoa. Attend me about five.

Mon. With my best care, sir. *Exit.

Hoa. Fool, thou hast left thy treasure with a thief, To trust a widower with a suit in love! Happy revenge, I hug thee! I have not only [as] means laid before me, extremely to cross my adversary, and confound the last hopes of his nephew, but thereby to enrich my estate, augment my revenues, and build mine own fortunes greater: ha, ha!

*I'll mar your phrase, o'erturn your flattery,
Undo your windings, policies, and plots,
Fall like a secret and despatched plague
On your secured comforts. Why, I am able To buy three of Lucre; thrice outbid him,
Let my out-monies be reckoned and all.*

Enter three of Witgood's Creditors.

[Creditors.] 1 [Cred.] I am glad of this news,
2 [Cred.] So are we, by my faith,
3 [Cred.] Young Witgood will be a gallant again now.

Hoa. Peace. [Listening.]

1 Cred. I promise you, Master Cockpit, she's a mighty rich widow.
2 Cred. Why, have you ever heard of her?
1 Cred. Who? Widow Medler? She lies [as] open to much rumour.

3 Cred. Four hundred a-year, they say, in very good land.

1 Cred. [Nay,] take 't of my word, if you believe that, you believe the least.
2 Cred. And to see how close he keeps it!
1 Cred. O, sir, there's policy in that, to prevent better suitors.

3 Cred. He owes me a hundred pound, and I protest I ne'er lookt for a penny.

1 Cred. He little dreams of our coming; he'll wonder to see his creditors upon him.

Exit Creditors.

Hoa. Good, his creditors: I'll follow. This makes for me:
All know the widow's wealth; and 'tis well
known
I can estate her fairly, ay, and will.

In this one chance shines a twice happy fate;
I both deject my foe and raise my state.

MUSIC.
ACT III

[Scene I.]

[Enter] Witgood with his Creditors.

Wit. Why, alas, my creditors, could you find no other time to undo me but now? Rather your malice appears in this than the justness of the debt.

1 Cred. Master Witgood, I have forborne [my money long.

Wit. I pray, speak low, sir: what do you mean?

2 Cred. We hear you are to be married suddenly to a rich country widow.

Wit. What can be kept so close but you creditors hear on’t! Well, ’tis a lamentable state, that our chiefest afflictors should first hear of our fortunes. Why, this is no good course, ’r faith, sirs: if ever you have hope to be satisfied, why do you seek to confound the means that should work it? There’s neither piety, no, nor policy in that. Shine favourably now: why, I may rise and spread again, to your great comfort.

1 Cred. He says true, ’r faith.

Wit. Remove me now, and I consume for ever.

2 Cred. Sweet gentleman!

Wit. How can it thrive which from the sun you never?

3 Cred. It cannot, indeed.

Wit. O, then, show patience! I shall have enough

To satisfy you all.

Cred.

Ay, if we could

Be content, a shame take us!

Wit. For, look you; I am but newly sure2 yet to the widow,

And what a rend this discredit make! Within these three days will I bind you lands For your securities.

1 Cred. No, good Master Witgood: Would ’t were as much as we dare trust you with!

Wit. I know you have been kind; however, now,

Either by wrong report or false incitements,

Your gentleness is injured: in such a state as this a man cannot want foes. If on the sudden he begin to rise,

No man that lives can count his enemies. You had some intelligence, I warrant ye,

From an ill-willer.

2 Cred. Faith, we heard you brought up a rich widow, sir, and were suddenly to marry her.

Wit. Ay, why there it was; I knew ’twas so: but since you are so well resolv’d, of my faith toward you, let me be so much favour’d of you, I beseech you all —

All. O, it shall not need, ’r faith, sir! —

Wit. As to lie still awhile, and bury my debts in silence, till I be fully posest of the widow; for the truth is — I may tell you as my friends —

All. O, O, O! —

Wit. I am to raise a little money in the city, toward the setting forth of myself, for my own credit and your comfort. Now, if my former debts should be divulg’d, all hope of my proceedings were quite extinguish’d.

1 Cred. Do you hear, sir? I may deserve your custom hereafter; pray, let my money be accepted before a stranger’s. Here’s forty pound I receiv’d as I came to you; if that may stand you in any stead, make use on’t. [Offers his money, which he at first declines.] Nay, pray, sir: ’tis at your service.

Wit. You do so ravish me with kindness, that I am constrain’d to play the maid, and take it. 1 Cred. Let none of them see it, I beseech you.

Wit. Faugh!

1 Cred. I hope I shall be first in your remembrance.

After the marriage rites.

Wit. Believe it firmly.

1 Cred. So. — What, do you walk, sir? 2 Cred. I go. — [Aside to Witgood.] — Take no care, sir, for money to furnish you; within this hour I send you sufficient. Come, Master Cockpit, we both stay for you.

3 Cred. I ha’ lost a ring, ’r faith; I’ll follow you presently [except 1 and 2 Creditors] but [as you shall find it, sir. I know your youth and expenses have disfurnisht you of all jewels: there’s a ruby of twenty pound price, sir; bestow it upon your widow. [Offers him the ring, which he at first declines.] — What, man I ’t [will call up her blood to you; besides, if I might so much work with you, I would not have you beholding to those bloodsuckers for any money.

Wit. Not I, believe it.

3 Cred. They’re a brace of cut-throats.

Wit. I know ’em.

3 Cred. Send a note of all your wants to my shop, and I’ll supply you instantly.

Wit. Say you so? Why, here’s my hand then, no man living shall do ’t but thyself.

3 Cred. Shall I carry it away from ’em both, then?

Wit. I faith, shalt thou.

Wit. Truth, then, I thank you, sir.

Wit. Welcome, good Master Cockpit. Exit [3 Creditors]. — Ha, ha, ha! why, is not this better now than lying a-bed? I perceive there’s nothing conjures up wit sooner than poverty, and nothing lays it down sooner than wealth and lechery: this has some savour yet. O that [as I had the mortgage from mine uncle as sure in possession as these tritels I would forswear brothel at noonday, and muscadine4 and eggs, at midnight.

Enter Courtesan.

Cour. Master Witgood, where are you?

Wit. Holla! Cour. Rich news!

Wit. Would ’t were all in plate!

4 A sweet wine, taken with eggs as an aphrodisiac.
for in choosing wives and husbands I am only [s fortunate; I have that gift given me. Exit.

Joy. But 'tis not likely you should choose

for me,

Since nephew to your chiefest enemy

Is he whom I affect: but, O, forgetful!

Why dost thou flatter thy affections so.

With name of him that for a widow's bed

Neglects thy purer love? Can it be so,

Or does report dissemble?

[Enter GEORGE.]

Geo. A letter, with which came a private charge.

Joy. Therein I thank your care.

[Enter GEORGE.]

——I know this hand —

(Reads.) Dearer than sight, what the world reports of me, yet believe not; rumour will alter shortly: be thou constant; I am still the same that I was in love, and I hope to be the same in fortunes.

Theodorus Witgood.

I am resolv'd: no more shall fear or doubt

Raise their pale powers to keep affection out.

Exit.

[Scene III.]

Enter, with a Drawer, HOARD and two Gentle-

men.

Dra. You're very welcome, gentlemen. —

Dick, show those gentlemen the Pomegranate 4

there.

Hoa. Hist!

Dra. Up those stairs, gentlemen. 8

Hoa. Hist! drawer!

Dra. Anon, sir.

Hoa. Prithée, ask at the bar if a gentlewoman came not in lately.

Dra. William, at the bar, did you see any [a gentlewoman come in lately? Speak you ay, speak you no?

Within. No, none came in yet, but Mistress

Florence.

Dra. He says none came in yet, sir, but one [s

Mistress Florence.

Hoa. What is that Florence? A widow?

Dra. Yes, a Dutch widow.

Hoa. How?

Dra. That's an English drab, sir: give your worship good morrow. [Exit.]

Hoa. A merry knave, i' faith! I shall remember a Dutch widow the longest day of my life.

1 Gent. Did not I use most art to win the

widow? 6

2 Gent. You shall pardon me for that, sir;

Master Hoard knows I took her at best vantage.

Hoa. What's that, sweet gentlemen, what's that?

2 Gent. He will needs bear me down, that his art only wrought with the widow most.

Hoa. O, you did both well, gentlemen, you did both well, I thank you.

1 Gent. I was the first that mov'd her.

Hoa. You were, i' faith.

2 Gent. But it was I that took her at the bound.

Hoa. Ay, that was you: faith, gentlemen,

't is right.

3 Gent. I boasted least, but 't was I join'd their hands.

Hoa. By th' mass, I think he did: you did all well,

Gentlemen, you did all well: contend no more.

1 Gent. Come, you room's fittest.

Hoa. True, 'tis next the door. Exeunt.

Enter WITGOOD, Courtesan, Host [and Drawer].

Dra. You're very welcome: please you to walk up stairs; cloth's laid, sir.

Cour. Up stairs? Troth, I am very weary,

Master Witgood.

Wit. Rise yourself here awhile; widow; we'll have a cup of muscadine in this little room.

Dra. A cup of muscadine? You shall have the best, sir.

Wit. But, do you hear, sirrah?

Dra. Do you call? Anon, sir.

Wit. What is there provided for dinner?

Dra. I cannot readily tell you, sir: if you please you may go into the kitchen and see [a yourself, sir: many gentlemen of worship do use to do it, I assure you, sir. Exit.

Host. A pretty familiar, prigging rascal; he has his part without book.

Wit. Against you are ready to drink to me, widow, I'll be present to pledge you.

Cour. Nay, I commend your care, 'tis done well of you. [Exit Witgood.] — 'Las, what have

I forgot! Exit.

Host. What, mistress?

Cour. I alipt my wedding ring off when I washt, and left it at my lodging. Prithée, run;

I shall be sad without it. [Exit Host.] — So,

he's gone. Boy!

[Enter Boy.]

Roy. Anon, forsooth.

Cour. Come hither, sirrah: learn secret if one Master Hoard, an ancient gentleman, be about house.

Roy. I heard such a one nam'd.

Cour. Command me to him.

Re-enter HOARD and Gentlemen.

Hoa. Ay, boy, do thy commendations.

Cour. O, you come well: away, to boat, begone.

Hoa. Thus wise men are reveng'd, give two for one. Exeunt.

Re-enter WITGOOD and Vintner.

Wit. I must request

You, sir, to show extraordinary care:

My uncle comes with gentlemen, his friends,

And 't is upon a making. 4

1 Convinc'd.
2 A tavern.
4 Matching.

6 Rooms in taverns had such individual names.
VIN.

Is it so?

I'll give a special charge, good Master Wit-
good.

May I be bold to see her?

WIT.

Who? the widow?

With all my heart, i'faith, I'll bring you to her.

VIN. If she be a Staffordshire gentlewoman, 'tis much if I know her not.

WIT. How now? Boy! drawer!

VIN. He! 90

[Re-enter Boy.]

BOY. Do you call, sir?

WIT. Went the gentlewoman up that was here?

BOY. Up, sir? She went out, sir.

WIT. Out, sir?

BOY. Out, sir: one Master Hoard, with a guard of gentlemen, carried her out at back door, a pretty while since, sir.

WIT. Hoard? Death and darkness! Hoard?

[Re-enter Host.]

HOST. The devil of ring I can find.

WIT. How now? What news? Where's the widow?

HOST. My mistress? Is she not here, sir?

WIT. More madness yet!

HOST. She sent me for a ring. 105

WIT. A plot, a plot! — To boat! she's stole away.

HOST. What?

Enter Lucrèce and Gentlemen.

WIT. Follow! Inquire old Hoard, my uncle's adversary. [Exit Host.]

LUC. Nephew, what's that?

WIT. Thrice-miserable wretch!

LUC. Why, what's the matter?

VIN. The widow's borne away, sir.

LUC. Ha! passion of me! — A heavy welcome, gentlemen.

1 Gent. The widow gone?

LUC. Who durst attempt it?

WIT. Who but old Hoard, my uncle's adversary?

LUC. How?

WIT. With his confederates.

LUC. Hoard, my deadly enemy? — Gentlemen, stand to me.

I will not bear it; 'tis in hate of me;

That villain seeks my shame, nay, thirsts my blood;

He owes me mortal malice.

I'll spend my wealth on this despicable plot,

Ere he shall cross me and my nephew thus. 125

WIT. So maliciously!

Re-enter Host.

LUC. How now, you treacherous rascal?

HOST. That's none of my name, sir.

WIT. Poor soul, he knew not on 't!

LUC. I'm sorry. I see then 'twas a mere plot.

HOST. I trust'd 'em nearly —

LUC. Well?

HOST. And hear for certain.

They have took Cole-Harbour.

LUC. The devil's sanctuary!

They shall not rest; I'll pluck her from his arms —

Kind and dear gentlemen,

If ever I had seats within your breasts — 135

1 Gent. No more, good sir; it is a wrong to us.

To see you injur'd; in a cause so just

We'll spend our lives but we will right our friends.

LUC. Honest and kind! come we've delay'd too long;

Nephew, take comfort; a just cause is strong.

Exeunt [all but WITGOOD]. 150

WIT. That's all my comfort, uncle. Ha, ha, ha!

Now may events fall luckily and well;

He that ne'er strives, says wit, shall ne'er excel.

[Exit.]

[Scene IV.] 1

Enter Dampit, the usurer, drunk.

DAM. When did I say my prayers? In anno 88, when the great armada was coming; and in anno 99, when the great thunder and lightning was, I pray'd heartily then, 't faith, to overthrow Poovies' new buildings; I kneeled by [a my great iron chest, I remember.

[Enter Aubrey.]

AUD. Master Dampit, one may hear you before they see you: you keep sweet hours, Master Dampit; we were all a-bed three hours ago.

DAM. Aubrey?

AUD. O, you're a fine gentleman!

DAM. So I am 't faith, and a fine scholar. Do you use to go to bed so early, Aubrey?

AUD. Call you this early, Master Dampit?

DAM. Why, 't is not one of clock i' th' is morning? Is not that early enough? Fetch me a glass of fresh beer.

AUD. Here, I have warm'd your nightcap for you, Master Dampit.

DAM. Draw it on then, I am very weak [se truly: I have not eaten so much as the bulk of an egg these three days.

AUD. You have drunk the more, Master Dampit.

DAM. What's that?

AUD. You ought, 2 an you would, Master Dampit.

DAM. I answer you, I cannot. Hold your prating; you prate too much, and understand too little: are you answered? Give me a glass of beer.

AUD. May I ask you how you do, Master Dampit?

DAM. How do I? I'm faith, naught.

AUD. I ne'er knew you do otherwise. 3

DAM. I eat not one pen'orth of bread these two years. Give me a glass of fresh beer. I am not sick, nor I am not well.

AUD. Take this warm napkin about your neck, sir, whilst I help to make you unready. 4

1 A room in Dampit's house.
2 Might.
3 Undress you.
ACT IV

[Scene I.]

Enter at Cole-Harbour, Hoard, the Widow, [Lamprey, Spichcock,] and Gentlemen, he married now.

1 [Gent.] Join hearts, join hands, in wedlock's bands, never to part till death cleave your heart.

[To Hoard.] You shall forsake all other women;

1 Cheating.  2 Fear.

[To Courtesan.] You lords, knights, gentlemen, and yeomen,

What my tongue slips make up with your lips.

Hoa. Give you joy, Mistress Hoard; let the kiss come about.  [Knocking.]

Who knocks? Convey my little pig-eater out.

Luc. [within.] Hoard!

Hoa. Upon my life, my adversary, gentleman! Luc. [within.] Hoard, open the door, or we will force it ope:

Give us the widow.

Hoa. Gentlemen, keep 'em out.

Lam. He comes upon his death that enter here.

Luc. [within.] My friends, assist me!

Hoa. He has assistants, gentlemen.

Lam. Tut, nor him nor them we in this action fear.

Luc. [within.] Shall I, in peace, speak one word with the widow?

Cour. Husband, and gentlemen, hear me but a word.

Hoa. Freely, sweet wife.

Cour. Let him in peaceably; so you know we're sure from any act of his.

Hoa. Most true.

Cour. You may stand by and smile at his old weakness:

Let me alone to answer him.

Hoa. Content;

'Twill be good mirth, 't faith. How think you, gentlemen?

Lam. Good gallantry!

Hoa. Upon calm conditions let him in.

Luc. [within.] All spite and malice!

Lam. Hear me, Master Lucere:

So you will vow a peaceful entrance with those your friends, and only exercise calm conference with the widow, without fury, the passage shall receive you.

Enter Lucere, [Gentlemen, and Host.]

Luc. I do vow it.

Lam. Then enter and talk freely: here she stands.

Luc. O, Master Hoard, your spouse has watcht the hour!

You're excellent at vengeance, Master Hoard.

Hoa. Ha, ha, ha!

Luc. I am the fool you laugh at:

You are wise, sir, and know the seasons well;—come hither, widow: why is it thus?

O, you have done me infinite disgrace, and your own credit no small injury!

Suffer mine enemy so spitefully to bear you from my nephew? O, I had rather half my substance had been forfeit, and begg'd by some star'd rascal!

Cour. Why, what would you wish me to do, sir? I must not overthwraw my state for love:

We have too many precedents for that;

From thousands of our wealthy undone widows one may derive some wit. I do confesse

1 A term of endearment.

Qu. give this speech to Lucre.
iv, ii.  A TRICK TO CATCH THE OLD ONE    705

I lov’d your nephew, nay, I did affect him
Against the mind and liking of my friends;
Believ’d his promises; lay here in hope.
Of flatter’d living, and the boast of lands.
Coming to touch his wealth and state indeed,
It appears dress’d; I find him not the man;
Imperfect, mean, scarce furnish’d of his needs:
In words, fair lordships; in performance, bovels:
Can any woman love the thing that is not?

Luc. Broke you for this?
Cour. Was it not cause too much?
Send to inquire his state; most part of it
Lay two years mortgag’d in his uncle’s hands.
Luc. Why, say it did, you might have known
my mind:

I could have soon restor’d it.
Cour. Ay, had I but seen any such thing per-
form’d,
Why, ’t would have tied my affection, and con-
tain’d
Me in my first desires. Do you think, i’ faith,
That I could twine such a dry oak as this,
Had promise in your nephew took effect?

Luc. Why, and there’s no time past; and rather than
My adversary should thus thwart my hopes,
I would —

Cour. Tat, you’ve been ever full of golden speech:
If words were lands, your nephew would be rich.
Luc. Widow, believe’t, I vow by my best bliss,
Before these gentlemen, I will give in
The mortgage to my nephew instantly,
Before I sleep or eat.

1 Gent. [friend to Luc.]} We’ll pawn our credits,
Widow, what he speaks shall be perform’d
in fulness.

Luc. Nay, more; I will estate him
In farther blessings; he shall be my heir;
I have no son;
I’ll bind myself to that condition.

Cour. When I shall hear this done, I shall soon yield
To reasonable terms.

Luc. In the mean season,
Will you protest, before these gentlemen,
To keep yourself as you’re now at this present?
Cour. I do protest, before these gentlemen,
I will be as clear then as I am now.

Luc. I do believe you. Here’s your own honest servant,
I’ll take him along with me.

Cour. Ay, with all my heart.
Luc. He shall see all perform’d, and bring you word.

Cour. That’s all I wait for.

Ho. What, have you finish’d, Master Lucre?
Ha, ha, ha, ha!

Luc. So laugh, Hoard, laugh at your poor enemy, do;
The wind may turn, you may be laugh’d at too;
Yes, marry may you, sir. — Ha, ha, ha! 106

Exeunt [Lucres, Gentlemen, and Host].

Could be reveng’d as happily as I,
He would choose hate, and forswear amity. —
What did he say, wife, prithee?

Ho. O, O, O! 108

Cour. You know now, little to any purpose.

Ho. True, true, true!

Cour. He would do mountains now.

Ho. Ay, ay, ay, ay.

Lam. You’ve struck him dead, Master Hoard.

Sqi. And his nephew desperate.

Ho. I know’t sirs, I.
Never did man so crush his enemy. Exeunt. 112

[SCENE II.]

Enter Lucres, Gentlemen, [and Host,] meeting
SAM FREEDOM.

Luc. My son-in-law, Sam Freedom, where’s
my nephew?

Free. O man in lamentation, 2 father.

Luc. How!

Free. He thumps his breast like a gallant dier that has lost his doublet, and stands [s in a shirt to do penance.

Luc. Alas, poor gentleman!

Free. I warrant you may hear him sigh in a still evening to your house at Highgate.

Luc. I prithee send him in.

Free. Were it to do a greater matter, I will not stick with you, sir, in regard you married
my mother. [Exit.]

Luc. Sweet gentlemen, cheer him up; I will but fetch the mortgage and return to you 119
instantly.

[Exit.]

1 [Gent.] We’ll do our best, sir. — See where
he comes,
E’en joyless and regardless of all form.

[Enter Witgood.]

2 [Gent.] Why, how now, Master Witgood?

ing gentleman, and give your best parts to pas-

Wit. O, gentlemen —

1 Gent. Sorrow of me, what a sigh was there,
sir!

Nine such widows are not worth it.

Wit. To be borne from me by that lecher,
Hoard!

1 Gent. That vengeance is your uncle’s; being done
More in despite to him than wrong to you:
But we bring comfort now.

Wit. I beseech you, gentlemen —

2 Gent. Cheer thyself, man; there’s hope of her, i’ faith.

Wit. Too gladsome to be true.

Re-enter Lucres.

Luc. Nephew, what cheer?

THOMAS MIDDLETON

[To Courtesan.] You lords, knights, gentlemen, and yeomen.

What is your tongue slips
Make up with your lips.

Hoa. Give you joy, Mistress Hoard; let the kiss come about. [Knocking.]

Who knocks? Convey my little pig-eater out. Luc. [within.] Hoard!

Hoa. Upon my life, my adversary, gentlemen! Luc. [within.] Hoard, open the door, or we will force it ope:

Give us the widow.

Hoa. Gentlemen, keep 'em out.

Lam. He comes upon his death that enters here.

Luc. [within.] My friends, assist me!

Hoa. He has assistants, gentlemen.

Lam. Tut, nor him nor them we in this action fear.

Luc. [within.] Shall I, in peace, speak one word with the widow?

Cour. Husband, and gentlemen, hear me but a word.

Hoa. Freely, sweet wife.

Cour. Let him in peaceably: you know we're sure from any act of his.

Hoa. Most true.

Cour. You may stand by and smile at his old weakness:

Let me alone to answer him.

Hoa. Content;

'Twill be good mirth, 't faith. How think you, gentlemen?

Lam. Good gallantry!

Hoa. Upon calm conditions let him in.

Luc. [within.] All spites and malice!

Lam. Hear me, Master Lucere;

So you will vow a peaceful entrance

With those your friends, and only exercise

Calm conference with the widow, without fury

The passage shall receive you.

Enter Lucere, [Gentlemen, and Host.]

Luc. I do vow it.

Lam. Then enter and talk freely: here she stands.

Luc. O, Master Hoard, your spite has watch'd the hour!

You're exorbitant at vengeance, Master Hoard.

Hoa. Ha, ha, ha!

Luc. I am the fool you laugh at:

You are wise, sir, and know the seasons well.—

Come hither, widow: why is it thus?

O, you have done me infinite disgrace,

And your own credit no small injury!

Suffer mine enemy so despitefully

To bear you from my nephews? O, I had

Rather half my substance had been forfeit

And betray'd by some strumpet's rake!

Cour. Why, what would you have me do, sir?

I must not overthrow my state for love:

We have too many precedents for that;

From thousands of our wealthy undone widows

One may derive some wit. I do confess

A term of endearment.

40 Qu. give this speech to Lucre.
iv. ii.  A TRICK TO CATCH THE OLD ONE 705

I lov’d your nephew, nay, I did affect him
Against the mind and liking of my friends;
Believ’d his promises; lay here in hope
Of flatter’d living, and the boast of lands.
Coming to touch his wealth and state indeed,
It appears dross; I find him not the man;
Imperfect, mean, scarce furnish’d of his needs:
In words, fair lordships; in performance, hovels:
Can any woman love the thing that is not?

Luc. Broke you for this? 2
Cour. Was it not cause too much?
Send to inquire his state; most part of it
Lay two years mortgage’d in his uncle’s hands.
Luc. Why, say it did, you might have known
my mind:
I could have soon restore’ d it.

Cour. Ay, had I but seen any such thing per-
form’d,
Why, it would have tied my affection, and con-
tain’d?
Me in my first desires. Do you think, i’ faith, 3
That I could twine such a dry oak as this,
Had promise in your nephew took effect?

Luc. Why, and there’s no time past; and rather than My adversary should thus thwart my hopes,
I would—

Cour. Tut, you’ve been ever full of golden speech:
If words were lands, your nephew would be rich.

Luc. Widow, believe’t, I vow by my best bliss,
Before these gentlemen, I will give in
The mortgage to my nephew instantly,
Before I sleep or eat.

1 Gent. [friend to Luc.] We’ll pawn our
credits,
Widow, what he speaks shall be perform’d
In fullness.

Luc. Nay, more; I will estate him
In farther blessings; he shall be my heir;
I have no son;
I’ll bind myself to that condition.

Cour. When I shall hear this done, I shall soon yield
To reasonable terms.

Luc. In the mean season,
Will you protest, before these gentlemen,
To keep yourself as you’re now at this present?
Cour. I do protest, before these gentlemen,
I will be as clear then as I am now.

Luc. I do believe you. Here’s your own honest servant,
I’ll take him along with me.

Cour. Ay, with all my heart.

Luc. He shall see all perform’d, and bring you word.

Cour. That’s all I wait for.

Hol. What, have you finish’d, Master Lucere? Ha, ha, ha, ha!

Luc. So laugh, Hoard, laugh at your poor deny, do;
The wind may turn, you may be laugh’d at too;
Yes, marry may you, sir. — Ha, ha, ha! 4

[Exeunt [Lucere, Gentlemen, and Hoard].

Hol. Ha, ha, ha! if every man that swells in malice

Could be reveng’d as happily as I,
He would choose hate, and forswear amity.—
What did he say, wife, prithee?

Cour. Faith, spoke to ease his mind.

Hol. O, O, O! 5

Cour. You know now, little to any purpose.

Hol. True, true, true!

Cour. He would do mountains now.

Hol. Ay, ay, ay, ay.

Lam. You’ve struck him dead, Master Hoard.

Spqr. And his nephew desperate.

Hol. I know it sirs, I.
Never did man so crush his enemy.  Exeunt. 6

[Scene II.] 1

Enter Lucere, Gentlemen, [and Host], meeting
Sam Freedom.

Luc. My son-in-law, Sam Freedom, where’s
my nephew?

Fre. O man in lamentation, 7 father.

Luc. How!

Fre. He thumps his breast like a gallant dicer that has lost his doublet, and stands 8
in a shirt to do penance.

Luc. Alas, poor gentleman!

Fre. I warrant you may hear him sigh in a still evening to your house at Highgate.

Luc. I prithee send him in. 9

Fre. Were it to do a greater matter, I will not stick with you, sir, in regard you married
my mother.  [Exit.]

Luc. Sweet gentlemen, cheer him up; I will but fetch the mortgage and return to you 10
instantly.

Exeunt. 11

1 Gent. We’ll do our best, sir. — See where
he comes,
E’en joyless and regardless of all form.

[Enter Witgood.]

2 [Gent.] Why, how now, Master Witgood? 12
Fie! you a firm scholar, and an understanding gentleman, and give your best parts to passion? 8

1 Gent. Come, fie fie!

Wit. O, gentlemen—

1 Gent. Sorrow of me, what a sigh was there,
sir!

Nine such widows are not worth it.

Wit. To be borne from me by that lecher,
Hoard!

1 Gent. That vengeance is your uncle’s; being done
More in despite to him than wrong to you:
But we bring comfort now.

Wit. I beseech you, gentlemen—

2 Gent. Cheer thyself, man; there’s hope of her, i’ faith.

Wit. Too gladsome to be true.

Re-enter Lucere.

Luc. Nephew, what cheer?

Alas, poor gentleman, how art thou chang’d!

1 A room in Lucere’s house.

2 “O man in desperation” is the name of an old tune mentioned by Nashe and Peele.

3 Grief.
Call thy fresh blood into thy cheeks again. She comes.

Wit. Nothing afflicts me so much, but that it is your adversary, uncle, and I am merely plotted in despite of you.

Luc. Ay, that's it; it mads me, sutes me! I'll spend my wealth ere he shall carry her so, because I know 'tis only to spite me. Ay, this is it. Here, nephew [giving a paper], before these kind gentlemen, I deliver in your mortgage, my promise to the widow; see, 'tis done. Be wise, you're once more master of your own. The widow shall perceive now you are not [as altogether such a beggar as the world reputes you]; you can make shift to bring her to three hundred a-year, sir.

1 Gent. By'r Lady, and that's no toy, sir.

1 Gent. [to Host.] Now you may certify the widow.

Luc. You must conceive it aright, nephew, now;
To do you good I am content to do this.
Wit. I know it, sir.
Luc. But your own conscience can tell I had it
Dearly enough of you.

Wit. Ay, that's most certain.
Luc. Much money laid out, beside many a journey
To fetch the rent; I hope you'll think on 't, nephew.

Wit. I were worse than a beast else, i' faith.
Luc. Although to blind the widow and the world,
I out of policy do't, yet there's a conscience, nephew.

Wit. Heaven forbid else!
Luc. When you are full possess, it's nothing to return it.

Wit. Alas, a thing quickly done, uncle!

Luc. Well said! I know I give it you but in trust.
Wit. Pray, let me understand you rightly, uncle:
You give it me but in trust?

Luc. No.
Wit. That is, you trust me with it?

Luc. True, true.
Wit. [Aside.] But if ever I trust you with it again,
Would I might be trust'd up for my labour!

Luc. You can all witness, gentlemen; and you, sir yeoman?

Host. My life for yours, sir, now, I know my mistress's mind too well toward your nephew; let things be in preparation; and I'll train her hither in most excellent fashion. Exit.

Luc. A good old boy!—Wife! Jenny!

Enter Wife.

Miss L. What's the news, sir?

Luc. The wedding-day's at hand: prithee, sweet wife, express thy housewifery. Thou'rt a fine cook, I know 't: thy first husband married thee out of an alderman's kitchen; go to, he rais'd thee for raising of paste. What! here's none but friends; most of our beginnings must be wink'd at. — Gentlemen, I invite you all to my nephew's wedding against Thursday morning.

1 Gent. With all our hearts, and we shall joy to see your enemy so mock'd.

Luc. He laught at me, gentlemen; ha, ha, ha! Exeunt [all but Wrgood].

Wit. He has no conscience, faith, would laugh at them:
They laugh at one another;
Who then can be so cruel? Troth, not I; I rather pity now, than ought envy.
I do conceive such joy in mine own happiness, I have no leisure yet to laugh at their follies.
Thou soul of my estate, I kiss thee! [To the mortgage.]

I miss life's comfort when I miss thee O, never will we part again, Until I leave the site of men!
We'll ne'er trust conscience of our kin,
Since coveneaze brings that title in. Exit.

[Scene III.]

Enter three Creditors.

1 Cred. I'll wait these seven hours; but I'll see him caught.
2 Cred. Faith, we will. 3 Cred. Hang him, prodigal! He's stript of the widow.

1 Cred. A' my troth, she's the wiser; she has made the happier choice: and I wonder of what stuff those widows' hearts are made of, that will marry uncles'd boys before comely thurm-chin'd gentlemen.

Enter Boy.

Boy. News, news, news!

1 Cred. What, boy?

Boy. The rister is caught.

1 Cred. So, so, so! it warms me at the heart; I love a' life to see dogs upon men.

O, here he comes.

Enter Wrgood, with Sergeants.

Wit. My last joy was so great, it took away the sense of all future afflictions. What a day is here o'ercast! How soon a black tempest rises! 1 Cred. O, we may speak with you now, sir! What's become of your rich widow? I think you may cast your cap at the widow, may you not, sir?

2 Cred. He a rich widow? Who, a prodigal, a daily rister, and a nightly vomiter? He a widow of account? He a hole i' th' Counter.

Wit. You do well, my masters, to tyrannise over misery, to afflict the afflicted; 'tis a custom you have here amongst you; I would wish you never leave it, and I hope you'll do as I bid you.

first, and be married after; she hates that, I can tell you, sir.

Luc. By my faith, sir, she is like to have a proper gentleman, and a comely; I'll give her that gift.

Host. Why, does your worship know him, sir? 199

Luc. I know him? Does not all the world know him? Can a man of such exquisit [quality] be hid under a bushel? —Host. Then your worship may save me a labour, for I had charge given me to inquire after him.

Luc. Inquire of him? If I might counsel thee, thou shouldst ne'er trouble thyself further; inquire of him no more, but of me; I'll fit thee. I grant he has been youthful; but is he now not reconned? Mark you that, sir: has not your mistress, think you, been wanton in her youth? If men be ware, are there not women waggailts?

Host. No doubt, sir.

Luc. Does not he return wisest that comes home whit with his own follies? 199

Host. Why, very true, sir.

Luc. The worst report you can hear of him, I can tell you, is that he has been a kind gentleman, a liberal, and a worthy; but lusty Witgood, thrice-noble Witgood!

Host. Since your worship has so much knowledge in him, can you resolve me, sir, what his living might be? My duty binds me, sir, to have a care of my mistress' estate; she has been ever a good mistress to me, though I say it. Many wealthy suitors has she none suit him for his sake; yet, though her love be so fixt, a man cannot tell whether his non-performance may help to remove it, sir; he makes us believe he has lands and living.

Luc. Who, young Master Witgood? Why, believe it, he has as goodly a living out yonder, what do you call the place?

Host. Nay, I know not, 'faith.

Luc. Hum — see, like a beast, if I have not forgot the name — pooh! and out yonder again, goodly grown woods and fair meadows: pas 1 on 't, I can ne'er hit of that place neither.

—He? Why, he's Witgood of Witgood Hall; he an unknown thing!

Host. Is he so, sir? To see how rumour will alter! Trust me, sir, we heard once he had no lands, but all lay mortgag'd to an uncle he has in town here.

Luc. Push! 'tis a tale, 'tis a tale.

Host. I can assure you, sir, 't was credibly reported to my mistress.

Luc. Why, do you think, 'faith, he was ever so simple to mortgage his lands to his uncle, or his uncle so unattainable to take the extremity of such a mortgage?

Host. That was my saying still, sir.

Luc. Pooh, ne'er think it.

Host. Yet that report goes current.

Luc. Nay, then you urge me:

Cannot I tell that best that am his uncle?

1 A corruption of "pas."
is 't, trow, that he makes me a stranger for? Hum,—I hope he has not so much wit to apprehend that I cozened him: he deceives me then. Good Heaven, who would have thought it would ever have come to this pass! yet [as he's a proper gentleman, 't faith, give him his due,—marry, that's his mortgage; but that I ne'er mean to give him. I'll make him rich enough in words, if that be good: and if it come to a piece of money, I will not greatly stick [as for 't; there may be hope some of the widow's lands, too, may one day fall upon me, if things be carried wisely.

[Re-enter GEORGE.]

Now, sir, where is he?

Geo. He desires your worship to hold him [as excused; he has such weighty business, it commands him wholly from all men.

Luc. Were those my nephew's words?

Geo. Yes, indeed, sir.

Luc. [Aside.] When men grow rich, they [as grow proud too, I perceive that. He would not have sent me such an answer once within this twelvemonth: see what 't is when a man comes to his lands! Return to him again, sir; tell him his uncle desires his company for an hour; see I'll trouble him but an hour, say; 'tis for his own good, tell him; and, do you hear, sir? put "worship" upon him. Go to, do as I bid you; he's like to be a gentleman of worship very shortly.

Geo. [Aside.] This is good sport, 't faith.

Luc. Troth, he uses his uncle discourteously now. Can he tell what I may do for him? Goodness may come from me in a minute, that comes not in seven year again. He knows my humour; I am not so usually good; 't is no small thing that draws kindness from me, he may know that an he will. The chief cause that invites me to do him most good is the sudden astonishing of old Hoard, my adversary. How pale his malice will look at my nephew's advancement! With what a dejected spirit he will behold his fortunes, whom but last day he proclaim'd rioted, penurious makeshift, despised brothel-master! Ha, ha! 't will do me [as more secret joy than my last purchase, more precious comfort than all these widow's revenges.

[Re-enter [GEORGE, showing in] WITGOOD.

Now, sir?

Geo. With much entreaty he's at length [as come, sir. [Exit.]

Luc. O, nephew, let me salute you, sir! Your're welcome, nephew.

Wit. Uncle, I thank you.

Luc. You've a fault, nephew; you're a [as stranger here. Well, Heaven give you joy!

Wit. Of what, sir?

Luc. Hah, we can hear! You might have known your uncle's house, 't faith,
You and your widow: go to, you were to blame:

If I may tell you so without offence.

Wit. How could you hear of that, sir?

Luc. O, pardon me!

"T was your will to have kept it from me, I perceive now.

Wit. Not for any defect of love, I protest, uncle.

Luc. Oh, 't was unkindness, nephew! fie, fie, fie!

Wit. I am sorry you take it in that sense, sir.

Luc. Pooh, you cannot colour it, 't faith, [as nephew.

Wit. Will you but hear what I can say in my just excuse, sir.

Luc. Yes, faith, will I, and welcome.

Wit. You that know my danger! th' city, sir, so well, how great my debts are, and how extreme my creditors, could not out of your pure judgment, sir, have wist us hither.

Luc. Mass, a firm reason indeed.

Wit. Else, my uncle's house! why, 't had [as been the only make-match.

Luc. Nay, and thy credit.

Wit. My credit? Nay, my countenance. Fie, nay, I know, uncle, you would have wrought it so by your wit, you would have made her believe in some the whole house had been mine.

Luc. Ay, and most of the goods too.

Wit. Ls, you there! Well, let 'em all prate what they will, there's nothing like the bringing of a widow to one's uncle's house.

Luc. Nay, let nephews be rul'd as they list, they shall find their uncle's house the most natural place when all's done.

Wit. There they may be bold.

Luc. Life, they may do anything there, [as man, and fear neither headle nor summoner. An uncle's house! a very Cole-Harbour. Sirrah, I'll touch thee near now: hast thou so much interest in thy widow, that by a token thou couldst presently send for her?

Wit. Troth, I think I can, uncle.

Luc. Go to, let me see that.

Wit. Fray, command one of your men hither, uncle.

Luc. George!

[Re-enter GEORGE.]

Geo. Here, sir.

Luc. Attend my nephew. [WITGOOD whispers to GEORGE, who then goes out.]—[Aside.] I love a life to prattle with a rich widow; 't is pretty, methinks, when our tongues go together: [as and then to promise much and perform little. I love that sport a life, 't faith; yet I am in the mood now to do my nephew some good, if he take me handsomely. What, have you despatched?

Wit. I ha' sent, sir.

Luc. Yet I must condemn you of unkindness

Wit. Heaven forbid, uncle!

Luc. Yes, faith, must I. Say your debts be [as many, your creditors importunate, yet the kindness of a thing is all, nephew; you might have sent me close word on't, without the least delay or prejudice to your fortunes.

Wit. Troth, I confess it, uncle; I was to blame there; but, indeed, my intent was to have clap it up suddenly, and so have broke forth like a joy to my friends, and a wonder to the world. Besides, there's a trifle of a forty pound matter toward the setting of me forth; my friends should never have known on't; I meant to make shift for that myself.

Luc. How, nephew? let me not hear such a word again, I beseech you. Shall I be beholding
to you?

Wit. To me? Alas, what do you mean, uncle?

Luc. I charge you, upon my love, you trouble
nobody but myself.

Wit. You've no reason for that, uncle.

Luc. Troth, I'll never be friends with you
while you live, an you do.

Wit. Nay, an you say so, uncle, here's my hand: I will not do't.

Luc. Why, well said! there's some hope in these when thou wilt be rud'd. I'll make it [see up fifty, faith, because I see thee so reclaim'd.
Peace; here comes my wife with Sam, her
'tother husband's son.

[Enter Mistress Lucre and Freedom.]

Wit. Good aunt.

Fre. Cousin Witgood, I rejoice in your salute;
you're most welcome to this noble city, gov-
ern'd with the sword in the scabbard.

Wit. [Aside.] And the wit in the pommeul.—
Good Master Sam Freedom, I return the salute.

Luc. By the mass, she's coming, wife; let [see me see now how thou wilt entertain her.

Mis. L. I hope I am not to learn, sir, to entertain a widow; 'tis not so long since I was one myself.

[Enter Courtesan.]

Wit. Uncle —

Luc. She's come indeed.

Wit. My uncle was desirous to see you, widow, and I presumed to invite you.

COUR. The presumption was nothing, Master
Witgood. Is this your uncle, sir?

Luc. Marry am I, sweet widow; and his good uncle he shall find me; ay, by this smack that
I give thee, thou'rt welcome. — Wife, bid the widow welcome the same way again.

Fre. [Aside.] I am a gentleman now too by my father's occupation, and I see no reason but I
may kiss a widow by my father's copy: truly,
I think the charter is not against it; surely
these are the words, 'The son once a gentleman may revel it, though his father were a daur-[see her;] 'tis about the fifteenth page: I'll to her. [Offers to kiss the Courtesan, who repulses
him.]

Luc. You're not very busy now; a word with thee, sweet widow.

In witness whereof, I the said Theodorus Witgood, have interchangeably set my hand and seal before these presents, the day and date above written.

Wit. What a precious fortune hast thou alight here, like a beast as thou art!

Hoa. Come, unwilling heart, come.

Wit. Well, Master Hoard, give me the pen; I see 'tis vain to quarrel with our destiny.

Hoa. O, as vain a thing as can be! you cannot commit a greater absurdity, sir. So, so; give me that hand now; before all these present, I am friends for ever with thee.

Wit. Truth, and this pitty of my heart now, if I should bear you any grudge, it's faith.

Hoa. Content: I'll send for thy uncle against the wedding dinner; we will be friends once again.

Wit. I hope to bring it to pass myself, sir.

Hoa. How now? Is't right, my masters?

Cred. 'Tis something wanting, sir; yet it shall be sufficient.

Hoa. Why, well said; a good conscience makes a fine show now-a-days. Come, my masters, you shall all taste of my wine ere you depart.

All. We follow you, sir.

[Exeunt Hoard and Scrivener.]

Wit. [Aside.] I'll try these fellows now. — A word, sir: what, will you carry me to that widow now?

Cred. Why, do you think we were in earnest, 'tis faith? Carry you to a rich widow? We should get much credit by that: a noted rioter! a contemptible prodigal! 'T was a trick we have amongst us to get in our money: fare you well, sir.

Exeunt [Creditors].

Wit. Farewell, and be hang'd, you short pig-hair'd, ram-headed rascal! He that believes in you shall no'r be saved, I warrant him. By this new league I shall have some access unto my love.

[Joyce appears above.]

Joyce. Master Witgood!

Wit. My life!

Joyce. Meet me presently; that note directs you [throws him a letter]: I would not be sus-pected. Our happiness attends us: farewell.

Wit. A word's enough. Exeunt [severally].

Lam. Look you, did not I tell you he lay like the devil in chains, when he was bound for a thousand year?

Spi. But I think the devil had no steel [as bedstaffs; he goes beyond him for that.

Lam. Nay, do but mark the conceit of his drinking; one must wipe his mouth for him with a muckinder, do you see, sir?

Spi. Is this the sick trumpery? Why, he is only bed-rid with drinking.

Lam. True, sir. He spises us.

Dam. What, Sir Tristram? You come and see a weak man here, a very weak man.

Lam. If you be weak in body, you should be strong in prayer, sir.

Dam. O, I have prayed too much, poor man!

Lam. There's a taste of his soul for you!

Spi. Faugh, loathsomely!

Lam. I come to borrow a hundred pound [as of you, sir.

Dam. Alas, you come at an ill time! I cannot spare it 'tis faith; I ha' but two thousand i'th house.

Sir L. Yea, gentlemen, are you here before us? How is he now?

Lam. Faith, the same man still: the tav-er has bit him i' the head. 4

Sir L. We shall have the better sport with him: peace. — And how cheer Master Dampt now?

Dam. O, my bosom, Sir Launcelot, how cheer I! Thy presence is restorative.

Sir L. But I hear a great complaint of you, Master Dampt, among gallants.

Dam. I am glad of that, I faith: prithee, what?

Sir L. They say you are wax'd proud a' late, and if a friend visit you in the afternoon, you'll scarce know him.

Dam.Pie, fie; proud? I cannot remember any such thing: sure I was drunk then.

Sir L. Think you so, sir?

Dam. There 'twas, I faith; nothing but the pride of the sack; and so certify 'em.— Fetch sack, sirrah.

Boy. A vengeance sack you once!

[Aud. returns presently with sack.]

Aud. Why, Master Dampt, if you hold on as you begin, and lie a little longer, you need

1 Handkercchief.

8 As before, Damph's words must be interpreted by the context.

4 I.e. he is drunk.
not take care how to dispose your wealth; you'll make the vintner your vassal.

Dam. Out, you babblaminy, you unfeathered, cremenioted quayen, you cullissance of scabiosity!

Aud. Good words, Master Dampit, to speak before a maid and a virgin!

Dam. Hang thy virginity upon the pole of carnality!

Aud. Sweet terms! My mistress shall know them.

Dam. Note but the misery of this usurping slave: here he lies, like a noise among hedges, full of the poison of his drunken blasphemies; [26] and they to whom he bequeathes all, grudge him the very meat that feeds him, the very pillow that eases him. Here may a usurer behold his end. What profits it to be a slave in this world, and a devil in th' next?

Dam. Sir Launcelot, let me buss thee, Sir Launcelot; thou art the only friend that I have and respect.

Sir L. I thank you for that, Master Dampit.

Dam. Farewell, my bosom Sir Launcelot.

Sir L. Gentlemen, an you love me, let me step behind you, and one of you fall a-talking of me to him.

Lam. Content.—Master Dampit—

Dam. So, sir.

Lam. Here came Sir Launcelot to see you e'en now.

Dam. Hang him, rascal!

Lam. Who? Sir Launcelot?

Dam. Pythagorical rascal!

Lam. Pythagorical?

Dam. Ay, he changes his cloak when he meets a sergeant.

Sir L. What a rogue 's this!

Lam. I wonder you can rat at him, sir; [32] he comes in love to see you.

Dam. A house for his love! his father was a coxcomb-maker; I have no need of his crawling love. He comes to have longer day, the superlative rascal!

Sir L. 'Soot, I can no longer endure the rogue!—Master Dampit, I come to take my leave once again, sir.

Dam. Who? my dear and kind Sir Launcelot, the only gentleman of England. Let me hug thee; farewell, and a thousand.

Lam. Compose'd of wrongs and slavish flatteries!

Sir L. Nay, gentlemen, he shall show you more tricks yet; I'll give you another taste of him.

Lam. Is 't possible?

Sir L. His memory is upon departing.

Dam. Another cup of sack!

Sir L. Mass, then 't will be quite gone! Before he drink that, tell him there's a country client come up, and here attends for his learned advice.

Lam. Enough.

Dam. One cup more, and then let the bell toll: I hope I shall be weak enough by that time.

1 Kiss. 8 Time to repay borrowed money.

---

Lam. Master Dampit—

Dam. Is the sack spouting?

Lam. 'Tis coming forward, sir. Here's [us a countryman, a client of yours, waits for your deep and profound advice, sir.

Dam. A coxcomb, where is he? Let him approach: set me up a peg higher.

Lam. [to Sir Launcelot.] You must draw near, sir.

Dam. Now, good man foolaminy, what say you to me now?

Sir L. Please your good worship, I am a poor man, sir—

Dam. What make you in my chamber then?

Sir L. I would entreat your worship's device in a just and honest cause, sir.

Dam. I meddle with no such matters; I refer 'em to Master No-man's office.

Sir L. I had but one house left me in all the world, sir, which was my father's, my grandfather's, my great-grandfather's, and now a villain has unjustly wrung me out, and took possession on 't.

Dam. Has he such feats? Thy best course is to bring thy ejectiones firmae, and in seven year thou mayest show him out by the law.

Sir L. Alas, an't please your worship, I have small friends and less money!

Dam. Hoyday! this gear will fadge well. hast no money? Why, then, my advice is, thou set fire a' th' house, and so get him out.

Lam. That will break strife, indeed.

Sir L. I thank your worship for your hot counsel, sir.—Altering but my voice a little, you see he knew me not: you may observe by this, that a drunkard's memory holds longer in the voice than in the person. But, gentle- men, shall I show you a sight? Behold the little dive-dapper of damnation. Gulf the usurer, for his time worse than t'other.

Enter Hoard with Gulf.

Lam. What's he comes with him?

Sir L. Why, Hoard, that married lately the Widow Medler.

Lam. O, I cry you mercy, sir.

Hoa. Now, gentlemen, visitants, how does Master Dampit?

Sir L. Faith, here he lies, e'en drawing in, sir, good canary as fast as he can, sir; a very weak creature, truly, he is almost past memory.

Hoa. Fie, Master Dampit! you lie lazing a-bed here, and I come to invite you to my wedding-dinner: up, up, up!

Dam. Who's this? Master Hoard? Who hast thou married, in the name of foolery?

Hoa. A rich widow.

Dam. A Dutch widow?

Hoa. A rich widow; one Widow Medler.

Dam. Medler? She keeps open house.

Hoa. She did. I can tell you, in her t'other husband's days; open house for all olemens; horse and man was welcome, and room enough for 'em all.

Dam. There's too much for thee, then; thou mayst let out some to thy neighbours.

Sir L. This is excellent, thief rails upon the thief!

Gulf. Is this the end of out-throat usury, brothel, and blasphemy? Now mayst thou see what a racer runs.

Dam. Why, thou rogue of universality, do I know thee? Thy sound is like the cuckoo, the Welsh ambassador; thou cowardly slave, that offers to fight with a sick man when his weapon's down! Rail upon me in my naked bed? Why, thou great Lucifer's little vicar! I am not so weak but I know a knife at first sight. Thou inconceivable rascal! thou that goest upon Middlesex juries, and wilt make haste to give up thy verdict because thou wilt not lose thy dinner! Are you answered?

Gulf. An 't were not for shame —

Dam. Thou wouldst be hang'd then.

Lam. Nay, you must exercise patience, Master Gulf, always in a sick man's chamber.

Sir L. He'll quarrel with none, I warrant you, but those that are bed-rid.

Dam. Let him come, gentlemen, I am arm'd: reach my close-stool hither.

Sir L. Here will be a sweet fray anon: I'll leave you, gentlemen.

Lam. Nay, we'll go along with you. — Master Gulf —

Gulf. Hang him, usurping rascal!

Sir L. Fish, set your strength to his, your wit to his!

And. Pray, gentlemen, depart; his hour's come upon him. — Sleep in my bosom, sleep.

Sir L. Nay, we have enough of him, I'faith; keep him for the house.

Now make your best: For thrice his wealth I would not have his breast.

Gulf. A little thing would make me beat him now he's asleep.

Sir L. Mass, then 't will be a pitiful day when he wakes: I would be loath to see that day come.

Gulf. You overrule me, gentlemen, I'faith.

ACT V

[Scene I.]

Enter Lucke and Witgood.

Wit. Nay, uncle, let me prevail with you so much; I'faith, go, now he has invited you.

[1 Virg. Aen. iii. 669.
2 So named, Nares conjectures, from the bird's migrating even the west.
3 I. a. Naked in bed.
4 A room in Lucre's house.

Luc. I shall have great joy there when he has borne away the widow.

Wit. Why, la, I thought where I should find you presently. Uncle, a' my troth, 'tis nothing so.

Luc. What's nothing so, sir? Is not he married to the widow?

Wit. No, by my troth, is he not, uncle.

Luc. How?

Wit. Will you have the truth on't? He is married to a whore, I'faith.

Luc. I should laugh at that.

Wit. Uncle, let me perish in your favour if you find it not so; and that 't is I that have married the honest woman.

Luc. Ha! I'd walk ten mile's foot to see that, I'faith.

Wit. And see 't you shall, or I'll never see you again.

Luc. A queen, I'faith? Ha, ha, ha! Exeunt.

[Enter Hoard, tasting wine, Host following in a livercy cloak.]

Hoa. Pup, pup, pup, pup, I like not this wine: is there never a better tice in the house?

Host. Yes, sir, there are as good tierces in the house as any are in England.

Hoa. Desire your mistress, you knave, to taste 'em all over; she has best skill.

Host. [Aside.] Has she so? The better for her, and the worse for you. Exit.

Hoa. Arthur!

[Enter Arthur.]

Is the cupboard of plate set out?

Arth. All's in order, sir. [Exit.]

Hoa. I am in love with my liveryies every time I think on 'em; they make a gallant show, by my troth. Nieces!

[Enter Joyce.]

Joyce. Do you call, sir?

Hoa. Prithee, show a little diligence, and overlook the knaves a little; they'll filch and steal to-day, and send whole pasties home to their wives; an thou be'st a good niece, do not see me purloin'd.

Joyce. Fear it not, sir. [Aside.] I have cause: though the feast be prepared for you, yet it serves fit for my wedding-dinner too. [Exit.]

Enter two Gentlemen [Lamprey and Spichcock.]

Hoa. Master Lamprey and Master Spichcock, two the most welcome gentlemen alive! Your fathers and mine were all free a' th' fishmongers.

Lam. They were indeed, sir. You see bold guests, sir; soon entertained.

Hoa. And that 's best, sir.

1 A room in Hoard's house.
2 Members of the Fishmongers' Company.
[Enter Servant.]

How now, sirrah?

Serv. There's a coach come to th' door, sir.

[Exit.]

Hoa. Ha, ha, ha! why, how now? Are you both sahun'd?—Come, gentlemen, we'll look another way.

O. Hoa. Nay, brother, hark you: come, you're dispos'd to be merry.

Hoa. Why do we meet else, man?

O. Hoa. That's another matter: I was ne'er so 'frayd in my life but that you had been in earnest.

Hoa. How mean you, brother?

O. Hoa. You said she was your wife.

Hoa. Did I so? By my troth, and so she is.

O. Hoa. By your troth, brother?

Hoa. What reason have I to dissemble [as with my friends, brother? If marriage can make her mine, she is mine. Why——

O. Hoa. Troth, I am not well of a sudden. I must crave pardon, brother; I came to see you, but I cannot stay dinner, 'tis faith.

Hoa. I hope you will not serve me so, brother?

Lim. By your leave, Master Hoard——

O. Hoa. What now? what now? Pray, gentlemen: — you were wont to show yourselves wise men.

Lim. But you have shown your folly too much here.

Hoa. How?

Kiz. Fie, fie! a man of your repute and name!

You'll feast your friends, but cloy 'em first with shame.

Hoa. This grows too deep; pray, let us reach the sense.

Lim. In your old age dote on a courtesan!

Hoa. Ha!

Kiz. Marry a strumpet!

Hoa. Gentlemen!

O. Hoa. And Witgood's queen!

O. Hoa. O! nor lands nor living?

O. Hoa. Living!

O. Hoa. [to Courtesan.] Speak.

Cour. Alas, you know, at first, sir, I told you I had nothing.

O. Hoa. Out, out! I am cheated; infinitely oozed.

Lim. Nay, Master Hoard——

Enter LUCRE, WITGOOD, [and JOYCE.]

Hoa. A Dutch widow! a Dutch widow! a Dutch widow!

Luc. Why, nephew, shall I trace thee still a liar?

Wilt make me mad? Is not you thing th' widow?

Wit. Why, la, you are so hard a' belief, uncle!

By my troth, she's a whore.

Luc. Then thou 'rt a knave.

Wit. Negatur oppugmentum, uncle.

Luc. Probo tibi, nephew: he that knows a woman to be a queen must needs be a knave; thou sayst thou knowest her to be one; ergo, if she be a queen, thou 'rt a knave.

Wit. Negatur sequela majoris, uncle; he that knows a woman to be a queen must needs be a knave; I deny that.
Hoa. Lucro and Witgood, you're both villains, you get you out of my house!

Luc. Why, didn't invite me to thy wedding-dinner?

Wit. And are not you and I sworn perpetual friends before witnesses, sir, and were both drunk upon 't?

Hoa. Daintily abuse! You've put a junt 1 upon me!

Luc. Ha, ha, ha!

Hoa. A common strumpet!

Wit. Nay, now

You wrong her, sir; if I were she, I'd have
The law on you for that; I durst depose for her
She ne'er had common use nor common thought.

Cour. Despise me, publish me, I am your wife;
What shame can I have now but you'll have part?
If in disguise you share, I sought not you;
You pursued, nay, fore'd me; had I friends would follow it,
Less than your action has been prov'd a rape.

O. Hoa. Brother!

Cour. Nor did I ever boast of lands unto you,
Money, or goods; I took a plainer course,
And told you true, I'd nothing:
If error were committed, 'twas by you;
Thank your own folly. Nor has my sin been
So odious, but worse has been forgiven;
Nor am I so deform'd, but I may challenge
The utmost power of any old man's love.

She that tastes not sin before, twenty to one but she'll taste it after: most of you old men are content to marry young virgins, and take that which follows: where, marrying one of us, you both save a sinner and are quit from a cuckold for ever:

And more, in brief, let this your best thoughts
win,
She that knows sin, knows best how to hate
sin.

Hoa. Curse be all malice! black are the fruits of spite,
And poison first their owners. O, my friends,
I must embrace shame, to be rid of shame!

Conceal'd disgrace prevents a publice name.

Ah, Witgood! ah, Theodorns!

Wit. Alas, sir, I was pricket in conscience to see her well bestowed, and where could I bestow her better than upon your pitiful worship? 150

Excepting but myself, I dare swear she's a virgin; and now, by marrying your niece, I have banished myself for ever from her. She's mine aunt now, by my faith, and there's no meddling with mine aunt, you know: a sin against my uncle.

Cour. Lo, gentlemen, before you all

[Kneels.]

In true reclaimed form I fall.

Henceforth for ever I defy 2
The glances of a sinful eye,
Waving of fans (which some suppose Tricks of fancy 3), treading of toes,
Wringing of fingers, biting the lip,
The wanton gait, th' alluring trip;
All secret friends and private meetings,
Close-borne letters and bawds' greetings;
Feigning excuse to women's labours
When we are sent for to th' next neighbour's;
Taking false physic, and no' er start
To be let blood though sign 4 be at heart;
Removing chambers, shifting beds,
To welcome friends in husbands' steads,
Them to enjoy, and you to marry,
They first serv'd, while you must tarry,
They to spend, and you to gather,
They to get, and you to father:
These, and thousand, thousand more,
New reclaim'd, I now abhor.

Luc. [to Witgood.] Ah, here's a lesson, riorter, for you!

Wit. I must confess my follies; I'll down too:

[Kneels.] 200

And here for ever I disclaim
The cause of youth's undoing, game,
Chiefly dice, those true outlanders,
That shake out beggars, thieves, and panders;
Soul-wasting surfeit, sinful riots,
Queans' evils, doctors' diets,
Potheccaries' drugs, surgeons' glisters;
Stabbing of arms 5 for a common mistress;
Riband favours, ribald speeches;
Dear perfume'd jackets, penniless breeches;
Dutch flapdragons, 6 healths in urine;
Drab that keep a man too sure in:
I do defy you all.

Lend me each honest hand, for here I rise
A reclaim'd man, loathing the general vice.

Hoa. So, so, all friends! the wedding-dinner cools:

Who seem most crafty prove oftentimes most fools.

[Execut.] 250

1 A trick. Some mod. edd. amend to push.

2 Remorse.

3 Love.

almanacs, blood was to be taken from particular parts under particular planets." (Dyc.)

the blood mixed with wine, to the health of their mistress, was formerly a frequent practice among gallants." (Dyc.) Cf. Lear, II. 1. 36.

pert in swallowing flapdragons." (Bullen.)

ALSEMERO, a nobleman, afterwards married to Beatrice.
JASPERINO, his friend.
ALIBIUS, a jealous doctor.
LOLLO, his man.
PEDRO, friend to Antonio.

ANTONIO, the changeling.
FRANCISQUE, the counterfeit madman.
DE FLORAS, servant to Vermandero.
Madmen.
Servants.

DIAPHANTA, her waiting-woman.
ISABELLA, wife of Alibius.

SCENE. — Alicant.

ACT I

[Scene I.] 1

Enter Alsemero.
Al. 'T was in the temple where I first be held her,
And now again the same: what omen yet
Follows of that? None but imaginary.
Why should my hopes or fate be timorous?
The place is holy, so is my intent:
I love her beauties to the holy purpose;
And that, methinks, admits comparison
With man's first creation, the place blessed; And is his right home back, if he achieve it.
The church hath first began our interview,
And that's the place must join us into one;
So there's beginning and perfection too.

Enter Jasperino.
Jas. O sir, are you here? Come, the wind's fair with you;
You're like to have a swift and pleasant passage.
Al. Sure, you're deceived, friend, 'tis contrary.
In my best judgment.
Jas. What, for Malta?
If you could buy a gale amongst the witches,
They could not serve you such a lucky pennyworth
As comes a' God's name.
Al. The temple's vane to turn full in my face;
I know it is against me.
Jas. Against you?
Then you know not where you are.
Al. Not well, indeed.
Jas. Are you not well, sir?
Al. Yes, Jasperino.

Scene

Unless there be some hidden malady
Within me, that I understand not.
Jas. And that:
I begin to doubt, sir. I never knew
Your inclinations to travels at a pause
With any cause to hinder it, till now.
Ashore you were wont to call your servants up,
And help to trap your horses for the speed;
At sea I've seen you weigh the anchor with'em,
Hoist sails for fear to lose the foremost breath,
Be in continual prayers for fair winds;
And have you chang'd your orisons?
Al. No, friend;
I keep the same church, same devotion.
Jas. Lover I'm sure you're none; the stoic was Found in you long ago; your mother nor
Best friends, who have set names of beauty, ay,
And choice ones too, could never trap you that way.
What might be the cause?
Al. Lord, how violent
Thou art! I was but meditating of Somewhat I heard within the temple.
Jas. Is this Violence? 'Tis but idleness compar'd
With your haste yesterday.
Al. I'm all this while
A-going, man.

Enter Servants.
1 Ser. The seamen call; shall we board your trunks?
Al. No, not to-day.
Jas. 'T is the critical day, it seems, and the sign in Aquarius.
2 Ser. We must not to sea to-day; this smoke will bring forth fire.
Al. Keep all on shore; I do not know the end,
Which needs I must do, of an affair in hand
Ere I can go to sea.

1 Ser. Well, your pleasure.

2 Ser. Let him e'en take his leisure too; we are safer on land.

Entr. Servants.

Enter Beatrice, Diantha, and Servants
[Alcemon accosts Beatrice and then kisses her].

Jas. [Aside.] How now? The laws of the Muses are chang'd sure; salute a woman! He kisses too; wonderful! Where learnt he [as this? and does it perfectly too. In my conscience, he ne'er rehearsed it before. Nay, go on;
this will be stranger and better news at Valencia than if he had ransom'd half Greece from the Turk.

Beat. You are a scholar, sir?

Als. A weak one, lady.

Beat. Which of the sciences is this love you speak of?

Als. From your tongue I take it to be music.

Beat. You're skillful in it, can sing at first sight.

Als. And I have show'd you all my skill at once;
I want more words to express me further,
And must be for'd to repetition;
I love you dearly.

Beat. Be better advis'd, sir:
Our eyes are sentinels unto our judgments,
And should give certain judgment what they
see;
But they are rash sometimes, and tell us wonders
Of common things, which when our judgments
find,
They can then check the eyes, and call them blind.

Als. But I am further, lady; yesterday
Was mine eyes' employment, and hither now
They brought my judgment, where are both agreed.

Both houses then consenting, 'tis agreed;
Only there wants the confirmation
By the hand royal; that's your part, lady.

Beat. Oh, there's some above us, sir.—[Aside.]
For five days past
To be recall'd! Sure mine eyes were mistaken;
This was the man was meant me. That he should come
So near his time, and miss it!

Jas. We might have come by the carriers [as from Valencia, I see, and say'd all our sea-provision; we are at farthest sure. Methinks I should do something too;
I meant to be a venturer in this voyage.
Yonder's another vessel, I'll board her;
If she be lawful prize, down goes her topail.

[Accosts Diantha.]

Enter De Flores.

De F. Lady, your father

Beat. Is in health, I hope.

De F. Your eye shall instantly instruct you,
lady;
He's coming hitherward.

Beat. What needed then
Your duteous preface? I had rather
He had come unexpected; you must stall 1
A good presence with unnecessary blabbing;
And how welcome for your part you are,
I'm sure you know.

De F. [Aside. ] Will 't never mend, this soon,
One side nor other? Must I be enjoin'd 2 to follow still whilst she flies from me? Well, Fates, do your worst, I'll please myself with sight;
Of her at all opportunities,
If but to spite her anger. I know she had Rather see me dead than living; and yet
She knows no cause for 't but a peevish will.

Als. You seem'd displeas'd, lady, on the sudden.

Beat. Your pardon, sir, 'tis my infirmity;
Nor can I other reason render you
Than his or hers, of some particular thing 3
They must abandon as a deadly poison,
Which to a thousand other tastes were whole-
some;
Such to mine eyes is that same fellow there.

The same that report speaks of the basilisk. 4
Als. This is a frequent frailty in our nature;
There's scarce a man amongst a thousand found
But hath his imperfection; one distastes
The scent of roses, which to infinites
Most pleasing is and odoriferous;
One oil, the enemy of poison;
Another wine, the cheerer of the heart
And lively refresher of the countenance.
Indeed this fault, if so it be, is general;
There's scarce a thing but is both lov'd and loath'd: 5
Myself, I must confess, have the same frailty.

Beat. And what may be your poison, sir?
I'm bold with you.

Als. What 4 might be your desire, perhaps;
a cherry.

Beat. I am no enemy to any creature
My memory has, but you gentleman.

Als. He does ill to tempt your sight, if he knew it.

Beat. He cannot be ignorant of that, sir,
I have not spare'd to tell him so; and I want
To help myself, since he's a gentleman
In good respect with my father, and follows
him.

Als. He's out of his place then now.

[They talk apart.]

Jas. I am a mad wagg, wench.
Dia. So methinks; but for your comfort, I can tell you, we have a doctor in the city that undertakes the cure of such.

Jas. Tush, I know what physic is best for the state of mine own body.

Dia. 'Tis scarce a well-govern'd state, I believe.

Jas. I could show thee such a thing with an ingredient that we two would compound to—gether, and if it did not tame the maddest blood in the town for two hours after, I'll ne'er profess physic again.

Dia. A little poppy, sir, were good to cause you sleep.

Jas. Poppy? I'll give thee a poppy th' lips for that first, and begin there. Poppy is one simple indeed, and cuckoo (what-you-call 't) another. I'll discover no more now; another time I'll show thee all. [Exit.] 188

Enter VERMANDERO and Servants.

Beat. My father, sir.

Ver. O Joanna, I came to meet thee.

Beat. For this time, sir. —

[Aside.] I shall change my saint, I fear me; I find a giddy turning in me. — Sir, this while I am beholding to this gentleman, who left his own way to keep me company, and in discourse I find him much desirous to see your castle. He hath deserved it, sir, if ye please to grant it.

Ver. With all my heart, sir.

Yet there's an article between; I must know your country; we use not to give survey.

Of our chief strengths to strangers; our citadels are plac'd conspicuous to outward view, on promontories tops, but within our secrets.

Als. A Valencian, sir.

Ver. A Valencian? 178

That's native, sir. Of what name, I beseech you?

Als. Alsenero, sir.

Ver. Alsenero? Not the son of John de Alsenero?

Als. The same, sir.

Ver. My best love bids you welcome.

Beat. He was wont to call me so, and then he speaks a most unfeigned truth.

Ver. O sir, I knew your father; we two were in acquaintance long ago, before our ships were worth an island down, and so continued till the stamp of time had coin'd us into silver. Well, he's gone; 188 a good soldier went with him.

Als. You went together in that, sir.

Ver. No, by Saint Jacques, I came behind him; yet I've done somewhat too: an unhappy day swallowed him at last at Gibraltar, in fight with those rebellious Hollanders. Was it not so?

Als. Whose death I had reveng'd, or followed him in fate, had not the late league prevented me.

Ver. Ay, ay, 'twas time to breathe. — O Joanna, I should ha' told thee news; 188 I saw Pirenaque lately.

Beat. [Aside.] That's ill news.

Ver. He's hot preparing for this day of triumph.

Thou must be a bride within this sevennight.

Als. [Aside.] Ha!

Beat. Nay, good sir, be not so violent; with speed I cannot render satisfaction.

Unto the dear companion of my soul, virginity, whom I thus long have liv'd with, and part with it so rude and suddenly.

Can such friends divide, never to meet again, without a solemn farewell?

Ver. Tush, tush! there's a toy. 8 Als. [Aside.] I must now part, and never meet again.

With any joy on earth. — Sir, your pardon; my affairs call on me.

Ver. How, sir? By no means: not chang'd so soon, I hope? You must see my castle, and her fair entertainment, e'er we part; I shall think myself unkindly us'd else. Come, come, let's on; I had good hope your stay had been a while with us in Alicant; I might have bid you to my daughter's wedding.

Als. [Aside.] He means to feast me, and poisons me beforehand. — I should be dearly glad to be there, sir; did my occasions suit as I could wish.

Beat. I shall be sorry if you be not there when it is done, sir; but not so suddenly.

Ver. I tell you, sir, the gentleman's complete, a courtier and a gallant, enrich'd with many fair and noble ornaments; I would not change him for a son-in-law for any he in Spain, the proudest he, and we have great ones, that you know.

Als. He's much bound to you, sir.

Ver. He shall be bound to me as fast as this tie can hold him; I'll want my will else.

Beat. [Aside.] I shall want mine, if you do it.

Ver. But come, by the way I'll tell you more of him.

Als. [Aside.] How shall I dare to venture in his castle, when he discharges murderers at the gate? But I must on, for back I cannot go.

Beat. [ Aside.] Not this serpent gone yet?

[ Dips a glove.]

Ver. Look, girl, thy glove's fallen.

Stay, stay; De Flores, help a little. 128

[Exit VERMANDERO, ALSENERO, and Servants.]

De F. Here, lady. 128

[Offers her the glove.]

Beat. Mischief on your officious forwardness; who bade you stoop? They touch my hand no more:

There! for't other's sake I part with this; 128

[ Takes off and throws down the other glove.]

* Trifling fancy. 128 Cannon.
Take 'em, and draw thine own skin off with
'em!'

Erst [with DIAPHANTA and Servants].

De F. Here's a favour come with a mischief now! I know
She had rather wear my pelt than taum'd in a pair
Of dancing pumps, than I should thrust my fingers
Into her sockets here. I know she hates me,
Yet cannot choose but love her. No matter,
If but to vex her, I will haunt her still;
Though I get nothing else, I'll have my will.

[Exit.]

[Scene II.]

Enter Allius and Lollio.

All. Lollio, I must trust thee with a secret,
But thou must keep it.

Lol. I was ever close to a secret, sir.

All. The diligence that I have found in thee,
The care and industry already past,
Assures me of thy good continuance.

Lollio, I have a wife.

All. Fie, sir, 'tis too late to keep her secret; she's known to be married all the town and country over.

All. Thou goest too fast, my Lollio. That knowledge I allow no man can barr'd it;
But there is a knowledge which is nearer,
Deeper, and sweeter, Lollio.

Lol. Well, sir, let us handle that between you and I.

All. 'Tis that I go about, man, Lollio,
My wife is young.

Lol. So much the worse to be kept secret, sir.

All. Why, now thou meet'st the substance of the point;
I am old, Lollio.

Lol. No, sir, 'tis I am old Lollio.

All. Yet why may not this concord and sympathize?

Old trees and young plants often grow together,
Well enough agreeing.

Lol. Ay, sir, but the old trees raise themselves higher and broader than the young plants.

All. Shrewd application! There's the fear, man;
I would wear my ring on my own finger;
Whilst it is borrowed, it is none of mine,
But his that useth it.

Lol. You must keep it on still then, if it but lie by, one or other will be thrusting into't.

All. Thou conceive'st me, Lollio; here thy watchful eye Must have employment - I cannot always be

At home.

Lol. I dare swear you cannot.

All. I must look out.

Lol. I know 't, you must look out; 't is every man's case.

All. Here, I do say, must thy employment be;

To watch her treadings, and in my absence
Supply my place.

Lol. I'll do my best, sir; yet surely I cannot see who you should have cause to be jealous of.

All. Thy reason for that, Lollio? It is
A comfortable question.

Lol. We have but two sorts of people in the house, and both under the whip, that's fools and madmen; the one has not wit enough to be knaves, and the other not knavery enough to be fools.

All. Ay, those are all my patients, Lollio;
I do profess the care of either sort;
My trade, my living 't is; I thrive by it;
But here's the care that mixes with my thrift:
The daily visitants, that come to see My brain-sick patients, I would not have to see my wife. Gallants I do observe
Of quick enticing eyes, rich in habits,
Of stature and proportion very comely:
These are most shrewd temptations, Lollio.

Lol. They may be easily answered, sir; if they come to see the fools and madmen, you and I may serve the turn, and let my mistress alone; she's of neither sort.

All. 'Tis a good ward; indeed, come they to see
Our madmen or our fools, let 'em see no more
Than what they come for; by that consequent
They must not see her; I'm sure she's no fool.

Lol. And I'm sure she's no madman.

All. Hold that buckler fast; Lollio, my trust
Is on thee, and I account it firm and strong.

What hour is 't, Lollio?

Lol. Towards belly-hour, sir.

All. Dinner-time? Thou mean'st twelve o'clock?

Lol. Yes, sir, for every part has his hour: we wake at six and look about us, that's eye-hour; at seven we should pray, that's knee-hour: at eight walk, that's leg-hour; at nine gather flowers and pluck a rose, that's love-hour; at ten we drink, that's mouth-hour: at eleven lay about us for victuals, that's hand-hour; at twelve go to dinner, that's belly-hour.

All. Profoundly, Lollio! It will be long Ere all thy scholars learn this lesson, and
I did look to have a new one ent'red; - stay,
I think my expectation is come home.

Enter Pedro, and Antonio [disguised] like an idiot.

Ped. Save you, sir; my business speaks itself:
This sight takes off the labour of my tongue.

All. Ay, ay, sir, it is plain enough, you mean

Him for my patient.

Ped. And if your pains prove but commodious, to give but some little strength to his sick and weak part of nature in him, these are

1 Idiots.
2 Guard (in fancing). (Dyce.)
3 "Pluck a rose" = alune croners. (Bullen.)
a fool, I had had more wit than I have too. Remember what states you found me in.

Ped. I will, and so leave you. Your best cares, I beseech you. Exeunt PEDRO.

Alib. Take you none with you, leave 'em all with us.

Ant. O, my cousin's gone! cousin, cousin, O! Ped. Peace, peace, Tony; you must not cry, lad, you must be whipt if you do; your cousin is here still; I am your cousin, Tony.

Ant. He, he! then I'll not cry, if thou be'st my cousin; he, he, he!

Lol. I were best try his wit a little, that I may know what form to place him in. Alib. Ay, do, Lollio, do.

Lol. I must ask him easy questions at first. Tony, how many true fingers has a tailor on his right hand?

Ant. As many as on his left, cousin.

Lol. Good: and how many on both? Ant. Two less than a deuce, cousin.

Lol. Very well answered. I come to you again, cousin Tony; how many fools goes to a wise man?

Ant. Forty in a day sometimes, cousin.

Lol. Forty in a day? How prove you that?

Ant. All that fall out amongst themselves, and go to a lawyer to be made friends.

Lol. A parlous fool! he must sit in the fourth form at least. I perceive that. — I come again, Tony; how many knaves make an honest man?

Ant. I know not that, cousin.

Lol. No, the question is too hard for you. I'll tell you, cousin; there's three knaves, a sergeant, a jailor, and a beadle; the sergeant catches him, the jailor holds him, and the beadle lasses him; and if he be not honest then, the hangman must cure him.

Ant. Ha, ha, ha! that's fine sport, cousin.

Alib. This was too deep a question for the fool, Lollio.

Lol. Yes, this might have serv'd yourself, though I say 't. — Once more and you shall go play, Tony.

Ant. Ay, play at push-pin, cousin; ha, he!

Lol. So thou shalt: say how many fools are here —

Ant. Two, cousin; thou and I.

Lol. Nay, you're too forward there, Tony. Mark my question; how many fools and knaves are here; a fool before a knave, a fool behind a knave, between every two fools a knave; how many fools, how many knaves?

Ant. I never learnt so far, cousin.

Alib. Thou puttest too hard questions to him, Lollio.

Lol. I'll make him understand it easily. — Cousin, stand there.

Ant. Ay, cousin.

Lol. Master, stand you next the fool.

Alib. Well, Lollio.

Lol. Here's my place. Mark now, Tony, there's a fool before a knave.

1 Constable.
2 Answer for, warrant; or, make him able for.
3 Business.
4 Honest.
5 Two.
ACT II

[Scene I.]

Enter Beatrice and Jasperino severally.

Beat. O sir, I'm ready now for that fair service
Which makes the name of friend sit glorious on you!
Good angels and this conduct be your guide!

[Giving a paper.]
Fitness of time and place is there set down, sir.

Jas. The joy I shall return rewards my service.

Beat. How wise is Alsemero in his friend!
It is a sign he makes his choice with judgment;
Then I appear in nothing more approv'd
Than making choice of him; for 'tis a principle,

He that can choose
His bosom well who of his thoughts partakes,
Proves most discreet in every choice he makes.

Methinks I love now with the eyes of judgment,
And see the way to merit, clearly see it.
A true deserver like a diamond sparkles;
In darkness you may see him, that's in absence,
Which is the greatest darkness falls on love;
Yet is he best discern'd then
With intellectual eyesight. What's Piraqau,
My father spends his breath for? And his blessing
Is only mine as I regard his name,
Else it goes from me, and turns head against me,
Transform'd into a curse. Some speedy way
Must be rememb'red. He's so forward too,
So urgent that way, scarce allows me breath
To speak to my new comforts.

Enter De Flores.

De F. [Aside.] Yonder's she;
Whatever ails me, now a-late especially,
I can as well be hang'd as refrain seeing her;
Some twenty times a day, nay, not so little,
Do I force errands, frame ways and excuses,
To come into her sight; and I've small reason
for 't,
And less encouragement, for she baits me still
Every time worse than other; does profess herself
The cruellest enemy to my face in town;
At no hand can abide the sight of me,
As if danger or ill-luck hung in my looks,
I must confess my face is bad enough,
But I know far worse has better fortune,
And not endur'd alone, but doted on;
And yet such pock-hair'd faces, chins like witches,

Here and there five hairs whispering in a corner,
As if they grew in fear one of another,
Wrinkles like troughs, where swine-deformity swills
The tears of perjury, that lie there like wash
Fallen from the slimy and dishonest eye,—
Yet such one plucks sweets without restraint,
And has the grace of beauty to his sweet.
Though my hard fate has thrust me out to servitude,
I tumbled into th' world a gentleman.
She turns her blessed eye upon me now,
And I'll endure all storms before I part with 't.

Beat. [Aside.] Again?
This ominous ill-face'd fellow more disturbs me
Than all my other passions.

De F. [Aside.] Now 't begins again;
I'll stand this storm of hail, though the stones pelt me.

Beat. Thy business? What's thy business?

De F. [Aside.] Soft and fair!
I cannot part so soon now.

Beat. [Aside.] The villain's first—
Thou standing toad-pool —
De F. [Aside.] The shower falls amain now.
Beat. Who sent thee? What's thy errand?
Leaves my sight!
De F. My lord your father, charg'd me to deliver
A message to you.
Beat. What, another since?
Do't, and be hang'd then; let me be rid of thee.
De F. True service merits prac.
Beat. What's thy message?
De F. Let beauty settle but in patience,
You shall hear all.
Beat. A dallying, trifling torment!
De F. Signor Alonzo de Pisaquo, lady,
Sole brother to Tomas de Pisaquo —
Beat. Slave, when wilt make an end?
De F. Too soon I shall.
Beat. What all this while of him?
De F. The said Alonzo...
With the foretold Tomas —
Beat. Yet again?
De F. Is new alighted.
Beat. Vengeance strike the news!
Thou thing most loath'd, what cause was there in
This
To bring thee to my sight?
De F. My lord your father
Charg'd me to seek you out.
Beat. Is there no other?
To send his errand by?
De F. It seems 'tis my luck
To be 't 'way still.
Beat. Get thee from me!
De F. So:—
[Aside.] Why, am not I an ass to devise ways
Thus to be rail'd at? I must see her still!
I shall have a mad qualm within this hour
again,
I know't; and, like a common Garden-bull,
I do but take breath to be lugg'd 3 again.
What this may bode I know not; I'll despair
the less.
Because there's daily precedents of bad faces
Believ'd beyond all reason. These foul chores
May come into favour one day 'mongst [their] fellows.
Wrangling has prov'd the mistress of good pastime;
As children cry themselves asleep, I ha' seen
Women have chid themselves a-bed to men.
Exit.
Beat. I never see this fellow but I think
Of some harm towards me; danger's in my mind still;
I scarce leave trembling of an hour after.
The next good mood I find my father in,
I'll get him quite discarded. O, I was Lost in this small disturbance, and forgot Affliction's fiercer torrent that now comes
To bear down all my comforts!

Enter Verrandero, Alonzo, and Tomas.
Ver. You're both welcome,
But an especial one belongs to you, sir,

Title. 1 Paris Garden, on the Bankeisde, where ball-bating was carried on.
1 Dragged by the ear.
8 Q. His
To whose most noble name our love presents
Th' addition 3 of a son, our son Alonzo.
Alonzo. The treasury of honour cannot bring forth
A title I should more rejoice in, sir.
Ver. You have improv'd it well.—Daughter,
prepare;
The day will steal upon thee suddenly.
Beat. [Aside.] How' er, I will be sure to keep the night,
If it should come so near me.

[Beatrice and Verrandero talk apart.]
Tom.
Alonzo.
Tom. In truth I see small welcome in her eye.
Alonzo. Fie, you are too severe a censur'd one.
Of love in all points, there's no bringing on
you.
If lovers should mark everything a fault,
Affection would be like an ill-set book,
Whose faults might prove as big as the volume.
Beat. That's all I do entertain.
Ver. It is but reasonable;
I'll see what my son says to 't. —Son Alonzo,
Here is a motion made but to reprieve
A maidenhead three days longer; the request
Is not far out of reason, for indeed
The former time is pinching.
Alonzo. Though my joys
Be set back so much time as I could wish
They had been forward, yet since she desires it,
The time is set as pleasing as before,
I find no gladness wanting.
Ver. May I ever
Meet it in that point still! You're nobly welcome, sir.

Exit with Beatrice.
Tom. So; did you mark the dulness of her parting now?
Alonzo. What dulness? Thou art so exceptions still!
Tom. Why, let it go then; I am but a fool
To mark your harms so heedfully.
Alonzo. Where's the oversight?
Tom. Come, your faith's censured in her,
strongly censured.
Unseettle your affection with all speed
Wisdom can bring it to; your peace is ruin'd else.
Think what a torment 't is to marry one
Whose heart is leapt into another's bosom:
If ever pleasure she receive from thee,
It comes not in thy name, or of thy gift;
She lies but with another in thine arms,
He the half-father unto all thy children
In the conception; if he get 'em not,
She helps to get 'em for him; 8 and how dangerous
And shameful her restraint may go in time to,
It is not to be thought on without sufferings.
Alonzo. You speak as if she lov'd some other,
then.
Tom. Do you apprehend so slowly?
Alon. Nay, an that
Be your fear only, I am safe enough.
Preserve your friendship and your counsel,
brother,
For times of more distress; I should depart
An enemy, a dangerous, deadly one,
To any but thyself, that should but think
She knew the meaning of inconstancy,
Much less the use and practice; yet we’re friends.
Pray, let no more be urg’d; I can endure
Much, till I meet an injury to her,
Then I am not myself. Farewell, sweet brother;
How much we’re bound to Heaven to depart lovingly. Exit.
Tom. Why, here is love’s tame madness;
thus a man. Quickly steals into his vexation.
Exit.

[Scene II.]
Enter Diaphanta and Asembera.

Dia. The place is my charge; you have kept your hour,
And the reward of a just meeting bless you!
I hear my lady coming. Complete gentleman,
I dare not be too busy with my praises,
They’re dangerous things to deal with. Exit.
Als. This goes well; these women are the ladies’ cabinets,
Things of most precious trust are lookt into ’em.

Enter Beatrice.

Beat. I have within mine eye all my desires,
Requests that holy prayers ascend Heaven for,
And brings ’em down to furnish our defects. Come not more sweet to our necessities
Than thou unto my wishes.
Als. We’re so like
In our expressions, lady, that unless I borrow
The same words, I shall never find their equals.
Beat. How happy were this meeting, this embrase,
If it were free from envy! This poor kiss
It has an enemy, a hateful one,
That wishes poison to’t. How well were I now,
If there were none such name known as Piraquo,
Nor no such tie as the command of parents! I should be but too much bless’d.
Als. One good service
Would strike off both your fears, and I’ll go near ’t too,
Since you are so distrest. Remove the cause,
The command cesses; so there’s two fears blown out
With one and the same blast.
Beat. Pray, let me find you, sir: What might that service be, so strangely happy?
Als. The honourablest piece about man, valour:
I’ll send a challenge to Piraquo instantly.
Beat. How? Call you that extinquishing of fear,
When ’t is the only way to keep it flaming?

1 Another apartment in the Castle. 2 Understand.
THE CHANGELING 723

Bea. What has you done
To your face a' late? You've met with some good physician;
You've scurried yourself, methinks: you were not wont
To look so amorously. 2
De F. Not I; —  18
[Aside.] 'Tis the same physomy, to a hair and pimple,
Which she called seury scarce an hour ago:
How is this?  Beat.
Come-hither; bearer, man.
De F. [Aside.] I'm up to the chin in Heaven!
Beat. Turn, let me see;
Faubh, 'tis but the heat of the liver, I perceive 't;
I thought it had been worse.
De F. [Aside.] Her fingers touch me! 81
She smells all amber. 9
Beat. I'll make a water for you shall cleanse
this
Within this fortnight.
De F. With your own hands, lady? 44
Beat. Yes, mine own, sir; in a work of cure
I'll trust no other.
De F. [Aside.] 'T is half an act of pleasure
To hear her talk thus to me.
Beat. When we're us'd
To a hard face, it is not so unpleasing;
It mends still in opinion, hourly mends;
I see it by experience.
De F. [Aside.] I was blest 90
To light upon this minstrel: I'll make use on't.
Beat. Hardness becomes the visage of a man
well;
It argues service, resolution, manhood,
If cause were of employment.
De F. 'T would be soon seen
If e'er your ladyship had cause to use it; 92
I would but wish the honour of a service
So happy as that mounts to.
Beat. We shall try you. —
O my De Flores!
De F. [Aside.] How's that? She calls me hers
Already! My De Flores! — You were about
To sigh out somewhat, madam?
Beat. No, was I? 100
I forget. — O! —
De F. There 't is again, the very fellow on't.
Beat. You are too quick, sir.
De F. There's no excuse for't now; I heard it twice, madam;
That sigh would fail have utterance: take pity
on 't,
And lend it a free word. 'Las, how it labour!
For liberty! I hear the murmure yet
Beat at your bosom.
Beat. Would creation —
De F. Ay, well said, that is it.
Beat. Had form'd me man!
De F. Nay, that's not it.
Beat. O, 'tis the soul of freedom!
I should not then be forc'd to marry one 118

1 Freem, set the feathers in order. Used of hawks.
2 Like an object of love.
3 Amblergia.
Enter Alonzo.

Alon. De Flores.

De F. My kind, honourable lord?

Alon. I'm glad I ha' met with thee.

De F. Sir?

Alon. Thou canst show me the full strength of the castle?

De F. That I can, sir.

Alon. I much desire it.

De F. And if the ways and straits be not too tedious for you, I'll assure you, worth your time and sight, my lord.

Alon. Fooh, that shall be no hindrance.

De F. I'm your servant, then.

'Tis now near dinner-time; 'gainst your lordship's rising, I'll have the keys about me.

Alon. Thanks, kind De Flores.

De F. [Aside.] He's safely trust upon me beyond hopes.

Exeunt [severally].

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Enter Alonzo and De Flores. (In the acttime De Flores hides a naked rapier [behind a door.]

De Flores. Yes, here are all the keys; I was afraid, my lord, I'd wanted for the postern, this is it. I've all, I've all, my lord: this for the sconce.

Alon. 'Tis a most spacious and impregnable fort.

De F. You'll tell me more, my lord. This descent is somewhat narrow, we shall never pass well with our weapons, they'll but trouble us.

Alon. Thou sayest true.

De F. Pray, let me help your lordship.

Alon. 'Tis done: thanks, kind De Flores.

De F. Here are hooks, my lord; to hang such things on purpose.

[Hang up his own sword and that of Alonzo.]

Alon. Lead, I'll follow thee.

Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

[Enter Alonzo and De Flores.]

De F. All this is nothing; you shall see anon.

A place you little dream on.

Alon. I am glad I have this leisure; all your master's house imagine I ha' taken a gondola.

De F. All but myself, sir, — [aside] which makes up my safety.

My lord, I'll place you at a casement here, will show you the full strength of all the castle. Look, spend your eye awhile upon that object.

Alon. Here's rich variety, De Flores.

De F. Yes, sir.

Alon. Goodly munition.

De F. Ay, there's ordnance, sir: no bastard metal, will ring you a peal like bells.

At great men's funerals. Keep your eye straight, my lord; take special notice of that sconce before you, there you may dwell awhile.

[Takes the rapier which he had hid behind the door.]

Alon. I am upon 't.

De F. And so am I. [Stabs him.]

Alon. De Flores! O De Flores! Whose malice hast thou put on? De F. Do you question a work of secrecy? I must silence you. [Stabs him.]

Alon. O, O, O!

De F. I must silence you. [Stabs him.]

So here's an undertaking well accomplisht. This vault serves to good use now: ha, what's that? Threw sparkle in my eye? O, 'tis a diamond He wears upon his finger: 't was well found; this will approve the work. What, so fast on? Not part in death? I'll take a speedy course then.

Finger and all shall off. [Cuts off the finger.]

So now I'll clear the passages from all suspect or fear.

Exit with body.

[Scene III.]

Enter Isabella and Lollio.

Isa. Why, sirrah, whence have you commission to fetter the doors against me? If you keep me in a cage, pray, whistle to me, let me be doing something.

Loll. You shall be doing, if it please you; I'll whistle to you, if you'll pipe after.

Isa. Is it your master's pleasure, or your own, to keep me in this pindolf?

Loll. 'Tis for my master's pleasure, lest being taken in another man's corn, you might be pounded in another place.

Isa. 'Tis very well, and he'll prove very wise.

Loll. He says you have company enough in the house, if you please to be sociable, of all sorts of people.

Isa. Of all sorts? Why, here's none but fools and madmen.

Loll. Very well: and where will you find any other, if you should go abroad? There's my master and I to boot too.

Isa. Of either sort one, a madman and a fool.

[Prove it has been done.]

An apartment in the house of Alibius.
THE CHANGELING

Lol. I would ev'n participate of both then if I were as you; I know you're half mad already, be half foolish too.

Isa. You're a brave saucy rascal! Come on, sir.

Afford us then the pleasure of your bedlam.
You are commending once to-day to me
Your last-come lunatic; what a proper
Body there was without brains to guide it,
And what a pitiful delight appear'd
In that defect, as if your wisdom had found
A mirth in madness; pray, sir, let me partake,
If there be such a pleasure.

Lol. If I do not show you the handsomest, is discreetest madman, one that I may call the understanding madman, then say I am a fool.

Isa. Well, a match, I will say so.

Lol. When you have had a taste of the madman, you shall, if you please, see Fool's College, o' th' other side. I seldom lock there; 'tis but shooting a bolt or two, and you are amongst 'em. Exit. Enter presently. — Come on, sir; let me see how handsomely you'll be have yourself now.

Enter FRANCISius.

Fran. How sweetly she looks! O, but there's a wrinkle in her brow as deep as philosophy. Anacreon, drink to my mistress' health, I'll pledge it. Stay, stay, there's a spider in the cup! No, 'tis but a grape-stone; swallow it. [Fear nothing, poet; so, so, lift higher.

Isa. Alack, alack, it is too full of pity.
To be laughed at! How fall he mad? Canst thou tell?

Lol. For love, mistress. He was a pretty poet, too, and that set him forwards first; [as the muses then forsook him; he ran mad for a chambermaid, yet she was but a dwarf neither.

Fran. Hail, bright Titania!
Why stand'st thou idle on these flow'ry banks? Oberon is dancing with his Dryades;
I'll gather daisies, primrose, violets,
And bind them in a verse of poesy.

Lol. [holding up a whip.] Not too near! You see your danger.

Fran. O, hold thy hand, great Diomede! Thou feed'st thy horses well, they shall obey thee.

Get up, Buccocephalus kneels. [Kneels.

Lol. You see how I save my flock; a shepherd has not his dog at more obedience.

Isa. His conscience is unquiet; sure that was

The cause of this: a proper gentleman!

Fran. Come hither, Aesculapius; hide the poison.

Lol. Well, 'tis hid. [Hides the whip.] Fran. Didst thou ne'er hear of one Tiresias,
A famous poet?

Lol. Yes, that kept tame wild geese.

Fran. That's he; I am the man.

Lol. No?

Fran. Yes; but make no words on 't. I was a man

Seven years ago. 1 Handsome.

Lol. A stripling, I think, you might.

Fran. Now I'm a woman, all feminine.

Lol. I would I might see that!

Fran. Jove struck me blind.

Lol. I'll ne'er believe that; for a woman, they say, has an eye more than a man.

Fran. I say she struck me blind.

Lol. And Luna made you mad: you have two trades to beg with.

Fran. Luna is now big-bellied, and there's room
For both of us to ride with Heacate;
I'll drag thee up into her silver sphere,
And there we'll kick the dog — and beat the bush —
That barks against the witches of the night;
The swift lycaenthropi 2 that walks the round,
We'll tear their wolvish skins, and save the sheep.

[Attempts to seize LOLLO.] Fran. Is it come to this? Nay, then, my prison comes forth again. [Showing the whip.]

Mad slave, indeed, abuse your keeper!

Isa. I promise, hence with him, now he grows dangerous.

Fran. [sings.] Sweet love, pity me,
Give me leave to lie with thee.

Lol. No, I'll see you wiser first. To your own kennel!

Fran. No noise, she sleeps; draw all the curtains round,
Let no soft sound molest the pretty soul
But love, and love creeps in at a mouse-hole.

Lol. I would you would get into your hole! (Exit FRANCISUS.) — Now, mistress, I will bring you another sort; you shall be fool'd another while. [Exit, and brings in ANTONIO.] — Tony, come hither, Tony: look who's yonder, Tony.

Ant. Cousin, is it not my aunt? 3

Isa. Yes, 'tis one of 'em, Tony.

Ant. He, he! how do you, uncle?

Lol. Fear him not, mistress, 'tis a gentle nigglet; 4 you may play with him, as safely with him as with his bauble.

Isa. How long hast thou been a fool?

Ant. Ever since I came hither, cousin.

Isa. Cousin! I'm none of thy cousins, fool.

Lol. O, mistress, fools have always so much wit as to claim their kindred.

Madman. [within.] Bounce, bounce! he falls, he falls!

Isa. Hark you, your scholars in the upper room.

Are out of order.

Lol. Must I come amongst you there? — Keep you the fool, mistress; I'll go up and play left-handed Orlando amongst the madmen. Exit.

Isa. Well, sir.

Ant. 'T is opportune now, sweet lady! nay, Cast no amazing eye upon this change.

Isa. Ha!

1 Persons suffering from lycaenthropia, or wolf-madness. Cf. Duchess of Mayf, V. ii. 10.
2 Cant term for bawd.
3 Midget, f. e. idiot.
Ant. This shape of folly shrouds your dearest love,
The truest servant to your powerful beauties,
Whose magic had this force thus to transform me.

Isa. You're a fine fool indeed!

Ant. O, 'tis not strange! Love has an intellect that runs through all
The scrutinizing sciences; and, like a cunning post,
Catches a quantity of every knowledge,
Yet brings all home into one mystery,
Into one secret that he proceeds in.

Isa. You're a pelting fool.

Ant. No danger in me; I bring nought but love
And his soft-wounding shafts to strike you with.

Try but one arrow; if it hurt you, I
Will stand you twenty back in recompense.

[Isa. A forward fool too!

Ant. This was love's teaching:
A thousand ways he fashioned out my way,
And this I found the safest and the nearest,
To tread the galaxias to my star.

Isa. Profound withdrawal! certain you dream'd of this,
Love never taught it waking.

Ant. Take no acquaintance
Of these outward follies, there's within
A gentleman that loves you.

Isa. When I see him,
I'll speak with him; so, in the meantime, keep
Your habit, it becomes you well enough.
As you're a gentleman, I'll not discover you;
That's all the favour that you must expect.
When you are weary, you may leave the school,
For all this while you have but play'd the fool.

Re-enter Lollio.

Ant. And must again. — He, he! I thank you;

I'll be your valentine to-morrow morning.

Lot. How do you like the fool, mistress?

Isa.Passing well, sir.

Lot. Is he not witty, pretty well, for a fool?

Isa. If he holds on as he begins, he's like
To come to something.

Lot. Ay, thank a good tutor. You may put him to 't; he begins to answer pretty hard [1192] questions. — Tony, how many is five times six?

Ant. Five times six is six times five.

Lot. What arithmetician could have answer'd better? How many is one hundred and seven?
Ant. One hundred and seven is seven hundred and one, cousen.

Lot. This is no wit to speak on! — Will you be rid of the fool now?

Isa. By no means; let him stay a little.

Madman. [within.] Catch there, catch the last couple in hell!

1 Scrambling.
An allusion to the game of barley-break, the ground for which was divided into three compartments, of which the middle one was termed "hell." [Ells].

Lot. Again! must I come amongst you? Would my master were come home! I am not able to govern both these wards together. Exit.

Ant. Why should a minute of love's hour be lost?

Isa. Fie, out again! I had rather you kept Your other posture; you become not your tongue
When you speak from your clothes.

Ant. How can he freeze

Lives near so sweet a warmth? Shall I alone
Walk through the orchard of th' Hesperides,
And, cowardly, not dare to pull an apple?

Enter Lollio above.

This with the red cheeks I must venture for.

[Attempts to kiss her.]

Isa. Take heed, there's giants keep 'em.

Lot. [Aside.] How now, fool, are you good at that?
Have you read Lipsius? He's past [1193] Ars Amandi; I believe I must put harder questions to him, I perceive that.

Isa. You're bold without fear too.

Ant. What should I fear, having all joys about me? Do you smile,
And love shall play the wanton on your lip,
Meet and retire, retire and meet again;
Look you but cheerfully, and in your eyes
I shall behold mine own deformity,
And dress myself up fairer. I know this shape
Becomes me not, but in those bright mirrors
I shall array me handsomely.

[Gries of madness heard within.] some as birds others as beasts.

Lot. Cuckoo, cuckoo! Exit [above].

Ant. What are these?

Isa. Of fear enough to part us;
Yet are they but our schoolmates of lunatics,
That act their fantasies in any shapes,
Suiting their present thoughts: if sad, they cry;
If mirth be their conceit, they laugh again:
Sometimes they imitate the beasts and birds,
Singing or howling, Bray, barking; all
As their wild fancies prompt 'em.

Enter Lollio.

Ant. These are no fears.

Isa. But here's a large one, my man.

Ant. Ha! that's fine sport, indeed, cousen.

Lot. I would my master were come home!
'Tis too much for one shepherd to govern two of these flocks; nor can I believe that one [as churchman can instruct two benefices at once;
there will be some incurable mad of the one side, and very fools on the other.—Come, Tony.

Ant. Prithhee, cousen, let me stay here still.

Lot. No, you must to your book now; you have play'd sufficiently.
For which the gentleman hath bespoke our pains,
A mixture of our madmen and our fools,
To finish, as it were, and make the farce
Of all the revels, the third night from the first;
Only an unexpected passage over,
To make a frightful pleasure, that is all,
But not the all I aim at. Could we so act it,
To teach it in a wild distracted measure,
Though out of form and figure, breaking time’s head,
It were no matter, 't would be heal’d again
In one age or other, if not in this:
This, this, Lolloio, there’s a good reward begun,
And will beget a bounty, be it known.
Lol. This is easy, sir, I’ll warrant you; you have about you fools and madmen that can dance very well; and 't is no wonder, your best dancers are not the wisest men; the reason is, with often jumplmg they jolt their brains down into their feet, that their wits lie more in their heels than in their heads.

Alib. Honest Lolloio, thou giv’st me a good reason,
And a comfort in it.

Isa. You’re a fine trade on’t.

Madmen and fools are a staple commodity.

Alib. O wife, we must eat, wear clothes, and live.
Just at the lawyer’s haven we arrive,
By madmen and by fools we both do thrive.

Exeunt.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Vermandero, Beatrice, Alkestero, and Jasperino.

Ver. Valencia speaks so nobly of you, sir,
I wish I had a daughter now for you.
Als. The fellow of this creature were a partner
For a king’s love.

Ver. I had her fellow ones, sir,
But Heaven has married her to joys eternal;
’T were sin to wish her in this vale again.
Come, sir, your friend and you shall see the pleasures
Which my health chiefly joys in.
Als. The beauty of this seat largely [commended].
Ver. It falls much short of that.

Exit with Alkestero and Jasperino.

Beat. So, here’s one step into my father’s favour; time will fix him; I’ve got him now the liberty of the house.
So wisdom, by degrees, works out her freedom.
And if that eye be dark’ned that offends me,—
I wait but that eclipse, — this gentleman shall soon shine glorious in my father’s liking, Through the refulgent virtue of my love.

Enter De Flores.

De F. [Aside.] My thoughts are at a banquet; for the deed,

1 To gain.
8 End. 9 An apartment in the Castle. 4 Q. omits.
I feel no weight in 't; 't is but light and cheap
For the sweet recompense that I set down for 't.

Beat. De Flores?
De F. Lady?
Beat. Thy looks promise cheerfully.
De F. All things are answerable, time, circum-

Your wishes, and my service.
Beat. Is it done, then?
De F. Pisaquo is no more.
Beat. My joys start at mine eyes; our sweet'st delights

Are evermore born weeping.
De F. I've a token for you.
Beat. For me?
De F. But it was sent somewhat unwillingly; I could not get the ring without the finger.

[Producing the finger and ring.]
Beat. Bless me, what hast thou done?
De F. Why, is that more

Than killing the whole man? I cut his heartstrings;

A greedy hand thrust in a dish at court,
In a mistake hath had as much as this.
Beat. 'Tis the first token my father made me send him.

De F. And I [have] made him send it back again

For his last token. I was loth to leave it,
And I'm sure dead men have no use of jewels;
He was as loth to part with 't, for it stuck
As if the flesh and it were both one substance

Beat. At the stag's fall, the keeper has his fees;
'Tis soon appli'd, all dead men's fees are yours, sir.
I pray, bury the finger, but the stone
You may make use on shortly; the true value,
Take 't of my truth, is near three hundred ducats.
De F. 'Twill hardly buy a capace for one's conscience though,

To keep it from the worm, as fine as 't is.
Well, being my fees, I'll take it;
Great men have taught me that, or else my merit
Would soon the way on 't.
Beat. It might justly, sir.
Why, thou mistak 'st, De Flores; 't is not given
In state 3 of recompense.
De F. No, I hope so, lady; you

You should soon witness my contempt to 't then.
Beat. Prithee, — thou look'st as if thou wert offended.
De F. That were strange, lady; 't is not possible

My service should draw such a cause from you.
Offended! Could you think so? That were much

For one of my performance, and so warm
Yet in my service.
Beat. 'T were misery in me to give you cause, sir.

---

De F. I know so much, it were so; misery =
In her most sharp condition.
Beat. 'Tis resolv'd then;
Look you, sir, here's three thousand golden florins;
I have not meanly thought upon thy merit.
De F. What! salary? Now you move me.

Beat. How, De Flores? I
De F. Do you place me in the rank of ver-minous fellows,

To destroy things for wages? Offer gold
For the life-blood of man? Is anything
Valued too precios for my recompense?
Beat. I understand thee not.

De F. I could ha' hir'd

A journeyman in murder at this rate,
And mine own conscience might have [aslept at ease].
And have had the work brought home.
Beat. [Aside.] I'm in a labyrinth;
What will content him? I'd fain be rid of him.
I'll double the sum, sir.

De F. You take a course
To double my vexation, that's the good you do.
Beat. [Aside.] Bless me, I'm now in worse plight than I was;
I knows not what will please him. — For my fear's sake,
I prithee, make away with all speed possible;
And if thou be'st so modest not to name
The sum that will content thee, paper blusses not,
Send thy demand in writing, it shall follow thee;
But, prithee, take thy flight.

De F. You must fly too, then.
Beat. I?
De F. I'll not stir a foot else.

Beat. What's your meaning?

De F. Why, are not you as guilty? In, I'm sure,
As deep as I; and we should stick together. =
Come, your fears counsel you but ill; my absence

Would draw suspect upon you instantly;
There were no rescue for you.
Beat. [Aside.] He speaks home! He speaks home! He speaketh home! Nor is it fit we two, engag'd so jointly,

Should part and live amuder.
Beat. How now, sir? =

This shows not well.

De F. What makes your lip so strange?
This must not be 'twixt us.

Beat. The man talks wildly!

De F. Come, kiss me with a zeal now.

Beat. [Aside.] Heaven, I doubt him!

De F. I will not stand so long to beg 'em shortly.
Beat. Take heed, De Flores, of forgetfulness,
'Twill soon betray us.

De F. Take you heed first;

Faith, you're grown much forgetful, you're to blame in 't.

Beat. [Aside.] He's bold, and I am blam'd for 't.

De F. I have eas'd you

\[Q. cmt. Add. Ed. 1626. Q. betwixt.\]
Of your trouble, think on it; I am in pain, and must be eas'd of you; 'tis a charity, Justice invites your blood to understand me.

Beat. I dare not.

De F. Quickly!

Beat. O, I never shall! Speak it yet further off, that I may lose What has been spoken, and no sound remain on't; I would not hear so much offence again For such another deed.

De F. Soft, lady, soft! The last is not yet paid for. O, this act Has put me into spirit; I was as greedy on't As the parched earth of moisture, when the clouds weep.

Did you not mark, I wrought myself into 't, Nay, su'd and kneel'd for 't? Why was all that pains look?

You see I've thrown contempt upon your gold; Not that I want it (not), it is for I do pitiously, In order I'll come unto, and make use on 't, But 't was not held so precious to begin with, For I place wealth after the heels of pleasure; And were not I resolv'd in my belief That thy virginity were perfect in thee, I should but take my recompense with grudging,

As if I had but half my hopes I agreed for.

Beat. Why, 'tis impossible thou cannot be so wicked, Or shelter such a cunning cruelty, To make his death the murderer of my honour! Thy language is so bold and vicious,

I cannot see which way I can forgive it With any modesty.

De F. Pis! you forget yourself; A woman dipt in blood, and talk of modesty! Beat. O misery of sin I would I'd been bound Perpetually unto my living hate In that Pisaquo, than to hear these words! Think but upon the distance that creation Set 'twixt thy blood and mine, and keep thee there.

De F. Look but into thy conscience, read me there;

'T is a true book, you'll find me there your equal.
Pis! fly not to your birth, but settle you In what the act has made you; you're no more now.

You must forget your parentage to me; You're the deed's creature; by that name You lost your first condition, and I challenge you,

As peace and innocency has turn'd you out, And made you one with me.

Beat. With thee, foul villain! De F. Yea, my fair murr'ress. Do you urge me, Though thou writ'st maid, thou whore in thy affection?

'T was chang'd from thy first love, and that's a kind Of whoredom in thy heart; and he's chang'd now

---

To bring thy second on, thy Alsemoro, Whom, by all sweet's that ever darkness tasted, If I enjoy thee not, thou ne'er enjoy'st!

I'll blast the hopes and joys of marriage, I'll confess all; my life I rate at nothing.

Beat. De Flores! [then; De F. I shall rest from all love's 4 plagues I live in pain now; that shooting eye Will burn my heart to cinders.

Beat. O sir, hear me! De F. She that in life and love refuses me, In death and shame my partner she shall be.

Beat. [kneeling.] Stay, hear me once for all; I make thee master Of all the wealth I have in gold and jewels; Let me go poor unto my bed with honour, And I am rich in all things!

De F. Let this silence thee: The wealth of all Valencia shall not buy My pleasure from me;

Can you weep Fate from its determin'd purpose? So soon may you weep me.

Bea, Vengeance begins;

Murther, I see, is followed by more sins.

Was my creation in the womb so curst, It must engender with a viper first?

De F. [raising her.] Come, rise and shroud your blushes in my bosom;

Silence is one of pleasure's best receipts; Thy peace is wrought for ever in this yielding. 'La! how the turtle pants! Thou 'lt love anon What thou so fear'st and faint'st to venture on.

Exit.

ACT IV

[DUMB SHOW.]

Enter Gentlemen. VERMANDERO meeting them with action of wondrement at the flight of PISAQUO. Enter ALSEMERO with JASPERINO and gallants: VERMANDERO points to him, the gentlemen seeming to applaud the choice. ALSEMERO, JASPERINO, and Gentlemen; BEATRICE the bride following in great state, accompanied with DIAPHANTA, ISABELLA, and other gentlewomen; DE FLORES after all, smiling at the accident; ALONZO's ghost appears to DE FLORES in the midst of his smile, startles him, showing him the hand whose finger he had cut off. They pass over in great solemnity.

---

[SCENE I.]

Enter BEATRICE.

Beat. This follow has undone me endlessly; Never was bride so fearfully distress'd. The more I think upon th' ensuing night, And whom I am to cope with in embraces, One (who 's) 4 ennobled both in blood and mind, So clear in understanding, — that's my plague now —

---

Enter BEATRICE.
Before whose judgment will my fault appear
Like malefactors’ crimes before tribunals.
There is no hiding on’t, the more I dive
Into my own distress. How a wise man Stands for 1 a great calamity! There’s no venturing
Into his bed, what course see’er I light upon,
Without my shame, which may grow up to danger.
He cannot but in justice strange me
As I lie by him; as a cheater use me; 16
’Tis a precious craft to play with a false die
Before a cunning gamester. Here’s his closet;
The key left in ‘t, and he abroad i’ th’ park! 18
Sure ‘t was forgot; I’ll be so bold as look in ‘t.

[Opens closet.]
Bless me! a right physician’s closet ‘t is, 20
Set round with vials; every one her mark too.
Sure he doth practise physic for his own use,
Which may be safely call’d your great man’s wisdom.

What manuscript lies here? “The Book of Experiment, Call’d Secrets in Nature,” So ‘tis: ‘t is so. 22 [Reads.] “How to know whether a woman be with child or no.” I hope I am not wet; if he should try though!
Let me see [reads] “failing forty-five,” here ‘tis;
The leaf tuck down upon ‘t, the place suspicious.

[Reads.] “If you would know whether a woman be with child or not, give her two spoonfuls of the white water in glass C — — .”
Where’s that glass C? O yonder, I see’t now — [Reads.] “and if she be with child, she sleeps full twelve hours after; if not, not.” 24
None of that water comes into my belly;
I’ll know you from a hundred; I could break you now,
Or turn you into milk, and so beguile
The master of the mystery; but I’ll look to you.
Ha! that which is next is ten times worse: 26 [Reads.] “How to know whether a woman be a maid or not.” If that should be appli’d, what would become of me? Behike he has a strong faith of my purity,
That never yet made proof; but this he calls [Reads.] “A merry slight, but true experiment; the author Antonio Mizalados. Give the party you suspect the quantity of a spoonful of the water in the glass M, which, upon her that is a maid, makes three several effects: ’t will [28 make her incontinently gaze, then fall into a sudden sneezing, last into a violent laughing; else, dull, heavy, and lumpish.”

Where had I been?
I fear it, yet ‘t is seven hours to bed-time.

Enter DIAPHANTA.

Dia. Cuds, madam, are you here? 30
Beat. Seeing that wench now,
A trick comes in my mind; ‘t is a nice piece

Gold cannot purchase. [Aside.]—I come hither, wenche.
To look my lord.

Dia. Would I had such a cause
To look him too!—Why, he’s i’ th’ park,
madam. 32

Beat. There let him be.

Dia. Ay, madam, let him compass
Whole parks and forests, as great ranges do,
At roosting-time a little lodge can hold ’em.
Earth-conquering Alexander, that thought the world
Too narrow for him, in th’ end had but his pit-hole.

Beat. I fear thou art not modest, Diaphanta.
Dia. Your thoughts are so unwilling to be known, madam.
’T is over the bride’s fashion, towards bed-time,
To set light by her joys, as if she ow’d ‘em not.

Beat. Her joys? Her fears thou wouldst say.

Dia. Fear of what?

Beat. Art thou a maid, and talk’st so to a maid?
You leave a blushing business behind;
Beshrew your heart for ’t!

Dia. Do you mean good sooth, madam?

Beat. Well, if I’d thought upon the fear at first,
Man should have been unknown.

Dia. Is’t possible? 34

Beat. I’d give a thousand ducats to that woman
Would try what my fear were, and tell me true
To-morrow, when she gets from ’t; as she likes,
I might perhaps be drawn to ’t.

Dia. Are you in earnest?

Beat. Do you get the woman, then challenge me,
And see if I’ll fly from ’t; but I must tell you
This by the way, she must be a true maid.
Else there’s no trial, my fears are not her’s either.

Dia. Nay, she that I would put into your hands, madam,
Shall be a maid.

Beat. You know I should be sham’d else, 36
Because she lies for me.

Dia. ’Tis a strange humour! 38
But are you serious still? Would you resign
Your first night’s pleasure, and give money too?

Beat. As willingly as live. — [Aside.] Alas, the gold
Is but a by-bet to wedge in the honour!

Dia. I do not know how the world goes abroad
For faith or honesty; there’s both requir’d in this,
Madam, what say you to me, and stray no further?
I’ve a good mind, in truth, to earn your money.

Beat. You are too quick, I fear, to be a maid.

1 Is open to.
2 Immediately
3 Trick.
4 Gods.
Di. How? Not a maid? Nay, then you urge me, madam; Your honourable self is not a truer, With all your fears upon you —

Beat. [Aside.] Bad enough then.

Di. Than I with all my lightsome joys about me.

Beat. I’m glad to hear’t. Then you dare put your honesty

Upon an easy trial.

Di. Easy? Anything.

Beat. I’ll come to you straight.

[ Goes to the closet.]

Di. She will not search me, will she, Like the forewoman of a female jury? 2

Beat. Glass M; ay, this is it. [Brings vial.]

Look, Diaphanta,

You take no worse than I do.

[ Drinks.]

Di. And in so doing, 108 I will not question what it is, but take it.

[ Drinks.]

Beat. [Aside.] Now if th’ experiment be true, ‘t will praise itself, And give me noble ease: begins already;

[ Diaphanta gapes.]

There’s the first symptom; and what haste it makes To fall into the second, there by this time! 110

[ Diaphanta sneezes.]

Most admirable secret! on the contrary,
It stirs not me a whit, which most concerns it.

Di. Ha, ha, ha!

Beat. [Aside.] Just in all things, and in order
As if ’twere circumscrib’d; one accident 5

Gives way unto another.

Di. Ha, ha, ha!

Beat. How now, wench? 115

Di. Ha, ha, ha! I’m so, so light At heart — ha, ha, ha! — so pleasurable!

But one swig more, sweet madam.

Beat. Ay, to-morrow, 120
We shall have time to sit by ’t.

Di. Now I’m sad again.

Beat. [Aside.] It lays itself so gently too! — Come, wench.

Most honest Diaphanta I dare call thee now.

Di. Pray, tell me, madam, what trick call you this?

Beat. I’ll tell thee all hereafter; we must study

The carriage of this business.

Di. I shall carry ’t well, Because I love the burthen.

Beat. About midnight You must not fail to steal forth gently, That I may use the place.

Di. O, fear not, madam, I shall be cool by that time. The bride’s place, And with a thousand ducats! I’m for a justice now,

I bring a portion with me; I scorn small fools.

Exeunt.

1 Chastity.
2 I suspect that there is an allusion here to the examination by matrons of the notorious Countess of Essex. (Burton.)
5 Property, symptom.

[ Scene II. ]

Enter Vermandero and Servant.

Ver. I tell thee, knave, mine honour is in question, A thing till now free from suspicion, Nor ever was there cause. Who of my gentlemen Are absent? Tell me, and truly, how many, and who?

Ser. Antonio, sir, and Franciscus.

Ver. When did they leave the castle?

Ser. Some ten days since, sir; the one intending to Briamata, th’ other for Valencia.

Ver. The time accuses ’em; a charge of murder Is brought within my castle-gate, Piraquo’s murder; 10 I dare not answer faithfully their absence. A strict command of apprehension Shall pursue ’em suddenly, and either wipe The stain off clear, or openly discover it. Provide me winged warrants for the purpose. 18 Exeunt Servant.

See, I am set on again.

Enter Tomaso.

Tom. I claim a brother of you.

Ver. You’re too hot; Seek him not here.

Tom. Yes, ’mongst your dearest bloods, If my peace find no fairer satisfaction. This is the place must yield account for him, For here I left him; and the hasty tie 21 Of this snatch’d marriage gives strong testimony Of his most certain ruin.

Ver. Certain falsehood! This is the place indeed; his breach of faith Has too much marr’d both my abused love, The honourable love I reserve’d for him, And mock’d my daughter’s joy; the prepar’d morning Blush’d at his infidelity; he left Contempt and scorn to throw upon those friends Whose belief hurt ’em. O, ’t was most ignoble To take his flight so unexpectedly, 25 And throw such public wrongs on those that lov’d him!

Tom. Then this is all your answer?

Ver. ’T is too fair For one of his alliance; and I warn you That this place no more see you.

Exit.

Enter De Flores.

Tom. The best is, There is more ground to meet a man’s revenge on.

Honest De Flores? 33

De F. That’s my name indeed.

Saw you the bride? Good sweet sir, which way took she?

Tom. I’ve blest mine eyes from seeing such a false one.

4 Another apartment in the Castle.
De F. [Aside.] I’d fain get off, this man’s not for my company; I smell his brother’s blood when I come near him.

Tom. Come hither, kind and true one; I remember My brother lov’d thee well.

De F. O, purely, dear sir! — [Aside.] Methinks I’m now again a-killing on him.

He brings it so fresh to me.

Tom. Thou canst guess, sirrah; [An'] honest friend has an instinct of jealousy — At some foul guilty person.

De F. Alas! sir, I am so charitable, I think none Worse than myself! You did not see the bride then?

Tom. I prithee, name her not: is she not wicked.

De F. No, no; a pretty, easy, round-packet sinner, As your most ladies are, else you might think I flatter’d her; but, sir, at no hand wicked, Till they’re so old their chins and noses meet, And they salute witches. I’m call’d, I think, sir.

[Aside.] His company ev’n overlays my conscience.

Tom. That De Flores has a wondrous honest heart!
He’ll bring it out in time, I’m assur’d on’t, O, here’s the glorious master of the day’s joy! "T will not be long till he and I do reckon. —

Enter Alarmedo.

Sir.

Als. You’re most welcome.

Tom. You may call that word back; I do not think I am, nor wish to be.

Als. ’Tis strange you found the way to this house, then.

Tom. Would I’d no’er known the cause! I’m none of those, sir,

That come to give you joy, and swell your wine; ’T is a more precious liquor that must lay The fiery thirst I bring.

Als. — Your words and you appear to me great strangers.

Tom. Time and our swords May made us more acquainted. This the business:

I should have had a brother in your place; How treachery and malice have dispos’d of him, I’m bound to inquire of him which holds his right, Which never could come fairly.

Als. You must look To answer for that word, sir.

Tom. Fear you not,

I’ll have it ready drawn at our next meeting.

1 Q. One.
2 Q. Six and vice. The correction was suggested by Dyce.
3 Q. I.
Jas. It shall be done, sir. Exit.
Als. How can this hang together? Not an hour since
Her woman came pleading her lady's fears,
Deliver'd her for the most timorous virgin
That ever shrunk at man's name, and so modest,
She charg'd her weep out her request to me,
That she might come obsequiously to my bosom.

Enter Beatrice.

Beat. [Aside.] All things go well; my woman's preparing yonder
For her sweet voyage, which grieves me to lose;
Necessity compels it; I lose all, else.

Als. [Aside.] Pish! modesty's shrine is set in yonder forehead:
I cannot be too sure though. — My Joanna!

Beat. Sir, I was bold to weep a message to you;
Pardon my modest fears.

Als. The dove's nest meekest; [Aside.] She's abus'd, questionless.

Re-enter Jasperino [with vial].

O, are you come, sir? Beat. [Aside.] The glass, upon my life! I see the letter.

Jas. Sir, this is M. [Giving vial.]

Als. 'Tis it.

Beat. [Aside.] I am suspected.

Als. How fitly our bride comes to partake with us!

Beat. What is 't, my lord?

Als. No hurt.

Beat. Sir, pardon me,
I seldom taste of any composition.

Als. But this, upon my warrant, you shall venture on.

Beat. I fear 't will make me ill.

Als. Heaven forbid that.

Beat. [Aside.] I'm put now to my cunning:
't effects I know,
If I can now but feign 'em handsomely.

[Drinks.]

Als. It has that secret virtue, it ne'er mist,
sir.

Upon a virgin.

Jas. Trouble-qualified? [BEATRICE gaps and snerces.]

Als. By all that's virtuous it takes there proceeds!

Jas. This is the strangest trick to know a maid by.

Beat. Ha, ha, ha!

You have given me joy of heart to drink, my
lord.

Als. No, thou hast given me such joy of heart,
That never can be blasted.

Beat. What's the matter, sir?

Als. [Aside.] See now 't is settled in a melancholy;
Keep both the time and method. — My Joanna,
Chaste as the breath of Heaven, or morning's womb,
That brings the day forth! thus my love en-cludes thee. Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Enter Isabella and Lollio.

Isa. O Heaven! is this the [waning] moon?

Does love turn fool, run mad, and all at once?

Sirrah, here's a madman, akin to the fool too,

A lunatic lover.

Lol. No, no, not he I brought the letter from?

Isa. Compare his inside with his out, and tell me.

Lol. The out's mad, I'm sure of that; I had a taste on 't. [Reads letter.] "To the bright Andromeda, chief chambermaid to the Knight of the Sun, at the sign of Scorpio, in the [1] middle region, sent by the bellows-mender of Aenous.
Pay the post." This is stark madness!

Isa. Now mark the inside. [Takes the letter and reads.] Sweet lady, having now cast off this counterfeit cover of a madman, I appear to your best judgment a true and faithful lover of your beauty."

Lol. He is mad still.

Isa. [reads.] "If any fault you find, chide those perfections in you which have made [2] me imperfect; 't is the same sun that causeth to grow and enforce to wither —"

Lol. O rogue!

Isa. [reads.] "Shapes and transshapes, destruces and builds again. I come in winter to [3]
you, dismantled of my proper ornaments;
by the sweet splendour of your cheerful smiles, I spring and live a lover."

Lol. Mad rascal still!

Isa. [reads.] "Tread him not under foot, [4]
that shall appear an honour to your bounties.
I remain — mad till I speak with you, from whom I expect my cure, yours all, or one beside himself, FRANCISCUS."

Lol. You are like to have a fine time on 't. [5]
My master and I may give over our professions;
I do not think but you can cure fools and madmen faster than we, with little pains too.

Isa. Very likely.

Lol. One thing I must tell you, mistress: [6] you perceive that I am privy to your skill; if I find you minister once, and set up the trade, I put in for my thirds; I shall be mad or fool else.

Isa. The first place is thine, believe it, Lollio,
If I do fail.

Lol. I fall upon you.

Isa. So.

Lol. Well, I stand to my venture.

Isa. But thy counsel now; how shall I deal with 'em?

Lol. [Why.] do you mean to deal with 'em?

Isa. Nay, the fair understanding, [7] how to use 'em.

Lol. Abuse 'em! That's the way to mad the fool, and make a fool of the madman, and then you use 'em kindly.

Isa. 'Tis easy, I'll practise; do thou observe it.

The key of thy wardrobe.

1 A room in the house of Althanas.
2 So Bulfin. Q. Writting.
3 Take the words in their modest sense. 4 Deceive.
THOMAS MIDDLETON AND WILLIAM ROWLEY

[Scene: A room.]

Lol. There [gives key]; fit yourself for 'em, and I'll fit 'em both for you.

Isa. Take thou no further notice than the outside. Exit.

Lol. Not an inch; I'll put you to the inside.

Enter ALIBBIUS.

Alib. Lollio, art there? Will all be perfect, think'st thou? To-morrow night, as if to close up the Sollemnit, Vermandero expect us.

Lol. I mistrust the madmen most; the fools will do well enough; I have taken pains with them.

Alib. Tush! they cannot miss; the more absurdity, The more commend's it, so — no rough behaviours Affright the ladies; they're nice things, thou know'st.

Lol. You need not fear, sir; so long as we are there with our commanding pizzles, they'll be as tame as the ladies themselves.

Alib. I'll see them once more rehearse before they go.

Lol. I was about it, sir: look to you the madmen's morris, and let me alone with the other. There is one or two that I mistrust their [s fooling; I'll instruct them, and then they shall rehearse the whole measure.

Alib. Do so; I'll see the music prepar'd: but, Lollio,

By the way, how does my wife brook her restraint?

Lol. Does she not grudge at it?

Lol. Cry you mercy, sir; 'tis your nose; it show'd like the trunk of a young elephant.

Alib. Away, rascal! I'll prepare the music, Lollio. Exit.

Lol. Do, sir, and I'll dance the whilst. — Tony, where art thou, Tony?

Enter ANTONIO.

Ant. Here, cousin; where art thou?

Lol. Come, Tony, the footmanship I taught you.

Ant. I had rather ride, cousin.

Lol. Ay, a whip take you! but I'll keep you out; vault in: look you, Tony; fa, la, la, la, la. [Dances.]

Ant. Fa, la, la, la, la. [Sings and dances.]

Lol. There, an honour.

Ant. Is this an honour, coz?

Lol. Yes, an it please your worship.

Ant. Does honour bend in the hams, coz?

Lol. Marry does it, as low as worship, [squireship, nay, yeomanry itself sometimes, from whence it first stiffened: there rise, a caper.

Ant. Caper after an honour, coz?

Lol. Very proper, for honour is but a caper, rises as fast and high, has a knee or two, and [was falls to th' ground again. You can remember your figure, Tony?

Ant. Yes, cousin; when I see thy figure, I can remember mine. Exit Lollio.

Re-enter ISABELLA, [dressed as a madwoman.]

Isa. Hey, how he 6 treads the air! Shough, shough, t'other way! he burns his wings else. Here's wax enough below, lears, more than will be cancelled these eighteen moons. He's down, he's down! what a terrible fall he had! Stand up, thou son of Cretan Daedalus. And let us tread the lower labyrinth; I'll bring thee to the clue.

Ant. Frithree, coz, let me alone.

Isa. Art thou not drown'd? About thy head I saw a heap of clouds Wropt like a Turkish turban; on thy back a crook't chameleon-colour'd rainbow hung Like a tiara down unto thy hams. Let me suck out those bilows in thy belly; Hark, how they roar and rumble in the straits! Bless thee from the pirates! 129

Ant. Fox upon you, let me alone!

Isa. Why shouldst thou mount so high as Mercury, Unless thou hadst revision of his place? Stay in the moon with me, Endymion, And we will rule these wild rebellious waves, That would have drown'd my love.

Ant. I'll kick thee, if 130 again thou touch me, thou wild unashapen antic; I am no fool, you bedlam!

Isa. But you are, as sure as I am, mad. Have I put on this habit of a frantic, With love as full of fury, to beguile The nimble eye of watchful jealousy, And am I thus rewarded?

Ant. Ha! dearest beauty I

Isa. No, I have no beauty now, 134 Nor never had but what was in my garments. You a quick-sighted lover! Come not near me: Keep your caparisons, you're aptly clad; I came a feignor, to return stark mad. Exit. Ant. Stay, or I shall change condition, And become as you are.

Re-enter Lollilo.

Ant. Whose fool, usher of idiots? You coxcomb?

I have fool'd too much.

Lol. You were best be mad another while then. Ant. So I am, stark mad; I have cause enough;

And I could throw the full effects on thee, And beat thee like a fury.

Lol. Do not, do not; I shall not forbear the gentleman under the fool, if you do. Alas! I saw through your fox-skin before now! Come,

I can give you comfort; my mistress loves [138]
you; and there is as arant a madman i' th' house as you are a fool, your rival, whom she loves not. If after the masque we can rid her of him, you earn her love, she says, and the fool shall ride her. [138]

Ant. May I believe thee?

Lol. Yes, or you may choose whether you will or no.

Ant. She's eas'd of him; I've a good quarrel
on't.

Lol. Well, keep your old station yet, and be quiet. [137]

Ant. Tell her I will deserve her love. [Exit.]

Lol. And you are like to have your desert.

Enter FRANCISCUS.

Fran. [sings.] "Down, down, down, a-down a-down,"—and then with a horse-track
To kick Latona's forehead, and break her bow-string.

Lol. This is 't other counterfeit; I'll put [138] him out of his humour. [Aside. Takes out a letter and reads.] "Sweet lady, having now cast this counterfeit cover of a madman, I appear to your best judgment a true and faithful lover of your beauty." This is pretty well for a madman. [138]

Fran. Hal! what's that?

Lol. [reads.] "Chide those perfections in you which have made me imperfect."

Fran. I am discover'd to the fool.

Lol. I hope to discover the fool in you ere [138]
I have done with you. [Reads.] "Yours all, or one beside himself, FRANCISCUS." This madman will mend sure.

Fran. What do you read, sirrah?

Lol. Your destiny, sir; you'll be hang'd for this trick, and another that I know. [138]

Fran. Art thou of counsel with thy mistress?

Lol. Next her apron-strings.

Fran. Give me thy hand.

Lol. Stay, let me put yours in my pocket first.
[Putting letter into his pocket.] Your hand is [138] true; is it not? It will not pick? I partly fear it, because I think it does lie.

Fran. Not in a syllable.

Lol. So if you love my mistress so well as you have handled the matter here, you are like [138] to be cur'd of your madness.

Fran. And none but she can cure it.

Lol. Well, I'll give you over then, and she shall cast your water next. [138]

Fran. Take for thy pains past.

[Give him money.]

Lol. I shall deserve more, sir, I hope. My mistress loves you, but must have some proof of your love to her.

Fran. There I meet my wishes. [138]

Lol. That will not serve, you must meet her enemy and yours.

Fran. He's dead already.

Lol. Will you tell me that, and I parted but now with him? [138]

Fran. Show me the man.

Lol. Ay, that's a right course now; see him before you kill him, in any case; and yet it needs not go so far neither. 'Tis but a fool that haunts the house and my mistress in the [138] shape of an idiot; bang but his fool's coat well-vaguely, and 'tis well.

Fran. Soundly, soundly!

Lol. Only reserve him till the masque be past;
and if you find him not now in the dance [138] yourself, I'll show you. In, in! my master! [Dancing.]

Fran. He handles him like a feather. Hey! [Exit.]

Enter ALIBIUS.

Alib. Well said: in a readiness, Lollio? [238]

Lol. Yes, sir.

Alib. Away then, and guide them in, Lollio:
Entreat your mistress to see this sight.

Hark! is there not one insensible fool
That might be begg'd? I've friends.

Lol. I have him for you,
One that shall deserve it too.

Alib. Good boy, Lollio!

The madmen and fools dance.
'Tis perfect: well, fit but once these strains, [238]

We shall have coin and credit for our pains.

Exeunt.

ACT V

[SCENE I.]

Enter BEATRICE: a clock strikes one.

Beat. One struck, and yet she lies by 't! O my fears!
This strumpet serves her own ends, 'tis apparent now,
Devours the pleasure with a greedy appetite,
And never minds my honour or my peace, [3]

Makes havoc of my right. But she pays dearly
for 't;
No trusting of her life with such a secret

That cannot rule her blood to keep her promise;

Beside, I've some suspicion of her faith to me,

Because I was suspected of my lord,

And it must come from her. [Sticks two.] Hark!

by my horrors,

Another clock strikes two!

Enter DE FLORES.

De F. Pist! where are you?

Beat. De Flores?

De F. Ay. Is she not come from him yet?

Beat. As I'm a living soul, not!

De F. Sure the devil

Hath sow'd his itch within her. Who would

A waiting-woman?

Beat. I must trust somebody.

De F. Push! they're tempters;
Especially when they fall upon their masters

Whose custody, with the revenues of his estate,
Might be begged from the king.

A gallery in the Castle.
And have their ladies' first fruits; they're mad whelps.
You cannot stave 'em off from game royal; then
You are so rash and hardy, ask no counsel;
And I could have helped you to a 'pothecary's daughter
Would have fall'n off before eleven, and thank[6] you too.

Beat. O me, not yet! This whore forgets herself.

De F. The rascal fares so well: look, you're undone.
The day-star, by this hand! See Phosphorus plain yonder.

Beat. Advise me now to fall upon some ruin;
There is no counsel safe else.

De F. Peace! I ha' now, for we must force a rising, there's no remedy.

De F. Push! be you quiet, or else give over all.

Beat. Prithee, I ha' done then.

De F. This is my reach: I'll set some part a-fire of Diaphanta's chamber.

De F. You talk of danger when your fame's on fire?

Beat. That's true; do what thou wilt now.

De F. Push! I aim at a most rich success strikes all dead sure,
The chimney being a-fire, and some light parcels
Of the least danger in her chamber only,
If Diaphanta should be met by chance then.
Far from her lodging, which is now suspicious,
It would be thought her fears and affrights then Drove her to seek for succour; if not seen
Or met at all, as that's the likeliest,
For her own shame she'll hasten towards her lodging;
I will be ready with a piece high-charg'd,
As 't were to cleanse the chimney, there's proper now.
But she shall be the mark.

Beat. I'm fore'd to love thee now,
'Cause thou providest so carefully for our honour.

De F. 'Slid, it concerns the safety of us both.

Our pleasure and continuance.

Beat. One word now, prithee; how for the servants?

De F. I'll despatch them,
Some one way, some another in the hurry.
For buckets, hooks, ladders; fear not you,
The deed shall find its time; and I've thought since
Upon a safe conveyance for the body too:
How this fire purifies with! Watch you your minute.

Beat. Fear keeps my soul upon 't, I cannot stay from 't.

1 Q. Hort.
2 Q. Bospormus.
3 Schema.
4 Fire-arm.

Enter Alonzo's Ghost.

De F. Ha! what art thou that tak'st away
The light
Betwixt that star and me? I dread thee not.
'Twas but a mist of conscience; all's clear again.

Beat. Who's that, De Flores? Bless me, it slides by!

[Exit Ghost.]

Some ill thing haunts the house; 't has left behind it
A shivering sweat upon me; I'm afraid now.
This night hath been so tedious! O this strumpet!

Had she a thousand lives, he should not leave her Till he had destroy'd the last. List! O my terrors!

Struck three o'clock.

Three struck by St. Sebastian's!

Within. Fire, fire, fire!

Beat. Already? How rare is that man's speed!

How heartily he serves me! his face loathes one;
But look upon his care, who would not love him?
The east is not more beauteous than his service.

Within. Fire, fire, fire!

Re-enter De Flores; Servants pass over: bell rings.

De F. Away, dispatch! hooks, buckets, ladders! that's well said.
The fire-bell rings; the chimney works, my charge;
The piece is ready.

Beat. Here's a man worth loving!

Enter Diaphanta.

O you're a jewel!

Dia. Pardon frailty, madam;

In truth, I was so well, I ev'n forgot myself.

Beat. You've made trim work!

Dia. What?

Beat. Hie quickly to your chamber;

Your reward follows you.

Dia. I never made so sweet a bargain.

Exit.

Enter Alember.

Als. O my dear Joanna,
Als! art thou risen too? I was coming,
My absolute treasure!

Beat. When I mist you, I could not choose but follow.

Als. Thou't all sweetness: The fire is not so dangerous.

Beat. Think you so, sir?

Als. I prithee, tremble not; believe me, 'tis not.

Enter Vermandero and Jasperino.

Ver. O bless my house and me!

Als. My lord your father.

5 Well done.
Re-enter De Flores with a gun.

Ver. Knave, whither goes that piece?
De F. To sour the chimney. Exit.

Ver. O, well said, well said!

That fellow’s good on all occasions.
Beat. A wondrous necessary man, my lord.
Ver. He hath a ready wit; he’s worth ’em all, sir.
Dog at a house of fire; I ha’ seen him singed ere now. — The piece goes off.

Ha, there he goes!
Beat. ’Tis done!

Als. Come, sweet, to bed now; 90
Als! thou wilt get cold.
Beat. Als! the fear keeps that out!

My heart will find no quiet till I hear
How Diaphanta, my poor woman, fares;
It is her chamber, sir, her lodging chamber.
Ver. How should the fire come there? 100
Beat. As good a soul as ever lady countenanced’d,
But in her chamber negligent and heavy:
She seapt a mine twice.
Ver. Twice?
Beat. Strangely twice, sir.
Ver. Those sleepy sluts are dangerous in a house,
An they be ne’er so good.

Re-enter De Flores.

De F. O poor virginity, 105
Thou hast paid dearly for ‘t!
Ver. Bless us, what’s that?
De F. A thing you all knew once, Dia-
Ver. How should the fire come there?
Beat. My woman! O my woman!
De F. Now the flames
Are greedy of her; burnt, burnt, burnt to death, sir,
Beat. O my presaging soul!
Als. Not a tear more! 110
I charge you by the last embrace I gave you
In bed, before this rain’d us.
Beat. Now you tie me;
Were it my sister, now she gets no more.

Enter Servant.

Ver. How now?
Ser. All danger’s past; you may now take
Your rests, my lords; the fire is thor’oughly quench’d.
Ah, poor gentlewoman, how soon was she stiffe’d!
Beat. De Flores, what is left of her inter,
And we as mourners all will follow her.
I will entreat that honour to my servant 120
Ev’n of my lord himself.
Als. Command it, sweetness.
Beat. Which of you spied the fire first?
De F. ’Twas I, madam.
Beat. And took such pains in ’t too? A double goodness!
’T were well we were rewarded.
Ver. He shall be. —
De Flores, call upon me.
Als. And upon me, sir. 125
Execunt [all except De Flores].

De F. Rewarded? Precious! here’s a trick beyond me.
I see in all bouts, both of sport and wit,
Always a woman strives for the last hit. Exit.

[Scene II.] 1

Enter Tomaso.

Tom. I cannot taste the benefits of life
With the same relish I was wont to do.
Man I grow weary of; and hold his fellowship
A treacherous bloody friendship; and because I
I’m ignorant in whom my wrath should settle,
I must think all men villains, and the next
I meet, whoe’er he be, the murderer
Of my most worthy brother. Ha! what’s he?

De Flores passes over the stage.
O, the fellow that some call honest De Flores;
But methinks honesty was hard bested.
To come there for a lodging; as if a queen
Should make her palace of a pest-house.
I find a contrariety in nature
Betwixt that face and me; the least occasion
Would give me game upon him; yet he’s so foul 130
One would scarce touch [him] with a sword he lov’d
And made account of; so most deadly venomous,
He would go near to poison any weapon
That should draw blood on him; one must resolve
Never to use that sword again in fight
In way of honest manhood that strikes him;
Some river must devours it; ’t were not fit
That any man should find it. What, again?

Re-enter De Flores.

He walks a’ purpose by, sure, to choke me up,
’T infect my blood.
De F. My worthy noble lord! 135
Tom. Dost offer to come near and breathe upon me?
[Strikes him.]
De F. A blow! 136
[Draws.]
Tom. Yes, are you so prepar’d?
I’ll rather like a soldier die by th’ sword,
Than like a politician by thy poison. 137
[Draws.]
De F. Hold, my lord, as you are honourable Tom. All slaves that kill by poison are still cowards.
De F. [Aside.] I cannot strike; I see his brother’s wounds
Fresh bleeding in his eye, as in a crystal.—
I will not question this, I know you’re noble;
I take my injury with thanks given, sir, 140
Like a wise lawyer, and as a favour
Will wear it for the worthy hand that gave it. — [Aside.] Why this from him that yesterday ap-pear’d?
So strangely loving to me?
O, but instinct is of a subtler strain!
Guilt must not walk so near his lodge again;
He came near me now. 141

Exit.
Tom. All league with mankind I renounce for ever,
Till I find this murderer; not so much

1 Another apartment in the Castle.
As common courtesy but I 'll lock up; 'n
For in the state of ignorance I live in,
A brother may salute his brother's murderer,
And wish good speed to th' villain in a greeting.

Enter VERMADERO, ALIBIUS, and ISABELLA.

Ver. Noble Piraquyo!
Tom. Pray, keep on your way, sir;
I've nothing to say to you.
Ver. Comforts bless you, sir; so Tom. I've forsworn compliment, in troth I have, sir;
As you are merely man, I have not left
A good wish for you, for not for any here.
Ver. Unless you be so far in love with grief,
You will not part from 't upon any terms. We bring that news will make a welcome for us.
Tom. What news can that be?
Ver. Throw no scornful smile
Upon the zeal I bring you, 't is worth more, sir.
Two of the chiefest men I kept about me
I hide not from the law of your just vengeance.
Tom. Ha!
Ver. To give your peace more ample satisfaction,
Thank these discoverers.
Tom. If you bring that calm,
Name but the manner I shall ask forgiveness in
For that contemptuous smile [I threw] upon you;
I'll perfect it with reverence that belongs
Unto a sacred altar. [Kneels.]
Ver. [raising him.] Good sir, rise;
Why, now you overdo as much as this hand
As you fell short a' t other. — Speak, Alibius.
Alib. 'T was my wife's fortune, as she is most lucky
At a discovery, to find out lately,
Within our hospital of fools and madmen,
Two counterfeit slip into these disguises,
Their names Franciscus and Antonio.
Ver. Both mine, sir, and I ask no favour for
'em.
Alib. Now that which draws suspicion to their habits,
The time of their disguises agrees justly
With the day of the murder.
Ver. Nay, more, nay, more, sir — I'll not spare mine own
In way of justice — they both feign'd a journey
To Braimata, and so wrought out their leaves;
My love was so abused in 't
Tom. Time's too precious
To run in waste now; you have brought a peace
The riches of five kingdoms could not purchase. Be my most happy conduct; I thirst for 'em: Like subtle lightning will I wind about 'em, And melt their marrow in 'em. Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Enter ASEMERIO and JASPERINO.

Jas. Your confidence, I'm sure, is now of proof;
The prospect from the garden has show'd
Enough for deep suspicion.

Als. The black mask
That so continually was worn upon't
Condemns the face for ugly ere 't be seen,
Her despite to him, and so seeming bottomless.
Jas. Touch it home then; 'tis not a shallow probe
Can search this ulcer soundly; I fear you'll find it
Full of corruption. 'Tis fit I leave you,
She meets you opportunely from that walk;
She took the back door at his parting with her.
Exit.

Als. Did my fate wait for this unhappy stroke
At my first sight of woman? She is here.

Enter BREATRICE.

Beat. Asemereio!
Als. How do you?
Beat. How do I?
Als, sir! how do you? You look not well. Als. You read me well enough; I am not well. Beat. Not well, sir? Is 't in my power to better you?
Als. Yes.
Beat. Nay, then you 're our'd again.
Als. Pray, resolve me one question, lady. Beat. If I can.
Als. None can so sure: are you honest?
Beat. Ha, ha, ha! that's a broad question, my lord.
Als. But 'tis not a modest answer, my lady.
Do you laugh? My doubts are strong upon me.
Beat. 'Tis innocence that smiles, and no rough brow
Can take away the dimple in her cheek.
Say I should strain a tear to fill the vault,
Which would you give the better faith to?
Als. 'T were but hypocrisy of a sadder colour,
But the same stuff; neither your smiles nor Shall move or flatter me from my belief:

You are a whore!
Beat. What a horrid sound it hath!
It blasts a beauty to deformity;
Upon what face soever that breath falls,
It strikes it ugly. O, you have ruin'd
What you can ne'er repair again?
Als. I'll all
Demolish, and seek out truth within you,
If there be any left; let your sweet tongue
Prevent your heart's rifting; there I'll ransack
And tear out my suspicion.
Beat. You may, sir; it
Is an easy passage; yet, if you please,
Show me the ground whereon you lost your love;
My spotless virtue may but tread on that
Before I perish.
Als. Unanswerable;
A ground you cannot stand on; you fall down
Beneath all grace and goodness when you set

Q. omits. Obtained. Deceived.
Asemereio's apartment in the Castle.

Answer.
Your ticklish heel on't. There was a visor
Of that cunning face, and that became you;
Now Impudence in triumph rides upon't.
How comes this tender reconcilement else
'Twixt you and your despite, your rancorous loathing,
De Flores? he that your eye was sore at sight of,
He's now become your arm's supporter, your Lip's saint!
Beat. Is there the cause?
Als. Worse, your lust's devil, as Your adultery!
Beat. Would any but yourself say that,
'T would turn him to a villain!
Als. It was witnes
By the counsel of your bosom, Diaphanta.
Beat. Is your witness dead then?
Als. Tis to be fear'd
It was the wages of her knowledge; poor soul,
She liv'd not long after the discovery.
Beat. Then hear a story of not much less horror
Than this your false suspicion is beguil'd with;
To your bed's scandal I stand up innocence,
Which even the guilt of one black other deed as
Will stand for proof of; your love has made me
A cruel murther's.
Als. Ha!
Beat. A bloody one;
I have kist poison for it, strok't a serpent:
That thing of hate, worthy in my esteem
Of no better employment, and him most worthy
To be so employ'd, I caus'd to murder
That innocent Piraquco, having no Better means than that worst to assure Yourself to me.
Als. O, the place itself o'er since
Has crying been for vengeance! The temple,
Where blood and beauty first unlawfully
For'd their devotion and quench't the right one;
'T was in my fears at first, 't will have it now:
O, thou art all deform'd!
Beat. Forget not, sir.
It for your sake was done. Shall greater dangers
Make the less welcome?
Als. O, thou should'st have gone
A thousand leagues about to have avoided
This dangerous bridge of blood! Here we are lost.
Beat. Remember, I am true unto your bed.
Als. The bed itself's a charnel, the sheets shrouds
For murdered carcasses. It must ask pause
What I must do in this; meantime you shall
Be my prisoner only: enter my closet;
Exit Beatrice [into closet].
I'll be your keeper yet. O, in what part
Of this sad story shall I first begin? Ha!
This same fellow has put me in. — De Flores!
Enter De Flores.
De F. Noble Alsemero!
Als. I can tell you
News, sir; my wife has her commend'd to you.
De F. That's news indeed, my lord; I think she would
Commend me to the gallows if she could,
She ever lov'd me so well; I thank her.
Als. What's this blood upon your band, De Flores?
De F. Blood! no, sure 't was wash'd since.
Als. Since when, man?
De F. Since t' other day I got a knock
In a sword-and-dagger school; I think 't is out.
Als. Yes, 't is almost out, but 't is perceiv'd though.
I had forgot my message: this it is,
What price goes murder?
De F. How, sir?
Als. I ask you, sir;
My wife's behindhand with you, she tells me,
For a brave bloody blow you gave for her sake.
Upon Piraquco.
De F. Upon? 'T was quite through him sure:
Has she confess it?
Als. As sure as death to both of you;
And much more than that.
De F. It could not be much more;
'T was but one thing, and that — she is a whore.
Als. It could not choose but follow. O cunnning devils!
How should blind men know you from fair-fac'd saints?
Beat. [within.] He lies! the villain does belie
me!
De F. Let me go to her, sir.
Als. Nay, you shall to her. — Peace,
Crying crocodiles, your sounds are heard;
Take your prey to you; — get you into her, sir;
Exit De Flores [into closet].
I'll be your pander now; rehearse again
Your scene of lust, that you may be perfect
When you shall come to act it to the black audience,
Where howls and grashings shall be music to you.
Clip your adulteress freely, 'tis the pilot
Will guide you to the more mortuary,
Where you shall sink to fathomless bottomless.
Enter Vermandero, Tomaso, Alibius, Isa-bella, Francisca, and Antonio.
Ver. O Alsemero! I've a wonder for you.
Als. No, sir, 'tis I, I have a wonder for you.
Ver. I have suspicion near as proof itself
For Piraquco's murder.
Als. Sir, I have proof.
Ver. Beyond suspicion of Piraquco's murder.
Ver. Beseech you, hear me; these who have been dismuss'd
E'er since the deed was done.
Als. I have two other
That were more close dismuss'd than your two could be
E'er since the deed was done.
Ver. You'll hear me — these mine own servants —
Als. Hear me — those nearer than your servants
That shall acquit them, and prove them guilt-less.
Fran. That may be done with easy truth, sir.
Tom. How is my cause bandid through your delays! 1 Embrace.
"Tis urgent in [my] blood and calls for haste.
Give me a brother [or] alive or dead;
Alive, a wife with him; if dead, for both
A recompense for murder and adultery. 148
Beat. (within.) O, O, O! 149
Als. Hark! 't is coming to you.
De F. (within.) Nay, I'll along for company.
Beat. (within.) O, O! 149
Ver. What horrid sounds are these?
Als. Come forth, you twins
Of mischief!

Re-enter De Flores, bringing in Beatrice [wounded].

De F. Here we are; if you have any more
To say to us, speak quickly, I shall not 150
Give you the hearing else; I am so stout yet,
And so, I think, that broken rib of mankind.
Ver. A host of enemies ent'red my citadel
Could not amaze like this: Joanna! Beatrice!
Joanna!
Beat. O, come not near me, sir, I shall dealue
you! 150
I that was of your blood was taken from you,
For your better health; look no more upon 't,
But cast it to the ground regardlessly.
Let the common sewer take it from distinction.
Beneath the stars, upon you meteor. 156
[Pointing to De Flores.]

Ever hung my fate 'mongst things corruptible;
I ne'er could pluck it from him; my loathing
Was prophet to the rest, but ne'er believ'd.
Mine honour fell with him, and now my life.—
Alsemero, I'm a stranger to your bed; 160
Your bed was cozen'd on the nuptial night,
For which your false bride did die.

Als. Diaphanta?
De F. Yes, and the while I coupled with your mate
At barley-break; now we are left in hell.1
Ver. We are all there, it circumscribes us here.
De F. I lov'd this woman in spite of her heart:
Her love I earn'd out of Piraequo's murder.
Tom. Ha! my brother's murderer? 165
De F. Yes, and her honour's prize
Was my reward; I thank life for nothing
But that pleasure; it was so sweet to me. 170
That I have drunk up all, left none behind
For any man to pledge me.

Ver. Horrid villain!
Keep life in him for future tortures.
De F. No!
I can prevent you; here's my pen-knife still;
It is but one thread more [stabbing himself], and now 'tis out. —
Make haste, Joanna, by that token to thee,
Canst not forget, so lately put in mind;
I would not go to leave thee far behind.

Beat. Forgive me, Alsemero, all forgive!
'Tis time to die when 'tis a shame to live. 180

Ver. O, my name's ent'red now in that record

Where till this fatal hour 't was never read.
Als. Let it be blotted out; let your heart lose it,
And it can never look you in the face,
Nor tell a tale behind the back of life 185
To your dishonour. Justice hath so right
The guilty hit, that innocence is quit
By proclamation, and may joy again. —
Sir, you are sensible of what truth hath done;
'Tis the best comfort that your grief can find.
Tom. Sir, I am satisfied; my injuries
Lie dead before me; I can exact to more,
Unless my soul were loose, and could o'ertake
Those black fugitives that are fled from hence,
To take a second vengeance; but there are wrinkles
Deeper than mine, 'tis to be fear'd, about 'em.
Als. What an opaques body had that moon
That last chang'd on us! Here is beauty chang'd
To ugly whoredom; here servant-obedience
To a master-sin, imperious murder; 200
I, a suppose'd husband, chang'd embraces
With wantonness,—but that was paid before. —
Your change is come too, from an ignorant wrath
To knowing friendship.—Are there any more on 'a? 205

Ant. Yes, sir, I was chang'd too from a little ass
As I was to a great fool as I am; and had like to ha' been chang'd to the gallows, but that you know my innocence always excuses me.

Fran. I was chang'd from a little wit to be stark mad,
Almost for the same purpose.
Isa. Your change is still behind,
But deserve best your transformation:
You are a jealous coxcomb, keep schools of folly,
And teach your scholars how to break your own head.

Alib. I see all apparent, wife, and will change now Into a better husband, and ne'er keep Scholars that shall be wiser than myself.
Als. Sir, you have yet a son's duty living,
Please you, accept it; let that your sorrow,
As it goes from your eye, go from your heart,
Man and his sorrow at the grave must part. 220

EPILOGUE

Als. All we can do to comfort one another,
To stay a brother's sorrow for a brother,
To dry a child from the kind father's eyes,
Is to no purpose, it rather multiplies: 225
Your only smiles have power to cause re-

The dead again, or in their rooms to give Brother a new brother, father a child:
If these appear, all griefs are reconcile'd.

Exeunt omnes.

ACT I

[Enter] Wellborn [in tattered apparel], Tap-well, and Froth.

Well. No house? 3 nor no tobacco?
Tap. Not a suck, sir; Nor the remainder of a single can Left by a drunken porter, all night pall’d 8 too.
Froth. Not the dropping of the tap for your morning’s draught, sir.
’Tis verity, I assure you.
Well. Verity, you brach! 4 The devil turn’d precision! 5 Rogue, what am I?
Tap. Troth, durst I trust you with a lookingglass,
To let you see your trim shape, you would quit me
And take the name yourself.
Well. How, dog!
Tap. Even so, sir. And I must tell you, if you but advance 10
Your Plymouth cloak 6 you shall be soon instructed There dwells, and within call, if it please your worship,
A potent monarch call’d the constable, That does command a citadel call’d the stocks; Whose guards are certain files of rusty billmen Such as with great dexterity will hale Your tatter’d, lousy — —
Well. Rascal! slave!
Froth. No rage, sir. Tap. At his own peril. Do not put yourself in too much heat, there being no water near

1 Before Tapwell’s house. 3 Booze, drink. 5 Staled. 6 Hound. 7 Puritan. 8 Codgel.

To quench your thirst; and sure, for other liquor.
As mighty ale, or beer, they are things, I take it,
You must no more remember; not in a dream, sir.
Well. Why, thou unthankful villain, dar’st thou talk thus?
Is not thy house, and all thou hast, my gift?
Tap. I find it not in chalk; and Timothy Tap-
well
Does keep no other register. —

Well. Am not I he Whose riots fed and cloth’d thee? Wert thou not Born on my father’s land, and proud to be
A drudge in his house?
Tap. What I was, sir, it skills 7 not; 8
What you are, is apparent. Now, for a farewell. Since you talk of father, in my hope it will torment you, I’ll briefly tell your story. Your dead father,
My quondam master, was a man of worship,
Old Sir John Wellborn, justice of peace and quorum. 8
And stood fair to be custos rotulorum; 9 Bore the whole sway of the shire, kept a great house,
Reliev’d the poor, and so forth; but he dying.
And the twelve hundred a year coming to you,
Late Master Francis, but now forlorn Well-
born — —
Well. Slave, stop! or I shall lose myself.
Froth. Very hardly; 4
You cannot out of your way.
Tap. But to my story:
7 Matters.
8 A select number of the more learned justices, whose presence was necessary to constitute the bench.
9 Keeper of the county records.
You were then a lord of acres, the prime gallant,
And your under-butler. Note the change now:
You had a merry time of 't; hawks and hounds;
With choice of running horses; mistresses.
Of all sorts and all sizes, yet so hot,
As their embraced made your lordship melt;
Which your uncle, Sir Giles Overreach, observing,
(Resolving not to lose a drop of 'em,)
On foolish mortgages, statutes, and bonds,
For a while supplied your looseness, and then left you.

Well. Some curate hath penn'd this invective, mongrel,
And you have studied it.
Tap. I have not done yet.
Your land gone, and your credit not worth a token.
You grew a common borrower; no man scooped your paper-pellets, from the gentleman.
To the beggars on highways, that sold you switches
In your gallantry.

Well. I shall switch your brains out.
Tap. Where poor Tim Tapwell, with a little stock,
Some forty pounds or so, bought a small cottage;
Humbled myself to marriage with my Froth here,
Gave entertainment —
Well. Yes, to whores and canters,
Clubbers by night.
Tap. True, but they brought in profit,
And had a gift to pay for what they called for,
And stuck not like your mastership. The poor income
I glean'd from them hath made me in my parish
Thought worthy to be scavenger, and in time
May rise to be overseer of the poor;
Which if I do, on your petition, Wellborn,
May allow you thirteen-pence a quarter,
And you shall thank my worship.

Well. Thus, you dog-bolt, and thus —
Beats and kicks him.
Tap. [to his wife.] Cry out for help!
Well. Stir, and thou diest: —
Your potent prince, the constable, shall not save you.
Hear me, ungrateful hell-hound! Did not I Make purses for you? Then you lick'd my boots.
And thought your holiday cloak too coarse to clean 'em.

’Twas I that, when I heard thee swear if ever Thou couldst arrive at forty pounds thou wouldst
Live like an emperor, ’t was that I gave it
In ready gold. Deny this, wretch!
Tap. I must, sir;
For, from the tavern to the taphouse, all,
On forfeiture of their licenses, stand bound

Ne'er to remember who their best guests were,
If they grew poor like you.

Well. They are well rewarded.
That beggar themselves to make such suckolds rich.

Thou viper, thankless viper! impudent hawd!
But since you have grown forgetful, I will help
Your memory, and tread you into mortar,
Nor leave one bone unbroken.

[Beats him again.]

Tap.

Froth.

Enter ALLWORTH.

Well. 'T will not be granted.

All. Hold — for my sake, hold.

Deny me, Frank? They are not worth your anger.

Well. For once thou hast redeem'd them from this sceptre;
But let 'em vanish, creeping on their knees,
And, if they grumble, I revoke my pardon.

Froth. This comes of your prating, husband;
you presum'd
On your ambling wit, and must use your gibb
tongue,

Though you are beaten lame for 't.

Tap. Patience, Froth;

There's law to cure our bruises.

They go off on their hands and knees.

Well. Sent to your mother?

All. My lady, Frank, my patrosoness, my all!
She's such a mourner for my father's death,
And, in her love to him, so favours me,
That I cannot pay too much observance to her.
There are few such stepdames.

Well. 'Tis a noble widow,
And keeps her reputation pure, and clear
From the least taint of infancy; her life,
With the splendour of her actions, leaves no tongue
To envy or detraction. Prithie tell me,
Has she no suitors?

All. Even the best of the shire, Frank,
My lord excepted; such as sue and send,
And send and sue again, but to no purpose; their Frequent visits have not gain'd her presence.
Yet she's so far from sullenness and pride,
That I dare undertake you shall meet from her
A liberal entertainment. I can give you
A catalogue of her suitors' names.

Well. Forbear it,
While I give you good counsel: I am bound to Thy father was my friend, and that affection
I bore to him, in right descends to thee;
Thou art a handsome and a hopeful youth,
Nor will I have the least affront stick on thee,
If I with any danger can prevent it.

All. I thank your noble care; but, pray you,
in what
Do I run the hazard?

Well. Art thou not in love?

Put it not off with wonder.

1 Acknowledgments of indebtedness.

2 Whining beggars.

I. e. his cudgel.
All. In love, at my years! You think you walk in clouds, but are transparent. I have heard all, and the choice that you have made, and, with my finger, can point out the north star.

By which the loadstone of your folly's guided; and, to confirm this true, what think you of Fair Margaret, the only child and heir Of Cormorant Overreach? Does it blush and start.

To hear her only nam'd? Blush at your want Of wit and reason.

Well. You are too bitter, sir.

Well. Wounds of this nature are not to be cured.

With balms, but corrosives. I must be plain:

Art thou scarce manumis'd from the porter's lodge?

And yet sworn servant to the pantofle.

And dar'st thou dream of marriage? I fear 'twill be concluded for impossible

That there is now, or e'er shall be hereafter. A handsome page or player's boy of fourteen But either loves a wench, or drah love him;

Court-waiters not exempted.

This is madness. How'ser you have discover'd my intents, You know my aims are lawful; and if ever

The queen of flowers, the glory of the spring; The sweetest comfort to our smell, the rose, Sprang from an envious briar, I may infer There's such disparity in their conditions

Between the goodness of my soul, the daughter, And the base churl of her father.

Well. Grant this true, as I believe it, canst thou ever hope To enjoy a quiet bed with her whose father Ruin'd thy state?

All. And yours too.

Well. I confess it.

True: I must tell you as a friend, and freely, That, where impossibilities are apparent, 'tis indiscretion to nourish hopes.

Canst thou imagine (let not self-love blind thee) That Sir Giles Overreach, that, to make her great In swelling titles, without touch of conscience Will cut his neighbour's throat, and I hope his own too.

Will e'er consent to make her thine? Give o'er, And think of some course suitable to thy rank, And prosper in it.

You have well advis'd me. But in the meantime you that are so studious Of my affairs wholly neglect your own. Remember yourself, and in what plight you are.

No matter, no matter.

Yes, 'tis much material. You know my fortune, and my means; yet something I can spare from myself to help your wants.

Well. How's this?

1. Freed.
2. Where servants used to be punished.
4. I. e. the sky.
5. A room in Lady Allworth's house.
Such as might serve for models in the Low Countries,
Which, if they had been practised at Breda, Spinola might have thrown his cap at it, and never took it 1

Amb. But you had wanted matter there to work on.

Furn. Matter! with six eggs, and a strike 2 of rye meal.

I had kept the town till doomsday, perhaps longer.

Ord. But what’s this to your pet against my lady?

Furn. What’s this? Marry this: when I am three parts rosted
And the fourth part parboil’d to prepare her viands,
She keeps her chamber, dines with a panada 3
Or water-gruel, my sweat never thought on.

Ord. But your art is seen in the dining-room.

Furn. By whom? By such as pretend love to her, but come to feed upon her. Yet, of all the harpies
That do devour her, I am out of charity
With none so much as the thin-gutted squire
That’s stolen into commission.

Ord. Justice Greedy? 4

Furn. The same, the same; meat ’tis cast away
upon him,
It never thrives; he holds this paradox,
Who eats not well, can neer do justice well. 5
His stomach’s as incontinent as the grave,
Or strumpet’s ravenous appetites. Knocking.

Watch. One knocks.

Enter Allworth.

Ord. Our late young master! 6

Amb. Welcome, sir.

Furn. Your hand; If you have a stomach, a cold bake-meat’s ready.

Ord. His father’s picture in little.

Furn. We are all your servants. 7

Amb. In you he lives.

All. At once, my thanks to all;
This is yet some comfort. Is my lady stirring?

Enter Lady Allworth, Waiting Woman, and Chambermaid.

Ord. Her presence answers for us.

L. All. Sort those silks well.
I’ll take the air alone.

Exeunt W. Woman and Chambermaid.

Furn. You air and air;
But will you never taste but spoon-meat more?
To what use serve I?

L. All. Pray thee, be not angry; 8
I shall ere long: ’tis the mean time, there is gold
To buy thee aprons, and a summer suit.
Furn. I am appeas’d, and Furnace now grows cool. 9

1. The siege of Breda by Spinola in 1624–25 was one of the great events of the time.
2. Two bushels.
3. Bread soaked in hot water and milk.
4. Q. reads Cooks.
5. “For the sake of charity.”
6. “Our late young master” could refer to the deceased master.
7. “We are all your servants” suggests a sense of duty and humility.
8. To be not angry.”
9. “To grow cool.”
The noble name of soldiers. To dare boldly
In a fair cause, and for their country’s safety
To run upon the cannon’s mouth undaunted;
To obey their leaders, and shun mutinies;
To bear with patience the winter’s cold
And summer’s scorching heat, and not to faint,
When plenty of provision fails, with hunger;
Are the essential parts make up a soldier,
Not swearing, dice, or drinking.”

All. There’s no syllable
You speak, but is to me an oracle,
Which but to doubt were impious.

L. All. To conclude:
Beware ill company, for often men
Are like to those with whom they do converse;
And, from one man I warn you, and that’s Wellborn:
Not ’cause he’s poor, that rather claims your
pity;
But that he’s in his manners so debauch’d,
And hath to vicious courses sold himself.
“Tis true, your father lov’d him, while he was Worthy the loving; but if he had liv’d
To have seen him as he is, he had cast him off,
As you must do.

All. I shall obey in all things.

L. All. Follow me to my chamber, you shall have gold
To furnish you like my son, and still supplied,
As I hear from you.

All. I am still your creature. Exeunt.

Scene III.*

[Enter] Overreach, Greedy, Order, Amble, Furnace, Watchall, and Marrall.

Greedy. Not to be seen!

Order. Still cloistered up! Her reason,
I hope, assures her, though she make herself
Close prisoner ever for her husband’s loss,
’Twill not recover him.

Order. Sir, it is her will,
Which we, that are her servants, ought to
serve it,
And not dispute. Howe’er, you are nobly welcome;
And, if you please to stay, that you may think
so,
There came, not six days since, from Hull, a pipe
Of rich Canary, which shall spend itself
For my lady’s honour.

Greedy. Is it of the right race?

Owrel. Yes, Master Greedy.

Amb. How his mouth runs o’er!

Furnace. I’ll make it run, and run. Save your good worship!

Greedy. Honest Master Cook, thy hand;
again, how I love thee!
Are the good dishes still in being? Speak, boy.

Furnace. If you have a mind to feed, there is a chine.

Of beef, well seasoned. Good!

Furnace. A pheasant, larded.

Greedy. That I might now give thanks for’t!

Furnace. Other kickshaw.

Order. There came last night, from the forest of Sherwood,
The fattest stag I ever cook’d.

Greedy. A stag, man!

Furnace. A stag, sir; part of it prepar’d for dinner,

And bak’d in puff-paste.

Greedy. Puff-paste too! Sir Giles,
A ponderous chine of beef! A pheasant larded!
And red deer too, Sir Giles, and bak’d in puffpaste!

All business set aside, let us give thanks here.

Furnace. How the lean skeleton’s rapt!

Order. You know we cannot.

Marshall. Your worship are to sit on a commission,
And if you fail to come, you lose the cause.

Greedy. Cause me no causes. I’ll prove ’t for such dinner
We may put off a commission: you shall find it Henrici decimo quarto.

Order. Fie, Master Greedy! Will you lose me a thousand pounds for a dinner?

No more, for shame! We must forget the belly
When we think of profit.

Greedy. Well, you shall o’er-rule me;
I could ev’n cry now.—Do you hear, Master
Cook,
Send but a corner of that immortal pasty,
And I, in thankfulness, will, by your boy,
Send you — a brace of three-pence.

Furnace. Will you be so prodigal?

Enter Wellborn.

Order. Remember me to your lady. Who have we here?

Wellborn. You know me.

Order. I did once, but now I will not;
Thou art no blood of mine. Avast, thou beggar!

If ever thou presume to own me more,
I’ll have thee cag’d and whip’d.

Greedy. I’ll grant the warrant.

Think of Pie-corner. Furnace

Exeunt Overreach, Greedy, and Marrall.

Watch. Will you out, sir?
I wonder how you durst creep in.

Owrel. This is rudeness,
And saucy impudence.

Amb. Cannot you stay
To be serv’d, among your fellows, from the basket?

But you must needs press into the hall?

Furnace. Prithee, vanish
Into some outhouse, though it be the pigstye;
My scullion shall come to thee.

Enter Allworth.

Well. This is rare.
Oh, here’s Tom Allworth. Tom!

4 The basket of broken meats given in alma.
All. We must be strangers; so Nor would I have you seen here for a million, Exit.
Well. Better and better. He contains me too!

Enter Waiting Woman and Chambermaid.

Woman. Foh, what a smell's here! What thing's this?
Cham. A creature
Made out of the privy; let us hence, for love's sake.
Or I shall swoon.

Woman. I begin to feel faint already. as Exeunt Woman and Chambermaid.

Watch. Will you know your way; Amb. Or shall we teach it you, By the head and shoulders?

Well. No; I will not stir; Do you mark, I will not: let me see the wretch That dares attempt to force me. Why, you slave, Created only to make legs,1 and cringe; To carry in a dish, and shift a trencher; That have not souls only to hope a blessing Beyond black-jacks 2 or flagons; you, that Were born Only to consume meat and drink, and batten3 Upon reversions— who advances? Who 4 Shews me the way?

Ord. My lady!

Enter Lady Allworth, Waiting Woman, and Chambermaid.

Cham. Here's the monster.
Woman. Sweet madam, keep your glove to your nose.
Cham. Or let me Fetch some perfumes may be predominant; You wrong yourself else.

Well. Madam, my designs
Bear me to you.
L. All. To me!
Well. And though I have met with But ragged entertainment from your gown
here,
I hope from you to receive that noble usage As may become the true friend of your husband,
And then I shall forget these.

L. All. I am amaz'd To see and hear this rudeness. Dar'st thou think,
Though sworn, that it can ever find belief, That I, who to the best men of this country Den'd my presence since my husband's death, Can fall so low as to change words with thee?
Thou son of infamy, forbear my house,
And know and keep the distance that's between us;
Or, though it be against my gentler temper, I shall take order you no more shall be An eyesore to me.

1 Bow. 2 Leather beer cans. 3 Feed.

Well. Scorn me not, good lady;
But, as in form you are angelical,
Imitate the heavenly nature, and vouchsafe At the least awhile to hear me. You will grant The blood that runs in this arm is as noble As that which fills your veins; those costly jewels, And those rich clothes you wear, your men's observance —
And women's flattery, are in you no virtues, Nor these rags, with my poverty, in me vices.
You have a fair fame, and, I know, deserve it; Yet, lady, I must say, in nothing more Than in the pious sorrow you have shewn For your late noble husband.

Ord. How she starts!
Furn. And hardly can keep finger from the eye,
To hear him nam'd.

L. All. Have you aught else to say? Well. That husband, madam, was once in his fortune
Almost as low as I; want, debts, and quarrels Lay heavy on him: let it not be thought A boast in me, though I say I reliev'd him. 'Twas I that gave him fashion; mine the sword That did on all occasions second his; I brought him on and off with honour, lady;5 And when in all men's judgments he was sunk, And, in his own hopes, not to be buoy'd up, I stepp'd unto him, took him by the hand, And set him upright.

Furn. Are not we base rogues, That could forget this?
Well. I confess, you made him Master of your estate; nor could your friends, Though he brought no wealth with him, blame you for 't: For he had a shape, and to that shape a mind Made up of all parts either great or noble; So winning a behaviour, not to be Resisted, madam.

L. All. 'Tis most true, he had.
Well. For his sake, then, in that I was his friend, Do not contemn me.

L. All. For what's past excuse me, I will redeem it. Order, give the gentleman A hundred pounds.

Well. No, madam, on no terms: I will not beg nor borrow sixpence of you, But be suppli'd elsewhere, or want thus ever. Only one suit I make, which you deny not To strangers; and 'tis this. Whispers to her. L. All. Fie! nothing else? Well. Nothing, unless you please to charge your servants To throw away a little respect upon me.

L. All. What you demand is yours.

Well. I thank you, lady. Now what can be wrought out of such a suit Is yet in supposition: I have said all; When you please, you may retire. —

[Exit LADY ALL.]

Q. buag'd
Nay, all’s forgotten; [To the Servants.] And, for a lucky omen to my project, Ovcr. Agreed, agreed. Fnrn. Still merry Master Wemburn. Exeunt.

ACT II
SCENE I.

Enter Overreach and Marrant.

Ovcr. He’s gone, I warrant thee; this commision crush’d him.

Mar. Your worshipes have the way on’t, and ne’er miss

To squeeze these unhrints into air; and yet,
The chapfallen justice did his part, returning
For your advantage the certificate,
Against his conscience, and his knowledge too,
With your good favour, to the utter ruin
Of the poor farmer.

Ovcr. ’Ttwas for these good ends
I made him a justice; he that bribes his belly,
Is certain to command his soul.

Mar. I wonder.

Still with your license, why your worship having
The power to put his thin-gut in commission,
You are not in’t yourself?

Ovcr. Thou art a fool;
In being out of office I am out of danger;
Where, if I were a justice, besides the trouble,
I might, or out of wilfulness or error,
Run myself finely into a premuim,8
And so become a prey to the informer.
No, I’ll have none of ’t; ’tis enough I keep Greedy at my devotion; so he serve
My purposes, let him hang or damn, I care not;
Friendship is but a word.

Mar. You are all wisdom.

Ovcr. I would be worldly wise; for the other
That does prescribe us a well govern’d life,
And to do right to others as ourselves,
I value not an atom.

Mar. What course take you,
With your good patience, to hedge in the manor
Of your neighbour, Master Frugal? as ’t is said
He will nor sell, nor borrow, nor exchange;
And his land, lying in the midst of your many lordships,
Is a foul blemish.

Ovcr. I have thought on’t, Marrant,
And it shall take. I must have all men sellers,
And I the only purchaser.

Mar. ’Tis most fit, sir.

Ovcr. I’ll therefore buy some cottage near his manor,
Which done, I’ll make my men break ope his fences,
Ride o’er his standing corn, and in the night
Set fire on his barns, or break his cattle’s legs.

These trespasses draw on suits and suits expenses,
Which I can spare, but will soon beggar him.
When I have harried him thus two or three
year,
Though he sue in forma pauperis, in spite
Of all his thrift and care, he’ll grow behindhand.
Mar. The best I ever heard! I could adore
you.

Ovcr. Then, with the favour of my man of law,
I will pretend some title. Want will force him
To put it to arbitrament; then, if he sell
For half the value, he shall have ready money,
And I possess his land.

Mar. ’Tis above wonder!

Wellborn was apt to sell, and needed not Those fine arts, sir, to hook him in.

Ovcr. Well thought on.

This varlet, Marrant, lives too long, to upbraid
me
With my close cheat upon him. Will nor cold
Nor hunger kill him?

Mar. I know not what to think on’t,
I have us’d all means; and the last night I caus’d
His host, the tapster, to turn him out of doors;
And have been since with all your friends and tenants,
And, on the forfeit of your favour, charg’d them, Though a crust of mouldy bread would keep him from starving.
Yet they should not relieve him. This is done, sir.

Ovcr. That was something, Marrant; but thou must go further.
And suddenly, Marrant.

Mar. Where, and when you please, sir.

Ovcr. I would have thee seek him out, and, if
thou canst,
Persuade him that ’t is better steal than beg;
Then, if I prove he has but robb’d a hunroost,
Not all the world shall save him from the gallows.
Do any thing to work him to despair;
And ’tis thy masterpiece.

Mar. I will do my best, sir.

Ovcr. I am now on my main work with the Lord Lovell.
The gallant-minded, popular Lord Lovell,
The minion of the people’s love. I hear He’s come into the country, and my aims are
To insinuate myself into his knowledge,
And then invite him to my house.

Mar. I have you;

This points at my young mistress.

Ovcr. She must part with
That humble title, and write honourable,
Right honourable, Marrant, my right honourable daughter.
If all I have, or e’er shall get, will do it.
I’ll have her well attended; there are ladies
Of errant knights decay’d and brought so low,
That for cast clothes and meat will gladly serve
her.
And 'tis my glory, though I come from the city,
To have their issue whom I have undone,
To kneel to mine as bondslaves.
  *'Tis fit state, sir.
Mar.
Over. And therefore, I'll not have a chambermaid
That ties her shoes, or any meaner office.
But such whose fathers were right worshipful.
'Tis a rich man's pride! there having ever been
More than a feud, a strange antipathy,
Between us and true gentility.

Enter Wellborn.

Mar.  See, who's here, sir.
Over. Hence, monster! prodigy!
Well. Sir, your wife's nephew;
She and my father tumbled in one belly.
Over. Avoid my sight! thy breath's infectious, rogue!
I shun thee as a leprosy, or the plague.
Come hither, Marrall — (aside) this is the time to work him. Exit.
Mar. I warrant you, sir.
Well. By this light I think he's mad.
Mar. Mad! had you ta'en compassion on yourself,
You long since had been mad.
Well. You have ta'en a course,
Between you and my venerable uncle,
To make me so.
Mar. The more pale-spirited you,
That would not be instructed. I swear deeply — Well. By what?
Mar. By my religion.
Well. Thy religion!
The devil's creed: — but what would you have done?
Mar. Had there been but one tree in all the shire,
Nor any hope to compass a penny halter,
Before, like you, I had outliv'd my fortunes,
A withe had serv'd my turn to hang myself.
I am zealous in your cause; pray you hang yourself,
And presently,
as you love your credit.
Well. I thank you.
Mar. Will you stay till you die in a ditch, or lies devour you? —
Or, if you dare not do the feat yourself,
But that you'll put the state to charge and trouble,
Is there no purse to be cut, house to be broken,
Or market-woman with eggs, that you may murder,
And so dispatch the business?
Well. Here's variety,
I must confess; but I'll accept of none
Of all your genteel offers, I assure you.
Mar. Why, have you hope ever to eat again,
Or drink? or be the master of three farthings?
If you like not hanging, drown yourself! Take some course
For your reputation.
Well. 'T will not do, dear tempter,
With all the rhetoric the fiend hath taught you.
I am as far as thou art from despair;
Nay, I have confidence, which is more than hope.
To live, and suddenly, better than ever.
Mar. Ha! ha! these castles you build in the air
Will not persuade me to give or lend
A token to you.
Well. I'll be more kind to thee:
Come, thou shalt dine with me.
Mar. With you!
Well. Nay more, dine gratis.
Mar. Under what hedge, I pray you? or at whose cost?
Are they padders or abram-men that are your consorts?
Well. Thou art incredulous; but thou shalt dine
Not alone at her house, but with a gallant lady;
With me, and with a lady.
Mar. Lady! what lady?
With the Lady of the Lake, or Queen of Fairies?
For I know it must be an enchanted dinner.
Well. With the Lady Allworth, knave.
Mar. Nay, now there's hope
Thy brain is crack'd.
Well. Mark there, with what respect
I am entertain'd.
Mar. With choice, no doubt, of dog-whips.
Why, dost thou ever hope to pass her porter?
Well. 'T is not far off, go with me; trust
Thine own eyes.
Mar. Troth, in my hope, or my assurance rather,
To see thee curvet and mount like a dog in a blanket,
If ever thou presum's to pass her threshold,
I will endure thy company.
Well. Come along then. Exeunt.

SCENE II.

Woman. Could you not command your leisure one hour longer?
Cham. Or half an hour?
All. I have told you what my haste is:
Besides, being now another's, not mine own,
However I much desire to enjoy you longer,
My duty suffers, if, to please myself,
I should neglect my lord.
Woman. Pray you do me the favour
To put these few quince-cakes into your pocket;
They are of mine own preserving.
Cham. And this marmalade;
'T is comfortable for your stomach.
Woman. And, at parting,
Excuse me if I beg a farewell from you.

1 Footpads.
2 Beggars pretending lunacy.
3 Bound. The reference is to the game of toasting in a blanket.
4 A room in Lady Allworth's house.
Cham. You are still before me. I move the same suit, sir.

[ALLWORTH] kisses them severally.

Furn. How greedy these chamberers are of a beardless chin!
I think the tita 1 will ravish him.

All. My service
To both.

Woman. Ours waits on you.
Cham. And shall do ever.
Ord. You are my lady’s charge, be therefore careful 12

That you sustain your parts,
Woman. We can bear, I warrant you.

Exeunt W. Woman and Chambermaid.

Furn. Here, drink it off; the ingredients are cordial,
And this the true elixir; it hath boil’d
Since midnight for you. ’Tis the quintessence
Of five coals of the game, ten dozen of sparrows’
Knuckles of veal, potato-roots and marrow,
Coral and ambergris. Were you two years older,
And I had a wife, or gamesome mistress,
I durst trust you with neither. You need not bait
After this, I warrant you, though your journey’s long; 20
You may ride on the strength of this till tomorrow morning.

All. Your courtesies overwhelm me: I much
grieve
To part from such true friends; and yet find comfort,
My attendance on my honourable lord,
Whose resolution holds to visit my lady, 30
Will speedily bring me back.

Knocking at the gate.

Mar. [within.] Darst thou venture further?

Well. [within.] Yes, yes, and knock again.
Ord.
’Tis he; dispere !

Amb. Perform it bravely.

Furn. I know my cue, nor doubt me.

Exeunt [all but ALLWORTH].

[Enter WATCHALL, ceremoniously introducing WELLBORN and MARSHALL.]

Watch. Beast that I was, to make you stay!
Most welcome;

You were long since expected.

Well. Say so much

To my friend, I pray you.

Watch. For your sake, I will, sir.
Mar. For his sake!

Well. Mum; this is nothing.

Mar. More than ever

I would have believ’d, though I had found it in my primer.

All. When I have given your reasons for my late harshness,
You’ll pardon and excuse me; for, believe
me,
Though now I part abruptly, in my service
I will deserve it. 3 Wenchets.

Mar. Service! with a vengeance!

Well. I am satisfied: farewell, Tom.

All. All joy stay with you! Exit.

Re-enter AMBLE.

Amb. You are happily encounter’d; I yet never
Presented one so welcome as I know
You will be to my lady.

Mar. This is some vision,
Or, sure, these men are mad, to worship a dunghill;
It cannot be a truth.

Well. Be still a pegan,
An unbelieving infidel; be so, misconcert,
And meditate on “blankets, and on dogwhips!”

Re-enter FURNACE.

Furn. I am glad you are come; until I know
your pleasure
I knew not how to serve up my lady’s dinner.

Mar. His pleasure is it possible?

Well. What’s thy will?

Furn. Marry, sir, I have some grouse, and turkey chicken,
Some rails 4 and quails, and my lady will’d me
ask you,

What kind of sauces best affect your palate,

That I may use my utmost skill to please it.

Mar. [Aside.] The devil’s enter’d this cook.
Sauce for his palate!

That, on my knowledge, for almost this twelvemonth,
Durst wish but cheese-parings and brown bread

On Sundays. 30

Well. That way I like ’em best.

Furn. It shall be done, sir. Exit.

Well. What think you of “the hedge we shall dine under”?

Shall we feed gratis?

Mar. I know not what to think;

Pray you make me not mad.

Re-enter ORDER.

Ord. This place becomes you not;

Pray you walk, sir, to the dining room.

Well. I am well here,

Till her ladyship quits her chamber.

Mar. Well here, say you?
’Tis a rare change! But yesterday you thought

Yourself well in a barn, wrapp’d up in peas-straw.

Re-enter Waiting Woman and Chambermaid.

Woman. O! sir, you are wish’d for.

Cham. My lady dreamt, sir, of you.

Woman. And the first command she gave, after she rose,

Was (her devotions done) to give her notice
When you approach’d here.

Cham. Which is done, on my virtue.

Mar. I shall be converted; I begin to grow
Into a new belief, which saints nor angels

Could have won me to have faith in.

Woman. Sir, my lady!

1 Watchets.

2 Marsh birds.

3 Washets.
Enter Lady Allworth.

L. All. I come to meet you, and languish'd till I saw you.
This first kiss is for form; I allow a second
To such a friend. [Kisses Wellborn.]
Mar. To such a friend! Heaven bless me.
Well. I am wholly yours; yet, madam, if you please
To grace this gentleman with a salute —
Mar. Salute me at his bidding!
Well. I shall receive it.

As a most high favour.

L. All. Sir, you may command me.
[Advances to kiss Marshall, who retires.]
Well. Run backward from a lady! and such a lady!
Mar. To kiss her foot is, to poor me, a favour
I am unworthy of. [Offers to kiss her foot.]
L. All. Nay, pray you rise; And since you are so humble, I'll exalt you.
You shall dine with me to-day, at mine own table.
Mar. Your ladyship's table! I am not good enough
To sit at your steward's board.
L. All. You are too modest; I will not be denied.

Re-enter Furnace.

Furn. Will you still be babbling so Till your meat freeze on the table? The old trick still;
My art ne'er thought on!
L. All. Your arm, Master Wellborn: —
Nay, keep us company. [To Marshall.]
Mar. I was ne'er so grac'd.

Exeunt Wellborn, Lady Allworth, Amble, Marshall, W. Woman, [and Chambermaid.]

Ord. So! we have play'd our parts, and are come off well;
But if I know the mystery, why my lady
Consented to it, or why Master Wellborn
Desir'd it, may I perish!
Furn. Would I had
The roasting of his heart that cheated him,
And forces the poor gentleman to these shifts!
By fire! for cooks are Persians, and swear by it.
Of all the griping and extorting tyrants
I ever heard or read of, I ne'er met
A match to Sir Giles Overreach.

Watch. What will you take
To tell him so, fellow Furnace?
Furn. Just as much
As my throat is worth, for that would be the price on't.
To have a usurer that starves himself,
And wears a cloak of one and twenty years
On a suit of fourteen groats, bought of the hangman,
To grow rich, and then purchase, is too common;
But this Sir Giles feeds high, keeps many servants,
Who must at his command do any outrage;
Rich in his habit, vast in his expenses;
Yet he to admiration still increases
In wealth and lordships.

Ord. He frights men out of their estates,
And breaks through all law-nets, made to curb ill men.
As they were cobwebs. No man dares reprove him.
Such a spirit to dare and power to do were never Lodg'd so unluckily.

Re-enter Amble [laughing].

Amb. Ha! ha! I shall burst.
Ord. Contain thyself, man.
Furn. Or make us partakers
Of your sudden mirth.
Amb. Ha! ha! my lady has got such a guest at her table! — this term-driver, Marshall.
This snip of an attorney —
Furn. What of him, man?
Amb. The knave thinks still he's at the cook's shop in Ram Alley, Where the clerks divide, and the elder is to choose;
And feeds so slovenly!
Furn. Is this all?
Amb. My lady drank to him for fashion sake, or to please Master Wellborn;
As I live, he rises, and takes up a dish
In which there were some remnants of a boil'd capon,
And pledges her in white broth!
Furn. Nay, 'tis like the rest of his tribe.
Amb. And when I brought him wine, he leaves his stool, and, after a leg or two,
Most humbly thanks my worship.
Ord. Risen already!
Amb. I shall be chid.

Furn. My lady frowns.
L. All. You wait well! [To Amble.] Let me have no more of this: I observ'd your jeering.
Sirrah, I'll have you know, whom I think worthy
To sit at my table, be he ne'er so mean,
When I am present, is not your companion.
Ord. Nay, she'll preserve what's due to her.
Furn. This refreshing
Follows your flux of laughter.
L. All. [to Wellborn.] You are master Of your own will. I know so much of manners, As not to inquire your purposes; in a word, To me you are ever welcome, as to a house That is your own.
Wel. [Aside to Marshall.] Mark that.
Mar. With reverence, sir,
An it like your worship.
WELL. Trouble yourself no further, dear madam; my heart's full of zeal and service.

However in my language I am sparing. Come, Master Marrall.

MARR. I attend your worship.

WELL and MARR. Exeunt WELLEBORN and MARRALL.

L. All. I see in your looks you are sorry, and you know me an easy mistress. Be merry; I have forgot all. Order and Furnace, come with me; I must give you further directions.

Furnace. What you please.

WELLEBORN. We are ready. Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Enter WELLEBORN and MARRALL [bareheaded].

WELLEBORN. I think I am in a good way.

MARRALL. Good Sir, the best way,
The certain best way.

WELL. There are casualties.

That men are subject to. You are above 'em;
And as you are already worshipful,
I hope ere long you will increase in worship, And be right worshipful.

WELLEBORN. Frithees do not flout me: What I shall be, I shall be. Is 't for your ease, You keep your hat off?

MARRALL. Ease! an it like your worship! I hope Jack Marrall shall not live so long, To prove himself such an unmannishly beast, Though it hail hazel-nuts, as to be cover'd When your worship's present.

WELLEBORN. (Aside.) Is not this a true rogue, That, out of mere hope of a future coz'nage, Can turn thus suddenly? 'Tis rank already.

WELLEBORN. I know your worship's wise, and needs no counsel,
Yet if, in my desire to do you service, I humbly offer my advice, (but still Under correction,) I hope I shall not Incur your high displeasure.

WELLEBORN. No; speak freely. (Still with your worship's favour,) I could wish you a better habit, for this cannot be. But much distasteful to the noble lady (I say no more) that loves you; for, this morning,
To me, and I am but a swine to her, Before th' assurance of her wealth perfum'd you,
You savour'd not of amber.

WELLEBORN. I do now then! This your batoon hath got a touch of it. — Kisses the end of his cudgel.

Yet, if you please, for change, I have twenty pounds here,

1 The country near Lady Allworth's house.
2 Cheating.
3 Ambergris, a fashionable perfume.

Which, out of my true love, I'll presently Lay down at your worship's feet; 't will serve to buy you a riding suit.

WELLEBORN. But where's the horse?

MARRALL. My gelding Is at your service; nay, you shall ride me, Before your worship shall be put to the trouble To walk afoot. Alas, when you are lord Of this lady's manors, as I know you will be. You may with the lease of glebe land, called Knave's-are, A place I would manure, 4 require your vassal. Well. I thank thy love, but must make no use of it;

What's twenty pounds?

MARRALL. 'Tis all that I can make, sir. Well. Dost thou think, though I want clothes, I could not have 'em, For one word to my lady?

MARRALL. As I know not that! Well. Come, I will tell thee a secret, and so leave thee. I will not give her the advantage, though she be A gallant-minded lady, after we are married, (There being no woman but is sometimes forward,) To hit me in the teeth, and say, she was forc'd To buy my wedding-clothes, and took me on With a plain riding-suit, and an ambling nag. No, I'll be furnish'd something like myself, And so farewell: for thy suit touching Knave's-are, When it is mine, 't is thine.

MARRALL. I thank your worship. Exit WELL. How was I cozen'd 2 in the calculation Of this man's fortune! My master cozen'd too, Whose pupil I am in the art of undoing men; For that is our profession! Well, well, Master WELLEBORN, You are of a sweet nature, and fit again to be cheated: Which, if the Fates please, when you are possess'd Of the land and lady, you, sans question, shall be. I'll presently think of the means.

WELLEBORN. Walks by, musing.

Enter OVERREACH, [speaking to a Servant within.]

OVERREACH. Sirrah, take my horse. I'll walk to get me an appetite; 't is but a mile, And exercise will keep me from being purry. Ha! Marrall! Is he conjuring? Perhaps The knave has wrought the prodigal to do Some outrage on himself, and now he feels Compunction in his conscience for't: no matter, So it be done. Marrall!

MARRALL. Sir.

OVERREACH. How succeed we In our plot on WELLEBORN?

MARRALL. Never better, sir.

OVERREACH. Has he hang'd or drown'd himself?

4 Cultivates. 2 Cheated. 8 Fat and short winded.
Mar.  No, sir, he lives; Lives once more to be made a prey to you, 76 A greater prey than ever. Over.  Art thou in thy wits? If thou art, reveal this miracle, and briefly, Mar.  A lady, sir, is fall’n in love with him. Over.  With him? What lady? Mar.  Her name, The rich Lady Allworth. Over.  Thou dost! How dar’st thou speak this? Mar.  I speak truth; 78 And I do so but once a year, unless It be to you, sir. We din’d with her ladyship, I thank his worship. Over.  His worship! 79 Mar.  As I live, sir, I din’d with him, at the great lady’s table, Simple as I stand here; and saw when she kiss’d him. And would, at his request, have kiss’d me too: But I was not so audacious as some youths are, That dare do anything, be it ne’er so absurd, And sad after performance. Over.  Why, thou rascal! To tell me these impossibilities. Dine at her table! and kiss him! or thee!— Impudent varlet, have not I myself, To whom great countesses’ doors have oft flew open. Ten times attempted, since her husband’s death, In vain, to see her, though I came—a suitor? And yet your good solicitorship, and rogue Wellborn, Were brought into her presence, feasted with her! But that I know thee a dog that cannot blush, This most incredible lie would call up one On thy buttermilk cheeks. Mar.  Shall I not trust my eyes, sir? 80 Or taste? I feel her good cheer in my belly. Over.  You shall feel me, if you give not over, sirrah: Recover your brains again, and be no more gull’d With a beggar’s plot, assisted by the aids Of serving-men and chambermaids, for beyond these ‘Thou never saw’st a woman, or I’ll quit you From my employments. Mar.  Will you credit this yet? On my confidence of their marriage, I offer’d Wellborn—— (Aside.) I would give a crown now I durst say “his worship”—— My nose and twenty pounds. Over.  Did you so, idiot! (Strikes him down.) Was this the way to work him to despair, 83 Or rather to cross me? Mar.  Will your worship kill me? Over.  No, no; but drive the lying spirit out of you. Mar.  He’s gone. Over.  I have done then; now, forgetting Your late imaginary feast and lady, 84 Know, my Lord Lovell dines with me to-morrow. Be careful nought be wanting to receive him; And bid my daughter’s women trim her up, Though they paint her, so she catch the lord, I’ll thank them. There’s a piece for my late blows. Mar. (Aside.) I must yet suffer: 85 But there may be a time—— Over.  Do you grumble? Mar.  No, sir. [Exeunt.]

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter LORD LOVELL, ALLWORTH, and SERVANTS. Lov. Walk the horses down the hill: something in private I must impart to Allworth. Exeunt Servants. All. O, my lord, What a sacrifice of reverence, duty, watching, Although I could put off the use of sleep, And ever wait on your commands to serve ’em; What dangers, though in ne’er so horrid shapes, Nay death itself, though I should run to meet it, Can I, and with a thankful willingness, suffer! But still the retribution will fall short Of your bounties shower’d upon me. Lov. Loving youth, 86 Till what I purpose be put into act, Do not o’erprize it; since you have trusted me With your soul’s nearest, nay, her dearest secret, Rest confident ’tis in a cabinet lock’d Treachery shall never open. I have found you 87 (For so much to your face I must profess. Hove’er you guard your modesty with a blush for’t) More zealous in your love and service to me Than I have been in my rewards. All. Still great ones, Above my merit. Lov. Such your gratitude calls ’em; 88 Nor am I of that harsh and rugged temper As some great men are tax’d 2 with, who imagine They part from the respect due to their honours If they use not all such as follow ’em. Without distinction of their births, like slaves. I am not so condition’d; I can make A fitting difference between my footboy And a gentleman by want compel’d to serve me. All. ’Tis thankfully acknowledg’d: you have been More like a father to me than a master. 89 Pray you, pardon the comparison. Lov. I allow it: And, to give you assurance I am pleas’d in ’t, My carriage and demeanour to your mistress, Fair Margaret, shall truly witness for me I can command my passions. All. ’Tis a conquest 89 1 The country near Overreach’s house. 2 Charged.
III. ii.

A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS 753

Few lords can boast of when they are tempted
Oh!

Lou. Why do you sigh? Can you be doubtful of me?

By that fair name I in the wars have purchased,
And all my actions, hitherto untainted,
I will not be more true to mine own honour
Than to my Allworth!

All. As you are the brave Lord Lovell,
Your bare word only given is an assurance
Of more validity and weight to me
Than all the oaths, bound up with impractions.

Which, when they would deceive, most courtiers practise;

Yet being a man, (for, sure, to style you more
Would relish of gross flattery,) I am fore'd, Against my confidence of your worth and virtues,

To doubt, nay, more, to fear.

Lou. So young, and jealous!

All. Were you to encounter with a single foe,
The victory were certain; but to stand
The charge of two such potent enemies,
At once assaulting you, as wealth and beauty,
And those too seconded with power, is odds
Too great for Hercules.

Lou. Speak your doubts and fears.

All. You will nourish ’em, in plainer language,

That I may understand them.

All. What’s your will,
Though I lend arms against myself, (provided
They may advantage you,) must be obeyed.

My much-lov’d lord, were Margaret only fair,

The cannon of her more than earthly form,

Though mounted high, commanding all beneath it,

And ramm’d with bullets of her sparkling

Of all the bulwarks that defend your senses
Could batter none, but that which guards your

But when the well-turn’d accents of her tongue
Make music to you, and with numerous sounds Assault your hearing, (such as if Ulysses
Now liv’d again, how’e er he stood the Syrens, Could not resist,) the combat must grow doubtful

Between your reason and rebellious passions.

Add this too; when you feel her touch, and

Like a soft western wind when it glides o’er
Arabia, creating gums and spices;

And, in the van, the nectar of her lips.

Which you must taste, bring the battalia on,
Well arm’d, and strongly lin’d 9 with her discourse,

And knowing manners, to give entertain-
ment;

Hippolytus himself would leave Diana,
To follow such a Venus.

Lou. Love hath made you

Poetical, Allworth.

All. Grant all these best off,
Which if it be in man to do, you’ll do it,

Mammon, in Sir Giles Overreach, steps in

With heaps of ill-got gold, and so much land,

To make her more remarkable, as would tire

A falcon’s wings in one day to fly over.

O my good lord! these powerful aids, which

Would make a mis-shapen negro beautiful,

(Yet are but ornaments to give her lustre,

That in herself is all perfection,) must Prevail for her. Here release your trust;

’Tis happiness enough for me to serve you

And sometimes, with chaste eyes, to look upon

her.

Lou. Why, shall I swear?

All. O, by no means, my lord;

And wrong not so your judgment to the world

As from your fond indulgence to a boy,

Your page, your servant, to refuse a blessing

Divers great men are rivals for.

Lou. Suspend

Your judgment till the trial. How far is it

To Overreach’s house?

All. At the most, some half hour’s riding;

You’ll soon be there.

Lou. And you the sooner freed
From your jealous fears.

All. O that I durst but hope it! Exeunt.

SCENE II.

[Enter] Overreach, Greedy, and Marball.

Over. Spare for no cost; let my dressers

Of curious viands.

Over. That proverb fits your stomach, Master Greedy.

And let no plate be seen but what’s pure gold,

That it is made of; let my choicest linen

Perfume the room, and, when we wash, the water,

With precious powders mix’d, so please my

Carp. That he may with envy wish to bathe so ever.

Mar. ’Twill be very chargeable.

Over. Avant, you drudge! 10

Now all my labour’d ends are at the stake,

Is’t a time to think of thrift? Call in my daughter.

[Exit Marball.]

And, Master Justice, since you love choice dishes,

And plenty of ’em —

Greedy. As I do, indeed, sir,

Almost as much as to give thanks for ’em.

Over. I do confer that providence, 4 with my

Of absolute command to have abundance,

To your best care.

Greedy. I’ll punctually discharge it,

And give the best directions. Now am I,

A room in Overreach’s house.

6 Responsibility for providing.
In mine own conceit, a monarch; at the least, Arch-president of the boil’d, the roast, the bak’d;
For which I will eat often, and give thanks
When my belly’s brace’d up like a drum, and that’s pure justice. Exit.
Ober. It must be so. Should the foolish girl prove modest,
She may spoil all; she had it not from me,
But from her mother; I was ever forward,
As she must be, and therefore I'll prepare her.

[Enter] MARGARET.

Alone—and let your women wait without.
Marg. Your pleasure, sir?
Ober. Ha! this is a neat dressing!
These orient pearls and diamonds well plac’d too!
The gown affects me not, it should have been Embroider’d o’er and o’er with flowers of gold;
But these rich jewels and quaint fashion help it.
And how below? since oft the wanton eye
The face observ’d, descends unto the foot,
Which being well proportion’d, as yours is,
Invites as much as perfect white and red,
Though without art. How like you your new woman,
The Lady Downfall’n?
Marg. Well, for a companion;
Not as a servant.
Ober. Is she humble, Meg?
Marg. I pity her fortune.
Ober. Pity her! trample on her.
I took her up in an old tamin gown,
(Even stary’d for want of twopenny chops,) to serve thee;
And if I understand she but repines
To do thee any duty, though ne’er so servile,
I’ll pack her to her knight, where I have lodg’d him,
Into the Counter 2 and there let ’em howl togeth.
Marg. You know your own ways; but for me,
I’ll him.
When I command her, that was once attended
With persons not inferior to myself
In birth.
Ober. In birth! why, art thou not my daughter,
The blest child of my industry and wealth?
Why, foolish girl, was ’t not to make thee great
That I have run, and still pursue, those ways
That hale down curses on me, which I mind not?
Part with these humble thoughts, and apt 4 thyself
To the noble state I labour to advance thee;
Or, by my hopes to see thee honourable,
I will adopt a stranger to my heir,
And throw thee from my care. Do not provoke me.
Marg. I will not, sir; mould me which way you please.

Re-enter GREEDY.

Ober. How! Interrupted!
Greedy. ’T is matter of importance.
The cook, sir, is self-will’d, and will not learn
From my experience. There’s a fawn brought in, sir,
And, for my life, I cannot make him roast it
With a Norfolk dumpling in the belly of it;
And, sir, we wise men know, without the dumpling
’T is not worth three-pence.
Ober. Would it were whole in thy belly,
To stuff it out! Cook it any way; prithee, leave me.
Greedy. Without order for the dumpling?
Ober. Let it be dumpl’d
Which way thou wilt; or tell him, I will scold him
In his own caldron.
Greedy. I had lost my stomach
Had I lost my mistress dumpling; I’ll give thanks for’t.
[Exit.]
Ober. But to our business, Meg; you have heard who dines here?
Marg. I have, sir.
Ober. ’T is an honourable man;
A lord, Meg, and commands a regiment
Of soldiers, and, what’s rare, is one himself,
A bold and understanding one; and to be
A lord and a good leader, in one volume,
Is granted unto few but such as rise up
The kingdom’s glory.

Re-enter GREEDY.

Greedy. I’ll resign my office,
If I be not better obey’d;
Ober. ’Slight, art thou frantic?
Greedy. Frantic! ’T would make me frantic and stark mad,
Were I not a justice of peace and quorum too,
Which this rebellious cook cares not a straw for.
There are a dozen of woodcocks——
Ober. Make thyself
Thirteen, the baker’s dozen.
Greedy. I am contented,
So they may be dress’d to my mind; he has found out
A new device for sauce, and will not dish ’em
With toasts and butter. My father was a tailor,
And by my name, though a justice, Greedy Woodcock;
And, ere I’ll see my lineage so abus’d,
I’ll give up my commission.
Ober. [loudly.] Cook!—Rogue, obey him!
I have given the word, pray you now remove yourself
To a collar of brawn, 4 and trouble me no further.
Greedy. I will, and meditate what to eat at dinner.
Exit.
Ober. And as I said, Meg, when this gull disturb’d us,
This honourable lord, this colonial,
I would have thy husband.
Marg. There's too much disparity.
Between his quality and mine, to hope it.
Over. I more than hope it, and doubt not to effect it.
Be thou no enemy to thyself, my wealth
Shall weight his titles down, and make you equals.
Now for the means to assure him thine, observe me:
Remember he's a courtier and a soldier,
And not to be trifled with; and, therefore, when
He comes to woo you, see you do not coy it:
This mincing modesty has spoil'd many a match
By a first refusal, in vain after hop'd for.

Marg. You'll have me, sir, preserve the distance that confines a virgin?

Over. Virgin me no virgins!
I must have you lose that name, or you lose me.
I will have you private — start not — I say, private;
If thou art my true daughter, not a bastard,
Thou wilt venture alone with one man, though he came
Like Jupiter to Semele, and come off, too;
And therefore, when he kisses you, kiss close.

Marg. I have heard this is the strumpet's fashion, sir,
Which I must never learn.

Over. Learn any thing.
And from any creature that may make thee great;
From the devil himself.

Marg. [Aside.] This is but devilish doctrine!

Over. Or, if his blood grow hot, suppose he offer
Beyond this, do not you stay till it cool,
But meet his ardour; if a couch be near,
Sit down on't, and invite him.

Marg. In your house,
Your own house, sir! For Heaven's sake, what are you then?
Or what shall I be, sir?

Over. Stand not on form;
Words are no substances.
Marg. Though you could dispense
With your own honour, cast aside religion,
The hopes of Heaven, or fear of hell, excuse me,
In worldly policy this is not the way
To make me his wife; his whore, I grant it may do.

My maiden honour so soon yielded up,
Nay, prostituted, cannot but assure him,
I, that am light to him, will not hold weight,
Whene'er tempted by others; so, in judgment,
When to his lust I have given up my honour,
He must and will forswake me.

Over. How I forswake thee!
Do I wear a sword for fashion? or is this arm Shrunk up or wither'd? Does there live a
man
Of that large list I have encounter'd with

Can truly say I o'er gave inch of ground
Not purchase'd with his blood that did oppose
me?

Marg. Forsake thee when the thing is done! He dares not.
Give me but proof he has enjoy'd thy person,
Though all his captains, echo to his will,
Stood arm'd by his side to justify the wrong,
And he himself in the head of his bold troop,
Spite of his lordship, and his colonelship,
Or the judge's favour, I will make him render
A bloody and a strict account, and force him,
By marrying thee, to cure thy wounded honour!
I have said it.

Re-enter MARRALL.

Mar. Sir, the man of honour's come,
Newly alighted.

Marg. In, without reply.

Over. And do as I command, or thou art lost.

MARGARET.

Is the loud music I gave order for Ready to receive him?

Mar. 'Tis, sir.

Over. Let 'em sound
A princely welcome. [Exit MARRALL.] Roughness awhile leave me;
For fawning now, a stranger to my nature,
 Must make way for me.

Loud music. Enter LORD LOVELL, GREEDY,
ALLWORTH, and MARRALL.

Lov. Sir, you meet your trouble.

Over. What you are pleas'd to style so is an honour
Above my worth and fortunes.

All. [Aside.] Strange, so humble.

Over. A justice of peace, my lord.

Presents GREEDY to him.

Lov. Your hand, good sir.

Greedy. [Aside.] This is a lord, and some think this a favour;
But I had rather have my hand in my dump-
ing.

Over. Room for my lord.

Lov. I miss, sir, your fair daughter
To crown my welcome.

Over. May it please my lord
To taste a glass of Greek wine first, and suddenly
She shall attend my lord.

Lov. You'll be obey'd, sir.

Exit all but OVERREACH.

Over. 'Tis to my wish: as soon as come, ask for her!

Why, Meg! Meg Overreach.—

[Re-enter MARRALL.]

How! tears in your eyes!

Hah! dry 'em quickly, or I'll dig 'em out.
Is this a time to whimper? Meet that greatness
That flies into thy bosom, think what 'tis.
For me to say, "My honourable daughter;"
And thou, when I stand bare, to say, "Put
on;"
Or. "Father, you forget yourself." No more: But be instructed, or expect — He comes.

Re-enter LORD LOVELL, GREEDY, ALLWORTH, and MARBELL.

A black-brow'd girl, my lord,

Lov. As I live, a rare one. They salute, 180

All. [Aside.] He's took already: I am lost.

Over. [Aside.] That kiss Came twanging off, I like it. — Quit the room.

[Exeunt all but OVERREACH, LOVE- LLL, and MARGARET.]

A little bashful, my good lord, but you, I hope, will help her boldness.

Lov. I am happy
In such a scholar: but —

Over. I am past learning. 188
And therefore leave you to yourselves. — Remember! Aside to MARGARET and exit.

Lov. You see, fair lady, your father is solicitous
To have you change the barren name of virgin
Into a hopeful wife.

Marg. His haste, my lord,
Holds no power o'er my will.

Lov. But o'er your duty. 188
Marg. Which fore'd too much, may break.

Lov. Bend rather, sweetest:
Think of your years.

Marg. Too few to match with yours:
And choicest fruits too soon pluck'd, rot and wither.

Lov. Do you think I am old?
Marg. I am sure I am too young.

Lov. I can advance you.

Marg. To a hill of sorrow, 188
Where every hour I may expect to fall,
But never hope firm footing. You are noble,
Of a low descent, however rich;
And tissues match'd with scarlet, 1 suit but ill.
O, my good lord. I could say more, but that I dare not trust these walls.

Lov. Pray you, trust my ear then.

Re-enter OVERREACH [behind], listening.

Over. Close at it! whispering! this is excellent!
And, by their postures, a consent on both parts.

Re-enter GREEDY behind.

Greedy. Sir Giles, Sir Giles!

Over. The great fiend stop that clapper!
Greedy. It must ring out, sir, when my belly rings noon.

The bake'd-meats are run out, the roasts turn'd powder.

Over. I shall powder you.
Greedy. You beat me to dust, I care not;
In such a cause as this, I'll die a martyr!

Over. Marry, and shall, you barbarous 9 of the shambles!

Strike him.
Greedy. How! strike a justice of peace! 'Tis petty treason,

Edwardi quint: but that you are my friend,

I would commit you without bail or main- prize. 3

Over. Leave your bawling, sir, or I shall commit you Where you shall not dine to-day. Disturb my lord,
When he is in discourse!

Greedy. Is 't a time to talk. 3

When we should be munching!

Lov. Hah! I heard some noise.

Over. Mum, villain; vanish! Shall we break a bargain Almost made up? Threats GREEDY off.

Lov. Lady, I understand you.
And rest most happy in your choice, believe it;
I'll be a careful pilot to direct
Your yet uncertain bark to a port of safety.

Marg. So shall your honour save two lives,
And bind us
Your slaves for ever.

Lov. I am in the act rewarded,
Since it is good; how'er, you must put on
An amorous carriage towards me to delude
Your subtle father.

Marg. I am prone to that.

Lov. Now break we off our conference. — Sir Giles!

Where is Sir Giles?

[OVERREACH comes forward.]

Re-enter ALLWORTH, MARBELL, and GREEDY.

Over. My noble lord; and how Does your lordship find her?

Lov. Apt, Sir Giles, and coming;
And I like her the better.

Over. So do I too.

Love. Yet should we take forts at the first assault,
'T were poor in the defendant; I must confirm her
With a love-letter or two, which I must have Deliver'd by my page, and you give way to 't.

Over. With all my soul: — a cowardly gentle- man! 2

Your hand, good Master Allworth: know my house
Is ever open to you. 3

All. [Aside.] 'T was shut till now.

Over. Well done, well done, my honourable daughter!

Thou 'rt so already. Know this gentle youth,
And cherish him, my honourable daughter. 3

Marg. I shall, with my best care.

Over. Noise within, as of a coach. 3

Greedy. A coach! 3

Over. More stops
Before we go to dinner! O my guts!

Enter LADY ALLWORTH and WELLBORN.

L. All. If I find welcome,
You share in it; if not, I'll back again,
Now I know your ends; for I come arm'd for all
Can be objected.

1 Silk matched with woollen.
2 Gulp: here, insatiable glutton.
3 A writ commanding the sheriff to take bail.
III. iii.

A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

LOV. How! the Lady Allworth! 244
Over. And thus attended!

LOVELL salutes LADY ALLWORTH,
LADY ALLWORTH salutes MAHERGART.

MAR. No, "I am a dolt!
The spirit of lies had ent'red me!"

Over. Peace, Patch; 1
"T is more than wonder! an astonishment
That does possess me wholly!

LOV. Noble lady,
This is a favour, to prevent 2 my visit, 250
The service of my life can never equal.

L. All. My lord, I laid wait for you, and much hop’d
You would have made my poor house your first inn:
And therefore doubting that you might forget
me,
Or too long dwell here, having such ample
cause,
In this unequall’d beauty, for your stay,
And fearing to trust any but myself
With the relation of my service to you,
I borrow’d so much from my long restraint
And took the air in person to invite you. 255

LOV. Your bounties are so great, they rob me,
madam,
Of words to give you thanks.

L. All. Good Sir Giles Overreach.
Salutes him.

—How dost thou, Marrall? Lik’d you my meat
so ill,
You’ll dine no more with me?

Greedy. I will, when you please, 259
An it like 3 your ladyship.

L. All. When you please, Master Greedy;
If meat can do it, you shall be satisfied.
And now, my lord, pray take into your knowledge
This gentleman; how’er his outside’s coarse,

Presents WELLBORN.

His inward linings are as fine and fair 260
As any man’s; wonder not I speak at large:
And howsoever his humour carries him
To be thus accoutred, or what taint soever,
For his wild life, hath stuck upon his fame,
He may ere long, with boldness, rank himself
With some that have contemn’d him. Sir Giles
Overreach. 273

If I am welcome, bid him so.

Over. My nephew!
He has been too long a stranger. Faith you have,
Pray let it be mended.

LOVELL confesses aside with WELLBORN.

MAR. Why, sir, what do you mean?
This is " rogue Wellborn, monster, prodigy,
That should hang or drown himself; " no man
of worship,
Much less your nephew.

Over. Well, sirrah, we shall reckon
For this hereafter.

MAR. I’ll not lose my jeer,
Though I be beaten dead for ‘t.

WELL. Let my silence plead
In my excuse, my lord, till better leisure
Offer itself to hear a full relation
Of my poor fortunes.

LOV. I would hear, and help ‘em.

Over. Your dinner waits you.

LOV. Pray you lead, we follow.

L. All. Nay, you are my guest; come, dear
Master Wellborn.

Exeunt all but GREEDY.

Greedy. "Dear Master Wellborn!" so she said:
Heaven! Heaven!
If my belly would give me leave, I could rumi-
Hate
All day on this. I have granted twenty warrants
To have him committed, from all prisons in the shire,
To Nottingham gaol; and now "Dear Master
Wellborn!"
And, "My good nephew!" — but I play the
fool
To stand here prating, and forget my dinner.

Re-enter Marrall.

Are they set, Marrall?

MAR. Long since; pray you a word, sir.

Greedy. No wording now.

MAR. In truth, I must. My master, Knowing you are his good friend, makes bold
with you,
And does entreat you, more guests being come
in
Than he expected, especially his nephew,
The table being full too, you would excuse
him,
And sup with him on the cold meat.

Greedy. How! No dinner,
After all my care? "Tis but a pence for
A meal; besides, you broke your fast.

Greedy. That was
But a bit to stay my stomach. A man in commission
Give place to a tatterdemalion!

MAR. No bug 4 words, sir;
Should his worship hear you —

Greedy. Lose my dumpling too,
And butter’d toasts, and woodcocks!

MAR. Come, have patience,
If you will dispense a little with your worship,
And sit with the waiting women, you’ll have dumpling,
Woodcock, and butter’d toasts too.

Greedy. This revives me:
I will gorge there sufficiently.

MAR. This is the way, sir. 280

SCENE III.6

[Enter] Overreach, as from dinner.

Over. She’s caught 1 O women! — she ne-

Terrorizing.

Another room in Overreach’s house.
And all her compliments appli’d to Wellborn!
The garments of her widowhood laid by,
She now appears as glorious as the spring,
Her eyes fix’d on him, in the wine she drinks, 1
He being her pledge, she sends him burning kisses,
And sits on thorns, till she be private with him.
She leaves my meat to feed upon his looks,
And if in our discourse he be but nam’d,
From her a deep sigh follows. And why grieve
I
At this? It makes for me; if she prove his,
All that here is mine, as I will work him.

Enter MARRALL.

Marr. Sir, the whole board is troubled at your rising.

Over. No matter. I’ll excuse it. Prithee,

Marrall.

Watch an occasion to invite my nephew
To speak with me in private.

Mar. Who? ’The rogue
The lady soom’d to look on’?

Over. You are a wag.

Enter LADY ALLWORTH and WELLBORN.

Mar. See, sir, she’s come, and cannot be with-out
him.

L. All. With your favour, sir, after a plente-ous dinner,
I shall make bold to walk a turn or two,
In your rare garden.

Over. There’s an arbour too,
If your ladyship please to use it.

L. All. Come, Master Wellborn.

Exeunt LADY ALLWORTH and WELLBORN.

Over. Grooser and grooser! Now I believe the poet
Feign’d not, but was historical, when he wrote
Panphæa was enamour’d of a bull:
This lady’s lust’s more monstrous. — My good lord,

Enter LORD LOVELL, MARGARET, and the rest.

Excuse my manners.

Louv. There needs none, Sir Giles;
I may so long say father, when it pleases
My dearest mistress to give warrant to it.

Over. She shall seal to it, my lord, and make me happy.

Re-enter WELLBORN and LADY ALLWORTH.

Marg. My lady is return’d.

L. All. Provide my coach,
I’ll instantly away. My thanks, Sir Giles,
For my entertainment.

Over. ’T is your nobleness
To think it such.

L. All. I must do you a further wrong
In taking away your honourable guest.

Louv. I wait on you, madam; farewell, good
Sir Giles.

L. All. Good Mistress Margaret! Nay, come,
Master Wellborn,
I must not leave you behind; in sooth, I must
not.

Over. Rob me not, madam, of all joys at once; Let my nephew stay behind. He shall have my coach,
And, after some small conference between us,
Soon overtake your ladyship.

L. All. Stay not long, sir.

Louv. This parting kiss! [kisses MARGARET] you shall every day hear from me,
By my faithful page.

Over. ’T is a service I am proud of.

Exeunt LORD LOVELL, LADY ALL-WORTH, WELLBORN, and MARR-
ALL.

Over. Daughter, to your chamber.—

Exit MARGARET.

— You may wonder, nephew, as
After so long an enmity between us,
I should desire your friendship.

Well. So I do, sir;
’Tis strange to me.

Over. But I’ll make it no wonder;
And what is more, unfold my nature to you.
We worldly men, when we see friends and kins-
men
Past hopes sunk in their fortunes, lend no hand
To lift ’em up, but rather set our feet
Upon their heads, to press ’em to the bottom;
As, I must yield, 1 with you I practis’d it:
But, now I see you in a way to rise,
I can and will assist you. This rich lady
(And I am glad of ‘t) is enamour’d of you;
’T is too apparent, nephew.

Well. No such thing:
Compassion rather, sir.

Over. Well, in a word,
Because your stay is short, I’ll have you seen
No more in this base shape; nor shall she say
She married you like a beggar, or in debt.

Well. (Aside.) He’ll run into the noose, and save my labour.

Over. You have a trunk of rich clothes, not far hence,
In pawn; I will redeem ’em; and that no clam-
our
May taint your credit for your petty debts,
You shall have a thousand pounds to cut ’em off,
And go a free man to the wealthy lady.

Well. This done, sir, out of love, and no ends else—

Over. As it is, nephew.

Well. Binds me still your servant.

Over. No compliments; you are staid for. Ere you have supp’d
You shall hear from me. My coach, knaves,
For my nephew.

To-morrow I will visit you.

Well. Here’s an uncle
In a man’s extremest! How much they do belie you,
That say you are hard-hearted!

Over. My deeds, nephew.
Shall speak my love; what men report I weigh not.

Admit.
ACT IV

SCENE 1. [Enter Lord Lovell and Allworth.

Lov. 'Tis well; give me my cloak; I now discharge you From further service. Mind your own affairs; I hope they will prove successful. All. What is best With your good wish, my lord, cannot but prosper.

Let afters times report, and to your honour, How much I stand engag'd, for I want language To speak my debt; yet if a tear or two Of joy, for your much goodness, can supply My tongue's defects, I could —

Lov. Nay, do not melt: This ceremonial thanks to me's superfluous. Over. (within.) Is my lord stirring? Lov. 'Tis he! oh, here's your letter. Let him in.

Over. A good day to my lord! Lov. You are an early riser, Sir Giles.

Over. And reason, to attend your lordship. Lov. And you, too, Master Greedy, up so soon! Greedy. In troth, my lord, after the sun is up, I cannot sleep, for I have a foolish stomach That croaks for breakfast. With your lordship's favour, I have a serious question to demand Of my worthy friend Sir Giles.

Lov. Pray you use your pleasure. Greedy. How far, Sir Giles, and pray you answer me Upon your credit, hold you it to be From your manor-house, to this of my Lady's Allworth's?

Over. Why, some four mile, Greedy. How! four mile, good Sir Giles — Upon your reputation, think better; For if you do abate but one half-quarter Of five, you do yourself the greatest wrong That can be in the world; for four miles riding Could not have rais'd so huge an appetite As I feel gnawing on me.

Mar. Whether you ride, Or gosfoot, you are that way still provided, As it please your worship. Over. How now, sirrah? Prating Before my lord! No difference? Go to my nephew, See all his debts discharg'd, and help his worship To fit on his rich suit.

Mar. [Aside.] I may fit you too. Tow'd like a dog still! Exit. Lov. I have writ this morning A few lines to my mistress, your fair daughter.

Over. 'Twill fire her, for she's wholly yours already.

Sweet Master Allworth, take my ring; 'twill carry you To her presence, I dare warrant you; and there plead For my good lord, if you shall find occasion. That done, pray ride to Nottingham, get a licence. Still by this token. I'll have it dispatch'd, And suddenly, my lord, that I may say, My honourable, nay, right honourable daughter.

Greedy. Take my advice, young gentleman, get your breakfast; 'Tis unwholesome to ride fasting. I'll eat with you, And eat to purpose.

Over. Some Fury's in that gut; Hungry again! Did you not devour, this morning, A shield of brawn, and a barrel of Colchester oysters?

Greedy. Why, that was, sir, only to scour my stomach. A kind of a preparative. Come, gentleman, I will not have you feed like the hangman of Flushing, Alone, while I am here. Lov. Haste your return. All. I will not fail, my lord.

Greedy. Nor I, to line My Christmas coffer.

Exeunt Greedy and Allworth.

Over. To my wish: we are private. I come not to make offer with my daughter A certain portion, — that were poor and trivial: In one word, I pronounce all that is mine, In lands or leases, ready coin or goods, With her, my lord, comes to you; nor shall you have One motive to induce you to believe I live too long, since every year I'll add Something unto the heap, which shall be yours too.

Lov. You are a right kind father.

Over. You shall have reason To think me such. How do you like this seat? It is well wooded, and well water'd, the acres Fertile and rich; would it not serve for change, To entertain your friends in a summer progress? What thinks my noble lord?

Lov. 'Tis a wholesome air, and well-built pile, and she that's mistress of it, Worthy the large revenue.

Over. She the mistress! It may be so for a time; but let my lord Say only that he likes it, and would have it, I say, ere long 'tis his.

Lov. Impossible.

Over. You do conclude too fast, not knowing me, Nor the engines that I work by. 'Tis not alone The Lady Allworth's lands, for those once Wellborn's (As by her dowry on him I know they will be)
Shall soon be mine; but point out any man's
In all the shire, and say they lie convenient
And useful for your lordship, and once more
I say aloud, they are yours.

L. I dare not own
What's by unjust and cruel means extorted;
My fame and credit are more dear to me,
Than to expose 'em to be censur'd by
The public voice.

Over. You run, my lord, no hazard.
Your reputation shall stand as fair,
In all good men's opinions, as now;
Nor can my actions, though condemn'd for ill,
Cast any foul aspersion upon yours.
For, though I do contemn report myself
As a mere sound, I still will be so tender
Of what concerns you, in all points of honour,
That the immaculate whiteness of your fame,
Nor your unquestioned integrity,
Shall e'er be sullied with one taint or spot
That may take from your innocence and con-dour.1
All my ambition is to have my daughter
Right honourable, which my lord can make her:
And might I live to dance upon my knee
A young Lord Lovell, borne by her unto you,
I write nil ultra2 to my proudest hopes.
As for possessions and annual rents,
Equivalent to maintain you in the port
Your noble birth and present state requires,
I do remove that burthen from your shoulders,
And take it on mine own: for, though I ruin
The country to supply your riotous waste,3
The scourge of prodigals, want, shall never find you.

Lov. Are you not frightened with the imprac-
tions
And curses of whole families, made wretched
By your sinister practices?

Over. Yes, as rocks are,
When foamy billows split themselves against
Their flinty rib; or as the moon is mov'd
When wolves, with hunger pin'd, howl at her brightness.

I am of a solid temper, and, like these,
Steer on a constant course. With mine own
sword,
If call'd into the field, I can make that right;
Which fearful enemies murmur'd at as wrong.
Now, for these other piddling complaints
Breath'd out in bitterness; as when they call me
Extortioner, tyrant, cormorant, or intruder
On my poor neighbour's right, or grand incloser
Of what was common, to my private use;
Nay, when my ears are pier'd with widows' cries,
And undone orphans wash with tears my threshold.
I only think what 'tis to have my daughter
Right honourable; and 'tis a powerful charm
Makes me insensible of remorse, or pity,
Or the least sting of conscience.

L. The toughness of your nature.

1 Stainnesses. 2 Nothing beyond. 3 Wonder at.

Over. 'Tis for you, my lord, and for my daughter, I am marble;
Nay more, if you will have my character
In little, I enjoy more true delight
In my arrival to my wealth these dark
And crooked ways, than you shall e'er take pleasure
In spending what my industry hath compass'd.
My haste commands me hence; in one word, therefore,

Is it a match?

L. I hope, that is past doubt now.

Over. Then rest secure; not the hate of all mankind here,
Nor fear of what can fall on me hereafter,
Shall make me study aught but your advancement
One story higher: an earl! if gold can do it.
Dispute not my religion, nor my faith;
Though I am borne thus headlong by my will,
You may make choice of what belief you please,
To me they are equal; so, my lord, good morning.2

Exit. 3

L. He's gone — I wonder how the earth can bear
Such a portent! I, that have liv'd a soldier,
And stood the enemy's violent charge undaunted,
To hear this blasphemous beast am bath'd all over
In a cold sweat: yet, like a mountain, he (Confirm'd in atheistical assertions)
Is no more shaken than Olympus
is
When angry Boreas loads his double head
With sudden drifts of snow.

Enter LADY ALLWORTH. Waiting Woman, and AMBLE.

L. All. Save you, my lord!

L. Disturb I not your privacy?

L. All. No, good madam;

L. For your own sake I am glad you came no sooner,
Since this bold bad man, Sir Giles Overreach,
Made such a plain discovery of himself,
And read this morning such a devilish matina,
That I should think it a sin next to his
But to repeat it.

L. All. I ne'er press'd, my lord.

L. On others' privacies; yet, against my will,
Walking, for health sake, in the gallery
Adjoining to your lodgings, I was made
(So vehement and loud he was) partaker
Of his tempting offers.

L. Please you to command
Your servants hence, and I shall gladly hear
Your wise counsel.

L. All. 'Tis, my lord, a woman's,
But true and hearty; — wait in the next room,
But be within call; yet not so near to force me to whisper my intents.

Amb. We are taught better
By you, good madam.

W. Wom. And well know our distance.

4 Apparently a slip for "Parnassus."
A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

L. All. Do so, and talk not; 't will become your breeding, Exeunt Amble and W. Woman.

Now, my good lord; if I may use my freedom,
As to an honour'd friend —

Lov. You lessen else

Your favour to me.

L. All. I dare then say thus: 100
As you are noble (hose'or common men
Make sordid wealth the object and sole end
Of their industrious aims) 't will not agree
With those of eminent blood, who are engag'd
More to prefer their honours than to increase
The state left to 'em by their ancestors,
To study large additions to their fortunes,
And quite neglect their births: — though I must grant,
Riches, well got, to be a useful servant,
But a bad master.

Lov. Madam, 't is confessed; 120
But what infer you from it?

L. All. This, my lord;
That as all wrongs, though thrust into one scale,
Slide of themselves off when right fills the other
And cannot bide the trial; so all wealth,
I mean if ill-acquir'd, cemented to honour
By virtuous ways achiev'd, and bravely purchas'd,
Is but as rubbish pour'd into a river,
(Howe'er intended to make good the bank.)
Rendering the water, that was pure before,
Polluted and unwholesome. I allow
The heir of Sir Giles Overseas, Margaret,
A maid well qualified and the richest match
Our north part can make boast of; yet she cannot,
With all that she brings with her, fill their mouths,
That never will forget who was her father; 200
Or that my husband Allworth's lands, and Wellborn's,
(How wrung from both needs now no repetition,)
Were real motives that more work'd your lordship
To join your families, than her form and virtues:
You may conceive the rest.

Lov. I do, sweet madam, 210
And long since have consider'd it. I know,
The sum of all that makes a just man happy
Consists in the well choosing of his wife:
And there, well to discharge it, does require
Equality of years, of birth, of fortune; 215
For beauty being poor, and not cried up
By birth or wealth, can truly mix with neither.
And wealth, where there's such difference in years,
And fair descent, must make the yoke un-easy:

But I come nearer.

L. All. Pray you do, my lord. 220

Lov. Were Overseas's states thrice centu-pl'd, his daughter
Millions of degrees much fairer than she is,

Howse'er I might urge precedents to excuse me,
I would not so adulterate my blood
By marrying Margaret, and so leave my issue
Made up of several pieces, one part scarlet, 230
And the other London blue. In my own tomb
I will inter my name first.

L. All. (Aside.) I am glad to hear this. —
Why then, my lord, pretend you marriage to her?

Dissimulation but ties false knots
On that straight line by which you, hitherto,
Have measur'd all your actions.

Lov. I make answer,
And aptly, with a question. Wherefore have you,
That, since your husband's death, have liv'd a strict
And chaste nun's life, on the sudden given yourself
To visits and entertainments? Think you, madam,
'Tis not grown public conference? Or the favours
Which you too prodigiously have thrown on Well-Being too reserv'd before, incur not censure?

L. All. I am innocent here; and, on my life,
My ends are good.

Lov. On my soul, so are mine
To Margaret; but leave both to the event:
And since this friendly privacy does serve
But as an offer'd means unto ourselves,
To search each other farther, you having shewn
Your care of me, I my respect to you,
Deny me not, but still in chaste words, madam,
An afternoon's discourse.

L. All. So I shall hear you. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

[Enter] Tapwell and Froth.

Tap. Undone, undone! this was your counsel, Froth.

Froth. Mine! I defy thee. Did not Master Marrall
(He has mar's all, I am sure) strictly command us,
On pain of Sir Giles Overseas' displeasure,
To turn the gentleman out of doors?

Tap. 'Tis true; 3
But now he's his uncle's darling, and hath got Master Justice Greedy, since he fill'd his belly,
At his commandment, to do anything.
Woe, woe to us! 4

Froth. He may prove merciful. 5

Tap. Froth, we do not deserve it at his hands.
Though he knew all the passages of our house,
As the receiving of stolen goods, and bawdry,
When he was rogue Wellborn no man would believe him,
And then his information could not hurt us;
But now he is right worshipful again,
Who dares but doubt his testimony? Methinks,
I see thee, Froth, already in a cart,
For a close bawd, thine eyes ev’n pelted out
With dirt and rotten eggs; and my hand hissing
If I scape the halter, with the letter R²
Printed upon it.

Froth. Would that were the worst!
That were but nine days’ wonder: as for credit,
We have none to lose, but we shall lose the money
He owes us, and his custom; there’s the hell on’t.

Tap. He has summon’d all his creditors by the drum,
And they swarm about him like so many soldiers
On the pay day: and has found out such a new way
To pay his old debts, as ‘tis very likely
He shall be chronicled for it!

Froth. He deserves it
More than ten paydays. But are you sure his worship
Comes this way, to my lady’s?

A cry within: Brave Master Wellborn!

Tap. Yes: — I hear him.

Froth. Be ready with your petition and present it
To his good grace.

Enter Wellborn in a rich habit. [Marbell,]
Greedy, Order, Furnace, and Creditors; Tapwell kneeling, delivers his bill of debt.

Well. How’s this? Petition’d to?
But note what miracles the payment of
A little trash, and a rich suit of clothes,
Can work upon these rascals! I shall be,
I think, Prince Wellborn.

Mar. When your worship’s married,
You may be — I know what I hope to see you.
Well. Then look thou for advancement.
Mar. To be known
Your worship’s bailiff, is the mark I shoot at.
Well. And thou shalt hit it.

Mar. Pray you, sir, despatch us
These needy followers, and for my admittance,² Provided you’ll defend me from Sir Giles, Whose service I am weary of, I’ll say something
You shall give thanks for.

Well. Fear me not Sir Giles.⁴ Greedy. Who, Tapwell? I remember thy wife brought me
Last year, and thy families, a couple of fat turkeys.

Tap. And shall do every Christmas, let your worship
But stand my friend now.

Greedy. How! with Master Wellborn?
I can do anything with him on such terms,—
See you this honest couple; they are good souls
As ever drew out fustian; have they not
A pair of honest faces?

Well. I’ve heard you,
And the brieve he promis’d. You are cozen’d in them;
For, by all the scum that grew rich by my riots,
Q. gives a d. This interim. Tapwell and Froth flattering and bribing Justice Greedy.

This, for a most unthankful knave, and this, =
For a base bawd and whore, have worst deserve’d me,
And therefore speak not for ’em. By your place
You are rather to do me justice. Lend me your ear;
— Forget his turkeys, and call in his license, =
And, at the next fair, I’ll give you a yoke of oxen
Worth all his poultry.

Greedy. I am chang’d on the sudden
In my opinion! Come near; nearer, rascal.
And, now I view him better, did you e’er see
One look so like an archknave? His very countenance,
Should an understanding judge but look upon him,
Would hang him, though he were innocent.

Tap. Froth. Worshipful sir.
Greedy. No, though the great Turk came, instead of turkeys,
To beg my favour, I am inexorable.
Thou hast an ill name: besides thy musaty ale, =
That hath destroy’d many of the king’s liege people,
Thou never hast in thy house, to stay men’s stomachs,
A piece of Suffolk cheese or gammon of bacon,
Or any assulent, as the learned call it,
For their emolument, but sheer drink only, =
Which for gross fault I here do damn thy license,
Forbidding thee ever to tap or draw:
For, instantly, I will, in mine own person,
Command the constable to pull down thy sign,
And do it before I eat.

Froth. No mercy?

Greedy. Vanish! =
If I shew any, may my promise’d ozen gore me!

Tap. Unthankful knaves are ever so rewarded.

Enter Greedy, Tapwell, and Froth.

Well. Speak, what are you?

1 Cred. A decay’d vintner, sir,
That might have thrive’d, but that your worship broke me
With trusting you with muscadine and eggs,
And five pound suppers, with your after drinking.
When you lodg’d upon the Bankside.

Well. I remember.

1 Cred. I have not been hasty, nor e’er laid to arrest you;
And therefore, sir—

Well. Thou art an honest fellow,
I’ll set thee up again; see his bill paid. —

What are you?

2 Cred. A tailor once, but now mere botcher.⁶
I gave you credit for a suit of clothes,
Which was all my stock, but you failing in payment,
I was remov’d from the shopboard, and confin’d
Under a stall.

Well. See him paid; — and botch no more.

2 Cred. I ask no interest, sir.

Well. Such tailors need not；

⁴ Wine from muscadine grapes. ⁶ Botcher.
If their bills are paid in one and twenty year,
They are seldom losers. — O, I know thy face,
[To Creditor.]

Thou wert my surgeon. You must tell no tales;
Those days are done. I will pay you in private.
Ord. A royal gentleman!

Furn. Royal as an emperor!

He'll prove a brave master; my good lady knew
To choose a man.

Well. See all men else dishcharg'd;
And since old debts are clear'd by a new way,
A little bounty will not misbecome me;

There's something, honest cook, for thy good breakfasts;

And this, for your respect: [to ORDER] take 't,
't is good gold,

And I able to spare it.

Ord. You are too munificent.

Furn. He was ever so.

Well. Pray you, on before.

3 Cred. Heaven bless you!

Mar. At four o'clock; the rest know where to meet me.

Exeunt ORDER, FURNACE, and Creditors.

Well. Now, Master Marrall, what's the weighty secret

You promis'd to impart?

Mar. Sir, time nor place

Allow me to relate each circumstance;
This only, in a word: I know Sir Giles
Will come upon you for security

For his thousand pounds, which you must not consent to.

As he grows in heat, as I am sure he will,
Be you but rough, and say he's in your debt
Ten times the sum, upon sale of your land;
I had a hand in 't (I speak it to my shame)

When you were defeated 1 of it.

Well. That's forgiven.

Mar. I shall deserve 't. Then urge him to produce
The end in which you pass'd it over to him,
Which I know he'll have about him, to deliver
To the Lord Lovell, with many other writings.

And present monies; I'll instruct you further,
As I wait on your worship. If I play not my prize
To your full content, and your uncle's much vexation,

Hang up Jack Marrall.

Well. I rely upon thee. Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Enter ALLWORTH and MARGARET.

All. Whether to yield the first praise to my lord's Unequall'd temperance or your constant sweet-

ness
That I yet live, my weak hands fasten'd on Hope's anchor, spite of all storms of despair,
I yet rest doubtful.

Marg. Give it to Lord Lovell:

For what in him was bounty, in me's duty.
I make but payment of a debt to which

My vows, in that high office regist'red,
Are faithful witnesses.

All. 'Tis true, my dearest:
Yet, when I call to mind how many fair ones Make wilful shipwrecks of their faiths, and ocaths
To God and man, to fill the arms of greatness,
And you rise up [no] less than a glorious star,
To the amazement of the world, — hold out
Against the stern authority of a father,

And spurn at honour when it comes to court you;
I am so tender of your good, that faintly,
With your wrong, I can wish myself that right
You yet are pleas'd to do me.

Marg.

Yet, and ever.

To me what's title, when content is want-

ing?
Or wealth, rak'd up together with much care.

And to be kept with more, when the heart pines
In being disposess'd of what it longs for Beyond the redian mines 5 or the smooth brow
Of a pleader's sire, that slaves me to his will,

And, so his ravenous humour may be feasted
By my obedience, and he see me great,
Leaves to my soul nor faculties nor power
To make her own election?

All. But the dangers

That follow the repulse —

Marg. To me they are nothing;

Let Allworth love, I cannot be unhappy.

Suppose the worst, that, in his rage, he kill me,

A tear or two, by you dropt on my hearse
In sorrow for my fate, will call back life
So far as but to say, that I die yours;

I then shall rest in peace: or should he prove
So cruel, as one death would not suffice

His thirst of vengeance, but with ling'ring torments
In mind and body I must waste to air,

In poverty join'd with banishment; so you

share
In my afflictions, which I dare not wish you,

So high I prize you, I could undergo 'em
With such a patience as should look down
With scorn on his worst malice.

All. Heaven avert

Such trials of your true affection to me!

Nor will it unto you, that are all mercy,
Shew so much rigour: but since we must run

Such desperate hazards, let us do our best
To steer between them.

Marg. Your lord's ours, and sure:

And, though but a young actor, second me

In doing to the life what he has plotted.

Enter OVERREACH [behind].

The end may yet prove happy. Now, my All-worth — [Seeing her father.]

All. To your letter, and put on a seeming anywhere.

Marg. I'll pay my lord all debts due to his title;
And when with terms, not taking from his honour,

1 Robbed.
2 A room in Overreach's house.

3 Inserted by Dodsley.
He does solicit me, I shall gladly hear him.
But in this peremptory, nay, commanding way,
To appoint a meeting, and without my knowledge,
A priest to tie the knot can ne'er be undone
Till death unloose it, is a confidence
In his lordship will deceive him.

All. I hope better,
Good lady.

Mary. Hope, sir, what you please: for me
I must take a safe and secure course; I have
A father, and without his full consent,
Though all lords of the land kneel'd for my favor,
I can grant nothing.

Over. I like this obedience: [Comes forward.]
But whatso' er my lord writes, must and shall be Accepted and embrac'd. Sweet Master Allworth,
You shew yourself a true and faithful servant
To your good lord; he has a jewel of you.
How! frowning, Meg? Are these looks to receive
A messenger from my lord? What's this? Give me it.

Mary. A piece of arrogant paper, like those inscriptions.

Over. (reads.) "Fair mistress, from your servvant learn all joys
That we can hope for, if deferr'd, prove toys; therefore this instant, and in private, meet a husband, that will gladly at your feet Lay down his honours, tend 'ring them to you With all content, the church being paid her due."—Is this the arrogant piece of paper? Fool! Will you still be one? In the name of madness what Could his good honour write more to content you?
Is there sought else to be wish'd, after these two, That are already offer'd; marriage first, And lawful pleasure after: what would you more?

Mary. Why, sir, I would be married like your daughter; Not hurried away 'tis th' night I know not whither, Without all ceremony; no friends invited To honour the solemnity.

All. An't please your honour, For so before to-morrow I must style you,
My lord desires this privacy, in respect His honourable kinemans are affar off, And his desires to have it done brook not So long delay as to expect their coming; And yet he stands resolv'd, with all due pomp,
As running at the ring, plays, masques, and tilting,
To have his marriage at court celebrated, When he has brought your honour up to London.

Over. He tells you true; 'tis the fashion, on my knowledge:
Yet the good lord, to please your peevishness,
Must put it off, forsooth! and lose a night, In which perhaps he might get two boys on thee.
Tempt me no further, if you do, this gosad
Shall prick you to him. [Points to his sword.]

Mary. I could be contented,
Were you by but, to do a father's part,
And give me in the church.

Over. So my lord have you, What do I care who gives you? Since my lord Does purpose to be private, I'll not cross him. I know not, Master Allworth, how my lord May be provided, and therefore there's a purse Of gold, 't will serve this night's expense; to-morrow I'll furnish him with any sums. In the mean time, Use my ring to my chaplain; he is benefic'd At my manor of Gotham, and call'd Parson Wildo.
'T is no matter for a licence, I'll bear him out in it.

Mary. With your favour, sir, what warrant is your ring?
He may suppose I got that twenty ways, Without your knowledge; and then to be refus'd
Were such a stain upon me! — If you pleas'd, sir,
Your presence would do better.

Over. Still perverse! I say again, I will not cross my lord; Yet I'll prevent you too.—Paper and ink, there!

All. I can furnish you.

Over. I thank you, I can write then.

All. You may, if you please, put out the name of my lord, In respect he comes disgrac'd, and only write, "Marry her to this gentleman."

Over. Well advis'd. 'T is done; away; — [MARGARET kneels.] My blessing, girl? Thou hast it. Nay, no reply, be gone. — Good Master Allworth, This shall be the best night's work you ever made.

All. I hope so, sir. EXECUT ALLWORTH and MARGARET.

Over. Farewell! — Now all's cocksure: Methinks I hear already knights and ladies Say, Sir Giles Oversearch, how is it with Your honourable daughter? Has her honour Slept well to-night? or, will her honour please To accept this monkey, dog, or parakut? (This is state in ladies), or my eldest son

* Anticipate your objections.
* Parrot.
To be her page, and wait upon her trenched?
My ends, my ends are compass’d! — then for Wellborn
And the lands: were he once married to the widow. 100
I have him here. — I can scarce contain myself,
I am so full of joy, nay, joy all over. Exit.

ACT V
SCENE I.¹

[Enter Lord Lovell, Lady Allworth, and Ambrose.]

L. All. By this you know how strong the motives were
That did, my lord, induce me to dispense
A little with my gravity to advance,
In personating some few favours to him,
The plots and projects of the down-trod Well-
born.
Nor shall I s’er repent, although I suffer
In some few men’s opinions for ’t, the action:
For he that ventur’d all for my dear husband
Might justly claim an obligation from me to pay him such a courtesy; which had I Coyly or over-curiously ² denied.
It might have argu’d me of little love
To the deceas’d.

Lov. What you intended, madam,
For the poor gentleman hath found good success;
For, as I understand, his debts are paid,
And he once more furnish’d for fair employment:
But all the arts that I have us’d to raise
The fortunes of your joy and mine, young All-worth,
Stand yet in supposition, though I hope well;
For the young lovers are in wit more pregnant Than their years can promise; and for their
desires,
On my knowledge, they are equal.

L. All. As my wishes
Are with yours, my lord; yet give me leave to fear
The building, though well grounded: to deceive
Sir Giles, that’s both a lion and a fox
In his proceedings, were a work beyond
The strongest undertakers; not the trial
Of two weak innocents.

Lov. Despair not, madam:
Hard things are compass’d oft by easy means;
And judgment, being a gift deriv’d from Heaven,
Though sometimes lodg’d i’ th’ hearts of worldly
men,
That ne’er consider from whom they receive it,
Forsakes such as abuse the giver of it.
Which is the reason that the politic
And cunning statesman, that believes he fath-ors the counsels of all kingdoms on the earth,
Is by simplicity oft over-reach’d.

L. All. May he be so! Yet, in his name to express it,
Is a good omen.

Lov. May it to myself
Prove so, good lady, in my suit to you!
What think you of the motion?

L. All. Troth, my lord,
My own unworthiness may answer for me;
For had you, when that I was in my prime,
My virgin flower uncropp’d, presented me
With this great favour; looking on my lowness
Not in a glass of self-love, but of truth,
I could not but have thought it as a blessing
Far, far beyond my merit.

You are too modest, and undervalue that which is above
My title, or whatever I call mine.

I grant, were I a Spaniard, to marry
A widow might disparage me; but being
A true-born Englishman, I cannot find
How it can taint my honour: nay, what’s more,
That which you think a blemish is to me
The fairest lustre. You already, madam,
Have given sure proofs how dearly you can cherish
A husband that deserves you; which confirms
That, if I am not wanting in my care
To do your service, you’ll be still the same
That you were to your Allworth: in a word,
Our years, our states, our births are not unequal.

You being descended nobly, and all’d so;
If then you may be won to make me happy,
But join your lips to mine, and that shall be
A solemn contract.

L. All. I was blind to my own good
Should I refuse it; [kisses him] yet, my lord,
Receive me
As such a one, the study of whose whole life
Shall know no other object but to please you.

Lov. If I return not, with all tenderness
Equal respect to you, may I die wretched!

L. All. There needs no protestation, my lord,
To her that cannot doubt.—

Enter Wellborn [handsomely apparell’d.]

You are welcome, sir.
Now you look like yourself.

Well. And will continue
Such in my free acknowledgment that I am
Your creature, madam, and will never hold
My life mine own, when you please to command

Lov. It is a thankfulness that well becomes
You.
You could not make choice of a better shape
To dress your mind in.

L. All. For me, I am happy
That my endeavours prosper’d. Saw you of late Sir Giles, your uncle?

Well. I heard of him, madam, by his minister, Marrall; he’s grown into strange passions About his daughter. This last night he look’d for Your lordship at his house, but missing you,
In which, 'tis said, there's somebody hath been cozond;
I name no party.

Well. Well, sir, and what follows? 128

Over. Marry, this; since you are peremptory. Remember,

Upon mere hope of your great match, I lent you
A thousand pounds: put me in good security,
And suddenly, by mortgage or by statute, 129
Of some of your new possessions, or I'll have you
Drags'd in your lavender robes 2 to the goal.
You know me,
And therefore do not trifle.

Well. Can you be
So cruel to your nephew, now he's in
The way to rise? Was this the courtesy
You did me "in pure love, and no ends else?

Over. End me no ends! Engage the whole estate,
And force your spouse to sign it, you shall have Three or four thousand more, to roar and swagger
And revel in bawdy taverns.

Well. And beg after;
Mean you not so?

Over. My thoughts are mine, and free. 129

Shall I have security?

Well. No, indeed, you shall not,
Nor bond, nor bill, nor bare acknowledgment;
Your great looks fright not me.

Over. But my deeds shall...

Outbrav'd! Both draw.

L. All. Help, murder! murder!

Enter Servants.

Well. Let him come on,
With all his wrongs and injuries about him, 130
Arm'd with his cut-throat practices to guard
him;
The right that I bring with me will defend me,
And punish his exertion.

Over. That I had thee
But single in the field?

L. All. You may; but make not
My house your quarrelling scene.

Over. Were't in a church, 130
By Heaven and Hell, I'll do't!

Mar. Now put him to
The shewing of the deed.

[Aside to Wellborn.] This rage is vain, sir;

Well. For fighting, fear not, you shall have your hands full,
Upon the least incitement; and whereas
You charge me with a debt of a thousand pounds,
If there be law, (how'er you have no conscience,)

Either restore my land or I'll recover
A debt, that's truly due to me from you,
In value ten times more than what you challenge.

Over. I in thy debt! O impudence! I did not purchase

1 In Q. this entrance occurs after "took," above.
2 Obvious.
3 Clothes in pawn were said to be "laid up in laver der."
The land left by thy father, that rich land,
That had continued in Welleborn’s name
Twenty descents; which, like a riotous fool, Thou didst make sale of? Is not here in-clos’d
The deed that does confirm it mine?

Mar. Now, now! 155
Well. I do acknowledge none; I ne’er passe’d o’er
Any such land. I grant for a year or two
You had it in trust; which if you do discharge,
Surrend’ring the possession, you shall ease
Yourself and me of chargeable suits in law, 170
Which, if you prove not honest, as I doubt it,
Must of necessity follow.

L. All. In my judgment,
He does advise you well.

Over. Good! good! Conspire
With your new husband, lady; second him
In his dishonest practices; but when
This manor is endowed 1 to my use,
You’ll speak in humbler key, and sue for favour.

L. All. Never: do not hope it.

Well. Yet, to shut up thy mouth, and make thee give
Thyself the lie, the loud lie, I draw out
The precious evidence; if thou canst forswear
Thy hand and seal, and make a forfeit of Opens the box [and displays the bond].

Thy ears to the pillory, see! here’s that will
make
My interest clear — ha!

L. All. A fair skin of parchment.

Well. Indented, I confess, and labels too; 186
But neither wax nor words. How I thunderstruck!
Not a syllable to insult with? My wise uncle,
Is this your precious evidence? Is this that makes
Your interest clear?

Over. I am o’erwhelm’d with wonder!
What prodigy is this? What subtle devil 196
Hath raz’d out the inscription, the wax
Turn’d into dust? The rest of my deeds whole
As when they were deliver’d, and this only Made nothing! Do you deal with witches, rascal?

There is a statute 3 for you, which will bring 196
Your neck in an hempen circle; yes, there is;
And now ’tis better thought for, cheater, know
This juggling shall not save you.

Well. To save thee
Would beggar the stock of mercy.

Marrall! Mar.

Sir. Over. (flattering him.) Though the witnesses are dead, your testimony
Help with an oath or two: and for thy master,
Thy liberal master, my good honest servant,
I know thou wilt swear anything, to dash

This cunning sleight: besides, I know thou art
A public notary, and such stand in law
For a dozen witnesses: the deed being drawn too
By thee, my careful Marrall, and deliver’d
When thou wert present, will make good my

Wilt thou not swear this?

Mar. I! No, I assure you: 205
I have a conscience not sear’d up like yours;
I know no deeds.

Over. Wilt thou betray me?

Mar. Keep him
From using of his hands, I’ll use my tongue,
To his no little torment.

Over. Mine own varlet
Rebel against me!

Mar. Yes, and unless 8 you too.

"The idiot, the patch, the slave, the booby, 216
The property fit only to be eaten
For your morning exercise," your "football," or
"Th’ unprofitable lump of flesh," your
"drudge;"
Can now anatomise you, and lay open
All your black plots, and level with the earth
Your hill of pride, and, with these gabions 4
Guarded
Unload my great artillery, and shake,
Nay pulverize, the walls you think defend you.

L. All. How he foams at the mouth with rage!

Well. To him again.

Over. O that I had thee in my gripe, I would tear thee

Joint after joint!

Mar. I know you are a tearer,
But I’ll have first your fangs par’d off, and
then
Come nearer to you; when I have discover’d,
And made it good before the judge, what ways
And devilish practices you us’d to cozen
With an army of whole families, who yet live,
And, but enrol’d for soldiers, were able To take in 6 Dunkirk.

Well. All will come out.

L. All. The better.

Over. But that I will live, rogue, to torture
thee,
And make thee wish, and kneel in vain, to die.
These swords that keep thee from me should fix here,
Although they made my body but one wound,
But I would reach thee.

Low. (Aside.) Heaven’s hand is in this;
One bandog 7 worry the other!

Over. I play the fool,
And make my anger but ridiculous;
There will be a time and place, there will be,
cowards.

When you shall feel what I dare do.

Well. I think so:
You dare do any ill, yet want true valour
To be honest, and repent.

1 Seized. 2 The law against witchcraft.

3 Revealed. 4 Capture. 7 Fierce watchdog.

4 Wicker baskets filled with earth, used to protect soldiers when digging trenches.
Ober. They are words I know not,
Nor e’er will learn. Patience, the beggar’s virtue.

Enter Greedy and Parson Willdo.

Shall find no harbour here: — after these storms
At length a calm appears. Welcome, most welcome!
There’s comfort in thy looks. Is the deed done?
Is my daughter married? Say but so, my chaplain,
And I am tame.

Willdo. Married! Yes I assure you.
Ober. Then vanish all sad thoughts! There’s more gold for thee.

My doubts and fears are in the titles drown’d
Of my honourable, my right honourable daughter.
Greedy. Here will I be feasting! At least for a month
I am provided: empty guts, croak no more.
You shall be stuff’d like bagpipes, not with wind,
But bearing 2 dishes.

Ober. Instantly be here?
(Whispering to Willdo.)

To my wish! to my wish! Now you that plot against me,
And hop’d to trip my heels up, that contamin’d me,
Think on’t and tremble. — (Loud music)— They come! I hear the music.

A lane there for my lord!

Well. This sudden heat
May yet be cool’d, sir.

Ober. Make way there for my lord!

Enter Allworth and Margaret.

Mary. Sir, first your pardon, then your blessing, with Your full allowance of the choice I have made.
As ever you could make use of your reason.

Kneeling.
Grow not in passion; since you may as well
Call back the day that’s past, as untie the knot
Which is too strongly fasten’d. Not to dwell
Too long on words, this is my husband.

Ober. How!

All. So I assure you; all the rites of marriage,
With every circumstance, are past. Alas! sir,
Although I am no lord, but a lord’s page,
Your daughter and my lovd wife mourns not for it;
And, for right honourable son-in-law, you may say,
Your dutiful daughter.

Ober. Devil! are they married?

Willdo. Do a father’s part, and say, "Heaven give ‘em joy!"

Ober. Confusion and ruin! Speak, and speak quickly.

Or thou art dead.

Willdo. They are married.

Ober. Thou hadst better
Have made a contract with the king of fiends,
Than these: — my brain turns!

1 Q. 2. Will.

Willdo. Why this rage to me? =
Is not this your letter, sir, and these the words?

"Marry her to this gentleman."

Ober. It cannot —
Nor will I e’er believe it, ’death! I will not;
That I, that in all passages I touch’d
At worldly profit have not left a print
Where I have trod for the most curious search
To trace my footsteps, should be gull’d by children,
Baff’d and fool’d, and all my hopes and labours
Defeated and made void.

Well. As it appears,
You are so, my grave uncle.

Ober. Village nurses
Revenge their wrongs with curses; I’ll not waste
A syllable, but thus I take the life
Which, wretched, I gave to thee.

Offers to kill Margaret.

Louv. [coming forward.] Hold, for your own sake!

Though charity to your daughter hath quite left you,
Will you do an act, though in your hope lost here,
Can leave no hope for peace or rest hereafter?
Consider; at the best you are but a man,
And cannot so create your sins but that
They may be crost’d.

Ober. Lord! thus I spit at thee,
And at thy counsel; and again desire thee,
And as thou art a soldier, if thy valour
Dares shew itself where multitude and example
Lead not the way, let’s quit the house, and change
Six words in private.

Louv. I am ready.

L. All. Stay, sir,
Contest with one distracted!

Well. You’ll grow like him,
Should you answer his vain challenge.

Ober. Are you pale?

Borrow his help, though Hercules call it odds,
I’ll stand against both as I am, hemm’d in thus.

Since, like a Libyan lion in the toil,
My fury cannot reach the coward hunters,
And only spends itself, I’ll quit the place.
 Alone I can do nothing; but I have servants
And friends to second me; and if I make not
This house a heap of ashes (by my wrongs),
What I have spoke I will make good! or leave
One threat uncut,—if it be possible,
Hell, add to my afflictions!

Exit.

Mar. Is’t not brave sport?

Greedy. Brave sport! I am sure it has ta’en away my stomach;
I do not like the same.

All. Nay, weep not, dearest,
Though it express your pity; what’s decreed
Above, we cannot alter.

L. All. His threats move me
No scruple, madam.

Mar. Was it not a rare trick, An it please your worship, to make the deed nothing?

I can do twenty neater, if you please
To purchase and grow rich; for I will be Such a solicitor and steward for you,
As never worshipful had.

Well. I do believe thee; But first discover the quaint means you said
To raze out the conveyance?

Mar. They are mysteries Not to be spoke in public: certain minerals Incorporated in the ink and wax:
Besides, he gave me nothing, but still fed me
With hopes and blows; but that was the inducement
To this conundrum. If it please your worship
To call to memory, this mad beast once caused me
To urge you or to drown or hang yourself;
... 'tis the like to him, if you command me.

Well. You are a rascal! He that dares be false
To a master, though unjust, will ne'er be true
To any other. Look not for reward
Or favour from me; I will shun thy sight
As I would do a basilisk. Thank my pity
If thou keep thy ears; howe'er, I will take order
Your practice shall be silenced.

Greedy. I'll commit him,
If you'll have me, sir.

Well. That were to little purpose;
His conscience be his prison. Not a word,
But instantly be gone.

Ord. Take this kick with you.

Amb. And this.

Furn. If that I had my cleaver here,
I would divide your knife's head.

Mar. This is the haven False servants still arrive at.

Exit. Re-enter OVERREACH.

L. All. Come again!

Louv. Fear not, I am your guard.

Well. His looks are ghostly,

Wildo. Some little time I have spent, under your favours,
In physical studies, and if my judgment err not,
He's mad beyond recovery: but observe him,
And look to yourselves.

Ovcr. Why, is not the whole world
Included in myself? To what use then?
Are friends and servants? Say there were a squadron
Of pikes, lin'd through with shot, when I am mounted Upon my injuries, shall I fear to charge 'em?
No: I'll through the battalia, and, that routed,
Flourishing his sword sheathed.

I'll fall to execution— Ha! I am feeble;
Some undone widow sits upon mine arm,
And takes away the use of 't; and my sword,
Gl'd to my scabbard with wrong'd orphans' tears,
Will not be drawn. Ha! what are these? Sure, hangmen
That come to bind my hands, and then to drag me
Before the judgment-seat: now they are new shapes,
And do appear like Furies, with steel whips

To scourge my uncleans soul. Shall I then fall Ingloriously, and yield? No; spite of Fate, I will be forc'd to hell like to myself.
Though you were legion of accursed spirits, Thus would I fly among you.

[Rushes forward and stings himself on the ground.]

Well. There's no help; Disarm him first, then bind him.

Greedy. Take a mitterns.

And carry him to Bedlam.

Louv. How he foams!

Well. And bites the earth!

Wildo. Carry him to some dark room,
There try what art can do for his recovery.

Marg. O my dear father!

They force OVERREACH off.

All. You must be patient, mistress.

Louv. Here is a precedent to teach wicked men
That when they leave religion, and turn atheists,
Their own abilities leave 'em. Pray you take comfort,
I will endeavour you shall be his guardians
In his distractions: and for your land, Master Wellborn,
Be it good or ill in law, I'll be an umpire
Between you, and this, 'th undoubted heir
Of Sir Giles Overreach. For me, here's the anchor
That I must fix on.

All. What you shall determine,
My lord, I will allow of.

Well. 'Tis the language.
That I speak too; but there is something else
Beside the repossession of my land,
And payment of my debts, that I must practise.
I had a reputation, but 'twas lost
In my loose course, and until I redeem it
Some noble way, I am but half made up.
It is a time of action; if your lordship
Will please to confer a company upon me
In your command, I doubt not in my service
To my king and country but I shall do something
That may make me right again.

Louv. Your suit is granted
And you lov'd for the motion.

Well. [coming forward.] Nothing wants them
But your allowance —

THE EPILOGUE

But your allowance, and in that our all
Is comprehended; it being known, nor we,
Nor he that wrote the comedy, can be free
Without your munimation; which if you
Grant willingly, as a fair favour due
To the poet's and our labours, (as you may,
For we despair not, gentlemen, of the play.)
We jointly shall profess your grace hath might
To teach us action, and him how to write.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE — Sparta.

PROLOGUE

Our scene is Sparta. He whose best of art
 Hath drawn this piece calls it The Broken Heart.
The title lends no expectation here
Of spurious laughter, or of some lame jeer
And place or persons; no pretended clause
Of jests fit for a brothel courtz anaplase
From vulgar admiration: such low songs,
Turn'd to unchaste ears, suit not modest tongues.
The Virgin Sisters then deserv'd fresh bays
When Innocence and Sweetness crown'd their lays;
Then vices grasp'd for breath, whose whole commerce
Was whipp'd to exile by unblushing verse.
This law we keep in our presentment now,
To take freedom more than we allow;
What may be here thought fiction, 2 when time's youth
Wanted some riper years, was known a truth:
In which, if words have cloth'd the subject right,
You may partake a pity with delight.

ACT I

SCENE 1.3

Enter Crotolon and Orgilus.

Crot. Dally not further; I will know the reason
That speeds thee to this journey.
Orp. Reason! good sir, I can yield many.
Crot. Give me one, a good one;
Such I expect, and ere we part must have.

1 Q. Granix, throughout. 2 Q. a fiction. 3 A room in Crotolon's house.

ATHENS! Pray, why to Athens? You intend not
To kick against the world, turn cynic, stoic,
Or read the logic lecture, or become
An Areopagite, 4 and judge in cases
Touching the commonwealth; for, as I take it,
The budding of your chin cannot prognosticate
So grave an honour.

Orp. All this I acknowledge. 5
Crot. You do! Then, son, if books and love
Of knowledge
Inflame you to this travel, here in Sparta
You may as freely study.

4 A member of the Areopagus, the highest judicial court in Athens.
Org. 'Tis not that, sir.
Crot. Not that, sir! As a father, I command thee.
To acquaint me with the truth.
Org. Thus I obey ye.
After so many quarrels as dissension,
Fury, and rage had broacht in blood, and sometimes
With death to such confederates as sided
With now-dead Thrasus and yourself, my lord;
Our present king, Amyclas, reconcile'd;
Your eager swords and seal'd a gentle peace:
Friends you profess yourselves; which to confirm.
A resolution for a lasting league
Betwixt your families was entain'd,
By joining in a Hymenean bond
Me and the fair Penthea, only daughter
To Thrasus.
Crot. What of this?
Org. Much, much, dear sir.
A freedom of converse, an interchange
Of holy and chaste love, so fixt our souls
In a firm growth of union, that no time
Can eat into the pledge: we had enjoy'd
The sweets our vows expected, had not cruelly Prevented all those triumphs we prepar'd for,
By Thrasus his untimely death.
Crot. Most certain.
Org. From this time sprung up that poisonous stalk
Of sooinite, whose ripened fruit hath ravisht
All health, all comfort of a happy life;
For Ithoeus, her brother, proud of youth,
And prouder in his power, nourish'd closely
The memory of former discontent;
To glory in revenge. By cunning partly,
Partly by threats, 'a woos at once and forces
His virtuous sister to admit a marriage
With Bassanes, a nobleman, in honour
And riches. I confess, beyond my fortunes.
Crot. All this is no sound reason to importune
My leave for thy departure.
Org. Now it follows.
Beauteous Penthea, wedded to this torture
By an insulting brother, being secretly
Compell'd to yield her virgin freedom up
To him who never can usurp her heart,
Before contracted mine, is now so yoke'd
To a most barbarous thralldom, misery,
Affliction, that he savours not humanity,
Whose sorrow melts not into more than pity
In hearing but her name.
Crot. As how, pray?
Org.
Bassanes,
The man that calls her wife, considers truly
What heaven of perfections he is lord of
By thinking fair Penthea his: this thought
Begots a kind of monster-love, which love
Is nurse unto a fear so strong and servile
As brands all dotage with a jealousy:
All eyes who gaze upon that shrine of beauty
He doth resolve do homage to the miracle;
Some one, he is assur'd, may now or then,
If opportunity but sort, prevail.
So much, out of a self-unworthiness,
His fears transport him; not that he finds cause
In her obedience, but his own distrust.
Crot. You spin out your discourse.
Org. My griefs are violent:
For knowing how the maid was heretofore
Courted by me, his jealousies grow wild
That I should steal again into her favours,
And undermine her virtues; which the gods
Know I nor dare nor dream of. Hence, from hence
I undertake a voluntary exile;
First, by my absence to take off the cares
Of jealous Bassanes; but chiefly, sir,
To free Penthea from a hell on earth;
Lastly, to lose the memory of something
Her presence makes to live in me afresh.
Crot. Enough, my Orgilus, enough. To Athens,
I give a full consent. — Alas, good lady! —
We shall hear from thee often?
Org. Often.
Crot. See,
Thy sister comes to give a farewell.

Enter Euphrana.

Euph. Brother!
Org. Euphrana, thus upon thy cheeks I print
A brother's kiss; more careful of thine honour,
Thy health, and thy well-doing, than my life.
Before we part, in presence of our father,
I must prefer a suit t'ye.
Euph. You may style it,
My brother, a command.
Org. That you will promise
To pass never to any man, however Worthy, your faith, till, with our father's leave,
I give a free consent.
Crot. An easy motion!
I'll promise for her, Orgilus.
Org. Your pardon;
Euphrana's oath must yield me satisfaction.
Euph. By Vesta's sacred fires I swear.
Crot.
And I,
By Great Apollo's beams, join in the vow,
Not without thy allowance to bestow her
On any living.
Org. Dear Euphrana,
Mistake me not: far, far 'tis from my thought,
As far from any wish of mine, to hinder
Preferment to an honourable bed
Or fitting fortune; thou art young and handsome;
And 't were injustice, — more, a tyranny, —
Not to advance thy merit. Trust me, sister,
It shall be my first care to see thee match'd
As may become thy choice and our contents.
I have your oath.
Euph. You have. But mean you, brother,
To leave us, as you say?
Crot. Ay, ay, Euphrana;
He has just grounds direct him. I will prove
A father and a brother to thee.

Euph. Heaven
Does look into the secrets of all hearts:
Gods, you have mercy with ye, else —

Crot. Doubt nothing; —

Thy brother will return in safety to us.

Org. Souls sunk in sorrows never are without

'sem; They change fresh airs, but bear their griefs about 'em.

Exeunt omnes.

SCENE II. A room in the palace.

Flourish. Enter Amyclas the King, Armoe-tes, Prophileus, [Courtiers] and Attendant.

Amy. The Spartan gods are gracious; our humility
Shall bend before their altars, and perfume
Their temples with abundant sacrifice.
See, lords, Amyclas, your old king, is ent'ring
Into his youth again! I shall shake off
This silver badge of age, and change this snow
For hair as gay as are Apollo's locks;
Our heart leaps in new vigour.

Arm. May old time
Run back to double your long life, great sir!

Amy. It will, it must, Armestes: thy bold
nephew,
Death-braving Ithocles, brings to our gates Triumphs and peace upon his conquering sword.

Laconia is a monarchy at length;
Hath in this latter war trod under foot
Messene's pride; Messene bows her neck
To Laecaeasmon's royalty. O, 't was
A glorious victory, and doth deserve
More than a chronicle — a temple, lords,
A temple to the name of Ithocles.

Where didst thou leave him, Prophileus?

Pro. At Pephon.

Most gracious sovereign; twenty of the noblest
Of the Messenians there attend your pleasure,
For such conditions as you shall propose
In settling peace, and liberty of life.

Amy. When comes your friend, the general?

Pro. He promis'd to

To follow with all speed convenient.

Enter Calantha, Euphanea; Christalla and Philema [with a garland]; and Choto-lon.

Amy. Our daughter! — Dear Calantha, the happy news!

The conquest of Messene, hath already Enrich'd thy knowledge.

Cal. With the circumstance
And manner of the fight, related faithfully
By Prophileus himself. — But, pray, sir, tell me
How doth the youthful general demean
His actions in these fortunes?

Pro. Excellent princess,
Your own fair eyes may soon report a truth
Unto your judgment, with what moderation,

Calmness of nature, measure, bounds, and limit.
Of thankfulness and joy, 'a doth digest
Such amplitude of his success as would
In others, moulded of a spirit less clear,
Advance 'em in comparison with heaven:

But Ithocles —

Cal. Your friend —

Pro. He is so, madam, in which the period of my fate consists:
Hu, in this firmament of honour, stands
Like a star fixt, not mov'd with any thunder
Of popular applause or sudden lightning
Of self-opinion; he hath serv'd his country,
And thinks 't was but his duty.

Crot. A miracle of man.

Amy. Such, Crotolon,
On forfeit of a king's word, thou wilt find
him.—

Flourish. —

Hark, warning of his coming! All attend him.

Enter Ithocles, Hemophil, and Gronekas;
the rest of the Lords ushering him in.

Return into these arms, thy home, thy sanctuary.

Delight of Sparta, treasure of my bosom,
Mine own, own Ithocles!

Ith. Your humblest subject

Arm. Proud of the blood I claim an interest in,
As brother to thy mother, I embrace thee, —

Right noble nephew.

Ith. Sir, your love's too partial.

Crot. Our country speaks by me, who by thy valour,
Wisdom, and service, shares in this great action;
Returning thee, in part of thy due merits,
A general welcome.

Ith. You exceed in bounty.

Cal. Christalla, Philema, the chaplet. [Takes the chaplet from them.] — Ithocles,
Upon the wings of Fame the singular
And chosen fortune of an high attempt
In borne so past the view of common sight,
That I myself with mine own hands have
wrought,
To crown thy temples, this provincial garland:

Accept, wear, and enjoy it as our gift
Deserv'd, not purchas'd.

Ith. Y' are a royal maid.

Amy. She is in all our daughter.

Ith. Let me blush,
Acknowledging how poorly I have serv'd;
What nothing I have done, compar'd with th' honours
Heasp'd on the issue of a willing mind;
In that lay mine ability, that only:
For who is he so sluggish from his birth,
So little worthy of a name or country,
That owes not out of gratitude for life
A debt of service, in what kind soever
Safety or counsel of the commonwealth
Requires, for payment?

1 A room in the palace.
Cal. 'A speaks truth.

Loh. Whom heaven
Is pleas'd to style victorious, there to such Applause runs madding, like the drunken priests
In Bacchus' sacrifices, without reason, Voiceing the leader-on a demi-god;
Whenas, indeed, each common soldier's blood Drops down as current coin in that hard purchase
As his whose more much more delicate condition Hath suckt the milk of ease: judgment commands,
But resolution executes. I use not, Before this royal presence, these fit slights As in contempt of such as can direct;
My speech hath other end; not to attribute All praise to one man's fortune, which is strengthened
By many hands. For instance, here is Prophilus, A gentleman — I cannot flatter truth — Of much desert; and, though in other rank, Both Hemophil and Gronias were not missing. To wish their country's peace; for, in a word, All there did strive their best, and 't was our duty.

Amy. Courtiers turn soldiers! — We vouchsafe our hand.

Hem. Obsequiously and hourly.

Amy. Some repose After these toils is needful. We must think on Conditions for the conquered; they expect 'em.

On! — Come, my Ithocles.

Euph. Sir, with your favour, I need not a supporter.

Her. Fate instructs me.

Exeunt. Hemophil stays Chrisstalla; Gronias, Philema.

Chris. With me?

Phil. Indeed, I dare not stay.

Hem. Sweet lady.

Soldiers are blunt, — your lip.

Chris. Fie, this is rudeness: You went not hence such creatures.

G. Spirit of valour Is of a mounting nature.

Phil. It appears so.—

Pray, in earnest, how many men spiece Have you two been the death of?

Gro. 'Faith, not many;

We were compos'd of mercy.

Hem. For our daring, You heard the general's approbation Before the king.

Chris. You 't wish'd your country's peace;" That show'd your charity: where are your spoils, Such as the soldier fights for?

Phil. They are coming. Chris. By the next carrier, are they not?

Gro. Sweet Philema, When I was in the thickest of mine enemies, Slashing off one man's head, another's nose, Another's arms and legs,— Phil. And all together.

Gro. Then would I with a sigh remember thee.

Phil. And cry "Dear Philema, 't is for thy sake I do these deeds of wonder!" — Dost not love me With all thy heart now?

Phil. Now as heretofore. I have not put my love to use; the principal Will hardly yield an interest.

Gro. By Mars, I'll marry thee!

Phil. By Vulcan, you're forsworn, Except my mind do alter strangely.

Gro. One word.

Chris. You lie beyond all modesty: — for bear me.

Hem. I'll make thee mistress of a city; 't is Mine own by conquest.

Chris. By petition; see for't In forma pauperis.— City! kennel. — Gallants, Off with your feathers, put on aprons, gallants; Learn to reel, thrum, or trim a lady's dog, And be good quiet souls of peace, hobgoblins!

Hem. Chrisstalla! Chris. Practice to drill hogs, in hope To share in the acorns.— Soldiers! cornerstaters, But not so valiant; they oftimes draw blood, Which you durst never do. When you have practic'd More wit or more civility, we'll rank ye I th' list of men: till then, brave things-at-arms, Dare not to speak to us, — most potent Gro- nias! —

Phil. And Hemophil the hardy! — at your services.

Exeunt Chrisstalla and Philema.

Gro. They scorn us as they did before we went.

Hem. Hang 'em! let us scorn them, and be reveng'd.

Gro. Shall we?

Hem. We will: and when we slight them thus, Instead of following them, they'll follow us; It is a woman's nature.

Gro. 'Tis a scurrv ye. Exeunt.

Scene III. 5

Enter Tecticus, a philosopher, and Oebollus disguised like a Scholar of his.

Tec. Tempt not the stars; young man, thou canst not play With the severity of fate: this change Of habit and disguise in outward view Hides not the secrets of thy soul within thee From their quick-piercing eyes, which dive at all times.

1 Appropriately belittling terms.
  2 Q. ovs.
  3 At all.
  4 Weave.
  5 The gardens of the palace. A grove.
John Ford

Down to thy thoughts: in thy aspect I note
A consequence of danger.

Org. Give me leave,
Grave Teucnus, without foreboding destiny,
Under thy roof to ease my silent griefs,
By applying to my hidden wounds the balm
Of thy oracular lectures. If my fortune
Run such a crooked by-way as to wrest
My steps to ruin, yet thy learned precepts
Shall turn me back and set my footings straight.
I will not court the world.

Tec. Ah, Orgilus, neglects in young men of delights and life Run often to extremities; they care not
For harms to others who contain their own.

Org. But I, most learned artist, am not so much

At odds with nature that I grudge the thrift
Of any true deserver; nor doth malice
Of present hopes so check them with despair
As that I yield to thought of more affliction
Than what is incident to frailty: wherefore
Impute not this retired course of living
Some little time to any other cause
Than what I justly render, — the information
Of an unsettled mind; as the effect
Must clearly witness.

Tec. The Spirit of truth inspire thee!

On these conditions I conceal thy change,
And willingly admit thee for an auditor, —
I'll to my study.

Org. I to contemplations
In these delightful walks. Exit TECNUS.

Thus metamorphoses'd

I may without suspicion hearken after Euphrania's usage and Euphranes's faith.

Love, thon art full of mystery! The deities Themselves are not secure 1 in searching out
The secrets of those flames, which, hidden, waste

A breast made tributary to the laws
Of beauty: physic yet hath never found

A remedy to cure a lover's wound. —
Ha! who are those that cross ye private walk
Into the shadowy grove in amorous foldings?

PROPHILUS passeth over, supporting 2 EUPHRAINEA, and whispering.

My sister! O, my sister! 'tis Euphranesa
With Prophiles: supported too! I would
It were an apparition! Prophiles
Is Ithocles his friend: it strangely puzzles me.
Again! help me, my book; this scholar's habit
Must stand my privilege: my mind is busy,
Mine eyes and ears are open.

Walks by, reading.

Re-enter PROPHILUS and EUPHRANESA.

Pro. Do not waste
The span of this stol'n time, lent by the gods
For precious use, in noceness. 3 Bright Euphranesa, Should I repeat old vows, or study new,
For purchase of belief to my desires, —

1 Certain.
2 With his arm round her waist. (Dyce.)
3 Goyness; over-particular scruples.

Org. [Aside.] Desires!

Pro. My service, my integrity, —

Org. [Aside.] That's better.

Pro. I should but repeat a lesson
Oft conn'd without a prompter but thine eyes.
My love is honourable.

Org. [Aside.] So was mine
To my Penthesa, chastely honourable.

Pro. Nor wants there more addition to my wish
Of happiness than having thee a wife;
Already sure of Ithocles, a friend
Firm and unalterable.

Org. [Aside.] But a brother
More cruel than the grave.

Euph. What can you look for,
In answer to your noble protestations,
From an unskilful maid, but language suited
To a divided mind?

Org. [Aside.] Hold out, Euphranesia!
Euph. Know, Prophiles, I never undervalu'd,
From the first time you mentioned worthy love,
Your merit, means, or person: it had been
A fault of judgment in me, and a dulness
In my affections, not to weigh and thank
My better stars that offered me the grace
Of so much displeasance. For, to speak truth,
The law of my desires kept equal pace
With yours; nor have I left that resolution:
But only, in a word, whatever choice
Lives nearest in my heart must first procure
Consent both from my father and my brother,
Ere he can own me his.

Org. [Aside.] She is forsworn else.

Pro. Leave me that task.

Euph. My brother, ere he parted
To Athens, had my oath.

Org. [Aside.] Yes, yes, 'a had, sure.

Pro. I doubt not, with the means the court supplies,
But to prevail at pleasure.

Org. [Aside.] Very likely!

Pro. Meantime, best, dearest, I may build my hopes

On the foundation of thy constant suffrance
In any opposition.

Euph. Death shall sooner
Divorce life and the joys I have in living
Than my chaste vows from truth.

Pro. On thy fair hand
I seal the like.

Org. [Aside.] There is no faith in woman.

Passion, O, be contain'd! My very heart-strings
Are on the tenter. 4

Euph. Sir, we are overheard.

Cupid protect us! 'T was a stirring, sir,
Of some one near.

Pro. Your fears are needless, lady; no
None have access into these private pleasures
Except some near in court, or bosom-student
From Teucnus his oratory, granted
By special favour lately from the king
Unto the grave philosopher.

Euph. Methinks
I hear one talking to himself, — I see him.

4 Hooks for stretching cloth; on the rack.
Pro. 'Tis a poor scholar, as I told you, lady.
Org. [Aside.] I am discovered. [Half cross to himself, as if studying.] Say it; is it possible.
With a smooth tongue, a leering countenance, Flattery, or force of reason — I come t'ye, sir.
118
To turn or to appease the raging sea?
Answer to that. — Your art! what art to catch And hold fast in a net the sun's small atoms? No, no; they 'll out; they 'll out: ye may as easily
Outrun a cloud driven by a northern blast
As fiddle-faddle so! Peace or speak sense.
Euph. Call you this thing a scholar? 'Lass, he 's lunatic.
Pro. Observe him, sweet; 'tis but his recreation.
Org. But will you hear a little? You 're so tactile.
You keep the rule in argument. Philosophy
Works not upon impossibilities, But natural conclusions. — Mew! — absurd! The metaphysics are but speculations
Of the celestial bodies, or such accidents
As not mixt perfectly, in the air engend'rd
Appear to us unnatural; that's all.
Prove it; yet, with a reverence to your gravity, I'll balk illiterate sauciness, submitting
My sole opinion to the touch of writers.
Pro. Now let us fall in with him.
[They come forward.]
Org. Ha, ha, ha! 128
These scabby boys, when they but taste the grammates
And principles of theory, imagine They can oppose their teachers. Confidence Leads many into errors.
Pro. By your leave, sir.
Euph. Are you a scholar, friend? Org. I am, gay creature, 120 With pardon of your deities, a mushroom On whom the dew of heaven drops now and then; The sun shines on me too, I thank his beams! Sometime I feel their warmth; and eat and sleep.
Pro. Does Tecnicus read to thee?
Org. Yes, forsooth. 122 He is my master surely; yonder door Opens upon his study.
Pro. Happy creatures!
Such people toil not, sweet, in heats of state, Nor sink in thaws of greatness; their affections Keep order with the limits of their modesty; Their love is love of virtue. — What's thy name?
Org. Apoletes, sumptuous master, a poor wretch.
Euph. Dost thou want anything?
Pro. Lady, a new conceit comes in my thought.
And most available for both our comforts.
144
Euph. My lord, —

Pro. While I endeavours to deserve Your father's blessing to our loves, this scholar May daily at some certain hours attend
What notice I can write of my success,
Here in this grove, and give it to your hands;
The like from you to me: so can we never, Barr'd of our mutual speech, want sure intelligence;
And thus our hearts may talk when our tongues cannot.
Euph. Occasion is most favourable; use it.
Pro. Apoletes, wilt thou wait us twice a day, At nine i' the morning and at four at night, Here in this bower, to convey such letters
As each shall send to other? Do it willingly, Safely, and secretly, and I will furnish Thy study, or what else thou canst desire.
Org. Jove, make me thankful, thankful, I beseech thee, Propitious Jove! I will prove sure and trusty: You will not fail me books?
Pro. Nor aught besides
Thy heart can wish. This lady's name's Euphraphan, Mine Propilius.
Org. I have a pretty memory;
It must prove my best friend. I will not miss One minute of the hours appointed.
Pro. Write
The books thou wouldst have bought thee in a note,
Or take thyself some money.
Org. No, no money; Money to scholars is a spirit invisible,
We dare not finger it: or books, or nothing. Pro. Books of what sort wilt thou do not forget Our names.
Org. I warrant ye, I warrant ye.
Pro. Smile, Hymen, on the growth of our desires;
We'll feed thy torches with eternal fires! Eumphant Propilius and Euphranka.
Org. Put out thy torches, Hymen, or their light Shall meet a darkness of eternal night! Inspire me, Mercury, with swift deceit.
Ingenious Fate has leapt into mine arms, Beyond the compass of my brain.
Mortality Creeps on the dung of earth, and cannot reach The riddles which are purpose'd by the gods. Great arts best write themselves in their own stories;
They die too basely who outlive their glories.
Exit.

ACT II

SCENE I. Enter Bassanes and Phulias.
Bass. I'll have that window next the stress dam'd up;
2 Wait for.
3 Beyond what I could have planned.
4 A room in Bassanes' house.
It gives too full a prospect to temptation,
And courts a guazer's glances. There's a lust
Committed by the eye, that sweats and travail,
Plots, wakes, contrives, till the deformed bearth
Adultery, be lick'd into the act,
The very act. That light shall be damned up;
'D ye hear, sir?
Phu. I do hear, my lord; a mason
Shall be provided suddenly.
Bass. Some rogue,
Some rogue of your confidence,—factor
For slaves and strumpets!—to convey close packets
From this spruce springal and t' other youngster,
That gaudy earwig, or my lord your patron,
Whose pensioner you are. — I'll tear thy throat out.
Son of a cat, ill-looking hound's-head, rip-up
Thy ulcerous maw, if I but scent a paper,
A scroll, but half as big as what can cover
A wart upon thy nose, a spot, a pimple,
Directed to my lady; it may prove
A mystical preparative to lewdness.
Phu. Care shall be had: I will turn every thread
About me to an eye. — [Aside.] Here's a sweet life!
Bass. The city housewives, cunning in the traffic
Of chamber merchandise, set all at price
By wholesale; yet they wipe their mouths and simper,
Cull, kiss, and cry "sweetheart," and stroke the head
Which they have branch'd; and all is well again!
Dull odors of dirt, who dare not feel the rubs
Stuck on their [ir] foreheads.
Phu. 'Tis a villainous world;
One cannot hold his own in 't.
Bass. Dames at court,
Who flaunt in riots, run another bias;
Their pleasure heaves the patient sea that suffers
Up on the stilts of office, titles, incomes;
Promotion justifies the shame, and auces for 't.
Poor honour, thou art stabb'd, and bleed'st to death
By such unlawful hire! The country mistress
Is yet more wary, and in blushes hides
Whatever trespass draws her troth to guilt.
But all are false: on this truth I am bold,
No woman but can fail, and doth, or would. —
Now for the newest news about the city;
What blab the voices, sirrah?
Phu. O, my lord,
The rarest, quaintest, strangest, tickling news
That ever—
Bass. Hey-day! up and ride me, rascal!
What is 't?
Phu. Forsooth, they say the king has $mew'd$?
All his gray beard, instead of which is budded
Another of a pure carnation colour,
Speckled with green and russet.
Bass. Ignorant block!
Phu. Yes, truly; and 't is talkt about the streets
That, since Lord Ithocles came home, the lions
Never left roaring, at which noise the bears
Have dance'd their very hearts out.
Bass. Dance out thine too.
Phu. Besides, Lord Orpilus is fled to Athens
Upon a fiery dragon, and 't is thought
'A never can return.
Bass. Grant it, Apollo!
Phu. Moreover, please your lordship, 't is reported
For certain, that whoever is found jealous
Without apparent proof that his wife is wanton
Shall be divorce'd: but this is but she-news;
I had it from a midwife; I have more yet.
Bass. Antic, no more! Idiots and stupid fools
Grate my calamities. Why to be fair
Should yield presumption of a faulty soul —
Look to the doors.
Phu. [Aside.] The horn of plenty crest him!
Exit.
Bass. Swarms of confusion huddle in my thoughts
In rare distemper. — Beauty! O, it is An unmatch'd blessing or a horrid curse.

Enter Penetrea and Graunus, an old Lady.
She comes, she comes! so shoots the morning forth,
Spangled with pearls of transparent dew. —
The way to poverty is to be rich,
As I in her am wealthy; but for her,
In all contents a bankrupt. —
Lor'd Penetrea!
How fares my heart's best joy?
Grau. In sooth, not well,
She is so over-sad.
Bass. Leave chattering, magpie. —
Thy brother is return'd, sweet, safe, and honour'd
With a triumphant victory; thou shalt visit him:
We will to court, where, if it be thy pleasure,
Thou shalt appear in such a ravishing lustre
Of jewels above value, that the dames
Who brave it there, in rage to be outshin'd,
Shall hide them in their closets, and unseen
Fret in their tears; while every wond'ring eye
 Shall crave none other brightness but thy presence.
Choose thine own recreations; be a queen
Of what delights thou fanciest best, what company,
What place, what times; do anything, do all things
Youth can command, so thou wilt chase these clouds
From the pure firmament of thy fair looks.
Sc. II.

THE BROKEN HEART

777

Grau. Now 'tis well said, my lord. — What, lady! laugh.

Be merry; time is precious.

Furies whip thee! 10

Pen. Alas, my lord, this language to your hand-maid

Sounds as would music to the deaf; I need

No bravery nor cost of art to draw

The whiteness of my name into offence:

Let such, if any such there are, who covet

A curiosity of admiration,
By laying-out their plenty to full view,

Appeared in gaudy outside; my attire

Shall suit the inward fashion of my mind;

From which, if your opinion, nobly plac’d,

Change not the liv’ry your words bestow,

My fortunes with my hopes are at the highest.

Bass. This house, methinks, stands somewhat

Too much inward;

It is too melancholy; we’ll remove 146

Nearer the court; or what thinks my Pentheus

Of the delightful island we command?

Rule me as thou canst wish.

Pen. I am no mistres. 147

Whither you please, I must attend; all ways

Are alike pleasant to me.

Grau. Island; prison! 148

A prison as gosmes: we’ll no islands; 149

Marry, out upon ’em! Whom shall we see there?

Sea-gulls, and porpoises, and water-rats,

And crabs, and mews, and dog-fish; goodly gear

For a young lady’s dealing, — or an old one’s!

On no terms islands; I’ll be stowed first.

Bass. [Aside to Grausias.] 150

Grausias, 151

You are a juggling bawd. — That sadness, sweetest,

Becomes not youthful blood. — [Aside to Grau-sias.] I’ll have you pounded, 152

For my sake put on a more cheerful mirth;

Thou’lt mar thy cheeks, and make me old in

griefs. — 153

[Aside to Grausias.] Damnable bitch-fox!

Grau. I am thick of hearing. 154

Still, when the wind blows southerly. — What think ye,

If your fresh lady breed young bones, my

lord?

Would not a shopping boy d’ye good at heart?

But, as you said —

Bass. [Aside to Grausias.] I’ll spit thee on a stake,

Or chop thee into collops! 155

Grau. Pray, speak louder. 156

Pen. Thou pratest madly.

Bass. ’Tis very hot; I sweat extremely.

Re-enter Phuhas.

Phu. A herd of lords, sir.

Bass. Ha!

Phu. A flock of ladies.

Bass. Where?

Phu. Shoals of horses.

Bass. Peasant, how?

Phu. Caroches. 1

In drifts; th’ one enter, th’ other stand without, sir: 139

And now I vanish. 140

Exit.

Enter Prophylus, Hemoophil, Gronias, Chrestalla, and Philema.

Pro. Noble Bassanes! 1

Bass. Most welcome, Prophylus; ladies, gentlemen,

To all my heart is open; you all honour me. — 157

[Aside.] A tympany 2 swells in my head already,

Honour me bountifully. — [Aside.] How they flutter.

Wagtails and jays together!

Pro. From your brother

By virtue of your love to him, I require

Your instant presence, fairest.

Pen. He is well, sir? 158

Pro. The gods preserve him ever! Yet, dear

beauty,

I find some altercation in him lately,

Since his return to Sparta. — My good lord,

I pray, use no delay.

Bass. We had not needed

An invitation, if his sister’s health

Had not fallen into question. — Haste, Pentheus,

Slack not a minute. — Lead the way, good

Prophylus; 159

I’ll follow step by step.

Pro. Your arm, fair madam.

Bass. [Aside to Prophylus and Grausias.] Oodly

Call the piece, sir, you have our badship: th’

had been better

Rail’d at the sans 2 thou worshipp’d than have thwarted

My will: I’ll use thee cressedly.

Grau. You dote,

You are besides yourself. A politician 160

In jealousy? No, y’ are too gross, too vulgar.

Fish, teach not me my trade; I know my cue.

My crossing you sinks me into her trust,

By which I shall know all; my trade ’s a sure

one.

Bass. Forgive me, Grausias, ’t was consideration

I reliash’d not; 4 but have a care now.

Grau. Fear not,

I am no new-comes to ’t.

Bass. Thy life’s upon it,

And so is mine. My agonies are infinite.

Exeunt.

Scene II.

Enter Ithocles, alone.

Ilk. Ambition! ’tis of vipers’ breed: it gnaws

A passage through the womb that gave it motion.

Ambition, like a seeled 5 dove, mounts upward,

Higher and higher still, to perch on clouds,

But tumbles headlong down with heavier ruin.

1 Caroches

2 Tympany

3 Swelling

4 I did not use the point of.

5 The palace. Ithocles’ apartment.

6 Blind by seeing up the eye-ids.
So squibs and crackers fly into the air,
Then, only breaking with a noise, they vanish
In stench and smoke. Morality, appli’d
To timely practice, keeps the soul in tune,
At whose sweet music all our actions dance:
But this is form of books and school-tradition;
It physics not the sickness of a mind
Broken with griefs; strong fevers are not eas’d
With counsel, but with best receipts and means;
Means, speedy means and certain; that’s the cure.

Enter ARMOSTES and CROTOLON.

Arm. You stick, Lord Crotolon, upon a point
Too nice and too unnecessary; Prophilus
Is every way desertful. I am confident
Your wisdom is too ripe to need instruction
From your son’s tutelage.

Crot. Yet not so ripe, my Lord Armostes, that it dares to dote
Upon the painted meat of smooth persuasion,
Which tempts me to a breach of faith.

Ith. Not yet Resolv’d, my lord? Why, if your son’s consent
Be so available, we’ll write to Athens
For his repair to Sparta. The king’s hand
Will join with our desires; he has been mov’d to’t.

Arm. Yes, and the king himself imporrunt’d Crotolon
For a dispatch.

Crot. Kings may command; their wills
Are laws not to be questioned.

Ith. By this marriage
You knit an union so devout, so hearty,
Between your loves to me and mine to yours,
As if mine own blood had had an interest in it;
For Prophilus is mine, and I am his.

Arm. My lord, my lord! —

Ith. What, good sir? Speak your thought.

Arm. Had this sincerity been real once,
My Orgils had not been now unwir’d,
Nor your lost sister buried in a bride-bed.
Your uncle here, Armostes, knows this truth;
For had your father Thrasius liv’d, — but peace
Dwell in his grave! I have done done.

Arm. Y’ are bold and bitter.

Ith. [Aside.] ’A presses home the injury; it smarts.

No reprehensions, uncle; I deserve ’em.
Yet, gentle sir, consider what the heat
Of an unsteady youth, a giddy brain,
Green indiscipline, flattery of greatness,
Rawness of judgment, wildfulness in folly,
Thoughts vagrant as the wind and as uncertain,
Might lead a boy in years to: — ’t was a fault,
A capital fault; for then I could not dive
Into the secrets of commanding love;
Since when, experience, by the extremes (in others),
Hath forc’d me collect. And, trust me, Crotolon,
I will redeem those wrongs with any service
Your satisfaction can require for current.

Arm. The acknowledgment is satisfaction:
What would you more?

Crot. I’m conquer’d; if Euphranœa
Herself admit the motion, let it be so;
I doubt not my son’s liking.

Ith. Use my fortunes,
Life, power, sword, and heart, — all are your own.

Arm. The princess, with your sister.

Enter CALANTHA, PENTHEA, EUPHRANŒA, CHRISTALLA, PHILEMA, GRAUSIN, BASSANES, AND PROPHILUS.

Cal. I present ye
A stranger here in court, my lord; for did not Desire of seeing you draw her abroad,
We had not been made happy in her company.

Ith. You are a gracious princess. — Sister,
Wedlock
Holds too severe a passion in your nature,
Which can engross all duty to your husband,
Without attendance on so dear a mistress. —
[To BASSANES.] ’T is not my brother’s pleasure,
I presume,
’T immure her in a chamber.

Bass. ’Tis her will; —
She governs her own hours. Noble Ithocles,
We thank the gods for your success and welfare;
Our lady has of late been indispos’d,
Else we had waited on you with the first.

Ith. How does Pentheses now?

Pen. You best know, brother, —
From whom my health and comforts are deriv’d.

Bass. [Aside.] I like the answer well; ’tis sad and modest.
There may be tricks yet, tricks. — Have an eye, Granus!

Cal. Now, Crotolon, the suit we join’d in must not Fall by too long demur.

Crot. ’T is granted, princess.

For my part.

Arm. With condition, that his son
Favour the contract.

Cal. Such delay is easy. —
The joys of marriage make thee, Prophilus,
A proud deserver of Euphranœa’s love,
And her of thy desert!

Pro. Most sweetly gracious! —

Bass. The joys of marriage are the heaven on earth,
Life’s paradise, great princess, the soul’s quiet,
Sinews of concord, earthly immortality,
Eternity of pleasures; — no restoratives
Like to a constant woman — [Aside.] But where is she?

’T would puzzle all the gods but to create
Such a new monster. — I can speak by proof,
For I rest in Elysium; ’t is my happiness.

Arm. Euphranœa, how are you resolv’d, speak freely,
In your affections to this gentleman?

Euph. Nor more nor less than as his love assures me;

Q. Thy.
THE BROKEN HEART

Which — if your liking with my brother’s warrants —
I cannot but approve in all points worthy.
Crot. So, so I — [To PROPHILUS.] I know your answer.

Ith. ’T had been pity
To sunder hearts so equally consented.

Enter HEMOLPH.

Hem. The king, Lord Ithocles, commands your presence; —
And, fairest princess, yours.

Cal. We will attend him.

Enter GHONEAS.

Gro. Where are the lords? All must unto the king
Without delay: the Prince of Argos —
Cal. Well, sir?
Gro. Is coming to the court, sweet lady.
Cal. How I

The Prince of Argos?

Gro. ’T was my fortune, madam, I enjoy the honour of these happy tidings.

Ith. Penetea! —

Pen. Brother?

Ith. Let me an hour hence Meet you alone within the palace-grove; I have some secret with you. — Frithee, friend, Conduct her thither, and have special care The walks be clear’d of any to disturb us.

Pro. I shall.

Bass. [Aside.] How’s that?

Ith. Alone, pray be alone. — I am your creature, princess. — On, my lords! Exeunt all but BASSANES.

Bass. Alone! alone! What means that word “alone”? Why might not I be there? — hum! — he’s her brother. Brothers and sisters are but flesh and blood, And this same whoreson court-case in temptation To a rebellion in the veins; — besides, His fine friend Prophilus must be her guardian: Why may not he dispatch a business nimbly Before the other come? — or — pand’ring, pand’ring For one another, — be ’t to sister, mother, Wife, cousin, anything, — mongst youths of matle
Is in request; it is so — stubborn fate! But if I be a cuckold, and can know it, I will be fell, and fell.

Re-enter GHONEAS.

Gro. My lord, y’are call’d for.

Bass. Most heartily I thank ye. Where’s my wife, pray?

Gro. Retir’d amongst the ladies.

Bass. Still I thank ye.

There’s an old waiter with her; saw you her too?

Gro. She sits i’ th’ presence-lobby fast asleep, sir.

Bass. Asleep! asleep, sir!

Gro. Is your lordship troubled?
You will not to the king?

Bass. Your humblest vassal.

Gro. Your servant, my good lord.

Bass. I wait your footsteps.

Exit.

Scene III.1

Enter PROPHILUS and PENTHEA.

Pro. In this walk, lady, will your brother find you:
And, with your favour, give me a little To work a preparation. In his fashion I have observ’d of late some kind of slackness To such aserity as nature [once] And custom took delight in; sadness grows Upon his recreations, which he hoards In such a willing silence, that to question The grounds will argue little skill in friendship, And less good manners.

Pen. Sir, I’m not inquisitive Of secretaries without an invitation.

Pro. With pardon, lady, not a syllable Of mine implies so rude a sense; the drift —

Enter ORGILUS, [disguised as before.] [To ORG.] Do thy best To make this lady merry for an hour. Exit. Ory. Your will shall be a law, sir.

Pen. Frithee, leave me; I have some private thoughts I would account with;

Use thou thine own.

Org. Speak on, fair nymph; our souls Can dance as well to music of the spheres As any’s who have feasted with the gods.

Pen. Your school-terms are too troublesome.

Org. What Heaven Refines mortality from dross of earth But such as uncompounded beauty hallow With glorified perfection?

Pen. Set thy wits In a less wild proportion.

Org. Time can never On the white table of unguilty faith Write counterfeit dishonour; turn those eyes, The arrows of pure love, upon that fire, Which once rose to a flame, perfum’d with vows
As sweetly scented as the incense smoking On Vesta’s altars, . . . . . . .
. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .
. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .
. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .
. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .
And to increase their fervour.

Pen. Be not frantick.

Org. All pleasures are but mere imagination. Feeding the hungry appetite with steam And sight of banquet, whilst the body pines, Not relishing the real taste of food; Such is the leanness of a heart divided From intercourse of troth-contracted loves;

1 The gardens of the palace. A grove.
2 Gifford’s emend. Q. reads as the incense smoking The holiest altars, virgin tears (the On Vesta’s odours) sprinkled dew to feed ’em, And to increase.
No horror should deface that precious figure
Seal'd with the lively stamp of equal souls.

Pen. Away! some Fury hath bewitch'd thy tongue.
The breath of ignorance, that flies from thence,
Ripens a knowledge in me of afflictions.

Ory. Above all suffering. — Thing of talk, begone!
Begone, without reply!

Pen. Be just, Pentheas,
In thy commands; when thou send'st forth a doom
Of banishment, know first on whom it lights.
Thus I take off the shroud, in which my cares
Are folded up from view of common eyes.

[Threw off his Scholar's dress.]

What is thy sentence next?

Pen. Rash man! thou layest
A blemish on mine honour, with the hazard
Of thy too-desperate life: yet I profess,
By all the laws of ceremonious wedlock,
I have not given admittance to one thought
Of female change since cruelty enforc'd
Divorce betwixt my body and my heart.
Whence would you fall from goodness thus?

Ory. O, rather Examine me, how I could live to say
I have been much, much wrong'd. 'Tis for thy sake
I put on this imposture: dear Pentheas,
If thy soft bosom be not turn'd to marble,
Thou 'lt pity our calamities; my interest
Confirms me thou art mine still.

Pen. Yield my hand; I
With both of mine I clasp it thus, thus kiss it,
Thus kneel before ye.

Ory. You instruct my duty,
Pen. We may stand up. — Have you aught else to urge
Of new demand? As for the old, forget it;
'Tis buried in an everlasting silence,
And shall be, shall be ever. What more would ye?

Ory. I would possess my wife; the equity
Of very reason bids me.

Pen. Is that all?
Ory. Why, 'tis the all of me, myself.

Pen. Remove
Your steps some distance from me: — at this space
A few words I dare change; but first put on
Your borrowed shape.

Ory. You are obey'd; 'tis done.

Pen. How, Orgilus, by promise I was thine
The heavens do witness: they can witness too
A rape done on my truth: how I do love thee.
Yet, Orgilus, and yet, must best appear
In tendering thy freedom; for I find
The constant preservation of thy merit,
By thy not daring to attempt my fame
With injury of any lose consort,
Which might give deeper wounds to discontent,
Continue this fair race: then, though I cannot Add to thy comfort, yet I shall more often
Remember from what fortune I am fallen,
And pity mine own rain. — Live, live happy,
Happy in thy next choice, that thou mayst peopled
This barren age with virtues in thy image!
And O, when thou art married, think on me
With mercy, not contempt! I hope thy wife,
Hearing my story, will not scorn my fall. —
Now let us part.

Ory. Part! yet advise thee better:
Pentheas is the wife to Orgilus,
And ever shall be.

Pen. Never shall nor will.

Ory. How!
Pen. Hear me; in a word I'll tell thee why.
The virgin-dowry which my birth bestow'd
Is ravish'd by another; my true love
Abhors to think that Orgilus deserv'd
No better favours than a second bed.

Ory. I must not take this reason.

Pen. To confirm it
Should I outline my bondage, let me meet
Another worse than this and less desir'd.
If, of all men alive, thou shouldst but touch
My lip or hand again!

Pentheas, now
I tell ye, you grow wanton in my suffervance:
Come, sweet, th'art mine.

Pen. Uncivil sir, forbear!

Or I can turn affection into vengeance;
Your reputation, if you value any,
Lies bleeding at my feet. Unworthy man,
If ever henceforth thou appear in language,
Message, or letter, to betray my frailty,
I'll call thy former protestations last,
And curse my stars for forfeit of my judgment.
Go thou, fit only for disguise, and walks,
To hide thy shame: this once I spare thy life.
I laugh at mine own confidence; my sorrows
By thee are made inferior to my fortunes.
If ever thou didst harbour worthy love,
Dare not to answer. My good genius guide me,
That I may never see thee more! — Go from me!

Ory. I'll tear my veil of politic French off,
And stand up like a man resolv'd to do:
Action, not words, shall show me. — O Pentheas!

Pen. A sighs my name, sure, as he parted
From me:
I fear I was too rough. Alas, poor gentleman
'A look'd not like the ruins of his youth,
But like the ruins of those ruins. Honour,
How much we fight with weakness to preserve thee!

[Walks aside.]

Enter Bassanes and Grausius.

Bass. Fie on thee! damn thee, rotten maggot, damn thee!
Sleep I sleep at court? and now? Aches, convulsions.
Imposthumes, rheuma, gouts, palpae, clog thy bones
A dozen years more yet!

1 Course.

2 Apparently corrupt.

3 The word was pronounced出击.
Gras. She’s by herself; there’s hope of that; she’s sad too.
She’s in strong contemplation; yes, and fixed:
The signs are wholesome.
Gras. Very wholesome, truly.
Bass. Hold your chaps, 1 nightmare! — Lady, come; your brother 160
Is carried to his closet; you must thither.
Pen. Not well, my lord?
Bass. A sudden fit; ’twill off!
Some surfeit or disorder. — How dost, dearest?
Pen. Your news is none o’ the best.

Re-enter Prophilo.

Pro. The chief of men,
The excellent Ithocles, desires 143
Your presence, madam.
Bass. We are hastening to him.
Pen. In vain we labour in this course of life
To piece our journey out at length, or crave
Respite of breath; our home is in the grave.
Bass. Perfect philosophy!
[Pen.
Then let us care 130
To live so, that our reckonings may fall even
When we’re to make account.
Pro. He cannot fear
Who builds on noble grounds: sickness or pain
Is the deserter’s exercise; 6 and such
Your virtuous brother to the world is known.
Speak comfort to him, lady; be all gentle.
Stars fall but in the grossness of our sight;
A good man dying, th’ earth doth lose a light.

Execut omnes.

ACT III

SCENE I.

Enter Tecticus, and Orgilus in his own shape.

Tec. Be well advis’d; let not a resolution
Of giddy rashness choke the breath of reason.
Org. It shall not, must sage master.
Tec. I am jealous; 4
For if the borrowed shape so late put on Inferr’d a consequence, we must conclude 5
Some violent design of sudden nature
Hath shook that shadow off, to fly upon
A new-hatch’d execution. Orgilus,
Take heed thou hast not, under our integrity,
Shrouded unlawful plots; our mortal eyes 10
Pierce not the secrets of your heart, the gods
Are only privy to them.
Org. Learned Tecticus,
Such doubts are causeless; and, to clear the truth
From misconceit, the present state commands me.
The Prince of Argos comes himself in person 15
In quest of great Calantha for his bride,
Our kingdom’s heir; besides, mine only sister,
Euphranes, is dispose’d to Prophilo;
Lastly, the king is sending letters for me

1 Jawn.
2 The study of Tecticus.
3 Discipulus.
4 Suspicious.

To Athens, for my quick repair to court:
To please to accept these reasons.
Tec. Just ones, Orgilus,
Not to be contradicted: yet beware
Of an unsure foundation; no fair colours
Can fortify a building faintly jointed.
I have observ’d a growth in thy aspect
Of dangerous extent, sudden, and — look to ’t —
I might add, certain —
Org. My aspect! Could art
Run through mine utmost thoughts, it should not sift
An inclination there more than what suited
With justice of mine honour.
Tec. I believe it.
But know then, Orgilus, what honour is Honour consists not in a bare opinion
By doing any act that feeds content.
Brave in appearance, ’cause we think it brave;
Such honour comes by accident, not nature,
Proceeding from the voice of our passion,
Which makes our reason drunk: but real honour
Is the reward of virtue, and acquir’d
By justice, or by valour which for basis
Hath justice to uphold it. He then fails
In honour, who for lucre [or] revenge
Commits thefts, murders, treasons, and adulteries,
With suchlike, by intrenching on just laws,
Whose sovereignty is best preserv’d by justice.
Thus, as you see how honour must be grounded
On knowledge, not opinion,— for opinion
Relies on probability and accident,
But knowledge on necessity and truth,—
I leave thee to the fit consideration
Of what becomes the grace of real honour,
Wishing success to all thy virtuous means.
Org. The gods increase thy wisdom, reverence
And in thy precepts make me ever thrifty! 6
Tec. I thank thy wish.

Exit.

Much mystery of late
Lies hid in that man’s fortunes; curiosity
May lead his actions into rare attempts: —
But let the gods be moderators still;
No human power can prevent their will.

Enter Armoestes [with a casket].
From whence come ye?
Arm. From King Amyelas, — pardon
My interruption of your studies. — Here, 10
In this seal’d box, he sends a treasure [to you,]
Dear to him as his crown. ’A prays your gravity
You would examine, ponder, sift, and bolt
The pith and circumstance of every tittle
The scroll within contains.
Tec. What is ’t, Armoestes? 15
Arm. It is the health of Sparta, the king’s life,
Sinews and safety of the commonwealth;
The sum of what the oracle deliver’d
When last he visited the prophetic temple
At Delphos: what his reasons are, for which. 20

6 Make me ever avail myself of thy precepts.
After so long a silence, he requires
Your council now, grave man, his majesty
Will soon himself acquaint you with.

Tec. [Takes the casket.] Apollo
Inspire my intellect! — The Prince of Argos
Is entertain'd?

Arm. He is; and has demanded
Our princess for his wife; which I conceive
One special cause the king importance you
For resolution of the oracle.

Tec. My duty to the king, good peace to Sparta.

And fair day to Armestes!

Arm. Like to Teucerus! Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Soft music, during which time enter Prophilus,
Bassanes, Penthea, Grausius, passing over the stage. Bassanes and Grausius enter again softly, stealing to several stands, and listen.

A SONG.

Can you paint a thought? or number
Every fancy in a slumber?
Can you count soft minutes roving
From a dial's point by moving?
Can you grasp a sigh? or, lastly,
Rob a virgin's honour chastely?
No, no; so yet you may
Sooner do both that and this,
This and that, and never miles,
Than by any praise display
Beauty's beauty; such a glory,
As beyond all praise, all story,
All arms, all arts,
All loves, all hearts,
Greater than those or they,
Do, shall, and must obey.

Bass. All silent, calm, secure. — Grausius, no creaking?
No noise? Dost hear nothing?

Graus. Not a mouse, or whisper of the wind.

Bass. The floor is matted; the bedposts sure are steel or marble. — Soldiers should not affect, methinks, strains so effeminate.

Sounds of such delicacy are but fawnings
Upon the sloth of luxury, they heighten
Cinders of covert lust up to a flame.

Graus. What do you mean, my lord? — speak low; that gabbling
Of yours will but undo us.

Bass. Chamber-combats are felt, not heard.

Pro. [within.] 'A wakes. 'What's that? 'Who's there? — All quit the room else.

Bass. 'Tis consented!

Re-enter Prophilus.

Pro. Lord Bassanes, your brother would be private,
THE BROKEN HEART

For she that's wife to Orgilus, and lives
In known adultery with Bassanes,
Is at the best a whore. Wilt kill me now? 1
The ashes of our parents will assume
Some dreadful figure, and appear to charge
Thy bloody guilt, that hast betray'd their name
To infamy in this reproachful match.

Ith. After my victories abroad, at home 2
I meet despair; ingratitude of nature
Hath made my actions monstrous. Thou shalt stand
A deity, my sister, and be worshipp'd
For thy resolved martyrdom; wrong'd maids
And married wives shall to thy hallowed shrine
Offer their orisons, and sacrifice
Pure turtles, crown'd with myrtle; if thy pity
Unto a yielding brother's pressure lend
One finger but to ease it.

Pen. O, no more!

Ith. Death waits to waft me to the Stygian banks,
And free me from this chaos of my bondage;
And till thou wilt forgive, I must endure.
Pen. Who is the saint you serve?

Ith. Friendship, or [nearness] 1
Of birth to any but my sister, durst not
Have mov'd that question; [tis] 2 a secret, sister,
I dare not murmur to myself.

Pen. Let me,
By your new protestations I conjure ye,
Partake her name.

Pen. All your respects are forg'd. 3

Ith. They are not. — Peace!
Calantha is — the princess — the king's daughter —

Sole heir of Sparta. — Me, most miserable
Do I now love thee? For my injuries
Revenge thyself with bravery, and gossip
My treasons to the king's ears, do: — Calantha Knows it not yet, nor Prophilus, my nearest.

Pen. Suppose you were contracted to her,
would it not
Split even your very soul to see her father
Snatch her out of your arms against her will,
And force her on the Prince of Argos?

Ith. Trouble not
The fountains of mine eyes with thine own story;
I sweat in blood for 't.

Pen. We are reconcil'd.
Alas, sir, being children, but two branches
Of one stock, 'tis not fit we should divide:
Have comfort, you may find it.

Ith. Yes, in thee;
Only in thee, Penthea mine.

Pen. If sorrows 13
Have not too much dull'd my infected brain,
I'll cheer invention for an active strain. 4

Ith. Mad man! why have I wrong'd a maid so excellent!

Enter Bassanks with a poniard; Prophilus,
Groneas, Hemophil, and Grausius.

Bass. I can forbear no longer; more, I will not.
Keep off your hands, or fall upon my point. —
Patience is tir'd; for, like a slow-poc'd ass, 13
Ye ride my easy nature, and proclaim
My sloth to vengeance a reproach and property. 5

Ith. The meaning of this radeness?

Pro. He's distracted.

Pen. O, my grieve's lord! —

Graus. Sweet lady, come not near him; 13
He holds his perilous weapon in his hand.
To prick 'a cares not whom nor where,—see,
see, see!

Bass. My birth is noble: though the popular blast
Of vanity, as giddy as thy youth,
Hath rear'd thy name up to bestrade a cloud,
Or progress in the chariot of the sun,
I am no eiol of trade, to lackey pride,
Nor, like your slave of expectation, 6 wait
The bawdy hinges of your door, or whistle
For mystical conveyance to your bed-sports. 13
Gro. Fine humour! they become him.

Hem. How 'a stares,
Struts, puffs, and sweats! Most admirable

Honour!

Ith. But that I may conceive the spirit of wine
Has took possession of your soberer custom,
I'd say you were unmannishly.

Pen. Dear brother! —

Bass. Unmannishly! — mew, killin'! — smooth Formality
Is usher to the rankness of the blood,
But Impudence bears up the train. Indeed, sir,
Your flowery motto, or your spring; 8 blaze
Of huge renown, is no sufficient royalty.

To print upon my forehead the scorn, "cuck-
old."

Ith. His jealousy has robb'd him of his wits;
'T talks 'a knows not what.

Bass. Yes, and 'a knows
To whom 'a talks; to one that franks 9 his lust
In swine-security of bastard incest.

Ith. Ha, devil! 13
Bass. I will haloo 't; 10 though I blush more
To name the filthiness than thou to set it.

Ith. Monster! [Draws his sword.]

Pro. Sir, by our friendship

Pen. By our bloods —
Will you quite both undo us, brother?

Graus. Out on him!
These are his megrim's, forks, 11 and melanoholies.

Hem. Well said, old touch-hole.

Gro. Kick him out of doors.

Pen. With favour, let me speak. — My lord, what slackness
In my obedience hath deserv'd this rage?
Except humility and silent duty.

1 Q. omits.  2 T's, Dyce emend. Q. ea.
3 t. e. You do not care for me as you say.
4 I will attempt to devise something.
5 Personal characteristics.  6 Wonderful.
7 Attendant slave.  8 Youthful.
9 Feeds; fattens, as one fattens swine.
10 Personal characteristics.  11 Frets.
| Scene III. |

Flourish. Enter Amyclas, Nearchus, leading Calantha, Armogist, Crotolon, Euphranora, Christalla, Philema, and Amelus.

Amy. Cousin of Argos, what the heavens have pleased,
In their unchanging counsels to conclude
For both our kingdoms’ weal, we must submit to:
Nor can we be unthankful to their bounties,
Who, when we were even creeping to our grave,
Sent us a daughter, in whose birth our hope Continues of succession. As you are
In title next, being grandchild to our saint,
So we in heart desire you may sit nearest Calantha’s love; since we have ever vow’d
Not to enforce affection by our will,
But by her own choice to confirm it gladly.

Amy. Speak the nature of a right just father.
I come not hither roughly to demand
My cousin’s thralldom, but to free mine own.
Report of great Calantha’s beauty, virtue,
Sweetness, and singular perfections, courted
All ears to credit what I find was publish’d
By constant truth; from which, if any service
Of my desert can purchase fair construction,
This lady must command it.

Cal. Princeley sir,
So well you know how to profess observance,
That you instruct your hearers to become Practitioners in duty; of which number
I’ll study to be chief.

Amy. In my devotions, as in all men’s wonder,
Excellent cousin, we deny no liberty;
Use thine own opportunities. — Armogist,
We must consult with the philosophers;
The business is of weight.

Arm. Sir, at your pleasure. —
Amy. You told me, Crotolon, your son’s return’d
From Athens: wheresoever comes he not to court
As we commanded?

Crot. He shall soon attend
Your royal will, great sir.

Amy. The marriage
Between young Prophilus and Euphranora
Tastes of too much delay.

Crot. My lord,—
Amy. Some pleasures
At celebration of it would give life

1. Q. cry a Jonatanele.
2. A room in the palace.
3. Worship, courtship.
To th' entertainment of the prince our kinsmen;
Our court wears gravity more than we relish.
Arm. Yet the heavens smile on all your high attempts.

Without a cloud.
Crot. So may the gods protect us.
Cal. A prince a subject?
Near. No, to beauty's sceptre;
As all hearts kneel, so mine.
Cal. You are too courteously.

Enter Ithocles, Oegillus, and Prophillus.

Ith. Your safe return to Sparta is most welcome;
I joy to meet you here, and, as occasion shall grant us privacy, will yield you reasons why I should covet to deserve the title of your respected friend; for, without compliment,
Believe it, Oegillus, 'tis my ambition.

Org. Your lordship may command me, your poor servant.

Ith. [Aside.] So am I. — so soon! — my heart!

Pro. What sudden change is next?
Ith. Life to the king!
To whom I here present this noble gentleman, New come from Athens; royal sir, vouchsafe your gracious hand in favour of his merit.

[The King gives Oegillus his hand to kiss.]
Crot. [Aside.] My son prefers him. Ithocles!

Amy. Our bounties shall open to thee, Oegillus; for instance, —
Hark in thine ear, — if, out of those inventions which flow in Athens, thou hast there engrossed;
Some rarity of wit, to grace the nuptials of thy fair sister, and renown our court;
In th' eyes of this young prince, we shall be debtor to thy conceit: think on't.

Org. Your highness honours me.
Near. My tongue and heart are twins.
Cal. A noble birth,
Becoming such a father. — Worthy Oegillus,
You are a guest most wish'd for.

Org. May my duty still rise in your opinion, sacred princes!
Ith. Ephraines'a brother, sir; a gentleman well worthy of your knowledge.
Near. We embrace him, proud of so dear acquaintance.
Amy. All prepare.
For revels and disport; the joys of Hymen,
Like Phoebus in his lustre, put to flight
All mists of dulness, crown the hours with gladness:
No sounds but music, no discourse but mirth!
Cal. Thine arm, I prithee, Ithocles. — Nay, good.
My lord, keep on your way; I am provided.
Near. I dare not disobey.
Ith. Most heavenly lady! Exit.

[Scene IV.] —

Enter Crotolon and Oegillus.

Crot. The king hath spoke his mind.
Org. His will he hath;
But were it lawful to hold plea against
The power of greatness, not the reason, haply
Such underhurbs as subjects sometimes might Borrow of nature justice, to inform
That license sovereignty holds without check
Over a meek obedience.
Crot. How resolve you Touching your sister's marriage? Prophillus
Is a deserving and a hopeful youth.
Org. I envy not his merit, but applaud it; —
Could wish him thrift in all his best desires,
And with a willingness inleague our blood
With his, for purchase of full growth in friendship.
He never touch'd on any wrong that malice'd
The honour of our house nor stirr'd our peace;
Yet, with your favour, let me not forget
Under whose wing he gathers warmth and comfort,
Whose creature he is bound, made, and must live so.

Crot. Son, son, I find in thee a harsh condition; —
No courtesy can win it; 'tis too rancorous.
Org. Good sir, be not severe in your construction;
I am no stranger to such easy calms
As sit in tender bosoms: lordly Ithocles
Hath grace'd my entertainment in abundance,
Too humbly hath descended from that height
Of arrogance and spleen which wrought the rape
On griev'd Penteas's purity; his scorn
Of my untoward fortunes is reclaim'd
Unto a courtship, almost to a fawning:
— I'll kiss his foot, since you will have it so.
Crot. Since I will have it so! Friend, I will have it so.

Without our ruin by your politic plots,
Or wolf of hatred snarling in your breast.
You have a spirit, sir, have ye? A familiar
That posts 'th' air for your intelligence?

Some such hobgoblin hurried you from Athens,
For yet you come unsent for.

Org. If unwelcome, I might have found a grave there.
Crot. Sure, your business was soon dispatch'd, or your mind alter'd quickly.

Org. 'T was care, sir, of my health cut short my journey;
For there a general infection
Threatens a desolation.
Crot. And I fear
Thou hast brought back a worse infection with thee,—
Infection of thy mind; which, as thou say'st,
Threatens the desolation of our family.

Org. Forbid it, our dear genius! I will rather

1 A room in the house of Crotolon.
2 Prosperity.
3 Disposition.
Be made a sacrifice on Thrasius’s monument,
Or kneel to Ithocles, his son, in dust,
Than woo a father’s curse. My sister’s marriage.

With Propylus is from my heart confirm’d;
May I live hated, may I die despis’d,
If I omit to further it in all
That can concern me!

Crot. I have been too rough.
My duty to my king made me so earnest;
Excuse it, Orgilus.

Org. Dear sir! —
Crot. Here comes Euphranes with Propylus and Ithocles.

Enter Propylus, Euphranes, Ithocles, Gronias, and Hemophil.

Org. Most honoured! — ever famous!

Ith. Your true friend;
On earth not any truer. — With smooth eyes
Look on this worthy couple; your consent
Can only make them one.

Org. They have it. — Sister,
Those sworn’t do to me an oath, of which engagement
I never will release thee, if thou aim’st
At any other choice than this.

Euph. Dear brother,
At him, or none.

Crot. To which my blessing’s added.

Org. Which, till a greater ceremony perfect,
Euphranes lend thy hand, — here, take her, Propylus;
Live long a happy man and wife; and further,
That these in presence may conclude an omen,
Thus for a bridal song I close my wishes:

[Sings.] Comforts lasting, loves increasing,
Like soft hours never ceasing:
Plenty’s pleasure, peace complying,
Without jar, or tongues envying;
Hearts by holy union wedded,
More than their grey custom bedded;
Fruitful iasses; life so graced,
Not by age to be defaced,
Budding, as the year ens’th,
Every spring another youth:
All what thought can add beside
Crown this bridgroom and this bride!

Pro. You have seal’d joy close to my soul. —

Euphranes,
Now I may call thee mine.

Ith. I but exchange
One good friend for another.

Org. If these gallants
Will please to grace a poor invention,
By joining with me in some slight device,
I’ll venture on a strain my younger days
Have studied for delight.

Hem. With thankful willingness
I offer my attendance.

Gro. No endavour
Of mine shall fail to show itself.

Ith. We will
All join to wait on thy directions, Orgilus.

Org. O, my good lord, your favours flow towards

A too unworthy worm; — but as you please;
I am what you will shape me.

Ith. A fast friend.
Crot. I thank thee, son, for this acknowledgment;
It is a sight of gladness.

[Scene V.]

Enter Calantha, Penthea, Christalla, and Philema.

Cal. Whoe’er would speak with us, deny his entrance;
Be careful of our charge.

Chris. We shall, madam.

Cal. Except the king himself, give none admittance;
Not any.

Phel. Madam, it shall be our care.

Exeunt [Christalla and Philema].

Cal. Being alone, Penthea, you have granted
The opportunity you sought, and might
At all times have commanded. ’Tis a benefit
Which I shall owe your goodness even in death for.

My glass of life, sweet princess, hath few minutes
Remaining to run down; the sands are spent;
For by an inward messenger I feel
The summons of departure short and certain.

Cal. You feel too much your melancholy.

Phel. Of human greatness are but pleasing dreams
And shadows soon decaying: on the stage
Of my mortality my youth hath acted
Some scenes of vanity, drawn out at length
By varied pleasures, sweet’ned in the mixture,
But tragic in issue: beauty, pomp,
With every sensuality our dearness
Both frame an idol, are unconstant friends,
When any troubled passion makes assault
On the unguarded castle of the mind.

Cal. Contemn not your condition for the proof
Of bare opinion only: to what end
Reach all these moral texts?

It. To place before ye
A perfect mirror, wherein you may see
How weary I am of a ling’ring life,
Who count the best a misery.

Cal. Indeed
You have no little cause; yet none so great
As to distrust a remedy.

Phel. That remedy
Must be a winding-sheet, a fold of lead,
And some untrod-on corner in the earth. —
Not to detain your expectation, princess,
I have an humble suit.

Cal. Speak; I enjoy it.

Penthea, then, to be my executrix,
And take that trudge on ye to dispose
Such legacies as I bequeath, impartially.
I have not much to give, the pains are easy;

1 Calantha’s apartment in the palace.
2 So Q. Dyce suggests enjoin.
The Broken Heart

Heaven will reward your piety, and thank it. When I am dead; for sure I must not live; I hope I cannot.

Cal. Now, beshrew thy sadness, thou turnst me too much woman. [Weeps.]

Pen. [Aside.] Her fair eyes melt into passion. — Then I have assurance encouraging my boldness. In this paper my will was character'd; which you, with pardon, shall now know from mine own mouth.

Cal. Talk on, prithee; it is a pretty earnest.

Pen. I have left me but three poor jewels to bequest. The first is my youth; for though I am much old in griefs, in years I am a child.

Cal. To whom that [jewel]? a second jewel you mean to part with? By scandal yet untouch'd: this I bequest to Memory, and Time's old daughter, Truth. If ever my unhappy name find mention when I am fall'n to dust, may it deserve beseeching charity without dishonour!

Cal. How handsomely thou play'st with harmless sport of mere imagination! Speak the last. I strangely like thy will.

Pen. This jewel, madam, is dearly precious to you; you must use the best of your discretion to employ this gift as I intend it.

Cal. Do not doubt me. 'Tis long agoe since first I lost my heart. Long have I liv'd without it, else for certain I should have given that too; but instead of it, to great Calantha, Sparta's heir, by service bound and by affection vow'd, I do bequest, in holiest rites of love, mine only brother, Ithocles.

Cal. What saidst thou? Pen. Impute not, heaven-blest lady, to ambition a faith as humbly perfect as the prayers of a devoted suppliant can endow it. Look on him, princes, with an eye of pity; how like the ghost of what he late appear'd 'A moves before you.

Cal. Shall I answer here, or lend my ear too grossly? Pen. First his heart shall fall in cinders, search'd by your disdain, ere he will dare, poor man, to ope an eye on these divine looks, but with low-bent thoughts.

Accusing such presumption; as for words, 'A dares not utter any but of service. Yet this lost creature loves ye. — Be a princess in sweetness as in blood; give him his doom, or raise him up to comfort.

Cal. What new change appears in my behaviour, that thou dar'st tempt my displeasure?

Pen. I must leave the world. To revel in Elysium, 'tis just. To wish my brother some advantage here; yet, by my best hopes, Ithocles is ignorant of this pursuit. But if you please to kill him, lend him one angry look or one harsh word, and you shall soon conclude how strong a power your absolute authority holds over his life and end.

Cal. You have forgot, Pentheus. How still I have a father.

Pen. But remember I am a sister, though to me this brother hath been, you know, unkind, O, most unkind! Cal. Christalla, Philema, where are ye? — Lady, your check lies in my silence.

Re-enter Christalla and Philema.

ACT IV

SCENE I.

Enter Ithocles and Armestes.

Ith. Forbear your inquisition: curiosity is of too subtle and too searching nature, in fears of love too quick, too slow of credit. — I am not what you doubt me.

Arm. Nephew, be, then, as I would wish; — all is not right. — Good heaven confirm your resolutions for dependence; on worthy ends, which may advance your quiet; Ith. I did the noble Orgius much injury. But grief'd Pentheus more: I now repent it. — Now, uncle, now; this "now" is now too late. So provident is folly in sad issue, that after-wit, like bankrupts' debts, stands talk'd of without all possibilities of payment.

Sure, he's an honest, very honest gentleman; a man of single meaning.

Arm. Yet, nephew, 'tis the tongue informs our ears; our eyes can never pierce into the thoughts. 1 The palace. Ithocles' apartment. 2 Sincere.
For they are lodg’d too inward:— but I question
No truth in Orgilus. — The princess, sir.

Ith. The princess! ha!
Arm. With her the Prince of Argos.

Enter NEARCHUS, leading CALANTHA; AMELIUS, CHRISTALLA, PHILEMA.

Near. Great fair one, grace my hopes with any instance
Of livery, from the allowance of your favour;
This little spark—

[Attempts to take a ring from her finger.]

Cal. A toy!

Near. Love feasts on toys,
For Cupid is a child; — vouchsafe this bounty:
It cannot be denied.

Cal. You shall not value,
Sweet cousin, at a price, what I count cheap;
So cheap, that let him take it who dares stoop for’t,
And give it at next meeting to a mistress:
She ’ll thank him for’t, perhaps.

Cuts the ring to ITHOCLES.

Arm. The ring, sir, is
The princess’s; I could have took it up.

Ith. Learn manners, prithee.— To the blessed owner,
Upon my knees—

Kneels and offers it to CALANTHA.

Near. ’Ys saucy.

Cal. This pretty! I am, belike, “a mistress” — wondrous pretty!
Let the man keep his fortune, since he found it;
He’s worthy on’t.— On, cousin!

Ith. [to AMELIUS.] Follow, spaniel; —
I’ll force ye to a fawning else.

Arm. You dare not.

Exeunt. MANENT ITH. and ARM.

Ith. My lord, you were too forward.

Arm. Look ye, uncle, some such there are whose liberal contents
Sworn without care in every sort of plenty;
Who after full repasts can lay them down
To sleep; and they sleep, uncle: in which silence
Their very dreams present ’em choice of pleasures,
Wherein obsequy, uncle — of rare object;
Here heaps of gold, there increments of honours,
Now change of garments, then the votes of people;
Anon varieties of beauties, courting,
In futilities of the night, exchange of dalliance:
Yet these are still but dreams. Give me felicity
Of which my senses waking are partakers,
A real, visible, material happiness;
And then, too, when I stagger in expectation
Of the least comfort that can cherish life.—
I saw it, sir, I saw it; for it came
From her own hand.

Arm. The princess threw it t’ye.

Near. Brave me!

Org. Your excellence mistakes his temper;
For Ithocles in fashion of his mind
Is beautiful, soft, gentle, the clear mirror
Of absolute perfection.

Arm. Was ’t your modesty
Term’d any of the prince’s servants “spaniel”? Your nurse, sure, taught you other language.

Ith. Language!

Near. A gallant man-at-arms is here, a doctor
In feats of chivalry, blunt and rough-spoken,
Vouchsafing not the fustian of civility,
Which [less] rash spirits style good manners.

Arm. Manners!

Org. No more, illustrious sir; ’tis outwiser Ithocles.

Near. You might have understood who I am.

Ith. Yes.

Near. I did; else — but the presence calm’d th’ affront —

Y’ are cousin to the princess.

Near. To the king, too; a certain instrument that lent supportance
To you colossic greatness — to that king too,
You might have added.

Ith. There is more divinity
In beauty than in majesty.

* Badge of a retainer.

* Q. omits.
Remember what I told thee long before, These tears shall be my witness.

Tec. Las, good man! Revenge proves its own executioner.

Org. Dark sentences are for Apollo's priests; I am not Oedipus.

Tec. My hour is come; 141 Cheer up the king; farewell to all.—O Sparta, O Lacedaemon! Exit. Arm. If prophetic fire Have warmed this old man's bosom, we might construe His words to fatal sense.

Ith. Leave to the powers 180 Above us the effects of their decrees; My burthen lies within me: servile fears Prevent no great effects. — Divine Calantha! Arm. The gods be still propitious! Exeunt Ithocles and Armestes.

Org. Something oddly The book-man prated, yet 'a talk'd it weeping; Let craft with courtesy a while confer, 181 Revenge proves its own executioner. Con it again;—for what? It shall not puzzle me; 'Tis dotage of a withered brain. — Penthea Forbade me not her presence; I may see her. And gaze my fill. Why see her, then, I may, 180 When, if I faint to speak — I must be silent. Exit.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Bassanes, Grausis, and Phulas.

Bass. Pray, use your recreations, all the service
I will expect is quietness amongst ye; Take liberty at home, abroad, at all times, And in your charities appease the gods, Whom I, with my distractions, have offended. Grau. Fair blessings on thy heart! P Us. [Aside.] Here's a rare change! My lord, to cure the itch, is surely gilded; The unkold in conceit hath cast his horns. Bass. Betake ye to your several occasions; And wherein I have heretofore been faulty, Let your constructions mildly pass it over. Henceforth I'll study reformation,—more I have not for employment. Grau. O, sweet man! Thou art the very "Honeycomb of Honesty." 4 Phu. The "Garland of Good-will."—Old lady, hold up Thy reverend smont, and trot behind me softly, As it becomes a mow 8 of ancient carriage.

Exeunt Grausis and Phulas.

Bass. Beasts, only capable of sense, enjoy The benefit of food and ease with thankful- ness; Such silly creatures, with a grudging, kick not Against the portion nature hath bestow'd: But men, endow'd with reason and the use

1 Q. supplying. 2 Gifford suggests so.
Of reason, to distinguish from the chaff
Of abject scarcity the quintessence,
Soul, and elixir of the earth's abundance,
Treasures of the sea, the air, ray, heaven,
Reposing at these glories of creation
Are verier beasts than beasts; and of those Beasts

The worst am I: I, who was made a monarch
Of what a heart could wish for,—a chaste
wife,—

Endeavour'd what in me lay to pull down
That temple built for adoration only,
And level'd in the dust of causeless scandal.
But, to redeem a sacrilege so impious,
Humility shall pour, before the deities
I have incensed, a largess of more patience
Than their displeased altars can require:
No tempests of commotion shall disquiet
The calm of my composure.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. I have found thee,
Thou patron of more horrors than the bulk

Of manhood, ho'op'd about with ribs of iron,
Can cram within thy breast: Pentheas, Bassanes,

Curst by thy jealousies,—more, by thy dotage,
Is left a prey to words.

Bass. Exercise
Your trials for admission to my pénance;

I am resolv'd.

Org. Play not with misery
Past cure: some angry minister of fate hath Depos'd the empress of her soul, her reason,
From its most proper throne; but, what's the miracle
More new, I, I have seen it, and yet live!

Bass. You may delude my senses, not my judgment;
'T is anchor'd into a firm resolution;
Dalliance of mirth or wit can no'er unfix it:
Practise yet further.

Org. May thy death of love to her
Damn all thy comforts to a lasting fast
From every joy of life! Thou barren rock,
By thee we have been split in ken 2 of harbour.

Enter Ithocles, Pentheas, her hair about her ears, [Armogates, Philema, and Christalla.

Ith. Sister, look up; your Ithocles, your
brother,
Speaks 't ye; why do you weep? Dear, turn
not from me.—
Here is a killing sight: lo, Bassanes,
A lamentable object!

Org. Man, dost see 't?
Sports are more gamesome; am I yet in merriment?

Why dost not laugh?

Bass. Divine and best of ladies,
Please to forget my outrage; mercy ever
Cannot but lodge under a roof so excellent.
I have cast off that cruelty of frenzy

s Test me. 8 Sight.

Which once appear'd imposture, and then juggled,
To check my sleep of rest.

Org. Was I in earnest?

Pen. Sure, if we were all Sirens, we should sing pitifully,

And 't were a comedy music, when in parts
One sung another's knell. The turtle sings
When he hath lost his mate; and yet some say
He must be dead first. 'T is a fine deceit
To pass away in a dream; indeed, I've slept
With mine eyes open a great while. No falsehood
Equals a broken faith; there's not a hair

Sticks on my head but, like a leaden plummet,
It sinks me to the grave. I must creep thither;
The journey is not long.

Ith. But, thou, Pentheas,
Hast many years, I hope, to number yet,
Even thou canst travel that way:

Bass. Let the sun first
Be wrap'd up in an everlasting darkness,
Before the light of nature, chiefly form'd
For the whole world's delight, feel an eclipse
So universal!

Org. Wisdom, look ye, begins

To rave!—Art thou mad too, antiquity?

Pen. Since I was first a wife, I might have been
Mother to many pretty prattling babes;
They would have smil'd when I smil'd, and for certain

I should have cri'd when they cri'd: — truly,
brother,

My father would have pick'd me out a husband,
And then my little ones had been no bastards;
But 't is too late for me to marry now;
I am past child-bearing; 't is not my fault.

Bass. Fall on me, if there be a burning Aetna,

And bury me in flames! Sweats hot as sulphur
Boil through my pores! Affliction hath in store
No torture like to this.

Org. Behold a patience!

Lay by thy whining gray dissimulation,
Do something worth a chronicle; show justice
Upon the author of this mischief: dig out
The jealousies that hatch'd this thraldom first
With thine own poniard. Every antic rapture
Can roar as thine does.

Ith. Orgilus, forbear.

Bass. Disturb him not; it is a talking motion Provided for my torment. What a fool am I
To bend passion! Ere I'll speak a word,
I will look on and burst.

Pen. I lov'd you once. [To Orgilus!]

Org. Thou didst, wrong'd creature: in despite of malice,

For it I love thee ever.

Pen. Spare your hand; I believe me, I'll not hurt it.

Org. My 6 heart too.

Q. appear'd, Impostors. 4 Puppet. Q. bendy.
Q. Faine my, and omit [Pen.] in next line.
[Pen.] Complain not though I wring it hard. I'll kiss it; O. 'tis a fine soft palm! — hark, in thine ear; Like whom do I look, prithee? — Nay, no whispering. Goodness! we had been happy; too much happiness Will make folk proud, they say — but that is he — Points at ITHOCLES. And yet he paid for 't home; alas, his heart is crept into the cabinet of the princess; We shall have points 1 and bride-laces. Remember, When we last gather'd roses in the garden, I found my wits; but truly you lost yours. That's he, and still 'tis he. [Again pointing at ITHOCLES.] Ith. Poor soul, how idly Her fancies guide her tongue! Bass. [Aside.] Keep in, vexation, And break not into clamour. Org. [Aside.] She has tutor'd me: Some powerful inspiration checks my lassiness. 128 Now let me kiss your hand, grieve'd beauty, Pen. Kiss it. — Alack, alack, his lips be wondrous cold. Dear soul, 'a's lost his colour: have ye seen A straying heart? All crannies! every drop Of blood is turned to an amethyst, 128 Which married bachelors hang in their ears. Org. Peace usher her into Elysium! — If this be madness, madness is an oracle. Exit. Ith. Christalla, Philema, when slept my sister, Her ravings are so wild? Chris. Sir, not these ten days. 128 Phil. We watch by her continually; besides, We can not any way pray her to eat. Bass. O, misery of miseries! Pen. Take comfort; You may live well, and die a good old man. By yea and nay, an oath not to be broken, 140 If you had join'd our hands once in the temple, 'T was since my father died, for had he liv'd He would have done 't,— I must ha'3 call'd you father. — O, my wrack'd honour! ruin'd by those tyrants, A cruel bro'ther and a desperate dowager! 142 There is no peace left for a ravish'd wife Widow'd by lawless marriage; to all memory Penetha's, poor Penetha's name is strumpeted: But since her blood was season'd by the forfeit Of noble shame with mixtures of pollution, 150 Her blood — 'tis just — be henceforth never height'ned With taste of sustenance! Starve; let that fulness Whose plurisy 2 hath fever'd faith and modesty — Forgive me; O, I faint! Arm. [Falls into the arms of her Attendants.] Be not so wilful, Swell niece, to work thine own destruction. Ith. Nature 145 Will call her daughter monster! — What! not eat? Refuse the only ordinary means Which are ordain'd for life? Be not, my sister, A murderess to thyself. — Hear'st thou this, Bassanes? 146 Bass. Foh! I am busy; for I have not thoughts Enow to think: all shall be well anon. 'T is tumbling in my head; there is a mastery In art to fatten and keep smooth the outside; Yes, and to comfort up the vital spirits 146 Without the help of food, fumes or perfumes, Perfumes or fumes. Let her alone; I'll search out The trick on 't. Pen. Lead me gently; heavens reward ye. Griefs are sure friends; they leave without control Nor sure nor comforts for a leprous soul. Exeunt the maids supporting PENTHEA. Bass. I grant ye; and will put in practice instantly 170 What you shall still admire: 't is wonderful, 'T is super-singular, not to be match'd; Yet, when I've done 't, I've done 't: — ye shall all thank me. Exit. Arm. The sight is full of terror. Ith. On my soul Lies such an infinite clog of massy dulness, 174 As that I have not sense enough to feel it. — See, uncle, th' angry 8 thing returns again; Shall's welcome him with thunder? We are haunt'd, And must use exorcism to conjure down This spirit of malevolence. Arm. M ily, nephew. Enter NEARCHUS and AMELUS. Near. I come not, sir, to chide your late disorder, Admitting that th' inurement to a roughness In soldiers of your years and fortunes, chiefly, So lately prosperous, hath not yet shook off The custom of the war in hours of leisure; 184 Nor shall you need excuse, since y'e are to render Account to that fair excellence, the princess, Who in her private gallery expects it From your own mouth alone: I am a messenger But to her pleasure. Ith. Excellent Nearchus, 190 Be prince still of my services, and conquer Without the combat of dispute; I honour ye. Near. The king is on a sudden indispos'd, Physicians are call'd for; 't were fit, Armostes, You should be near him. Arm. Sir, I kiss your hands. Exeunt ITHOCLES and ARMOSETES. Near. Amelus, I perceive Calantha's bosom Is warm'd with other fires than such as can Take strength from any fuel of the love I might address to her. Young Ithocles, Or ever I mistake, is lord ascendant 194 Q. angry.
Of her devotions; one, to speak him truly,
In every disposition nobly fashioned.

_Ame._ But can your highnessbrook to be so rival'd,
Considering the inequality of the persons? —
Near. I can, Amelius; for affections injur'd
By tyranny or rigour of compulsion,
Like temp'est-threat'ned trees unfirmly rooted,
Ne'er spring to timely growth: observe, for instance,
Life-spent Panthea and unhappy Orgilus.

_Ame._ How does your grace determine?

Near. To be jealous —
In public of what privately I'll further;
And though they shall not know, yet they shall find it.

_Exeunt._

[Scene III.]

_Enter Hemophil and Gronkas leading Amy-clas, and placing him in a chair; followed by Armoستes [with a box], Crotolon, and Propilus._

_Amy._ Our daughter is not near?

_Arm._ She is retir'd, sir,
Into her gallery.

_Amy._ Where's the prince our cousin?

_Pro._ New walk'd into the grove, my lord.

_Amy._ All leave us
Except Armoستes, and you, Crotolon;
We would be private.

_Pro._ Health unto your majesty! —

_Exeunt Propilus, Hemophil, and Gronkas._

_Amy._ What! Tecnicus is gone?

_Arm._ He is to Delphos;
And to your royal hands presents this box.

_Amy._ Unseal it, good Armoستes; therein lie
The secrets of the oracle; out with it:

[Armoستes takes out the scroll._

Apollo live our patron! Read, Armoستes._

_Arm._ [reads.] The plot in which the vine takes root
 Begins to dry from head to foot;
The stock soon withering, want of sap
Doth cause to quail the budding grape;
But from the neighbouring elm a dew
 Shall drop, and feed the plot anew.

_Amy._ That is the oracle: what exposition
Makes the philosopher?

_Arm._ This brief one only.

[Reads.] The plot is Sparta, the drie vine the
king;
The quailing grape his daughter; but the thing
Of most importance, not to be reveal'd,
Is a near prince, the elm: the rest conceiv'd.

_Tecnicus._

_Amy._ Enough; although the opening of this riddle
Be but itself a riddle, yet we construe
How near our labouring age draws to a rest.
But must Calantha quali too? that young grape
Ut'fully budded! I could mourn for her;
Her tenderness hath yet deserv'd no rigour
So to be cast by fate.

1 An apartment in the palace.

_Arm._ You misapply, sir,—
With favour let me speak it, — what Apollo =
Hath clouded in his sense. I here conjecture Her marriage with some neighbouring prince, the dew
Of which befriending elm shall ever strengthen
Your subjects with a sovereignty of power.

_Crot._ Besides, most gracious lord, the pith of oracles
Is to be then digested when th' events
Expond their truth, not brought as soon to light
As utter'd. Truth is child of Time; and herein
I find no scruple, rather cause of comfort,
With unity of kingdoms.

_Amy._ May it prove so, =
For weal of this dear nation! — Where is Ithocles? =

_Arm._ Armoستes, Crotolon, when this wither'd vine
Of my frail carcass, on the funeral pile
Is fir'd into its ashes, let that young man
Be hedg'd about still with your cares and
loves =

_Much owe I to his worth, much to his service. —
Let such as wait come in now._

_Arm._ All attend here!

_Enter Calanthia, Ithocles, Propilus, Orgilus, Euphranassa, Hemophil, and Gronkas._

_Cal._ Dear sir! king! father!

_ITH._ O my royal master!

_Amy._ Cleave not my heart, sweet twins of my life's solace,
With your forejudging fears; there is no
 physic
So cunningly restorative to cherish
The fall of age, or call back youth and vigour.
As your consents in duty, I will shake off
This languishing disease of time, to quicken Fresh pleasures in these drooping hours of sadness.

_Is fair Euphranassa married yet to Propilus? _

_Crot._ This morning, gracious lord.

_Amy._ This very morning;
Which, with your highness' leave, you may observe too.

_Our sister looks, methinks, mirthful and sprightly,
As if her chaster fancy could already Expound the riddle of her gain in losing
A trifle maids know only that they know not.
Fish! prithie, bleach not; 'tis but honest
change
Of fashion in the garment, loose for strait,
And so the modest maid is made a wife. =

_Shrewd business — is't not, sister? _

_Euph._ You are pleasant.

_Amy._ We thank thee, Orgilus; this mirth becomes thee.

_But wherefore sits the court in such a silence? _

_Cal._ Your late indisposition, sir, forbade it.

_Amy._ Be it thy charge, Calantha, to set forward
The bridal sports, to which I will be present;
If not, at least consenting. — Mine own Ithocles, I have done little for thee yet.

Ith. To the full height I stand in. Y' have built me

Cal. [Aside.] Now or never! — =

May I propose a suit?

Amy. Demand, and have it.

Cal. Pray, sir, give me this young man, and no further

Account him yours than he deserves in all things

To be thought worth mine: I will esteem him

According to his merit.

Amy. Still thou'rt my daughter, =

Still grow'st upon my heart. — [To ITHOCLES.]

Give me thine hand; —

Calanthus, take thine own: in noble actions

Thou'lt find him firm and absolute. — I would not

Have parted with thee, Ithocles, to any

But to a mistress who is all what I am.

Ith. A change, great king, most wist for, cause the same.

Cal. [Aside to ITHOCLES.] Th'art mine. Have I now kept my word?

Ith. [Aside to Calanthus.] Divinely.

Org. Rich fortunes guard, [the] 1 favour of a princess

Rock thee, brave man, in ever-crowned plenty! Y' are minion of the time; be thankful for it.

[Aside.] Ho! here's a swing in destiny — apparent!

The youth is up on tiptoes, yet may stumble.

Amy. On to your recreations. — Now convey me

Unto my bed-chamber: none on his forehead

Wear a distempered look.

All. The gods preserve ye!

Cal. [Aside to ITHOCLES.] Sweet, be not from my sight.

Ith. [Aside to Calanthus.] My whole felicity! [Exeunt carrying off the king. Org. Sings ITHOCLES.

Org. Shall I be bold, my lord?

Ith. Thou canst not, Orgilus. Call me thine own; for Prophilius must henceforth

Be all thy sister's: friendship, though it cease not

In marriage, yet is oft at less command

Than when a single freedom can dispose it.

Org. Most right, my most good lord, my most great lord,

My gracious princely lord, I might add, royal.

Ith. Royal! A subject royal?

Org. Why not, pray, sir?

The sovereignty of kingdoms in their nanage

Stoop'd to desert, not birth; there's as much merit

In clearness of affection as in puddle

Of generation: you have conquer'd love

Even in the loveliest; if I greatly err not, 110

The son of Venus hath bequesth'd his quiver

To Ithocles his manage, 2 by whose arrows

Calanthus's breast is open'd.

1 Q. 60.

2 To the control of Ithocles.

Ith. Can't be possible!

Org. I was myself a piece of suitors once,

And forward in preferment too; so forward —

That, speaking truth, I may without offence, sir,

Presume to whisper that my hopes, and — bark ye —

My certainty of marriage stood assured

With as firm footing — by your leave — any's

Now at this very instant — but —

Ith. 'T is granted: 115

And for a league of privacy between us,

Read o'er my bosom and partake a secret;

The princess is contracted mine.

Org. Still, why not?

I now appland her wisdom: when your kingdom

Stands seated in your will, secure and settled, 125

I dare pronounce you will be a just monarch;

Greece must admire and tremble.

Ith. Then the sweetness

Of so imparadis'd a comfort, Orgilus!

It is to banquet with the gods.

Org. The glory

Of numerous children, potency of nobles, 130

Bent knees, hearts pay'd to tread on!

Ith. With a friendship

So dear, so fast as thine.

Org. I am unfitting

For office; but for service —

Ith. We'll distinguish

Our fortunes merely in the title; partners

In all respects else but the bed.

Org. The bed! 135

Forbidd all Jove's own jealousy! — till lastly

We slip down in the common earth together,

And there our beds are equal; save some monument

To show this was the king, and this the subject. — Soft sad music.

List, what sad sounds are these, — extremely and once? 140

Ith. Sure, from Penæus's lodgings.

Org. Hack a voice too.

A Soprano [within].

O, no more, no more, too late

Nights are spent; the burning tapers

Of a life as chaste as fate,

Pure as are unwritten papers,

Are burnt out: no heat, no light

Now remains; 't is ever night.

Love is dead; let lovers' eyes,

Lock'd in endless dreams,

Th' extremes of all extremes,

Ope no more, for now Love dies,

Now Love dies — implying

Love's martyrs must be ever, ever dying.

Ith. O, my misgiving heart!

Org. A horrid stillness

Succeeds this deathful air; let's know the reason:

Tread softly; there is mystery in mourning.

Exeunt.
Scene [IV].

Enter Christella and Philoena, bringing in Penthea in a chair, veiled: two other Servants placing two chairs, one on the one side, and the other with an engine on the other. The Maids sit down at her feet, mourning. The Servants go out: meet them Ithocles and Orgilus.

Ith. [Aside to Orgilus.] 'Tis done; that on her right hand.

Org. Good: begone.

[Exit Servants.]

Ith. Soft peace enrich this room!

Org. How fares the lady?

Ith. Dead!

Phil. Dead!

Chris. Starry'd!

Chris. Starry'd!

Ith. Me miserable!

Org. Tell us how parted she from life.

Phil. She call'd for music,
And bade some gentle voice to tune a farewell
To life and griefs: Christella touch'd the lute;
I wept the funeral song.

Chris. Which scarce was ended
But her last breath seal'd in these hollow sounds,
"O cruel Ithocles and injur'd Orgilus!"
So down she drew her veil, so died.

Ith. So did! So did! 13

Org. Up! you are messengers of death; go from us;
Here's woe enough to court without a prompter:
Away! and — hark ye — till you see us next,
No syllable that she is dead. — Away,
Keep a smooth brow.

Exeunt Christella and Philoena.

My lord,—

Ith. Another is not left me.

Org. Take that chair;
I'll seat me here in this: between us sits
The object of our sorrows; some few tears
We'll part among us: I perhaps can mix
One lamentable story to prepare 'em. —

There, there; sit there, my lord.

Ith. Yes, as you please.

Ithocles sits down, and is catch'd
In the engine.

What means this treachery?

Org. Caught! you are caught,
Young master; 'tis thy throne of coronation,
Thou fool of greatness! See, I take this veil off;
Survey a beauty with'd by the flames
Of an insulting Phæton, her brother.

Ith. Thou mean'st to kill me basely?

Org. I foreknew
The last act of her life, and train'd thee hither
To sacrifice a tyrant to a turtle.
You dreamt of kingdoms, did ye? How to becom

ACT V

SCENE I.¹

Enter Bassanes, alone.

Bass. Athens—to Athens I have sent, the nursery
Of Greece for learning and the fount of knowledge;
For here in Sparta there’s not left amongst us
One wise man to direct; we’re all turn’d mad-cap.
’Tis said Apollo is the god of herbs,
Then certainly he knows the virtue of ’em:
To Delphos I have sent too. If there can be
A help for nature, we are sure yet.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. Honour
Attend thy counsel ever!
Bass. I beseech thee
With all my heart, let me go from thee quietly;
I will not aught to do with thee, of all men. ¹¹
The doubles² of a hare,—or, in a morning,
Salutes from a sly-footed witch,—to drop
Three drops of blood at th’ nose just and no
more,—
Croaking of ravens, or the screech of owls, ¹²
Are so boding mischief as thy crossing
My private meditations. Shun me, prithee;
And if I cannot love thee heartily,
I’ll love thee as well as I can.
Org. Noble Bassanes,
Mistake me not.
Bass. Phew! then we shall be troubled. ¹³
Thou wilt ordain’d my plague—heaven make me thankful,
And give me patience too, heaven, I beseech thee.
Org. Accept a league of amity; for honours,
I vow, by my best genius, in a syllable,
Never to speak vexation. I will study
Service and friendship, with a zealous sorrow
For my past inconstancy towards ye.
Bass. Hey-day, good words, good words! I must believe ’em,
And be a compass for my labour.
Org. So hard a language; your misdoubt is causeless.

For instance, if you promise to put on
A constancy of patience, such a patience
As chronicle or history ne’er mentioned,
As follows not example, but shall stand
A wonder and a theme for imitation,
The first, the index,² pointing to a second,
I will acquaint ye with an unmatch’d secret,
Whose knowledge to your griefs shall set a period.
Bass. Thou canst not, Orgilus; ’t is in the power
Of the gods only: yet, for satisfaction,
Because I note an earnest in thine utterance,

Unfor’d and naturally free, be resolute. ¹⁴
The virgin-hays shall not withstand the lightning
With a more careless danger than my constancy
The full of thy relation. Could it move
Distraction in a senseless marble statue,
It should find me a rock: I do expect now
Some truth of unheard moment.
Org. To your patience
You must add privacy, as strong in silence.
As mysteries lock’d-up in Jove’s own bosom.
Bass. A skull hid in the earth a treble age
Shall sooner prate.
Org. Lastly, to such direction
As the severity of a glorious action
Deserves to lead your wisdom and your judgement,
You ought to yield obedience.
Bass. With assurance
Org. Of will and thankfulness.
Bass. With many courage
Org. Please, then, to follow me.
Bass. Where’er, I fear not.

SCENE II.²

Loud music. Enter Geronias and Hemophil, leading Euphranea; Christalla and Philema, leading Propheilus; Nearcharus supporting Calantha; Crotolon and Amelius.
Cease loud music; all make a stand.
Cal. We miss our servant Ithocles and Orgilus;
On whom attend they?
Crot. My son, gracious princess,
Whisper’d some new device, to which these reveal
Should be but usher: wherein I conceive
Lord Ithocles and himself are actors,
Cal. A fair excuse for absence; as for Bassanes,
Delights to him are troublesome: Armestes
Is with the king?
Crot. He is.
Cal. On to the dance!—
Dear cousin, hand you the bride; the bridegroom must be Intrested to my courtship, Be not jealous,
Euphranea; I shall scarcely prove a temptress.
Fall to our dance.

MUSIC.

Nearcharus dances with Euphranea, Propheilus with Calantha, Christalla with Hemophil, Philema with Geronias.

They dance the first change, during which Armestes enters.

Arm. (in Calantha’s ear.) The king your father’s dead.
Cal. To the other change.
Arm. Is’t possible? They dance again.

Enter Bassanes.

Bass. [whispers Calantha.] O, madam! Penthese, poor Penthese’s starved.

² Q. doubters. ³ The index-hand.
⁴ Satisfied.
⁵ A state-room in the palace.
Cal.  Beshrew thee! —
Lead to the next.

Bass.  Amazement dulls my senses.
They dance again.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. [whispers Calanthe.] Brave Ithocles is murder’d, murder’d cruelly.
Cal.  How dull this music sounds! Strike up more sprightly;
Our footstools are not active like our heart,
Which treads the nimble measure.

Org.  I am thunderstruck.
The last change.  Cease music.

Cal.  So I let us breathe awhile. — Hath not this motion,
Rais’d fresher colour on your cheeks?

Near.  Sweet princess,
A perfect purity of blood enamels
The beauty of your white.

Cal.  We all look cheerfully;
And, cousin, tis, methinks, a rare presumption
In any who profess our lawful pleasures
Before their own sour censure, t’ interrupt
The custom of this ceremony bluntly.

Near.  None dares, lady.
Cal.  Yes, yes; some hollow voice deliver’d to me
How that the king was dead.

Arm.  The king is dead:
That fatal news was mine; for in mine arms
He breath’d his last, and with his crown bequeath’d ye
Your mother’s wedding ring; which here I tender.

Crot.  Most strange!
Cal.  Peace crown his ashes! We are queen, then.

Near.  Long live Calanthe! Sparta’s sovereign queen!

All.  Long live the queen!

Cal.  What whispered Bassanes?

Bass.  That my Penthea, miserable soul,
Was perish’d to death.

Cal.  She’s happy; she hath finish’d
A long and painful progress.— A third murmurr’d Piero’d mine unwilling ears.

Org.  That Ithocles was murder’d; — rather butcher’d, had not bravery
Of an undaunted spirit, conquering terror,
Proclaim’d his last act triumph over ruin.

Arm.  How! murder’d!

Cal.  By whose hand?

Org.  By mine; this weapon
Was instrument to my revenge: the reasons
Are just, and known; quit him of these, and then Never liv’d gentleman of greater merit,
Hope or abiliment ¹ to steer a kingdom.

Crot.  Fie, Orgilus!

Euph.  Fie, brother!

Cal.  You have done it?

Bass.  How it was done let him report, the forfeit

Of whose allegiance to our laws doth covet
Rigour of justice; but that done it is,
Mine eyes have been an evidence of credite,
Too sure to be convince’d. ² Armestes, rent not Thine arteries with hearing the bare circumstances
Of these calamities; thou ’st lost a nephew,
A niece, and I a wife: continue man still;
Make me the pattern of digesting evils,
Who can outlive my mighty ones, not shrinking
At such a pressure as would sink a soul
Into what’s most of death, the worst of horrors.
But I have seal’d a covenant with sadness,
And enter’d into bonds without condition.
To stand these tempests calmly; mark me, noble,
I do not shed a tear, not for Penthea!
Excellent misery!

Cal.  We begin our reign
With a first act of justice: thy confession,
Unhappy Orgilus, dooms thee a sentence.
But yet thy father’s or thy sister’s presence
Shall be excuse’d. — Give, Crotolon, a blessing
To thy lost son; — Euphrenes, take a farewell;

And both be gone.

Crot. [to Orgilus.] Confirm thee, noble sorrow,
In worthy resolution!

Euph.  Could my tears speak,
My griefs were slight.

Org.  All good ness dwell amongst ye!

Enjoy my sister, Propilus: my vengeance
Aim’d never at thy prejudice.

Cal.  Now withdraw.

Blovdy relater of thy stains in blood,
For that thou hast reported him, whose fortunes
And life by thee are both at once snatch’d from him.

With honourable mention, make thy choice
Of what death likes thee best; there’s all our bounty.

But to excuse delays, let me, dear cousin,
Intreat you and these lords see execution
Instant before ye part.

Near.  Your will command us.

Org. One suit, just queen, my last: vouchsafe your clemency,
That by no common hand I be divided
From this my humble frailty.

Cal.  To their wisdome.

Who are to be spectators of thine end
I make the reference.  Those that are dead
Are dead; had they not now died, of necessity
They must have paid the debt they ow’d to nature
One time or other. — Use dispatch, my lords;
We’ll suddenly prepare our convocation.

Exeunt Calanthe, Philena, and Christalla.

¹ Capacity.

² Confused.
Arm. 'Tis strange these tragedies should never touch on
Her female pity.

Bass. She has a masculine spirit;
And wherefore should I pule, and, like a girl,
Put finger in the eye? Let's be all toughness,
Without distinction betwixt sex and sex.

Now, Orgilus, thy choice?

Org. To bleed to death.

Arm. The executioner?

Org. Myself, no surgeon;
I am well skill'd in letting blood. Bind fast
This arm, that so the pipes may from their conduits
Convey a full stream; here's a skilful instrument.

[Shows his dagger.]

Only I am a beggar to some charity
To speed me in this execution
By lending th' other prick to th' other arm,
When this is bubbling life out.

Bass. I am for ye;
It most concerns my art, my care, my credit. —
Quick, fillet both his arms.

Org. Gramercy, friendship! Such courtesies are real which flow cheerfully
Without an expectation of requital.
Rescue me a staff in this extremity.

[They give him a staff.]

— If a proneness
Or custom in my nature from my cradle
Had been inclin'd to fierce and eager bloodshed,
A coward guilt, hid in a coward quaking,
Would have betray'd fame to ignoble flight
And vagabond pursuit of dreadful safety:
But look upon my steadfastness, and scorn not
The snares of my fortune, which, since Bassanes
Was husband to Penthea, had lain bed-rid.

We trifle time in words: — thus I show cunning
In opening of a vein too full, too lively.

[Opens the vein with his dagger.]

Arm. Desperate courage!

[Near.] Honourable infamy!

Hem. I tremble at the sight.

Gr. Would I were loose! 118

Bass. It sparkles like a lusty wine new broached;
The vessel must be sound from which it issues.

Grasp hard this other stick — I'll be as nimble—
But prithee, look not pale — have at ye! stretch out
Thine arm with vigour and with unhook virtue.

[Opens the vein.]

Good! O, I envy not a rival, fitted
To conquer in extremities. This pastime
Appears majestic; some high-tun'd poem
Hereafter shall deliver to posterity
The writer's glory and his subject's triumph.

How is 't, man? Drop not yet.

Org. I feel no pallsies.
On a pair-royal do I wait in death;
My sovereign, as his liege-man; on my mistress,

As a devoted servant; and on Ithocles,
As if no brave, yet no unworthy enemy.

Nor did I use an engine to entrap
His life, out of a slavish fear to combat
Youth, strength, or cunning; but for that I Durst not
Engage the goodness of a cause on fortune,
By which his name might have outfaced my vengeance.

O, Tancius, inspir'd with Phoebus' fire!
I call to mind thyurgy, 't was perfect;
Revenge proves its own executioner.
When feeble man is bending to his mother,
The dust 'a was first fram'd on, thus he totters.

Bass. Life's fountain is dry'd up.

Org. So falls the standard.

Of my prerogative in being a creature!
A mist hangs o'er mine eyes, the sun's bright splendour
Is clouded in an everlasting shadow;
Welcome, thou ice, that sittest about my heart
No heat can ever thaw thee.

Dies. Near.

Speech hath left him. 119

Bass. 'A has shook hands with time; his funeral urn
Shall be my charge: remove the bloodless body.
The coronation must require attendance;
That past, my few days can be but one mourning.

Exeunt. 120

SCENE III. 4

An altar covered with white; two lights of virgin wax, during which music of recorders; enter four bearing Ithocles on a hearse, or in a chair, in a rich robe, with a crown on his head; place him on one side of the altar. After him enter Calanthia in a white robe and crown'd; Eu-Phrane, Philime, and Christallia, in white; Ne-archus, Armostr, Crotox, Propilus, Amphil, Bassanes, Hemophi, and Gronias.

Calanthia, goes and kneels before the altar, the rest stand off, the women kneeling behind, the recorders cease during her devotions. Soft music, Calanthia and the rest rise, doing obeisance to the altar.

Cal. Our orisons are heard; the gods are merciful.

Now tell me, you whose loyalties pay tribute
To us your lawful sovereign, how unskilful
Your duties or obedience is to render Subjection to the sceptre of a virgin.

Who have been ever fortunate in princes
Of masculine and stirring composition.
A woman has enough to govern wisely
Her own demeanours, passions, and divisions.
A nation warlike and inured to practice
Of policy and labour cannot brook
A feminine authority: we therefore Command your counsel, how you may advise us
In choosing of a husband whose abilities
Can better guide this kingdom.

Near. Royal lady, 28
Your law is in your will.

4 Shilk.
6 A temple.
Arm. We have seen tokens Of constancy too lately to mistrust it.
Crot. Yet, if your highness settle on a choice
By your own judgment both allow'd and lik'd of,
Sparta may grow in power, and proceed To an increasing height.

Cal. Hold you the same mind?
Bass. Alas, great mistress, reason is so clouded
With the thick darkness of my infinite woes, That I forecast nor dangers, hopes, or safety. Give me some corner of the world to wear out The remnant of the minutes I must number, Where I may hear no sounds but sad complaints Of virgins who have lost contracting partners; Of husbands howling that their wives were ravish'd By some untimely fate; of friends divided By churlish opposition; or of fathers Weeping upon their children's slaughtered carcases; Or daughters groaning o'er their fathers' hearse.

And I can dwell there, and with these keep consort As musical as theirs. What can you look for As an old, foolish, peevish, doting man
But craziness of age?

Cal. Cousin of Argos, —
Near. Madam? Cal.
Near. Were I presently To choose you for my lord, I'Il open freely What articles I would propose to treat on Before our marriage.

Near. Name them, virtuous lady.

Cal. I would presume you would retain the royalty Of Sparta in her own bounds; then in Argos Armoestes might be viceroy; in Messene Might Crotolon bear sway; and Bassanes —

Bass. I, queen! alas, what I?

Cal. Be Sparta's marshal.

The multitudes of high employments could not But set a peace to private griefs. These gentlemen, Gronoas and Hemophil, with worthy pensions, Should wait upon your person in your chamber.

I would bestow Christalla on Amelius. She'll prove a constant wife; and Philema Should into Vesta's Temple.

Bass. This is a testament! It sounds not like conditions on a marriage.

Near. All this should be perform'd.

Cal. Lastly, for Prephilus,
He should be, cousin, solemnly invested In all those honours, titles, and preferments Which his dear friend and my neglected husband Too short a time enjoy'd.

Pro. I am unworthy To live in your remembrance.

Euph. Excellent lady! —

Near. Madam, what means that word, "neglected husband"?

Cal. Forgive me: — now I turn to thee, thou shadow
Of my contracted lord! Behold witness all,
I put my mother's wedding-ring upon His finger; 'twas my father's last bequest. —

[Places a ring on the finger of Theseus.]

Thus I new-marry him whose wife I am; Death shall not separate us. O, my lords, I but deceiv'd your eyes with antic gesture, When one news straight came huddling on another
Of death! and death! and death! still I danced forward;

But it struck home, and here, and in an instant.

Be such mere women, who with shrieks and outcries Can vow a present end to all their sorrows, Yet live to [court] new pleasures, and outlive them.

They are the silent griefs which cut the heartstrings;

Let me die smiling.

Near. "Tis a truth too ominous.

Cal. One kiss on these cold lips, my last! [Kisses Theseus.] — Crack, crack! —

Argos now 's Sparta's king:— Command the voices Which wait at th' altar now to sing the song I fitted for my end.

Near. Sirs, the song!

A Soprano.

All. Glories, pleasures, pomps, delights, and ease, Can but please Outward senses when the mind Is [or] unstirred or by peace refin'd.

1 [Voice.] Crowns may flourish and decay, Beauties shine, but fade away.

2 [Voice.] Youth may revel, yet it must Lie down in a bed of dust.

3 [Voice.] Earthly honours flow and waste, Time alone doth change and last.

All. Sorrows mingled with contents prepare Rest for care; Love only reigns in death; though art Can find no comfort for a broken heart.

[Calanthe dies.]

Arm. Look to the queen!

Bass. Her heart is broke, indeed.

O, royal maid, would thou hadst mist this part! Yet 'twas a brave one. I must weep to see Her smile in death.

Arm. Wise Teucrus! thus said he;

When youth is ripe, and age from time doth part,
The Lifeless Trunk shall weed the Broken Heart Is here fulfill'd.

Near. I am your king.

All. Long live you, King of Sparta!

Near. Her last will Shall never be digest from: wait in order
THE BROKEN HEART

Upon these faithful lovers, as becomes us,—
The counsels of the gods are never known—
Till men can call th' effects of them their own.

[Exeunt.]

THE EPILOGUE

Where noble judgments and clear eyes are fix'd
To grace endeavour, there sits truth, not mix'd
With ignorance; those censures may command
Belief which talk not till they understand.

Let some say, "This was flat;" some, "Here the scene Fell from its height;" another, that the mean
Was "ill observ'd" in such a growing passion
As it transcended either state or fashion:
Some few may cry, "'Twas pretty well," or so,
"But—" and there shrug in silence; yet we know
Our writer's aim was in the whole address
Well to deserve of all, but please the best;
Which granted, by th' allowance of this strain
The BROKEN HEART may be piec'd up again.

ACT I

[Scene 1.] 1

Enter Lady Bornwell, and her Steward.

Stew. Be patient, madam; you may have your pleasure.

Lady B. 'Tis that I came to town for. I would not Endure again the country conversation,

To be the lady of six shires! The men,
So near the primitive making, they retain
A sense of nothing but the earth; their brains,
And barren heads standing as much in want
Of ploughing as their ground. To hear a fellow
Make himself merry and his horse, with whistling
Sellinger's Round! 8 To observe with what solemnity
They keep their wakes, and throw for pewter
Candle-sticks!
How they become the morris, with whose bells
They ring all in to Whitsum-ales; and sweat,
Through twenty scarfs and napkins, till the Tire, and the Maid Marian, 4 dissolv'd to a jelly,
Be kept for spoon meat! 10

Stew. These, with your pardon, are no argument

To make the country life appear so hateful;
At least to your particular, who enjoy'd
A blessing in that calm, would you be pleas'd 32
To think so, and the pleasure of a kingdom;
While your own will commanded what should move
Delights, your husband's love and power join'd

1. A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell’s house.
2. In the Q. Lady Bornwell is called Aretina throughout in stage directions and speech-tags.

To give your life more harmony. You liv'd there Secure, and innocent, belov'd of all;
Frais'ld for your hospitality, and pray'd for:
You might be envi'd, but malice knew
Not where you dwelt. I would not prophesy,
But leave to your own apprehension,
What may succeed your change.

Lady B. You do imagine, 30
No doubt, you have talk'd wisely, and confuted
London past all defence. Your master should Do well to send you back into the country,
With title of superintendent-bailiff.

Stew. How, madam!

Lady B. Even so, sir.

Stew. I am a gentleman, 34
Though now your servant.

Lady B. A country gentleman,
By your affection to converse with stubble.
His tenants will advance your wit, and plump
it so
With beef and bag-pudding!

Stew. You may say your pleasure,
It becomes not me dispute.

Lady B. Complain to
The lord of the soil, your master.

Stew. You're a woman
Of an ungovern'd passion, and I pity you.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Born. How now? What's the matter?

Stew. Nothing, sir. [Exit.]

Born. Angry, sweetheart?

Lady B. I am angry with myself,
To be so miserably restrain'd in things,
Wherein it doth concern your love and honour
To see me satisfied.

Born. In what, Aretina,
Dost thou accuse me? Have I not obey'd
All thy desires? Against mine own opinion
Quitted the country, and remover'd the hope
Of our return, by sale of that fair lordship
We liv’d in? Chang’d a calm and retir’d life
For this wild town, compose’d of noise and
charge? 1

Lady B. What charge, more than is neces-

A lady of my birth and education?

Born. I am not ignorant how much nobility Flows in your blood; your kinsemen great and powerful
I’ th’ state; but with this, lose not you mem-

Of being my wife. I shall be studious,
Madam, to give the dignity of your birth
All the best ornaments which become my fortune;
But would not flatter it, to ruin both,
And be the fable of the town, to teach
Other men loss of wit by mine, employ’d
To serve your vast expenses.

Lady B. Am I then
Born. Brought in the balance? So, sir!

Sir. Though you weigh
Me in a partial 2 scale, my heart is honest,
And must take liberty to think you have Obey’d no modest counsel, to affect; 3
Nay, study ways of pride and costly ceremony:
Your change of gaudy furniture, and pictures
Of this Italian master, and that Dutchman’s;
Your mighty looking-glasses, like artillery,
Brought home on engines; the superfluous
plate,
Antique and novel; vanities of tires; 4
Four-score-pound suppurers for my lord, your kin-
man,
Banquets for t’ other lady aunt, and cousins,
And perfumes that exceed all: train of serv-
vants,
To stifle us at home, and show abroad
More motley than the French or the Venetian, 5
About your coach, whose rude postillion
Must pester 6 every narrow lane, till passengers
And tradesmen curse your chocking up their heads;
And common cries pursue your ladyship,
For hint’rind o’ their market.

Lady B. Have you done, sir? 7
Born. I could accuse the gaiety of your wardrobe,
And prodigal embroideries, under which Rich satins, plushes, cloth of silver, dare
Not show their own complexions; your jewels,
Able to burn out the spectators’ eyes, 8
And show like bonfires on you by the tapers.
Something might here be spar’d, with safety of
Your birth and honour, since the truest wealth Shines from the soul, and draws up just admirers.—

I could urge something more.

Lady B. Pray do, I like 9

You homily of thrift.

Born. I could wish, madam,
You would not game so much.

Lady B. A gamester too!

Born. But are not come to that acquaintance
yet,
Should teach you skill enough to raise your profit.
You look not through the subtlety of cards, 10
And mysteries of dice; nor can you save
Charge with the box, buy petticoats and pearls,
And keep your family by the precious income;
Nor do I wish you should: my poorest servant
Shall not cupboard my tables, nor his hire, 11
Purchases beneath my honor. You make play
Not a pastime but a tyranny, and vex
Yourself and my estate by it.

Lady B. Good ! proceed.

Born. Another game you have, which consumes more
Your fame than purse; your revels in the night,
Your meetings called the “Ball,” to which repair,
As to the Court of Pleasure, all your gallants
And ladies, thither bound by a subpoena
Of Venus, and small Cupid’s high displeasure;
’Tis but the Family of Love 12 translated Into more costly sin! There was a play on t, 7
And had the post not been brib’d to a modest Expression of your anti gambols in t,
Some darks had been discovered, and the deeds
too.
In time he may repent, and make some blush,
To see the second part danc’d on the stage.

My thoughts acquit you for dishonouring me
By any foul act; but the virtuous know
’Tis not enough to clear ourselves, but the Suspensions of our shame.

Lady B. Have you concluded 13
Your lecture?

Born. I ha’ done; and howsoever
My language may appear to you, it carries
No other than my fair and just intent
To your delights, without curb to their modcates 6
And noble freemen.

Lady B. I’ll not be so tedious 13
In my reply; but, without art or elegance,
Assure you, I keep still my first opinion:
And though you will your avaricious meaning
With handsome names of modesty and thrift,
I find you would intrench and wound the liberty
I was born with. Were my desires unprivileg’d
By example, while my judgment thought ’em fit.
You ought not to oppose; but when the practice
And track of every honourable lady
Authorise me, I take it great injustice 14
To have my pleasures circumscrib’d, and taught
me.

A narrow-minded husband is a thief
To his own fame, and his preferment too;
He shuts his parts and fortunes from the world,
6 A religious sect often accused of licentiousness.
7 “The Ball,” a comedy by Shirley and Chapman, 1632.
8 Moderate.
While, from the popular vote and knowledge,
men Rise to employment in the state.

Born. I have No great ambition to buy preferment at
So dear a rate.

Lady B. Not I to sell my honour,
By living poor and sparingly. I was not Bred in that ebb of fortune, and my fate
Shall not compel me to it.

Born. I know not,
Madam; but you pursue these ways —

Lady B. What ways?

Born. In the strict sense of honesty, I dare
Make oaths they are innocent.

Lady B. Do not divert,
By busy troubling of your brain, those thoughts
That should preserve 'em.

Born. How was that?

Lady B. 'Tis English.

Born. But carries some unkind sense.

Enter MADAM DECOY.

Dec. Good morrow, my sweet madam.

Lady B. Decoy! welcome;
This visit is a favour.

Dec. Alas, sweet madam,
I cannot stay: I came but to present
My service to your ladyship; I could not Pass by your door, but I must take the bold-
ness
To tender my respects.

Lady B. You oblige me, madam;
But I must not dispense so with your absence.

Dec. Alas, the coach, madam, stays for me at the door.

Lady B. Thou sh'lt command mine; prithee,
Sweet Decoy —

Dec. I would wait on you, madam, but I have many
Visits to make this morning; I beseech —

Lady B. So you will promise to dine with me.

Dec. I shall
Present a guest.

Lady B. Why, then good morrow, madam.

Dec. A happy day shine on your ladyship! in

Exit.

Re-enter Steward.

Lady B. What 's your news, sir?

Stew. Madam, two gentlemen.

Lady B. What gentlemen? Have they no names?

Stew. They are
The gentleman with his own head of hair,
Whom you commended for his horsemanship
In Hyde Park, and becoming so the saddle,
The other day.

Lady B. What circumstance is this to know him by?

Stew. His name's at my tongue's end:—
He lik'd the fashion of your pearl chain,
madam;
And borrowed it for his jeweller to take
A copy by it.

Born. [Aside.] What cheating gallant 's this?

Stew. That never walks without a lady's buck!
And plays with fans — Master Alexander Kick-
shaw, —
I thought I should remember him.

Lady B. What's the other?

Stew. What an unlucky memory I have!

The gallant that still dancest in the street,
And wears a grosse of ribbon in his hat;
That carries oringado² in his pocket,
And sugar-plums, to sweeten his discourse;
That studies compliment, defies all wit
In black, and censures plays that are not bawdy —

Master John Littleworth.

Lady B. They are welcome; but Pray entertain them a small time, lest I
Be unprovided.

Born. Did they ask for me?

Stew. No, sir.

Born. It matters not, they must be welcome.

Lady B. Fie! how 's this hair disordered?
Here 's a curl

Straddles most impiously. I must to my closet.

Exit.

Born. Wait on 'em; my lady will return
again. [Exit Steward.]

I have to such a height fulfilled her humour,
All application's dangerous: these gallants
Must be receiv'd, or she will fall into
A tempest, and the house be shock and names
Of all her kindred. 'Tis a servitude
I may in time shake off.

Enter ALEXANDER [KICKSHAW] and LITTLE-
WORTH.

Kick. and Little. Save you, Sir Thomas!

Born. Save you, gentlemen!

Kick. I kiss your hand.

Born. What day is it abroad?

Little. The morning rises from your lady's eye.

If she look clear, we take the happy omen
Of a fair day.

Born. She 'll instantly appear,
To the discredit of your compliment;
But you express your wit thus.

Kick. And you modestly,
Not to affect the praises of your own.

Born. Leaving this subject, what game's now on foot?

What exercise carries the general vote
O' the town? Nothing moves without your knowledge.

Kick. The cocking now has all the noise; I 'll
have
A hundred pieces of one battle. — Oh,
These birds of Mars!

Little. Venus is Mars his bird too.
Kick. Why, and the pretty doves are Venus's,
To show that kisses draw the chariot.

Little. I am for that skirmish.

Born. When shall we have

1 Corset.
2 Candied orange-peel.
3 Appeal, demand (?).
4 What sort of.
5 Indulged.
6 Like.
More booths and bagpipes upon Banstead downs? No mighty race is expected?—But my lady Returns!

Re-enter Lady Bornwell.

Lady B. Fair morning to you, gentlemen! You went not late to bed by your early visit. You do me honour.

Kick. It becomes our service.

Lady B. What news abroad? You hold precious intelligence.

Little. All tongues are so much busy with your praise, They have not time to frame other discourse. Will 't please you, madam, taste a sugar-plum? Born. What does the goldsmith think the pearl is worth You borrowed of my lady?

Kick. 'Tis a rich one.

Born. She has many other toys, whose fashion you Will like extremely; you have no intention To buy any of her jewels?

Kick. Understand me—

Born. You had rather sell, perhaps. But, in virtue this, I hope you'll dine with us.

Kick. I came a purpose.

Lady B. And where were you last night?

Kick. I, madam? Where I slept not; it had been sin, where so much Delight and beauty was to keep me wak'ing. There is a lady, madam, will be worth Your free society; my conversation Ne'er knew so elegant and brave a soul, With most incomparable flesh and blood; So spirited! so courtly! speaks the languages, Sings, dances, plays 'th' lute to admiration! Is fair, and painta not; gamestoo, keeps a table, And talks most witty satire; has a wit Of a clean Mercury —

Little. Is she married?

Kick. No.

Lady B. A virgin?

Kick. Neither.

Little. What! a widow! Something Of this wide commendation might have Excusa'd. This such a prodigy!

Kick. Repent, Before I name her: she did never see Yet full sixteen, an age, in the opinion Of wise men, not contemptible. She has Mour'd out her year, too, for the honest knight That had compassion of her youth, and died So timely. Such a widow is not common; And now she shines more fresh and tempting Than any natural virgin.

Lady B. What's her name?

Kick. She was christened Celestina; by her husband,

The Lady Bellamour: this ring was hers.

Born. You borrowed it to copy out the posy. Kick. Are they not pretty rubies? 't was a grace

She was pleas'd to show me, that I might have one Made of the self-same fashion; for I love All pretty forms.

Lady B. And is she glorious?

Kick. She is full of jewels, madam; but I am Most taken with the bravery of her mind, Although her garments have all grace and ornament.

Lady B. You have been high in praises.

Kick. I come short; No flattery can reach her. Born. [Aside.] Now my lady Is troubled, as she fear'd to be eclips'd: This news will cost me somewhat.

Lady B. You deserve Her favour, for this noble character.

Kick. And I possess it, by my stars benevolence.

Lady B. You must bring us acquainted.

Born. I pray do, sir; I long to see her too.—Madam, I have Thought upon 't, and corrected my opinion. Pursue what ways of pleasure your desires Incline you to, not only with my state, But with my person; I will follow you. I see the folly of my thrift, and will Repeat in sack and prodigality, To your own heart's content.

Lady B. But do not mock. Born. Take me to your embraces, gentlemen, And tutor me.

Little. And will you kiss the ladies? Born. And sing and dance. I long to see this beauty; I would fain lose a hundred pounds at dice now. Thou shalt have another gown and petticoat To-morrow. Will you sell my running-horses? We have no Greek wine in the house, I think; Pray send one of our footmen to the merchant, And throw the hoghead of March-beer into The kennel, to make room for sack and claret. What think you to be drunk yet before dinner? We will have constant music, and maintain Them and their fiddles in fantastic livellies: I'll tune my voice to catchers. I must have My dining-room enlarg'd, to invite ambassadors. We'll feast the parish in the fields, and teach The military men new discipline, Who shall charge all their great artillery With oranges and lemons, boy, to play All dinner upon our capons.

Kick. He's exalted! Born. I will do anything to please my lady, Let that suffice; and kiss o' th' same condition. I am converted: do not you dispute, But patiently allow the miracle.

Lady B. I am glad to hear you, sir, in so good tune.

Enter Servant.

Serv. Madam, the painter.

Lady B. I am to sit this morning.
Born. Do, while I give new directions to my steward.

Kick. With your favour, we'll wait on you: sitting's but
A melancholy exercise without
Some company to discourse.

Lady B. It does conclude as
A lady's morning work. We rise, make fine,
Sit for our picture, and 't is time to dine.

Little. Praying's forgot.

Kick. 'T is out of fashion.

Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Celestina and her Steward.

Cel. Fie! what an air this room has!

Stew. 'T is perfum'd.

Cel. With some cheap stuff. Is it your wisdom's thrift
To infect my nostrils thus? Or is 't to favour
The going in your worship's hand, you are afraid
To exercise your pen in your account book?

Or do you doubt my credit to discharge
Your bills?

Stew. Madam, I hope you have not found
My duty, with the guilt of sloth or jealousy,
Unapt to your command.

Cel. You can extenuate
Your faults with language, sir; but I expect
To be obey'd. What hangings have we here?
Stew. They are arras, madam.

Cel. Impudence! I know 't. I will have fresher, and more rich; not wronged
With faces that may scandalize a Christian, 14
With Jewish stories stift with corn and camels. You had best wrap all my chambers in wild Irish, and make a nursery of monsters here,
To fright the ladies come to visit me.

Stew. Madam, I hope —

Cel. I say I will have other,
Good Master Steward, of a finer loom; 20
Some silk and silver, if your worship please
To let me be at so much cost. I'll have Stories to fit the seasons of the year,
And change as often as I please.

Stew. You shall, madam.

Cel. I am bound to your consent, forsooth! And is

My coach brought home?

Stew. This morning I expect it.

Cel. The inside, as I gave direction,
Of crimson plush?

Stew. Of crimson camel plush.

Cel. Ten thousand moths consume 't! Shall I ride through The streets in penance, wrap up round in hair Cloth?

Sell 't to an alderman, 't will serve his wife
To go feasting to their country-house;
Or fetch a merchant's nurse-child, and come home

Laden with fruit and cheese-cakes. I despise it!

1 A room in Celestina's house.

Stew. The nails adorn it, madam, set in Method,
A and pretty forms.

Cel. But single gilt, I warrant.

Stew. No, madam.

Cel. Another solecism! Oh fie!

This fellow will bring me to a consumption
With fretting at his ignorance. Some lady
Had rather never pray than go to church in't.

The nails not double gilt! 'T is market wo't?
'Twill hackney out to Mile-end, or convey
Your city tumblers 8 to be drunk with cream
And prunes at Islington.

Stew. Good madam, hear me. Cel. I'll rather be beholding to my aunt,
The countess, for her mourning coach, than be Disparag'd so. Shall any juggling tradesman
Be at charge to shoe his running-horse with gold,
And shall my coach nails be but single gilt?
How dare these knaves abuse me so?

Stew. Vouchsafe to hear me speak.

Cel. Is my sedan yet finish'd,
And liveries for my men-mules, 9 according
As I gave charge?

Stew. Yes, madam, it is finish'd.
But without tilting-plumes at the four corners;
The scarlet's pure, but not embroidered.

Cel. What mischief were it to your conscience
Were my coach lin'd with tissue, and my harness
Cover'd with needle-work? if my sedan
Had all the story of the prodigal
Embroidered with pearl?

Stew. Alas, good madam, I know 't is your own cost; I am but your steward,

And would discharge my duty the best way.
You have been pleas'd to hear me; 't is not for
My profit that I manage your estate
And save expense, but for your honour, madam.

Cel. How, sir! my honour?

Stew. Though you hear it not,

Men's tongues are liberal in your character,
Since you began to live thus high. I know
Your fame is precious to you.

Cel. I were best
Make you my governor. Audacious varlet!

How dare you interpose your doting counsel?

Mind your affairs with more obedience,
Or I shall ease you of an office, sir.
Must I be limited to please your honour,
Or, for the vulgar breath, confine my pleasures?
I will pursue 'em in what shapes I fancy,
Here, and abroad; my entertainments shall
Be o'ther, and more rich. Who shall control me?
I live 't th' Strand, whither few ladies come
To live, and purchase more than fame. I will Be hospitable then, and spare no cost
That may engage all generous report

To trumpet forth my bounty and my bravery,

13 Will it? Gifford reads with 't.
8 Courtesans.
4 A suburban resort for cakes and cream.
5 Chairmen.
6 Splendor.
Till the court envy, and remove. I'll have My house the academy of wits, who shall Exalt their genius with rich sack and sturgeon,
Write panegies of my feasts, and praise
The method of my witty superfluities.
The horses shall be taught, with frequent waiting
Upon their gates, to stop in their career Toward Charing-cross, spite of the coachman's fury;
And not a titter but shall strike 1 his plume,
When he sails by my window: my balcony
Shall be the courtier's idol, and more gaz'd at Than all the pageantry at Temple Bar,
By country clients.

Stew. Sure my lady's mad.

Cel. Take that for your ill manners.

[Strikes him.]

Stew. I would there were less quicksilver in your fingers. Exit.

Cel. There's more than simple honesty in your servant.
Requir'd to his full duty; none should dare 100
But with a look, much less a saucy language,
Check at their mistress' pleasure. I'm resolv'd
To pay for some delight, my estate will bear it;
I'll rain it shorter when I please.

Re-enter Steward.

Stew. A gentleman
Desires to speak with your ladyship.

Cel. His name? 105
Stew. He says you know him not; he seems to be
Of quality.

Cel. Admit him. [Exit Steward.]

Enter HAIROUT.

SIR, WITH ME?

Hair. Madam, I know not how you may receive
This boldness from me; but my fair intents
Known, will incline you to be charitable. 119

Cel. No doubt, sir.

Hair. He must live obscurely, madam,
That hath not heard what virtues you possess;
And I, a poor admirer of your fame,
Am come to kiss your hand.

Cel. That all your business? 120

Hair. Though it were worth much travel, I have more
In my ambition.

Cel. Speak it freely, sir.

Hair. You are a widow.

Cel. So!

Hair. And I a bachelor.

Cel. You come a wooing, sir, and would perhaps
Show me a way to reconcile the two?

Hair. And bless my stars for such a happiness.

Cel. I like you, sir, the better, that you do not Wander about, but shoot home to the mean-
ing;

It is a confidence will make a man
Know sooner what to trust to: but I never Saw you before, and I believe you come not 125
With hope to find me desperate upon marriage.
If maids, out of their ignorance of what
Men are, refuse these offers, widows may,
Out of their knowledge, be allow'd some cor-
ness;
And yet I know not how much happiness 130
A peremptory answer may deprive me of: —
You may be some young lord, and though I see
not
Your footmen and your grooms, they may not be Far off, in conference with your horse. Please
you
To instruct me with your title, against which
I would not willingly offend. 135

Hair. I am

A gentleman; my name is Hairout, madam.

Cel. Sweet Master Hairout, are you a courtier?

Hair. Yes.

Cel. I did think so, by your confidence.

Not to detain you, sir, with circumstance, 140
I was not so unhappy in my husband,
But that 't is possible I may be a wife
Again; but I must tell you, he that wins
My affection, shall deserve me.

Hair. I will hope,
If you can love, I shall not present, madam. 145
An object to displease you in my person:
And when time, and your patience, shall possess you
With further knowledge of me, and the truth
Of my devotion, you will not repent
The offer of my service.

Cel. You say well. 150

How long do you imagine you can love, sir?
Is it a quotidian, or will it hold
But every other day?

Hair. You are pleasant, madam.

Cel. Does it take you with a burning at the first,
Or with a cold fit? for you gentlemen
Have both your summer and your winter services.

Hair. I am ignorant what you mean; but I shall never
Be cold in my affection to such beauty.

Cel. And 't will be somewhat sore I be warm in't.

Hair. If you vouchsafe me so much honour,

Cel. That I may wait on you sometimes, I sha' not Despair to see a change.

Cel. But now I know
Your mind, you shall not need to tell it when You come again; I shall remember it.

Hair. You make me fortunate.

Re-enter Steward.

Stew. Madam, your kinswomen, 155

The lady Novice, and her sister, are
New lighted from their coach.

1 Lower.

2 Jocular.
I did expect 'em,
They partly are my pupils. I'll attend 'em. [Exit Steward.]

Hair. Madam, I have been too great a trespasser.

Upon your patience; I will take my leave. You have affairs, and I have some employment. Calls me to court; I shall present again. A servant to you. [Exit.

Cel. Sir, you may present. But not give fire, I hope. — Now to the ladies. This recreation's past, the next must be 178 To read to them some court philosophy. [Exit.

ACT II

SCENE I.1

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Born. 'Tis a strange humour I have undertaken, To dance, and play, and spend as fast as she does; But I am resolved: it may do good upon her, And fright her into thrift. Nay, I'll endeavour To make her jealous too; if this do not Allay her gambling, she's past a woman, And only a miracle must tame her.

Enter Steward.

Stew. 'Tis master Frederick, my lady's nephew.

Born. What of him?

Stew. Is come from the university.

Born. By whose directions?

Stew. It seems, my lady's.

Born. Let me speak with him 10 Before he see his aunt. [Exit Stew.] — I do not like it.—

Enter [Steward, with] Master Frederick, [in his college dress.]

Master Frederick, welcome! I expected not So soon your presence; what 'tis the hasty cause?

Fred. These letters, from my tutor, will acquaint you. [Gives BORNWELL letters.]

Stew. Welcome home, sweet Master Frederick!

Fred. Where's my aunt?

Stew. She's busy about her painting, in her closet;

The outlandish man of art is copying out Her countenance.

Fred. She is sitting for her picture?

Stew. Yes, sir; and when 'tis drawn she will be hang'd

Next the French cardinal, in the dining-room. But when she hears you're come, she will dismiss

The Belgic gentleman, to entertain Your worship.

Fred. A change of air has made you witty.

Born. Your tutor gives you a handsome character,

1 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell's house.

Frederick, and is sorry your aunt's pleasure — Commands you from your studies; but I hope You have no quarrel to the liberal arts. Learning is an addition 2 beyond Nobility of birth. Honour of blood, Without the ornament of knowledge, is 3 A glorious 4 ignorance.

Fred. I never knew more sweet and happy hours Than I employ'd upon my books. I heard A part of my philosophy, and was so Delighted with the harmony of nature, 5 I could have wasted my whole life upon't.

Born. [Aside.] 'Tis pity a rash indulgence should corrupt So fair a genius! She's here; I'll observe.

Enter Lady BORNWELL, KICKSHAW, and LITTLEWORTH.

Fred. My most lov'd aunt!

Lady B. Support me, I shall faint.

Litle. What ails your ladyship?

Lady B. Is that Frederick, 6 In black?

Kick. Yes, madam; but the doublet's satin.

Lady B. The boy's undone!

Fred. Madam, you appear troubled.

Lady B. Have I not cause? Was not I trusted with Thy education, boy, and have they sent thee Home like a very scholar! 7 'Twas ill done, Ho'we'er they us'd him in the university, To send him to his friends thus.

Fred. Why, sir? Black, (For 'tis the colour that offends your eye-sight,) Is not, within my reading, any blemish; Sables are no disgrace in heraldry.

Kick. 'Tis coming from the college thus, that makes it Dishonourable. While you wore it for Your father, it was commendable; or were Your aunt dead, you might mourn, and justify.

Lady B. What luck 4 I did not send him 5 into France! They would have given him generous education, Taught him another garb, to wear his lock, 6 And shape, as gaudy as the summer; how To dance, and wag his feather à-la-mode, To compliment, and cringe; to talk not modestly, 7 Like, "say forsooth," and "no forsooth;" to blush, And look so like a chaplain! — There he might Have learn'd a brazen confidence, and observ'd So well the custom of the country, that He might, by this time, have invented fashions For us, and been a benefit to the kingdom; 8 Preserv'd our tailors in their wits, and sav'd 9 The charge of sending into foreign courts For pride and antio fashions. — Observe In what a posture he does hold his hat now!

Fred. Madam, with your pardon, you have practis'd

1 Title, ornament. 2 f. a. Bad luck. 3 Val'glorious. 4 Hair.
Another dialect than was taught me when
I was commended to your care and breeding.
I understand not this; Latin or Greek
Are more familiar to my apprehension:
Logic was not so hard in my first lectures
As your strange language.

Lady B. Some strong waters; oh! little. Comfits will be as comfortable to your stomach, madam. [Offers his box.]

Lady B. I fear he's spoil'd for ever! He did name Logic, and many, for aught I know, be gone.
So far to understand it, I did always
Suspect they would corrupt him in the college.

Will your Greek saws and sentences discharge
The mercer? Or is Latin a fit language
To court a mistress in? — Master Alexander,
If you have any charity, let me
Commend him to your breeding. — I suspect
I must employ my doctor first, to purge
The university that lies in 's head;
It ails his complexion.

Kick. If you dare
Trust me to serve him —

Lady B. Master Littleworth,
Be you join'd in commission.

Little. I will teach him
Postures and rudiments.

Lady B. I have no patience
To see him in this shape; it turns my stomach.
When he has cast his academic skin
He shall be yours. I am bound in conscience.
To see him bred; his own state shall maintain
The charge, while he's my ward. — Come hither, sir.

Fred. What does my aunt mean to do with me?

Stew. To make you a fine gentleman, and translate you
Out of your learned language, sir, into
The present Goth and Vandal, which is French.

But kit (Aside) Into what mischief will this humour ebb?
She will undo the boy; I see him ruin'd.
My patience is not manly; but I must Use stratagem to reduce her: open ways
Give me no hope.

Stew. You shall be obey'd, madam.

Fred. Master Steward, are you sure we do not dream?
Was 't not my aunt you talk't to?

Stew. One that loves you.
Dear as her life. These clothes do not become
you.
You must have better, sir —

Fred. These are not old.

Stew. More suitable to the town and time;

Fred. No Lent here, nor is 't my lady's pleasure you Should fast from anything you have a mind to;
Unless it be your learning, which she would
have you
Forget with all convenient speed that may be,
For the credit of your noble family.

Fred. The case is alter'd since we liv'd i' th' country;
We do not now invite the poor o' th' parish.

Stew. To dinner, keep a table for the tenants;
Our kitchen does not smell of beef; the cellar
Defies the price of malt and hops; the footmen
And coach-drivers may be drunk like gentlemen,

With wine; nor will three fiddlers upon holidays,

With aid of bag-pipes, that call'd in the country

To dance, and plough the hall up with their hob-nails.

Now make my lady merry. We do feed
Like princes, and feast nothing else but princes;
And are these robes fit to to be seen amongst 'em?

Fred. My lady keeps a court then! Is Sir
Thomas

Affect'd with this state and cost?

Stew. He was not,
But is convert'd: and I hope you wo' not Persist in hereby, but take a course
Of riot, to content your friends; you shall Want nothing, if you can be proud, and spend
For my lady's honour. Here are a hundred Pieces, will serve you till you have new clothes;
I will present you with a nag of mine,
Poor tender of my service, please you accept;
My lady's smile more than rewards me for it.
I must provide fit servants to attend you,
Monsieurs, for horse and foot.

Fred. I shall submit,
If this be my aunt's pleasure, and be rule'd;
My eyes are open'd with this purge already,
And sack will help to inspire me. I must spend
it?

Stew. What else, sir?

Fred. I'll begin with you: to encourage
You to have still a special care of me,
There is five pieces,— not for your nag.

Stew. No, sir; I hope it is not.

Fred. Buy a beaver
For thy own block; I shall be rule'd. Who does

Command the wine cellar?

Stew. Who commands but you, sir?

Fred. I'll try to drink a health or two, my aunt's;

Or anybody's; and if that foundation
Stagger me not too much, I will commence
In all the arts of London.

Stew. If you find, sir,

The operation of the wine exalt
Your blood to the desire of any female

Stew. Delight, I know your aunt wo' not deny
Any of her chambermaids to practise on;
She loves you but too well.

Fred. I know not how
I may be for that exercise. — Farewell, Aristotle,

Prithie command me to the library
At Westminster; my bones I beseech this theif,

Pleased.

Usually, a mob'd for shaping a hat; here, head.
And to the learned worms that mean to visit 'em.

I will compose myself; I begin to think I have lost time indeed. — Come to the wine cellar.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Celestina, Mariant, and Isabella.

Mar. But shall we not, madam, expose ourselves to censure for this freedom?

Cel. Let them answer that dare mistake us. Shall we be so much cowards, to be frightened from our pleasure, because men have malicious tongues, and show what miserable souls they have? No, cousin, we hold our life and fortunes upon no man's charity; if they dare show so little discretion to traduce our names, we will be guilty of so much wit to laugh at 'em.

Isab. 'Tis a becoming fortitude.

Cel. Are you kind to me; for, in a happy minute Be 't spoke, I'm not in love, and men shall never make a heart lean with sighing, nor with tears draw on my eyes the infamy of spectacles.

'T is the chief principle to keep your heart under your own obedience; jest, but love not. I say my prayers, yet can wear good clothes, and only satisfy my tailor for 'em. I will not lose my privilege.

Mar. And yet they say your entertainments are, give me your pardon, madam, to proclaim yourself a widow, and to get a husband.

Cel. As if a lady of my years, some beauty, left by her husband rich, that had mourn'd for him a twelvemonth too, could live so obscure! 'tis town, that gallants would not know her, and invite themselves, without her chargeable proclamations.

Then we are worse than citizens: no widow left wealthy can be thoroughly warm in mourning, but some one noble, or lusty kindred, claps in, with his gilt coach, and Flandrian trotters, and hurries her away to be a countess.

Courtiers have spies, and great ones with large titles, cold in their own estates, would warm themselves at a rich city bonfire.

Isab. Most true, madam.

Cel. No matter for corruption of the blood: some undone courtier made her husband rich, and this new lord receives it back again. Admit it were my policy, and that my entertainments pointed to acquaint me with many suitors, that I might be safe

And make the best election, could you blame me?

Mar. Madam, 'tis wisdom.

Cel. But I should be in my thoughts miserable, to be fond of leaving the sweet freedom I possess, and court myself into new marriage fettlers. I now observe men's several wits and windings, and can laugh at their follies.

Mar. You have given a most ingenious satisfaction.

Cel. One thing I'll tell you more, and this I give you. Worthy your imitation, from my practice: you see me merry, full of song and dancing, pleasant in language, apt to all delights that crown a public meeting; but you cannot accuse me of being prodigal of my favours to any of my guests. I do not summon, by any wink, a gentleman to follow me to my withdrawing chamber; I hear all their pleas in court, nor can they boast abroad, and do me justice, after a salute.

They have much conversation with my lip. I hold the kissing of my hand a courtesy, and he that loves me, must, upon the strength of that, expect till I renew his favour.

Some ladies are so expensive in their graces to those that honour 'em, and so prodigal, that in a little time they have nothing but the naked sin left to reward their servants; whereas, a thrift in our rewards will keep men long in their devotion, and preserve ourselves in stock, to encourage those that honour us.

Isab. This is an art worthy a lady's practice.

Cel. It takes not from the freedom of our mirth, but seems to advance it, when we can possess our pleasures with security of our honour; and, that preserve'd, I welcome all the joys my fancy can let in. In this I have given the copy of my mind, nor do I blush you understand it.

Isab. You have honour'd us.

[Enter Celestina's Gentlewoman.]

Gentlsw. Madam, Sir William Scentlove's come to wait on you.

Mar. There's one would be a client. — Make excuse for a few minutes. [Exit Gentlewoman.]

Cel. What comes a wooing? One such a thing he would seem, but in his dullness of little land, his expectation is not so valiant as it might be. He wears rich clothes, and feeds with noblemen; to some, I hear, no better than a wanton emissary, or scout for Venus' wild fowl; which made tame, he thinks no shame to stand court sentinel, in hope of the reversion.

Mar. I have heard possibly eager.

6 Ordinary kiss of salutation.

7 Devious, schemings.
That some of them are often my lord’s tasters,
The first fruits they condition for, and will
Exact as fees, for the promotion.
Cel. Let them agree; there’s no account shall lie
For me among their traffic.

Re-enter Gentlewoman.

Gentlew. Master Haircut, madam,
Is new come in, to tender you his service.
Cel. Let him discourse a little with Sir William.
Cel. Exit Gentlewoman.

Mar. What is this gentleman, Master Haircut, madam?

I note him very gallant, and much courted
By gentlemen of quality.

Cel. I know not,
More than a trim gay man; he has some great office,
Sure, by his confident behaviour.
He’d be understood under the title
Of servant to me, and I must confess,
He is the sweetest of all men that visit me.

Cel. How mean you, madam?

Mar. He is full of powder;
He will save much in perfumes for my chamber.

Cel. Were he but constant here. — Give ‘em access.

Enter Sir William Scentlove and Haircut.

Scent. Madam, the humblest of your servants
Exalted to a happiness, if you smile
Upon my visit.

Hair. I must beg your charity
Upon my rudeness, madam; I shall give
That day up lost to any happiness,
When I forget to tender you my service.

Cel. You practise courtship, gentlemen.

Scent. But cannot Find where with more desert to exercise it.

What lady’s this, I pray?

Cel. A kinswoman
Of mine, Sir William.

Scent. I am more her servant.

Cel. You came from court, now, I presume?

Hair. ‘Tis, madam.

The sphere I move in, and my destiny
Was kind to place me there, where I enjoy
All blessings that a mortal can possess,
That lives not in your presence; and I should Fix my ambition, when you would vouchsafe
Me so much honour, to accept from me
An humble entertainment there.

Cel. But by
What name shall I be known? In what degree
Shall I be of kindred to you?

Hair. How mean you, madam?

Cel. Perhaps you’ll call me sister, I shall take
it
A special preference; or it may be
I may pass under title of your mistress,
If I seem rich, and fair enough, to engage
Your confidence to own me.

Hair. But ‘tis not come to that yet: you will, sir,
Excuse my mirth.

Cel. Let me guess; there’s no account shall lie
For me among their traffic.

Hair. Sweet madam!

Shall I take
Boldness to ask what place you hold in court?
‘Tis an uncivil curiosity;
But you’ll have mercy to a woman’s question.

Hair. My present condition, madam, carries
Honour and profit, though not to be nam’d
With that employment I expect ’tis th’ state,
Which shall discharge the first maturity
Upon your knowledge; until then, I beg
You allow a modest silence.

Cel. I am charm’d, sir;

And if you scape ambassador, you cannot Reach a preference wherein I am against you.

Hair. Give him leave
To follow his nose, madam, while he hunts
In view,—he’ll soon be at a fault.

Cel. You know him?

Hair. Know Scentlove? Not a page but can decipher him;
The waiting-women know him to a scruple;
He’s called the bluster-maker of the town.

Cel. What’s that?

Hair. The laundry ladies can resolve you,
And you may guess: an arrant epicure,
As this day lives, born to a pretty wit,
A knight, too; but no gentleman. I must Be plain to you;—your ladyship may have
Use of this knowledge, but conceal the author.

Scent. I kiss your fairest hand.

Mar. You make a difference;

Pray reconcile them to an equal whiteness.

Scent. You wound my meaning, lady.

Cel. Nay, Sir William
Has the art of compliment.

Scent. Madam, you honour me
 ‘Bove my desert of language.

Cel. Will you please
To enrich me with your knowledge of that gentleman?

Scent. Do you not know him, madam?

Cel. What is he?

Scent. A sapphire ball; you shall know more hereafter;
He shall tell you himself, and save my character;

Till then,—you see he’s proud.

Cel. One thing, gentlemen,
I observe in your behaviour, which is rare
In two that court one mistress: you preserve
A noble friendship; there’s no gum within
Your hearts; you cannot fret, or show an envy
Of one another’s hope; some would not govern
Their passions with that temper!

Scent. The whole world
Shall nor divorce our friendship.—Master Haircut!

Would I had lived to serve him! He is lost
To goodness does not honour him.

Hair. My knight!

Cel. [Aside.] This is right playing at court shuttlecock.

2. Cf. I Henry IV, II. ii. 2, “I have bid Falstaff’s horse, and his frets like gammad’l velvet.” (Gifford.)

---
Re-enter Gentlewoman.

Gentlew. Madam, there is a gentleman desires
To speak wi' ye, one Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Cel. Bornwell?

Gentlew. He says he is a stranger to your ladyship.

Scent. I know him.

Hair. Your neighbour, madam.

Scent. Husband to

The lady that so revels in the Strand.

Hair. He has good parts, they say, but cannot help his lady's bias.

Cel. They have both much fame

'P th' town, for several merits. Pray admit him.

[Exit Gentlewoman.]

Hair. [Aside.] What comes he for?

Enter Sir Thomas B0rnwell.

Born. Your pardon, noble lady, that I have Presum'd a stranger to your knowledge;

[Cæludes Cæstlina.]

Cel. Sir, your worth was here before you, and your person
Cannot be here ungrateful.

Born. 'Tis the bounty
Of your sweet disposition, madam. — Make me
Your servant, lady, by her fair example,
To favour me. [Offers to salute Isabella, who turns from him. Aside.] — I never knew
one

Her cheek to a gentleman that came to kiss her,
But she 'd a stinking breath. — Your servant,
gentlemen.

Will Scentlove, how's it?

Cel. I am sorry, coz,
To accuse you; we in nothing more betray
Ourselves to censure of ridiculous pride,
Than answering a fair salute too rudely.
Oh, it shows ill upon a gentlewoman
Not to return the modest lip, if she Would have the world believe her breath is not Offensive.

Born. Madam, I have business

With you.

Scent. His looks are pleasant.

Cel. With me, sir?

Born. I hear you have an excellent wit,
madam;

I see you are fair.

Cel. The first is but report;
And do not trust your eye-sight for the last,
'Cause I presume 'y are mortal, and may err.

Hair. He is very gamesome.

Born. 'Y have an excellent voice,
(They say you catch it from a dying swan.)
[With] which, join'd to the harmony of your

You ravish all mankind.

Cel. Ravish mankind?

Born. With their consent.

Cel. It were the stranger rape;
But there's the less indictment lies against it:
And there is hope your little honesties

1 Chastities.

Cannot be much the worse, for men do rather Believe they had a maidenshead, than put Themselves to th' rack of memory how long
'Tis since they left the burden of their innocence.

Born. Why, you are bitter, madam!

Cel. So is physic;

I do not know your constitution.

Born. You shall, if 't please you, madam.

Cel. 'Y are too hasty,
I must examine what certificate

You have first, to prefer you.

Born. Fine! certificate?

Cel. Under your lady's hand and seal.

Born. Go to;

I see you are a wag.

Cel. But take heed how

You trust to 't.

Born. I can love you in my wedlock,
As well as that young gallant o' th' first
hair,
Or the knight-bachelore; and can return
As amorous delight to thy soft bosom.

Cel. Your person and your language are both strangers.

Born. But may be more familiar; I have those
That dare make affidavit for my body.

Cel. D' ye mean your surgeon?

Born. My surgeon, madam?

Cel. I know not how you value my abilities,
But I dare undertake as much, to express
My service to your ladyship, and with
As fierce ambition fly to your commands,
As the most valiant of these lay siege to you.

Cel. You dare not, sir.

Born. How, madam?

Cel. I will justify 't.

Born. You dare not marry me; and I imagine
Some here, should I consent, would fetch a priest

Out of the fire.

Born. I have a wife indeed.

Cel. And there's a statute not repeal'd, I take it.

Born. Y' are in the right; I must confess y' have hit

And bled me in a master's vein.

Cel. You think

I took you on the advantage; use your best
Skill at defence, I'll come up to your valour,

And show another work you dare not do:

You dare not, sir, be virtuous.

Born. I dare,

By this fair hand I dare; and ask a pardon,
If my rude words offend your innocence.

Which, in a form so beautiful, would shine
To force a blush in them suspected it,

And from the rest draw wonder.

Hair. I like not

Their secret parsley; shall I interrupt them?

Isab. By no means, sir.

Scent. Sir Thomas was not wont
To show so much a courtier.

Mar. He cannot

Be prejudicial to you; suspect not
Your own deserts so much; he's married.
III. I.

THE LADY OF PLEASURE 811

Born. I have other business, madam. You keep music:
I came to try how you can dance.
Although I boast no cunning, sir, in revels,
If you desire to show your art that way,
I can wait on you: You much honour me;
Nay, all must join to make a harmony.
They dance.

Born. I have nothing now, madam, but to beseech,
After a pardon for my boldness, you
Would give occasion to pay my gratitude.
I have a house will be much honoured,
If you vouchsafe your presence; and a wife
Desires to present herself your servant.
I came with the ambition to invite you,
Deny me not; your person you shall trust
On fair security.

Cel. Sir, although I use not
This freedom with a stranger, you shall have
No cause to hold me obstinate.

Born. You grace me.

Sir William Scuttle —

Hair. I must take my leave.
You will excuse me, madam; court attendances —

Cel. By any means.

Your company?

Isab. We wait upon you, sir. Exit.

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Table and looking-glass. Enter Lord — unready. [Haircut preparing his periwig.

Lord. What hour is’t?

Hair. ’Bout three o’clock, my lord.

Lord. ’Tis time to rise.

Hair. Your lordship went but late
To bed last night.

Lord. ’T was early in the morning.

Sec. [within.] Expect awhile, my lord is busy.

Enter Secretary.

Lord. What’s the matter?

Sec. Here is a lady — Desires access to you upon some affairs;
She says, may specially concern your lordship.

Lord. A lady? What’s her name?

Sec. Madam Decoy.

Lord. Decoy? Prithee admit her.

[Exit Secretary.

Enter Decoy.

Have you business, madam,

With me?

Dec. And such, I hope, as will not be offensive to your lordship.

Lord. I pray speak it.

Dec. I would desire your lordship’s ear more private.

Lord. Wait i’ th’ next chamber till I call. — Now, madam. Exit [Haircut.

Dec. Although I am a stranger to your lordship,
I would not lose a fair occasion offer’d
To show how much I honour, and would serve you.

Lord. Please you to give me the particular,
That I may know the extent of my engagement.

I am ignorant by what desert you should
Be encourag’d to have care of me.

Dec. My lord, I will take boldness to be plain; beside Your other excellent parts, you have much fame
For your sweet inclination to our sex.

Lord. How d’ ye mean, madam?

Dec. I’ that way your lordship Hath honourably practis’d upon some
Not to be nam’d. Your noble constancy
To a mistress hath deser’t our general vote;
And I, a part of womankind, have thought
How to express my duty.

Lord. In what, madam?

Dec. Be not so strange, my lord. I knew the beauty
And pleasures of your eyes; that handsome creature
With whose fair life all your delight took leave,
And to whose memory you have paid too much Sad tribute.

Lord. What’s all this?

Dec. This: if your lordship
Accept my service, in pure zeal to cure your melancholy, I could point where you might Repair your loss.

Lord. Your ladyship, I conceive,
Doth traffic in flesh merchandize.

Dec. To men
Of honour, like yourself. I am well known to some in court, and come not with ambition
Now to supplant your officer.

Lord. What is the lady of pleasure you prefer?

Dec. A lady
Of birth and fortune, one upon whose virtue
I may presume, the lady Areina.

Lord. Wife to Sir Thomas Bornwell?

Dec. The same, sir.

Lord. Have you prepar’d her?

Dec. Not for your lordship, till I have found your pulse.

I am acquainted with her disposition,
She has a very applicable nature.

Lord. And, madam, when expect you to be whipt

For doing these fine favours?

Dec. How, my lord?

Lord. Your lordship does but jest, I hope; you make Obligation. Accessible.

A difference between a lady that Does honourable offices, and one
They call a bawd. Your lordship was not wont
To have such coarse opinion of our practice.
Lord. The Lady Arétina is my kinswoman.
Dec. What if she be, my lord? The nearer blood,
The dearer sympathy.
Lord. I'll have thee carted.¹
Dec. Your lordship will not so much stain your honour
And education, to use a woman
Of my quality—
Lord. 'Tis possible you may Be sent off with an honourable convey
Of bailiffiers.
Dec. Oh, my good lord!
Lord. Your ladyship shall be no protection,
If you but stay three minutes.
Dec. I am gone. —
When next you find rebellion in your blood,
May all within ten mile o' th' court turn houses!²
Lord. I do not find that proneness, since the fair
Sella Maria died; my blood is cold,
Nor is there beauty enough surviving
To heighen me to wantonness. — Who waits?

Re-enter Haircut [and Secretary].

And what said my lady?
Hair. The silent language of her face, my lord,
Was not so pleasant, as it show'd upon
Her entrance.
Lord. Would any man that meets
This lady take her for a bawd?
Hair. She does
The trade an honour, eredit to the profession.
We may in time see baldness, quarter noses,
And rotten legs to take the wall of footcloths.
Lord. I ha' thought better; call the lady back. —
I wo' not lose this opportunity. — Bid her not fear. [Exit Secretary.] — The favour is not common,
And I'll reward it. I do wonder much
Will Scenlove was not here to-day.
Hair. I heard him say this morning he would wait
Upon your lordship. — She is return'd, sir.

Re-enter Secretary and Decoy.

Sec. Madam, be confident, my lord's not angry.
Lord. You return welcome, madam; you are better
Read in your art, I hope, than to be frighted
With any shape of anger, when you bring Such news to gentlemen. Madam, you shall Soon understand how I accept the office.
Dec. You are the first lord, since I studied
That show'd such infidelity and fury
² Chaste.

¹ The punishment of bawds was to be whipt and carted.
² Chaste.

Upon so kind a message. Every gentleman
Will show some breeding; but if one right honourable
Should not have noble blood —
Lord. You shall return
My compliment, in a letter, to my lady
Aretina. Favour me with a little patience. —
Show her that chamber.
Dec. I'll attend your lordship.

Execut [Decoy and Haircut. —
Secretary seats himself at a table].

Lord. Write, — "Madam, where your honour is in danger, my love must not be silent."

Enter [Sir William] Scenlove and Kick-
shaw.

Scenlove and Kickshaw!
Kick. Your lordship's busy.³
Lord. Writing a letter; — nay, it sh' not bar
Any discourse.

[Walks alternately to the Secretary and to Scenlove and Kick-
shaw.]

Sec. "Silent!"
Lord. "Though I be no physician, I may prevent a fever in your blood." —
And where have you spent the morning's conversation?
Scent. Where you would have given the best barbary
In your stable to have met on honourable terms.
Lord. What new beauty? You acquaint yourselves
With none but wonders.
Scent. "Tis too low, — a miracle.
Lord. It will require a strong faith.
Sec. "Your blood."
Lord. "If you be innocent, preserve your fame, lest this Decoy-madam betray it, to your repentance" —
By what name is she known?
Scent. Ask Alexander; ¹²
He knows her.
Kick. Whom?
Scent. The lady Celestina.
Lord. He has a vast knowledge of ladies.
'Las, poor Alexander!
When dost thou mean thy body shall lie fal-
low?
Kick. When there is mercy in a petticoat:
I must turn pilgrim for some breath.
Lord. I think
'Twere cooler travel, if you examine it.

Upon the hoof through Spain.

Scent. Through Ethiopia.

Lord. Nay, less laborious to serve a prince-
ship
In Peru, and dig gold out of the mine,
Though all the year were dog-days.
Sec. "To repentance."

Lord. "In brief, this lady, could you fall from virtue, within my knowledge, will not blush to be a bawd."
Scent. But hang 't, 't is honourable jour-
work;
Thou art famous by it, and thy name's up.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE 813

Kick. So, sir! Let me ask you a question, my dear knight: Wh ich is less servile, to bring up the pleas- ant, And wait, or sit at table uncontroll'd, 136 And carve to my own appetite? Scent. No more; Thou'rt witty, as I am. Sec. "A bawd." Scent. How's that? Kick. Oh, you are famous by 't, and your name's up, sir. Lord. "Be wise, and reward my caution with timely care of yourself, so I shall not [137] repent to be known your loving kinsman and servant." — Gentlemen, the lady Celestina, Is she so rare a thing? Kick. If you'll have my opinion, my lord, I never saw so sweet, so fair, so rich a piece of nature. Lord. I'll show thee a fairer presently, to shame thy eyes and judgment; look o' that. [Gives him a miniature.]—So; I'll subscribe. [Signs his name to the letter.] Seal it; I'll excuse your pen for the direction. Kick. Bella Maria's picture! she was handsome. Scent. But not to be compar'd — Lord. Your patience, gentlemen; I'll return instantly. Exit. Kick. Whither is my lord gone? Sec. To a lady 'tis next chamber. Scent. What is she? Sec. You shall pardon me, I am his secretary. Kick. I was wont to be of his counsel. A new officer, And I not know 't? I am resolv'd to batter All other with the praise of Celestina: I must retain him.

Re-enter Lord.

Lord. Has not that object Convino'd your erring judgments? Kick. What! this picture? 138 Lord. Were but your thoughts as capable as mine Of her idea, you would wish no thought That were not active in her praise, above All worth and memory of her sex. Scent. She was fair, I must confess; but had your lordship look'd With eyes more narrow, and some less affection, Upon her face, — Kick. I do not love the copies Of any dead, they make me dream of goblins; Give me a living mistress, with but half The beauty of Celestina. Come, my lord, 'Tis pity that a lord of so much flesh Should waste upon a ghost, when they are living Can give you a more honourable consumption. Scent. Why, do you mean, my lord, to live an imitidel? Do, and see what will come on 't; observe 1 still, And dote upon your vigils; build a chamber Within a rock, a tomb among the worms. Not far off, where you may, in proof apocry- phal, Court 'em not to devour the pretty pile Of flesh your mistress carried to the grave. 139 There are no women in the world; all eyes, And tongues, and lips, are buried in her coffin! Lord. Why, do you think yourselves compen- tent judges Of beauty, gentlemen? Both. What should hinder us? Kick. I have seen and tried as many as an- other, With a mortal back. Your eyes are brib'd, And your hearts chain'd to some desires; you cannot Enjoy the freedom of a sense. Kick. Your lordship Has a clear eyesight, and can judge and pene- trate. Lord. I can, and give a perfect censure of each line and point; distinguish beauty from A thousand forms, which your corrupted opties Would pass for natural. Scent. I desire no other Judge should determine us, and if your lord- ship Dare venture but your eyes upon this lady, 140 I'll stand their justice, and be confidant You shall give Celestina victory And triumph o'er all beauties past and living. Kick. I dare, my lord, venture a suit of clothes, You'll be o'ercome. Lord. You do not know my fortitude. Scent. Nor frailty; you dare not trust your- self to see her. Lord. Think you so, gentlemen? I dare see this creature To make you know your errors, and the differ- ence Of her whose memory is my saint. Not trust My senses! I dare see, and speak with her. Which holds the best acquaintance to prepare My visit to her? Scent. I will do 't, my lord. Kick. She is a lady free in entertainments. Lord. I would give this advantage to your cause, Bid her appear in all the ornaments Did ever wait on beauty, all the riches Pride can put on, and teach her face more charm Than ever poet drest up Venus in; Bid her be all the Graces, and the Queen Of Love in one, I'll see her. Scentlove, and 141 Bring off my heart, arm'd but [with a] single thought Of one that's dead, without a wound; and when 1 Pay observance, worship.
I have made your folly prisoner, I'll laugh at you.
    Scent. She shall expect you; trust me for knowledge.
    Lord. I'm for the present somewhere else engage'd;
    Dec. So near conversation.
       Kick. So I am glad he's yet so near conversation.
       Scent. I am for Aretina.
    Kick. Scent. No mention of my lord.
    Kick. Prepare his lady.
       "Tis time be were reduc'd to the old sport; so One lord like him more would undo the court.
    Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter LADY BORNWELL, with a letter, and DECOY.

Dec. He is the ornament of your blood,
    madam;
    I am much bound to his lordship.
    Lady B. He gives you A noble character.
    Dec. 'Tis his goodness, madam.
    Lady B. [Aside.] I wanted such an engine.
       My lord has Done me a courtesy, to disclose her nature;
       I know now one to trust, and will employ her.
       Touching my lord, for reasons which I shall Offer to your ladyship hereafter. I desire you would be silent; but, to show
       How much I dare be confident in your secrecy,
       I pour my bosom forth. I love a gentleman,
       One whom there wo' not need much conjuration
To meet.—Your ear.
       Dec. [Whispers her.] I apprehend you, and I shall Be happy to be serviceable. I am sorry
Your ladyship did not know me before now: I have done offices: and not a few
Of the nobility but have done feats
Within my house, which is convenient
For situation, and artful chambers,
And pretty pictures to provoke the fancy.

Enter LITTLEWORTH.

Little. Madam, all pleasures languish in your absence.
    Lady B. Your pardon a few minutes, sir.—
       You must Contrive it thus.
    Little. I attend, and shall account it Honour to wait on your return.
    Lady B. He may not Have the least knowledge of my name or person.
    Dec. I have practis'd that already for some great ones,
And dare again, to satisfy you, madam;
    I have thousand and ways to do sweet offices.
    Little. If this Lady Aretina should be honest,
I ha' lost time. She's free as air; I must Have closer conference, and if I have art,
Make her affect me in revenge.

Dec. This evening?
    Lady B. You will oblige me.
    Dec. You shall command my art, and thank me after.
    Exit.
    Lady B. I hope the revels are maintain'd within?
    Little. By Sir Thomas and his mistress.
    Lady B. How? His mistress?
    Little. The lady Celestina; I never saw
Eyes shoot more amorous interchange.
    Lady B. Is 't so?
    Little. He wears her favour with more pride—
    Lady B. Her favour?
    Little. A feather that he ravish'd from her fan;
    And is so full of courtship, which she smiles on.
    Lady B. 'Tis well.
    Little. And praises her beyond all poetry.
    Lady B. I'm glad he has so much wit.
    Little. [Aside.] Not jealous!
    Lady B. [Aside.] This secures me. What would make other ladies pale
With jealousy, gives but license to my wand'ring.
    Let him now tax me, if he dare; and yet
Her beauty's worth my envy, and I wish
Revenge upon it, not because he loves,
But that it shines above my own.

Enter Kickshaw.

Kick. Dear madam!
    Lady B. I have it. — You two gentlemen profess
    Much service to me; if I have a way
To employ your wit and secrecy? —
    Both. You'll honour us.
    Lady B. You gave a high and worthy character
Of Celestina.
    Kick. I remember, madam.
    Lady B. Do either of you love her?
    Kick. Not I, madam.
    Little. I would not, if I might.
    Lady B. She's now my guest
And, by a trick, invited by my husband,
To disgrace me.—You, gentlemen, are held
Wits of the town, the consuls that do govern
The senate here, whose jeers are all authentic.
The taverns and the ordinaries are Made academies, where you come, and all
Your sins and surfetis made the time's examplar.
Your very nods can quell a theatre,
No speech or poem good without your seal;
You can protect scrullity, and publish;
By your authority believ'd, no rapture
Ought to have honest meaning.
    Kick. Leave our characters.
    Little. And name the employment.
    Lady B. You must exercise
The strength of both your wits upon this lady,
And talk her into humbleness or anger.
    Both which are equal, to my thought. If you

1 Brought back.
2 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell's house.
3 Absolute, unmixed.
4 Accuser.
Dare undertake this slight thing for my sake,
My favour shall reward it; but be faithful,
And seem to let all spring from your own freed—

Kick. This all! We can defame her; if you please,
My friend shall call her whore, or any thing,
And never be endanger’d in a duel.

Lady B. How’s that?
Kick. He can endure a cudgelling, and no man
Will fight after so fair a satisfaction:
But leave us to our art, and do not limit us.

Lady B. They are here; begin not till I whisper you.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell, Celestina, Mariana, and Isabella.

Lady B. Je vous prie, madame, d’excuser l’importunité de mes affaires, qui m’ont fait asenser, par mon absence, une dame de laquelle j’ai reçu tant d’obligeances.

Col. Pardonnez moi, madame; vous me faites trop d’honneur.

Lady B. C’est bien de la douceur de votre nature; que vous tenez cette langue; mais j’espère que mon mari n’a pas manqué de vous entretenir en mon absence.

Col. En vérité, monsieur nous a fort obligé.

Lady B. Il eût trop failli, s’il n’eût tâché de tout son pouvoir à vous rendre toutes sortes de services.

Col. C’est de sa bonté qu’il nous a tant favorisé.

Lady B. De votre plaint, madame, que vous fait donner d’interprétation si bénigne à ses fôr­ts.

Col. Je vois bien que la victoire sera toujours à madame, et de langue et de la courtoise.

Lady B. Vraiment, madame, que jamais personne a plus désiré l’honneur de votre compagnie que moi.

Col. Laissons-en, je vous supplie, des compliments, et permettez à votre servante de vous baiser les mains.

Lady B. Vous m’obligez trop.

Born. I have no more patience; let’s be merry again

In our own language: madam, our mirth ools.

Our nephew!

Enter Frederick [intoxicated, and Steward].

Lady B. Passion of my brain!

Fred. Save you, gentlemen! save you, ladies!

Lady B. I am undone.

Fred. I must salute; no matter at which end I begin.

[Salutes Celestina.]

Lady B. There’s a compliment!

Col. Is this your nephew, madam?

Lady B. Je vous prie, madame, d’excuser les habits et le rude comportement de mon cousin.
Il est tout fraîchement venu de l’université, où on l’a tout pâtie.

Col. Excusez moi, madame, il est bien accompli.

Fred. This language should be French by the motions of your heads, and the mirth of your faces.

Lady B. I am dishonour’d.

Fred. ’Tis one of the finest tongues for ladies to show their teeth in: if you’ll Latin it, I am for you, or Greek it; my tailor has not put me into French yet. Mille basia, basia mile.

Col. Je ne vous entends pas, monsieur;

I understand you not, sir.

Fred. Why, so!

You and I then shall be in charity;
For though we should be abusive, we ha’ the benefit

Not to understand one another. Where’s my aunt?

I did hear music somewhere; and my brains,
Tun’d with a bottle of your capering claret,
Made haste to show their dancing.

Little.

Please you, madam, madam,

[Offering his box of sweetmeats to Celestina.]

They are very uncomfortable.

Stew.

Alas, madam,

How would you have me help it? I did use
All means I could, after he heard the music,
To make him drunk, in hope so to contain him;

But the wine made him lighter, and his head
Flew hither, ere I mist his heels.

Kick. Nay, he spoke Latin to the lady.

Lady B. O most unpardonable! Get him off Quickly, and discreetly too; or, if I live —

Stew. It is not in my power; he swears I am An absurd sober fellow; and if you keep
A servant in his house to crose his humour,

When the rich sword and belt comes home,
he’ll kill him.

Lady B. What shall I do? Try your skill.
Master Littleworth.

Little. He has ne’er a sword.—Sweet master Frederick —

Born. ’Tis pity, madam, such a scion should Be lost; — but you are clouded.

Col.

Not I, sir, I never found myself more clear at heart.

Born. I could play with a feather; your fan,
lady.

Gentlemen, Aretina, ta, ra, ra, ra! Come, madam,

Fred. Why, my good tutor in election,
You might have been a scholar.

Little.

But I thank My friends, they brought me up a little better.

Give me the town wits, that deliver jests
Clean from the bow, that whistle in the air,
And clave the pin at twelvescore! Ladies do
But laugh at a gentleman that has any learn­­ing;

’Tis sin enough to have your clothes suspected.
Leave us, and I will find a time to instruct you.
Come, here are sugar plums; ’tis a good Fred­­erick.

Fred. Why, is not this my aunt’s house in the Strand?

The noble wenches! Who laughs at me? Go,
I will not here if I list, and talk
Of rhetoric, logic, Latin, Greek, or any thing,

* Comforting.*
And understand 'em too; who says the contrary?
Yet, in a fair way, I contemn all learning,
And will be as ignorant as he, or he,
Or any taffeta, satin, scarlet, plumes,
Tisane, or cloth o' bodkin 1 gentleman,
Whose manners are most gloriously infected. —
Did you laugh at me, lady?
Cel. Not I, sir;
But if I did show mirth upon your question,
I hope you would not beat me, little gentleman?
Fred. How! "little gentleman"? You dare not say These words to my new clothes, and fighting
sword.
Lady B. Nephew Frederick!
Fred. "Little gentleman!"
"Tis an affront both to my blood and person.
I am a gentleman of as tall a birth
As any boast'4 nobility; though my clothes
Smell o' the lamp, my coat is honourable,
Right honourable, full of or and argent. —
A "little gentleman!"
Born. Coz, you must be patient;
My lady meant you no dis honour, and
You must remember she's a woman.
Fred. Is she a woman? That's another matter. —
Do you hear? My uncle tells me what you are.
Cel. So, sir.
Fred. You call'd me "little gentleman."
Cel. I did, sir.
Fred. A little pink 6 has made a lusty ship
Strike her top-sail; the crow may hear the elephant,
A whelp may tame the tiger, spite of all
False decks and murderers; 4 and a "little gentleman"
Be hard enough to grapple with your ladyship's
Top and top-gallant. — Will you go drink, uncle,
'T other enchanted bottle? You and I
Will tipple, and talk philosophy.
Born. Come, nephew. —
You will excuse a minute's absence, madam. —
Wait you on us.
Stew. My duty, sir.
Exc. Sir Thomas Bornwell, Fredrick, and Steward.
Lady B. Now, gentlemen.
Kick. Madam, I had rather you excuse my language
For speaking truth, than virtue suffer in My further silence; and it is my wonder
That you, whose noble carriage hath deserv'd
All honour and opinion, should now
Be guilty of ill manners.
Cel. What was that
You told me, sir?
Little. Do you not blush, madam,
To ask that question?
Cel. You amaze rather
My cheek to paleness. What mean you by this?
I am not troubled with the hicoups, gentlemen,
You should bestow this fright upon me.

1 Made of silk and gold thread.
2 Q. reads least.
3 A small vessel.
4 Cannon charged with grape-shot.

Little.
Then
Pride and ill memory go together.
Cel. How, sir?
Kick. The gentleman on whom you exercis'd
Your thin wit, was a nephew to the lady
Whose guest you are; and though her modesty
Look calm on the abuse of one so near
Her blood, the affront was impious.
Little. I am ashamed on 't.
You an ingenious lady, and well manner'd!
I'll teach a bear as much civility.
Cel. You may be master of the college, sir,
For ought I know.
Little. What college?
[Cel.] 6 Of the bears.
Have you a plot upon me? Do you possess
Your wits, or know me, gentlemen?
Re-enter Sir Thomas Bornwell [behind].
Born. How's this?
Kick. Know you? Yes; we do know you to An atom.
Little. Madam, we know what stuff your soul is made on.
Cel. But do not bark so like a mastiff, pray. —
Sure they are mad. — Let your brains stand awhile,
And settle, gentlemen; you know not me;
What am I?
Little. Th' art a puppet, a thing made
Of clothes and painting, and not half so handsome
As that which play'd Susanna in the fair.
Cel. I heard you visited those canvas tragedies,
One of their constant audience, and so taken
With Susan, that you wish'd yourself a rival
With the two wicked elders.
Kick. You think this Is wit now. Come, you are —
Cel. What, I beseech you?
Your character will be full of salt and satire,
No doubt. What am I?
Kick. Why, you are a woman —
Cel. And that's at least a bow wide of your knowledge.
Kick. Would be thought handsome, and might pass i' th' country
Upon a market day; but so miserably
Forfeit to pride and fashions, that if Heaven
Were a new gown, you'd not stay in 't a fortnight.
Cel. It must be miserably out of fashion then.
Have I no sin but pride?
Kick. Hast any virtue,
Or but a good face, to excuse that want?
Cel. You praised it yesterday.
Kick. That made you proud.
Cel. More pride!
Kick. You need not: — to close up the
praise,
I have seen a better countenance in a sybil.
Cel. When you wore spectacles of sack, 6 mistruck.

6 Q. continues of the bears to Littleworth.
7 A. c. Were drunk.
The painted cloth, and kist it for your mistrees.

Kicke. Let me ask you a question : how much have you consumed in expectation
That I would love you?

Cel. War, I think as much as you have paid away in honest debts
This seven year. 'Tis a pretty impudence, but cannot make me angry.

Little. Is there any man that will cast away his limbs upon her?

Kicke. You do not sing so well as I imagin'd. Nor dance; you reel in your coranto, and pinch your petticoat too hard: y' have no good ear to 'th music, and incline too much on one shoulder, as you were dancing on the rope, and falling.

You speak abominable French, and make a curtsey like a dairy-maid. — [Aside.] Not mad!

Little. Do we not sting her handsomely?

Born. A conspiracy!

Kicke. Your state is not so much as 'tis reported.
When you confer notes, all your husband's debts, and your own reconcile'd; but that's not it. Will no much spoil your marriage.

Cel. As what, sir?

Let me know all my faults.

Kicke. Some men do whisper you are not over honest.

Cel. All this shall not move me to more than laughter, and some pity.

Because you have the shapes of gentlemen; and though you have been insolent upon me, I will engage no friend to kick or cudgel you, to spoil your living and your limbs together: I leave that to diseases that offend you.

And spare my curse, poor silk'en vermin! and hereafter shall distinguish men from monkeys.

Born. [coming forward.] Brave soul! — You brace of horse-leeches! — I have heard their barbarous language, madam; y' are too merciful:

They shall be silent to your tongue; pray punish 'em.

Cel. They are things not worth my character; nor mention of any clean breath; so lost in honesty, they cannot satisfy for wrongs enough, though they should steal out of the world at Tyburn.

Little. We are hang'd already.

Cel. Yet I will talk to a little till the pickards.

You two, that have not 'twixt you both the hundred

Part of a soul, coarse woolen-witted fellows, without a nap; with bodies made for burdens! You, that are only stuffings for apparel.

As you were made but engines for your tailors
To frame their clothes upon, and get them custom.

Until men see you move; yet, then you dare not,
Out of your guilt of being the ignoble beast, but give a horse the wall, whom you excel only in dancing of the brawl, because the horse was not taught the French way.

Your two faces, one fat, like Christmas, t'other lean, like Candlemas,
And prologue to a Lent, both bound together,
Would figure Janus, and do many cures.

On agues, and the green disease, by frightening; but neither can, with all the characters and conjuring circles, charm a woman, though she'd fourscore years upon her, and but one tooth in her head, to love, or think well of you:

And I were miserable to be at cost to court such a complexion as your malice did impudently inaninate. But I waste time,

And stain my breath in talking to such tadpoles.

Go home, and wash your tongues in barley-water,

Drink clean tobacco, be not hot in'th' mouth, and you may escape the beadle; so leave you to shame, and your own garters! — Sir, I must entreat you, for my honour, do not penance them.

They are not worth your anger. How shall I acquit your lady's silence?

Born. Madam, I am sorry to suspect, and dare revenge.

Cel. No cause of mine.

Born. It must become me to attend you home.

Cel. You are noble. — Farewell, mushrooms.

[Exit with SIR THOMAS BORNWELL.]

Lady B. Is she gone? —

Little. I think we pepper'd her.

Kicke. I'm glad 't is over;

But I repent no service for you, madam. —

Enter Servant, with a letter, and a jewel, which he delivers to KICKSHAW.

To me? From whence? — A jewel! a good face.

Be happy the conclusion. — He smiles upon 't.

Lady B. Some love letter.

Little. He has a hundred mistresses: you may be charitable, madam; I ha' none.

He surfeits, and I fall away 'th' kidneys.

Kicke. 'Tis meet. — [Exit Servant.]

[Aside.] 'Tis some great lady, questionless, that has taken notice, and would satisfy her appetite.

Lady B. Now, Master Alexander, you look bright o' the sudden;

Another spirit 's in your eye.

1 Devices.
2 Guilty consciousness.
3 Jaundice (?).
4 A dance like a cotillion.
5 Smokes.
Kick. Not mine, madam; Only a summons to meet a friend. Lady B. What friend! Little. By this jewel, I know her not. Lady B. 'Tis a she-friend. I'll follow, gentleman; We may have a game at cards before you go. Kick. I shall attend you, madam. Little. 'Tis our duty. [Exeunt Kickshaw and Littleworth.]

[Scene 1.]
Enter two men leading Kickshaw blindfold, and go off suddenly.

Kick. I am not hurt; my patience to obey 'em, Not without fear to ha' my throat cut also, Did me a courtesy. Whiter ha' they brought me? [Pulls off a bandage.]

'Tis devilish dark; the bottom of a well At midnight, with but two stars on the top, Were broad day to this darkness. I but think How like a whirwind these rogues caught me up, And smothered my eyesight. Let me see, These may be spirits, and, for aught I know, Have brought me hither over twenty steeples. Pray Heaven they were not bailiffs! that's more worth My fear, and this a prison. All my debts Roak in my nostril, and my bones begin To ache with fear to be made dice; and yet This is too calm and quiet for a prison. What if the riddle prove I am robb'd? And yet I did not feel 'em search me. How now! music! [Music within.]

Enter Decoy, like an old Woman, with a light. And a light! What bolder's this? I cannot pray. —

What art? Dec. A friend. Fear not, young man, I am No spirit. Kick. Oof! Dec. Despise me not for age, Or this coarse outside, which I wear not out Of poverty. Thy eyes be witness, 'tis No cave, or beggar's cell, th'art brought to; let That gold speak here's no want, which thou mayst spend, And find a spring to tire even prodigality, If thou be'st wise. [Gives him a purse.]

Kick. The devil was a coiner From the beginning; yet the gold looks current. Dec. Th'art still in wonder: know, I am mistress of

This house, and of a fortune that shall serve And feed thee with delights; 't was I sent for thee; The jewel and the letter came from me. It was my art thus to contrive our meeting, Because I would not trust thee with my fame, Until I found thee worth a woman's honour.

Kick [Aside.] Honour and fame! the devil means to have A care on's credit. Though she sent for me, I hope she has another customer To do the trick withal; I would not turn Familiar to a witch.

Dec. What say'st? Canst thou Dwell in my arms to-night? Shall we change kisses, And entertain the silent hours with pleasure, Such as old Time shall be delighted with, And blame the too swift motion of his wings, While we embrace? Kick. [Aside.] Embrace! She has had no teeth This twenty years, and the next violent cough Brings up her tongue; it cannot possibly Sound at root. I do not think but one Strong sneeze upon her, and well meant, would make Her quarters fall away; one kick would blow Her up like gunpowder, and loose all her limbs. She is so cold, an inestimable would not heat her; Her phlegm would quench a furnace, and her breath Would damp a musket bullet.

Dec. Have you, sir, Consider'd? Kick. What? Dec. My proposition. Canst love? Kick. I could have done; whom do you mean? I know you are pleas'd but to make sport. Dec. Thou art not So dull of soul as thou appear'st. Kick. [Aside.] This is But some device; my grannam has some trick in 't. —

Yes, I can love. But canst thou affect me? Kick. Although to reverence so grave a matron Were an ambitious word in me, yet since You give me boldness, I do love you.

Dec. Then Thou art my own. Kick. [Aside.] Has she no cloven foot? Dec. And I am thine, and all that I command Thy servants; from this minute thou art happy, And fate in thee will crown all my desires. I grieve'd a proper man should be compell'd To bring his body to the common market. My wealth shall make thee glorious; and, the more To encourage thee, however this form may fright Thy youthful eyes, yet thou'rt find, by light Of thy own sense, for other light is banish'd My chamber, when our arms tie lovers' knots And kisses seal the welcome of our lips,
I shall not there affright thee, nor seem old,
With rivell’d veins; my skin is smooth and soft
As ermines, with a spirit to meet thine,
Active, and equal to the Queen of Love’s
When she did court Adonis.

Kick. [Aside.] This doth more Confirm she is a devil, and I am Within his own dominions. I must on,
Or else be torn a’ pieces. I have heard
These succoubs must not be cast.

Dec. We tide
Too precious time away; I’ll show you a prospect
Of the next chamber, and then out the candle.

Kick. Have you no sack i’ th’ house? I would go arm’d

Dec. Upon this breach.

Kick. It sh’n’t need.

Mother; have not you been a cat in your days?

Dec. I am glad you are so merry, sir. You observe That bed?

Kick. A very brave one.

Dec. When you are
Disrob’d, you can come thither in the dark.
You sh’n’t not stay for me? Come, as you wish.
For happiness.

Exit.

Kick. I am preferr’d, if I
Be modest and obey: she cannot have
The heart to do me harm, an she were Hecate Herself. I will have a strong faith, and think
I march upon a mistress, the less evil.
If I escape fire now, I defy the devil.

Exit.

[SCENE II.]

Enter FREDERICK [gaily dressed], LITTLEWORTH, and STEWARD.

Fred. And how d’ye like me now?

Stew. Most excellent.

Fred. Your opinion, Master Littleworth.

Little. Your French tailor
Has made you a perfect gentleman; I may Converse now with you, and preserve my credit.
D’ye find no alteration in your body?

Fred. My body alter’d? No.

Little. You are not yet in fashion then. That must Have a new motion, garb, and posture too,
Or all your pride is cast away; it is not
The cut of your apparel makes a gallant,
But the geometrical wearing of your clothes.

Stew. Master Littleworth tells you right; you wear your hat
Too like a citizen.

Little. ’Tis like a midwife;
Place it with best advantage of your hair.
Is half your feather mounted? This does make
No show; it should spread over, like a canopy;
Your hot-rein’d monsieur wears it for a shade
And cooler to his back. Your doublet must

Be more unbutton’d hereabout; you ’ll not
Be a sloven else, a foul shirt is no blemish;
You must be confident, and outface clean linen.
Your doublet and your breeches must be allow’d
No private meeting here; your cloak’s too long.
It reaches to your buttock, and doth smell
Too much of Spanish gravity; the fashion
Is to wear nothing but a cape; a coat
May be allow’d a covering for one elbow,
And some, to avoid the trouble, choose to walk
In querro, thus.

Stew. [Aside.] Your coat and cloak’s a brushing

In Long-Lane, Lombard.

Fred. But what if it rain?

Little. Your belt about your shoulder is sufficient.
To keep off any storm; beside, a reed
But way’d discreetly, has so many pores,
It sucks up all the rain that falls about one.
With this defence, when other men have been Wet to the skin through all their cloaks, I have Defied a tempest, and walk’d by the taverns
Dry as a bone.

Stew. [Aside.] Because he had no money
To call for wine.

Fred. Why, do you walk enchant’d?
Have you such pretty charms in town? But stay;
Who must I have to attend me?

Little. Is not that
Yet thought upon?

Stew. I have laid out for servants.

Little. They are everywhere.

Stew. I cannot yet be furnish’d
With such as I would put into his hands.

Fred. Of what condition must they be, and how Many in number, sir?

Little. Beside your fencing,
Your singing, dancing, riding, and French master,
Two may serve domestic, to be constant waiters
Upon a gentleman; a fool, a pimp.

Stew. For these two officers I have enquir’d,
And I am promis’d a convenient whiskin.
I could save charges, and employ the pie-wench,
That carries her intelligence in whitepots; or ‘Tis but taking order with the woman
That [trolls] the ballads, she could fit him with

A concubine to any tune; but I
Have a design to place a fellow with him
That has read all Sir Pandarus’ works; a Trojan
That lies conceal’d, and is acquainted with Both city and suburban fripperies.

9 Span. Cuerpo, stripped of the upper garment.
10 Lombard Street: pawn-shops were common in Long Lane.
11 Be on the look-out. Make arrangements.
12 Q. reads hides.
13 A kind of milk-pudding.
14 Bravo.
15 Day woman, prostitutes.
Can fetch 'em with a spell at midnight to him, And warrant which are for his turn; can, for A need, supply the surgeon too.

Fred. I like thy providence; such a one deserves
A lively twice a year. 82
Slew. It sha'nt need; a cast suit of your worship's
Will serve; he'll find a cloak to cover it, Out of his share with those he brings to bed to you.

Fred. But must I call this fellow pimp?
Little. It is Not necessary; [Tom.] or Jack, or Harry, 76
Or what he's known abroad by, will sound better,
That man may think he is a Christian.

Fred. But hear you, Master Littleworth: is there not A method, and degrees of title in Men of this art?

Little. According to the honour
Of men that do employ 'em. An emperor May give this office to a duke; a king May have his viceroy to negotiate for him; A duke may use a lord; the lord a knight, A knight may use a gentleman; and when They are abroad, and merry, gentlemen May pimp to one another.

Fred. Good, good fellowship! But for the fool now, that should wait on me, And break me jests? 86
Slew. By any means.
Fred. But which of these two servants Must now take place? 88
Little. That question, Master Frederick, The school of heraldry should conclude upon: But if my judgment may be heard, the fool Is your first man; and it is known a point Of state to have a fool.
Slew. But, sir, the other Is held the finer servant; his employments Are full of trust, his person clean and nimble, And none so soon can leap into pretence, Where fools are poor.

Little. Not all; there's story for 't; Princes have been no wiser: than they should be. Would any nobleman, that were no fool, 90
Spend all in hope of the philosopher's stone, To buy new lordships in another country? Would knights build colleges, or gentlemen Of good estates challenge the field, and fight, Because a whore wo' not be honest? Come, Fools are a family over all the world; We do affect one naturally; indeed The fool is leiser 4 with us.

 Then the pimp
Slew. Is extraordinary.
Fred. Do not you fall out 99
About their places. — Here's my noble aunt!

Enter LADY BORNWELL.

Little. How do you like your nephew, madam, now? 111

Lady B. Well! — Turn about, Frederick. — Very well!

Fred. Am I not now a proper gentleman? The virtue of rich clothes! Now could I take The wall of Julius Caesar, or affront Great Pompey's upper lip, and defy the senate. Nay, I can be as proud as your own heart, madam.
You may take that for your comfort; I put on That virtue with my clothes, and I doubt not But in a little time I shall be impudent 112
As any page, or player's boy. I am Beholding to this gentleman's good discipline; But I shall do him credit in my practice. Your steward has some pretty notions, too, 116
In moral mischief.

Lady B. Your desert in this Exceeds all other service, and shall bind me Both to acknowledge and reward.

Little. Sweet madam, Think me but worth your favour; I would creep Upon my knees to honour you, and for every 118
Minute you lend to my reward, I'll pay A year of servileable tribute.

Lady B. You Can compliment.

Little. (Aside.) Thus still she puts me off; Unless I speak the downright word, she'll never Understand me. A man would think that creeping Upon one's knees were English to a lady.

Enter KICKSHAW,

Kick. How is't, Jack. — Pleasures attend you, madam!

How does my plant of honour?

Lady B. Who is this? 120
Kick. 'Tis Alexander.
Lady B. Rich and glorious!

Little. 'Tis Alexander the Great.
Kick. And my Bucephalus 126
 waits at the door.

Lady B. Your case is alter'd, sir.
Kick. I cannot help these things, the Fates will have it; 128
'Tis not my land does this.

Little. But thou hast a plough
That brings it in.

Lady B. Now he looks brave and lovely.

Fred. Welcome, my gallant Macedonian. 130
Kick. Madam, you gave your nephew for my pupil.

I read 5 but in a tavern; if you'll honour us, The Bear at the Bridge foot shall entertain you. A drawer 6 is my Ganymede, he shall skink 7
Brick nectar to us; we will only have 134
A dozen partridge in a dish; as many peaseants, Quails, cockes, and godwits shall come marching up Like the train'd-band; 8 a fort of sturgeon Shall give most bold defiance to an army, And triumph o'er the table. —

8 Lecture. 6 Waiter. 7 Pour out. 8 City millifie.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

IV. iii.

LADY B.

Si, it will be to you.

But dull the appetite to hear more, and mine
Must be excuse'd. Another time I may be Your guest.

KICK. 'Tis grown in fashion now with ladies;
When you please, I'll attend you. Little-worth.

COME, FREDERICK.

Freer. We'll have music; I love noise.

We will roar o'er the Thames, and shake the bridge, boy. Exit with KICKSHAW.

LITTLE. Madam, I kiss your hand; would you would think
Of your poor servant: flesh and blood is frail,
And troublesome to carry, without help.

LADY B. A coach will easily convey it, or

You may take water at Strand Bridge.

LITTLE. But I have taken fire.

LADY B. The Thames will cool it, sir.

LITTLE. But never quench my heart; your chastity
Can only do that.

LADY B. I will keep it cold
Of purpose.

LITTLE. Now you bless me, and I dare

Be drunk in expectation. [Exit.]

LADY B. I am confident
He knows not, and I were worse than mad
To be my own betrayer. — Here's my husband.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

BORN. Why, how now, Aretina? What! alone?
The mystery of this solitude? My house
Turn desert o' the sudden! All the gamesters Blown up! Why is the music put to silence?
Or have their instruments caught a cold, since

Gave 'em the last heat? I must know thy ground
Of melancholy.

LADY B. You are merry, as

You came from kissing Celestina.

BORN. I feel her yet warm upon my lip; she is Most excellent company: I did not think There was that sweetness in her sex. I must Acknowledge, 'twas thy cure to disenchant
me
From a dull husband to an active lover.

With such a lady I could spend more years
Than since my birth my glass hath run soft minutes,

And yet be young; her presence hath a spell
To keep off age; she has an eye would strike
Fire through an adamant.

LADY B. I have heard as much

Bestow'd upon a dull-face'd chambermaid,
Whom love and wit would thus commend. True beauty
Is mock'd when we compare thus; itself being Above what can be fetch'd I to make it lovely;
Or, 2 could our thoughts reach something to declare.

1 Brought in comparison. 2 Perhaps, O.K.

The glories of a face, or body's elegance
(That touches but our sense), when beauty spreads
Over the soul, and calls up understanding
To look [what] 3 thence is offer'd, and ad-

In both I must acknowledge Celestina
Most excellently fair, fair above all
The beauties I ha' seen, and one most worthy Man's love and wonder.

BORN. Do you speak, Aretina,

This with a pure sense to commend? Or is it

The mockery of my praise?

LADY B. Although it shame
Myself, I must be just, and give her all
The excellency of women; and were I
A man—

BORN. What then?

LADY B. I know not with what

I should attempt her love. She is a piece
So angelically moving, I should think
Frailty excus'd to dote upon her form,
And almost virtue to be wicked with her.

BORN. What should this mean? This is no jealousy,

Or she believed I counterfeit. I feel

Something within me, like a heat, to give
Her cause, would Celestina but consent.

What a frail thing is man! It is not worth
Our glory to be chaste, while we deny

Mirth and converse with women; he is good 3

That dares the tempter, yet corrects his blood.

Exit.

[SCENE III.] 4

[Enter] CELESTINA, MARIANA, and ISABELLA.

CELEST. I have told you all my knowledge: since he is pleas'd

To invite himself, he shall be entertain'd,

And you shall be my witnesses.

MARI. Who comes with him?

CELEST. Sir William Scentslove, that prepar'd me for

The honourable encounter. I expect

His lordship every minute.

Enter Sir William Scentslove.

SCENT. My lord is come.

CELEST. He has honour'd me.

Enter Lord — and Hairstout.

SCENT. My lord, your periwig is awry.

LORD. You, sir —

While Hairstout is busy about his hair, Sir William Scentslove goes to Celestina.

SCENT. You may guess at the gentleman

that's with him.

It is his barber, madam, d' ye observe?

An your ladyship wants a shaver.

HAIRSTOUT. She is here, sir. 5

I am betray'd. — Scentslove, your plot. I may Have opportunity to be reveng'd. Exit.

SCENT. She in the midst.

Q. reads when. 4 A room in Celestina's house.
Lord. She’s fair, I must confess;
But does she keep this distance out of state?

Cel. Though I am poor in language to express
How much your lordship honours me, my heart
Is rich and proud in such a guest. I shall Be out of love with every air abroad,
And for his grace done my unworthy house,
Be a found prisoner, become an invite,
And spend my hours in prayer, to reward
The blessing and the bounty of this presence.

Lord. Though you could turn each place you move in to
A temple, rather than a wall should hide
So rich a beauty from the world, it were Less want to lose our piety and your prayer.
A throne were fitter to present you to Our wonder, whence your eyes, more worth than
all
They look on, should chain every heart a priso ner.

Scent. ’T was pretty well come off.

Lord. By your example
I shall know how to compliment; in this,
You more confirm my welcome.

Cel. I shall love
My lips the better, if their silent language
Persuade your lordship but to think so truly.

Lord. You make me smile, madam.

Cel. I hope you came not
With fear that any sadness here should shake
One blossom from your eye. I should be mis erable
To present any object should displease you.

Lord. You do not, madam.

Cel. As I should account
It no less sorrow, if your lordship should Lay too severe a censure on my freedom.
I wo’ not court a prince against his justice,
Nor bribe him with a smile to think me honest.
Pardon, my lord, this boldness, and the mirth
That may flow from me. I believe my father
Thought of no winding-sheet when he begot me.

Lord. She has a merry soul. — It will become Me ask your pardon, madam, for my rude
Approach, so much a stranger to your knowl
dedge.

Cel. Not, my lord, so much stranger to my knowledge;
Though I have but seen your person afar off,
I am acquainted with your character,
Which I have heard so often, I can speak it.

Lord. You shall do me an honour.

Cel. If your lordship will Be patient.

Lord. And glad to hear my faults.

Cel. That as your conscience can agree upon
’tem;
However, if your lordship give me privilege,
I ’ll tell you what ’s the opinion of the world.

Lord. You cannot please me better.

Cel. ’Y are a lord
Born with as much nobility as would,
Divided, serve to make ten noblemen,
Without a herald; but with so much spirit
And height of soul, as well might furnish twenty.

You are learnt’d, a thing not compatible now
With native honour; and are master of
A language that doth chain all ears, and charm
All hearts, where you persuade; a wit so flow
ning,
And prudence to correct it, that all men
Believe they only meet in you, which, with
A spacious memory, make up the full wonders:
To these you have [joined] 4 value and upon
A noble cause, know how to use a sword.
To honour’s best advantage, though you wear
none.

You are as bountiful as the showers that fall
Into the spring’s green bosom; as you were Created lord of Fortune, not her steward;
So constant to the cause in which you make Yourself an advocate, you dare all dangers;
And men had rather you should be their friend,
Than justice or the bench bound up together.

Lord. But did you hear all this?

Cel. And more, my lord.

Lord. Pray let me have it, madam.

Cel. To all these virtues there is added one,—
(Your lordship will remember, when I name it,
I speak but what I gather from the voice
Of others)—it is grown to a full fame
That you have lov’d a woman.

Lord. But one, madam?

Cel. Yes, many; give me leave to smile, my
lord,
I shall not need to interpret in what sense;
But you have show’d yourself right honourable,
And, for your love to ladies, have deserv’d,
If their vote might prevail, a marble statue.
I make no comment on the people’s text,—
My lord, I should be sorry to offend.

Lord. You cannot, madam; these are things we owe
To nature for.

Cel. And honest men will pay.

Their debts.

Lord. If they be able, or compound.

Cel. She had a hard heart would be unmerci fial,
And not give day to men so promising;
But you ow’d women nothing.

Lord. Yes, I am
Still in their debt, and I must owe them love,
It was part of my character.

Cel. With your lordship’s
Pardon, I only said you had a fame
For loving women; but of late, men say
You have, against the imperial laws of love,
Restrain’d the active flowings of your blood,
And with a mistress buried all that is Hop’d for in love’s succession, as all beauty
Had died with her, and left the world be ighted!
In this you more dishonour all our sex.

Than you did grace a part; when everywhere
Love tempts your eye to admire a glorious harvest,
And everywhere as full blown ears submit

1 Q. yeares. 2 Q. known. 3 Q. were.
Their golden heads, the laden trees bow down
Their willing fruit, and court your amorous pressing.

Lord. I see men would dissect me to a fibre;
But do you believe this?

Cel. It is my wonder,
I must confess, a man of nobler earth
Than goes to vulgar composition,
(Born and bred high, so unconfined, so rich
In fortunes, and so read in all that sum
Up human knowledge, to feed gloriously,
And live at court, the only sphere wherein
True beauty moves, nature’s most wealthy garden.

Where every blossom is more worth than all
The Hesperian fruit by jealous dragon watch’d,
Where all delights do circle appetite,
And pleasures multiply by being tasted,
Should be so lost with thought of one turn’d ashes.

There’s nothing left, my lord, that can excuse

Unless you plead, what is amahm’d to prompt
Your wisdom to?

Lord. What’s that?

Cel. That you have play’d
The surgeon with yourself.

Lord. And am made sullen?

Cel. It were much pity.

Lord. Trouble not yourself,
I could convince your fears with demonstration.

That I am man enough, but knew not where,
Until this meeting, beauty dwelt. The court
You talk’d of must be where the Queen of Love
Is, which moves but with your person; in your eye
Her glory shines, and only at that flame
Her wanton boy doth light his quick’ning torch.

Cel. Nay, now you compliment; I would it did.
My lord, for your own sake,

Lord. You would be kind,
And love me then?

Cel. My lord, I should be loving,
Where I found worth to invite it, and should cherish

A constant man.

Lord. Then you should me, madam.

Cel. But is the ice about your heart fallen off?
Can you return to do what love commands?
Cupid, thou shalt have instant sacrifice,
And I dare be the priest.

Lord. Your hand, your lip.

Now I am proof ’gainst all temptation.

Cel. Your meaning, my good lord?

Lord. I, that have strength
Against thy voice and beauty, after this
May dare the charms of womankind. — Thou art
Bella Maria, unprofaned yet;

This magic has no power upon my blood.

Farewell, madam! if you durst be the example
Of chaste as well as fair, thou wert a brave one.

Cel. I hope your lordship means not this for earnest:

Be pleas’d to grace a banquet.

Lord. Pardon, madam. —

Will Scentslove, follow; I must laugh at you.

Cel. My lord, I must beseech you stay, for honour,
For her whose memory you love best.

Lord. Your pleasure.

Cel. And by that virtue you have now profess’d,
I charge you to believe me too; I can
Now glory that you have been worth my trial,
Which, I beseech you, pardon. Had not you
So valiantly recover’d in this conflict,
You had been my triumph, without hope of more
Than my just scorn upon your wanton flame;
Nor will I think these noble thoughts grew first

From melancholy, for some female loss,
As the fantastic world believes, but from Truth, and your love of innocence, which shine
So bright in the two royal luminaries
At court, you cannot lose your way to chastity.

Proceed, and speak of me as honour guides you.

Exit LORD.

I am almost tir’d. — Come, ladies, we’ll beguile Dull time, and take the air another while.

Exeunt.

ACT V

[Scene I.]

Enter Lady Bornwell, and a Servant [with a purse].

Lady B. But hath Sir Thomas lost five hundred pounds
Already?

Serv. And five hundred more he borrow’d.

The dice are notable devourers, madam:
They make no more of pieces than of pebbles,
But thrust their heaps together, to engender.

"Two hundred more the caster!" cries this gentleman.

"I am wi’ ye. — I ha’ that to nothing, sir.

The caster
Again." "’T is covered, and the table too,

With sums that frightened me. Here one sneaks out,

And with a martyr’s patience smiles upon

His money’s executioner, the dice;

Commands a pipe of good tobacco, and

Th’ smoke on’ t vanishes. Another makes

The bones vail o’er his head, swears that ill-throwing

Has put his shoulder out of joint, calls for

A bone-setter. That looks to th’ box, to bid

His master send him some more hundred pounds,

Which lost, he takes tobacco, and is quiet.

Here a strong arm throws in and in, with which
He brushes all the table, pays the rooks
That went their smelts & a piece upon his hand,

Charles I and Henrietta Maria.

A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell’s house.

Thrower of the dice.

Guils, simpletons.

Staked their coins (?).
Yet swears he has not drawn a stake this seven
year.
But I was bid make haste; my master may Lose this five hundred pounds ere I come thither.

Exit.

Lady B. If we both waste so fast, we shall soon find
Our state is not immortal. Something in His other ways appear not well ready.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell, [and Servants,
one with a purse.]

Born. Ye tortoise, why make ye no more haste?
Go pay to th' master of the house that money,
And tell the noble gamesters I have another.
Superfluous thousand pound; at night I'll visit
'tom.

D' ye hear?
Serv. Yes, an please you.
Born. [Exeunt Servants.]

To, ra, ra! — Arentia!

Lady B. You have a pleasant humour, sir.
Born. What! should a gentleman be sad?
Lady B. You have lost —
Born. A transitory sum; as good that way as
An other.

Lady B. Do you not vex within for 't?
Born. I had rather lose a thousand more, than one
Sad thought some near my heart fer 't. Vex for trash!
Although it go from other men like drops
Of their life blood, we lose with the acerity
We drink a cup of sack, or kiss a mistress.
No money is considerable with a gamester;
They have souls more spacious than kings. Did two
Gamesters divide the empire of the world,
They'd make one throw for 't all, and he that lost
Be no more melancholy than to have play'd for
A morning's draught. Vex a rich soul for dirt,
The quiet of whose every thought is worth
A province!

Lady B. But when dice have consum'd all,
Your patience will not pawn for so much more.
Born. Hang pawning! Sell outright, and the fear's over.
Lady B. Say you so? I'll have another coach to-morrow
If there be rich above ground.

Born. I forgot
To bid the fellow ask my jeweller
Whether the chain of diamonds be made up; I will present it to my Lady Bellamour, Fair Celestina.

Lady B. This gown I have worn
Six days already; it looks dull, I'll give it
My waiting-woman, and have one of cloth
Of gold embroidered; shoes and pantables
Will show well of the same.

Born. I have invited
A covey of ladies, and as many gentlemen

To-morrow, to the Italian ordinary;
I shall have rarities and regalies

To pay for, madam; music, wanton songs,
And tunes of silken petticoats to dance to.

Lady B. And to-morrow have I invited half
the court
To dine here. What misfortune 'tis your company, and our should be divided! After dinner
I entertain 'em with a play.

Born. By that time
Your play inclines to the epilogue, shall we Quit our Italian host; and whirl in coaches
To the Dutch magazine of sauce, the Steelyard,
Where deal, and back-rag, and what strange wine else
They dare but give a name to in the reckoning.
Shall flow into our room, and drown Westphalian,
Tongues, and anchovies, like some little town Endangered by a sluice, through whose fierce ebb
We waste, and wash ourselves into a boat,
And bid our coachmen drive their leather tenements
By land, while we sail home, with a fresh tide,
To some new rendezvous.

Lady B. If you have not 'Pointed the place, pray bring your ladies
hither;
I mean to have a ball to-morrow night,
A rich banquet for 'em, where we'll dance
Till morning rise, and blush to interrupt us.

Born. Have you no ladies 't the next room, to advance
A present mirth? What a dull house you govern!
Farewell! I a wife 's no company.— Arentia,
I 've summ'd up my estate, and find we may have
A month good yet.

Lady B. What mean you?
Born. And I'd rather
Be lord one month of pleasures, to the height
And rapture of our senses, than be years
Consuming what we have in foolish temperance,
Live in the dark, and no fame wait upon us! I will live so, posterity shall stand
At gaze when I am mentioned.

Lady B. A month good!

And what shall be done then?

Born. I'll over sea,
And trail a pike. With watching, marching, lying
In trenches, with enduring cold and hunger,
And taking here and there a musket-shot,
I can earn every week four shillings, madam;
And if the bullets favour me to snatch
Any superfluous limb, when I return,
With good friends, I despair not to be enroll'd
Poor knight of Windsor. If for your course,

Choice viands.
"Some unidentified kind of wine." [N. E. D.]
Boccasch, a famous Rhine wine.
Nature.
Roma.

One of a small order of military knights with passions and apartments in Windsor Castle.
No doubt you may do well; your friends are great;
Or if your poverty and their pride cannot Agree, you need not trouble much invention.
To find a trade to live by; there are customers.

Farewell, be frolic, madam! If I live,
I will feast all my senses, and not fall
Less than a Phaeton from my throne of pleasure,
Though my estate flame like the world about me.

Lady B. 'Tis very pretty! —

Enter Deoy.

Madam Deoy!

Dec. What! melancholy, worn after so sweet a night's work! Have not I show'd myself mistress of my art?

Lady B. A lady.

Dec. That title makes the credit of the act a story higher. Y' have not seen him yet? I wonder what he'll say.

Lady B. He's here.

Enter Kickshaw and Frederick.

Kick. Bear up, my little myrmidon; does not Jack Littleworth follow?

Fred. Follow? He fell into the Thames at landing.

Kick. The devil shall dive for him, ere I endanger my silk stockings for him. Let the watermen alone, they have drags and engines.

When he has drunk his julep, I shall laugh
To see him come in pickled the next tide.

Fred. He'll never sink, he has such a cork brain.

Kick. Let him be hang'd or drown'd, all's one to me;
Yet he deserves to die by water, cannot bear his wine credibly.

Fred. Is not this my aunt? Kick. And another handsome lady; I must know her. [Goes up to Deoy.]

Fred. My blood is rampant too, I must court somebody;

As good my aunt as any other body.

Lady B. Where have you been, cousin?

Fred. At the Bear's foot, where our first health began
To the fair Aretina, whose sweet company Was wished by all. We could not get a lay, A tumbler, a device, a bona roba, for any money; drawers were grown dull:
We wanted our true friks, and our vagaries — When were you in drink, aunt?

Lady B. How?

Fred. Do not ladies

Play the good fellows too? There's no true

Without 'em. I have now such tickling fancies!

That doctor of the chair of wit has read a precious lecture, how I should behave myself to ladies; as now, for example.

[Goes up to Lady Bornwell.]

Lady B. Would you practise upon me?

Fred. I first salute you,
You have a soft hand, madam; are you so

All over?

Lady B. Nephew!

Fred. Nay, you should but smile.

And then again I kiss you; and thus draw
Off your white glove, and start, to see your hand
More excellently white. I grace my own lip with this touch, and turning gently thus,

Prepare you for my skill in palmistry,

Which, out of curiosity, no lady but easily applies to. The first line

I look with most ambition to find out,

La Venus' girdle, a fair semicircle,

Enclosing both the mount of Sol and Saturn;

If that appear, she's for my turn; a lady whom nature has prepar'd for the career;

And, Cupid at my elbow, I put forward:

You have this very line, aunt.

Lady B. The boy's frantic!

Fred. You have a couch or pallet; I can shut

The chamber door. Enrich a stranger, when your nephew's coming into play!

Lady B. No more.

Fred. Are you so ooy to your own flesh and blood?

Kick. Here, take your playfellow; I talk of sport,

And she would have me marry her.

Fred. Here's Littleworth.

Enter Littleworth, wet.

Why, how now, tutor?

Little. I have been fishing.

Fred. And what ha' you caught?

Little. My belly full of water.

Kick. Ha, ha! Where's thy rapier?

Little. My rapier is drown'd, and I am little better. I was up by th' heels, and out came a tun of water, beside wine.

Kick. 'T has made thee sober.

Little. Would you have me drunk with water?

Lady B. I hope your fire is quench'd by this time.

Fred. It is not now, as when your worship walk'd

By all the taverns, Jack, dry as a bone."

Kick. You had store of fish under water, Jack.

Little. It has made a poor John of me.

Fred. I do not think but if we cast an angle into his belly, we might find some pilchards.

Little. And boil'd, by this time. — Dear madam, a bed.

Kick. Carry but the water-spaniel to a grassplot,

1 Contrivances.
2 All four terms are euphemisms for courtesan.
3 A vague piece of contemporary slang, the meaning of which has usually to be derived from the context.
4 Yields.
5 A small fish, like a herring.
Where he may roll himself; let him but shake
His ears twice in the sun, and you may grind him
Into a posset.
Fred. Come, thou shalt to my bed,
Poor mocker.

Dec. Alas, sweet gentleman! Little, I have ill luck as I should smell by this time;
I am but new ta’en, I am sure.—Sweet gentle-
woman!
Dec. Your servant.

Little. Pray do not pluck off my skin;
It is so wet, unless you have good eyes,
You'll hardly know it from a shirt.

Dec. Fear nothing. [Exeunt [all but KICKSHAW and LADY BORNWELL.]

Lady B. [Aside.] He has saek enough, and I may find his humour.

Kick. And how is't with your ladyship? You look
Without a sunshine in your face.

Lady B. You are glorious
In mind and habit.

Kicks. Ends of gold and silver!

Lady B. Your other clothes were not so rich.

Who was
Your tailor, sir?

Kick. They were made for me long since;
They have known but two bright days upon my back.
I had a humour, madam, to lay things by;
They will serve two days more: I think I ha'
gold enough
To go to th' mercer. I'll now allow myself
A suit a week, as this, with necessary
Dependances, beaver, silk stockings, garters,
And roses, in their due conformity;
Boots are forbid a clean leg, but to ride in.
My linen every morning comes in new,
The old goes to great bellies.

Lady B. You are charitable.

Kick. I may dine wi' ye sometimes, or at the court,
To meet good company, not for the table.
My clerk o' th' kitchen's here, a witty epicure,
A spirit, that, to please me with what 's rare,
Can fly a hundred mile a day to market,
And make me lord of fish and fowl. I shall Forget there is a butcher; and to make
My footman nimble, he shall feed on nothing
But wings of wild fowl.

Lady B. These ways are costly.

Kick. Therefore I 'll have it so; I ha' sprung a mine.

Lady B. You make me wonder, sir, to see this change
Of fortune; your revenue was not late
So plentiful.

Kick. Hang dirty land, and lordships!
I wo' not change one lodging I ha' got,

For the Chamber of London.

Lady B. Strange, of such a sudden,
To rise to this estate! No fortunate hand
At dice could lift you up so, for 'tis since Last night: yesterday, you were no such monarch.

Kick. There be more games than dice.

Lady B. It cannot be
A mistress, though your person is worth love;
None possibly are rich enough to feed.

As you have cast the method of your riots.
A princess, after all her jewels, must
Be for'd to sell her provinces.

Kick. Now you talk
Of jewels, what do you think of this?

Lady B. A rich one.

Kick. You 'll honour me to wear 't; this other toy
I had from you; this chain I borrowed of you.
A friend had it in keeping. [Gives her the jewel and chain.]—If your ladyship
Want any sum, you know your friend, and Alexander.

Lady B. Dare you trust my security?

Kick. There's gold,
I shall have more to-morrow.

Lady B. Who can supply these?

Kick. A dear friend I have.
She promis'd we should meet again i' th' morning.

Lady B. Not that I wish to know
More of your happiness than I have already Heart to congratulate,—be pleas'd to lay
My wonder.

Kick. 'Tis a secret
Which I 'll die
E'er I'll betray.

Kick. You have always wish'd me well;
But you shall swear not to reveal the party.

Lady B. I 'll lose the benefit of my tongue.

Kick. Nor be Afraid at what I say. What think you first
Of an old witch, a strange ill-favour'd hag,
That, for my company last night, has wrought
This curse upon my fortune? I do swear
To think upon her name.

Lady B. How, sir! a witch?

Kick. I would not fright your ladyship too much
At first, but witches are akin to spirits.
The truth is—Nay, if you look pale already,
I ha' done.

Lady B. Sir, I beseech you.

Kick. If you have
But courage then to know the truth, I 'll tell
you
In one word; my chief friend is—the devil!

Lady B. What devil? how I tremble!

Kick. Have a heart;
'T was a sho-devil too, a most insatiate,
Abominable devil, with a tail
Thus long.

Lady B. Goodness defend me! Did you see
her?

Kick. No, 't was i' th' dark; but she appear'd first to me.

I ' th' likeness of a beldam, and was brought,
I know not how, nor whither, by two goblins,
More hooded than a hawk.

Lady B. But would you venture

Upon a devil!

Kick. Ay, for means.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

Lady B. [Aside.] How black An impudence is this! — But are you sure It was the devil you enjoy'd? Say nothing; I did the best to please her; but as sure As you live, 'twas a half-cast.
Lady B. D' ye not quake?
Kirk. I found myself in the very room 3 i' th' morning, Where two of her familiars had left me.

Enter Servant.
Serv. My lord is come to visit you.
Kirk. No words, As you respect my safety. I ha' told tales Out of the devil's school; if it be known, I lose a friend. 'Tis now about the time I promised her to meet again; at my return I'll tell you wonders. Not a word. Exit.
Lady B. 'Tis a false glass; sure I am more deform'd: [Looks in her pocket mirror.] What have I done? — My soul is miserable.

Enter Lord.

Lord. I sent you a letter, madam.
Lady B. You express Your noble care of me, my lord.

Re-enter Sir Thomas Bornwell with Celestina.

Born. Your lordship Does me an honour.
Lord. Madam, I am glad To see you here; I meant to have kist your hand, Ere my return to court.

Cel. Sir Thomas has Prevail'd to bring me, to his trouble, hither.
Lady B. As you Do hope for Heaven, withdraw, and give me but The patience of ten minutes.
Born. Wonderful! I will not hear you above that proportion. She talks of Heaven: — Come, where must we to counsel?
Lady B. You shall conclude me when you please.

[Exit.]

Born. I follow.
Lord. [Aside.] What alteration is this? I, that so late Skood the temptation of her eye and voice,
Boasted a heart 'bove all licentious flame,
At second view turn renegade, and think
I was too superstitious, and full
Of phlegm, not to reward her amorous courtship
With manly freedom.
Cel. I obey you, sir.
Born. I'll wait upon your lordship presently.

[Exit.]

d 1 Gifford conj. Q. myself the very same.
2 A punning allusion to Dowland's Lachrimae or Seven Tears, etc., a popular musical work of the time for stringed instruments.
3 Daphne was transformed into a bay-tree.
Col. What's all this?
Lord. Consent to be my mistress, Celestina, And we will have it spring-time all the year; Upon whose invitations, when we walk, The winds shall play soft descant to our feet, And breathe rich odours to re-please the air: Green bowers on every side shall tempt our stay, And violets stoope to have us tressed upon 'em. The red rose shall grow pale, being near thy cheek, And the white blush, o'ercome with such a forehead. Here laid, and measuring with ourselves some bank, A thousand birds shall from the woods repair, And place themselves so cunningly behind The leaves of every tree, that while they pay Us tribute of their songs, thou sha't imagine The very trees bear music, and sweet voices Do grow in every harbour. Here can we Embrace and kiss, tall tales, and kiss again, And home but Heaven our rival.

Col. When we are weary of these, what if we shift our paradise, And through a grove of tall and even pines, Descend into a valley, that shall shame All the delights of Tempe; upon whose Green plush the Graces shall be call'd to dance To please us, and maintain their fairy revels, To the harmonious murmurs of a stream That gently falls upon a rock of pearl. Here doth the nymph, forsaken Echo, dwell, To whom we'll tell the story of our love, Till at our surfeit and her want of joy, We break her heart with envy. Not far off, A grove shall call us to a wanton river, To see a dying swan give up the ghost, The fishes shooting up their tears in bubbles, That they must lose the genius of their waves —
And such love linsey woolsey, to no purpose. Lord. You chide me handsomely; pray tell me how You like this language.

Col. Good my lord, forbear. Lord. You need not fly out of this circle, madam; — These widows are so full of circumstance! — I'll undertake, in this time I ha' courted Your ladyship for the toy, ha' broken ten, Nay, twenty colts, virgins I mean, and taught 'em The amble, or what pace I most affected.

Col. You're not, my lord, again, the lord I thought you; And I must tell you now, you do forget Yourself and me.

Lord. You'll not be angry, madam? Col. Nor rude, (though gay men have a privilege.)

It shall appear: — there is a man, my lord, Within my acquaintance, rich in worldly fortunes, But cannot boast any descent of blood, Would buy a coat of arms.

Lord. He may, and legs Booted and spurr'd, to ride into the country.

Col. But these will want antiquity, my lord, The seal of honour. What's a coat cut out But yesterday, to make a man a gentleman? Your family, as old as the first virtue That merited an escutcheon, doth owe A glorious coat of arms; if you will sell now All that your name doth challenge in that ensign, I'll help you to a chapman that shall pay, And pour down wealth enough for 't.

Lord. Sell my arms! I cannot, madam.

Col. Give but your consent. You know not how the state may be inclin'd To dispensation; we may prevail Upon the Herald's office afterward.

Lord. I'll sooner give these arms to th' hangman's axe, My head, my heart, to twenty executions, They sell one atom from my name.

Col. Change that. And answer him who would buy my honour from me; Honour, that is not worn upon a flag Or pennon, that, without the owner's dangers, An enemy may ravish, and bear from me; But that which grows and withers with my soul, Beside the body's stain: think, think, my lord, To what you would unworthily betray me, If you would not, for price of gold, or pleasure, (If that be more your idol,) lose the glory And painted honour of your house. — I ha' done.

Lord. Enough to rectify a satyr's blood. Obscure my blushes here.

Enter Sir William Scentlove and Haircut.

Hair. Or this, or fight with me; It shall be no exception that I wait Upon my lord; I am a gentleman, You may be less and be a knight: the office I do my lord is honest, sir. How many Such you have been guilty of, Heaven knows.

Scent. 'Tis no fear of your sword, but that I would not Break the good laws establish'd against duels.

Hair. Off with your periwig, and stand here. [SIR WILLIAM SCENTLOVE TAKES OFF HIS PERIWIG.]

Lord. From this Minute I'll be a servant to thy goodness; A mistress in the wanton sense is common, I'll honour you with chaste thoughts, and call you so.

Col. I'll study to be worth your fair opinion.

Lord. Scentlove, your head was us'd to a covering.

Beside a hat; when went the hair away? Scent. I laid a wager, my lord, with Haircut, Who thinks I shall catch cold, that I'll stand bare

This half hour.
Hair.

Pardon my ambition,
Madam, I told you truth; I am a gentleman,
And cannot fear that name is drown’d in my Relation to my lord.

Cel. I dare not think so.

Hair. From henceforth call my service duty,
madam.

That pig’s head, that betray’d me to your mirth,

Is doing penance for’t.

Scent. Why may not I,
My lord, begin a fashion of no hair?

Cel. Do you sweat, Sir William?

Scent. Not with store of nightcaps.

Re-enter Sir Thomas and Lady Bornwell.

Lady B. Heaven has dissolve’d the clouds that hung upon
My eyes, and if you can with mercy meet
A penitent, I throw my own will off,
And now in all things obey yours. My nephew
Send back again to th’ college, and myself
To what place you ’ll confine me.

Born. Dearer now
Than ever to my bosom, thou sha’t please
Me best to live at thy own choice. I did
But fright thee with a noise of my expenses;
The sums are safe, and we have wealth enough,
If yet we use it nobly. My lord—madam,
Pray honour us to-night.

Lady B. I beg your presence.

And pardon.

Born. I know not how my Aretina
May be dispos’d to-morrow for the country.

Cel. You must not go before you have done
Me honour to accept an entertainment
Where I have power; on those terms I’m your guest.

Born. You grace us, madam.

Lady B. [Aside.] Already
I feel a cure upon my soul, and promise
My after life to virtue. Pardon, Heaven,
My shame, yet hid from the world’s eye.

Re-enter Decoy.

Dec. Sweet madam!

Lady B. Not for the world be seen here!

We are lost.

I’ll visit you at home. — [Aside.] But not to practise

What she expects: my counsel may recover her.
[Exit Decoy.]

Re-enter Kickshaw.

Kick. Where’s madam?—Pray lend me a little money,

My spirit has deceiv’d me; Proserpine

Has broke her word.

Lady B. Do you expect to find

The devil true to you?

Kick. Not too loud.

Lady B. I’ll voice it

Louder, to all the world, your horrid sin,

Unless you promise me religiously,
To purge your soul blood by repentance, sir.

Kick. Then I’m undone.

Lady B. Not while I have power

To encourage you to virtue. I’ll endeavour

To find you out some nobler way at court,
To thrive in.

Kick. Do ’t and I’ll forsake the devil,
And bring my flesh to obedience. You shall steer me.—

My lord, your servant.

Lord. You are brave again.

Kick. Madam, your pardon.

Born. Your offence requires

Humility.

Kick. Low as my heart.—Sir Thomas,
I’ll sup with you, a part of satisfaction.

Born. Our pleasures cool. Music! and when our ladies

Are tir’d with active motion, to give

Them rest, in some new rapture to advance

Full mirth, our souls shall leap into a dance.

Exeunt.

THE PROLOGUE

The Cardinal! 'Cours we express no scene,
We do believe most of you, gentlemen,
Are at this hour in France, and busy there,
Though you vouchsafe to lend your bodies here;
But keep your fancy active, till you know,
By th' progress of our play, 'tis nothing so.
A poet's art is to lead on your thought
Through subtle paths and workings of a plot;
And where your expectation does not thrive,
If things fall better, yet you may forgive.
I will say nothing positive; you may Think what you please; we call it but a Play;
Whether the comic Muse, or ladies' love,
Romance, or direful tragedy it proves,
The bill determines not; and would you be Persuaded, I would have 't a Comedy,
For all the purple in the name and state
Of him that owns it; but 't is left to fate.
Yet I will tell you, ere you see it play'd,
What the author, and he blushed too, when he said,
Comparing with his own, (for 't had been pride,
He thought, to build his wit a pyramid
Upon another's wounded fame,) this play
Might rival with his best, and dar'd to say—Troth, I am out: he said no more. You, then,
When 't's done, may say your pleasures, gentlemen.

ACT I

[Scene I.]¹

Enter two Lords at one door; secretary [Antonio]² at the other.

1 Lord. Who is that?
2 Lord. The duchess' secretary.

² In stage directions and speech-tags throughout, Antonio is called Secretary.

1 Lord. Signior!
Ant. Your lordship's servant.
1 Lord. How does her grace, since she left off her mourning
For the young Duke Mendoza, whose timeless death
At sea left her a virgin and a widow?
2 Lord. She's now inclining to a second bride.⁶

⁶ Bridegroom, as often.
When is the day of mighty marriage
To our great Cardinal’s nephew, Don Columbo?
   Ant. When they agree; they will not steal to church,
I guess the ceremonies will be loud and public.
Your lordships will excuse me.
   Exit.
1 Lord. When they agree! Alas! poor lady, she Dotes not upon Columbo, when she thinks
Of the young Count d’Alvarez, divorcé’ from her
By the king’s power.
2 Lord. And counsel of the Cardinal,
To advance his nephew to the duchess’ bed;
It is not well.
1 Lord. Take heed; the Cardinal holds Intelligence with every bird i’ th’ air.
2 Lord. Death on his purple pride! He govers all;
And yet Columbo is a gallant gentleman.
1 Lord. The darling of the war, whom victory
Hath often courted; a man of daring,
And most exalted spirit. Pride in him Dwells like an ornament, where so much honour
Secures his praise.
2 Lord. This is no argument
He should usurp, and wear Alvarez’ title
To the fair duchess; men of coarser blood,
Would not so tamely give this treasure up.
1 Lord. Although Columbo’s name is great in war,
Whose glorious art and practice is above
The greatness of Alvarez, yet he cannot Want soul, in whom alone survives the virtue
Of many noble ancestors, being the last
Of his great family.
2 Lord. ’Tis not safe, you’ll say,
To wrestle with the king.
1 Lord. More danger if the Cardinal be displeased.
Who sits at the helm of state. Count d’Alvarez
Is wiser to obey the stream, than by Insisting on his privilege to her love,
Put both their fates upon a storm.
2 Lord. If wisdom,
Not inborn fear, make him compose, I like it.
How does the duchess bear herself?
1 Lord. She moves by the rapture of another wheel,
That must be obey’d; like some sad passenger,
That looks upon the coast his wishes fly to,
But is transported by an adverse wind,
Sometimes a churlish pilot.
2 Lord. She has a sweet and noble nature.
1 Lord. That
Commonds Alvarez; Hymen cannot tie
A knot of two more equal hearts and blood.

Enter Alphonso.

2 Lord. Alphonso! My good lord.
1 Lord. What great affair
Hath brought you from the confines?

Alph. Such as will Be worth your counsels, when the king hath read
My letters from the governor; the Arragonians,
Violating their confederate oath and league,
Are now in arms; they have not yet marched towards us;
But ’t is not safe to expect, if we may timely Prevent invasion.
2 Lord. Dare they be so insolent?
1 Lord. This storm I did foresee.
2 Lord. What have they, but
The sweetness of the king, to make a crime?
1 Lord. But how appears the Cardinal at this news?
Alph. Not pale, although He knows they have no cause to think him inocent,
As by whose counsel they were once surpris’d.
1 Lord. There is more Than all our present art can fathom in
This story, and I fear I may conclude
This flame has breath at home to cherish it.
There’s treason in some hearts, whose faces are Smooth to the state.
Alph. My lord, I take my leave.
2 Lord. Your friends, good captain. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Duchess, Valeria, and Celinnda.

Val. Sweet madam, be less thoughtful; this obedience
To passion will destroy the noblest frame
Of beauty that this kingdom ever boasted.
Ced. This sadness might become your other habit,
And ceremonies black, for him that died.
The times of sorrow are expir’d; and all
The joys that wait upon the court, your birth,
And a new Hymen, that is coming towards you,
Invite a change.

Duch. Ladies, I thank you both;
I pray excuse a little melancholy
That is behind; my year of mourning hath not
So clear’d my account with sorrow, but there may
Some dark thoughts stay, with sad reflections,
Upon my heart, for him I lost. Even this
New dress and smiling garment, meant to show
A peace concluded ’twixt my grief and me,
Is but a sad remembrance. But I resolve
To entertain more pleasing thoughts; and if You wish me heartily to smile, you must
Not mention grief, not in advice to leave it.
Such counsels open but affrest the wounds
Ye would close up, and keep alive the cause, Whose bleeding you would curb. Let’s talk of something
That may delight. You two are read in all
The histories of our court: tell me, Valeria,
Who has thy vote for the most handsome
man—

1 Agree. 2 Force, momentum.

6 Wait. 8 Yielding.

4 A room in the Duchess’s house.
[Aside.] Thus I must counterfeit a peace, when all Within me is at mutiny.
Val. I have examined
All that are candidates for the praise of ladies,
But find — may I speak boldly to your grace?
And will you not return it in your mirth?
To make me blush?
Duch. No, no; speak freely.
Val. I wo't rack your patience, madam; but Were I a princess, I should think the Count
Had sweetness to deserve me from the world.
Duch. [Aside.] Alvarez! she's a spy upon
my heart.
Val. He's young and active, and composes most sweetly.
Duch. I have seen a face more tempting.
Val. It had then
Too much of woman in't: his eyes speak movingly,
Which may excite his voice, and lead away
All female pride his captive; his hair, black,
Which, naturally falling in curls — Duch. Prithes, no more; thou art in love with
him.

The man in your esteem, Celinda, now?
Cel. Alvarez is, I must confess, a gentleman
Of handsome composition; but with
His mind, the greater excellence, I think
Another may delight a lady more;
If man be well considered, that's Columbo,
Now, madam, voted to be yours.
Duch. [Aside.] My torment!
Val. [Aside.] She affects him not.
Cel. He has a person, and a bravery beyond
All men, that I observe.
Val. He is a soldier,
A rough-bewn man, and may show well at distance.
His talk will fright a lady; War, and grim—
Fan'd Honour are his mistresses; he raves
To hear a lute; Love meant him not his priest. —
Again your pardon, madam. We may talk,
But you have art to choose, and crown aection. [CELINDA AND VALERIA WALK ASIDE.]
Duch. What is it to be born above these ladies,
And want their freedom? They are not con-strain'd,
Nor slav'd by their own greatness, or the king's,
But let their free hearts look abroad, and choose
By their own eyes to love. I must repair
My poor afflicted bosom, and assume The privilege I was born with, which now prompts me
To tell the king, he hath no power nor art
To steal a lover's soul. —

Enter Secretary [ANTONIO].

What says Count d'Alvarez?
Ant. Madam, he'll attend you.

Duch. Wait you, as I directed. When he comes,
Acquaint me privately.
Ant. Madam, I have news;
'Tis now arriv'd the court; we shall have wars.
Duch. [Aside.] I find an army here of killing
thoughts.
Ant. The king has chosen Don Columbo general,
Who is immediately to take his leave.
Duch. [Aside.] What flood is let into my heart! — How far
Is he to go?
Ant. To Arragon.
Duch. That's well
At first; he should not want a pilgrimage
To the unknown world, if my thoughts might convey him.
Ant. 'Tis not impossible he may go thither.
Duch. How?
Ant. To the unknown world; he goes to fight,
That's in his way: such stories are in nature.
Duch. Conceal this news.
Ant. He wou't be long absent;
The affair will make him swift
To kiss your grace's hand. [Exit.]
Duch. He cannot fly
With too much wing to take his leave. — I must
Be admitted to your conference; you have Enlarg'd my spirits; they shall droop no more.
Cel. We are happy, if we may advance one thought
To your grace's pleasure.
Val. Your eye before was in eclipse; these smiles
Become you, madam.
Duch. [Aside.] I have not skill to contain myself.

Enter PLACENTIA.

Pla. The Cardinal's nephew, madam, Don Columbo.
Duch. Already! Attend him.

Exit PLACENTIA.

Val. Shall we take our leave?
Duch. He shall not know, [Celinda,] 1 how you praised him.

[CELINDA] If he did, madam, I should have the confidence
To tell him my free thoughts.

Enter COLUMBO.

Duch. My lord, while I'm in study to requite
The favour you ha' done me, you increase
My debt to such a sum, still by a new honour-
ing
Your servant, I despair of my own freedom.
Colu. Madam, he kisseth your white hand, that must
Not surfeit in this happiness — and, ladies,
I take your smiles for my encouragement] 1
I have not long to practice these court tactis.
[Kisses them.]

Cel. He has been taught to kiss.

1 Q. Valeria, but cf. vv. 65-57, above.
2 Q. Val.
Duch. There's something, sir,
Upon your brow I did not read before.
Colum. Does the character please you, madam?
Duch. More,
Because it speaks you cheerful.
Colum. 'Tis for such as Access of honour, as must make Columbo
Worth all your love; the king is pleas'd to think
Me fit to lead his army.
Duch. How can an army?
Colum. We must not use the priest, till I bring home
Another triumph that now stays for me,
To reap it in the purple field of glory.
Duch. But do you mean to leave me, and expose Yourself to the devouring war? No enemy Should divide us; the king is not so cruel.
Colum. The king is honourable; and this grace
More answers my ambition, than his gift
Of thee, and all thy beauty, which I can
Love, as becomes thy soldier, and fight
To come again, a conqueror of thee.
'She weeps.
Then I must chide this fondness.
Re-enter Secretary [Antonio].
Ant. Madam, the king, and my lord Cardinal.
[Exit.]
Enter King, Cardinal, and Lords.
King. Madam, I come to call a servant from you,
And strengthen his excuse; the public cause
Will plead for your consent; at his return Your marriage shall receive triumphant ceremonies;
Till then you must dispense.
Car. She appears sad
To part with him. — I like it fairly, nephew.
C. [Cef.] Is not the general a gallant man?
What lady would deny him a small courtesy?
Ved. Thou hast converted me, and I begin
To wish it were no sin.
Cef. Leave that to narrow consciences.
Ved. You are pleasant.
Cef. But he would please one better. Do such men
Lie with their pages?
Ved. Wouldst thou make a shift?
Cef. He is going to a bloody business;
'Tis pity he should die without some heir.
That lady were hard-hearted now, that would
Not help posterity, for the mere good
O'my king and commonwealth.
Ved. Thou art wild; we may be observ'd.
Duch. Your will must guide me; happiness and conquest
Be ever waiting on his sword!
Colum.
Exeunt King, Columbo, Cardinal and Lords.

Duch. Pray give leave to examine a few thoughts;
Exeunt Ladies.
Duch. This is above all expectation happy.
Forgive me, Virtue, that I have dissembled,
And witness with me, I have not a thought
To tempt or to betray him, but secure
The promise I first made, to love and honour.
Re-enter Secretary [Antonio].
Ant. The Count d'Alvarez, madam.
Duch. Admit him,
And let none interrupt us. [Exit Antonio.] — How shall I
Behave my looks? The guilt of my neglect,
Which had no seal from hence, will call up blood
To write upon my cheeks the shame and story
In some red letter.
Enter Alvarez.

Alv. Madam, I present
One that was glad to obey your grace, and come
To know what your commands are.
Duch. Where I once
Did promise love, a love that had the power
And office of a priest to chain my heart
To yours, it were injustice to the demand.
Alv. But I can look upon you, madam, as Becomes a servant; with as much humility,
In tenderness of your honour and great fortune,
Give up, when you call back your bounty, all that
Was mine, as I had pride to think them favours.
Duch. Hath love taught thee no more assurance in Our mutual vows, thou canst suspect it possible
I should revoke a promise, made to heaven
And thee, so soon? This must arise from some Distrust of thy own faith.
Alv. Your grace's pardon;
To speak with freedom, I am not so old
In cunning to betray, nor young in time,
Not to see when and where I am at loss,
And how to bear my fortune, and my wounds,
Which, if I look for health, must still bleed inward.
A hard and desperate condition.
I am not ignorant your birth and greatness
Have plac'd you tog'row up with the king's grace
And jealousy, which to remove, his power Hath chosen a fit object for your beauty
To shine upon, Columbo, his great favourite.
I am a man on whom but late the king
Has pleas'd to cast a beam, which was not meant
To make me proud, but wisely to direct,
And light me to my safety. Oh, dear madam!
I will not call more witness of my love
(If you will let me still give it that name)
Than this, that I dare make myself a loser,
And to your will give all my blessings up.
Preserve your greatness, and forget a trifle,
That shall, at best, when you have drawn me up,
But hang about you like a cloud, and dim
The glories you are born to.
Duch. Misery
Of birth and state! That I could shift into 380
A meaner blood, or find some art to purge
That part which makes my veins unequal! Yet
Those nice distinctions have no place in us;
There’s but a shadow difference, a title:
Thy stock partakes as much of noble sap 385
As that which feeds the root of kings; and he
That writes a lord hath all the essence of Nobility.
Alv. ’T is not a name that makes
Our separation; the king’s displeasure
Hangs a portent to fright us, and the matter 390
That feeds this exhalation is the Cardinal’s
Plot to advance his nephew; then Columbo,
A man made up for some prodigious act,
Is fit to be considered; in all three
There is no character you fix upon 395
But has a form of ruin to us both.
Duch. Then you do look on these with fear?
Alv. With eyes
That should think tears a duty, to lament
Your least unkind fate; but my youth dares boldly
Meet all the tyranny o’ th’ stars, whose black Malevolence but shoots my single tragedy. 400
You are above the value of many worlds
Peopled with such as I am.
Duch. What if Columbo,
Engag’d to war, in his hot thirst of honour,
Find out the way to death?
Alv. ’T is possible. 405 Duch. Or say, (no matter by what art or motive,) 410
He give his title up, and leave me to
My own election?
Alv. If I then be happy
To have a name within your thought, there can 415
Be nothing left to crown me with new blessing.
But I dream thus of heaven, and wake to find
My amorous soul a mockery. When the priest
Shall tie you to another, and the joys
Of marriage leave no thought at leisure to Look back upon Alvarès, that must wither 420
For loss of you; yet then I cannot lose
So much of what I was once in your favour,
But, in a sigh, pray still you may live happy.
Exit.
Duch. My heart is in a mist; some good star smile
Upon my resolution, and direct
Two lovers in their chaste embrace to meet! 425
Columbo’s bed contains my winding sheet.
Exit.

ACT II

[Scene I.]

General COLOMBO. HERNANDO, two Colonels, ALPHONSO, two Captains, and other Officers,
as at a Council of War.

Colum. I see no face in all this council that Hath one pale fear upon ’t, though we arriv’d not

1 Before the walls of the frontier city.—Columbo’s tent.

So timely to secure the town, which gives
Our enemy such triumph.
1 Col. ’T was betray’d.
Alph. The wealth of that one city
Will make the enemy glorious. 2
1 Col. They dare
Not plunder it.
Alph. They give fair quarter yet:
They only seal up men’s estates, and keep Possession for the city’s use: they take up
No warres without security; and he,
Whose single credit will not pass, puts in
Two lean comrades, upon whose bonds ’t is not Religion to deny ’em.
Colum. To repair this
With honour, gentlemen?
Her. My opinion is
To expect awhile.
Colum. Your reason?
Her. Till their own
Surfeit betray ’em; for their soldier[s,] Bred up with coarse and common bread, will show
Such appetites on the rich cates they find.
They’ll spare our swords a victory, when their own
Riot and luxury destroys ’em.
Col. That
Will show our patience too like a fear.
With favour of his excellence, I think
The spoil of cities takes not off the courage,
But doubles it on soldiers; besides,
While we have tamesiness to expect, the noise
Of their success and plenty will increase
Their army.
Her. ’T is considerable; we do not Exceed in foot or horse, our muster not ’Bove sixteen thousand both; and the infantry
Raw, and not disciplin’d to act.
Alph. Their hearts,
But with a brave thought of their country’s
honour,
Will teach ’em how to fight, had they not seen
A sword. But we decline our own too much;
The men are forward in their arms, and take
The use 1 with avarice of fame.
They rise, and talk privately.
Colum. — Colonel,
I do suspect you are a coward.
Her. Sir!
Colum. Or else a traitor; take your choice.
No more.
I call’d you to a council, sir, of war:
Yet keep your place.
Her. I have worn other names.
Colum. Deserve ’em. Such
Another were enough to unsoul an army.
Ignobly talk of patience, till they drink
And reel to death! We came to fight, and force
’em
To mend their pace: thou hast no honour is
thee,
Not enough noble blood to make a blush
For thy tame eloquence.

1 Roastful.
2 Depreciate.
4 Learn to use their arms.
My duty to a general: yet there are Some that have known me here. Sir, I desire
To quit my regiment.

Colum. You shall have license. —

Ink and paper!

[Enter Attendant with ink and paper, and exit.]

1 Col. The general's displeas'd.

2 Col. How is 't, Hernando?

Her. The general has found out employment
for me;
He is writing letters back.

Alph. and Capt. To his mistress?

Her. Pray do not trouble me; yet, prithee, speak,
And flatter not thy friend. Dost think I dare not draw my sword, and use it, when a cause,
With honour, calls to action?

Alph. and Col. With the most valiant man alive.

Her. You'll do me some displeasure in your
loves:

Pray to your places.

Colum. So; bear those letters to the king;
They speak my resolution, before
Another sun decline, to charge the enemy.

Her. [Aside.] A pretty court way
Of dismissing an officer. — I obey; success!
Attend your counsels! Exit.

Colum. If here be any dare not look on dan-erg.
And meet it like a man, with scorn of death,
I beg his absence; and a coward's fear
Consume him to a ghost!

1 Col. None such [are] here, sir.

Colum. Or, if in all your regiments you find
One man that does not ask to bleed with honour,
Give him a double pay to leave the army;
There's service to be done will call the spirits
And aid of men.

1 Col. You give us all new flame.

Colum. I am confirm'd, and you must lose no
time;
The soldier that was took last night, to me Discovered their whole strength, and that we have A party in the town. The river, that Opens the city to the west, ['s] unguarded; — we Must this night use art and resolution
We cannot fall ingloriously.

1 Capt. That voice
Is every man's.

Enter Soldier and Secretary [ANTONIO] with a letter.

Colum. What now?

Sold. Letters.

Colum. Whence?

Sold. From the duchess.

Colum. They are welcome.— [Takes the letter.]
Meet at my tent again this evening;
Yet stay, some wine.— The duchess' health!

[Drinks.]

See it go round.

Ant. It wo' not please his excellence.

1 Col. The duchess' health! [Drinks.]

2 Capt. To me! more wine.

Ant. The clouds are gathering, and his eyes shoot fire;
Observe what thunder follows.

2 Capt. The general has but ill news. I suspect
The duchess sick, or else the king.

1 Capt. May be

The Cardinal.

2 Capt. His soul has long been look'd for.

Colum. She dares not be so insolent. It is The duchess' hand. How am I shrunk in fame
To be thus play'd with! She writes, and coun-nels,
Under my hand, to send her back a free
Resign of all my interest to her person,
Promise, or love; that there's no other way,
With safety of my honour, to revisit her.

The woman is possess'd with some bold devil,
And wants an exorcism; or, I am grown
A cheap, dull, phlegmatic fool, a post that's car'd
I' th' common street, and holding out my forehead
To every scurril wit to pin disgrace
And libels on 't.— Did you bring this to me, sir?

My thanks shall warm your heart.

Ant. [Aside.] Draws a pistol.

Hold, hold! my lord! I know not what provokes this tempest, but Her grace ne'er show'd more freedom from a storm
When I receiv'd this paper. If you have
A will to do an execution,
Your looks, without that engine, sir, may serve.— I did not like the employment.

Colum. Ha! had she
No symptom, in her eye or face, of anger,
When she gave this in charge?

Ant. Serene, as I
Have seen the morning rise upon the spring;
No trouble in her breath, but such a wind
As came to kiss, and fan the smiling flowers.

Colum. No poetry.

Ant. By all the truth in prose, I
By honesty, and your own honour, sir,
I never saw her look more calm and gentle.

Colum. I am too passionate; you must forgive me.

I have found it out; the duchess loves me
dearly;
She express a trouble in her when I took My leave, and chid me with a sullen eye:
'T is a device to hasting my return;
Love has a thousand arts. I'll answer it Beyond her expectation, and put Her soul to a noble test. — Your patience, gentlemen;

The king's health will deserve a sacrifice
Of wine. [Retires to the table and writes.]

Ant. [Aside.] I am glad to see this change, and thank my wit
For my redemption.
1 Col. Sir, the soldier’s curse
On him loves not our master!
2 Col. And they curse 140
Loud enough to be heard.
2 Capt. Their curse has the nature of gunpowder.
Ant. They do not pray with half the noise.
1 Col. Our general is not well mixt;
He has too great a portion of fire. 144
2 Col. His mistress cool him, (her complexion Carries some phlegm,) when they two meet in bed!
2 Capt. A third may follow.
1 Capt. ’Tis much pity 146
The young duke liv’d not to take the virgin off.
1 Col. ’Twas the king’s act, to match two rabbit-suckers.1
2 Col. A common trick of state;
The little great man marries, travels then
Till both grow up, and dies when he should do
The feast; these things are still unlucky 148
On the male side.
Colum. This to the duchess’ fair hand.
[Give Antonio a letter.]
Ant. She will think
Time hath no wing, till I return.
[Exit.] Colum.
Now each man to his quarter, and encourage
The soldier. I shall take a pride to know 150
Your diligence, when I visit all your Several commands.
All. We shall expect.
2 Col. And move
By your directions.
Colum. Y’ are all noble. Exeunt.

[Scene II.] 2

Enter Cardinal, Duchess, and Placentia.
Car. I shall perform a visit daily, madam,
In thy absence of my nephew, and be happy
If you accept my care.
Duch. You have honour’d me;
And if your entertainment have not been
Worthy your grace’s person, ’t is because 5
Nothing can reach it in my power; but where
There is no want of zeal, other defect
Is only a fault to exercise your mercy.
Car. You are bounteous in all. I take my leave,
My fair niece, shortly, when Columbo has 10
Purchas’d more honours to prefer his name
And value to your noble thoughts; meantime,
Be confident you have a friend, whose office
And favour with the king shall be effectual
To serve your grace.
Duch. Your own good deeds reward you, 15
Till mine rise equal to deserve their benefit. — Exeunt Cardinal.
Leave me awhile. —
Exeunt Placentia.
Do not I walk upon the teeth of serpents,
And, as I had a charm against their poison,
Play with their stings? The Cardinal is subtle,
Whom ’tis not wisdom to incense, till I 21
1 Young rabbits, your masters.
2 A room in the Duchess’s house.

Hear to what destiny Columbo leaves me.
May be the greatness of his soul will scorn
To own what comes with murmur; — if he can Interpret me so happily. — Art come? 1

Enter Secretary [Antonio] with a letter.
Ant. His excellence salutes your grace.
Duch. Thou hast
A melancholy brow. How did he take my letter?
Ant. As he would a blow; with so much sense
Of anger, his whole soul boil’d in his face;
And such prodigious flame in both his eyes,
As they ’d been th’ only seat of fire, and at
Each look a salamander leaping forth,
Not able to endure the furnace.
Duch. Ha! thou dost
Describe him with some horror.
Ant. Soon as he Had read again, and understood your mean-
ing;
His rage had shot me with a pistol, had not
I us’d some soft and penitential language,
To charm the bullet.
Duch. Wait at some more distance.—
My soul doth bathe itself in a cold dew;
Imagine I am opening of a tomb; —
[Opens the letter.]
Thus I throw off the marble, to discover
What antic postures death presents in this Pale monument to fright me.— Ha! Reads.
My heart, that call’d my blood and spirits to Defend it from the invasion of my fears, —
Must keep a guard about it still, lest this Strange and too mighty joy crush it to nothing.—
Antonio.
Ant. Madam.
Duch. Bid my steward give thee
Two thousand ducats. Art sure I am awake? 5
Ant. I shall be able to resolve you, madam,2
When he has paid the money.
Duch. Columbo now is noble.
Exeunt. This is better Than I expected, — if my lady be
Not mad, and live to justify her bounty. —

[Scene III.] 1

Enter King, Alvarez, Hernando, and Lords.

King. The war is left to him; but we must have
You reconcile’d, if that be all your difference.
His rage flows like a torrent, when he meets
With opposition; leave to wrestle with him,
And his hot blood retreats into a calm, —
And then he chides his passion. You shall back
With letters from us.
Her. Your commands are not
To be disputed.

King. Alvarez. [Takes him aside.] 1
Lord. Lose not
Yourself by cool submission; he will find
His error, and the want of such a soldier. —

1 An apartment in the palace.
2 Lord. Have you seen the Cardinal?
Her. Not yet.

Lord. He wants no plot. —
Her. The king I must obey;
But let the purple gownman place his engines
I' th' dark, that wound me.

2 Lord. Be assur'd
Of what we can to friend you; and the king
Cannot forget your service.
Her. I am sorry.

For that poor gentleman.
Alv. I must confess, sir,
The duchess has been pleas'd to think me
worthier
Her favours, and in that degree of honour
That has oblig'd my life to make the best
Return of service, which is not, with bold
Affiance in her love, to interpose
Against her happiness, and your election.
I love so much her honour, I have quitted
All my desires; yet would not shrink to bleed
Out my warm stock of life, so the last drop
Might benefit her wishes.

King. I shall find
A compensation for this act, Alvares;
It hath much pleased us.

Enter Duchess with a letter; Gentleman-Usher.

Duch. Sir, you are the king,
And in that sacred title it were sin
To doubt a justice: all that does concern
My essence in this world, and a great part
Of the other's bliss, lives in your breath.
King. What intends the duchess?

Duch. That will instruct you, sir. [Gives the letter.] — Colombo has Upon some better choice, or discontent,
Set my poor soul at freedom.

King. 'Tis his character. Reads.
"Madam, I easily discharge all my pretensions to your love and person; I leave you to your own choice; and in what you have obli'd yourself to me, resume a power to cancel, if you please. [Colombo."

This is strange!
Duch. Now do an act to make
Your chronicle belov'd and read for ever.
King. Express yourself.
Duch. Since by divine infusion,—
For 'tis no art could force the general to
This change, second this justice, and bestow
The heart you would have given from me, by Your strict commands to love Colombo, where
'Twas meant by Heaven; and let your breath return
Whom you divorc'd, Alvares, mine.

Lords. This is
But justice, sir.
King. It was decreed above;
And since Colombo has releas'd his interest.
Which we had wrung him, not without some force
Upon your will, I give you your own wishes:
Receive your own Alvares. When you please
To celebrate your nuptial, I invite Myself your guest."

Duch. Eternal blessings crown you!
All. And every joy your marriage!
Exit King, who meets the Cardinal; they converse.

Alv. I know not whether I shall wonder
Or joy to meet this happiness.
Duch. Now the king
Hath planted us, methinks we grow already,
And twist our loving souls, above the wrath
Of thunder to divide us.

Alv. Hal the Cardinal
Has met the king! I do not like this conference;
He looks with anger this way. I expect
A tempest.
Duch. Take no notice of his presence;
Leave me to meet, and answer it. If the king
Be firm in 's royal word, I fear no lightning.
Expect me in the garden.

Alv. I obey;
But fear a shipwreck on the coast.
Exit.
Car. Madam.

Duch. My lord.

Car. The king speaks of a letter that has brought A riddle in 't.
Duch. 'T is easy to interpret.
Car. From my nephew? May I deserve the favour? [Duchess gives him the letter.]
Duch. [Aside.] He looks as though his eyes would fire the paper.
They are a pair of burning glasses, and
His ovious blood doth give 'em flame.
Car. [Aside.] What lethargy could thus un-spirit him?
I am all wonder. — Do not believe, madam,
But that Colombo's love is yet more sacred
To honour and yourself, than thus to forfeit
What I have heard him call the glorious wreath
To all his merits, given him by the king.
From whom he took you with more pride than ever
He came from victory: his kisses hang
Yet panting on your lips; and he but now
Exchang'd religious farewell to return,
But with more triumph, to be yours.

Duch. My lord,
You do believe your nephew's hand was not Surpris'd or strain'd to this?
Car. Strange arts and windings in the world!
most dark
And subtle progresses! Who brought this letter?
Duch. I enquir'd not his name; I thought it not Considerable to take such narrow knowledge.
Car. Desert and honour urg'd it here, nor can
I blame you to be angry; yet his person
Oblig'd you should have given a nobler pause,
Before you made your faith and change so vio-

From his known worth, into the arms of one,
However fashioned to your amorous wish,

* Important.
Not equal to his cheapest fame, with all
The gloss of love and merit.

Duch. This comparison, My good lord Cardinal, I cannot think Flows from an even justice; it betrays 136 You partial where your blood runs.

Car. I fear, madam, Your own takes too much license, and will soon Fall to the censure of unruly tongues. Because Alvarez has a softer cheek, Can, like a woman, trim his wanton hair, 118 Spend half a day with looking in the glass To find a posture to present himself, And bring more effeminacy than man. Or honour, to your bed, must he supplant him? Take heed, the common murmur, when it catches 118 The scent of a lost fame —

Duch. My fame, lord Cardinal? It stands upon an innocence as clear As the devotions you pay to Heaven. I shall not urge, my lord, your soft indulgence At my next shift.

Car. You are a fine court lady! 138 Duch. And you should be a reverend churchman.

Car. One That, if you have not thrown off modesty, Would counsel you to leave Alvarez.

Duch. 'Cause you dare do worse than marriage, must not I Be admitted what the church and law allows me? 156 Car. Insolent! Then you dare marry him?

Duch. Dare! Let your contracted flame and malice, with Columbo's rage, higher than that, meet us When we approach the holy place, clasp'd hand In hand we'll break through all your force, and fix 136 Our sacred vows together there.

Car. I knew When, with as chaste a brow, you promis'd fair To another. You are no dissembling lady!

Duch. Would all your actions had no paler lights About 'em!

Car. Ha!

Duch. The people would not talk, and curse so loud. Car. I'll have you chid into a blush for this.

Duch. Begin at home, great man, there's cause enough:
You turn the wrong end of the perspective 1 144 Upon your crimes, to drive them to a far And lesser sight; but let your eyes look right, What giants would your pride and surfeit seem! How gross your avarice, eating up whole families! How vast are your corruptions and abuse 144 Of the king's ear! at which you hang a pendant, Not to adorn, but ulcerate, while the honest Nobility, like pictures in the air, Serve only for court ornament. If they speak, 'Tis when you set their tongues, which you wind up Like clocks, to strike at the just hour you please.

Leave, leave, my lord, these usurpations, And be what you were meant, a man to cure, Not let in, augs to religion: Look on the church's wounds.

Car. You dare presume, 128 In your rude spleen to me, to abuse the church?

Duch. Alas, you give false aim, my lord; 'tis your Ambition and scarlet sins, that rob Her altar of the glory, and leave wounds Upon her brow; which fetches grief and paleness Into her cheeks, making her troubled bosom Pant with her groans, and shroud her holy blushes Within your reverend purples.

Car. Will you now take breath? Duch. In hope, my lord, you will behold yourself In a true glass, and see those injust acts 128 That so deform you, and by timely cure Prevent a shame, before the short-haired men Do crowd and call for justice; I take leave.

Car. This woman has a spirit, that may rise To tame the devil's: there's no dealing with Her angry tongue; 'tis action and revenge Must calm her fury. Were Columbo here, I could resolve; but letters shall be sent To th' army, which may wake him into sense Of his rash folly, or direct his spirit 128 Some way to snatch his honour from this flame.

All great men know the soul of life is fame. Exit.

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Enter Valeria and Celinda.

Val. I did not think, Celinda, when I prais'd Alvarez to the duchess, that things thus Would come abent. What does your ladyship Think of Columbo now? It staggers all The court, he should forsake his mistress; I Am lost with wonder yet.

Cel. 'Tis very strange, Without a spell; but there's a fate in love; — I like him ne'er the worse.

Enter two Lords.

1 Lord. Nothing but marriages and triumph now!

Val. What new access of joy makes you, my lord, So pleasant?

1 Here, a telescope.

3 Apparently, an allusion to the Puritans.

5 An apartment in the palace.
There's a packet come to court
Makes the king merry; we are all concern'd in't.
Columbo hath given the enemy a great
And glorious defeat, and is already
Preparing to march home.

Col. He thriv'd the better for my prayers.

2 Lord. You have been His great admirer, madam.

1 Lord. The king longs
To see him.

Val. This news exalts the king.

---

Enter Cardinal.

1 Lord. He's here!

He appears with discontent; the marriage
With Count d'Alvarez hath a bitter taste,
And not worn off his palate: but let us leave
him.

Col. and Val. We'll to the duchess. Exeunt.

Card. He has not won so much upon the Aragon
As he has lost at home; and his neglect
Of what my studies had contriv'd to add
More lustre to our family by the access
Of the great duchess' fortune, cools his triumph,
And makes me wild.

---

Enter Hernando.

Her. My good lord Cardinal!

Card. You made complaint to th' king about your general?

Her. Not a complaint, my lord; I did but satisfy
Some questions o' the king's.

Card. You see he thrives
Without your personal valour or advice,
Most grave and learned in the wars.

Her. My lord,
I envy not his fortune. 'Tis above
Your malice, and your noise not worth his anger;
'Tis barking 'gainst the moon.

Her. More temper would Become that habit.

Card. The military thing would show some spience.

I'll blow an army of such wasps about
The world. — Go look your sting you left i' th' camp, sir.

---

Enter King and Lords.

Her. The king! — This may be one day counted for.

King. All things conspire, my lord, to make you fortunate.

Your nephew's glory —

Card. 'T was your cause and justice
Made him victorious; had he been so valiant
At home, he had had another conquest to Invite, and bid her welcome to new wars.

King. You must be reconcil'd to providence,
My lord.
I heard you had a controversy with
The duchess; I will have you friends.

Card. I am not angry.

King. For my sake, then,

You shall be pleas'd, and with me grace the marriage.
A churchman must show charity, and shine
With first example: she's a woman.

Card. You shall prescribe in all things, sir.

Her. I am glad on't, sir. — My good lord Cardinal,
'Tis not impossible but some man provok'd
May have a precious mind to cut your throat.

Card. You shall command me, noble Colonell;
I know you wo' not fail to be at the wedding.

Her. 'T is not Columbo that is married, sir.

Card. Go teach the postures of the pike and musket;

Then drill your myrmidons into a ditch,
Where starve, and stink in pickles. — You shall find
Me reasonable; you see the king expects me.

Her. So does the devil. —

---

Enter Secretary [Antonio] and Servants, [with masques, dresses, etc.]

Ant. Here, this; ay, this will fit your part:
you shall wear the slashes, because you are a soldier. Here's for the blue mune.2

1 Serv. This doublet will never fit me; pox on't! Are these breeches good enough for a prince too? Pedro plays but a lord, and he has two laces more in a seam.

Ant. You must consider Pedro is a foolish lord; he may wear what lace he please.

2 Serv. Does my beard fit my clothes well, [g gentlemen?]

Ant. Pox o' your beard!

3 Serv. That will fright away the hair.

1 Serv. This fellow plays but a mute, and he is so troublesome, and talks.

3 Serv. Master Secretary might have let Jaques play the soldier; he has a black patch
already.

2 Serv. By your favour, Master Secretary, I was ask'd who write this play for us?

Ant. For us? Why, art thou any more than a blue mute?

2 Serv. And, by my troth, I said, I thought it was all your own.

---

1 A room in the Duchess's house.

2 I. e. For the mutt who was to take the servant's part, blue being the general colour of a servant's livery.

Ant. Away, you oxen! 4

4 Serv. Dost think he has no more wit than to write a comedy? My lady's chaplain made the play, though he is content, for the honour and trouble of the business, to be seen in 't.

5 Serv. Did anybody see my head, gentle- men? 'Twas here but now; I shall have never a head to play my part in.

Ant. Is thy head gone? 'Twas well thy part was not in 't. Look, look about; has not Jaques it?

4 Serv. I his head? 'T wo' not come upon my shoulders.

Ant. Make haste, gentlemen; I'll see whether the king has supp'd. Look every man to his wardrobe and his part.

Exit. 4

2 Serv. Is he gone? In my mind, a masque had been fitter for a marriage.

4 Serv. Why, mute? There was no time for 't, and the scenes are troublesome.

2 Serv. Half a score deal tack'd together in the clouds, what's that? A throne, to come down and dance; all the properties have been paid forty times over, and are in the court stock; but the secretary must have a play, to show his wit.

4 Serv. Did not I tell thee 'twas the chaplain's? Hold your tongue, mute.

1 Serv. Under the rose, and would this cloth of silver doublet might never come off again, if there be any more plot than you see in the back of my hand.

2 Serv. You talk of a plot! I'll not give this for the best poet's plot in the world, as if it be not well carried.

4 Serv. Well said, mute.

3 Serv. Ha, ha! Pedro, since he put on his doublet, has repeated but three lines, and he has broke five buttons.

2 Serv. I know not; but by this false beard, and here's hair enough to hang a reasonable honest man, I do not remember, to say, a strong line indeed in the whole comedy, but when the chambermaid kisses the captain.

3 Serv. Excellent, mute!

5 Serv. They have almost supp'd, and I cannot find my head yet.

4 Serv. Play in thine own.

5 Serv. Thank you for that! so I may have it made a property. If I have not a head found me, let Master Secretary play my part him- [is self without it.

Re-enter Secretary [ANTONIO].

Ant. Are you all ready, my masters? The king is coming through the gallery. Are the women drest?

1 Serv. Rogerio wants a head.

Ant. Here, with a pox to you! take mine. You a player! you a puppy-dog. Is the music ready?

Enter Gentleman-Usher.

Gent. Gentlemen, it is my lady's pleasure that you expect till she call for you. There are a company of cavaliers in gallant equipage, newly alighted, have offer'd to present their Revels in honour of this Hymen; and 'tis her grace's command, that you be silent till their entertainment be over.

1 Serv. Gentlemen?

2 Serv. Affronted?

5 Serv. Master Secretary, there's your head again; a man's a man. Have I broken my step to study fifteen lines for an ambassador, and after that a constable, and is it come to this?

Ant. Patience, gentlemen, be not so hot; 'tis but defer'd, and the play may do well enough cold.

4 Serv. If it be not presented, the chaplain will have the greatest loss; he loses his wits.

Ant. This music speaks the king upon entrance. Retire, retire, and grumble not.

Exeunt [all but ANTONIO].

Enter KING, CARDINAL, ALVAREZ, DUCHESS, CELINDA, VALENCIA, PLANCINTA, LORDS, and HERNANDO. They being set, and COLUMBO and five more, in rich habits, wizarded; between every two a Torch-bearer. They dance, and afterwards beckon to ALVAREZ, as if desirous to speak with him.

Alv. With me! (They embrace and whisper.)

King. Do you know the masqua, madam?

Duch. Not I, sir.

Cur. There's one,—but that my nephew is abroad,

And has more soul than thus to jig upon.

Their hymeneal night, I should suspect

'T were he. (The Masquers lead in ALVAREZ.)

Duch. Where's my Lord Alvarens?

(Recorders.)

King. Call in the bridgroom.

Re-enter COLUMBO. Four Masquers bring in ALVAREZ dead, in one of their habits, and having laid him down, exeunt.

Duch. What mystery is this?

Cur. We want the bridgroom still.

King. Where is Alvarens?

Columbo points to the body; they unmizard it, and find ALVAREZ bleeding.

Duch. Oh, 'tis my lord! He's murder'd!

King. Who durst commit this horrid act?

Colum. I, sir. [Throws off his disguise.]

King. Columbo? Ha!

Colum. Yes; Columbo, that dares stay To justify that act.

Her. Most barbarous!

Duch. Oh, my dearest lord!

King. Our guard seize on them all: This sight doth shake all that is man within me. Poor Alvarens, is this thy wedding day?

Enter Guard.

Duch. If you do think there is a Heaven, or pains

To punish such black crimes, i th other world,

Let me have swift, and such exemplar justice,
As shall become this great assassinato; 186
You will take off our faith else: and, if here
Such innocence must bleed, and you look on,
Poor men, that call you gods on earth, will doubt
To obey your laws, nay, practise to be devils,
As fearing, if such monstrous sins go on,
The saints will not be safe in Heaven.

King. You shall, 186

You shall have justice.

Car. [Aside.] Now to come off were brave.

Enter Servant.

Serv. The masquers, sir, are fled; their horse, prepar'd
At gate, expected to receive 'em, where
They quickly mounted: coming so like friends,
None could suspect their haste, which is secur'd 146

By advantage of the night.

Colun. I answer for 'em all; 'tis stake enough
For many lives: but if that poniard
Had voice, it would convince they were but all Spectators of my act. And now, if you 146
Will give your judgments leave, though at the first
Face of this object your cool bloods were frighted,
I can excuse this deed, and call it justice;
An act your honours and your office, sir,
Is bound to build a law upon, for others
To imitate. I have but took his life,
And punish'd her with mercy, who had both
Conspir'd to kill the soul of all my fame.
Read there; and read an injury as deep
In my dishonour, as the devil knew
A woman had capacity or malice
To execute: read there, how we were ooz'den, sir.

[Give the DUCHESS'S letter to the KING.

Your power affronted, and my faith; her smiles,
A juggling witchcraft to betray, and make
My love her horse to stalk withal, and catch
Her curled minion.

Car. Is it possible
The duchess could dissimulate so, and forfeit
Her modesty with you, and to us all?
Yet I must pity her. My nephew has Been too severe; though this affront would call

A dying man from prayers, and turn him tiger;
There being nothing dearer than our fame,
Which, if a common man, whose blood has no
Ingredient of honour, labour to Preserve, a soldier (by his nearest tie
To glory) is, above all others, bound
To vindicate:—and yet it might have been Less bloody.

Her. Charitable devil!

King. [Reads.] "I pray, my lord, release under your hand, what you dare challenge in my love or person, as a just forfeit to myself; this act will speak you honourable to my thoughts; and when you have conquered thus yourself, you may proceed to many victories, and after, with safety of your fame, visit again The lost Rosaura." 193

To this your answer was a free resign?

Colun. Flatter'd with great opinion of her faith,

And my desert of her (with thought that she, Who seem'd to weep and chide my easy will 128
To part with her, could not be guilty of A treason, or apostacy so soon,
But rather meant this a device to make Me expedite the affairs of war), I sent
That paper, which her wickedness, not justice, Applied (what I meant trial,) her divorce. 118
I lov'd her so, I dare call heaven to witness, I knew not whether I lov'd most; while she, With him, whose crimson penitence I provok'd, 118

Conspir'd my everlasting infamy:

Examine but the circumstances.

Car. This match was made at home, before she sent
That cunning writ, in hope to take him off,
As knowing his impatient soul would scorn
To own a blessing came on crutches to him. 310
It was not well to raise his expectation, (Had you, sir, no afflict?) to ruin him With so much scandal and contempt.

King. We have

Too plentiful a circumstance to accuse
You, madam, as the cause of your own sorrows;
But not without an accessory more Than young Alverez.

Car. Any other instrument?

King. Yes; I am guilty, with herself, and Don Columbo, though our acts look'd several ways,
That thought a lover might so soon be roman'd; 2 230
And did exceed the office of a king,
To exercise dominion over hearts,
That owe to the prerogative of Heaven
Their choice or separation: you must, therefore,
When you do kneel for justice and revenge, 128
Madam, consider me a lateral agent
In poor Alverez's tragedy.

1 Lord. It was your love to Don Columbo, sir.

Her. So, so! the king is charm'd. Do you observe
How, to acquit Columbo, he would draw 20
Himself into the plot. Heaven, is this justice?

Car. Your judgment is divine in this.

And yet
Columbo cannot be secure, and we Just in his pardon, that durst make so great
And insolent a breach of law and duty. 230

2 Lord. Has he will he turn again?

King. And should we leave
This guilt of blood to Heaven, which cries, and strikes
With loud appeals the palace of eternity;

1 Brought about. 8 Bought off, transferred.
Yet here is more to charge Columbo than Alvare's blood, and bids me punish it,
Or be no king.

Her. 'Tis come about, my lords.

King. And if I should forgive
His untimely death, I cannot the offence,
That with such boldness struck at me. Has my Indulgence to your merits, which are great,
Made me so cheap, your rage could meet no
time
Nor place for your revenge, but where my eyes
Must be affrighted, and affronted with
The bloody execution? This contemt
Of majesty transcends my power to pardon,
And you shall feel my anger, sir.

Her. Thou shalt
Have one short prayer more for that.

Colum. Have I,
I'm th' progress of my life,
No actions to plead me up deserving
Against this ceremony?

Cur. Contain yourself. I
Colum. I must be dumb then. Where is honour,
And gratitude of kings, when they forget Whose hand secour'd their greatness? Take my head off!
Examine then which of your silken lords,
As I have done, will throw himself on dangers;
Like to a floating island move in blood;
And where your great defence calls him to stand
A bulwark, upon his bold breast to take
In death, that you may live:— but soldiers are
Your valiant fools, whom, when your own securties
Are bleeding, you can cherish; but when once
Your state and nerves are knit, not thinking
To use their surgery again, you cast
Them off, and let them hang in dusty armories,
Or make it death to ask for pay.

King. No more.
We thought to have put your victory and merits
In balance with Alvare's death, which, while
Our mercy was to judge, had been your safety;
But the afront to us, made greater by
This boldness to upbraid our royal bounty,
Shall tame, or make you nothing.

Lord. Excellent!

Her. The Cardinal is not pleas'd.

Car. Humble yourself
To th' king.

Colum. As beg my life? Let cowards
do 't
That dare not die; I'll rather have no head
Than owe it to his charity.

King. To th' castle with him!—

[ COLUMBO is led off by the Guard.]

Madam, I leave you to your grief, and what
The king can recompense to your tears, or honour
Of your dear lord, expect.

Duch. This shows like justice. Exeunt.

ACT IV

[Scene I.]

Enter two Lords and Hernando.

1 Lord. This is the age of wonders.

2 Lord. Wondrous mischiefs.

Her. Among those guards, which some call tutelar angels,
Whose office is to govern provinces,
Is there not one will undertake Navarre?

Hath Heaven forsook us quite?

1 Lord. Columbo at large!

2 Lord. And grace'd now more than ever.

1 Lord. He was not pardon'd;

That word was prejudicial to his fame.

Her. But, as the murder done had been a dream

Vanish'd to memory, he's courted as Preserver of his country. With what chains

Of magic does this Cardinal hold the king?

2 Lord. What will you say, my lord, if they enchant

The duchesses now, and by some impudent art
Advance a marriage to Columbo yet?

Her. Say!

I'll say no woman can be sav'd; nor is 't
Fit, indeed, any should pretend to Heaven,
After one such impetuous in their sex:
And yet my faith has been so stagger'd, since
The king restor'd Columbo, I'll be now

Of no religion.

1 Lord. 'Tis not possible
She can forgive the murder; I observ'd
Her tears.

Her. Why, so did I, my lord;

And if they be not honest, 't is to be Half damn'd, to look upon a woman weeping.

When do you think the Cardinal said his prayers?

2 Lord. I know not.

Her. Heaven forgive my want of charity!

But, if I were to kill him, he should have
No time to pray; his life could be no sacrifice,
Unless his soul went too.

1 Lord. That were too much.

Her. When you mean to dispatch him, you may give

Time for confession: they have injur'd me
After another rate.

2 Lord. You are too passionate, cousin.

Enter COLUMBO, Colonels, Alphonso, and Courtiers. They pass over the stage.

Her. How the gay men do flutter, to congratulate

His gallant delivery! There's one honest man:

What pity 'tis a gallant fellow should

Depend on knives for his preferment!

1 Lord. Except this cruelty upon Alvare,

Columbo has no mighty stain upon him;

But for his uncle—

Her. If I had a son
Of twelve years old that would not fight with

him,

An apartment in the palace.
And take his soul against his cardinal’s cap,
I would disinherit him. Time has taken a lease
But for three lives, I hope; a fourth may see Honesty walk without a crutch.

2 Lord. This is

But air and wilderness.
Her. I will see the duchess.
[1 Lord.] You may do well to comfort her;
we must

Attend the king.
Her. Your pleasures. Exit.

Enter King and Cardinal.

1 Lord. A man of a brave soul.
2 Lord. The less his safety. —

The king and Cardinal inconsult!

King. Command us to the duchess, and employ
What language you think fit and powerful
To reconcile her to some peace. — My lords.
Car. Sir, I possess all for your sacred uses. Exit severally.

[Scene II.]

Enter Secretary [Antonio] and Celinda.

Ant. Madam, you are the welcomest lady living.
Cel. To whom, Master Secretary?
Ant. If you have mercy
To pardon so much boldness, I durst say,
To me — I am a gentleman.
Cel. And handsome.

Ant. But my lady has

Much wanted you.
Cel. Why, Master Secretary?
Ant. You are the prettiest, —
Cel. So!
Ant. The wittiest,
Cel. So!
Ant. The merriest lady in th’ court.
Cel. And I was wish’d, to make the duchess Pleasant? 2
Ant. She never had so deep a cause of sorrow;
Her chamber’s but a coffin of a larger Volume, wherein she walks so like a ghost,
’T would make you pale to see her.
Cel. Tell her grace
I attend here.
Ant. I shall most willingly. —
A spirited lady! would I had her in my closet!
She is excellent company among the lords.
Sure she has an admirable treble. — Madam.

Cel. I do suspect this fellow would be nibbling,
Like some, whose narrow fortunes will not rise
To wear things when the invention’s rare and new:
But treading on the heel of pride, they hunt
The fashion when ’tis crippled, like fell tyrants.
I hope I am not old yet; I had the honour
To be saluted by our Cardinal’s nephew
This morning: there’s a man!

Re-enter Secretary [Antonio].

Ant. I have prevail’d.
Sweet madam, use what eloquence you can
Upon her; and if ever I be useful
To your ladyship’s service, your least breath commands me. [Exit.]

Enter Duchess.

Duch. Madam, I come to ask you but one question:
If you were in my state, my state of grief,
I mean, an exile from all happiness
Of this world, and almost of Heaven, (for my Affliction is finding out despair.)
What would you think of Don Columbo?
Cel. Madam?
Duch. Whose bloody hand wrought all this misery.
Would you not weep, as I do, and wish rather
An everlasting spring of tears to drown
Your sight, than let your eyes be curst to see
The murderer again, and glorious?
So careless of his sin, that he is made
Fit for new parriades, even while his soul
Is purpled o’er, and reeks with innocent blood?
But do not, do not answer me; I know
You have so great a spirit, (which I want,
The horror of his fact surprising all
My faculties), you would not let him live:
But I, poor I, must suffer more. There’s not
One little star in Heaven will look on me,
Unless to choose me out the mark, on whom
It may shoot down some angry influence.

Enter Placentia.

Pla. Madam, here’s Don Columbo says he must Speak with your grace.

Duch. But he must not, I charge you. —

[Exit Placentia.]

None else wait? — Is this well done,
To triumph in his tyranny? Speak, madam,
Speak but your conscience.

Enter Columbo and Secretary [Antonio].

Ant. Sir, you must not see her.
Colum. Not see her? Were she cabled up above
The search of bullet or of fire, were she Within her grave, and that the toughest mine
That e’er nature teem’d and groan’d withal,
I would force some way to see her. — Do not fear
I come to court you, madam; ’y are not worth
The humblest of my kinder thoughts. I come
To show the man you have provok’d, and lost,
And tell you what remains of my revenge. —
Live, but never presume again to marry;
I’ll kill the next at th’ altar, and quench all
The smiling tapers with his blood: if after,
You dare provoke the priest and Heaven so much
To take another, in thy bed I’ll cut him from Thy warm embrace, and throw his heart to ra-

A room in the Duchess’s house. 3 Merry.

Deed.
Cel. This will appear an unexampled cruelty.
Colum. Your pardon, madam: rage, and my revenge,
Not perfect, took away my eyes. You are
A noble lady, this not worth your eye-beam;
One of so slight a making, and so thin,
An morn sun-burnt leaf is of too great a value
To play, which shall be some faint lost in the air.
Be pleased to own me by some name in your assurance, I desire to be received
There; let her witness that I call you mistress;
Honour me to make these pearls your carka-net. [Gives her a necklace.]
Cel. My lord, you are too humble in your thoughts.
Colum. [Aside.] There’s no vexation too great to punish her.
Exit.
Ant. Now, madam.
Cel. Away, you saucy fellow!—Madam, I
Must be excused, if I do think more honourably
Than you have cause, of this great lord.
Duch. Why, is not so
All womankind concern’d to hate what’s impi-
Col. For my part—
Duch. Antonio, is this a woman?
Ant. I know not whether she be man or woman;
I should be nimble to find out the experiment.
She look’d with less state when Columbo came.
Duch. Let me entreat your absence. [Aside.]
I am o’er-bemused in her.
I took you for a modest, honest lady.
Col. Madam, I scorn any accuser; and Deduction of the great title of a duchess,
I shall not need one grain of your dear honour
To make full weight: if your grace be jealsous,
I can remove.
Exit.
Ant. She is gone.
Duch. Prithess remove
My fears of her return. [Exit Ant.]—She is not worth
Considering; my anger’s mounted higher.
He need not mounting in caution for my next
Marriage. —Alvarez, I must come to thee,
Thy virgin wife, and widow; but not till
I ha’ paid those tragic duties to thy hearse.
Become my pious and love. But how?
Who shall instruct a way?
Enter Placentia.
Pla. Madam, Don.
Hernando much desires to speak with you.
Duch. Will not thy own discretion think I am Unfit for visit?
Pla. Please your grace, he brings
Something, he says, imports your ear, and love
Of the dead lord, Alvarez.
Duch. Then admit him. [Exit Placentia.]
Enter [Placentia with] Hernando.
Her. I would speak, madam, to yourself.
Duch. Your absence. [Exit Placentia.]
Her. I know not how your grace will conspire so Much boldness, when you know the affairs I come for.
Duch. My servant has prepar’d me to receive it
If’t concern my dead lord.
Her. Can you name
So much of your Alvarez in a breath.
Without one word of your revenge? O, madam,
I come to chide you, and repeat my great
Opinion of your virtue, that can walk,
And spend so many hours in naked solitude;
As if you thought that no arrows were due
To his death, when you had paid his funeral charges,
Made your eyes red, and wept a handkerchief.
I come to tell you that I saw him bleed;
I, that can challenge nothing in his name
And honour, saw his murder’d body warm,
And panting with the labour of his spirits,
Till my arm’s soul shrunk and bid itself;
While barbarous Columbo grinning stood,
And mock’d the weeping wounds. It is too much,
That you should keep your heart alive so long
After this spectacle, and not revenge it.
Duch. You do not know the business of my heart,
That censure me so rashly; yet I thank you;
And, if you be Alvarez’ friend, dare tell
Your confidence, that I despise my life,
But know not how to use it in a service
To speak me his revenger: this will need
No other proof, than that to you, who may Be sent with cunning to betray me, I
Have made this bold confession. I so much Desire to sacrifice to that hoarding ghost
Columbo’s life, that I am not ambitious
To keep my own two minutes after it.
Her. If you will call me coward, which is equal
To think I am a traitor, I forgive it
For this brave resolution, which time
And all the destinies must aid. I beg
That I may kiss your hand for this; and may
The soul of angry honour guide it—
Duch. Whither?
Her. To Don Columbo’s heart.
Duch. It is too weak, I fear, alone.
Her. Alone? Are you in earnest? Why, will it not Be a dishonour to your justice, madam,
Another arm should interpose? But that
It were a saucy act to mingle with you,
I durst, nay, I am bound in the revenge
Of him that’s dead, (since the whole world has interest
In every good man’s loss,) to offer it.
Duch. Not command;
But I should more than honour such a truth
In man, that durst, against so mighty odds,
Appear Alvarez’ friend, and mine. The Cardinal—
Her. Is for the second course; Columbo must Be first cut up; his ghost must lead the dance:
Let him die first.
Duch. But how?
Her. How! with a sword; and, if I undertake it,
I wo't not lose so much of my own honour,
To kill him basely.

Duch. How shall I reward
This infinite service? 'Tis not modesty
While now my husband groans beneath his tomb,
And calls me to his marble bed, to promise,
What this great act might well deserve, myself,
If you survive the victor; but if thus Alvarez' ashes be appraise'd, it must Deserve an honourable memory;
And though Columbo (as he had all power,
And grasp'd the fates) has vow'd to kill the man
That shall succeed Alvarez —
Her.
Duch. Yet, if ever
I entertain a thought of love hereafter,
Hernando from the world shall challenge it;
Till when, my prayers and fortune shall wait on you.
Her. This is too mighty recompense.
Duch. 'T is all just.
Her. If I outlive Columbo, I must not Expect security at home.
Duch. Thou canst
Not fly where all my fortunes, and my love
Shall not attend to guard thee.
Her.
Duch. Thy memory
Shall have a shrine, the next within my heart,
To my Alvarez.
Her.
Once again your hand.
Your cause is so religious, you need not
Strengthen it with your prayers; trust it to me.

Re-enter Placentia, and the Cardinal.
Pla. Madam, the Cardinal.
Duch. Will you appear?
Her. An he had all the horror of the devil
In his face, I would not baulk him.
He stirs upon the Cardinal in his exit.

Car. [Aside.] What makes Hernando here?
I do not like
They should consult; I'll take no note. — The king
Fairly salutes your grace; by whose command
I am to tell you, though his will and actions
Illimited, steep not to satisfy
The vulgar inquisition, he is Yet willing to retain a just opinion
With those that are plac'd near him; and although
You look with nature's eye upon yourself,
Which needs no perspective to reach, nor art
Of any optic to make greater, what
Your narrow sense applies an injury,
(Ourselves still nearest to ourselves,) but there's Another eye that looks abroad, and walks in search of reason, and the weight of things.
With which, if you look on him, you will find
So much against his justice, as your erring faith would persuade your anger.

Duch. Good my lord,
Your phrase has too much landscape, and I cannot Distinguish at this distance you present
The figure perfect; but indeed my eyes
May pray your lordship find excuse, for tears
Have almost made them blind.
Car. Fair peace restore 'em!
To bring the object nearer, the king says,
He could not be severe to Don Columbo
Without injustice to his other merits,
Which call more loud for their reward and honour.
Than you for your revenge; the kingdom made
Happy by those; you only, by the last,
Unfortunate: — nor was it rational,
I speak the king's own language, he should die
For taking one man's breath, without whose valour
None now had been alive without dishonour.
Duch. In my poor understanding, 't is the crown
Of virtue to proceed in its own track,
Not deviate from honour. If you acquit
A man of murder, 'cause he has done brave
Things in the war, you will bring down his valour
To a crime, nay, to a bawd, if it secure
A rape, and but teach those that deserve well
To sin with greater license. But dispute
Is now too late, my lord; 't is done; and you,
By the good king, in tender of my sorrows,
Sent to persuade me 't is unreasonable
That justice should repair me.

Car. You mistake;
For if Columbo's death could make Alvarez
Live, the king had given him up to law,
Your bleeding sacrifice; but when his life
Was but another treasure thrown away,
To obey a clamorous statute, it was wisdom
To himself, and common safety, to take off
This killing edge of law, and keep Columbo
To recompense the crime by noble acts,
And sorrow, that in time might draw your pity.
Duch. This is a greater tyranny than that Columbo exercised; he kill'd my lord;
And you have not the charity to let Me think it worth a punishment.

Car. To that,
In my own name, I answer: I condemn,
And urge the bloody guilt against my nephew;
'T was violent and cruel, a black deed;
A deed, whose memory doth make me shudder;
An act, that did betray a tyrannous nature,
Which he took up in war, the school of vengeance;
And though the king's compassion spare him here,
Unless his heart
Weep itself out in penitent tears, —
Duch. This sounds
As you were now a good man.
Car. Does your grace
Think I have conscience to allow the murder?

---

1 Regards.
2 Whether you present.
3 Acquired.
Although, when it was done, I did obey
The stream of nature, as he was my kinsman,
To plead he might not pay his forfeit life,
Could I do less for one so near my blood?
Consider, madam, and be charitable;
Let not this wild injustice make me lose
The character I bear, and reverence habit.
To make you full acquainted with my innocence,
I challenge here my soul, and Heaven to wit-ness,
If I had any thought, or knowledge with
My nephew’s plot, or person, when he came,
Under the smooth pretence of friend, to vio-late
Your hospitable laws, and do that act,
Whose frequent mention draws this tear, a whirlwind
Snatch me to endless flames!

Duch. I must believe,
And ask your grace’s pardon. I confess
I have not lov’d you since Alvarez’ death,
Though we were reconcili’d.
Car. I do not blame
Your jealousy, nor any zeal you had
To prosecute revenge against me, madam,
As I then stood suspected, nor can yet
Implore your mercy to Columbo. All
I have to say is, to retain my first
Opinion and credit with your grace;
Which you may think I urge not out of fear,
Or ends upon you, (since, I thank the king,
I stand firm on the base of royal favour,)
But for your own sake, and to show I have Compassion of your sufferings.

Duch. You have clear’d me;
A doubt, my lord; and by this fair remon-strance,
Given my sorrow so much truce, to think
That we may meet again, and yet be friends.—
But be not angry, if I still remember
By whom Alvarez died, and weep, and wake
Another justice with my prayers.

Car. All thoughts
That may advance a better peace dwell with you!  Exit.

Duch. How would this cozening statesman bribe my faith
With flatteries, to think him innocent!
No; if his nephew die, this Cardinal must not Be long-liv’d. All the prayers of a wrong’d widow
Make firm Hernando’s sword! and my own hand
Shall have some glory in the next revenge.
I will pretend my brain with grief distracted,
It may gain easy credit; and beside
The taking off examination
For great Columbo’s death, it makes what act
I do in that believ’d I want of my reason, Appear no crime, but my defence.—Look
down.
Soul of my lord, from thy eternal shade,
And unto all thy blest companions boast
Thy duchess busy to revenge thy ghost!  Exit.

[SCENE III.]
Enter [on one side] Columbo and Alphonso:
[on the other,] Hernando and a Colonel.

Colum. Hernando, now I love thee, and do half
Repent the affront my passion threw upon thee.
Her. You will not be too prodigal o’ your penitence.

Colum. This makes good thy nobility of birth;
Thou may’st be worth my anger and my sword,
If thou dost execute as daringly
As thou provok’st a quarrel. I did think Thy soul a starveling, or asleep.
Her. You’ll find it
Active enough to keep your spirit waking;
Which, to exasperate, for yet I think
It is not high enough to meet my rage—
Do you smile?

Colum. This noise is worth it.—Gentlemen,
I’m sorry this great soldier has engag’d
Your travails; all his business is to talk.
Her. A little of your lordship’s patience,
You shall have other sport, and swords that
will
Be as nimble ’bout your heart as you can wish.
’Tis pity more than our two single lives
Should be at stake.

Colum. Make that no scruple, sir.
Her. To him then that survives, if fate allow
That difference, I speak, that he may tell
The world, I came not hither on slight anger,
But to revenge my honour, stain’d and trampled
on
By this proud man; when general, he com-manded
My absence from the field.

Colum. I do remember,
And I’ll give your soul now a discharge.
Her. I come
To meet it, if your courage be so fortunate.
But there is more than my own injury
You must account for, sir, if my sword pros-per;
Whose point and every edge is made more keen
With young Alvarez’ blood, in which I had
A noble interest. Does not that sin umbend
Thy arteries, and turn the guilty flowings
To trembling jelly in thy veins? Canst hear Me name that murder, and thy spirits not Struck into air, as thou wert shot by some Engine from Heaven?

Colum. You are the duchess’ champion!
Thou hast given me a quarrel now. I grieve
It is determin’d all must fight, and I Shall lose much honour in his fall.

Her. That duchess,
(Whom but to mention with thy breath is sacrilege,
An orphan of thy making, and condemm’d
By thee to eternal solitude, I come
To vindicate; and while I am killing thee,
ACT V
[Scene I.] Enter two Lords.

1 Lord. Columbo’s death doth much affect the king.

2 Lord. I thought the Cardinal would have lost his wits.

At first, for his nephew; it dowres all the talk
Of the others that were slain.

1 Lord. We are friends.

I do suspect Hernando had some interest,

And knew how their wounds came.

2 Lord. His flight confirms it,

For whom the Cardinal has spread his nets.

1 Lord. He is not so weak to trust himself at home

To his enemy’s gripe.

2 Lord. All strikes not me so much

As that the duchess, most oppressed lady,

Should be distracted, and before Columbo was slain.

1 Lord. But that the Cardinal should be made

Her guardian, is to me above that wonder.

2 Lord. So it pleas’d the king; and she, with that small stock

Of reason left her, is so kind and smooth

Upon him.

1 Lord. She’s turn’d a child again: a madness,

That would ha’ made her brain and blood boil high,

In which distemper she might ha’ wrought something —

2 Lord. Had been to purpose.

1 Lord. The Cardinal is cunning; and how’s he?

His brow does smile, he does suspect Hernando Took fire from her, and waits a time to punish it.

2 Lord. But what a subject of disgrace and mirth

Hath poor Celinda made herself by pride,

In her belief Columbo was her servant!

Her head hath stoop’d much since he died, and she Almost ridiculous at court.

Enter CARDINAL, ANTONELLI, and Servant.

1 Lord. The Cardinal
Is come into the garden, now —

Car. Walk off. [Exeunt Lords.]

It troubles me the duchess by her loss
Of brain, is now beneath my great revenge.

She is not capable to feel my anger,

Which, like to unregarded thunder spent

In woods, and lightning aim’d at senseless trees,

Must idly fall, and hurt her not, not to

That sense her guilt deserves: a fatal stroke,

Without the knowledge for what crime, to fright her

When she takes leave, and make her tug with death,

A garden.
Until her soul sweat, is a pigeon’s torment,
And she is sent a babe to the other world.
Columbo’s death will not be satisfied,
And I but wound her with a two-edged feather.
I must do more: I have all opportunity,
(She by the king now made my charge,) but she’s
So much a turtle, I shall lose by killing her,
Perhaps do her a pleasure and preferment;
That must not be.

Enter Celinda with a parchment.

Anton. [stopping her.] — Is not this she, that would be thought to have been Columbo’s mistress? — Madam, his grace is private,
And would not be disturb’d; you may displeas
him.

Cel. What will your worship wager that he shall Be pleas’d again before we part?

Anton. I’ll lay this diamond, madam, ’gainst a kiss,
And trust yourself to keep the stakes.

Cel. ’Tis done. [Comes forward.]

Anton. I have long had an appetite to this lad;
But the lords keep her up so high — this toy may bring her on.

Cel. This interruption tastes not of good manners.

Anton. But where necessity, my lord, compels,
The boldness may meet pardon, and when you
Have found my purpose, I may less appear Unmannerly.

Cel. To the business.

Cel. It did please
Your nephew, sir, before his death, to credit me
With so much honourable favour, I
Am come to tender to his near’st of blood,
Yourself, what does remain a debt to him.
Not to delay your grace with circumstance.
That deed, if you accept, makes you my heir
Of no contemptible estate. — [Aside.] This way
He reads.

Is only left to tie up scurrile tongues
And saucy men, that since Columbo’s death
Venture to libel on my pride and folly;
His greatness and this gift, which I enjoy
Still for my life, (beyond which term a kingdom’s Nothing,) will curb the giddy spleens of men
That live on impudent rhyme, and railing at Eeh wandering fame they catch.

Cel. Madam, this bounty
Will bind my gratitude, and care to serve you.

Cel. I am your grace’s servant.

Car. Antonelli! — Whisper.

And when this noble lady visits me,
Let her not wait.

Cel. What think you, my officious sir? His grace
Is pleas’d, you may conjecture: I may keep Your own; the kiss was never yours.

Anton. Sweet madam —

Cel. Talk if you dare; you know I must not wait;
And so, farewell for this time. [Exit.]

Car. ’Tis in my brain already, and it forms
Apace — good, excellent revenge, and pleasant!
She’s now within my talons: ’tis too cheap
A satisfaction for Columbo’s death,
Only to kill her by soft charm or force.

I’ll ride first her darling chastity;
’T will be after time enough to poison her,
And she to th’ world be thought her own de stroyer.

As I will frame the circumstance, this night
All may be finished: for the colonel,
Her agent in my nephew’s death, (whom I Disturb’d at counsel with her,) I may reach him
Hereafter, and be master of his fate.

We stave our conscience when we thrive in state.

[Scene II.]

Enter Secretary [ANTONIO] and PLACENTIA.

Ant. Placentia, we two are only left
Of all my lady’s servants; let us be true
To her, and one another; and be sure,
When we are at prayers, to curse the Cardinal.

Pla. I pity my sweet lady.

Ant. I pity her too, but am a little angry;
She might have found another time to lose
Her wits.

Pla. That I were a man!

Ant. What wouldst thou do, Placentia?

Pla. I would revenge my lady.

Ant. ’Tis better, being a woman; thou may’st do
Things that may prosper better, and the fruit
Be thy own another day.

Your wit still lives.

Pla. To play the wanton.

Ant. ’Tis a sad time, Placentia;
Some pleasure would do well: the truth is, I Am weary of my life, and I would have
One fit of mirth before I leave the world.

Pla. Do you not blush to talk thus wildly?

Ant. ’Tis good manners
To be a lady mad after my lady;
But I ha’ done. Who is with her now?

Pla. Madam Valeria.

Ant. Not Celinda? There’s a lady for my humour!

A pretty book of flesh and blood, and well
Bound up, in a fair letter too. Would I
Had her with all the resta!

Pla. She has not
An honourable fame.

Ant. Her fame! that’s nothing;
A little stain; her wealth will fetch again
The colour, and bring honour into her cheeks
As fresh; —
If she were mine, and I had her exchequer,
I know the way to make her honest;
Honest to th’ touch, the test, and the last trial.

Pla. How, prithee?

Ant. Why?
First I would marry her, that’s a treble material;
Then I would print her with an index
Expurgatorium; a table drawn

1 A room in the Duchess’s house.
Of her court heresies; and when she’s read, Cus privilégio, who dares call her whore?

Pla. I’ll leave you, if you talk thus.

Ant. Placently, thou may’st be better company.

After another progress; and now tell me,

Didst ever hear of such a patient madness

As my lady is possess with? She has rav’d

But twice; — an she would fright the Cardinal,

Or at a supper if she did but poison him,

It were a frenzy I could bear withal.

She calls him her dear governor.

Enter Hernando disguised, having a letter.

Pla. Who is this?

Her. Her secretary! — Sir,

Here is a letter, if it may have so

Much happiness to kiss her grace’s hand.

Ant. From whom?

Her. That’s not in your commission, sir,

To ask, or mine to satisfy; she will want

No understanding when she reads.

Ant. Alas!

Under your favour, sir, you are mistaken;

Her grace did never more want understanding.

Her. How?

Ant. Have you not heard? Her skull is

And many pieces taken out; she’s mad.

Her. Her sad fame of her distraction

Has too much truth, it seems.

Pla.

If please you, sir,

To expect a while, I will present the letter.

Her. Pray do. — Exit Placentia.

How long has she been thus distemper’d, sir?

Ant. Before the Cardinal came to govern

Who, for that reason, by the king was made

Her guardian. We are now at his devotion.

Her. A lamb given up to a tiger! May dis-

Soon eat him through his heart!

Ant. Your pardon, sir.

I love that voice; I know it too a little.

Are not you — be not angry, noble sir,

I can with ease be ignorant again,

And think you are another man; but if

You be that valiant gentleman they call —

Her. Whom? what?

Ant. That ill’d — I would not name him, if

I thought

You were not press’d to be that very gentleman.

Her. Am I betray’d?

Ant. The devil sha’ not

Betray you here: kill me, and I will take

My death you are the noble colonel.

We are all bound to you for the general’s dearth,

Valiant Hernando! When my lady knows

You are here, I hope’t will fetch her wits

But do not talk too loud; we are not all

Honest 1 ’ t h’ house; some are the Cardinal’s

Her. Thou wert faithful to thy lady. I am glad

1 Loyal to the Duchess.
Ant. If I could purchase your sweet favour, madam.

Cel. You shall command me, and my fortune, sir.

Ant. [Aside.] How's this? 128

Cel. I have observ'd you, sir, a staid
And prudent gentleman — and I shall want —

Ant. Not me?

Cel. A father for some infant: he has credit
I' th' world. — [Aside.] I am not the first cast lady

Has married a secretary.

Ant. Shall I wait upon you?

Cel. Whither?

Ant. Any whither.

Cel. I may chance lead you then —

Ant. I shall be honour'd to obey. My blood
Is up, and in this humour I'm for anything.

Cel. Well, sir, I'll try your manhood,

Ant. 'Tis my happiness;

You cannot please me better.

Cel. [Aside.] This was struck

I the opportunity.

Ant. I am made for ever.

[Exit, following her.]

[Scene III.]

Enter Hernando and Duchess.

Her. Dear madam, do not weep.

Duch. 'Y're very welcome;

I ha' done; I wo' not shed a tear more
Till I meet Alvarez, then I'll weep for joy.
He was a fine young gentleman, and sung sweetly;

An you had heard him but the night before
We were married, you would ha' sworn he had been
A swan, and sung his own sad epitaph.

But we'll talk o' the Cardinal.

Her. Would his death

Might ransom your fair sense! he should not live

To triumph in the loss. Beshrw my manhood,
But I begin to melt.

Duch. I pray, sir, tell me, —

For I can understand, although they say
I have lost my wits; but they are safe enough,
And I shall have 'em when the Cardinal dies; —

Who had a letter from his nephew, too,

Since he was slain?

Her. From whence?

Duch. I know not where he is. But in some bower

Within a garden he is making chaplets,

And means to send me one; but I'll not take it;

I have flowers enough, I thank him, while I live.

Her. But do you love your governor?

Duch. Yes, but I'll never marry him; I am promis'd

Already.

Her. To whom, madam?

Duch. Do not you

Blush when you ask me that? Must not you be

My husband? I know why, but that's a secret.

Indeed, if you believe me, I do love

No man alive so well as you: the Cardinal

Shall never know 't; he'll kill us both; and yet
He says he loves me dearly, and has promis'd —

To make me well again; but I'm afraid,

One time or other, he will give me poison.

Her. Prevent him, madam, and take nothing

From him.

Duch. Why, do you think 't will hurt me?

Her. It will kill you.

Duch. I shall but die, and meet my dear-lo't lord,

Whom, when I have kist, I'll come again and work

A bracelet of my hair for you to carry him,

When you are going to Heaven; the posy shall

Be my own name, in little tears, that I

Will weep next winter, which Conseal'd i' th' frost,

Will show like seed-pearl. You'll deliver it?

I know he'll love, and wear it for my sake.

Her. She is quite lost.

Duch. I pray give me, sir, your pardons;

I know I talk not wisely; but if you had

The burthen of my sorrow, you would miss —

Sometimes your better reason. Now I'm well;

What will you do when the Cardinal comes?

He must not see you for the world.

He'sha' not;

I'll take my leave before he come.

Duch. Nay, stay;

I shall have no friend left me when you go.

He will but sup; he sha' not stay to lie with me.

I have the picture of my lord abed;

Three are too much this weather.

Enter Placentia.

Pla. Madam, the Cardinal.

Her. He shall sup with the devil.

Duch. I dare not stay;

The red cock 2 will be angry. I'll come again.

[Exit [Duchess and Placentia.]

Her. This sorrow is no fable. Now I find

My curiosity is sadly satisfied. —

Ha! if the duchess in her struggled wits

Let fall words to betray me to the Cardinal,
The panther will not leap more fierce to meet

His prey, when a long want of food hath parch'd

His starved maw, than he to print his rage,

And tear my heart-strings. Everything is fatal;

And yet she talk'd sometimes with chain of sense,

And said she lov'd me. Ha! they come not yet. I have a sword about me, and I left

My own security to visit death.

Yet I may pause a little, and consider

Which way does lead me to 't most honourably.

Does not the chamber that I walk in tremble?

What will become of her, and me, and all

The world in one small hour? I do not think

Ever to see the day again; the wings

Of night spread o'er me like a sable hearse-cloth;

The stars are all close mourners too; but I

Must not alone to the cold silent grave,

1 Another room in the same.

2 The Cardinal.
I must not. — If thou canst, Alvarez, open
That ebon curtain, and behold the man,
When the world's justice fails, shall right thy ashes,
And feed their thirst with blood! Thy duchess is Almost a ghost already, and doth wear
Her body like an useless upper garment,
The trim and fashion of it lost. — Ha!

Re-enter Placenta.

Pla. You need not doubt me, sir. — My lady prays
You would not think it long; she in my ear
Commanded me to tell you, that last night
She drank, she had happy wishes to your health.

Her. And did the Cardinal pledge it?

Pla. He was not
Invited to 't, nor must he know you are here.

Her. What do they talk of, prithee?

Pla. His grace is very pleasant
A lute is heard.
And kind to her; but her returns are after
The sad condition of her sense, sometimes Unjointed.

Her. They have music.

Pla. A lute only. His grace prepar'd; they say, the best of Italy,
That waits upon my lord.

Her. He thinks the duchess
Is stung with a tarantula.

Pla. Your pardon; My duty is expected.

Her. A voice too!

Solemn within.

Strap. Come, my Daphne, come away,
We do waste the crystal day;
'Tis Straphon calls. Daph. What says my love?

Strap. Come, follow to the myrtle grove,
Where Venus shall prepare
New chaplets for thy hair.

Daph. Were I shut up within a tree,
I'd read my bark to follow thee.

Strap. My shepherdess, make haste,
The minutes slide too fast.

Daph. In those cooler shades will I,
Blind as Cupid, kiss thine eye.

Strap. In thy bosom then I'll stay;
In such warm snow who would not lose his way?

Chor. We 'll laugh, and leave the world behind,
And gods themselves that see,
Shall envy thee and me,
But never find
Such joys, when they embrace a daity.

Her. If at this distance I distinguish, 't is not Church music; and the air's wanton, and no anthem
Sung to 't, but some strange ode of love and his love.
What should this mean? — Ha? he is coming
hither.

[Draws his sword.]
I am betray'd; he marches in her hand.
I'll trust a little more; mute as the arras,
My sword and I here.

He conceals himself behind the arras, and observes.

Enter Cardinal, Duchess, Antonelli, and Attendants.

Car. Wait you in the first chamber, and let none
Presume to interrupt us.—

Exeunt [Antonelli and Attendants.]

She is pleasant;
Now for some art, to poison all her innocence.

Duch. I do not like the Cardinal's humour; he Little suspects what guest is in my chamber,
Car. Now, madam, you are safe.

[Embraces her.]

Duch. How means your lordship?

Car. Safe in my arms, sweet duchess.

Duch. Do not hurt me.

Car. Not for the treasures of the world! You are
My pretty charge. Had I as many lives
As I have careful thoughts to do you service,
I should think all a happy forfeit, to Delight your grace one minute; 't is a Heaven
To see you smile.

Duch. What kindness call you this?

Car. It cannot want a name while you preserv e
So plentiful a sweetness; it is love.

Duch. Of me? How shall I know 't, my lord?

Car. By this, and this, swift messengers to whisper
Our hearts to one another.

Kisses her.

Duch. Pray, do you come a wooing?

Car. Yes, sweet madam;
You cannot be so cruel to deny me.

Duch. What, my lord?

Car. Another kiss.

Duch. Can you
Dispense with this, my lord? — (Aside.) Alas; I fear
Hernando is asleep, or vanish'd from me.

Car. [Aside.] I have mock'd my blood into a flame; and what
My angry soul had form'd for my revenge,
Is now the object of my amorous sense,
I have took a strong enchantment from her lips,
And fear I shall forgive Columbo's death,
If she consent to my embrace. — Come, madam.

Duch. Whither, my lord?

Car. But to your bed or couch,
Where, if you will be kind, and but allow Yourself a knowledge, love, whose shape and ruptures
Wise poets have but glorified in dreams,
Shall make your chamber his eternal palace;
And with such active and essential streams
Of new delights glide o'er your bosom, you Shall wonder to what unknown world you are
By some blest change translated. Why d' ye pause.

And look so wild? Will you deny your governor?

Duch. How came you by that sloven foot?

Car. Your fancy
Would turn a traitor to your happiness.

I am your friend; you must be kind.

Duch. Unhand me,
Or I'll cry out a rape.
Car. You wo'nt, sure?
Duch. I have been cosen'd with Hernando's shadow;
Here's none but Heaven to hear me.—Help! I rape!
Car. Are you so good at understanding?

Then, I must use other argument.
He forces her. [Hernando rushes from the arras.]

Her. Go to, Cardinal.
Strikes him; exit DUCHESS.
Car. Hernando? Murder! treason! help!
Her. An army sha' not rescue thee. Your blood
Is much inflam'd; I have brought a laonset w' me.
Shall open your hot veins, and cool your fever.—
To vex thy parting soul, it was the same
Engine that pier'd Colombo's heart.
Car. Help! I murder! [Stabs him.]

Enter Antonelli and Servants.

Anton. Some ring the bell, 't will raise the court.
My lord is murder'd! 'T is Hernando.

The bell rings.

Her. I'll make you all some sport.—[Stabs himself.]—So; now we are even.
Where is the duchess? I would take my leave
Of her, and then bequeath my curse among you.
He falls.

Enter King, DUCHESSE, VALERIA, Lords, and Guard.

King. How come these bloody objects?—
Her. With a trick my sword found out. I hope he's paid.
1 Lord. [Aside.] I hope so too.—A surgeon
For my lord Cardinal!
King. Hernando?
Duch. Justice! oh, justice, sir, against a raverisher!
Her. Sir, I ha' done you service.
King. A bloody service.
Her. 'T is pure scarlet.

Enter Surgeon.

Car. [Aside.] After such care to perfect my revenge,
Thus banded out o' th' world by a woman's plot!
Her. I have preserv'd the duchess from a rape.
Good night to me and all the world for ever.
Dies.

King. So impious!
Duch. 'T is most true; Alvarez' blood
Is now reveng'd; I find my brain return,
And every struggling sense repairing home. Car. I have deserv'd you should turn from me, sir.
My life hath been prodigiously wicked;
My blood is now the kingdom's balm. Oh, sir,
I have abus'd your ear, your trust, your people,
And my own sacred office; my conscience
Feels now the sting. Oh, show your charity.
And with your pardon, like a cool soft gale.
Fan my poor sweating soul, that wandereth
Through Unhabitable climes, and parched deserts.
But I am lost, if the great world forgive me,
Unless I find your mercy for a crime.
You know not, madam, yet, against your life,
I must confess, more than my black intents.
Upon your honour; you're already poison'd. King. By whom?
Car. By me,
In the revenge I ow'd Colombo's loss;
With your last meat was mixt a poison, that
By subtle, and by sure degrees, must lie dead.

King. Look to the duchess, our physicians!
Car. Stay;
I will deserve her mercy, though I cannot
Call back the deed. In proof of my repentance,
If the last breath of a now dying man
May gain your charity and belief, receive
This ivory box; in it an antidote;
'Tove that they boast the great magistral medicine:
That powder, mixt with wine, by a most rare
And quick access to the heart, will fortify it
Against the rage of the most nimble poison.
I am not worthy to present her with it.
Oh, take it, and preserve her innocent life.
1 Lord. Strange, he should have a good thing in such readiness.
Car. 'T is that, which in my jealousy and state,
Trust no fast predictions of my birth,
That I should die by poison, I preserv'd
For my own safety; wonder not, I made
That my companion was to be my refuge.

Enter Servant with a bow of wine.

1 Lord. Here's some of my pure thoughts, I take
This first, and with my dying breath confirm
My penitence; it may benefit her life,
But not my wounds. [He drinks.] Oh, haste
To preserve her; And though I merit not her pardon, let not
Her fair soul be divorc'd. [The DUCHESSE takes the bottle and drinks.]

King. This is some charity; may it prosper, madam!

Val. How does your grace?
Duch. And must I owe my life to him, whose death
Was my ambition? Take this free acknowledgment;
I had intent, this night, with my own hand
To be Alvarez' justicer.

King. You were mad,
And thought past apprehension of revenge.

Duch. That shape I did usurp, great sir, to give My heart more freedom and defence; but when Hernando came to visit me, I thought
I might defer my execution;
Which his own rage suppli'd without my guilt,
And when his lust grew high, met with his

1 Lord. The Cardinal smiles.

Car. Now my revenge has met
With you, nimble duchess! I have took
A shape 1 to give my act more freedom too,
And now I am sure she 's poison'd with that dose
I gave her last.

King. Thou'rt not so horrid?

Duch. Ha! some cordial.

Car. Alas, no preservative
Hath wings to overtake it; were her heart
Look'd in a quarry, it would search and kill
Before the aids can reach it. I am sure
You shan't now laugh at me.

King. How come you by that poison?

Car. I prepar'd it,

Resolving, when I had enjoy'd her, which
The colonel prevented, by some art
To make her take it, and by death conclude
My last revenge. You have the fatal story,

King. This is so great a wickedness, it will Exceed belief.

Car. I knew I could not live.

Surg. Your wounds, sir, were not desperate.
Car. Not mortal? Ha! were they not mortal?

Surg. If I have skill in surgery.

Car. Then I have caught myself in my own engine.

2 Lord. It was your fate, you said, to die by poison.

Car. That was my own prediction, to abuse
Your faith; no human art can now resist it:
I feel it knocking at the seat of life;
It must come in; I have wrack'd all my own
To try your charities: now it would be rare,
If you but wait me with a little prayer;
My wings that flag may catch the wind; but
't is
In vain, the mist is risen, and there's none
To steer my wand'ring bark.

Dies.

1 Lord. He's dead.

Dies.

King. With him

Die all deceived trust.

2 Lord. This was a strange

Impiety.

King. When men
Of gifts and sacred function once decline
From virtue, their ill deeds transcend example.
Duch. The minute's come that I must take my leave, too.

Your hand, great sir; and though you be a

king,

We may exchange forgiveness. Heaven forgive,
And all the world! I come, I come, Alvarez.

Dies.

King. Dispose their bodies for becoming funeral.

How much are kings abus'd by those they take
To royal grace, whom, when they cherish most
By nice indulgence, they do often arm
Against themselves! from whence this maxima

springs:

None have more need of perspectives 2 than kings.

Exeunt.

EPILOGUE

Within. Master Pollard! Where's Master
Pollard, for the epilogue?

He is thrust upon the stage, and falls.

Epi. [rising.] I am coming to you, gentlemen; the poet
Has help'd me thus far on my way, but I'll
Be even with him; the play is a tragedy,
The first that ever he compos'd for us,
Wherein he thinks he has done prettily,

Enter Servant.

And I am sensible,—I prithee look,
Is nothing out of joint? Has he broke nothing?
Serv. No, sir, I hope.

Epi. Yes, he has broke his epilogue all to pieces.

Canst thou put it together again?

Serv. Not I, sir.

Epi. Nor I; prithee be gone. [Exit Serv.]—
Hum!—Master poet,
I have a teeming mind to be reveng'd.—
You may assist, and not be seen in 't now,
If you please, gentlemen, for I do know
He listens to the issue of his cause;
But blotter not your hands in his applause;
Your private smile, your nod, or hem to tell
My follow'd who you like the business well;
And when, without a clap, you go away,
I'll drink a small-beer health to his second day;
And break his heart, or make him swear and

rage

He'll write no more for the unhappy stage.
But that 's too much; so we should lose; faith,
shew it,

And if you like his play, 't's as well he knew
it.

ADDITIONAL NOTES ON THE PLAYS

ENDYMION

Endymion was published in 1591, and the title-page states that it had been played "before the presence of the Queen at Greenwich on Candlemas day at night, by the Children of Paulas." It is fairly certain that this performance took place on Feb. 2, 1596. The present text is based on Bond's reprint of the quarto of 1591, with slight additions from the version included by Blount in his Size Court Comedies, 1622. Like most of Lyly's plays, Endymion is an allegory of the court, with a mythological basis. Very little, however, is here borrowed from the myth of the Moon-goddess and her lover, and the plot is evidently invented with a view to carrying contemporary allusions. Beginning with Halpin's paper in 1843, many attempts have been made to read the riddle, the latest and most ingenious being that of M. Feuillerat, who identifies Cynthia with Elizabeth, Tellus with Mary of Scots, and Endymion with her son, James VI. The credit of having disproved the Endymion-Leicester identification is shared with M. Feuillerat by Dr. P. W. Long, who seeks to read the play as mainly an allegory of Heavenly Beauty (Cynthia) and Earthly Beauty (Tellus), an interpretation perhaps not wholly incompatible with the more personal solution.

THE OLD WIVES TALE

The Old Wife's Tale, as the title should appear in modern spelling (the reference being, of course, to Madge), was first published in 1586, and on this quarto, as reprinted by Gummere, the present text is based. The precise date of production has not been definitely ascertained, but it was probably not far from 1590. Source, in the usual sense of the term, the play can hardly be said to have; it is a medley of a dozen themes from current English folk-tales. Realistic in diction, romantic in subject-matter, the play was a notable innovation in its day; and through the peculiar irony of the satire on romance, Peele introduced a new and subtler form of humor into English comedy. Both in its main theme, and in its use of the induction, this drama is an interesting forerunner of The Knight of the Burning Pestle.

FRIAR BACON AND FRIAR BUNGAY

This play was first printed in quarto in 1594, and that edition (Q1), as printed by Collins and Gayley, forms the basis of the present text. The existence of a second quarto, said to have been issued in 1599, has been rendered highly doubtful by Gayley. Earlier editions appeared in 1630 (Q2) and 1655 (Q3). The date of production was probably 1598-90. That part of the plot dealing with the marvelous exploits of Friar Bacon is drawn from The Famous Historie of Friar Bacon, a late sixteenth-century account of the legends that had gathered round the name of the Oxford Franciscan, Roger Bacon (born 1214). The love story is Greene's own. It seems probable that this comedy was conceived as a foil to Marlowe's tragedy of Doctor Faustus, some of the scenes approaching an actual parody, and stress being laid on the superiority of the English to the German necromancer.

TAMBURLAINE

Both parts of Tamburlaine were entered in the Stationers' Register on Aug. 14, 1599, and they appeared together in octavo in 1600, and again in 1592. The alleged existence of editions of 1583, 1597, and 1600 is unsupported by evidence; and the third edition seems to be that of 1608 (part I.) and 1609 (part II.), printed from the first. The issue of 1600 is the basis of the present text. The first part of the play was probably produced three years before, in 1597, and the second part in the following year. All the early editions are anonymous, nor does there survive any pre-Restoration statement as to the authorship; yet so convincing is the internal evidence that the ascription to Marlowe may be regarded as indubitable.

The main source of part I. is Fortescue's Foresta, 1571, a translation of Pedro Mexia's Silva de varia lection, 1543. Additional details were derived from The Notable History of the Saracens by Thomas Newton, 1578, and from Petrus Perondinus, 1553. The title-role was first acted by the gigantic Edward Alleyn.

DOCTOR FAUSTUS

Allusions to contemporary events in the Low Countries fix the limits for the date of Doctor Faustus as 1585 and 1590; and the evidence of style places it after Tamburlaine. A ballad which seems to be inspired by the play was licensed in February, 1589, so that it is generally agreed that the first production of the play fell in the winter of 1588-89. "A booke called the plate of Doctor Faustus" was entered in the Stationers' Register on Jan. 7, 1601, but if an edition was published in that year, no copy has survived. The earliest extant edition is that of 1604 (Q1), on which the present text is based. This version was reprinted in 1609 and 1611; and in 1616 appeared an enlarged form, followed in the later quartos of 1619, 1630, 1694, and 1631. An edition issued in 1653 has many additions and excisions, but none with any claim to authority. The question of the authorship of the amplifications in the quart of 1616 is still under discussion; but recent opinion tends to the view that, except for a few scattered lines, the additions may well be the work of William Bird and Samuel Bowley, engaged by Henslowe in 1609 for this purpose. Marlowe's knowledge of the Faust legend is derived from the German Faustbucb, published at Frankfurt by Johann Spies in 1587, which he probably knew through an English translation.

THE JEW OF MALTA

The earliest mention of this play occurs in Henslowe's Diary, where a performance is noted as taking place on February 26, 1592, and it is implied that the tragedy was not then new. Its composition: conjecturally placed about 1600. On May 17, 1594, it was entered on the Stationers' Register, but a second edition has come down to us earlier than a corrupt quarto of 1633, which is thus our sole authority for the text. As to the source from which Marlowe drew his material, nothing definite is known. Kells (Englische Studien, x. 80) has elaborated a parallel between the career of Marlowe's hero and that of sixteenth-century Portuguese Jew, Michæelis, who is mentioned by a number of historical accounts as having been found could have furnished only suggestions.

This play was one of the most popular on the Elizabethan stage, Henslowe recording thirty-four performances before June 21, 1595.

EDWARD II

When The troublesom Reign and Lamentable Death of Edward the Second was entered in the Stationers' Register on July 6, 1593, the play had been already on the stage for some time; and it is probable that it was first produced in 1591 or 1592. No copy issued in 1593 is extant, and the earliest surviving quarto belongs to 1594. On this, the best of the early prints, the present text is based. One edition followed in 1598, 1612, and 1622. Marlowe's main source for the historical basis of the play was Holinshed, Fabyan's and Stowe's Chronicles having also supplied some minor details. Chronological accuracy is often disregarded, yet in its main lines the action is substantially faithful to history. To the play is Marlowe's ripet production, and we are fortunate in having the text preserved in a purer state than that of any of his other plays.

In the four plays by Marlowe, Tuckers Brooke's reprints of the early editions have been used.

THE SPANISH TRAGEDY

The most definite indication of the date of this, one of the most popular of all Elizabethan plays, is found in an allusion in the Induction to Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair (1614), where it seems to be implied that The Spanish Tragedy was then twenty-five or thirty years old. This gives us the year 1584–85 as limits; and the absence of any reference to the Armada, in a play laid in Spain, has led critics to place it before 1588. The year 1586 may, perhaps, be fairly conjectured as coming within a year of the date of composition. In 1592 it was being successfully performed; and on October 6 of that year it was entered for publication. The first edition has disappeared entirely; and the earliest extant is an undated quarto in the British Museum. Other quartos appeared in 1594 and 1598; and in the edition of 1602 are first found the additions made to the play by Ben Jonson, and included in the later quarto of 1610, 1611, 1618, 1623, and 1633. The present text is based on the B.M. quarto for Kyd's part of the play, and on that of 1602 for the additions, which are pointed out in the foot-notes; and I have availed myself of the collations of both Manly and Boas. All the early editions are anonymous; and the scription of the play to Kyd is made on the authority of a passage in Heywood's Apology for Actors, 1612.

BUSSY D'AMBOIS

The first quarto of Bussy D'Ambois appeared in 1607, and a second in 1608. In 1614 a third quarto appeared, which claimed to be "much corrected and amended by the author before his death," and this was reissued in 1648 and 1657. The present text is based on Boas's reprint of the quarto of 1648. The date of the production of the play is uncertain. Certain entries in Henslowe's Diary point to 1598, but if the play was on the stage as early as this, it must have been revised before its publication in 1607. Bussy D'Ambois belongs to the group of Chapman's plays dealing with almost contemporary French politics. D'Ambois himself was born in 1510, and was murdered by Monsoreau's retainers in 1578. The earliest extant accounts of his career are later in date than the play, and the precise source of Chapman's information have not yet been found. But from the later descriptions it is clear that the action of the play, and the view given of the hero's character, are substantially historical.

EVERY MAN IN HIS HUMOUR

This play, the first example of the "comedy of humours," was performed in 1668 with great success. It was published in quarto in 1601, and in this version the characters bear Italian names, and the scene is laid in Italy. It was revised about 1606, and this second version, with the names and scene made English and with many other changes, was published in the folio of 1616. The present text is based directly on the folio, which seems to have been entirely of Jonson's invention, is constructed with a view to those classical standards of comedy, which Jonson sought to uphold against the prevailing romantic license.
SEJANUS, HIS FALL

Sejanus was first performed in 1603, but, as Jonson admits, failed to please the audience. It was published in 1606, and again in the folio of 1616. On this latter the present text is based. It is not necessary to discuss the sources of this impressive tragedy, since Jonson has supplied us in his ample foot-notes the documentary evidence for nearly every fact in the play. These notes have been reproduced in the present edition, through the first scene, which is probably as far as the modern reader will care to study them. The delineation of Tiberius is one of the most successful attempts in our literature to recreate a slightly complex historical character.

VOLPONE, OR THE FOX

Volpone was performed in 1605 or 1606 at the Globe theatre and at both Oxford and Cambridge, and 1607 was printed in quarto. It was included in the folio of 1616, on which the present text is based. The main plot is founded on an episode in the Satiricon of Petronius Arbiter; but the parts of Celia and of Sir Politic and Lady Would-be are of Jonson’s own invention. The song, “Drink to me only with thine eyes,” is practically a translation from Philostratus, and “Come, my Celia” is imitated from Catullus. The comedy is a terrible satire on some of the most sordid aspects of human nature, and the superb skill with which it is constructed barely suffices to counteract the depressing effect of the types of character it displays.

THE ALCHEMIST

The Alchemist, which may, perhaps, be regarded as Jonson’s supreme masterpiece in comedy, was performed in 1610, and published in quarto in 1612. The present text is based on that of the folio of 1616. It has been frequently stated that for the plot of this play Jonson was indebted to Plautus, but his borrowing is very slight. In the Mostellario there is a scene which might have suggested the opening dialogue of The Alchemist, and another which bears a slight resemblance to Face’s attempt to hoodwink his master in V. i. In the Poenulus, a man speaks Punic, and is misunderstood somewhat as Surly’s Spanish is misunderstood in IV. iii. But the plot as a whole is Jonson’s own, and the alchemical and astrological matter is drawn from a wide acquaintance with current treatises on these subjects. Attempts have been made to identify Sibyl and Face with the famous Dee and Kelley, but identification is much too strong a word. Hathaway has pointed out a more striking correspondence between the activities of Simon Forman, a notorious quack of Jonson’s day. The Alchemist has been credited with considerable effectiveness in clearing London of the type of impostors which it ridicules and exposes so trenchantly and amusingly.

THE SHOEMAKERS’ HOLIDAY

This, the first of Dekker’s comedies, was acted in 1599, and printed in the following year. On the text of this quarto, as reprinted by Wareke and Froescholdt, the present text is based. The story of the partly historical Simon Eyre was found by Dekker in one of the tales in Thomas Deloney’s Gentle Craft, 1597; but the main interest of the play lies in its picture of London tradespeople in the author’s own day, and for this Dekker needed no literary source.

THE HONEST WHORE

From a passage in Henslowe’s Diary it appears that Middleton had some share in the first part of The Honest Whore, but it is not supposed that he wrote any considerable portion of it. The second part is wholly Dekker’s, and is generally regarded as superior to the first. The first edition of part I. appeared in 1604, of part II. in 1630. Pearson’s reprint, on which the present text is based, follows the 1605 quarto of part I. and the 1630 of part II. A copy of the 1635 quarto of the double play has been used to check Pearson’s text. No source of the plot has been discovered. The play is a highly characteristic product of the time, both in its picture of the vices of the city, and in its sound and straightforward, if somewhat coarse, handling of the moral issues involved. The character of Friscobaldo, in part II., afforded Hazlitt the theme for what he himself justly regarded as one of his finest pieces of critical interpretation.

THE MALCONTENT

The Malcontent was first issued in 1604; and in the same year a second quarto appeared with the title-page, “The Malcontent. Augmented by Marston. With the Additions played by the Kings Malesties servants. Written by Ihon Webster. 1604. At London Printed by V. S. for William Aspley, and are to be sold at his shop in Paules Church-yard.” The title-page of the first edition gives John Marston as author; the date and publisher are the same. The second edition, on which the present text is directly based, contains, as new matter, the Induction and a number of additions, marked in the present text by brackets and specified in the foot-notes. Its title-page has proved highly misleading; the facts seem to be that Webster supplied the Induction when the play was revived by the King’s men; and that the other additions are restorations of passages from Marston’s original play which had been cut for acting purposes. Stoll, who has made this clear, places the composition of the play in 1600, and has given the tragi-comedy a new importance, in addition to its intrinsic vigor as effectiveness, by arguing forcibly for it as an influence on the characters of Shakespeare's 'Jaques at Hamlet.' The source of the plot has so far not been discovered.
ADDITIONAL NOTES ON THE PLAYS

A WOMAN KILLED WITH KINDNESS

This tragedy, one of the earliest and most pathetic examples of domestic drama, was first published in 1607; and the present text is based on Pearson's reprint of this quarto. The play was acted in 1601 as appears from an entry in Henslowe's Diary. The title, like those of several other plays by Heywood, was a proverbial phrase. Creizenach (IV. 254) states that Heywood borrowed the two plots of the drama from Margaret of Navarre and from Handelino. The thirty-second tale in the 'Hesperides' does indeed tell of a husband who refrained from killing a wife taken in adultery, but the resemblance is far from close.

THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE

The Knight of the Burning Pestle was printed in quarto in 1612, and on Murch's reproduction of this edition the present text is based. A second and a third quarto were issued in 1636, and the play was included in the second folio edition of Beaumont and Fletcher in 1679. The date of composition is uncertain, but recent opinion tends to place it about 1610. It cannot be said that there is as yet general agreement as to the respective shares of the two authors, or that they could even be assigned. While the most careful examination of the question so far made, that of Dr. Murch, most of the play should be ascribed to Beaumont, Fletcher having probably written only the three love scenes, I. 1. 1–60; III. 1. 18–83. In spite of the similarity between the satirical purpose of this play and of 'Don Quixote,' it has not been shown that the authors had any knowledge of the work of Cervantes, or that they could read Spanish. (The first English translation of 'Don Quixote' appeared in 1612.) In the mock-heroic part of the play, the object of the satire was the type of play founded upon medieval romance, popular at that time among the tradespeople of London; and of this type, Heywood's 'Four Prentices of London seems to have been especially in view. Koeppel has pointed out the resemblance between the comic scene in Act IV, and an episode in Marston's 'Antonia and Melinda' (1605). The love-plots are too commonplace to have a definitely assignable source, and the scenes between Merrythought and his wife, like those of the Induction, are, one may be sure, due to direct observation of contemporary life and manners.

PHILASTER

The first quarto of 'Philaster,' issued in 1629, seems to have been unauthorized, and to have been made up in part from a report taken down at a performance. At the beginning and end it is quite different from the other quartos. The second quarto, 1622, as reprinted by Thorndike, is the basis for the present text, with occasional readings from the later quartos and the folio of 1679. The play was probably written about 1618–19. The respective shares of the two authors are difficult to assign. Orphant and Thorndike give to Fletcher I. 1. 99–339; II. ii.; IV. iv. 69–303; passages in III. ii.; V. iii.; and V. iv.; the rest to Beaumont; the prose scenes with less assurance. Macaulay gives little beyond V. iii., iv. to Fletcher. This distribution is made mainly on the grounds of the characteristics of the general, it does not take into account the possibility of separate authorship in this comical baroque. The story of the play seems to have been original, though several of the motives are common enough. There is marked indebtedness to 'Hamlet,' and much resemblance to 'Cymbeline,' though Thorndike has argued plausibly for the view that in the latter case Shakespeare was the borrower.

THE MAID'S TRAGEDY

As in the case of 'Philaster,' the first quarto of the 'The Maid's Tragedy' (1619) is corrupt and unauthorized. The second quarto (1622), with Thorndike's collations of the first and third (1630), is the basis for the present text. The date of composition is probably about 1608–11. There is more agreement here than in the case of 'Philaster' as to the respective shares of the joint authors. Most critics give Fletcher II. ii.; IV. i.; V. i. 1–111; V. ii.; the rest to Beaumont, with the exception of I. ii., which is uncertain. Macaulay gives II. ii. also to Beaumont. The source of the play has not been found, though minor resemblances have been noted, such as that of the duel between Aspasia and Amintor, to the fight between Parthenia and Amphialus in Sidney's 'Arcadia,' book III, and that of the quarrel between Melanitus and Amintor to that between Brutus and Casarius in 'Julius Caesar.'

THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERDESS

The first quarto of 'The Faithful Shepherdess' is undated, but it was certainly issued before May, 1618, and the play had been unsuccessfully produced not long before, perhaps in 1616 or 1618. The present text is based on the first quarto, and is dependent on the collations in the Glover and Waller edition of Beaumont and Fletcher. Fletcher's chief model in this pastoral seems to have been Guarini's 'Pastor Fido,' and some few details are borrowed from Spenser, but the plot itself seems to be original. The play, as Fletcher confesses in his address to 'The Reader,' was unsuccessful on the stage, but the beauty of its lyric and descriptive poetry has given it, in spite of its weak dramatic quality, a distinguished place in literature. It is notable also as having in part suggested Milton's 'Comus.'
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

The Wild-Goose Chase, we are told by the publisher of the first folio edition of Beaumont and Fletcher, was lost when that volume was compiled; it reappeared later, and was issued separately in 1676. A second edition appeared in the folio of 1675. The present text is based on the reprint of Valentine, following, however, the edition of 1623 in preference to that of 1679. The comedy is known to have been acted as early as 1621. No sources for the plot seem as yet to have been found. Farquhar based on it his comedy of The Inconstant, a fact which points to the obvious relationship between the Fletcherian comedy, of which this is a typical example, and the drama of the Restoration.

THE DUCHESS OF MALFI

The first edition of The Duchess of Malfi appeared in quarto in 1639, and was followed by others in 1640, 1678, and 1708. The present text follows closely the Harvard copy of the first quarto, with occasional readings supplied by Sampson's collation of the other editions. The date of first performance cannot be later than 1614, since the actor who created the part of Antonio died in that year. The main plot is taken from Painter's Palace of Pleasure, vol. II, Nov. 23 (1567). Painter translated his story from Belle-Forest's paraphrase (1565) of the twenty-sixth novella of Bandello (1554). The story appears in many places, and has followed many plotlines. da Veiga Crawford (Notes and Queries, Sept. 17-Nov. 2, 1904) has shown many incidental and even literal borrowings from Sidney's Arcadia. Among the elements in the play not found in Painter are the underplot of Julia and the Cardinal, the scenes of torture, and the most of the fifth act. Some of these are derived from the tradition of the tragedy of revenge, especially as represented by Shakespeare, Marston, and Tourneur; but, in spite of frequent echoes, this impressive tragedy, almost the last of its kind, derives its vitality mainly from the powerful and sombre imagination of Webster.

A TRICK TO CATCH THE OLD ONE

This comedy was licensed October 7, 1607, and published in quarto in 1608. A second edition appeared in 1615. The present text is based directly on the copy of the first quarto in the Boston Public Library, with the aid of the readings from the second quarto given by Bulfin. The plot is supposed to have given Massinger a suggestion for A New Way to Pay Old Debts, but where Middleton found it, if he did not originate it, is not known. This play is an excellent example of Middleton's comedies of intrigue and manners, full of bustle and fun, more careful of theatrical effect than of moral or aesthetic consistency.

THE CHANGELING

The Changeling was performed as early as 1623, but did not appear in print till 1633. On a copy of this quarto in the Harvard Library the present text is based. The source of the tragic plot is the fourth history in Book I. of John Reynolds' Triumph of God's Revenge against Murder (1621), but the plot has not been dramatized before. The Changeling, which gives its title to the play, may be original. Miss Wiggin assigns to Rowley the whole under-plot, and the opening and closing scenes of the main plot. Symons finds the greatness of the play as a whole due to the collaboration of the two authors, and beyond the powers of either alone (Cf. Camb. Hist. of Eng. Lit., vi. 76-7).

A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

This play, Massinger's masterpiece in comedy, appeared in quarto in 1633, and on the Harvard Library copy of this edition the present text is based. The play was acted before 1634, and Fenton places it as early as 1622. Few plays of this whole period have held the English stage so continuously or so long as this. The central idea of the plot seems to have been taken from Middleton's A Trick to Catch the Old One; but there is almost as great a difference in the dramatic method between the two plays as there is in moral tone. Massinger's didacticism here finds eloquent expression, without destroying theatrical effectiveness. Prototypes of Sir Giles Overreach and Greedy have been found in the notorious monopolist, Sir Giles Monypenny and his tool, Michael.

THE BROKEN HEART

The only early edition of The Broken Heart was published in 1633, and the present text is based on a copy of this quarto in the Boston Public Library. There is no evidence as to the date of composition except the hitherto unnoted fact that The Garland of Good Will, mentioned in IV. ii. 15, was published in 1631. The prologue seems to imply that the plot of the play is founded on fact, and Sherman has argued plausibly that the reference is to the story of Penelope Devereux, Sidney's "Stella," whose second husband Ford had eulogised in his first publication, Fane's Memorial (1606). It is certain that Ford was interested in both Sidney and Stella, and there are many correspondences between their situation and that of Orgilus and Penetha. The catastrophe is, of course, entirely changed; but in the spiritual situation there is much to recall the sonnets of Astrophel to Stella. There are traces of the influence of the Arcadia also in the play, such as the laying of the plot in Sparta; and in the delineation of the jealousy of Bassanes Ford draws upon Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

The Lady of Pleasure was published in quarto in 1637, and the present text is based on a copy of this edition in the Harvard Library. The play, a good example of Shirley's comedy of manners, was produced in 1635. No source has been discovered for the plot. Like Fletcher's Wid-Goose Chase, this type of Shirley's comedies is important in measuring the approach made toward the Restoration comedy before the Puritan Revolution.

THE CARDINAL

This tragedy, regarded by Shirley as his greatest play, and in fact no unworthy piece to close a volume representing the drama of that age, appeared in a volume of Six New Plays in 1633, the date on the title-page of The Cardinal being 1662. On a copy of this octavo in the Harvard Library the present text is based. The play was acted in 1641, and thus belongs to the last few months before the theatres were closed by the Long Parliament. It is probable that Webster's Duchess of Malfi affords more than a suggestion for the plot, but otherwise no source has been found. The play was popular both on its first appearance and when it was revived after the Restoration.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

JOHN LYLY

John Lyly was born in Kent about 1554. His father was Peter Lyly, Registrar of Canterbury, and his grandfather the well-known grammarian, William Lyly, the friend of Colet and More. He entered Magdalen College, Oxford, in 1569, whence he graduated B. A. in 1573, and M. A. in 1575. Here he was more distinguished for wit than for scholarship. Going up to London, and living at first under the protection of Burleigh, he produced in 1578 his Euphues: The Anatomy of Wit, which was followed in 1580 by Euphues and His England, both of which gained a great and immediate popularity. He was now attached to the Earl of Oxford. Campaspe, his first play, was performed in 1581, and most of his dramatic work was done in that decade. The Woman in the Moon, however, may have been produced as late as 1594-5. In 1583, Lyly married Beatrice Browne, a well-connected lady, who bore him eight children. From 1588 he seems to have held an honorary position as Esquire of the Body to the Queen, and he lived for years in the vain hope of succeeding to the office of Master of the Revels. Between 1589 and 1601 he sat in four parliaments, and in his Pappo with an Hatchet (1589) he took part with the Bishops in the Marprelate controversy. In spite of the distinction which Lyly won by his literary work, he failed to obtain from the Queen the substantial preferment which he craved, and he died in 1606, a disappointed place-seeker. Lyly's reputation has depended largely on the extraordinary vogue of his Euphues, and the immense influence of the style of that work on the prose of the time; but he holds also a highly important position in the development of polite comedy in England.

GEORGE PEELE

The date of Peele's birth is unknown, but is conjecturally placed about 1558. In 1565 he was a free scholar at Christ's Hospital, of which his father was clerk, and in 1571 he went to Oxford. He was a student first at Broadgates Hall (now Pembroke College), and later at Christ Church, whence he graduated B. A. in 1577, and M. A. in 1579. From the University, where he had already achieved some reputation as a poet, he went to London, and apparently plunged at once into the irregularities that wrecked his career, for in the same year the governors of Christ's Hospital forced his father to turn him out of the precincts of the hospital. His wife, whom he had married by 1583, brought him some property, which he soon dissipated; and he became a member of that group of authors who wrote plays, pageants, and all sorts of occasional productions, in the uncertain hope of earning a living. The famous Jests, fathered on Peele, are probably quite unauthentic; but there is an unfortunate appropriateness in many of them to his known mode of life. He seems to have been an actor as well as a playwright. Meres mentions him in Palladis Tamia (1588) as dead.

Peele's claims to distinction rest upon his treatment of metre, and on his humor. He did much to recoup the diction of the drama, and before Marlowe placed his stamp upon blank verse, Peele was writing it with great sweetness and a charming musical quality. In the present play, the realistic element in the dialogue is more notable than the decorative, and this realism is employed in the service of a new type of humor. "He was the first," says Gummere, "to blend romantic drama with a realism which turns romance back upon itself, and produces the comedy of subconscious humor."

ROBERT GREENE

Greene was much given to the mingling of autobiography with his fiction, and this has resulted in a much larger body of possibly true biographical details than we possess concerning most of his contemporaries. He was born in Norwich of a respectable family, probably about 1550; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1575; graduated B. A. in 1578; travelled in Spain and Italy, and, by his own account, lived up to the proverbial reputation of the Italianate Englishman; returned to Cambridge and took his M. A. in 1581; and during the rest of his short life biased himself in the production of the very considerable mass of romances, tracts, songs, and plays which to-day give him his place in literature. About 1585 he married a Lincolnshire woman, who bore him a son, and whom he deserted after spending her portion. The annals of literature hardly bear the record of a more sordid career than that of this university-bred man of letters; and his death was only too fitting a close to it. He died in 1592 in the house of a poor shoemaker, to whom he gave a bond for ten pounds, leaving the following letter to his deserted wife: "Doll, I charge thee by the love of our youth and by my soul's rest that thou wilt see this man paid, for if he and his wife had not succoured me I had died in the streets.
Robert Greene. Following his own wish, the shoemaker's wife crowned his head with a garland of bay.

In spite of the self-confessed wickedness of his ways, Greene was not a hardened criminal, and so themes are more frequent in his tracts than moral exhortation and repentance. It is further notable that his work is freer from grossness than that of most of his contemporary playwrights, and he is distinguished for the freshness and purity of his female creations. He seems also, to judge from his plays, to have retained a love for the country, where he often chose to lay his scenes; and he ranks high among the lyricists of the time. The vivacity and variety of his humor are well exemplified in the play here printed.

CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE

Christopher Marlowe was the eldest son of a substantial burgess of Canterbury, and he was born in that city on February 6, 1564. He entered the King's School in January, 1579, and two years later became a scholar of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, whence he graduated B. A. in 1584, and M. A. in 1587. As Tamburlaine was acted in that year, it appears that Marlowe's academic and his literary life overlapped. Little is certainly known of his later life, apart from the production of his plays and poems. He belonged to a circle of which Sir Walter Raleigh was the centre, and which contained men like the Earl of Oxford, and Harriot, the mathematician. These men seem to have engaged in scientific and theological speculation, and were suspected of atheism by the narrower spirits of the time. This connection was probably the basis for certain extreme charges made against Marlowe after his death; but there is little evidence worthy of consideration. Even the documents connected with Kyd, in which that author seeks to save his own reputation for orthodoxy at Marlowe's expense, are under suspicion in point of genuineness. Marlowe died by the hand of a certain Francis Archer, at Deptford, in 1593, but the circumstances are obscure. The later reports, such as that according to which he was stabbed by a serving man in a brawl over a mistress, are inconsistent with one another, and are little worthy of credit. The prevailing impression of the dissoluteness of Marlowe's life is not based on substantial evidence such as we have, for example, in the case of Greene.

No such uncertainty as surrounds his character and career attaches to the quality of his work. Born in the same year as Shakespeare, he left behind him at twenty-nine work which far surpasses anything his great contemporary had written by that time. In the vastness and intensity of his imagination, the splendid dignity of his verse, and the dazzling brilliance of his poetry at its best, Marlowe exhibited the greatest genius that had so far appeared in the English drama.

THOMAS KYD

The date of Kyd's birth may with practical certainty be placed in 1558. His father was a London scrivener, and the son was educated at Merchant Taylors' School, which he entered in 1565. Mulcaster was then headmaster, and Edmund Spenser was among his schoolfellows. He does not seem to have attended a university. A habit of anonymity has thrown a cloud over the extent of Kyd's literary activity, and the list of his plays and translations has been compiled with difficulty and much less than complete certainty. His fame depends upon The Spanish Tragedy, and upon the importance of his contribution to the Senecan tragedy of revenge in this work and probably in the lost pre-Shakespearean Hamlet, which is now usually ascribed to him.

The later years of his life seem to have been unfortunate, and he was arrested on charges of sedition and atheism in 1593. From the latter he sought, if the letter to Puckering (Boas, p. cvii.) is genuine, to clear himself by ascribing the ownership of the incriminating documents to the dead Marlowe, and he endeavored to minimise the closeness of his intimacy with his great contemporary. These charges, it appears, lost him his patron, and perhaps in some degree his theatrical popularity. He died in 1594.

Kyd seems to have been a man of gloomy temperament, and the vividness and intensity with which he presents in his work the darker sides of human nature and experience are probably in some degree the outcome of his own disposition. In spite of tendencies to melodrama that, to the modern taste, border on the ludicrous, Kyd rises at times to the utterance of genuine passion, and even his sensationalism is frequently impressive. But his historical importance in the development of the type of tragedy of which Hamlet is the climax must be granted to be greater than his intrinsic value.

GEORGE CHAPMAN

George Chapman was born in Hitchin, Hertfordshire, in 1557 or 1558, and was educated at Oxford, and perhaps also at Cambridge. His earliest extant work is The Shadow of Night (1594), which was followed in 1595 by Ovid's Banquet of Senses, The Amorous Zodiac, and other poems, works curiously obscure and contorted in style, though containing distinguished passages. In 1596, he finished M-
BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

LOWE'S INCOMPLETE HERO AND LEANDER, AND WHEN MERES PUBLISHED HIS PALLADIUS TAMIA IN THAT YEAR, CHAPMAN WAS ALREADY WELL-KNOWN AS A PLAYWRIGHT. HIS REPUTATION, HOWEVER, IS MOST FIRMLY BASED ON HIS TRANSLATIONS FROM HOMER, ISSUED IN DETACHMENTS IN 1586, 1609, 1611, AND 1614, AND COMPLETE IN FOLIO IN 1616. IN THIS WORK HE WAS ENCOURAGED BY PRINCE HENRY, TO WHOM HE WAS "SEWER IN ORDINARY." HE WAS IMPRISONED IN 1606 ALONG WITH JONSON AND MARSTON ON ACCOUNT OF THE PASSAGES AGAINST THE SCOTS IN EASTWARD HO! AND IN 1608 HE AGAIN HAD DIFFICULTIES WITH THE AUTHORITIES ON ACCOUNT OF A SCENE IN CHARLES, DUKE OF BYRON. HE CONTINUED HIS WORK IN TRANSLATION AND IN THE DRAMA TILL HIS DEATH IN 1634.

THOUGH ONE CAN HARDLY FEEL THAT CHAPMAN'S NATURAL GIFT WAS THOSE OF A DRAMATIST, THE EVIDENCES OF INTELLECTUAL POWER, AND THE ALMOST SHAKESPEAREAN SPLENDOR OF THE POETRY IN OCCASIONAL PASSAGES THROUGHOUT HIS WORK, ENTITLED HIM TO AN HONORABLE PLACE AMONG THE WRITERS OF THE TIME.

BEN JONSON

Ben Jonson came of an Annandale family, and was born at Westminster in 1573. He followed his stepfather's trade of bricklaying for a short time, and later served as a soldier in Flanders. He probably began play-writing about 1596, and two years later we find him in the Admiral's Company of actors. In 1598 he is mentioned by Meres as a writer of tragedy, and in the same year he killed a fellow-actor in a duel. In prison he became a Roman Catholic, but returned to the Church of England twelve years later. He scored a success with Every Man in His Humour in 1598, Shakespeare acting a part in the play. After several years of work on satirical drama, Jonson turned to tragedy; and on the accession of James I, he began his long series of masques and court entertainments. In 1606 he was again in prison, this time for his share in Eastward Ho! From this date till about 1617 Jonson was at the height of his fame, and was the leading literary figure in London. He visited France in 1613 as tutor to Raleigh's son; and in 1616 issued a folio edition of his works. In 1618, he visited Scotland, and held his famous conversations with Drummond of Hawthorned; and, on his return, Oxford made him an M. A. After the death of James I, Jonson was less fortunate in court favor, suffered from ill health, and was unsuccessful at the theatre. In 1628, however, he succeeded Middleton as chronicler to the city of London, and the King sent him £100 in his sickness, later raising his salary. But fortune turned against him again; he lost his city office, made further attempts to regain theatrical favor, and died August 6, 1637. Besides plays, he left an interesting prose work, Timber, or Discoveries, and a considerable amount of non-dramatic verse. A second folio edition of his Works appeared in 1640.

Jonson's artistic ideals were classical rather than romantic, and he stands, in significant respects, in opposition to some of the main literary currents of his time. The plays in the present volume include an example of the "comedy of humours" introduced by him, a typical example of his tragedy, and two of his satirical masterpieces. In these alone one can find abundant evidence that, despite a lack of charm and geniusity, one is dealing with the work of a deep student of human nature, a vigorous and independent thinker, and a master of eloquent and virile expression.

THOMAS DEKKER

DEKKER'S CAREER IS AN EXTREME INSTANCE OF THE HAZARDOUS LIFE LED BY THE PROFESSIONAL AUTHOR IN THE TIME OF SHAKESPEARE. BORN IN LONDON ABOUT 1570, DEKKER FIRST APPEARS CERTAINLY AS A DRAMATIST ABOUT 1597, WHEN WE FIND HIM WORKING ON PLAYS IN COLLABORATION WITH OTHER DRAMATISTS IN THE PAY OF HENSLOWE. HE WROTE, IN PARTNERSHIP OR ALONE, MANY DRAMAS; AND WHEN THE MARKET FOR THESE WAS DULL, HE TURNED TO THE WRITING OF ENTERTAINMENTS, OCCASIONAL VERSES, AND PROSE PAMPHLETS ON A GREAT VARIETY OF SUBJECTS. NO WRITER OF THE TIME GIVES US A MORE VIVID PICTURE OF ELIZABETHAN LONDON. BUT ALL HIS ACTIVITY SEEMS TO HAVE FAILED TO SUPPLY A DECENT LIVELIHOOD, FOR HE WAS OFTEN IN PRISON FOR DEBT, AT ONE TIME FOR A PERIOD OF THREE YEARS; AND MOST OF THE BIOGRAPHICAL DETAILS ABOUT HIM WHICH HAVE COME DOWN TO US ARE CONNECTED WITH BORROWING MONEY, OR GETTING INTO JAIL OR OUT OF IT. HE DISAPPEARS FROM VIEW IN THE THIRTY YEARS OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

IN SPITE OF THE IMPRESSION OF GLOOM LEFT BY SUCH A RECORD, DEKKER'S PLAYS ABUND IN HIGH SPIRITS, AND THEIR GENERAL TENDENCY IN PLOT AND CHARACTERIZATION IS SANE AND WHOLESOME. EVIDENCES OF HASTY AND CARELESS WORKSMANSHIP ARE EASILY FOUND, YET HE WAS FAR FROM AN INSPIRED HAN; AND PASSAGES OF A NOBLE AND DELICATE POETRY ARE FREQUENT THROUGHOUT HIS WORK.

JOHN MARSTON

JOHN MARSTON CAME OF AN OLD SHROPSHIRE FAMILY, AND WAS BORN, PROBABLY AT COVENTRY, ABOUT 1575. HIS FATHER, WHO BORE THE SAME NAME, WAS LECTURER OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE, AND THERE IS EVIDENCE THAT THE SON WAS TRAINED FOR THE LAW. HE ENTERED BRASENOSE COLLEGE, OXFORD, IN 1592, AND, ACCORDING TO BURRELL, GRADUATED B. A. IN 1594. HIS FIRST WORK IN POETRY WAS HIS METAMORPHOSIS OF PIGMALION'S IMAGE AND CERTAIN SATIRES, 1596; AND LATER IN THE SAME YEAR APPEARED HIS SOURCES OF VILLANY. IN THE following year both books were burned on account of their licentiousness by the order of the Archbishop of Canterbury, though Marston had professed a reformatory purpose in both. In 1609 he turns to play-writing; but the florid style of his Antonio and Mellida and Antonio’s Revenge brought down on him the ridicule of Jonson in The Poetaster. The Malcontent was written during a period of reconciliation with Jonson, and in 1605 Marston collaborated with him and Chapman in Eastward Hoe; a comedy containing a passage reflecting on the Scots, which landed all three dramatists in prison.

Marston gave up play-writing in 1607, and later became a clergyman. From 1616 to 1631 he held the living of Christ Church, Hampshire, and in 1634 died in London, and was buried in the Temple Church.

The extreme tendency to satire which Jonson had attacked in Marston’s early work no longer appears to any great extent in The Malcontent, and the play exhibits favorably Marston’s capacity for the creation of well marked character and effective stage situations. An attempt has recently been made to show that he exerted a considerable influence on Shakespeare, especially in Hamlet.

THOMAS HEYWOOD

The early records of this, the most prolific of the dramatic writers of the time, are extremely scanty. The date of his birth is conjecturally placed about 1573, and he refers to himself as a native of Lincolnshire, and at one time resident at Cambridge. He begins to figure in Henslowe’s accounts in 1594 and he appears as a member of the Lord Admiral’s Company in 1598. He began writing plays with The Four Prentices of London, and in the Address to the Reader prefixed to his English Traveller (1633) he claims to have written or had a “main finger” in two hundred and twenty plays. Outside of the drama, he tried his hand at almost all sorts of literature, and the quality of his work is extremely uneven. He was still alive in 1648, but probably died soon thereafter.

Heywood’s characteristic power of eliciting powerful emotions by a sympathetic treatment of everyday conditions and events, is well illustrated by the play here printed. While much is perfunctory in his work, one constantly finds evidences of a genuine and pious spirit moved by a keen appreciation of the pathos of human life.

FRANCIS BEAUMONT

Francis Beaumont was born 1584, the son of Sir Francis Beaumont of Grace-Dieu, Leicestershire, a judge of the common pleas. He was educated at Broadgates Hall (now Pembroke College), Oxford, which he entered in 1597. On the death of his father in 1598, he left the university without a degree, and in 1600 became a member of the Inner Temple. The law, however, if he ever really studied it, was soon abandoned for poetry; and Beaumont became an intimate of Jonson and his circle at the Mermaid. His collaboration with Fletcher began early, and seems to have been brought about by personal preference, not, like most collaboration at that time, by the exigencies of the theatrical manager. Aubrey has preserved the tradition of their domestic intimacy and similarity of tastes. Their joint-production seems to have begun about 1605, and there is no evidence that Beaumont wrote any plays after 1612. About 1613 he married, and three years later died and was buried in Westminster Abbey. He had achieved a high contemporary reputation for his non-dramatic poetry, but he survives as a dramatist.

JOHN FLETCHER

John Fletcher came of a family which has given many distinguished names to English literature. His father was Richard Fletcher, Bishop of London. Giles Fletcher the elder was his uncle, and Giles and Phineas Fletcher his cousins. The dramatist was born at Rye, Sussex, in 1579, and entered Benet College (now Corpus Christi), Cambridge, in 1591; but of the details of his life from this time till his appearance as a dramatist little is known. He collaborated with Beaumont from about 1605 till 1612; and, after Beaumont’s withdrawal, with Shakespeare, Jonson, Massinger, and others. He died of the plague in 1625.

The men who laid the foundations of the Elizabethan drama were generally of somewhat obscure origin; and though some of them had been educated at the universities, they were all poor. Beaumont and Fletcher were the first recruits to the profession of play-writing who came of distinguished families and habitually moved in wealthy circles; and this social environment was early suggested as an explanation of their power of representing naturally the conversation of high-born ladies and gentlemen. The general style of their plays has been thus admirably characterized by Thornole: “Their plots, largely invented, are ingenious and complicated. They deal with royal or noble persons, with heroic actions, and are placed in foreign localities. The conquests, usurpations, and passions that ruin kingdoms are their themes, there are no battles or pageants, and the action is usually confined to the rooms of the palace or its immediate neighborhood. Usually contrasting a story of roses sensual passion with one of idyllic love, they introduce a great variety of incidents, and aim at constant but varied excitement. . . . The plays depend for interest not on their observation or revelation of human nature, or the development of character, but on the variety of situations, the clever construction that holds the interest through one suspense to another up to the unravelling at the very end, and on the naturalness, felicity, and vigor of the poetry."

JOHN WEBSTER

The dates 1580–1625 are usually given as conjectures for Webster's birth and death, exact information being entirely lacking. His father was a member of the Merchant Taylors' Company, of which the son was likewise a freeman; but this does not imply that he was actually a tailor. In 1602, we find him collaborating with seven others in the production of four plays for Henslowe, and the rest of his biography consists in the discussion of the dates of his works. Webster's tragedies come towards the close of the great series of tragedies of blood and revenge in which The Spanish Tragedy and Hamlet are landmarks, but before decadence can fairly be said to have set in. Webster, indeed, loads his scene with horrors almost past the point which modern taste can bear; but the intensity of his dramatic situations, and his superb power of flashing in a single line a light into the recesses of the human heart at the crisis of supreme emotion, redeem him from mere sensationalism, and place his best plays in the first rank of dramatic writing.

THOMAS MIDDLETON

The date of Middleton's birth is unknown, but is conjecturally placed about 1570. He came of good family, and his writings indicate that he received a good education. We know, however, nothing about his early training before his entering Gray's Inn, probably in 1593. His plays abound in allusions to law and pictures of lawyers.

The earliest evidence of his writing for the stage is in the date of The Old Law, which was probably composed by Middleton about 1599, and later revised by Massinger and W. Rowley. He was much employed in the writing of pageants and masques, especially by the city, and in 1612 he obtained the post of city chronicler. In 1624 he gave expression to the popular hatred of Spain in his allegorical play, A Game at Chess, which scored a great success, but which was ultimately suppressed at the instigation of the Spanish ambassador, and led to a warrant for Middleton's arrest. He died in 1627.

In his comedies Middleton shows himself a keen observer of contemporary life and manners, and few writers of the time have left a more vivid picture of the London of James I. "His later plays," says Herford, "show more concentrated as well as more versatile power. His habitual occupation with depraved types, becomes an artistic method; he creates characters which fascinate without making the smallest appeal to sympathy, tragedy which harrows without rousing either pity or terror, and language which disdains charm, but penetrates by remorseless veracity and by touches of strange and sudden power."

WILLIAM ROWLEY

William Rowley was born about 1565. He was an actor as well as a dramatist, and is sometimes confused with two other actors, Ralph and Samuel Rowley. In his earlier years he wrote some non-dramatic verse, mostly of a conventional kind. His most important work was done in collaboration with Middleton, with whom he worked from 1614, but he had many other literary partners. His verse is apt to be rough and irregular, his humor broad and rollicking rather than fine, his serious scenes tending to extravagance and bombast. But his constant employment to cooperate with greater men, or revise their work, points to a general serviceability and a capacity for theatrical effectiveness. His death is conjecturally placed about 1642.

PHILIP MASSINGER

Philip Massinger was born at Salisbury, in November, 1583. His father was in the service of the Earls of Pembroke, and it has been conjectured that the future dramatist was named after the Countess's brother, Sir Philip Sidney. He entered St. Alban Hall, Oxford, in 1602, and left four years later without a degree, having, according to Wood, "applied his mind more to poetry and romances than to logic and philosophy." On coming to London he seems to have turned at once to writing for the stage; and, after Beaumont retired from play-writing, Massinger became Fletcher's chief partner and warm friend. All Massinger's relations with his fellow-authors of which we have record seem to have been pleasant; and the impression of his personality which one derives from his work is that of a dignified, hard-working, and conscientious man. He seems to have been much interested in public affairs, and he at times came into collision with the authorities on account of the introduction into his plays of more or less veiled allusions to political personages and events. He died in 1640, and was buried in St. Saviour's, Southwark, in the same grave, it is said by Cokayne, as his friend Fletcher.

Massinger's great merit lies in his masterly conduct of plot. His characters are usually of a somewhat conventional type, his pictures of passion tend to sheer extravagance, and his ethical quality has in it something mechanical. His verse is often eloquent, but the dialogue is often preposterously remote from life. Yet so skilful was he in the manipulation of the action that he usually holds the attention without difficulty; and in the present play this power is combined with a singularly forceful presentation of the main character and a fairly obvious didacticism that together kept the drama on the stage almost down to modern times.

JOHN FORD

John Ford was born at Ilsington in Devonshire in April, 1586, of good family. A man of his name entered Exeter College, Oxford, in 1601; but if this was our Ford, his stay was short, for he became a member of the Middle Temple in November, 1602. Of the rest of his career we know almost nothing, except the names of people to whom he dedicated his plays and verses. He disappears after the publication of his last play in 1633. He seems to have been a man of somewhat melancholy temperment, independent in his attitude towards the public taste, and capable of espousing unpopular causes.

Ford's dramas show a tendency to deal with illicit and even incestuous love in a peculiar mood, the dramatist frequently creating strong sympathy for the tempted and the sinner, and leaving the question of guilt open. This, along with his fondness for the theatrical and the sensational, has led to his being frequently chosen as an example of the decadence of the drama. The charge is not to be denied; but in spite of these defects, he shows a power of insight into suffering and perplexity, and writes at times poetry of such beauty and tenderness, that he remains a figure of much intrinsic interest as well as historical importance.

JAMES SHIRLEY

James Shirley, often called "the last of the Elizabatheads," was born in London in September, 1596, and was educated at Merchant Taylors' School and St. John's College, Oxford. Later he went to Catherine Hall, Cambridge, whence he graduated. About 1619 he took orders, and obtained a living at St. Albans, Hertfordshire; but resigned to enter the church of Rome, and became master of the St. Albans grammar school in 1623. His first play was licensed in 1625, and from this time till the closing of the theatres he devoted himself to the writing of plays and masques, gaining both popular success and the patronage of the court. With the outbreak of the Civil War, Shirley followed his patron, the Earl of Newcastle, to the field; but after Marston Moor he returned to London, published some of his earlier writings, and resumed teaching. Some of his plays were revived at the Restoration, but he wrote no more. He and his second wife were driven from their home by the fire of London in 1666, and both died from shock on the same day.

Shirley wrote many non-dramatic poems, graceful enough but conventional; few of them are read today. Out of nearly forty dramas, seven are tragedies, the rest chiefly romantic comedies and comedies of manners. He was a careful student of the work of his predecessors, and he reproduced many of their dramatic effects with skill. He had a distinct comic gift, and his power in tragedy may be judged by The Cardinal. With Shirley, more than with any of his fellow-playwrights, one feels the disadvantage of coming so late in the development of this phase of the drama that originality of conception seems almost impossible. That he is still able to amuse and to thrill with the old instruments is proof of his capacity as a literary workman; and he should not be denied the possession of passages where he displays touches of imagination all his own.
